Enlarged Clinic Sets Open House

Local and area residents will get the opportunity today to see one of the state's most modern medical buildings — and some of the latest equipment — during an open house at the Hereford Clinic.

From 2-5 p. m., the doors of the newly remodeled building will be open to the public as administrators and employees show off what has been done in nearly two years.

Grant Fuller, accountant, explained that the clinic opened in 1948 after three doctors — R. R. Wills, L. B. Barnett and M. W. Nobles — had formed a partnership. "I came here a year later and at that time there were three doctors, one receptionist, myself and a lab technician."

Both Dr. Wills and Dr. Barnett retired in 1964 and the clinic today is operated under the partnership of doctors Nobles, A. T. Mims, B. G. Beene, C. E. Hicks, and C. E. Rush. Remodeling of the building, Fuller explained began in June 1965, and has been enlarged about 75 percent. Presently, there are 65 rooms in building, with seven doctors, one radiologist, seven nurses, two X-ray technicians, and 12 other persons listed as office personnel.

Each doctor has his own suite of offices and each nurse her own nursing station. There also are several waiting rooms and storage rooms in the new building, which has space for minor surgery but does not handle bed patients.

One of the most modern pieces of equipment is the new X-ray machine. One of the technicians, Loreta Kindsfater, said the machine "is more convenient, does better quality work."

Too Many Fouls Cost Herd Game To Loop Leader

The league-leading Tullia Hornets took advantage of numerous Hereford miscues in the final four minutes of District 1-AAA play Friday night to take a hard-earned 54-49 victory in La Plata gymnasium.

Hereford, which led 12-10 at the end of the first quarter, appeared to be upset bound with four minutes remaining when Gene Duvall hit a long jumper to tie the foul-laden game at 45-45.

Larry Champ hit on a long shot to tie the count again at 47-45, but from then on everything went bad. The Herd called a time out with 3:08 left, but then lost the ball on a bad pass and the Hornets went ahead by two with 2:37 remaining.

Two fouls against the Herd resulted in three more points for the Hornets and an insurmountable lead. Larry Noland hit for the Herd with 55 seconds left but Tullia came right back with a basket.

Jimmy Allison hit for Hereford as the final buzzer sounded to make the final score 54-49. See FOULS Page 2

C of C Panel Discusses Proposed City Tax Bill

Mayor Ray Cowsert spoke Friday to the luncheon meeting of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Government Affairs Committee on the bill now in the state legislature which, if passed, could result in a new 1% city sales tax.

One of two items on the agenda, Mayor Cowsert's remarks covered the general nature of the proposed law, its advantages and disadvantages. According to Mayor Cowsert, smaller cities are pushing for the bill's passage, but larger cities have been against the bill.

He explained that the bill would allow cities to hold a local election to determine whether or not the sales tax would be imposed. Indicating what a 1% sales tax would do in Hereford, Mayor Cowsert stated that such a tax could produce about $80,000 additional income for the city.

Pointing out the fairness and unfairness of the bill, Cowsert said, "The bill would cause people who pay none, or few, of the city taxes to pay; however, the bill would affect the lower income group."

According to Cowsert, critics of the bill say it would hurt low-income groups, that it is yet another tax, and that the tax is unfair to those in the cities because those who live just outside the city limits would not have to pay.

He went on to point to the need for city revenue other than from water, franchise and ad valorem taxes.

"Small cities' surpluses are gradually dwindling, payrolls have increased and the number of employees have increased — the money must come from some other source," the mayor said.

He added that increase in property valuations in Hereford has begun to level off and residents can no longer expect it to offset the rise in city government expenses.

Mayor Cowsert expressed his opinion that "the legislature will probably pass this bill in."

Police Cope With More Burglaries

Contributions Fall Behind On County Project

Contributions from local civic and social groups to help provide funds for the remodeling of the Bull Barn kitchen have lagged, according to Velma Hodges, County Treasurer, who has been receiving donations.

"We have had donations from three home demonstration clubs and one other," she said Friday. Deaf Smith County Home Demonstration Agent Argen Draper stated that she had received several calls from various clubs for the diagram of the kitchen. "The idea in remodeling the kitchen," Mrs. Draper explained "is to make it usable for large crowds."

Previous use of the kitchen has been limited because of its size, and upon the completion of the remodeling, the kitchen will be available for groups over the whole community, according to Mrs. Draper. "We hope the kitchen will accommodate preparations for 300 people when it is finished," she added.

Mrs. Hodges indicated that contributions should be sent to her office at the County Court-house.

GRAND JURY TO BE NAMED

Selection of a grand jury for a new term in 69th District Court will begin at 10 a. m. Monday.

Twelve persons will be chosen for the jury, which will begin to hear criminal cases Feb. 6. Archie McDonald, 69th District Court Judge, will preside.

Merchandise Loss Reported

Deaf Smith County's eleventh burglary or attempted burglary in two weeks was reported to city police Friday morning after it was discovered that Hereford Surplus, 1221 E. 1st, had lost more than $600 in merchandise.

Officers were told that the burglary had occurred between 4:30 p. m. Tuesday and 10 a. m. Friday. Patrolman Frank Mansley said the burglars apparently had tried to enter on the south end of the west side of the building, but the hole was too small for entry.

A window was broken out about 20 feet further north and entry made there. Tire tracks, about the size of a truck, were found near the broken window, Mansley reported. He was told that no car or truck had been in that area in the past three weeks.

Taken from the building were

Trio Is Facing Break-In Charge

Three men, arrested and charged with burglary Wednesday morning by Deaf Smith County Sheriff's officers, will go before a 69th District Court grand jury Monday.

The men — Luis Castillas, 17; Eliseo Rivera, 22, and Jose Guerrero, 17 — were arrested at the Hereford Labor Camp, in connection with the Tuesday night or early Wednesday burglary of Colville and Wilson Inc. on the Clovis highway.

A 16-year-old Latin American male was arrested with the other three men. County Judge H. C. Williams released the youth in custody of an older brother from another part of the state.

All of the merchandise taken in the burglary was recovered. It included a used radio, electric heater, check protector, 125 pens stamped with the company name and 100 refills for the pens — all valued at about $70.

Bank Executive Assumes Duties

Waldo Baxter, a native of Floydada and 1962 graduate of West Texas State University, assumed his duties Thursday morning as vice president of the Hereford State Bank.

Baxter, 29, replaces Dean House, who resigned recently to become Vice-President of the newly organized West Texas State Bank of Canyon.

Born and reared in Floydada, Baxter graduated from high school there in 1955 and served in the U. S. Navy from 1955 to 1957. Most of the service time

Proposed For Hereford

Clinic Would Supplement Patterning Program

Plans for a fund-raising campaign to bring a patterning therapy center to Hereford were discussed at a Thursday evening meeting of the parents of the 17 children who are on the patterning program here. The campaign was officially launched Friday morning after Mrs. Jack Brown, unofficial spokesman for the group opened accounts for the prospective center at First National and Hereford State Banks, in hopes that people will make their donations there.

Admitting that the center could be located in another Panhandle city other than Hereford, Mrs. Brown said, "We've been working on it for over a year and I don't think there's much question." She added that, "We have the children, Canyon has a doctor who is eager to become involved in the program and Amarillo has the airport, but it will be big for Hereford and we want it real bad." The practical advantages for Hereford would include — providing that the center eventually become a regular center such as the one in San Antonio, which is the nearest of its kind — food and lodging for approximately 15 families who would come here twice a month and stay 2 or 3 days while their child was being reevaluated, explained Mrs. Brown.

Dr. Bruce Beene, however, who just last week returned from a week of training on the patterning program at the home location in Philadelphia, was a bit more skeptical than Mrs. Brown. Beene said that when he first heard of the patterning program from Mrs. Brown — who was the first in this area to go to Philadelphia to enter her child in the program — he "was very interested, and began to write for information on the program. "When it came time to discuss a patterning center for this area," he stated, "I had no information on it. There just seemed to be none available. In fact, I used this as a criticism of the program."

The Texas Medical Association had practically no information at all on this unusual therapy, he said, adding, "I have deliberately not given a complete green light. . . we don't want the children in this part of the country to build up their hopes (of the center being organized here) and then have it dropped. It's in too early planning stages to make an announcement yet. I can think of at least 10 instances that could 'cool it.'" Beene explained that he was still awaiting information on the program, mostly statistical, before making any definite decisions. After obtaining the complete data, Beene will make a report to the Texas Medical Association on the patterning program, which has been unable to obtain such a report before. He will not announce his decision about accepting the position of medical director of the center, which he has been asked to fill, until after the report is made, he says.

Beene stated that, "I went there (Philadelphia) with great skepticism," mainly because of their lack of cooperation in providing sufficient information on the program to "small town doctors" but that now he has "a feeling that this program or some modification of it will revolutionize treatment of brain-damaged children, both minor and the very serious."

Mrs. Brown stated that, though it was not in writing, "We have been assured that there will be a center in this area." There are about 70 people on this program in the immediate area," she says, adding, "everything has broken much faster than we had hoped. It's growing like wildfire. They're training people just as fast as they can to open centers."

The Hereford center would be a part of the Institute for the Achievement of Human Potential of Philadelphia, handling two types of institutes — the Institute for Neurological Organization, which is for the more severely brain-damaged child and the Institute of Reading Disability, which is designed for slow readers and slow learners in general who have only mild brain injury.

Those entered in the INO would have their initial evaluation done in San Antonio while all reevaluations would be taken care of here. The reevaluations must be done at two month intervals.

Those children in the IRD could be evaluated here and placed on the program at the proposed therapy center. Their reevaluations come every three months.

The patterning program is, basically, a program which teaches that work with brain-damaged children should center on the injured brain, stated Dr. Beene. Heretofore, the accepted method was to concentrate the efforts on the part of the body which was paralyzed, spastic, etc. as a result of brain damage, he explained. This new theory is designed to retrain or reeducate the brain to take care of those functions, the injured part formerly took care of, thus causing the normal functions to come back.

Beene mentioned that the directors who devised this theory had very reasonable assumptions about the normal person using only a portion of his actual brain capacity and that they felt that this program could be used on perfectly normal children to "sharpen their wits," or make them use a greater part of their brain power.

If and when the center is organized in Hereford, it will cost a great deal of money, Mrs. Brown stated that it would take several thousand dollars to purchase the specialized equipment, office machines and office furniture for a local center and that various people involved in this project had received countless calls from persons who wished to donate money, or in some way help with producing a center in Hereford. It was for this reason that they decided to open accounts at both banks, she stated, adding that all donations are deductible from income taxes and that the organ-

IN VIET NAM — Captain Raymond Haddock visit with two of the youngsters he has of Canyon, advisor to the South Vietnamese Regional and Popular Forces stops to Mrs. S. W. Blake, Canyon)

Former Scoutmaster Still Working With Children

"This is a success story about Viet Nam; most of them are not." So says Roy Harris, Assistant Principal at Alkman Elementary School, who has a long-time friend in Viet Nam, Captain Raymond E. Haddock, now an advisor to the South Vietnamese Regional and Popular Forces in Minh Luong, South Vietnam.

"Captain Haddock was my scoutmaster," Harris adds, "and he was definitely the leader type." Such terms describe the man who has inspired one of his "young brothers," a student at one of the schools which Haddock helped to build, to say that "we are very happy to see you struggle in our country and you do your best."

In a letter to his sister, Mrs. S. W. Blake, who lives at 400 7th Avenue, Canyon, Texas, Captain Haddock writes, "We continue to be very busy in our efforts here. There is so much to be done and so little to do it with." Much of the work is being done, in his district at least; for he writes that the VC (Viet Cong) are nearing the point of total destruction. "We have beat them bad," he writes, "and there aren't too many left." Remote hamlets will be developed this year according to Captain Haddock. "We will take them away from the VC, provide security for them, then build schools, dispensaries, and other public use projects for the people." Even television sets in several of the hamlets are being installed according to Captain Haddock's letters. The purpose for such unusual measures, he writes, is to bring the people closer to the central government.

Translations of letters from grade school children "express the attitude of the people toward the Americans here," continues Captain Haddock. "Although they are a little hard to read," he writes, "I thought you might enjoy seeing them." Typical of the letters, one student writes to Captain Haddock, "You were a grave (brave) man, coming here to help the VN people. You sacrifice your life for my country. Thank to your presence so we have a good condition living."

Harris, who met the Captain while Haddock was a student at West Texas State University in Canyon during the years 1955-58, states that Haddock was already an ambitious Army career man even then.

"He was a very intelligent person," Harris continued, "the type who makes you want to follow his leadership."

A member of the ROTC at West Texas State University and scoutmaster of Troop 66 of which Harris was a member, Captain Haddock appeared to Harris to be a man "very dedicated to whatever he was doing."

Harris adds, "He was very interested in other human beings."

Announcement by Wilson and Co. that they had taken an option on certain tracts of land east of Hereford has brought on a great amount of speculation concerning the eventual location of the plant, the size, the number of employees and the daily bill.

We might add that up to this moment it is strictly speculation.

The company has not announced the size of the plant, the number of employees nor the number of head they will kill daily, when they actually locate.

There's little doubt, we feel, concerning the building of the plant. The company officials are real serious about Hereford as a location for the plant, and certainly would not have gone this far without good reason.

The number of employees and size of the plant is another question, and the answer will come when the organization completes plans. We hope that will be soon, but until that time, your guess is as good as the next man's.

A complete meat packing operation with all the related plants is a tremendous operation and we wouldn't hazard a guess as to the actual size. We'll wait for the announcement of the plant from the source and take it from there.

Earnest Langley from over at the Witherspoon firm, has been giving us a bad time about a comment made in this column last week. Particularly since the Wilson announcement.

We had suggested early that this would be a good time to take a winter vacation since nothing important seemed to be going on. That column was written Tuesday, and by the time the paper went to press late Wednesday, the entire climate had changed.

Wilson and Co. made their announcement concerning the land options; Swift and Co. came through with details and final plans on their mineral feeding operation for Hereford, and a couple of other deals, yet to be announced, were culminating.

Okay, Mr. Langley - we stand corrected. And although we hesitate to apologize for our apparent lack of enthusiasm, we will admit that we were caught napping. These things just weren't supposed to come through so soon.

And then, on the other hand, maybe it was just wishful thinking on the part of this writer. It has been a couple of years since we've spent any time in our favorite vacationing spot, Phoenix, and this is a great time of the year to go there. We also understand that it's nice down on the coast, and everyone knows that our winters really start in late January.

Earnest, by the way, has just recently been elected to the board of directors of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, and probably thinks everyone should do their vacationing in Hereford.

And from the looks of our bank account, he just might have a point.

Speaking of bankers, we have a new one over at the Hereford State.

Waldo Baxter has moved up from Plainview to replace Dean House who is leaving to go to the new bank at Canyon.

We want to welcome Waldo to Hereford, and to wish Dean every success in his new endeavor.

We're going to miss Dean here in Hereford. He has been active with the Hereford Rotary Club, the Chamber of Commerce and the United Fund, just to mention a few, and we're always sorry to lose good citizens.

You Can RENT A 1967 DODGE for as little as $9.00 per day 5c per mile, at HEDRICK Rent-A-Car 2nd & Sampson in Hereford zons. However, our loss will be Canyon's gain. We know he'll be just as active in our neighboring city as he was here in Hereford.

There will be an open house today from 2 to 5 p. m. at the Hereford Medical and Surgical Clinic. Everyone is invited to attend.

Former District Judge Harry Schultz has joined the law firm of Fike and Hunter in Dalhart and the organization will now be known as Fike, Hunter and Schultz.

Limestone Caves Result From Water Seepage

18 overline in westlimestone... If you could follow a rabbit down a hole in West or Central Texas, you might find yourself in a wonderland. It wouldn't be Alice's wonderland, but possibly a limestone cavern, of which there are hundreds. Some are large but most are small. Texas caves vary from the large Devil's Stinkhole in Edwards County to the intricate maze of Indian Creek Cave in Uvalde County...

These are made from calcite, dolomite, gypsum and occasionally less common minerals such as limonite, celestite, or selenite. Much of the underground water eventually comes to the surface in the form of springs. Few of the caverns or caves are connected, although they may be near each other, and explorations are not expected to reveal ties between them.

One Operation Makes Quick Efficient Pipeline Work

A gadget that will literally "plant pipe" is being used by Bryant Brothers Pipe Line Construction. Tommy Bryant, one of the brothers designed the attachment that is working so successfully with plastic gas-lines.

There are other plows that have this same principal, but none seemed to work too well," Bryant said.

The tool is attached to a regular heavy duty ditcher that is standard with many gas companies. What it actually accomplishes is a one operation job.

With one trip through a field, the plow opens the ditch, lays the line along the bottom of the ditch and permits the gravity flow of dirt back into the ditch as the plow moves along.

About a mile of ditch was laid in about fifteen minutes late one afternoon. In this particular field, six miles northwest of Hereford, the plow was used to rip across the field because the tractor being used was a small one with less power than the plow was designed for.

Bryant said that the plow works as well in rock and wet soil as it does in dry. In rock, it actually works better than trying to make a ditch with a regular ditching machine.

The reason for this success is that as the pipe is laid into the bottom of the furrow, stones and dirt ease back onto the pipe. When filling a ditch that is cut by conventional methods, the rocks and clods fall from three to four feet onto the pipe, often damaging the plastic line.

"With this method, the plastic line gets gentle treatment," Bryant explains.

If the soil that has been stirred by the furrowing through the field is very rough or hard, the contractors turn their crawler around and pack the furrow with their tractor on their return trip.

Bryant said that if a D-8 is used that no pre-breaking of the ground would be necessary. With a heavy crawler, the time is compared to time required to lay pipe with the ditching, covering method.

This method of using this laying blade also eliminates some hand labor. When a ditch is dug, a heavy ditcher has to be moved to the site, pipe is laid along the route of the proposed line and then men have to place the pipe by hand down into the three to four foot ditch.

Then the ditch has to be covered with another crawler equipped with a blade.

The plow designed and built by Bryant Brothers is about three inches wide and over four feet high. The pipe is guided into the blade over smooth rollers that protect the angle of the pipe's entrance into the apparatus. After entrance, the line angle is changed inside the blade to prepare it for placement in the bottom of the furrow.

The line is laid ahead of the tractor before the tractor begins. The pipe is threaded through a pick-up loop that moves the pipe out of the path of the tractor, up over the moving machine and into the threading rollers on the plow itself.

Bryant has laid several short lines of five to ten miles of line around Hereford. This past summer, he took the pipeline mechanism to Louisiana where he worked on a long stretch.

The company has moved the equipment to Brownfield and just this week had requests from Kansas for their services with this plow.

Use of the plow is economical not only for the company, but savings are passed along to the farmers. The plow can handle two inch line, can be laid about four miles an hour, with two men working. Since less equipment has to be transported for the job, work costs less.

Less pipe is damaged, too, since work is fast. Stock in fields where lines are being laid frequently walk on plastic line and damage it. With this method, laying of line is so fast that little can happen while it is not in the ground. Too, stock often falls into the open ditches when the standard method is used. With the narrowness of the ditches, the animals cannot get out and die unless found by the farmer pretty soon after they fall in.

"It's not a new idea, but this one (the plow) really works," Bryant says.

ONE OPERATION — Plastic pipe line is laid in one operation with this hollow blade made by Bryant Brothers Pipe Line Construction. Dean, Kenneth and Tommy

PARADISE MUST GO!

Campus Capers Cheryl

Two members of the high school band have recently made the All State Band. They are Chris Hutcherson and Kerry Thompson. Chris is a clarinet player and Kerry plays the French horn. The two boys will go to Houston where they will stay from February 8 through the 11.

The band will present a concert to the student body. Tuesday morning in the auditorium. They will be going to contest in April, which will take place at Corpus Christi.

As most of the athletic boys know, Coach Willie Williams is the leading competitor out at the field house. The competition is great, because there are four teams, competing for a prize, which is a steak supper for the coach of the winning team. It looks as though Coach Willie's great seven are on their way. Coach Brooks, Brown, and Waggoner had better get busy if they are very hungry.

The college-admission fever had reached its peak in the spring of our daughter's senior high-school year. Consequently, the entire class joined in mourning the news that a likely favorite had been rejected by Harvard. The next day the young man, who had spent years collecting Harvard keepsakes, came to school with this sign: "HARVARD SWEATSHIRTS, STICKERS, BANNERS FOR SALE. ALL MUST GO, BECAUSE I'M NOT."

Statistics were quoted to indicate that teenage drivers are twice as likely as adults to be involved in accidents, and that insurance companies encourage school courses in driving because they reduce the number of accidents in this age group.

Members present included Mmes. John Hill, C. F. Hornfeld, C. T. Douglas, Wayne Sifford, J. G. Fortenberry, J. V. Perrin and Bradley.

Novel To Be Reviewed At Federation Lunch

A new book by a favorite author, presented by a favorite Hereford reviewer, will feature the program for a luncheon of Deaf Smith County Federation of Women's Clubs in Community Center Tuesday at noon. All women of the county are invited to attend the covered dish luncheon and hear the program.

Mrs. Ansel McDowell will review Taylor Caldwell's novel, Pillar of Iron. Luncheon music will be supplied by Joette Hanna and Darlene Sparkman, piano pupils of Mrs. B. Y. Crosthwaite.

Hostess clubs are La Afflatus Estudio, Hereford Study and Music Study.

In addition to members of all clubs in the Federation, other women of Deaf Smith county are invited to bring a dish for the meal and come to the luncheon and, if they wish, to become individual members of the Federation by payment of a small fee. New comers to the community are especially invited to take this means of becoming acquainted more quickly.

The luncheon will be one of the quarterly meetings of the County Federation, but its mid-week date is a departure from the custom of setting Federation meetings on fifth Saturdays.

ARKIN UNDER ALIAS
NEW YORK — One of Off-Broadway's new hits afforded Alan Arkin, comedian, a chance at directing debut under an alias.

When the play, "Eh," opened, the staging was credited to Roger Short. When investigation revealed no one of that name was a member of the directors' guild, Arkin acknowledged he used the pseudonym after being hurriedly summoned in replacement of two other directors.

Skypala Explains Eye Bank To Club

Two new members were recognized by the Hereford Kiwanis Club at their regular luncheon Thursday. The men, Ed Roberson and Alex Glass, were given orientation material on Kiwanis by Ray Todd.

The club congratulated those who planned the Kiwanis Ladies Night on their work and commended Dale Young and C. E. Coleman on their completion of the newly organized Kiwanis Bulletin. The first bulletin was sent out this week.

Jim Arney introduced the guests, Dale Young presented Lloyd Crume with the friendship dollar and Dean Herring, club president, gave the results of the first interclub of the year urging all members to attend an interclub this year.

Justin McBride announced to the club that the Kiwanis agriculture committee and the Rotary Club had jointly sponsored the 4-H trophies at the Livestock show last week, also commending the 4-H judging team for winning the livestock judging contest.

Perry Ray introduced Ed Skypala as the guest speaker for the meeting. Skypala, who was recently named "Citizen of the Year," told club members about the Hi-Plains Eye Bank and made brochures and donor cards available to them.

Skypala explained that the eye bank was first started when it was discovered that 131 eyes which an Oklahoma bank had sent to Texas, 97 were sent to Amarillo, thus showing that there was a definite need in this area for a bank.

The board of directors for the eye bank are chosen in district conventions each year. There is a director from each district and one from each of the 7 Amarillo clubs. It is these directors who run the bank. All finances come through donations, Skypala stated. The eye bank is not allowed to have money-making projects, through Lions Clubs can have projects to make money for the bank.

Skypala gave several examples of people that the bank was helping, expressing the feeling that blindness was one of the worst things that a person could suffer from.

After the program, Herring reminded members of a board meeting to be held Wednesday morning at the Cason House.

Adults Classes To Be Available

Adult classes in a ten-week secretarial course are to be offered here by Western Republic College of Amarillo, Wendell B. Parker, director of the adult education department, announces.

Classes are scheduled to begin Feb. 6 in Hereford High School and enrollment will close Friday, Feb. 3. Instruction in receptionist duties, filing, bookkeeping, shorthand and typing will be given from 7 to 9:30 p. m. Mondays and Fridays.

Parker, who plans to teach the class, is talking this week with Hereford businessmen who employ persons for secretarial and clerical duties, to learn their needs and the type of training they expect for an employee.

Western Republic College, he says, is operated to fill the demands of business in its community by training skilled workers in various fields.

Use Of Money Being Taught

By Mrs. Argen Draper
Home Demonstration Agent

The first quarter of 1967 has been designated as the cluster of months for programs on financial management.

SOME OF THE THINGS THAT HAVE BEEN DONE TO FURTHER PEP are as follows: 11 clubs had programs on Financial Management; money management to 4-H leaders in three counties have been trained; program on many management in "the planning spending given in the Hub Community; program on fourth grade given at the request of state specialist; PEP's general meeting with 75 in attendance; Financial Management with 18 in attendance.

Many copies of account books have been picked up at the office. All this indicates that people are interested in making the most of the money they have.

HOWARD WALKER is getting ready to teach a group of 4-H members from the Merry Maidens 4-H club. Howard very effectively taught 4-H girls Unit I in Money Management.

The parents are very complimentary about the things the girls learned and the new management principles they are using with their allowances.

JOY ARRINGTON, Home Management Specialist from College Station, recommends safe storage of valuable papers. She says, "The safest place for valuable papers - dealing with financial and legal affairs is a safety deposit box or fireproof safe."

Check the following list and see how your family rates: Some papers are abstracts, deeds, leases, titles; automobile title, bill of sale; birth certificates; bonds, investment and security records; church affiliation, baptismal records; citizenship papers; death certificates or records; education — permanent records, awards, diplomas, degrees; employment records; military service records; property inventory copies, investments, bonds, other securities; social security information, tax records; wills; lists of insurance policy numbers and amounts — annuities, health, life, property; marriage certificate and divorce papers.

How did you rate this? Is the proper time to get your valuable papers safely stored. It is true that all papers (except for sentimental reasons) can be replaced but this is expensive and time consuming. This is one point of good management.

GOOD MANAGEMENT is the wise use of all resources, not just money. Time and energy are two resources that should be used to best advantage. Check yourself on these shortcuts in kitchen management:

- Keep a stock of frozen and canned prepared foods, so that a meal can be prepared easily if necessary.

- Plan one-dish meals that go in the same casserole from oven to table. With a salad, fresh fruit and cheese, this can be company fare.

- Serve some meals and beverages in disposable plates and cups. These can be a boon for children's parties, not just because they're convenient and sanitary, but also because they help avoid dish breakage.

- Relax. Remember the guests didn't come to watch you work. They came for your company.

Conservation Practices Are Mark Of Good Farmer

By TED SWINDLE
Staff Writer

Weather is still beyond the controls of science, but farmers like Carl Strafuss, who farms 1100 acres about 17 miles north of Hereford are prepared for a dry spell.

Strafuss works closely with Wilton Green of the U. S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Office.

Green, a Soil Conservationist and manager of the local office, has helped Strafuss with the technical assistance his office offers to area farmers in the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) for those services provided by Green's office.

Co-operation with Green means that Strafuss has tried some of the practices that Green's office recommends for protecting the land during a dry spell like the one we have been having lately.

"A time like this sort of tells us which farmers have been using good soil conservation practices — such as stubble mulching, crop rotation, and grassed water ways — ensures the farmer of the maximum utilization of his available moisture, according to Green.

Originally from Floydada, Green speaks the language of West Texas when he looks out over land farmed by Strafuss. "Now, Carl has got some good effects here. If he gets that big rain, his land will hold as much moisture as any."

Strafuss has wheat land that has been stubble mulched during the past months to protect the land from blowing and to make it ready for a rain or for a snow — when it comes. The stubble straw keeps down the formation of large clods, holds moisture already present. It stands ready to help hold the snow that would otherwise blow freely across the flat high plains surface, Green explains.

Farmers can rotate a stubble crop once ever other year on dryland farms and once ever two or three years on irrigated land, according to Green. He adds that wheat is a good stubble crop for irrigated land because wheat does not produce a quantity of stubble that could interfere with the subsequent planting of such crops as sugar beets, which require fields that are relatively free of crop residue.

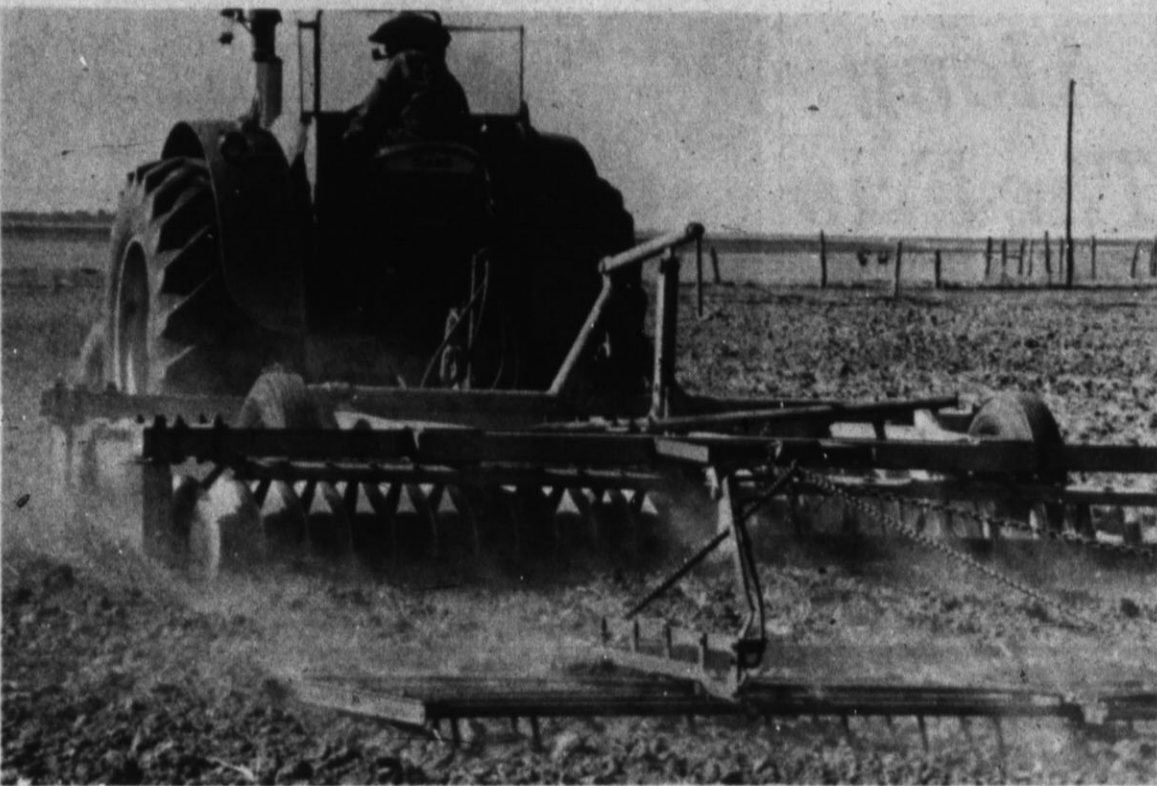

"Carl has some winter wheat on land that was summer fallowed last year, and the moisture has held pretty good," stated Green.

Strafuss added, "We'll water the first time about the first part of March, and then again in May."

Referring to the general success of these practices, Strafuss pointed with his pipe to the presence of moisture in the land and said, "If we can just hold that stuff, we'll be all right, I think."

A beautiful brick home graces the land that once belonged to another Carl Strafuss, the grand father; and now the grandson shares this new home with his wife, Joan and their children — Sharon, Brenda, and Rodney. "And we're expecting a boy next month," he adds with a big smile and a hearty laugh. Strafuss is, in the words of Green, "a good farmer — one of the young men you like to see coming along."

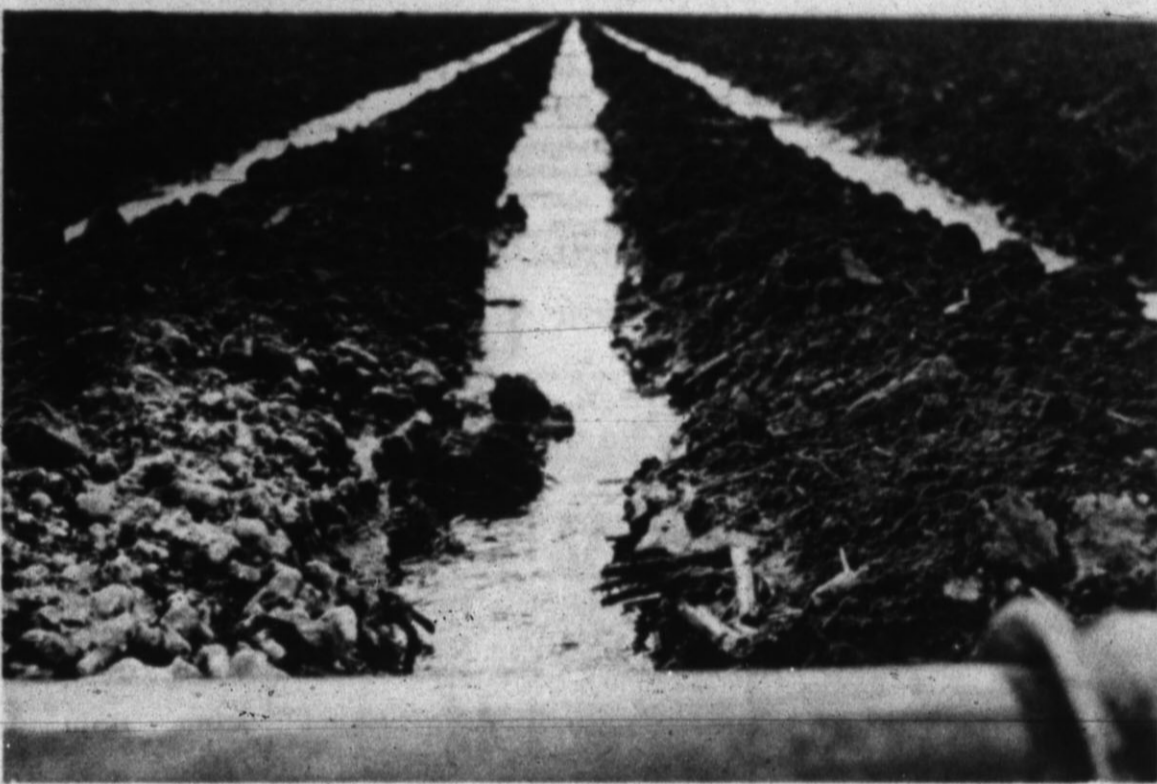

A&M EXPANDS AG MARKETING WORK — A three-phase agricultural marketing program is underway at Texas A&M University. It is aimed at keeping Texas producers and consumers on top of existing marketing opportunities and at developing new markets and expanding those already in existence for

Galveston Shows College Trend

GALVESTON — Galveston held the questionable distinction until a short time ago of being the most populated county in Texas without a junior college. Now, seemingly all at once, it has two.

Not that the need hasn't been apparent for many years. The first movement toward a junior college started as early as 1935 with Dr. John McGivney providing the spark then.

But Galveston County is divided into an island and a mainland, and this causes some rivalries.

And there were occasions when voters would approve a junior college but turn down tax proposals to build and maintain them.

Then on Dec. 10, voters in five Galveston County school districts which form a Union Junior College District, approved a maintenance tax and a $2.85 million bond issue to establish a "College of the Mainland."

A week previously, voters in the Galveston Independent School District which covers the island and part of Bolivar Peninsula, approved a maintenance tax for a college. It will be located temporarily in existing public school facilities.

Voters approved 500 to 144 to create a junior college district in 1935 in the Galveston Independent School District. Then they voted against a tax levy of 10 cents to support the college.

A countywide district proposal lost at the ballot box in 1954. Mainland voters supported the proposal but the island residents overcame the mainland vote.

The issue revived in 1964, but because of opposition in the Clear Creek and Friendswood areas, sponsors decided to form the Union Junior College District with seven school districts. But when it appeared that all was well, voters turned down an $11.5 million bond issue in 1966.

This caused the splitting of the island from the mainland, and approval by the Coordinating Board for the Texas College and University System of two junior colleges.

A two-month spirited campaign persuaded voters to approve both the island and the mainland schools and the necessary taxes.

The College of the Mainland includes the Texas City, La Marque, Dickinson, Hitchcock and Santa Fe School Districts. It will be on the Gulf Freeway between Texas City and Dickinson.

Both institutions hope to be in operation in temporary facilities by the fall of 1967.

Senior Girls Get Unusual Training

"Sit down right to the edge, then scoot back... lower yourself down, with the upper part of your body held straight."

These are the words of Mrs. Jeane Campbell as she speaks to the 32 senior girls who make up the new "Charm" class at Hereford High School. But the word "charm" is not a good one, according to Mrs. Campbell. She says that the word implies trying to be something you aren't, and in this course, Mrs. Campbell continues, we try to bring out the natural abilities already present, the best of the person already possessed. "We hope to replace self-consciousness with self-confidence," she states.

What is studied? Posture, body alignment, length of step, foot placement, putting on a coat, and head control make up a part of last week's instruction, which is a segment of eighty-eight lessons. "Business etiquette, social graces, dress, grooming, and many other subjects make up the course," Mrs. Campbell reveals. She also indicates that the girls are not studying professional modeling. "The idea is to add grace to movement," she says.

The students are very enthusiastic, according to Mrs. Campbell. "This is a fabulous group to work with," she adds. The course is given during the seventh period. Mrs. Campbell explains, and the girls take the course in addition to their regular school loads. "Not one time have I minded getting ready for the class," she said.

Asked about the effect of the course on the girls, Mrs. Campbell replied, "Well, people see what they want to see, but the girls will truly realize the value of the course in later years more than now." Mrs. Campbell continued to say that right now the girls are reluctant to practice what they are learning because of possible ridicule from some of the students not in the class. Explaining that few, if any, public schools in the nation offer such a course as this, Mrs. Campbell went on to add that the Hereford public school system is the only school in this area to offer such a course. "It's the greatest thing I've heard of a school doing," she said.

NEW YORK — Bobby Richardson, who retired at the close of the baseball season, has signed a contract to scout for the New York Yankees through 1970.

The Peninsula Grays of Newport News, Va., will be members of the Kansas City Athletics farm system in 1967. The Carolina League team was connected with the Cincinnati Reds the last three years.

Mike Eischeid, playing his second pro game for the Oakland Raiders this season, kicked a 49-yard field goal against the San Diego Chargers.

reports that the play, Finders Creepers by Donald Payton, will be given in the Stanton auditorium on March 16th and 17th with performances beginning each evening at 7:30 P. M.

"The play is a comedy-mystery," McGuffin states, "involving two young boys who visit their uncle." He continues, "The uncle, without the boys' knowledge, has a new job; he is a mortician."

A sub-plot to the play centers around an attempted murder of two girls' grandfather, according to McGuffin. "All the kids say it's the funniest play they've read," McGuffin adds. And the three-act play, he says, is sure to be the best play that Stanton has had.

New to the Hereford schools this year, McGuffin plans to begin rehearsals February 13th.

Ann Atchley Is Bride Of California Resident

The marriage of Miss Ann Atchley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Atchley of Summerfield, and Ronald L. Perry of Blythe, Calif., was solemnized in Summerfield Baptist Church in a twilight ceremony Saturday conducted by the Rev. Jack Boyett of Calvary Baptist Church, Canyon.

Tapers burned in a pair of silver candelabra, the only decoration at the church altar where Mr. Atchley gave his daughter in marriage. Mary Kay Atchley, younger sister of the bride, lighted the candles and another sister, Miss Sue Atchley, was the maid of honor.

Flowers in aqua and white decorated the table, and the cake was topped with a design of white bells and aqua roses. For a honeymoon trip through the Southwest, which will end at their home in California, Mrs. Perry changed to an aqua sheath. Her corsage was of white carnations from her bouquet. After Feb. 1 the couple will reside at 569 N. Sixth, Blythe.

The bride has completed her sophomore year at West Texas State University, where she was a member of Mary E. Hudspeth National Honor Society and of Buffalo Gals, girls' service organization. She was previously graduated from Hereford school.

Now refuge manager of Cibola National Wildlife Refuge on the Colorado River below Blythe Perry is graduate of Colorado State University.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Perry of Craig, Colo., were guests at the wedding, as were Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Woolwine of Dodge City, Kan., Mrs. Alice Riley of Hays, Kan., Mrs. Bill Perry of Peoria, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hawkins of Lamesa Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Crawford of Ignacio, Colo.

David Perry of Peoria, Ill., was his brother's best man. Ushers were Charles Atchley, the bride's brother; Bill Perry of Idaho Falls, Ida., brother of the bridegroom, and Darel Crawford of Ignacio, Colo., his cousin.

Bridal Shower Given For Mrs. Jerry Nichols

Miss Atchley was married in an ivory satin gown which she made. It was styled with a straight front panel and skirt fullness gathered to the back and sides at the waistline. The high neck and petal-point sleeves were emphasized with embroidery and seed pearls.

Her shoulder-length veil of illusion was held to her blonde hair by a circlet of the satin ornamented with pearls. A cascade of white Frenched mums and carnations made her bridal bouquet.

The maid of honor and the candle lighter both were dressed in aqua, their frocks fashioned like that of the bride but in street length. Miss Sue Atchley carried a nosegay of carnations.

Music before and during the ceremony was by Richmond Graham of Canyon, vocalist, and Mrs. J. W. Youngblood of Canyon, organist.

A reception after the ceremony was held in the church education building. The three-tiered wedding cake was served with coffee and spiced tea by in a frill of turquoise net on top. White sugar roses circled each layer.

SKIERS RETURN — A weekend spent in a favorite snow resort, Breckenridge, Colo., is talked over by a group in the living room of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Hicks' home, 105 Douglas. Mrs. Hicks, above, and her sons are equally amused as she poses on her skis. The boys, pointing out some adjustment in the fastenings, are Dennis, David and Gary. A cheerful casualty of the trip, Mrs. Howard R. Johnson in the photo at right insists that the skiing experience was enough fun to make up for the inconvenience of cast and crutches as she nurses an injured ankle, so she does not need the sympathy expressed by Mrs. Temple Hill, Drs. Hicks and Johnson. All avid winter sports fans, these Hereford residents try to find the opportunity for several trips to ski slopes each year.

CHARTING A CRUISE — A prospectus for a trip they are planning to take soon, a cruise in the storied Caribbean, is surveyed by Mr. and Mrs. Reagan Peeler at their home, 123 Texas. The Hereford couple will be joined on their vacation by friends from Pampa, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Holloway.

Winter Vacations To North Or South

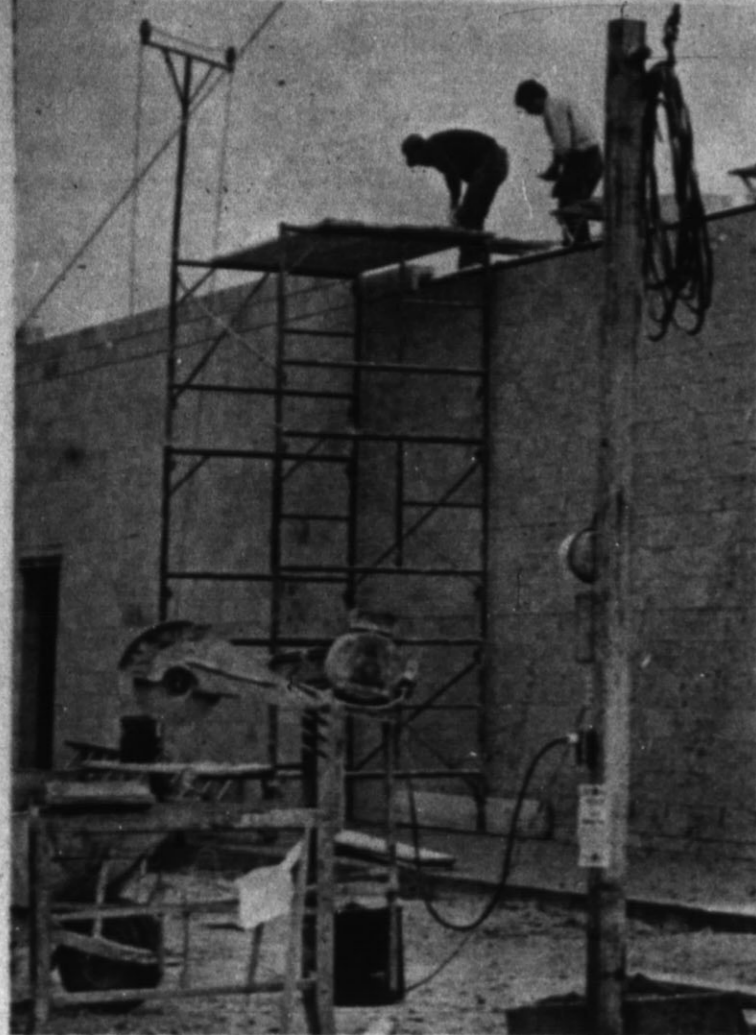

MEXICO EXCURSION — A unique railway route through the high mountains of Western Mexico was followed by Mr. and Mrs. Debbs Knox on a trip from which they returned recently. The drive to Presidio, crossed the Rio Grande to Ojinaga and boarded a crack train for a 24-hour trip across a vast range of mountains to Los Mochis on the west coast, then traveled down the coast to the resort city of Mazatlan. The Knoxs made the trip with the R. L. Mayo of Muleshoe; Mrs. Knox and Mrs. Mayo are sisters. Pictured in the living room of their home at 133 Ave. B, they show souvenirs of Mexico. Knox holds a section of rock crystals; the flower pot and the painting propped against the lamp base are in colorful Mexican design.

GOING UP, UP, UP — Construction on the new Texas Employment Commission, Seventh and 25 Mile Ave., is going at full speed and is expected to be occupied between Feb. 20 and March. Work on the 2,400 square-foot building began in December. (Hereford Brand Photo)

Virgil Marsh Gains Farm Recognition In State

Virgil Marsh, nominee for the 1966 Hoblitzelle Award for the advancement of Texas Rural Life, was presented a bound copy of the various efforts of the Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Association Executive Secretary, James W. Witherspoon, Hereford attorney, who placed Marsh in nomination for the award.

Witherspoon presented the book at a meeting of the board of directors of the association last Saturday night at the Witherspoon law offices. Dexter Lillie of the Holly Sugar Corporation announced that Holly agrees to the recently decided, government supervised, 30 cent price increase per ton at all points of the scale, regardless of the sugar content of the field, as explained by Orville Freeman, U. S. Secretary of Agriculture, at the Fair Price Hearing in Omaha. The announcement by Lillie highlighted the meeting of the board, as did the presentation to Marsh.

Given solely for adult farmers and ranchmen who are contributing to the betterment of Texas rural life as active farmers and ranchers, the Hoblitzelle Awards consist of $5,000 a gold medal, and an attesting certificate. Virgil Marsh placed high in the competition receiving the bound book copy of his entry.

Marsh and his wife, Thelma, live with their three children, Sherri Lynn age 13, Kima Lisa age 12, and Jim C. age 9, in their modern home. It is located on the 320 acres to which he first acquired title within four years after his coming to the Hereford area in 1953.

Farming interests in Deaf Smith County and in Dallam County reflect the expertise acquired by Marsh in approximately a decade of Deaf Smith County operations. As the book presented to Marsh states, "This Dallam County land was badly infested with Johnson grass when acquired in 1962 and 1963, but by summer tilling, institution of proper farming practices and compliance with the Government farm programs all of the land has now been placed in a good state of cultivation." Marsh now farms, according to his entry book, approximately 1,571 acres of cultivated irrigated land.

With 2,000 acres of grassland, part of land leased by Marsh in 1964, a substantial year-round cattle operation has been advanced to the point where Marsh can put weaner calves on the grass, move them to the wheat pasture at the appropriate time, and, in the spring, put the animals back on the grass, go to the feedlot with them, or sell them as they are. As stated in the entry book, Marsh had approximately 1200 head of cattle on hand by November of 1965, which is a part of the time upon which the report of his activities was based.

Conservation practices dealing with the conservation of soil and water also illustrates Marsh's leadership and good farming methods. Contained in his entry book are several examples of such steps toward conservation that have "caused him to be recognized in the farm community as being a progressive farmer."

A flair for designing some of his own equipment also marks Marsh as an inventive and modern farmer. He has designed a 4-two pull boat-type sled planter-cultivator with a boat for each row that fits in the furrow and is equipped with regular cultivator bars. Poarch Brothers, working for Luther Lesly, a local implement dealer, have made several of these cultivators, and they are now in use by other sugar beet farmers in the area.

The Marsco Culti-Packer is another of Marsh's designs, and its unusual advantage, according to the entry book, is that "after the beets are watered and up, it can be pulled over the growing beet crop and not destroy the beet, but will keep it clean of weeds and at the same time hold the moisture for the beet root.

Leadership in agricultural programs also is a part of Marsh's activities, including the Agricultural Committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, the County Committee of the State-wide Screw-worm Control Committee and the County Committee for the control of Bangs disease.

An active member of the First Methodist Church of Hereford, Marsh also served on the first Board of Directors of Dolly Textile Industries, was one of the organizers and founders, stockholder and director, of Deaf Smith County Development Co., Inc., a corporation organized in 1965 to promote industry and business for Hereford; and was on the Executive Committee of Bravo Smokes, Inc.

—Small Talk—

By SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

There has been misunderstanding in some women's organizations here about plans for equipping the kitchen at the County Bull Barn, it seems. Rather, there is some confusion about past and present policies. COUNTY COMMISSIONERS have asked the aid of clubs in supplying equipment which will make it possible to prepare and serve meals for large crowds, such as convention dinners and local events like the Chamber of Commerce banquet.

Since last year's renovation of the building it is entirely suitable for this purpose, but the kitchen is not in shape to turn out big meals nor is tableware adequate. Instead of the appropriation of county funds for the kitchen, request for aid was made to organizations which are expected to use it. THE MISUNDERSTANDING arose when some clubwomen remembered times in the past when they had wanted to use the Bull Barn kitchen but had been refused the use of locked-up equipment.

That happened, it is explained, because in pre-renovated days, when the Bull Barn was a commodious but really quite tacky place that wasn't in great demand as a dining spot, Home Demonstration Clubs of the county were given permission by the Commissioners Court to place their own kitchen equipment and dishes there for their own use.

These articles were locked up and anyone who wanted to use them had to get permission from the owners, the H. D. Club women, which is logical enough. But the equipment being given now will not be in the care of any one organization because it will not belong to any one.

THE WHOLE IDEA is to get the place ready for use by any club or civic group in the county. It will be in charge of the Commissioners Court, in the care of a custodian employed by the court.

Of course the group or individual who wants to use it for a public or private party must check on its availability for a certain time and make proper arrangements with the custodian — naturally you'd best not just barge in and start mixing punch for your club dance or family reunion without notifying anybody.

However, there's no question of who has the right to use the kitchen, and the H. D. Club women certainly aren't trying to keep anyone out.

IN THE PAST they were taking care of their own property, and now they want to join other clubs in furnishing a kitchen which will be suitable for use by small and large groups, available under circumstances in which it is kept clean and can be a source of pride to the whole county.

School Supplies Made Available

Increased supplies of food for school lunches are on the way to Texas as a result of recently stepped up purchases by the U. S. Department of Agriculture according to John J. Slaughter, Southwest Director, consumer Food Program, Consumer and Marketing Service, Dallas.

The food will be distributed to schools participating in the National School Lunch Program through the State Department of Public Welfare.

USDA increased its food donations to help schools meet their expenses during the second half of the school year and to help them continue to provide adequate meals at a reasonable cost to the students, he explained.

Texas's share of recent purchases, which USDA expects to deliver in January and February, will include 1,360,000 pounds of dry beans, 1,000,000 pounds of frozen beef, 1,038,390 pounds of butter, 436,900 pounds of cheese and substantial amounts of other commodities.

USDA has also announced intention to buy a large quantity of frozen orange juice, probably starting next month, and supplies should reach many schools in March. The Department is also buying fresh pears.

Other items supplied through USDA donations this school year have included raisins, nonfat dry milk, rice, shortening or lard, flour, corn meal, peanut butter, rolled wheat and, recently, oats.

In supporting the state agencies in the administration of the National School Lunch Act, USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service donates some foods plus some cash to buy food locally. On a national average, the food and cash contribute about 23 percent of the total program cost. State and local sources, including children's payments, cover the remaining cost of the lunches.

Spring Draft Tests Are Slated

AUSTIN — Around 60,000 bulletins of information about an upcoming draft test for students, plus application blanks for taking it, are scheduled to be mailed to state draft boards.

The test will be administered March 11 and 31 and April 8. Applications for taking it must be postmarked no later than Friday, February 10.

Colonel Morris S. Schwartz, state Selective Service director, said students could get the bulletins and blanks by writing their local boards, or calling at any board.

To be eligible to take the test, the applicant must, on the testing date (1) be registered with a draft board, (2) intend to request occupational deferment as a student, and (3) not previously have taken the test.

In some college and university towns, arrangements may be made with colleges and universities to have the information bulletins and application blanks on campus.

Taking the test is entirely optional with students, Colonel Schwartz pointed out. He said he had no idea how many would take the test in March and April. He said about 900 took the test in November, 1966, and about 30,000 took it in May and June, 1966.

Full details about the test will be found in the bulletins of information, available at the boards. Purpose of the test is to furnish information to the draft boards.

The application blanks to take the test must be mailed to the Selective Service Examining Section, Educational Testing Service, P. O. Box 968, Princeton, New Jersey 08540. A pre-addressed envelope will be furnished with each bulletin of information.

The test is scheduled to be given at 23 colleges and universities in Texas. They are:

Texas Southern, Houston; Hardin Simmons, Abilene; Amarillo College, Amarillo; University of Texas, Austin; Lamar State College, Beaumont; Del Mar College, Corpus Christi; Southern Methodist, Dallas; North Texas State, Denton; Texas Western College, El Paso.

Also Texas Christian, Fort Worth; University of Houston, Houston; Sam Houston State, Huntsville; Texas Tech, Lubbock; Stephen F. Austin State, Nacogoches; Odessa College, Odessa; Angelo State, San Angelo; St. Mary's University, San Antonio.

Also Tyler Junior College, Tyler; Victoria College, Victoria; Baylor, Waco; Texas AM University, College Station; Pan American College, Edinburg; and Austin College, Sherman.

Award In Homemaking Won On 'Common Sense'

Surprise was the principal emotion felt by Kathy Pool, Hereford High School senior, when she learned this week that she was winner of the 1967 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow title in the school.

The award, based on a written test of homemaking knowledge and aptitude, usually goes to an outstanding student in the school's homemaking department. Kathy has never studied homemaking.

"I just gave common-sense answers" to the test questions, explains the brown-haired daughter of the Lloyd Pools, 511 E. Fifth. "It was surely a surprise to me when I was told I won, and it surprised by mother just as much."

She was one of several girls who decided to take the test although they had no background as homemaking students. It is open to all senior girls, and Kathy was interested because she wants to make a career of being a good homemaker.

As local winner, her test paper will not be judged in a state contest which will carry the top award of a $1,500 college scholarship and a runner-up prize of a $500 educational grant. State winners will receive an expense-paid tour of Washington, D. C. and Williamsburg, Va. next spring, and be judged for additional scholarship grants.

Although she has had no formal training in homemaking unless you count the few years she was enrolled in a 4-H Club during her grade-school days, she picked up most of the "common-sense answers" as she worked with her mother in their home and learned to cook because she likes to cook.

Questions about sewing and the selection of fabrics and clothing, she says, she could answer from observations made as she helped her mother choose material and watched her make dresses for Kathy.

Knowledge of child care she gleaned from baby-sitting experience and from association with cousins younger than she.

"I've got lots and lots of cousins," she adds. "Some of the things I learned in 4-H Club about food and nutrition must have soaked in," she says, "because I knew some of the answers and don't know how I knew; the answer was just there, but it must have been learned sometime."

Kathy's interests in school are varied. She is an Honor Society member and is also in the choir, Thespians, Tri-Hi-Y and Future Teachers Association. She studies music, enjoys playing the piano as well as singing.

Reading is another favorite pastime, contrasted with enthusiasm for swimming, water skiing and bike riding, and attendance at school sports events.

Minimum Wage May Have Interesting Repercussions

The reaction to the provisions of the minimum wage law which go into effect Feb. 1, will be interesting to watch. Coming under the law for the first time in history, will be a large group of farm workers as well as thousands of grocery clerks, sack boys, cafeteria workers and many others not previously included under the umbrella of the minimum wage legislation.

How much this will mean to individual workers is difficult to determine, since many are already receiving more actual pay than the minimum wage requirements. The kicker comes however, in the record keeping department. And this will come as quite a shock to many farmers and businessmen who have previously not had to worry with such inconveniences as time cards, time clocks and strict adherence to the 40-hour week.

The situation has already created a shortage in time clocks, with some companies at least 60 days behind in delivery of the valuable record keeping devices. The changes in the law have been a boon to the clock manufacturers, just as the Texas sales tax legislation was to the cash register people. The additional record keeping cost to the employers will be tremendous.

The employee too, will find that it's not all "milk and honey". While on a weekly salary, the employer may not have objected to an occasional "late-comer", but a time clock will record the actual minute of arrival and the employee will find that his pay check will reflect the difference.

On the other hand, many of the younger employees, and particularly in the case of grocery sack-boys, will be replaced with older, and fewer, full-time employees, thus cutting out a source of income for many youngsters that is as traditionally American as turkey and apple pie.

Who's to gain? Well, you can bet that the manufacturer of time clocks will be one of the big beneficiaries, and you can count on Uncle Sam to get his share — in both income tax and social security deductions.

The Great Society In Asia

In defense of America's role in Vietnam it's sometimes noted that this country's presence and power is no newcomer to Asia, with long ties of trade and the fighting of World War II and Korea. Yet from what Administration leaders say, something new apparently is emerging — something that merits more discussion than it is getting.

The new element is the so-called Asian Doctrine, which President Johnson has defined as "the determination of the United States to meet our obligations in Asia as a Pacific power." Or, as Vice President Humphrey put it some months ago, "a pledge to ourselves and to posterity to defeat aggression, to defeat social misery, to build viable, free political institutions, and to achieve peace."

At the time Mr. Humphrey made no bones about it; he conceded that these are large commitments. "I think there is a tremendous new opening here for realizing the dream of the Great Society in the great area of Asia, not just here at home."

One articulate critic of the Asian Doctrine is Chairman Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. In a wide-ranging new book "The Arrogance of Power," he recalls that except for the Monroe Doctrine the U.S. has traditionally rejected unilateral responsibility for entire regions and continents.

Hence in the Fulbright view (and we are inclined to agree) the Asian Doctrine is "a radical departure in American foreign policy in that it is unilateral and virtually unlimited in its objectives. Without reference to the United Nations and with only perfunctory reference to the non-functioning Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, the United States on its own has undertaken to win a victory for its progress in the Vietnamese civil war and thereupon to build a 'Great Society' in Asia, whatever that might turn out to mean."

For our part, we think a distinction has to be made between resisting communism in Asia and assuming post-war responsibility for the area. The large-scale intervention in Vietnam may not have been the best possible decision in the circumstances; to the extent it can be justified, however, the justification is that Communist aggression represents a threat to U.S. national security. And if the war ever ends, this country will undoubtedly have to be concerned with Vietnam for some time to come.

But to go far beyond that and attempt to propel Asia into an era of peace and prosperity is simply impracticable.

Consider the experience in Europe. Despite all the U.S. aid after World War II, resentment at American influence inevitably grew, and not only in France. The same would be true of Asia. As Senator Fulbright remarks, it is possible to wonder "whether anyone ever thought of asking the Asians if they really want to join the Great Society."

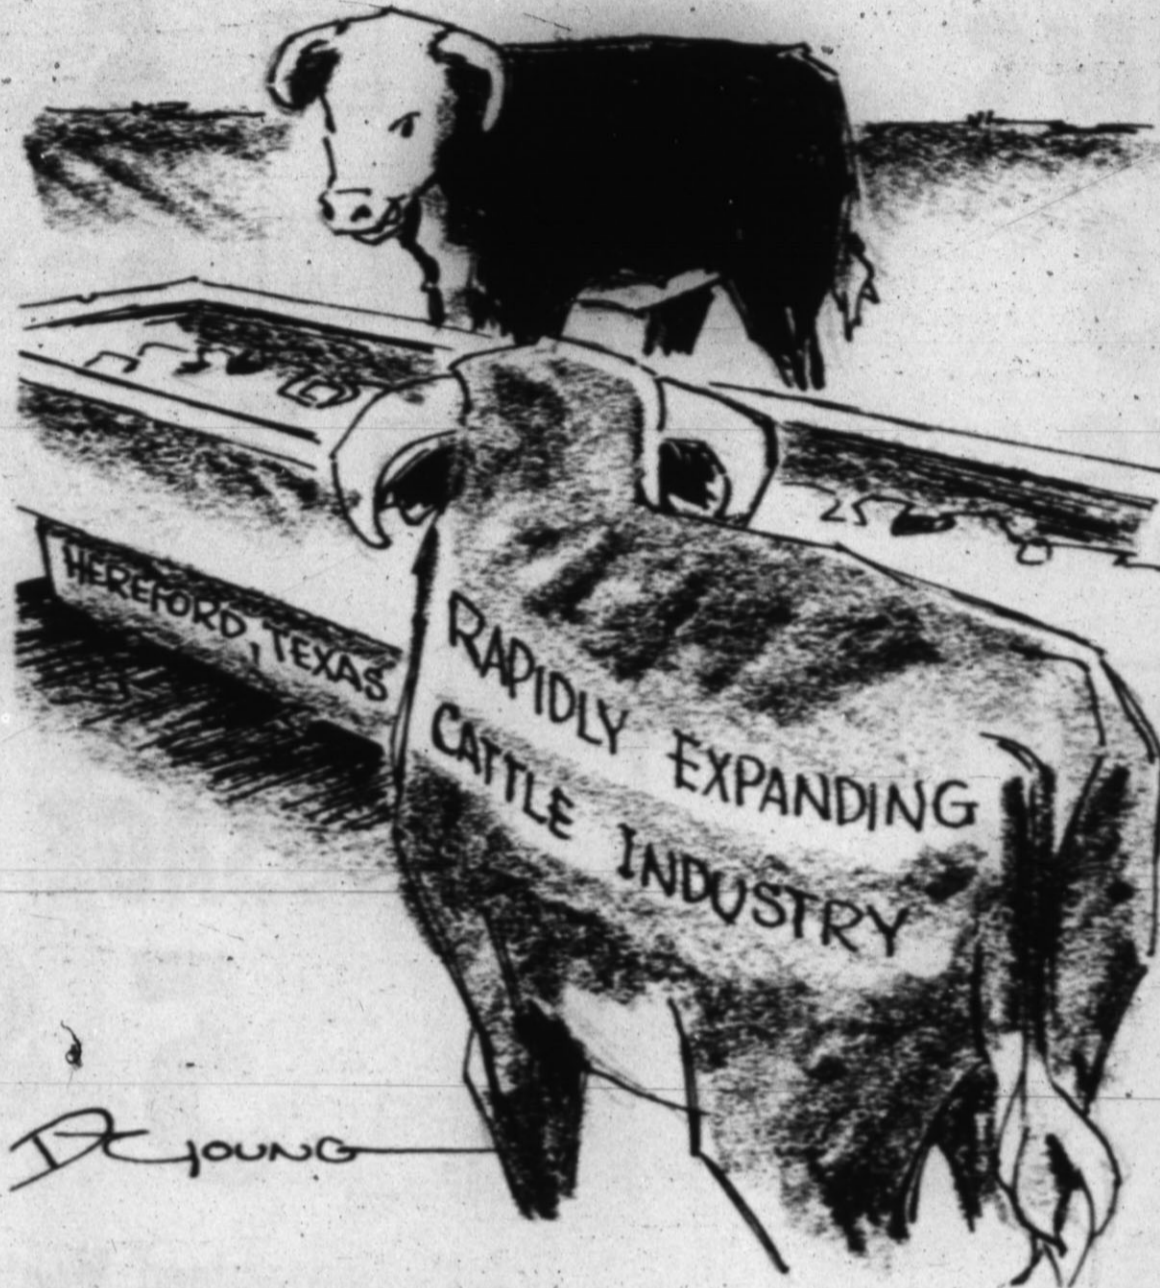

In Europe, too, the American assistance could be absorbed and put to fruitful use because the industrial base and the people's skills were already there. In much of Asia they are lacking; for that reason not even the richest nation on Earth has sufficient resources to defeat the ancestral poverty.

And where, it may be asked, is Red China supposed to fit into the Asian Doctrine? It is conceivable, for all anyone knows, that out of the present turmoil might come a regime less hostile to the U.S., more amenable to the ways of peace. Even if so hopeful a development did occur, China still would not care to have the U.S. trying to exercise primary responsibility in Asia. Like it or not, geography makes China a major force in Asia. Of course, the idea of the Asian Doctrine may fade in the course of time and under the pressure of events, or more sensible counsels may prevail. Certainly Congress should examine its present embryonic form with care and skepticism; presumably Senator Fulbright has as much in mind in planning new Foreign Relations Committee hearings on "the responsibilities of the United States as a great power."

The strains of the Vietnam fighting are themselves proof, it seems to us, that the U.S. cannot do everything for everybody everywhere. It can continue to resist communism where absolutely necessary for its own interests. It should forget the foolish dream of remaking the world.

MAIN STREET, USA

Non-Profit Organizations Being Used As Tax Dodge

By BERT MILLS

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Most private foundations make a real contribution to the welfare of the nation but some of them exist chiefly as vehicles to avoid the payment of taxes.

Congress has investigated this problem for several years and may pass legislation this year to close the tax loophole. If so, the Federal Treasury will recoup many millions of dollars being lost annually.

Spurred by protests from Congress, the Treasury made its own investigation of tax avoidance and submitted a report in 1965. This document contained some shocking revelations and called for six changes in present law to end the financial drain.

One of the biggest abuses is the control of private business enterprises by tax-exempt foundation which owns a controlling interest in 26 corporations, including a large metropolitan newspaper, the number one radio station in a state, a lumber company, several banks, a life insurance company, three hotels, a garage, and a number of office buildings.

Another foundation controls 45 businesses such as clothing factories, retail stores, real estate firms, a hotel and printing, hardware and jewelry businesses. The profits from all these operations go to the foundation, without a cent paid in Federal income taxes.

Local Merchants Suffer

Suppose you own and operate a clothing store. About half of your profits go for taxes. However, your competitor down the block is foundation owned, and pays no income taxes at all. Many local merchants find themselves in this unfair competitive situation. The Treasury has recommended legislation to prevent any foundation from owning more than 20 percent of any business.

Some foundations become wealthy by manipulation of borrowed money. The Treasury cited one that began with a capitalization of only $1,000 and entirely by investment borrowing has multiplied its net worth within five years to include ownership of a 34-acre tract of industrial property valued at over $1 million.

Another foundation was organized in 1954 with no funds at all. Seven years later it had incurred indebtedness of more than $14 million in oil and gas dealings, and had an annual income of over $95,000.

A 1965 decision by the U. S. Supreme Court has encouraged foundations to acquire businesses without investing their own money. In this case a tax-exempt organization bought a business by promising to pay for it out of the profits of the business itself. The foundation thus acquired a concern valued at $1.3 million without spending a nickel of its own money.

The managers of the foundation took elaborate precautions to avoid paying taxes. See MAIN STREET Page 7

PRESS AT FAULT OVER "CREDIBILITY GAP"? MAYBE NEWSMEN AREN'T INFALLIBLE AFTER ALL!

By HENRY CATHCART
Central Press Washington Writer

WASHINGTON—Behind press comments on the widening "credibility gap" lies an assumption that it is caused solely by the statements and omissions of federal government officials. Comments on the gap are made mostly by newsmen, although political opponents of President Johnson tend to repeat and exaggerate them from time to time, depending on the suitability of the occasion.

In recent weeks a new and surprising element has been inserted into the discussion by reporters themselves: that perhaps the press itself is partly responsible for the widening gap. This view is somewhat exhilarating when one considers the general reluctance of reporters to examine themselves for their own shortcomings and comment on them in their own news columns.

One prominent newspaper writer recently went to some pains to point out that many of the Vietnam matters discussed by Defense Secretary McNamara, for instance, were magnified by reporters in the first instance, qualifications were deleted, figures were assumed, and then comments made on this rearrangement of the facts to imply that McNamara attempted to misinform the public. It is an old news-writing failing to editorialize on a government official's position without mentioning the "maybes" and then go on to condemn it.

For reporters and commentators, the realization that they are not infallible is the beginning of wisdom. Obviously, if it is news to draw conclusions about the government's pronouncements, it is equally news for the press itself to discuss the possibility that conclusions reached without informing its readership of those maybes, also is news.

In several situations lately, tentative comments on the situation in Vietnam have been elevated to the level of disputable facts, then attacked after the event to demonstrate a lack of governmental candor.

MODEL LOBBY—There it was—right in stately hall in the Capitol—the model lobby of all time! The "model" was a scaled-down structure depicting how the Capitol building would appear if the proposed West Front extension is added. The "lobby" is invisible, but those who oppose the extension are heatedly charging that display of the model is a lobbying effort and they're highly incensed about it.

The model was built and placed on exhibition by the Capitol architect, J. George Stewart. Legislators who have been trying to block the alteration of the Capitol charge that he has "pulled a fast one" and has violated a New Model gentleman's agreement.

With all that's pending on Capitol Hill, Stewart probably thought his little effort to let the public see what he was trying to do wouldn't receive too much attention.

The model cost $20,000. Every tourist visiting the Capitol and most legislators, had to walk around it.

The 8 cylinder auto has come to town. H. L. Broadwell, agent.

A delightful children's party was enjoyed by the friends of Master Bill Williams on Friday evening, January 14.

Various games, provided by the ingenious young host, furnished a jolly evening's entertainment. Dainty refreshments, consisted of chocolate and assorted cakes, with marshmallows and cream mints. The guests included: Marie Burns, Marian Ford, Mary Carter, Floyd Wilson, Zelpha Valentine, Jessie Watson, Charles Lacy, John A. Johnson, J. W. Campbell, J. W. Johnson, Fred Patton, Hiram Fulwood, Landes Burns, Ray Mooney and J. D. Watson.

On last Saturday night and Sunday the cold wave that has been giving the North and East states real winter, arrived here with a full consignment. Saturday night and Sunday, the mercury reached 10 above. The cold was accompanied by a snow of several inches. There was little wind and the damage to stock, if any, will be slight, as feed is plentiful and most of the cattle are in good shape.

Let everyone take notice that the Brand is issued on Thursday, the first four pages being printed on Wednesday afternoon.

For the benefit of Hereford Sunday School workers, the Brand is publishing the International Series of Sunday School Lessons. These lessons are exactly the same as are used by most schools. They are written in an interesting manner by the appointed lesson committee.

25 YEARS AGO

Three guests played with members of the New Deal Club Friday afternoon when Mrs. Frank Huckert was club hostess at her home. The special guests were Mrs. J. T. Gilbreath, Jr., Mrs. Meade Haile and Mrs. Wayne Evans.

Mrs. Haile played for score award and Mrs. Sylvester Slagle played low. Awards were defense stamps.

A surprise birthday party complimented Mr. and Mrs. Troy Wamble at their home Saturday night. Forty-two games were played and moving pictures of the Wamble family reunion, held last summer, were shown.

The evening was enjoyed by Messrs. and Mesdames John Renfro, Otho Noland, Earl Phillips, Coy Phillips and daughter, Doyle Rose, Lawrence Wamble, Carl Williams and family, Johnnie Wamble and family, Baker Wamble and Sallie, Robert Thompson and Elaine, Miss Ethel Wamble, Bennie Wamble, W. B. Phillips and the honored couple.

Hereford merchants realizing that the ban on new tire sales will put a stop to much out-of-town buying, this week pledged themselves to an all-out effort to take care of the consumer needs in the Hereford territory during the present emergency.

Packard Mill and Fraser Milling Company have supplied Miss Sadie Lee Oliver with whole wheat products for use in her demonstrations at the county clubs this month. People in the Hereford territory are fortunate, Miss Oliver says, in having two mills where whole-grain products, unavailable in many places, can be purchased.

The President's Birthday Ball will be held in Hereford on January 30, at the City Hall, Harold Close, chairman of the Deaf Smith County chapter of the organization to fight infantile paralysis announced today, stating also that plans were underway for some other entertainment, possibly a game party at the Hereford Club House, for the benefit of those who do not care to dance.

Growth Without Limit?

Thirty-four years ago this month newly elected President Franklin D. Roosevelt sent Congress a shocking document — a federal budget for double the amount that had been spent just five years before.

He called for $6.6 billion. President Johnson's 135-billion budget calls for 20 times what it took to launch the New Deal.

Growth of federal spending, and its impact on the economy, tends to stagger the imagination. After adding up the dollar total of every business transaction last year in the United States — every dollar that changed hands for goods and services — it can be found that the federal government accounted for one out of every five of those dollars.

But incredible growth is by no means confined to the federal level. The year FDR proposed his blockbuster, state and local governments spent less than $7 billion among them. Last year this total had grown more than tenfold to $75 billion, and most authorities predict it will double again in less than 10 years.

Texas is no exception. During the first year (1933) of Roosevelt's first term the state spent $111 million. Next year the total will push $2 billion, an increase of almost 2,000 per cent. County, city and school-district budgets point much the same picture.

Government is growing primarily because the people say they want it to. Demands for new schools and freeways, more liberal Social Security benefits, more welfare, better sewage plants — all these encourage government to spend more, tax more and play a larger role in the economy.

ENJOYABLE ALASKAN BOOKS
My Way North by Frank Du Fresno has an introduction by Corey Ford, a long time friend, Ford compares him to the late Rachael Carson as a naturalist and nature writer. Delicate little drawings of the northern animals precede each chapter and are by Rachael S. Horne. He writes of the animals, birds, and plants of the various areas in Alaska. This was a part of his work to set up the game preserves and plant life reservations for future generations.

The story is filled with episodes which include animals and people. In his adventure he, at times, lived through great danger. The greatest hazards were the sudden storms and blizzards of the country where the winter temperatures often averaged 30 to 40 degrees below zero and sometimes went down to 60 degrees. This extreme cold has always been dangerous to be out in. This was the kind of weather when one could quickly and easily freeze to death — a fate which he barely escaped more than once.
The writer made and kept friends among the Eskimos, Indians, a few hermits, and early settlers who made up the towns, the government, and other ways of life in the early 1920s. This date was after the big gold rush days which had become history, but a few of the participants stayed on.
Adventure minded readers and naturalists will enjoy this book, and will not want to lay it aside until it is completed.
Nurse in the Yukon by Amy Wilson is an autobiography with a light and cheerful mood yet with many phases of Alaska background. The peoples of the country, particularly the Indians with whom she worked, are her main interests, but old bush fliers and mounties — all with their daring and courage have a place in her story. Without belittling her work and its great need, this is a

Mrs. Juston McBride was program chairman for the special meeting. 1966 Was Heavy Accident Year

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 12 accidents on rural highways in Deaf Smith County during the month of December according to Sergeant W. E. Wells, Highway Patrol Supervisor of this area.

These crashes resulted in four persons injured and an estimated property damage of $5,270,000.

The rural traffic accident summary for this county during the calendar year 1966, shows a total of 119 crashes resulting in 3 persons killed, 56 persons injured and an estimated property damage of $131,528.00.

"When the final reports are tabulated, we will find that more people were killed in Texas traffic accidents during 1966 than in any prior year in the history of this state," the Sergeant stated. The final count is expected to be about 15% more than the 3,028 traffic deaths in 1965. This increase should be a challenge for every individual to put forth his best defensive efforts tions to prevent the earnings from the business being taxed as unrelated business income. The Supreme Court, with three dissenting votes, allowed the former owners of the business to pay only capital gains taxes on their profits.

Decision Encouraged Sales
This decision has encouraged businessmen to sell out to foundations because of the tax advantage. Transactions of this sort have become common and are promoted in the business press. The government loses two ways on every such deal, since business profits are untaxed and the lower capital gains rate is paid on the purchase price received by the former owner.

Chairman Wilbur Mills (D., Ark.) of the House Ways and Means Committee has introduced legislation to tax "unrelated debt-financed income" of all tax-exempt organizations. Hearings were held late last year and the way is cleared for action this session.

Rep. A. Sydney Herlong (D., Fla.), a Ways and Means Committee member, has interested himself in the whole problem of tax avoidance by not only foundations but by non-profit organizations of all types. He has stated that before taxes are raised, loopholes should be closed and those now escaping taxes should be forced to pay their fair share.
There are about 700 tax-exempt publications grossing over $100 million in annual advertising revenue. For example, the National Geographic magazine is published by a non-profit association and its income is not taxed. Rep. Herlong hopes this loophole will be closed by regulation and has urged the Treasury to adopt a regulation it has been pondering for years.
Taxpayers generally agree that these proposed reforms are long overdue.

THE CHURCH I LOVE . . . HAS BEEN BORN ANEW
Jesus answered Nicodemus, "Truly, truly, I say to you unless one is born anew, he cannot see the kingdom of God." Nicodemus said to him, "How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter a second time into his mother's womb and be born?" Jesus answered, "Truly, truly, I say to you, unless one is born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God." (John 3:3-5)

Being born again is different than our first birth. The second birth is spiritual not physical. This new birth is "of water and the Spirit." We choose this second birth that we may "enter the kingdom of God," for without it we cannot enter. For those who would be saved from sin and eternal destruction to everlasting life, the new birth is most important.

Christ does not fully explain the new birth in this passage while talking to Nicodemus; and, if we stop our study at this point, we are greatly confused as to the meaning. In this passage, we are told that the new birth consists of two things; "water and the Spirit."

But as we continue a study of the New Testament the meaning of the new birth becomes clear. On the day of Pentecost immediately following the Lord's death, burial and resurrection, God's Spirit was poured out upon all flesh. (Acts 2:17) Whether a man receives the Holy Spirit of God remains the choice of each individual who has heard the Gospel.

On this Pentecost, Peter the apostle preached the gospel of Christ to the people in Jerusalem. When he had finished his hearers asked, "Brethren, what shall we do?" And Peter said to them, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins; and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." (Acts 2:37, 38) "So those who received his word were baptized, and there were added that day about three thousand souls." (Acts 2:41)

"To the saints and faithful brethren in Christ at Colossae," (Colossians 1:2) Paul wrote, "You were buried with him (Christ) in baptism, in which you were also raised with him through faith in the working of God, who raised him from the dead." (Colossians 2:12). To these same Christians who had been born anew, Paul wrote, "He (God) has delivered us from the dominion of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son, in whom we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins." (Colossians 1:13-14)

Miss Gordon-J. H. Adams Are Married Saturday

Mrs. Joseph H. Adams
nee Miss Vicky Gordon
(Bradly Photo)

Miss Vicky Kay Gordon of Hereford and Joseph H. Adams of Vincennes, Ind., both students at Eastern New Mexico University, were married in an afternoon ceremony Saturday in First Methodist Church here. The Rev. Clifford Trotter, pastor, read the double ring service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin R. Gordon, 213 Beach, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. F. Hubert Adams of Vincennes.

Her father gave the bride in marriage at an altar decorated with an arrangement of white stock and chrysanthemums backed by a sunburst of greenery. The same blossoms filled baskets placed with two pair of spiral wedding candelabra among sprays of foliage on either side of the chancel.

Miss Myrna Botkin attended Miss Gordon as maid of honor and Miss Sidney Bayne as bridesmaid. Serving as best man was Lloyd Belcher of Rogers, N. M., Ushers were the bride's brother, Robert Gordon, and Randy Poarch.

Miss Jo Ella Hamilton sang the wedding solos, O Perfect Love and The Lord's Prayer, with organ accompaniment by Don Baugous who also played the marches and a prelude medley.

White satin cut on lines of classic simplicity fashioned the bride's gown, with sleeves to the wrist and skirt to the floor. A train was attached at the back shoulder line, and triple layers of fine net fell over it from a circlet headpiece. The bridal bouquet was of white French roses carried on a small Bible.

Frocks of the attendants were also in A-line style, floor length. Miss Botkin's was in an intense pink shade and Miss Bayne's in a pastel pink. Both had bouquets of pale pink miniature carnations arranged in long cascade.

For her daughter's wedding and the reception afterward in the church fellowship hall, Mrs. Gordon chose a three-piece knit ensemble in forget-me-not blue. She and the bridegroom's mother both had corsages of cymbidium orchids.

Flowers in varying shades of pink centered the refreshment table, where wedding cake and punch were served by Mrs. Dudley Bayne, Mrs. Roy Botkin, Mrs. Gary Victor and a classmate of the bride, Miss Harriet Collins of Acton, Mass. Mrs. Adams dressed for the

Bryan Man Named Star Young Farmer

A 34-year old cotton, grain and livestock farmer is the 1966 Star Young Farmer of Texas. He is Lee J. Fazzino of Bryan who was named Friday night in Corpus Christi during the 13th Annual State Convention of the State Association of Young Farmers of Texas.

The young Brazos River bottom farmer began his agricultural career in high school through participation in FFA projects. He took over operation of 225 acres of the family farm fifteen years ago and steadily increased the size of his enterprise by both leasing and purchasing additional land. Fazzino now conducts an intensive and diversified operation of nearly 3,000 acres including cotton and mjo production, cow-calf breeding and steer feeding. Most of his land has been cleared and leveled for irrigation and his crop yields are above average.

From a very modest beginning with money saved from FFA projects and an old tractor, Fazzino has grown to a total investment in farming of more than $400,000 in land, equipment, livestock and crops. He and his wife have five children.

The Star Young Farmer received a $1,000 bond from the Sears-Roebuck Foundation who annually sponsors the awards for this competition in each of the ten vocational agriculture areas of Texas. He also was given an engraved watch by Farm Journal Magazine.
