Bobby Owen recognized as 'Citizen of Year'

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Bobby Owen was named "Citizen of the Year"; the Hereford Ambulance personnel received plaques for distinguished community service, and a banquet crowd of almost 600 heard a motivational and humorous speech by Dr. W.C. Newberry and inspirational songs by Johnny Ray Watson as highlights of the annual Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce banquet Thursday night at the Bull Barn.

Owen, a partner in Summerfield Fertilizer, was the master of ceremonies and outgoing president of the chamber. He turned the C of C reins over to Rex Easterwood, local attorney, who recognized the officers and directors for 1985.

In the presentation by Hereford Lions Club President B.J. Gilliland, Owen was recognized for his work and service in various areas of the community. The Hereford native is a deacon in the First Baptist Church and was a director of the "Sweet Hogs" Sunday School class and is active in the Kiwanis Club and chamber.

Owen helped organize a system for transporting kidney patients to the dialysis center in Amarillo, with a van ultimately being purchased for that purpose. He is a past president of Kiwanis with 18 years perfect attendance and is a current board member. He was named "Layman of the Year" by the Kiwanis district in 1980. He was also cited for "deep love for young people", having served as a Key Club sponsor for the past 10 years. He and his wife, Betty, have four daughters.

Fourteen members of the Ambulance Service were presented plaques by Easterwood and Mike Carr, executive vice president of the chamber. Personal sketches of the people in the system were featured in the C of C tabloid which were placed at each table.

This is the second year for the presentation of the community service award, presented to the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department last year. Receiving the special plaques were: Doris Morgan, J.W. Dickerson, Raymond Schroeter, Sylvia Emerick, Joe Hamby, Gary Phipps, Paul Hamilton, Rex Lee, Gerry Hollinger, Jerry Walls, William Justice, Ken Cook, Don Lauderback and Shawn Poland.

Bill Harris, C of C vice president, voiced the invocation at the banquet and Speedy Nieman introduced out-of-town guests. Jena Rawley-Whitaker served as chairman of decorations and a number of clubs and firms decorated tables this year. Key Club members helped in the food serving and Hereford Hustlers served as greeters.

Dr. Newberry, "Sage of Southwest Texas", gave a humorous talk on "creeping tensions" and climaxed his address with reasons everyone should feel fortunate to live in the United States of America.

He said the USA was not great because of its resources or geography, or because God blesses only this nation. "The reason is a well-kept secret...it's our free enterprise system," said Newberry. "We should continue to practice it and defend it with all our might."

Watson, a well-known gospel singer and former Hereford resident, entertained the banquet audience with a variety of vocals. Watson, a Black, told the audience that when he moved near Austin, he had "trouble convincing people I was a Whiteface!"

Officers and directors of the chamber for 1985 include Easterwood, Harris, Steve Nieman, treasurer; Mike Bowles, Doug Manning, Terry Bromlow, Charlie Bell, Rosie Griffin, Gary Phipps, John Hays, Jim Arney, Joe Reinauer Jr., and Betty Drake, Women's Division president. Recognized for service as outgoing directors were Irene McKinster, John Stagner, Danny Boyer, Bob Sims and Arvilla Lauderback.

Coveted Lions Award Presented

Bobby Owen received the "Citizen of the Year" award at the chamber banquet Thursday night. B.J. Gilliland, left, president of Hereford Lions Club, made the presentation and cited Owen for his outstanding service and work for the community through the years.

Hightower disgruntled with farm proposals

AUSTIN (AP) — President Reagan and his budget director don't understand farmers or their problems, and the administration's new farm proposals prove it, the Texas agriculture commissioner says.

"It isn't just a matter of budget and numbers and statistics and (budget director) David Stockman's madness. It's a deliberate policy of economic genocide," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said Thursday.

"It's a killer. At least a third of the commercial operators in this state and across the country will be bankrupt within a year under that program. It's going to destroy the family farm sector," he said in an interview.

Reagan's plans, presented this week to Congress, aim to cut, limit or eliminate price supports, income and loan subsidies, federal farm loans, soil and water conservation, cost-sharing funds, acreage set-asides and many other farm programs.

If adopted, farm state legislators say the Reagan plan would reduce federal outlays to agriculture by 37 percent.

In addition, Stockman made a stinging attack on farm loan aid, saying he can't understand why the government should "refinance bad debt that was willingly incurred by consenting adults." He said farm state congressmen "blackmailed" the administration into action on farm credit problems.

Hightower said Stockman's criticism and the Reagan program demonstrate that they don't understand farm economics.

The agriculture commissioner noted that grain embargos and other federal policies made the federal government a key player in the farm economy.

Stockman's criticism, Hightower said, "is a typical pointy headed bureaucratic sort of view. It's, 'Well, damn the farmers.' It's typical."

The federal government "establishes an economic policy that drives them out of business" and then government officials "point the finger of blame at them," Hightower said. "That's been done before. That's what (President Herbert) Hoover did during the Depression."

Hightower, who was a close adviser to Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale on farm policy, also criticized the Reagan administration's plan to expand federal aid to financially strapped farmers.

The plan would allow bankers to offer farmers lower interest rates on loans backed by federal guarantees. About $625 million of the $650 million in loan guarantees unveiled by Reagan last autumn have gone unused as many lenders refused to accept the requirement that they write off 10 percent of the value of the troubled loans.

Under the new plan, a lender can lower the restructured loan's interest rate, or use a combination of interest reduction and loan capital write off. But the lender's loss must still equal the value of forgiving 10 percent of the loan's value.

Hightower called the plan "a joke" because banks won't do it and farmers still aren't getting high (See HIGHTOWER, Page 2)

Horse racing being studied

AUSTIN (AP) — While black lawmakers and a citizens' group are criticizing horse racing legislation, the Texas Department of Agriculture says legalizing gambling on the sport would generate millions of dollars for farmers.

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower unveiled a study Thursday estimating that racing would give farmers up to $230 million directly within 15 years and would generate a total of $712 million for the state.

"If the Texas Legislature decides in its wisdom during this session that we can play 'Call to the Post' at Texas tracks, one sure winner is going to be Texas agriculture," Hightower said.

"If there is to be pari-mutuel wagering in Texas, it would mean direct economic benefits for horse raisers, hay farmers, corn growers and wheat producers," he said.

While Hightower released the study, the Anti-Crime Council of Texas said horse racing would bring more illegal gambling to Texas, fail to bring promised economic benefits and lead to more corruption of public officials.

Abner McCall of Waco, chairman of the council, said the state's experience with legalized bingo — in which charities are getting only a small percentage of bingo proceeds although they were supposed to be the chief beneficiaries — should prove that Texas couldn't control horse racing.

Johnny Ray Watson, of Austin, well-known gospel singer, returned to Hereford to entertain a capacity crowd at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet Thursday evening. Watson, a former Hereford resident, was invited for a second performance at the popular affair.

Mayor Fisher files for second term

Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher filed Wednesday for re-election to another two-year term. City elections are set for April 6.

Fisher is completing his first term as mayor, after serving two terms on the Hereford City Commission.

A native of the Sacramento Valley and graduate of the University of California at Davis, Fisher came to Hereford 20 years ago when the Holly Sugar plant was built. He served as agricultural manager at Holly before entering the produce business.

The mayor is the executive vice president of Barrett-Fisher Incorporated, a packing shed that processes mostly potatoes.

"I've enjoyed serving as mayor," he said, "and I look forward to another two years."

Fisher said he believes continuity among city officials will be especially important when the new city manager takes over in July. Dudley Bayne plans to retire June 30.

Also up for grabs in April are the two city commission places occupied by Joe Reinauer and Ed Coplen. Neither of those men has filed for re-election.

March 6 is the last day to file.

Schools to dismiss early Monday

Hereford public schools will dismiss one hour early Monday afternoon because of the U.S. Senate hearings to be held in the high school auditorium from 3 to 5 p.m.

Larry Wartes, assistant superintendent, said because of the expected crowd of U.S. and state officials, along with citizens and news media, it was decided to get the bus traffic out of the way.

Texas Senator Lloyd Bentsen will head the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works which will hold the hearings. Gov. Mark White and Ag Commissioner Jim Hightower will lead the state delegation coming to testify.

No arrests made Thursday

Hereford police made no arrests Thursday, investigating complaints of trespassing, harrassment, criminal mischief to an automobile and a family disturbance.

Deaf Smith County Sheriff's deputies investigated one non-injury accident and talked to a man who claimed his roommate took some of his belongings.

Hereford Volunteer Firemen responded to a well house fire in the Westway community. The structure belonging to Candelain Coronado was destroyed by the blaze. Fire Marshal Jay Spain said the fire was caused by an electric heater.

Owners of stolen property sought

The Hereford Police department is looking for the owners of stolen or lost property now in the custody of the department.

Lieutenant Vernon Hope said an auction will be held in the near future, and he would like to give people an opportunity to claim their belongings before then.

Bicycles found by police officers make up the majority of the items, but there are also guns, spare tires, television sets and other miscellaneous belongings.

Hope said he will ask for proof of ownership or a description of the item before he lets anyone see what is on hand.

Hope is available at the police station between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

Shuttle challenger mission delayed

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The next flight of the space shuttle, originally scheduled for Feb. 20, will be launched 11 days late, NASA officials announced.

"The reason for the delay is additional work to be done with the heat protection tiles," NASA spokesman Steve Nesbitt said Thursday.

The planned four-day mission of the shuttle Challenger, which includes U.S. Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, among the seven-member crew, would be launched no earlier than March 3 from Cape Kennedy at 7:31 a.m. CST, Nesbitt said.

The shuttle would return to Florida on March 7 at about 8:32 a.m. CST.

The Challenger, attached to its launch rocket, is slated to begin moving from its processing facility to the Vehicle Assembly Building at the Kennedy Space Center at 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

Nesbitt said the delay would not affect the planned March 19 launch of the next mission, which uses the shuttle Discovery.

Tass addresses party meeting

MOSCOW (AP) — Hours after Soviet officials confirmed Soviet leader Konstantin U. Chernenko was ailing, the official news agency Tass reported he addressed the nation's ruling Politburo.

The 73-year-old Chernenko has not been seen in public or photographed since a televised awards ceremony Dec. 27, leading to speculation that he might be seriously ill.

The mystery of his health deepened Thursday when a Soviet journalist told NBC News that Chernenko was ill but in stable condition.

Also, French television reported a source with the Soviet delegation to the French Communist Party Congress said Chernenko had "an accident of health" on Jan. 14 and lost the use of his speech. In Soviet parlance, an accident of health implies a stroke or heart attack.

But the Tass report said Chernenko had addressed the Politburo meeting on spring agricultural planting. It did not say when the meeting was held but its story was dated Thursday, the day the policy-making body usually meets.

The account of the meeting, though, was unusual in not mentioning the Soviet leader prominently. His name appeared well into the story and after a list of five government officials whose reports were heard.

Moreover, the report on the issues discussed was very similar to an account of a Politburo meeting two weeks ago.

In the NBC interview, Vladimir Bolshakov, a commentator for the Communist Party Daily Pravda, was asked about the condition of the leader.

He replied: "Well, I heard it was stable." Asked if Chernenko had suffered a stroke, he replied, "No." It was not clear how Bolshakov, who spoke in English, intended the word stable to be interpreted.

Pravda's editor, Viktor G. Afanasyev, told Italian television Wednesday that Chernenko was ill. But last week, Vladimir Lomeiko, chief of the Soviet Foreign Ministry press department, said on Cable News Network that Chernenko was well and on vacation.

Police reportedly used violence

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Dissident leader Kim Dae-jung said police used "violence" to separate him from his American supporters upon arrival from two years of self-imposed exile today, and said he had been placed under house arrest.

Americans accompanying Kim said he and his wife were forcibly separated from them upon arrival at Kimpo International Airport outside Seoul. The Americans said they also were roughed up by security forces.

"Police used violence against me. They pushed me. I felt as if I was beaten," Kim, 59, said at a news conference at his home in Seoul.

Patricia Derian, former assistant secretary of state for human rights in the Carter administration, said earlier that Kim was "battered and beaten up. It was thuggery at its height."

"The conduct of officials of the South Korean government today was inexcusable and unnecessary," said Rep. Ed Feighan, D-Ohio, also among those who escorted Kim home.

He said he and Rep. Thomas Foglietta, D-Penn., were "demanding that the U.S. Embassy in Seoul lodge a formal complaint against the South Korean government."

Kim has said he was returning to support a newly formed opposition party vying for seats in the National Assembly elections Tuesday.

'Just one more little shove...

Farmers upset with IRS rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The hands that milk the cows are getting writer's cramp.

Farmers say new car and truck record-keeping requirements imposed by the Internal Revenue Service are so burdensome that their livelihoods are threatened. A partial relaxation of the rules on Jan. 25 helped little, they say, but they're mad — and so are a lot of business people. And when they get mad, Congress gets the jitters.

Here's what one Montana farmer wrote his congressman:

"I made the following five entries in my truck log this morning before 9 a.m. and they total only 4 miles. Barn to heifer pen — picked up calf and back to barn. Barn to east pasture to put out salt and mineral blocks, then to shop. Shop to corral to fix broken gate, then to house to call bank about loan. House to stock pond to bust up ice so cattle can drink, back to shop for parts. Shop to tractor with new brake parts."

That farmer's congressman, Rep. Ron Marlenee, R-Mont., told colleagues: "There is a revolution brewing. Just one more little shove by the IRS; one more little abuse by the tax collectors; one more push by Congress, which should be responsible for regulations, and we will lose the voluntary tax system."

Many lawmakers say they haven't seen so much mail since 1983, when as many as 30 million postcards and letters flooded the Capitol with demands for repeal of a law requiring that taxes be withheld on interest and dividends. It was repealed.

Like that withholding law, the new record-keeping rules grew out of Congress' effort to stop tax cheats — in this case, to make it more difficult for people to disguise personal use of cars and trucks as tax-deductible business use. The regulations essentially require farmers and business people to log all their business mileage at the time it is run up; if there are no contemporaneous records, no deduction will be allowed.

RRC control sought

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Bill Sarpalis, D-Canyon, says natural gas used in agriculture should be regulated by the Texas Railroad Commission to keep Texas farmers from paying unreasonably high prices.

Supporting the proposed legislation at a Capitol news conference Thursday were Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, Carl King of Dimmitt, president of the Texas Corn Growers Association, and Bill

The regulations took effect Jan. 1, and 24 days later the IRS issued a news release saying the rules would be watered down. For example, only one entry will be required to record a continuous use of a vehicle — perhaps a week-long trip or a day-long series of deliveries.

Clayton, former Texas House speaker and now lobbyist for the Texas Agriculture Energy Users Association.

Sarpalis said his bill would require the Railroad Commission to set a separate rate for natural gas used on the farm.

"If the gas is regulated by the Railroad Commission they could find out if the farmers are getting good gas and getting it at a fair price," Clayton said.

Clayton said natural gas often makes up at least 70 percent of the cost of raising a crop in his area.

enough prices for crops to make money to repay loans.

"You go ask any banker. Bankers aren't going to do that. And even if they do, you can't just do a sort of restructuring of loans if you don't deal with the need to get prices up for farmers," Hightower said.

"No matter how stretched out your loan payment is, you still have to be able to make an income to pay that loan off. You've got to couple the two."

HORSE RACING

just peanuts involved there, how do we expect to control something bigger like parimutuel betting or lotteries or something like that?" said McCall, chancellor of Baylor University.

The group claims Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry and former Gov. Price Daniel among its members.

The Legislative Black Caucus, led by Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, also criticized the horse racing bill as introduced by Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi.

Ragsdale complained that, unlike past racing legislation, the 1985 bill fails to dedicate part of the state's proceeds to financial aid for families with dependent children.

"Pari-mutuel is a pastime for the wealthy. Poor people clean up at the stables, not at the $50 window," Ragsdale said.

"Two years ago, we could vote for a pari-mutuel knowing that it meant food and medical care and schoolbooks for the poorest kids in Texas. Now we're being told that it's time for the jet set to party down at the track, and for the poor kids to be swept under the rug," he said.

Gov. Mark White repeated his insistence that any racing bill include three key elements — a statewide vote on whether to allow racing at all, a county vote before a track could be built and protections against the influence of organized crime. The same goes for dog racing or a state lottery, White said.

Berlanga's horse racing bill lacks a statewide referendum.

"I just think ... everybody in Texas ought to have some comment on it. I think it would be a shame to let one small place make a decision on whether or not we have horse racing, lotteries or dog racing," White said.

Ricky Knox, a lobbyist for racing interests, said backers have no preference on setting money set aside for AFDC or if a statewide referendum is required.

Also Thursday, Rep. Lloyd Criss, D-LaMarque, said he and Ragsdale were introducing a bill to legalize pari-mutuel betting on greyhound dog racing with the state's revenue from those tracks going to AFDC.

Paul Harvey

Investment advisors usually wrong

Investing, ignore the experts. On average, investment advisors are wrong more often than you are.

Last year the S&P 500 stocks improved 6.1 percent.

Though if you had taken the advice of the "experts"—had bought the stocks they touted — your stocks would have improved in value only 1.1 percent.

Rule 144 warns any officer or director of a corporation — or anybody holding 10 percent or more of its stock — that he is under SEC surveillance.

But no such restraints apply to the financial "opinion writers" in the media.

One whose opinions appear in 193 newspapers admits that "stocks often rise or fall when he starts preparing a story about them."

One Barrons writer can drive any stock up or down with an expression of opinion, however unsupported.

The highly responsible and especially vulnerable Wall Street Journal was embarrassed last year when one of its writers was revealed to have profited personally from trading in stocks about which he wrote.

Only some networks, newspapers and news magazines seek to impose discipline on their financial writers.

The TV program "Wall Street Week" seeks to keep the opinions of its panelists in perspective with frequent mentions of the fact that their opinions are fallible.

And sure enough, last year's score card shows that a weekend telecast of "Wall Street Week" frequently moves a stock up or down on Monday.

Usually only momentarily and, significantly, frequently to the disadvantage of the hot-tip investor.

During one period last year, following their advice, you'd have lost twice as much as did the market as a whole.

When one corporation courts another, contemplating merger or takeover, lawyers and investment bankers use their insider information to enrich themselves—even sell information to others who trade on it.

And they are in no way constrained by law.

So in which stocks should you invest?

Paul Harvey, trying to answer that question, would have no more credibility than anybody else.

If you want to play the odds you will bet on companies with a long-term consistent earnings record.

But be prepared to sit tight, because even those — responding to "analysts"—undulate.

In American industry, there is one which has outperformed all others in consistency of increased earnings over the last ten years — including last year.

Yet, one "analyst" out of Boston — last spring and again last fall — issued a pessimistic opinion which caused that stock to sell off as much as 20 percent each time.

Both times, the subsequent rally demonstrated that his pessimism was without foundation.

But stock manipulators stand to make money however prices fluctuate, up or down, in or out.

Analysts who work for investment houses — advising you what and when to buy and sell — are not supposed to be compensated based on the sales they generate.

But they are.

Emory University's law professor, Henry Manne, does not believe he can stop insider trading so we might as well recognize and legitimize it.

He thinks shareholders, watching what insiders are doing, would at least get to share the benefits.

Pending that unlikely eventuality, there remains an enormous potential for manipulating stocks, "putting them" up or down.

And any amateur in this league is outclassed.

Suicide is selfish

Dear Ann Landers: Once again I find myself writing thank-you notes for flowers and other gestures of kindness and sympathy. In the past year and a half, two members of my immediate family have died of suicide. The weight of guilt and sadness is almost crushing, but I am determined to carry on.

Before I write another thank-you note, I must send the enclosed clipping, which appeared in the Kalamazoo Gazette on Nov. 5, 1984. Next to this message was an article on how to recognize symptoms of a potential suicide. I hope that you will print it to help others who may now, or in the future, decide that life is not worth living.

The words were scrawled on a bathroom wall at Paw Paw High School in Michigan. It is assumed they were put there by students -- a reaction to three successful and one nearly successful suicide attempts by students from that high school since last June.

I wish my family members who chose to die had seen that message. It may have made a difference. I also wish I could give a great big hug to the person who wrote it.

Thank you, Ann Landers, for a column that has been of help to me many times in my life. -- Michigan Reader

Dear Reader: I appreciate your kind words and the clipping. I am printing it in the hope that it just might get through to somebody and make a difference. Here it is:

Suicide means you don't care about anyone else except yourself, and that's not fair to yourself or others. I can't say that I've never thought about committing suicide because I'd be lying. I have thought about it. But I have also thought about what my mom would do and how she would feel. I have thought about my friends and how much grief and pain I would cause them if I took my life.

This means I must rethink my thoughts. Maybe things aren't as bad as they seemed at first. And if they are, so what? People have to cope, every single one of us. We are never actually all alone, even though sometimes it feels like it's you against the world. It always gets better. It has to. I know I shouldn't be writing on the walls, but I also know there are people out there who have problems and if writing this message on the bathroom wall can help, it's not such a bad thing to do. Whoever reads this needs to know that someone cares about you. Me, for example.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have traveled extensively but it occurred to me on a recent trip that I was not a very sophisticated traveler.

I try to leave a hotel room neat, but I'm never sure if the maids would prefer that the beds be made or left unmade. What's the answer? -- TIDY HEIDI IN K.C.

DEAR TIDY: The maids prefer the bed to be left unmade because they have to change the sheets for the next occupants.

Dear Ann Landers: My 16-year-old brother found a crippled baby owl and nursed it back to health. "Hootsy" is a terrific pet and a lot smarter than our parakeet. My brother says Hootsy can see in the dark. Is this true? -- CALGARY JIM

DEAR JIM: Your brother is right. According to my owl maven, the night vision of an owl is about 50 times better than that of a human.

Dear Readers: The author of "What Is a Fireman?" has surfaced. He is Richard Reeves of New York City.

Four-point play gives Washington win

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Pistons, leading by three points as the final seconds ticked away, didn't want to give up a three-point play — and they didn't.

Would you believe a four-point play? The Pistons didn't. They tried to foul Gus Williams before he could get off the pass, but it was not called by the officials.

"I couldn't believe they didn't call it," said Detroit's Brook Stepp, who tried to foul Washington's Williams before he could get a pass off. "I had one hand wrapped around him and my knee in his back. Gus was screaming foul and I wanted it just as much, but I didn't say anything."

Neither did the officials — until Frank Johnson took Williams' pass and launched a three-point shot with seven seconds remaining in the second overtime Thursday night.

Johnson was fouled, and when the long-range shot was good, the free throw made it a four-point play and put the Bullets ahead. Johnson added a free throw with three seconds left after Detroit's John Long was called for traveling, the final point in Washington's 128-126 victory.

Detroit's Isiah Thomas finished with 25 points and an NBA season-high 24 assists.

In other National Basketball Association games, the Atlanta Hawks shaded the Milwaukee Bucks 94-91 in overtime, the San Antonio Spurs trimmed the Los Angeles Clippers 120-108, the Phoenix Suns beat the Indiana Pacers 105-97, the Utah Jazz trounced the Kansas City Kings 114-96, the Houston Rockets defeated the Golden State Warriors 112-105, the Cleveland Cavaliers downed the Chicago Bulls 108-99 and the Portland Trail Blazers whipped the New York Knicks 133-122.

Hawks 94, Bucks 91
Dominique Wilkins scored 22 points and Atlanta overcame a 23-point deficit to snap a three-game losing streak. The Hawks began their charge after the Bucks opened a 71-48 lead with 3:55 left in the third quarter. Atlanta finally pulled even at 83-83 on Wilkins' three-point goal with 1:31 left in regulation. The lead changed hands six times before Wilkins' baseline jumper with 55 seconds left gave the Hawks a 92-91 edge. Rickey Brown added two free throws with 14 seconds left.

Spurs 120, Clippers 108
George Gervin scored 23 points and Mark Iavaroni grabbed a career-high 19 rebounds to lead San Antonio. Los Angeles center James Donaldson tied his season high with 23 points. The Spurs took control dur-

For Times-Kodak Indoor Games

Russians to invade California

By KEN PETERS AP Sports Writer
INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Soviets are coming to Los Angeles, although it's seven months too late for the Olympic Games.

The Soviets, who boycotted the Los Angeles Olympics last summer after voicing concern over security arrangements for their athletes, have sent a delegation to the Los Angeles Times-Kodak Indoor Games tonight at the Forum.

Included in the group are Irina Podyalovskaya, who will compete in the women's 1,000-yard run, high-jumper Vladimir Granenkov and pole vaulter Konstantin Volkov.

The meet has drawn some of America's top track stars — including Carl Lewis and Valerie Brisco-Hooks — and also attracted a sparkling international field.

In addition to the Soviets, there will be a trio of athletes from Romania, which defied the Soviet Olympic ban and competed in the Summer Games.

"We opened our season last weekend in Dallas and this is only our second meet," said Olympic gold medal-winning long jumper Anisoara Cusmir-Stanciu of Romania.

"We are very happy to be here, not only for the good competition but because we're having very bad weather in Romania," said Cusmir-Stanciu. "We talked to some of the boycotting nations' athletes after the Olympics and they were very, very sorry that they didn't have the occasion to compete in the Olympic Games."

"They trained just as hard as we did and were very disappointed they couldn't come."

The other Romanians entered in the meet are Doina Melinte, who won an Olympic gold medal in the women's 800 meters and a silver in the 1,500 meters and will compete in the women's 1,000 yards at the Forum; and Fita Lovin, who won the bronze in the 800 and will run in the indoor 1,500.

Lewis, who matched Jesse Owens' feat of capturing four gold medals, will try to continue his dominance in the long jump.

He will be aiming to better his own indoor record of 28 feet, 10 1/4 inches set last year, and also will be attempting to stretch his victory string in the event to 39. The most consecutive wins in the long jump is 41 by George Brown between 1950 and 1952.

Brisco-Hooks, who collected three gold medals during the Olympic track competition, set a world best in the indoor 440-yard run last weekend in Dallas. She will run in the women's 500 yards, facing a field that includes Florence Griffith, the Olympic silver medalist in the 200 meters.

Rookie tied for Sarasota lead

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Rookie Lynn Connelly, who had missed the cut in the first two LPGA tournaments this year, fired a 4-under-par 68 to share the first-round lead in the $200,000 Sarasota Classic with veterans Dot Germain, Patty Hayes and Lauren Howe.

Patty Sheehan, winner of eight LPGA events in the past two seasons, headed a large group at 69, one stroke behind the leaders after Thursday's first round. Also at 3-under were former U.S. Open winner Janet Anderson, Donna White, LeAnn Cassaday, Barbara Moxness and Martha Nause.

Connelly, 24, only earned her Ladies Professional Golf Association card last October. She failed to qualify for the final two rounds of the first two events this season, the Mazda Classic and the Elizabeth Arden Classic.

Hayes hasn't been playing spectacularly lately either. The 30-year-old golfer said it has been "so long since I've been tied for the lead I don't even know how you are supposed to feel."

"The putter finally worked today.

Suns 105, Pacers 97
Larry Nance scored six of his 22 points in the fourth period to lead a Phoenix rally. The lead see-sawed throughout the final quarter until Nance put Phoenix ahead to stay 97-95 on a jumper with 5:06 remaining. Alvan Adams added 21 for the Suns while Indiana, which lost its ninth straight road game, got 18 points from Steve Stipanovich. The Pacers led 83-78 after three periods.

But Griffith, Dantley and Thurl Bailey, who finished with 19 points, triggered a 14-2 run. # Creditors file against former Cowboys owner

DALLAS (AP) — Three creditors have filed a petition for involuntary bankruptcy against Clint Murchison Jr., a lawyer for the millionaire financier and former owner of the Dallas Cowboys says.

Lawyer Phillip Palmer told the Dallas Times Herald Thursday that Murchison will sidestep the petition by voluntarily filing for bankruptcy within two weeks.

The creditors who filed the involuntary bankruptcy petition were identified as Toronto-Dominion Bank, Kona-Post and Citicorp Real Estate.

Palmer said the action did not surprise him. "I would say it has been in the mill for several days," he said.

"The creditors seem to feel the affairs of Clint Murchison are too complex to be handled internally and outside bankruptcy court," he added.

The lawyer said he believed that the filing was prompted by Murchison's recent attempt to sell three Texas banks: First National Bank of Weatherford, Citizens State Bank of Garado and Irving National Bank. Such sales would be prohibited under involuntary bankruptcy.

"The creditors were concerned about the continuing activity to sell the banks and liquidate some other property," Palmer said.

The voluntary bankruptcy filing under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act would allow Murchison to devise a plan of reorganization to satisfy claims by about 30 creditors amounting to as much as $175 million, Palmer said. If the involuntary bankruptcy action were allowed to proceed, Palmer said, it would result in the forced liquidation of his assets.

Asked if he could give a dollar value on Murchison's assets, Palmer said, "Murchison's assets are very difficult to value." He did estimate that Murchison has only $20 million in assets that are unencumbered by debt.

The Murchison empire has been steadily declining since last spring when he sold his most visible asset, the Dallas Cowboys National Football League team.

Since that time, creditors have filed an almost steady string of suits and have won judgements from Murchison.

Murchison and his lawyers met Feb. 1 with a group of about 25 creditors in an attempt to reach an out-of-court settlement. At that time Murchison reportedly expressed willingness to liquidate almost all of his assets to satisfy his creditors.

On Feb. 1 about 25 acres surrounding Murchison home were deeded to Kilmarnock Co., which immediately filed for bankruptcy protection under Chapter 11. Palmer said at that time the action was taken in an attempt to prevent a dissident creditor from foreclosing on the property.

The creditor, Surety Savings Association of El Paso, was prevented from auctioning the property the next day when a court injunction was issued.

Palmer said Thursday he believes Murchison will be able to carry out a plan to have a takeover of numerous Murchison real estate projects by Fort Worth-based Ameribass, which is owned by Robert M. Bass. The proposal was one outcome of the meeting at which Murchison had sought cooperation from the creditors.

Bass, described by Palmer as "something of a white knight," is a great-nephew of Sid Richardson, a longtime partner and friend of Clint Murchison Sr.

Andy North 'staggers' to tie for lead

By BOB GREENE AP Golf Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — Former U.S. Open champ Andy North, sniffling and snuffling with a heavy cold, said he was feeling so poorly it helped him play well.

"I was just kind of staggering around out there," he said after a fast finish — five birdies on the last six holes — put the cap on a no-bogey round of 66 and gave him a share of the first round lead Thursday in the $500,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

"It often happens that when I'm not feeling well I play better. I just kind of forget about how I stand and what anybody else is doing and just play the one shot at a time," North said.

"I didn't start thinking about it until the 15th. I was thinking, 'hey, I'm three under and if I birdie 18 I can finish four under.'"

"Then I realized I already was four under."

And he followed with a pair of 10-foot birdie putts on the last two holes that lifted him into a share of the top spot with Hal Sutton, Scott Simpson and Canadian Dan Halldorson.

Mark O'Meara, winner of last week's Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, led a group at 67, five under par on the Waialae Country Club course and a single shot off the lead.

Also at that figure were Fred Couples, Dan Pohl, Vance Heafner, Larry Mize and Mike Smith.

Andy Bean, who often plays well in this event, and Craig Stadler topped the big group at 68.

With soft greens, temperatures reaching near 80 and the prevailing trade winds making the par 5s play a little shorter, the scores were extremely low. More than 30 players were locked within three shots of the lead.

Masters champion Ben Crenshaw was among them, with a 69. Tom Watson was not. After going four under par on his front side, he had putting problems on the back, requiring 39 strokes coming home and had to settle for a 71. Jack Renner, who has finished first and second in this event in the last two years, also was one under par.

Arnold Palmer, 55, who now spends most of his time on the Seniors Tour, shot 74.

No. 2 seeds look forward

By BOB GREENE AP Sports Writer
DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (AP) — With the No. 1 seeds safely through to the third round of the $1.8 million Lipton International Players Championships tennis tournament, Chris Evert Lloyd and Mats Wilander try to join them.

Lloyd and Wilander are seeded No. 2 in this inaugural two-week, 258-player event — a tournament equal in size to Wimbledon and the U.S. Open.

Martina Navratilova showed why she's top-seeded in the 128-player women's singles when she took just 50 minutes Thursday to capture her second-round match over Robin White 6-0, 6-3. Lendl, had a little bit more problem disposing of John Sadri 7-6, 6-0.

Today, Lloyd faces Shawn Foltz in her second-round battle, while Wilander meets fellow Swede Stefan Simonsson tonight.

Kim Shaefer pulled off Thursday's biggest upset, shocking fourth-seeded Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

"It's the best I hit the ball in six months," said Shaefer, whose lone professional title came in 1983 when she captured the U.S. Women's Indoors. "I'm not a serve-and-volleyer, but I went in more than I usually do."

"Against Manuela you've got to hit 10 or 15 balls to get into position. I also gave her some head feints that worked."

Other seeded players to post second-round victories Thursday included No. 4 Anders Jarryd, No. 8 Joakim Nystrom and No. 13 Stefan Edberg, all of Sweden; No. 6 Johan Kriek and No. 9 Yannick Noah of France in the men's singles; No. 7 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, No. 10 Carling Bassett of Canada, No. 11 Bonnie Gadusek, No. 14 Pam Casale and No. 15 Caterina Lindqvist.

Edberg said he was surprised with his 6-2, 6-0 victory over veteran Wojtek Fibak of Poland.

"I didn't expect such an easy match," said the 19-year-old right-hander. He needed only 52 minutes to crush Fibak, at 32 an elder statesman on the tennis tour.

and that's a switch," added the 12-year tour veteran whose only LPGA victory was the 1981 Sun City Classic.

Pat Bradley and Jane Blalock led another large contingent at 70 on the 6,124-yard Bent Tree Golf & Racquet Club course.

Among those shooting 71s were JoAnne Carner, who claimed last week's Elizabeth Arden Classic, and defending Sarasota titlist Alice Miller.

BORMIO, Italy (AP) — West Germany's Markus Wasmaier edged Pirmin Zurbriggen of Switzerland by five-hundredths of a second to win the men's giant slalom at the World Alpine Skiing Championships.

It was the first major international triumph for the 21-year-old Wasmaier.

Favorite Marc Girardelli, the Austrian-born overall World Cup leader who is skiing for Luxembourg, finished third, and Egon Hirt of West Germany was fourth.

Tiger Shaw, 23, of Stone Vt., was the only American finisher, placing 18th in 2:35.06.

POSITIVE RESPONSE

IT SEEMS EASY for most of us to live a life of re-action, a life of letting what others say determine what we say, letting what others do, in regard to us, determine what we do, and such like. This, of course, means that we are permitting others to determine what we say and what we do; and this is a very poor choice. It is better for us, and for all concerned, that we learn how to live a life of 'positive response'. By 'positive' we mean "independent of changing circumstances or relations."

WE ARE RESPONSIBLE for ourselves, and, therefore, it is important that we take charge of our saying and doing; and we can never do this by choosing a life of re-action. If we wish to take charge of our lives, we must learn the art of 'positive response'. Rather than being pleasant only to those who are pleasant to us, let us learn to be pleasant to all who touch our lives. There is no sound reason to be unpleasant to people who are unpleasant to us, because we are letting these people control us.

PERSONAL SUCCESS require that we learn how to control our thoughts and actions, not in permitting others to do this. When we function on the low level of re-action, we are abandoning ourselves to the vagaries of other persons. We must learn to speak well, regardless of how others speak to us; we must learn to conduct ourselves sensibly, regardless of how foolishly others may treat us.

POSITIVE RESPONSE means that we choose our manner of speech, we choose how we behave, what we do, where we go, etc. We must not, by re-action, permit others to become the power that controls and directs our manner of life.

Club members view slides

Members of the La Afflatus Estudio Club held their regular meeting in the home of Jessie May Dodson Tuesday afternoon.

Lucille Hughes, club president, conducted a short business meeting after which she introduced program chairman Opal Elliston who presented Mrs. Dodson who gave a slide presentation on her two visits to Alaska. The first trip was made several years earlier than the last one and the difference was very noticeable in many of the areas. The pipe line was an interesting feature for the club members. Mrs. Dodson was so taken by the pipe line she said "this is one of the wonders of the world." The next meeting will be Feb. 19, in the home of Lucille Hughes and Aileen Montgomery. Tresa Hale will be in charge of a program on "Texas Trends."

Eva Gilliland and Bea Hutson served refreshments to Della Stagner, Alberta Higgins, Allyne Johnson, Pet Ott, Mary Williamson, Jessie Mae Dodson, Lucille Hughes, Opal Elliston and Aileen Montgomery.

The Newspaper BIBLE

ALL CREATION AWAITS THE GREAT EVENT

So, dear brothers, you have no obligations whatever to your old sinful nature to do what it begs you to do. For if you keep on following it you are lost and will perish, but if through the power of the Holy Spirit you crush it and its evil deeds, you shall live. For all who are led by the Spirit of God are sons of God.
And so we should not be like cringing, fearful slaves, but we should behave like God's very own children, adopted into the bosom of His family, and calling to Him, "Father, Father." For His Holy Spirit speaks to us deep in our hearts, and tells us that we really are God's children. And since we are His children, we will share His treasures—for all God gives to His Son Jesus is now ours too. But if we are to share His glory, we must also share His suffering.

Yet what we suffer now is nothing compared to the glory He will give us later. For all creation is waiting patiently and hopefully for that future day when God will resurrect His children. For on that day thorns and thistles, sin, death, and decay—the things that overcame the world against its will at God's command—will all disappear, and the world around us will share in the glorious freedom from sin which God's children enjoy.

For we know that even the things of nature, like animals and plants, suffer in sickness and death as they await this great event. And even we Christians, although we have the Holy Spirit within us as a foretaste of future glory, also groan to be released from pain and suffering. We, too, wait anxiously for the day when God will give us our full rights as His children, including the new bodies He has promised us—bodies that will never be sick again and will never die.

Filibuster threat blocks debate

AUSTIN (AP) — A clash of legislative wills between two state senators has stalled, and perhaps killed, a bill that would delay for at least 2½ years the licensing of a low-level nuclear waste dump in Texas.
Sen. John Traeger asked the Senate for permission Thursday to bring up his low-level bill but said he would oppose an amendment by Sen. Carlos Truan, which was approved in committee 4-3.
Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said without his amendment, which also would delay for 2½ years the purchase of a disposal site, Traeger's bill was "nothing but window dressing" for South Texans worried about possible contamination of their water supply.
The Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority has indicated that a 365-acre site in McMullen County is its No. 1 choice for a disposal facility. The site is 12 miles from the Choque Canyon reservoir, which supplies water for 21 communities and 500,000 people.
Truan said if the Senate should vote to suspend its rules and debate Traeger's bill, Truan would filibuster for hours.
Traeger needed 25 votes, and was far short at 14.
"Folks will vote any way to keep from listening to a Truan filibuster," Traeger quipped afterward.
Traeger was asked if he might try to bring the bill up again, and he replied, "Not unless Sen. Truan gets up and says he will not try to put his amendment on and works the floor to change votes. I'm not going to push it any further."
"Right now, I'd say it's dead — and any other bill, which means the site will probably go on," Traeger said.
He said without a bill the low-level authority "will immediately purchase (land) and start construction on a disposal site."
Asked why he couldn't go along with Truan's amendment, Traeger said, "Because it won't pass, that's why. His amendment demolishes" the low-level authority. "It puts them completely out of business. It doesn't even allow them to go out and explore."

Truan told reporters, "If my amendment is not on, Traeger's bill is nothing more than a toothless tiger. ... If Sen. Traeger's concerned about contamination, he ought to support my amendment."
Traeger was asked, "Do you have a gentleman's agreement if your bill passed without Truan's amendment that they (the low-level authority) would not ahead and purchase land?"
He responded: "Well, I can't say there was a binding agreement, but they had indicated to me that they would certainly take a long time before they purchased in the face of a legislative mandate."
Truan said, "I will do everything to prevent the authority from purchasing that land in McMullen County."
He said even if the authority's board votes to buy the McMullen County land, the mayor of Corpus Christi "has already served notice" that the city "is ready to file suit" to stop the purchase.
In other action Thursday, the Senate approved and sent to the House bills that would:

— Change the day for observing the Memorial Day holiday from the last Monday in May to May 30. Congress shortly after the Civil War set May 30 as the date to honor the dead of American wars. But in 1971, the day was changed to the last Monday in May.
Sen. Lindon Williams, D-Houston and the bill sponsor, said 16 states had passed similar measures and after a majority do so, Congress would change the date. His bill, which was approved on voice vote, would become effective in 1986.
— Allow, but not require, the Board of Pardons and Paroles to include "as a condition for parole" that the prisoner pay fees and other costs incurred in sentencing the prisoner. Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Mesquite and the bill sponsor, referred to his measure as a "user fee from criminals." It was approved 29-0.

— Close a loophole that has allowed some sexually oriented businesses in Houston, which has no zoning regulations, to locate near schools and churches. The vote on the proposal by Sen. Don Henderson, R-Houston, was 27-1.

After $5 million cash seized

Three held without bond

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Three men arrested while allegedly trying to leave the country with more than $5 million cash were held without bond today pending a federal court hearing.
The three — Gus Maestrales, 38, Oscar Rodriguez-Feo, 48, and Francisco Guirola-Beeche, 34 — made an initial appearance Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Eduardo de Ales who ordered them held until a bond hearing Monday morning.
A federal complaint said the three last month took the same plane to El Salvador after filing a flight plan from Texas to Florida.
A fourth man, Arturo Guerra, 50, was released after being questioned Thursday by federal officials, U.S. Customs spokesman Charles Conroy of Houston said.
"We determined he had no knowledge of the situation and was just hired as a co-pilot," said Ernest Allison of Brownsville, resident district agent in charge of criminal investigation for the U. S. Customs Service.

Maestrales gave his residence as Boca Raton, Fla. Rodriguez-Feo is a native of Cuba, but now lives in Miami. Francisco Guirola-Beeche, gave addresses in Albuquerque, N.M., and Costa Rica, a clerk in the magistrate's office said.
The three are in the Nueces County Jail.
They were arrested by U.S. Customs and Immigration and Naturalization Service agents about midnight Wednesday at Kleberg County Airport as they boarded a T-39 Sabreliner.
They were charged with violating the Currency and Foreign Transaction Reporting Act, which requires anyone taking more than $10,000 in or out of the country to report it to customs agents, Conroy said.

He said customs agents, acting on a tip as well as on information from an on-going investigation of drug smuggling and currency violations, arrested the men.
Department of Public Safety agents and Kleberg County Sheriff's deputies also participated in the arrests.
In addition to the cash, government officials also seized the aircraft, worth an estimated $3 million.
Reports on the exact amount carried by the four differ. DPS records show $5,818,000 was seized, while McAllen Border Patrol headquarters chief Silvestre Reyes said the amount was $5,625,000.
The money displayed at the Customs Service office in Corpus Christi Thursday was packed in seven large suitcases, each guarded by federal agents carrying M-16 rifles.

Each suitcase contained a number of brown paper packages with $10 and $100 bills.
Maestrales was identified as the owner of the Commercial Aviation Enterprises in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and is believed to be the owner of the confiscated T-39 Sabreliner twin-engine jet.
A section of the complaint form filed by the U.S. Customs Service said that in January one or more of the defendants transported about $1 million in unreported money from the U.S. to Panama using the same jet plane.
On Jan. 22, Maestrales, Guirola-Beeche and Rodriguez-Feo left Alice, Texas, in the same aircraft with a flight plan filed for Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. In the air, they changed their flight for San Salvador, El Salvador, the complaint said.

White tries to dissuade party switch

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm's Republicanization of Texas was expected to continue today at a Dallas news conference where an announcement was to be made that several Democratic judges would switch parties.
Democratic Gov. Mark White tried to dissuade the judges Thursday in a 90-minute closed-door session during which he spoke of loyalty and his plans to seek re-election next year.
Gramm, himself a former Democrat, scheduled an afternoon news conference in Dallas.
White said he failed to draw a commitment from any of the five Dallas County judges. After the meeting, State District Judge Don Koons said he had not made up his mind. But Koons indicated that political survival might dictate a switch.
"I think as a Republican there's probably a better chance for re-election in a countywide race in Dallas County," he said.
Ten of Dallas County's 68 judges are Democrats.
"I would be comfortable as a conservative in either party," Koons said, adding, however, "I'm interested in continuing some of the programs I've started. I'd like to stay on board if I can."
The judge said White was "optimistic" that the Democrats could make a strong comeback next year.
"He said he expected to be" a candidate for re-election, Koons said of White. "He indicated he probably would expect to file and if he did that would help the ticket."
White said he told the judges, "I've always said loyalty had a high priority with me. We talked about that at some length."
Also at the meeting were State District Judges Ron Chapman and Thomas Thorpe and County Judges

Bill Coker and Mike Schuille. Those four could not be located for comment after the meeting.
Earlier this week, Schuille said the Democratic Party had "gotten too liberal for old rock-bottom conservatives to tolerate."

"That's as far as I'm going to go. You'll know Friday," he said.
White said the judges were concerned about "whimsical change in the top of the ballot having a whiplash at the bottom of the ballot and turning altogether very capable judges out of office and not necessarily putting capable ones into office."
