Contestants Arriving For Rodeo

Professional cowgirls from throughout the country began arriving in Hereford today for the annual running of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center All-Girl Rodeo Friday through Sunday at the Hereford Riders Club Arena.

Rodeo chairman Jim Tucker said today that he expects more than 150 cowgirls, comprising 227 entries, for the performances scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on both Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. on Sunday.

Total prize money, Tucker said, is $6,290.

Ticket prices for the rodeo are $2.50 in advance from Lions Club members or at the Hall of Fame in the library basement and $3 at the gate for each performance.

Ticket prices for the rodeo dances scheduled fro Friday and Saturday nights at the Bull Barn are $5 per person or $8 per couple. Mel Street and Del Reeves. both country-western singing stars, will perform at the dances.

The highlight of rodeo weekend will be the induction of seven women into the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame. Induction ceremonies are planned for Sunday afternoon's rodeo performance.

day to the tape-recorded voice of millionaire Cullen Davis prescribe the murder of three persons besides the judge he believed already assassinated on his order.

Videotapes were also introducted later . in the day.

The recordings, as stark in quality as in content, detail informant David McCrory falsely telling the international industrialist that Judge Joe Eidson has been killed, to which Davis replies, "Good."

Wednesday's hearing was part of Davis' efforts to be freed on bond. He is accused of soliciting the murder of Eidson, the presiding magistrate in Davis' high stakes divorce case.

Lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes declined to attack the integrity of the recordings. "I have no reason to think it is not Cullen at this juncture," Haynes said. Smiling, he added. "I have no reason to think it is Cullen."

Prosecutors say Eidson's name was first on a list of 15 persons to be "blown up." The inscrutable Davis, 44, already was free on bond in the two-year-old murder of his wife's lover, and the wounding of two other persons. He was acquitted last fall - in Texas' costliest and longest murder trial - of killing his 12-year-old stepdaughter in the same midnight shooting spree at his 16 million mansion. He has not been tried on the other charges. Authorities arrested him Sunday morning in what they said was a scheme to murder Eidson.

Prosecutors spent much of the afternoon session introducing evidence to corroborate McCrory's testimony and the audio tapes played earlier.

The evidence included a video tape of McCrory and Davis meeting and more than a dozen still photographs of the two men in and around their parked cars on Several pictures show Davis and McCrory standing behind the defendant's Cadillac, peering into the trunk.

McCrory said in one of the photos he is looking into a manila envelope filled with $100 bills, which he "rolled up and put in the front seat of my car."

Prosecutors also introduced into evidence the photo purported to show Judge Eidson's blood-spattered body stuffed in a car trunk.

The state also produced the judge's State Bar of Texas card, another judicial identification card, and his driver's license. McCrory showed Davis those three items and the fake photograph to establish the judge's death.

As the video tape was shown, McCrory narrated it for the judge.

UMBARGER - Residents of this community east of Hereford are marshalling forces in an effort to save rainfall-rejuvenated Buffalo Lake in the wake of orders from the Interior Department earlier this week to drain the impoundment.

The draining decision is highly unpopular with recreation starved residents of the Panhandle, particularly in light of the fact that the draining directive comes at a time when the lake is holding an appreciable amount of water for the first time in at least a decade.

A meeting to discuss ways to save Buffalo Lake will be held tonight at 8 at the Umbarger Community Building.

Mrs. Max Hoffman of Umbarger reports that the meeting is an indication of alarm over the decision, which will terminate a new lease on life for both the lake two miles south of here, and for this small community that realizes extra

Test-Hole Drilling Resumes

AMARILLO (AP) - Drilling resumes today on a 4,000-foot test hole to determine if radioactive nuclear waste materials can safely be buried in the Texas Panhandle.

State District Court Judge George Dowlen refused Wednesday to issue an injunction that would have further halted work at a site in Randall County southeast of Amarillo.

Randall County commissioners won a temporary restraining order Aug. 15 that stopped the drilling. Dowlen declined Wednesday to continue the prohibition on

He said he would rule Friday on motions by defendants to either dismiss the county's suit or move the case to a district court in Austin.

Randall County commissioners filed suit to stop the test hole drilling after several hundred residents signed petitions early this month protesting the Defendants in the suit include Rex. H. White, executor of estate left by his parents on whose land the drilling site is located; Gruy Federal Inc. of Houston; Megargel Drilling Co. and the Texas Department of Water Resources.

A spokesman for Gruy Federal, which contracted with the U.S. Department of Energy to drill the test hole, said about 865 feet had been drilled when the project stopped. Megargel Drilling subcontracted with Gruy for the action site work.

"It is stupid to drain the lake. There is no sense in letting all of this precious water go to waste. A lot of us here feel that the spillway at Buffalo can be fixed without draining the lake, and we are sure going to do something about this foolishness if we can. This is an effort not only on behalf of our community, but for the whole area, and we welcome anyone interested in saving the lake to show up at tonight's meeting," she stated. While Umbarger residents will gather to plot strategy for saving the lake, at least one individual is making plans to seek an injunction against further draining until a more extensive study is made of the Buffalo Lake dam and spillway.

Vic Guyer, a Canyon hunting and fishing enthusiast adamantly opposed to the lake draining, is currently looking into the possibility of filing the injunction.

"It's a damn shame to drain the lake after we've waited 20 years for any appreciable water. To see the lake like it is now and then just drain it down and let those fish die after the Parks & Wildlife Department went to the trouble to stock it is a shame. Something needs to be done right now. If we had an environmental club here, they would damn sure go out there and see that the draining was stopped. It looks like we're going to have to do it on our own if anything is ever to be done though," Guyer commented.

Guyer attacked conclusions that the impounded waters of Buffalo pose a hazard to downstream areas, because of the weakness of the spillway.

Hereford Residents Donate 38 Pints

To Blood Center

The mobile unit from Coffee Memorial Blood Center in Amarillo reported a disappointing talley of 38 pints of blood given here by Hereford residents vesterday afternoon.

Wednesday was approximately half of the amount averaged in recent months by local donors. Yesterday's lagging turnout trimmed Hereford's blood debt from 191 pints to 153. Joan Bookout, local blood drive chairman, expressed hopes that the community can lower that debt substantially when the blood mobile arrives again next month..

Of the 38 pints given yesterday, the following designations were made:

Nine pints for blood insurance; 8 pints for the Hereford pool; 3 pints for the Knights of Columbus; 8 pints for Larry Bain; 1 pint for Exxie Martin; 1 pint for James Marchman; 4 pints for the late Bennie Moore: 2 pints for Ann Cummings; 1 pint for Pauline Brown; and 1 pint for W.L. Simmons.

Hereford Postmaster Promotes Philatelics in Magazine Article

Editor's note: The following article about Hereford Postmaster J. Nolan Grady appeared in the July-August issue of "Postal Life," the official magazine of the Office of the Postmaster General. The magazine is sent to 655,000 employees of the Postal Service. Jeanne O'Neill, assistant editor of the magazine, was in Hereford to write the article.

Let your guard down for two minutes and J. Nolan Grady, postmaster at Hereford, Tex., will turn you into a

NOLAN GRADY

To watch him talk to a fifth-grade stamp club or a stranger in the post office lobby is to see a master of the art of persuasion in action.

Grady has been courteous ever since he was a tad. You know that right off when you meet him. His stamp expertise, on the other hand, has only blossomed in the past three years. To hear him tell it, it was all a beautiful accident.

"About three years ago, my sectional center manager in Amarillo asked me to be a philatelic program officer for our part of the Texas Panhandle. Well, I didn't know a thing about stamp collecting," he confides: "I've been with the post office since before I could vote, but stamps, to me, were just for mailing letters.'

He then tells you that a few days later he got the assignment, and he found himself in a training program to learn about stamp collecting as a hobby -

'Then I read a lot and explored the hobby in depth," adds Grady. "I even visited collectors who have stamps worth thousands of dollars. Since I was going to be in the business, I wanted to know what it was all about."

Since then, Grady has taken his newly acquired knowledge into elementary schools and beefed up his own sales techniques so that Hereford, "only a drop in the bucket" in size and population compared to Dallas, has surpassed Big D in philatelic sales. It didn't happen by accident.

"When I started with the Benjamin Franklin Stamp Club Program in the schools," he explains, "I recruited other postal people in the neighborhood to become members of the team. I showed them how to make presentations and I also supported them in their work." He now credits his team with reaching more collectors than he does.

Grady's success is probably attributable to three things:his love for children, his affability with people in all walks. of life, and his genuine on set for his task. He loves kids, he'll admit. He has four of his own, all grown now. On his office wall hang the top honors given to him for his leadership in Boy Scouting. His most recent successful endeavor has been raising money with area Lions' Clubs to support Girlstown, U.S.A.

You get the picture? You can't say "no" to the man.

Grady's stamp expertise has taken two directions. First, he has pioneered the establishment of Benjamin Franklin Stamp Clubs in fourth - and fifth-grade classes within a 120-mile radius of Hereford. Second, he convinced Headquarters officials that Hereford should be a designated philatelic sales

Longoria Controversy Continues in Mexico

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico (P) - The imprisonment of a member of the powerful Longoria family of northern Mexico is the latest chapter in the family's continuing feud over money.

The struggle has reached such proportions that people are calling it "The Dance of the Millions."

Monday, Octaviano Longoria Penn, 45, was jailed at La Loma Federal Prison here on charges he committed fraud and Shanker has termed "life or death for public education as we know it."

The AFT and other opponents claim the tax breaks for parents who pay their children's tuition at private elementary and secondary schools will siphon badly needed money from the nation's public schools and encourage segregation.

The Senate last week voted 65-27 for a bill that would allow parents or students to claim a tax credit of up to $250 for each semester spent in a private college or vocational school. Before the final vote, however, 41 senators voted to retain sections in the bill that would have provided parallel benefits for elementary and secondary school levels.

Carter To Travel Down River's Rapids

ALONG THE SALMON RIVER, Idaho (AP) - President Carter is taking a last 16 mile run down the rapids of the Middle Fork of the Salmon River before he flies to Wyoming for a week at Grand Teton National Park.

After breaking camp at Elk Bar today, the president and his family head toward the bluffs of the Impassable Canyon and end their three-day rafting and camping trip at the confluence of the Salmon River and its Middle Fork.

In the Tetons, where he will spend the last week of the two week holiday, Carter said he plans to hike, fish, and probably ride horses. He plans to visit Yellowstone National Park.

During the 71 mile river journey that began Tuesday, the first family shot seven feet down a waterfall in their 20-foot rubber raft. After clearing the fall, an aluminum handle snapped on one of the raft's two long cars.

Carter, his wife Rosalynn, daughter Amy, and sons Chip and Jack, were delayed for an hour as they went ashore while boatmen repaired the oar.

Mrs. Carter said Amy spent that hour fishing from the shore. The party drifted 24 miles Wednesday through rapids broken by stretches of smooth, calm water.

The brilliant weather on Wednesday contrasted with the rain and hail that greeted the party after it set out on the river Tuesday. Skies Wednesday were blue and temperatures hit the upper 70s.

Reporters Summoned To Moscow Ministry

MOSCOW (AP) - Two U.S. correspondents who defied a Moscow court by refusing to appear for hearings on charges that they slandered Soviet television were summoned to the Foreign Ministry today.

Harold D. Piper of the Baltimore Sun said he and Craig R. Whitney of The New York Times had been told to appear at the ministry's press department.

Piper said a Foreign Ministry official telephoned him and "politely invited" him to a meeting with Lev Krylov, deputy head of the press department. He said no reason for the meeting was given him.

A Moscow court dropped the slander case against the reporters Friday, but the adge said he would inform the Foreign Ministry they had been "disrespectful to the court." A prosecutor urged earlier in the case that they be stripped of their press accreditations, which would force them to leave the country.

The two reporters refused to attend hearings in the case, saying the court was acting beyond its jurisdiction and that the case was tantamount to censorship.

Whitney and Piper were found guilty July 19 of slandering Soviet television by writing stories that said relatives and friends of jailed Georgian dissident Zviad Gamsakhurdia believed a televised confession by him had been fabricated.

Teacher Catherine Laws and her 27 students were right at home with Grady and Sava. Sava had been there before, to make his presentation on stamp collecting, and to bring posters in addition to the Benjamin Franklin Stamp Club materials. In a town of 4,200, everyone knows the postmaster, especially if you're a kid, and Sava is no exception. He, too, is active in Boy Scouting, and helps coach local sports.

"These students are still amateurs." says Sava, "but they enjoy the hobby." Echoes teacher Laws, "We've tied in stamp collecting with a lot of subjects we study in class."

Grady spoke briefly to the class, then moved down the aisles to talk informally with the students and answer some of their questions. One told him that by putting an envelope in the freezer for 24 hours the stamp would usually come off without having to be soaked. Another piped up that if you have valuable stamps you shouldn't damage the adhesive by soaking it.

Grady believes that most youngsters who take up stamps as a hobby usually wind up in the top 5 percent of their class scholastically. Whether it is the curiosity they generate or just the pleasure of having a collection, or both, he doesn't claim to know.

Terry Cearley, president of the Dimmitt Bobcat Stampers club - a bright, handsome boy - told Grady and Sava: "I never thought of stamp collecting before this year. Now my mother says it's the only thing I'm interested in besides basketball and baseball." Any day now Terry will discover girls.

THE U.S. AND YOU

(Federal agencies offer many services to individuals and groups, but sometimes it's hard to learn about these services or how to benefit from them. This weekly column provides such information.)

A black man named Earl Brawner works carefully in a converted warehouse in an unstylish Washington neighborhood, using his fingers to "read" Braille books to make sure they're error-free. He is deaf and blind, a victim of spinal meningitis when he was 13.

Brawner, now in his 40s, has been at the National Library Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped for 13 years. He is one of 114 full-time employees, 20 of them blind or otherwise handicapped, whose work results in what some have called "the single most rewarding service" offered by the U.S. government.

The service permitted 576,000 blind or handicapped persons-last year to "read" an average of 30 books per person. Free.

Two-thirds of those who use the service are over 60, says Director Frank Kurt Cylke, noting that "blindness is a

The service is a branch of the Library of Congress, but has its own budget (more than $28 million this year), dating back to when it was started in 1931.

There are three million people eligible for the service, Cylke says: two million blind or visually handicapped; another million so badly handicapped by cerebral palsy, Parkinson's disease or other injuries or illnesses that they can't hold a book or turn the pages. The service provides:

- A record player, tape cassette player or both to every - Two thousand books a year on cassettes and disc — One hundred books and two magazines yearly for 20,000 blind persons who speak Spanish.

— Taped music for 2,000 blind persons; guitar, piano and organ lessons on tape for the blind; periodicals reporting the latest items available from the service.

— A nine-month training course in Braille for sighted people who are expected to work for the service or for volunteer organizations.

For the blind or handicapped, the best way to obtain the machines and books is to get in touch with one of the 160 machines and books is to get in touch with one of the 160 regional or subregional libraries cooperating in the service. The libraries send orders to the service at its warehouse-headquarters in Washington. The machines, "talking books" and Braille volumes are shipped to the libraries, which distribute them. After a book is "read" it is supposed to be returned to the local libraries. is supposed to be returned to the local library for re-use.

The U.S. Postal Service handles all distribution, free.
"Talking magazines" are shipped directly to users after a request at a cooperating library. They don't have to be returned.

To keep a machine, a blind person must "read" at least one book a year. Further information about any part of the program can be had by writing to National Library Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, 1291 Taylor St. N.W., Washington, DC, 29542.

The service has pioneered new technology. It began using 33 rpm records a decade before they were sold on the mass market. Now it uses 8 rpm discs for its books, with a single side providing 90 minutes of continuous "reading." The service is using thin, flexible disc records, costing a 10th of regular discs, and has developed new, cheap, lightweight machines. It is about to break in a "combination" machine that handles both discs and tapes and is experimenting with a new Braille machine about the size experimenting with a new Braille machine about the size and weight of a portable radio.

In the evening's big surprise, unheralded Nick Nevid of Elm Grove, Wis., who works out in Caulkins' home town, survived a late charge by Russian Arsen Miskarov and won the men's 200-meter breaststroke in 2:18.37.

His Soviet challenger was less than half a second behind.

Jesse Vassallo of Mission Viejo, Calif., took the men's 200-meter backstroke in 2:02.16, well off the 1:56.19 world record set by American John Nabor at the Montreal Olympics.

The big disappointment for the United States came in the men's 400-meter freestyle, where Vladimir Salninkov of the Soviet Union set a European record of 3:51.94 in outdistancing Jeff Float of Sacramento. Calif. Bill Forrester of Auburn, Ala., was leading after 200 meters but ran out of steam and finished third

Baltimore Tries To Deal Mitchell

BALTIMORE (AP) - The Baltimore Colts made a move to trade holdout running back Lydell Mitchell Wednesday night, but called premature a report by the San Diego Chargers that the deal had been completed.

"No trade has been consummated yet," General Manager Dick Szymanski of the Colts insisted after Rick Schlosso San Diego's public relations assistant, reported that the Chargers had given up running back Joe Washington and an undisclosed draft choice for Mitchell.

'The trade is contingent on Mitchell coming to contractural agreement with San Diego and that has not been reached as of the moment. We are not prepared to announce that a trade has been made," Szymanski said.

When confronted with the Colts' denial, Schloss said he was reading from a prepared release.

It also was reported on the West Coast that San Diego Coach Tommy Protho made the announcement of the trade at the end of the Chargers' practice session upon receiving a go-ahead telephone call from owner Gene Klein.

General Manager Johnny Sanders of the Chargers was quoted as saying he saw no difficulty in Mitchell reporting, adding, "His agent is very fond of San Diego.'

No one said officially. however, that Mitchell had indeed agreed to terms with the Chargers.

Earlier Wednesday in Skokie, III., Colts owner Robert Irsay had said he planned to trade Mitchell immediately because "can't tolerate a man like that on the Baltimore Colts."

Irsay said Mitchell had been offered to five other NFL clubs and a trade was "imminent." "He tells me I'm like a father, that I treat him so beautifully," Irsay said. "Then he calls me a rascist. I can't tolerate a man like that"

"Mitchell was full of Tuesday that Butler, acquired compliments about (Coach) Ted Marchibroda and me at the start of the meeting. Then 10 minutes later, he goes crazy and starts yelling and sneering.

It wouldn't be unusual for a woman to be involved in two bridge clubs, a church organization, gardening, physical fit-ness, yardwork, canning and freezing vegetables, crocheting, club work, a personal battle against grime and being a good

Unless that woman is a 69-year-old grandmother, who has earned the right to live a life of leisure, but flatly refuses.

Mrs. Ewald Berend, who resides northwest of Hereford, said, "I can't sit still around the house, I gotta do something. My husband is just like me, he can't sit around either."

Since her husband has retired and sold his farm to family members, he drives a truck for his son-in-law, Gilbert Yosten.

The active couple has lived in Hereford for over 20 years. They married in 1932 at Lindsav. Mrs. Berend grew up during the depression years and World War II. She was ambitious to become a nurse, but due to home obligations and the depressed economy, she stayed with her family who lived in Gainesville near an Army camp, picking cotten and plowing fields, using a mule and plow.

"Our family lived in a big house and we let Army men and their wives live with us. It was just so hard to find a place to stay back then. We used two rooms of the house and let them have the rest," she said.

"And, I can remember riding to church and school in a horse and buggy. Sometimes I wonder how people would react now if they had to live that way. The children are very spoiled. As soon as they turn 16, they expect a new car," she said.

Mrs. Berend was raised as a Catholic and brought her children up in a religious home atmosphere. They are members of St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

"I think kids should be raised in a religious home. We weren't real strict on our children and we didn't spank them. I think that a parent should sit their children down and talk to them," she said.

A grandmother of 13, Mrs. Berend feels that she has contributed her share in being a grandmother and has enjoyed it.

"I would do anything for my grandchildren. They are all good kids," she said with a

Veteran Says Railroads Lack Dedicated Workers

BROWNWOOD, Tex. (AP) -His sweat-stained cowboy hat was tipped over his eyebrows to block the burning rays of the late summer sun and he frowned as he said, "No wonder there's so many derailments these days.

ciate d the t and spon-cap-f the

"Hell, there are too many folks without experience and nobody really inspects the tracks or the trains anymore."

convinced there no longer is the dedication that once was the symbol for the rugged, harddrinking, fist-fighting worker that kept the trains going when rails provided the major lifeline of the nation.

Roberts, 77, and retired for the past decade, sat in the spacious backyard of his Brownwood home, where on a quiet night you can hear the

He recalled how once a good brakeman or conductor could sense impending trouble with a car, just by the way it moved over the tracks.

He remembered how the cars of a train were checked slowly and carefully after stopping at a major terminal.

'Now days, as far as I hear, some guy just squats down and Patrick Henry Roberts, a screech of the diesel engines, how the devil can you spot a looks as the cars roll by, and problem that way?" he asked.

Roberts said he decided to retire after two trains on which he served as conductor had accidents within the space of a few days.

Once there was a derailment and then a middle-aged college professor committee suicide by leaping in front of a speeding freight.

"Then when they started pulling 100 or 25 cars, I knew it was too much and time to start growing a garden before they had to plant me somewhere," he said as puffed on a cigarette faith the smoke drifting out and over the pinch of snuff in his lower lip. When things got tough in the old days Roberts said, "We took any kind of job to keep going. We were brakemen and conductors, but when there wasn't any work for us, we go to laying track or anything.

By God, once I walked from Texas, about 100 miles, counting every damn tie on the line and marking with a paint brush those that needed replacing or repairing.

"At night I slept in the tool sheds at station stops along the way. Made a lot of oney though -$3 a day."

Roberts, who followed his immigrant Irish father into railroad work, spent most of his Temple, Texas, to Cleburne, years in Texas, although he did move to California to help build railroad bridges and to Arizona and New Mexico to lay tracks.

He still has the muscular arms and solid build of a man who has driven spikes and struggled with the heavy ties.

He admits he misses the wail of the coal-burning engines and the clack of the wheels on the tracks and the rough-andtumble days and people like Cowboy Joe.

hooked those spurs on anything. "And there was Birddog. Another good brakeman, but had to stick his nose into everybody's business. That's why we called him Birddog.

The High Plains Agribusiness Conference will open tomorrow at the Lubbock Civic Center with an emphasis on the Texas Department of Agriculture and its services to the industry. The Conference will extend through Sunday. August 27.

First on the program at 11 a.m. will be a discussion in the Banquet Hall on exports and imports of agricultural commodities, lead by the Department's director of marketing, Ben Baisdon. Following an outline of TDA's participation in export programs will be a questionand-answer period on problems in exporting and the agricultural and environmental sciences division of the Department. Recent changes in licensing, the shift of responsibilities from Federal levels to the state, and other current topics on uses of farm chemicals will be covered.

Next will be a session on grain warehouse inspection and auditing, only one phase of the consumer services division responsibilities. Ed Whitesides, director, will lead the discussion.

'We are very proud of the work of the Department and hope that those in the Conference will participate in the discussions," Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown stated. "It would be impossible to cover all 47 programs which we administer, but the directors will be happy to discuss any regulations under our jurisdiction."

Early in the afternoon, at 1:30, a panel discussion on "A Model for Farm Survival 1978-1983" will be directed by Senator Kent Hance; Larry Myers, USDA liaison; Gerald McCathern, American Agriculture Movement; and Dr. Gene Mathia, incoming chairman of the Agricultural Economics Department at Texas Tech University.

Farmers To Look at Future

WASHINGTON (AP) - Directors of state offices that administer the government's committee members and state major farm programs, along with farmers who make up the state committees overseeing the operations are due here next month to talk over prospects for the future.

The Agriculture Department says that about 170 farmer office directors are expected to attend the conference here Sept.

Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said, "we want our employees and the full-time farmers who serve on our committees to know more about the legislative, administrative and policy-making processes that affect the nation's agriculture.

Eighty percent of the world's jute, used in twine and packing material, comes from East Pakistan. The plant requires a hot, humid climate and some parts of East Pakistan get up to 200 inches of rainfall a

It is anticipated that the new rates will result in a 1.7% increase in Pioneer's gross revenues on its West Texas Distribution System. The increase in Pio neer's aggregate revenues will not constitute a "major change" as defined in Section 43(b) of Article 1446c V.A.T.C.S.

A Statement of Intent to change said rates was filed the Railroad Commission of Texas about August 18, 1978, and is available for inspection at the Company's Amarillo office, 301 S. Taylor

Boren, Edmondson Win Runoff Spots

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Shotts was a runaway winner of Gov. David Boren and former U.S. Rep. Ed Edmondson won runoff berths in Tuesday's Democratic U.S. Senate Primary election.

Boren took 45.5 percent of the votes cast and Edmondson had 28.2 percent in a seven-man Democratic field.

The winner of the Boren-Edmondson runoff election will face Republican Senate nominee Bob Kanm, former president of Oklahoma State University, and four independent candidates in the Nov. 7 general election.

Kanm was unopposed for the GOP nomination to the Senate seat now held by Republican Sen. Dewey Bartlett, who is quitting politics to devote full time to his fight against lung cancer.

In the race to succeed Boren as governor, Lt. Gov. George Nigh held slightly more than the majority needed to win the Democratic nomination, a runoff in almost complete returns today and former University of Oklahoma football star Ron the Republican nomination.

Nigh had 50.1 percent of the votes with 24 precincts still out at noon today. He needed to stay above the 50 percent figure to avoid a runoff with Attorney General Larry Derryberry, who ran second in the three-man field with 37.6 percent.

Shotts took almost 77 percent of the votes in his race against two other Republican candidates.

Two-term Democratic U.S. Rep. Ted Risenhoover of Tahlequah was upset in the 2nd Congressional District Democratic primary by Mike Synar, 28, a Muskogee rancher and real estate man.

Synar will face Republican Gary Richardson of Muskogee in the general election to fill Risenhoover's spot in Congress.

Veteran Democratic Rep. Tom Steed of Shawnee easily won the 16th term in the 4th Congressional District Tuesday, but he also faces a Republican opponent in November.

Hanoi Again Showing Scarred Face Of War

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dennis D. Gray, chief of The Associated Press Bureau in Bangkok, is accompanying the American delegation visiting Vietnam. He helped cover the Indochina war. By DENNIS D. GRAY

Associated Press Writer HANOI, Vietnam (AP) - This Communist capital again wears the face of war.

The peaceful serenity that followed the collapse of the Saigon government in 1975 has been replaced by an aggressive mood. The new enemies are Cambodia and China.

A three-story billboard near the core of the city shows armored vehicles bristling with missiles, jet overhead and a soldier with binoculars ready, gazing expectantly toward the

A few months ago, the display showed farmers and factory workers.

A loudspeaker blares the latest news of negotiations with the Chinese and of the fighting at the Cambodian border.

Not so many years ago, such loudspeakers bragged of victories against the Americans. It's been 31/2 years since that conflict ended, but again hope for normality seems to have disappeared.

Uniforms are very much in evidence in this city of 31/2 million - on tough veterans, newly recruited militiamen and often on lovely young women with pigtails or long, black hair streaming from under their green helmets. Security guards and policemen also are abundant. People wait in neat queues to enter public places and nobody walks on the grass where the sign says "don't."

The government has called on the people to be ready for a possible "large-scale" defensive war against China, but there are no anit-Chinese placards in the streets.

Officials won't give details but say there must be precautions taken "in all activities" and say they have experience in such things from the American war.

There are reports that at a recent rally, 25,000 freshly recruited members of a "shock" youth force vowed to help defend the country, either in the dispute with Cambodia over territory or against China, the giant to the north feared for centuries by the Vietnamese.

Nguyen Duc Vong, a committeemen from the Fatherland Front in Hanoi, said about 4.000 of the city's original 14,000 ethnic Chinese residents have left, seeking asylum in

'Dad elements' among them spread rumors about imminent war with China in which their community would be wiped out by the Vietnamese and Soviet troops that some Chinese here fear will come to aid Vietnam in any war with Peking, Vong said. He said some Chinese families have been divided in the non-existent, but there are exodus.

Hanoi seems to need time and money to make up for the war

Old partitioned up and crammed with several families. The United Nations says the average living space alloted each person in the city is just under 3 square

Electrical outages are common and there are shortages of schools and hospitals, concrete, paint, meat, gasoline and many other things.

Residents carry half a dozen necessities as rice, sugar and clath. The central market, where Communist resistance fighters once clashed with French troops, has a surprisingly large variety of fresh fruits and vegetables.

But these are from small private plots allowed on cooperatives on the outskirts of the city. The prices are higher than in government stalls but the produce is more available.

A kilo of pork may cost 2 dong (60 cents) at official prices and 10 dong to 15 dong on the free side, but the government shops have long lines and limited hours, and sometimes there's no meat at all.

Privately owned cars are Liszt died in 1886.

There have been stories about luxury goods hauled in from the South after the war, but one sees little to support this. Hanoi remains a no-frills city. It seems to have a spartan soul under its lush and sometimes lovely colonial outfit.

Thanks to a lack of funds and skilled manpower, much of Central Hanoi retains the charm of its French past. The boulevards are broad and lined with Acarandas, bougainvillaea and palms. Lakes and parks ration cards for such basic appear around every other bend and no skyscrapers pierce the sky. So far, there is no socialist blockhouse architecture.

At night when one can't see the paint peeling from the colonial villas and palaces, when there are only a few street lamps and no neon signs, Hanoi seems an era away from its current struggles.

Bicyclists, some with girlfriends perched uncomfortably on back seats, pedal by quietly. People emerge from houses to swing on hammocks and escape the humid heat. One can smell the trees and there is no gauze of fumes to obscure the sky.
