

British Pave Way for Decisive Battle

By The Associated Press

British marines and paratroopers today were reported fighting Argentine troops for control of a strategic mountain 12 miles west of Stanley in action that could pave the way for the decisive battle of the Falkland Islands.

But government sources in London were quoted as saying the commander of the British task force, Rear Adm. John Woodward, has been given full authority to decide whether to give the Argentinians an opportunity to surrender before launching a full-scale assault on Stanley, the Falklands capital.

The sources, quoted by Britain's domestic news agency,

Press Association, and Independent Television News, said the British did not want to subject Argentina to a humiliating defeat because of concerns of worsening political instability in Latin America.

The British Defense Ministry reported Monday night that British and Argentine troops were battling for control of 1,500-foot Mount Kent 12 miles west of Stanley.

Press Association reported fighting three miles closer to Stanley on a ridge called Two Sisters, indicating the British marines and paratroopers may have pushed back the Argentine perimeter. But there was no official confirmation of this.

Argentina in a communique issued early today said its forces had "detected" British troops about 15 miles from Stanley. It said Argentine troops were using helicopters to reinforce their defense positions around the town.

Reports from London and Buenos Aires said the Argentine commander, Brig. Gen. Mario Menendez, had heavily fortified Mount Kent and the nearby ridges. If the British captured them, they would provide a vantage point for shelling the inner Argentine defenses.

Press Association also reported without attribution that the British had landed their backup force of 3,500 Scots and Welsh Guardsmen and Nepalese Gurkhas north of Stanley, bringing their total land forces on the island to at least 7,500 and outnumbering the estimated 7,000 Argentinians concentrated around Stanley.

The Defense Ministry refused to confirm the landing report.

Two British forces had been advancing on Stanley, Royal Marines and paratroopers moving westward by helicopter from the San Carlo beachhead, and another paratroop force coming around from the south after capturing the Goose Green airstrip and 1,400 Argentine prisoners.

British press reports said the two forces had linked up for the assault on Stanley.

The ministry said British Harrier fighter-bombers continued to pound the Stanley airstrip 2½ miles east of the town, and "a number" of Argentine light planes were believed damaged.

Press Association reported that British warships moved to within two miles of the Stanley harbor to shell Argentine fortifications.

As the British forces move steadily forward, the tenor of statements from Argentina's ruling junta and from its newspapers changed in an apparent effort to prepare the Argentine public to accept a defeat and convince it at the same time that this constituted a victory in disguise.

Argentines Being Prepared for Defeat

But, Setback Said 'Temporary'

By DOUGLAS GRANT MINE Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentina's military rulers are preparing their people for defeat in the Falkland Islands. But they insist any setback will be temporary, that Argentina has done itself proud in the fight with Britain and that it will eventually own the archipelago.

President Leopoldo Galtieri set the new line in an Army Day speech Saturday after British paratroops had overrun key Argentine positions.

"May god grant that, beyond the fortunes of the unequal battle against the extra-continental aggressor and those who support her, that the torch we have lighted to illuminate the awakening of our America not be extinguished," he said.

One of the president's top advisers, who asked that his name not be used, spelled out the government position to The Associated Press.

"We have already won," he said. "We could not have been expected to defeat militarily the third and first most powerful nations in the world."

"When we lose, you will hear Galtieri, who is now a Latin American hero, say, 'Our islands have been occupied by means of vastly superior military force. I negotiate nothing nor do I cede any of our legitimate demands. I believe in the retaliatory power of my people, and we will again recover the islands.'"

Argentines who for weeks have been served a heavy dose of encouraging news — "Victory" headlines and "We're winning!" magazine covers — are beginning to read worst-case scenarios.

The Buenos Aires newspaper Conviccion said Monday: "The adult Argentina should get ready to assimilate, with virile sadness but not with desperation and much less with shame, the possibility that Great Britain, with the aid of the United States, temporarily re-establishes by force a colonial usurpation."

The paper, which has close ties to the navy, pointed out positive effects of the conflict: "With just what we've done up till now, leaving aside the surprises we've yet to give, we have acquired a dignified and gravitating presence in international society."

It added that Argentina has also learned the hard way who its friends are and that the world is run according to vested interests and force.

"We see now we can only depend on ourselves," said Demetria Garcia, a grocery store worker. "We don't need North America and Europe, and we are going to start concentrating on building up the nation from within."

"People have matured with this," said office messenger Omar Moreno. "The national unity is incredible. I don't know a single person who is not doing something to contribute to the war effort."

Moreno, father of two, said he and other volunteers spent the weekend crating C-rations for the troops.

"We're fighting for something much greater than our islands," says the latest radio spot in the government's Argentinian Victory propaganda campaign.

Mrs. Ray Johnson Pioneer of Year

Mrs. Ray L. Johnson of Summerfield was named Pioneer of the Year at the 59th annual Mid-Plains Pioneer Day celebration held Saturday at the bull Barn. The award was presented by Buddy Peeler of KPAN Radio, which has sponsored the annual award since 1967.

Mayor Bartley Dowell, president of the celebration this year, presented awards to Walter Easter, oldest man present; Alice Fry, oldest woman present; and Les Vaughn of Alaska, the person traveling the farthest distance for the event.

Elected as new officers for the coming year were Argen Draper, president; Grace Covington, vice-president; and Nell Culpepper, secretary-treasurer.

Members of Pioneer Study Club assisted with registration and Camp Fire Girls and leaders helped with the luncheon which followed the program and business meeting. Local garden clubs furnished flowers and decorations.

Reagan Sets Importance of Arms Talks

By MAUREEN SANTINI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says nuclear arms reduction talks with the Soviets, beginning late this month in Geneva, could diminish the arsenals that threaten "war even more terrible" than those that already have claimed American lives.

In a Memorial Day speech at Arlington National Cemetery, the president also confirmed that the United States will continue to abide by the constraints of the signed, but unratified, SALT II treaty as long as the Soviets do the same.

Reagan's schedule today includes two briefings in advance of his departure Wednesday for meetings with allies in Europe, where he is likely to encounter anti-nuclear demonstrations.

Formal announcement of the June 29 date of the new round of strategic arms reduction talks, which Reagan refers to as START, was made in a joint U.S.-Soviet statement issued at the White House just prior to the president's speech.

"Both sides attach great importance to these negotiations," the statement said.

Standing near rows of graves with white markers, Reagan reiterated his call for reducing nuclear weapons "by negotiating a stable balance at far lower levels of strategic forces."

Addressing about 4,000 people in the cemetery's amphitheater, Reagan said of potential adversaries:

"We must strive to speak of them not belligerently, but firmly and frankly. And that's why we must never fail to note, as frequently as necessary, the wide gulf between our codes of morality.

"And that's why we must never hesitate to acknowledge the irrefutable difference between our view of man as master of the state and their view of man as servant of the state."

"Nor must we ever underestimate the seriousness of their aspirations to global expansion. The risk is the very freedom that has been so dearly won."

He said such "honesty of mind" could "build a foundation upon which treaties between our nations can stand at last, treaties that can someday bring about a reduction in the terrible arms of destruction, arms that threaten us with war even more terrible than those that have taken the lives of the Americans we honor today."

He added: "As for existing strategic arms agreements, we will refrain from actions which undercut them so long as the Soviet Union shows equal restraint. With good will and dedication on both sides I pray that we will achieve a safer world."

That declaration was viewed as a way to allay concern among European allies that the administration was abandoning the restraints imposed by SALT II. Reagan has de-

Solidarity Leaders Planning General Strike

By THOMAS W. NETTER Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leaders say they're planning a general strike in Warsaw, Wroclaw and the Silesian coal mines because lesser protests have failed to force the martial-law government to "back off from repression."

Fugitive leaders of the suspended union gave no indication of when they might call the strike.

They said in a leaflet that workers in several large Warsaw factories had asked them to organize a general strike. They said they were also planning to extend the strike to Wroclaw, a major industrial center in southwest Poland, and the Silesian coalmines, which produce the country's chief export.

"The forms of protest action which have been used until now have proven insufficient to force the authorities to back off from repression and pursue the concept of national accord," the leaflet said.

Street marches by Solidarity supporters in early May were broken up by the police.

The union leaders said they are demanding freedom for 2,000 Solidarity activists, including union chief Lech Walesa, held since imposition of martial law Dec. 13.

In another gesture of defiance Monday, union members managed to place a plaque undetected in Warsaw's Victory Square commemorating the nine coal miners killed on Dec. 16 by police who broke a sit-in strike protesting martial law.

Red and white ribbons on the plaque carried the message: "To those who gave their lives for freedom and independence of work."

The plaque was placed at the foot of a large cross of flowers and evergreens on the site of Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski's funeral bier a year ago Monday. Wyszynski, the leader of the Polish Catholic Church for more than 30 years, tried without success to mediate between Solidarity and the Communist government.

The government denied a report that Walesa would be freed soon from internment. A spokesman for the government press office said he would be freed only "if the normalization process is going on."

Clouds, Rain Dampen Memorial Day Activities

By The Associated Press

Clouds and rain over much of the nation dampened Memorial Day observances as Americans prayed at graves, watched parades and listened to speeches honoring the soldiers who died for freedom.

Rain in the East canceled many observances. In Denver, shivering in 40-degree temperatures, no more than 2,200 people turned out under cloudy skies for a parade, police said, and raindrops sprinkled about 250 people in Topeka, Kan., who heard Mayor William B. McCormick read the Gettysburg address.

The traffic death toll for the long holiday weekend reached 294.

In Walker, Mich., a horse apparently frightened by sirens bolted from its 12-year-old owner, injured five people when it ran through a line of parade spectators, then stuck its head through a bakery window.

In Chippewa Falls, Wis., 10 members of a 7th-grade band received minor injuries when an antique car bumped them from behind. The 89-year-old driver said the vehicle's accelerator stuck, police reported.

300 Die During Holiday

By The Associated Press

More than 300 motorists died this weekend during the long Memorial Day holiday, but the nation's death toll fell far short of the 400 to 500 fatalities predicted by the National Safety Council.

Last year, 378 people died on the streets and highways over the three-day weekend, compared with 308 victims reported by early today. The holiday period extended from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday.

On a non-holiday weekend this time of year, the council estimated there could be as many as 420 deaths. The estimate varies little from the holiday period because of the general rise in road travel with approaching summer.

Motel Checks To Follow

Death By Poison Gas

FAIRFIELD, Texas (AP) — Investigators examined the charred wreckage of a helicopter that crashed near this Central Texas town and exploded on impact, killing two men.

Burned beyond recognition were Clinton Rose, 25, of London, and Harvard Holen, 24, of Oslo, Norway, according to David Wells of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Witnesses told investigators the Bell Jet Ranger aircraft banked sharply and then began losing altitude, crashing about 3:30 p.m. Monday, he said.

Rose and Holen had taken off from Huntsville and planned to land in Gainesville, Wells said.

Both men were taken to the Cappel Funeral Home in Fairfield, he said.

Officials with the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Safety Transportation Board were at the scene Monday night, he said.

Leftist Group Claims

Bomb Responsibility

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Bombs ripped through three U.S. Army officers' clubs and the headquarters of a U.S. Army corps before dawn today in what a leftist terrorist group claimed was a "prelude" to President Reagan's visit next week.

No casualties were reported in the blasts.

In a letter to the West German news agency DPA, the Revolutionary Cells claimed responsibility for the bombings, saying "we will not wait until Reagan comes."

"As a prelude to a hopefully loud, eventful and unforgettable reception, we attacked some of the nests of the U.S. military" in West Germany.

The Revolutionary Cells are an offshoot of the Red Army Faction, or Baader-Meinhof gang, responsible for terror attacks against U.S. and West German installations for more than a decade.

Recently, West German officials were quoted as saying the Revolutionary Cells now constituted more of a threat than the Red Army Faction, many of whose leaders had been jailed or slain by police.

The 5th Corps information office said the bombs went off at 1:30 a.m. at the officers clubs in Hanau and Gelnhausen and at the corps headquarters building in Frankfurt.

The Federal Criminal Office, which handles investigations into terrorist attacks, took charge of the case.

Handbills and posters have been circulating in West Berlin and West German cities urging violent protests during Reagan's visit, and scores of peace and leftist groups plan demonstrations.

Last August, bombs badly damaged the U.S. Air Force's European headquarters at Ramstein, West Germany. Last September, terrorists fired a grenade at a car of the U.S. Army commander in Europe, Gen. Frederick Kroesen, and the general and his wife were slightly injured.

Both those attacks were believed to be the work of the ultra-leftist Red Army Faction. That terrorist group set off bombs in 1972 at U.S. Army facilities in Heidelberg and Frankfurt, killing four American soldiers.

Two Burn To Death In Helicopter Crash

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Fire inspectors said they planned to check every motel in this West Texas city after one woman was killed and 13 poisoned by carbon monoxide gas piped into rooms at the Imperial Motel by a faulty water heater.

Two people were in critical condition Monday at the Medical Center Hospital. Bernice Connery, 27, of Midlothian, Texas, was dead at the scene Sunday morning, police said.

Doctors said all the victims were suffering from the same symptoms — headaches, earaches, dizziness and vomiting.

The motel was closed at the request of fire officials until faulty vents on the water heater are repaired, said Odessa Fire Marshal Wayne Coggins.

He said wind blew the poisonous exhaust inside, where it waited through wiring and plumbing spaces and eventually entered several of the motel rooms.

Coggins said fire inspectors probably would inspect the water heaters in all the motels or go room to room to measure the levels of carbon monoxide.

Reagan announced new arms limitation talks as he joined about 4,000 people at Arlington National Cemetery.

"This is a fitting occasion to announce that START negotiations between our country and the Soviet Union will begin on June 29," the president said before placing a wreath of carnations and chrysanthemums before the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Reagan said of America's war dead, "How they must have wished in all the ugliness that war brings that no other generation of young men would have to undergo that same experience."

George Carey, national service officer for the Disabled American Veterans, noted more than 1 1/4 million Americans have died in the nation's battles.

stores, but the exhibitionist never showed up.

Friday night, two men with stockings over their heads stopped a car and demanded money, threatening to cut the driver with a butcher knife. The driver got away and went to the police after stopping at home.

Other weekend reports include burglaries and thefts at 330 Avenue C, 437 Avenue C and from an apartment at Bluewater Gardens.

Police filed reports on a domestic fight, on an abusive threat to some children, two harassing phone call incidents and a stolen Brittany Spaniel.

A cat bite was reported in the 300 block of Avenue J and a board was reported thrown into a window in the 300 block of Avenue A.

Hereford firemen were called to a trailer home about a mile north on Progressive Road. Quite a bit of the home was burned, according to firemen. The fire was apparently caused by a gas leak.

Court Rules No Warrant Needed To Search Cars,

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today gave police officers far greater authority to search the contents of automobiles without first obtaining a warrant.

By a 6-3 vote, the court said police can search even closed containers within a car's trunk any time an officer has "reasonable cause" to believe the car contains contraband.

In an unusual move, the court overruled its own 1981 decision that had required police to obtain warrants to search all closed parcels in car trunks.

"In this class of cases, a search is not unreasonable if based on facts that would justify the issuance of a warrant, even though a warrant has not actually been obtained," Justice John Paul Stevens wrote for the court.

But Stevens warned police that there are limits to the new authority granted today.

"Just as probable cause to believe that a stolen lawnmower may be found in a garage will not support a warrant to search an upstairs bedroom, probable cause to believe that undocumented aliens are being transported in a van will not justify an unwarranted search of a suitcase," Stevens said.

But today's ruling could go far in clarifying the scope of the police power to search automobiles and packages within them — a source of Supreme Court consternation and confusion in recent years.

Other recent decisions by the court have given police broad authority to thoroughly search the entire passenger compartment of any car stopped because of a suspicion of criminal wrongdoing.

Justice Harry A. Blackmun said he was joined Stevens' opinion because "it should clarify a good bit the confusion that has existed."

Also joining the court's majority were Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Lewis F. Powell, William H. Rehnquist and Sandra Day O'Connor.

Justices Thurgood Marshall, William J. Brennan and Byron R. White dissented.

"And casualty statistics say nothing about a mother grieving over a telegram delivered to her in the middle of the night, or a desperate, distraught father asking God why it had to be his son," Carey told about 60 people gathered in Salt Lake City's Memory Grove.

"Are we here to glorify war? No, we're not," he added, saying his members "know that war is the ugliest fact of human existence."

In Battle Creek, Mich., the state's first national cemetery opened Monday at Fort Custer, 30 years after veterans began campaigning for it.

On Manhattan's West Side, about 50 men wearing veterans' caps marched in an informal parade to the Soldiers and Sailors Monument overlooking the foggy Hudson River. Taps were played and a rifle volley boomed.

nounced the treaty as "fatally flawed," saying it permitted the Soviets to add at least 3,000 nuclear warheads to their inventory while the United States tried to catch up.

States Already Invaded

The United States has been invaded already.

A million a year, outsiders are swarming ashore in the United States.

Most of them are unwanted, unwanted, illegal.

Other nations are closing their doors, locking them; Britain, West Germany, Sweden, Switzerland, Italy, Japan, Australia.

But the United States continues to let in twice as many foreigners as all other nations combined.

When you read that our nation's employment remains near record highs, 99.9 million—while unemployment continues to increase—now 9.4 percent—that's because there are more of us; more home-grown Americans and more immigrants seeking employment or unemployment pay.

It used to sound un-American to suggest that our melting-pot country, built on the sweat of those from other lands, should now withdraw its historic invitation—but Miami has given the rest of us a good look at the price we pay for an open door—in unemployment, crime, disease, higher taxes, ethnic friction and subversion.

Why are we letting in millions when millions are out of work?

Because we don't know how not to.

Attorney General William French Smith says, "We have lost control of our borders."

We would never let an invading force storm ashore but we are letting these sneak ashore, and in enough numbers that they can pillage our society and our economy quite as surely as though they had shot their way in.

They use and abuse welfare.

As to the argument that they perform only border-states farm labor, the Department of Justice says only 15 percent do. Eighty-five percent are in cities, costing taxpayers an estimated 13 billion dollars a year.

Former director of the Passport Office, Frances Knight, says the one thing we can do now to retard the tide is to make it illegal for any business intentionally to employ an illegal alien.

Double the understaffed border patrol by charging travelers a surtax on visas.

And do whatever we have to do to prevent the use of forged identification documents.

We're being invaded. And jobless Americans are already the first victims of the invading force.

Rose Kennedy Released From Hospital

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rose Kennedy was released from St. Mary's Hospital today after undergoing a series of tests.

The 91-year-old matriarch of the Kennedy clan was "feeling much better. There's been considerable improvement, and she was anxious to go home," said spokeswoman Ruth Hardy.

Mrs. Kennedy was hospitalized late Sunday because "she wasn't feeling very well," Mrs. Hardy had said.

She was kept under observation and underwent a series of tests Monday. Mrs. Hardy said physicians hadn't made any diagnosis, "but everything seems to be fine."

Relatives planned to take her home to her seaside Palm Beach estate at about noon (EDT), Mrs. Hardy said.

Mrs. Kennedy is the mother of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and of the late President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert Kennedy, both of whom were assassinated.

Mrs. Kennedy was hospitalized last November after complaining of chest pains. Her physician, Dr. Robert Gerard, said at the time that Mrs. Kennedy was suffering from angina, a condition that can cause pain around the heart when it receives too little oxygen.

NOW Says Insurance Reason To Pass ERA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Organization for Women said today that the insurance industry profits from sex discrimination and is one of the chief economic interests fighting ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

With only 30 days left before the deadline fixed by Congress in the ratification battle, Eleanor Smeal, president of NOW, opened a campaign to single out the amendment's economic opponents, who she said constitute a "silent lobby" against ratification.

Ms. Smeal said the insurance industry played a major role in the anti-ERA fight in Illinois and Florida. Both states so far have rejected ERA despite heavy support for it in public opinion polls, she said.

John Cook, a spokesman for the American Insurance Association, called the charge "preposterous on its face," and said he would have a more detailed rebuttal after he studied NOW's charges.

NOW made its charge in an advertisement that ran in today's New York Times and will run in Tuesday's Los Angeles Times and Wall Street Journal.

Said the ad: "Insurance companies use sex discrimination to make profits. They overcharge women on premiums and short-charge them on benefits. ... The Equal Rights Amendment would change all that. That's why insurance companies may feel they have a vested interest in fighting to defeat the ERA."

The proposed amendment has been ratified by the legislatures of 35 of the required 38 states. The deadline for ratification is June 30.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements once again is getting exactly what he wants from the Texas Legislature.

Only four days after the start of the special session he called for the repeal of the state ad valorem tax, Clements already had achieved that victory.

Both the House and Senate voted overwhelmingly to adopt a proposed constitutional amendment to repeal the property tax. The amendment will be submitted to the voters when they go to the polls Nov. 2.

House Speaker Bill Clayton ramrodded the property tax repeal through the House with little opposition, but the measure was delayed temporarily in the Senate by a group of Democrats that wanted to save at least a portion of the tax to create a dedicated fund to finance construction at 17 state universities that do not participate in the Permanent University Fund.

property tax prior to a 1979 legislative action reducing the assessment rate so low that the tax was virtually eliminated.

The supporters of the dedicated fund proposal eventually gave up their opposition when it became apparent that they could not muster the necessary votes to deny the tax repeal the two-thirds majority required for passage.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett of Austin, one of the governor's most vocal critics, called the repeal an "empty gesture" since the tax hasn't been collected in three years.

Clements, however, has contended that Texans might be called on to pay nearly $1 billion in back taxes if a lawsuit challenging the 1979 action is successful.

The governor has said lawmakers can address a permanent funding solution for the non-PUF colleges in 1983, and legislation to appropriate $130 million in interim funding is pending in the House.

Two Hereford Students

Receive ASU Scholarships

May 19--Two Hereford students are recipients of Carr Academic Scholarships for 1982-83 at Angelo State University in San Angelo, Texas.

Receiving the top award is Caroline Kearns, $3,000. She is an honor student and active in Student Council and speech team activities. Also receiving an award is Amy Schumacher, $1,500. Both are seniors at Hereford High School.

Provided by the Robert G. and Nona K. Carr Scholarship Foundation, the scholarships have been awarded on the basis of the students' outstanding academic records and personal achievements.

These Hereford students are among approximately 325 distinguished high school students throughout the state and nation who have been selected to receive Carr Academic Scholarships for 1982-83. Another 350 Carr Academic Scholarships are being awarded to currently enrolled undergraduate and graduate students at ASU.

This distinctive scholarship program was created by the late Mr. Carr in 1978 and will provide approximately $1,000,000 in academic scholarships during 1982-83 to assist worthy and deserving students to pursue their education at Angelo State.

Mr. Carr bequeathed to the Board of Regents, Texas State University System, for the use of Angelo State, all of his interest in oil, gas and other minerals with the provision that these properties be held in trust for the establishment of the Carr Academic Scholarship Program.

Professor to Conduct Fitness Seminar Here

Dr. Richard B. Couey, associate professor of health and physical education at Baylor University, will conduct a fitness seminar this weekend at Hereford Church of the Nazarene, according to John Marshall, Family Center Director.

In the Sunday evening worship service at 6 p.m. Couey's topic will be "The Importance of Keeping God's Temple Fit."

The seminar is open to the public. All sessions will be in the church gym, Ironwood and La Plata.

Couey has written two books on fitness and how it applies to Christians. He is the former assistant baseball coach at Baylor and pitched in a major league club.

Friday night Dr. Couey will speak to senior adults in the gym. An ice cream social will follow.

At 9 a.m. Saturday he will meet with the ladies' exercise class to speak on cardiovascular fitness for women.

Saturday at 8 p.m. he will speak to teens on the effects alcohol and other drugs on the human body.

Dynamic changes lie ahead for the 5 million youths in the national 4-H system if recommendations of a grassroots delegation are carried out.

The recommendations--ranging from use of computers to making 4-H relevant to more of today's teens--were made by some 300 youths and adults from the 50 states, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Canada at the recent National 4-H Conference in Washington, D.C. Recommendations are as follows:

Technology--Create a national task force to develop a local, state and national computer project in which 4-H young people can take part. States would be responsible for producing materials for this program.

Agriculture--Emphasize activities that stimulate more livestock breeding and crop-growing projects, push for better visibility of soil and water conservation efforts, put a higher priority on agricultural education, and build closer links with the Future Farmers of America, a nationwide high school youth organization.

Relevance to Teens--Make 4-H more relevant to the needs, issues, problems and interests of modern youths, especially older teenagers. Specifics include more college scholarships, asking school systems to give credit for 4-H projects, projects for older members that don't require record-keeping, increased sharing of new ideas across state lines, and higher visibility for 4-H achievements.

Leadership--Train volunteer 4-H leaders better, conduct a national survey of present leaders, adopt new leadership communication methods for today's nearly 600,000 adult leaders, do more to recognize adult and youth leaders, encourage more teenagers to be leaders, and involve more young members in leadership planning steps for 4-H programs at local, state and federal levels.

Worldwide--Increase 4-H international activities. Because nations are becoming more dependent upon each other, many youths now think globally rather than nationally. This calls for an emphasis on the cultural makeup of communities, more training for 4-H'ers with international projects, and more exchange visits by U.S. 4-H'ers and their counterparts abroad.

Government--Boost youths' knowledge and understanding of how governments are formed and make policy. Vehicles for this would be seminars, new activities and county workshops aimed at involving youngsters in government.

Careers--start a new nationwide career exploration project for 4-H'ers--This would include a career education specialist on the staff of each Cooperative Extension Service in the states, use of computers to locate jobs, and closer cooperation with local units of government to create job opportunities for young people.

America's Heritage--Seek more support for beautification projects, urge programs in each state to focus on environmental needs, develop a project book on parliamentary procedure in each state, and create a leader guide and members' manual for citizenship projects.

Handicapped People--Create special projects to help meet the needs of handicapped youngsters.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Ann Landers Information on Bumper Rapist Given

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read a piece in Parade magazine about "bumper rapists" by Lloyd Shearer. The information could be of great value to your readers. Please print it.-- Washington Post Reader

DEAR W.P.: The piece was highly informative, and I thank you for sending it on. I see Parade every Sunday but missed that issue while traveling. Here's an edited version.

"A bumper rapist" is a man who spots a woman driving alone and bumps his vehicle (usually stolen) into hers. When she emerges from her car to inspect the damage and exchange licenses, he threatens her with a knife or gun, forces her into his car, drives off, rapes and robs her.

Recently a California man was sentenced to 151 years in prison for assaulting more than two dozen women in a 30-month period. Jacqueline Connor, the deputy district attorney in Los Angeles who prosecuted that case, has this advice for women drivers involved in bumper or fender accidents:

"Never stop your car in a dark area. If you do, never roll down your window to converse with the man whose vehicle has hit yours. If your car can move, drive to a police station, a filling station, or some lighted area where there are people. Do not get out of your car on a highway. Put on your emergency lights if your car is stalled."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband's mother and two of his aunts died of heart attacks. They were all grossly overweight and smoked a lot. (Drank, too.)

Doug is in great shape. He jogs, pumps iron, doesn't drink anything alcoholic and has never touched a cigarette. Yet he is worried that he will die of a coronary because "it runs in the family."

For some mysterious reason Doug thinks sex is bad for a man's heart. (Not for a woman's, he says, because all she has to do is be there.)

I don't know how to put this but I am not getting enough sexual satisfaction and a guy I work with is beginning to look good to me. Will you please tell me what to do? I would never look at another man if my husband would look at me once a week.

Thanks for your help, Ann.--Not A Chaser, Just Needing More Attention

DEAR NEEDING MORE: Ask Doug to talk to his doctor. Perhaps when he hears from his physician that exercise of any kind (in moderation, of course) is beneficial to heart patients, he will be more companionable. Meanwhile, leave the guy at work out of any conversations you might have regarding your need for more attention. I see no point introducing a new source of trouble.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We live in a subdivision where the houses are close together. The problem is the people next door have planted a garden and are using manure to fertilize. The whole neighborhood has been stunk up and we are getting the worst of it, especially when the wind is from the south. I've considered speaking to them but they might misunderstand. They are foreigners. Any advice?--Grossed Out In Michigan

DEAR GROSSED: To assume that all foreigners are ignorant, unpleasant or unreasonable is ridiculous. Tell your neighbor about the odor-free fertilizers available in this country and offer to help him replace the manure with something else. You can catch more flies with honey than with vinegar.

Military Muster

Marine Cpl. Floyd L. Brown, son of Alice and Lester Brown Sr. of 612 Irving St., and whose wife, Mary, is the daughter of Richard and Nellie Collins of 507 Blevins St., recently returned from a deployment to the Philippines.

Also returning from deployment to the Philippines was Marine Lance Cpl. Manuel Alonzo, Jr., son of Elida and Manuel Alonzo, Sr., of 210 Ave. I.

Both are members of 2nd Battalion, 7th Marines, on Okinawa.

During the monthlong deployment, the unit was embarked aboard the amphibious transport dock USS Dubuque. Amphibious warfare training was conducted at the Zambales Amphibious Training Area in the Philippines and included combined training with units of the Philippine Marine Corps.

Additionally, the unit participated in jungle environmental survival training, tactical air control training and conditioning marches in the mountainous terrain. Upon completion of the training, a port call was made to Hong Kong.

Students May Supplement Income

Students enrolled full time under the GI Bill may supplement their monthly Veterans Administration educational assistance by earning money under the Veteran Work-Study Program.

Eligible veterans earn $3.35 an hour and may work up to 250 hours per term, advised the Director, Waco VA Regional Office.

Work performed under the program is VA related and located at a school or VA facility in the area. Examples of such service might include processing of VA paperwork at schools or a VA office, VA outreach services or services performed at a VA medical facility.

For applications and additional information, contact the Veterans Affairs Office on campus, or the Waco VA Regional Office toll-free number listed in the telephone directory.

The trouble is, by the time you get your priorities in order, time has run out for getting anything done.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Sometimes I think women are their own worst enemies. Take pregnancy. Please.

To be "with child" used to get you a seat on the bus, a pillow for your back, 30 days in bed watching soap operas following the birth, and 10 years of intense guilt for your husband.

For more than half a century, we had a good thing going for us. Then, one by one, our benefits began to tumble. Pregnancy isn't the fun it used to be. As the list of no-nos keeps getting longer, so does the list of yes-yesses.

You can't smoke because it's harmful to the baby and to you, but you can do aerobics.

You can't drink alcohol because of the potential danger to the fetus, but you can work up to the last day.

You can't indulge yourself by eating because the delivery can be difficult, but it's all right to jog. You can't shop for clothes because nothing fits, but you can get into a swimsuit and do three miles every morning. Even coffee drinking is a no-no, but you can play tennis.

I don't know when someone figured out that exercise and fresh air were compatible with pregnancy, but women's lives haven't been the same since.

Personally, there's nothing I loved any more in my 11th month than a good volleyball game, but some women have gone overboard.

Mary Bacon, a jockey, gave birth to a daughter soon after riding her third horse of the day.

Wendy Boglioli, the Olympic swim champion, was in her fifth month of pregnancy when she completed in the 100-yard freestyle at the American Amateur Athletic Union meet.

Andrea Mead Lawrence won two gold medals in Alpine racing at the Winter Olympics while in her first trimester.

Mary Jones ran half a marathon (13.1 miles) in two hours and five minutes near the end of her eighth month of pregnancy.

Okay, so times have changed. Let women pump iron, run 10 K's, play four sets of tennis, deliver twins at lunch, and hike a mountain before the sun sets.

But let us not forget the Maternity Martyrs of a decade ago who also have medals...fur coats, dinner rings, live-ins who never left, and cruises all over the world.

Tornadoes Kill Over Weekend

By GRAHAM VINK
 Associated Press Writer

The Memorial Day holiday was a weekend to forget for storm-battered communities in the plains as May's departing volley of tornadoes and thunderstorms killed at least 19 people and routed thousands from their homes.

Some cities in Texas and Oklahoma chalked up their wettest May on record, while residents of Marion, Ill., prepared to bury some of their dead today after a tornado killed 10 people Saturday, injured at least 100 and left 1,000 homeless.

Thunderstorms packing hail and rain spread from northern Texas to as far north as Ohio on Monday and as far south as Florida, leaving water 2 feet deep in some communities.

To the west, cities in Wyoming, Montana and South Dakota shivered in record low temperatures. Snow fell in the Colorado mountains while residents of some Montana communities dug out from 15 inches of snow.

Hail the size of baseballs pounded parts of Oklahoma, and some rivers reached flood stage in Missouri and Kansas.

Meanwhile, the National Weather Service's six-month official Atlantic hurricane season began today. The first storm of the season will be named Alberto.

Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson estimated damage from the Marion tornado at $100 million and asked President Reagan to declare Williamson County a major disaster area. The tornado, cutting a swath straight through town, destroyed 161 homes and 47 businesses, said county civil service director Thomas Redickas.

"Everybody's just terrified," said Marion resident Jeanette Griffin as heavy rain and black skies coupled with another tornado watch Monday to renew fears. "My children are petrified."

"It looks like somebody dropped a bomb," said Frank Olskoski of nearby Herrin.

Severe thunderstorms Monday spawned three more tornadoes in Illinois, including a twister in Crawford County that smashed a barn, tore awnings from mobile homes and peeled off a furniture store roof, police said.

Lightning struck several petroleum sludge tanks at an oil well near Ashley in Washington County, exploding an empty one and igniting a brief fire in a full tank, authorities said. Three inches of rain fell in an hour at Bement, leaving 5 inches of standing water.

A funnel cloud touched down Monday evening in Henderson County, Ky., blowing the roof partly off a school and damaging some mobile homes.

A weekend storm hammered Oklahoma City with 75 mph winds and brought May rainfall to a record 12.07 inches. More rain in Wichita Falls, Tex., brought the month's total to 13.22 inches, breaking a record set in 1891.

More than 1.8 inches of rain fell in a 24-hour period ending Monday night at Cape Girardeau, Mo., and the Tampa Bay area of Florida got 4 1/2 inches of rain Sunday and Monday.

The mercury dipped Monday to 27 degrees at Sheridan, Wyo., easily beating the record cold of 32 degrees set on that date in 1917. Other records for the date were 32 at Billings, Mont., and 33 at Rapid City, S.D.

In West Virginia, residents of Cabin Creek and other narrow coal-mining valleys near Charleston postponed holiday picnics to begin clearing tons of muck and debris from Sunday's flooding, which routed 200 to 300 people from their homes.

Monday's storms in Texas knocked out electrical power to thousands in parts of Dallas, Sherman and McKinney and blew down a 275-foot radio tower near Terrell.

A Texas woman was killed and her husband was injured when wind toppled a 60-foot tree onto their tent near Denison Dam in Bryan County, Okla.

Rain in Tampa, Fla., apparently contributed to the drowning of a 40-year-old retarded man swept away in a drainage ditch Sunday night, police said.

A 67-year-old man from Festus, Mo., died Sunday when he was crushed by a tree toppled by high winds.

In Montana, Friday's snowstorm was blamed for the death of a woman whose truck was hit by a train near Great Falls.

In Oklahoma, rescue workers searched for the body of a 12-year-old boy lost in a canoe accident.

Three people were found dead in a mobile home southeast of Oklahoma City on Saturday after lightning struck, and in Colorado lightning killed a man in a Denver park.

Senator Will Do What's Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Nixon says Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is a practical man who will "do what is necessary" to seek the presidency in 1984, whether it be losing weight or changing his ideas.

In any event, the Massachusetts Democrat will lose to President Reagan, who will decide to seek a second term, Nixon said in an interview on the CBS Evening News broadcast Monday night. Further excerpts were scheduled to be aired on the CBS Morning News this week.

Former Vice President Walter F. Mondale doesn't even have a chance of winning the Democratic nomination, Nixon says. "No way. He's just a warmed-over Carter."

Nixon predicted the Democrats will nominate Kennedy for president in 1984, but said Reagan would win the contest.

"Kennedy will win the Democratic nomination because it's four years past Chappaquiddick, four years more for that in the background," Nixon said. He was referring to the 1969 accident in which Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, drowned after Kennedy's car crashed into the water at Chappaquiddick, an island adjacent to Martha's Vineyard off the Massachusetts coast.

Before running, Kennedy has "got to lose 20 pounds," Nixon said. "He also has got to enter the 80s, rather than the 60s. He's got to get some new ideas. But he is a very practical fellow, and he will get some new ideas. He'll do what is necessary."

But Nixon said Reagan will seek and win re-election.

"He's going to be able say, 'I promised that I was going to cut taxes,' and he has," Nixon said. "He will have cut taxes, he will have cut government spending and he will have cut unemployment, in my view, by that time and will have strengthened the United States so that we have a better base from which to build a world of peace in the future."

Nixon said Reagan is "much smarter than most of his critics have given him credit for. Let's look at how they thought about him. Remember, when he started to run he was 'too old.' Well, he's demonstrated that age doesn't seem to bother him. He's a very vigorous person in terms of what he's been able to do."

"And others have said, 'well, he's just an actor, sort of a dummy,'" Nixon continued. "But I knew before that Reagan would never have reached the place that he was in California and handled things shrewdly (as governor) in that very difficult state and very large state the number of years he did being a dumbbo."

Ranch Heir Sues Family

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The great-grandson of King Ranch founder Richard King has taken his family to federal court here, claiming he was short-changed millions of dollars when he sold his 12 percent share of the sprawling spread six years ago.

Belton K. Johnson filed suit three years ago against King Ranch Inc. for what he contends is an underpayment of up to $35 million when it bought his interest in the ranch for $70 million.

In opening statements Monday, Johnson's attorneys told U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions that King Ranch Inc. agreed to buy Johnson's share after learning of a potential $500 million claim against Exxon for alleged underpayment of gas royalties.

King Ranch executives contend that no valid claim against Exxon for underpayment of royalties existed when Johnson sold his stock in 1976.

Lawyers for King Ranch Inc. described Johnson as "an aggressive seller" who threatened litigation or a sellout to foreign investors unless ranch executives redeemed his stock quickly.

In fighting among King Ranch family members has been common since the death of Mrs. Richard "Henrietta" King in 1925 when the South Texas ranching empire was divided among King's heirs for the first time.

But Johnson's suit may mark the first time the private interplay of the South Texas ranch will be made public.

Johnson seeks an unspecified amount of damages under the Securities Exchange Act and contends that King Ranch Inc. was required under the law to disclose the royalties information prior to the stock purchase.

The suit concerns what Johnson called the "Exxon claim," where Exxon Co. U.S.A., then Humble Oil and Refining Co., was to pay royalties on market value at the wellhead for gas produced on the King Ranch.

According to Johnson's suit, royalty payments were not calculated on that value from Jan. 1, 1973, until Johnson sold his stock on Dec. 13, 1976.

Before the purchase, King Ranch executives had discovered it had a $100 million to $500 million claim against Exxon for underpayment on the gas. Insiders said the figure was close to $300 million.

King Ranch officers, who were negotiating the acquisition of Johnson's stock, knew of the claim and did not tell Johnson before buying his stock, the suit said.

"If the ranch's royalty claim against Exxon had been disclosed to Johnson, it would have affected his judgment as to the purchase price he would have been willing to take for his stock," according to a pretrial brief filed by Johnson's attorneys on April 19.

The brief also noted that after the purchase of Johnson's stock, Exxon settled the claim by "substantially increasing the ranch's royalty — an increase worth hundreds of millions of dollars to the ranch."

In a pretrial brief filed by its attorneys on April 22, the King Ranch acknowledged the Exxon claim.

According to the brief, King Ranch's dissatisfaction with Exxon began in the early 1960s when ranch executives believed they were being underpaid for royalties. The brief contends that Johnson was closely involved in the ranch and knew about the Exxon claim.

Although not a willing buyer, the King Ranch agreed to purchase stock from Johnson "to remove him as a dissident from its operations so that normal corporate business could resume," the ranch's brief said.

Private Business Strength Eroding

By JOHN CUNIFF, AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The strength of private business continues to erode, endangering the survival of many thousands of companies and leaving some of them too weak to rebuild for any economic upturn.

"This isn't deadwood that's being cleaned out," said Prof. William Dunkelberg of Purdue University, an adviser to the National Federation of Independent Business. "We're cutting into the green," he said.

His assessment of the condition of small and medium-size companies follows a sampling of 2,305 firms randomly selected from more than a half million members of the federation, based in San Mateo, Calif.

"The condition of business is very fragile," he said. "If we took a further economic dip in the near future we would lose a lot of firms in a rolling wave of bankruptcies."

Bankruptcies already are running at rates unseen since the Great Depression of the 1930s and, said Dunkelberg, many other companies are simply seeking to survive. They're asking, "What must I do to be in business a month from now?" he said, contending that very few concerns have the financial strength to make any plans beyond that time.

The survey showed that seasonally adjusted employment among federation members fell for the 10th straight quarter, leading Dunkelberg and Jonathan Scott of Southern Methodist University to state that it will require a strong, sustained rise in sales before the picture improves.

The survey also showed that 1 in 5 firms lowered their selling prices in the first quarter as they sought cash by unloading inventories.

Dunkelberg and Scott contend that falling prices pose serious problems for small companies that already are cash poor and burdened with debt. If prices continue to fall, they said, more and more companies may find their survival endangered. Moreover, if they do survive they might be unable to take advantage of an improved economy, when it arrives.

Dunkelberg blamed much of the problem on the inability of Congress to cut deficits. A $100 billion federal deficit, he pointed out, is nearly equal to the amount saved annually by consumers. That is, federal government borrowing may consume all capital saved by individuals.

As a consequence, he said, neither businesses nor consumers are making any spending plans. Everyone, he suggested, is waiting to see what the future holds rather than making plans for major expenditures.

In such a situation, he said, many smaller businesses probably have no choice but to cut prices to spur sales in order to remain alive. And in doing so, they may be digging themselves deeper into a financial hole.

When two persons are single-minded, you can lay odds each is operating on 50 per cent of his mental capacity.

April showers brought May's flowers, a process which, in turn, is guaranteed to bring June's roof repair bills.

How come kids know all the answers to family questions you wish you hadn't brought up while company was in the house?

AP Introducing Political Databank

NEW YORK (AP) — A computerized service designed to provide news and information on candidates, issues and other campaign matters will be introduced by The Associated Press and Mead Data Central, Keith Fuller, AP's president, announced.

The AP Political Service expands the political databank offered by the AP in 1980 as a research tool for writers, editors, broadcasters and others outside the news media with interest in the political process.

The AP developed a databank for staff use during the 1976 presidential election year.

The new service, which will start in late June, will include regularly updated information on candidates and issues, as well as background material relating to the primary and general elections for Congress and key state offices.

AP bureaus in every state will contribute to the constantly expanding electronic library, and material will be coordinated by senior editors in Washington and New York.

The information will be available through NEXIS terminals provided by Mead Data Central, a division of the Mead Corp., and can be reproduced on high-speed printers.

Candidates for Congress and governor will have separate files in the Political Service library, listing biographical and other information.

In addition, the Political Service will include files for each state, providing summary information on offices at stake, recent election history, candidates and, frequently, key local or regional issues.

The information bank also will include election schedules, lists of congressional and statehouse officeholders, data on important national issues, and poll results.

A major feature of the AP Political Service will be the developing campaign file, which will include Associated Press political stories filed by state bureaus and the Washington staff, coded by candidate and issue and cross-referenced for easy access.

The campaign file will enable users to keep track of candidates and issues, recording the development of campaign strategies and any shifts in position as the Nov. 2 elections approach.

The library also will include background information on the 1980 presidential election year.

Information in the AP Political Service will be updated daily.

AP's partner in the Political Service, Mead Data Central, developed and markets the NEXIS information retrieval system. NEXIS is a leading electronic library service providing the full text of a vast variety of publications, including The Associated Press.

Together with its sister system, LEXIS, the world's leading legal information service, it is the largest private full-text data base in existence.

The AP Political Service differs from other information sources in several ways:

—The information is current, updated to reflect campaign developments as they occur. The system is open at almost all times, 23 hours per weekday, 14½ hours a day on weekends.

—The information is easy to find, designed with the user's interest in mind. Mead's NEXIS terminals are designed for the user, with only minimum instruction necessary.

—The information is thorough, including the complete text of most stories filed by political correspondents all over the country.

New Jersey Race Proves Exciting

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The contest for the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate from New Jersey features a former aide to Ronald Reagan who is well-versed in economic theory and a popular moderate congresswoman who is the model for a comic-strip character.

It's Jeffrey Bell vs. Millcent Fenwick in what undisputedly is the state's most exciting race in the June 8 primary.

Bell, 38, is a lanky boyish-looking intellectual who can quote economic theories and the results of military studies during casual conversation.

Mrs. Fenwick, 72, is the charming, eloquent former model and Vogue editor whose pipe-smoking caricature is known nationwide as "Lacey Davenport" in the popular "Doonesbury" comic strip.

The winner faces one of nine lackluster Democratic candidates in the general election to replace convicted Abscam defendant Harrison A. Williams, who resigned in March after 24 years in the Senate.

Although Mrs. Fenwick is the acknowledged leader, Bell is counting on a final blitz of television commercials this week to stop her momentum.

Bell, who was Reagan's national political scout in 1974 and a campaign worker in 1976 and 1980, has warned that Mrs. Fenwick would become the president's leading Republican critic if elevated to the Senate.

Bell's television and radio commercials are critical of Mrs. Fenwick, including charges that she frequently voted against major weapon systems backed by the Reagan administration.

But Mrs. Fenwick has emphasized her support of Reagan's economic programs and "for a tough, lean national defense."

The heir to a family fortune, Mrs. Fenwick is part of the wealthy moderate Republican wing in New Jersey. She has a 20-year political history, including two elections to the state Assembly, two years as the state consumer affairs director and eight years in Congress.

She has been endorsed by 10 of the 21 county GOP chairman and by 44 of the party's 55 state legislators.

"I've never seen a member of the House of Representatives who has started a (statewide) campaign with such visibility," said John Deardourff, Mrs. Fenwick's media consultant. "She's as strong a candidate as our firm has ever worked with."

So far, this apparent popularity has not been seriously undercut by Bell's intense fact-filled campaign. Officials in both camps say their private polls indicate Mrs. Fenwick is well ahead.

76ers Hoping Secret Holds

By JOHN NADEL AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers have proven they can beat the Los Angeles Lakers. The question now is whether they can beat them three more times.

The 76ers, having ended Los Angeles' record playoff winning string at nine with a convincing 110-94 victory Sunday in Philadelphia, try to take a 2-1 edge when the best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship playoffs resume tonight at the Lakers' Forum.

"We'll be back with a good attitude," said Lakers guard Norm Nixon, who had just six points in the loss after averaging 22 during post-season play. "The loss didn't do anything to us except make us hungrier. We've got to concentrate better, prevent them from controlling the boards."

Philadelphia's Julius Erving, overpowering in Game 2, knows the Lakers can be beaten, but are very dangerous.

"Since we taught ourselves how to beat the Lakers, they're just another team now...but they can still be awesome," said Erving, who scored 24 points and had 14 rebounds in the victory.

The Lakers, who ran up an 8-0 record in the two playoffs leading up to the championships, began the title series with a bang, roaring to a come-from-behind, 124-117 victory over Philadelphia in last Thursday's opener. But the 76ers went back to the chalkboard and came up with strategy to overcome the Lakers' trapping defense and slow down their fast break. It worked.

"I think we've taught ourselves how to beat them," Erving said. "Now it's up to them to adjust."

That's precisely what Lakers Coach Pat Riley has in mind.

"We will have to make some corrections," he said. "But I don't doubt we can do it."

The 76ers' strategy for the second game apparently included being more aggressive on the boards and hustling back quickly to cut off the Lakers' fast break. They out-rebounded Los Angeles 52-39 and the Lakers were successful on less than half their fast breaks.

"People say you can't both crash the boards and get back quickly on defense," said Riley. "But they can. They're the quickest team in the league."

Riley said he was pleased that the Lakers took the homecourt advantage away from the 76ers — three of the five remaining games would be at the Forum if the series goes the distance.

"I'm not happy with the loss, but I'm happy with the split," Riley said of the opening two games in Philadelphia. "We'll have a lot of support at the packed Forum."

The fourth game of the playoffs is scheduled Thursday night at the Forum and Game 5 is Sunday in Philadelphia. If necessary, the sixth game will be June 8 in Los Angeles and the seventh on June 10 in Philadelphia.

THIS WEEK IN BASEBALL

Do you speak baseball?

Baseball's native language is the most crisp, colorful and expressive in all of America's sports.

It is so deeply ingrained in the minds and hearts of the public that many of baseball's expressions have been adopted in everyday conversation. Such phrases as "came through in the clutch," "he threw me a curve," "give me a rain check," "ballpark figure" and "way off base" are among dozens of baseball expressions that have found their way into conventional vocabulary.

How about some of baseball's even more colorful expressions?

Ever wonder where the term "Charley horse" came from? Or what's the origin of "the seventh-inning stretch"? Why do relief pitchers warm up in a place called the "bullpen"? And what's a "Texas Leaguer"?

The term "Charley horse" dates back exactly 100 years. The 1882 Chicago White Stockings, on an off-day one July, decided to visit the race track. One of the players, who had been given a tip on a race, convinced his teammates to pool their money to bet on a horse called "Charley." All except Joe Quest, the second baseman.

Charley got off to a good start and was running away from the field. The athletes were ecstatic. Suddenly, the horse stumbled and went lame. As the rest of the field swept past the stricken horse, Quest shouted, "Look, there goes your Charley horse."

The next day, the Chicago team was playing the New York club. George Gore of the White Stockings singled and attempted to steal second. Halfway down, he stepped into a hole and strained his leg, just as the racing pony had done. Quest, looking in the situation at a glance and sang out, "There's your old Charley horse, there's your old Charley horse." The term stuck.

Seventh-inning stretch? The practice began as far back as 1869 — not in the 20th century, as is popularly believed. It is widely said to have originated in 1910 during a game in Pittsburgh when President William Howard Taft stood up to stretch his arms and legs. The crowd, thinking the chief executive was about to leave, also stood up out of respect.

Actually, baseball's seventh-inning stretch was begun in 1869. That is attested to in a letter written by Harry Wright, the captain and center fielder of the Cincinnati Red Stockings. In a letter to a friend, Wright wrote in part: "The spectators all arise between halves of the seventh, extend their arms and legs, and sometimes walk about. In so doing, they enjoy the relief afforded by relaxation from a long posture upon the hard benches."

In the old days, there appeared in many big-league ballparks huge signs advertising "Bull Durham" tobacco. These signs usually were plastered on the fences in the deepest right- and left-field corners, which happened to be the spots where relief pitchers warmed up during a game. Thus the "bullpen."

The term, first used in a game at Austin, Texas, in 1888, became widely known by 1910.

The baseball term "Texas Leaguer" dates back to 1889. It was associated with an unheralded outfielder named Art Sunday, a member of the Houston team of the Texas League. Sunday had little power but was able to build up a high average by his uncanny ability to "hit 'em where they ain't," a la Willie Keeler.

The Texas League collapsed during the 1889 season and Sunday joined the Toledo club, then in the International League. Before long, he was batting .398.

A majority of his hits were low flies over the infield too far out to be handled by an infielder and too far in for the outfielders. One of the Toledo writers described Sunday's hits as "Texas Leaguers," and the term became part of the baseball lexicon.

Wilander Knocks Off Ivan Lendl

PARIS (AP) — Mats Wilander has made his mark on the French Open tennis tournament no matter what lies ahead for him in this Grand Slam event.

The 17-year-old Swede has given the spectators a darkhorse to root for and impressed his fellow players with his promise.

Wilander, who played No. 5 seed Vitas Gerulaitis today in a quarterfinal match, still had everyone talking of his upset of second-seeded Ivan Lendl.

That five-set shocker Sunday, the biggest surprise so far in the two-week clay court tournament, snapped a winning streak that had placed the Czech clay-court specialist in the finals of the last 18 tournaments he has played.

Wilander's style, which is not unlike that of his famed compatriot Bjorn Borg, has drawn compliments from players still in contention for Sunday's $66,000 title match.

"I watched a little of the Wilander-Lendl match and it was like Wilander was on No. 20 or something," No. 2 seed Jimmy Connors said Monday after he advanced into the quarterfinals with a 6-1, 6-0, 6-4 victory over fellow American Chip Hooper. "Wilander is a very good player."

Connors, who has yet to reach the finals of any French Open tournament, plays again Wednesday against Spain's Jose Higueras.

Higueras, ranked 17th worldwide, advanced with a 6-4, 6-2, 6-0 upset over No. 6 seed Eliot Teltscher of the United States, ranked seventh nationally, who has now lost to Higueras in four of their nine encounters.

The Spaniard, who two weeks ago defeated John McEnroe to capture the title at a Grand Prix tournament in Hamburg, West Germany, has a 1-1 record against Wilander this year.

"He's a good player whose going to get much better," Higueras said of Wilander, who has risen 285 spots in the world rankings in the past 18 months to 18th place.

71 that gave him a total of 281 and a victory margin of two shots over four challengers.

"I think Raymond came here this year out of respect for me," Nicklaus said. "On the other hand, I don't think he would want any golf course to have the upper hand. That was my case at Colonial."

Floyd reflected on his first 1982 victory and the 16th of his two PGA Tour decades.

"This course has the reputation of being the best conditioned course on the Tour and maybe the most difficult. So it's pleasing to me," he said.

"A lot of my strength is my course management," said Floyd, the winner of $1.95 million in his career.

"I knew this was a thinking man's course. You just couldn't go out there and hit it. That was the thing I had to work out.

He did Sunday. He birdied the 13th hole to take the lead for good and then expanded that margin to two strokes with another bird on the 15th.

But it was the 16th, a 204-yard, par-3 hole, that finally provided Floyd with that championship feeling.

He hit a five-iron tee shot over the green in heavy fringing rough, chipped to within five feet and sank the par-

After Indy 500 Victory

Johncock's Release Complete

By STEVE HERMAN AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — When Gordon Johncock stepped to the podium to accept the largest paycheck of his racing career, the Indianapolis 500 victory dinner became his ultimate celebration, a joyful release from the uneasiness that had haunted him for nine years.

Of the record $2.07 million purse, Johncock earned more than $290,000 for the Patrick Racing Team with Sunday's blink-of-an-eye victory over Rick Mears. But it was the tribute from his racing peers and more than 1,000 people at Monday night's annual awards dinner that at last marked his redemption.

"This victory has meant more to me than anything in my life," said the 45-year-old Johncock, a steady racing veteran whose first Indy 500 victory in 1973 will forever be tainted by the nightmarish circumstances that took three days to unfold.

The 1973 race, like this year's, was halted before it even began when Salt Walther crashed on the main straightaway, seriously injuring himself, sending nine spectators to the hospital and damaging 11 other race cars. Twenty minutes later, rain ended any chance of a restart.

The next day also was washed out by rain. The race was finally started on the third day, but pit crewman Armando Teran and driver Swede Savage were fatally injured in separate incidents. Rain, almost mercifully, ended the long ordeal after 332 miles.

There was no banquet for Johncock, no celebration, no sense of triumph. He took his paycheck and went home.

"The 1973 victory was one all of us would like to have forgotten, the way it happened," said the man who just by chance was the leader when the rain came. "But this (1982) race was very special to me. It was a good, competitive race, and hopefully we can have many more like it. I know I will never forget May 30, 1982."

The only blemish on Sunday's race was at the beginning, when the cars of Mario Andretti, Kevin Cogan, Roger Mears and Dale Whittington were eliminated in two separate crashes just before the green starting flag dropped.

Once the remaining cars were lined up and the race was started, it developed into the closest and, probably, the most exciting finish in Indy history. Johncock took the lead with 40 laps to go, then held off the charging Mears on the final circuit of the 2½-mile track and beat him by 16-hundredths of a second.

"It was an uncomfortable drive for me until my car got working," Johncock said of the three-hour grind. "It was fun there for a while. From the 155th to 190th lap, when the car was working real well and I could run 197 or 198 mph."

But then the car began having problems and Mears pulled closer with every lap. With eight laps to go, Johncock's lead was 8.5 seconds; with six laps remaining, it was six seconds. With three laps to go, the lead was 1.8 seconds; they were running almost even after 199 of the 200 laps.

"I really didn't know where he was," Johncock said. "I couldn't see him in my mirror. I didn't know if he was behind me or to the side of me."

As the cars moved into the first turn on the final lap, Johncock pulled in front ever so slightly. Mears stayed right on Johncock's tail through the backstretch and the final two turns as more than 350,000 spectators, standing and screaming, watched the thrilling duel.

Johncock's average speed for 500 miles was 162.029 mph; Mears averaged 162.026. And Johncock, too, appreciated Mears' stirring challenge.

"I want to congratulate Rick for one terrific race," he said. "I don't think there's any other driver I'd rather run side-by-side or nose-to-tail with than Rick."

Mears, although the loser in what turned out to be the world's richest drag race, was equally impressed with the great finish.

"I'd like to congratulate Gordy," he told the large crowd at the Indianapolis Convention Center. "If you had seen the last lap from my seat, then you'd have even more praise for him than you do now."

Johncock has never gained the wide recognition that has gone, say, to A.J. Foyt, or the Unser brothers, or Andretti, or Johnny Rutherford, or even the much younger Mears. But Johncock boasts some impressive racing credentials, too. In his 18 Indy starts, he has wound up among the top nine finishers 10 times, a percentage not even Foyt, a four-time winner, can match.

Monday night's prize was about $230,000 more than he won a year ago, and some $54,000 more than he earned for his 1973 victory. This year's total, of which Johncock will keep a predetermined percentage and the remainder to Patrick Racing Team, included more than $187,000 from the Speedway, $14,250 for leading 57 laps in the race and more than $88,000 in accessory prizes from race sponsors and advertisers.

The total purse marked the first $2 million prize package in auto racing history, although the winner's share was some $28,000 below the record $318,819 awarded to Rutherford in 1980.

Johncock also received a Chevrolet Camaro, a replica of the pace car in Sunday's race, and the champion's ring, presented by Rutherford.

Mears, who earned $270,000 for the Penske team by winning the race three years ago, accepted a check for $215,859 for second place. Included in that total was $5,000 for having the fastest lap in the race, 200.535 mph on the 122nd lap. That also was the fastest lap ever run in competition at the Speedway.

Third place paid $103,559 to Pancho Carter; Tom Sneva earned $88,309 for fourth; Al Unser received $60,326 for fifth; and Don Whittington won $56,159 for sixth. Jim Hickman, who received $5,000 as Rookie of the Year, totaled $59,209 for seventh.

Floyd Masters Nicklaus Monster

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Host Jack Nicklaus knows exactly how Ray Floyd felt about playing the Muirfield Village course. Floyd simply could not handle Nicklaus' 7,116-yard monster carved out of central Ohio farmland.

Nicklaus had the same problem with Colonial Country Club, site of the Colonial National Invitational. He was 0-for-8 at the Fort Worth, Texas, tournament until he finally won it last month.

Floyd had played Nicklaus' layout so poorly that he skipped four of the first six tournaments.

Floyd finally tamed Muirfield Village on Sunday with a

Cougars Rally Past LCC, 9-8

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Azusa-Pacific had to use some ninth inning heroics to beat host Lubbock Christian, 9-8, and advance to the second round of the 26th annual NAIA World Series baseball tournament.

Mark Schlesinger slugged a two-run homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth to cap off a furious Azusa-Pacific comeback victory after falling behind 6-0 in the first inning.

In other games Monday, Liberty Baptist of Virginia beat St. Xavier of Illinois, 7-5; Lewis and Clark State of Idaho downed Southeastern Oklahoma, 2-0 and Coastal Carolina edged Birmingham Southern, 5-4.

Azusa-Pacific faces Grand Canyon State in a second round winner's bracket game today.

Second round competition opened at 1 p.m. today with a loser's bracket game between St. Xavier of Illinois and Lubbock Christian.

Games to follow that featured a loser's bracket between Southeastern Oklahoma and Birmingham Southern. Winner's bracket games matched Lewis & Clark against Bemidji and the finale between Azusa-Pacific and Grand Canyon.

Lubbock Christian jumped off to a 6-0 lead in the first inning with three singles, a double, two walks and two errors by the Cougars.

The California team bounced back to cut the margin to 4-1 in the fourth inning on a four-run outburst highlighted by a three-run homer by Jon Larson. Lubbock Christian added single runs in the fifth and eighth innings to hold an 8-4 edge going into the bottom of the eighth.

Mark Schenazi had a two-run homer and John Catlett singled home a run to cut the margin to 8-7. Pitcher Duane Bresse retired the side to set the stage for Schlesinger's game winning homer in the ninth.

A two-run single by Rick Wells highlighted a five-run first inning as Liberty Baptist of Virginia held on to edge St. Xavier of Illinois, 7-5.

Steve Younts hit four of Liberty Baptist's nine hits and drove in two runs with a six-inning triple. Doug Smith ran his record to 9-8, allowing nine hits and fanning four before being relieved by David Schaver in the seventh.

Royals' Bats Blazing

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Two years ago, the big story in Kansas City was George Brett's run at a .400 batting average. The question this season is whether the Royals as a team can hit .300.

"When you look at our lineup, we have good hitters one through nine," Manager Dick Howser said Monday night after the Royals pounded out 18 hits, including three doubles and two triples, in thrashing the Chicago White Sox 11-4. "There is really not an easy out in the lineup."

The barrage lifted the Royals' team batting average to .294, tops in the major leagues. They also lead the American League with 96 doubles and 23 triples.

Elsewhere, the Boston Red Sox downed the Oakland A's 5-2, the Detroit Tigers nipped the California Angels 3-1, the Toronto Blue Jays edged the New York Yankees 5-4, the Cleveland Indians trounced the Minnesota Twins 9-4, the Baltimore Orioles nosed out the Texas Rangers 8-7 and the Seattle Mariners defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 5-4 in 11 innings.

Foreign Cars In Grand Prix

By HARRY ATKINS
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP)—Foreign cars, object of much scorn in this capital of the reeling American auto industry, invade Detroit this week for what is being billed as the first Grand Prix auto race among skyscrapers.

The invaders are not the latest high-mileage offerings from Japan but about 30 high-performance automobiles which will compete June 6 in an event that officials hope will bring glamour and dollars to a city where one in five of its 1.2 million citizens is unemployed.

The idea for a Grand Prix was started two years ago by the directors of Detroit Renaissance Inc., a local non-profit business group. With some help from retired auto magnate Henry Ford II, whose cars experienced great success in international racing in the 1960s, the idea was sold to Grand Prix officials in London and Paris.

The group put up about $3.5 million to support the race and need about 65,000 fans, who will be paying between $15 and $75 a ticket, to break even.

The Detroit City Council spent $800,000 to repave the streets that comprise the 2.5-mile race course in the downtown area.

The construction caused traffic snarls and grumbling from motorists who had to dodge hundreds of unrepaired potholes elsewhere around the city. City council members, who were caught in the traffic jams, angrily summoned race organizers to explain. Some critics labeled the race the Grand Mistake.

"God knows times are tough," Mayor Coleman A. Young said in turning aside complaints. "But, it doesn't hurt us to have a little fun once in a while, too. The Grand Prix comes at a time when Detroit can use an emotional lift."

Grand Prix racing, with its roots in Europe, already is an established success in two other American cities—Long Beach, Calif. and Las Vegas. In all, 15 races are scheduled this year in such places as Monaco, France and Belgium.

If the Detroit Grand Prix does attract 65,000 fans, and if they spend about $4 million in restaurants, hotels and shops during their stay downtown, the city would realize $200,000 in sales tax alone, according to Robert E. McCabe, president of Detroit Renaissance.

"The message we wanted to get out through the Grand Prix is already getting out, every single day, in a variety of little ways," McCabe said. "I saw where a reporter asked a carpenter, putting up bleachers near Cobo Hall, how he liked the Grand Prix

Red Sox 5, A's 2

Rick Miller hit a two-out grand slam home run in the fourth inning after Oakland botched a double play. Miller hit his third career grand slam off Bo McLaughlin to erase a 1-0 Oakland lead. McLaughlin retired the first batter in the fourth before Carney Lansford got an infield hit. Dave Stapleton grounded to second baseman Davey Lopes, who tried to start a double play by tagging Lansford. However, Lansford eluded the tag and Lopes threw wildly past first base trying to get Stapleton.

Stapleton went to second and Lansford, who was on the bag, was then caught in a rundown between second and third. McLaughlin then loaded the bases for Miller by hitting Glenn Hoffman with a pitch and walking Gary Allenson. Rickey Henderson and Tony Armas homered for Oakland.

Tigers 4, Angels 3
Lou Whitaker's two-out single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning drove in the tying runs and pinch hitter Jerry Turner singled in the winning run as Detroit coming to town. The carpenter said, "I like it fine. This is the first work I've had in 18 months."

It will cost $15 just to stand and watch the June 6 race. A reserved seat costs $35. A better seat is $65. A seat for the race and qualifying trials June 4-5 goes for $75.

"It's a major sporting event," says Jackie Stewart, a three-time World Driving Champion and winner of 27 Grand Prix races. "You have to pay for the premier prestige event of the calendar year."

Advance ticket sales are "right on target," says Paul Klapproth, a spokesman for the race, but had no specific figures.

Detroit Renaissance is asking owners of buildings which ring the course to close Saturday and Sunday so no one can watch the event for free. People who need to work at their regular jobs within the course area will be given special passes, officials said. To ensure that restaurants and bars cash in, race fans won't be allowed to bring food and drink-filled coolers with them.

Human Error, Not Speed Killer

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP
Special Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—How much faster can racing machines go without turning the Indianapolis 500 into a carnage or blunting the enthusiasm of its legion of fans?

"Speed isn't a killer—it's loss of concentration and foolish human errors that cause accidents just as it is every day on our roads and highways," insists Roger Penske, head of the $250 million car-building corporation that bears his name.

"Remember while speeds have been escalating, until Gordon Smiley's accident in trials this year we hadn't had a casualty here since 1973."

"No matter how many rules they impose to reduce power, human ingenuity will find ways to make the car go faster. All the while, measures are taken to make them safer."

Penske, a onetime driver himself who turned his skills in another direction, is merely enunciating a fact of life.

Man will continue to dare. He will soar to the moon, scale the highest mountains, defy the most treacherous rapids and, in auto racing, shoot for endless new plateaus of speed.

It's ingrained in the human soul.

Penske, who put Rick Mears in the fastest car in the 66th Indy 500 Sunday only to scored three times to beat California. California reliever Doug Corbett retired the first two batters in the ninth before singles by Richie Hebner and Larry Herndon and a walk to Lance Parrish loaded the bases for Whitaker.

Elias Sosa held the Angels to one hit over the final three innings to gain the victory in relief after the Angels got home runs from Brian Downing and Bobby Grich in taking a 3-0 lead against Larry Pashnick.

Blue Jays 5, Yankees 4
Rance Mulliniks drove in three runs with a pair of doubles as Toronto snapped the Yankees' three-game winning streak and stretched its only string of victories to three. Mulliniks gave the Blue Jays the lead for good at 2-1 in the third inning when he doubled off Roger Erickson to score Alfredo Griffin and Damaso Garcia, who had singled. Mulliniks doubled another run across in the fifth and scored what proved to be the winning run on a double by Willie Upshaw. Graig Nettles and Roy Smalley homered for New York.

Indians 9, Twins 4
Von Hayes drove in five runs with a homer, double and a bases-loaded walk and Andre Thornton also homered to spark Cleveland to its eighth consecutive victory and saddle the Twins with their 12th straight loss.

Minnesota's losing streak matches this season's major league high established by the Texas Rangers and is one short of the all-time Minnesota record of 13 set in 1961. Hayes' three-run homer capped a four-run first inning and Thornton's 14th home run of the season made it 7-3 in the third.

Orioles 8, Rangers 7
Rookie Cal Ripken Jr. stole home to break a sixth-inning tie. Al Bumbry followed with a run-scoring single and Ken Singleton hit a two-run homer to cap a decisive three-run eighth inning. Ripken, who had an RBI double in the second inning, started the sixth with a single and took third on Lenn Sakata's two-out single.

The Orioles' 8-3 lead was just enough to offset a four-run Texas ninth on Leon Roberts' three-run homer and a solo shot by Larry Parrish. Randy Bass and Billy Sample also homered for Texas.

Mariners 5, Brewers 4
Rookie Paul Serna's second homer of the game, a two-run shot with one out in the bottom of the 11th, gave Seattle its eighth victory in the last nine games.

see him beaten by an eyelash by plucky Gordon Johncock, now goes back to the drawing boards.

"We never stop experimenting," he said. "New technology never ends."

Auto racing has come a long way since June 1895, when 22 primitive cars, averaging 15 mph, made the 750-mile round trip run from Paris to Bordeaux, the first recorded auto race.

The first Indy 500 was run on Memorial Day, 1911. The cars were open two-seaters, with a mechanic sitting behind the driver. Ray Harroun was the initial winner, averaging 75 mph.

By the end of World War II the roadster had developed into a long, sleek machine with the power train on the left side to help keep it low on the turns. That was the age of the Offenhauser engines.

No more. Today the cars are winged missiles, low to the ground, hoods like arrowheads, massive tires 19 inches across, a sophisticated power plant and such innovations as ground effects, a concept in aerodynamics that keeps the car hugging the ground.

The fuel isn't ordinary gasoline. It's methanol, and the machines burn it up at the rate of 1.6 miles a gallon in their blistering speeds in excess of 200 mph.

Expos' Lea in Groove

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP
Sports Writer

Charlie Lea says he's in the groove now. And the Houston Astros have to believe it.

The Montreal right-hander shut out the Astros for the second time in five days Monday night, 10-0 with a four-hitter, and has now pitched 26 straight scoreless innings.

"I have confidence on everything I throw," said Lea, who continues to rebound from arm problems. "I'm in the groove right now."

After a slow start, Lea had a 3-2 record and posted a 1.43 earned run average for 44 innings in May.

Lea hasn't been the only success story of late in Montreal. In addition to Lea's pitching, Tim Wallach has been providing the key hitting for the Expos. Monday night, he belted a pair of two-run homers.

Lea, 4-2, had retired 26 straight batters entering the game, but the Astros, whom he beat 4-0 last Wednesday, snapped the string when Terry Puhl singled leading off the game.

The Expos unleashed a 15-hit attack, pounding Houston starter Don Sutton, 7-2, for five runs in the first inning that proved more than enough for Lea.

In other National League action, it was St. Louis 11, San Francisco 6; San Diego 9, Chicago 7; New York 10, Atlanta 4; Los Angeles 5, Pittsburgh 4 and Philadelphia 5, Cincinnati 4 in 15 innings.

Cincinnati 11, Giants 6
Ozzie Smith, Willie McGee and Tito Landrum drove in two runs apiece to highlight a 10-run fourth inning and send St. Louis over San Francisco.

Smith's double sent St. Louis ahead during the rally which wiped out a 3-1 San Francisco lead as part of the major leagues' biggest inning of the year.

The Giants wasted a 15-hit attack off Cardinals' starter

Steve Mura and relievers John Martin and Jim Kaat. Martin, 4-4, picked up the victory after pitching the fifth through the seventh.

Padres 9, Cubs 7
Ruppert Jones and Sixto Lezcano hit home runs, Tim Flannery drove in three runs and pitcher Chris Welsh knocked in a pair to lead San Diego over Chicago.

Jones hit his seventh homer in the first inning after Flannery had singled, and Lezcano belted his fifth of the season in the third off loser Doug Bird, 3-5. Welsh doubled in a run in the second and also singled to drive in a run in a four-run fourth that gave the Padres an 8-3 lead and their eventual winning run.

Mets 10 Braves 4

Ellis Valentine belted four hits, including a two-run homer, and John Stearns had three hits and three RBI as New York routed Atlanta. Charlie Puleo, 5-2, struck out a career-high 10 batters before needing Craig Swan's relief help with two out in the eighth inning.

Bob Walk, 4-4, pitched the first 22-3 innings for the Braves, leaving after an RBI single by Hubie Brooks. The Mets collected a club-record 16 hits against five Atlanta pitchers.

The game marked the return to Shea Stadium of Atlanta Manager Joe Torre, who was fired as Mets' manager last October.

Dodgers 5, Pirates 4

Mike Scioscia and Ken Landreaux each hit sacrifice flies off reliever Kent Tekulve to break an eighth-inning tie and lift Los Angeles over Pittsburgh.

The rally gave Los Angeles a 5-3 lead and helped it with-land Jason Thompson's 13th home run in the bottom of the inning.

Reliever Steve Howe, 3-1, was the winner.

"My heart stopped four times during that game," Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda said after the Dodgers survived two dropped fly balls in the eighth by right fielder Jorge Orta.

Phillies 5, Reds 4

Third baseman Johnny Bench's throwing error in the 15th inning allowed Philadelphia's Bob Dernier to come home with the winning run as the Phillies outlasted Cincinnati.

Dernier led off with a single off Bob Shirley, 2-3, moved up on Pete Rose's sacrifice bunt and took third on a fly ball by Gary Matthews. He scored when Bench fielded Manny Trillo's grounder and fired in the dirt away from first baseman Dan Driessen.

Sid Monge, 2-0, the seventh and last available Philadelphia reliever, was the winner.

The Phillies scored four runs in the ninth after two were out, tying the score on a two-run double by Bo Diaz and two-run single by Gary Maddox.

Huron Pitching Plan Falters

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Eastern Michigan coach Ron Oestrike was somewhat philosophical about his team's lopsided loss to the University of Texas in the championship game of the NCAA Central Regional baseball tournament.

"We took a gamble and it didn't work," he said.

Texas put the game away Monday with an explosive seven-run second inning. Oestrike subbed out starter Ken Spratke in the middle of the early rally and ended up using four pitchers in all.

It didn't work. The Hurons lost 9-1.

"I guess it was a poor decision on the starter," Oestrike said. "Pitching was the factor in the game. We had two bad innings and they capitalized on our mistakes."

Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson agreed the game hinged on pitching.

"The key to the whole tournament was our pitching. They were outstanding. It's really encouraging to see that kind of pitching," he said.

Calvin Shiraldi picked up the win for Texas, and Mike Konderla relieved him in the seventh.

The Longhorns advanced to their 21st NCAA World Series in Omaha, Neb., and Saturday will face Oklahoma State, winner of the NCAA Midwest Regional.

"Oklahoma State will be a tough opponent," Gustafson said. "They have some people back from last year's team and they were tough. But I think with our pitching, we should be representative."

Texas opened the scoring with Randy Day's RBI double in the first inning.

Mike Trent started the second inning with a walk, one of five for the inning, and then scored on Jeff Hearron's single to left field.

The Hurons' Tim Addis relieved Spratke then but, one walk later, Milo Choate knocked in three runs with a stand-up triple.

Fresh coconut

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I recently read your Pointer on how to remove coconut from its shell. My problem also concerns fresh coconut. After it is removed from the shell, how can one obtain that nice shredded coconut like the product you can buy in the grocery store. I've looked for recipes to no avail. — FRIEDA

DEAR FRIEDA — I simply grate the coconut on either the medium or large holes of an ordinary four-sided grater. This way I can make either long or short shreds, depending on which way I hold the piece of coconut. The shredding disk of a food processor makes wonderful shredded coconut, too (and so much faster).

Most packaged coconut is sweetened. I prefer the flavor of fresh unsweetened coconut, but if you want yours sweetened, simply sprinkle the shredded coconut very lightly with fine granulated sugar and toss to distribute the sugar evenly. If you put this into a tightly covered bowl for a couple of hours, the sugar will melt, eliminating the grittiness of undissolved sugar, and the sweetness will more thoroughly permeate the coconut. But please, don't overdo the sweetening bit. If you prepare your favorite recipes using fresh unsweetened coconut, I'm sure you'll find that the excellent flavor is far superior to the sweetened packaged product. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Since both tissues and handkerchiefs are getting so expensive, I've started making my own handkerchiefs. I can make six handkerchiefs from a yard of white lawn fabric at a cost of $2.49. I hem the handkerchiefs by hand while watching television or listening to the radio. Since I recently stopped smoking, this keeps my hands busy so they can't reach for a cigarette. — MRS. W.L.W.

DEAR POLLY — When saving "proofs of purchase" for refund offers, I tape the refund form along with the requirements and address to the front of an envelope. Under the refund form, I draw small boxes representing the correct number of proofs required. I tack this envelope to my bulletin board. When I acquire a proof of purchase, I put it into the envelope and mark off a box. When all the boxes are marked off, I know I have the right number of proofs. Everything needed to send for the refund is together, ready to put into another envelope and mail. No searching for the refund form or missing proofs. — I.J.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Don't walk too fast

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 55-year-old female in fairly good health, but I am overweight. I do aerobic dancing twice a week and take a fast walk daily. I am now up to three miles an hour per day. But I am self-taught, so to speak. Could you give me some tips? I don't know any warm up or cool down exercises.

I notice my right knee, which is full of bursitis, aches a lot more lately. I am slowly losing weight. I've stopped eating all junk food, sweets and salt and eat smaller portions at meal time. I feel so good after my walking session that I would really hate to give it up. On the other hand I don't want to do anything to aggravate my inflamed joint condition.

DEAR READER — You may be overdoing it for your joints. First, you should find out for certain what is wrong with your knees and on that basis discuss your program with your doctor. If your knees are not too bad the walking may not be a major problem. But vigorous dancing or things that require more effort than walking may not be a good idea for you.

It is easier on your joints not to walk too fast. You might get along better to walk the same three miles and walk at a speed that is quite comfortable for you. Between the speeds of two and four miles an hour you use about the same number of calories a mile. The difference in speed is not what counts so much as the distance, if you want to lose excess body fat.

And a combination of walking and just cutting down on portions of food is a good formula for gradual sensible weight loss.

For walking you don't really need to warm up. Just start at a slow pace and you

DEAR POLLY — Could you please repeat the Pointer you ran last year about how to keep cats off cars? I didn't think I would ever need it when you had it in the paper. Thankfully, — MRS. S.N.

DEAR MRS. S.N. — Spring's in the air and the cats are on the cars, I guess. One effective and humane method is to cover the hood with a very wet towel. Since cats hate to get their tootsies wet, they'll definitely reconsider any decisions to sunbathe on the family auto. And before you drive somewhere, you could always use the wet towel to give the car a quick rubdown and easy shine! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When purchasing new clothing for children, check to see if the sizes are on the inside labels. If not, write the sizes on the label (or inside the waistband or pocket) with an indelible pencil or liquid embroidering pen. This sure helps when passing clothing on to other children or when offering it for sale at garage sales. — MRS. W.C.

DEAR POLLY — To remove old adhesive paper that has been on shelves for some time, cover the shelf with a cloth and use a moderately hot iron over it. This loosens the adhesive and the paper will peel off easily. — EDEE

DEAR POLLY — Spring means ice cream and green things growing. I had a sundae at an ice cream stand and decided to use the plastic sundae dish as a terrarium and the plastic spoon as a tiny hoe. The high plastic cover gives plenty of room for the plant to grow and keeps moisture in. Nicely planted, this makes a good little gift, too. — PATRICIA

DEAR PATRICIA — What a cute little planter your sundae dish must have made! Your letter has also made me feel like summer is really on its way. This is a wonderful project for children to prolong the enjoyment of a special summer treat. You'll receive the Pointer of the Week Award, an autographed copy of Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Household Hints for Making Everything Last Longer. Now excuse me, while I go get some ice cream — and some plants! — POLLY

DEAR READER — The heart probably functions better if you are sitting up rather than lying down. The amount of work it has to do is about the same, perhaps a little less sitting up. The only reason to lie flat is to maintain circulation to the brain if a person has shock or near shock. We often have heart patients who have trouble breathing sit up, which improves matters a great deal.

DEAR DR. LAMB — If a person sleeps in a comfortable rocking chair would his heart get as much rest as if he were lying in bed?

Because of arthritis in my neck and inner ear trouble I have had difficulty sleeping on my side. It also seems to aggravate my angina heart pain, so I've been sleeping in a very comfortable rocker. My heart would get more rest if I could lie comfortably in bed, wouldn't it?

This means that one reason your angina may be worse lying down is that you may be accumulating a little fluid in your lungs then and sitting upright may prevent this. I would strongly recommend seeing your doctor right away to evaluate this point. He may also be able to help you with your neck.

Pope Meets Protestants

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — Undaunted by the noisiest hostile demonstration so far in his British tour, Pope John Paul II was meeting today with Scottish Protestant leaders and then visiting Glasgow's big Roman Catholic community.

On the next to last day of the first papal visit to Britain, the pontiff was holding ecumenical talks with representatives of various Protestant denominations at the residence of Cardinal Gordon Gray, the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Edinburgh.

Then he was going to Glasgow, Scotland's largest city 38 miles west of Edinburgh, where many of the 815,000 Scottish Catholics were expected to attend an open-air mass in Bellahouston Park.

Glasgow's police force was on the alert for hostile Protestant demonstrations and retaliatory Catholic attacks.

Protestant extremists have failed to mar the papal tour, but the Rev. Ian Paisley, the bitterly anti-Catholic leader of Northern Ireland's militant Protestants, continued to turn out demonstrators at the pope's stops.

Paisley and some 200 supporters threw eggs, coins and crumpled bits of papal posters and shouted abusive slogans when John Paul arrived Monday evening for a meeting in Edinburgh with the Moderator of the Presbyterian Church of Scotland. None of the missiles hit the pope or his car.

The demonstrators, who included several clergymen, scuffled with police and Catholics who turned out to cheer the pope, sang the Irish Protestant marching song "The Sash My Father Wore" and strained at the police lines but could not break through.

The 62-year-old pontiff appeared unconcerned and gave his blessing to the group, as he did when about 50 Protestants demonstrated against him in Liverpool Sunday.

Police said 10 people were arrested, but Paisley was not among them.

The historic meeting with the Presbyterian moderator, the Rt. Rev. John McIntyre, was held on the steps of the General Assembly hall beneath a statue of John Knox, the ex-priest who turned Calvinist and led the Scottish Reformation in the 16th century.

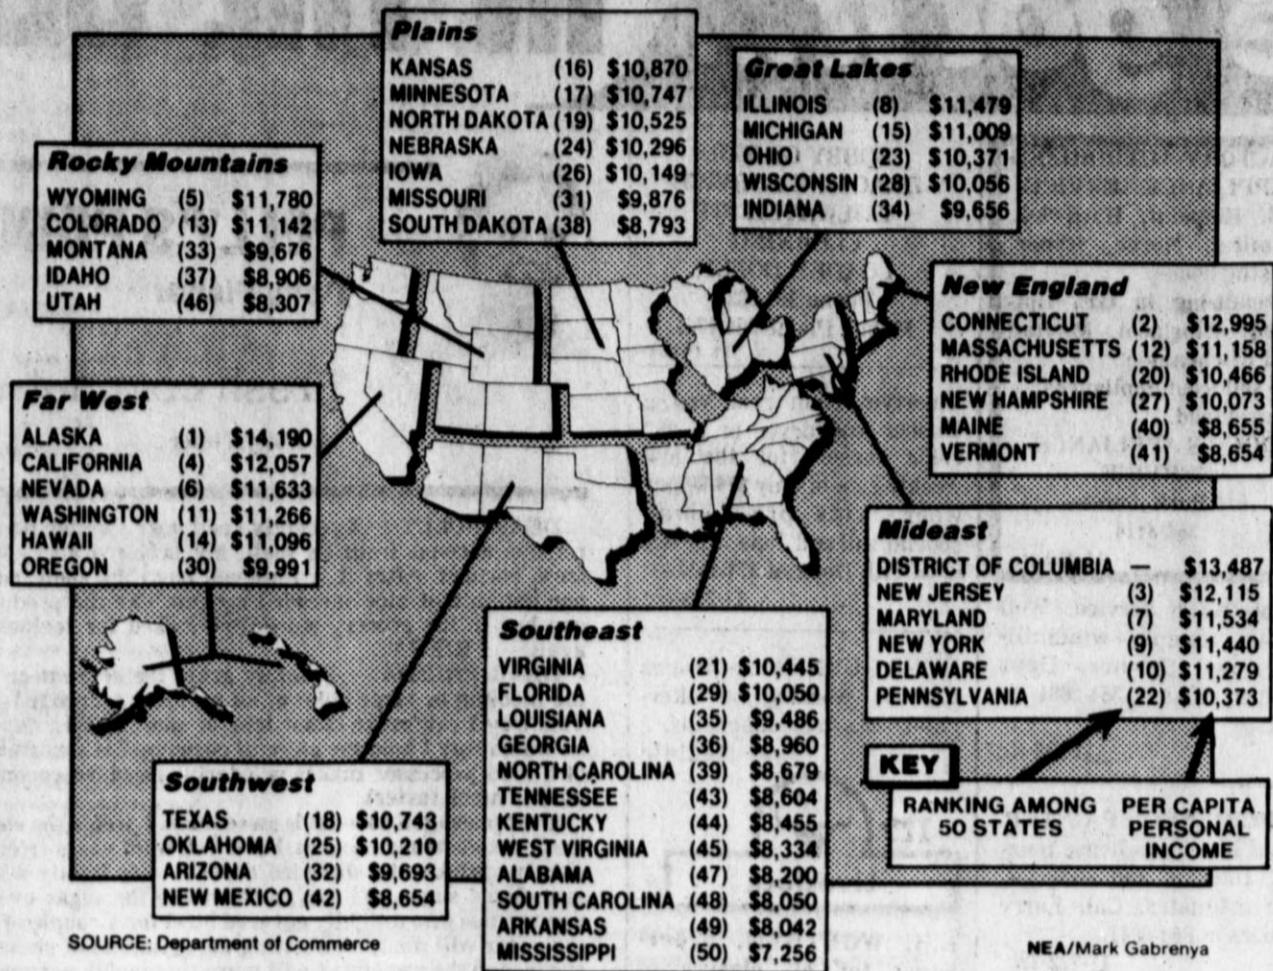

McIntyre, clad in the lace ruffles, knee-breeches and buckled shoes of his office, said: "I offer you the sincere welcome to this land of ours."

Taking note of the fighting between Britain and Argentina over the Falkland Islands, he said: "You come to us as a man of peace and we join your prayers for a long and lasting peace."

It was the third major ecumenical encounter of the pope's visit to Britain. He joined in a Christian unity service Saturday at Canterbury Cathedral, the seat of the Anglican Church, and the next day received a standing ovation from 3,000 Anglicans when he prayed with them at Liverpool's Anglican Cathedral.

'Maverick' Nixed, Westerns Gone

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With the cancellation of "Maverick," the TV western has ridden into the sunset, with little chance to return.

For younger viewers, a western is not a show featuring blond surfers and bathing beauties on the California beaches. It's period-piece programming about the 19th century cop on the beat — the cowboy lawman.

People forget these shows once were the rage of network television. In the 1959-'60 season, there were an incredible 32 westerns on TV. With the demise of NBC's "Maverick," not a single western will be on the three networks' schedules next fall.

It seems violence from another era just won't wash, when the public can get megadoses of the real stuff on the news and modern police shows, along with simulated thrills and spills on youth-oriented shows like "Dukes of Hazzard."

For years, the debate raged on whether it's dangerous for kids to watch westerns, then act out fantasy games of cowboy shoot-'em-ups. But, with recent studies linking violence on TV and aggressive behavior on children, it seems worse that they watch modern urban warfare and reckless driving scenes.

In any case, today's viewers evidently prefer car chases to hijacked stagecoaches and gunmen on horseback. "We're not fast in the same way that police shows have action," says Meta Rosenberg, executive producer of "Maverick." "Actually, with all our swindles and cons, we're more like the 'Sting' than a John Wayne western."

But the spenders most attractive to advertisers weren't buying it. They never accepted James Garner returning to "Maverick." It seems that the now generation prefers reality to nostalgia.

NBC's "Maverick" was rated 31st among the shows in 1981-82, but it was 63rd among viewers aged 12-17, 58th among viewers aged 18-24 and 43rd among viewers aged 25-54. The show was most successful with people who remembered the original "Maverick" 25 years ago, ranking 14th among viewers over 50.

"These things run in cycles," says Ms. Rosenberg. "When I first did 'Ben Casey,' there were a glut of hospital shows. Westerns have a classic quality. They're for people wanting to go back in time. People respond to them, provided you can do them in a sophisticated way."

"Maverick," which is rerun on Tuesday night through the summer, was definitely a western with a contemporary theme. Garner's character, just as in the "Rockford Files," didn't take the world too seriously. To Maverick, life was one big con game.

The public's rejection of the past wasn't the only thing plaguing "Maverick" and the western genre. With mini-cameras taking news viewers to the street for live reports and with cop shows like "Hill Street Blues" creating a gritty realism, the western was limited by its own authenticity requirements.

One eighth of a teaspoon of garlic powder equals one small clove.

Light and airy

The cool charm of summer hats

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — Paris designers and their fashionable clients are taking a strong interest in summer hats. All the recent collections featured hats, even such dashing references to the past as Jean Barthe's jade green straw sailor with navy veil and ostrich-like plumes waving on the saucer brim.

Summer hats should be light and airy, with a "cool" feeling. Hence the popularity of the sailor in American hat collections, with its high crown and shady, flat brim. Serendipity does it in pastel straws, with a side-placed nosegay of pastel flowers. Betmar accents its gros-grain-banded red sailor with navy veiling.

Betmar takes classic hat shapes and gives them a youthful summer touch. A natural straw bowler with navy band and back bow gets a jaunty look by turning up its brim at the sides. Betmar also like the idea of matching hats to separates. Its "explorer" duo combines a summer safari jacket and a "bush" hat, with its stitched brim turned up on one side and a thin, adjustable chin strap. For leisure hours, Betmar has a tie-front, cap-sleeved jacket, a shoulder bag and a brimmed hat, all boldly striped in red, navy, yellow and white.

FOR LEISURE hours Betmar matches a brimmed covered straw hat to a loose, front-tie jacket and shoulder bag, all striped in red, navy, yellow and white.

COOL CITY summer look is this natural straw bowler by Betmar, given a jaunty air by turning up its brim at the sides. Ribbon band and back-bow are in navy.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

PROOF OF INSURANCE

AUSTIN — Ever since the Legislature passed a law last session requiring motorists to carry proof of insurance coverage, there has been a lot of confusion about exactly what proof is required. We could have been more specific in the bill, but instead we gave the Department of Public Safety the authority to make rules that we thought would clarify this requirement.

Although the DPS did make rules, many people still are confused. In an effort to cut through this confusion, the bill's author, Representative Bob Simpson of Amarillo, asked the Attorney General for opinions to clarify the matter. One of the duties of the Attorney General is to issue legal opinions to help interpret laws.

The Attorney General issued an opinion on the subject of what proof of coverage motorists must show police officers on the officer's request.

"This evidence should include the name of the insured; and the minimum amounts of financial responsibility required by statute, which may be a statement that 'the policy coverage meets the minimum amounts of financial responsibility required by statute,' or the actual policy limits," the opinion states.

The minimum amount of coverage required by the statute is $10,000 for bodily injury for one person; $20,000 for the whole accident, and $5,000 for property damage. This is liability insurance, which means it covers losses to the other person if the policy owner causes the accident. It does not cover the policy owner or his property.

The opinion goes on to indicate what sort of document could fulfill these requirements:

(1) insurance policy;

(2) an instrument issued by the insurance company to be carried in the vehicle that confirms coverage;

(3) — (5) (bonds, certificates of self-insurance or Railroad Commission cab cards);

(6) copies of the aforementioned documents; and

(7) other evidence such as an insurance binder which confirms to the satisfaction of the officer that the owner and/or driver is in compliance with the Safety Responsibility Act."

We hope this makes the act clearer, although we think it still could use some clarification. If you have any questions about what this law requires you to do, write us and we will do our best to answer them. If you have any suggestions about how we could improve it, we also want to hear from you. Please write Senator Bill Sarpalius, P. O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

"THIS IS NOT a struggle over the environment," says Interior Secretary James Watt of the controversy over his plans to sell off public lands and open new areas to energy exploration. Instead, he sees it as "a battle over the form of government we will have in America" between proponents of a dominant central authority and advocates of private enterprise and limited government.
