Gramm seeking to limit bond status

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Phil Gramm and Rep. J.J. Pickle are trying to dump a provision in the pending tax reform legislation they say would limit tax exempt status for local government bonds.

Some projects, including the $1.2 billion Texas water plan approved by voters last year, have been halted because of uncertainty created by the proposed restrictions, which would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1986.

Gramm, R-Texas, and Pickle, D-Austin, want to change that date.

"Without changing the date, it just effectively stopped it (the water plan)," said Reg Arnold, development fund manager for the Texas Water Development Board in Austin.

"Clearly the financial stability of state and local government projects is being damaged," Gramm said.

"It's wreaking havoc in the bond markets around the country," said Gramm's press secretary, Larry Neal. He said the market "is going to grind to a halt if something isn't

The tax reform bill, which has been passed by the House and is pending before the Senate, would put a $175-per-person ceiling on the amount of tax-exempt bonds a state

For Texas, the total would be about $2.6 billion, said state economic analyst Elaine Furlow.

But while the legislation is pending, bond attorneys can't certify the tax-exempt status of bonds for 1986.

Bonds to finance local government projects are sold to investors who are repaid with taxes or revenues. The tax exemption is an incentive to investors. A bond counsel must certify tax-exempt status before bonds go on the market.

The bond market nationally has dropped to 5 percent of what is was last year, said Ms. Furlow.

"It's just uncertainty," she said. "These people who issue bonds in Texas are kind of stuck."

"The impact of the retroactive provision has a profound effect nation-(See BONDS, Page 2)

Shortfall to be revealed today

AUSTIN (AP) - Comptroller Bob Bullock will reveal today how much falling oil prices have affected the state's budget, his office said.

Some lawmakers are predicting a $1 billion shortfall between expected revenue and state spending.

Bullock scheduled an afternoon news conference with state leaders invited to attend.

Last week Bullock began reassessing his revenue estimate for the 1986-87 fiscal period after oil prices dropped below the $25 a barrel he had projected for this year.

"This budget period there will be a reduction in the amount of revenue over the amount projected in 1985 when the Legislature wrote the budget," said comptroller aide Tony Profitt.

Proffitt said the amount of the projected shortfall will not be known until later today.

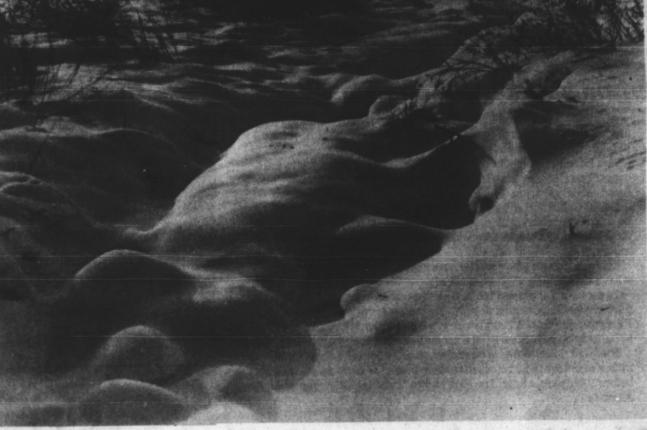

"The figures are still being crunched," Proffitt said. "They're going to be ready and he is going to lay them

"There is no question but that our state's economy and revenue have been slashed," Bullock told the Texas Daily Newspaper Association Wednesday in Arlington. "The question is how much blood we've lost."

House Speaker Gib Lewis and Rep. Stan Schlueter, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, discounted suggestions Wednesday that a special legislative session would be needed to remedy the short-Schlueter, D-Killeen, said he believes the state can maintain its cash flow and make major payments, such as those to school districts, in December.

Japan to hold the line on auto exports for sixth year

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's top trade Workers applauded the decision. official announced today that his country would extend for a sixth year quotas on auto shipments to the United States to prevent "torrential exports" that would increase demands for protectionist laws in the United States.

Japanese automakers opposed the decision but acknowledged that it probably was inevitable. U.S. automakers and the United Auto Michio Watanabe, the interna tional trade and industry minister, told a news conference that the ceiling on exports to the United States in the fiscal year beginning April 1 would be 2.3 million cars, the same as in the current fiscal year.

Watanabe said the recovery of the U.S. auto industry and the recent increase in the value of the Japanese yen against the dollar were factors against continuing the restraints. Japanese exports more expensive in the United States.

"On the other hand, there is the question of Japan's huge trade surplus with the United States, which reached nearly $50 billion last year, and the wave of protectionism centering in the U.S. Congress," he

"We studied the effects of what would happen if we lifted the restraints and came to the conclusion that torrential exports would not be to our benefit," he said.

Japan's $49.7 billion trade surplus with the United States in 1985 was up from $36.8 billion the previous year. and about one-third of the increase was attributed to an increase in the auto export ceiling from 1.85 million to 2.3 million.

The government has been deeply concerned by moves in Congress to enact protectionist legislation against Japan in the wake of the Commerce Department's announce-ment of the 1985 trade figures.

Republican Sen. John Danforth of Missouri, chairman of the subcommittee on international trade, said in a statement that Japan's decision "appears to signal a recognition on spark economic growth in states, while high taxes generally slow it down, a new study concludes.

Low tax sparks economic growth

"High-growth states have had dramatically lower income and property taxes than low-growth states," said Melvin Greenhut, a Texas A&M University economics professor and author of the study.

Greenhut said income taxes destroy incentives for people to work harder and save money, thus reducing investment and a state's productive capacity.

The results of his study were release Wednesday by the privately

The study comes at a time when some Texas politicians have said the state may need to enact a corporate or individual income tax to offset losses in tax revenue from oil and gas. Texas never has had an income

Greenhut said his study shows that when state governments find it necessary to raise revenue, the best results generally come from taxes on

Such taxes "do not carry incentivedestroying effects on production," he

Besides raising more money for the state, sales and luxury taxes also encourage savings as a way of avoiding additional taxes, Greenhut

"Savings, in turn, permit more investment to occur," he said. "Simply put, sales taxes do not appear to have the same debilitating effect on growth that income and property taxes have." In the long term, higher income taxes produce lower tax receipts for government than could otherwise be obtained, Greenhut said.

7 children reported dead in fire

EL CAMPO, Texas (AP) - Fire swept through a one-bedroom house early today, killing seven children, aged 2 months to 8 years, who apparently had been left alone, authorities said.

The wood-frame house was fully ablaze when firefighters responded to the 12:27 a.m. fire, said El Campo Fire Department photographer and spokesman Elmer Cavender. Officials were trying to locate the children's parents, he said.

"The only information we're giving out is that there are seven fatalities, ranging in age from 2 months to 8 years. No other information is being released," El Campo police dispatcher Shirley Charbula told the Associated Press.

"We cannot give out any information because the parents have not been located yet," she said.

Five children were found in the front room of the house and two were found in the back room, Cavender said. Authorities believed the children were from two families, and there were no survivors, he

Prison board balks on plan

AUSTIN (AP) - State prison board members have decided they are not ready to try a program that would allow 50 inmates to serve part of their sentences at home.

The Board of Corrections voted unanimously Wednesday to back away from the pre-parole release program that has drawn "personal concerns" from Gov. Mark White.

Board Chairman Alfred Hughes of Austin said the program could be "fraught with legal problems," including whether the Texas Department of Corrections could be held liable for the released in-

"If we send him home and he goes next door and commits a crime, what's our liability?" Hughes asked.

Lawmakers approved the pre-parole transfer program in 1983 as part of a package aimed at reducing prison crowding. The Board of Pardons and Paroles last year began sending some low-risk inmates to halfway houses as early as six months before their parole date.

The plan voted down Wednesday would allow as many as 50 inmates at a time to be released to their homes as early as six months before their parole date. The plan had received tentative approval in EL PASO, Texas (AP) - Twin girls born attached from the chest to the belly may have to be transferred from El Paso for an operation to separate them.

Doctors "are checking on the possible joining of the hearts' atrium chamber — one of the upper chambers of the heart that receives blood," said Gary Conwell, vice president of public relations at Providence Memorial Hospital.

The twins were reported in stable condition Wednesday.

"They're still evaluating the X-rays that have been done," Conwell said. Through the tests, doctors will be determining how much of the heart chamber is joined. Results are not expected for a day or

If it turns out the hearts are joined, Conwell said, doctors would capabilities.

Hospitals in Houston and Dallas are among those being considered if it turns out the twins' hearts are connected.

The twins, weighing about 6 pounds each, were delivered shortly after 7:30 a.m. Tuesday in a Caesarean section by Dr. Teresa Perolino of El Paso, Conwell said.

The new store will offer two kinds of memberships. Businesses with business tax licenses can join for a $25 annual fee that allows one person from the company to buy merchandise.

Individuals can join if they work for certain non-profit organizations such as government, transportation or utility companies, hospitals or some credit unions. They do not pay membership fees, but pay 5 percent above the club's regular prices.

JERUSALEM (AP) — Anatoly Shcharansky says he expects his 77-year-old mother to join him in Israel within a month, and U.S. officials say the Soviet Union will allow other relatives of the Jewish human rights activist to emigrate as well.

Shcharansky, convicted in 1978 of spying for the CIA, told Israel radio on Wednesday that he dreamed about arriving in Israel during the nine years he spent in Soviet jails and labor camps.

He finally arrived Tuesday after being freed in Berlin in a prisoner exchange between East and West.

Student-Of-The-Month

Kiwanian Rick Hutson presents Casey Daniel with a certificate honoring Casey as the Student-of-the-month for January. The Noon Kiwanis Club awards an outstanding student at Hereford High School each month with a certificate.

The human rights activist said he understood that his mother, Ida Milgrom, would receive an exit visa as part of the deal in which he was released. "I hope that within a month she will be here," he said.

In Washington, the U.S. State Department said the Soviet Union had indicated Mrs. Milgrom and other relatives of Shcharansky would be allowed to emigrate to Israel, but did not elaborate.

Mrs. Milgrom told The Associated Press in Moscow that officials of the Soviet visa agency had denied any knowledge of an order to grant a visa to her or her elder son, Leonid.

They called Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz shortly after arriving in Israel from West Germany.

Shcharansky, looking pale but fit, said an Israeli doctor who examined him Wednesday was "shocked" by his description of his prison conditions. He said he had spent a total of 400 days in solitary confinement, including 130 days at one time.

Shcharansky said he knew "almost nothing" about international efforts to obtain his release, but "I had great help because I always knew and felt that my Avital is with me, that all Israel is with me." The couple was separated the day after their marriage in 1974, and

Mrs. Shcharansky had worked since then for her husband's release. "Avital would write me twice a week, and I would receive two letters a year from her. And that was in a good year. There also were years when I didn't receive a single letter," Shcharansky said.

Schcharansky and the United States both denied that he was an agent, insisting he was imprisoned because he had spoken out for

His brother Leonid, 39, told Western reporters in Moscow that Shcharansky lay down in the snow, demanding his belongings before boarding a special plane to Berlin. He crossed the bridge to freedom in borrowed clothes. Shcharansky said that when he was released, he was told to walk a straight line to a car, but deliberately took a zig-zag route.

"Of course, that's funny, but it was a matter of principle never to agree to anything for the KGB," he said.

Pipelines to act on open access

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has postponed the deadline by which natural gas pipelines have to decide whether to open their lines to all producers, including those offering cheap gas.

The commission voted 3-1 Wednesday to move the deadline from Saturday to July 1.

The more companies that decide to open their lines, the more widely available cheap spot-market gas can be. Few have opened their lines so

The pipelines and trade associations that asked for a delay made "a persuasive case" that Saturday was too early; that "we are going to be creating disruption in gas markets without any offsetting benefits," said Commissioner C. Michael Maeve, who voted with the majority.

The dissenter, Charles G. Stallon said, "Anytime we impose a deadline there will be disruptions."

A federal appeals court ruling last year said the commission could not permit pipelines to make special deals for carrying cheap spotmarket gas to large industrial customers who could threaten to switch to oil while permitting those same pipelines to deny similar gas to customers without the ability to switch, such as distribution companies serving homes and businesses in a particular area.

The commission last fall ordered pipelines to choose what they would be - open access carriers, transporting gas for anyone who would pay * transportation fees; or traditional pipelines as the sole suppliers of their customers with their own gas and able to exclude other gas from their lines.

"Several large projects, such as improvements at Dallas-Fort Worth airport, construction of a garage at Love Field in Dallas, and numerous school construction projects have been halted as the result of a retroactive date in the House bill."

The tax reform bill would further restrict tax-exempt bonds by earmarking portions of the $175-perperson for certain types of bonds, such as those financing non-profit projects.

The bill also would eliminate tax-exemption for bonds for other categories of projects, such as facilities that benefit private entities, like some airport facilities. Arnold said many portions of the water plan are in jeopardy because of those restrictions. And because the water plan authorizes the state to purchase local-issue bonds as well as put bonds on the market, "this thing kind of puts a double whammy on us," Ar-It not only restricts the amount of bonds the board can issue, it also threatens to make bonds the board purchases taxable. But, he said, portions of the plan can go forward if the retroactive date is changed.

Valentine's letter

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I should have written this letter several weeks ago, but like everyone else, I keep putting things off.

Thousands of children will be depressed on Valentine's Day. While teachers spend time putting up lovely mailboxes and heartshaped decorations, little emphasis will be placed on love and kindness.

There will be so many disappointed children again this year. The same pretty girls and handsome boys (always popular) will receive a load of valentines while the plain Janes and Johnnies will be left out.

I am opposed to free choice when it comes to exchanging valentines in school. It creates too much anxiety and heartache.

The teacher ought to match up Valentine "couples." They should make Valentines for each other during class time. No other Valentines should be given at school. This way no one will be left out. It's the best way to save hurt feelings.

My own child is pretty and popular. She told me in January she hates Valentine's Day because "the same kids get dozens while other kids get none." She gave a valentine last year to every kid in the class. I thought it was a kind and generous thing to do. It made me proud of her.

If my letter arrives too late for 1986, maybe you can print it and plans can be made for Feb. 14, 1987. Thanks for your time.-A Mother in Dothan, Ala.

DEAR JUDY — Mattress manufacturers have increased the thickness of mattresses over the last several years, but until recently, the size of fitted sheets has remained the same. You can purchase new, larger fitted sheets that should fit the new mattress perfectly. To make your old sheets stay on, try sewing elastic straps "kitty-corner" to the corners of the sheets. The elastic straps can be slipped under the corner of the mattress, helping to hold the sheets in place. Or, you might try putting a safety pin at each corner to hold the sheet to the mattress cover. — DOLLY POLLY

DEAR MRS. You can't substitute one for the other, I'm afraid. And, even if you had Crocus sativus, the crocus containing the saffron stigmas blooming in your yard, you probably wouldn't get enough saffron from them to make even one recipe of saffron-flavored rice. It takes 40,000 flowers to make one pound of saffron. No wonder this colorful and slightly pungent spice is so expensive! Fortunately, a little goes a long way. Most recipes call for no more than a teaspoon of this expensive spice — and even that can cost a couple of dellars just for that small amount of saffron. — POLLY

American Smokeout termed successful

More than four of every 10 cigarette smokers tried to kick the habit during last November's American Smokeout, topping all records for participation in the nineyear-old event, the American Cancer Society announced today.

According to the official survey conducted for the Society by the Gallup Organization, an estimated 23 million-42.6 percent of the nation's 54.5 million smokers-succeeded in either avoiding cigarettes completely or cutting down on their tobacco intake during the day-long moratorium against smoking on November 21.

Of the participants, about 7 million were able to make it through the day without lighting up. Approximately 16 million tried to curtail their habit by smoking less.

Prior to the 1985 Smokeout, participation in the event reached an alltime high in 1984, when approximately 20 million smokers tried to spend the day away from tobacco, according to last year's Gallup survey.

The 1985 survey also revealed that, among those who gave up cigarettes for the day, about 3.7 million were still not smoking four to five days after the Smokeout.

"Every year, the Great American Smokeout breaks its own records for participation," said Charles A. LeMaistre, M.D., of Houston, the Society's national president. "The statistics indicate that there is a growing desire on the part of the American public to extricate itself from a most dangerous habit."

The poll also revealed that more than 8 out of 10 adults - 87 percent of the American public - expressed awareness of the event.

The survey was based on telephone interviews with a representative national sample of 1,211 men and women, 18 years of age and older. It was conducted NOvember 25 and 26, four to five days after the 1985 Smokeout.

According to Dr. LeMaistre, the arrival of a new year gives smokers added incentive to quit. "The Society salutes those who were successful in quitting for the Smokeout, and hopes that they will consider staying quit for good. For those who didn't get through the day, it's never too late to

Dr. LeMaistre added that would-be quitters can get assistance in breaking the habit in a variety of ways:

Hosted by comedian Robert Klein, a former smoker, the programs use a day-by-day format that takes quitters from "Quit Day" to "Off the Hook." The material is presented in a positive and realistic manner, guiding smokers thorugh all aspects of quitting, including physical addiction, withdrawal symptoms and psychological Few people would deny that life in Colonial America was difficult, even brutal. For example, take medical practice and health theory of the 1700s as they were described by observers of that time.

In those days, a young man apprenticed himself to a practicing doctor for four years and was then considered competent to provide medical care.
During these four years, the apprentice was supplied "meat, drink, washing and lodging," while his parents provided clothing. Occasionally, rural craftsmen set themselves up as "physitism". craftsmen set themselves up as "physitians" and, like the Connecticut shoemaker, "laid aside his awls and leather, got himself some gallipots, and ...
fell to cobling of human bodies."

Doctors had great difficulty earning livings by practicing. Those who were not independently wealthy either owned farms or participated in other commercial enterprises, such as apothecary shops and grocery stores. They often grew their own compounds. Patent medicines were universally available: "Doctor Norris's Antimonial Props for the Cure of all Antimonial Drops for the Cure of all Fevers" or "Dr. Keysler's Celebrated Anti-venereal Pills." Common medications included rhubarb and jalop, epsom salts, Jesuit's bark, laudanum, palm of Gilead and antimony.

Bloodletting and purgation were the principal therapeutic modalities. Eighteenth-century doctors believed that injurious particles in the blood "morbific matter") were responsible for disease. The "morbific matter" originated from substances in the air that had a "disagreement with the juices, insinuate themselves into the body, and, mixing with the blood, taint the whole frame; or from different kinds of fermentations and putrefactions of humours detained too long in the body, for want of its being able to digest and discharge them, on account of their too large bulk or unsuitable nature." The condition of the blood was a direct consequence of the type and quantity of food, the patient's age, the time of year and other factors.

the skin; the ends were left outside the hole. The cord was then moved back and forth each day "to create a dis-charge of purulent matter." Gastroenteritis (vomiting and diarrhea) was extremely common in Colo-nial times and was thought to be due to an excess of bile. It was treated with "chicken water and gruel," followed by castor oil, laudanum, mint tea and bloodletting (if the patient's blood vessels were "excessively full"). Because drinking-water supplies, especially in cities, were often contaminated, it is a wonder that patients survived the treatment, on top of the bacterial or viral intestinal infections.

We find these treatments crude today, but they lasted well into the 1800s, when more specific causes of disease began to be discovered. In 200 years, we will probably look back on medical practice of the 1980s as being incalculably ineffective. However, we do seem to have traveled at least one small step away from 18th-century panaceas and toward the one-disease/one-cure approach. Years ago, doctors had but a single therapy for a wide variety of ills. One medicine was commonly used to cure scurvy, leprosy, ulcers, cancers, ringworm, "scald heads" and sore eyes. If modern medicine has accomplished anything, at least it has shown that each disease has (or may have) a specific antidote. Even penicillin, thought originally to kill all germs, is now known to be effective against only a small spectrum of bacteria, and not at all against

Although medical practice circa 1700 had some horrendous drawbacks. there was an unmistakable quaintness about it. Certainly, patients would be better off after the application of leeches than they would after some of the bizarre treatments being offered by 20th-century medical quacks.

Love that coon huntin'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following near the feed lots. article was published in the "American Cooner" magazine last month. It was written by Tom Draper, well-known coon hunter who lives seven miles south of Hereford. A big billboard near his home proclaims "Cat if by Day, Coon if by

By TOM DRAPER

The guns of World War II had just been silenced and I found myself on the Queen Mary in South Hampton, England, on Thanksgiving Day in 1945. Didn't get a bite to eat, but it was the best holiday of my life. I was coming home.

The doctor who gave me my final examination found a slight malady. I told him it was hound fever and was not service connected. They discharged me.

It was time for a serious selfappraisal. I was 32 years old and single. Forty years has proved I did a good job of choosing a wife.

Farming was all I knew and I had lost four years. I must postpone coon hunting and give dilligence to agriculture. The most serious problem in farming has been droughts.

Hereford, Texas and Deaf Smith County on the High Plains were blessed with an abundance of irrigation water ranging in depth from 100 feet to 300 feet. One thousand gallons per minute was readily available. Electric power was plentiful and Coon hunting must wait as I was completely engrossed in farming.

Irrigation brought industry. Holly Sugar put a beet processing plant in Hereford. A beef packing plant soon was built. Cattle feeding became big business. Grain elevators became the tallest structures in all the towns.

Cattle feeding lots were built near lakes on well drained ground. These lakes became marshy and produced heavy vegetation which reached eight feet tall and water became two feet deep in wet seasons.

If my farming was successful, I would be able to buy good coon country within 160 miles of home. I was giving it all I had. Lightning struck! Duck and geese hunters started

It was time to assemble a pack of coon hounds. Acquiring well-bred young dogs was no problem. Getting a trained mature dog was something Fate smiled on me. Leon Hill was the best coyote hunter I knew. He had a real good pack of Hudspeth Walker hounds and they had the ability to put it on a fox or coyote. Old Rusty, (and he was properly named) had became disenchanted with hard running, and the encroachment of the years and arthritis. I understand his problem. Leon told me he had became problem to his pack due to seeking an easy way out. He started baying or treeing bobcats or coon. I assured him old Rusty had a home for life and this seemed to please both of us. He was ornery. He would bay porcupine and call in the young dogs. He would never get a quill.

About this time a cousin by marriage, Mr. Pat Rhodes, came from down state to the High Plains to pheasant hunt. As he parked his car the hounds barked. He asked why I had the dogs. "To coon hunt," I replied. "Where?" he asked. "No trees, no creek!"

He had a successful pheasant hunt, but still questioned my sanity for boarding those coon dogs out on the bald prairie.

I had to take him coon hunting. It looked like a disaster in the making. Those young dogs were having a field day on rabbits. He was having more fun than the dogs. Soon Rusty bayed at a mesquite bush near the edge of the lake. My hopes spruced up. We got there quickly. I had to get a club and kill the porcupine. Pat said, "We don't have any coons that look like

I had a firm talk with Rusty. We were both down cast. He walked forlornly at my heels as we started back across the dry lake bed to the pickup. Half way across, he bayed under our feet and scared both of us out of our wits. I looked at him and thought of the scripture in the Bible that says, "A young man will see visions and an old man will dream telling of killing coon in these lakes dreams." I thought hallucinations

MOVIE BLAHS Producer shapes show for Carl Weathers

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Barney Rosenzweig, long used to working one way as executive producer of CBS' "Cagney & Lacey," has had to learn new tricks for his new series, ABC's "Fortune Dane."

"For 'Cagney & Lacey' we have an old warehouse in the Lincoln Heights area (of Los Angeles), and everyone connected with the show works there," he said. "We have all our offices and sets there.

"We work just the opposite on 'Fortune Dane.' We do it all on location in Oakland. When we started we hoped to find a warehouse. But we didn't know what areas we'd be returning to. This is not a cop show. I made the decision to do it like a miniseries, all on location."

Carl Weathers, who stars in the title role and is Rosenzweig's partner in the production, wanted to do it in Oakland because he had lived there and had played professional football there with the Raiders before the team moved to Los Angeles.

"Fortune Dane" stars Weathers (Apollo Creed in the "Rocky" movies) as a former pro football player and police detective who becomes a trouble-shooter for a female mayor, played by Penny Fuller. Adolph Caesar ("A Soldier's Story") plays Weather's father in the first episode, which makes its debut Saturday.

Rosenzweig is a veteran TV producer. He produced the miniseries "East of Eden" and several TV movies, including "Angel on My Shoulder" and "One of My Wives Is Missing." His series have included "Daniel Boone," "Charlie's Angels" and "American Dream," which he

He had the idea for "Cagney & Lacey," which was then written as a TV movie by his wife, Barbara Corday, now president of Columbia Pictures Television, and Barbara Avedon. Ronald M. Cohen wrote the first episode of "Fortune Dane" and is co-executive producer with Rosenzweig and Weathers.

In the series, Weathers is no longer a detective but will occasionally run across something that needs to be investigated. Essentially, however, he is the man who gets the information needed by the ambitious mayor, who has her eye on the governor's office.

Although Rosenzweig took pains to see that it wasn't another police show, he laughed and said, "Of course, we may come to the point where we'll wish that it was another cop show so we could be rich and

East Texas store like stepping back in time

SAN AUGUSTINE, Texas (AP) -If you've been searching all over for Swamp Root, S.S.S. Tonic, Dr. J.H. McLean's Volcanic Oil Linament or Black-Draught Tablets like Grandma used to take, look no further.

The Stripling Drug Store in downtown San Augustine has all these remedies of old and more. Step back in time by stepping into the downtown drugstore that has been in continuous operation since 1904.

Part-owner Mary Jane Stripling offers a warm welcome to visitors. "We love the tourists, we cater to the tourists," she said. The store is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday, at 107 Columbia.

Folks from Houston get all enthused over the fact that the drugstore still has a fountain where you can order up a frosty shake or thick malt, she said. Soft drinks and "personalized" hamburgers made to please the patron's palate are also served.

Miss Stripling chatted to visitors recently as they sat on the comfortable counter stools and sipped cherry Cokes. The cherry Cokes were the original kind where the cherry flavoring is squirted in separately from the cola, so that you can see where the ice is red.

She pointed out the old-fashioned display cases and drawers. The wooden drawers have white enamel knobs lettered in black. Some of the quaint names on the front were corn cures, bluing, borax, licorice, catarrh cure, ink, parrafin, and razor "strops."

"We still sell patent medicines," she said. Asafoetida, for example, is sold in liquid or in blocks that some people hang around their necks to ward off sickness. "It smells to high heaven," she said. Turpentine and Dr. Tichenor's Mouthwash are also available, as well as a variety of products bearing the brand name "666."

Miss Stripling is the daughter of R.N. Stripling, a pharmacist and county judge who ran the store from 1904 until his death in 1978 at the age

R.N. Stripling learned the trade from his brother, Sam Stripling, who had a drugstore in Nacogdoches. He washed bottles and acquainted himself with pharmaceutical practices for the sum of 50 cents a day.

When he had learned everything his brother had to teach him, there was not really a place for him in Nacogdoches anymore. The store didn't need two pharmacists. So, Miss Stripling related, "He said he was going over to Diboll to take his pharmacy test and if he didn't pass, he was going to go to work at the sawmill.

He did pass the test and in 1904 he opened his drugstore in San Augustine. In 1963 he decided to take advantage of an existing point of interest by reexcavating a well that his store had been built over. The well still sits inside the store and visitors can open the covering and toss in a coin to make a wish. Photographs of early San Augustine are mounted next to the well. For a small fee, visitors may tour the mini-museum upstairs to see more artifacts. Thick old ledgers, glue pots, antique pharmaceutical containers, a buggy foot warmer, and a long-ago funeral ensemble of long black dress, black gloves, black hat and black veil are some of the items on display.

An 1840 marriage agreement between William W. Frizzell and Isabella V. Culp is interesting. In a forerunner of modern pre-nuptial agreements, the two were quite specific as to property and monies that were to be involved in their wed-

Speaking of wedded bliss, a May 1941 article in the magazine "True Story" on display made spellbinding reading. The title was "$18 A Week Love Nest" and it was written from a young wife's point of view. It was all about how she justified quitting her job so that she could stay home and be a better wife.

Lakers blast Suns 126-100

By The Associated Press

Coming off their most embarrassing moment of the season, a rout at the hands of the lowly Golden State Warriors, the Los Angeles Lakers weren't about to slip again versus another tailender.

So they turned to Mike McGee, who responded with 34 points in a 126-100 romp past the Phoenix Suns Wednesday night.

"The guys got me the ball a lot for the easy layups," McGee said. "I also had my jumper going early and got hot and they just kept giving me the ball. That's the way we always play - as a team."

McGee rarely is the hero for the star-studded Lakers, the defending NBA champions. And he had a lot of help from the usual cast: Kareem Abdul-Jabbar finished with 24 points while James Worthy had 20, rookie A.C. Green 12 and Michael Cooper 10. Earvin "Magic" Johnson handed out 11 assists.

The defeat dropped Phoenix to 20-30. 18 games back of the firstplace Lakers in the Pacific Division.

Elsewhere, it was Detroit 113, Knicks 99; Philadelphia 106, Chicago 98; Dallas 117, Denver 110, and Milwaukee 103, Indiana 97. Pistons 113, Knicks 99

The Pistons won their 11th in the last 15 games as center Bill Laimbeer scored 21 points and Kelly Tripucka added 19 against New York, which was without rookie center Patrick Ewing, out with a sore knee.

SWC football recruiting is 'graded'

An AP Sports Analysis By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer Rating the Southwest Conference football talent recruiting war Wednesday was easy when you're looking for first and last places.

The Texas Aggies won the top spot easily although they lost super running back Harvey Williams of Hempstead to Louisiana State. The Aggies can pay Harvey back next year when they open with the Tigers in Baton Southern Methodist gets dead last by default. The NCAA said the Mustangs couldn't give away any scholarships this year because of numerous recruiting violations in the past. SMU gets 15 next year if it's good.

Here are my ratings on the 1986 schoolboy signing day in Texas:

TEXAS A&M - Coach Jackie Sherrill gets an A. Only Williams' escape east marred the day. Although the Aggies were the defending Cotton Bowl champions Sherrill still had to battle NCAA probation rumors. He did an admirable job of defending the Aggie cause. He said he was in 21 different cities in two and one-half days over one stretch. His hard work showed in getting the

Porter to have chance to be third baseman

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) -Veteran catcher Darrell Porter, who recently signed a one-year contract with the Texas Rangers, will get a chance to play third base this spring, Rangers manager Bobby Valentine

Valentine said the Rangers have failed to find a left-handed hitting third baseman to back up Steve Buechele or to platoon with him.

Porter, 34, batted .221 with 10 home runs and 36 RBI while platooning at catcher for St. Louis last season.

"You can rest assured we'll see if Darrell (a left-handed hitter) can play third," Valentine said. "I know I read a couple of years ago where he said he wanted to be the Cardinals' starting third baseman."

best passer, the best receiver and the best center in the state.

BAYLOR - Baylor Coach Grant Teaff gets an A-minus. He calls it "the best defensive class" he's recruited. He also got three of the best quarterbacks in the state and without a doubt one of the most exciting receivers in Greg Anderson of Odessa Permian.

TCU - Coach Jim Wacker gets a B plus. The Horned Frogs beefed up on both lines of scrimmage. Another amazing performance by Wacker considering the chaos the Horned Frogs went through last year and the impending action by the NCAA because of the TCU slush fund established before Wacker came

ARKANSAS - Coach Ken Hatfield gets a solid B. The Razorbacks sacked every important player in the state and raided Oklahoma for the top quarterback. Hatfield has the Arkansas players going to Arkansas

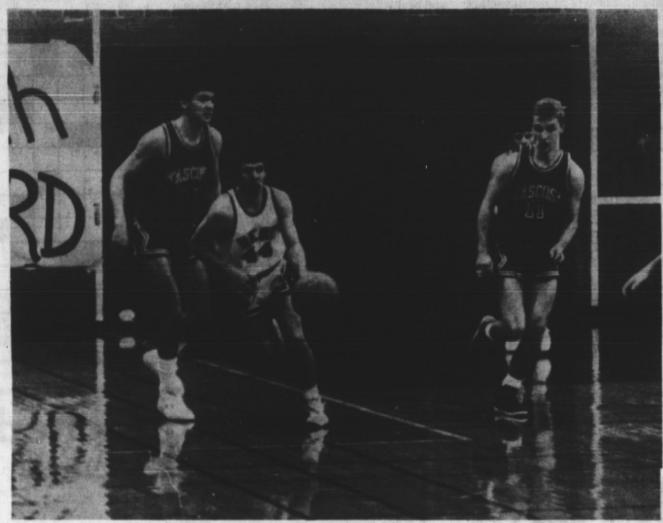

TEXAS TECH - Coach David McWilliams gets a C plus in his first try as a Red Raider recruiter. Tech did a good job in West Texas and signed their first Lubbock Estacado player in 13 years.

TEXAS - Coach Fred Akers gets a C minus. Bluechip linebacker Duane Duncum was the shining star of a soso crop for the Longhorns, who are trying to overcome the upheaval of five fired assistant coaches.

HOUSTON - Coach Bill Yeoman gets a D. The Cougars got several good players but overall their crop is a big mystery. Quarterback Michael McDade of Hempstead has potential some three years from now which is about the best you can say for this RICE - Coach Jerry Berndt gets a D minus. Now you know Jerry how tough it is to recruit on Old Main.

SMU - Coach Bobby Collins doesn't get a report card. But he does have an impressive looking walk-on

Fears may not disappear

Fears which children develop as a result of experiencing a natural disaster may not simply disappear with time.

The assumption that childrens' fears diminish within two years, regardless of whether counseling is received, is fairly widespread, but it may not hold for fears acquired because of natural disasters.

Texas Tech University psychology Professor Bill J. Locke has treated children who retained fears many years after tragic tornadoes or hurricanes. The fears in question are those that become crippling and lifechanging to the individual.

"The current approach to fears is that a fear is a fear is a fear," Dr. Locke said. "The source and the situation in which they are acquired is only important as they indicate the cues which will trigger the emotion later on. The assumption is that the process is the same no matter how the fear is born.

"But, we're speculating that may not be so. Most of the research on fears has been with adults and it was applied to children. But, you wouldn't tell an adult 'wait and you'll grow out of it."

Locke and a former doctoral student are in the second year of a sixyear project to assess fear acquisi-tion and retention in children who experience tornadoes or hurricanes.

Locke became interested in the psychology of fear and natural disasters after a May 1970 tornado ripped through the West Texas city of Lubbock, killing 26 people and doing millions of dollars in damage.

"The Lubbock tornado created a natural laboratory for studying the emotional effects of tornados," Locke said. "Over the years, I've been impressed with the persistence of some of the fears people developed-especially people who were children at the time."

His interest was enhanced four years ago when doctoral student Elizabeth Sledden Dybell, now with the Houston psychology firm Weinberger and Katz, began a dissertation on childhood fears.

SACALARIA CON CONTRA CO

In late April 1983, the Children's Fears and Worries Scale (CFWS), a questionnaire Dybell synthesized from other scales, was piloted with 45 elementary students and their families in Houston. On May 20, a tornado struck Houston and on Aug. 18, Hurricane Alicia blasted the coastal city.

"We were able to turn these natural disasters to our advantage because we had done preassessments in the area before the tragedies," Locke said. "Pre- and post-assessment is extremely hard to get in natural disasters because you never know when they are going to

Data on those students and their famlies are still being gathered to determine how long the fears will

Locke hopes to continue the work 17 and expand the focus to include content of fear, its generalization and tent of fear, its generalization and (comb. form) the effects of various types of intervention.

"We want to look at content and intensity of fears in a variety of ways," he said. "You would think that fear born of a natural disaster would be manifest in fear of nature, but often it is generalized to fear of animals, school, and the supernatural or worries about social encounters, safety and healty."

Another aspect of the research will Another aspect of the research will be to measure the effects of interven- 42 Speak 44 Place for art tion. This spring when tornadoes are apt to occur, Locke and Psychology Department graduates across the state will monitor the news closely for a situation which would allow them to move in and apply a variety of counseling techniques and treat-ment schedules.

For this aspect of the research, the psychologists will work closely with Texas Tech's nationally known Institute for Disaster Research (IDR). Created after Lubbock's 1970 tornado, the institute conducts engineering analyses of wind and tornado damage. Locke's efforts to get field workers quickly into a disaster area this year will follow IDR procedures.

TCU hoop fans chant 'onside kick'

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer Texas Christian Horned Frogs' basketball fans in Daniel Meyer Coliseum kept chanting "Onside Kick, Onside Kick."

They hadn't forgotten a 53-6 rout of their football team by the Texas Aggies last fall in which the winners tried an onside kick late in the game.

TCU's 73-50 mashing of the Aggies Wednesday night not only kept the Horned Frogs in a tie for the Southwest Conference basketball leadership, it gave both their football and basketball programs a measure of revenge.

A&M had beaten TCU 64-60 in College Station earlier in the year.

In other games Wednesday night, Texas beat Baylor 55-50, Arkansas upset Texas Tech 79-72 in overtime, and Houston nudged Rice 71-69.

TCU Coach Jim Killingsworth said it was the Frogs' biggest victory of the year.

"It has to be," he said. "It was our first sellout, and they had beaten us earlier. I thought we did a great defensive job."

Killingsworth said the strain of the season was starting to tell on him. "I told my assistant coaches I'm too old to coach and too broke to quit," he said.

"We're still not in the driver's seat. SMU is just laying over there waiting for us. SMU Coach Dave Bliss has been poor mouthing himself all season, and they're just laying there in the woods waiting to crack us over the head."

SMU, 8-3 in the SWC, hosts TCU about it."

Aggie Coach Shelby Metcalf said "We just didn't play well at all. We shot very poorly. TCU just packed in their zone and we couldn't hit."

Don Marbury, who had a game high 23 points for the Aggies, said A&M got the raw side of the of-

"The refs cheated us real bad," said Marbury. "It was a joke."
Metcalf said "We've got a rough road now with Teas in Austin."

Rice lost to Houston despite having the ball and a 68-67 lead with only three seconds to play.

Houston's Greg Anderson was whistled for a flagrant technical foul and ejected for throwing a punch at Rice's Richard Holmes. However, Holmes swung back, and officials called an identical penalty against him. The result was a pair of free throws for each team. Houston's Alvin Franklin made both of his, while Rice's Ivan Petitt made only

That tied the contest, 69-69, but more importantly gave Houston the ball out of bounds on the alternating possession rule. The Cougars' Ricky Jackson hit a long jumper at the buzzer to give Houston an improbable two-point victory.

"Something's wrong with the rules that permit a guy to start a fight and win the game," Rice Coach Tommy Suitts said. "I think it was unfair for that to happen, but out of respect for Coach Lewis that's all I have to say

Controversy surfaces in recruiting wars

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) -Oklahoma State athletic director Myron Roderick exploded after one of Texas' top schoolboy football players called him Tuesday night and asked him about reports that the Cowboys are facing NCAA penalties.

Melvin Foster, a blue-chip linebacker who helped lead Houston Yates to an undefeated season and the state championship in Texas' bigcity classification, reported that Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer told him Oklahoma State would be placed on probation, Roderick said.

"This is completely false," Roderick said.

Roderick had told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram on Tuesday of his intention to turn in Oklahoma and other Big Eight coaches for suggesting to recruits that Oklahoma State would be put on probation. "Coaches from (Oklahoma) are making statements ... that Oklahoma State is being investigated and that it's going on probation," Roderick said. "That's a lie. I'm tired of that kind of thing."

Roderick said Foster, considered perhaps the top prep prospect in Texas, called him Tuesday night to ask about reports that the Cowboys were facing NCAA penalties.

Foster remains the major bluechip Texas player still uncommitted. Most players signed letters of intent Wednesday, the national signing

Foster, who has been considering both Oklahoma and Oklahoma State as well as Iowa, could not be reached for comment Wednesday. He said earlier he would decide Friday where he will attend college.

Yates football coach Luther Booker said he did not know about Foster's conversations with Switzer or Roderick.

Switzer was reported en route to Denver, Colo., Wednesday and was unavailable for comment. Mike Treps, Sooner sports information director, said, "We wouldn't have any comment on that at all."

Roderick said he has received "a bunch" of reports from recruits who have heard similar rumors about Oklahoma State.

"I think it's got to stop," Roderick said. "It's an allegation against our institution and our athletic program that's false."

Roderick said the alleged incidents violate an ethics rule passed by the Big Eight Conference in January 1985. The rule prohibits coaches from making derogatory comments about other conference schools.

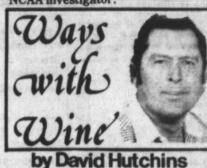

Carl James, Big Eight commissioner, would not comment on the situation between the two conference schools, but said of the ethics rule passed last year:

"There is no penalty connected with it. It's like a sportsmanship code. It's called a recruiting code of Roderick told the Star-Telegram on Tuesday that Roy Wales, father of Tulsa Metro Christian linebacker Richard Wales, called Oklahoma State Coach Pat Jones on Tuesday and said he had received a telephone call from a David Smith, who identified himself as an NCAA investigator.

"He told Mr. Wales the NCAA had 67 violations against Oklahoma State and (OSU recruiting coordinator) Willie Anderson," Roderick said.

Roderick said he and Jones explained to Wales they knew of no David Smith who worked as an NCAA investigator.

TEQUILA

The origins of tequila can be traced to the Aztecs. They made a wine called "pulgue" from the heart of the mezcal plant. The conquering Spaniards applied the art of distilling to this wine. Mezcal is a kind of "agave," a succlent that matures in 10 to 12 years. A spectacular 20 to 30 foot flower stalk grows out of the center of the plant before it finally dies. Tequile makers, however, do not let this happen. Instead, they cut off the outter leaves to get at the heart of the plant, called the "pina". It weighs up to 150 pounds and contains the sticky sap from which the juices are extracted and fermented.

NEW YORK (AP) - Meet Nicky and Emily Bronson. In a world of sex-stereotyped toys for boys and girls, they are a toymaker's dream.

Nicky, 9, loves playing war with his G.I. Joe, Transformers and Gobots. His favorite color is blue.

Emily, 51/2, loves to cuddle her Cabbage Patch preemies, Rainbow Brite toys and Care Bear dolls. Her favorite color is pink.

On a visit Wednesday to You are hereby notified of Toy Fair, the annual trade show unveiling what manufacturers hope will be the hot toys of 1986, they were an easy sell. They wanted to buy almost everything.

"Remember," Sue Bronson told her disappointed children, "I told you this was like a museum. We can't take anything home."

Nicky was a pushover when it came to critiquing Coleco's new line of Rambo action figures. "Oh, cool," he said, as he eyed a 6%-inch doll outfitted with an Uzi machine gun and an anti-tank grenade. He practically drooled over "Mad Dog," one of the bad guys from the Secret Army of Vengeance and Global Evil, wearing studded wristbands and armed for battle with a fast-draw shotgun.

Emily wasn't impressed. Neither was mom. "I don't encourage him to have guns; this is all a bit frightening." she said, looking around the showroom, which contained enough miniature hardware to wage a play global war. Nicky wasn't fazed.

The Griffon, the first ship to sail the upper Great Lakes, was launched in 1679.

"I like the violence," he said, fists rolled into a punch. "I'm going to buy one whether she'll let me or not.

I'll use my own money." Emily, a little lady from the striped bow in her brown hair to her purple boots, began her oohs and aahs in Cabbage Patch Kids land. She grabbed a circus kid outfitted in a multicolored clown costume and bright pink polka dot bow. She giggled happily at the clown mask and oversized squeaky shoes.

Nicky wanted a New York Mets Cabbage Patch kid, although he had 17 teams to chose from. "This one looks like Gary Carter," the Metz' catcher, he said.

"Look, that astronaut has a tooth," said Emily, pointing excitedly at a Cabbage Patch astronaut complete with silver space suit and helmet in a cardboard box shaped like a spaceship.

In the Tonka Showroom, Nicky zeroed in on the Rock Lords, transformable action figures that start out looking like boulders. Like many children today, he loves toys that are more than they seem. "Toys that don't transform are sometimes boring," he said.

Both children agreed that the hugely successful Pound Puppies and the new feline version, Pound Pur-r-ries, were very huggable.

"How much are they? I want to buy one right now," Nicky said. He'll have to wait till they're in the stores, he was told.

When they got to the Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. showroom and met Jibber Jabber, the hi-tech monkey who makes jungle sounds, the Bronsons discovered the joys of talking toys. Swinging two monkeys by their tails created enough jabber from the furry electronic pets to cause mom to long for the days when only children talked back.

Nicky and Emily left Toy Fair exhausted, overwhelmed and looking forward to birthdays and Christmas. They made sure mom took note of those at the top of their lists.

Proclaiming Toy Fair a success, Nicky wondered aloud, "What are they going to think of next? How about a Rambo Cabbage Patch kid?"

DISAGREE: BUT DON'T BE DISAGREEABLE!

Paul and Barnabas stayed at Antioch to assist several others who were preaching and teaching

Several days later Paul suggested to Barnabas that they return again to Turkey, and visit each city where they had preached before, to see how the new converts were getting along.

Barnabas agreed, and wanted to take along John Mark. But Paul didn't like that idea at all, since John had deserted them in Pamphylia. Their disagreement over this was so sharp that they separated. Barnabas took Mark with him and sailed for Cyprus, while Paul chose Silas and, with the blessing of the believers, left for Syria and Cilicia, to encourage the churches there.

Paul and Silas went first to Derbe and then to Lystra where they met Timothy, a believer whose mother was a Christian Jewess but his father was a

Timothy was well thought of by the brothers in Lystra and Iconium, so Paul asked him to join them on their journey. In deference to the Jews of the area, he circumcised Timothy before they left, for everyone knew that his father was a Greek (and hadn't permitted this before). Then they went from city to city, making known the decision concerning the Gentiles, as decided by the apostles and elders

So the church grew daily in faith and numbers. Acts 15:34-41; 16:1-5

Report cites nuclear plant with flaws

HOUSTON (AP) - Flaws discovered during a federal inspection at the South Texas Nuclear Project could put the $5.5 billion plant near Bay City behind schedule, a Nuclear Regulatory Commission official said.

But Graham Painter, spokesman for Houston Lighting & Power Co., the managing partner in the project, said correcting the problems won't delay the projected loading of nuclear fuel in June 1987 or the start of commercial power generation in December 1987.

James M. Taylor, director of NRC's office of inspection and enforcement, wrote to HL&P saving the agency is concerned with the timeliness of some of HL&P's planned corrective actions.

The NRC noted HL&P already had acted to correct some of the problems found among hardware and design control

The problems stemmed mainly from weaknesses in the plant's construction program, according to an NRC inspection report released Tuesday by HL&P, the managing partner in the pro-

Painter said the company hasn't been told whether any punitive action, which could range from an order to fix the problems to a fine, will be taken.

Among the problems cited in the inspection report was one involving the design control of motor-operated valves. Another concerned poorly designed circuit breakers that could have faulted or inadvertently interrupted power circuits.

Other problems included hardware defects in 10 of 12 kinds of mechanical equipment, numerous flaws in installation of instruments and too-tight installation of more than 60 percent of 68 highstrength bolts used for structural steel sliding connec-

NRC inspectors, however, said elecrtrical work, reinforced concrete construction, welding and structural steel installation at the project were generally adequate.

Jerry Goldberg, HL&P's nuclear group vice president, said in a prepared statement that several of the problem areas cited by the NRC had been identified by the project management's consultants.

"The NRC's review, however, uncovered additional areas which require increased project attention, and corrective actions in these areas have been initiated."

Lawmakers rip base closing plan

WASHINGTON (AP) -Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says Congress can save money by closing military bases, but several lawmakers have lambasted Weinberger for naming bases in the districts of three powerful House Democrats who are critical of the administration's defense

Weinberger, in a letter to the Senate Armd Services Committee made public Wednesday, said action on the three bases could be used to "determine the will of Con-

The three are a large section of Lowry Air Force Base in Denver, the Philadelphia Naval Hospital and the Army Materials Technology Laboratory in Watertown, Sen. Gary Hart, a Colorado Democrat and critic of the administration's request for an 11.9 percent increase in authorized defense spending next year, quickly charged that Weinberger was playing politics.

Hart noted that the three facilities are in the districts of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts: Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., chairman of the House Budget Committee; and Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., a member of the House Armed Services Committee.

"Secretary Weinberger is trying to put his most effective critics on the defensive," said Hart. "It won't work. Anyone who has passed an knows the secretary is making a statement not about the budget, but about politics.

"Clearly, Secretary Weinberger is not interested and the Navy would prefer to in cutting the defense budget," Hart added. "He seems to be playing a game of political security and not national security." Said Gray spokesman

William Epstein, "Chairman Gray thinks they're playing politics with the budget. He finds it far more than coincidence that out of the more than 1,100 military bases we have, Secretary Weinberger can find only three to close and they just happen to be in Philadelphia, Massachusetts and Colorado. We're not going to stand for it."

Andrea Camp, Ms. Schroeder's press secretary, said the congresswoman was "suspicious" of Weinberger's

She quoted Ms. Schroeder as saying, "It wasn't motivated by politics; it looks like it was motivated by stupidity. They are not really transferring its functions to other facilities and paying $200 million to do so. Only Cap Weinberger could come up with a plan to spend money instead of save it."

An aide said O'Neill could not be reached for comment. Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims denied that the selections were politically motivated. "There is nothing political in this at all," said Sims. "I don't think the secretary's decision in any way was governed by partisan politics." Weinberger, in his letter to

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., chairman of the Senate panel, noted that he was providing the list of potential closings at Goldwater's request.

Weinberger's letter, released publicly by Hart, did not describe why the three bases were picked.

Closing military bases, and their attendant payrolls, has always been politically unpopular, and Congress has enacted laws blocking the Pentagon's ability to shut down military facilities.

The Army Materials Technology Laboratory sits on 48 acres of land but employs only 755 military and civilian workers, Sims said. According to the Army, the lab requires an annual operating budget of about $47 million and its functions can be moved to existing labs.

The Philadelphia Naval Hospital was built in 1935 and eighth grade civics class employs about 820 people, Sims said. During the Vietnam war, it had a daily pa-tient load of about 1,000, but that has dwindled to about 135 close the hospital and build a smaller clinic at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, he Lowry AFB, because of its location near burgeoning Denver, no longer functions as an active flight base and sits "on some of the most valuable land the Air Force controls," Sims said.

The base is used as a technical center to provide training in avionics, munitions and intelligence and also by the Air Force Accounting and Finance Center and the Reserve Personnel

The Air Force said Wednesday it wanted to close the training center but leave the accounting and personnel centers in place. That would result in the transfer of about 4,500 employees and 5,000 students to other training

Four men held following seizure

(AP) - Four men were being held today in the Nueces County jail on firearms possession charges after their airplane, bound for Guatemala, was seized in South Texas, authorities said. One of the men claimed to be an Eastern Airlines pilot.

Federal agents said they found two unregistered machine guns aboard the $1 million 1981 Cessna Conquest when they made the arrests at Brooks County Airport in Falfurrias early Wednesday. A handwritten flight plan to Guatemala was also found on the plane, but the plan had not been filed with the Federal Aviation Administration, said A. D'Wayne Jernigan, head of the U.S. Customs Service office in Jernigan said the plane landed at the Brooks County Airport at about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday for refueling. The U.S. Border Patrol received a report of a suspicious plane investigate, the Corpus CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas Christi reported.

When agents checked the registration number with U.S. Customs officials, they found it was a bogus number. The four men were arrested at 3 a.m. Wednesday after returning to the airport from a Falfurrias motel. Those arrested were identified as Gerald J. Merchan, 45, of Miami; Douglas R. Carro, 31, of Palm Springs, Calif., Juan Jose Morales-Andrade, 29, of Guatemala

City; and Jorge Aristizabal-

Archila, 28, of Bogota, Colom-Merchan and Carro were charged with possession of an automatic firearm and Moarales and Aristizabal were charged with possession of machine guns.

All four were held without bond pending a detention hearing scheduled for this afternoon, said U.S. Magistrate Eduardo de Ases.

Airlines keep eye on falling oil prices

DALLAS (AP) - Airlines, like most companies in the transporta-tion industry, are keeping an eye toward falling crude oil prices. However, officials at four Texas-based carriers said they have not yet seen lower fuel bills.

"It's not having a dramatic impact yet," said Mark Osterberg, vice president of finance and control at

"We don't know how long it will be until we see it and we don't know how long it will last," Osterberg said Wednesday.

American Airlines spokesman Al Becker said some airlines would benefit from lower fuel bills more than others. Airlines organized since deregulation, he said, have lower labor costs than older carriers, Because newer, low-cost airlines spend proportionately more on fuel than labor, their costs - and ticket prices - will drop more than those of older, established airlines, Becker said.

"The practical, day-to-day effect is that it (falling fuel prices) benefits them much more greatly than it does American," Becker said.

Osterberg agreed that the oil-price drop will have a bigger effect on Braniff than on American. "A drop in fuel prices should have a bigger impact on us with respect to unit costs," he said.

Braniff filed for bankruptcy in 1982

Fist-size hole found in Boeing 727

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) -Richard Magee said he thought he was going to go through his seat when an American Airlines jet attempted to land in heavy fog, but bounced short of the runway and struck several lights in its path.

The Boeing 727 aborted the landing early Saturday and headed to San Antonio and two other cities before a "fist-size" hole was discovered in the plane's belly, federal officials said.

Passengers were aboard two of those flights. "We hit the ground very, very hard." Magee, 61, said Wednesday. The Federal Aviation Administpation and the National Transportion Safety Board are continuing their investigation. The passengers were let off in San Antonio. The plane proceeded to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, picked up more passengers and headed to Denver.

In Denver, a "fist-size" hole was found in the belly of the Boeing 727 aircraft, which was taken out of service, FAA spokeswoman Ms. Cook Airline spokesman Al Becker said federally required "walk-around" inspections of the plane were done in San Antonio and Dallas, but no one saw the hole.

Becker said the airline would await a fedaral investigation to see if the safety of passengers or the aircraft were jeopardized because of the hole.

Flight 844 left Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport late Friday and was trying to make a scheduled landing at Valley International Airport in Harlingen at 12:15 a.m. Saturday, Ms. Cook said.

Visibility, however, was poor and the plane circled the airport three times trying to make an instrument

On the third try, it touched down about 450 feet short of the end of the runway, Ms. Cook said.

The plane then hit an airport light stanchion, knocked out five lights, proceeded about 200 more feet, hit a second stanchion and blew out another light, she said.

Magee said the passengers bounced around and sat in silence.

"It was a very strange feeling. The inside of the plane was a mess," Magee said. "The overhead baggage compartment doors flew open. The ceiling panels danced around. Some of them were hanging out ... and right in front of me an oxygen mask fell down."

The plane then flew to San Antonio where the passengers got off the plane and were sent to Harlingen by bus, Becker said.

Magee said he and several other passengers stayed in a San Antonio hotel and returned by jet later Satur-

Ms. Cook said the incident was not immediately reported because the tower in Harlingen closes at 11 p.m.

The plane went to Dallas without passengers, but did proceed to Denver with an unspecified number of passengers, Becker said.

Braniff's greatest expense is fuel, which accounts for 30 percent of the carrier's expenses, Osterberg said. He said labor is the second-largest expense, at 20 percent.

Goddard said Southwest has some of the characteristics of both an older, established airline and of a new, low-cost airline.

"It's not established in the sense of Delta or American," she said. "But it's not a carrier established since deregulation." Like newer airlines, though, Southwest spends less on labor than do older carriers.

Houston-based Continental Airlines also shares characteristics of both older and newer carriers, said spokesman Mike Cinelli. The airline was established long before deregulation, he said, but its labor costs are lower than most established airlines because it has been reorganized under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code. Employees' wages and salaries were cut.

Despite the fact that the American Airlines is unionized, and most lowcost carriers are not, Becker said, he does not consider the newer carriers'
