Deaf Smith, Vega citizens claim DOE: 'inaccurate, inconsiderate, insane'

School administrators, city officials, landowners, homemakers and agribusinessmen were among opponents refuting the Department of Energy's Environmental Assessment of Deaf Smith County as possible site for a high-level nuclear waste repository during a hearing at the Hereford High School Auditorium Thursday night.

Declaring that DOE data was inaccurate, inconsiderate, and insane, opponents spent over six hours testifying to a panel of DOE representatives. Jeff Neff, project manager, was joined by George Ritter of Canyon, a retired professor, and William Bennett, deputy director of the office of geological repositories for the DOE.

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest opened the testimony from Washington via telephone and told the panel that the Texas people and he "cannot and will not stand idly by" as the DOE continues its research.

In 6-hour hearing

Don McReynolds, of the High Plains Underground Water District, focused his speech on the safety of the Ogallala Aquifer and questioned the research done by the DOE, saying that the quantity of water used by a repository was secondary to the possible contamination. Tonya Kleuskens, president of People Opposed to Wasted Energy Repositories, also stressed the communities assets which opponents have said were overlooked by the DOE.

Rick Auckerman told the panel that there was no alternative spot to grow the seed grain crops and that marring the Panhandle market would affect the world seed grain supply.

Vega schools representative Leonard Kent presented figures which showed the boom-town effect on his city would cause gross burdens to the school system.

Vega's city attorney Richard Forrest gave a lengthy report on the problems that city would have if the repository was placed in Deaf Smith County.

Last December, the Energy Department named a nine-square-mile area of privately owned farmland in Deaf Smith County about 16 miles north of Hereford as one of three "preferred sites" for the repository. The other two locations are in Washington and Nevada on federally owned land.

The DOE issued environmental assessments of the three sites and is giving the public until March 20 to comment on the massive reports.

The department expects to make a recommendation later this year to the president that the three locations undergo "site characterization," the next step in the lengthy process of choosing a home for the dump.

A final decision on where to place the dump is not expected until 1991, but if the president approves the three "preferred sites," exploratory construction work — or "site characterization" — could begin in the Texas Panhandle within the next two years.

Other people testifying at the hearing said the DOE's environmental assessment of the Panhandle site is full of misinformation that does not adequately address the effects a dump could have on the area.

Georgia Auckerman said the document more closely represents "propaganda" than support for the safety and legitimacy of the proposal.

"I can't believe Congress, in writing the Nuclear Waste Policy Act, intended that the (assessments) be documented propaganda designed to lull people into a false confidence for this project," Mrs. Auckerman said.

"The environmental assessment should be a document presenting technical issues in depth, but also considering, sincerely and completely, consideration of all the issues and questions raised by public officials and technical experts outside the Department of Energy."

Other people expressed concern over the effects a nuclear waste dump would have on area agriculture production and the Ogallala Aquifer, which supplies water to the region and several other states.

Julie Brody, special projects coordinator for the Texas Department of Agriculture, testified that the DOE, in its environmental assessment, has its facts, as well as its assumptions and conclusions, wrong.

Ms. Brody said that in the nearly 1,000-page document, only 10 pages dealt with the dump's probable impact on agriculture and that in those pages, the agency concluded the effect on farming "would be 'slight ... negligible ... not substantial.'"

Deaf Smith County ranks second in Texas in agricultural production, Ms. Brody said, adding that the Ogallala region of the High Plains brought in between $3 billion and $4 billion in agricultural cash receipts in 1983.

She also said the region produced 2.4 billion pounds of seed last year, worth about $1.4 billion.

"Yet DOE's description of the current state of agriculture in the High Plains doesn't even mention the seed business a single time," she testified.

"Are farmers going to trust seed grown next to a nuclear dump?" Ms. Brody said. "Eighty-five percent of the world's sorghum seed is grown right here. Does DOE consider that a 'slight' impact on world food production?"

Bill Bennett, deputy director of the office of geologic repositories of DOE's office of civilian radioactive waste management, told those attending Thursday's hearing their comments were among the finest he had heard.

"It's hard to come away without being struck with the sincerity ... of the comments," Bennett said.

The final hearing in Texas to receive public comment on the DOE's environmental assessment is scheduled for today in Austin.

Panelists George Ritter, Jeff Neff, and William Bennett heard testimony for over six hours Tuesday night at a Department of Energy hearing concerning possible location of a nuclear waste repository in Deaf Smith County. Over 30 opponents refuted the DOE environmental assessment of the site's appropriateness.

Laws for migrants reviewed

About 30 persons gathered Thursday at the Hereford Community Center to learn about the new Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act and hear the latest from the Texas Employment Commission (TEC) regarding unemployment benefits for farm workers.

Darrell Rogers, assistant regional director for the Amarillo District of the TEC, reminded employers that despite a recent court ruling that Texas unemployment coverage discriminates against farm workers, TEC's guidelines remain the same.

"As of today," Rogers said, "agricultural employers that pay $20,000 in wages per quarter or employ 10 or more workers for 20 weeks per year must pay unemployment taxes."

Rogers said the court ruling has not been finalized and could be appealed. It will take an act of the Texas Legislature to change the TEC's current guidelines. Rogers said, adding that the TEC is neutral on the matter and simply waiting to be told what to do.

Darrell Kreneck, representing the U.S. Department of Labor's regional office in Lubbock, reminded labor employers of their responsibilities to the migrant and farm workers on their payrolls.

Displaying a brightly-colored poster that informs farm workers of their rights and how to contact the department if those rights are violated, Kreneck repeatedly warned employers to display those posters prominently at the jobsite.

"It will cost you dearly if you don't," Kreneck said.

Kreneck also reminded employers that they must give notice of working conditions to each worker, pay the worker the wages promised and keep accurate payroll records containing at least seven specific pieces of information.

"Farm labor contractors cannot use illegal alien workers," Kreneck stressed. He said the civil penalty is a $400 fine for each person caught in an employer's crew.

"You can also have your certificate revoked," he said. "If it continues, you can go to jail. The department is serious about this."

Kreneck said a social security card is not adequate proof of citizenship. "If they were born in Mexico, they have to have papers," he said.

For running scheme

Louisiana governor indicted

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Authorities will try to seize nearly $10 million in "ill-gotten gains" from Gov. Edwin Edwards and six other men indicted for allegedly selling state certification for hospitals and nursing homes, a prosecutor says.

Edwards, two of his relatives and four friends and business associates were named Thursday in a 51-count federal indictment charging racketeering conspiracy.

Edwards, a 57-year-old Democrat in his third term, is the sixth governor in the nation this century to be indicted while in office. He is accused of netting $2 million from the alleged scheme.

Edwards has acknowledged receiving about $2 million from Health Services Development Corp., the company that allegedly obtained the state certificates, as fees when he was in private life, prior to his reelection in 1983. He served two terms as governor from 1972-1980, but by state law could not run for a third consecutive term. He began the third term last March.

Thursday's indictment said money the defendants received is subject to confiscation under the federal Racketeering Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act or RICO.

U.S. Attorney John Volz said prosecutors' aim is "seizure of all of the ill-gotten gains. The RICO statute enables us to do that...the FBI traced all the ill-gotten gains."

The indictment alleges Edwards used his position to gain favorable treatment for Health Services Development Corp., which allegedly obtained 15 state certificates that qualify hospitals and nursing homes for federal money. The certificates were then sold to those interested in actually building the facilities, the indictment said.

Authorities said they were tipped by backers of hospitals and nursing homes whose projects were blocked by a moratorium imposed by Edwards. Edwards ordered eight projects exempted, five of them involving his former business associates.

Volz said he wants the certificates seized, meaning the facilities could not receive federal reimbursement for building costs. He refused to say whether other indictments might be returned, or whether the continuing probe still involves the governor.

Edwards said he had not read the indictment and could not comment on it.

The governor, who had been examined by a doctor earlier in the day, said jokingly, "I'll be able to live out any sentence I might receive as a result of this. It was not unexpected."

Texas transplant patient dies

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Texas teen-ager, who was the third person in the world to undergo a simultaneous heart-liver transplant, died this morning during a second transplant operation, hospital officials said today.

Mary Cheatham, 17, of Fort Worth, Texas, went into the operating room Thursday evening to receive a second set of organs after the first set of donor organs proved too large for her body.

She died at 3:36 a.m. in the operating room, according to Karen Lewis, administrative assistant at Presbyterian-University Hospital.

Ms. Lewis said she had no additional information.

Miss Cheatham underwent her first transplant operation on Monday when she received the organs of 22-year-old Mark Diggins of Columbus, Ohio, during an 18-hour operation that ended Tuesday afternoon. Diggins was 35 pounds heavier and three inches taller than Miss Cheatham.

Doctors said they had expected Miss Cheatham's first set of transplanted organs to shrink to fit the space around them. But her new heart and liver failed to adapt to the size of her body.

By Tuesday evening, her blood pressure had begun fluctuating because her new heart was crowded.

Man pleads guilty in heroin case

A Hereford man convicted last month of delivery of a controlled substance Wednesday pleaded guilty to a related charge of possession of heroin.

Alex Mendiaz, 33, was sentenced to 10 years in the Texas Department of Corrections to run concurrently with the 10-year prison term assessed Jan. 10 by a 22nd District Court jury.

Mendiaz appeared Wednesday afternoon before 22nd District Judge David Wesley Gulley.

The guilty verdict on the sales charge had been appealed, but Mendiaz is expected to drop that appeal under terms of a plea bargain agreement with the prosecution.

Three reports filed

Hereford police made no arrests but filed three reports Thursday. Patrolmen checked a bike theft reported from the 800 block of Knight, handled a juvenile case and a report of a dog running loose.

Mayor puts town up for sale

EDEN, Texas (AP) — Mayor Jim Schumann, weary of downward trends in population and business, has decided to sell his hometown. The mayor has put up a 4-foot-by-8-foot "For Sale" sign on the city square of this West Texas town on U.S. Highway 83 about 45 miles southeast of San Angelo.

And Schumann says although the sign has been there less than a day, he's already had several inquiries about how much he wants for this Concho County community of 1,166 people.

But Schumann is quick to tell those inquirers that he's not pulling up stakes; rather the sign is part of a promotional campaign to sell industrial developers on Eden's assets and advantages.

"We hope they'll stop and ask about Eden," he told the San Angelo Standard-Times Thursday. "We think our community is an attractive place for people to retire with the services we offer, our climate and houses for sale."

Questions raised about bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Opponents of pari-mutuel gambling in Texas say they will raise "tough questions" about funding and corruption before a committee-approved bill ever gets to the full House.

The bill, approved 11-1 by the House Urban Affairs Committee, provides for a statewide referendum on racing, an eight-member racing commission and strict law enforcement protections, its backers say.

But Rep. Gary Thompson, D-Abilene, on Thursday questioned how the commission would be funded.

It "is supposed to be financed by betting itself, but it will need to be in operation nearly two years before the first wager is placed," Thompson said, adding that the bill may lack adequate protection against the influence of organized crime.

"How can we keep organized crime out of the state?" he asked. "Gambling is a corrupting enterprise."

New uproar over Goetz case

NEW YORK (AP) — One day after the release of statements by subway gunman Bernhard Goetz that he fired a second shot at a youth who seemed unarmed, the district attorney said he might try again to obtain an attempted murder indictment.

Meanwhile, Gov. Mario Cuomo said Thursday that the newly released statements were "significant" but refused to say whether he would have a special prosecutor look into the case.

Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau said Thursday he was considering resubmitting the case to another grand jury, but added, "I've got to have a substantial basis for doing it."

Black activists and lawyers for one of the wounded youths called for Morgenthau's resignation.

A grand jury indicted Goetz, who is white, in January on weapons possession charges but refused to charge him with assault or attempted murder, apparently believing he acted in self-defense when he shot the four black youths Dec. 22 after one of them asked him for $5.

Church leaders oppose aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of 10 American Protestant churches, condemning U.S. military aid to Nicaraguan rebels on moral grounds, are asking Congress to reject the Reagan administration's request for new money for such purposes.

"It is morally outrageous for the United States to provide arms so that some Nicaraguans can kill other Nicaraguans in order to show Russians halfway around the world that we North Americans have resolve," said a statement released by the group today.

The Reagan administration, taking a much different view, describes the rebels as freedom fighters struggling against a repressive Sandinista regime.

However, today's church statement quoted the Rev. Avery Post, president of the United Church of Christ, as saying, "Life in Nicaragua is not as this administration paints it."

"Nicaragua is not without its problems, but there is no moral justification for the atrocities being perpetrated by the contras, and there is no moral justification for our government trying to overthrow the government of Nicaragua."

IRA attacks kill nine police

NEWRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — IRA guerrillas fired mortars from the back of a hijacked truck into the canteen of a fortified police compound, killing nine officers as they sat down for an evening meal and wounding 40 people.

Several hours after the Thursday night mortar attack, a terrorist bomb exploded in Pomeroy, 40 miles away, killing a soldier of the Ulster Defense Regiment.

The Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility for the Newry attack in a statement telephoned to Belfast news organizations. "This was a major and well-planned operation, indicating our ability to strike where and when we decide," it said.

Police said two of those killed in the mortar attack were believed to be women. Dozens of officers were in the canteen for an evening meal when the attack occurred, said police sources.

Rescue workers were digging in the rubble today and a police spokesman said at least one officer was missing.

The Royal Ulster Constabulary, Northern Ireland's police force, said the death toll was the largest number of police killed in one incident since Northern Ireland's sectarian and political violence flared up in 1969.

Christianity also to blame

LONDON (AP) — A Church of England bishop said in an article published today that Christianity "must take a major share of the blame" for the Nazi attempt to exterminate the Jews.

John Baker, Bishop of Salisbury and one of his church's leading theologians, said Christianity has "spewed out" anti-Semitism from the earliest times.

He called for an act of "theological penitence" by Christians and urged them to disown "distorted features" of the New Testament.

The comments appeared in an article on racism and the Bible published by the church's Board for Social Responsibility.

"No matter that Jesus was a Jew, that thousands of Jews formed the first Christian churches, that the Jewish scriptures constituted for nearly 200 years the only Christian Bible," he wrote.

Obscene caller arrested

PEKING (AP) — Police have arrested a Peking shoe salesman for making more than 20 obscene telephone calls in less than an hour to a female operator, a newspaper said today.

The official English-language China Daily said Zhu Hongdong, a shop assistant at the Wanli shoe store, "was caught red handed making obscene phone calls to the female operator of dial 114, the Peking telephone directory assistance service."

For 'Star Wars' involvement

Schools to split $19 million

By NORMAN BLACK AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Universities in Texas, New York and Alabama will split a $19 million contract calling for research on technology needed for President Reagan's "Star Wars" anti-missile initiative, the Pentagon announced Thursday.

In addition, six contracts worth nearly $208 million were awarded to four military contractors for development work on the new Midgetman intercontinental missile, the Pentagon added.

The university contracts were awarded to Texas Tech in Lubbock, Texas; the University of Texas at Arlington; Auburn University in Alabama; the State University of New York at Buffalo, and the Polytechnic Institute of New York in Brooklyn.

The universities were selected to participate in a four-year research project designed to explore ways of powering defensive weapons that could be deployed in space, the Pentagon said.

Star Wars, officially called the Strategic Defense Initiative, calls for research to design lasers or other weapons that could be placed in space to shoot down Soviet rockets as they were fired. The Pentagon is spending $1.4 billion on Star Wars research this year and has asked for another $3.7 billion in fiscal 1986.

"The Strategic Defense Initiatives Organization has formed a consortium of universities to address critical problems associated with the issues of non-nuclear space power and power conditioning for potential defensive systems in space," the Pentagon said.

"The university research efforts... will be concerned principally with the development of a technology base that can be transferred to the private sector. In addition, the broad-based university consortium will provide funds to educate engineers and physicists to answer the growing manpower demands of the space power industry. The space-power consortium is the first large grant made to academia by the Strategic Defense Initiatives Organization..."

The Midgetman contracts, meantime, were awarded by the Air Force. The Midgetman is the nickname for a new generation of inter-continental ballistic missile now under development that would follow the MX. The missiles would be much smaller than the MX and would carry only one warhead instead of 10, but they could be transported on mobile launchers to avoid Soviet detection.

All of the contracts call for development work on the individual rocket motor stages for the three-stage missile.

Two contracts worth $62.1 million were awarded to the United Technologies Corp.'s Chemical Systems Division in San Jose, Calif. One contract worth $37.9 million was awarded to Morton Thiokol Inc.'s Wasatch Division in Brigham City, Utah; two contracts worth $71.9 million were awarded to Hercules Inc. in Magna, Utah, and one contract worth $35.6 million was awarded to the Aerojet Strategic Propulsion Co. of Sacramento, Calif.

The Air Force is currently planning to deploy the first Midgetman missiles in 1992.

CBS identified in reports

Turner said studying takeover

By BILL McCLOSKEY Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Federal Communications Commission official says broadcasting magnate Ted Turner is considering an attempt to take over a major television network, which published and broadcast reports identifying as CBS.

James C. McKinney, chief of the FCC's mass media bureau, said former FCC Chairman Charles Ferris, a Washington attorney who represents Turner, had met with a number of current commissioners to discuss the possible takeover bid.

McKinney did not identify the network, but today's editions of the trade journal Communications Daily reported Turner was eyeing CBS.

CBS News quoted an unidentified FCC source Thursday night as saying an attorney for Turner had discussed a bid to take over CBS with FCC commissioners.

A CBS corporate public relations spokesman, who declined to be identified, said, "CBS will have no comment."

Communications Daily said it was told Ferris tried to determine the commissioners' attitude toward such a proposal and they told him to "bring us something" to consider.

Roy Stewart, the FCC's chief expert on ownership transfers, said he was scheduled to meet today with Ferris. Ferris did not return a reporter's telephone calls on Thursday.

Turner, owner of Cable News Network and other broadcast properties, two years ago suggested a merger of his Turner Broadcasting System with CBS.

The network is already the object of a takeover bid by Fairness in Media, a group of political conservatives who have received support from Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Turner was not available for comment Thursday night, and a spokeswoman for Turner, Judy Borza, said in a telephone interview from Atlanta, "We have no comment."

There appear to be no cross-ownership problems. FCC rules forbid owning a newspaper and a station in the same city or more than one station in a city. CBS has no stations in the cities where Turner owns stations.

There are 29.7 million shares of CBS stock outstanding. The stock closed Thursday at $84.50, up $3 a share from Wednesday's close.

The company reported 1984 revenues of $4.5 billion.

William S. Paley, chairman of the CBS board's executive committee is the majority shareholder in the company. He holds about 6.5 percent of the shares.

At 100 percent demand

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission has confirmed the Texas oil production rate for March 1985 at 100 percent of market demand.

Chairman Buddy Temple and Commissioner James E. (Jim) Nugent directed the continuance of the top production allowable after reviewing oil companies' nominations to buy a total of 2,261,249 barrels of Texas oil per day. The March nomination total, a decrease of 25,192 barrels daily when compared to February purchaser nominations, indicates market demand. March 1984 nominations totaled 2,360,026 barrels daily.

Although next month's state total for the permissible rate of production is calculated to average 2,856,223 barrels per day, actual production is estimated to reach 2.3 million barrels per day. Actual production in March 1984 was 2,331,651 barrels of oil per day.

The Commission first went to the ceiling level for oil production in April 1972, and March marks the 97th month in a row for the maximum allowable. It applies to all fields in the state except those that are assigned lower legal rates of production so that reservoir pressures will not be depleted before the maximum amount of oil has been recovered.

Temple also reported that March nominations for the purchase of Texas gas totaled 21,288,129 Mcf/d (thousand cubic feet of gas per day). February gas nominations totaled 24,377,015 Mcf/d. March 1984 nominations amounted to 22,862,806 Mcf/d.

Food prices predicted to increase '85

COLLEGE STATION — Food prices, which consumers tend to watch closely to determine if they are gaining or losing ground in the battle against inflation, will increase moderately during 1985.

A Texas Agricultural Extension Service economist foresees a rise in food prices from 2 to 5 percent during 1985, about the same increase as last year.

Dr. Bill Black explains that this increase will reflect the rate of increase in inflation in the general economy rather than improved prices to farmers.

"With the prospect for increased consumer income in 1985, consumers will spend about 14.6 percent of their disposable income for food, down from 15 percent in 1984," Black says.

He points out that food supplies will remain plentiful during the year, thus helping to keep consumer prices down. According to the economist, the biggest price increases will be in pork and the lowest, in poultry, milk, and fruits and vegetables.

Consumers are currently spending about 28 percent of their total food dollars on away-from-home food, notes Black, and its prices have been rising faster than the price of food eaten at home because more labor is involved.

In the successful manufacture of wine, great discretion, care and wide experience are essential. The climate, location, soil, vintage, and method of preparation also have great influence on the character and composition of wine. As you might imagine, uniformity of the product is very difficult to maintain, and is one of the secrets of producing a wine that makes a good selling product. DR. LAMB

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Chocolate and breast disease

DEAR DR. LAMB — In a recent column, you recommended that women with fibrocystic disease should give up smoking and should stop drinking coffee. I hope you will add some more items to your list.

My breasts swelled for two weeks out of four for 15 years. Then a friend of mine who had this problem was told to give up both coffee and chocolate, and her trouble ended.

I had eaten chocolate for as long as I could remember, so I decided to try cut out chocolate and cut down on coffee.

The results were astounding. In two weeks, I had improved so much that I knew the problem was caused by chocolate. The pain and swelling were gone. Please spread the word and add chocolate to the list of items to be eliminated.

DEAR READER — Caffeine is one of a group of drugs called xanthines, which may affect fibrocystic disease of the breast. These drugs include caffeine, theophylline and theobromine. Cocoa and chocolate are high in theobromine, and the amount of caffeine they contain is disputed. In general, if you want to try this approach to relieving the symptoms of fibrocystic disease, you should not drink tea (including the decaffeinated variety), coffee (you might be able to use decaffeinated coffee), colas that contain caffeine, chocolate or cocoa. You also should not smoke. For the best results, you should follow this program for at least one year.

Some studies have not demonstrated good results with this program, but those studies were of short duration and not all of the sources of xanthines were controlled.

No one with lumps of any sort in the breasts should follow such a self-treatment program without a physician's examination. Let the doctor decide what you have; otherwise, you might miss a dangerous lump.

I'm sure you will want to read The Health Letter 18-12, Breast Basics, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We installed a water softener 25 years ago. Then two years ago, I developed edema. On a hunch, I called our Health Department for an analysis of our water. They told me the sodium content was abnormally high. We disconnected the water softener, but I still have edema.

I was also informed recently that I had a mild case of congestive heart failure. I spent 10 days and nights under oxygen. I was told the edema and congestive heart failure were related. Can one overcome edema and congestive heart failure?

DEAR READER — You did the right thing in disconnecting the water softener. When you have congestive failure, your body retains sodium. That, in turn, leads to water retention. The retained water causes the edema — swelling of the feet and ankles. This is why many physicians put patients with congestive heart failure on a salt-restricted diet.

Obviously, if you are going to restrict salt in your diet, you don't want it in your water either.

Yes, many patients with congestive heart failure successfully are treated.

Good manners

any dining room. Good manners are the soft-pedaling of swearing and off-color stories, not acting bored, knowing how to give a firm handshake and look a person in the eye when being introduced.

Good manners are an awareness of the importance of using soap and water and a washcloth frequently, saying "please" and "thank you" more often, eliminating loud and abusive talk, not gulping down food, or helping yourself to too large a portion when it is passed, answering invitations promptly and cordially, acknowledging gifts with a written note, greater courtesy on sidewalks and while seated behind a steering wheel, gentleness with spouses, brothers and sisters, the respectful treatment of parents and teachers. Sissy stuff? Absolutely not. Simply better behavior and conduct, which is certain to lead to more happiness for individuals, and more pleasure for those with whom they associate.

Many uncoached students would be better prepared to go out and meet life's challenges with greater confidence if they were taught the pleasure and effectiveness that result from good manners.

then, is in the schools. When you get right down to it, good manners are nothing more than being thoughtful and considerate of others. They are the principal lubricant of the human machinery we use when we interact with others. I cannot think of an investment of time or energy that would pay off more handsomely.

DEAR READERS: The Dolph Simons (both Jr. and Sr.) of the Journal-World in Lawrence, Kan., sent an excellent editorial that ran in their paper a few weeks ago. I would like to share it with you.

LEARNING GOOD MANNERS
Why don't our public schools devote more time and effort to teaching young people the fundamentals of good manners?

Sissy stuff? Not on your life. Generally speaking, no man was ever too much of a gentleman, and no woman was ever too much of a lady. There may be times when it is necessary to bend good conduct a wee bit, but the fundamentals of being well-mannered normally help instead of hurt, and they certainly win high esteem from others.

This doesn't mean the teaching of snobbishness, which applies to those who dwell upon their wealth or position. Good manners constitute an attribute for any class — poor or rich, lean or fat, male or female, boss or employee, black or white, Jew or Gentile, Catholic or Protestant, Hindu or Muslim, Republican or Democrat, or any other separative designation.

What are good manners? Well, they are such things as knowing how to use a knife and a fork, young people standing when older people enter the room, asking ladies to go through a door first, not wearing a hat or cap inside the house or in

Abundant Life

HEALTH PERSONALITY

By Bob Wear
MUCH IS written and said about the importance of one's personality, and most of us are interested in having a good personality, a 'healthy personality'. The Latin word, 'persona', which means 'mask', such as an actor might wear, is the word form which we have our word, personality. Of course, personality is not a mask that we put on and take off as we may wish.

WHEN WE TALK of personality, we usually have reference to the "distinction or excellence of personal and social traits", and we often mean "magnetic personal qualities". When we use the expressions 'good' personality and 'bad' personality; we are usually, in a loose and general kind of way, speaking of one's 'disposition'.

WITHOUT TRYING to settle the question about which influence, heredity or environment, has the most to do in forming the personality; we do know that much can be done to develop the kind of personality we wish to have. We do this by identifying the characteristics we need and then being diligent in our efforts to develop them. This can be done.

IT IS INTERESTING to read some of the studies being done concerning the correlation of certain personality traits with major diseases. "Adverse family attitudes were associated with later diseases, especially major forms of cancer." More broadly, good psychological health, early in life, seems to be a basis for good physical health later on.

CHARACTERISTICS of the 'healthy personality' include high self esteem, warm relationship with parents, optimistic outlook, outgoing temperament, ability to cope with stress, and a lack of morbid undertones. Much can be done to develop the 'healthy personality'.

In 1962, the first K mart store opened, in Garden City, Mich.

In 1967, U.S. Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., accused of misconduct, was denied his seat in the 90th Congress. In 1969, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that Powell had to be seated.

Weekend sports slate

A variety of high school sports take center stage this weekend for teams from Hereford.

The HHS tennis team is hosting a five-team tournament at the high school courts. Matches began at 9 a.m. today and were to continue through 6 or 7 p.m., Hereford coach Ruben Vargas said.

The tourney continues through Saturday.

The Whitefaces also have a dual golf match set with Canyon. Play will be at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course with the first tee time set between 3 and 3:30 p.m. today.

All players are scheduled to tee off on the first hole.

And there's still more.

The HHS track teams are to run in their first meet of the season on Saturday. The boys team travels to Lubbock for the Lubbock Invitational while the girls are at Dalhart for the Dalhart Relays. Boys coach Ron Young and girls coach Martha Emerson have said they expect the local teams to do well this season.

Hereford opens the 1985 baseball season Saturday at Dumas. The Whitefaces are scheduled to play at single game with the Demons beginning at 3 p.m.

Suns snap loss streak, gain new NBA respect

By The Associated Press

The Phoenix Suns, who have battled injuries and inconsistency throughout the season, emerged with a convincing decision over a longtime rival and some new-found respect.

Forward Larry Nance scored 23 points and James Edwards added 21 to lead the Suns to a 117-105 National Basketball Association victory Thursday night over the Los Angeles Lakers, snapping a five-game losing streak.

"We go two or three games where we take the left hook on the chin and then we adjust ourselves again," Lakers' Coach Pat Riley said. "It looked like there was some fatigue out there on our part. But I don't think anybody's been showing the Suns any respect."

It was Phoenix's first victory over the Pacific Division-leading Lakers in four meetings this season. The Suns, who are in a fight with Seattle for the last playoff spot in the Western Conference, are now 28-32.

76ers 127, Kings 119

Julius Erving scored 26 points and Andrew Toney added 21, including 13 in the final quarter, to lead

Philadelphia to within one game of first-place Boston in the Atlantic Division.

The Kings were led by Mike Woodson with 23 points and Eddie Johnson with 21. Moses Malone scored 23 points for Philadelphia and grabbed a game-high 15 rebounds.

Warriors 124, Trail Blazers 120

Purvis Short scored 35 points and Eric Floyd added 28 as the Warriors won for the fourth time in their last seven games. Golden State won only 11 of its first 51 games before the recent streak.

Portland, which trailed by nine points with 5½ minutes to play, pulled to within two with 2:16 left when Jim Paxson scored on a driving shot. Paxson scored 31 points, getting 23 of them in the second half.

Cavaliers 120, Sonics 95

Roy Hinson scored nine of his game-high 22 points in the decisive third quarter, giving Cleveland its fourth win in five games and fourth road triumph in a row.

The Cavaliers dominated the third quarter, opening a 19-point lead toward the close of the period. World B. Free added eight points and center Mark West, who averages three rebounds a game, grabbed 10 in the third quarter.

In the fourth quarter, Cleveland led by as many as 27 points and Seattle never got closer than 17.

AUSTIN (AP) — Look over the list of Class 5A state champions for the past six years in Texas schoolgirl basketball, and you can just about call the roll at this year's schoolgirl state basketball tournament.

All four teams are recent state champs.

Victoria, a perennial South Texas power, won in 1979; South Oak Cliff won in 1980; Lubbock Monterey took the title in 1981; and Houston Yates captured the championship in 1982.

South Oak Cliff (32-2) and Monterey (27-3) clash at 4 p.m. today in the Frank Erwin Center in Austin in one 5A semifinal, with Yates (27-0) and Victoria (29-6) clashing at 8 p.m. The two winners will battle at 7:15 p.m. Saturday for the championship.

In today's other state tournament games, both in Class 2A, Abernathy and Honey Grove were scheduled to meet in one semifinal at 9:30 a.m., followed at 11 a.m. by Seymour and Troy. Abernathy won the 3A state championship last year, but was dropped to 2A this season.

In Thursday's first day of action in the tournament, Nazareth and Priddy advanced to the Class A title match. Nazareth marched closer to its seventh state title in eight years by beating Snook 50-32 for its 68th straight victory. Priddy advanced to the state finals for the second straight year by edging Petty West Lamar, 53-51, in overtime.

In the Class 3A semifinals, Vernon rallied from a five-point deficit in the fourth quarter to defeat Midlothian 59-54, while Sweeney led from the start in beating Boerne 63-41.

Defending state champ Waco Richfield and Sweetwater advanced to the Class 4A finals. Richfield extended its winning streak to 63 games by waiting past Fredericksburg 56-32, while Sweetwater eliminated Livingston, 49-42.

Not counting their recent state championships, the four Class 5A tournament teams have other similarities, says South Oak Cliff's first-year coach, Garry Beveridge.

"Yates is the only one with real size. The rest of us depend on the press and defense."

The Monterey-South Oak Cliff match-up will pair teams with similar full-court pressing defenses.

Monterey has created an average of 29 turnovers in four playoff games. Two juniors, 5-8 Laura Supak and 5-9

Kira Morgan, and 5-8 senior Allison Taylor have led the attack. Supak has averaged 18 points a game, Morgan 11.8 and Taylor 11.4

SOC's Lady Bears have a balanced 10-deep roster headed by senior Rhonda Biggs and sophomore Chandra Dismuke.

Victoria lost to South Oak Cliff earlier in the season, but Beveridge noted "it was so close, it never got more than five points apart either way. I don't think it will give either team an advantage now."

Beveridge added, "We feel good about our chances. Yates is the only team with height, at 6-2 and 6-0 inside. But we've learned to play against that. There isn't any reason why we aren't in as good a shape as anyone to win it."

In home opener tonight

Flutie, Generals look for win

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The transplanted Renegades expect to have their hands full in containing Doug Flutie and his New Jersey Generals in Orlando's home debut in the United States Football League tonight.

The Renegades, who showed a porous defense and punchless offense in a crushing 35-7 opening-week loss to the Tampa Bay Bandits, are prepared for a scrambling, gambling Flutie as a result of his strong second-half effort in the General's 38-28 loss to Birmingham last Sunday.

"We expect him to roll out more. We've worked on a few defenses to hopefully contain him," said Renegades defensive end Scott Hutchinson.

The Generals actually have three good running backs in Flutie, Herschel Walker and Maurice Carthon, the Renegades believe.

Flutie wants to play more aggressively against Orlando than in his regular-season debut against the Stallions. The 1984 Heisman Trophy winner out of Boston College doesn't want to be trailing "by 20 points or have to wait until the fourth quarter to get cranked up," he said in practice this week.

Coach Lee Corso of the Renegades, formerly the Washington Federals, will start Jerry Golsteyn, who completed 25 of 43 passes for 231 yards last week despite eight sacks by the Bandits.

In this weekend's only Saturday contest, Los Angeles visits Portland in a night game. On Sunday, it's Arizona at San Antonio, Denver at Birmingham, Houston at Tampa Bay and Baltimore at Oakland. Memphis plays at Jacksonville Monday night.

Both the Express and Breakers hope to bounce back from close opening-day losses in their Western Conference game Saturday night.

In its second straight home game, San Antonio is looking for its first win in the contest with Arizona. The Gunslingers were beaten by Memphis 20-3 last Monday night.

Denver has beaten Birmingham twice in three meetings over the past two seasons. Birmingham is coming off its victory over the Generals. The Gold lost to Oakland 31-10 last week.

Kelly completed 35 of 54 passes for five touchdowns in his 574-yard day. In its opening victory over Orlando, Tampa Bay set a club record of 239 yards rushing.

In hosting the defending USFL champion Stars at the Oakland Coliseum, the Invaders hope to continue their domination in their series. They have beaten the Stars in all three previous meetings.

In winning their home opener against the Gold last week, the Invaders scored their most points since June 4, 1983 when they beat New Jersey 34-21. The Stars lost to Jacksonville 22-14 last week.

Houston shootout roundup

Bad attitude overcome by tennis player

HOUSTON (AP) — Kevin Curren is unhappy with his tennis game, even though he's coming off a victory on the World Championship Tennis tour at Toronto last week.

"I'm not happy with my mental attitude. That's been my biggest problem throughout my career. I don't always play to my potential," he said. "I had a terrible attitude going into this match tonight," Curren said after ousting Paul Annacone 6-4, 7-6 (8-6) in the WCT's Houston Shootout.

"I was lazy. I missed little drop shots; I missed easy volleys. Sometimes I play too conservatively. I've got the capability to make good shots, but instead of going for a tough passing shot, I'll lob."

Curren added, "Also, I have a tendency to think about matches ahead of me, and that's the wrong approach. I'm playing just well enough to get by."

Among the opponents he must get by here is John McEnroe, who breezed with Curren into the quarterfinals by eliminating Tom Gullickson 6-4, 6-3.

In other second-round singles matches Thursday, sixth-seeded Brad Gilbert earned the right to play McEnroe in tonight's quarterfinals by defeated David Tate 6-4, 6-2;

Baseball's financial difficulty

Owners agree to show-and-tell

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Lee MacPhail, baseball's chief labor negotiator, can remember a time not long ago when club owners wouldn't even have considered opening their books to the players' union.

"I was saying to somebody the other day that four or five years ago you wouldn't have found one club willing to do that," MacPhail says. "Today, there is near unanimity." That "near unanimity" appears to be a sign that times have changed in baseball. Owners today are convinced the game is in such severe financial trouble that they are willing to plead poverty in their contract talks with players.

In order to plead poverty, however, the owners must prove it. And the only way they can do that is by showing the union their financial reports.

"I don't see any problems," Boston Red Sox executive vice president and general manager Haywood Sullivan said. "If that's what it takes to get things straightened out, the owners might as well go ahead and do it."

MacPhail, who became head of baseball's Player Relations Committee in 1984 after 10 years as American League president, said Thursday that he couldn't be specific about team finances "before we talk to the union about it."

However, MacPhail said, "just the fact that clubs are willing to do this" should show that there are economic problems. He said financial disclosure is "not a very pleasant task for the clubs."

The owners made their decision to open the books on Wednesday, calling for a break in contract talks until the economic issue can be solved. MacPhail said that when the two sides next met on Tuesday in West Palm Beach, Fla., they would exchange ideas on how to proceed.

"I'm not exactly sure how we're going to do this, but I think whatever way we decide will be time consuming, complicated and there will be problems with it," MacPhail said.

"But I think the overall problem is big enough and serious enough, it should not be hard to establish the existence of a problem."

Undaunted Couples fires 63, grabs lead

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer
CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — The level of competition on the PGA Tour is such, said Peter Jacobsen, that caution no longer has a place.

"Fear is leaving the Tour," he said after a solid, 6-under-par 66 Thursday in the first round of the $500,000 Honda Classic golf tournament.

"Nobody has fear any more. You have to go right at the pin on every shot. If you don't, you're gone," Jacobsen said.

The point was illustrated a few hours later when Fred Couples attacked the Tournament Players Club at Eagle Trace with six consecutive birdies and a course-record, 9-under-par 63 that put him two strokes ahead of the field.

"Maybe (in the final round) on Sunday it would be different. Maybe you'd be a little more conservative," Couples admitted.

"But this was one of those days where you just hit a shot, hit another shot, make a putt and try to keep it going, try to get as much as you can. You just go right at the pin. There's no pressure and not much to worry about."

Couples, in fact, was so unconcerned he said he was unaware he had strung birdies from his 12th through 17th holes.

The burst, in ideal playing conditions, temperatures in the upper 70s with very little wind — put him two in front of Willie Wood, alone at 65, the previous course record.

Tied at 66, 6-under par, with Jacobsen were Hubert and Ken Green, who are not related.

The group at 67 included Nick Faldo of England, Dave Barr of Canada, Curtis Strange and Jim Simons.

Jack Nicklaus had a 70 that left him seven shots back. U.S. Open champ Fuzzy Zoeller shot a 71. British Open titleholder, Seve Ballesteros of Spain and Honda defending champ Bruce Lietzke matched par 72. Masters champ Ben Crenshaw was another stroke higher at 73.

THE LONG STICK
NEW YORK (AP) — "The guy is awesome," was the summation of the star Russian pole vaulter, Sergei Bubka, by United States vaulter Billy Olson.

Olson was referring to the fact that Bubka uses a 17-foot stick to do his vaulting. And to get that kind of body leverage he needs, the Soviet athlete places his hands 16 feet, 9½ inches up the pole. That's almost a foot more than the average vaulter.

Bill would increase penalties for weapons

AUSTIN (AP) — The state Senate has approved a measure described by its sponsor as designed to "deter the violence that has led to 29 deaths and more than 450 injuries" in the Texas prison system since January 1984.

Sponsor J.E. "Buster" Brown was trying to respond to "what is rapidly becoming — if it is not already — the most dangerous prison system in the United States, if not the free world," Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said after the Senate passed the bill Thursday.

The measure would make it a third-degree felony for prison inmates to possess a "deadly weapon," which Brown said would cover weapons fashioned from rulers, eating utensils and other items.

Currently, possession of a handgun, illegal knife or club is a misdemeanor, punishable at most by one year in a county jail. A third-degree felony calls for a prison sentence of up to 10 years.

A bill the Senate approved previously would stack a sentence for a crime committed in prison on top of the convict's current sentence.

Brown, R-Lake Jackson, said his bill "is designed to send a message to people in the penitentiary that it (carrying a deadly weapon) would be a felony offense and would be prosecuted."

Asked if he thought the measure could deter prison violence, Brown replied, "That's correct, that's correct."

Brooks said it might be easy for a "sophisticated" convict to plant a "shiv" in another convict's mattress if he wanted that inmate punished. But Brown said his bill did not change the law on possession and that the inmate would have to be carrying the weapon.

The bill was sent to the House on voice vote.

In other legislative issues, a bill introduced by Sen. Lindon Williams, D-Houston, would benefit the Texas Civil Air Patrol, which was credited with saving 21 lives last year.

The Texas Wing of the Air Patrol includes 3,000 volunteers, and owns about 25 aircraft and 40 vehicles. Williams' bill would allow the Air Patrol to acquire surplus state property and exempt its emergency vehicles from registration fees. The measure was sent to the House 27-0.

House members also passed and sent to the governor a Senate bill that would establish a Texas Cancer Council.

House members tentatively approved a bill that sponsor Lloyd Criss, D-La Marque, said could keep companies from having to lay off employees. If companies needed to cut production, Criss said, they could do so but still retain all their employees.

For example, if production needed to be cut by 20 percent, workers would work only four days a week. On the fifth day, employees would be able to draw unemployment benefits, he said.

California, which implements this program, saves $16 per week per employee, Criss said. A final House vote is needed to send the bill to the Senate.

The House also tentatively approved a Senate bill that specifies how much money school districts with fewer than 1,600 students can get by revising state attendance provisions.

Without a change, small districts stand to lose $17 million, according to House debate. Opponents of the bill say it discourages schools from consolidating, which would save money.

The Senate also approved and sent to the House proposals that would:

— Require a county officer who receives county funds to deposit them with the treasurer by no later than the next business day. The bill also would allow county treasurers to collect fees for hot checks.

— Direct the Legislative Task Force on Cancer to report to the 1987 Legislature on state agency efforts at implementing 47 task force recommendations.

— Put the Legislature on record as standing in "solidarity" with Soviet Jewry. Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, said Soviet policies have slowed the emigration of Soviet Jews from 5,000 in 1979 to 896 last year. According to Uribe's resolution, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights "identifies the right to emigrate as one of the fundamental human rights."

— Direct the Texas Department of Health to report to the 1987 Legislature on the success of a statewide cancer registry, which is designed to collect better statistical data on cancer.

— Allow the Austin-Travis County Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center to lease for $1 a year six acres of state land, which would provide a permanent location for the center's Infant Parent Training Program. The program currently serves 200 disabled infants a year.

— Make pipe purchased from foreign countries subject to the state use tax.

MERCED, Calif. (AP) — Despite a seven-year kidnapping ordeal that ended five years ago today, Steven Stayner is described by his parents as a "fairly normal" and "just a typical" teenager. Delbert and Kay Stayner admit that Steven, now 19, has his troubles. He ran up $1,100 in traffic fines, lost his driver's license and now is working off his penalties raking leaves and splitting wood for Merced County. Steven's kidnapper, Kenneth Parnell, 53, is scheduled to be paroled from state prison April 9 after serving five years and one month behind bars — less time than the boy was away from his family. When Steven was whisked from a city street Dec. 4, 1972, while walking home from school, his abductor — a drifter and ex-convict — told the 7-year-old boy his parents didn't want him because they couldn't afford him, the Stayners learned later. A social worker who is recognized as an authority on young victims compared the boy's relationship with Parnell to that of a prisoner of war, a dependent brainwashing victim who was forced by circumstance to live a new life.

Parents mark anniversary of kidnapped boy's return

"If you believe you have no alternative, you just learn to live with it," said Lucy Berliner of the sexual assault center at Harbor View Medical Center in Seattle. "Your sense of right and wrong, your sense of reality gets distorted, essentially for the purposes of survival." Steven, the middle child of five, returned to his family at 14 and attended high school for four years. Now he takes two welding courses at Merced College and lives at home in a middle-class subdivision in this city 130 miles southeast of San Francisco. Although he has refused interviews for the last year, his parents agreed to talk to a reporter. "He never got in one full semester that was uninterrupted," said Kay Stayner, recalling two trials, book offers and unrealized plans for a movie when Steven was in high school. "I am not really surprised that he didn't make it through," Mrs. Stayner said of her son, who earned a graduation-equivalent diploma. Steven, she said, had to confront "some of the kids making comments about him" as a result of publicity about his kidnapping ordeal. Steven, who was renamed Dennis Parnell during his odyssey, had "lots of freedom" with his kidnapper as they roamed across Northern California — smoking cigarettes at 10, drinking whiskey in the sixth grade and discovering marijuana; his parents said. Maintaining her characteristic calm, Mrs. Stayner admitted that she was "furious" about the sexual abuse inflicted on her son by Parnell, whose first imprisonment at age 19 was for molesting an 8-year-old boy. "You can't take it back," she said quietly. "Steve will just have to learn to live with it and build his own life without that getting in his way. He's making headway." Merced County District Attorney Pat Hallford, who prosecuted the Stayner kidnapping, originally wanted Parnell charged with sex crimes, but eventually Parnell was tried only for the abductions of Stayner and Timmy White, 5. On March 1, 1980, Steven took Timmy, whom Parnell had kidnapped two weeks earlier, to the police station in Ukiah, 200 miles north of Merced, to save Timmy from his own fate. Parnell was preparing to move to Arkansas with both boys, the Stayners said.

On two fronts

Billionaires pressed

DALLAS (AP) — The embattled Hunt brothers, reportedly faced by $4 billion in paper losses from businesses gone sour, have been accused of illegally trying to drive up the price of silver when they bought 100 million ounces of bullion five years ago. The federal Commodity Futures Trading Commission on Thursday accused Nelson Bunker Hunt, Herbert W. Hunt and several other individuals and companies of the illegal manipulations during late 1979 and early 1980. The Hunts have denied any wrongdoing. The Hunts bought up silver through a variety of transactions in the futures markets, sending the price skyrocketing, then tried to evade regulatory actions when the price began to tumble, the commission said. The Hunts ended up borrowing $1.1 billion to cover their losses. On Thursday a Hunt International Resources Corp. official confirmed that paychecks for some employees had bounced. That was only the latest in a series of financial embarrassments for the family, which has suffered massive oil and commodities losses. Hunt International, one of three companies controlled by the two Hunt brothers, disclosed in a Securities and Exchange Commission filing last week that it is in default on $295 million in loans, is unlikely to be able to repay it all and has a negative net worth of $112 million. And the Internal Revenue Service is seeking $238 million in back taxes and interest in a dispute primarily over the silver trading, according to tax court documents filed by Nelson Hunt, his family and a family-controlled partnership. In its five-year investigation of the silver debacle, the commodity commission traveled overseas and tracked a "complex trading pattern," said spokeswoman Kathleen W. Hathaway in Washington.

0164 (p)1985 by NEA, Inc.

Although many of the allegations have been aired in earlier legal proceedings and congressional hearings, the civil administrative complaint is the first formally lodged in the case by the federal agency that oversees futures trading. It sets off administrative proceedings that could lead to a civil fine of $100,000 on each of dozens of specific alleged trading transactions. The defendants also could be barred from trading in commodities futures. The Hunt brothers had not seen the complaint but on the basis of the commission news release, "the thrust of those allegations are baseless," said Walter Roach, general counsel of Hunt Energy Inc. "The Hunts will defend themselves and will be ultimately vindicated," he said. "All of the activities were totally above-board and within the spirit and letter of all applicable laws and regulations." The Hunts invested heavily in silver in the 1970s as the price climbed from $2 an ounce in 1972 to a high of $52.50 in 1980. The market crashed March 27, 1980, falling to $11 an ounce. More recent Hunt investments in farm and ranch land, oil exploration and commodities such as sugar and silver have soured. Their paper losses were estimated by the Wall Street Journal recently at more than $4 billion.
