Missouri Packers Announce Plant At Friona

Water Action Stirs As Plans Develop

By NAOMI HOPSON
News Editor

"We may have 50 years of water left if we continue present uses and practices," community leaders were told Friday night by Dr. Herbert Grubb, water specialist from Texas Tech.

er the auspices of Texas A&M. He said that any statements he had to make during the meeting were his own personal opinion, but that they resulted from ideas he had picked up in his various official capacities.

He mentioned that water committees were encouraged to send representatives to a regional meeting May 26 in Lubbock, at which time a West Texas Water Institute will be formed to consolidate efforts by about 26 agencies and committees now viewing the problem. The new group will be strictly volunteer and will not be backed by any government or private agency, he stated.

"There's water in your future," he emphatically stated, calling to mind that only a year ago, West Texas looked high and dry when the state proposed the plan to move 2 million acre feet of water from east Texas through industrial centers in Central Texas and then down through natural waterways to reach parched South Texas. In this plan, little farm land would benefit, Grubb pointed out. Quality of water that finally would reach South Texas would be poor and would be good only for agricultural purposes.

These areas would in part be new development of farming land and would be small in comparison to districts already under irrigation in the state that will be needing water by 2020. Areas in the established irrigation districts already have an economy dependent on irrigation he stated.

Specialists expect expansion by 1980 to place irrigated acreage in West Texas at about the 6 million acre mark. The peak would hit by 2020 and then because of water shortages would have to begin falling back. Grubb stated that most of the irrigated areas remaining after 2020 are expected to be north of the Canadian River because water tabs are dropping rapidly. See WATER ACTION Page 2

TODAY IS IT!
It happened probably while you were asleep this morning you gained an hour on daylight saving time. Watch your schedule to see that you get to meetings on time.

Clocks, by order of Congress were to have advanced an hour at 2 a. m. this morning for the summer months. All states, and Texas is one of them that did, adopting daylight savings time are now on the new time schedule. If you have not changed your clock, you will be an hour late to all functions.

Shriners Plan 12th Annual Clinic For Area Children

Children from this area who need the attention or recommendations of a specialist will again have the opportunity to receive this attention when the 12th Annual Shrine Children's Clinic is held May 13.

Not to be confused with a treatment clinic, nor with a charity clinic, the day will be devoted to bringing specialists in every medical field and children with a wide variety of problems together without expense to the parents of the children. After the child receives a board of general practitioners, he will be directed to a specialist who will do a thorough examination and make specific recommendations for that child's future treatment or needs.

Throgs Attend Annual Electric Coop Meeting

A western-style barbecue, Youth Tour" winners, Levenic Benefield from Hereford and David Harris from Dimmitt, were presented plaques from Ray Simpson.

Following the recognition of deceased directors by Earnest Langley and the recognition of visitors by Leo Forrest, Deaf Smith Co. Elect. Co-op mgr., the main address was given by Jim Morris, director of information, Texas Electric Co-operatives, Inc., in Austin.

Morris talked about supplemental financing for rural electric co-operatives and the establishment of a bank on the same pattern of the Federal Reserve System.

During the business session, the report of members present, the reading of notice of meeting, the reading of proof of mailing notices and the reading of minutes of last annual meeting by Tom Draper, secretary of the board, were held.

tion of medical specialists, the clinic is widely known throughout the United States for the help given children. Children can have any degree of severity or type of problem, and still receive careful diagnosis during the one day clinic. At no other clinic in the state can a child receive this type attention, Shriners point out. It is believed that this exact type clinic is held at no other place in the nation.

What makes the clinic unique is that children with all types of symptoms are treated — from visual and dental on through the many pediatric phases. Specific problems are dealt with, and Shriners suggest that parents pre-register with their family doctor before that day. Dentists, optometrists and medical doctors donate their services. Children may be registered on the day of the clinic, May 13, however. General physical examinations of well children are not part of the plan — the day being devoted to children with known or suspected problems the clinicians point out.

The one day clinic has averaged about 150 children being seen each annual session, with about 300-400 different ailments being diagnosed. Many children it is pointed out, suffer from several problems.

The largest number of children treated was several years ago when 250 children were registered and Shriners were as- See SHRINERS Page 3

FRIONA — "It's a dream come true."

That was the way a Friona businessman summed up Friday's announcement by Missouri Beef Packers, Inc., that it plans to build near Friona the largest beef packing plant in the world.

Robert Frye president and engineer of the Rock Port, Mo., based company, told Panhandle newsmen that construction on the $3 million beef plant is expected to begin in the next 30 to 60 days on a 203-acre tract of land about 3½ miles southwest of Friona on U. S. 60.

It is planned to have the plant in operation by April 1, 1968.

Land for the packing plant, which will employ from 225 to 250 people, will be purchased by the Friona Texas Industrial Development Corporation and donated to Missouri Beef Packers, Inc.

Frye said the plant will have the capacity to slaughter almost 2,000 cattle per day, 10,000 per week or almost 400,000 per year. In comparison, the largest independent packing plant in Texas at present is Neuhoff of Dallas, which slaughters just over 100,000 head of cattle annually.

Frye also explained that the plant will not only slaughter, but will chill, quarter and do some boning and breaking. The beef will be shipped to metropolitan areas of the east, West Coast, and the Southwest.

In brief ceremonies, Mayor W. L. (Preach) Edelman presented Frye with a key to the city and welcomed the other five company officials and their wives. Edelman said that the new business would mean about 2,000 additional persons for the immediate area.

Edelman's figures included the 250 persons who will be hired to operate the plant and the approximate 250 who will be needed to serve the new industry. Each family usually averages FRIONA Page 2

Mental Health Is Discussed

The possibility of forming a unit to tie in with the Psychiatric Pavilion of Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo was discussed Friday among two representatives from the hospital there and a group of Hereford church ministers.

The meeting was conducted during an informal luncheon which was served at Ward's Restaurant and was attended by 7 local ministers.

Representatives from Amarillo were George A. Edes, president of the Panhandle Mental Health Association, and O. W. Sougstad, pastor of the Beautiful Savior Lutheran Church.

The idea brought about by the two men was that of having a unit here to direct patients who might need help to the Amarillo institution.

The unit here would have to See MENTAL Page 2

Wilson Co. Completes Transfer

CHICAGO, April 27 — Stockholders of Wilson & Co., Inc. at a special meeting today (April 27) overwhelmingly approved a Plan and Agreement which provides for the Merger of Wilson & Co., Inc. with and into Ling-Temco-Vought, Inc. of Dallas, Texas. The vote was 3,225, 091 shares, or 88.9 per cent for the Plan, and 28,504 shares, or 06.78 per cent against. At the Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of LTV in Dallas today (April 27), the Plan was approved with 1,704,229 shares, or 69.3 per cent, for the Plan, and 4,190 shares, or 06.17 per cent against. Approval by two-thirds of the outstanding shares of common stock of each company was required for approval of the Merger Plan and Agreement. More than 99 per cent of the shares voted at both meetings were in favor of the Plan for Merger.

The Plan and Agreement of Merger provides for the issuance of a new LTV $5 Series A Cumulative Preferred Stock which will be exchanged for Wilson Common Stock on the basis of one share of LTV Series A Preferred for each 1-1/2 shares of Wilson Common Stock. The new preferred will pay a $5.00 annual dividend and can be converted at any time up to 10 years for 8/10 of a share of LTV Common Stock.

morning a 3 for 2 stock split of their Common Stock and an increase in dividend. The record date and the date the additional shares will be distributed will be fixed after the consummation of the proposed merger of Wilson & Co., Inc. into LTV, Inc., and a proportionate adjustment will be made to the conversion ratio of the new LTV Series A Preferred Stock to be issued to the Wilson stockholders. The current conversion ratio of 8/10 (eight-tenths) share of LTV Common for 1 share of LTV Series A Preferred will be adjusted to 1-2/10 (one and two-tenths) Common for 1 share of LTV Series A Preferred.

The Merger Plan contemplates that LTV will organize three separate corporations which will be wholly-owned subsidiaries of LTV, and that LTV will transfer to these subsidiaries such assets, business, and properties formerly owned by Wilson & Co., Inc., subject to such liabilities, as shall be determined by LTV and acquired through the merger.

The three subsidiary companies will be "Wilson & Co., Inc." formerly the Wilson Meat and Food Products Division of Wilson & Co., Inc., the "Wilson Sporting Goods Co.," formerly the sporting goods subsidiary of Wilson & Co., Inc., and the "Wilson Chemical & Pharmaceutical Corporation," formerly the Wilson Chemical Industries Division.

Each subsidiary will have its own Board of Directors and operate as a basically independent autonomous corporation under the general direction of Roscoe G. Haynie who, it is proposed, will be elected a director of LTV. The management of each of the subsidiary corporations will be basically the same as the management of the divisions prior to the merger.

It is proposed that Roy V. Edwards, currently an Executive Vice President of Wilson & Co., Inc., will become President of the new Wilson & Co., Inc.; that George J. Binder, currently an Executive Vice President of Wilson & Co., Inc., will become President of Wilson Chemical & Pharmaceutical Corporation; and that William P. Holmes, President of Wilson Sporting Goods Co., will continue in that capacity.

It is proposed that James D. Cooney, a director and retired Chairman of Wilson & Co., Inc., will also be elected a director of LTV.

Roscoe G. Haynie said, "I am confident that Wilson & Co. provide a greater and more profitable future for both companies."

In an open letter to all Wilson employees which appeared in the April issue of Wilson's employee publication devoted to the annual meeting and merger proposal, James J. Ling, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive, and Clyde Skeen, President of LTV, assured Wilson employees of their continued job security and opportunity if the merger were approved. In the letter Messrs. Ling and Skeen said, in part:

"The outstanding caliber of the management personnel and the high quality of its products and people were the main reasons for our initial decision to invest substantial funds in Wilquent decision to seek agreement on a merger proposal."

Water...

Viewed with alarm last year work by the Texas Water Board is now being accepted by West Texas because the board has proven that they take the problems of West Texas seriously. Since last September almost all efforts of the Water Board have been directed to problems in West Texas, Grubb stated.

Three plans are being studied and feasibility reports are being prepared.

Water importation from the lower Missouri would bring water across Oklahoma and Kansas to the north-Panhandle. The second plan being studied would be a canal coming along the basin divide following the Red River and would come north of Dallas into the Lamb County area. Water would originate northeast of Dallas and from the Mississippi areas.

The third plan being studied would bring water to the Abilene area by using the natural waterways of the Colorado River and its network and would be a pump back system.

Exact costs are not readily available on these projects, but the water specialists think at this time that any of these plans would get water into the West Texas area with costs comparable to present well and pumping costs.

It is believed that some dryland that is in immediate areas of the systems would be developed, but that areas to the south where no irrigation has been utilized in the past would be in line for use of this water.

With the canal plan along the Red River basin divide, engineers see 11 million acre feet of water being delivered to the Plains. They would have to start with 15 million acre feet, requiring inter-state agreements to acquire that much from the Mississippi areas.

This plan would include about 1 million acre feet of water for New Mexico. This amount (11 million acre feet) is estimated to irrigate about 8 million acres allowing 1 1/2 acre feet of water per acre of land.

The economics of moving water into this area are being studied by two groups. The Bureau of Reclamation is studying the income of irrigated and non-irrigated lands in three areas — south of Lubbock, from Lubbock to the Canadian and north of the Canadian.

The second study is being done by the Parsons Co. in Calif. that is attempting to establish the tax base and the type revenue needed to pay for importation for a wide area — most of the Great Plains. This study is scheduled for summer 1967 completion.

Many legal and political problems arise when using surface water is discussed, Grubb said. These problems can be overcome, he said, pointing out that the California plan diverts water 440 miles and seems to have solved most of the existing problems.

These problems can be tackled by a wide region only with the establishment of a master district and that is what is in the offing with the May 26 meeting in Lubbock. It takes a long time to determine needs, what should be done in answer to those needs and how these answers are to be fulfilled, Grubb pointed out, urging that immediate action is not too soon and may barely be in time for some regions such as those south of Lubbock where water shortages are already becoming an economic issue.

He said that any plan in effect by 1980 would be considered optimistic, fearing that implementing a workable plan could take longer.

Attending the meeting were Hereford Water Chairman R. C. Godwin who presided, vice-chairman Wilbur Axe, Jim Thomas, People's Natural Gas, Amarillo, P. M. Rosenow and Bruce Brown of Holly Sugar; Floyd, Eldred and Ernest Brown of Friona; Andrew Kershen, a director of the High Plains Water District; Mike Betzen, Speck Marnell, Justin McBride, county agent of Deaf Smith County, Denzil Pulliam, Virgil Dodson, Melvin Jayroe, manager of Southwestern Public Service, Bruce Burney, County Commissioner Earl Holt, Leo Witkowski, Charles Hoover, Layton Sawyer, Mayor Ray Cowser and Naomi Hopson, Hereford Brand News Editor.

Company officials and Friona businessmen estimate that the plant will add more than $1 million annually in payrolls alone to the economy of the Friona area.

Missouri Beef Packers, Inc., which incorporated Nov. 19, 1964, and began operation Feb. 15, 1966, will be served in Friona by three of the Panhandle's largest cattle feeding operations.

Two of the operations — the Parmer County Cattle Co., 4 miles southwest of Bovina and the Hi-Plains Feed Yards, Inc., 4 1/2 miles northwest of Friona — are under construction, while the Friona Feed Yards already is in operation. Combined, the three could have a future capacity of more than 107,000 head of cattle.

Mrs. Chuck Everitt, manager of the Friona Chamber of Commerce said the Industrial Development Committee of the Chamber has worked on the packing plant project for the past six months. Other committee members are A. L. Black and Andy Hurst and Frank A. Spring.

A Friona businessman said Friday that the IDC had begun a campaign in the city earlier in the week and had raised about half of the $95,000 believed to be needed to purchase land for the plant site. A total of $33,000 was raised the first day, the man said.

A consolidated financial statement of Missouri Beef Packers Inc., shows that during the first full year of production, 362,057 cattle were slaughtered and the company had gross sales of over $4 million, operating at a profit.

In the first full year, the company had a net income of $325,832, equal to 90 cents per share rate of return on invested capital of 10 per cent.

Frye said Friday that he would be in charge of the Friona plant until operation begins and than a plant manager will be named. Interviews for the position presently are being carried on, he stated.

Asked why the company had chosen Friona as the plant site, Frye said, "We looked many, many places and it was just the logical place. When a man drills an oil well, he drills it where he knows there be staffed locally and it would progress according to the public's response.

The ministers are to inform the public about this action and later weigh the response to see if it would be accomplished. Edes pointed out that of every two beds in the hospitals, one was occupied by a mentally ill person. They would not have to be ill so as to be recognized by an average person but whatever illness they have, it would be caused by mental disturbances or the like. Only trained persons would be able to recognize those ill.

The pavilion in Amarillo opened Saturday afternoon. It is only the second complex in the state of Texas which the government has authorized, the other being in Beaumont. Of these two pilot stations, branch units may be formed if the institution wishes to better help the persons in that area.

The Amarillo complex at present the 26 counties in the Panhandle is working to spread over handle area.

Further action will have to be withheld until the public responds in some way.

Ministers attending the meeting were: Gene Fooks, Church of Christ; Eugene Brink, First Christian; Staley Hackley, Episcopal; C. W. Allen, St. John's Baptist; Noah Arnpriester, Wesley Methodist; H. V. Field, Grace Gospel and Ron Harpster, First Methodist.

Inspired Teaching

Aikman Teacher Produces Spelling Champs Annually

By TOM PORTER
Staff Writer

"Spelling is a must," says Mrs. Cawthon Bryant, sixth grade instructor at Aikman Elementary School.

"I definitely think it develops character, the vocabulary, helps the student speak better and certainly helps in later life."

Mrs. Bryant practices what she preaches too, because her students have won nine of the 11 Junior Spelling Bee contests held in Deaf Smith County.

Mrs. Bryant has taught in Deaf Smith County elementary schools 24 years, the past eleven being at Aikman, where she moved when the school opened. Two years each were spent at Ward and Westway schools and the remainder in Hereford.

She actually began teaching before she received her bachelor's degree, then went ahead to get both the bachelor's and master's degree at West Texas State University.

Mrs. Bryant places no special emphasis on spelling in her subjects. "I just tell them the importance of it, how it will help them in later years. Of course, I make spelling important in all my subjects." All subjects but science are taught the sixth graders by Mrs. Bryant.

And spelling can't start too early for Mrs. Bryant, who says the beginners in school start out with phonetics "a very important part of their learning."

"When the words get rather complicated," she explained, "you have to know how to divide them up, accent them and spell them." This is where phonetics comes in, she says, because "certainly a real good speller knows phonetics."

Students in the fifth grade are the lowest eligible to enter the spelling contests. Mrs. Bryant admits she works "hours and hours with them" on the spelling bees — all outside the regular school work.

The usual procedure calls for the student to learn to spell all the words in the fifth grade book, then the sixth grade book, and on into the "Words of Champions" contest book if they enter the county spelling bee. "If I had a champion go on to the Golden Spread Spelling Bee in Amarillo, he would have to work out with the dictionary."

Mrs. Bryant has learned that "a good speller is usually a good student as a whole. I have had some good students that weren't natural spellers, but they always worked a littler harder."

Many of her former students and their parents often return to tell Mrs. Bryant that her stress on spelling has paid off not only in high school and college, but in their work and daily life. This makes the job worthwhile, she says.

"Once you work with the youngsters," she states, "You just can't quit. I just enjoy teaching school, working with the boys and girls. It's my first love. And when you see the results turn out good, it repays you for all the work done."

Mrs. Bryant's champions include Ronnie Gray, 1957; Judy Wiman, 1958; Gayle Newell, 1960; Jan Miller, 1962; Dennis Downey, 1963; Jerry Odum, 1964; Alicia Hubble, 1965; Steven Leasure, 1966, and Ralph Scott, 1967. A Shirley Elementary School student won the contest in 1959 and Derenda Wall of Aikman won in 1961 under instruction of another Aikman teacher.

The list of champions is almost equally divided between boys and girls, Mrs. Bryant pointed out. "They are about equal in spelling," she says.

Mrs. Bryant and her husband, who is employed at H&W Implement Co., live at 312 Star Street. They have one son, John David Bryant, who is associated with a Certified Public Accountant firm in Amarillo.

In speaking of her work, Mrs. Bryant has nothing but praise for those around her. "We have a real good school, faculty and student body. All together, it makes it real enjoyable."

Needless to say, Mrs. Bryant hopes to remain at Aikman Elementary School until her retirement.

Mrs. Bryant took her junior champion, Ralph Scott to Amarillo this past week to attend the Golden Spread Spelling Bee. Other students in her home-room who assisted with the outside of class study for Ralph were invited as was the runner-up in her room, Georgette Malouf, runner-up in the room and M'Lynn Hopson and Karn Downing who pronounced words and helped Ralph to study were all guests of Mrs. Bryant's for the trip which included lunch and a short shopping trip.

Senator Tower Speaks

A Lot Can Be Gained By New Developments In Space

The Senate this week approved an international treaty to preserve the peaceful development of Outer Space. I supported Senate ratification of this Outer Space treaty for a number of reasons.

During the past ten years, mankind has embarked upon what may prove to be the most exciting adventure in all human history — the exploration of the heavens both by man himself and by means of the most sophisticated, ingenious instruments man has yet devised. The future voyages of discovery in space will far surpass in impact and importance those voyages that brought explorers from the Old World to the New World centuries ago.

Space travel is no longer science fiction, but fact. Our latest Surveyor series was soft-landed on the moon and is even now transmitting scientific data to Earth. In a few short years, a manned lunar landing will be made by the United States, the Soviet Union, or both, and other nations will surely follow.

We who have been fortunate enough to witness the advent of the space age have been given the opportunity and responsibility to start with a clean slate of cooperation and trust in outer space. In no other major area of human endeavor is this possible — nor in all probability will it ever be possible again if we fall now. Space is truly our last frontier. Accordingly, we have a most serious responsibility to begin now to provide guarantees, such as those contained in the Outer Space treaty, so that the heavens shall forever remain a realm of peace and order.

We must make some guarantee that the celestial bodies will not become the object of national, territorial designs. We must prevent them from becoming future battlefields or the source of conflict among nations on earth. We must make it understood that celestial bodies are to be the preserve of all mankind and that their use is intended for the benefit of all mankind.

The role of the United States in this endeavor is to continue to take the lead we assumed at the beginning of the space age in efforts to guide space activities in the direction of peace. The Outer Space treaty represents no departure in the policies thus far pursued by the space policies thus far pursued represents a further step in their evolution.

In the interest of national security, we could afford to wait no longer for a space treaty. Time is running short. To attempt to impose the rule of law in outer space after a dispute or conflict had arisen there, or a territorial claim had been made, would be an exercise in futility.

The reasons for not waiting until some nation has landed on the moon or the planets to draft a treaty are obvious. By claiming sovereignty any nation might thereby claim the right to control access to these bodies for scientific exploration or for any legitimate use. Scientists have warned us that space can be used for belligerent purposes in a number of ways. They have warned that any nation which controls Outer Space can thereby gain control of whole continents or of the entire Earth itself.

With this in mind, I have paid special attention to the reasons given by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Secretary of Defense for their support of this treaty. We have been assured there will be no defense disadvantage to us as a result of ratification and particularly that our Manned Orbiting Laboratory program can continue.

Our military experts have in fact said that the treaty enhances our national security by offering a real possibility of limiting the kinds and numbers of weapons that can be aimed at the United States.

In any case, the United States intends to continue development and improvement of its technological capabilities to determine the presence of any orbital weapons and to keep abreast of the relevant activities and capabilities of other nations. No surrender of our right to defend ourselves is involved in this treaty.

No curtailment of either our military or non-military space programs is required. Development and refinement of our weather, navigational, communications, scientific and mapping satellite systems will continue.

I believe, therefore, that the United States has everything to gain and nothing to lose by participating in this great international undertaking. Similarly, I feel that considerations of enlightened self-interest outweigh the possible advantages which any other party to the treaty might expect to gain by its violation.

I shall go even further and express the hope that this treaty, by preventing the creation of an atmosphere of fear, distrust in outer space may encourage nations to channel their energies and ambitions into constructive and cooperative activities designed to meet its fascinating challenges.

Kiwanians Hold Inter-Club Meet

Nearly 200 persons gathered at the Hereford Country Club Thursday for the Ladies Night Banquet sponsored by the local Kiwanis Club.

Bobby Owen, long time member of the club and one of the most active in the club's fund-raising projects this year walked off with the Kiwanian of the Month award.

Dean Herring, president of the club and master of ceremonies, made the award presentation honoring Owen. He cited Owen for being active in numerous projects this year and also being chairman of the biggest fund-raising campaign.

Numerous guests were present from out-of-town Kiwanis Clubs. Included were about 9 each from the Downtown and North Amarillo Kiwanis clubs, 10 from San Jacinto, 4 from South Amarillo, 5 from Tascosa, 8 from Canyon, 4 from Pampa and about 14 from the Vega Kiwanis Club.

Special guests included the Lt. Governor of District VI, George Blackwell and his wife. The entertainment was furnished in part by a new group of male singers made up of four members of the local Kiwanis Club. The four, called "Kiwanis Specials," are Gene Campbell, Jim Welch, Dalton Gill and Zack Pannell. They made their singing debut at the banquet Thursday night.

Mrs. Jean Moore, administrator at Clarendon College, was speaker of the evening.

She told the story of how man started in this world and how it came about that he got a woman for a companion. She further went on to say how the flood which destroyed the world came about and what the Lord instructed Noah to do to prepare for the flood. She made the story sound different as it numerous other humorous words and phrases but the actual meaning of the story still remained the same.

In her speech, she was honoring the woman.

The banquet Thursday also celebrated the 17th anniversary of the local Kiwanis Club. It was 17 years ago on April 27, 1950, that the local club was formed with 29 members. Of the first 29 members, 5 are still active in the organization. Those are Bill Nafzger, Bill Patton, Wayne Phillips, Lloyd and Lowell Sharp.

During the banquet, other awards were given to club members. Perfect attendance pins were presented to 5 persons, those being; Nafzger, 17 years; Bartley Dowell, 16 years, Phillips, 10 years; Jim Arney, 4 years and Gene Campbell, 2 years.

The presentations were made by Herring.

Lt. Gov. Blackwell, in a short speech, cited the Hereford club for being the "growinest," "goinest" club in the district. The district clubs have acquired 37 new members as from January to March this year and of this amount, the local club has recruited 19 members.

He also stated that District VI had 2 goals to reach this year; a large membership in the clubs and having about 3,000 Kiwanians at the international convention in Houston June 25.

Other prizes given away were some carnations to numerous ladies and a centerpiece to Elaine Clark.

The friendship dollar went to Dean Christy, a member of the North Amarillo Kiwanis Club.

The prize is a means of having every person shake each others hand and is a custom at Kiwanis.

More than 30 farmers' wives depart for Washington this week to attend the first organized "Ladies Fly-In" program sponsored by National Farmers Union. The "Ladies Fly-In" is one of a series of Washington trips sponsored by Farmers Union for the purpose of dramatizing the need for increased farm income and other legislative programs fostered by the nationwide farm organization. Congressional leaders will be contacted on Truth-In-Lending Legislation, appropriations for increased Social Security benefits, farm improvement and housing loans and aid to education and school lunch programs, as well as farm income improvement legislation.

The ladies will be in Washington Sunday, April 30 through Wednesday, May 3. Their schedule includes a tour of the White House and other points of historical interest as well as the visits with congressman and high officials of USDA.

Opened with an impressive parade of flags and a welcome from Gov. John Connally, the program included addresses by E. Roland Harriman, chairman, and Gen. James F. Collins, president, of the American Red Cross; Jacqueline Knight, welfare supervisor of the British Red Cross, and NASA astronaut Maj. Joe H. Engle.

Entertainment ranged from music by the Dallas Symphony to an evening at Six Flags Over Texas amusement park.

TEXANS IN SPORTS

Who Benefits From Pro Ruling

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
That was quite a magnificent gesture by pro baseball in allowing boys to stay in college until they are 21 before being signed to contracts. An analysis of the rule shows there was little accomplished — that the pros weren't doing the colleges any particular service. Pro football all along waited until a boy either finished college or his class had graduated before drafting him. Pro baseball, however, for years moved in and signed the adept collegiath as soon as it could get him. This brought repeated howls from the colleges, which pointed out that they had spent their money educating the boy while he played baseball, only to see him taken just when he had developed enough to be of value to the team.

So, the pros, in a grudging gesture, said they wouldn't sign the boy until he had his sophomore season, which helped some but didn't do much to correct the situation of the college in developing the boy but losing him when he had become a good ball player.

Then the pros made another gesture — they wouldn't take the boy from college until he was 21 years old. That, they should settle the matter.

It, of course, continued to keep the freshman and sophomore in college all right but statistics show that the athlete in college almost invariably is 21 when he is a senior; many times he's 21 as a junior. So he can still be signed before he has given a full measure for having his expenses paid in college.

Checking Southern Methodist's rolls, one finds that seniors average 21.3 years — that every one of them is at least 21 and can be taken by the pros before having their last season. Twelve of 17 juniors on the football squad were 21 or over. The average was 20.7 years. So two-thirds of Texas A&M seniors averaged the juniors could be gobbled up by the pros.

21.4, juniors 20.7. At Texas Tech it was 21.8 and 21.0.

This means that the boys would be even older in baseball since that comes in the spring — three months after football. The pros still have a rule that allows them to grab the boy before he gets to college. The high school graduate is drafted in June of each year. If the boy brushes aside the draft and goes to college anyway, he won't be touched until he becomes 21.

Pro baseball explains why it doesn't have a similar rule to pro football in this way: the boy doesn't play enough in college, where there are 25 to 30 games

Water Plans Being Made

Final plans are being formulated for a water association for the High Plains of Texas. A meeting of regional leaders in agriculture, business and education is to be held May 3rd at 9:30 a. m. at the Lubbock Club in Lubbock.

Formation of a water association is generally considered to be the first step necessary to the importation of water to the area. The organizational meeting to establish the association is slated to be held on May 26th with time and place still to be selected. At that time it is hoped that the proposed association can become reality.

Presiding at the planning session in Lubbock will be K. B. Watson of Amarillo, Watson, who is chairman of the water a season, whereas he would be able to play in more than 100 in pro baseball. Also, he isn't being coached by a man who compares with the pros, thus isn't developed as fast as he would in minor league baseball.

However, a check of the South west Conference shows that most of the coaches are former professionals, some even ex-major leaguers, or ex-pro managers. This probably is a national criterion. It indicates that the boy can get as good coaching in college as with the pros.

The matter of not playing as much has to be conceded. But if there was a rule prohibiting the signing of a boy until he finished college, it wouldn't matter anyway; all pro clubs would be on the same basis regarding material.

Also, it would allow boys to get an education, so if they have to languish in the minors and finally quit because they can't make the majors — as many of them do — they'll have something to fall back on. That would be considering the boy himself, something that few seem to have thought much about.

committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and the West Texas Advisory Board to the Texas Water Development Board, was selected as temporary chairman of the organizing committee for the proposed group at a meeting held in Lubbock in March.

Highlighting the May 3rd session will be reports of committee chairmen who have been drafting a proposed structure of the association. George McCleskey of Lubbock will give the report of the organization and committee, with J. D. Smith of Littlefield outlining plans for the May 26th meeting.

A. C. Verner, Lubbock banker, headed the committee to consider nominations for officers in the permanent organization and will present the recommendations of that group. Public information and publicity plans will be suggested by R. C. Godwin of Hereford. Russell Bean of Lubbock will present the recommendations of the finance committee.

The planning group for the proposed water association will also consider adoption of a permanent name for the organization. Western Water Development Association (WDA) and Water Association to Expand Resources (WATER) are among the names under consideration.

"Importation of water, with surface water and groundwater working together to solve our problems and broaden our economic approach. The first step in this program is establishment of a water association which encompasses the interests of every group in our region. The biggest water meeting that has ever been held on the High Plains should be the one to organize a water asso-

Twin Longhorn Calves Thrive

ALBANY — Twin calves, a comparative rarity, are the latest decoration for the famed Longhorn herd at Fort Griffin State Park near here.

And Park Superintendent Joe Shelton reports they are thriving although ordinarily one, even sometimes both, twin suffers when the only nourishment comes from the mother.

Shelton, veteran keeper of the showplace herd, tried at first to catch the calves for special feeding. But wear and tear on the twins and himself made that unwise, he said.

Now the mother cow is kept in private quarters and given a variety of feed worthy of such a VIP parent. She gorges on cottonseed cake, nutritious special cubes and the best hay available. And the twins are "getting fatter by the day," boasted the proud Joe.

The twins are not the only new born celebrities among the herd of 61. A heifer born an albino calf just recently. "Not a red hair on it," said Shelton.

This and the twins were sired by a pedigreed Longhorn bull donated to the herd by Charles Schreiner of Kerrville, proprietor of the famous YO Ranch near Mountain Home. The new male has been on location 13 months as a replacement for Shelton. There has never been a more important meeting for the future of this area before and may well never be another of this importance again," Watson concluded.

another genuine Longhorn presented by Schreiner who has just been elected president of the Exotic Wildlife Association of North America.

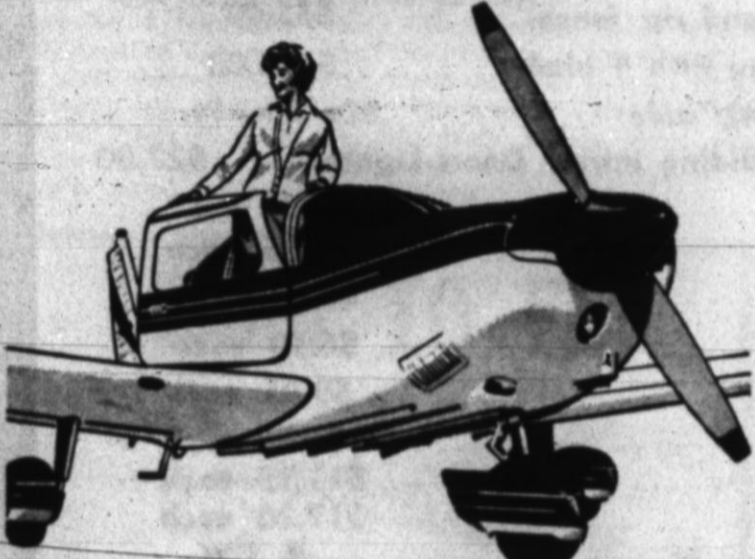

Shelton said the first bull also was a good sire but he had too many "running, bawling fits" perhaps mimicking the notorious pioneer cowboy frolics at this entrance to the famed Chisholm Trail. He had to be replaced to avoid offending neighboring ranchers.

Shelton said increasing numbers of visitors stop over from Highway 382 now that the new twins have bulwarked the noted herds attraction. They are kept in a convenient pen for public admiration.

Casa de Amigos

By MARTIN WINCH SPORTS PART TWO

The small Bull Barn has become a favorite haunt for many Spanish-speaking and Negro boys and girls in the Hereford area. These elementary, junior and senior high school boys and girls can profit from several hours each week of group recreation at the small Bull Barn. This is in addition to sports programs and sports facilities available at the Casa de Amigos — the Migrant Ministry's program center at the Labor Camp. "When are we going to

Price Is Named To Crime Force

Representative Gerald Ford of Michigan, House Minority Leader and Representative Charles E. Goodell, Chairman of the House Republican Research and Planning Committee announced today the appointment of Panhandle Representative Bob Price to a newly created Task Force on Crime Committee.

The Task Force, made up of 13 Republican members of the House of Representatives, will be headed by Representative Richard Poff of Virginia.

In a joint statement Ford and Goodell said: "The Task Force on Crime will provide thoughtful analysis of the problems and a practical program for dealing with crime in short term as well as in the long run. With the rate of criminal incidents outstripping population growth, action based on sure knowledge is urgently needed. There is an atmosphere of fear of the criminal throughout the nation. A recent survey by the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice reported that 43% of the respondents stay off the streets at night because of fear of crime."

"For this important work, we believe Congressman Price to be well qualified," Ford and Goodell said. "He was selected for membership on this Task Force because of his background as a rancher and banker and his participation in regional Boy Scout and other youth activities as well as his interests in crime problems on all levels."

Poff said the Task Force would deal particularly with such matters as juvenile delinquency, crime prevention, rehabilitation, organized crime, law enforcement and the administration of criminal justice.

Leftover cooked fish makes a fine luncheon dish when it is teamed with cream sauce and hard-cooked eggs. Use one or two cups of the flaked fish with a cup of medium white sauce; instead of adding the egg to the mixture, slice it and use for an attractive garnish.

the Bull Barn" has become a standard greeting we VISTA workers receive from boys and girls around the Camp. Joe Parker, the first male VISTA worker in Hereford, conducted a sports program at the Bull Barn one evening each week during the summer and fall of 1965. He used a St. Joseph's School bus to transport boys from the Labor Camp for these evenings of recreation. Then, for a brief time, the Paisana Lions Club was able to handle the program.

At the present, Spanish-speaking and Negro elementary, junior and senior high boys and girls can avail themselves of a total of three afternoons and two evenings of supervised recreation at the Bull Barn each week. The Deaf Smith County Commissioners have authorized J. C. Simpson to open the building on these afternoons and evenings. The two female VISTA workers spent an hour and a half each Monday and Wednesday afternoon after school with fifteen to twenty-five elementary school-age girls. They work at basketball, trampolining, volleyball, tumbling and vaulting. Maggie Villarreal and Irene Vitella, residents of the Labor Camp, are often able to assist with the supervision of the girl's recreation. When a special event at the small Bull Barn makes the building unavailable, the girls play softball in Dameron Park.

Since many of the younger and older boys work after school boys' recreation at the small Bull Barn takes place two evenings and only one afternoon per week. Many boys and youths spend their afternoons and early evenings in and around the Casa. But supervised recreation for boys is reserved for Friday afternoons and Monday and Wednesday evenings at the small Bull Barn. Before the sports program began, parents of interested elementary school boys were visited and their cooperation solicited. Boys in the third through sixth grades at the St. Joseph's School are eligible for the program. Older boys joined the program after hearing of it by word of mouth, and their numbers have increased steadily since the first evening of recreation late in March.

Attendance on Monday and Wednesday nights from 8:30 until ten seldom falls below forty boys, about a third of whom are between thirteen and twenty years old. About half of these older boys still attend school. Of the total attendance on Monday and Wednesday evenings, roughly half lives in the large Labor Camp, a quarter in Buena Vista, and the remainder throughout Hereford. Attendance is held down only by our inability to transport more boys to the Bull Barn, and a solution to this problem may be in the offering. On Friday afternoons, attendance is generally limited to the elementary school boys, who then have their chance to dominate the basketball game and make some demands of their own. By and large, the same group of boys return again and again, so that individual development is possible in various physical endeavors.

At the small Bull Barn, the biggest single asset to the boys and girls is the large sheltered area. It is a place to chase, race, or drag others around in circles. Facilities in the big room include two basketball baskets, a volleyball net, and two large punching bags. In addition, the Migrant Ministry stores in the room two 5 by 20 foot wrestling mats and a small trampoline, originally purchased by the Lions Club for a recreation program under the direction of Guy Lawrence. From the Casa de Amigos, Keith Schroyer and I bring basketballs, jumping ropes, and sometimes boxing gloves.

Supervising such a large number of boys and youths becomes feasible with the help of two residents of the Labor Camp, Eleazar de los Reyes and Antonio Hernandez. Both men instruct and supervise wrestling; de los Reyes has wrestled professionally in Brownville, Houston and Denver. Keith serves as referee and coach for basketball games which involve most of the older boys and a few of the younger ones. Though some of the boys are quite capable players, Keith wears himself thin trying to enforce the rules against palming the basketball and against defensively fouling your opponent.

The boys who are not wrestling, playing basketball, fighting with gloves, jumping ropes, or running after each other around the room, spend most of their time on the trampoline. With some advance coaching from John Gillentine, I have been able to supervise this sport and to help interested boys to develop their skill at it. The smartest and youngest are generally the quickest to learn; one of the star performers is an epileptic second grader. By the end of an evening at the small Bull Barn, most of the boys have spent some time at each sport and everyone is ready to hit the hay.

Sports programs serve purposes beyond the level of pure enjoyment. They provide a constructive outlet for youthful energy. They help to develop boys and girls physically, mentally and spiritually in a group setting. From our point of view, they afford contact on a regular and informal basis with young boys and girls and with youth. This in turn encourages a trust and understanding which have opened to us valuable counseling opportunities and have, we hope, given us the respect of boys and girls eager to find good examples and leadership. Through such a recreation program, many of the community's less privileged families can better become involved in their children's development. Such a program might be conducted by these families for themselves, actively involving parents and children. Certainly, a recreation program reaching these families can and should be conducted without us, on a community basis.

GULFPORT, MISS — April 18 — Construction Mechanic Constructionman Earl R. Drager, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Drager of Hereford, Tex. is in Gulfport, Miss. as a member of Mobile Construction Battalion 74

The battalion is one of several famous World War II Sea Bee battalions that have been reactivated to help meet the increased demands of military construction all over the world. In preparation for Battalion 74's coming deployment to South East Asia the members have been undergoing both professional and military training at Keesler Air Force Base, Biloxi, Miss. and the Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Calliopian Club Study Year Ends

A change of pace after a year's study of The Great Southwest, a book review by a member, Mrs. Ansel McDowell, was the final program of this season for Calliopian Study Club Thursday evening. Mrs. David Gibson was hostess in her home. The club will finish the year with a spring social to entertain members' husbands May 11 in the Irving Alexander home. Mrs. McDowell presented a dramatic review of James Michener's long novel, The Source, which set a record atop the best-seller list for fiction and has been translated into many languages.

Its focal point is a mound in Israel called Makor, which means The Source, and the story concerns secrets of the past revealed as the mound is excavated level by level. Various periods of human occupancy since caveman days are brought to light. The author recreates, through vivid characters, the history of these successive residents, and Mrs. McDowell pictured each group of characters and their stories, which are founded solidly on historic facts about the Holy Land.

She emphasized that here was the source of religions which have shaped western civilization.

In the business period members planned to attend a Camp Fire Girl ceremonial May 4, in which the Camp Fire group sponsored by Calliopian Club will take part. Hostess duties at Deaf Smith County Museum through May were also scheduled.

Refreshments were served and members were invited to visit throughout the Gibsons' handsome new home at 129 Kingwood.

Those present included Mmes. Sue James Cameron Gault Alton Fraser, E. W. Dettman, C. J. Crump, Clyde Cave, B. F. Cain, Alexander, J. T. Gilbreath Jr., George Warner, Gene Parsley, Wes Owens, M. W. Nobles, Emmett Milburn, Hazen Woods and Miss Clara Beth Holt.

Community Program Given By H. D. Club

Skits, amusing and instructive made up a program given by Dawn Home Demonstration Club when it was host for the monthly Community Night at Dawn community building Friday.

Simulated club meetings were conducted to illustrate protocol and rules of order within the club. Another skit, titled Careless Kate at the Pearly Gate, emphasized the danger of careless use of household cleansers. H. D. Club members and their children took part.

Club women served homemade doughnuts, coffee and punch to approximately 50 persons.

Teenage Health Problem Topic In Bippus Club

Discussing the problem of teenage smokers, Mrs. J. G. Fortenberry and Mrs. Elmo Hall told Bippus Home Demonstration Club members Wednesday. "A young person who develops the smoking habit has no one but himself to blame, but parents can help by setting a good example and not smoking."

They quoted medical reports on the health hazards of smoking, adding that it is more difficult to stop smoking than never to start.

Mrs. Fortenberry was club hostess and Mrs. C. F. Burk presided. A County H. D. Council report was made by Mrs. John Hill. The program began with a poem, Wind in Frolie, read by Mrs. Jimmie D. Bradley.

Mrs. Ole Larson and Mrs. Ruth Gandy were guests. Other members present were Mmes. C. T. Douglas, J. V. Perrin, Inman Larson, Wayne Sifford and C. F. Homfeld. The next meeting, May 10, will be in Mrs. Sifford's home.

"They're just too hard to make," Dalvine said of the decorative versions of Kansas state flower. "Each petal has to be made individually and each one has to be just right." How about decorating cakes with the state bird? "Meadowlarks are easy," Dalvine said. recently by Lesly.

Gun Collector Likes Colts Best

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — If James P. Luby ever wants to shoot anyone, he can do it 80 different ways — if the intended victim will stand still while Luby runs down to the bank vault to get a pistol.

Luby is a gun collector, and a specialist: He is a specialist in Colts.

He has around 80 of them, the best of the 1,000 or so which have passed through his hands. Luby says about 50 are choice items, and the other 30 would make a collector's mouth water with desire of ownership.

The collector is a farmer who has been amassing Colts for 16 years.

His brother-in-law, W. H. Davis of Houston, got him interested. Since then, he has traveled about 200,000 miles and obtained about 1,000 pistols in pursuit of his hobby.

He said he considers early American firearms, such as those produced by Colt, to be the most valuable collector's pieces and he specialized in them. He has sought both the early percussion cap types to the more modern ones using cartridges.

Luby tells of the first two he "picked out of the brush," as collectors say who stumble upon something.

He purchased a Whitneyville-Hartford Dragoon for $35 from a farmer. He also picked up a First Model Dragoon in a neighbors back yard where the children had been using it in cops and robbers games.

Luby says gun collecting takes

Stock Car Racing Begins Today

Drivers from Hereford, Clovis, N. M., Lubbock, Amarillo and the surrounding area are expected to participate today in the opening day of Auto Racing at Hereford Speedway.

To begin at 2 p. m. the stock car races will be held east of Hereford on U. S. 60, with flags marking the way to the site.

General admission to the races is $1, with children under 12 admitted free when accompanied by parents. Prizes will be given on the ticket stub number.

Approximately 500 persons were in attendance last Sunday when the Hereford Racing Association had warmup races.

Art Students Can Pre-Register

LEVELLAND — Those planning to enroll in the art workshop at South Plains College this summer under the direction of Mrs. Mary Creamer, may pre-register now. Each of the classes will have a maximum enrollment of 20.

Mrs. Creamer, a well-known artist from Dana Point, California, began her art studies at the University of Oklahoma, Washington University and in St. Louis.

Now the holder of more than sixty awards and with works hanging in many distinguished galleries, public buildings and private collections, Mrs. Creamer works in oil, watercolor and pastels. She is noted for her portraits, seascapes, landscapes and still-life canvases. Her works are mostly traditional, with a leaning towards impressionism. Her canvases reveal the crosscountry interest, and her paintings have been exhibited from coast to coast.

Mrs. Creamer will teach two classes beginning June 12, an evening class and a day class. The evening class will be from 7 to 10 p. m. and the day class will be from 9 to 12 a. m., both held each day for a period of two weeks in Room 1 of the Fine Arts Building.

Additional information may be obtained from the Office of Director of Special Services at the college.

George Bamberger, former Giant and Oriole pitcher, is working on a three-year contract as minor league pitching instructor for the Baltimore Orioles.

MIGHT BE BLUE LAWS
BLUE SPRINGS, Mo. (AP) — Residents of this community east of Kansas City can't be sure they're living up to all the Blue Springs ordinances.

A firm codifying the city ordinances reported those numbered 10 through 99 were missing. Those ordinances dated back to 1935.

City officials have no way of knowing what the missing laws contain. "We have looked everywhere for them," Mayor Virgil L. Willis said.

Jerry Depoyster of Wyoming scored 71 points last season on 13 field goals and 32 conversions.

He keeps his best pieces in a bank vault and has wired his house with a burglar alarm to protect the remainder of his collection.

His favorite is his Colt Baby Dragoon, one of the first made. It is an 1848 model, .31 caliber in its original case with factory accessories in mint condition. He values it at $5,000.

He once owned a hand-engraved Colt third model Dragoon, cut for a shoulder stock, with a gold-inlaid eagle on the ivory grip. It reportedly once belonged to Mexican hero Benito Juarez and now is in the collection of John Dumont of Massachusetts.

Inspired by Davis' collection, Luby began to work hard at collecting. He used newspaper advertising and attended many auctions.

He was in California a year in the Navy and his wife, Jeanne, said, "We must have covered almost every part of California, driving from antique shows to garage sales, running down leads."

They have hunted guns in Hawaii, New Mexico, New York, and Missouri.

He acquired 10 compete "sets" — with their original cases, powder flasks and other accessories. He also has a score of factory engraved presentation models which he considers among the most valuable in his collection.

Museum Drive Opens For Tech

LUBBOCK — A drive to raise at least $2 million for a new $6 million museum at Texas Tech will be launched officially Tuesday (May 2) with an informational dinner at Lubbock Country Club.

Rice University Chancellor Carey Cronis will be the guest speaker. His topic will be "The Research Role of a University." Robert H. "Bob" Brummal, southern division manager of Company and President of the West Texas Museum Association will be master of ceremonies.

More than 300 persons are expected to attend the 7 p. m. event. Dr. Dudley Strain, Minister of the First Christian Church and President of the Lubbock Ministerial Association will deliver the invocation and benediction.

T. I. M. E. Motor Freight executive Loyd M. Lanotte, Chairman of the ICASALS & Museum Development Fund, will discuss support needed for the program which is intended to cover Lubbock and West Texas.

Former Tech President D. M. Wiggins, Co-Chairman of the Development Council along with Harris F. Underwood, will speak on "An International Center for Texas Tech." Tech President Grover E. Murray will introduce Dr. Cronis.

Dr. Cronis, associated with Rice since 1954 and Chancellor since 1961, is widely known both as an educator, administrator and geologist III.

He recently received the highest professional honor given by the American Association of Petroleum Geologists by being named recipient of the Sidney Powers Memorial Medal.

Dr. Cronis, who designed the geology section of the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry, was Head of the Hall of Science at the Chicago World's Fair.

A member of the first National Foundation Committee on Mathematics, Physical and Engineering Sciences, the Chancellor is a past president of the American Geological Institute and the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists.

Widely travelled, he is the author or co-author of several books and scores of scientific articles and reviews.

Dr. Cronis, active in Houston community affairs, is a past Board Chairman of the Contemporary Art Association and has served on the Board of the Houston Museum of Natural Science.

The Texas Tech Board of Directors recently approved the exterior design of the museum scheduled to replace the present facility in the heart of the campus.

Architect's drawings of the new museum, scheduled to be located on a 76-acre tract, will be on display at the dinner.

Ed Skypala Talks Coin Collecting

The Hereford Optimist Club was enlightened on numismatics the study or collection of coins, during their regular weekly meeting Thursday by Ed Skypala, local numismatist.

Skypala presented coins from his own collection as he explained the history of currency over the world. He said Greek coins were first stamped out by hand from crude silver and did not run true to form. Many were egg shaped.

Shown by Skypala was one of the first commemorative coins by the Greeks. Distributed in 12 B. C., the coin has four horses and a chariot on the back. A shekel, which was used in Biblical times, also was exhibited.

Skypala explained that the first coins minted in the United States was in 1793, but the coins had a terrible time getting started because of broken bank notes. People hoarded silver so much that the wooden nickel was started and paper money was printed in 3-cent to 50-cent denominations. People began turning the silver back in and the paper notes disappeared.

The recent demand for silver dollars by U. S. citizens have caused that type currency to be placed on the stock market, Skypala continued. "I can't understand this, because stocks pay dividends, while someone always has to lose in dealing with the silver dollars."

One of the oddities of Skypala's collection is a "C" note, the currency most associated with gangsters.

Ag Committee Discussed Weed Control Needs

The agriculture committee of the Chamber of Commerce met for a breakfast meeting Thursday morning. The organization of a weed control district was brought to the committees attention for a second time. When discussed earlier this year, the plan met with opposition from the County Commissioners who at that time said that it was the Court's opinion that too much organization was harmful for the county.

At the meeting Thursday, the feasibility of a weed control district was discussed by Douglas

The Sunday Brand, Hereford, Texas, Sunday, April 30, 1967

Degge, manager of the Floyd County Weed Control District. He discussed the organization operation and the law authorizing such a district.

Other business involved the Department of Public Safety Laws regarding over width and slow moving vehicles. This type traffic is particularly troublesome during heavy farming season in this area. Jay Boston reported to the group on this problem.

Attending were Degge, W. A. Lamm, Bob Williamson, Walter Seed, Boston, Marcus Latham, Bobby Owen, Waldo Baxter, Rex Golden, Earl Holt, Bruce Coleman, and James Gouley.

Some frozen vegetables may be cooked in less water than the package directions recommend.

FROM OUR AUSTIN BUREAU

What Really Constitutes Freedom Of Speech Rights?

By LARRY FUHRMANN
Hereford Brand
Austin Bureau Chief

Pardon the tongue-in-cheek above, but Humphrey's visit to the great state of Texas seems to really have set off some fireworks in the Capitol city. The fireworks concern the "right of freedom of speech" which a group of students on the University of Texas campus claim was flagrantly violated in an effort to keep them from making their anti-war sentiments public during Humphrey's visit.

Presuming the events to be receiving some degree of coverage in the Panhandle, I will venture to guess that actions taken by SDS (Students for a Democratic Society) president Gary Thiher are being followed. Gary's home is in Lubbock. He, as well as five other university students, is currently having his status as a student questioned by a disciplinary committee appointed by school administrators.

The event sparking the whole affair was an assembly by the SDS last week, which planned a protest at the Capitol to coincide with Humphrey's arrival. The organizational meeting was banned by University of Texas Chancellor Harry Ransom; need less to say, it occurred anyway, much to the furor and apparent embarrassment of Chancellor Ransom, Governor John Connally and others who were planning the Vice-President's visit.

So now the debate is raging in full force — were the students denied their "rights" by the administration? It has turned the campus into what some would call a "little Berkeley" (which just might be an annual affair, anyway — there will probably be something every year). A number of students (large enough to command the attention of the entire campus for over a week) claims that the first amendment, that of freedom of speech and press, has been violated. Over 2,000 were present for a rally sponsored by the UT Veterans association on the main mall to present speakers for both sides of the issue.

Chairman of the Board of Regents, Frank Erwin (who is a member of the Democratic National Committee and close friend of President Johnson; got a cold response from students when he told them the school "does not need 27,000 students." He later modified his statement in pulling the number down to 200.

The University of Texas has acquired a favorable reputation, and school administrators do not want to see it torn down overnight by rabble-rousers, Erwin said. Ironically, the infamous University of California at Berkeley was rated "best overall in the nation" last year for excellence in graduate education.

Some faculty members who work closely with the student body claim that the issue is not really freedom of speech; at stake is the policy for deciding who is to make the rules govern.

ing all student organizations and how those rules are to be enforced. Chancellor Ransom, who has been gratefully acknowledged to be a most liberal and open-minded administrator any school could ask for, has been accused by some individuals as being arbitrary in his action against the SDS, since his indictment of the group was not enforced through formal channels.

At any rate, the UFM (University Freedom Movement) has stirred up the student body to the point of at least coming out to vote in student elections early in May. It also has the faculty interested — both pro and con — in the issue.

When you can watch events like these, who needs television? This is really a terrific part of getting an education.

though the picket line seemed to expose some raw nerves among Texas lawmakers. If Humphrey was upset over the matter, he didn't let it show. He has really taken the brunt end of more than his share of criticism in the past weeks.

In his speech to the Legislature, he said that force and aggression are the "agents of tyranny and brute power. They have no place in the last third of the 20th century." The role of America is "the building, the organizing of the peace." Peace is the minimum requirement of civilized mankind.

The major commitment of the United States is the one to freedom and peace; through the pacts and alliances into which the United States has entered comes the commitment to Viet Nam and the pursuit of peace and the prevention of successful aggression.

"We have a moral obligation to extend . . . fellowship, help, and assistance. What would be the morality of a nation which devoted its riches only to itself, or regarded freedom in one part of the world as less precious than in another? Any nation that uses its power only for its own — that nation will have a sad future."

Humphrey left the Capitol with a smile on his face, not about to be disturbed by protesters.

Unlike many politicians, he appears to have a true faith in the democratic process.

International Postal Rates Up

An increase in international surface and airmail rates will go into effect Monday, May 1.

The new international rates, he said, will not apply to mailings for members of the Armed Forces overseas. Domestic postage rates are applicable to mail addressed through APO's and FPO's.

The rate increases for both surface and airmail — averaging 13% — were first proposed on January 14 and publicly confirmed on March 1. The Department explained at that time that they were needed to help offset a deficit of about $18 million in international mail operations.

This was the first general increase in international rates since July, 1961.

- The increases are:
1. Airmail letters to Central America and Caribbean area from 13 cents a half ounce to 15 cents.
 2. Airmail to the rest of the Western Hemisphere remains 15 cents a half ounce, except for Canada and Mexico.
 3. Airmail to Europe and Mediterranean Africa from 15 cents a half ounce to 20 cents.
 4. Airmail letter rates to the rest of the world remain unchanged at 25 cents a half ounce.

5. Aerogrammes and air post cards increased 2 cents each from 11 cents to 13 cents.

6. Items sent by air, other than letters and parcels, such as small packages, books, periodicals and other printed matter increased 10 cents per piece to all countries except Canada.

7. Most letters going by surface transportation to all nations (excluding Canada and Mexico) increased from 11 cents to 13 cents. Post cards raised from 7 cents to 8 cents.

8. Most printed matter, including publications, increased one cent a piece. For 2nd class publications to Canada only, the one cent increase will be deferred for six months to become effective November 1, 1967. Also, the present bundling rate which permits postage to be computed on the bulk weight of packages of publications addressed to Canadian post offices will remain in effect until November 1, 1968, at which time it will be discontinued.

9. Surface parcel post rates to all nations increased 20 cents a parcel, an average of 7 %.

Driver Fitness Affects Accidents

Auto accidents don't just happen. They are caused. An overwhelming proportion of them are caused by some human element. Sometimes this human element involves a driver with a physical or emotional condition that makes him a less than ideal driver. You may think you are in good health. You may have an excellent safety record. Yet, under certain circumstances, it can be dangerous for you to be in the driver's seat, says a pamphlet of the American Medical Association.

Doctors agree that the emotional stability of the driver is as important as any single factor in maintaining traffic safety. That's why you owe it to others — and to yourself — not to drive when you have serious problems on your mind. If you are thinking about that argument you have before you left in a depressed or angry "I-don't care-what-happens" mood; if you're very worried about a personal problem... you're better off not driving.

The sleepy driver causes many accidents. In fact, a sleepy driver is as much of a hazard as a drinking one. Dozing at the wheel can occur in broad daylight as well as at night. When making long trips rest every two hours and drink coffee or cola to stay alert. Next time you feel the least bit drowsy while driving, pull up and rest up.

Research proves that many medicines, not just a few, can affect the way in which you normally used drugs such as aspirin, antihistamines, cold tablets and mild sedatives may dull your reflexes or impair your coordination. Stimulants can make you nervous. Tranquilizing drugs can cloud your judgment and interfere with driving skills. Consult your doctor about the side effects of any drugs you take. Don't drive until you know that the medicine or drugs you take won't affect your driving.

It goes without saying that alcohol and gasoline are a dangerous combination. You don't have to be drunk to be dangerous. Even a small amount of alcohol can impair judgment and reactions of many persons.

Driving calls for clear, healthy eyesight, side vision, judgment of distance and the ability to see well at night. Have your eyes tested regularly. If you have glasses for distance vision, don't forget to wear them.

If you have a nervous disorder, or a heart condition, or diabetes, ask your doctor whether you are a safe driver. This also applies as you get older. Past 65, reflexes and coordination tend to be a little slower.

The five best jockeys in purse money won in 1966 were Braulio Baeza, Willie Shoemaker, John Rotz, Walter Blum and Bobby Ussery.

YHT Looks Into Future

By Mrs. Argen Draper
Home Demonstration Agent

Ray Simpson served Friday as official host to the Area I Young Homemakers. He seemed to thoroughly enjoy the assignment, too. The eight electric co-ops in the Panhandle South Plains sponsored the meeting which was very inspirational.

Ruth Dobbs, president, her committees and advisors had the meeting well planned and it turned out well.

Dr. Jean Rankin, pediatrician, said, "Repeated failure is the most destructive force to accpetive behavior." This can be applied to all age persons.

"Leadership — In the Home, In the Family, In the Community," was ably handled by Dr. Roy McClung, President of Wayland College. He says that all things both good and bad don't just happen, that they are made to happen and that all events, international to the nearest, affect each individual.

He gave examples of the family budget, personal identification and even personal dress. He said that the personal involvement in action is not optional, but that all persons have to get involved. We are involved in the history — making process.

Here's Dr. McClung's four points: 1) Accept citizenship; 2) learn the issues; 3) Practice the art of positive self-expression; 4) Find others who are interested and commit self to the cause. By following these, individuals can be guiding force in society.

MRS. NANCY MORKEL, retired Home Economist with Lighthouse Electric Cooperative was, as usual, very popular at the meeting. Nancy has been helpful in forming a lasting foundation for Young Homemakers of Area I.

Nancy sent her regards to the Jim Harts, Mrs. Annie Gunnells, all the Tom Halls, O. R. Sanders, Raymond Holts, Lynn Pittards and other friends who have moved from Floyd County.

SOME PROGRAMS showed what is to come. The streamlined kitchen, electronic oven, and dishwasher in the center of the table are all interesting, but the thing that is most appealing is the robot that sometime will clean house, fold itself up and put itself away. Are there any who want on the waiting order list?

Within the last year, 37 percent of refrigerators were copper and avocado color was second in sales.

A REVIEW ON SOLID state electronic controls. Solid state electronic controls have invaded the home appliance market and are bringing revolutionary changes in this field.

Some recent developments incorporating solid state electronics in home appliances include: Speed control for various portable mixers to maintain desired speed in spite of batter thickness. Programmed blenders that automatically combine time and speed mixing of recipes.

Increased use of cordless appliances using solid state battery chargers. An improved solid state converter for recharging batteries will result in more such appliances, such as the vacuum cleaner.

Laundry equipment featuring a hand washing setting, a continuous range of speeds all suited to different fabrics. Such speed controls were difficult before solid state.

Permanent press materials call for new methods of washing and drying. The new electronic clothes dryness control on recent models provides a means for turning off the dryer based on actual moisture content of clothes, preventing wrinkles.

Solid state thermostats for gas electric and oil heat are expected to grow in use. They will increase comfort by tailoring air flow to each room.

MANY PEOPLE ARE talking about how much has taken place at the Bull Barn. From a survey it was learned that in an eleven-day period, eight different groups used one or both facilities. It totaled approximately 5431 persons. This is simply amazing. It has

Savings Bonds Sales Recorded

During the first quarter of 1967 the citizens of Deaf Smith county purchased $39,970 in Series E and H United States Savings Bonds, according to a report received from Robert Thompson, Chairman of County Savings Bonds Committee. 33 per cent of the 1967 goal of $120,000 has been achieved.

During the first three months of 1967 the sale of U. S. Savings Bonds in Texas totaled $42,572,284. This is an increase of 10 per cent over the same period of 1966 and 23 per cent of the state's goal of $181.3 million.

"The new Freedom Shares which go on sale May 1, 1967, will be issued to individuals only with the simultaneous purchase of Series E Bonds on the Payroll Savings plan or Bond-A-Month plan at your bank. These new notes will have the same tax deferral privilege as the E Bond. Payment of income tax on the interest may be deferred to redemption or maturity, and the interest is not subject to state or local income taxes," Chairman Thompson pointed out.

Motels were the favorite for overnight accommodations by the highway traveler. However, the commercial travel and convention group favored the centrally-located downtown hotels.

Junior Cotillion

DANCING LESSONS are fun for members of the Junior Cotillion, who completed a series of 16 classes last evening and are looking forward to their spring dance at Community Center next Friday. It will be a hobo party for members and their guests.

FUN IN CLASS is evident in these candid shots made during a recent lesson in Hereford Country Club. Lewis Larimore of Amarillo is the teacher, who has initiated the junior high-age girls and boys into ballroom etiquette as well as dance steps. They learn conventional dances, then spend the last half hour of each class period in dances currently popular with teenagers.

FOR THE PARTY Friday, Mrs. H. A. Caviness is chairman with Mrs. Ed Lines, Mrs. Glenn Watts and Mrs. Calvin Goodin on the committee. Mrs. J. W. Robinson is general chairman of the parents' committee which supervises the Cotillion and Mrs. Bill Waldrop is chairman of chaperones. Parents serve in turn during the year as chaperones at lessons and special dances such as the Christmas party.

Guest Speaker Tells Club Of IAHP Program

Treatment of handicapped children through the patterning program developed by the Institute for Achievement of Human Potential was explained to members of West Hereford Home Demonstration Club by a guest, Bill Brady, at a recent meeting.

The speaker, who has visited the IAHP center at San Antonio and was instrumental in bringing the program here and obtaining the Revisit Center which will soon be opened here, told of the theory of using exercises to aid brain-damaged children and adults.

He told of cases in which the program had greatly helped such persons.

Three prominent Americans representing the fields of education, youth work and government have been named as national judges for "Young America Speaks and Acts," national scholarship program of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, by Mrs. Glenn C. White, South Bend, Ind., Auxiliary national president.

Judging panel is composed of the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh C. S. C., Notre Dame, Ind., president, University of Notre Dame, Mrs. Holton R. Price Jr., St. Louis Mo., national president, Girl Scouts of the U. S. A.; and Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, Seattle, Wash., member of the U. S. House of Representatives.

"Young America Speaks and Acts" scholarship program emphasizes good citizenship activities. National entries will be judged on four factors: (1) service to home, school, church and community; (2) demonstrated leadership qualities; (3) sense of purpose and future goals; (4) answers to three questions on American citizenship and education.

The judges will choose winners of three national scholarships and 10 honorable mention citations from entries placing first in state competitions. First-place award is a $1,000 scholarship and gold medal; second place, $500 scholarship and gold medal; third place, $250 scholarship and gold medal. Winners will be announced in August at the V. F. W. Auxiliary national convention in New Orleans, La.

Competition for national scholarships was opened to all students attending private, parochial or public high schools.

V. F. W. Auxiliary members annually give more than $3 million to volunteer service for hospitalized veterans, community service, Americanism programs, assistance to youth groups, civil defense, and legislation benefiting veterans and their families. Members are the wives, mothers, sisters, daughters, granddaughters and widows of veterans who have served overseas in the U. S. Armed forces, or women who themselves have had overseas service.

Drain canned small white onions and heat in a skillet with a little brown sugar, butter and water until the onions are nicely glazed. Good to serve with pork chops.

Mrs. Penner Club Corps Heads Study

Banners, clogans, speeches, parades and all the trappings of a political convention were burlesqued at the election party given by Madre Mia Study Club this week, when the one serious bit of business was election of 1967-68 officers.

Each candidate had a campaign manager who staged a five-minute skit with characters ranging from go-go girls to society dowagers. Tags and cards were distributed, guitars played and songs sung to woo the voters.

Mrs. Harvey Penner won the president's race and will succeed Mrs. John E. Smith in the office when officers for next season are installed at a dinner in the Caison House May 11.

Mrs. Ben Scott was named vice president, Mrs. John Cranford secretary, Mrs. Don Taylor treasurer, Mrs. James Gentry parliamentarian, Mrs. Ray Don King historian and Mrs. Eugene Sparks reporter.

The meeting was in Pioneer Gas Blue Flame Room, with Meses. Hershel Black, Bill Lankford and Dean Herring as hostesses.

legislation passed in 1925 and in 1951, respectively.

I do not understand why fifty percent of Texas' hospitals would be closed if these bills meet with the approval of the legislators in Austin.

The public should be comforted to know that the nurses giving nursing care meet with basic educational requirements set down by law. Licensure is a legal protection for the consumer, sick persons in this instance.

There is no bill in Congress to eliminate LVNs. I foresee that there will always be positions available for licensed vocational nurses of today. May I suggest that you re-read the proposed legislation.

Six Flags Opens Season

Six Flags Over Texas will begin its 1967 season on Saturday, April 29.

The announcement came from Angus G. Wynne, Jr., President of Great Southwest Corporation, owner-operator of the famed 115-acre historical-theme entertainment park located midway between Dallas and Fort Worth.

During the spring, Six Flags Over Texas will be open on Fridays from 5 p. m. to 11 p. m. and on Saturdays and Sundays from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Starting May 26 and continuing through Labor Day, the Park will be open seven days a week from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Following Labor Day and until the season closes October 29, Six Flags will operate on Saturdays and Sundays only from 10 a.

m. to 8 p. m.

The Run-A-Way Mine Train ride, key project in the $1,000,000 expansion of the Boom Town Section of the Park which was begun last season, has been completed over the winter months. The ride, one of the most exciting ever developed, was introduced to visitors on a limited basis near the end of the season, while work continued on the project.

An attendance milestone will also be reached during the forthcoming season, as Six Flags anticipates welcoming its ten-millionth visitor sometime during the month of August. The Park, which opened in 1961, has already counted over 8.5 million visitors.

The Overtaxed Tax System

It seems all but forgotten that the Constitution gave Congress the power to levy taxes in order "to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare." In the ensuing generations the tax system and its aims have been pulled and hauled far beyond the original intent.

Every year there are individuals and organizations who would reshape the system still more, usually to serve some social or political design. Among the latest of these is Senator Ribicoff of Connecticut; he wants to give Americans a tax credit of up to $325 for each college student they support. While the proposal isn't likely to get anywhere this year, it's at least as acceptable as some features already written into the law.

In the first place the measure is surely well-intended. The nation in the years ahead will require a growing supply of college-educated people. Backers of the plan feel that it will help make sure that the supply is equal to the demand.

The college-financing scheme thus is similar to the tax credit granted businessmen for investments in plant and equipment. That credit was meant to spur the economy to create enough jobs to employ all those who wanted them. (This program, too successful for its own good, was suspended last fall; ironically, the college-aid proposal is now a rider to the bill to restore the investment credit.)

Naturally, the tax system can be used to discourage people from doing things as well as spurring them on. It has been or is being used as a weapon to fight the drug traffic, gambling and other real or imagined social ills.

One trouble with this approach is that, politics being what it is, the tax system often has been twisted to suit pressure groups rather than the general public and its welfare. Remember the 10-cents-a-pound tax on the sale of colored margarine in interstate commerce? Congress merely caved in before the dairy lobbyists, with little thought to the wishes of the average citizen.

For all of the power of taxes, moreover, tax gimmicks frequently fail almost completely to achieve their stated aims. The margarine levy may have slowed oleo's rise, but it certainly didn't stop it; economical housewives either used the stuff white or colored it themselves.

There are reasons to suspect that the college-financing plan also would be less than a complete success. With tuition rates high and rising, $325 a year will not assure every capable lad or lass of a college education. On the other hand, it may be enough to push into higher education some students who would be much better off in job-training programs.

And by offering at least a certain amount of subsidy to parents with annual income as high as $57,000 a year (the top on a sliding-scale basis), the plan would help many people who need no help at all. The tax system is simply too big and too clumsy an instrument to be turned to sophisticated tasks of social change.

If Congress decides that a particular problem needs Federal attention better ways can usually be found than yet another twist in the tax law. One example of this is the tax credit for business investment.

Though the credit was better than nothing (and never should have been suspended), it would have been much simpler and probably just as effective to further ease depreciation rules. There is no fundamental reason why each businessman should not be allowed to determine the period during which he will write off a certain type of equipment; plainly he's better qualified for the job than some accountant in Washington.

Perhaps the most important objection to tax gimmicks is that all too often they create new inequities. The temptation then is great to tinker with the system anew. So inequities are piled on inequities, complexities on complexities. The trouble could be eased, of course, if the Government made some effort to hold taxes — and spending — at reasonable levels; one purpose of the levies, after all, was to pay Federal debts.

We have no confidence that there will be any significant move in that direction soon. Before lawmakers come up with still more gimmicks, however, we hope they will remember that the tax system, and not just the public, is pretty badly overtaxed.

America, Vietnam And History

There is not an American who does not wish, as did Stephen Decatur in his famous toast, that our country might always be right—that all our wars, if we have to make war, be just; that every government we ally ourselves with be pure and above suspicion; that every time we wield our massive weight in world affairs it be in the furtherance of human freedom.

Many voices are being heard today, however, especially in the academic community, crying that America is not only not in the right in Vietnam but is willfully in the wrong — that we are wrong there, that we were wrong in the Dominican Republic, that we were wrong in Cuba, that we have been wrong just about everywhere else.

We have stepped beyond the practical uses of our power, charges historian Henry Steele Commager, and have embarked on a crusade to "democratize" the world in our image whether the world likes it or not. We justify our war with Mexico in the name of "manifest destiny," but we ignore the fact that Red China restrained itself from going to war with India in their border dispute. We assert a vital interest in Southeast Asia, but deny Russia the same vital interest in Cuba, he says.

What is really curious is to hear an American historian equate American history with Chinese and Russian, the American Revolution with Bolshevik. We had thought there was a fundamental difference between the ideal which have motivated America for 178 years and those which motivate the Communists.

It is an interesting footnote to history that Karl Marx defended America's role in the Mexican War. It will be more than a footnote when history records what the Red Chinese have done to Tibet. Americans have been wrong often enough, heaven knows, and our history books should honestly reflect this. But if Johnson equals Khrushchev equals Mao Tse-tung, if there is no real difference between them, then our national soul is indeed in peril.

The fact is that we cannot tolerate Communist bases in the Western Hemisphere simply because free men cannot tolerate the kind of world order the Communist would impose were they able to. We do not support the status quo but try to work with whatever governments exist because we believe that helping them defend themselves against communism offers the only hope that they will eventually evolve democratically. In so doing, we may commit wrongs that in the balance scale may or may not outweigh the good we set out to do. It would be fine if we could avoid these problems, if we could bring the boys home, if we could stay comfortably in the right by minding our own domestic business.

Impersonal Life

A Harvard University professor, Dr. Leona Baumgartner, has warned that medical care is becoming more "dehumanized." And so it is.

Perhaps it is inevitable that medical care will become more and more impersonal with the increase of medical knowledge and with specialization in medicine. And perhaps who has been lost of the "human element" in medicine has been more than made up for by vastly superior medical treatment.

But Dr. Baumgartner may have a good answer when she suggests that medical school should be able to teach doctors and nurses to be both scientific and compassionate in their approach to people. Why, one wonders, must the two be mutually exclusive?

In fairness to doctors, however, it must be admitted that the trend to increasing impersonalization is not restricted to medical care. It can be noted in many other areas of our lives. In our larger cities, one can wander downtown all day without ever seeing a familiar face. And we frequently do not know the family living three doors down the street.

In a department store you buy a coat from this man (and hurry up about it, there are others waiting), shoes from another man, and shirt from a third. The personal touch is rapidly disappearing.

The result of it is that by avoiding any real involvement with people one may begin to regard another person as "something" rather than "somebody."

Perhaps this is part of the reason medical care is becoming "dehumanized" — because we no longer really expect anything else. Maybe when we expect it, we'll demand it, and when we demand it, get it. —Medicine Hat (Alta.) News

MAIN STREET, USA

Flash Floods Cause Loss Of Property And Water

By BERT MILLS
WASHINGTON D. C. — Springtime is flood time for many Americans who live close to rivers. Every year 75,000 people are driven from their homes and in an average year 80 are killed as the result of floods.

In bad years, property damage from floods tops the $1 billion mark. Floods also waste countless tons of water, and water is a priceless national resource. It is impossible to assess the benefits that could accrue if the water wasted in floods could be put to productive use.

The Federal government has a variety of flood control programs but Mother Nature still has her way and there are hundreds of destructive floods each year. By no means do all of them occur in the spring. Flash floods can and do occur at any season.

The Weather Bureau, now part of the Environmental Sciences Service Administration, maintains a round-the-clock and round-the-calendar watch on the nation's rivers and issues flood warnings which save lives and minimize property damage.

Flood warnings from ESSA can offer only one time — time to allow people to evacuate low-lying areas, time to move property and livestock to high ground, time to shore up levees with sandbags. Water level predictions are made for more than 1,600 points on rivers across the country.

Community Warnings Systems Needed

About 100 communities have set up flash flood warning systems, with the aid of the Weather Bureau. Thousands more communities should establish such systems, ESSA believes, and it is neither expensive nor difficult to do.

The primary need is advance planning. A volunteer network of rainfall and river observation stations needs to be set up, and a flood warning representative designated to collect information from the observation stations.

The Weather Bureau provides a series of graphs showing under what conditions of soil moisture and rainfall a flash flood is likely to occur. The local representative can prepare a flood forecast and spread a warning within minutes, using radio, television, sirens, and other signals.

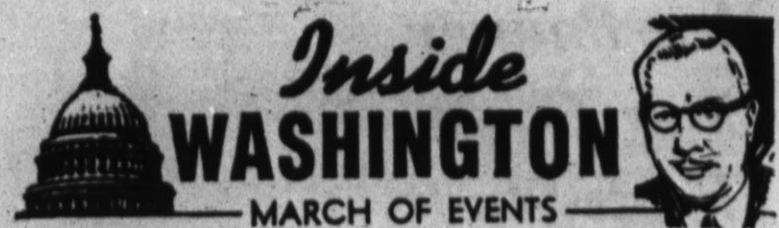

Flash floods are most likely to occur on small streams, especially near the headwaters of river basins. Water levels may rise rapidly in heavy rainstorms and flash floods can occur even before the rain stops falling. Swift action is imperative to protect life and property.

The advantage of a community flash flood warning system is that the mechanism is all established before a crisis is threatened. There is one central source of information and a designated person authorized to issue warnings. Communications media have a reliable source of information and can allay fears based on rumors.

Safety Rules Listed

From information collected by various government agencies, by insurance companies and by the American National Red Cross, ESSA has compiled a list of 20 flood safety rules. They are contained in a 10-cent pamphlet available from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20401. The pamphlet is entitled "Floods and Flood Warnings."

The safety rules include seven steps to take before a flood, three for adoption after a warning, three others to follow during a flood, and seven which apply after the flood. The most important rule, which should be observed throughout any flood emergency, is to stay tuned to a local radio or television station to receive the latest information.

THAT PAY RAISE BILL BELIEVED SURE THING

COST OF INCREASE SEEN $1.2 BILLION ANNUALLY

By HENRY CATHCART

Central Press Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—President Johnson has proposed a pay raise for government civilian and military employees that undoubtedly will be approved by Congress, and very probably "improved" by raising the ante a little. Mr. Johnson has proposed increases that will cost the government about $1.2 billion a year.

The level of pay for government "servants" has always been a matter of political contention. Republicans and Democrats have backed increases when each was in political control, and then the party in opposition has maintained the raises were, at least in part, a way of winning over the sizeable Civil Service vote. Undoubtedly, these allegations have contained a degree of truth.

In the last few years, proponents of pay increases have injected a new element into their bag of arguments—something called "comparability." The word is used to describe the relative pay levels of individuals in government and in private industry who perform similar work. At present, so the elaborately researched argument goes, federal employees are paid anywhere from 7.2 to 20 per cent less than their private industry counterparts. These figures are not based on pay alone, but include all so-called "fringe benefits."

It may be true that some individuals and some whole classes of employees receive less pay than their opposite numbers in private industry, but it is also true that the matter of real job security makes up for some of this occasional discrepancy. Further, the continuing growth in the federal payroll disturbingly implies that the productivity of private employees may exceed that of government employees, taken as a whole. If productivity levels are included, undoubtedly that range of percentage of differential would be lessened and probably disappear.

We doubt that the pay raise bill will be defeated in Congress, or that its enactment will serve to increase the work output of government.

ASSASSINATION BY COMPUTER—Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher, D-N.J., is chairman of the House subcommittee on invasion of privacy. And right now the "invasion" that chiefly concerns him is the combination of credit bureaus and the electronic computer.

Computers, he says, enable rapid assimilation and tabulation of the credit ratings of nearly 70 million people. He fears that unscrupulous use of this information, particularly if it is erroneous, incomplete, or outdated, can injure a man by destroying his credit standing.

The day may already have arrived when a man's credit standing has been impaired by human error in the processing of information. For a person with no credit, it is hard to buy and impossible to borrow. Worse yet, when a man's credit standing is damaged, so is his employability.

50 YEARS AGO

A good representation of the local high school body attended the district interscholastic meet at Canyon Saturday. The track team carried off two first and six seconds among the honors distributed. Frank Stegall won first in the 50 yard dash and Bob Wilson first in the high jump. Amarillo took the loving cup.

On April 19th, the City Commission opened the bids which it had previously invited for paving approximately 25,000 square yards of the city streets. There were six bidders and the Commission accepted the bid of F. P. McCormick, of Kansas City. The bid accepted was for paving with Asphaltic Macadam and included the construction of a six inch macadam base out of local material and a two-inch wearing surface composed of asphalt and hard crushed trap rock, mixed together and put on the base and rolled to make a smooth compact surface.

Following a few light showers and coming with a cold northeast wind, snow began to fall at Hereford last Saturday night at about 9 o'clock. Sunday morning everything was covered with a heavy mantle of pure white "down of the skies." The trees, many of them in full leaf, were simply borne down under the weight of the heavy snow. Large limbs were broken off and many of the trees badly damaged. The measurements made by different persons will average seven inches, though it is thought that as much as nine inches fell during the night.

In conversation with a number of citizens this week, none talked more interestingly and earnestly about the attitude of the banks than Henry Wilkinson, President of The First State Bank & Trust Company. To a reporter for the Brand, he stated that few realized just what part the banks of the country would play in this world-wide struggle of arms. "In this mighty conflict," he went on to say, "the financial institutions have their part to perform just as much as the army and the navy, just as much as the soldiers in the trenches. The financing of the army and navy will be done by the general government but back of it, there stands the resources of the entire country — the product of the farm and ranch. The farmer and the ranchman will need money and the small country bank is his first and only chance to get the needed help."

25 YEARS AGO

Annual meeting of members of the Deaf Smith County REA is being held this afternoon at the Texas Theatre where the program consists of a review of the year's activities and making of plans for the coming year.

Two motion pictures, "Aluminum," showing the important place of this metal in the war program, and "Power for Defense," outlining the part of the electric power industry in stepping up war production, will be shown, and members will vote on important matters of business of the association.

The music department of the Hereford Public Schools continues to rank among the highest in this section of the state as the result of records made at the Amarillo Contest last week.

The High School Band was graded "1" (a rating meaning a grade of 95 or more) on concert playing, sight reading and marching. The Grade School Band also rated "1" in concert playing, the only contest open to bands in this division; and the High School Orchestra rated "1", receiving this rating for the first time in several years.

Potato prospects looked good in the Hereford irrigated district this week, as many farmers announced that their early crop was already planted and moisture received in the past two weeks had been valuable to farmers in saving irrigation bills.

Potato allotment for Deaf Smith County is 2,372 acres, but the actual acreage is expected to exceed this figure considerably even though some farmers will probably not use their entire allotment.

SECRETARIAL HONOR — Thelma Lamm, office secretary for Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce, shows her boss, Chamber manager Bill Thompson, the citation presented to her when Hereford Chapter of the National Secretaries Association chose her as Secretary of the Year and honored her at a luncheon during National Secretaries Week. She is wearing the corsage of red roses which accompanied the recognition.

Texas To Have Noted Singer

Andrew White, a singer of national repute, is to do the role of Uncle Henry in the "TEXAS" production in the Palo Duro Canyon this summer. He is one of the foremost oratorio singers in the United States and has appeared with the principal oratorio societies in the nation and with many of the major orchestras. Equally gifted in drama, White was the leading baritone for the St. Paul opera company and for the New York City Center Company. He is often sought after to fill the role of "ELIJAH" when that oratorio is dramatized, and will sing it this spring in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida with a chorus of a thousand voices. White is the head of the Voice department at Baylor University.

Although the cast has not been released for the 1967 season, and cannot be for a week or so more, the directors are making this announcement in advance of the others in order to present White in a preview of the production for the legislators on Austin. The people of the panhandle are entertaining the senators and representatives at a fish fry on April 25 and White will appear at that time. He will sing several numbers and will include among them the theme song from the show in the canyon, "TEXAS FOREVER." Representatives of the staff and members of the former casts will act as hosts and hostesses and distribute viewlets with pictures of the theatre in 3D in them as favors to the guests.

The directors consider it fortunate that Mr. White is available to present this theme song as other songs he has introduced have become famous. When with the Fred Waring Band, it was his privilege to be the first to sing the Army Air Corps Song which is now the official song of the Army Air Corps.

Although much of Mr. White's career has been in the east, he grew up in the west and attended the University of Arizona. He is a good horseman — served in the cavalry and taught equitation at his alma mater. With his fine singing voice, his western background and wide acting experience, White will bring an interesting new dimension to the role of "Uncle Henry" in the "TEXAS" production. During the first season of the musical, Jerry Ballew created the role, coming up from the

Water Wardens Being Hired

AUSTIN — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department announced plans to add fifty cadet wardens to serve with the new water safety patrol.

Robert G. Mauermann, Deputy Executive Director, said the extra crew will be in addition to the expanded personnel specially trained and outfitted for last year's initial services under the 1965 state act designed to safeguard the mushrooming water sports trade.

The Department said creation of the new warden manpower category is in keeping with the policy adopted last year when the regular warden training quotas were doubled. Now two classes of warden trainees, who received six months special instruction at Texas A&M University are commissioned each year.

Mauermann said the cadet wardens will be drilled in safety basics and will be ready for duty for the summer rush. The apprentices judged to be qualified on the basis of their summer activities will be eligible to take the regular warden career courses next fall.

Under the water safety act, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is held responsible for patrolling all waters, including lakes, rivers, streams and coastal waters of the Gulf.

Mauermann said applicants for the cadet training must be between 21-40 years of age, have good moral character, a high school education or equivalent, be in good physical condition with a minimum 20/40 correctable to 20/20 vision, a minimum of five feet eight inches of height with proportionate weight between two and three pounds per inch of height, one-year residency in Texas, a U. S. citizen, and pass a written and oral examination.

Qualified men should contact the nearest office of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for detailed information. Regional offices are in Waco, Tylr, La Porta, Rockport, and San Angelo.

Beat a leftover egg white until foamy; gradually beat in a couple of tablespoons of sugar; continue to beat until very stiff. Use this uncooked meringue as a garnish for chocolate pudding.

NSA Honors Its Woman Of Year

Chosen by Yellow-members in the Hereford Chapter, National Secretaries Association, Thelma Lamm was presented as Secretary of the Year at a luncheon Wednesday observing National Secretaries Day.

A national week for women in secretarial posts closed Saturday, and was marked with special events by the local NSA Chapter, climaxed by the luncheon.

Avis Northcutt, president of the chapter in its first year in Hereford, revealed Mrs. Lamm as members' choice for the honor and presented her with a plaque and with a corsage of roses which her employer, Bill Thompson, Chamber of Commerce manager, pinned on.

Employers of chapter members were luncheon guests, as were other secretaries in Hereford offices. Florence Robinson, vice president, welcomed the guests. Jean Kennedy, president elect, was master of ceremonies. Leo Forrest was the speaker giving a brief tribute to the secretary, who, he said, has the responsibility of setting the image of the firm which employs her. Entertainment was by Don Chaney, playing guitar accompaniment as he sang folk songs including his own compositions.

NSA colors, red and gold, were brought to the tables in bouquets of red roses and yellow mums. Blooms of snowball bush were placed down the length of the red tablecloths.

A BIOGRAPHY OF A SINGER

"When I cry (as I sing) I'm not sad like some people think. I look back where I came from and I rejoice" is a statement made by Mahalia Jackson in her biography Movin' On Up. The title of the book is also the name of one of her favorite songs and it tells the story of her life from the bottom of the ladder to the top in a success story. She has a co-author, Evan McLeod Wyle.

Miss Jackson has reached the pinnacle of success by singing fifth in mile run. Emmett Robbins took the group to Lubbock. Donnie Hoagland will enter state contests in shorthand.

Funeral services for Mrs. F. O. Masten, 78, were held Thursday in the Wellington Church of Christ. Grandol Forehand, minister of the Dalhart Church of Christ, officiated. Burial was in the North Wellington Cemetery. The Mastens own ranches in Deaf Smith and Oldham Counties.

Mrs. Masten died Wednesday in her home after a long illness. She was a native of Breckenridge, the former Lily McCorkle who married F. O. Masten Aug. 20, 1913, in Quanah. They moved to Collingsworth County in 1918.

Mrs. Masten was active in church and community work. Mr. and Mrs. Masten in 1924, won the Dallas Morning News and Texas A&M University award for the highest cotton production in the state. In 1925, they won the same award for the most valuable five acres of cotton in Texas. In 1928, they were named Master Farmers of Texas.

Survivors are her husband and three sisters, Mrs. Jess O' Hair of Elk City, Okla., Mrs. E. L. Lewis of Quanah and Mrs. Molly Garrettson of Wellington.

gospel songs. She learned to sing with feeling in her home in Louisiana when a small girl. She has developed her own style of singing through the years in spite of all efforts to change it by others, one of whom was her first husband. He was an educated man and wanted her to sing in concerts and operas. To please him she did try out and won a part in an opera but was so utterly miserable she would not follow through. This was the thing that finally brought about their divorce.

In time, as she kept working with the churches and her way of singing gospel songs, she did gain recognition for style and ability. She had only one lesson in her life and it was another effort to change her way of singing to a more formal style. She still refused to do this, as she wanted to sing as she felt was her own way of expressions.

She claims that doing television programs are the hardest of all the singing she does, as so many people are involved, also the presenting of different arrangements. Dinah Shore was the nicest of all persons she worked with in this media, she says.

Best of all she loved to sing on concert tours over the United States and foreign countries. She traveled with only her manager and her piano-accompanist, Mildred Falls. The three of them had wonderful times traveling by car in the states. Later, though she did not like to fly, she did so in Europe because of the time element.

Article Gives Farmers Water Saving Ideas

Irrigation farmers will be interested in the article, "Here's How To Stretch Your Water," in the May issue of The Progressive Farmer magazine. Declining water supplies make it necessary for producers to extend their water supply as long as possible through management practices.

Some suggestions to conserve valuable water are the following:

- (1) Don't overwater. The water need not penetrate deeper than the soil root zone.

(2) Time the irrigations when they will be of most value to each crop. In addition to pre-plant irrigation for cotton, the most important time is peak bloom. Critical stages of grain sorghum are at boot, bloom, and soft-dough. Soybeans need water at bloom and 20 days later. Best water use for what is pre-plant jointing, boot and heading stages.

(3) Irrigation patterns and methods may save water and still get maximum yields. Skip-row of cotton cuts down on water. Narrow-row spacing may increase grain sorghum yields. Alternate-row irrigation also increases water efficiency. Bench leveling has increased production with half the water in some areas.

Ever add a little rum flavoring and some plumped raisins to vanilla pudding? Serve in sherbet or parfait glasses and top with whipped cream and grated orange rind.

Mechanical Pecan Harvester Works

COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M University has produced a mechanical pecan harvester that may eliminate much of the hand labor in gathering the crop.
The university said the new unit picked up 500 pounds of nuts per hour in tests. An eight-hour harvest day would result in about 4,000 pounds, where a man can harvest only about 150 pounds a day.
There is more to the fast harvest than the saving of labor. The harvester can help get nuts to market earlier for the Thanksgiving and Christmas demand. And it means less chance of loss to squirrels and crows.
Surprisingly, also, the machine is more efficient than hand labor. In one test, reported by W. H. Aldred of the university's department of agricultural engineering, the machine picked up 94 per cent of the pecans on the ground. A laborer picking pecans by hand gets only about 70 per cent.
Before using the harvester, an ordinary mechanical tree shaker is used to bring the nuts to the ground.
The picking unit is tractor takeoff. It looks something like a cross between a corn picker and a hay baler.
It has flexible 10-inch rubber fingers mounted around a drum that rotates near the ground. The fingers sweep the pecans from the ground up into the machine and a fan immediately blows away leaves and trash.
The nuts and heavier trash travel on a conveyor and the nuts drop through slots while the larger trash falls on the ground. The nuts are carried to a burlap bag.
The nuts still have some trash. An additional cleaning process is necessary. A stationary cleaner seems to work best and where needed, one person can remove any remaining foreign material.
The unit can be a one-man job, but it works best with two. The second man rakes pecans away from the tree trunks and other obstacles.
A pre-cleaning of the ground beneath the tree by mechanical means may increase efficiency.
In check areas where no pre-cleaning was done, the machine picked up 80 per cent of the nuts.
In pre-cleaned areas, the machine picked nearly 93 per cent.
In further tests, the harvester was run over the ground a second time to determine how many of the missed pecans would be picked up with a second harvest. In two operations, it picked up as high as 93.3 per cent of all the nuts, but whether a second harvest is economically sound still is subject to experiments.
Turn out cakes and cookies on metal racks and allow to cool. If you turn out these baked products onto a plate or board steam may make them soggy.

Small Talk

By SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

It gave me cold chills the other day to see several old electric refrigerators setting in an alley behind an appliance sales-room here. They didn't stay there many days, but long enough for a child to have been shut in one fatally.

IT'S BEEN SOME TIME since we've heard of a tragic case of a child killed in an old icebox, but we shouldn't forget that it can happen — and has.

Unless the doors are removed, a refrigerator simply shouldn't be set outside where children might be playing, or passing by. Those too small to understand the danger may find it a tempting place to play, and be closed in to suffocate.

Seems to me that there is a state law concerning this, passed several years ago after a few deaths had occurred. But law or no, it's a matter we shouldn't be careless about, just because we've sort of forgotten the penalty for carelessness.

VISITORS WITH Mrs. William McGehee, 504 Miles, are her daughter, Mrs. Russell O. Hupp, and Mr. Hupp of Long Beach, Calif.

Katie McGehee, one of Hereford's most delightful old-timers admits that she will have another birthday soon but vows she will cling to the lady's privilege of not telling her age. In fact, after being honored by the United Church Women last year on her "39th" birthday, she has about decided to celebrate her 19th this spring.

WHEN CHAMBER OF Commerce manager Bill Thompson was asked to pin a corsage on Thelma Lamm's dress Wednesday when she was introduced as Secretary of the Year at the National Secretaries Association lunch, he reacted as a gentleman should.

No man really wants the job of handling a long, sharp pin and a bunch of flowers, but he gallantly tackled the task and was doing very well when there was a sudden cry of "Ouch!"

He must have had some practice somewhere, at pinning corsages; the cry was from Thompson, not his secretary, so the pin was at least aimed politely.

IRIS ARE IN BLOOM now all over town, but perhaps the biggest display is at the home of Mrs. Alex Thompson and it is certainly worth the detour to drive down the side street and see the acre or so of blossoms at the back of the house.

Early varieties are in full bloom now and many more are waiting to open. Mrs. Thompson has a number of varieties of the showy flowers, and en masse they make quite a spectacle about this time every year.
