

Reagan Message: Stop Soviet Trade Credits

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — President Reagan is arriving at an economic summit of the world's major industrial democracies with a message America's allies say they don't want to hear: an appeal to the West to crack down on giving easy trade credits to the Soviet bloc.

On the eve of the summit Thursday, one French official described Reagan's desire to limit such credits as a "frenzy;" another likened it to a "one-sided obsession."

But in the Reagan administration view, a decrease in the preferential credits to Eastern Europe could force the Soviet Union to move its scarce resources from the military to the civilian sector.

America's allies see the issue differently. During a period of low growth, and high unemployment and inflation, they say credit limitations would hurt East-West trade which creates jobs in Europe.

Reagan and the other conference participants — French President Francois Mitterrand, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, Italian President Giovanni Spadolini, Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau — were arriving throughout the afternoon and evening at the summit site, Versailles, outside the French capital.

Final preparations at the 16th century palace were underway Thursday, with guards equipped with special detectors sweeping palace grounds for mines and gendarmes armed with sub-machine guns patrolling outside the gates.

Millions of dollars were spent to refurbish the chateau at Versailles, the French capital under Louis XIV, and four of the nation's best chefs were brought in to prepare meals for the delegations.

After a boat ride along the Grand Canal this evening, formal meetings get underway Saturday, with key topics likely to be high interest rates in the United States, unemployment and the volatility of currency exchange rates.

The issue of trade credits was not on the formal agenda, according to the French hosts, but Reagan was expected to bring it up.

One French source, who did not wish to be identified, complained that the United States could not consider the trade credits without also taking into account its huge grain sales to the Soviets.

"If you talk about trade, you must put all the items on the table," said the official.

Reagan apparently has resigned himself to being unable to influence another Soviet-related issue that annoys the United States: the support by European allies of a Soviet pipeline that would bring natural gas from Siberia to energy-hungry Western Europe.

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Hundreds of tourists and residents scrambled for higher ground today as a rare June tropical storm that had been the first hurricane of the season hovered off southwest Florida.

Alberto, which had battered Key West with high winds and torrential rains, was downgraded from a hurricane to a tropical storm early today as the cool June water in the Gulf of Mexico and the prevailing westerly winds sapped its strength.

The storm was reported nearly stationary in the gulf today about 200 miles southwest of Fort Myers. Its highest winds, clocked at 80 mph Thursday, had dropped below 60 mph, well under the 74 mph needed for hurricane classification.

At 6 a.m. EDT, the storm's poorly defined center was estimated at latitude 25.0 north and longitude 84.5 west.

Forecaster Bob Sheets at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said the storm was expected to resume its slow path toward the north or northeast later in the day.

As the storm flogged Key West with 50 mph winds Thursday, people along the densely populated Gulf Coast moved to high ground or batten down their homes. Six evacuation centers were opened in Lee County, while two others were established in Collier County.

Disaster officials said they didn't think forced evacuation would be required, but hundreds heeded advice from Civil Defense officials and headed inland.

Hurricane warnings were canceled along Florida's coast. Some resorts on the cluster of barrier islands off southwest Florida closed their doors and shipped guests and employees away.

For Low Turnout

Texas Voters Expected to Set Record Saturday

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans are expected to set a state record for voter apathy Saturday despite a Democratic ballot that includes a nasty battle for the nomination for attorney general.

Secretary of State David Dean says as few as 8 percent of the voters will bother to turn out to pick nominees for four statewide offices, 25 legislative seats and five congressional positions.

The highlight race is the Jim Mattox-John Hannah scuffle for the Democratic nomination to face Republican Bill Meier in November for attorney general.

Mattox, a Dallas congressman, and Hannah, a former U.S. Attorney in Tyler, have traded brags of being the more qualified candidate. Mattox heated up the war of words by honing in on a Hannah campaign brochure which inaccurately stated Hannah had a law degree.

Hannah, who said he corrected the brochure as quickly as possible, is not a law school graduate. He passed the Bar exam under a rule allowing legislators to take the test without completing law school. Hannah was a Lufkin state representative.

Mattox topped the balloting at the May 1 primary, but Hannah has picked up the endorsement of third-place finisher Max Sherman of Amarillo. Both candidates planned to stay on the road today.

Thursday's schedule for Mattox included a stop outside the state. Campaign spokesman Steve Hall said a Shreveport, La., visit was an attempt to get television coverage on stations that broadcast into East Texas, Hannah's home area.

Saturday's ballot also includes a runoff battle between Pete Snelson and Austin lawyer Garry Mauro for the Democratic nomination for land commissioner. The winner faces Republican Woody Glasscock of Hondo in November.

Judith Dale, a Mauro campaign worker who agrees the turnout will be miniscule, said her candidate is the favorite, because, "Garry's got more relatives than Snelson."

Snelson, a 59-year-old state senator from Midland, claims an experience edge on Mauro, a 34-year-old former state Democratic executive.

Snelson beat Mauro by 4,000 votes on May 1, but Mauro hopes to pick up votes through endorsements from Rep. Dan Kubiak and Paducah farmer George Fore, who ran third and

Jobless Rate 9.5 Percent

By MERRILL HARTSON, AP
Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unrelenting business slump coupled with an influx of college graduates into a tight job market pushed the unemployment rate up to 9.5 percent last month, eclipsing the post-war record set in April, the government reported today.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate climbed one-tenth of a percentage point from April to May as tens of thousands of college and university graduates entered the labor force searching for work, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Altogether, 10.5 million Americans were out of work last month. Adult males, who traditionally constitute the bulwark of the blue-collar work force, were once again hard hit by the lingering recession. Joblessness among this segment of the labor force rose to 8.4 percent, shattering the post-World War II record set two months ago.

Since last July, some 2.7 million Americans have been thrown out of work by the deepening recession.

The government can anticipate school closings, and the resulting expansion of the labor force, as a normal seasonal employment variation. Thus, the jobless figures can be adjusted to reflect that pattern so that it doesn't present a distorted picture of economic trends.

The adjustment for entry of college and university graduates into the labor force lessened its impact. Without such an adjustment, the unemployment rate for May would have been 9.1 percent as the number of people unemployed on the unadjusted basis remained unchanged.

President Reagan, saying "I'm not sure we live in a seasonally adjusted world," criticized news accounts of the nation's employment picture in April, when joblessness surged from 9.0 percent to 9.4 percent, the highest in 41 years.

Reagan noted that without adjusting the jobless figures in April, the unemployment rate would actually have declined by three-tenths of a percentage point.

But the Bureau of Labor Statistics, adjusting figures to square with normal hiring patterns in April, concluded that fewer people than expected got jobs, and thus the adjusted jobless rate went up significantly.

In a national radio address on the day following release of the grim April jobless figures, Reagan had said he felt sure that with thousands of young people leaving school to seek work in May would produce a seasonally adjusted figure that would look better than the raw figures.

"But shouldn't we be allowed to see both?" he asked.

British, Argentines Trade Artillery Fire Barrages

By The Associated Press

Britain showered surrender leaflets on the besieged Argentine garrison at Stanley, tightening the psychological screws as the two foes traded artillery fire prior to the British attack on the Falklands capital expected this weekend.

Argentine and British patrols infiltrated through a chill, thick fog Thursday, probing for weak points in each other's lines around the capital, correspondents for the two nations reported from the war front.

British 105mm artillery on the high ground west of Stanley pumped shells on the estimated 7,000-man Argentine garrison, while ships and planes of the British fleet pounded the capital from the sea and air, British reporters said.

The Argentines, dug in with Stanley's harbor behind them, held fast and fired salvos from 155mm guns at the British positions, Argentina's Telem news agency reported.

But the Argentine artillery fire was "sporadic and ineffective," correspondent Jeremy Hands of Britain's Independent Television News said in a report passed by British military censors.

The Argentines appeared "disorganized and unbelievably badly placed to defend themselves," Hands said, adding, "They've got little to stop the British from getting within shouting distance of the town center."

Military sources in London said Maj. Gen. Jeremy Moore, commander of British ground forces in the

Democrats Infuriated By Change

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Democrats are furious about the Republican candidate swap that ousted a Waller rice farmer and drafted an Aggie poultry scientist as the GOP "annointee" for state agriculture commissioner.

Don Hebert of Waller, the only Republican candidate on the May 1 primary ballot, is out and Fred Thornberry is in as Democrat Jim Hightower's opponent.

"I welcome the professor into the race, even if (GOP Gov. Bill) Clements had to sneak him in through the back door," Hightower said after Thornberry was introduced Thursday at a Capitol news conference. "Of course, the professor is not

Explosion At American School In Paris Suburb

PARIS (AP) — A bomb planted by ultra-leftists opposed to President Reagan's visit to Paris exploded at the American School in suburban Saint-Cloud early Friday.

The explosion at 1:30 a.m. blew out a number of windows, but nobody was hurt, police said.

The president and Mrs. Reagan at the time were at the U.S. Embassy residence 5 miles from the explosion.

The bombers left behind posters attacking Reagan and the United States and saying the bomb was planted by Direct Action, an ultra-leftist organization that has called for demonstrations against the president's visit to Paris.

Police said the bomb was placed between two buildings at the school at the base of a glass door.

Last week, Direct Action claimed responsibility for firing three shots at the Paris branch of the Bank of America, and police rounded up 25 members or supporters of the organization in Paris and Grenoble after it called for armed demonstrations against Reagan.

Posters in French, Turkish and Arabic that appeared on Paris streets said:

"The terrorist Reagan, the commercial traveler for U.S. Imperialism, the enemy of the peoples must be greeted with hate, clenched fists and loaded weapons."

It was signed Direct Action, a small anarchist group that surfaced in 1980. Police say it is an offshoot of an anti-Franco Spanish movement called GARI, the Internationalist Revolutionary Action Group, with links to the Italian Red Brigades.

The group was thought to have been broken up in September 1980 with the arrest of its leaders, J.M. Rouillan and Nathalie Menigon. However, they were freed last summer in an amnesty following the election of President Francois Mitterrand.

Workers Trapped By Gunman Talked To Police In Code

HOUSTON (AP) — Five restaurant employees trapped in a storeroom by a gunman for seven hours communicated in code with police over a damaged telephone before they were rescued, police said.

No charges had been filed by late Thursday night against a 22-year-old man who surrendered 20 minutes after the workers were rescued safely by police who lowered a ladder through a storeroom window.

An assistant manager at the restaurant, who declined to give her name, identified the gunman as a former assistant manager who was fired two months ago.

The employees, four women and a man, barricaded themselves inside the storeroom when the gunman robbed the restaurant about 2 a.m. Thursday.

The robber was unable to flee the restaurant because two people outside flagged down a patrol car and police surrounded the building.

Terry Charlton, manager of the south side fast-food restaurant, said

City Breeding Skeeter Eaters

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — City Environmental Director John Richardson will assume on some new duties today — raising minnows.

Richardson planned to drive 150 miles, to Sweetwater and back, to pick up a few buckets of Gambusia minnows, and he is having special ponds made so the little critters can multiply.

"We will make our own holding pond so we can breed our own. In 60 to 90 days we should have all the minnows we need," said Richardson.

He has gone to all this trouble because the minnows have one trait that the city finds quite desirable right now — they eat mosquitoes.

San Angelo, like most Texas cities, has had much more rain than usual this spring and resulting ponds of standing, stagnant water are threatening to produce a bumper crop of mosquitoes soon.

The Gambusia minnows — along with chemical spraying and oil films on larger ponds — are part of Richardson's strategy for fighting the mosquitoes.

Bentsen, Gramm To Appear At Realtors Convention

Men and women from this area's real estate profession attending the annual convention of the Texas Association of Realtors in Fort Worth June 7-11 will be peppering Senator Lloyd Bentsen (D-Tx) and Congressman Phil Gramm (D-Tx) with questions on when a bipartisan solution will be reached on the 1983 Federal Budget.

At the same time Realtors here will remain at work collecting petition names, writing letters and making telephone calls to Washington, D.C., insisting that the only way to lower interest rates is for the President and Congress to pass a budget with a deficit of not more than $100 billion.

Those Realtors in Fort Worth are expected to hear both Julio S. Laguarda of Houston, National Association of Realtors president, and Hub Bechtol of Austin, TAR president, reiterate the theme of "the new budget must create a trend of lowering the interest rates. Lower interest rates will not only benefit the housing industry, all businesses, but it will help every one of us. That's why we are putting heavy pressure on every member of Congress and on the President as well. We are conducting the 'Paralysis in Government' (PING) campaign in order to send an overwhelming message to Washington, D.C. Uncertainty in our economy is killing us."

About 1,200 Realtors will be in the audience at the Americana Friday morning (June 11) for Sen. Bentsen's talk and question period. Gramm has promised a preview of things to come in his talk, "The Economy: Projecting for the 1980's," at the noon luncheon Friday in the Hyatt Regency hotel. Both men have gained considerable Realtor political support for their Congressional actions in the past.

The PING campaign which has begun across the nation in May has included the holding of many public forums with representatives invited from the news media, banks, the medical profession, all kinds of businesses and members of the general public. Bechtol reported in Austin right before leaving for the convention, "that the reception to the PING message has been overwhelming. Every one we have contacted shares our feeling that this paralysis existing in Washington has held interest rates high, increased unemployment and has prevented millions of Americans first-time homebuyers from participating in the American dream of homeownership."

"Our members are talking in person to their representatives in greater numbers than ever before, and they hope to send three million cards and letters before June 15," he continued.

Although there's no denying that much of the convention attention will be on reports on the PING effort, there will also be a strong focus on committee meetings, legal panels, roundtables on every changing phase of the housing industry and, of course, there will be the election of 1983 TAR officers.

George Shafer of Dallas, developer and real estate executive, will be announcing the 1983 Texas Realtor of the Year as a climax to the Friday night's presidential dinner and ball. Shafer is the 1982 recipient of this honor.

Guy Chipman Jr. of San Antonio is expected to be the 1983 TAR leader and Bill Jennings of Fort Worth, the first vice president (president-elect). Bob Wertheimer of Dallas and Frank Tompkins of Corpus Christi have both been nominated for the post of secretary treasurer.

James T. Sawyer of Austin is the executive vice president of the over 40,000-member association, an organization of 129 boards of Realtors.

Cliffhanger Begins Operation

Arlington, Texas — The world's first total freefall ride, the Texas Cliffhanger, has begun operation at Six Flags Over Texas.

The opening of the 2.1 million dollar ride coincided with the beginning of daily operation of the Arlington theme park for the summer months.

The Cliffhanger will carry Six Flags visitors 128 feet into the sky and then drop them. Six Flags' General Manager Ray Williams compared the Cliffhanger experience to "the feeling you'd get if you stepped off the top of a ten-story building."

The Cliffhanger's superstructure is a 110-ton, L-shaped tower.

Passengers, seated four abreast in padded gondolas, are carried to the top of the tower at three times normal elevator speed. The fronts of the gondolas are open, providing an unobstructed view of the surrounding area. Riders are protected by overthe-shoulder bars which adjust to fit the individual.

Once at the top, the gondolas are moved to the front edge of the tower and locked into the "drop position."

After a five-second pause, the gondolas drop, reaching a speed of 55 mph in less than three seconds.

Near the base of the tower, the track curves and runs horizontally along the foot of the L.

Riders are flat on their backs as the ride's electronic braking system brings the gondolas to a halt.

The gondolas are then lowered to the underside of the structure and turned upright for unloading.

Williams described the Cliffhanger's safety systems as "the most sophisticated devices ever built into a ride."

He said the ride is constantly monitored by two computers which are fed information by 103 electronic sensors.

"The computers talk to one another," he said, "and both must agree on all safety factors before they will permit the ride to be operated. If the computers detect a potential problem, they will temporarily stop the ride and give our technicians the information they need to make the proper adjustments."

Each gondola, unloaded, weighs 1,500 pounds. With four passengers the weight will be approximately one ton.

Williams said Hollywood stuntman Dar Robinson was brought to the park to ride the Cliffhanger during initial testing.

"Frankly," said Williams, "we wanted to confirm that riding the Cliffhanger is like stepping off the top of a tall building, and DAR is the recognized expert in high falls."

Robinson's most recent movie stunt was a backward plunge through a 14th floor window for the motion picture "Sharkey's Machine."

Robinson said he had come to Six Flags expecting a relatively mild experience, but, he commented, "What you've got here is a totally free fall, complete with zero gravity."

Robinson told park officials that the pause before the drop created an added thrill for him. "When I'm doing a high fall, I know exactly when I'm going to jump, but there's no way to anticipate one."

Robinson recommended riding the Cliffhanger with eyes open, looking straight forward. "That," he said, "gave me the best sensation. Of course," he added, "it might be even more exciting with your eyes closed, but I didn't try that."

A Real Cliffhanger

The world's first total freefall ride, the Texas Cliffhanger, is in operation at Six Flags Over Texas. The 2.1 million dollar ride carries park guests 128 feet into the sky and then drops them ten stories at freefall speed. Riders then glide to a stop through a computerized braking system at the base of the L-shaped structure.

Lupe J. Gomez, 307 Avenue F, was booked into custody Thursday for theft of three cartons of cigarettes from Jack and Jill in the Park Plaza shopping center, according to Hereford police.

Officers filed a report on a domestic problem, investigated one minor accident and issued nine citations.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor

I work on behalf of all Texas families with severely handicapped children. Four years ago Senator Pete Snelson introduced what we felt to be the most significant legislation for this population—the Early Childhood Intervention Program. Last year, Senator Snelson almost singlehandedly saw this important bill through to completion.

Thousands of disabled children are now benefiting from school programs designed to help them become independent citizens. As a conservative, Senator Snelson knows when to commit resources wisely; as a humanitarian, he knows the importance of human needs. In my opinion, we could have no better candidate for Land Commissioner than Pete Snelson.

Falklands, probably will unleash the British offensive this weekend after completing his buildup of troops, heavy weapons and supplies at the front.

British government sources said Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has given the commanders the go-ahead to attack Stanley "whenever they are ready" and assured them they will not be held up for "political or diplomatic reasons."

Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, said Mrs. Thatcher gave the Argentines "one last offer" to withdraw from the Falklands and avoid a potentially bloody showdown. But there was no indication of retreat from the Argentines, and Brig. Gen. Mario Menendez, Argentina's military governor of the islands, exhorted his troops in a broadcast "to fight to the last."

British Harrier jets dropped leaflets on the besieged troops, urging them to make the "correct and honorable" decision to surrender.

Some of the leaflets included a message from Rear Adm. John Woodward, commander of the British battle fleet, telling Menendez: "There can be no prospect of your garrison being relieved."

overwhelming odds."

Others carried "safe conduct passes" in English and Spanish signed by Woodward, along with the message: "Think of the danger you are in. Your rations and war supplies are in short supply because of the British naval blockade. Matters will get even worse. Think of your loved ones and the home that awaits your happy return."

With little likelihood of a compromise in the offing, some British sources in London predicted Argentina might unleash one last massive strike by the air force, its most potent weapon in the undeclared war.

Hightower beat incumbent Reagan Brown for the Democratic nomination.

Also Thursday, Millard Neptune, the GOP nominee for state treasurer, said he soon would step aside to allow "The quicker they can do it, the better for me," said Neptune.

Spokesmen for the PLO denied involvement.

In Beirut, a PLO spokesman who declined to be named said: "We have not been involved in any way. We do not need to use such methods."

The other two statewide races are for nominations for seats on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. State District Judge Bill Black of Belton and Dallas County Criminal Court Judge Chuck Miller are competing for a seat being vacated by Judge Truman Roberts, who is retiring.

Dallas lawyer John Humphreys and Austin lawyer Charles Campbell are vying for the Court of Criminal Appeals seat held by Carl Dally, who ran fourth in the four-man Democratic field on May 1. Republicans do not have a candidate for the seat.

There are three state Senate runoff races and 22 in the House, including contests involving incumbents Milton Fox, R-Houston, and Frank Gaston, R-Dallas.

Israeli

Minister Yitzhak Shamir called the shooting "a criminal attack by Arab terrorists."

Another Cabinet minister, Yitzhak Modai, said: "We must strike at the terrorists. Prolonged restraint costs too much and is simply stupid from the political and military point of view."

Foreign Ministry spokesman Avi Pazner said Israel was facing "a new wave of Arab terrorism against our diplomats, especially in Europe." He cited the killing of middle-rank Israeli diplomat Yaacov Barsimantov in Paris on April 3, and an attack on Israeli officials in Vienna before that.

At the heart of the dispute is a split between Europe and the United States over the state of the Soviet economy and the impact economic pressure could have on Kremlin priorities.

A top-level Reagan administration official has characterized the Soviet Union as "an economic basket case," but a senior French official told reporters Thursday:

"You can't bring the Soviet economy to its knees because it's a totalitarian system and they can impose anything on their people. We may be out of breath before they are."

The official, who requested anonymity, said he would be sorry if Reagan made too much of the credits issue. "Everything should not be focused on one issue. One is always tempted to take a piecemeal approach," he said.

He said European governments "could not afford to have a decline in trading relations with the Soviets."

With the economies of allies

Message

As for the trade credits, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said in advance of the summit: "I think we all hope that the issue will not be a spoiler or a divisive issue."

The East European debt to the West began to grow during the 1970s. The objective of the credits was to finance imports of Western machinery and technology to build modern industries that were expected to pay for themselves through exports to the West.

But inefficiency and world recession combined to damage the plan and the huge debt was left in the wake. In 1981, the Soviet Union owed the West $10.2 billion. The total East European debt to the West is about $60 billion.

Americans filed initial claims for unemployment benefits in the week ending May 22, a seasonally adjusted increase of 25,000 from the previous week.

An index measuring newspaper help-wanted advertising volume fell sharply in April, its second consecutive month of steep declines.

Thomas D. Thomson, senior vice president of Crocker National Bank in San Francisco, said Thursday he doesn't think the nation "has seen the top yet in the climb in unemployment."

the adjusted unemployment figures as painting a truer picture of economic conditions.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said last Sunday that the economy is "on the brink of a recovery," but he acknowledged that previous optimistic forecasts of a business turnaround by the end of the second quarter might have been "too egregious."

Judging from the following developments, it seems unlikely there will be any relief from rising unemployment.

Woman's Mind On Cards

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I went together for two years. Our sex life was very good until we got married. I'm the one with the problem, and it has me completely baffled. I can't seem to keep my mind on what I am doing. Let me give you an example.

In the middle of our lovemaking my mind turns to gin rummy. I blurt out things like "I am knocking with eight," or "What a break, I'm gin on the second draw."

My husband wants to know what I'm talking about. I am ashamed to admit my mind is on cards, so I try to fake it. Invariably we wind up in an argument. He gets turned off, and all further attempts at lovemaking are ruined.

I enjoy gin rummy, but it's never been very important to me. Why I should be thinking about cards at such a time I cannot figure out. Will you please help me? It's ruining our sex life.—Aberdeen, S.D.

DEAR ABER: Obviously your husband doesn't make much effort to get you in the mood for love, or your thoughts wouldn't turn to gin rummy.

Talk this over with him in an honest way. Ask him to help you. If the problem persists, try replacing the gin rummy scenario with some exciting sexual fantasy. Play it over and over in your head as if it were a tape. If this doesn't work, see a counselor and find out why your thoughts go off in such an odd direction. There must be a reason. A skilled prober could dredge it up.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Toss this in your pile of "I Never thought I'd be writing to you" letters and forget it if you like, but yesterday's column in the Buffalo Evening News did it. According to "Boston," euphemisms don't make any sense. I'm glad that New England rock of Gibraltar can be so free and easy with such words as "died," "dead" and "death." Obviously she hasn't had to use them to describe the state of her husband, child, mother or anyone else she loved.

I'm 46 years old and have been a realist all my life. My father and brother died in an auto accident when I was 10. Another brother and nephew drowned when I was 20. My husband died last August when I was out of the country, and I found him after he'd been dead a week.

Since then an older brother and mother have died of cancer. When talking to friends after these last three deaths, I've been able to say, "He's no longer living," but it is going to take time to be able to say, "He's dead." Every person goes through the grief process at his own rate. Since "Boston" isn't smart enough to figure this out, she'd do her friends a favor if she kept her mouth shut and stayed away. No one needs to be told someone is dead. We know when it happens.—Battle-Scarred in Buffalo.

DEAR B. IN B.: A surprising number of people agreed with you, but you said it best. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about "Bats in Her Belfry," the woman who has worn the same navy blue suit to work for 14 months. I want you to know the letter didn't phase her. She is still wearing it. Everyone in the building wants to know what it's made of. Can you tell us?—The Group

DEAR GROUP: She didn't say. My guess is it's double-knit or polyester.

Appointments Announced At NW Texas Conference

Two top administrative posts were filled and two new district superintendents were named for the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church Thursday during the announcement of appointments at the Conference's annual meeting in Amarillo.

A total of 58 new appointments were announced during the first day of the three-day meeting, which is being held at Polk Street United Methodist Church.

Marvin James is the new pastor of First UMC of Hereford. He comes from the Conference office, where he served the last four years as director of the Conference Council on Ministries.

He succeeds Jarrell H. Sharp, who was at the church one year and becomes the pastor at St. Luke's UMC in Midland.

Douglas Wofford was named as the new director of the Annual Conference Council on Ministries. He has served the last four years as director of the Conference Council on Professional Ministries in New Mexico.

Steven Rogers, who was the pastor at Morton UC, was appointed as associate director of the NWT Council on Ministries.

David Hamblin, who served as district superintendent of the Big Spring District for the past two years, was appointed to lead the Lubbock District. He succeeds William R. Fleming, who was appointed as pastor of one of the Conference's major churches, St. Paul UMC of Abilene.

Rex Mauldin, the pastor of San Jacinto UMC in Amarillo for the past six years, succeeds Hamblin as the Big Spring District superintendent.

Other major appointments announced were Robert D. Ford to Snyder UMC, Glen Harrington to First UMC of Brownfield, Richard Whitam to First UMC of Pampa, Merriel Abbott to San Jacinto UMC of Amarillo, and Alvis Cooley to Seymour-Vera UMC.

Kirby Attends Assembly

Evelyn Kirby of Hereford was among ten women from the Amarillo District United Methodist Women who attended United Methodist Women Assembly in Philadelphia last month.

The women joined 31 other women from the Northwest Texas Conference in a gathering of over 10,000 women from all over the world. The Assembly meets every four years.

The Assembly opened with a communion service led by Bishop Marjorie Matthews, the first woman bishop. The service began with a parade of banners from every conference.

Other keynote speakers were Dr. Hazel Henderson, a noted futurist; Dr. Helen Caldicott, a physician concerned with the nuclear arms race; Dr. Letty Russell, a United Presbyterian theologian; and Dr. Lucille Mair, Special Advisor in the United Nations.

The purpose of the Assembly is to bring together members from all areas of church and society; to confront them with areas of critical need and concern; to challenge them to responsible action; and to help achieve a sense of unity in worship and in mission.

Women from Alaska to the Gulf, from the East to the West coast, and special guests from countries all over the globe left Philadelphia committed to the Assembly theme: "Christ Our Hope, the Journey of Our Life." The charge given by Theresa of the Women's Division was "to think globally and act locally."

Other members attending from the Amarillo District were Linda Robinson, Elizabeth Scott, Jewel Lewis, and Kathryn Russell from Amarillo; Inelle Bagwell and Anne Christian of Claude; Nora O'Brien and Donna Echols from Friona; and Sandy Carter of Sunray.

Proper Storage Techniques Imperative In Home Canning

COLLEGE STATION - The tasty flavor of "Mom's" home-canned fruits and vegetables could be spoiled by improper storing and preparation techniques, warns Mary K. Sweeten, a food and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Recommended storage time for home-canned vegetables is up to one year in a cool, dry cupboard, she says.

Areas with extreme heat such as garages or attics should be avoided, the specialist adds.

Never taste or eat canned foods that have evidence of spoilage-it may be your last meal, Sweeten warns.

Prior to using canned foods, check lids to see that they are concave and that no bulges are present, she suggests.

In addition, if any off odors or colors are evident, throw the product out, the specialist continues.

Never serve spoiled products to your pets either, as it could be just as dangerous to them as yourself, Sweeten warns.

As an extra safety precaution, the USDA recommends that all home-canned low-acid products (vegetables except tomatoes) be boiled for 10-15 minutes over an electric or gas stove-top burner before serving, she points out.

A product such as green beans containing liquid wouldn't need to boil as long as a thicker food like cream style or creamed corn, the specialist says.

For example, boil green beans 10 minutes and the creamed corn 15 minutes.

Foods most often involved in botulism poisoning (often called food poisoning) are corn, spinach, green beans, peppers and asparagus, she notes.

Heat, during boiling, will destroy the clostridium botulinum toxin which may have formed if canning failed, Sweeten notes.

Vegetables should be able to withstand this heat treatment without the loss of quality, she adds.

As of today, the USDA doesn't recommend that home-canned vegetables be placed in the microwave for safety precautions as explained above, according to Milton Baldauf, Home Economics and Human Nutrition Unit, Extension Service, Washington, D.C.

It is difficult to know when the entire mass of the product has reached its boiling point in the microwave oven in order to begin timing.

Amount and density of food, type, size and shape of container used, whether the container absorbs microwaves or not and the location of cold spots in the oven will all be variables when trying to determine timing of the microwave, Sweeten notes.

Such variables make it impossible to recommend a time period to cook vegetables and destroy any toxins present, the specialist points out.

Hence, you should avoid heating your home-canned foods by this unproven method, Sweeten encourages.

GOOD HUMOR

By Bob Wear

We can make the best use of life; give and get the most from living; and be a real blessing to loved ones, our friends and others; when we are people of "good humor."

We will not wait for everybody and everything to be just so-so; just the way we think people and things should be. To do so would enslave us to the actions of others and to the uncertainty of circumstances. Life would be a series of negative responses, an inferior life style. We have a much better choice.

We can learn to maintain our integrity; to keep ourselves on the highest level of maturity; to be secure within; to preserve a good self-image; and do the other good things which produce and nurture the mood we call, "good humor." These and kindred life qualities are essential, because "good humor" cannot stand alone. Of course, undesirable personal traits will just as certainly produce ill-humor.

"Ill-humor is but the inward feeling of our own want of merit; a dissatisfaction with ourselves which is always united with an envy that foolish vanity excites."-Goethe.

We have a choice, and to a very great degree, we can be as we wish. There seems to be a widespread view that we are born one way or the other, but this is a myth. We must not assume the attitude that, "this is just the way I am, and I can't help it." Of course, we can help it.

"Good humor" is a very essential factor in effective, satisfying living. In fact, much else that would be and is intended to be worthwhile and helpful is nullified by its absence. We may not be outstandingly skillful persons; we may not be clever people; we may not be the best informed persons; but we can be desirable and useful, when we are "good-humored" people.

"The quality of 'good humor' seasons all the parts and occurrences we meet with in such a manner that there are no moments lost, but they all pass with so much satisfaction that the heaviest loads, when it is a load, that of time, is never felt by us."-Steele.

"Good Humor" can, to some extent, compensate for many personal deficiencies; but there is no compensation for the lack of "good humor."

Recycling Aluminum Economical

Now that school is out, Amarillo area youngsters can earn money, help the environment and save energy by recycling aluminum.

"Recycling is a particularly good summertime activity for children because they can make extra spending money by collecting and redeeming aluminum beverage cans and other recyclable items," said Ron Woosley, district manager for Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Company in Texas.

"We pay 24 cents per pound for aluminum beverage cans and household foil," he explained. "This mounts up fast. In fact, Texas residents are paid about $4.6 million annually for the aluminum they turn in at our recycling facilities across the state. This figures out to about 30 cans for each of the 14.7 million persons in the state."

Many thousand Texans supplement their incomes by recycling, and schools, scout troops and charitable organizations find that recycling is an easy way to raise funds for worthwhile projects.

In the Amarillo area, Reynolds conducts recycling operations at the service center located at 3615 Tower St., open Tuesday through Saturday, 9 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

The company pays 10 cents per pound for miscellaneous aluminum scrap items.

Recycling also helps conserve energy, since each time aluminum is recycled there is a 95 percent savings in energy when compared with making the metal from ore.

Besides all-aluminum beverage cans and other clean household aluminum products such as pie plates, foil, frozen food and dinner trays and dip, pudding and meat containers, Reynolds purchases other miscellaneous aluminum aluminum recycling and is the leading manufacturer of beverage cans, buys recyclable aluminum through a network of more than 2,000 collection points across the country, doing business in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Bahamas and Canada.

Reynolds, which pioneered

Dispute Splits Parish

HAMPTON, N.H. (AP) - The defiance of four nuns who say they are suing the church for the sake of justice has split priests and parishioners at Our Lady of Miraculous Medal in a painful clash of Catholic doctrine and civil rights.

"People can't separate God from this issue," says Charles Herbert, a parish councilor. "They say you're for God and you're against the nuns, or you're for the nuns and you're against God."

The nuns on Jan. 28 received unsigned letters from the diocese saying it would not renew their contracts as teachers at the parish elementary school. The letters charged the sisters with autonomy, isolationism, cliquishness and failure to cooperate with the priests and the school board.

The sisters, who have taught at the school from five to 12 years, demanded a public hearing. When church refused, they sued the Roman Catholic diocese of Manchester.

The Superior Court in April rebuffed the nuns, saying their contracts did not entitle them to a hearing. The state Supreme Court is to hear the sisters' appeal in September.

Sides formed quickly in Hampton, a well-to-do parish of 3,000 members. And the words have grown angry.

"The Catholic Church is not a democracy," said Kathleen Trotman, a leader of Support Our Sisters, a 500-member group that advocates the nuns' cause. "We just didn't realize how much of a dictatorship it is."

"Religious doctrine is predominant," countered Eileen Nevins, head of the parish school board. "The final line is, you obey. If you persist in disobedience, you should find another place to worship."

Backers, professing deeply shaken faith in the church, portray the nuns as victims of civil, ethnic and sexual discrimination.

New Knee Surgery Technique Provides Quicker Recovery

Knee surgery automatically used to mean a large scar, several days in the hospital and weeks to months of rehabilitation at home.

The Texas Medical Association says that has changed in some cases recently with arthroscopic surgery, an operation on a joint using a small telescope called an arthroscope.

The relatively new procedure, which requires an anesthetic, leaves only small scars. The patient usually leaves the hospital within hours of the operation, walks within 24 hours, and resumes near-normal activity within weeks.

The arthroscope is about five millimeters in diameter. Commonly used to diagnose knee injuries, it is inserted into the joint through a small incision. The surgeon views the inside of the joint either directly through the arthroscope or with a lightweight television camera attached to the instrument.

The camera provides a picture of the joint on a television screen. If the surgeon decides an operation is needed, he also inserts miniature cutting and grasping instruments through small incisions.

But not every joint operation can be performed arthroscopically. The ones that are included removing loose pieces, removing torn cartilage, realigning the kneecap and taking samples of joint wounds for microscopic examination.

The disadvantages of arthroscopic surgery are that it is expensive, requires costly equipment that many hospitals do not have, and is much more difficult for the surgeon to perform.

Because the procedure did not gain popularity until the mid-1970s when the miniature surgical instruments were developed, not all orthopedic surgeons perform it routinely. But they can advise the patient on whether arthroscopic surgery would be appropriate.

Red Raider Day Here

Reports, Awards Highlight Dinner On Hereford Red Raider Day

Coach Jerry Moore talked about Raider football prospects; Coach Brad Atkins reported on basketball recruits, and Coach Jess Stiles presented several special awards to highlight the Red Raider Club dinner here Thursday night.

Dave Hopper of Champion Feeders and Ron Davenport of Friona Industries were presented special "Beef Coach" plaques for their contributions to the Tech athletic department.

Shorty Roark was the recipient of a gold-braided A&M cap from Stiles, who is a former A&M coach. Stiles also cited Roark for being a scholarship donor at Texas Tech.

Trophies were presented to members of the winning foursome in the Florida scramble golf tourney Thursday afternoon. They were Mike Horton, Max Moss, Lowell Neumayer and Coach Rick Gauge. The team had a 12-under low ball total of 60. Several teams tied with a 61. Leete Jackson, executive director of the Red Raider Club from Lubbock, introduced the coaches and expressed appreciation to local RR Club members for hosting the event.

Jackson announced plans for a "Red Raider Feed" to kickoff the new grid season. The famous Odessa Chuck Wagon Gang will prepare a barbecue meal to be served from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. before Tech's opening game against the Air Force on Sept. 18.

The "feed" will be held at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum and all West Texas fans are invited to meet their friends and enjoy a meal before the home opener. Tickets will be $6 a person and all proceeds are tax deductible and will go to the Red Raider Scholarship Fund.

Dave Hopper is chairman of the local club, and Jiffy Payne was chairman for the golf tourney. Speedy Nieman served as emcee for the dinner party and recognized special guests at the meeting. About 75 persons attended the dinner meeting, while the golf tourney drew 60 players. A better defense and more depth were listed as strong points for the Raider grid team at the end of spring training, reported Moore. The Tech coach said fans will see a lot of "red shirts" and some junior college transfer players on the team this fall.

Moore said the offensive line, especially in depth, is the major concern. He thinks the team will have a good offensive backfield and receivers. He believes quarterback Jim Hart is a much improved passer, too.

The Tech coach praised the Hereford football program and added that two Hereford recruits—Aubrey Richburg and Bruce Clarke—are the type of players Tech can build a good program around.

During the introductions, Nieman praised Hopper and Payne for their work in organizing the Raider Day event here. "We think it will be bigger and better next year," stated Hopper.

Fifth Game Sunday

Lakers Setting New Standard

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers are on the verge of winning their second National Basketball Association title in three years. They are just as close to setting a new standard for excellence in the playoffs.

But they're quick to support the old Yogi Berra adage: "It ain't over 'til it's over."

The Lakers took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven NBA Championship Series Thursday night, building a big lead over Philadelphia in the first three quarters and then holding off a fourth-quarter surge by the 76ers for a 111-101 triumph.

"I'd like to say one thing," Coach Pat Riley said after the game. "We haven't won anything yet. We have one more ahead 3-1. We have one more game to win."

The fifth game is scheduled Sunday at Philadelphia, starting at 2 p.m., EDT. A sixth game, if necessary, will be played here next Tuesday night. If a seventh game is needed, it will be played at Philadelphia next Thursday night.

"Right now, I'm just counting the wins and losses," said Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 22 points, 11 rebounds, six assists and three blocked shots in Game 4. "We have a lead right now, but as you know, we have one more game to win."

It was 29-18 at the end of the first quarter and 57-42 at halftime. The Lakers led by as many as 19 points in the third period before settling for an 87-72 lead entering the final 12 minutes.

The 76ers outscored the Lakers 8-2 at the outset of the fourth quarter to cut the deficit to 111-101, 89-80. However, Los Angeles regrouped and soon led by 14 points. But Philadelphia wasn't finished.

It was 100-86 midway through the final period when the 76ers went on a 12-5 binge to make it 105-98 with 3:17 left. Philadelphia had two opportunities to narrow the gap to five points, but bad passes by Caldwell Jones and Julius Erving spoiled the chances.

The teams went nearly two minutes without a score. Bob McAdoo's alley-oop layup with 1:25 to go made it 107-98 and ended all doubts.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Jamaal Wilkes led a balanced Los Angeles attack with 24 points each. McAdoo came off the bench to add 19 points. Norm Nixon was held to 11 points, making only four of 18 field goal attempts, but he recorded a game-high 14 assists. Kurt Rambis had only three points for the Lakers, but equaled Abdul-Jabbar's rebound total of 11. Including team rebounds, Los Angeles outrebounded Philadelphia 61-53.

Andrew Toney led the 76ers with 28 points and 11 assists. Erving added 25 points, all but eight of them coming in the second half. No other Philadelphia player scored more than 12 points. Bobby Jones led the 76ers in rebounding with nine.

Italian Born Rodeo Champ More Texan Than Alamo

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

"Howdy, pardner, proud to know you," said the young man in the cowboy hat and boots, extending a calloused hand.

He wore custom made jeans, held up by a belt with a buckle big as a coffee cup. A leather string tie was at his throat and he wore a jacket with bone buttons. On the next to last finger of his left hand was a dollar-size ring inscribed "Professional Rodeo Cowboys Assn. National Finals, Runnerup Bull-Riding."

Bobby DelVecchio is a genuine "Urban Cowboy," not to be confused with John Travolta, who furthered his movie career by riding one of those mechanical bulls you see in local discos.

On the pro rodeo circuit, they call him the "Bronx Cowboy" because he grew up on the streets of the tough New York City borough and gravitated to the great outdoors instead of staying around to guzzle beer, terrorize the subways and snitch hubcaps.

"I only borrowed hubcaps — my dad always told me never use the word, 'steal,'" said the 25-year-old cowboy, whose aim is to beat out Don Gay for the world championship in his specialty.

DelVecchio is indisputably the No.2 in bull-riding while challenging calf-roper Charley Sampson of Los Angeles for the overall money winning lead this year with $30,000 in prize money.

DelVecchio makes around $100,000 a year, of which he says $80,000 goes for air travel and other expenses. Just this week he bought his own plane, a single seater which he is qualified to fly.

"It beats borrowing hubcaps and breaking bottles," he said of his unique career.

Italian-born, DelVecchio is more Texan than the Alamo.

Besides wearing all the necessary trimmings, he talks with a rich drawl which makes him a stranger to his old buddies in the Bronx. He flew in this week from Big Piney, Wyo., to visit his family and took off afterward for Colorado Springs, Colo.

Wherever they unleash the snorting, bucking bulls, Bobby will be there.

Rodeos are a nationwide competition although they seem more related to the wide open spaces, such as the Southwest, Far West and Northwest. They once were a month-long attraction at Madison Square Garden, featuring Roy Rogers, Gene Autry and other movie heroes.

Now DelVecchio and his bronc-busting, bull-taming friends will have extra national exposure in a tour aimed at television audiences. It is the Rodeo ProTour USA, produced by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, which will start June 21 and extend through October, showing on 98 TV stations west of the Mississippi River. The top four contestants will battle it out in the series finals.

That's what DelVecchio is aiming for, plus the coveted National Championships at Oklahoma City in December.

by quartets from Mississippi State and Oklahoma, who also finished under the old meet mark of 3:03.08 set by Tennessee last year.

Behind Floyd's mark in the 100, Mike Miller of Tennessee posted a 10.12 and Calvin Smith of Alabama had 10.19.

Trap Shooters Meet Sunday

The Deaf Smith 4-H Shooting Sports Club will meet at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Hereford Gun Club range at the airport.

The postal league trap shooting will be open only to 4-H'ers.

Altitude, New Track Makes Meet Holiday

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The mountain altitude and a brand-new track are turning the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships into a sprinters' holiday.

So say the men and women speedsters who blazed to impressive qualifying times on the eve of two days of finals today and Saturday.

"This is the fastest track I've ever run on," said a grinning Bert Cameron of Texas-El Paso after the two-time NCAA 400-meter champion qualified Thursday in a sizzling 44.79 seconds.

"This is a very fast track and I feel like I'll be able to run a good time in the finals," he said. "If I am pushed, it is possible that we could see a world record in the 400 meters."

Another 400-meter contender, Kasheef Hassan of Oregon State, posted an even better time of 44.76 in another heat and sported a grin as wide as Cameron's.

Stanley Floyd of Houston had a 10.1 clocking in the 100-meter trial, outdistancing Georgia football star Herschell Walker, who failed to qualify. Floyd said a world record was a possibility in the final because of the track at Brigham Young University and the 4,500-foot altitude.

"It's the first time I've run at this altitude and the chance for a world record is the chance of a lifetime," said Floyd, whose time was the third-fastest in the country this year.

Other sprinters agreed the thinner air contributed to the uniformly fast times.

"The track is just a track. I think it's the altitude," said Merlene Ottey of Nebraska, a candidate to repeat as national collegiate champion in the women's 100 and 200 meters.

Ottey, a 21-year-old junior Jamaican, streaked to a 21.29 time in her 200 meter trial, a remarkable time in that she battled a brisk headwind.

Ottey also anchored Nebraska's 400-meter relay team to a collegiate-record time of 43.67, breaking Tennessee State's 3-year-old mark of 43.68.

Howard University's 1,600-meter relay team concluded Thursday's qualifying in a meet-record 3 minutes, 2.66 seconds, followed closely

Jays Stop NY 3-1, Win Three of Four

TORONTO (CP) — The New York Yankees, who breezed into town Monday as winners of seven of their last eight games, figured to add to their victory total in a four-game set against the last-place Toronto Blue Jays. It didn't quite turn out that way.

Luis Leal, who is rapidly gaining a reputation as a Yankee-Tommy John killer, slammed the door on any New York hopes of earning a split in the series Thursday night as he fired a four-hitter to pace the Blue Jays to a 3-1 victory. That gave Toronto victories in three of the four games.

The only other American League game scheduled Thursday, Texas at Baltimore, was postponed because of rain.

It was pitching and defense that hurt the Yankees here. In its three wins, Toronto's pitchers limited the Yankees to six, seven and four hits, respectively.

"Toronto has improved quite a bit," said Yankees outfielder Oscar Gamble.

"They showed us they can play real good defense."

Blue Jays catcher Buck Martinez, who drove in the first run in the second inning with a double to right that scored Anthony Johnson, believes Leal is coming into his own.

"He's pitched real good for us all year," said Martinez. "His record (4-3) could be a little better, but we haven't been able to score many runs for him."

"The big thing with Luis is that he's got confidence in his ability now. The key to tonight's game was that he was able to stay ahead of the hitters."

Leal, a 25-year-old native of Venezuela, was also able to extend his lifetime mark against Tommy John to 3-0.

John, who pitched two innings of relief in Monday's loss, gave up nine hits and watched his record fall to 4-5.

Leal maintained that John's presence was secondary to the game.

"I don't care who pitches for the Yankees," said Leal.

"I just go out there to pitch my own game."

He admitted it was one of his stronger performances.

"I liked the cool weather tonight," Leal said. "I had more gas."

"I just felt good tonight. I had a good curve ball. They were hitting a lot of the balls in the dirt and to first base. They have a lot of left-handers and I was throwing the slider and curve in on them."

The Jays added a run in the second when Alfredo Griffin drove Martinez home with a two-out single to right. Toronto's other run came in the fifth on pinch-hitter Wayne Nordhagen's RBI single.

The lone Yankee run came in the fourth when Gamble singled, moved to third on a double by John Mayberry — his first hit in 20 at-bats against his former teammates — and came home on Graig Nettles grounder to second.

Perhaps due to the frustration the series wrought, Yankees Manager Gene Michael was ejected from the game in the fifth inning by home plate umpire Rich Garcia.

"He (Garcia) told Tommy to make sure he took the signs on the rubber," said Michael. "That's fine, it's his job to protect the batter. But he shouldn't walk out to the mound to argue to our pitcher about it. If Tommy wants to come down and argue with him about it, that's a different matter. After that he said something to me as I was going to the dugout. He was wrong to keep it going."

PARIS (AP) — Andrea Jaeger, on the eve of her 17th birthday, overwhelmed favorite Chris Evert Lloyd 6-3, 6-1 in the semifinals of the $917,000 French Open tennis championship at Roland Garros Stadium.

In Saturday's final she will face Martina Navratilova, who rolled past defending champion Hana Mandlikova 6-0, 6-2 in another semifinal match.

Lloyd lost seven games in a row as Jaeger went from 4-3 in the first set to 5-0 in the second.

THIS WEEK IN BASEBALL

Family fun? Oh, brother!

Sept. 15, 1963, was a historic day in baseball.

Playing in left, center and right field, in that order, for the San Francisco Giants were Jesus, Matty and Felipe Alou.

It marked the only time in history that three brothers played together in the same outfield in a major-league game.

The Alous are just one of more than 275 brother combinations to play in the big leagues. There has been one family of five players (the Delahantys), one of four (the O'Neills), 13 of three and the remainder of two.

Perhaps the most famous baseball brothers were the Deans ("Dizzy," or Jay Hanna, and "Duffy," or Paul), the DiMaggios (Joe, Dom and Vince), and the Waners (Paul, or "Big Poison," and Lloyd, or "Little Poison").

But the Perrys (Gaylord and Jim), the Walkers (Dixie and Harry), the Boyers (Ken and Cleve), the Meusels (Bob and Luke), the Sewells (Joe and Mort) and the Coopers (Mort and Walker) were no slouches, either.

Neither are the currently active duos: the Niekros (Phil and Joe) and the Forschers (Ken and Bob).

Dating back to 1876, there have been 15 brother batter-ies on the same team. Easily the top brother batteries were the Ferreris and Coopers.

Wes Ferrell won 20 or more games six times, and Rick Ferrell caught more games (1,805) than any other catcher in the American League. They were together (1934-38) with the Red Sox and Senators. (The Ferreris were traded from the Red Sox to the Senators midway in the 1937 season.)

Mort Cooper, a pitcher, and Walker Cooper, a catcher, had three outstanding years together — 1942-44 — on the St. Louis Cardinals. They formed the Cardinal World Series battery on all three pennant-winning teams, as well as the National League All-Star battery in 1942 and 1943.

There have been 60 pitching brothers in the majors, one third of which pitched on the same team. Many of them actually worked in the same game.

The most glamorous of all pitching brothers on the same club have to be Dizzy and Paul Dean, who were teammates on the Cardinals from 1934 through 1937. Paul won 19 games in 1934 and 19 more in 1935, while Dizzy was overpowering with 30 and 28 victories, respectively. On Sept. 21, 1934, Dizzy shut out the Dodgers on three hits in the opener of a doubleheader. Paul followed with a no-hitter. They each won two games in the World Series that fall.

Other pitching brothers on one club: Gaylord and Jim Perry with Cleveland, 1974-75; Phil and Joe Niekro, Atlanta, 1973-74; and Jess and Virgil Barnes, New York Giants, 1919-23.

Who holds the record for most career home runs by brothers?

The answer to this common trivia question is, of course, the Aarons, with Henry hitting 755 to 13 for brother Tommie.

The honor for the best non-pitching brother combination goes, however, to the Waners. Paul and Lloyd were both immediate successes on their way to the Hall of Fame. Paul led the National League with a .380 batting average in his second year in 1927. Lloyd finished third that year, his rookie season, with a .355 mark. He had 223 hits to 237 for Paul.

Then come the DiMaggios. The incomparable Joe, with that fabulous 56-game hitting streak, finished with a .325 lifetime batting mark. Dom, the defensive genius, batted .298 in 11 seasons. And Vince, in 10 years, slammed 125 homers.

The only two brothers to win batting titles were Dixie Walker, who hit .357 with the Dodgers in 1944, and Harry, who hit .363 with the Cards and Phillies in 1947. They never played on the same team, however.

Neither did the Meusels, Bob and Irish, the only brothers to win RBI titles. Irish did it with the Giants in 1923, Bob with the Yankees in 1925.

Joe and Luke Sewell were with the Cleveland Indians from 1921 to 1930. Joe, with wonderful bat control, compiled a lifetime .312 average. Luke, an outstanding defensive catcher, hit .259.

The Conigliaros — Tony and Billy — twice hit home runs in the same game for the Red Sox in 1970.

Grand Canyon Closing In On NAIA Trophy

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Grand Canyon College was a step closer to a third straight NAIA World Series baseball tournament championship today following a 3-1 victory over Lewis and Clark of Idaho, the tournament's only other unbeaten team.

Fred Moreno and Pete Bethea had two hits each to lead Grand Canyon to the victory Thursday night.

Grand Canyon will face St. Xavier of Illinois at 7:30 p.m. today. Azusa-Pacific and Lewis and Clark will meet at 5:30 p.m. in an elimination game.

Mike Madril doubled, advanced to third on a sacrifice and scored on an infield out to give the Antelopes a 1-0 lead in the third inning.

Grand Canyon used two singles, a wild pitch and a sacrifice to take a 2-0 lead in the fourth. Their final run came in the fifth on two walks, a single and a wild pitch.

The Warriors used three singles and a walk for their only run of the game.

The Idaho team continued to threaten, leaving runners at first and third in the bottom of the ninth when relief pitcher Art Martinez got Fred Quintero to hit a grounder for the final out.

Lewis and Clark got two hits from Mike Hansen, who scored the only run for the Idaho team.

The winning pitcher for Grand Canyon was Dave Stapleton, who needed help in the ninth from Martinez.

In an earlier elimination game, George Matyas drove in the winning run with a two-run double, highlighting a four-run third inning, as St. Xavier, Ill., defeated Coastal Carolina, S.C., 7-3.

Chad McCardell drove in three runs and Randy Robinson tossed a five-hitter in a 9-2 Azusa Pacific, Calif., win over Liberty Baptist, Va., in another loser's bracket match.

The South Carolina team, 40-21, led 3-2 when Matyas ignited a rally by the St. Xavier Cougars, 47-40. Starter John Boling, 11-4, went the distance for the Cougars, as did Mark Clemons, 9-2, for the Chanticleers.

Larry Schuler had three hits as Azusa Pacific, 40-20, pounded four Liberty Baptist pitchers for eight hits in all. Robinson ran his record to 1-3.

Bucs' Success Continuing

By GARY MIHOCS Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates won their third straight division titles a decade ago. They won three straight World Series games from Baltimore in 1979.

But these are tougher times, and the Pirates latest success streak came Thursday night when they won three games in a row for the first time all season.

"It's a good feeling and hopefully just a start," Manager Chuck Tanner said after Pittsburgh edged the Montreal Expos 5-4 on a tie-breaking double by Tony Pena in the bottom of the 10th inning.

"We have to keep it going," said Pena, the young catcher who also beat Los Angeles the night before with a two-run single in the bottom of the ninth.

"This is a great win. I can feel the momentum," said Mike Easler, who singled home one run and saved another with a lunging catch in left field.

It was quite a display of emotion by the Pirates, who once took winning streaks in stride. But they just escaped last place in the National League East this week.

The strain showed on the normally patient Tanner last Monday when the Pirates lost to the Dodgers. He snapped angrily at a reporter, something he rarely does.

But Tanner was all smiles Thursday night.

"We haven't had three in a row since opening day, and we sure waited long enough to get it," he said.

The game — the only one in the National League Thursday night — was a makeup of an Expos-Pirates contest that was snowed out the first week of the season.

Temperatures dropped into the upper 50s Thursday night, and the game drew a sparse crowd of 4,158, including 1,649 steelworkers and their families who bought $1 discount tickets on "Steelworkers Night."

The game didn't start well for the Pirates as third-inning homers by Tim Lincecum and Andre Dawson gave Montreal a 3-0 lead off Don Robinson.

Raines' first homer of the season, a two-run drive down the left field line, followed a single by Chris Speier. An out later, Dawson hit one over the wall in center for his ninth homer.

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Red Wings, last-place finishers in their National Hockey League division the past four seasons, have been sold to the owner of a pizza store chain, team officials announced.

Mike Ilitch purchased the team from the family of the late James D. "Pop" Norris, owners of the Red Wings for the past 50 years. The transaction was made pending approval of the NHL Board of Governors.

The Pirates scored twice in the fourth on RBI-singles by Johnny Ray and Easler off Expos starter Steve Rogers. The Expos made it 4-2 in the fifth as Raines doubled and scored by a double by Dawson.

The Pirates tied the score with two runs in the seventh as Dale Berra singled home a run and Bill Madlock hit a sacrifice fly.

Bryn Smith, the fourth Montreal pitcher, opened the Pirate 10th by walking Jason Thompson, who was sacrificed to second by Easler.

Pena then brought Thompson home with a double up the middle that won the game for reliever Rod Scurry.

"We have to keep it going," said Pena, the young catcher who also beat Los Angeles the night before with a two-run single in the bottom of the ninth.

Bowl Had Little Effect On Bourbon St. North

By HARRY ATKINS Associated Press Writer

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Four months ago, Saginaw Street seemed like the center of the universe as throngs of people — partying in the week prior to Super Bowl XVI — walked and drank their way through the January cold, under the glow of bright Christmas lights.

The game, the first National Football League finale in the Snow Belt, was held at the Pontiac Silverdome, about a mile to the east.

The city had renamed the thoroughfare Bourbon Street North, after the famed New Orleans entertainment district. The five-block stretch of mostly deserted, boarded-up storefronts was transformed into a series of restaurants, pubs and souvenir shops — all operating on temporary permits.

James B. Fitzpatrick, controller of the Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors Corp., who served as chairman of the Pontiac Host Committee for the Super Bowl, estimates nearly $3 million was spent by some 150,000 people on Bourbon Street North the week before the Jan. 24 game.

Today, on the surface, it's as though it all never happened.

"I've got to tell you the truth, the new faces never came back," says Diana Winkler, who along with her husband, Al, owns Griffin's, a popular tavern on Saginaw Street.

Now some of the old faces have joined the exodus, with four businesses closing since January. Most headed for nearby shopping malls.

"I didn't really expect Bourbon Street North to turn the town around," said Neil Munro, a past chairman of the Chamber of Commerce. "I don't think anybody expected any real lasting impact."

Munro is editor of the daily newspaper, The Oakland Press. Ten years ago, the newspaper was called the Pontiac Press, but it changed its name to reflect the exodus of both commerce and residents into other parts of the county.

"It used to be that the newspaper's advertising people could probably walk out the door and do about 90 percent of their business on foot," Munro said. "Now, there are very few businesses on Saginaw Street that advertise in the paper."

Pontiac, with a population of more than 76,000, is an automobile town, and its economic health has been closely tied to the fortunes of the American auto industry. The world headquarters of GM's Pontiac Motor Division and the GMC Coach and Truck Division are located here.

Pontiac's unemployment rate at the end of March, according to the Michigan Employment Security Commission, was 31.1 percent.

The city, located 35 miles north of Detroit, was at its peak in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Despite the apparent lack of progress, downtown Pontiac is not without hope.

GM soon will move its Truck and Coach Division into the Phoenix Center, a new office complex at the south end of Saginaw Street. When that happens, officials assume a second new office building — adjacent to the Phoenix Center — also will fill.

"GM obviously will help," Munro said. "Then, you'll have about 800 people who have to have lunch and other services. I think what Bourbon Street North showed is that Pontiac is a viable place to do business if there is a reason for people to come here."

One new restaurant is scheduled to open soon in a renovated building on Saginaw Street and a cable television company soon will move its headquarters into an old department store building.

The Downtown Development Authority has come up with a plan to entice other entrepreneurs into the area. Called the Private Initiative Assistance Project, the plan, financed by the city and private money, offers to return 10 percent of an investor's expenses.

"I meant Bourbon Street North to be more than a good time," Fitzpatrick said. "I meant for it to build for the future."

WHO AM I?

It's a real dilemma. Home runs vs. touchdowns. I don't know which sport - baseball or football - to play as a professional. The final decision has to be made in another several months. No problem, though. I'm studying economics.

FAITH WILL GIVE YOU PATIENCE FOR TODAY'S WORLD

In this age of instant foods and virtually everything else, we often clamor for the immediate fulfillment of all our wishes as a matter of course. Patience has nearly become a lost art because we seem to have so little need of it in this push-button era. However, faith in God will not only help you regain your patience, but will let you know if the rapid results you have come to expect are really worthwhile attaining. There may be no such thing as instant success, but there is an instant faith which will direct you toward it in the proper manner. It's as near as your Church.

"But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing."
— James 1:4

He that has patience may compass anything.
— Francois Rabelais
