Annual Show Shapes Up As Success; Midland Crowd To Be On Hand Today

This afternoon, starting at 2:30 o'clock, Big Spring writes final to its eighth annual rodeo—a show that was whipped up on short notice, yet is making a strong bid to be one of the most successful yet held.

Infestation Threat Fades Over County

Little change was noted in cotton insect infestation over Howard county Saturday, but there were signs that elements of natural control might take a hand to aid farmers in the preservation of one of the finest crop prospects in the history of the county.

Most acute concentration of cotton bollworms appeared to be north and east of Coahoma, between Moore and Knott, and particularly in the southwestern quarter of the county.

Generally speaking, leafworms have been dealt a stunning blow and their destruction checked short. Nowhere was this more evidenced than in the territory immediately north of Vincent where a wave of the worms threatened to destroy fields.

In late cotton the presence of flea hoppers, whipped for all practical purposes in an early season fight, was reported. Cotton budding after a devastating hail in the Luther section was threatened by a worse flea infestation than any during the area-wide fight a month ago.

In the Luther area, farmers reported the presence of tiny wasps which County Agent O. P. Griffin said were worm parasites. The wasps lay eggs on backs of worms and in a short time the back is covered with cocoons and the worm is done for.

REVIEWING THE BIG SPRING WEEK

The Howard county commissioners court got in two good licks, to our nation, last week when voting precinct No. 3 was split and a resolution adopted offering to secure right-of-way on the Big Spring-Garden City road.

Anxious candidates and their many friends, not to mention the hundreds of people who follow election returns closely and we who must stay up and nurse these things through, will appreciate the division of jumbo box No. 3 which long has controlled the outcome of most issues and races. Results should be in substantially quicker in the future.

As for roads, we are an advocate of furnishing right-of-way whenever and wherever the state highway department wants it. We can get the money to buy it, for we can do without a lot of things better than we can do without roads.

Financial success of the rodeo cannot be determined until after a check-up following the final show this afternoon, but outside of the regrettable delay at the opening performance, the program has been clicking the best it ever has. And the fans appreciate it, too.

Of course, the rodeo and its customary parade were organized on short notice this year, but as well as people in this area turn out for parades, we can't see why more organizations and business firms won't go to the trouble of entering colorful and attractive floats.

Odds are about even that Gov. Coke Stevenson will call a special session to solve the road bond assumption tangle. Sen. Marshall Formby writes he believes that the session will be for Sept. 8 or 9.

Well deserved is the honor that has come to E. Reagan as a member-at-large of the national council for Boy Scouts of America. For 30 years he has been active in this work, and he is still active in giving youth the benefits of this fine program.

Maneuvering Troops Draw High Praise From Generals

WITH THE THIRD ARMY IN LOUISIANA, Aug. 16. (AP)—West-Louisiana plains and rolling woodlands echoed tonight to discordant martial sounds as two of Uncle Sam's army corps, cheered by praise from their generals, advanced upon each other with the deadliest weapons of modern war.

They were working into position for a practice battle, preliminary to maneuvers occupying nearly half a million men of the second and third armies, next month.

The soldiers will fire only blanks, and their problems will involve tests of supply and communication, without determining what troops can "beat" the other. But they had the word of their ranking officers that they would all be tough to lick in any real fight.

"The finest bunch of men I've ever seen in the service" is the way hard-boiled Lieutenant General Walter Kruger described the third army, which he commands.

Major-General Robert S. Beightler pronounced his 37th (Ohio) division "ready to go," and Major General Irving A. Fish lauded the morale of his 32nd division, men from Wisconsin and Michigan.

Hot Fighting Along Entire Soviet Front

Russian Communique Says Little, Nazis Boast Of Bombings

MOSCOW, Sunday, Aug. 17 (AP)—The Red army went into the ninth week of its all-out resistance against Germany's invasion today with bitter fighting along the entire 2,000-mile eastern front while Russia, British and United States leaders rushed plans to pool their resources for a long war against nazism.

The Soviet communique again merely reported that fighting continued yesterday and last night on the whole front—the third consecutive time that the Russians have issued a generalized report on the war.

The Soviets did point yesterday to the Ukraine, where the Germans are pushing toward the ports of Odessa and Nikolave, as an area of particularly heavy fighting. But their last three communique have not mentioned names of towns and cities as usual.

To reports that the Germans are approaching the vital Ukraine manufacturing area of Dniepropetrovsk, S. A. Lozovsky, Soviet spokesman, declared: "It is the idea of the German German army. The German radio wants to do work the troops cannot do."

SPREADING TERROR

BERLIN, Aug. 16 (AP)—Screaming stuka dive bombers are giving "days and nights of terror" to Russian troops said to be encircled near Odessa and in other parts of the southern Ukraine, German military reports received in Berlin said tonight.

The German air force was reported spreading terror lavishly over a wide area, dive-bombing with the greatest intensity in the region where the high command is attempting to achieve "another Dunkerque" by driving the Russians in wholesale flight to the Black sea.

German fliers reported they were concentrating their bombs on railroads, roads and long columns of Russian troops and supplies.

To Take Bids On FSA Camp

Bids will be opened Aug. 29 for the $180,000 contract to be developed near Lamesa by the Farm Security Administration, according to Wilson Cowan, Amarillo, regional FSA administrator.

The camp, which will provide housing and other facilities for 100 families, will include 25 quadruplex apartments or shelters and several miscellaneous shelters such as a gate house, a community center and residence for the manager. It is set up to house laborers engaged in agricultural industries in and around Lamesa and is designed to enable the occupants to carry on a partial subsistence program. Based on experience of other similar camps, migrant workers would travel a distance of 10 to 15 miles daily to their work and use the camp as their headquarters.

Purpose of the camp, said Cowan, is to provide homes during seasonal employment in the locality for "agricultural workers and their families whose migratory existence isolates them from normal home and community life." Consequently, FSA makes an effort to encourage camp councils or self-governing committees for administering rules and to organize and effect educational and recreational activities for occupants.

10-YEAR WAR?

ROME, Aug. 16 (AP)—Virginio Gayda, authoritative editorial writer, calling the current conflict a "world war," said today that it would continue "ten years or longer" if the United States and Britain really maintained their proposal to destroy Nazi power.

US No Nearer War, Says FD On Return From Conference

Nazi Chiefs Scornful Of Sea Parley

BERLIN, Aug. 16 (AP)—Both the Roosevelt-Churchill eight points and plan to aid Russia drew German derision today, the first in scornful words from Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels.

He described the program of the United States president and British prime minister as "an outrage against common sense" and authoritative German sources called their promises to Joseph Stalin a "propaganda attempt to cover up the flop of their high seas meeting."

"The whole world realizes the eight points are a ridiculous outcome of so important a meeting," they said. "Hence, to keep alive world discussion, the message to Stalin was launched 36 hours later."

Goebbels added his gibes in an article released to the entire German press. "Seldom has history seen such a stupid, unimaginative document as the two big guns of world plutocracy framed on the Potomac (sic)," he declared.

(Actually, the president left the Potomac, his presidential yacht, for the secret meetings and conferred with Churchill on the United States cruiser Augusta and the British battleship Prince of Wales.) "We didn't expect much from a meeting of Roosevelt and Churchill," Goebbels wrote, "but that the result would be so meager, foolish and sterile we didn't even dare picture in our wildest dream."

Hitting especially hard at the question of disarmament, he declared: "Whoever wants to disarm us will have to go to the little trouble of taking our weapons from us. To demand that we do that ourselves is stupidity which calls for police action."

"Who did that once in November, 1918, but the German people that was still credulous. At that time it had foolish leadership and the enemy a smart one, while today that is reversed x x x."

Vichy Posts Reward For Saboteurs

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Aug. 16 (AP)—The Paris police, warning the population that sabotage on railroads, lines serving the occupied French capital was threatening the city's food supply, tonight offered one million francs reward for information leading to the arrests of the wreckers.

The prefecture of police abandoned all attempts at secrecy in warning that the sabotage had reached such serious proportions that cooperation of the public was necessary to stop it.

The appeal brought to the minds of many Frenchmen the warning that he felt an "ill wind rising in many regions of France."

Axis Ships Sunk In Mediterranean

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 16 (AP)—Six axis ships and a destroyer were sunk and three others were damaged by serial and submarines attacks in the Mediterranean, the British and their allies reported today.

Torpedo planes swooped upon an Italian convoy plying from the homeland to African headquarters at Tripoli hit three of the five merchant ships and one of the protecting destroyers, an RAF communique said. Later reconnaissance showed only three of the merchant ships nearing Tripoli, it was said.

Is In Full Accord With Churchill On World-Wide Scope

Three-Power Parley Will Hit At Japs

LONDON, Aug. 16 (AP)—London quarters reported today the forthcoming three-power conference of Russia, Britain and the United States will be directed not only at augmenting the flow of war supplies to the Soviet for her war against Germany but also to plans for making Japan "stop, look and listen."

These sources said they understood the Soviet has agreed to active participation in plans to put a brake on Japanese expansionist moves as a part of the arrangement by which she is to receive a stepped-up flow of war materials.

It was believed by observers, however, that Soviet Russia would not have much to say openly concerning the Japanese phases of negotiations for fear of inciting complicating factors in the world situation.

The threat of Soviet armies in the Far East, which may receive considerable supplies of planes and other materials as a result of the three-power conference, however, is calculated to check any plans the Japanese may have of aiding her axis friends by attacking Siberia.

British quarters believed the talks of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill may already have caused Japan to alter her plans for southward expansion, and that she may rest content for the time being with her newly occupied bases in Indo-China.

Farm Measure Work Nearing Completion

Measuring for compliance is due to be finished this week with the possible exception of some cleanup work, the county AAA office announced Saturday.

Meanwhile, forms are being typed for cotton order stamp applications and for 1941 parity payments. Neither of these will be ready to go out for around two weeks yet.

It was estimated that the check-up on compliance was 96 per cent of completion. Approximately 60 per cent of the farms were reported to have overplanted this year, although to no great extent. Under AAA regulations these producers must pay $1 for check on the first plot and 50 cents for each additional plot. It boils down largely to one plot for most are plowing up fractional over-plantings on one plot.

What effect the good price of cotton will have on the cotton order stamp program remained to be seen. While many purposely underplanted to qualify for the stamps, those who are on the margin or who over-planted carry over to sell higher priced cotton than take stamps for further reduced acreage.

Dallas Boy Dies In Flames Of Wreck

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 16 (AP)—Despite the efforts of his stepfather, who received second degree burns trying to rescue him, Jackie Willard Messick, 12, of Dallas, died in a local hospital today of burns received when the truck in which he was riding collided with a train.

The accident occurred this afternoon at a crossing on the Laredo highway, eight miles south of San Antonio. Troy Messick, stepfather of the youth and driver of the truck, was thrown clear by the impact but suffered first and second degree burns attempting to rescue the boy from the flaming wreckage.

Unknown Number To Observe Texas 'Oil - For - Britain' Day

AUSTIN, Aug. 16 (AP)—Ninety-seven thousand Texas oil wells are free to run a day's production tomorrow as a gift to Great Britain—but how many will flow is problematical.

Started as a patriotic gesture at the suggestion of John F. Camp, San Antonio operator, the oil-for-Britain plan ran into difficulties when a number of operators, asserting it was impractical and in some instances impossible, refused to donate a day's yield of crude.

Member Jerry Sadler and Olin Culbertson of the Texas railroad commission, state oil regulatory agency, condemned unnamed companies they said were attempting to stifle the move by citing legal obstacles the commissioners contended did not exist.

No commission officials would attempt to estimate the volume of intended contributions although Sadler once declared a large number of independent and small operators had informed him they would donate their day's yield. A ceremony for presentation of warrants representing the oil to federal and British officials has been cancelled.

The method by which the donated oil will be donated to President Roosevelt for transfer to Britain was worked out by commission and federal officials.

Government Due To Run Shipyards

Another Effect Of Defense: Moonshine Activities Lagging

BREVARD, N. C., Aug. 16 (AP)—The old timers who've been making mountain moonshine so long that they involuntarily badge at the sight of a law officer's badge are throwing in the sponge—and national defense is the reason.

Defense industries paying high wages have lured mountain bootleggers and rising prices of raw materials have sent others back to farming with the conclusion that as far as they're concerned America can do without.

Ed Patton of Charlotte, chief of the federal alcoholic tax unit in North Carolina, said today that apparently the mountain blockade distilling industry was drying up.

The sharp rise in sugar and grain prices, coupled with the increased efforts of the "revenuers" to ferret out the distilling outfits in the mountains have made it too perilous for most of the oldtimers, Patton said.

"It just hasn't a money-making proposition no longer, 'cause pike-pocked smugglers won't pay a penny more for hit new than they did in the depression," said one mountaineer who admitted he was pouring up sugarhead mash in 1918.

the CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers providing for union maintenance.

Defense and navy department officials were reported to have turned the case over to President Roosevelt, and the expectation was that he would act on their recommendations no later than Monday.

The company has suggested that the navy operate the yards.

Meanwhile, the mediation board asked uninterrupted operations at five aluminum plants pending discussions of a demand by the CIO Aluminum Workers union that the Aluminum Company of America eliminate wage differentials between northern and southern factories.

Plants within the scope of a threatened strike to enforce the demand are located at New Kensington, Pa., Detroit, Alcoa, Tenn., Edgewater, N. J., and Badin, S. C. Wages are 55 cents an hour at the southern plants, 75 at New Kensington, and 75 at Detroit and Edgewater.

Improved situations appeared in prospect at several other defense production trouble spots.

Bette Davis And James Cagney Have Fling At Comedy In 'The Bride Came C.O.D.'

He sent word that the first large ship to go to England from the United States, the "Ocean Vanguard" was being launched Saturday. Doyle had helped in the construction of the vessel.

Laugh Hit At The Ritz Today And Monday

It's a laugh hit at the Ritz, with none other than Bette Davis and James Cagney merging their talents in an intriguing bit of nonsense called "The Bride Came C.O.D." The picture is the Ritz theatre's feature for today and Monday.

The two stars have pooled their considerable talents to make "The Bride Came C.O.D." hilarious entertainment. Cagney, who had some practice in his recent hit "Strawberry Blonde," approaches his comedy role with an effortless flair that is a joy to behold. As for Miss Davis, playing her first light role in several years, she proves that comedy is just as much her forte as drama.

The story, adapted for the screen by Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein, twin screenwriters responsible for some of the screen's wittiest output, has the supreme virtue of getting comedy from legitimate situations, rather than trumped-up ones. Briefly outlined, the plot concerns itself with a spoiled young debutante who becomes engaged to a band leader. Planning to elope, they hire a taxi plane to take them to Las Vegas. The pilot, however, decides he can make more money by delivering the bride C.O.D. and unmarried to her father, who opposes the union. He captures the bride and flies off with her, but they are grounded in the desert. They find shelter in a nearby ghost town, populated solely by a philosophical old innkeeper. From then on, it is a tug of war between the heiress and the aviator—with the girl trying to get back to civilization and her fiancé, the man trying to keep her until he gets his plane fixed and deliver her to her father. During the battle they reluctantly fall in love with each other. The climax is refreshingly different.

William Keighley, whose knack with comedy is well known through his work on such films as "Yes, My Darling Daughter" and "No Time For Comedy," has directed "The Bride Came C.O.D." superbly, keeping the story going at a fast clip, without a wasted foot of film, deftly emphasizing the humor, without pounding it down. Scores of inspired little touches pop up here and there through the story to contribute to the general merriment.

An unusually grand supporting cast lends able aid to the stars in bringing the picture to such a high peak of perfection. Jack Carson is marvelous as band leader, so egotistical that when his bride-to-be tells him she hates him, he asks with genuine amazement, "How is that possible?" Harry Davenport is even better than his usual best as the ghost town innkeeper, and Eugene Pallette is properly appreciative as the bride's father. Stuart Erwin does a clever caricature of a radio gossip columnist who tries to engineer the wedding in order to have a juicy item for his broadcast and George Tobias contributes a clever comedy bit as Cagney's dumb but adoring assistant at the airport.

Jane Withers, Jackie Cooper In Romance

They're Grown-Up In Lyric Picture, 'Her First Beau'

With an impressive cast lending them valuable support, Jane Withers and Jackie Cooper come to the Lyric theatre today and Monday in Columbia's "Her First Beau," which has been hailed as one of the season's gayest comedies.

Adapted to the screen by script-writer Gladys Lehman and Karen Dawson and so directed by Theodore Reed, the man who made "What a Life," the new Columbia comedy has been praised not only for its witty high-jinks, but for its brilliant study of the happiness and romance, anger and pride and doubt which play such vital roles in the emotional life of American youth today.

Jane is seen as a youngster going-on-18, who wants to be a great writer. To be a great writer, she reasons, one must suffer; and she further reasons, the best way to suffer is through an unhappy love affair. Jane is said to suffer plenty, to provide a major portion of the new film's hilarity. As the boy next door, young Cooper finds difficulty in providing Jane with the romance she so urgently desires, solely because he's much too absorbed in building and flying his parent-forbidden glider to bother with so "swacky" a thing as love. As a result, Jane breaks her heart over the handsome young socialite who has been serenading her in order to keep in practice until something better comes along. The "something better" is beautiful, blonde Martha O'Driscoll, young starlet, cast as Jackie's older sister.

Young Cooper and Miss Withers have been praised for their exceptional work in the film, while supporting members of the cast are said to provide equally valuable characterizations.

Among the younger players, Edith Fellows is seen as Miss Withers' next door neighbor, madly "in love" with William Tracy, Jane's very superior uncle. Kenneth Howell is the slick, serenading "villain" of the piece whose very presence is enough to provide Jane with heart trouble, and Martha O'Driscoll, as Jackie's lovely older sister, supplies Jane with romantic competition which is almost heart-breakingly unfair, solely because she is older, more sophisticated, more attractive than the gawky going-on-18 year old whom young Miss Withers portrays.

Older players include Josephine Hutchinson, as Jane's lovely, understanding mother; Una O'Connor, as the harassed domestic who prepares lunch for three to discover ten at the table; Edgar Buchanan, the man-of-all-work; Jonathan Hale, Jackie's lawyer-father, and Addison Richards, as Jane's long-suffering male parent.

Love And Laughter—James Cagney and Bette Davis assume entirely new type roles in the Ritz theatre's feature for today and Monday, "The Bride Came C.O.D.," and in high comedy. Advance reports say both stars make good in this gay farce.

Jack Holt In Fast Drama At Queen

'The Great Swindle' Deals With Expose Of Arson Ring

Blasting with the fury of a three-alarm fire, Columbia's "The Great Swindle" plays today and Monday at the Queen theatre to provide Jack Holt fans with what has been hailed as one of the most sensational exposes ever brought to the screen by the two-fisted hero of a thousand adventures. Dealing as it does with Holt's struggles against a desperate arson ring, "The Great Swindle" is said to pack a dramatic sock in every sequence of its thrill-a-minute story. Cast as a fighting insurance company adjuster who uncovers evidence of arson in a spectacular warehouse fire, Holt is at his fighting best as he slowly but inevitably closes in on the master mind behind the crime. A compound of logical deduction and of sanguinary rough-and-tumble battles, "The Great Swindle" is said to possess in thrilling abundance those qualifications for entertainment which have made Holt a fan favorite for so many years.

A splendid cast of prominent character actors appear in support of the rugged star, with Henry Kolker and Jonathan Hale, of "Blonde" fame, heading the list. Lovely Marjorie Reynolds, petite, young starlet, provides the romantic interest and two of the three leading men in "Cheers for Miss Bishop," Don Douglas and Sidney Blackmer, are others in the cast.

Lewis D. Collins, who has directed all the Holt action films for the past several years, wielded the megaphone on "The Great Swindle," and Albert De Mond, noted scenarist, penned the tense and absorbing screen play.

Sweet corn is likely to become a major commercial crop in the Lower Rio Grande valley for early spring markets, says a Texas magazine. The Iowa hybrid, planted to some 8,000 acres, has done excellently in that section.

Frenchmen Warned Not To Demonstrate

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Aug. 16 (AP)—German authorities bluntly warned the entire population of occupied France today that it would be held responsible as a whole for outbreaks such as occurred in Paris this week, and they ordered the death penalty for persons who support "any manner whatsoever" communist activities.

Acting swiftly after shooting and fighting in the streets of the German-occupied capital disclosed in its press yesterday, the general commanding the German armed forces in France, Heinrich von Stuepnagel, issued the decree.

"Sundown"

Dramatic highlights from the new Walter Wanger melodrama starring Gene Tierney, with Bruce Cabot, George Sanders, Harry Carey, Carl Esmond and Reginald Gardiner.

Bruce Cabot and George Sanders, British East African officials, question a native caught smuggling guns to a rebellious tribe.

Expecting trouble from the natives, Bruce Cabot orders the lovely Zia (Gene Tierney) to leave the outpost for her own safety.

She departs in company with Carl Esmond, a Dutch trader.

Cut off from communication with the outside world, the British officials prepare for the expected attack.

Gene Tierney is wounded in the fighting that follows, but rallies in time for a highly satisfactory fade-out.

ON THE SETS With REED JOHNSTON

The Oriental-looking citizen in the gold embroidered robe, the huge red turban and the long gray beard, turned out on close inspection to be Kay Kyser, but you'd never have known it from a distance of five yards. Looking like almost anybody but himself, he was sitting at a table on which stood a crystal ball, and opposite him sat Ginny Sims, looking for all the world like Ginny Sims. They were doing a scene for "Playmates," which you'll be seeing presently, and for story purposes Brother Kyser was posing as the fortune-telling Lama of Maharoonoo in order to promote his romance with Miss Sims.

"A band leader?" asked Miss Sims. "Yes," said the phony fortune teller, "and he has a peculiar type of beauty. Beneath his plain outer shell there lies great charm and attraction." "Oh, he's not so homely when you get used to him," mused Miss Sims. This seemed to set Mr. Kyser back on his heels for a moment, but he rallied manfully and went on in tones that fairly dripped with sugar.

"He loves you dearly, this young musician. Be kind to him. Embrace him. He will make you blissfully happy." The falsetto voice drifted off now into a gentle croon, and the bespectacled eyes gazed emotionally at Miss Sims, upon whom this information seemed to have an electrifying effect. For after a moment's reflection she sat up straight in her chair and smiled across the table.

"Maybe you're right," she said at last. "I think perhaps I'll do that." And there the scene was out.

All of which, if you know your movies, points clearly to a happy ending when "Playmates" is unveiled on the screen, for the wily band leader had obviously scored the winning run with his fortune-telling act, with Mr. Barrymore definitely reduced to second place. The Great Lover, incidentally, stood amiably on the sidelines while this scene was shooting, looking as if he didn't care whether school kept or not. At any rate he wasn't wearing a false beard to win the lady in question, although there must be lots of us who would take to whiskers permanently with Ginny Sims as the prize.

Danes Director Nick Castle is teaching her the routines. . . . If they're so in love, as they insist, how come Ann Southern and Roger Pryor are living apart? . . . Betty Davis, who took a comedy fall into a cactus patch in "The Bride Came C.O.D.," will take a comedy fall on ice in "The Man Who Came to Dinner." . . . Yes, she skates in the film. . . . The Hedy Lamarr-John Howard romance is still hotter than the weather. . . . Several studios are interested in spotting the Ballet Russe in one forthcoming film.

Biggest rumor of the week in Hollywood, where there's a rumor behind every telephone pole: That Jack Benny's wig in "Charley's Aunt" was made from Shirley Temple's castoff curls.

Reporting for work at RKO in a film titled "A Date With the Falcon," Allen Jenkins told Director Irving Reis he didn't think much of the title. "Who," asked Jenkins, "would want a date with a falcon?" "Well," said Reis dryly, "another falcon might." . . . Top Hollywood stars turned out over the weekend for the United China War Relief "Moon Festival" in Los Angeles' Chinatown. It's one of the year's most worthy benefits.

No one likes to relax better than W. C. Fields, who now even has a reclining chair in his automobile which operates like a barber's chair. There's also a holder attached to the chair for his ever present glass and an elastic to hold the glass steady.

For the first time in Hollywood history the cast officially has petitioned the studio to change the title of a new film. Yvonne DeCarle, Carole Landis and others working in "Hot Spot" say they prefer "I Wake Up Screaming," title of the book on which the screen play is based.

A producer and one of his writers were discussing a new script the other day when the writer referred to one of the characters as a "frustrated little man." "What do you mean, frustrated?" said the producer. "Well, well," replied the writer, reaching for an explanation, "you know, like a guy who'd like to own a boat—but knows he'll never be able to afford one. The producer's face brightened. "I like that boat idea," he said, "let's get the beat into the script."

Universal is considering Martha Raye and Mischa Auer as a new comedy team as a result of their work together with Olson and Johnson in "Hallelujah." . . . One of Bill Demarest's former wives is giving him alimony trouble again.

The RKO publicity department sheepishly asked John Barrymore to pose for a still photograph of a glass of milk. "Of course," said Barrymore, "I can step out of character for a MINUTE." . . . Yoo-hoo, Bob Taylor. Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda are going to be the most kissingest couple seen on the screen in many a day. They have 28 kissing scenes in Columbia's "You Belong to Me."

What life can't do a Hollywood script can. When Billy Conn fought Joe Louis his camp didn't want Arthur Donovan as referee. His camp won; Eddie Joseph called the rounds. But when Billy came to Hollywood to star in "The Pittsburgh Kid" for Republic he found that Arthur Donovan had been hired to referee the film's championship fight.

Ask if he minded, Billy grinned: "Shucks, no! I know who wins—I read the script!"

Latest gag pioneered in a Hollywood beauty establishment is a wristwatch band fashioned of hair. The girl whose boy friend is caught in the draft snips off a chunk of her locks and has it made into a durable band which she wears. . . . Director Jean Renoir and Fox are huddling over plans to give "Grand Illusion" his hit French film, a Hollywood remake. . . . Eddie Norris and Jane Frazee were back together at Missie's. . . . Which reminds me of Rosenbloom preparing to do a dramatic bit in "Louisiana Purchase." "Any coincidence between this and acting," announced Director Irving Cummings, "will be purely unintentional."

KEN MORGAN'S HOLLYWOOD KEYHOLE

EXCLUSIVE: Subject of a Charlie Chaplin motion picture is of extreme interest—as much to Hollywood as to you. Since "The Dictator," Chaplin has read hundreds of vehicles on a constant search for the proper medium. Interesting fact in the purchase of his next picture is that it was written by Orson Welles, who also searches just as diligently. But here's the surprise: Chaplin will play a character based on the life and crimes of Landreau, the infamous Bluebeard of French history. In the picture he will play a happy family man with his family and the notorious killer of women. Strange, indeed, is his subject for the man who made history portraying a pathetic little tramp.

Ken Morgan

Joan Crawford has been quietly taking singing lessons for the past two years. Those who have heard the star sing swear that she is possessed with an exceptionally fine contralto register. So intent has she been in practicing that on a recent trip to New York she took her coach with her. Every available moment away from the set is spent in the MGM studio department. Now she has acquired a repertoire of operatic scores which would be the envy of many of our leading singers. An opportunity has arrived for Joan to exhibit her untapped talent. I understand a well-known producer has made her an offer to appear with Paul Draper in recital on a nationwide tour.

Clark Gable's station wagon would cause nightmares for the average driver. The dash-board resembles the complicated mess of dials and knobs found on a transcontinental airliner. But most interesting is the iron bar fashioned after a towel-rack which is welded to the board just opposite the passenger's seat. Says Gable, "I take the corners pretty fast when in a hurry. Carole has trouble keeping in the car. The bar is for her to clutch so Lombard won't fall out."

THE GOD BUND MAN: Eleanor Powell and Art Director Merrill Pye are ready to hop a plane for Yuma—and maybe Mrs. Powell will make it a double wedding. . . . Burgess Meredith has been absent from his Hollywood haunts for some time—he has been working in the public relations division of the army, broadcasting from camps and naval vessels. . . . George Montgomery is not happy about being taken out of the Zane Grey western series and even the promised buildup in big features doesn't satisfy him—All-American footballer John Kimbrough will get the roles in the "shoot-'em-up." . . . Louis Hayward had a lot of explaining to do the other night when he was taking a fur coat to the theatre manager after it had been left in the seat—the irate owner met him coming up the aisle and screamed "Theft!" . . . Eddie Cantor celebrated his signing a Warner Bros. contract, by leading "God Bless America" at Grace Hayes Lodge. . . . Milzi Green and Bob Anderson are getting constant. . . . Rudy Vallee has found Marie Windsor—they were at the Beverly Tropics. . . . Al Jolson liked Peggy Moran's terpsichorean ability—at least Dick Winslow's music at the Bar of Music suited them. . . . In a scene in "Hallelujah" Martha Raye looks at the audience and excuses herself to the Hays Office when she tries on a sweater. . . . Richard Aasen and Virginia Grey are back together again after a few days dating others. . . . Hedy Lamarr and John Howard are still pining for each other—and it looks like the pair will get together again. . . . Sonia Henie is backing down on her decision to quit pictures—Sun Valley Serenade is gleaming up at the box-office and two other studios have bid for her. . . . Brian Aherne and Joan Fontaine gave friends a few anxious moments last week when the plane which Brian is piloting back east was lost over Tucson for three hours. . . . Edgar Bergen and Phyllis Ruth look well together—Slappy Maxie's is their favorite hangout. . . . Adios!

Taking a perfectly understandable pride in what they see in those mirrors — and what they can't see is all right, too — are three young ladies from the Paramount lot named Ella Neal, Barbara Britton and Katharine Booth.

JOE FISHER'S Reviews of Previews

It has been some years since Paramount made a really strong bid for an Academy Award, but in "HOLD BACK THE DAWN" there is little doubt in this reviewer's opinion that the big Marathon bid has, if not an eventual winner, at least an outstanding nomination for the coveted Oscar.

Taking full advantage of a cast headed by Charles Boyer, Olivia de Havilland and Paulette Goddard, the magnificent direction of Mitchell Leisen turns this powerful story into heart-wrenching drama, all blended with an exquisite love story mounting to a smashing climax that will break down the most hardened movie-goer. The background is essentially sex but so delicately has Mr. Leisen handled what could easily become objectionable situations, that it is only in retrospect one realizes the potency of the screen dynamite he has so deftly handled.

The story is of a gigolo, Boyer, who is with a group of immigrants waiting in Mexico for the coming of their quota entry into the United States. There he meets a vacationing, sentimental American school teacher, Olivia de Havilland, whom he marries but continues to associate with his former Parisian dancing partner, Miss Goddard. In fact she becomes his companion for the four weeks he must wait before entering this country. How Miss de Havilland returns to Mexico to surprise him and the scenes that follow make for some of the most potent drama your reviewer can remember.

For Mr. Boyer the picture is a triumph. He reaches new heights. For two years Miss de Havilland has lost an Academy Award by the breadth of a hair. In this film she may well win it. The warmth of her performance is a thing you can truly feel. Miss Goddard, in the most difficult role of her career as the lady of light morals, again establishes her place in Hollywood. Fine, too, are the performances of Walter Abel, whose work will bring him more important roles hereafter, and of Rosemary DeCamp as an expectant refugee mother. Hers is a major contribution to the film's perfection. Mention must also be made of Victor Francen, Curt Bois, Charles Arnt and Eric Feldary. Mr. Leisen, himself, turns actor for a short scene, and does his job well.

"HOLD BACK THE DAWN" is a two-hour film, but you will never realize that two hours can pass so quickly.

Frankly here is a picture the like of which, by nature of things, can only occur at long intervals. Don't miss it.

With the preview of "TANKS A MILLION," Hal Roach gets this new series of five-reel comedies off to a roaring start; and roaring is the word for the gales of laughter which convulsed a Glendale preview audience at the press showing of the film.

It's the story of a railroad information clerk with an amazing memory, who when drafted embarrassed an entire army commandment with his ability to quote regulations by page, section number and what have you. Naturally his old-line drill sergeant resents what he feels is mere smart-aleckness on the boy's part and attempts to discipline him. William Tracy plays the draftee; Joe Sawyer the sergeant; with Noah Berry, Jr., James Gleason, Frank Faylen and Elvyn Koss for decorative effects rounding out a competent cast which succeeds in getting everything there is out of a series of gags that are breath takingly funny.

"TANKS A MILLION" will please any movie-goer young or old who is looking for an hour's worth of belly-laughs.

MEET THE STARS With VIC BORSEN

If the rules of piety at a certain ministerial college in Afghanistan had had some of the Christian tolerance which the school purported to teach, young Richard Webb would likely have wound up behind a pulpit instead of before a movie camera.

Richard's family tree is loaded with preachers and the uncle who took over the boy's education after his father died was determined that Richard likewise should assume the cloth. Dick had put in nearly half a dozen studies, ascetic years at the school, doing without most of those amusements which have appealed to normal boys some thousands of years, and then, more in lapse than in revolt, he committed a sin of the devil himself: he went to a movie.

Gravely and with the manner of men cremating a body to spare the community from a dread pestilence, the school officials banished him forever to the Outer Darkness. Webb had gone to a movie and there was absolutely no room for equivocation.

Richard went to New York and there, after a lean period during which he sometimes rode the subway all night to keep warm, he joined the army. He served most of his enlistment in the Canal Zone and came out a lieutenant.

That brought him up to last August. The question of the future once more loomed large before him. He was sitting one day in the Bliss-Hayden Theatre in Beverly Hills, watching the performance and gently turning over the thought of a try at the movies, an idea which occurs in greater or less degree to everyone who lands in Southern California.

It happened that Jeanie McPherson of Paramount was seated some rows in front of him. Ordinarily these right people who happen to be in the right place at the proper time keep eyes front and watch the going-on beyond the footlights; but Miss McPherson looked back. There sat Webb, broad-shouldered and brawny, his abundant blond hair bleached heavily white by the tropical sun of Panama, a perfect leading man type.

So he was hauled over to Paramount, probably, the first picture candidate ever to come from the audience rather than the stage. He was tested and forthwith cast in "I Wanted Wings." He did so well in this that they gave him the second lead in "The Remarkable Andrew," a story of Andrew Jackson which is now being filmed. The prospects are good that his next will be in Harry Sherman's "Tombstone."

At any rate, Webb is coming along fine. "Isn't it funny how things turn out?" he says with one of the best smiles in town. "Once I was kicked out of school for seeing a movie. Now I'm making them."

And over on this side we have Lynn Bari, who's resting up from her recent chores at 29th Century-Fox with a brief vacation at Lake Arrowhead.

HOLLYWOOD FASHION SCENE By MARGARET MCKAY

The sweater is going more glamorous than ever these days despite the disapproving eyebrow-raising of the Hays Office (the censor and censor department of the motion picture industry). It's hardly possible to do away with favorite wear, and to prove the point the gals are even going the lily by trimming their sweaters with new tricks to call attention.

Edith Head, Paramount's top designer, decorated a plain brown jersey sweater for Veronica Lake to wear in "Sullivan's Travels" with applied gold ribbon braid set in necklace fashion and consisting of five rows. A tiny brown beanie also applied with the gold ribbon braid in the same style, completes the costume.

And then there is Mrs. Herbert Marshall (who looks so much like Rosalind Russell) who introduced a new sweater stunner while weekending down at El Rancho Vegas in Las Vegas. Topping her white linen slacks was a black knitted sweater with the new drop shoulder yoke, and white wool fringe outlining the yoke. This is really a "dressy" looking touch to sweaters and should be stunning with a knitted hat to match, with the white wool fringe dripping over one side of the hat. Get out your knitting needles and try this fringe treatment with your sweaters. It will be in all the smart shops before fall.

Speaking of knitting needles, Irene Dunne also motored up to the Nevada vacation spot, showing off a wonderful idea for you summer travelers. To finish off her motoring garb, she tied a state-blue chiffon handkerchief about her head in the usual urban fashion, but held it in place with two brown hatpins. Going back home, she wore a knitted wrap-around turban and jabbed it securely together with two knitting needles. It's a swell idea for summer automobile excursions, and looks very devastating when you cross-criss the two needles or hatpins in front.

BEST DRESSED GIRL OF THE WEEK: Summer being very much with us yet, I definitely believe in not ignoring what we are wearing now, to the exclusion of future fashion forecasts, therefore I pick Mrs. Henry Fonda as the best-dressed, for the play dress she wore to Martha Raye's Sunday afternoon party at Martha's Encino home. It won the highpoint because of checked fabric, pastel flowered glazed chintz, no less! With square-cut neck, puffed sleeves and dirndl skirt, it was simple in design, but the glazed chintz made her blonde attractiveness look Dresden-like. If you are tired of your old chintz window curtains, try cutting them into a play dress or make shorts and blouse of them. And why not? Many of the girls out here who can afford to buy anything they want, cut up India print tablecloths for sarongs and shorts because they like the designs in the materials. Being smart in fashion is not always a case of simple pocketbook. Ingenuity goes a long way!

THEIR RIGHT NAMES By BOB WATERMAN

If somebody asked them to give their right names, Hollywood's top-flight stars would disclose more aliases than a well-filled jail — only in this case it's done for purposes of glamour rather than concealment. For instance, when a certain young actress first appeared in vaudeville as a child she answered to the name of Helen Gumm. "What flavor?" asked George Jessel, who happened to be on the same bill. That seemed a fair question, so the child's name was changed to Judy Garland.

Another little girl called Chouchou — a French name pronounced "shoo-shoo" — got tired of hearing her New York school-mates call her "shoe shine" and decided to put a stop to it. She's done very nicely since then under the name of Claudette Colbert.

Out in Filley, Nebraska, a promising young man had gotten along quite well with the name of Spangler Arlington Brugh, but when he came to Hollywood his new bosses decided nobody could pronounce Brugh. So for some time now he's been calling himself Robert Taylor. For much the same reasons Lucille LeSueur became Joan Crawford, Jane Fetter switched to Carole Lombard, Clara Lou Sheridan abbreviated it to Ann, and George Raft dropped that "n" to become George Raft.

This would seem to answer Shakespeare's question, "What's in a name?" — because in Hollywood there's money in it if you happen to pick the right one.

Many Problems Awaiting FD On His Return To Capital

Shakeup Due For Defense Organization

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt's return to the capital tomorrow will find a variety of problems awaiting his attention and disposition.

First will be the ever acute question of accelerating the delivery of defense supplies to Great Britain, the armed forces of the United States, and also to Russia.

For some time, criticisms of the defense setup, as lumbering, less efficient than need be, and hampered by overlapping duties and powers have been numerous. And the critics have not been confined to the group which opposes the president's policies.

There have been reports, some of them seemingly well-founded, that a shake-up of the defense organization is imminent, one report had it that Mr. Roosevelt had appointed Judge Samuel N. Rosenman, of New York, to look into the situation and make recommendations. However a high official said Judge Rosenman was confining his studies to the overlapping of functions of the Office of Price Administration and Office of Production Management.

Whether or not major changes are made, however, the situation presented is one that calls for White House decisions of a major nature.

In addition, Washington would not be surprised if the president were bringing as many problems back to Washington as await him here, problems calling for decisions based on the information exchanged at the Churchill conference.

On the domestic front, strikes continue to present problems, particularly that at the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company in Kearny, N. J.

Several bills await Mr. Roosevelt's signature, notably the army service extension bill, adding eighteen months to the possible service of draftees, national guardsmen, reservists and army enlisted men.

Then, there is also another big defense appropriation bill—$7,866,895,000—but still carrying less money than the army and the administration requested.

Gospel Meeting Opens Today At Church Of Christ

Today marks the beginning of a gospel meeting at the Church of Christ, Fourteenth and Main streets. The meeting is to last eleven days, and the evangelist is Taine Starnes of Mineral Wells. Though a young man, he has had much successful experience as an evangelist.

He is a graduate of Abilene Christian College, where he won high honors as a debater and speaker. He has preached for various churches since his graduation, but has spent much time in evangelistic work. For some time now he has been giving full time to this type of preaching and his work in this field has been highly successful.

Services will be held each week day morning at 7 o'clock, and each evening at 8:15. The evening services will be on the church lawn. The seats are comfortable. The singing is congregational and under the direction of Dan Conley.

The first service of the meeting which is at 10:45 this morning will be broadcast over KBST.

The public is cordially invited to all the services.

Haislips Return From Colorado

Rev. and Mrs. Homer W. Haislip returned home Friday after an extensive visit in Colorado. They both took special seminary work in the Iliff School of Theology in Denver. Mrs. Haislip did definite research in the History of Judaism which will give rich background materials for her Bible teaching in the local high school. Rev. Haislip took work leading to the academic doctor's degree in the field of Practical Theology.

During the past three Sundays the First Christian Church pulpit has been supplied by Dr. Frank Jewett of Austin. Rev. Woodrow Wadswick, Rev. Louis Palmer and O. P. Griffin of Big Spring.

"That You May Have Life" will be the subject for the pastor's sermon today at 10:30 a. m. An anthem, "Thy Name We Bless" will be given by the choir.

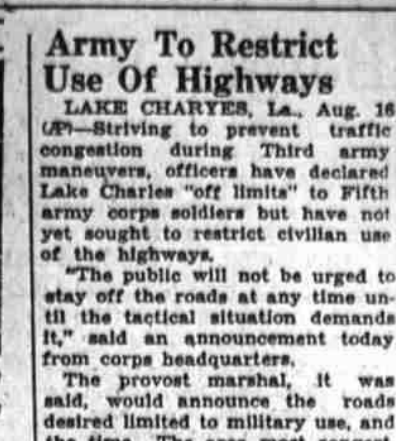

"That Prophet From Tekoa" will be the subject for the sermon at 8:15 p. m. The pastor will give a brief review of "Some Experiences in Colorado." The choir will lead in a "big sing" and present special music.

Before They Return To The Classroom

Have their pictures made. The return to school, you know, is an important milestone — Jimmy and Susie are a year older, a year advanced. They'll never be of the same appearance as they were this happy summer. Keep that appearance permanently by recording it in a portrait. We're equipped to make any type of photograph.

Auto Crash Kills Pair

LIBERTY, Aug. 16 (AP)—Two persons were killed and three others injured in an auto collision on highway 90 just outside the city limits of Liberty today.

Mrs. A. G. Hinson of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was killed instantly and A. G. Hinson, riding in the same car, died a few minutes after being picked up at the wreck scene.

An identification case gave the address of the couple as 511 South-east Seventh street, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Auto Crash Kills Pair

Sheriff Pat C. Lowe was making an effort to locate relatives of the two.

The other car in the wreck was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Skeels and a 10-year-old son of Fort Arthur. They were taken to a hospital here. Skeels had a fractured rib and other injuries while Mrs. Skeels and the boy were bruised slightly.

SICILY BOMBED

ROME, Aug. 16 (AP)—British warplanes bombed Catania and Augusta on the island of Sicily during the night, killing three persons and wounding a score in the former city, the Italian high command reported today.

Foreign Trade Hits A New High Mark

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—The commerce department said today the value of exports and imports in the nation's foreign trade for the fiscal year ended June 30 reached the highest total recorded for any fiscal year since 1929-30.

The value of exports for the 1940-41 fiscal year totaled $4,050,000,000 and imports for the same period were $2,925,000,000. This included exports for the first six months of 1941 valued at $2,093,000,000 and imports totaling $1,594,000,000.

During June, however, foreign trade showed a decline in both volume and value.

WPA Project Adds Two More Units

COLORADO CITY, Aug. 16 (Sp1)—Two more units are now underway on the county-sponsored WPA project for re-working and re-indexing all documents in the county vault at the Mitchell county courthouse.

Minutes of the commissioners court are being indexed, and all birth records are being re-indexed under the new units. All old papers were filed under the unit just completed.

Fern Coon is in charge of the project, with James Herrington, county clerk, as general supervisor.

Army To Restrict Use Of Highways

LAKE CHARLES, La., Aug. 16 (AP)—Striving to prevent traffic congestion during Third army maneuvers, officers have declared Lake Charles "off limits" to Fifth army corps soldiers but have not yet sought to restrict civilian use of the highways.

"The public will not be urged to stay off the roads at any time until the tactical situation demands it," said an announcement today from corps headquarters.

The provost marshal, it was said, would announce the roads desired limited to military use, and the time. The area most congested is along a line from Shreveport through Monroe and New Iberia to Lake Charles.

Lieutenant General Walter Krueger, Third army commander, approved the order forbidding the soldiers to come to Lake Charles.

Bombers Lose Second Borgcr Start, 5 To 2; Take Opencer, 9 To 6

Gasser Stays At Head Of Hitting List

Stuart Williams of Borgcr continues at the head of the West Texas-New Mexico league's hitting show, having marked a .336 average as of Monday, August 11. On the Big Spring Bomber club, Hayden Greer still held hitting honors, although he fell from .338 to .335 over the week's period.

In the stolen base department, a pair of Big Springers, Hank Poltras and J. L. Haney stood near the top of the class. Poltras came in third in the business of bag larceny with a total of 22, led by Borgcr's Gilchrist with 27 and Williams' 23. Haney marked up 30 to land in fourth-place money.

3rd Inning Blast Gives Borgcr Win Saturday

BORGCR, Aug. 16.—Udell Moore, Gasser rookie right-hander who lost his first game his last time out, came back Saturday night to win victory number 13 as he pitched ninth-inning ball to beat the Big Spring Bombers in the second game of a three-game series.

One inning, the third, caused Big Spring to drop back to a half-game lead over the Gassers, after moving to a full game advantage by virtue of Friday's victory.

Andy Mohrlock limited the Borgcr club to four hits, two in the third frame, but errors plus his wildness gave the Gassers the nod. In the game-winning third the Gasser's put together three walks, two errors, two stolen bases.

BORGCR, Aug. 16 (AP)—Pitcher W. C. Garland, Jr., of the Borgcr Gassers made not a single error as he stepped up to home plate with Miss Anna Ruth Steward of Borgcr and was married last night. About 3,000 fans attended the ceremony which preceded the Borgcr-Big Spring game. "Miss Anna" said he wasn't nervous.

"In a ball game I am worried about whether I will win or lose. But when I became married I knew that no matter how I look at it I was the winner," he said.

Scotch Foursome Featured In Country Club's Sunday Play

Mrs. Farmer Gets First Ace On New Bent Grass Greens

Although official opening date has been postponed from today to Sunday, August 24, Country Club members are giving their new bent grass greens over a thorough going over. A sort of semi-official opening will be held today as a mixed Scotch foursome match will get underway at 1:30 p. m.

According to the rules of the off-the-beaten-path type of play, man and woman partners in each foursome will take the hole count off one ball, total to be the score for the two. Members intending to compete have been asked to appear on the scene at the appointed time.

Play over the revamped greens is being given an auspicious start. Top event thus far was a hole-in-one picked up by Mrs. J. L. Farmer last Friday. Driving of the ladies' tees on the 125-yard number nine hole, Farmer rolled neatly into the cup for the first ace made on the new layout.

Mrs. Farmer is slated to be one of the strong contenders for the Country Club women's championship tournament to be held soon. Definite date for the meet has yet to be arranged.

Prospects Bright For Big Farm Income For Dawson Co.

LAMESA, Aug. 16—An important story will be told in Dawson county between now and September 15.

It's a story of utmost economic importance—one which will determine whether Dawson county is to have a very small or a big crop. Based on the rate at which cotton is fruiting, Dawson county could make 75,000 bales of its 118,000 to 120,000 acres planted to cotton this year.

The best feed crop in years is practically in the bag. Virtually all feed will be saved for the cash crop campaign started in 1937 is really going great. Last year around 800 silos were filled and there will be another 150 dug and filled this year.

Pastures are the best ranchers have ever known in this area and with no bad luck ranchers will go into the winter with more cured grass than ever before.

Milk production—of which Dawson county has a big volume—has increased by approximately 20 percent according to reliable sources.

Dawson county's bumper harvest is by no means a clinch, but the way things look now, the odds favor another of those fabulous falls for Lamesa.

Poloists Meet Angelo Today

Fresh from a 6-3 conquest of Plainview here last Sunday, the Big Spring polo team will take on the San Angelo riders, led by Lyn Mertz, here this morning.

The game has been called at 9:30 a. m. at Bennett Field, on part of the airport lands, to avoid conflict with the final rodeo performance this afternoon.

Into the local line-up will go Dr. M. H. Bennett, Lewis Rix, Lloyd Wasson and Gus White, Jr., of Lamesa.

AGGIE-TEXAS TICKET SALES UNDERWAY

COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 16 (AP)—The game is more than three months away, but Texas A. & M. football officials said today they were receiving a constantly increasing flood of orders for tickets to the Texas-Texas Aggie football game, here, Nov. 27.

Already, they said, tickets had been ordered printed for temporary seats in the open end of the stadium—making possible an attendance of 38,883.

Wool Market

BOSTON, Aug. 16 (AP) (USDA) A spotty trade in wool on the Boston market this week was in the aggregate only moderate in volume. Scattered strikes in mills and a strike of wool handlers in Boston curtailed trading to some extent. Prices showed some irregularity on the fine western grown wools while on medium grades of domestic wools prices were mostly steady. Course grades of domestic wools showed a strengthening tendency. Combing bright fleeces wools received only a limited demand at grease basis prices, ranging from 41-43 cents for fine Delaine; 43-45 cents for half bloods; 45-46 cents for three eighths bloods and 45-47 cents for quarter bloods.

Former Local Youth Now In The RCAF

William W. Wilson, a former Big Spring boy, is in training for the Royal Canadian Air Force today because a former flying instructor of his had a layover in Dallas. Billy was working in Dallas at the time his flight instructor, whom he had known in El Paso, bumped into him on the street. They got to talking . . . and Billy wound up in Canada.

He entered Canada at Windsor where he signed up at the recruiting office along with 10 other youths, four of them from Texas. With Wilson was Neal Finch, Dallas, also a former resident of Big Spring, and Everle Brown, Sweetwater.

At the present his training is essentially in military fundamentals such as drills, etc. By October, however, he hopes to be placed in flight training so that he can become a pilot and go on to specialized fields.

Billy keeps in close touch with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Wilson, Jr., and they both are quite thrilled over his move. They plan to visit him in September at Valcartier, Quebec, where he was transferred recently.

The Week

evening when Snyder brings the program for the amphitheatre series and the Bombers take on the Berger Gassers in a crucial doubleheader for the league lead.

Gooden Petroleum Corp. and Coltex Refinery at Colorado City have asked the railroad commission for an increase in the Howard-Glasecock pool allowable so that they may secure ample crude to meet market demands in the Chicago area.

Despite the shift to substitute poisons due to absence of any calcium arsenate, the cotton picture looked about the same at the end of this week. So well have the farmers combated serious insect infestations that rain and not insects may soon become the determining factor in crop production. A good soaker would be a real boon now.

Child Hurt During Rodeo Parade Friday

Luan Creighton, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Creighton, sustained a broken leg Friday afternoon when she was kicked by a horse while participating in the Big Spring Reunion and Rodeo parade.

The accident occurred while the parade was proceeding along 11th street. She was mounted on her pony when the horse in front of her became unruly and kicked back. The youngster's father is one of the rodeo directors.

Rodeo

opening performances Friday, but the chilled atmosphere turned the stock downright frisky—and those who came got a bountiful glimpse of action.

Trouble with sound equipment delayed the start of the opening performance before a comparatively small crowd, but the increased audience Friday evening witnessed one of the fastest moving performances in the eight years of the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo.

Sally calves gave ropers plenty of trouble and their mild case of "stage fright," occasioned by their first round of roping, added to the woes of contestants and the glee of spectators. Broncs and steers out up and Friday night the wild mules went plumb crazy, much to the delight of the crowd.

Little over 1,000 witnessed the afternoon show while the night program brought out 2,000 to 2,500. By Saturday night, attendance had grown to an estimated 5,000.

Two hard spills occurred in the Friday evening show. Odell Betsell, up on Pay Day, received a badly wrenched shoulder when he was thrown shortly after leaving the chute. After receiving medical treatment, Betsell was released. Fess Reynolds of Graham, performing in the bull riding event, was thrown high and easy and landed low and hard, but came out of the spill with nothing worse than his wind knocked out.

In a between-acts show, "Little Brown Jug" Reynolds, three-year-old son of Fess Reynolds, put on a creditable performance with his pony, Tincey.

Lions And ABC Club Schedule Baseball Game For Monday

Renewing their diamond rivalry which couldn't be satisfied in a season of softball league play, the Lions club and American Business club will clash Monday at 8:30 p. m. under the lights at Roberts field.

This time it will be baseball—or hard ball as the players insist. Virtually the same lineups as were played in the recent softball campaign, which the ABCs won, will go into the Monday evening game. The tax is 25 cents, and excess proceeds over light costs—if any—will go to benevolent funds of the two clubs.

More Conferences On Airport Project

City Manager B. J. McDaniel returned Friday night from conferences with CAA officials in Fort Worth, Dallas and Oklahoma City concerning the municipal airport project.

He planned to relay the results of those parleys to district and state WPA authorities early this week in an effort to definitely settle the readjustments for the local port project.

The trip Friday was made with Dr. W. F. Malone, chairman of the chamber of commerce aviation committee, in the latter's plane.

Jeanne Young Wins In Amateur Hour

Jeanne Young, young soprano, won first prize in the amphitheatre program Friday evening before a crowd that was reduced somewhat by the rodeo.

Second place went to Doyle Turney and his band, who, in addition to their regular appearance on the program, did relief work for the band, which was playing at the rodeo. Betty Jean Underwood and Charlene Pinkston, piano duet, took third place in the abbreviated program.

Friday artists from Snyder will stage the program, having delayed their appearance here one week to avoid conflict with the western show.

Texas Car Sales Reach July Peak

AUSTIN, Aug. 16 (AP)—Delivery of Texas business automobiles reported today that more Texans put new automobiles on the road last month than any other July in history.

Attributing the increased sales to possible price raises and production curtailment, the University Bureau of Business Research said new passenger car registrations were 34 per cent above July, 1940.

Notes From The Rodeo— Big Spring Folks And Guests Attend Rodeo Over The Weekend

Cool Weather Help To Show Held Here

Everybody and his wife and wife's relatives were at the rodeo Friday. Cool weather, no doubt, and a fast show kept the crowd entertained.

Dressed in white slacks and wearing a cowboy hat was Mary Louise Bruce who looked really slick in her outfit.

Talked with Mrs. S. D. Wulfjen of Colorado City, an old-timer at attending rodeos. She was sitting in the M. M. Edwards box with Mrs. Edwards. The Edwards by the way have as guests, Mrs. Diele Williamson and Alma of Eastland. Alma is riding in the grand entry parade as she goes nearly every year.

Mrs. Cecil Wasson looked dressed up and cool in a big panama hat with a light print dress. Mrs. Carl Barker of Fort Worth, the former Jens Jordan, was an interested spectator. She was dressed in a black outfit with white accessories. Mrs. Middleton and her children were with them. Mrs. Middleton looked nice in a pink lace.

Another rodeo widow for this eighth annual show is Mrs. M. H. Bennett who was attending all shows. Dr. Bennett is in charge of the sponsors activities this year. She was with her mother, Mrs. H. W. Leaper, who dressed in a print dress with a white hat.

The show got off to a good start and everybody got goosebumps when they played the Star Spangled Banner. It really sounded good.

Looking around, there were lots more folks who were taking in the show. Mrs. Dave Eastbourne dressed in pink slacks and Mrs. Henry Edwards in blue slacks. They were with Mrs. Eastbourne's mother, Mrs. Oda Terry of Dallas, who looked nice in red and white.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Holmberg and Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Fiewellen arrived together. Mrs. Holmberg wore a turquoise dress and hat to match.

Best crack of the day was from one rodeo performer who had been unceremoniously dumped over a fence by a wild horse. Directors rushed to him and told him they'd get a doctor. "I don't want a doctor, I gotta ride a steer in the next event."

Some forty times better than the rodeo clown was the Little Brown Jug as he is billed. He's so tiny that his number, 100, pinned on his back is almost as big as he is. Funniest remark of the evening was the announcer who said that the Little Jug was tired and wanted to go home to bed, so his number would be held next. He's three years old—guess most three year olds were in bed by that hour.

A group from Coahoma were Mrs. Charles Read and children, Jane Read, Norman Read and Noble Read. Norman Read is one of the rodeo directors.

From Stanton was Mrs. James Kelly who wore a brown and white checked dress and linen hat. Incidentally, Mrs. Kelly is Stanton's newshound and reports on the town's doings.

Two of the riders in the parade were Mrs. Al Grobel and Mrs. Jack Platt, who rode like professionals. Mrs. Rowan Settles and Mrs. J. L. Webb, who had charge of concessions, were busy as the directors of the rodeo.

Anna Belle Edwards as hostess sponsor took a turn at broadcasting Friday night. During the afternoon she wore a white riding habit with maroon boots and hat. An odd and attractive silver and turquoise belt set off the outfit. Noticed Mrs. Sonny Edwards also has a belt like that. Certainly are pretty.

The calf with personality was the one who had just gotten thoroughly roped. When he was released, he turned and ran toward the grandstands, threw back his head and bawled at the audience before running out.

Dressed in western garb were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil McDonald and little Cecilia. They attended the Friday night performance. Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Angel and son were also on hand for the night performance.

Getting a kick out of the show was Mrs. Charis White who as a native of Denmark, hasn't been in West Texas very long and is really a rodeo tenderfoot. This was her first rodeo and she said there was "nothing like it in Denmark."

A Mexican theme was used in the decorations and program when the sponsors of the eighth annual Big Spring rodeo were feted with a luncheon Saturday noon at the Crawford hotel and a formal dance Saturday night at the country club.

Editorial --

Securing Peace Is Our First Task

The eight points outlined by President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill may well become historic, yet a mere statement of "their hopes for a better future for the world" should not be taken as an accomplished fact.

As great as these aims are, it must be admitted in all frankness, that their ultimate execution hinges, as the sixth point sets out, upon "the final destruction of the Nazi tyranny."

Thus, while these objectives are mighty in portent, they first must be secured by peace, and who is able to dictate that peace depends upon who wins the war. Certainly there will be no eight points embodying the hopes and aspirations of the democratic principle if Hitler is all-conquering.

The immediate task, then, is to first win the war. The very fact that President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill met for their conferences is symbolic of an actual alliance between the two great democratic nations. These men are not idealists alone, for while their joint declaration is the noblest of idealism it is practically born of two realistic and practical minds. It must be assumed that they not only talked of the peace to come, but how to implement a program to insure and hasten the bringing about of that peace.

What form our efforts to help earn the peace will take is yet to be learned, but if American citizens expect to have the right to outline an enduring peace, then we must expect to do our part in first securing it.

It follows then that we need not be surprised by appeals for pointed action. Surely the president will speak soon in all candor to the American people, and if and when he does, the vast majority of American people will follow him. There need be no fear that he will wantonly sacrifice the lives and fortunes of our people, for we are convinced that the president has been sincere in seeking to honorably keep our country out of a shooting war while, at the same time, promoting the lasting interests of our democracy.

Meanwhile, we should dedicate ourselves to the preservation of our way of life by doing what we can to destroy the forces which would eventually destroy us. When that is done, we can build upon the foundation of the eight points—eight points wrought out of the indestructible 14 points dreamed by Woodrow Wilson, a more far-seeing man than most Americans had vision to appreciate.

Manhattan—The Tuckers? Oh, They're Everywhere

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I see by the sports columns that Tommy Tucker, the heavyweight prizefighter, has joined the navy, which leads one naturally to wonder where all the other Tuckers are, and what they're doing... Well, that shouldn't be too tough... Orrin Tucker is at the Edge-water Beach, in Chicago... Tommy Tucker is at the Berkeley Car-ter in Asbury Park, N. J. ... Forrest Tucker, the actor, is in Hollywood, and so are Richard Tucker, Robert Tucker, Jerry Tucker, and Harland Tucker... The radio singer, Tommy Tucker, is in Philadelphia... I called the Wm. Morris Agency but they didn't know where Sophie Tucker was... Vernon Tucker is a dentist in New York... Barnett Tucker offers custom-made pants at 233 Broadway... George W. Tucker is a Manhattan lawyer, and so is Wm. D. Tucker... Harry Tucker is an orchestra leader... Sam Tucker is a dealer in furs... Ray Tucker, the political columnist, is in Washington, D. C. ... Well, that's about enough Tuckers for one day, don't you think? (Editor's note: Mr. Tucker is all Tuckered out.)

You see what I think I see?... I think I see Pola Negri's name signed to a Billy Rose contract... Pola came in from Europe after a long stay there, and when the stars of the old silent screen days come to town Billy usually signs them... The Diamond Horseshoe has become a rendezvous for the brighter lights of a generation ago... Fritz Scheff, Gladia Gray, Julianne Eltinge, Nita Naldi, Mae Murray—these and many others have found their way back to the Broadway lights through the portals of the Shoeh.

There have been edicts against them and there have been laws written into the city's books barring them from the streets, but somehow, some way, you never quite can root out the last of the old organ grinders, those typical, mustached Italians with their monkey and the little tin cups... I saw one on 7th avenue near 14th just the other day—fat, jolly, brown as a coffee bean... He operated a burdy-gurdy that ground out a tune 25 years old... The name of that tune was "On the Bark of an Old Cherry Tree"... A cop passed him but didn't say anything... Two kids watching him were fascinated, which suggests that though times change, kids never do... The last I saw of them, they were still there, still watching, still agape, still fascinated.

Wonder how much money the new shoeshine boy at the Battery has... I say new, but he's been there about five years now... When the other boy died, the papers were full of it... He was 65... He had been there for more than 20 years, shining shoes... But you didn't have to weep for him... He left $17,000, all in cash... He never missed a day's work in his life until he toppled over one day, and died the next.

Ruthers Nelson thinks movie stars who limit themselves to one or two pictures a year—as many do now in order to escape the higher taxes—do themselves irretrievable harm at the box-office... The most popular players are those who work in one picture after another... Three pictures a year seem the ideal number... At least, that is what a survey of box office reports indicates.

Appropriation Cut Partly Restored

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—Informed by Secretary of War Stimson that the manufacture of additional tanks and other ordnance was of "extreme importance on the security of the country," a joint senate-house committee agreed today to provide a special fund of $750,000,000 for this purpose.

Senator Adams (D-Colo.) said the conference group agreed to restore that much of a $1,347,000,000 fund, previously approved by the house, but eliminated when the senate passed a $6,838,436,000 supplemental defense bill yesterday.

CHUNGKING UNBOMBED

CHUNGKING, Cina, Aug. 16 (AP)—An attempt by Japanese air-men to open a second straight week of bombing this capital was frustrated this morning by mist blanketing the Chungking area. While no bombs fell, the city was kept under an air raid alarm for 55 minutes.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds—'Here Comes Mr. Jordan' Is A 'Double-Must' Movie

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — "Here Comes Mr. Jordan." Screenplay by Sidney Buchman and Seton I. Miller from play by Harry Segall. Directed by Alexander Hall. Principals: Robert Montgomery, Evelyn Keyes, Claude Rains, Rita Johnson, Edward Everett Horton, James Gleason, John Emery, Donald MacBride, Don Costello, Halliwell Hobbes, Benny Rubin. This is a double-must movie. It must be seen if you don't want to miss one of the year's top films, and it must be seen from the beginning. Pick it up anywhere else and you're lost. It's not a movie off the assembly line, the sort you can ride along with after viewing a couple of sequences in the middle. A customer who comes in late is likely to regard it as a diabolic invention planned solely for his confusion and irritation.

This, however, is an indication of "Mr. Jordan's" refreshing originality. You have to know, primarily, that the story is a fantastic modern fable dealing with the supernatural in a delicious comedy vein. You have to know which of the characters, all of whom you see and hear as if they were physically present, are invisible to the others. It's quite simple if you start at the beginning.

Joe, the flying pug (Montgomery), takes off from training camp for the assembly line in New York. His plane goes into a spin, crashes. Next we see Joe walking over limpet clouds, escorted by a messenger (Horton) to the heavenly air express presided over by Mr. Jordan (Rains).

But Joe isn't really dead. The records reveal that Messenger Horton has been over-anxious that Joe isn't due to die for 80 years. Mr. Jordan sends him back to the scene of the crash to rejoin his body, but Joe's manager (Gleason) already has had the "remains" cremated.

Now the problem is to find Joe a suitable substitute body, and Mr. Jordan, amiable, understanding, and tolerant, wanders the world to show him what bodies he has "in stock" or coming up. Merely to save a damsel in distress (Keyes) Joe agrees to occupy temporarily the body of a wealthy playboy who has just been drowned by his wife and secretary (Johnson and Emery). Looking to you and me like Joe, or Montgomery, Joe looks to those around him like the once philosophizing pulp-fictioner. His ex-manager's surprise when this character summons him to handle his pugilistic career is nothing compared to his uproarious reactions when Joe convinces him he's really Joe—it makes for top-notch glee from Gleason.

Joe's predicament is resolved handsomely in beautifully written, directed and acted scenes, making "Mr. Jordan" a delightful experience in movie-going.

"Hold That Ghost." Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Richard Carlson, Joan Davis, Mische Auer, Evelyn Ankora, Marc Lawrence, Ted Lewis and His Entertainers, the Andrews sisters. Abbott and Costello can do no wrong, and in fact they manage to give new embellishments to the haunted house and gangster plot. Joan Davis very funny, too.

"...So I kept it for its sentimental value. Besides, it's worth $12,000."

Washington—Odds And Ends Pulled Out Of The Mail Bag

WASHINGTON—Answering the mail orders:

G. F. Frederick, Md.—It is true that Gen. Douglas MacArthur was "demoted" when he was named commanding officer of the "United States Army Forces in the Far East," but his "demotion" was purely a technical one. As former chief of staff, he was a full four-star general. As commander of the Far East forces, he steps down to his former three-star rank of lieutenant general. That's because only the chief of staff or a former one can be a four-star general.

R. G. Milton, Mass.—The army was not making any effort to "Russianize" the boys on maneuvers in the South this summer when they announced that the "war" there was between "Almat" defended by the Blue army, and "Kotmk" (pronounced "Kotmik") defended by the Red army. Almat gets its name from the first letters of the states within its borders—Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee. Kotmk comes from Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Missouri and Kentucky.

C. M. M. Jacksonville, Ind.—According to my check, there are 302 lawyers in Congress — an even 250 in the House of Representatives and 52 in the senate — more than half in both cases.

S. N. Glendale, Calif.—The fight for a unified air force on equal footing with the army and navy certainly is not dead. The National Aeronautic Association's recent announcement in favor of a department of national defense, with divisions of air, army and navy, has given fresh impetus to the fight, with the likelihood that both the Senate and House soon will open hearings on the matter, with a view to legislation, of that seems desirable. Senators Pat McCarran and Robert R. Reynolds are in the vanguard, for a unified air force on the senate side and Rep. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia on the House.

Chapter 25 BAD FOR TOMMY

Someone said "Hello," and I recognized Amelia's slow, heavy voice. I clanked the receiver on the hook.

"Your little roommate... did they... is she all right?" I was running my fingers down the B's to find the Bristol Hotel. I wished fervently that this tall gray woman would let me alone — yet I was borrowing her phone, and it would have been difficult to tell her to be quiet. I found the number at last, and dialed the number.

"Good afternoon, Bristol Hotel," said a lilting female voice. "Tom Nelson, please, quick!" There was a pause, then the voice came again over the wire, still lilting. "Sorry, Mr. Nelson has left word that he is not to be disturbed."

"He's got to be disturbed. I've got to talk to him." "Sorry," Mr. Nelson has left word. "Listen," I said, and my voice was definitely not lilting, "this is important. I'm calling for the police. You ring Tom Nelson's room and you ring it right away."

I heard the buzzes then, short impatient ones. I counted ten of them and I jiggled the receiver hook. "Will you have him paged, please?" I asked when the girl answered.

The gray woman touched me lightly on the shoulder. Her face was worried and she was biting her lip. "This Mr. Nelson you're calling. Is he a... a suspect?" "You bet your life he is," I said grimly, holding the receiver against my cheek.

"You mean it's possible that he might have tried to kill Miss Blanton?"

I nodded. I could hear a bell-hop calling Mr. Nelson at the other end.

"And his first name is Tom... Tommy?" "Yes, Tommy Nelson. He was in our show."

She walked to the window and looked out into the street. "There's quite a crowd in front of the Esplanade. Three police cars and I don't know how many policemen." The operator at the Bristol was back. "Sorry, Mr. Nelson doesn't seem to be in the hotel just now. Is there any message?"

I hung up and started for the door.

"Wait a second! Please, just a second!" The woman was standing with her back to the window, grasping the sills with each hand, and the knuckles shone white through her bony fingers. I stopped. She glanced out into the street again, then back at me. Her lips tightened as she spoke. "I... I think I have some evidence."

I looked at her sharply. "Evidence? You don't mean you saw who fired that shot?"

She shook her head. "No, no. Nothing like that. Nothing like that at all. Why, I was... I was in my kitchenette when I heard the shot, and when I ran to the window there was no one there. It's something else, something I... I overheard."

"Overheard? Where?" "In your apartment. One night about two weeks ago. I was sitting in that big armchair over close by the wall reading. And the voices came out to me very distinctly. I had no intention of listening, absolutely none at all. I just happened to overhear, that's all."

She blushed furiously as she spoke and I knew at once that she hadn't happened to overhear anything. The woman was a chronic eavesdropper. I thought of some of the rare and sly tidbits she could have picked up in my apartment during the last year, and I felt myself reddening with her. For a moment we must have looked like a couple of Indian squaws.

"Your little friend, Miss Blanton, was there. We've spoken to each other several times in the elevator. I was in the lobby and I recognized her voice immediately. The person she was talking to was a man whom she called Tommy. That's why I thought... when I heard you calling..." "Till Kill You?"

"Yes. It was probably Tommy Neilson. He's been up several times."

"I don't believe that anyone else was there because they were quarreling."

"Quarreling? Tommy and Carol?" "Oh, yes. Yes, quite violently. They raised their voices and talked very loud. That's why I happened to overhear them, you understand."

"Yes, of course." "I couldn't hear all they said because they spoke so fast. You know how people do when they're angry. But I did hear one thing and it worried me even then. Not much, of course, for people say things they don't mean when they're angry and their tempers are aroused. But then, nothing had happened to Miss Blanton and I forgot about it, really."

"She stopped and knitted her bony fingers together, studying them intently. I thought it wasn't any of my business because if I hadn't been sitting in that one chair I probably wouldn't have overheard. There's no reason why I should become involved in a thing like this simply because I happened to be sitting in that chair. But if this building is going to be filled with those strange-looking men who Jim told me are detectives and people are going to fire bullets into the window right next to mine, I suppose I'll have to make it my business."

"Yes, I understand," I thought that if she didn't get to the point I would do her some physical damage. "Was this one thing you heard?"

"ADD—SUNDAY STORY... I heard him say," she said slowly, "I will kill you first!"

I gulped audibly. "You... you must be mistaken!"

"She shook her iron-gray head. "No. Those are his exact words. I will kill you first," he said. Of course," she added with a pathetic eagerness, "he probably was jesting. People say foolish things when they're excited. I'm sure there's absolutely nothing in it."

I thought of Alice McDonald's story and then laughed at myself. Of course there was nothing in it. If Tommy Neilson had threatened Carol she would have told us. She would have been afraid of him, and she wasn't.

Yet why on earth should this woman, who was obviously related, absolutely none at all. I just happened to overhear, that's all."

"I don't believe that anyone else was there because they were quarreling."

"Quarreling? Tommy and Carol?" "Oh, yes. Yes, quite violently. They raised their voices and talked very loud. That's why I happened to overhear them, you understand."

Apparently she had not recovered from the table's left uppercut to the jaw. "What are you rattling about?" Jeff cut in.

Stimson Speaks To Make Troops Aware Of Dangers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—Military authorities asserted today that when the nation's citizen soldiers become fully aware of the dangers confronting the United States in an armed and fighting world, problems of morale will be dissipated in a general wave of enthusiasm for defense preparations.

Some army men said that prolonged and bitter debate over the bill, involving heated discussion as to whether this country was in real danger, had tended to lower morale of the troops but now that the debate was ended and the policy governing service extension settled this situation would eventually right itself.

Seek Added Capital For Locker Unit

With common stock sales reasonably close to the minimum requirements, directors of a cooperative freezer locker project Saturday voted to make another effort to secure this portion of needed capital.

Should plans materialize, freezer locker officials likely would secure options on a site, draft plans for a building and equipment. Although scope of the plant is undecided, it was estimated that it might require around $12,000 to install sharp freezing, chill rooms, meat and vegetable processing rooms and lockers.

Installment Restriction Studied By Reserve Board

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—Close regulation of installment credit to provide for bigger down payments and an 18-month limit on installment contracts was considered today by the federal reserve board in a move to block inflation.

The powerful board, armed with an executive order based on credit restriction powers carried over from World War days, yesterday made proposals intended for purposes of discussion. But the proposals carried the suggestion of high authority.

"It is proposed," said Marriner S. Eccles, board chairman, "in the initial regulations covering only a limited number of articles and applying only moderate terms, to lay a basis for such subsequent coverage and adjustment of terms as experience in this field and economic development may indicate to be necessary."

The tentative suggestions called for a minimum down payment of one-third on automobiles, aircraft, boats, and motorcycles, for at least 20 per cent on radios, refrigerators, and other household appliances, and for 15 per cent on plumbing and air conditioning

Albert M. Fisher Co Big Spring, Texas August 17, 1941 Dear Customer: An open letter to our many customers about prices. We do not know when the peak of prices will arrive but we are positive there will be many increases when we start replacing our present stocks. We assure you we will NOT raise the price on merchandise already on our shelves now. Our increased prices will be only on items we receive from day to day at present market prices. Yours very truly, Albert M. Fisher Co
