Father Charged In Killings

NEW YORK (AP) - On the outside, the Robert Rowes' home was a stately example of the American dream - a white shingled, split level $80,000 house with manicured lawn. Inside, neighbors say, it was a cauldron of conflict, where the spectre of failure haunted everything.

The neighbors heard nothing early Wednesday morning when Mary Rowe, 46, and her three children - Robert Jr., 14, Christopher, 12, and Jennifer, 7, - were beaten to death with a baseball bat allegedly wielded by Robert Rowe, 48.

Police found him sitting by the kitchen stove with the gas running after neighbors reported the odor of gas. Officers took Rowe to a hospital where he was expected to remain until his arraignment on murder charges. He was reported in fair condition.

According to neighbors, Rowe, a lawyer, had been unemployed for some time. Several years ago he was hospitalized after suffering a nervous collapse. He found himself unable to hang onto jobs, working for an insurance company and as a cab driver before he and his wife decided that he should run the house and she should go to work.

This was a tragic case of role reversal. Bob was from the old school. He hated being home while Mary worked. He was not living up to his self image," said Lisa Shaw, a neighbor and co-owner of the fuel oil company where Mrs. Rowe worked as a secretary.

Robert Jr. suffered from a debilitating hip ailment. Christopher was born retarded, deaf, mute and blind from a genetic birth defect. The youngest child, Jennifer, was adopted because the Rowes feared having another impaired child.

The Rowes were determined to raise Christopher themselves, even though he

Knorpp Back To Work

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Suspended Potter County Attorney Kerry Knorpp, who faces felony theft charges, has returned to work while the location of his upcoming trial remains uncertain.

State District Judge Arthur Tipps of Wichita Falls recessed a change of venue hearing Wednesday and said he hoped to hear today from State District Judge John McFall of Lubbock on whether the trial could be held there.

Knorpp was reinstated in his job Thursday following a four-month suspension with pay. The reinstatement came after Tipps denied a motion here Wednesday for a new trial of a civil suit to remove Knorpp.

A civil jury here cleared Knorpp in January of 24 allegations of misapplication of county money. But he still faces criminal trial in connection with similar allegations.

The prosecution has been attempting to get the trial moved to another town. Tipps said he would resume the hearing here if no Lubbock judge would agree to hold the trial.

Knorpp does not want a change of venue, but his lawyers, who live in Lubbock, said they would not oppose a move if it is to Lubbock.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter summoned the top industry executives to the White House today, sources said, as the administration intensified pressure to end the 81-day coal strike.

The striking United Mine Workers, meanwhile, reached tentative agreements with two more independent coal companies. The terms were reportedly identical to a tentative agreement reached earlier this week with Pittsburgh & Midway Coal Mining Co.

The White House meeting with executives of coal-owning steel and oil companies represents the Carter administration's most vigorous attempt thus far to jawbone the coal industry to accept the terms of the P&M contract.

Summoned to the meeting were executives of U.S. Steel Corp., Continental Oil and Occidental Petroleum, major members of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, the main industry bargaining arm.

U.S. Steel is the country's sixth largest coal company. Continental Oil owns Consolidation Coal, the country's second-largest producer.

Occidental Petroleum owns Island Creek Coal Co., fourth-largest in the country.

Officials were hopeful the industry might be ready to give in to the union's "bottom line" contract demands.

"I think it's in the death rattle stage," said one official.

The two independent mine companies are located in Eastern Kentucky.

Bit by bit, the Carter administration has been sending the coal industry a message in recent days: Give in to UMW contract demands or be prepared for presidential intervention in the bitter strike.

As new strike-related layoffs were announced Thursday, the White House stepped up the pressure on the Bituminous Coal Operators Association to end the walkout.

President Carter met with three coal-state governors, all of whom emerged from the White House urging the industry to accept the miners' latest offer - which one governor called "the only game in town."

The Senate, taking time out from its debate on the proposed Panama Canal treaties, set aside an hour today to discuss the strike.

And White House special trade negotiator Robert S. Strauss reportedly was meeting with major steel companies owning captive coal mines, trying to persuade them to break with the BCOA and accept a contract reached independently by the UMW and one company.

Administration officials said the idea for the Senate session originated with the chamber's leadership. They said they were hopeful it would increase pressure for a negotiated settlement.

"We hope that out of this debate there will be a strong showing of solidarity... that a negotiated settlement is, by far, infinitely better" than a

150 Rural Women Meet in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some wear fur coats and carry Gucci tote bags. Others, jeans and T-shirts. But, rural women all, they are meeting to exchange ways of overcoming their common problem: isolation.

"The farm becomes the woman's whole world," says Joyce Dukes of Knoxville, Tenn. "Problems of transportation, communications and small incomes only enforce that isolation."

More than 150 women are attending Washington's first leadership conference for rural women. They are sharing experiences, swapping ideas and learning that country women have the same problems as their big city sisters and more, especially the seclusion of the farm.

"The problems are no different from those of urban America, but there is a special depth to our concerns," said Jane Threatt, who organized the conference.

"Rural women have never been identified before and they've never had a voice in Washington. This is an opportunity to develop strategies for such issues like health services, jobs, education, energy and environment," Ms. Threatt said Thursday.

The woman works as an equal partner all her life to her husband, but she is not treated as a wage-earner by the Internal Revenue Service," said Margie Chapman, an attorney from Little Rock, Ark.

"So when her husband dies, she has to pay taxes for what is rightfully hers and is often forced to sell the farm - the only life she has ever known," she said.

"I'd like to learn how to paint but I can't drive 130 miles every day to Bismarck for a course," said Bea Peterson, who farms wheat on 4,000 acres of land near Dickinson, N.D.

"Couldn't art teachers come to us?" "Rural women have fewer options," said Dr. Carolyn Carr of Huntington, W.Va., who is concerned about the problems of battered farm wives. "The law does not always go back into the hills."

Marie Cirillo, a former nun, said she came to the conference from Clairfield, Tenn. "not because of particular women's problems but because of rural problems that maybe women can solve because obviously men can't."

Susan Braine, a member of the Assiniboine tribe in Lane Deer, Mont., said Indian women face even more problems than other rural women "because we live on reservations and have to deal with the federal government instead of county or state governments."

Other women, farm wives, talked about agriculture policies that they say make it impossible to earn a basic living from farming.

"...no one realizes how deeply we love the land and when there is an economic disaster, we are so afraid we will lose that land," said Mary Anne Vuureshoss, who raises sheep and poultry in Watkins, Minn. "My husband and I both work away from the farm so we can afford to stay on the farm."

Despite all the problems, however, she spoke lyrically about farm life:

"I am nourished by the land and the air. There is a tranquility that is wholesome and good. I would like to encourage farm women to celebrate their importance. I am not a farmer's wife. I am a farmer."

Ag Secretary: 'I Told Them They're Wrong'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Back from two hectic days of trying to sell his programs in the farm belt, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said Thursday, he will continue to promote a three-year grain reserve and acreage controls as the best way to help farmers out of their financial crunch.

The trip was "kind of hairy" at times, Bergland said. At Amarillo, he was met Tuesday with snowballs and eggs thrown by a few protesting farmers who want immediate government action to boost prices of wheat and other commodities.

At Sioux Falls, S.D., on Wednesday, a small group of farmers wearing American Agriculture strike jackets and buttons heckled Bergland.

"These programs are generally being bad-mouthed by a lot of people,"

Bergland said in an interview. "But I took it head-on and told them they're wrong."

Bergland said the American Agriculture group is among the loudest in criticizing programs he has worked out under the new farm law but that some other groups, including the National Farmers Union, also are highly critical of administration farm policy.

Despite the heckling and a travel schedule aborted because of bad weather in Fargo, N.D., where he was supposed to end his two-day trip, Bergland said he thought the venture was worthwhile and that his programs "received good press coverage."

The trip was intended to attract news coverage of the grain reserve plan, which Bergland said "is the most immediate" action farmers can take to help themselves. The plan calls for some 1 billion bushels of wheat, corn and other grain to be stored by farmers - subsidized by annual federal payments of 25 cents a bushel - for three years to help drive up market prices.

Through Feb. 15, however, farmers had signed up to put only 91.5 million bushels of 1976-crop wheat in the three-year reserve, plus much smaller amounts of corn and other grain. Bergland said he thought the reserve program would begin to enlarge substantially over the next few weeks.

In addition, farmers will enroll March 1 through May 1 in acreage set-aside programs aimed at reducing the amount of grain produced this year to help stem the buildup of wheat and corn surpluses, currently the largest since the early 1960s.

The stockpiles weigh heavily on prices of grain and Bergland restated his view that the three-year reserve would help boost farm prices by removing some of the excess from the open market for an extended period.

Bergland said he plans to make a similar trip to plug his programs in major corn states next month, probably including Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and possibly one or two others.

Bergland contends that the good weather of recent years is not likely to continue in major world grain areas and that farmers need to store excess grain now so they can take advantage of rising demand and higher prices later on.

Ag Committee Supports Dole Farm Amendment

Members of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Agriculture Committee met Thursday to consider two pieces of proposed farm legislation and voted to forward a resolution in support of the Dole "flexible parity" amendment to the chamber board of directors for consideration.

The Dole bill, drawn up by Kansas Republican Senator Robert Dole, would amend the current farm bill and essentially allow a farmer to set his own target price for commodities for a one year period according to the amount of land he lays out.

Ag committee members present looked over both the Dole bill and the Nolan and Brown farm bill introduced by California and Minnesota congressmen during Thursday's session, and heard reports that the Dole Bill is apparently most favored by local farmers.

Nuclear Security Tightened at Compounds

WASHINGTON (AP) - The military says it is "tightening" security at compounds where nuclear weapons are stored after a reporter in a series of stories showed that he had access to the compounds without being checked.

Joseph Albright, a reporter for Cox Newspapers, recounted before a congressional committee on Thursday how he posed as a contractor, used his true identification cards and easily got near six hydrogen bombs.

"Things have been tightened up. The next contractor who shows up is going to be checked," Assistant Defense Secretary Donald R. Cotter told the House military construction appropriations subcommittee.

Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., chairman of the subcommittee, said he was concerned that terrorists could find access to such military installations and "sabotage base after base."

"We could be Pearl Harbor'd far worse than we were in 1941," he declared.

But after the hearing military officials tried to convince Long that Albright could not have sabotaged the hydrogen bombs, although conceding that the reporter "woke us up" to the need of greater security.

"He the reporter didn't get into the secure area," Major Gen. William Wray, assistant chief of the Army Corps of Engineers, told Long.

Mrs. Davis Says Cullen Manipulating Courts

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) - Lawyers for Priscilla Davis say her estranged husband, millionaire Cullen Davis, is trying to use his wealth to "control and manipulate the courts of Texas."

Davis' lawyers are seeking a new judge to hear the case, contending that District Court Judge Eidsen, who has been hearing the case, testified for the prosecution at Davis' murder trial in Amarillo where Davis was found innocent in the shooting death of his step-daughter.

Davis' lawyers said Eidsen is in an "awkward position" now because of his testimony.

Meanwhile, Tarrant County District Attorney Tim Curry said he will delay his decision on whether to prosecute Davis on three felony charges until after the divorce proceedings, which are due to start in April.

Davis still faces a capital murder charge in the death of Stan Farr and two attempted murder charges, all stemming from the shootings at the Davis mansion on an August night in 1976.

Most Cities Don't Meet EPA Standards

WASHINGTON (AP) - America's cities must do more to clean up the air around them because most of them still do not meet national air pollution standards, the Environmental Protection Agency says.

The EPA said in a report Thursday that although the air residents of the country's major urban areas breathe is cleaner than it was eight years ago, it still does not meet federal guidelines.

EPA Administrator Douglas Costle said the agency would allow states "all the flexibility the law allows in meeting their clean air goals."

He added, however, that urban centers "must develop new strategies for continuing their progress towards meeting... national air pollution standards."

The EPA report said three major metropolitan areas - Chicago-Northwest Indiana, Los Angeles-Long Beach in California, and Aurora-Elgin in Illinois - failed to meet federal standards on all five pollutants tested.

Among metropolitan areas, only Honolulu, Hawaii was not found in violation of any of the federal standards.

Carter Supports Sadat For Using Force

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter in a private message to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, expressed support for Sadat's decision to use military force to try to free hostages held by two Palestinian gunmen in Cyprus this week, it was learned.

The White House said Thursday that Carter in the message extended condolences to the families of 15 Egyptian commandos killed in fighting with Cypriot soldiers during the attempt at Larnaca Airport last Sunday.

Jerrold Schecter, a White House spokesman, declined comment on the aspect of the Carter message which supported the Egyptian decision to send the commando team to Cyprus.

The two gunmen, who earlier had killed a leading Egyptian newspaper editor and personal friend of Sadat's, surrendered before the Egyptians reached the plane in which the hostages were being held. All the hostages were safe.

The gun battle between the Egyptians and the Cypriot forces resulted in the breaking of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

The Abundant Life

NO ILL-WILL

BY BOB WEAR

ILL-WILL IS EASY to justify, or so it seems to be. This, however, does not mean that it merits a place in our emotions. Of course, all of us will be displeased once in awhile; but we must not take too much of the incident. In fact, we will be much better off, in every way, if we minimize such happenings. If our displeasure is nurtured, it will soon grow into ill-will.

WE CANNOT AFFORD ILL-WILL, not even when by general agreement, it seems justified. Worse than what may be called "ill-will with good reason" is the ill-will "without cause". Oftentimes persons become the object of antipathy and resentment without having said or done anything; "just because". In such instances, all of the problem is with the person who holds the ill-will. This is one of the very worse of all undesirable human ugliness and evil.

OPI Exec To Meet With Seniors

MILTON MORRIS, executive vice president of Opportunity Plan, Inc., will be in Hereford Tuesday for an assembly with other school seniors, parents and other interested persons.

He will speak at 8:40 a.m. in the high school auditorium.

Morris will be available for consultation concerning financial aid at colleges in the counselor's office following the assembly.

WE SEEK HARMONY with life, and do so because of an inborn drive associated with a constantly recognized need. How well we attain this harmony is probably one of the great unknowns. Of course, it is not unattainable; but it does not become a reality by accident, or by some sort of mystical, incomprehensible happening.

WE MUST LEARN how to attain harmony with life. This means that we must learn what causes the discords and the sour notes so we can avoid these. This, however, is not all. We must learn what produces the harmony; that is, we must find the standards, guidelines, etc. to which we can attune our views and actions. Thus, harmony becomes a blessed reality.

ILL-WILL PROBABLY causes as much disharmony as any one thing. It may be the greatest of all deterrents to the general well-being of people. "It is impossible for anyone to have the inner tranquility which comes from harmony with life, while he is allowing himself to nurse ill-will against anyone else." - Carrington.

WE CAN PREVENT our feeling of ill-will toward others, if we keep our thinking straight; and, by discreet and charitable behavior, we can prevent or overcome much of it in the feelings of others toward us.

FEC Fined For Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Farmers Export Company of Galveston, Texas, was issued citations and proposed penalties totaling $116,000 Thursday by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration OSHA for alleged violations of job safety and health standards in connection with a grain elevator explosion that killed 18 workers and injured 21 others.

The $116,000 total is the second-largest proposed penalty in OSHA history ranking second to the $215,900 penalty assessed to U.S. Steel in Chicago on Wednesday.

FBI To Probe Brutality Charge

UVALDE, Texas (AP) - The FBI will begin an investigation "in the very near future" into complaints by local citizens of alleged police brutality here.

Edward J. O'Malley, assistant agent in charge of the San Antonio FBI office, confirmed the agency had been asked by Uvalde Mayor Charles M. Cain Jr. to probe the accusations against three policemen.

O'Malley said "a number of incidents" involving Uvalde policemen will be studied.

However, the Uvalde attorney who first brought the complaints to the attention of the City Council says he is not satisfied with an FBI investigation.

Attorney Alonzo Villareal Jr. said Wednesday he still wants a committee appointed by the council to probe policies and procedures of the Uvalde Police Department.

A meeting scheduled for Thursday night to appoint an investigating committee was cancelled by Cain after he asked FBI to look into the allegations.

Cain, in a prepared statement Wednesday, said he called the FBI in "to insure the citizens and police officers have a fair and impartial investigation."

Villareal said Wednesday he was hoping the inquiry board, which Cain cancelled, would recommend new policies and procedures for the police department that would prevent future incidents.

"This way with the FBI probe, there is no definite commitment to implement changes in the police department," Villareal said. He said his group would continue to press for appointment of a board to look into police practices.

Villareal also said written complaints against three policemen would be given FBI investigators when they begin their investigation.

Today's action followed OSHA's investigation of the Dec. 27, 1977, blast.

Farmers Export Company has 15 working days to contest OSHA's findings, said OSHA spokesman James Foster. "If they don't contest it, then it's fact," added Foster.

The firm was cited for six "serious violations" calling for automatic $1,000 fines and 11 "willful violations" calling for fines of up to $10,000 each. OSHA fined the firm the maximum $10,000.

The OSHA law also prescribes criminal sanctions for a willful violation of a standard resulting in the death of an employee. OSHA noted today in a written release that added the Department of Labor is "determining whether to recommend criminal action to the Department of Justice in this case."

"The actions we are taking today as a result of our investigation are a clear signal of our firm intention to get serious about serious hazards wherever we encounter them," said Dr. Eula Bingham, OSHA's director. "Hopefully, other grain elevator operators are making changes needed to prevent future tragic disasters such as these."

OSHA is still investigating several other grain elevator explosions that occurred during December.

reach a negotiated settlement, Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll said the only likely settlement was one based on the P&M agreement. Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp termed it "the only game in town."

"It's time for the operators to understand that the negotiations essentially are over," Carroll said after the White House meeting.

Carroll predicted there could be widespread power blackouts in Midwestern and mid-Atlantic states within two weeks if coal doesn't begin moving again.

that they won't be butchered up in committees," he said.

Further evidence that some in American Agriculture are doing their homework involves what the farmer described as the political realities of getting legislation through a Democratic-controlled Congress and accepted by a Democratic president.

"If Mr. Dole puts his name on a bill, he's on the minority side," the farmer said. "We'd probably prefer - and we hate to get into politics, but I guess we're going to have to get anything done - a Democrat to introduce something we really want."

The recognition by some in American Agriculture that political realities are involved is a step which Bergland urged the group from its beginning last fall to comprehend and use to its advantage.

There is no evidence, however, that American Agriculture will soon evolve into a slick lobbying institution. The group today still relies on visibility to attract attention by its tractor parades, solidarity at congressional hearings and, in the case of a minority faction - boos, jeers, eggs and snowballs.

Complaints of brutality were required round-the-clock care. They were regarded as model parents and sometimes lectured on handling the handicapped.

Several years ago, while trying to determine whether Christopher's ailment was genetic, Rowe learned from his mother that she had given birth to a son who had to be institutionalized from birth.

Rowe and his mother had a bitter argument, and she cut him out of her will shortly before her death about two years ago.

Police say Rowe slipped into the children's bedrooms before they awoke Wednesday.

Robert Jr. was found in his bed, covered with a comforter, with his face and forehead bashed in.

Christopher and Jennifer, who shared a room, were found dead in their beds. Blood was splattered over the bedclothes, headboards, furniture and walls.

Mrs. Rowe probably never knew her children were dead, officers said. She was found on the living room floor dressed as though she had been on her way to work.

Mrs. Shaw said Rowe called her Wednesday morning to say his wife would not be in that day. "He asked me not to bother her during the day," she said.

Coal

government-imposed end to the strike, said one official, who asked not to be named.

In meetings with congressional leaders and the coal-state governors, Carter won support for intervention.

Aides said Carter would act by the weekend if no contract agreement were reached.

"We are talking about a small amount of time left before drastic action will be taken," said West Virginia Gov. Jay Rockefeller.

The only way for the strike to be resolved short of presidential intervention, Rockefeller said, is "for the operators to say yes to the P&M contract."

The UMW reached a tentative contract accord on Monday with the Pittsburgh & Midway Coal Mining Co., a major independent. The union's bargaining council, which must approve any contract, voted Wednesday to make the terms of the accord its "bottom line" for an industrywide settlement.

The industry earlier this week rejected the contract as unacceptable, but a spokesman had no comment Thursday following the governors' statement.

Ag Group Learning D.C. Ropes

WASHINGTON (AP) - American Agriculture, which has relied heavily on the politics of confrontation, is showing signs of developing political savvy of a traditional kind.

Although it still is loosely-knit and proclaims itself without formal leadership, some insiders admit privately that "we're catching on" to how things are done in Congress.

These involve a relative handful of group members who have remained in Washington to how Congress, the Agriculture Department and the Carter administration react to its demands.

Some of the farmers admit that the incident involving a few of their fellows throwing snowballs and eggs at Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland when he was in Amarillo, Texas, earlier this week has hurt their public image.

But as one farmer said Thursday, the group generally has refrained from physical violence in making itself felt in Washington. At House and Senate committee hearings on farm issues, farmers often are vocal, but they have not resorted to eggs or snowballs to make their points.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and Rep.

Jack E. Hightower, D-Texas, have introduced bills which would create a "flexible parity" plan to give farmers higher prices when they voluntarily reduce crop production.

Under this concept, for example, if farmer opted to set aside 50 percent of his wheat land from production, he could get full parity - about $5 a bushel - for wheat that he did produce. The federal guarantee would be scaled down for farmers who set aside less of their acreage.

At a meeting here late Wednesday, the Washington crew of American Agriculture adopted a resolution giving support to "the concept of 100 percent parity for those producers reducing production in order to reach a fair price for their products."

But an American Agriculture spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said the group stopped short of endorsing either Dole's or Hightower's bill.

One reason, he said, is that the group felt that a newly introduced bill is a long way from being law and there are many legislative hazards along the way.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:
Would you please publish this as an "Open Letter to Bedford Forrest"? I called him at Channel 7 and he hung up when I would not identify myself. I know that is policy and not a bad one, probably. What I wanted to say is this:

What right do you have to apologize for the farmers concerning the egg-throwing incident and Secretary Bergland? You have the tv audience at your disposal. You can vent your own opinion at will. Remember that you are more a reporter than a farmer.

Those farmers who threw eggs and snowballs don't have a tv audience. They also can't afford to go to Washington. The man in Washington who represents them came here and would not talk to the people he is supposed to represent. Those farmers who were sent by their fellows to Washington also were not able to talk to him.

Bergland went to ASCS government employees to try to force his personal "prestige" trip on them. Bergland can be glad the farm people are jovial enough to throw eggs and snowballs. You and I know he deserves a lot worse. He should be impeached along with all the "prestige trippers" who have to be manipulated by others.

You failed, in your apology, to mention the police who lost their cool, pulling out their guns. Every good cause has its martyrs, I suppose.

You say you are sorry and apologize for the farmers. One wonders what you would have said if you would have been "on the same scene" reporting for Christ when he drove the money changers and cheaters from the temple.

Farmers are carrying the load for the whole nation, but its not only the farmers who are going broke - the nation is. The net farm income per year is less than one-tenth of the amount paid by our nation in interest.

Could it be that you are quite prestige-minded too, and are afraid that because you have been a voice for us through the media that you might get a little bad publicity by standing up for us at the first occasion of venting a little steam?

I did not care to identify myself because you may have apologized for me, also. Save your apologies. We are finding out who we can depend on in our struggle to save this nation. Tell it like it is, Bedford. Bergland just doesn't appreciate an egg shampoo and a soft-water rinse.

Sincerely,
A Farm Wife

TRC Amends Bus Ruling For Schools

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Texas Railroad Commission says it has amended a 1969 rule to make it easier for schools to provide charter service for group trips by bus.

The 1969 rule limited groups of students 18 and younger to making trips either in school buses or on carriers holding specific charter authority from the commission.

Under the change, the commission said, school-sponsored groups will be allowed more leeway in choosing charter services.

The City of Dallas, owner and operator of the Dallas Transit System, and several bus companies with charter authority opposed the change, the commission said in a statement.

Committee Probes Miller Payment

WASHINGTON (AP) - Textron Chairman G. William Miller's chances of heading the Federal Reserve Board rest on whether the Senate believes he told the truth about a Textron payment to an Iranian firm.

The issue has nothing to do with monetary policy, bank regulation, interest rates, inflation or unemployment - matters that Miller must deal with if he is confirmed to succeed Arthur Burns as the nation's central banker.

Rather, the Senate Banking Committee wants to question Miller about his sworn testimony at his confirmation hearing last month that he knew nothing about the role of the Iranian air force's commander-in-chief in the award of a $500 million contract to Bell Helicopter, an important Textron subsidiary.

The committee also wants to know if a $2.95 million Bell payment to a firm in which the Iranian general had a silent interest was a legitimate corporate expense or an improper payoff to secure business eventually worth more than $1 billion.

On Wednesday, the committee heard the results of a month-long staff investigation, then decided to call Miller and other witnesses for two more days of open hearings next week.

Miller will be asked to explain what some committee members called "contradictions" between his testimony and what investigators have learned.

Miller, 52, was Textron president and head of its aerospace division from 1960 until 1974, when he became chairman. His nomination by President Carter as chairman of the Federal Reserve was widely hailed in the business community.

In the early 1970s, Bell negotiated with the Iranian government the largest helicopter sale in Bell's history.

Air Taxi Inc., Bell's agent for helicopter sales in Iran, received a $2.95 million payment from Bell, allegedly to settle commission claims arising from the helicopter sale.

Banking committee members are asking whether the 1977 payment was legitimate or was channeled to Iranian government officials.

A payoff at the time did not violate U.S. law. But later disclosures of payments by U.S. firms to foreign officials to clinch sales have led to the recent passage of a law barring that type of payoff.

Iranian public documents obtained by the U.S. State Department show that Gen. Mohammed Khatami, the Shah of Iran's brother-in-law and commander-in-chief of the Iranian air force, was an owner of record of Air Taxi from 1957 through 1965. Intelligence information gathered by the CIA and the Defense Department shows him as a secret owner at the time of the Bell sale.

Khatami, who died in an accident in 1975, was referred to as "No. 1" in coded messages between Bell and Air Taxi, according to the banking committee's investigators.

Business Says Divorce Not Promotion Barrier

NEW YORK (AP) - In a major shift of values, big business is removing divorce as an impediment to executive advancement, and has even begun viewing it as a prized asset in ascending the corporate pyramid.

The shift is marked. In the 1960s, the efforts of some executives to win the top job were permanently derailed because of divorce. Some who already had won the job were forced to resign after marital splits.

"If a top qualifier became divorced it was considered proof he could not manage his personal affairs and therefore couldn't be expected to manage corporate matters," is the explanation of one authority.

Now, explains Eugene Jennings, a confidential adviser to chief executives of giant corporations, and author of that viewpoint, the situation has almost become reversed, or is tending in that direction.

The divorced and single person is prized because he or she is capable of giving unremitting effort at a time when so many executives are forced to give greater priority to their families," said Jennings.

In one large corporation there is even an organization of VOSPs - those who informally and perhaps even facetiously have taken what they call "vows of single people."

Jennings, a management professor at Michigan State University and creator three decades ago of the first computer model to monitor corporate personnel movements, backgrounds the change in this manner:

As recently as the 1960s the corporate executive was viewed as the success model of a whole lifestyle. The system wanted him to be a model of the conservative virtues, including having a stable marriage.

It was a time when corporate life was much less demanding, and marriages were founded on the traditional roles of man and woman as breadwinner and homemaker. The marriage could withstand sacrifices made for the good of the company.

Today, however, the pressure of travel and of staying on top of the job have become terribly magnified. The executives often find himself faced with a decision: marriage and family, or job.

Jennings estimates that about 20 percent of those who are now nearing the top of the largest corporations have been divorced.

Of these, three out of four have remarried, but often their new relationship is that of a VOSP - two people who have decided to pursue careers without interference from traditional marital obligations.

Sheriff Faces Misconduct Charge

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - El Paso County Sheriff Mike Sullivan and his chief aide face official misconduct indictments returned against them by an El Paso County grand jury.

The charges against Sullivan, who has been sheriff here for 13 years, and the charges against Chief Deputy Stuart Palos stemmed from a three-month grand jury investigation spurred by a series of articles in the El Paso Times concerning a federally funded job training program.

Both were named in two county accusing them of official misconduct. A third sheriff's department official, Capt. Everett Riley was named in four counts accusing him of theft over $200.

Also indicted by the same grand jury were two corporations, one naming Industrial Hardware and Supply and another against Thomas Paints of El Paso. They are accused of theft over $200.

Sheriff Sullivan, Palos and

Riley were released by State District Court Judge Jerry Woodard after they posted $5,000 bond on each count.

The indictments against the corporations were not delivered Thursday, according to Capt. Mac Stout, chief of the sheriff's criminal division.

For God So Loved The World

YOU'RE AN IMPORTANT PERSON IN THE EYES OF GOD

In this age of computers, in every regard
We have all been reduced to a hole in a card.
Oh, how simple it was in our house by the road,
Till they added the Zip and the Area Code!
In your place of employment, or out in your car,
You're a serial number wherever you are;
And you find your identity harder to claim
When you're known by a number instead of a name.
So, there's one thing to do: let your faith lead the way
To the place where you still can be Someone today.
If you go to your Church, you'll be happy to find
In the eyes of the Lord you are one of a kind!

— Gloria Nowak

"For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God."
— Romans 8:14

It is the common wonder of all men, how among so many millions of faces there should be none alike.

Artistic Techniques Adapted for Cakes

Jean Lyles, owner of the Texas Art Gallery and Frame Shop, explained artistic perspective Tuesday morning at the Community Center for members of 'Sweet 'n' Fancy Decorating Club.

Mrs. Lyles stated that a better understanding of art techniques would help the club members in their decoration of cakes.

Barbara Pittard presided during the business session, during which it was announced that a program on royal icing miniatures will be presented at the next meeting, scheduled March 9. Also, Grace Gonzales was added to the club rolls as a new member.

Three guests were introduced Tuesday, including Sandy Brownlow, Joyce Geiger and LaNell Kendrick.

Members in attendance were Ruby Hickman, Evelyn Crofford, Betty Deckard, Elida Balderaz, Yolanda Guerrero, Martha Lytal, Alice Koenig, Johnnie Battey, Kathy Holmes and Margaret Gamez.

Public Invited To Sale Saturday

The public is invited to attend a White Elephant Sale from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. Saturday at the Community Center, where Friends of the local Historical Society will be trying to raise funds for the further restoration of the E.B. Black house.

By attending tomorrow's sale, Hereford citizens will be supporting the Historical Society's work at the Black site, which is an adjunct to the County Historical Museum here. Those interested in contributing to the project are invited to bring their "white elephants" to the Museum today.

Restoration work at the Black house, a continuing project, is planned this spring. The Society is currently preparing to restore the Ionic columns on the gallery porch. This work is financially possible due to L'Allegre Study Club's contribution of proceeds from their recent Antique Show.

Other work to be completed during the coming months at the house include a landscape program. Dr. Mata, professor from West Texas State University, is serving in an advisory capacity to the Historical Society in planning formal flower gardens which will occupy the northeast section of the back yard. He will also make recommendations concerning trees and shrubs for the property.

Cellulose Insulation Available In Large Variety of Forms

Editor's Note: This is the third of four articles on how to choose insulation. This article answers frequent questions about cellulose insulation.

COLLEGE STATION - In comparing cellulose with other insulation types, consumers can study several factors, including different forms of cellulose on the market, where to place them in the home, and ability to avoid possible problems, says one specialist.

Cellulose insulation is made of vegetable and wood fibers, explains Pat Seaman, a housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Generally it is made of post consumer waste such as newspapers and boxes.

FORMS AVAILABLE
Cellulose insulation is available in bags as a loose-fill form that can be poured in or blown in. Also it is available as a spray-on form. In addition it comes in blanket and batt forms, but this is not readily available in most Texas areas.

PLACES TO USE POUR-IN LOOSE-FILL CELLULOSE
Blown-in cellulose loose-fill insulation can insulate unfinished or finished attic floors and wood-frame walls between studs (in already-built homes).

PLACES TO USE SPRAY-ON CELLULOSE INSULATION
Spray-on cellulose insulation can insulate wall cavities, ceiling cavities and the underside of a roof.

WHO CAN INSTALL
Cellulose loose-fill insulation can be installed by the do-it-yourselfer.

Spray-on must be installed by a contractor.

To find a reputable contractor, ask for recommendations from the Better Business Bureau, home builders, home-improvement contractors organizations, banks and savings and loan associations.

R-NUMBER OF CELLULOSE
Cellulose has an R-value of about 3.1-3.7 per inch of thickness, when the proper density is installed.

HOW TO BE SURE LOOSE-FILL REACHES CERTAIN R-NUMBER
Remember that any loose-fill (poured-in or blown-in) may settle with time.

Slight settling may occur after installation, but if the specified amount for a particular R-number is applied, the R-value probably will remain - except when possible settling in wall cavities results in an un-insulated area at the upper end of the cavity.

To be sure the proper amount of loose-fill is installed, read the label to find out how many bags are needed for a certain area. Then initial each bag as they are emptied and count them.

ABILITY TO RESIST MOISTURE
Because of its organic, cellular-type structure, cellulose insulation will absorb moisture readily, so it is important to carefully protect it from moisture.

When cellulose does absorb moisture, it will dry back to its original state, except for possible loss of flame-retardant chemicals and possible compacting of the fibers, which can change the R-value of the insulation.

FIRE SAFETY
Cellulose insulation must be treated with certain chemicals to make it fire retardant. These chemicals may reduce the insulation's thermal resistance. Check to be sure that it meets federal specification HH-1-S1SC. Bags or containers will be clearly labeled, if it does.

Also, to keep cellulose fire safe, keep it protected from moisture - since moisture can make the flame-retardant chemicals separate from the cellulose.

Also, keep cellulose safe from high attic temperatures, since its flame-retardant chemicals may turn to a gaseous form and separate from the cellulose.

ODOR RESISTANCE
Generally, cellulose has no odor, except when it contains certain fire-retardant chemicals, or when a fungus is growing in it as a result of too much moisture or inadequate treatment.

RODENTS
Some cellulose may contain starch which attracts rodents or vermin. If so, federal specifications require the manufacturer to chemically treat it to resist vermin for the expected life of the product. Also, the label must clearly state that the insulation was treated. Boric acid is one major chemical that increases resistance to rodents and vermin.

ABILITY TO RESIST GROWTH OF FUNGI

Cellulose can be treated to prevent possible growth of fungi in it - which can happen if this insulation absorbs moisture.

Preventing growth of fungi is important, because fungi can create health problems, destroy the cellulose structure and increase the corrosive action of cellulose.

CORROSIVENESS

Cellulose fibers are non-corrosive - however, fire-retardant chemicals, such as aluminum sulphate, boric acid, ammonium sulphate and others, have been connected to subsurface corrosion of aluminum. Also, fungal growth will increase the corrosive action of cellulose.

This is important, because metal electric switch boxes or outlet boxes and metal pipes will be covered or surrounded by cellulose insulation after installation.

NEXT WEEK: A look at urea-formaldehyde foam insulation.

Improving The Odds

Cancer strikes one American in four, two families out of three. Long-term survival has improved from one-in-five to one-in-three over the years. A contribution to the American Cancer Society can help achieve an even better chance at beating cancer.

Going All Out

April is Cancer Control Month - the time in the year that American Cancer Society volunteers go door-to-door to tell people how simple health practices can better their odds against cancer. It is also an opportunity to give generously to the Society so that medical science can learn more and do more.

Ann Landers Proud Mother

DEAR ANN: May I say a few words to the man who called homemakers "glorified parasites"? He had glowing words of praise for the woman who can bring home a paycheck as well as keep the house running and "raise kids on the side."

I have met those kids who are being raised "on the side." I've bandaged their elbows and knees and kissed their bruises. I have dried their tears and rocked them in my arms. I've been their Scout leader, Sunday School teacher, and 4-H leader. Those kids are all ages, colors and nationalities. They live in large cities and small towns.

Their mothers work so they can have nicer things, but what they really want and need is more time and attention.

I am sick of being put on the defensive about my chosen career. I am a homemaker and a full-time mother because I believe it is an important and rewarding career. Thank God for those of us who WANT to stay home. Where would YOUR children be without us? - Up Front.

DEAR U.F.: You have spoken eloquently for your side and I thank you. Some mothers would flip their lids if they had to stay home. These women are better off at work - and so are their children. Mothers who feel as you do deserve the respect of those who have another viewpoint. You certainly have mine.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Because your column is "the word" in most homes throughout the United States and Canada, will you please give some space to the subject of wills? Although you have done so in the past, it bears repeating.

I have just come through a terrible experience - proof of what can happen if a will is improperly drawn. Although I was named legal heir to a large estate, I lost out after a lengthy, expensive court fight. Relatives who rarely bothered to visit or help out during the lifetime of my elderly friend ended up with everything.

Although my dear friend had an attorney draw up her will, she kept making HANDWRITTEN, UNWITNESSED additions.

Everyone should be aware of the importance of naming an executor and a co-executor. When naming the executor, he or she should be chosen with care. Age should be an important consideration. The executor and co-executor should be younger than the person writing the will - by several years.

Too bad they don't teach these things in school. Your column is the next best place to learn. - Will Aware

DEAR AWARE: To paraphrase an old saying, dear - "Where there's a will, there's a relative." And now, an added word from me.

Readers One and All: The way to make certain your money and possessions will go where you want them to go is to draw up a will with the assistance of a lawyer. Be aware that changes made at a later date must be witnessed in accordance with the laws of your state. Most states require two witnesses, some three. Without the signatures of the witnesses, the changes will not be considered valid.

CONFIDENTIAL to Suffering and in Search of Solace: Remember Ralph Waldo Emerson's comforting words - "It's the wounded oyster that mends its shell with a pearl." Hurts can be turned into something valuable. - If you learn from them.

Stylist Describes 'Permetric Hair'

After attending the All-Texas Beauty Show at Dallas, local salon owner Phyllis Neill reported that Permetric Hair in varying lengths has been created by the 68,000-member National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association for spring-summer 1978.

Permetric hair, designed to give American women the soft, feminine look required for spring-summer apparel, combines diametric perming and metric cutting techniques. Permetric styles are airy, soft and at least slightly layered in lengths that vary from touching the shoulder to slightly above the ears.

All Permetric hairstyles feature wisps of hair called "fringe." Fringe is seen across the forehead, on the sides of the face, over the ears and at the nape, depending on the length of the style.

Among the permetric styles created for spring and summer are Egyptian looks, Wind Drifting, 30's Update and Visor looks. Key words to hair fashion, according to NHCA, are gentle curl, soft movement and subtle color.

The state convention was attended by more than 5,000 hairdressers and cosmetologists.

BIRTH ANNOUNCED

Now is the time for Mr. and Mrs. Roy Frank Borg, are the parents of a daughter, Amy Elaine, born Feb. 17 in High Plains Baptist Hospital At Amarillo. She weighed 6 lbs. 9 1/2 oz.

Mrs. Borg is the former Gay Garrison and is the daughter of former Hereford residents, Mr. and Mrs. Garrison of Stephenville. Other grandparents of the new arrival include Mrs. Billie Borg of Amarillo.

Astral Misunderstanding

Before scientists understood seasonal changes, astronomers believed that the sun, in its apparent "path across the heavens," paused over the Tropic of Capricorn (on Dec. 21 or 22 by modern calendars) and again when it reached the Tropic of Cancer (about June 21). Ancient astronomers named each moment "solstice," from the Latin "sol," (sun) and "sistere," to stand still.

Bruins Claim 12th Consecutive Title Jumpers Highlight AAU

By KEN RAFFOPORT
AP Sports Writer

In the Pacific-8 conference, nobody does it better than the UCLA Bruins.

Since the early 1960s, the Bruins have been the evergreens of that Far West league and Thursday night, another Pac-8 basketball race came to the end of the trail with the inevitable conclusion.

A 96-58 rout of flu-stricken Oregon State provided the mighty Bruins with their 12th straight conference title and their 15th in the last 16 years. The only time they have missed was in the 1965-66 season.

"I'm very, very elated to win the Pac-8 title," said UCLA's Gary Cunningham, a protégé of the legendary John Wooden and a winner in his first season as head coach. "We played an excellent game and had a lot of respect for OSU. I'm sure the flu hurt them."

David Greenwood's 23 points and a blinding fast break were obvious pluses for the Bruins, but Cunningham underscored defense as they key for his team.

Three upsets marked Thursday night's play as Utah edged fifth-ranked New Mexico 95-92; North Carolina State defeated eighth-ranked North Carolina 72-67 and Ohio State whipped No. 19 Minnesota 94-87 in overtime.

Elsewhere, No. 10 Michigan State trimmed Northwestern 66-56 and No. 20 Louisville battered Ball State 104-84.

Jeff Judkins and Buster Matheny combined for 53 points as Utah handed New Mexico its first Western Athletic Conference loss this season and stopped a 14-game winning streak for the Lobos.

While Judkins' 28 points and Matheny's 25 were the tall figures for Utah, teammate Michael Gray clinched the game with a free throw with seven seconds remaining. New Mexico's Marvin Johnson led all scorers with 29 points. Clyde Austin scored 14 points, including a driving layup with 20 seconds, to boost North Carolina. Austin's basket gave the Wolfpack a 68-67 lead and its eventual winning points. The injury-riddled Tar Heels, playing without regulars Phil Ford, Mike O'Koren and Rich Tomasko, dropped into a tie with Duke for first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference. The Tar Heels and Blue Devils, both with 8-3 conference records, will meet in Chapel Hill Saturday to decide the regular-season league title.

Kelvin Ransey scored seven straight points in the first two minutes of overtime to spark Ohio State over Minnesota. Ransey finished with 26 points to help the Buckeyes avenge their worst loss of the season, a 25-point beating at Minnesota. Earvin Johnson and Greg Kelsner teamed for 39 points to lead Michigan State's conquest of Northwestern. Johnson scored 16 points and had eight rebounds while Kelsner contributed 14 points and nine rebounds.

Darrell Griffith scored 25 points and Rick Wilson added 18 as Louisville scored the first 12 points, including four by Griffith, and Ball State was never in the game.

And just like Spinks praised Ali after dethroning the long-time heavyweight champion, Jacobs has not lost sight of the impact Stones has had on track and field, and the high jump, in particular.

"He's the Muhammad Ali of track," Jacobs said of Stones, as he prepared for tonight's National AAU Indoor Track and Field Championships. "He's good for the sport because he has brought public attention to the high jump.

"He's been on top for six years," added Jacobs, the Fairleigh Dickinson University sophomore who set the indoor high jump record last month with a leap of 7 feet, 7 1/2 inches. "It's tough to stay on top for that long, and I admire him for that."

After Jacobs broke the mark, Stones severely criticized his "Jacobs Slope" style of jumping, contending it was unorthodox. But since then, the 6-5 Stones, who towers over the 5-8 Jacobs, has softened his approach to his No. 1 rival.

"The media have been trying to build up a feud between Franklin and me," said Stones. "There's no feud, there's no animosity. I don't even know him that well.

"Some people probably would even like to see us get into a fight under the high jump bar."

There were no signs of trouble between the two last Saturday at San Francisco, where Stones outjumped Jacobs 7-5 to 7-4 in the Examiner Games. It was Jacobs' first meet after being sidelined for two weeks while suffering from the flu and recovering from the extraction of two impacted wisdom teeth.

Stones has said he wants to regain the record. Jacobs, who has said he would jump 7-8 this season, now is not making any predictions but believes he can go higher than 7-4 1/2.

While Jacobs and Stones continue their duel in the high jump, the competitors in many other events will be battling for titles.

The mile has world outdoor 1,500-meter record holder Filbert Bayi of Tanzania. Eamonn Coghlan of Ireland and Wilson Waigwa of Kenya. Bayi, winner of only one of 10 races this year, has won the AAU mile each of the last three seasons.

Unbeaten sprinter Houston McTeer tries for his seventh victory of the season, in the 60-yard dash, against Steve Riddick and Steve Williams. Defending champion Larry Shipp will be hard-pressed to repeat in the 60-yard hurdles against football player James Owens of UCLA and Olympians Charles Foster and Tom Hill.

The 600 includes Herman Frazier, Stan Vinson and James Robinson. Marty Liquori and Suleiman Nyambui of Tanzania head the three-mile field. Dan Ripley and Earl Bell, former world record holders, top the pole vault entries.

Olympic discus champion Mac Wilkins, Al Feuerbach and Terry Albritton are in the shot put, and Tommy Haynes defends his titles in the long jump and triple jump.

Francie Larrieu, the Grand prix champion, faces Jam Merrill in the women's mile. Other women's entries including defending champions Brenda Morehead in the 60, Jane Frederick in the hurdles. Rosalyn Bryant in the 220, Lorna Forde in the 440 and Joni Huntley in the high jump.

Southern U., Alcorn St. In Tourney Final

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Frankie J. Sanders, a smooth-shooting forward who is the nation's No. 5 scorer, fired Southern University into today's semifinals of the Southwestern Athletic Conference basketball tournament.

Sanders, who is averaging about 29 points a game, scored 35 as Southern whipped Prairie View 93-88 in Thursday's first round game. The Jaguars now play Alcorn State, which beat Grambling 86-73.

Jackson State, which drew an opening round bye as the top-seeded team in the tournament, will meet Mississippi Valley, which upset Texas Southern 82-76.

Sanders hit 14 of 17 shots from the field as Southern hit a scorching 73 percent of its shots as a team. His final four points came in the last five minutes after he suffered a leg cramp.

Southern had led by as many as nine points before Prairie View closed the gap to one just after Sanders' injury. However, he stayed in the game and Southern pulled away.

Grabbling went the final four and a half minutes without scoring a point as it lost to Alcorn by 13 after being tied 73-73. Terry Sykes scored 36 points and Martin Lemelle score 24 for the losers. Charles Wade scored 23 points as Mississippi Valley knocked off Texas Southern, a team it had lost to twice before.

Prairie View finished its season at 14-12, while Texas Southern closed 16-10 and Grambling 12-14.

Southern is 22-4 and Alcorn 22-5.

Because the league is in a "grace period" from the NCAA as it moves from Division II to Division I, none of the conference schools is eligible for NCAA post-season play.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Walter O'Malley, chairman of the board of the Los Angeles Dodgers, was in satisfactory condition at Methodist Hospital in Rochester, Minn., Thursday night after being admitted as a patient earlier in the day.

Kirby, former World Junior Heavyweight Champion, holds the leg press record at 2800 pounds. The stocky, burly ex-champion had trouble keeping down to the 230-pound Junior Heavyweight limit.

Romero, a product of Mexico, is a speedy 224-pounder who is a familiar sight to Panhandle Citizens who see him joggling his daily five miles.

Brute Bernard, the 260-pound French Canadian with the garqoye face and the strongman's body, will meet Amarillo's Teddy Diblase in the semi-main event. Diblase is a 245-pound ex-footballer, and son of the late, great Iron Mike Diblase.

Kirby, Romero Clash On Mat

Roger "Nature Boy" Kirby, 240-pound St. Joseph, Missouri grappler, will clash with Ricky Romero in Saturday night's main event at the Bull Barn, as Lions Club wrestling starts at 8:30 p.m.

Kirby, former World Junior Heavyweight Champion, holds the leg press record at 2800 pounds. The stocky, burly ex-champion had trouble keeping down to the 230-pound Junior Heavyweight limit.

Romero, a product of Mexico, is a speedy 224-pounder who is a familiar sight to Panhandle Citizens who see him joggling his daily five miles.

Brute Bernard, the 260-pound French Canadian with the garqoye face and the strongman's body, will meet Amarillo's Teddy Diblase in the semi-main event. Diblase is a 245-pound ex-footballer, and son of the late, great Iron Mike Diblase.

J.J. Dillon, the manager of Bernard, The Angel, Abdullah the Butcher, and other notorious spoilers, dons his tight to challenge Don Kernode. Dillon is a range 238 pounds, and hails from New Jersey. Kernode, a stockier 240 pounds, is from North Carolina.

The opener will see Canada's beast, a tough 245-pounder, take on Florida's Ervin Smith. Smith 238-pound former collegiate star from Tampa, was also national AAU champion.

Last week's action saw Dory Funk, Jr.'s hand raised over Dillon, as Bernard caused his manager's disqualification. Bernard won his own match over Rip Hawk, as he stopped his opponent off the ropes with a big foot.

Dennis Stamp stopped Bobby Pico after a spectacular battle, with a jump off the second rope. Until then, the outweighed but classy Pico had held his own. Alex Perez lucked out over trouble Joe Marin when the latter missed a flying body press.

The 8:30 p.m. starting time at the Bull Barn was inaugurated last week.

Jones Finds Touch; Nicklaus Ready Too

By TOM SEFFY
AP Sports Writer
LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — Grier Jones says he's just beginning to find the winning touch at the Jackie Gleason Inverrary Classic. Unfortunately for Jones, Jack Nicklaus says the same thing.

Jones shot a 5-under-par 67 Thursday in the opening round of the $250,000 Gleason Classic to take a 2-stroke lead over a group of eight that included Fuzzy Zoeller, Bob Shearer, Danny Edwards, Andy Bean, Kermit Zarley, Hale Irwin, Gibby Gilbert and Steve Melnyk.

Nicklaus, who won the $50,000 first prize here last year, heads a group of 11 that were 3 strokes behind at 71. The others were Barry Jaeger, Lynn Litt, Dave Eichelberger, Don January, Pat McGowan, Bob Gilder, Tom Jenkins, Gary Wintz and Tim Simpson.

"It's been cold and I haven't had much touch," said Jones, whose highest finish in five tournaments this year was a tie for sixth in the San Diego Open. "But I have been playing pretty well."

Jones, who makes his home in Wichita, Kan., spent December with his wife, Jane and five children who range in age from 9 down to 2.

"The last few years, I haven't gotten out of Kansas soon enough," he said. "When my children were real young, they traveled with us and I used to play real well in California. Now, Christmas time is tough for me to leave. The tournaments start the 4th or 5th of January and I've been a month and a half without playing at all.

"I just don't have much touch around the green," he continued. "I'm scoring well, like making a 72 but it should have been a 68. Or you shoot a 75 and it should have been a 72."

Nicklaus said he believes he now has become "tournament ready" after playing two tournaments in California - the Bing Crosby and the Los Angeles Open.

Nicklaus shot a 36-34-70 round and called it awful. "I never seemed to get the ball very close to the hole," he said. "I seemed to struggle most of the way. I played too many bad shots. I was fortunate to hole a couple of long putts to stay in the ballgame, you might say."

However, he added: "I'll be all right tomorrow. I'll be much better tomorrow. I should be in pretty good shape by the end of the week."

"I was able to take a round today where I didn't play all that well and get it around in a decent score," said Nicklaus. "When you start getting a little bit better and tournament sharp, you start to do those things and hold the round together. That's what I'm looking for."

The cut was to be made after today's round with the low 70 and ties going on to play Saturday and Sunday.

Passing Increased In '77 Grid Year

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — They won't believe this at Oklahoma, Ohio State and other places where they put the ball in the air only on plane trips, but 1977 was the "Year of the Pass" in college football.

"People around the country who have been option-oriented are coming to realize that you've got to do more than one thing," says LaVell Edwards, whose Brigham Young Cougars led the passing renaissance by averaging 341.6 yards a game through the air and throwing 41 touchdowns passes.

"The Big Ten is a classic example," Edwards says. "They keep losing the Rose Bowl because they play a little more open football out West and a team that can throw fairly decently is going to win most of the time."

And 1977 marked the biggest one-season increase in passing yardage nationally since 1958, according to the NCAA Statistics Service. The country's major collegians passed more often, more accurately and for more yardage per pass.

It was a continuation of a comeback that began in 1976 when both total rushes and rushing yardage went down while total passes and passing yardage went up - the first time all those things had happened at the same time since 1966.

Last year, BYU unloaded a whopping 457 passes in 11 games. Obviously, Edwards doesn't believe that three things can happen when you put the ball in the air and two of them are bad.

"Yeah, I guess you could call us an aerial circus because we throw the ball a lot," Edwards said Thursday during the NCAA's College Football '78 preview. "But we throw a lot of passes that aren't very long, we throw a lot of passes that are safer than pitchouts and we don't put the ball on the ground (translation: fumble) nearly as much as some option teams."

With BYU leading the way, many teams made it plain last fall that you can win by throwing the football. The cougars went 9-2 for the second year in a row, while behind them on the passing charts came Grambling, 10-1; Stanford, 9-3; California, 7-4, and San Diego State, 10-1. Even national champion Notre Dame earned 208.1 of its 440.0 yards a game through the air and ranked 13th in that category.

"I think there's a trend back toward the passing game," says Edwards. "Not to the extent that we're going, but I think you'll see teams throwing more. Defense have caught up with the option to a certain extent."

"But you can't win only by throwing the ball. You win games and championships with defense and the difference between us and a lot of throwing teams is that we've maintained a strong defense."

Silas Spurs San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — San Antonio Spurs guard James Silas got his legs back Thursday night and for a moment it was as if the American Basketball Association had never died.

Silas, considered one of the ABA's best guards, shook off the persistent knee problems that have plagued him for two years and scored 15 points as San Antonio took a 118-105 National Basketball Association victory over Atlanta.

The 29-year-old Silas hit 11 of his points in the second period and played 17 minutes, his longest stint of the season. He had played a mere 78 minutes in 15 appearances this season, averaging only two points per game.

"Silas was the best guard in the ABA," said Atlanta Coach Hubie Brown. "With him back, the Spurs have as good a material as anyone in this league."

But San Antonio Coach Doug Moe, who saw his former star play only 22 games last year, is guarded in his optimism.

"Silas was able to move well tonight," said Moe. "I can't get too optimistic until I see what he does over a longer period of time."

When asked his reaction to Brown's assessment of his ABA career, Silas just smiled and said, "I don't know if I was the best, but I think I was up there among the best."

"Before, I couldn't beat anyone. I had no legs," he added. "But I have confidence now and mentally I've got it in my head that I'm well."

Silas, signed as a free agent by the Dallas Chaparrals in 1972, was an ABA all-star in 1975 and 1976 after the team moved to San Antonio.

He has scored more than 7,000 career points and hit 2,000 points - an average of 23.8 - during the 1975-76 season. San Antonio's last in the now-defunct ABA.

The Spurs were absorbed into the NBA during the merger before last season.

Gene Williams makes commercials

by Gene Williams

A Mini Page News Hound Report

You have probably seen me on TV if you like commercials. I have been in 14 of them. In the Jello pudding commercial, I am sitting on the left of Mr. Cosby.

In the Fruit-of-the-Loom commercial, I am the purple grape.

In the Kentucky Fried Chicken commercial, I am eating dinner with my family.

In the Scope commercial, I am with my father and sister (not my real father and sister). I do not have any sisters or brothers.

I am 8 years old. I live in Columbia, Maryland, a beautiful city.

I am in the third grade at Mc Dough School.

I like school very much. My favorite subject is reading. I began reading when I was 2 1/4 years old. I am an honor roll student.

I also like football, baseball and soccer.

I like to dance, sing and act.

You may wonder how I make TV commercials.

Before I am selected for a commercial, I have to audition for it.

Every audition is different. Some require me to sing and dance. Some require me to answer questions. Some require me to read a script. Some just require me to make a big smile.

If I am selected for a commercial, I travel to New York by train. Because most commercials are made early in the morning, I go to New York the day before and stay overnight in a hotel.

Can you draw a line to these words?

script crew producer T-shirt overnight

On the day I make a commercial, I arise early in the morning. I eat a good breakfast and take a taxi to the filming studio.

Sometimes the commercial is filmed on location instead of in the studio. When this happens, the actors and production crew travel by bus to the location where the commercial is made.

The wardrobe specialist makes sure that I am dressed properly. The makeup artist sees to it that my face looks good.

The producer gives me directions to follow during the filming.
