Big storm hits West

By BETSY BROWN KRAFT

A fast, ruthless storm bulldozed across California and careened into the Rockies today, driving rain and heavy snow, leaving at least six people dead, cutting power to hundreds of thousands and flooding rich farmlands.

The storm stomped into Arizona and Nevada, blasting more rain and snow, and kept going. Winter storm warnings were issued today for Utah and the Colorado Rockies, with a storm watch in Montana, according to the National Weather Service.

The storm, the worst of the season, battered California on Tuesday from San Fran- said California Highway cisco to San Diego, dumping snow as fast as 3 inches an in Los Angeles. "Trees down economists generally agree that a mild recovery is imminent, based on a government report that its main economic barometer has risen for the sixth time in the last seven months.

The Commerce Department said Tuesday that its Index of Leading Indicators, a measure of future economic activity, rose 0.2 percent in October. The department said it made a mistake earlier in the day when it reported the increase was 0.6.

Robert Sinche, chief economist at the investment firm of Bear, Stearns & Co. in New York, said he viewed the steady improvement in leading indicators as clear evidence that the economy was headed toward a mild

There are indications from our own analysis that the November increase will be pretty substantial," Sinche said.

Lawrence Chimerine, chairman and chief economist of Chase Econometrics, told delegates at a forecasting seminar in New York that he viewed the underlying forces in the economy as "brighter now than at any time in the past three or four years."

He pointed to reduced levels of inflation, higher productivity and improved supplies of commodities.

Party-goers mistake. drink antifreeze

DERIDDER, La. (AP) - One young man died and two companions became critically ill after drinking antifreeze they thought was "moonshine," police said.

Leo Warren, 24, died Tuesday in Lake Charles Memorial Hospital, police said. Don McDougal, 24, and Michael Wooley, 25, both of DeRidder, were listed in critical condition, authorities said.

The men apparently consumed the antifreeze Sunday from an unmarked container while partying with some teen-agers, said Sgt. Jimmie Smith.

'Appparently, two teen-age boys had stolen it out of a man's garage,' said Smith, who would not identify the boys. "They had a party and apparently the teen-age boys didn't drink any. They thought it was moon-

Scalding death of baby charged to mother

COLORADO CITY, Texas (AP) - A mother who told police she placed her 14-month-old son in a tub of scalding water because she couldn't keep him from crying has been charged with murder, police said.

Police Chief Ed Wheat said he arrested the mother, Pearl Lee Dering, Tuesday morning and obtained a statement from her after the baby died from burns.

Mrs. Dering, 25, was charged with murder and held in lieu of $100,000 bond, said Justice of the Peace Charles Ray Watlington. Her husband, Rocky Joe Dering, 25, was charged with failure to provide proper medical care. Watlington said he set bond on Dering at $25,000.

"The lady's statement said that at approximately 10 p.m. Monday evening she killed her 14-month-old baby because she'd been having trouble with him crying and couldn't keep him quiet,"Wheat said.

"So she filled the bath tub with hot scalding water," the chief said.

Astronaut uninjured in jet mishap

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) -Astronaut Thomas K. Mattingly escaped injury late Tuesday when his T-38 jet ran off a runway while landing at Ellington Air Force Base near Houston, Johnson Space Center officials announced today.

The aircraft ran off the side of the runway and came to a stop about 30 feet from the concrete surface, which was wet because of a recent heavy rainfall, officials said.

Mattingly, who was alone in the aircraft, was returning to Ellington home base of the nation's astronauts after a business trip to Los Angeles. Officials said the T-38, a two-seat trainer used by the astronauts to travel about the country, suffered substantial damage to the wings, nose section and landing gear but was considered repairable.

Mattingly was commander of the space shuttle's fourth flight earlier this year and was pilot on one Apollo mission. He is scheduled to command the 10th flight of the space shuttle next

An investigating board will be named to study the accident, officials said.

Squirrel shorts out electrical substation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A squirrel shorted out a transformer near Martin Junior High School on Tuesday morning, creating a major power failure that snarled rush hour traffic and knocked out electricity to parts of East Austin for up to five hours.

The squirrel made contact with a conductor on a transformer near a ballpark next to the school about 7:20 a.m., said H.L. Peterson, acting director of the Electric Department.

As a result, he said, an electrical substation near the power plant was knocked out of service.

About 2,000 East Austin residents were without power.

DALLAS (AP) - William J. Murray III says that his mother, outspoken atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair, used him for her own financial interests during her successful crusade to abolish mandatory prayer from public schools.

"She used me and everyone around me for her own profit and gain," said Murray, 36, who wrote a book about his experiences of being raised in an atheist household and helping his mother with her cause before he became a born-again Christian.

The plaintiff of record in the U.S. Supreme Court case that ruled open Bible readings and prayer in public schools to be unconstitutional, Murray portrayed his mother as a self-centered opportunist whose beliefs drew her to communism and destroyed their family.

"During the (court) case, she used to agitate kids in the neighborhood to beat me up, so that she could send out newsletters about the beatings and raise more

Mrs. O'Hair refused to respond to the book, "My Life Without God," when she was contacted in Austin, where she runs the American Atheist Center.

'You know I'm not going to do that," she said. "It's an exercise in futility to call me."

The landmark Supreme Court decision arose from a lawsuit filed on Murray's behalf by his mother while he was a 14-year-old student in Baltimore's public school system. The suit sought to force the board of education to stop Bible readings and prayer exercises.

"At the time, I did

Herd mistakes costly in loss to Palo Duro

BY LES GILES Sports Editor

It was less than artistic ..... 73 total turnovers ... neither team shooting better than 35 percent from the field.

Yet, in the end, Palo Duro's quickness and better strength under the boards proved decisive as the Dons upended Hereford, 53-44, Tuesday in District 3-5A girls' basketball opener in the PD gym.

The Dons enjoyed a 48-33 rebound edge, and that pretty much told the story. On the offensive end, PD yanked down 17 caroms, compared to 10 by Hereford.

Hereford, which dropped to 1-2 on the season, trailed most of the way, after leading on four occasions in the first

PD, which ran its season record to 3-3, took the lead for keeps with 1:31 left in the first half. The Dons led by as many as 12 points (28-16 with 6:12 left in the third period). only to see Hereford close within three (43-40) with 3:50 remaining in the contest.

But, the Whitefaces could get no closer as PD ran off six unanswered points within a span of just over a minute to put the game on ice.

We just made too many mistakes to win," Hereford Coach Larry Sowers said.

"Heck, in the first half alone we must have six or seven three-second lane violations. That's just not playing very alertly.

For the game, Hereford committed 35 turnovers, while PD was guilty of 38.

"Both teams gave the other plenty of chances," Sowers added. "We both pressed a lot, and we both ran up and down the floor and threw up a lot of shots. We had enough chances.

From the field, Hereford was 18 of 51 for 35.2 percent. The Whitefaces weren't much better from the free-throw line, hitting 8 of 17 for 47 percent. And, they missed the front end of five one-and-one situations during the game.

Palo Duro took eight more shots from the field, and sank three more baskets (21 of 59 for 35.5 percent). The Dons were 11 of 16 from the foul line for 68.7 percent.

Vanessa Wells scored 16 points and pulled down 16 rebounds for PD to lead all scorers. Teammate Angela Morrison scored 15 points.

Wells hit six of 14 shots from the field, while Morrison

Stephanie Foster and Sherri Ellis did most of the scoring for Hereford.

Foster led the way with 13 points, while Ellis added 12 points and yanked down a team-high 10 rebounds. However, from the field, Foster was 6 of 17 and Ellis 4 of

"We're simply going to have to play better than that to win consistently," Sowers admitted.

'As far as the turnovers are concerned, we didn't lose the ball that much in our backcourt. We turned it over too much once we got to the offensive end of the floor.'

Palo Duro opened its 12-point lead by scoring the last two points of the first half, then running off nine unanswered points at the start of the third stanza.

But, Hereford got back in the game by scoring eight straight points to close within four (28-24). For the game, Hereford scored 15 of its points off Palo Duro turnovers. The Dons, meanwhile, scored 18 points as direct result of Hereford turnovers.

Hereford's JV enjoyed much better luck Tuesday, rolling to a 54-25 win. Stacy High led the way with 14 points.

In the JV contest, Hereford outscored PD, 15-6, in the second quarter to open a 21-9 halftime lead. The winners expanded that to 33-18 after three periods, then coasted

Both varsity teams will be in tournaments this weekend. Palo Duro travels to El Paso, while Hereford is at Levelland. Hereford will host Caprock next Tuesday in its next district outing.

In other district girls' openers Tuesday, Monterrey stopped Tascosa, 81-51; Amarillo edged Coronado, 41-39 and Plainview ripped Lubbock High, 103-35. Caprock was beaten by Canyon, 74-31, in a non-district game.

In non-district boys' action Tuesday, Borger edged Tascosa, 66-61: Amarillo High lost at Clovis, 71-69 and Caprock stopped Canyon, 59-55.

Hereford's boys, idle Tuesday, will meet Morton at 5 p.m. Thursday in an opening-round game of the Levelland tourney. The Herd will open its district season Tuesday at home against Caprock.

Negotiators still at odds

WASHINGTON (AP) -Three days before National Football League players vote on the five-year, $1.6-billion collective bargaining agreement that ended their 57-day strike, negotiators for the league and the players' union remain at odds over the document's final language. "Five or six issues still have to be resolved," union spokesman Frank Woschitz said Tuesday night.

Meanwhile, the failure of son's 19 points led Rutgers negotiators to reach a final accord has forced a delay in a vote on the pact by player representatives.

Union sources say two major areas of contention in the still-uncompleted agreement are the union's insistence that the league guarantee that players will be paid extra if it expands its regular season and that management drop its demand to extend the college draft in its current form through 1992.

Union officials have accused the league of attempting to write language into the final draft to leave open expansion of the regular season in 1983 and beyond. Management negotiators say the league has no immediate plans to either add teams or expand the season.

On the latter question, union officials say they fear an antitrust suit by the new United States Football League against the NFL and the players' union citing both parties for restraint of trade in extending the college draft past expiration of the collective bargaining agreement in 1986. While the NFL is capable of waging a long, costly court fight, union officials say the players' association does not have the finances for such a battle. Jack Donlan, the NFL's chief negotiator, and attorneys Sargent Karch and Steve Curran, met with union officials late Monday night and again Tuesday in hopes of ironing out the dispute. Further talks have been delayed as NFL officials travel to Pittsburgh today to attend the funeral Kathleen Rooney, Mrs. Rooney, the wife of Pittsburgh Steeler owner Art Rooney, died Sun-

The players, who went on strike Sept. 21, ended their walkout Nov. 16. Since then two weekends of the now nine-game strike-shortened season have been played.

Last week, union chief Ed Garvey said he expected the players to reject the tentative agreement but to continue to play as negotiations continued.

Donlan has insisted the Nov. 16 agreement is total and complete and that no further changes will be made

Michael Jordan hasn't lost his touch on those 20-foot jumpers, it seems.

In last year's NCAA finals, if you remember, a long shot by the North Carolina guard gave the Tar Heels a 63-62 victory over the Georgetown Hoyas in the New Orleans Superdome.

Tuesday night, another long shot by Jordan helped Dean Smith's 15th-ranked basketball team pull out a 70-68 thriller over Tulane in three overtimes.

"Coach Smith wanted us to deny them the ball," Jordan said. "I just saw the ball fall into my hands and fired away. It just happened to fall

Jordan's 20-foot shot followed a Green Wave turnover on an inbounds play near the end of regulation that sent the game into its first overtime. The Tar Heel sophomore then helped to win the game with a three-point play in the third

"Actually, it should have never gone into overtime," said Tulane Coach Ned Fowler. This has to take a great deal out of us. A win here (at Chapel Hill, N.C.) would have been awfully big Jordan's three-point play came with 1:48 left in the third overtime. The Tar Heels trailed 59-57 when Matt Doherty hit a jumper with 2:18 remaining to force the second extra period.Doherty's two free throws with 38 seconds left in the second overtime put North Carolina on top 63-61, but Howard Jenkins' shot beat the buzzer, creating a need for another period.

In the third overtime, Jim Braddock hit a 20-foot jumper and Jordan followed with his three-point play to extend North Carolina's edge to 68-63. Buzz Peterson added a free throw to make it a sixpoint margin, providing the Tar Heels with their first victory of the year after two opening losses.

Pat Ewing scored 19 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead Georgetown over Morgan State. The Hoyas started slowly against the Bears. But with the score tied at 6-6 four minutes into the game, their overall quickness and height advantage began to take its toll.

With the Hoyas ahead 29-18, Ewing scored on three straight trips down the court. He then stole a pass and was credited with an assist as he fed Michael Jackson for a layup and a 37-18 Georgetown lead with 3:22 remaining in the half. From there, the undefeated Hoyas coasted to their third straight victory of the season.

76ers, Celtics both lose

AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia 76ers and Boston Celtics have battled on even terms for the last three years, trading haymakers against each other while dominating other rivals for conference sumpremacy.

On Tuesday, however, they kept pace in an uncommon - losing on the same night. The defeats kept them tied for first place in the Atlantic Division of the National Basketball Association with 13-3 records.

The Detroit Pistons, despite missing two starters, defeated the Celtics 123-116 in a game played at Hartford, Conn., while the 76ers lost 111-97 to the Hawks in Atlan-

'Our best effort of the season, no doubt." Detroit Coach Scotty Robertson said of his 11-6 Pistons. "We got a lead and were able to hold it."

Whenever we play Philadelphia it's always like a playoff game, and when you beat them it's definitely special," said Eddie Johnson, who led Atlanta with 27 points. "You just get up to play those guys.

In other NBA games, Golden State beat Phoenix 110-98, Portland topped San Diego 121-114, Dallas outscored Denver 140-129, Los Angeles edged San Antonio 137-132 in double overtime, Milwaukee outlasted Cleveland 88-78, New Jersey

But the Pistons snapped Boston's eight-game winning streak as Isiah Thomas scored 29 points. Vinnie Johnson 21 and Long 20.

The Pistons broke from a 65-all tie at halftime to lead by 10 after three quarters as Long scored 11 points in the third period.

Johnson has been slowed this year because he was overweight due to medication used to treat manic depresssion, but his 27-point contribution against Philadelphia was the key to Atlanta's victory.

Rookie Dominique Wilkins added 26 points and Dan Roundfield 24 for the Hawks. Moses Malone had 25 points and 24 rebounds for the 76ers. but he was only 7-of-17 from the field and missed eight of

Kelley, Hart rare oddities

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

Silver-haired Larry Kelley and massive Leon Hart refuse to regard themselves as oddities - the only linemen ever to win the Heisman Trophy as the best player in college football. Instead, they are proud relics of what they regard as a more glorious age in the game.

"Football used to belong to the players on the field - now it's a chess game," commented the 67-year-old Kelley of Yale who joined Hart, the giant end from Notre Dame, in watching a studio preview of Bud Greenspan's 1982 Heisman Trophy Award film.

The film, rich in clips of gridiron heroics dating back to the first Heisman award in 1935, will be shown on national television (ABC-TV) Saturday in connection with formal presentation of the 1982 trophy at the Downtown Athletic Club. Georgia's Herschel Walker is a heavy favorite.

'Puppets. Players are simply puppets," agreed Hart, who at 6-5 and 265 pounds is the largest man ever to have won the trophy. "The quarterback isn't the field general any more. He's just a messenger for the coach.

Kelley, himself a powerful end of 210 pounds, was the second Heisman winner in 1936, after Chicago's Jay Berwanger. Hart, who never played in a losing game in his four varsity years with the Fighting Irish, won in 1949.

Both played in the preplatoon era when players performed on both offense and defense. Under the substitution rule then in effect, a player removed could not return in the same quarter.

Both recalled playing 60 minutes without relief.

"I missed only eight minutes of play in my entire final year," said Kelley. "I had to do it all - make tackles, make blocks, intercept passes, even occasionally kick.'

Recruiting coordinator Ken Dabbs, whose most celebrated recruit is 1977 Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell, was recognized by a national sports magazine recently as one of the top four recruiters in the country.

The season for rounding up high school football talent in a state that is wild about the sport begins when the last recruiting season ends.

Dabbs, a former high school coach at Sweeny, Irving and Austin Westlake, joined the Longhorn staff in 1973 as a freshman backfield coach and became varsity assistant coach the next year. In 1975, after recruiting Campbell and Brad Shearer, a future Outland Trophy winner, Dabbs was named recruiting coordinator.

unofficial network of ex-Texans and coaches to recruit from his desk.

Dabbs mentioned an unidentified former college coach who is in the high school ranks, and said, "I realize he knows what it takes to play for Texas. I can just pick up the phone and ask, 'In your opinion, can so-and-so play for the University of Texas?' And he'll tell me. Everybody, every school, has somebody like that, people you have trust and have confidence in."

Recruiting at Texas, except for the frantic late-hour pursuit of a holdout bluechipper, goes by the clock. In late March, questionnaires go out to high school coaches, ask-

The questionnaires are evaluated, and prospects are sent cards to fill out. The completed cards are filed. "On the ones who seem to show a real interest in us and are real prospects, we write for films," Dabbs said.

In May, with the blessing of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, college coaches visit high school spring training sessions. During the summer, coaches view game films of prospects. In the fall on Friday nights, each of the eight fulltime

'The recruitment of Campbell and (Billy) Sims was like a coaching convention every Friday night," Dabbs recall-

"In this ole business you have to go on hunches," said Dabbs. "I always felt good about Earl. I always felt good about Shearer. I never felt Billy Sims would come here." Sims became a Heisman Trophy winner at Oklahoma.

If Campbell got more of his individual attention than any other player, who was next? "I spent a lot of time with Johnny Hector not to get him," Dabbs said.

Hector, a great brokenfield runner from New Iberia, La., signed with Texas A&M and is now a senior and pro prospect.

Another one who got away, and taught Dabbs a hard lesson, was George Cumby, who became an all-star linebacker at Oklahoma. "I always thought if I made one mistake it was that I never got het and heavy after George Cumby," Dabbs said. He was tipped about Cumby, who played at a small private school, and watched him practice one day but never even invited him to visit tions that some high school coaches work against certain colleges and hand-pick where their better players go to school. "Most high school coaches try to stay neutral, because somewhere down the line they may want the help of a particular school to advance in the profession," Dabbs said.

Also, he said, "I don't think a high school coach by any means can tell a boy where to go to school."

Although Dabbs no longer is on the road recruiting, his territory has expanded since Fred Akers became Texas' head coach in 1976. Under Akers' predecessor, Darrell Royal, "We recruited 99 percent exclusively in Texas," Dabbs said. "Fred brought nationwide recruiting in here, because in his two years at Wyoming he had to do it, and as a result he had a lot of contacts with different people that have opened a lot of doors for us.

Asked if recruiters woo the player or parents harder. Dabbs said, "It's going to be pretty close to 50-50. ... When it comes right down to it, the guy who closes the deal for you is the head football coach. ... There comes a time in recruiting when they've heard all that you've told them - all you can tell them - and they want to see the chairman of the board. Fred is a super salesman."

From Aug. 1 to Dec. 1, college coaches can contact prospects only by phone or letter.

Future of Texas hockey in doubt

DALLAS (AP) - The Central Hockey League. celebrating its 20th anniversary this season with six teams laboring from Alabama to Utah, is on solid ground, but may be finished in Texas, the circuit's presi-hockey executive whose tours of duty include top managerial posts with two National Hockey League clubs and a vice president's post with the now-defunct World Hockey Association, oversees the CHL with the help of a three-person staff

Two years ago, Dallas, Houston and Fort Worth fielded CHL franchises. Houston's folded two seasons ago, and the Dallas and Fort Worth teams closed down during or after last season.

Now, the closest team to Poile's seventh-story league headquarters is in Tulsa, Okla, Dallas and Fort Worth have been relegated to the boneyard of other former CHL cities - including Oklahoma City, Memphis, Cincinnati, Albuquerque, N.M., Amarillo, Texas, and Waterloo, Iowa.

The demise of the Dallas Black Hawks - a longtime CHL fixture - was not due to decreasing fan interest, Poile said in a recent interview. Rather, the problem was no new fans.

'It was the same people for years attending the games or not attending the games," Poile said.

"There were two reasons why we were never able to increase that hard core - the facility and the lack of media exposure," he said.

The Black Hawks, despite construction of posh Reunion Arena, stayed put in State Fair Coliseum, situated in a less-than-fashionable section of Dallas and best known for its hosting of the State Fair Rodeo each October.

At the same time, Poile said, the team suffered from competition from the baseball Texas Rangers, the football Cowboys and the basketball Mavericks - in addition to a score of college and high school football teams.

In addition to Dallas, other CHL teams bit the dirt in Fort Worth, Nashville, Cincinnati and Oklahoma City after the 1981-82 season.

Along with Tulsa, the farflung circuit now includes Denver, Salt Lake City, Wichita, Kan., Indianapolis and Birmingham, Ala.

Travel costs are "killing us," Poile said. That problem Bud Poile, a veteran makes Dallas, Fort Worth and Houston especially attractive to the league.

Gone for the most part are the days of the long bus trips, Poile said. Instead. CHL teams travel by air, like their major league counterparts.

"They (the league) could come down here on a four or five game swing," Poile said.

Poile said a successful, well-financed minor league team in Dallas, playing at Reunion Arena, could open the minds of the powers-thatbe in the NHL for moving

Citing the example of the NBA Mavericks, who have used a big-budget marketing and promotions program during their two years here, Poile said hockey will have to be well-promoted to be successful. "If we could get a team in Reunion, draw four or five thousand a game, the National League would sit up and take notice ... I think it would go, but those things (promotion, finances and arena) would have to happen," Poile said. Poile added that an NHL franchise here would have to be an "established team" and not an expansion club.

The longtime hockey executive quickly admits he'd like to be president or general manager of a major league team in Dallas.

In the meantime, Poile said he would like to have a CHL. team back in Fort Worth, as well as in Houston, where John McMullen, chairman of the Houston Astros and primary owner of the NHL's New Jersey Reds has expressed interest in putting in a CHL club. One might think the Texas obsession with football would translate easily to the ice, but Poile said that's not so.

There is a correlation up North. Football fans are hockey fans and vice versa. but here football fans are by themselves. I've lived in several areas and I've never seen one sport that dominates a community more," he said. The rest of the CHL is not in bad financial shape - despite the economic hard times which have cut into entertainment budgets, Poile said.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN-Even the Democrats agreed that Republican Gov. Bill Clements' nominee for Supreme Court Chief Justice is a good one.

Last week the governor named Associate Justice Jack Pope to replace Chief Justice Joe Greenhill who retired last month.

Pope, 69, a long-time Democrat who did not seek re-election this time, will fill an unexpired term for two more years.

Clements' camp hoped the nomination of Pope would defuse a potential political powder keg. Three weeks ago some 15 Senators wrote Clements they would block this and other appointments unless he left the naming of the new chief justice to Gov.-elect Mark White.

Pope's nomination drew praise from many Democrats, even among the senators, and also from White. White also left it up to the Senate whether to act to block Pope's confirmation.

If it is unclear whether there will be a Senate confirmation battle, it is also unclear just why the Democratic senators are spoiling for a fight.

Former Atty. Gen. John Hill wants the nomination and that's no secret. He said again last week that he will run for it in 1984, and many of his supporters would like White to appoint him, if Pope is blocked.

Clements, Hill

Then again, Clements as governor has named hundreds of conservatives, including a good many from the oil industry, to boards and commissions in his four year tenure.

Before he leaves office on Jan. 18, he will be able to name a couple of hundred more, a fact which rankles Democrats who oppose him.

The letter may have been a tool to back off, to warn Clements to be careful of his next selections.

Forcing Clements to back away is an almost futile gesture, but it may have worked this time. Democrats will be hard put to block someone of Pope's philosophy and caliber, but the Senators have steered Clements away from naming a hard-right winger, or even an up-and-coming Texas Republican.

Finally, although Pope has no visible enemies in the Senate and is a respected jurist, he must fight for confirmation against the forces of John Hill. Clements has left himself in good position on this one: if Pope loses, it's not Clements' fault. And since Pope is not a threat to run two years from now, Clements may hope to deter Hill from reaching for the seat right now.

Railroad Commission

The Texas Railroad Commission, due to face legislative scrutiny under Sunset provisions this session, will get a whole new face if a bill by a Dallas senator is approved.

A bill by Sen. Oscar Mauzy would expand the agency from three members to nine, changing them from statewide elected officials to single-member districts.

Mauzy has also filed similar bills to restructure the Public Utility Commission and Texas Highways and Public Transportation Commission in much the same

Whether any of the bills pass, they are still a means of applying pressure to the commissions, getting them to go along with other proposed reforms this year.

The commissions are subject to lobbying from large private companies, and Mauzy's bills are viewed as a means for the Legislature to equalize its grip.

Clayton To Stay

Outgoing House Speaker Bill Clayton, who understands the lobbying process as well as anyone, could well find himself facing Mauzy and the more moderate Democrats on issues affecting these commissions.

Clayton said last week he will stay in Austin to do "legislative work, political work, business consulting work-we want to be able to do the whole gamut."

Clayton said it was possible he would be lobbying his former colleagues in the Legislature.

He also indicated he will save the $300,000 already collected in his officeholder account for a possible future political race

Million Dollar Fees

Out of the landmark prison rights lawsuit two years ago was a federal judge's order to the state to pay $1,663,000 in legal fees to the lawyers representing the prisoners.

Last week Gov.-elect White, still acting as attorney general, said he will appeal the state's paying the fees as "excessive", and implied they were undeserved.

"I suppose it will be fun," she said, more to the rain splattered window than to me, but when we were all together you didn't have to do anything special to be happy.

Senator Bill Sarpalius

Reports

ELEVATOR BONDING

AUSTIN - The recent defaults by two Texas grain elevators has again brought the problem of commodity warehouse bonding to the forefront. However this is not a new issue to us, as the Senate Subcommittee on Agriculture, which we chair, has been studying this subject for well over a year now. The following is a summary of that subcommittee's findings.

Bonding of commodity warehouses, or elevators, refers to the bonds that warehouse operators must buy to back up the commodities they store. The money in these bonds is used to pay off the producers who deposit their products in the warehouse in case of default.

Producers and warehousers alike agree that the depositors should have full protection for their stored commodities. This means that the producer, or the owner of the commodity, should receive 100% market value of their stored commodity if the warehouse should go under.

However, as it now stands, at times of peak capacity the bond's value is only 10% or less of the market value of the produce stored Upon default in this situation, the owners stand to lose 90% of their commodities value.

We heard many suggestions on how to change the current system so as to provide the desired levels of protection. These included installing a 100% bonding requirement and a pooling system like Oklahoma's.

A 100% bonding requirement is agreed upon to be totally unworkable. This would involve the elevators buying enough bonds to equal the market value of the commodities they store. This would easily cripple the system as only a few warehouses could afford such bonds.

When this fund ended Nov. 28. fund. reaches a level where it can sustain itself, the bonding 17.6, the A.C. Nielsen Co. said requirements will be dropped and the depositors will be paid 100% market value for their stored commodities upon default. talking to Texas ware- contending they harassed housers, we have our doubts him for objecting to a traffic about such a system. have only been about 10 warehouse defaults in Texas. Considering the poor economic conditions during that same period, we feel that the Texas warehousers have an excellent record.

Even though we have not found the solution that will provide the 100% of the market value protection desired without overburdening any one sector, we have not given up trying. We have already started working closely with the Texas Department of Agriculture Commissionerelect Jim Hightower to find a plan that will be both workable and widely accepted. But until such a plan is formulated, the Subcommittee suggests continuing with the current bonding requirements.

If you have any opinions on elevator bonding, we would like to hear them. Please write Senator Bill Sarpalius, P. O. Box 12068. Austin, Texas, 78711.

ABC's rating averaged

Tuesday. The networks say this means in an average prime-time minute, 17.6 percent of the nation's homes with TV were tuned to ABC.

CBS was second in the ratings with 17.5, and NBC was third with 15.2.

The victory spoiled CBS' chance to take every week of the November sweeps. CBS had already won the three prior sweeps weeks, which ran from Nov. 3 through Nov.

CBS has won the last four weeks and six of the nine weeks of the fall TV season. NBC has taken two weeks, thanks to the World Series, while ABC won this past week.

The highest-rated show of the week was CBS' "60 Minutes." ABC's "Three's Company" and CBS' "The Jeffersons" tied for second. Completing the Top 5 were 'CBS' "One Day at a time"

Tongate testified that Ms. Maree was working as a $600-a-month secretary in Dallas last year, shortly before she bought controlling interest of Ranchlander Bank from Doyle Todd of Brady.

The FBI agent also testified that before becoming owner of the bank, Ms. Maree told friends that her parents had left her a substantial amount of money and property.

The agent said he could find no evidence of such an inheritance. The Lake Palestine residence is listed in Ms. Maree's name, as are a yacht and a Rolls Royce, he

Braniff chief says union concessions vital to future

(AP) - Braniff International chairman Howard Putnam says the grounded airline will never fly again unless a federal bankruptcy judge terminates the current contract between the carrier and a machinists union.

Meanwhile, Braniff pilots planned a Thursday meeting to discuss possible concessions in wages and working conditions - a dispute that scuttled a proposed joint operating venture with Pacific Southwest Airlines.

Putnam testified Tuesday before U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers, who is being asked to abrogate Braniff's labor agreement with the International Association of Machinists.

We'll be unable to reorganize and fly again if these old agreements remain in effect," Putnam said.

Describing wage rates as "too high" and work rules "too onerous," Putnam said the contract allowed "too much featherbedding" to make a joint operating venture with another airline

Putnam testifiéd that Braniff's first offer to the machinists on Nov. 5 would have cut Braniff's cost 41 percent compared to existing wages and work rules.

The proposal included an average wage of $10.50 per hour, which Putnam estimated was approximately 35 percent lower than the previous average.

The machinists union had walked out of talks with Braniff, which wanted to amend the contract to specifications set by PSA.

PSA had demanded wage concessions and also said its employees must be given seniority over the Braniff workers. Several union members said they were willing to agree to wage concessions, but would not agree to give up all seniority.

The court hearing was expected to continue today.

PSA had given Braniff more time to reach accord with the machinists or solve the impasse in court, but the deal was pronounced dead a week ago when the pilots' union also rejected PSA's stipulation that former Braniff workers relinquish all seniority.

A group of pilots met Monday at their union office in Grapevine to discuss the proposed contract that would have rehired some Braniff workers and put Braniff's planes back in the airline under the PSA name. The pilots also scheduled a Thursday morning meeting. "I would like to hear all positions and opinions," pilots' union chairman Joe Baranowski told his constituents in a recorded message.

Jack Boisen, Braniff's manager of human resources, said the company is still trying to reach revised contracts with unions, which earlier had agreed to wage concessions.

We are still trying within the limitations we have to work out an agreement," Boisen said. "We are not certain whether PSA is still interested or not, but we are still attempting to work out the contracts. PSA spokesman Bill Hastings told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that any proposal to revive the joint venture would have to go directly to the San Diego-based carrier's board of directors. "It really is out of management's hands new," Hastings said. "It would have to go to the board. I'm not sure they would even consider it. I would consider it unlikely, but nothing is out of the realm of possibility.

PSA formally terminated the joint venture about an hour after representatives of the pilots' union walked out of labor negotiations after midnight Wednesday.

The Associated General Contractors of America are talking real money, at least $909.9 billion by 1990 to meet documented public works needs: urban water supplies, dams, sewage plants, highways.

High as that figure is, it can be made to look small. 'We're looking at the hereand-now, nothing blue-sky" said John Berard, AGC public affairs director. Some estimates, he claims, are up to $3 trillion by the year 2000.

Such vast numbers put the contractors in a position in which the question becomes cannot deny the private gain. Recognizing the terrible state of budgets at every level of government, Berard said, the contractors concentrated only on those projects that should not or cannot be postponed.

Credibility enters the picture at this point because AGC members perform 80 percent of all domestic construction. The association, therefore, has carefully culled its figures mainly from official or semi-official sources.

Commenting on a recent AGC publication, "Our Fractured Framework," which contains the documentation and arguments, Berard attempts to show the problems when society's physical structure collapses.

Ben Konis schedules holiday open house will hold his fifth annual holiday open house from 5 to 10 p.m. Wednesday, Dec, 8, in his Studio-Galeria, located at 712 West 17th in Amarillo.

The exhibition will feature his latest paintings and prints. Through the year, his travels have taken him to California, Mexico, Louisiana, Wyoming, and areas of the Southwest.

Konis will autograph copies of "Masters of Western Art," a best-selling art book by Mary Carroll Nelson, featuring pastel paintings by Konis, along with works by 11 other Western artists including John Clymer, Wilson Hurley, Gordon Snidow, and Howard

Konis is also included in another recent book by

Amarillo artist Ben Konis Southwest Art Publishing entitled "Contemporary Western Artists."

At the 10th Texas Cowboy Artists Exhibition held Nov. 19-20 in San Angelo, a Konis pastel, "Cowboys do it Best," won the award for the most popular piece in the show.

Konis conducts art seminars throughout the Western states, and will begin his 1983 season with a art workshop in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, Jan. 28-Feb. 6. The seminary will be lodged at Casa Pulpito, a villa located at oceanside along the Gold Coast, south of the village. Reservations for the seminar are available now. For more information, write to Konis at 712 West 17th: Amarillo, TX 79102.

During surgery, ultrasound can help surgeons respond quickly to emergencies such as burst blood vessels. Before surgery, it can identify problems that did not show up with other diagnostic Ultrasound has increased surgeons' ability to obtain biopsies of tumors and abscesses deep within the brain, the researchers said.

For the first time, we've been able to drain abscesses at the very center of the brain the area of great risk," Dohrmann said.

Dohrmann said few other neurosurgeons are using ultrasound, and none to the extent to which he and Rubin have put it to use. The two have found it especially helpful in treating problems of the spinal cord, which is even more delicate than the

'A Mother's Story' on CBS tonight

NEW YORK (AP) -Tonight's TV-movie heroine. evicted from her home, abused and abandoned by her husband, is telling bedtime stories to her small children. The sandman is late arriving. It's not easy going beddy-bye in a bus terminal.

She tells them about better days, the kind they've seen at the picture shows. She has them imagine they're snacking on popcorn, jujube candies and root beer. Gene Kelly and his flying feet are on

Ever so sweetly, she whispers that when their fantasy film ends, they would get into their "fancy motor car" and drive to their mansion, the one with "trees and big lawns, just like we've seen in the movies.'

The moving picture the heroine paints could be any zippy movie spectacle churned out by Hollywood in the 1940s. The movie she's in -

'Missing Children: A Mother's Story" on CBS tonight - is the kind of intimate, heart-tugging tale that television does well and often around Christmastime.

Mothers, old softies and, maybe, the thick-skinned will be touched by "Missing Children," the story of a courageous, kindly, yet naive mother who temporarily places her kids in a free boarding home, while she endeavors to find work, only to then discover that the children were put up for

This movie makes no pretense about its intentions: going for the goosebumps and dividing the world into good and evil.

Who could resist a mother who refuses to yield to life's rotten apples? Who wouldn't be swept away by a struggling family that pulls all its worldy possessions on a kid's red wagon? Who wouldn't hate the snake who sells off the children?

Actually, without the right Missing actresses, Children" would have been too smarmy and heavyhanded. The script stretches even Christmastime's more lenient credibility quotient. But Mare Winningham, in the Joan of Arc role, and Polly Holliday, who makes J.R. Ewing look like a saint, are letter perfect.

DON'T DO IT!

The next morning some 40 or more of the Jews got together and bound themselves by a curse neither to eat nor drink until they had killed Paul! Then they went to the chief priests and elders and told them what they had done. Ask the commander to bring Paul back to the Council again," they requested. "Pretend you want to ask a few more questions. We will kill him on the way."

But Paul's nephew got wind of their plan and came to the armory and told Paul. Paul called one of the officers and said. "Take this boy to the commander. He has something important to tell him." So the officer did. explaining, "Paul, the prisoner, called me over and asked me to bring this young man to you to tell you something."

The commander took the boy by the hand. and leading him aside asked. "What is it you want to tell me, lad?" "Tomorrow;" he told him. "the Jews are going to ask you to bring Paul before the Council again, pretending they want to get some more information. But don't do it! There are more than 40 men hiding along the road ready to jump him and kill him. They have bound themselves under a curse to neither eat nor drink till he is dead. They are out there now, expecting you to agree to their request." Don't let a soul know you told me this," the commander warned the boy as he left. (Acts 23:12-22)

Alaska Governor leaving helm

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) -When Barbara Carey of Dade County, Fla., suggested recently that Alaska pay the cost of a new Orange Bowl in Miami, Alaska Gov. Jay Hammond wrote her a poem.

We know you Alaskans are rolling in wealth' is a statement heard often these days - from those with a plan for ripping us off to further some cause or pet craze," Hammond wrote.

In the tortured rhyme that followed, the bearded governor explained that Alaska. despite its oil wealth, had pressing needs of its own, and hadn't the money to build Dade County a new stadium.

The 60-year-old governor has penned scores of poems during his eight years in office, poking fun at lawmakers, noting birthdays and, in his familiar penchant for understatement, swiping back at critics

Barred by law from serving a third term, the former bush pilot, trapper, wolf hunter, commercial fisherman and hunting guide retires Dec. 6.

That's fine with Hammond, who describes himself as a "bush rat more at home with my gum boots in bilge water" than in the Statehouse. The Republican will be succeeded by Democrat Bill Sheffield, a millionaire who owns a hotel chain in Alaska and the Yukon Territory.

Hammond says he and his wife, Bella, will retire to their homestead in the remote Lake Clark area northeast of Bristol Bay to "repair the tattered remnants" of his bushflying service.

After 34 years in government - as a mayor, legislator and governor

Hammond wryly concedes: "I guess there's no escaping the fact that I've spent most of my life as a bureaucrat. ... I certainly had no aspirations to join up with those rascals."

In many ways, Hammond is Alaska - or at least the Alaska that some might envi-

The risk is that it would simply cost the treasury billions of dollars and do nothing for the economy.

Congressional leaders already have told Reagan the idea is not very popular in Congress because of the potential deficit problem. Moreover. Democrats have urged that the July tax cut be scrapped altogether to help bring down the deficit, which Budget Director David Stockman reportedly is forecasting at $180 to $190 billion this year. White House aides said privately "political realities" in Congress would be a factor in Reagan's decision on the tax cut. In advance of today's meeting they said his decision could go either way and that it stood "right in the mid-

That assessment appeared to be a slight shift in Reagan's stance, away from a speed-up. Last week, he was said to be leaning in favor of advancing the effective date.

In a speech in Los Angeles Monday, Reagan spoke enthusiastically about the taxcut program.

"The only way to cure our problems is to get the economy moving again," Reagan told a convention of the National League of Cities. 'And one of the best ways to stimulate the economy," he said, "is to give the American worker a break and cut his

Preparing aloe vera

DEAR POLLY - I have used aloe vera (purchased in a paste formula) as a dressing for wounds on our pets. It keeps insects off of the wounds and keeps the area from crusting over (which often cracks open again). I'd like to make the paste from my own aloe plant, but I need your help (or your readers) with instructions on its preparation. - JUDY

DEAR JUDY - Here is a rather exotic-sounding recipe for preparing any herb ointment or salve, from the collections of herbalist Jeanne Rose. Crush the leaves of the aloe vera and mix it with four parts melted fat (you could use pure, rendered lard or vegetable shortening) and one part dry white wine. Heat gently for 20 minutes, cool slightly, and strain. If readers have other methods or formulas, let's hear

DEAR POLLY - Thanks for your letter to your readers about safe practices in home canning. I'd like to take the opportunity to introduce the Home Economics Section of the Cooperative Extension Service. It offers extensive information on food preservation, including USDA pamphlets on home canning, freezing, pickles, and jellies.

The Cooperative Extension Service is operated under the joint sponsorship of the county government, the state landgrant university of each state, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The service offers a vast wealth of knowledge through classes, workshops, publications, and newsletters. I encourage your readers to find their local extension office to see what they offer. Check with your county government for the listing of your local Cooperative Extension office. E.M.B., FOOD PRESERVATION TECHNICIAN

DEAR E.M.B. - Thank you very much for reminding us about the Cooperative Extension Service. I have found the Extension Service in my own state to be a virtual goldmine of information. In fact, when Polly doesn't know the answer to a problem, it's often the first place she turns for answers. I urge all our readers to contact their local extension office and take advantage of the marvelous services they offer. -

DEAR POLLY - I wanted to buy some pretty curtain tiebacks, but was really stunned to learn that there weren't much less in price than the curtains themselves. Instead, I bought a matching color of lace seam binding and cut it into the lengths I needed. Much cheaper and just as attractive.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm

DEAR READER Equanil is a tranquilizer and was once one of the more popular ones. Its action is similar to phenobarbital and it is a depressant of the brain's actions. In this respect it is similar to alcohol. That is why a person taking Equanil should not also drink alcohol, even on a social occasion. The effects are additive.

I do not like to see anyone take a tranquilizer on a reg-ular basis if there is any other solution available. However, one Equanil a day is well below the dosage that we usually see in problem

If a person is taking large doses and stops abruptly, there will be a reaction. It may be heightened anxiety, tremors or even convulsions. We see the same thing in a person taking large amounts of phenobarbital who suddenly stops it.

Premarin is a hormone preparation. It is commonly used to replace the loss of female hormone production. It is not habituating or addictive but replacement therapy. It has the same effects as your mother's hor-mone shot. How much she needs, if any, depends upon how much female hormones her body produces as from the adrenal gland. The questions here are the usual ones

Your mother might not need a tranquilizer if she is using coffee and other sources of caffeine and is willing to stop them. Caffeine has the opposite effects from

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 79-year-old widow and want to know how often should I douche. I do not have a boyfriend or have any men friends. Also, what is the object of a vinegar douche? I hear people talk about it. Hope you don't think I am a dumb one for writing you DEAR READER - Many gynecologists think douching unnecessary as a routine. But women often think it improves hygeine. Certainly unless you have a medical condition that requires special douching it is unwise to do so too often. More than once or twice a month, except under special conditions, is probably excessive.

The vagina has its own protective bacterial flora and some chemicals may affect this leading to problems. Vinegar is used because it is a little acid. The usual amount is four tablespoons of white vinegar in two quarts of warm water. It may not make too much difference because the solution is in contact with the lining such a short time. It is sometimes prescribed to help combat yeast infections. However, Mycostatin suppositories and, when needed, tablets, are considered far more effective and
