Farm Problems Blamed On Trilateral Commission

By JIM STEIERT Brand Farm Editor

Deaf Smith County farmers were warned last night that the continuing decline in agriculture fortunes in the U.S. is part of a one-world government conspiracy on the part of an elitist organization known as the Trilateral Commission, and its forerunner, the Council on Foreign Relations.

The warning was made by J.C. Lewis of Guymon. Okla. during a special public forum at the Bull Barn, sponsored by the Hereford chapter of Women Involved in Farm Economics

Lewis, a highly-decorated Air Force veteran-turned farmer who flew combat missions in both Korea and Vietnam and later received a Master of Arts degree in international affairs from George Washington University, named names and cited figures as he pointed an accusing finger at prominent politicians and wealthy heads of multiple corporations.

He indicated that a small group of individuals may well be setting the course of American diplomatic and economic policy for their own gain.

"Don't believe a word I say about this. Don't take anything I say for the truth. Read and study, research the facts. and draw your own conclusions. Then, it's up to you to decide if the Trilateral Commission is working for the good of the American citizenry." Lewis

According to Lewis, the TC got its start in 1973 as the brainchild of David Rockefeller.

The TC was formed to include three areas--North America, Europe and Japan, and came into being to speed up

'The commission wants to take 500,000 people a year out of farming.'

the implementation of the CFR goals for a one world government, according to "One of the first goals of the TC was to select a presidential candidate, and those who run this group selected a relatively obscure individual named Jimmy Carter. With extremely influential heads of multinational corporations making up the 65 members of the TC, it wasn't long before they began showing up in high places in the government. Now, depending on which list you use, 18-22 members of the executive branch of government are TC members appointed by Carter.

Nearly all of the undersecretaries are TC members, and I can prove this fact with a list of members supplied by the TC." Lewis stated.

"I maintain that it is dangerous for any minority group to exercise such control over the government. I would think it dangerous, even if the whole group was composed of farmers from Hereford," he continued.

Lewis alleged that the TC is the best source on its own goals, through the speeches and writings of its members.

Quoting from an interview with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who is a member of the TC. Lewis stated. "Control food and you control people. The goal is to place energy and food under the control of one world government."

Citing another source from the Council on Foreign Relations, Lewis again quoted. "The national purpose should be to abolish our nationality."

Lewis charged that every president since FDR, with the possible exception of Lyndon Johnson, has been a member of the CFR.

"We've had a president selected and elected by the CFR. The executive branch of the government has been dominated since WWII by TC and CFR members representing some 1600 wealthy, elite people," said Lewis. "To destroy the country, you do away with the people's belief in God, their morals, their confidence in leadership and the military. Korea became our first no-win war. I think it lessened our patriotism and confidence in government. And then, the Vietnam fiasco. I lost a lot of friends there. We could have won that war anytime we wanted to with a simple blockade of the North. But someone held us back. We had all sorts of anti-war protests, and with the granting of amnesty after the war, the whole morale of the military was torn down. Was this an accident or on purpose?" Lewis related.

The Oklahoma farmer turned orator charged that the government is now legislating immorality, and that the loss of morality and turning away from God are serious problems in the nation

"To destroy a country such as ours, you take away the three basic values we have always held. Is this by accident or on purpose? You have to decide for yourselves," he advised.

According to Lewis, the immense personal wealth represented on the TC s the basis for overwhelming power in world affairs.

He cited Rockefeller ownership of many of the nation's most prominent banks, including Chase-Manhattan in New York, three of the four largest insurance firms in the world, and controlling interests in multiple corporations.

"When you take what the Rockefellers and Chase-Manhattan control over the world economically, you have a tremendous influence right there," stated Lewis.

"You've probably wondered why we've never heard anything in the media on the TC, the CFR, or the American Ag Movement," he contin-(See SPEAKER, Page 2)

Lewis began speaking out on the aims of the commission after months of research into its goals, and explains that the eventual aim of the group of wealthy multi-national corporation heads is a one-world-government. Lewis' presentations on the commission have created a mounting reaction of concern over the commission and the economic course of the nation.

Senate Debating College-Grant Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate. intent on providing college tuition tax relief for middle-income families, is debating whether to approve the grants favored by President Carter instead of or in addition to - a new tax credit.

The president says the nation cannot afford both programs. He has been sharply critical of the Senate's proposed $500-per-student tuition tax credit, which was approved on a 65-27 vote Tuesday night.

Although the vote was lopsided enough to override any presidential veto, the margin by which the House approved its version of the credit last June was far short of the two-thirds majority necessary to override.

Even so, Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., chief sponsor of the bill, said the Senate ote was "a clear signal that tuition tax credits are preferred to the costly. cumbersome Carter proposal."

Final Senate action is expected today on a modified version of the expanded grants program that Carter proposed as an alternative to the tuition tax credit. A similar plan has passed the House.

The basic provision in the Carter plan would increase from $16,000 to $25,000 the maximum family income level for which tuition aid would be available. The grants would range from $1,800 a year at the $6,000 income level to $250 at the $25,000 level. Similar increases would be made in college loan programs.

Textbook Committee Schedules Hearings

AUSTIN (AP) - Can a high school literature textbook be guilty of both "tearing down family and country" and overemphasizing "traditional family roles?"

At least one text proposed for use in Texas public schools has caught criticism from both ends of the spectrum in materials pre-filed for the annual State Textbook Committee hearings beginning today.

Two simultaneous hearings on the more than 40 texts will last through Tuesday. Critics' objections and the publishers' responses have been

The State Textbook Committee meets Sept. 11 to recommend selections to the State board of Education, which votes on final textbook adoption Nov.11.

As in previous years, American history, biology and literature books generated vigorous objections from reviewers.

A Russian short story in a 12th grade literature book elicited disapproval from Mrs. Thomas Snow of Mansfield.

"I do not feel it is wise to encourage sympathy towards our avowed enemies,' she wrote of the author's nationality.

Blackout Intensifies Memphis' Problems

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Vandals sabotaged a power substation early today, authorities said, knocking out power for this city of 650,000 people already hit by police and firefighter strikes that threaten to spread into a citywide general strike. Some looting was reported.

The blackout, which occurred shortly after midnight, affected all of the state's largest city and surrounding Shelby County, officials said. Power began coming back on 90 minutes later and was completely restored about 21/2 hours after the outage hit.

Police Director E. Winslow Chapman said at an early morning news conference that "was probably due to sabotage." but a spokeswoman for Memphis Light, Gas & Water Division said the substation "was entered and that switches were thrown" to break circuits and cut off power.

Chapman said the FBI was assisting local authorities in investigating the break-in at the substation about 15 miles east of downtown Memphis.

Paula Payne, a spokeswoman for the utility, said someone threw a series of switches at the big substation, cutting off a main electrical power link with the Tennessee Valley Authority. The TVA's Allen Steam Plant on Presidents Island could not carry the power demands alone and automatically shut down.

The blackout left some parts of Memphis without water pressure because electric-powered pumps were out. Memphis International Airport had to shift to standby power.

Filibuster Threatened Over ERA Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) - Supporters of a 39-month extension for ratifying the proposed Equal Rights Amendment hope the momentum of an unexpectedly large House victory will hold up when the measure reaches the Senate and a threatened filibuster.

The House voted 233-189 Tuesday to extend the ERA ratification time limit to June 30, 1982. The current deadline is March 22.

Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., principal sponsor of the extension, said the 44-vote margin was "larger than any of us anticipated."

"The size of the House vote will give tremendous momentum to the effort in the Senate," said Ms. Holtzman, who is scheduled to meet with proextension senators on Thursday.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., floor leader of the pro-extension forces, said, "We thought we were going to win by 25 or 30 votes."

In the Senate, a version of the extension measure - pushing back the ratification deadline by seven years - has become stuck in a subcommittee that is divided 3-3 on the bill. That means the Senate likely will ignore its measure and deal directly with the House-approved 39-month extension when returning from the Labor Day recess early next month.

Had the Senate been able to decide on its own version, the ERA question now would have been headed for a Senate-House conference committee to iron out differences in the two versions.

Speaker -

"Our local media in the home town almost always does a good job, but when you get to coverage on a national scale, you'll find out in a hurry why the farmer can't get any favorable press. CFR membership controls NBC and CBS. and through interlocking boards, has control of ABC, the New York and Los Angeles Times, the Washington Post, and large newspaper chains. There are 60 CFR members in the top levels of journalism and 61 in the top levels of the communications field. CFR controls the Associated Press, and the slant of the news. There are 11 CFR members in the New York Times. See why we haven't heard anything on the CFR for 40 years? Kissinger is on the NBC payroll right now as a censor for the TC. I think all of this is on purpose. but you'll have to decide for vourselves."

According to the Oklahoman, CFR and TC influence spread even into education, where the dependence of educational instututions on grants supplied by Rockefeller-related foundations pay 20 percent of the cost of higher education.

"Foundations are writing the economics and foreign relations textbooks, and these books are advocating world government and deficit spending," said Lewis.

"An Adaptive Program for Agriculture, written in 1964, is the basis for your farm program today. And that adaptive program claims that there are too many farmers, and that the aim should be to take 500,000 people a year out of farming until there are only about 250.000 left. Nearly half a million farmers disappeared last year." he related.

"Any other president has taken steps to halt the devaluation of the dollar long before now. But look what's going on with today's dollar. Nothing is backing the dollar now but Treasury Notes, and the Saudis are holding $50 billion of those. We are being forced toward an international money system as another means of depriving us of our American identity," he charged.

Lewis explained that control of energy is a key goal of the TC, and pointed out that an oil crisis can be created at any time.

"The same people who have a stranglehold on oil are moving into coal. Oil is the only raw product priced at parity right now. Just watch coal when they get control," Lewis related.

According to Lewis, an apparent turnaround in Middle East policy on the part of the U.S. in recent months was brought about because of large certificate of deposit holdings on the part of the Saudis in the Chase-Manhattan Bank.

"The Saudis can create a crisis in this country in any 90 day period," he

According to Lewis, the American Agriculture Movement is one of the few stumbling blocks remaining in the path of the TC and CFR as it moves toward its world government goal.

"I think the Lord has been with AAM since its inception, because its primary aim is 100 percent parity. And parity is one thing the TC and CFR cannot stand.

If farmers had parity for five years or so. some interest that's needed by these groups might not get paid because farmers wouldn't have to borrow so much. And if there was parity for raw materials, some underdeveloped countries might be able to buy what they need rather than being robbed to death. Consumers ought to make farmers take 100 percent parity if they have to call out the national guard because parity will serve as a price ceiling as well as a floor. Why not pay three percent more of our paychecks now for food and not have to worry about ever having to pay more? It's better than what multi-national corporations will get when we are hungry, because what does the market allow then?" Lewis alleged that large corporations and government officials will have no interest in stopping inflation until they lose money when a product inflates in

Asked what could be done to stop the TC and the CFR, Lewis responded, "Incumbents already know about these outfits. New candidates need to know, so quiz them closely. Parity can slow them down. Parents need to see whether the things being taught in school are what they should be. Know what's taught and what's on TV. Use the time you have with your kids wisely, and teach your children the importance of God and their country in their lives. Take the kids to church. Be active in your government. And above all, do a lot of praying. We won't keep something as great as this country. without sacrifice," he concluded.

He has said he knew Raoul only by his first name and was involved in a narcotics and weapons smuggling racket with him. In some accounts, Ray has claimed Raoul framed him for the murder of King.

Because he pleaded guilty, Ray was never tried on the charge of killing King. Arguing that he was forced by his lawyer to enter the plea, he has petitioned the courts for years to grant him a trial.

Despite the past failures, Ray still seeks the trial and has won support from others who believe the fact-finding nature of a courtroom could establish whether there was an assassination conspiracy.

Lane repeated that argument at a news conference Tuesday. Given the variations in Ray's accounts, Lane was asked why Americans should believe Ray's committee testimony.

"The American people should not believe James Earl Ray," he replied. "But they should give James Earl Ray a trial and let the jury decide.'

must be announced by Aug. 15 but many farmers -- especially those in this area--were unhappy with the 11th hour announcement. Witkowski pointed out that some area farmers had already started putting in fertilizer and needed to know something before now. He said it wasn't as much a problem for farmers in the north.

Full payments of the difference between the target and the average market price will be made to growers who first cut back 15 percent from their 1978 plantings before taking out one acre for every five planted. Partial payments will go to those who participate in only the 20 percent set-aside.

For example, to get full federal benefits, a farmer with 100 acres of wheat planted this year would certify an intent to plant 85 to wheat and 15 to something else, and then would idle 14 wheat acres, from page 1 planting 71. Officials of the national wheat growers association estimated about 70 percent of the farmers participated in this year's program.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said he is "disappointed that we didn't get the 30 percent set-aside I called for, but I think my efforts helped Secretary Bergland resist some of the pressure to reduce the set-aside program below 20 percent or even to eliminate it entirely."

Sen. John Tower also expressed disappointment the set-aside "was not accompanied by a substantial increase in the loan and target price levels."

COLLEGE STATION - Plan simple activities for the child left at home when back-toschool bells ring.

When school age children return to classes this fall, a young child may be left at home. points out Dorthy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The child left behind might get lonely, want parents to constantly play with him, or will become agitating and pesky because he is bored, she explains.

To help remedy this situation, make some "lesson plans" for the child at home.

Select simple activities that entertain and teach basic learning skills without demanding great blocks of time.

Look around the room and think about the things the child likes to do in that room.

*For instance, kitchen lessons for the lonely may include how to make plain gelatin, to prepare a cake mix or to make play-dough.

To make play-dough, mix equal parts of salt and flour with just enough water and food coloring to make a stiff colorful dough. Store in a tightly closed container.

The child will work while mother supervises.

*If the television is in the family room, lessons might include watching a children's program with the child. Then, read a story similar to the show.

Or, offer blunt scissors. newspaper and colors or water paints for an art lesson about the television show.

Remember, let the child do his own thing in art while the parent admires, talks about or displays the artistic "it."

*Children like to jump on beds, but few parents approve of this activity.

However, for a bedroom activity, tie a string to a bed post and hold the other end. Let the child "high jump" over the

Remember to keep the string low-three to eight inches--off the floor.

Also, hold the child's hands while he jumps up and down or whirls in a "stiff starch."

Exercises like these help a child develop arm and leg muscles.

*The bathroom offers unlimited water play experiences. Put the child in the tub and give him a dishpan of liquid soap and water with a straw to have a bubble "hey-day."

Liquid food coloring and water teach a child colors, color formation and even how to pour liquids from one container to another.

*Children left behind at home should not stay underfoot in the house all day long.

Emotional Investments Needed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our little Scotch terrier "Sir Harry" (we named him after Sir Harry Lauder) was run over last week. He died in the arms of our 11-year-old as we were rushing him to the animal hospital.

The children can't get over their grief. Our nine-year-old sleeps with Harry's collar and leash under his pillow. The dog's toys are now cherished keepsakes -- the rubber ball, the plastic bone, the beat-up rag doll. We walk around with tears

The man who ran over Harry heartsick. It was not his fault. The dog should not have been running loose -- even though it happened in front of our house and someone was with him at the time.

The question is this: The man wants to buy us another Scotch terrier. My husband says "Yes." The kids are all for it. But I can't bear the thought of risking another sorrow such as this one. What do you say, Ann? -- Muncie Mama

DEAR MAMA: I say yes. Life is filled with risks. Those who are afraid to make an emotional investment may not lose anything, but they miss a

DEAR MIFFED: She may own her home but she doesn't own the street. You have as much right to park in front of her home as she does.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Five weeks ago I left a position I liked very much. I worked there a little over a year and it was a wrench to leave because I had so many friends.

My co-workers surprised me with a beautiful going-away gift. It was completely unexpected and I nearly bawled.

My new position turned out to be a disappointment. After some serious soul-searching, I telephoned my boss and asked if I could have my old job back. He said "You bet! How soon can you come?" I told him I would give two weeks' notice at once.

I feel uncomfortable about the expensive farewell gift and think perhaps I should reimburse those lovely people for what they spent. Do you think they would feel insulted? -- The Homing Pigeon in Harrisburg

DEAR PIGEON: Don't attempt to reimburse your co-workers for the farewell gift, After all, you DID leave:

Take them to lunch at a "special" place. Call it your 'glad to be back' celebration. They'll love it and you will get off to a lovely start.

IMPORTANT CONFIDEN-TIAL to all who wrote about tickling children for "fun": Tickling is not funny to the victim. In fact, it can lead to hysterics and convulsions. Do not permit anyone to tell you it's harmless or that kids like it. The expression "tickled to death" comes from the Chinese literature which tickling was used as a method of torture.

Martha Angle and Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Can a federal law enforcement officer, acting without any court order, pry through your personal financial records to identify your creditors, your doctor, your psychiatrist or your favorite liquor store?

The answer unfortunately is yes, notwithstanding the Fourth Amendment prohibition against "unreasonable searches" of citizens "papers and effects" by investigators lacking a judicially approved search warrant.

The unconscionable opportunity for wholesale invasion of personal privacy, without any awareness on the part of those being victimized, can be traced directly to a 1970 law passed by Congress and a 1976 U.S. Supreme Court decision.

The law is the Bank Secrecy Act. Among its lesser faults is a grossly misleading name, since it actually eliminated any vestige of secrecy by requiring commercial banks to make copies of the front and back of all customers' checks and deposit slips, and to retain those microfilm records for five years.

rhe well-intentioned law was designed to give federal investigators a valuable new tool in pursuing political corruption, drug trafficking, organized crime activities and other forms of white collar crime.

But it is applicable to all of the country's estimated 200 million checking accounts, most of them maintained by law-abiding citizens. The number of checks written — and photocopied — now exceeds 35 million annually.

The law contains no standards for establishing access to checking account information. With no statutory require-checking account information. With no statutory requirement for the issuance of judicial warrants or subpoenas, " a person today has no protection from prying government agencies," says Rep. John J. Cavanaugh, D-Neb.

According to Robert Ellis Smith, publisher of a Washington newsletter called Privacy Journal, there have been numerous instances of past abuses of the law because federal agents have gained access to checking accounts "in cases where there was not even the suspicion of criminal activity."

The 1976 court case was the product of a futile effort to apply the same Fourth Amendment protection to cancelled checks held by a bank as those kept at home. But the Supreme Court ruled that bank customers had no "legitimate expectation of privacy concerning information kept in bank records."

Determined to redress that situation Courses had

Determined to redress that situation, Cavanaugh has fought during the past year for remedial legislation in Congress, gaining support from groups as disparate as the American Bankers Association and the American Civil Liberties Union.

The broad ideological support for the reform is demonstrated by the fact that among the numerous backers of the legislation are two California congressmen from opposite ends of the political spectrum — liberal Democrat Fortney H. (Pete) Stark Jr. and conservative Republican Barry M. Goldwater Jr.

Cavanaugh recently convinced the House Banking Committee to approve legislation requiring a federal agency seeking access to personal financial records held by a bank to first notify the customer of its intentions.

If the customer wanted to contest the government action, a federal court would decide whether the search was a necessary part of a legitimate law enforcement action.

There are exemptions to the customer notification procedure, covering national security matters, grand jury proceedings and other sensitive criminal investigations.

The importance of gaining full legislative approval of Cavanaugh's proposal in the remaining months of the current session of Congress is best summarized by a spokesman for California's Crocker National Bank: "If a few individuals take unfair advantage of the law, the solution is to punish those few individuals and not to deny every other citizen the right to privacy in the name of administrative efficiency."

Labor Retaliates Over Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) - Like a labor's long-standing tactical boxer still dazed from his last law of backing congressional fight, organized labor is stumbling around in search of a way to avenge the dramatic defeat of it's labor law.

So far, union leaders seem to be punching at the air. 'There's the feeling we have to do something," and AFL-CIO strategist conceded recently. "But no one knows what. We're groping for new ideas."

Labor, which had made passage of the administrationbacked bill its top legislative priority this year was dealt a stunning blow in June when a Senate filibuster sent the measure back to a committee. where it likely will die.

For some union officials, the loss was significant enough to prompt a re-examination of the labor movement's objectives and political strategies.

The AFL-CIO conducted a postmortem at its executive council meeting in Chicago last week. But out of the discussions came no redirections or new tactics. So, labor's veteran leaders fell back on their tried-and-true formula: help elect your friends and defeat your enemies and then try again with the bill in the next Congress.

The problem with that route is that it does not recognize signs that organized labor's hold on Capitol Hill may be weakening. And, it does not confront

In the indictment Tuesday, the government charged that the Scientologists planted agents in the government to find out about investigations of the church.

For example, the indictment charged that for one month in 1976, Sharon Thomas, an alleged agent from the office of Paul Figley, an attorney with the Justice Department's civil division.

The Scientologists have said they made copies of government documents after being refused the material under the Freedon of Information Act, in order to counteract what they claim has been a government campaign of harrassment begun more than 20 years ago.

candidates who, despite a record of anti-union votes, get endorsements because their opponents are even more anti-union.

The AFL-CIO, a master of lobbying techniques, won House passage of the labor bill last fall. At the time, labor had contended that it was seeking only modest changes to stop employers from using loopholes in the law to violate rights of workers engaged in union organizing.

But a coalition of business interests jumped in to do battle. Labor still had the edge. Backed by a Democratic president, the federation mounted an intensive arm-twisting campaign on behalf of the bill in a senate controlled by its friends.

The labor and administration forces found themselves outlobbied by business, which stated a counter-saying the bill would put small employers at the mercy of union organizing

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, who fought at labor's side, said he had never seen so extensive a lobbying effort, blaming Congress for being "too responsive to single-issue lobbyists.'

AFL-CIO President George Meany grumbled about a "reurgence of right-wing feelings throughout the country.

'I'm sure that his battle will go on and we will be in there fighting as we have been in the past," Meany told reporters after huddling with his executive council last week.

Industry Production Up 1/2 Percent

first rise in output of consumer goods in three months helped boost U.S. industrial production by 0.5 percent in July, the government reported Tuesday.

The moderate increase was the same as in both May and June and reflected the gradual slowing of the economy following much larger production gains earlier in the year. Output of the nation's mines, factories and utilities had increased 1.6 percent in April.

The Carter administration considers some slowing of the nation's economic growth rate is

The board made significant revisions for industrial production in the past several months. It listed the May and June production gains at 0.5 percent in each of the two months, a change from its report last month that production in June as up 0.3 percent and May production was ahead 1.5

Opponents have accused Jarvis of being a fat-cat businessman who is trying to get tax benefits for apartment owners, whom he represents as a paid director of the Apartment Association of Los Angeles.

Jarvis...A Profile

Jarvis admits he's well off. "I'm not a millionaire like some

Jarvis points out that he has been working for the apartment association only four years and that he set up the United Organization of Taxpayers, the largest such group in the nation.

Jarvis has often criticized the California Legislature, but a mounting list of top lawmakers are expressing admiration for Paul Priolo, a Republican leader in the Assembly and a supporter in the Assembly and a supporter for the Jarvis initiative, says, "He's a crusty old guy and I was afraid he might be his own worst enemy. But he is doing a hell of a job communicating to the people and expressing their frustration. I have to give him a lot of credit."

Leo McCarthy, a Democrat and speaker of the Assembly, is critical of Jarvis in many respects, but he agrees with him on one thing: "Government pending is way too large...He Jarvis makes that point repeatedly and he is right."

He had sold an appliance and aircraft parts manufacturing business employing 13,000 people in 1962 and was all set to retire - "look at the water and relax" - on a boat in the Bahamas when he went to a tax meeting.

"I got the boat and I went to this tax meeting," Jarvis recalled. "The first thing you know, I'm chairman and I never got to the Bahamas."

Jarvis spent 30 years as an active Republican and served as press secretary on Herbert Hoover's campaign train.
"I might have been the most active Republican in the United States from 1932 to 1962," he says. "But I came to the conclusion there was no such thing left as the Republican Party." It was at a Republican convention in Chicago that he ace collapsed on him.

met a young California attorney named Earl Warren. Jarvis said he headed to California in the 1930s because Warren, who later became the state's governor, told him," "A man like you should be in California."

Jarvis has since become fed up with party politics and is famous for referring to the state legislature as a "bunch of political popcorn balls."

Jarvis says, "The people in California and I'm sure all over the country are totally disgusted with politicians. They're 20 feet below used car salesmen."

The cornerstone of his property tax argument is that the tax should "only pass for property-related protection, fire protection, sewer systems, streets, lights, garbage and those things. It should not pay for welfare, food stamps, illegal aliens. That whole gamut shouldn't be on the back of the property owner like it is today."

A proud papa, Jarvis has one daughter, a world champion skeet shooter. Twice a widower, Jarvic now lives with his third wife in a modest two-bedroom home in West Los Angeles. It lost slightly over $8,000 in 1941. Before Proposition 13, it was costing him nearly one quarter of that amount in property

A success story.

Once upon a time there was a merchant. You probably know him. Because he is very successful and always seems to have lot of business. even when things seem slow everywhere else.

There are a lot of reasons why he is successful. But one of the biggest is that he advertises regularly, even when things seem slow everywhere. You see, he realizes that he is open every week of the year and wants customers every day. He realizes that advertising is designed to build business and it works best when repeated regularly. Consistent advertising builds dividends. He realizes that people buy all year around. Many stores sell blankets and furs in the summer and air conditioners and grass cutters in the winter.

Think you know who this success story is about? Well, to tell you the truth, it's about many of the merchants in Hereford. They all have one thing in common, though. They advertise regularly in the Hereford Brand. Isn't It about time you became a successful

Hendricks never loafed during his nine years in the minors. He was baptized "The Babe Ruth of Mexico" after batting .298 and hitting 109 home runs in four seasons in the Mexican League. That's when Weaver first spotted him.

"Earl gave me my first break," said Hendricks, "and while I've been traded twice since 1968, I've always ended up with Baltimore. I never thought about getting out of baseball until last year with the Yankees when I had a few ups and downs. But I'm happy where I am now.'

Weaver is happy, too, especially when an unfamiliar player strides to the plate. Hendricks, a walking Baseball Register, knows more ballplayers than most.

'My 19 years in pro ball can really help. Earl will ask us, Who's that guy and what can he do?' and I can usually tell

Guys who bat .219 don't make much money, but that doesn't seem to bother Hendricks. "You'd probably think that a man who's played big league ball for 10 years would be making $50,000, but I've never even reached the 40's," he said, adding, "It may sound crazy to you, but I'd be doing

Cowboys Trim Roster, Prepare for Houston

(AP) - Dallas Cowboy coaches pre-season game Saturday have waived one rookie and placed another on the injured reserve list to trim the roster to agent tight end, was waived Tuesday and third-round draft choice David Hudgens was placed on the injured reserve list after the offensive guard went down hard Monday on an already troublesome knee.

But while Coach Tom Landry bid farewell to the rookies, he also welcomed back veterans Larry Cole and Golden Richards to Tuesday's workouts.

Cole had not worked out for more than a week because of a twisted knee and Richards missed Monday's practices with a knee sprain. Both are probable against Houston.

In preparation for that contest Landry sent his team through 60 and meet the National extensive pass protection, team Football League's first cutdown offense and punt return work Tuesday. He also shifted number two draft pick Todd Frank Dudley, a rookie free Christensen from fullback to tight end.

Landry said he moved Christensen to give the rookie some work at a position he appears capable of filling. Christensen caught 50 passes last fall at Brigham Young.

Veterans Thomas Henderson and Randy Hughes sat out Tuesday's workouts. Henderson is suffering from a tight hamstring and Hughes from an injured foot. But team doctors say both are probable starters for Saturday.

White Sox Lose Despite Pitching

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) - A walked one, seven hits and single mistake, against a player he has handcuffed in the past, caused Steve Stone to lose one of the best games he's ever pitched, he says.

The Chicago White Sox right-hander hung a curve ball against Richie Zisk in the seventh inning of Tuesday night's game with Texas, and Zisk "jumped on it" for a home run and a 1-0 Ranger victory, despite Stone's two-hitter.

"That's the first hit I ever remember Richie getting off me. I faced him for years in the National League with very good success, but he's a good hitter. and if you make a mistake against him, he's going to hurt you," Stone said.

Jon Matlack, 11-9, took the victory as Texas won its sixth straight game and 10th in the past 11, staying 5 games off Kansas City's division-leading pace. The loss was Chicago's 10th in 13 games.

YMCA Activities

Directors of the Hereford YMCA, in a regular monthly meeting Tuesday, made plans for a board retreat in September, discussed potential building sites for a "Y" facility, heard an outline of fall programs and reviewed monthly

A special guest at the meeting was Jay Swayze, head of Geobuilding Systems, Inc. of Hereford, who was asked to discuss the advantages of underground buildings. Swayze recently prepared tentative plans for an underground building for the Cowgirl Hall of Tom Burdett, bos d president, announced the appointment of two committes during the noon luncheon meeting. Roger Owen, Bud Eades and Doug Manning were named to plan the board's one-day retreat meeting on Sept. 16 at the Baptist lodge near Canyon.

Mary Parker, Marie Griffin, Bill Johnson and Speedy Nieman will join Burdett on the nominating committee.

Executive director Rick Wood and program director Weldon Knabe gave reports on "Y" activities and programs planned for the fall. Director Don Tardy presented the financial report.

George Steinbrenner, the New York Yankees unpredictable boss, wrestled with his conscience for nine months before finally saying "yes" to the now celebrated beer commercial with his fiery on-again, off-again, on-again manager, Billy Martin.

Baseball Meetings To Convene

Baseball convenes its summer meeetings in St. Louis this week, and the owners can spend at least part of their time together patting each other on the back because their game continues to set popularity

More than 30 million fans have paid their way into big league parks so far this season. putting baseball well ahead of the pace it maintained a year ago when a record 38,709,781 people watched the 26 teams

The numbers are a credit to the game, which survives all kinds of problems year-in andvear-out to prosper. Sadly, they are not a credit to the owners. who often cause the problems baseball must overcome.

There was a time, not so very long ago, when owners took a back seat and left the operation of their teams to their baseball people, the general managers and administrators hired specifically for their know-how in the

Now you can catch the 30 seconds of titillating, if ironic, dialogue on any of the networks - and join us all in wondering what went on behind the scenes.

"They approached me nine months ago with the idea," Steinbrenner explained. "I was reluctant. I wasn't sure about the propriety of an owner doing something like that with his

The scar tissue in the liver tends to contract and deforms the liver. The important point in the presence of cirrhosis of the liver is how much liver function is still present. A mild degree of cirrhosis is compatible with relatively good state of health. If you've had a lot of damage to the liver that is associated with the scarring, then abnormal liver function may cause the body to retain fluid and seriously affect digestion, including how the body handles proteins I'm not sure whether you were having what we call hepatic coma (coma from liver failure) to cause your black-out spells or whether it was associated with low blood sugar attacks which can occur with people with liver disease. The unusual spacecraft depicted in this drawing will perform errands in space for NASA's Space Shuttle astronauts. Known as the Teleoperator Retrieval System [TRS], the craft will be operated by remote control from the Suttle. Pictures provided by a television camera mounted on the TRS's forward end will enable astronatus to maneuver the craft for rendezvous and docking with a satellite or performing other functions. Scheduled for completion in Sept. 1979, the TRS may have as its first task docking with the foundering Skylab to boost it into a higher orbit or control its re-entry into Earth's atmosphere.

Medina Generally Pumps Millions Of Tourist Dollars

BANDERA, Tex. (AP) - It's the river - the ice-clear Medina, canopied by ancient cypress trees and gurgling gently through the ruggedly beautiful Hill Country - that pumps millions of tourist dollars into scenic Bandera County each year.

But the river - suddenly transformed before dawn Aug. 2 into a snarling, muddy, 50-foot wall of water - turned on Bandera during the lucrative tourist season, snapping those huge cypress canopies like matchsticks and slicing a deadly, multi-million dollar path.

The frothing Medina, spurred by torrential rains from Tropical Storm Amelia which came ashore between Corpus Christi and Brownsville, rampaged at 4 a.m. through the riverfront Camp Bandina homes, built by those who had retired to the solitude of the river. Eight persons, most of them elderly retirees, died there. More than 100 children escaped injury at the church camp only a few yards away.

It ripped through the Peaceful Valley Dude Ranch, which was filled to a festive summer capacity. Almost everything but the buildings' concrete foundations was washed away. Pieces of the ranch airplane were left twisted in a tree downstream.

Four sleeping Peaceful Valley guests vanished and three others disappeared beneath the churning water. About 20 staff members and guests survived by clinging to trees or rooftops a terrifying six hours.

In neighboring Kendall and Kerr counties, the usually placid Guadalupe River, also swelled by the 30-inch rains, came out of the limestone hills and killed 10 other persons in Center Point

The next day, tropical rains from the same storm system bore down on the small West Texas ranching town of Albany, about 30 miles northeast of Abilene. The excessive rainfall and bulging Hubbard Creek caused sudden floods that washed away 10 homes, damaged hundreds of others and killed at least five

To the northeast, one county over, the Brazos rose from its banks and inundated the west side of Graham, a town of 8,000. By the time the rivers returned to their banks a week later, at least 29 persons had died and another 10 or so were missing. More than a week later, authorities in Albany still were searching for the bodies of four other victims believed swept away and drowned. Sheriff Ben Jack Riley said they may never

"Sides of the creek caved in in several places. They could be buried under 20 feet," he said.

The flood in Albany hit hardest in the city's poorest residential section, a neighborhood known as "the Flat." Those living in the run-down frame homes located only a few feet from Hubbard Creek who survived got out early or spent the night in trees, praying and watching boiling flood currents destroy their homes.

Fortunately no one was killed in Graham as residents had time to evacuate with a few belongings. The flood waters inundated the city's water pumping station and sewage treatment plant. making daily living uncomfortable for all residents a week after the flood. The muddy waters rushed into many houses and businesses, severely damaging more than 250 in the city limits

"Terrible, terrible," remarked Gov. Dolph Briscoe as he toured Graham late last week with his wife, Janey.

"It's a shame," Mrs. Briscoe said. Although Graham and Albany were hard hit, it was Bandera, a onetime Texas Ranger frontier outpost and a picturesque resort and ranching town of 1.100 that bore the brunt of the flooding.

Even a week later, searchers still combed the debris for the bodies of the missing victims. The remains of the once-proud cypress trees were tangled along the water's path, tattered clothing and household goods swaying from their torn limbs. Refrigerators, stoves, bricks and twisted automobiles and trucks littered the flooded areas. In some places, the stench from the rotting carcasses of dead livestock hung in the air like the buzzards circling over them.

"It's a mess, a real mess," said Dave Soltesz of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, who estimates it will take several months to clean up the debris.

But Bandera was attempting last week to return to normal. Road and telephone repair crews dotted the area and restaurants and businesses were re-opened.

More than 300 flood victims had applied for federal disaster relief and the first of more than 200 federally-owned mobile homes began arriving for the homeless. The junior high school cafeteria, used as a morgue after the flood, was a bustling Red Cross emergency center.

The electricity has been restored and the city's water supply was not affected by the filthy, germ-laden flood waters.

And most of the National Guardsmen, forced last weekend to keep out looters and curiosity seekers, had departed by last Wednesday

All but a few of Bandera's numerous dude ranchers escaped serious flood damage and were half-heartedly operating last week, filled with flood-curious tourists and taithful guests who have been coming to this area for several years.

"That river was worth millions of dollars to us. We had a beautiful riverfront. It will take a while to clean it up," said

Frank Anderwald, owner of the Twin Elms Guest Ranch "It's taken years to build up our businesses, but it'll all be back. It'll be in full swing next year," he predicted.

Local officials in the eight counties declared disaster areas have estimated flood damage to homes and businesses alone at more than $60 million. Three were in the Hill Country - Bandera. Kerr and Kendall - and five in North Central Texas Schackelford, Young, Haskell, Stephens and Throckmorton.

Some 700 homes and more than 50 businesses were severely damaged or destroyed. The floods also affected municipal facilities like water and sewage plants, roads and bridges Equipment belonging to utility companies and oil fields suffered.

A spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety's Emergency Operations Center said damage from the floods throughout the state - including crop damage, drowned animals and other agricultural setbacks - may be about $500 million.

Bandera auto dealer Clint Dowell watched helplessly as the running river demolished his building and tossed around his 120 cars like plastic toys. A large butane supply truck, left at Dowell's dealership to be repaired, was found several miles down the river.

Only Dowell's 45 new cars were insured. He estimated his loss at nearly $1 million. "I'm going to try to start over, but I don't know," he said.

Sam Darden's $150,000 rock house and three cars were completely swept away by the water. Only a small pile of rubble and the concrete foundation remained.

But there's no dollar estimate for the losses sustained by former Air Force Col. Flmer J. Romigh, 57, a frequent dude ranch visitor who had retired a few years ago to a peaceful riverfront house near Camp Bandina Romigh found his undamaged eyeglasses last week in the rubble of his home. They had earlier found the bodies of his wife. mother-in-law, father-in-law and 5-year-old grandson - tangled in the twisted debris downstream

Pension Fund Leaders Pessimistic at Future

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - The people who run the nation's employee pension funds, which constitute the biggest single category of stock ownership, are pessimistic about the economy's immediate future

Their mood is revealed in a soon to be released survey showing that fund trustees. managers and advisers believe

-Interest rates will continue to rise and the inflation rate will not decrease during the remainder of 1978.

-A recession will occur some

Stock Exchange shares. Because of his investing power - no other domestic category had even half that amount - the investment mood of pension fund personnel has to some degree the element of self-fulfilling prophecy.

Asked if inflation would weaken by the end of the year. 8.2 percent said no. Some 65.7 percent said a recession would occur by 1981. Nearly 60 percent felt unemployment would not decrease in the second half.

Slightly more than half - 1.1 percent - said the climate for investments would fail to improve during the second half of 1978.

A breakdown of survey results, however, shows that investment counselors, as distinguished from fund actuariers, trustees, attorneys and consultants, were more optimistic about the investment climate.

The survey, by the International Foundation of Employee Benefit Plans, found 55.6 percent of counselors, those directly involved in investment choices, felt the atmosphere would improve in the second half.

Simultaneously, however, 88.9 percent of the counselors said a recession was likely by the end of 1980, and 66.7 percent said interest rates would continue to rise in the second half of this year.

The latter opinion contrasts with views expressed lately by securities analysts that the peak of high interest rates already has been reached. That view is credited with recent stock market strength gauge our economic performance should be reviewed every so often, said the financial adviser, if only because they get bruised by fickle fate.

Fate, in this instance, generally is the persistence of inflation, a factor so generally ignored by many rules of thumb that they point people in the wrong direction altogether.

Consider, for example, the Rule of 72, often used in calculating the number of years. it takes for savings to double at specific rates of interest. The answer comes from dividing the interest rate into 72.

At today's maximum pass book rate of 5.25 percent, for example, it takes about 13.7 years, which works out to about 13 years, 8 months

Save $1,000 today and it becomes $2,000 in 13.7 years. But the buying power those dollars could shrink to under $1,000 rather than grow to $2,000, as our understanding of the Rule of 72 suggests.

In truth, the problem lies not so much with the rule as it does with the incomplete use of it. i.e., with not using it to estimate the erosion of inflation also. The Rule of 72 states that if you divide the rate of inflation into 72 you'll obtain a rough idea of how long it takes to cut in half the buying power of your dollar. Try dividing 10 into 72. Shocking?

A familiar rule of thumb - that you should spend no more for a home than 21/2 times your annual income - is also becoming bruised by attempts to make it fit today's inflated To illustrate: The median family income now is approaching $16,000 a year, which suggests, according to the rule, that the typical house might be selling for about $40,000. But it isn't; it's over $50,000. This doesn't mean the rule has failed; not at all. Financial advisers still maintain it as a measure. But it does indicate that many families are having a difficult time living within the

Another rule might also be examined, the one that says a family man should maintain life insurance in an amount four to five times his annual income.
