Separate Treaty?

Soviet Participation Sought In Jap Talks

Two-Thirds Vote Proposal Seen As An Issue

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)-Despite the widening split between Russia and the western allies in Europe, American officials voiced hope today that Moscow will agree to Japanese peace treaty talks free of any big

If the Kremlin rejects the United States proposal which it now has under consideration, this government will be faced with deciding whether to go ahead with a "separate" treaty with Japan-that is, one without Soviet participation.

Unlike her position in Germany, Russia has no occupation forces in Japan and controls no Japanese territory. Hence officials here contend such a separate peace with a functioning Japanese government could be made to work.

The American proposal for a veto-free conference of 11 nations to begin work on the Japanese treaty was announced yesterday. It is a radical departure from European peace-making procedures in two respects.

In the first place the conference would make decisions by a two thirds vote with or without concurring votes of the big powers. In the second place the treaty drafting would be done not alone by the great powers but by seven settlement.

The countries which the United States proposed for participation are the big four of the Far East-America, Britain, China, and Russia plus the Philippines, India, Australia, New Zealand, France, the Netherlands and Canada.

In the case of Europe Russia flatly opposed any such wide participation and insisted that those slight in view of the drive for adtreaties be written by the Big journment by the end of the next Four-America, Britain, Russia and France.

Eventually, the American plan contemplates a full dress general year. peace conference to be attended by all of the 48 nations which were -and technically still are-at war

Officials say there is no reason why it should take any longer than a matter of months to draft the Japanese treaty. They cite the fact raised in connection with Germany

Big Spring

Much of the increase is going into export trade, and among the heaviest users of fertilizers, particularly nitrogen, is Germany-the nation that formerly produced the vast bulk of nitrogen. How long this will last remains to be seen, but likely for several years. By the time the German industry is brought back into play-if it isthe American know-how and ingenuity for lowering production costs may continue to keep us competitive in the international

Overlooked by many, however, is the rocketing demand for fertilizers within our own borders. Areas which used little or no fertilizer before the war are now heavy purchasers. Iowa now takes over 200,000 tons per year against 10,000 before the war; Wisconsin takes 300,000 against 3,000 three decades ago.

Some of this may be attributed to the evidence of greater yields because of fertilizers, that it is a good investment. More of it may be attributed properly to the fact that our agriculturalists have unwittingly let substantial portions of the fertility of their soil be dissipated through erosion and bad crop practices.

In our own area the use of fertilizers has not yet become prevalent. That is because except in rare instances, we have not yet become aware of lost fertility. The alternative is to protect and preserve native fertility. It is cheaper and far more sensible. If we don't do this, we may be in the market for some of this increased production.

The World Runs Out Of Dollars

In our personal affairs, most of us have had the perplexing experience of running out of dollars.

Applied on an international scale, this is one of the most urgent economic problems, not alone for the world but for our highgeared industrial economy as well.

The world is out of dollars, for practical purposes. During 1947 exports have progressed at the rate of better than $19 billions; imports have exceeded $7 billions.

This elemental fact must be kept in mind: In a trade, it is necessary to maintain receipts comparable to expenditures if the level of activity is to remain undisturbed. Obviously, the world cannot continue to buy our goods under such a disproportionate balance of trade. Already many have exhausted their dollar reserves and others, even our neighbor, Mexico, have clamped sharp restrictions on imports from the United States. Continuation and expansion of this trend naturally will cut the demand for American goods and at the same time reduce the demand for production. That, of course, would affect employment, national income and other fac-

There are two alternatives. One is outand-out barter or state trading, under which we generally come out second best , and which destroys free trade. The other is the extension of credits. This is generally what you do when you get in a tightyou borrow against the hope that you will be able, at later date, to repay. Chances are we will not recover directly on our loans for world trade, but if we labor at control and even removal of trade barriers, we have hope of maintaining the level for some time to come and of getting something back.

nothing about it this year. It started March 22 when President Truman outlined a program for the government departments to check on the loyalty of people working for them. To make the program work-such as paying for investigators and so on-would take about $24,000,000. All Mr. Truman asked Congress to do was vote the money. He didn't think it necessary for Congress to pass a law or do anything but vote the money. So far Congress hasn't voted And on May 18 one of the top

WASHINGTON. IP - For Mr. Truman's program. This was Speaker Joseph Mar-

the major credit." Yesterday the House passed a bill to check on the loyalty of set up a program only slightly different from Mr. Truman's program.

But before this House-passed bill can become law, the Senate also must pass it.

The Senate has shown no signs of intending to tackle the problem this year. And Congress plans to quit for 1946 by the end of this month.

But what if the Senate doesn't approve? Then Congress will go home without setting up its own lovalty-check program. What if Congress doesn't vote the money for Mr. Truman's program before it goes home? Then

Mr. Truman's program falls through and nothing happens. Under Mr. Truman's program and under the House bill. too, the loyalty check would be made of employes in the executive branches only. Those are the actual line branches of the government like the departments of state, commerce, interior, labor, war,

The employes of Congress and the U. S. courts would not be covered.

With all the talk of loyalty in the government flying around, Secretary Marshall on July 3 asked the FBI to check the state department's 21,000 employes for loyalty. He did this after dropping 10 employes as "bad risks."

Visit To Ford Plant In Dallas

The parts go round and round, and come out here-a completed car. That's mass production.

Young Henry Ford II, head of the vast Ford motor empire, came to Texas to see how his Dallas plant was coming along. It was coming along all right. The plant was one of Ford's first out-of-Detroit assembly plants back in 1909. Young Ford describes it as "rather historic." He said the first Ford owner in these parts was a Col. E. H. R. Green, who probably bought a six-cylinder Model K boasting about 40 horsepower.

The Texas plant today has a capacity of 350 cars and trucks a day, employs 1,632 workers and pays them an annual salary of $4,200,000. A $600,000 expansion is planned.

Included among the Texas employes are eleven men who worked for the Ford company before the present boss, 29-yearold Henry, II, was born. Most of them have been with Ford for 33 years. Their combined years with the company total

But what is this mass production, assembly line technique like? It's like this:

The plant sprawls over an amazingly large area, but not a square inch is wasted. Actually, there are two assembly lines that merge at a given point to complete the car. First there's the working parts, you might say-the engine, chasis, etc. As the chasis rolls along on a conveyer, one man will slap on a certain bolt or screw, another will tighten it, another will add another part, the engine will be lowered and installed, etc. Meanwhile, in another part of the building the body is being put together a fender and a window at a time. It, too, is continually on the move, and most of the workers operate on moving parts. Some even jump in the body and ride a few feet in style, adjusting the dashboard, seats,

The two assembly lines merge when both the body and the chasis are finished. Then the body is lifted onto the business part of your car, adjusted, screwed on, and rolls a final 50 feet of final odds-and-ends work-putting on tires, connecting the electrical wiring, testing

When the car slides up on its conveyor to the end of the line. it's ready to roll under its own power, lights burning, horn honking, engine running. A worker jumps in, drives it away a few feet, where the final bit of equipment is added-the chrome rims around the front headlights.

As we stood watching, a car or truck rolled off that line every ten minutes.

The very last thing put on the car was something typically Texas-the sticker that says proudly

"Made In Texas." Then the car is gone for good, to some dealer and then to you. It must be you-we couldn't get

Official U. S. Policy In Germany

The United States government has just issued its first official statement of policy governing Germany since the war, and takes the stand that a stable and productive Germany is necessary to make Europe orderly and prosperous.

This historic statement is in the form of a directive to the American occupation force in Germany. It instructs Lieut. Gen. Clay, American zone commander, to exert every effort to achieve economic unity with other zones. and says highest priority should be given to increased production of coal, food and export goods.

The greatest importance must be attached to this declaration in view of the increasing gravity of the European economic crisis. It is a situation which is going to be worse before it can start to get better. To use the graphic warning of French Premier Ramadier: "The hour has come for Europe to organize or die." The United States directive takes on particular significance in view of the approaching Anglo-American conference in Washingcreasing the all-important coal thing along that line will come Texas A. & M.

production of the Ruhr. The conference is likely to pivot on a showdown between the two countries over the British socialist government's insistence on natioanlization of the Ruhr coal mines. Washington takes the view that nationalization is a question for the German people to decide.

Of course it's easy to understand why a socialist government, which ranks nationalization as one of its cardinal tenets. should want to see it carried out in Germany and elsewhere.

However, I judge that there's more to the British stand than that revolving about the ism. Britain doesn't want to see the riches of the Ruhr revert to the control of the war-mongering Prussian junkers.

When it comes down to the question of the Prussian warlords getting control of the Ruhr again, surely there can be small ground for dispute among the allies. Still, nationalization isn't the only method of handling this situation. International control might turn the trick, and it up for serious consideration at the Washington conference.

NEW YORK. (#)-There wasn't any Russian sphere in Pilsen the day we pulled in just before peace broke out.

There weren't any Russians there at all-or beer either Bombs had ruined the famous brewery as well as the Skoda

We were going through Czechoslovakia one way, and the Russkies were sweeping the Germans toward us from the other side like a piled up snowplow. In the capital at Prague 55 miles away, the Czech patriots decided they had earned a crack at the Germans after seven years, so they began attacking the armored columns as they muscled through the streets. "The Americans will get here in a few hours to help us," said the leaders, so all Prague pitch-

It was one fight the Nazi SS column wasn't looking for. The panicky Germans wanted only to get through the city to give up to the Americans and avoid capture by the Russians.

But they had to fight. They smashed one group of Czech patriots in the Prague city hall with tank fire that burned the centuries-old building to the ground. And they tied screaming women and children on their tanks so the Czech civilians would hold their sniping fire. Helpless against the stronger

German firepower, the Czech patriots sent delegations after delegation to Pilsen to urge the American third army to hurry into Prague and save them.

They met a surprising answer:

Mix-Up On Palestine Question

WASHINGTON. - President Truman and his secretary of state, Gen. George Marshall. have had their first difference on foreign policy. The issue was Pal-

A short time ago, the President was informed that state department officials were ignoring his statements regarding a Jewish homeland, to some extent steering an opposite course from tmat fixed by the President.

Members of congress who conferred with the new undersecretary of State Robert Lovett and even with Marshall himself reported back to the White House that they were told the United States had no policy on Palestine The United States, they were informed, would have to wait until the general assembly of the United Nations meets in September in order to fix pol-

Meanwhile, President Truman had made a strong statement on Palestine stressing American sympathy for the idea of a Jewish homeland. Despite this, a group of senators calling at the state department were informed that the United States still had no Palestine policy.

As a result, Truman called in General Marshall, informed him that the U.S. very definitely does have a Palestine policy. Statements made by the President of the United States, he said, constitute American foreign policy and are to be followed by the state department.

Secretary Marshall agreed and asked if the President would like to have him make a special statement to the press on Palestine. Truman thought it was too late for this and the matter was dropped. There was no personal row and the two men remain as good friends as ever. DOESN'T GO TO TRIAL

Democratic director Gael Sullivan should take a tip from the Army when it comes to charges of drunken driving. Sullivan driving from Washington, D. C., to his home in Woonsocket, R. .. went off the road. A teetotaller. Sullivan was charged with drunken driving, claimed he went asleep at the wheel. $100 fine, plus $100,000 worth of bad publicity.

In contrast, Brig. Gen. August W. Kissner was arrested for drunken driving in Washington on April 17, but has not yet been brought to trial .

General Kissner, however, had powerful friends. They included his superior, Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, Capt. Mark H. Raspberry of the national park police and Carlton Skinner, public relations counsel of the interior department. These friendships partly derived from the fact that General Kissner had been the flying companion of Secretary of the Interior Krug when the latter took his trans-Pacific trip last summer. Following the General's arrest Captain Raspverry and Mr. Skinner accompanied him to the D. C. corporation counsel's office and pled that the charges be dropped. The corporation counsel, however, refused. Instead, he ordered a jury trial for April

That jury trial has never been held. It was first postponed to April 28, then to May 19. Meanwhile, the Army very conveniently transferred General Kissner to Germany.

If the General had been an enlisted man, the story might have been different.

Note-The district of Columbia is still awaiting the return of General Kissner to bring him to trial. However, it may have a long time to wait. When the justice department tried to get Secretary of War Patterson to surrender Col. Freeman Burford of Texas to face trial, Patterson refused. Burford was under criminal indictment in connection with the Louisiana oil scandals in which Ex-Gov. Richard Leche was jailed. Colonel Burford, still under indictment, has never yet been tried.

DEATH OF AN AMBASSADOR Final chapter in a paradoxical tragedy took place this week when the body of the late Greek ambassador, Cimon Diamontopoulos, was flown on President Truman's new plane back to

Ambassador Diamontopoulos died a few hours after a conference with Secretary of State Byrnes at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York last December. Reports have since circulated that the ambassador was shocked over some of the things his prime minister, Constantin Tsaldaris, who participated in the conference, said to Byrnes. However, what happened. Premier Tsaldaris had been beggin Brynes to give Greece more territory at the expense of Bulgaria. This Byrnes refused to do, pointing to the territorial mistakes made in the peace treaties of the last war. Finally, during the last Tsaldaris-Byrnes conference, the Greek premier looked tired, worn, and so nervous that at one point he broke into tears. Feeling sorry for him, Byrnes gave some practical suggestions on how to present a petition to the big four foreign ministers, and then turning to the much healthier looking ambassador Diamontopoulos, he said:

"Get the ambassador here to prepare the papers for you. He s familiar with the situation and can save you a lot of time and work."

The two Greek diplomats left. A few hours later, Ambassador Diamontopoulos, who had appeared to be in the best of health, was dead of heart failure. Premier Tsaldaris, who had then seemed on the verge of a breakdown, is still carrying on as foreign minister of Greece. MERRY-GO-ROUND

It isn't being advertised, but a friend of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has been scouting the country looking over prospects for '48. The justice himself is keeping aloof. . . Ex-Gov. Jimmy Allred may run against Texas junior Senator Pappy O'Daniel next year.
