Lawmen document seat belt law savings

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

During the warning period alone, 62 lives were spared by the Texas seat belt law.

For the ones who buckled up in the Panhandle, there was a 32.7 percent decrease in fatalities for the month of September, compared to those of September of last year.

"Texas traffic deaths are down 7 percent because of the seatbelt law," said Wayne Beighle, public information officer for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

With the grace period over, officers will be giving tickets if the driver is not buckled up.

Sergeant Billy Scott, of the local DPS office, said, "We've filed 106 tickets for not wearing seat belts in the three county (Deaf Smith, Oldham, and Parmer) area."

"We did issue warnings to out of state people that were not wearing seatbelts," he added.

But Texas residents can expect to receive a minimum fine of $25 and no more than $50 for not buckling up.

"We have probable cause to stop the vehicle if we don't see the lap belt and shoulder piece hanging across the shoulders," said Scott.

Scott estimated that Texas would be down six percent in fatalities in 1986.

"During the Christmas holiday, 15 were killed and seven of those were not wearing seat belts," he said. "Over the New Year, we had 17 people killed and only half of those people weren't wearing seat belts."

Everyday compliance is hard to learn after many years of not wearing a seat belt, Scott admitted. "We're hopeful and we feel like we're getting 80 percent compliance from the new law," said the sergeant.

He explained that this area had filed 1,370 total tickets and 106 of those were for not wearing seat belts.

Caydon Brush, Hereford police chief, said "We're not going out looking for people without seatbelts; if the officers see another traffic violation, they have the right to stop that vehicle."

Brush said he hasn't really stressed upon his officers to be writing a bunch of tickets for seat belts. "I ask that they use their own discrimination," he replied.

The police chief explained that he felt he and his officers were an example to the public.

"Being policemen, we're compelled to set a public example, but we are still trying to get used to the law," said Brush. "We've got to buckle up."

Brush did admit having forgotten to buckle up on a few occasions, but since then he has come up with a solution.

"I made a big note and laid it on my seat beside me to remember," said the chief.

All prison hostages free, 3 inmates dead

By MARTHA BRYSON HODEL
Associated Press Writer

MOUNDSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — Inmates "destroying everything in sight" remained in control of an outwardly calm West Virginia Penitentiary today after the slayings of three prisoners, but agreed to free the last of 16 hostages.

The body of a third inmate killed by fellow prisoners was removed from the prison this morning, officials said, a few hours before the scheduled release of the last seven hostages.

The settlement signed Thursday afternoon called for the last seven hostages to be released today and state control of the 120-year-old, fortress-like prison restored after nearly three days of rioting.

In return, inmates were promised amnesty and a meeting with Gov. Arch Moore to discuss grievances, officials said.

Thursday night, rioters swarmed through the penitentiary's main building, raided the hospital drug dispensary and went on a rampage, officials said.

Rioters swarmed through the penitentiary's main building Wednesday night, raided the hospital drug dispensary and went on a rampage, officials said.

"We understand there has been a lot of physical damage, rampage and wrecking, destroying everything in sight," said records clerk George Massie.

Six of the 13 hostages still held Thursday afternoon were freed after the negotiated settlement was signed by state officials and inmate representatives.

"You never think you're going to see your family after a thing like that," Maj. Edward Littell, 33, said after being released. "I did a lot of praying. I had a lot of people doing a lot of praying for me."

Moore's press secretary, John Price, said Thursday's release was a show of good faith and officials

White oil decision not detrimental, report says

AUSTIN (AP) — A legislative research group says shutting down "white oil" wells in the Panhandle would contribute to an economic decline in that region but not as much as has been forecast.

The House Study Group agreed Thursday in a report on the white oil dispute that some royalty owners and communities, especially in Carson and Gray counties, stand "to lose a considerable part of their tax base."

"But considering that white oil and illegally perforated wells represent only a fraction of all wells and all production in the Panhandle region, estimates that put the economic effect of a shutdown in the hundreds of millions of dollars in the next few years seem excessive," the group says.

It also said other economic impacts, such as reduced prices for natural gas sold to interstate pipelines, must be considered.

Even within Texas, the 45-page report said, there is the long-term likelihood of increased production and hence higher tax revenues from Panhandle Field gas wells if illicit casinghead-gas production is stopped.

"At the same time it is impossible to measure how much Panhandle business investment may already

Reagan meets today with de la Madrid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As President Reagan prepared to fly to Mexico today for a meeting with President Miguel de la Madrid, U.S. officials expressed concern that Mexico's long history of political stability could be disrupted by its increasingly powerful drug smuggling chiefs.

Reagan planned to stop off at the border town of Mexicali for the four-hour meeting as he returned to Washington following a weeklong New Year's vacation in California.

In written answers to questions from the Mexican news agency Noticias de Mexico, Reagan said narcotics trafficking and terrorism, which the administration contends are backed by Cuba and Nicaragua, "represent the most insidious and dangerous threats to the hemisphere today." The written answers were released here Thursday.

A senior U.S. official who briefed reporters Thursday said Mexico could soon find itself in a similar situation to Colombia, where he said political stability is being undercut by an alliance between narcotics smugglers and terrorists.

"That is something you will have to look at in the case of Mexico in the relatively near future," said the official, who insisted on anonymity.

"That could be something that could bring them into difficult straits even before the economic problems, which we may be able to solve."

The official said an estimated one-third of all cocaine shipments to the United States pass through Mexico. Another official said heroin traffic from Mexico also is on the increase.

In remarks prepared for an arrival ceremony in Mexicali, Reagan said the "good and decent people of both our countries have made a strong commitment to fight the scourge of narcotics and drug trafficking. This battle continues."

Reagan did not allude directly to U.S.-Mexican disagreements over Nicaragua, saying only that both Mexico and its northern neighbor are intensely interested in issues of regional peace and expansion of democracy in the hemisphere.

In the Thursday press briefing, the U.S. official said government corrup-

As we embark on a new year, it's always interesting to look back at what happened the past year. If you read over the yearend review published in Thursday's paper, you quickly realize that 1985 was remarkable—if for no other reason that Hereford had a record year in new construction starts despite the depressed economy.

Building permits issued in Hereford jumped to an unbelievable $11.3 million — far ahead of the previous record of $7.4 million in 1976. With much of the retail business construction carrying over into 1986, the outlook is encouraging for the business community. Two shopping centers are under construction; the new apartments on 15th street are near completion; a new flour mill is being constructed near Dawn, and the huge $97 million Valley View Energy plant is due to start construction soon.

Despite a year that saw the giant cattle feeding industry here suffer from low markets and farmers struggling to overcome production costs, our community appears to have fared better than most of comparable size. Farmers are not too encouraged with the new farm bill, but it may be better than some alternatives. Cattle feeders are looking for a better year—at least with more stable prices.

As we enter 1986, let's not be numbed by pronouncements of gloom. We in the Hereford community have a lot of assets and much potential. Let's make that hustlin' Hereford attitude evident in the new year!!

Phillips residents vote to meet with lawyer

PHILLIPS, Texas (AP) — Members of the Phillips Homeowners Association who voted to meet with an attorney and an oil company were told their group was like a "ship on rough seas, taking on a lot of water."

Association board president Melvin Lloyd made the comparison as 350 to 400 residents examined the issues before voting that the group should restart negotiations with Phillips Petroleum Co., the landlord for this company town facing mass eviction.

Residents voted 196 to 37 on Thursday to meet with Phillips officials "just for purposes of defining issues and positions." By a 1-vote margin, 107 to 106, residents also approved a meeting with Houston attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes' law firm before facing Phillips.

The vote was tabulated and announced shortly after 10 p.m. Members of the homeowners association did not receive their ballots before 8:45 p.m. because they were discussing the issues.

The decision to give homeowners a vote was made after nearly three hours of discussion at a Monday night board meeting that focused on whether the nine-member association board was conducting business in the best interests of the homeowners.

One who didn't think so was Roy Tinker, who along with 11 other residents conducted a weekend survey that asked whether residents would support Haynes in fighting to save "your home and community."

More than 220 of those surveyed said yes. But an attorney with Police also responded to three cases of criminal mischief, theft from a vehicle, assault, theft of a bicycle and a neighbor complaint.

Deputies investigating sheep deaths

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department is investigating the death of four sheep near Yucca Hills Thursday. The sheep were allegedly killed by dogs. Three other sheep were mauled and two were severely injured in the incident.

Deputies also heard reports Thursday of telephone harassment and the theft of a puppy valued at $100.

City sets agenda for Monday

Five business items and a closed session fill the agenda for the Hereford City Commission meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall.

One item commissioners will consider is use of the Fullwood Building, currently the temporary fire station, as a juvenile facility.

Also to be considered is a request of Herb Vogel to work out an agreement on animals within the city limits, the city's participation in the Texas Economic Development Commission, awarding a bid for a test hole for deep water well, and authorizing bids for a trash truck body.

A closed session will be called for discussion of pending litigation.

Voter registration pushed in state

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Secretary of State Myra McDaniel is mounting what she calls "the largest voter registration drive ever conducted by the secretary of state's office."

Ms. McDaniel announced Thursday that she would aim first at 18-year-olds by visiting six Dallas-area high schools Jan. 15-17 to persuade eligible students to register.

She said a concentrated effort is needed to get 18-year-olds involved in voting because "many of those who do not participate in the political process at 18 never participate."

"I hope to persuade them that registering and voting is extremely important," she said.

Ms. McDaniel said she would travel two or three days every week until the registration deadline. The last day to register for local elections in April is April 3.

The Department of Public Safety will have postage-free voter registration applications at its 145 drivers license stations around the state.

NAACP involved in school election

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — The president of the new local NAACP chapter says the group plans to form political action committees to field school board positions in April.

"We never had a minority on the school board," said Lee Alcorn, chapter president, on Thursday, "so that's something we will be looking at."

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People also wants another black council member, said Alcorn.

The chapter's April elections will be the first campaigning for the group, which was officially chartered in October. Its charter will be presented by Richard Dockery, regional NAACP director, in the chapter's banquet at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Alcorn said the chapter has collected about 1,500 signatures, about 500 fewer than needed, to petition for a single-member district referendum in April.

Relentless search made for compost

AUSTIN (AP) — The pesky piles of leaves that Central Texas residents battle in their back yards are welcome additions to workers at Austin Community Gardens in their relentless search for compost.

Gardeners this year persuaded the City of Austin street cleaning department to give them tons of leaves collected from parks and wooded areas around town.

The community gardens have also asked for grass clippings, loads of clean fill dirt and even wood chips.

The organic matter, mixed with manure from a Pflugerville dairy, will be composted at the six-acre garden in North Austin, said Lee Wacker, who is in charge of site development for the Austin Community Gardens.

"We'd like to process 100,000 cubic yards by the end of the season," Wacker said. "We're using open-air-composting and rotating the leaves as often as we can get borrowed equipment in here. We also take grass clippings and wood chips and clean fill dirt."

Maternal mortality rate declines

CHICAGO (AP) — Improved medical care and better education are likely reasons why the pregnancy-related death rate for women age 35 or older has been cut nearly in half over the past several years, researchers say.

"Although older women will probably continue to be at higher risk of maternal death, recent trends ... should be reassuring to younger women who are considering postponement of pregnancy and to women aged 35 or older who are contemplating pregnancy," the researchers said in today's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Studies show that older women having babies in recent years are generally better off economically than younger women, Dr. James W. Buehler, who headed the study at the Centers for Disease Control, said in a telephone interview Thursday.

Three blacks are burned to death

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Three blacks were burned to death and a fourth slain in attacks apparently made by other blacks, police said today. Officials in Port Elizabeth banned a memorial service for a white anti-apartheid activist.

On Thursday, activist Molly Blackburn's funeral attracted about 20,000 black mourners and hundreds of whites to Port Elizabeth in a rare multiracial outpouring of grief and political fervor. The white opponent of South Africa's system of forced racial separation had become an idol to many radical blacks.

A memorial service was scheduled Saturday in a community hall in a posh white district near the church where the funeral took place, but the police commissioner for the Eastern Cape, Brig. Ernest Schmetler, banned it under powers granted him under a 5-month-old state of emergency.

Israeli officials blame Syria, Iran

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli officials blamed Syria and Iran for a surge of rocket attacks from neighboring Lebanon, which have sent some northern Israel residents scurrying to bomb shelters for the first time since Israel's 1982 invasion of Lebanon.

Prime Minister Shimon Peres said Thursday that Israel "shall take the necessary measures to stop" the attacks.

He told reporters in the seaside town of Herzliya, north of Tel Aviv, that it is hard to pinpoint those responsible "because there are so many forces acting in an uncoordinated manner" in Lebanon.

Other officials said a new contingent of fundamentalist Iranian-backed Hezbollah, or Party of God guerrillas is operating in southern Lebanon, while Uri Lubrani, Israel's coordinator for southern Lebanon, said on Israel radio that some of the groups attacking Israel are "orchestrated by Syria."

Israel sent soldiers into Lebanon from June 1982 to June 1985 to root out Palestinian guerrillas who had been bombarding towns of northern Israel with rockets almost daily. Foreign reports say about 2,000 Israeli soldiers still patrol within a six-to-12-mile-deep "security zone" inside the Lebanese border.

But in the past 10 days, two dozen rockets have landed in north Israel and the security zone, said military sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Five rockets were fired Thursday into northern Israel and two Wednesday, but none caused any casualties. One of the rockets Thursday landed in the center of Kiryat Shmona, about six miles south of the border, and damaged cars and homes.

believed the settlement would "produce a peaceful end to this situation."

Inmates remained in control of most of the prison Thursday night, however, and Corrections Department spokeswoman Jerrie Clutter confirmed that a second inmate had been killed by fellow prisoners. Clutter identified the victim as Richard Harold Dean, 31, who was serving a 15-year sentence for kidnapping.

"He looked like he had his throat cut. He had a rope around his neck, like a plastic clothesline," said an ambulance driver who asked not to be identified. "He also had a puncture wound in his back."

The Huntington Herald Dispatch reported today that Cabell County Circuit Judge Alfred E. Ferguson said Dean's assistance to authorities in a series of drug arrests helped forestall a longer sentence in the kidnapping case.

Inmate Kent Slie, 38, had been killed earlier. Officials were told his throat had been slashed but were awaiting autopsy results on both victims. Slie was serving a life sentence for murder.

None of the hostages released so far was seriously injured, officials said. The six released Thursday afternoon were treated at Reynolds Memorial Hospital for "minor cuts, bruises and mental stress," said spokesman Mark Sniegocki.

Prison guard Raymond Gaughenbaugh's daughter, Patty, said her father was "shook up" but otherwise OK. "They all had prisoners guarding them, making sure none of the other prisoners touched them," she said.

But Gaughenbaugh's brother, Paul, added, "They went through a lot of hell for a few days — they're dealing with a lot of bad people in there."

The uprising began at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday when up to 200 of the penitentiary's 688 inmates, many brandishing home-made knives, overpowered guards in the main prison building.

Sixteen hostages were taken initially, authorities said, but three with health problems had been released before Thursday's settlement.

Inmate spokesmen Danny Lehman and Alvin Gregory said the disturbance had not been planned in advance but tensions had been growing for some time because of filthy conditions and delays in making court-ordered reforms.

"All we want is to be treated like human beings," Gregory said.

Conditions in the aging prison were declared unconstitutional in 1983 by Circuit Judge Arthur Recht, who cited problems including overcrowding, rats in the cells, sewage in the kitchen and near-freezing winter temperatures.

have been inhibited by the uncertainty over the outcome of the legal disputes."

The group said the state comptroller's office had placed the revenue tax loss to the state so far as a result of white oil cases at $3 million to $5 million.

Comptroller Bob Bullock had estimated that a large-scale shutdown of white oil wells could cost Texas $18 million a year in lost production taxes.

State District Judge Harley Clark's October ruling that allowed the Railroad Commission to proceed with the retesting and shut-in of white oil wells has been appealed to the 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin. Oral arguments could be heard this spring.

White oil gets its name from a water-white liquid that some Panhandle field operators have been distilling from gas with low-temperature-extraction, or LTX, units that chill vapors to as low as 20 degrees below zero.

Beginning in the late 1970s, some operators would count the liquid as crude oil in their reports to the commission, which in turn classified the wells as oil wells. That classification gave the operators certain production and pricing advantages over gas

SEAT BELT

Other officials are trying to remember buckling up, too. City Judge JoEd Cupell got a phone call yesterday morning from someone saw him on his way to work and wanted to remind him to buckle up.

Judge Cupell said "driving down the street, 50 percent of them already aren't wearing their seat belts."

"But in proportion to the number of tickets issued, a very small percent are tickets issued for the seat belt law," noted Judge Cupell. He said the only people here who wanted to be exempt from the law was a man who had a terrible phobia of being strapped in. Judge Cupell said the man had been in a fatal accident and was pinned in.

Whether being pinned in a car in an accident or being thrown a 100 feet from the car, wearing a seat belt is the law and it will protect more people in the long run, not just the driver but the other cars out on the road.

Police Chief Brush couldn't have said it better. "It's going to be hard to enforce the seat belt law but we'll do the best we can."

Americans in Libya warned that they are endangered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is warning 1,500 Americans living in Libya that they are endangered by that nation's leaders whom President Reagan calls "fellas who think it's all right to kill 11-year-old girls."

The United States, continuing its tough talk against Libya a week after the bomb and gun attacks on the Rome and Vienna airports, is also renewing its call for worldwide economic and diplomatic sanctions against the government of Col. Moammar Khadafy.

He has been accused of providing bases and operational support for terrorists led by Abu Nidal, a Palestine Liberation Organization renegade named by several governments as the mastermind of the airport attacks.

Earlier this week, Khadafy said that if the United States retaliated against Libya with military action he would hit back at Americans. Asked about this on Thursday, at the end of a California vacation, Reagan replied: "I don't answer fellas who think it's all right to shoot 11-year-old girls."

Among the 16 bystanders killed in the Dec. 27 airport attacks was Natasha Simpson, the 11-year-old daughter of The Associated Press' news editor in Rome, Victor Simpson.

Echoing Reagan's rejection of Khadafy's remarks, State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said: "We particularly abhor Khadafy's making excuses for the indiscriminate slaughter of innocent men, women and children and rejecting the fact that these were pure acts of terrorism. Beyond this we will not dignify his remarks."

Redman warned Americans against violating a four-year-old U.S. law against going to Libya.

"We strongly oppose travel to Libya by American citizens because of the danger to their own welfare posed by the unpredictability of actions by the Khadafy regime," Redman said. There were 6,000 Americans in Libya when a travel ban was instituted in 1981 and the number has dropped to 1,500, mostly people working for industrial concerns.

Asked why the United States was unable to stop so many Americans from working in Libya despite the travel ban, Redman said, "If those citizens choose to go there even if they have violated this particular part of the law, you have to catch them first."

PHILLIPS

Haynes' firm said earlier this week the firm was not familiar enough yet with the proposed eviction of Phillips residents to decide whether to represent the homeowners in court.

In August, Phillips Petroleum sent eviction notices with deadlines of Aug. 31, 1986, to 68 residents who own homes near the refinery, but lease lots from the oil company. A week later, M M Cattle Co., which leased its land to 430 other homeowners near the refinery, told its tenants they would have to leave unless sewage problems were solved.

In November, the petroleum company purchased the M M land and announced the M M relocation order effective this fall would remain in force.

On Dec. 20, a federal judge in Amarillo denied a request for an injunction that would have stopped company officials from negotiating a possible relocation plan for Phillips residents.

Ann Landers

Facing reality

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The rightness or wrongness of abortion aside, I would like to say a few words to those people who say that they are "financially and emotionally unable" to care for a handicapped child.

My husband and I have six children from 12 years to 11 months old. Our 12-year-old daughter has severe cerebral palsy and is unable to walk or feed herself. She speaks with great difficulty. Not a day dawns when I feel either emotionally or financially able to care for my handicapped child and equal to facing the heartbreak and inconvenience. But I do the best I can and somehow everything gets done.

I wish I had a dollar for every time someone has said to me, "I don't see how you do it. You're remarkable! We couldn't get together the money to buy a new wheelchair and it would kill me."

I used to smile when people would tell me how thankful they were for their healthy children and that they could never take care of a handicapped one. I tell them they could handle whatever challenge they had to face. I then explain brain damage does not always occur at birth. A car accident, a high fever or an injury can cause as much brain damage as a congenital problem.

Most of the brain-injured children I know sustained their injuries after birth. Their parents are in a state of shock when the injury occurs, but like the rest of us, they adjust to the tragedy and do the best they can.

Life is not always fair and it wasn't meant to be. The same couple who decide to abort their baby because they learn through amniocentesis that the fetus is abnormal could have a car accident on their way home from the abortion clinic and wind up with a husband or wife who is in worse condition than the baby would have been. Would they then say, "I can't handle this emotionally or financially?" I doubt it. Somehow they would find the strength to do whatever is necessary.

We parents of handicapped children are not superhuman nor are we emotional giants. We just know that sometimes you have to take what life hands you and do the best you can with it.

I know from my own life and from the lives of the brave families I associate with that the difference between saying "I can't" and "I can" is often saying, "I will."—Susan S. In Danville

DEAR SUSAN: You're written a remarkably sensible letter and I thank you for it. I know you don't consider yourself "special" but let me tell you, you are. You didn't choose the role, but you are handling it with dignity and courage. I doff my bonnet to you, Susan, and to all the others out there who are traveling the same road.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm awfully late getting into the squabble about the cost of nurses' uniforms, but no one, to my knowledge, brought up the fact that uniforms are tax-deductible. Please print this for me.—Penny Pincher in Pottersville

DEAR POT: Right you are! Thanks for the reminder.

Skyline students have feet on ground, heads in clouds

DALLAS (AP) — When an Army Piper Supercurb airplane dropped from the sky in East Dallas 10 years ago, officials of the Federal Aviation Administration, the Dallas Fire Department and other agencies rushed to investigate.

What they found when they climbed out of their rescue trucks at the normally quiet Forney Road neighborhood was the airplane, a hangar and a group of high school students unlike any other in the state.

The hangar was on the campus of the appropriately named Skyline High School at 7777 Forney Road; the airplane was on loan from the Army and had made a smooth landing using the school's football field as a runway. As for the students, they were members of the Skyline Aeronautics Club, a special class at the high school for airplane mechanics students.

About 190 students are enrolled in this year's class. For three hours each school day, they tinker with the five airplanes and five helicopters parked in the hangar. They get their white overalls dirty by cleaning motor parts, making repairs and cannibalizing parts from other one airplane to make another work. And they adhere to a principle of "zero error," a principle that does not allow for mistakes because, in real life, they could be deadly.

"It's got to be perfect," says James Jones, 17-year-old junior. "The teachers insist on it being done right. ... In auto mechanics, there is room for error. Here, there is no room for error."

"You can't allow them to make mistakes," says instructor Jim Putney. "But if they do, this is where to make them, here in the school. We try to teach them not to cover up."

There are only three big schools nationwide that offer classes in airplane mechanics, and Skyline is the only one in Texas. Some students, like Mel Morris, a 15-year-old Oak Cliff sophomore, commute an hour and a half to attend the class.

Morris was attending his sister's graduation at Skyline when he ran across the hangar and an adjacent fenced graveyard of engine parts and hollow planes. "It looked like fun," he says.

As a sophomore, he is studying preflight ground service and has just finished learning about the cleaning and corrosion. Morris says he hopes by the end of his senior year to qualify for an airframe and powerplant mechanics license.

Although last year was the worst year on record for aircraft accidents, students here love airplanes and most would like to fly.

Tony Lewis, 16, speaks for many of the students. "If this doesn't work out, I want to be a pilot. This makes pretty good money, about $15 an hour, and that ain't bad, but I really like to fly. I'm a bit of a fanatic about planes."

Besides a love of aeronautics, some students want the security of a well-paying job when they graduate. "If you want to advance in aerospace, this is the place to be," says Delbert Smith, 16. "You can save yourself $3,000 in college costs if you apply yourself here. By the time you get out, there will be a big demand (for airplane mechanics)."

Of the 190 students in the program, about half are freshman eager to get their hands on the rudder of a Bell 47 helicopter or on the wing of a Cessna 150. But many lose their interest after facing the sometimes mundane but exacting tasks of airplane mechanics. Only the truly dedicated go on to a second year in the program, and with each year, as the difficulty increases, the number of students dwindles.

Students usually have to decide between concentrating on airframe design (designing the airplane) or powerplant (the airplane engines) by the end of their freshman year. Students rarely have time to finish both subjects in high school and usually go on to an aviation school.

But those who graduate and go on to get their mechanics license are several steps ahead of the game, says department head Gerry Smith.

"Employers didn't believe it at first," he says. "An 18-year-old would come to their office asking for a job and the guy would say, 'Well son, you need to get a mechanics license.' And the student takes out a billfold and shows the license. Their mouths would fall open."

One former student, one of the few women to have gone through the course, is now working for the space shuttle program in Houston.

Smith said the Skyline program was started in the 1970s with help from local private pilots. Many now serve on the board of advisers and help defray program costs with donations.

Gives Whitefaces 51-49 win over Coronado

Bobby Baker hits last-second shot

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Hereford High School basketball fans were treated Thursday night to another exciting game with a last-second shot for victory, this time by the HHS varsity boys' team. With one second left in the game, Bobby Baker of the Whitefaces hit a shot to give Hereford a 51-49 victory over Lubbock Coronado at the Hereford High School gym. The HHS sophomore boys' basketball team lost to the Coronado junior varsity 49-46. Coronado made two free throws with 19 seconds left in defeating Hereford. For the season, the Herd varsity has a 1-3 District 3-5A record and a 6-10 overall record. The HHS sophomores are 4-4. On Saturday, both teams play at Lubbock Monterey. The sophomores play the Monterey junior varsity at 6 p.m., and the varsity contest is scheduled for 7:45 p.m. Next Tuesday, the HHS varsity plays at home against Palo Duro at 7:45 p.m. Thursday's varsity game was close all the way. Hereford's biggest lead of the game was five points, 34-29 and 36-31 in the third quarter. Lubbock Coronado's biggest margin over the Whitefaces was 27-19 in the second quarter. Coronado held a 27-23 halftime lead. Rodney Torres scored a fastbreak basket to open the fourth quarter, giving Hereford a 38-35 lead. Coronado came back to take a 39-38 lead. After that, the lead changed hands six times until the score became tied 45-45 with 3:28 left in the game. Coronado made a pair of free throws for a 47-45 lead with 2:52 left. Torres scored a field goal for Hereford with 2:36 left to tie the game against at 45-45. Bobby Baker gave the Whitefaces a 49-47 lead with two free throws with 2:07 left. Coronado tied up the game with 1:35 left. Hereford then called a timeout, and the Whiteface strategy appeared to be to stall and take a last-second shot. A shot was taken, however, with 29 seconds left, and it was not good. A foul was called on a Hereford player on the rebound. Coronado failed in the one-and-one opportunity, and the Whitefaces snared the rebound in the tie game. With the buzzer about to sound, Baker shot the ball just inside the free throw line to put Hereford on top 51-49. The buzzer sounded, but the referees ruled that one second be put back on the clock. A long pass downcourt by Coronado, in an attempt to get off a desperation shot, was intercepted by Doug Watts of the Herd. "The kids kept after it. They've lost so many close games. If they keep believing in themselves, good things will happen," said Whiteface Coach Mike Fields. "Our bench did a real good job for us too. They all contributed. Our defense on their big guys improved a lot in the second half," Fields adds. Three Coronado players scored in double figures, but not six-foot-six Alvin Morriel, who was limited to eight points. Morriel was the MVP in the Caprock Holiday Tournament last week. Baker led Hereford with 18 points, hitting six of eight field goal attempts and six of six free throws. Torres scored 11 points, and Jerry Brown had six points. Stefan Hacker led Hereford in assists with three and in rebounds with six. Brown and Rodney McCracken each grabbed five rebounds. The Hereford sophomores failed in an attempt to tie the game in the last few seconds in the 48-46 loss to the Coronado junior varsity. Coronado led 23-21 at halftime, and Hereford held a 37-35 lead after three quarters of play. Leading scorers for Hereford were Jason Bullard with 10 points, Raymond Romo with nine points, and Bobby Robbins with eight points. Bobby Baker 6-8 6-4 18; Rodney Torres 5-12 1-4 11; Jerry Brown 3-7 3-0 6; Rodney McCracken 2-4 1-2 5; Stefan Hacker 2-7 0-1 4; Doug Watts 1-3 1-2 3; Don Carl Turdy 1-2 0-0 2; Kevin Hansen 1-2 0-1 2. Totals: 21-45 9-16 51. Rebounds: Hacker 6, McCracken and Brown 5 each, Hansen and Baker 2 each; assists: Hacker 3, Torres 2; steals: Torres 2. Lubbock Coronado 19 8 8 14-49 Hereford 17 6 13 15-51

HHS girls sweep Coronado

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Hereford swept Lubbock Coronado in high school girls' basketball action Thursday night in Hereford, scoring a 52-33 varsity victory and a 49-36 junior varsity win. The win for the HHS varsity girls gives them a 4-2 District 3-5A record and a 4-5 overall record. The Hereford junior varsity is 2-7. On Saturday, Hereford plays at Lubbock Monterey High School. Game times are 6 p.m. for the varsity and 7:45 p.m. for the junior varsity. Next Tuesday, Hereford plays at home against Palo Duro. Starting times for the contests are 6 p.m. for the varsity game at the HHS gym, and 7:45 p.m. for the junior varsity game at the Stanton Junior High School gym. Neither team could get the ball through the hoop in nearly the first four minutes of Thursday's varsity game. Natalie Sims of Hereford scored the first points of the game with a field goal with 4:10 left in the first period. The score was then tied 2-2 and 4-4 before Lubbock Coronado went ahead 8-5 by the end of the quarter. The Hereford girls came alive in their shooting in the second quarter when they outscored Coronado 16-5. Sims had 10 of those points in helping Hereford to a 21-13 halftime lead. Coronado was ahead 12-11 with 4:58 left in the first half. Sims scored four straight Hereford baskets, and Shelly Edwards hit a shot when the buzzer sounded to end the half. Coronado scored the first points of the second half, but did not score again until there was 2:17 left in the third quarter. By that time, the Whitefaces had built up a 34-15 lead before that Mustang basket. Hereford held a 34-17 lead at the end of the quarter. Sims was high scorer for Hereford with 18 points, and Edwards was also in double figures with 10 points. Emma Gonzales added eight points. In an outstanding rebounding effort for Hereford, Gonzales had nine rebounds, and Edwards, Sims and Terry Valdez each grabbed eight rebounds. Susie Kalka had seven rebounds, and Sarah Fish totaled five rebounds. Kalka led in assists with seven, and Sims led in steals with four. In the junior varsity game, Lana Kosub scored eight points in the third quarter to help Hereford increase a three-point halftime lead to a 12-point lead, 33-21. Jeanette Mumau was Hereford's leading scorer with 14 points in the 49-36 win, and Kosub finished the contest with 10 points. Kim Edelman and Whitney Whitaker each added six points. Amy Coneway led Hereford in assists with six and in steals with four. The leading rebounder for Hereford was Carolyn Rieves with eight. Coneway and Kosub each had seven rebounds. Dallas Cowboys, Los Angeles Rams

Unpredictables meet in playoffs

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys and Los Angeles Rams, among the more unpredictable teams in an essentially weird 1985 National Football League season, square off Saturday in the playoff opener for both clubs.

The victor in the 4 p.m. EST game at Anaheim Stadium, who will advance to the NFC title game against the Chicago Bears-New York Giants winner, probably will be the club that is hot on that particular afternoon.

The regular season was a hot-and-cold joyride for both the Cowboys, who wound up the NFC East champions at 10-6, and the Rams, NFC West winners at 11-5.

Dallas' high points included a pair of victories over archrival Washington and two triumphs over the tough Giants.

But the Cowboys also suffered a 44-0 thrashing at the hands of the Bears, a 50-24 humbling by the Cincinnati Bengals, and a 31-16 loss to the San Francisco 49ers in the regular-season finale.

Among the Rams' highlights were a seven-game win streak to start the season, later one-sided victories over Green Bay and St. Louis, and a hard-fought 27-20 decision over the 49ers.

Ram low-lights included a 29-3 loss to New Orleans and a 30-14 defeat by lowly Atlanta.

The Rams, too, closed out 1985 on the downside, losing 16-6 to the Los Angeles Raiders.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry, jokingly asked who he was picking in the game, laughed and replied: "I back the Cowboys every week. Sometimes they disappoint me..."

Said Rams Coach John Robinson:

"They (the Cowboys) have played poorly at times, the same as we've played poorly at times. Other than Chicago, there are no teams that haven't humiliated themselves at one time or another this season."

The matchup with the Cowboys appears a tossup, Robinson said.

"The clubs are similar in many areas. Dorsett and Dickerson had years that were about the same," Robinson said, comparing the campaigns of Dallas running back Tony Dorsett and Eric Dickerson of the Rams.

"And (Cowboys quarterback Danny) White and (Rams quarterback Dieter) Brock had pretty much the same kind of season."

The Rams-Cowboys is the NFL's most frequent playoff rivalry. The teams have met eight times in post-season play since 1970, including a game that year in the now-defunct playoff bowl, which was the NFL's consolation game at that time.

The Cowboys are 4-3 against the Rams in the last seven meetings, but Los Angeles won the most recent playoff meeting, 24-17 in Dallas in 1983.

Interestingly, neither team has fared very well at home. The Cowboys have won both games on the Rams' home field and Los Angeles holds a 3-2 edge in playoff games at Texas Stadium.

"We've won a couple of games in Los Angeles and they've beaten us in Texas three times, so I guess it's better that we go out there," Landry said.

"I've never really felt the home-field advantage has been a big motivator for our team," he added. "We would have loved to have played at home, but if you have a second choice, you'd just as soon go to California where the weather's nice."

The Dallas Cowboys are on the road again, a most unfriendly road when it comes to the National Football League's winding highway to the Super Bowl. Since 1978, when they made it to the NFL title game but lost to Pittsburgh, the Cowboys are 1-3 in National Conference postseason play away from Texas Stadium, the only victory 30-27 over Atlanta in a 1980 divisional playoff.

They lost the 1980 NFC title game 21-7 in Philadelphia.

They lost the 1981 NFC title game 28-27 in San Francisco.

They lost the 1982 NFC title game 31-17 in Washington.

And in 1985, they were 10-6 overall — 7-1 at home (the loss a 44-0 blowout by Chicago) and 3-5 on the road.

They might well have been 2-6 and out of the playoffs if New York Giants quarterback Phil Simms, trying to run out the clock, hadn't made a most timely (for Dallas) fumble deep in New York territory in the closing minutes, a turnover that the Cowboys converted into a game-winning field goal.

Receives 55 of 57 first place votes

Oklahoma claims national title

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

The Oklahoma Sooners are still in the habit of finishing what they start.

Since the Associated Press began a preseason college football poll in 1950, Oklahoma has been ranked No. 1 entering the campaign six times.

The Sooners have won the national championship four of those times, capped by Wednesday night's 25-10 Orange Bowl victory over No. 1 Penn State that gave them the 1985 title.

"I don't think there's any added pressure," Coach Barry Switzer said of the Sooners' preseason status. "I knew we'd be good because of our defense. I knew our defense would carry us."

The Sooners led the nation in total defense and pass defense and finished second in rushing and scoring defense.

In winning its sixth national championship, second only to Notre Dame's seven in the 50 years of the AP poll, Oklahoma received 55 of 57 first-place votes and 1,138 of a possible 1,140 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. Three voters did not submit their ballots and could not be reached.

Oklahoma will receive the Associated Press-Paul W. "Bear" Bryant national championship trophy at a date to be announced.

Michigan, rebounding from last year's 6-6 embarrassment, finished a distant second to Oklahoma after defeating Nebraska 27-23 in the Sunbelt Fiesta Bowl. The Wolverines, No. 5 in the final regular-season poll, received one first-place vote and 1,032 points.

The Orange Bowl loss after five weeks as the nation's No. 1-ranked team cost Penn State what would have been its second national championship in four years. Instead, the Nittany Lions finished third with 990 points.

"We were beaten by a better team," Coach Joe Paterno said.

Oklahoma won national championships in 1956, 1974, 1975 and this season after starting out No. 1, although each time they fell from the top spot somewhere along the way. This season, they dropped as low as 10th after a 27-14 loss to Miami on Oct. 19.

The Sooners also finished No. 1 in 1950 and 1955 after starting out sixth and second, respectively. They were ranked No. 1 at the start of the 1957 and 1977 seasons but came in fourth and seventh.

The only other teams to win national championships after a No. 1 preseason ranking were Tennessee in 1951, Michigan State in 1952 and Alabama in 1978.

The crowning of the Sooners, who were third going into the Orange Bowl, became a formality when second-ranked Miami lost to Tennessee 35-7 in the Sugar Bowl and No. 4 Iowa was beaten by UCLA 45-28 in the Rose Bowl.

Tennessee received the other first-place vote in jumping from eighth place to fourth with 957 points. The Vols were followed by Florida, which moved up from sixth place to fifth. The Gators are on probation and did not play in a bowl game.

Texas A&M, a 36-16 winner over Auburn in the Cotton Bowl, vaulted from 11th place to sixth with 792 points and cracked the Top Ten for the first time since Oct. 9, 1978.

UCLA climbed from 13th to seventh with 767 points, followed by Air Force, up from 10th to eighth with 755 points after beating Texas 24-16 in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Miami got a break when Penn State lost but blew its national championship hopes by falling to Tennessee. The Hurricanes skidded from second place to ninth with 699 points. Iowa rounded out the Top Ten with 621 points.

Nebraska and Brigham Young's 1984 national champs, seventh and ninth in the final regular-season poll, dropped into the Second Ten, which consists of Nebraska, Arkansas, Alabama, Ohio State, Florida State, BYU, Baylor, Maryland, Georgia Tech and LSU.

Penn State Coach Joe Paterno wants the four major bowls — Rose, Sugar, Cotton and Orange — to serve as championship quarterfinals with the winners advancing to the national playoff.

This might not sit wonderfully well with the folks who stage these New Year's Day extravaganzas, lavishly lining the pockets of the participating schools in the hopes that their game will produce the national champion — not just a playoff qualifier.

With Paterno's plan in place, some combination of No. 1 Oklahoma, No. 4 Tennessee, No. 6 Texas A&M and No. 7 UCLA would have paired off in the national semifinals. That would mean no accommodation for a very good Michigan team that won the Fiesta Bowl and finished No. 2 in the final standings.

The Top Twenty teams in the final Associated Press college football poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, season record, total points based on 20, 19, 18, 17, 16, 15, 14, 13, 12, 11, 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1 and last week's ranking:

4H Around the County

By DAVY VESTAL
County Extension Agent

4-H Agriculture projects are fun. Just ask one of the 91 livestock feeders, 37 horse enthusiasts or 33 gun weiry 4-H'ers and they will tell you, 4-H is full of exciting educational opportunities which will create an ever lasting stronghold on the future.

Let's talk about livestock projects in 4-H. What are they? What is the purpose of them? There are many types of livestock projects involved in 4-H. There is the market animal production with cattle, hogs or sheep. These projects help an individual start out a small business in agriculture. They teach the market values, the ups and downs of the business and general practices such as vaccinations, nutrition and record keeping. This is a project for the real entrepreneur.

What other 4-H livestock projects are there? Steers, heifers, lambs, pigs, and chickens. These projects are for people who want to explore. They like to take chances, gamble on their ability to successfully raise an animal which is superior to all others. This includes the stock show participants. This project is designed to teach the market values of animals, but to increase the responsibilities of the 4-H toward a premium priced animal. Hard work with hands on opportunities await anyone who wishes a challenge in youth activities. These projects are very addictive for the entire family, which is good. The family works "together" with these projects, something not found in just any program today. There are many benefits to raising stock show animals and any one of the 43 families in Deaf Smith County 4-H stock show program can give you a hundred different reasons for participating. One of my favorite reasons is that it gives a person a chance to explore other areas of Texas with friends and family.

One other livestock project that a young person may be interested in is the 4-H Bucket Calf project for ages 5 to 12 years old. This is a good introductory program for 4-H livestock projects as the 4-H'er learn how to raise a baby calf and accept the responsibility of doing so.

Next week we will talk about other agricultural project in 4-H Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

DR. GOTT 'Hidden' alcohol in medications

Years ago, health tonics were widely believed to be beneficial agents that helped cure disease. They made people feel better. They were popular over-the-counter medications.

Tonics have been replaced now with new formulations. Since scientists discovered that alcohol was the major ingredient in many tonics, the public developed scorn for old-fashioned brews. Yet elixirs and tonics are still very much with us - under different names.

Today's products are marketed primarily for cough, colds and congestion. They contain new chemicals, but the chemicals are still diluted with alcohol. More than 500 proprietary medications contain alcohol in concentrations of up to 68 percent (136 proof). Many are liquid vitamin mixtures.

This alcohol is not innocuous. It can increase gastric acidity, depress brain function and produce dangerous reactions in recovering alcoholics. Of more potential importance are the long-term effects of administering alcohol-containing compounds to young children.

Prescription drugs may contain alcohol - for example: Donnatal Elixir (23 percent alcohol, plus phenobarbital), Elixophyllin Elixir (20 percent alcohol), Quibron Elixir (15 percent), Benadryl Elixir (14 percent), Propadrine Elixir (16 percent) and Terpin Hydrate Elixir (42 percent).

More significantly, common non-prescription liquid preparations contain high concentrations of alcohol: Dristan (13 percent), Nyquill (25 percent), Vicks 44 (10 percent) and Geritol (12 percent). Children are frequently given Novahistine expectorant (5 percent), Phenergan expectorant (7 percent), Tylenol Elixir (7 percent) and Cheracol (3 percent). Here are some other preparations, listed with alcohol content:

Alurate Elixir (20 percent), Amytal Elixir (30 percent), Benty-PB syrup (19 percent), Broncho-Tussin (40 percent), Cenalene Elixir (15 percent), Cholelyl Elixir (20 percent), Coldene Elixir (adult; 15 percent), Creo-Terpin (25 percent), Dexamyli Elixir (25 percent), Dolanex Elixir (23 percent), Elixodyne (20 percent), Geriplex-FS (18 percent), Gerix Elixir (20 percent), Gevracon (18 percent), Hybephen Elixir (16.5 percent), Isuprel Compound Elixir (19 percent), Keralyt (19.4 percent), Lanoxin Pediatric Elixir (10 percent), Lomotil liquid (15 percent), Lufyllin Elixir (20 percent), Mini-lix Elixir (20 percent), Mundrane G.G. Elixir (20 percent), Norophylline (20 percent), Organidin Elixir (24 percent), Peri-Colace syrup (10 percent), Pertussin Plus (25 percent), Prolixin Elixir (14 percent), Synophylate Elixir (20 percent), Theo-Guala (20 percent), Theon Elixir (28 percent), Uritone Elixir (20 percent), Valarian (68 percent).

Many consumers are concerned about the overuse of alcohol in medicines. Fortunately, many reputable drug companies share this concern and are manufacturing alcohol-free medicines. Some common liquid medicines that contain no alcohol are: Ac-tifed-C expectorant, Codimal expectorant, Conar A. Glycotuss syrup, Hycompine Pediatric syrup, Omni-Tuss suspension, pyribenzamine expectorant, Romex, Silence is Golden Cough Syrup, Sorbase Cough Syrup, Triaminic Cough Syrup and Tussonex suspension.

Refugee looks forward to prosperous 1986

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Tung Dang smiles a lot these days. He's looking forward to 1986 as the start of a "totally new life in the real world."
Five years ago, Dang was suffocating in Vietnam. To him it was "a big prison."
Today, he has mastered English, a language unknown to him in 1980, has earned a high school diploma and now a college diploma.
On Saturday, he graduates from Pennsylvania State University with a degree in computer science. Next month, he'll start a $28,000 job in Tennessee with a computer manufacturer.
In 1980, however, Dang was a desperate 14-year-old. He had seen his country decimated by a brutal, protracted war. He watched his mother die of asthma two years after the war ended in 1975 only because available medicine wasn't made available to her. He endured his father's imprisonment for trying to arrange an escape for the family.

Ultimately, he decided anything was better than life in Vietnam. So one April night in 1980, Dang fled Saigon silently, without telling his five younger brothers. He joined 30 others huddled in the bottom of a long, narrow fishing boat.
"We were aiming for anything out of Vietnam because you'd rather die at sea than in the country," Dang said in an interview.
"They control you," he said. "You have no choice of doing anything. Every time of the day they want to know exactly where you are, what you're doing. You can't even go from one district to another (without) having to report it."
"It's just like the whole country is a big prison. That's exactly what it is. It's just horrible," he said.
After two days at sea, the refugees ran out of fresh water. They drifted for two more days before encountering "pirates," mercenary fishermen who prey on such escapees.

The pirates towed the small boat close to the coast of Thailand. Dang said the only reason no one was killed was because the pirates found valuables and women on board to rape.
"... It was really horrible. ... But you couldn't do anything because you move, they kill everybody else. You have to sacrifice something for the freedom," he added.
After three months at a Thai refugee camp, Dang, his uncle and three cousins were allowed to join relatives already in the United States.
Dang went to live with his aunt, who had escaped two years earlier, and in the fall of 1980 began classes at Plum Senior High School in suburban Pittsburgh.
"I didn't know any English at all so they (wondered) what could they do with me?" he said.

Finally, a math teacher was called in and gave him a problem. It was obvious that Dang was quite advanced in mathematics, recalled Christine Bender, Dang's high school chemistry teacher.
"As a matter of fact, when I got him, I'm sure he could have taught me some chemistry," she said. At 14, Dang was placed in the 11th grade.
The two became friends, and Mrs. Bender helped Dang with his English. By Christmas, he was speaking English.
The outgoing Dang was popular with classmates, who called him "Joe" because they couldn't pronounce his Vietnamese name, she said.
Two years after fleeing Vietnam, Dang graduated in the top of his high school class and enrolled at Penn State the next fall. Grants, loans and odd jobs on campus financed his education.
Dang, who recently celebrated his 20th birthday, realizes his story is incredible.

THE MAN WHO REFUSED TO STAY DEAD!

Some Jews arrived in Lystra from Antioch and Iconium and turned the crowds into a murderous mob that stoned Paul and dragged him out of the city, apparently dead!
But as the believers stood around him, he got up and went back into the city! The next day he left with Barnabas for Derbe. After preaching the Good News there and making many disciples, they returned again to Lystra, Iconium and Antioch, where they helped the believers to grow in love for God and each other. They encouraged them to continue in the faith in spite of all the persecution, reminding them that they must enter into the Kingdom of God through many tribulations.
Paul and Barnabas also appointed elders in every church and prayed for them with fasting, turning them over to the care of the Lord in whom they trusted.
Then they traveled back through Pisidia to Pamphylia, preached again in Perga, and went on to Attalia. Finally they returned by ship to Antioch, where their journey had begun, and where they had been committed to God for the work now completed.
Upon arrival they called together the believers and reported on their trip, telling how God had opened the door of faith to the Gentiles too. And they stayed there with the believers at Antioch for a long while.

Lee claims contract unfair

HOUSTON (AP) — Country-western singer Johnny Lee, who rose to prominence with the hit song "Looking For Love," is suing his promoter Sherwood Cryer, claiming a contract between the two is unfair.
Lee, who filed the $15 million federal lawsuit Thursday, is asking a federal judge to temporarily release him from all obligations from Cryer, owner of Gilley's nightclub, until the suit can be resolved.
Lee, a California resident, wants to be released from a contract he signed with Cryer in 1974 while sitting in Cryer's pickup truck in Gilley's parking lot.

According to the suit, the contract awards Cryer 50 percent of all the net income from Lee's entertainment services through 1990 and gives Cryer the option of extending the contract through 2001.
When Lee signed the contract, he was a $225-a-week musician in singer Mickey Gilley's band, the suit says. Lee's song, "Looking For Love" was made popular by "Urban Cowboy," a movie starring John Travolta that was filmed at Gilley's.
Neither Cryer nor Lee could be reached for comment Thursday.
Lee also wants the right to his songs now held by Points West Co., a company owned by Cryer.
The suit was filed against Cryer, Sherwood Management Co. Inc., Sherwood Enterprises Inc. and Points West Publishing Co., which the lawsuit says are businesses owned or operated by Cryer. Lee is seeking $5 million in actual damages and $10 million in exemplary damages.
Even if the contract is legal, the suit says Cryer has failed to promote Lee's career, pay him a portion of the earnings and provide tax returns.

Commissioners approve of liability insurance contract

HEMPSTEAD, Texas (AP) — Waller County commissioners avoided a New Year's Eve crisis when they approved a 1986 liability insurance contract to keep county employees on the road.
An emergency budget amendment on Tuesday provided funds for the $100,654 insurance policy which goes into effect Jan. 1. The price is nearly five times what the county paid last year.
The commissioner's last-minute approval of a policy with Edmonds Insurance of about 100 vehicles.

Insurance agent William L. Edmonds said he was shocked when he discovered Waller County paid $22,250 for a liability policy last year.
"Hardly anybody will take a municipality these days," Edmonds said. "The same thing goes with nursery schools. I guess everybody is getting sue-happy."
Edmonds said he contacted five carriers regarding coverage for Waller County and only one company would even consider issuing the policy.
Waller County Sheriff Ronnie Stitt said his personal liability insurance policy also covers him at work, but other officers depend solely on county coverage. Without liability insurance, Stitt said, he was afraid some deputies would have to be pulled from service on one of the busiest nights of the year.

Continental Airlines reducing fares

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines jumped on the bandwagon with other major airlines by offering "Cheap Frills" fares for transcontinental flights through March 5.
"No airline in the United States will have a lower fare than Continental," Bob Salter, Continental vice president of sales, said during a Houston news conference Thursday, one of a series of 13 held around the country.
"This will give us the best sales package and fare package in the industry today," he said.
The month-long airline promotion, starting Jan. 7, provides fares as low as $65 for senior citizens and $99 for other passengers. The fares include discounts of up to 85 percent off competitors' rates, the Houston-based airline said.
The fares also represent discounts of 25 to 40 percent off regular Continental rates, Salter said.
The special fares include some restrictions, although Salter said they were minimal compared with other discount fares in the airline industry.

For example, the senior citizen fare, available to people at least 65 years old, may be used only for Tuesday or Wednesday flights. Those tickets also will not be refundable.
For other flights in the promotion, some tickets must be bought at least 14 days in advance. They would not, however, require round-trip travel or Saturday night stays, Salter said.
The $99 fares include flights between New York, Boston, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago and six Florida cities to Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Jose, San Diego, Seattle and Portland.
Continental said its Newark flights would offer every seat on every flight to Los Angeles and San Francisco for $99.
Salter said the timing of the promotion coincides with the airline's slowest travel period of the year.
