Officers Of Newest Club

Optimists Receive Charter, Plan Local 'Boys Workshop'

The Big Spring Optimist Club was chartered Friday evening in the firm hope it is not just another club but a "boys workshop." Charles T. Boyle, Dallas, governor of Optimist International's fastest growing district (No. 7), handed the charter to Dr. James E. Whitney, president, with the prediction "Big Spring will be better because of this Optimist Club." Approximately 125 people in the Settles ballroom witnessed the charter presentation and the installation of officers by Carl Cahen of San Angelo. The club has 24 charter members and Boyle urged a concerted campaign to enlist others who are interested in boys work.

Gifts came from other clubs in this district—the parent San Angelo Club, headed by Dr. Scott Martin, furnished the gavel and bell; the district, represented by Lt. Gov. John Grimland, Midland, gave a banner; and Odessa, Snyder, Sweetwater and Abilene combined to give song books, membership buttons, attendance cards and the Optimist plaque. Cliff Ferguson, Odessa, made the presentation. The new organization was welcomed officially to the city by Mayor G. W. Dabney. Boyle told the group Optimists were not competing with other clubs; rather in majoring on boys work it was picking the part it wanted to do—and he hoped to do well. "We are a working organization," he reminded new Optimists. "You have been slow to start but you are going now—and going strong." Entertainment was provided by the Mighty Knights, a male quartet from the Barber Shop singers and composed of Edd Johnson, Bob Clark, Jack Wise, Kerry Kicklighter, Fred Becker, San Angelo, was master of ceremonies and Charles Butts gave the invocation. More than 30 members and wives from Odessa, Midland, San Angelo, Abilene, Sweetwater and

Snyder were present. Presidents of the other service clubs in Big Spring, Dan Krause (Rotary), John Taylor (Jaycees), Larson Lloyd (Lions), Leroy Olask (Kiwanis) J. B. Wington (ABC Club) were guests. Besides Dr. Whitney, other officers were Joe Bunch and Bill Estes, vice presidents; Frank Franklin, secretary-treasurer; Cecil Thixton, sergeant-at-arms; Lt. Robert Hall, chaplain; Kenneth Huff, historian; Lloyd Wooten, Charles Lusk, Herbert Vinson, Charles Butts, directors. Other charter members were V. T. Anderson, Z. M. Boykin, Mervil Click, Earl Culppepper, James O. Forbes, Ralph Fox, Leo Harris, Jack Kimble, Charles Lusk, Cecil McDonald, Hubert Morris, R. D. Nicholson, W. D. Peters, J. Paul Price, J. W. W. C. Ragsdale To Mark 92nd Birthday Today

A frontiersman whose recollections extend back to the War Between the States will mark his 92nd birthday here today. He is W. C. Ragsdale, father of G. C. Ragsdale and W. C. Ragsdale Jr. of Big Spring. Mr. Ragsdale will spend the day quietly at his sons' homes. A two-candle cake and visits from friends are to highlight the occasion. The oldster was born May 22, 1863, in Ringgold, Ga., and was but two years of age when Gen. Sherman made his march to the sea. Mr. Ragsdale recalls the "march" and being evacuated with his mother and older brother aboard a cattle train to West Point, Ga., along with other refugees.

One of the last battles of the war occurred a few days later at West Point. Bud Ragsdale's uncle, Maj. William Camp of the Rebel forces, lost his eyesight in the clash with Union forces. Neither the soldiers nor the refugees knew that Gen. Robert E. Lee had surrendered his forces 12 days earlier. The Ragsdale family emigrated to Texas in 1872, making the trip by rail and side-wheel steamer by way of New Orleans and Galveston, finally settling in Dallas. Later, they moved to Fort Worth, then Weatherford and finally Palo Pinto where Mr. Ragsdale now maintains his permanent residence. After the family moved to Palo Pinto, Ragsdale—by then a young man—decided to take a look at the Texas Frontier, and worked for the Rock Island and Fort Worth Ranch in the Pandhandle, and later for the Rock Island and Fort Worth & Denver railroads.

He returned to Palo Pinto in 1890 and married Miss Ida Alice Abernathy, who had come to Texas from Alabama. They observed their 61st wedding anniversary shortly before her death in Mineral Wells in 1951. Mr. Ragsdale worked as a compressor engineer in Texas and Oklahoma after his marriage and it was during this period that he became an inventor. One of his major patents covered a wire buckle for fastening bales of compressed cotton. The device still is in use.

A long-time member of the Primitive Baptist Church, he keeps up with current events and enjoys his radio and television. One of his favorite pastimes is dominoes, which he can play with the best. A visitor in the Ragsdale home is apt to find himself challenged to a game before he's around very long. Mr. Ragsdale said he confines such recreation strictly to home games, however. In addition to his sons here, Mr. Ragsdale has a daughter, Mrs. David Fant of Watsonville, Calif., and another son, Charles A. Ragsdale of Fort Worth. Three other children are deceased.

Dentist Is Shot, Wounded Resisting Attempted Holdup

LAREDO, Tex., May 21 (AP)—Dr. Shannon T. Peterson was shot and wounded today in what police described as an attempted robbery in the dentist's fifth floor downtown office.

Also wounded and in a serious condition was James Wilson, 32-year-old Negro, reportedly from New York City. He was shot once in the chest. Peterson was shot three times in the stomach. He was taken to Mercy Hospital where his condition was reported good. Police Capt. Tom Gallagher said Wilson called Peterson at home and asked for an emergency tooth extraction. Peterson and his wife, who had planned to go to their ranch, came downtown. Peterson went upstairs to his office while Mrs. Peterson remained downstairs in a drug store. Exact details were not available as both men were unconscious.

worked with Peterson; entered the office as the two men struggled on the floor. Hollier, aided by a janitor, subdued Wilson. Police believe Peterson, a big, husky man, resisted robbery after his wallet had been taken from him at gun point. Gallagher said the wallet was found on Wilson.

The police chief said Wilson came here from Mexico City and pawned a watch at a Laredo shop yesterday. He said Wilson had served five years in Massachusetts for armed robbery.

500 See New Guard Armory Dedicated

Approximately 500 persons visited the new armory of Battery B of the 132nd Field Artillery Battalion during an open house and dedication ceremony Saturday.

Speakers were Mayor G. W. Dabney, Chamber of Commerce manager J. H. Greene, Col. C. M. Young, commanding officer of Webb AFB; Col. Ross Ayers, commanding officer of the 132nd Battalion of the Texas State National Guard; and Maj. Fred Tupper, Army instructor for the battalion. Capt. T. A. Harris, local commander, introduced the speakers and Rev. Virgil K. Drewery, pastor of the Vincent Baptist Church, gave the invocation. Then, refreshments were served and the 65 men and seven officers of Battery B gave a demonstration of the unit's ability with the 105 howitzers. A complete demonstration was performed. The guests were invited to inspect the new installation with the Guardsmen acting as guides.

prepare for peace, not war. Harris then thanked all who had helped in the work for the new armory and pointed out Greene as primarily responsible. Greene told the celebrants that the Chamber of Commerce was established to help everyone in the city to help themselves. He said the Chamber tries to cooperate with all organizations in their endeavors. Ayers and Tupper both expressed their appreciation to the citizens of Big Spring for cooperating with the development of the Battery here. Then Young said he was proud to be a member of a community where young men would voluntarily spend their time learning to protect their country. He pointed out that in many parts of the nation, the Army could not get volunteers. He pledged the support of Webb AFB to the local Battery and asked that the audience encourage young men to join the Texas National Guard.

Mayor Dabney congratulated the unit on its new home and pointed out that it had been long without one. He cautioned the men to

Legal Battle Brews Over Giles Trial Delay Attempt

SAN ANTONIO, May 21 (AP)—A legal battle was brewing today over defense efforts to postpone against the bribery trial of former Land Commissioner Dascom Giles, highest Texas ex-official ever indicted on alleged criminal actions in public office.

Biggest question is an undisclosed motion planned by the defense when the case is called in Judge M. D. Jones' Criminal District Court Monday.

If the motion is for continuance on grounds that a member of the Legislature has been employed as counsel for the defense, it would appear the state would be without ammunition to fight it.

In such an instance, law requires an automatic postponement until 30 days after the close of the Legislature.

On any other basis, the state is reliably reported prepared to oppose vigorously any further delay in the trial originally set for April 11 and postponed once at defense request until Monday.

Giles, sturdy 6-foot-2 wealthy land holder, is charged here on three counts—two on consenting to accept a bribe and one on accepting a bribe—in a veterans land program deal in Bexar County. The amount is alleged at $30,000.

Giles' indictment is the most dramatic development from the far-flung state and county investigations into the veterans land program Giles fathered and administered as its chairman from its creation.

In all, 278 indictments have been returned in eight counties against 15 persons since the investigations flared last November. Eighteen civil suits have also been filed by the attorney general seeking recovery of $2,185,000 paid by the state to 34 individual promoters and three corporations in allegedly fraudulent transactions.

The bribery charges against Giles came two months after he stepped down Jan. 1—amidst the stir of the inquiries—from the land commissioner's post he held 16 consecutive years.

At 54, he left the top land job in much the same atmosphere of scandal and suspicion in which he found it in 1939. Land vacancy "raiders" had rocked the office prior to his election. Clearing them up had been one of his first major undertakings.

The state has announced it will ask the maximum 10-year penalty in the bribery case against Giles.

The two Bexar County land dealers charged with offering the bribe, C. V. Wynn and Arthur McKenzie, are expected to turn state's evidence in exchange for light or suspended sentences in their case, Asst. Dist. Atty. James Olson has indicated there has been such an agreement.

A new defense co-counsel hired by Giles, Fred Seman, said flatly this week Giles will not go to trial Monday.

Seman said he would have two motions to present the court. One, he said, would be based on grounds the defense is not ready since Seman has only just been hired. He refused to say what the other motion would be.

The secrecy on the second motion led to speculation the defense had hired or was trying to hire a member of the Legislature for mandatory continuance.

Another defense attorney, Clint Small Jr., said "several" legislators are "associated" with the case and "might" be used as basis for such a motion.

Nevertheless, the defense took steps apparently to assure having some witnesses ready if immediate trial is ordered. Subpoenas were issued for Atty. Gen. John Ben Shepperd and Dennis Wallace, chief clerk of the General Land Office, to appear Monday. Wallace was instructed to bring along all minutes of the Veterans Land Board and the School Land Board for 1953.

Shepperd, along with Gov. Allan Shivers, was a member of the Veterans Land Board while Giles served as its chairman.

The bribe is alleged to have been offered and accepted in connection with the sale of a 663-acre tract of Bexar County land to 32 veterans under the state veterans land program in early 1954. The state claims Giles was to "act, vote and render judgment" favorable to the land sale as his part of an alleged agreement with the land sellers, Wynn and McKenzie.

Payment was said to have been made on May 22, 1954, in the form of four cashier's checks totaling $30,000, allegedly one-half the profit on the sale.

The state has also filed civil suit against Giles to recover the alleged bribe, which the civil action claims to be $35,000. The civil suit cites an alleged $5,000 personal check not included in the criminal suit.

Giles is also under indictment in Travis County on a charge of conspiring with a West Texas land dealer to commit theft of $83,500 in state funds in another veterans land transaction. A civil suit also seeks recovery of that money.

Giles has filed denials of all the state's charges and claims.

A member of an old and well-to-do Texas family, Giles had first gone to work in the land office as a draftsman in 1919 after finishing high school. He remained there continuously until last Jan. 1, except for one brief break in his employment prior to his first election.

He built his fortune in Austin real estate which included construction of more than 700 homes and a big shopping center where he maintains a business office. Recently he also acquired some 9,000 acres of Minnesota ranch lands.

An active church worker, Giles was once grand master of the Masonic Lodge in Texas. He long aspired to become governor of Texas.

Nationalists Won't Be Bound By Big 4 Ruling

TAIPEI, Formosa, May 21 (AP)—The Nationalist Premier said today all Formosa remains determined to recover the mainland, will not accept a cease-fire, will not give up offshore islands and will not be bound by any Big Four agreement "affecting our interests."

Premier O. K. Yui spoke to a press conference of 40 foreign and Chinese newsmen.

Over on the mainland, V. K. Krishna Menon, foreign policy adviser to India's Prime Minister Nehru, took a plane for New Delhi after winding up talks with Red China's top officials believed to have dealt with the Formosan situation. Peiping radio quoted him as saying "we can look forward with hope."

There were unconfirmed reports that Menon had proposed as the basis of U.S.-Red China negotiations that Chiang Kai-Shek waive all claims on the mainland and give up the offshore islands of Quemoy and the Matsu.

The United States has expressed willingness to talk with Red China about a cease-fire in Formosa Strait—a proposal which Red Premier Chou En-lai also says is unacceptable.

Sen. George Urges Keeping Air Bases

WASHINGTON, May 21 (AP)—Sen. George (D-Ga.) said today the United States must not give up European air bases or reduce its military strength there despite any "bold move" by Russia to erect a neutral zone between East and West.

George, who heads the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told newsmen there are "no present circumstances under which we can afford to give up our air bases or decrease our forces in Europe."

Replying to critics who have said Russia's prime objective at any top-level, Big Four conference would be to dissipate American military strength in Europe, George said:

"I don't think we can give up anything at this time or rest on our oars in any way. We can't let our guard down now. No proposal Russia makes should affect our military efforts until we have had time to see some real change in the world situation."

Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, has contended that the Soviets are aiming at "neutralizing" a belt of countries across Europe from Yugoslavia to Scandinavia.

George, first in this country to call for a "summit" conference between President Eisenhower and the heads of Britain, France and Russia, said he has no doubt the Russians will come forward with "a very bold program" at such a meeting.

"They will probably have a new disarmament proposal," he said. "They are likely to suggest the creation of a neutral zone between East and West."

"They may even propose that the United States, Britain and France on one side guarantee the neutrality of a dividing zone, while they guarantee it on the other. We should be prepared for some unusually bold proposals from them."

George said he doesn't believe these proposals need be "disturbing" to the West, but he conceded that any move toward neutralization might appeal to some factions in Western Germany and would be

Spurned Suitor Kills Pretty Housewife, Ends Own Life

WEST NEW YORK, N. J., (AP)—A beautiful young housewife, expecting a second child in a week, entered a store at dinner time yesterday to buy fish for supper.

Outside walked a man who had been refused when he asked her to marry him in 1950. Unknown to her, he had lived nearby more than four months.

Minutes later, Mrs. Joan Empson, 25, was lying dead on the floor and Alfred T. Carpenter, 35, Hollis, N. Y., had ended his life with the same pistol.

An emergency Caesarian operation by a doctor with a butcher knife failed to save the baby.

Carpenter's body was found in his rented furnished room around the corner from the store.

Near his body were a diary, recording in detail the activities of Mrs. Empson and her husband, William, 29, an insurance underwriter; and a pair of field glasses which police believe were used to watch her movements.

Although the room was within sight of the Empson home, relatives said she was not aware he was in the neighborhood. She had not seen him since 1950 when she married her husband.

Police said Carpenter, a salesman, met the victim in 1948 when all three were employed by St. Paul's Fire and Marine Insurance Co. in Manhattan.

He wanted to marry her, authorities said, and when she spurned his love, annoyed her and on several occasions followed her home.

He was dismissed from the company about the time of the marriage.

Police gave this account of the shooting:

Mrs. Empson was bending over a frozen food locker when Carpenter entered the store. He pulled out a pistol and fired two shots at her head. She spun around and dropped to the floor.

Carpenter then fired two more shots into Mrs. Empson's body, ran across the street to his room, and killed himself with a bullet through the head.

County 4-H Club To Map Program At Tuesday Meet

Many of the future plans for the Howard County 4-H Club will be discussed at the meeting of that organization Tuesday in the County Court room. The meeting is to begin at 8 p. m. for all club members and their parents.

J. P. Taylor, the new Howard County Agent, plans to discuss most of the coming events of the club and become better acquainted with the membership. The annual 4-H Club Rodeo is one of the events on the Tuesday agenda. Taylor predicts that it will be one of the best ever due to the increased interest in junior rodeos in the past few years. An election of the adult 4-H Club committee and adult sponsors will be held, Taylor added. For this reason, it is very important that parents attend the Tuesday meeting. All members planning to feed pigs for the Fall Pig Show should be on hand as plans will be made to locate and place animals in the hand of the feeders within the next two weeks. The Sears Pig Program will also be discussed and boys interested in obtaining a good animal will be able to enroll in the program. The lamb feeding program will be expanded so that more of the larger shows will have Howard County entries. At the Tuesday meeting, plans will be made to contact everyone interested in feeding lambs so that adequate plans can be made, Taylor said. Also, some good steers have been located and good feeders will be assigned to them at the meeting, Taylor said. The stock should be just right for the big shows coming up next fall.

Legislature Wears Get-It-Done Attitude

AUSTIN, May 21 (AP)—A get-the-job-done-attitude of the part of Texas lawmakers, largely inspired by Gov. Shivers, may bring the Legislature to final decision on its toughest problem within the next two weeks.

The problem—simple to state but difficult to solve—is this: How to raise enough money to cover what the Legislature considers essential spending for the next two years. Shivers put it squarely up to the senators and representatives this week to decide quickly whether they want to finish the job now or later.

He said he realized they have been working for no pay since May 10, end of the 120-day period for which the Constitution allowed them to draw $25 a day.

If the lawmakers feel it will be too heavy a financial burden on their part to continue without pay, Shivers said they could quit now and he would cooperate in calling a special session later.

A special session would restore the legislators to $25 a day pay status.

Shivers' proposition set off a big ripple of reaction and speculation. As House and Senate members took off for the weekend, majority opinion seemed to lean heavily toward finishing the legislative job now—not later.

A common reaction was that it might be "political suicide" to force a special session. Lots of members thought such a move would cause eyebrow lifting on the part of the voters who gave their O.K. last November to boosting legislative pay from $10 to $25 a day for the first 120 days of regular sessions.

Members anxious about pet bills still awaiting final passage also are reluctant to vote for immediate termination of this session.

Shivers' special session proposal has other ramifications.

Veterans of both House and Senate interpreted the governor's special message as serving notice on potential taxpaying groups to throw their weight behind the preparation

FOE Nominates District Officers

Nominations for District No. 4 officers of the Fraternal Order of Eagles were returned at a meeting of the nomination committee in Midland Friday evening.

The slate will be presented at the district meeting in San Angelo on May 29.

Included are W. N. Cochran, Big Spring, junior past president; Joe Buttrey, Midland, chairman; J. Makoving, Pecos, vice chairman; Eudian Pease, Odessa, chaplain; Earl J. Robertson, Midland, secretary; W. T. Boadle, Big Spring, conductor; Jack Sessions, San Angelo, inside guard. The outside guard would be furnished by the home aerie.

Nominated for trustees were L. B. Cooper, Odessa, Bill Davenport, Pecos, Marvin Rayburn, San Angelo, Paul Jacoby, Midland, and Roy F. Bell, Big Spring.

Floods Predicted For Sections Of Louisiana

LAKE CHARLES, La., May 21 (AP)—The Weather Bureau today predicted "serious flooding" for sections of Southwest Louisiana, although little change was reported in some rain-swollen rivers and creeks over night.

Meteorologist Paul S. Cook in Lake Charles said a decrease in winds caused waters to stay near yesterday's levels. But winds rose rapidly today.

Judge Sympathizes With Red Victims

HUTCHINSON, Kan., May 21 (AP)—Judge Harold R. Medina of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, New York, says he has all the sympathy in the world for those who have gone through Communist brainwashing.

He said he underwent the process with protection from all the authorities in this country for nine bitter months in 1949 while presiding at a Communist trial.

Prisoners are without protection and therefore subjected to even worse treatment by the Moscow-trained forces, Medina told the Kansas Bar Assn. last night.

"Think of what they did to me," he added. "They had me to the point where I was afraid of height. I never did like height but when the chanted 'jump, jump' after Forrestal jumped, I began to feel fearful."

He referred to the late James Forrestal, former secretary of the Navy, who jumped to his death.

At one time, he said, he recessed the 1949 trial and ran for his chambers. As he did so the Communist attorneys exchanged knowing looks, he added.

AF Officer Convicted Of Assault, Pandering Charges

HOUSTON, May 21 (AP)—Lt. Shelby Bohannon has been found guilty of criminally assaulting a 15-year-old girl and pandering her charms to other Air Force officers.

The same Ellington Air Force Base court-martial board yesterday acquitted the 23-year-old Air Force officer on two other charges of assaulting and pandering the girl.

The verdict automatically goes to an appeal board. Sentence has not been pronounced.

Bohannon denied on the witness stand he pandered the girl to fellow officers or got any money in return. He elected not to testify on the assault charges.

He told the board he gambled his Air Force career on the verdict.

"Major Dean Delfield (the trial prosecutor) notified me I would resign my commission and the charges would be dropped," the blond, crew-cut officer said.

"But I decided to take a chance on a trial. I made that decision myself."

The board deliberated two hours on finding Bohannon guilty of statutory assault on the girl, then 14, last Aug. 27 in a moving car. It also convicted him of enticing the girl to engage in prostitution with other Ellington lieutenants. Bohannon was acquitted of charges of attacking the girl on Aug. 29 and of taking money she made from dates with from eight to 10 officers.

NO LASTING VICTORY Soaking Rains Help Farmers, Ranchers Whip Drought

Soaking rains this week enabled Southwest farmers and ranchers to win a battle with the drought in the age-old war in which there are no lasting victories. The downpour soaked wind-swept lands and brought new hope to the heart of the old Dust Bowl area of Western Kansas, Eastern Colorado, Western Oklahoma, Northeast New Mexico, and Panhandle-Plains of Texas, where drought and wind had threatened this spring to re-carve the desolation of the mid 1930's.

The rains revived stunted wheat and soaked deep into the ground to assure moisture for later crops. Parched rangelands are greening up again and stock ponds are bringing in many sectors. But the rains were not without their losses. The deluges carried off valuable top soil and washed out newly planted crops in some areas. For some farmers the rains came too late for this year's wheat.

For instance, Dallas, fearing a water shortage this summer, signed a contract with a Colorado firm to produce rain by cloud seeding. Before the rain-makers could get their equipment going, the rains started. Saturday, Lake Dallas, the city's principal water supply, was rising at the rate of six inches every five hours.

The Corpus Christi Call-Times said that what rain fell came late to alter the bleak agricultural outlook in its area. Grain sorghums, cotton, and pastures were formed as being in critical condition.

But the rains bore out the old saying that there is plenty of rainfall in the state but some sections get too much, others not enough and it doesn't come at the right time. The rains of the past week were late-years late for areas like those around Snyder, Big Spring, Lamesa and Brownfield. A few places got too much and got it too fast like the cities of Brady, Ballinger and Eastland. But the only real cries of "protest" came from far West Texas and South Texas where only light rains or none at all fell.

The Panhandle-victim of the old Dust Bowl and usually shy on moisture got a thorough drenching this week. At Borger, where over five inches had fallen by Thursday morning, the report from the Borger News Herald was "Good spirits and new hopes."

Generally rains in the Panhandle ranged from one-inch up to three inches. One of the heaviest rains was on the farm of E. C. Eberling, six miles west of Plainview, heart of the High Plains Irrigation area. Over 13 inches of rain had fallen on his farm during May, most of it the last two weeks.

"This is one time I am sick and tired of rain. I never thought I would be, but I am now," he said as he stood on his farm—in the rain. Hale County Agricultural Agent Ollie Lamer estimated it will be May 30 before most farmers can get into their fields to plant cotton.

One of the biggest benefits of the rains in Colorado is that flood waters are now replenishing lakes and reservoirs. In Southwestern Kansas, where drought and erosion had reached the critical stage, some of the rains were heavy enough to begin replenishing subsoil moisture lost during three dry years.

Although too late to save much of the wheat crop in that state, the rains will be of benefit to wheat remaining and will enable farmers to plant other crops on wheat acreage that had to be abandoned. "Best planting conditions in five years" is the way farmers are saying in the South Plains of Texas.

The Texas rains saturated the Panhandle-Plains, North, Central and East Texas, but gave little relief to far West and South Texas where drought conditions still remain critical. To the north and east of San Angelo, rains were heavy. To the west and south little fell.

There was little dryland wheat left in the Panhandle to be benefited by rains but they provided abundant moisture for dryland planting of cotton, grain sorghums and other crops. Some newly-planted cotton was washed out in the deluges that ranged up 15 inches this week.

At Snyder, jubilant farmers were busy hiring tractor drivers in preparation to getting into the fields, the Snyder Daily News said. Of the 5.75 inches received this year in Snyder at mid-week 4.51 of it had fallen in May. The Big Spring Herald found areas to the east and north of the city in fair shape and in some places excellent, but to the west and south the best that can be said is "chance." Farmers now have a sporting chance.

Where good rains fell in the San Angelo area, ranchmen have stopped feeding or are getting ready to stop it, the San Angelo Standard-Times reports. Livestock are generally in good condition throughout that area but only because of the heavy feeding that has been going on through the winter. Where there was no rain or only light rains, feeding will have to continue.

Jubilant farmers in all major Central Texas points told the Austin American-Statesmen they are "back in business." Almost the entire area received a thorough soaking. Excellent crop conditions and plenty of moisture were reported by the Sherman Democrat, the Sherman Democrat, the Marshall News-Messenger, and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Although funds in the bill now awaiting final House and Senate approval would be increased over the present operating level, the rise results primarily from a 10-cent increase in student volume, Dewey said.

Manicurist Holds Classes For Fishermen

DALLAS (AP) — Meet Henrietta Tracy—who'll trim your nails week days and teach you how to fish on Sunday.

Miss Tracy, a red-haired woman of 42, may be the only manicurist who doubles as fishing instructor. During the week she spruces up hands at the swank Hotel Adolphus barbershop here—smiling, polite and thoroughly urbane in her crisp white uniform.

Weekends, she turns into outdoorswoman extraordinary. Henrietta heads for shimmering, 142,700-acre Lake Texoma and teaches people—mostly wives and young boys—how to fish and pilot boats.

"I've always loved fishin'," says Henrietta, "ever since I was a little girl." Born on Louisiana's Cane River, near Natchitoches, she cast her first line at 6.

She went to beautiful school in Chicago and began manicuring here in the 1930s. But weekends usually found her drifting across a lake, rod and reel in hand.

Three years ago she decided there were lots of folks who wanted to learn about fishing but didn't know how to go about it. "You'd be surprised how many people don't know how to fish or run a boat right," she says.

Henrietta began her school, aiming mainly at wives tired of feeling like outcasts on hubby's fishing trips—and youngsters getting their first taste of the outdoors. She started by renting a metal boat and running it with a 3-horsepower engine she owned.

Since then, she estimates, some 100 persons have taken her course. Students come from over North and East Texas. Two weeks ago she bought a 22-foot cruiser (Miss Henri) with a 40-horsepower engine. It cost $3,000.

Henrietta runs her school this way: Friday nights, after work, she hops in her 1950 sedan and drives the 60 miles or so to Lake Texoma, which straddles the Texas-Oklahoma border north of Dallas. She has no lodge or building there, just the boat. She stocks it with tackle, bait, ice, water, etc.

Henrietta meets two groups each weekend—the first for 12 hours Saturday, the second for 12 hours Sunday. She furnishes everything except food. She says she can teach you the fundamentals of boating and fishing in three 12-hour stretches. Her charge: $15 for 12 hours, a total of $45 for the course.

"The first thing I teach 'em is how to handle a boat safely. I show them how to start the engine, steer and row. Then we go into fishing. I show 'em how to put a minnow on a hook, still fishing, casting, trolling, putting out trotlines.

"Fishing is hard work, and the secret is patience. Keep your line over the side, and don't dabble it up and down. The minnow will do the dabbin'. The best time to fish is 6-8 a.m. and 5-7 p.m. I don't know why, but I've found that they bite best then. Sometimes it's good fishing at night, between midnight and 2 a.m. The best night fishing is July and August.

Welfare Leaders Meet Tuesday

E. L. Fisher, area supervisor for the State Department of Public Welfare, has called together representatives of the local welfare agencies for a luncheon meeting at the Wagon Wheel restaurant Tuesday. Purpose of the meeting is to establish a better community organization to meet local welfare needs, Fisher said.

Guest speaker at the meeting will be Viola Stoughton, of the VA regional office from Lubbock. She will tell the group how Lubbock solved their community organization problems. Following the guest speaker, Mrs. G. G. Sawtelle will explain how the Red Cross helps the community.

Telford Durham will outline the program followed by the special services staff at the local Veteran's Administration Hospital. These explanatory lectures by the local welfare agency representatives serve to better acquaint each of the group with the other agencies.

Other persons expected to attend the meeting include Mary Cantrell, County Welfare officer; Jewell Barton, City-County Health Unit; Ina Hale, State Hospital social service department; L. L. and Mrs. Hall, Salvation Army; A. E. Long, county juvenile officer, and Christine Fagan, social rehabilitation counselor.

All interested persons are urged to attend the meeting.

Band Winners To Galveston

High school band members, winners of sweepstakes in regional competition, will be given an excursion to Galveston by the Band Boosters Club.

Two buses have been chartered. They will leave here on June 1 and return June 4. The trip is purely for fun, and no instruments will be taken. Headquarters will be the Seavall Hotel in Galveston.

The band rated first division in sight reading, concert playing and marching. It was the second in the history of the school to rate top in all three divisions.

Clyde Rowe, director, and Mrs. Rowe, Bobby Robbins, junior high director, and Mrs. Robbins, and possibly Mrs. Lee Rogers, Band Booster, and some other parents will accompany the group. There will be 66 band members aboard.

WINGS OVER BIG SPRING

Airport Location Decision Due Soon

A definite announcement about the new airport location will be made Tuesday, according to Jack Cook. He is chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Aviation Committee.

Cook said two sites for the new field are under consideration and that the final approval, or disapproval, of them would be made Tuesday by CAA officials. The site having the best chance for approval is northeast of town on the Snyder highway, Cook said.

The officials will consider the site for a safety angle, he explained. The traffic of Webb's jets and the necessary air space needed for the new municipal field will have a lot to do with the coming decision.

Stormy weather kept local aircraft grounded most of the week. Barney Edens, manager of the Municipal Airport, said. But, most of the local pilots got up in the air when the weather gave them a break.

Several transients set down here for gas during the week. Some of them had business in Big Spring, others were just passing through. Planes stopping here were from such scattered points as Lubbock, Ohio, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Midland.

There will be no Civil Air Patrol squadron in Big Spring, according to Dr. James Whitney. At least not in the very near future. Whitney has been trying to get a squadron organized here for several months, but he has received notification from Texas Wing Headquarters that no more CAP squadrons will be organized in Texas.

Reason for the action was given that the Air Force has a shortage of administrative personnel in this area. Whitney said that later on the program may be re-instated, but for the present no more organizations will be launched.

Some 20 local pilots had expressed interest in joining the squadron, Whitney said.

The Blue Angels Flying Club brought back the honors for Big Spring last Sunday from a competition match at Sweetwater. Both of the club's aircraft were taken to the air show competition which was sponsored by the Sweetwater Airport and Sweetwater squadron of the Civil Air Patrol.

One of the aircraft entered a bombing competition and snatched first place from 14 other competing crews. The winners were Walter Frazer, pilot, and Bill Schooling, bombardier. The pair had to drop one-ton sacks of sand from 1,000 feet onto the target area. Closest hit was scored by Schooling and first place went to the representatives of the Blue Angels.

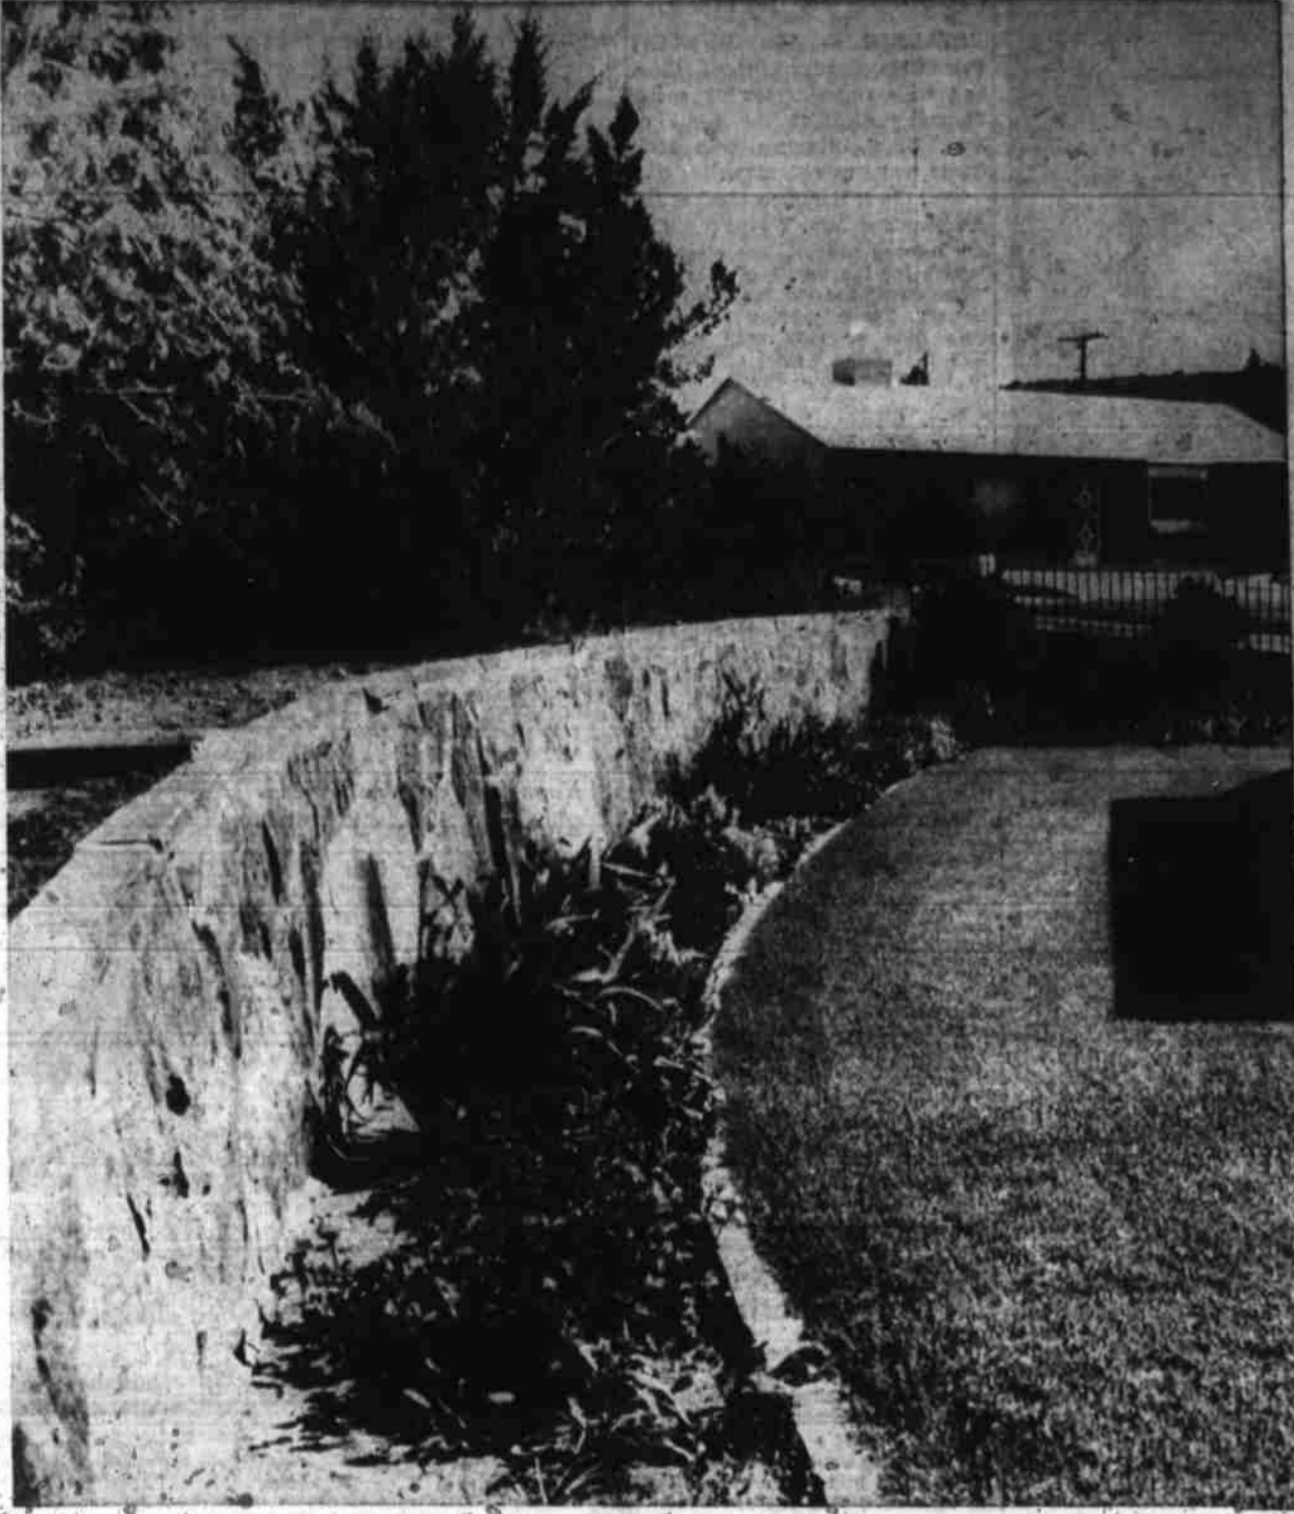

The rapidly growing club has no more immediate plans for expansion. However, the report is that if eight more men sign up for membership, another aircraft will be purchased. The club is still in need of instructors. Most of the non-flying members of the club will receive their student's tickets any day, but they need instructors to help them with "dual-flight" hours.

A RIOT OF COLOR—is the yard of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Lane, 1604 Nolan. The "visiting nook" tucked into one end of the yard is a pleasant place at any time of the day, and another one in the back yard is just as inviting. This yard is sponsored by the Spaders Garden Club.

A GARLAND OF ROSES—for the yard is blooming in the front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond River, 1509 Eleventh Place. They line the approach to the house and make a line of bright color, ranging from pale yellow to deep pink, since they are "Floradora," a rose in the floribunda family. The Planters Garden Club is the sponsor of the yard.

LITTLE BIT RESPONDS—to the call, "Come and Get It," paying no attention to the fact that she has the run of the lovely yard being shown by the Rosebud Garden Club. This garden combines hospitality with beauty, with a barbecue pit on one wall and an outdoor living room at another side. Between, there are bright flowers and smooth grass. This is the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cravens, 1801 Runnels.

'ROUND TOWN'

By LUCILLE PICKLE
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weeg and Mrs. H. R. Debenport plan to attend the graduation exercises of the Allen Academy in Bryan on May 30. Center of interest will be Jack Williamson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ross Williamson, who is Mrs. Debenport's grandson and Mrs. Weeg's nephew. He is the distinguished military man of the year and also made Phi Beta Kappa. Jack was born here and made Big Spring his home until his family moved to Fort Worth. He is also a nephew of Mrs. Ova Mae Edwards.

The Crofford Normans are to attend the graduation ceremonies of WTSTC in Canyon when her brother, Tom Langston, will receive his master's degree.

Mrs. H. G. Stinnett, Jr., of Austin, vice president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers from Region VI will participate prominently in the 50th annual convention of that organization in Chicago, May 23-25.

Many Big Spring people know Mrs. Stinnett, quite as well as she served as president of the sixth district when she resided in Plainview. She was the principal speaker at the Golden Anniversary Tea here on April 29, 1952. Even though she took a poke at the press, I still remember her charm and ability as a speaker. She was the honored guest at a breakfast the morning after the tea and many local P-TA officers enjoyed her company.

A little "tid bit" sent to the office says a little known fact is that real 100 per cent pure maple syrup is as readily obtainable in every American city and town as a pound of coffee. I've bought lots of coffee, but I can't remember seeing any pure maple syrup on any shelves here.

A couple who have the right idea on how to vacation and really enjoy it is Lt. Commander and Mrs. Don Young who are visiting here with his sister, Mrs. Gerald Oakes, and Mr. Oakes. The Navy pilot has flown all over the nation but had never had an opportunity to tour by automobile. Having recently returned from Atsuki, Japan on leave, the Youngs flew to the eastern United States, bought themselves a car and have taken a leisurely five weeks tour of the nation. They had planned to tour Europe but decided there are many places at home they hadn't seen. They will make an indefinite stay here and will be joined by Mr. and Mrs. Don Young, Sr., of Fort Worth for a weekend visit.

M-Sgt. and Mrs. Robert Lougee and their children, Christopher and Linda, after living here three years, have left for Detroit, Mich., to visit with his parents. They will leave on June 21 from New York for Belfast, Ireland, to visit with her relatives. Mrs. Lougee was employed at the State National Bank while her husband was assigned at WAFB. She and the children had visited in Ireland while they were stationed here.

When the Desk and Derrick members come back today they should have rounded out a fairly filled weekend. So as not to waste any time on the trip out to El Paso, each one packed a "doze box" lunch. To take care of the bus driver in case he forgot to eat, each one packed an extra sandwich. But he never had it so good.

Somebody flubbed, as the kids say, and no one reported about the new City Federation Officers. We flubbed because we forgot to follow up. So here they are for next year: Mrs. R. W. Whipkey, president; Mrs. K. H. McGibbon, vice president; Mrs. Don Newsum, secretary; and Mrs. G. L. Jones, treasurer.

The future Opti-Mrs. did a good job on their table decorations for the charter banquet for the Optimists Club which was held Friday night. Small vases of yard flowers were placed at vantage points about the Settles ballroom and on the tables. If the organization keeps rolling with the enthusiasm it had at this gathering it should be a good thing.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Moody are visiting with her sister, Mrs. Less Whitaker, and family in Amarillo. They also plan to visit in Dimmitt with their son, A. W. Moody, and his family before returning here Monday.

When Twila Francis Phillips was married to Doyle Wayne Tapp in Lubbock recently the two women for whom she was named, her aunt, Arah Frances Phillips, and Twila Lomax, were among the wedding guests. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Phillips, Jr., former Big Spring residents.

Others who attended the rites from here were Mrs. Tom Phillips, Mrs. Earl Phillips, Mrs. Roy Phillips, Mrs. Pat Hiney, Mrs. Betta Skalkicky and Anna Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Shepard are leaving this week for Banff, Canada for a two weeks vacation. Friends here will be interested to know of the European tour being made by Mr. and Mrs. Jed Rix of Fort Worth. They have been in Paris, but are now in Switzerland and plan to visit in Italy, Belgium, Holland, Austria and England. A card from them says that seeing Paris was worth the trip over.

No Tension Here

Lovely Teresa Wright, popular motion picture and television actress, tells Lydia Lane how she releases nervous tension. She also passes on some good suggestions for old-fashioned beauty recipes.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Special Energy Foods Are Listed By Actress

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD—That fine actress Teresa Wright is one of the busiest girls in Hollywood and I was lucky to catch her between TV shows the other day at her home in Beverly Hills.

When she brought in some tea, she served with it a plate of tempting pastries and as she reached for one with a rich almond paste filling I was prompted to ask, "You don't count calories, do you?"

"After I've been working hard, I must confess I indulge myself," she admitted. "I eat everything I want for a while until I suddenly find my belts are too tight and I begin to notice that I'm feeling up to par—than I know it's time to stop. I immediately cut out all rolls, pastries or sweets."

"It really isn't difficult for me because I know that as soon as I return to a well-balanced menu I will feel better and my clothes will fit comfortably again."

"When I'm working I concentrate on 'energy foods'." Teresa went on, "TV, especially live TV, is very strenuous. You rehearse all day and often have a show that night. I learned something interesting once when I was in stock in Phoenix. I became exhausted and had to stop and rest. The director sent me to his dressing room and told me to take a spoonful of honey which he kept on hand. I remember that very soon I felt a quick surge of energy."

"Egg yolks are wonderful energy food, too. I often mix myself what I call an energy cocktail—it's made with orange juice, egg yolks and honey."

"I'm a great believer in breathing exercises," she volunteered. "When we are under tension we often breathe improperly and at such a time, taking a few minutes out for a few deep breaths will release tension and give us a fresh supply of energy."

"Many times I've walked away from a difficult scene and come back surprisingly refreshed by doing just that."

"Just exactly how do you do this?" I wanted to know.

"I get the best results by stretching up to the ceiling, pulling my body upward as far as I can until I can actually feel my spine elongate. As I stretch upward, I inhale, fill my lungs to capacity and hold this breath for a count of ten. Then with an exaggerated exhale I bend down to the floor, letting my spine go as limp as possible. I try to do this in front of an open window or door as it's better to get fresh air."

"There isn't anyone who doesn't need to know how to release tension," I remarked, "and it seems like a quick and easy way to do it."

"If everyone would take time at least once a day to do some breathing exercises, most people would feel a lot more rested at the end of the day. No matter what your job is it helps to 'let go' occasionally. Another quick way to relax which can be done even while sitting at a desk is let your head flop loosely forward, then rotate it in a slow motion first in one direction, then the other. 'Playing Idiot' is what we called it in drama school."

"I find great stimulation in a brisk shower with the hot water beating up and down my spine. The hot water practically lulls me to sleep but I finish with a cold shower and come out feeling wide awake and refreshed."

"Sometimes, depending on my mood, I like to lie in a hot tub before going to bed. In California the water is so hard that I throw in a handful of oatmeal to soften it. Oatmeal was a great ingredient for beauty treatments during the pioneer days. An older woman I know who has exquisite skin recommended a mash of oatmeal, hot water and cream. I give my face and neck a thorough cleansing with this quite often and after it is dry and rinsed, it leaves the skin glowing and soft."

"A number of old-fashioned recipes are the basis for modern beauty preparations," I commented. "There are many good soaps available today."

"And what about egg shampoo?" Teresa suggested. "That's another covered-wagon favorite."

"In favor of it if that's what makes your hair so shiny," I replied.

"I think washing my hair every third day helps," she told me. "It's an old wives' tale that too many shampoos wash out the lustre of your hair. There's no better aid to glamour than freshly washed, gleaming hair and nothing gives my hair as high a gloss as egg shampoo."

"Grooming is something I don't take to naturally," Teresa said frankly. "I'm happiest in a pair of faded dungarees and an old shirt. When I first came to Hollywood I didn't give enough attention to my appearance. I guess it was a form of rebellion. I didn't want Hollywood to put me through the usual routine and rob me of what individuality I had. I realize now that I went too far and I've disciplined myself. I think it's a compliment to others to try always to look your best."

"RELEASE NERVOUS TENSION," Teresa Wright is right when she stresses the importance of learning to release nervous tension. To help you, why not order a copy of leaflet M-38, "Routine For Releasing Nervous Tension." Here You'll learn about breathing, bathing and exercising for relaxation. Get your copy of this important leaflet by sending only 5 cents AND a self-addressed stamped envelope to Lydia Lane, care of The Big Spring Herald. Remember to ask for leaflet M-38.

THANKS . . . and So Long

When you come to the close of an episode, and you look back on the many happy memories, you are overwhelmed by a sense of deep gratitude to your friends.

You realize that your success and your progress was in a large measure in their hands.

This was so when we were in business . . . and it was no less so in our closing out sale. Friends helped make both experiences enjoyable ones.

We have sold the remainder of our stock and now retire from business . . . but not without a sense of loss in no longer having the chance to serve the most wonderful folks in the world.

There's Nothing Like Homesickness

Even holding one of the trophies won in a Horse Show "back home in Washington" helps a little, when the close confines of a city kinda close in on you. This is the trophy won by Bob Steele's stock horse, Fox Bailey, when he was shown in the Kittap County Horse Show in Washington.

Newcomers Have Name With Familiar Sound

Bob Steele and his wife now live in Big Spring! Just a minute, you autograph hunters, it's not the movie star, Bob Steele—but, probably in his part of the country, he is just as famous as the actor.

Mr. and Mrs. Steele, who live at 711 E. 18th, are from Auburn, Wash., where he is a rancher. His work is with horses, which he trains for horse shows, and he is also an exhibitor at times.

One of his most highly-prized trophies was won just a short time before he enlisted—beg your pardon—was drafted into the Air Force. This was from showing his quarterhorse stallion, Fox Bailey, at the Kittap County Horse Show in the state of Washington.

Mrs. Steele is partial to the shows that award useful gifts of silver, and she is quite proud of the trays they have. One, she has named "a pickle dish." Another one of his horses has won the championship in the Parade Horse Class in Vancouver.

Besides his showings, the newcomer is an announcer for rodeos and horse shows. His wife, he said, spends most of two or three days getting him ready for an appearance. She takes great pride in matching his gay shirts with his accessories and her idea, she disclosed, is to be needed for all the preparations.

They met when Mrs. Steele came to Auburn from Cheyenne, Wyo., to visit her aunt. It was just for a short vacation, but it is one that has lasted for several years. She, on meeting Bob's brother, told him how much she missed riding horseback. "Alvin, to please," he enlisted Bob's help—and horses—and she, as she smilingly asserts, "married Bob for his horses."

So that they can travel around to all the various events, when they get "back home," they have bought a compact trailer house. Incidentally, they had to have some place to live here, too. Anyway, they know exactly how long they will have until they can go back to their ranch and to the little quarterhorse filly that they kept when they sold their horses. Could the choice of her name have been a good omen, do you think? Want to know what it is? They call her "Texas."

Baptist Class Meets

New group captains were elected recently for the King's Daughters Sunday School Class of the Phillips Baptist Church when they met in the home of Mrs. W. E. Napper. Mrs. Hollis Grifford brought the devotion. Seven members attended with one guest, Mrs. G. W. Redding. Refreshments were served.

Lunchbox Sandwiches

Mix ground cooked ham with a little well-drained crushed pineapple and mayonnaise and use as a spread for slices of nut bread. A little prepared mustard may be added to the spread if desired.

How To Be A 'Smoothie'

Associated Press Newswriters
A man needn't be a wolf to size up a girl by her legs. If stockings serve as a screen against the outer world, chances are she doesn't work at glamour.

The "lax leg groomer" misses the fun of picnics, beach parties and other playtime occasions—all because she can't bare her legs.

A good routine and a little know-how will put your legs in the chic bracket quickly, so that you can go from garden to golf course without staying in slacks.

Defuzzing comes first. If you haven't been faithful to a leg smoothing routine during winter months, start now.

Take your choice of methods. There are hot or cold waxes to keep legs hair-free for a longer period, not simple to use at home, although salon operators do an effective job. Cream depilatories are sweet-smelling flow and more effective than formerly. Abrasives are not easy to use. The safety razor requires a steady hand, and a good lather to avoid nicks.

The electric razor is preferred by many women. New shavers are designed especially for women, available in peppermint pink and feminine duchess blue with the cutting edge set in just the right place to do a proper job of hair removal without scraping the skin as Dad's shaver might do. A little talcum is brushed on dry legs just before shaving and the razor is whisked over the legs, putting you in the slick kick bracket.

A good lubricating oil should be rubbed over the legs each night, massaging it up over knees and thighs. Blot it off carefully before going to bed to avoid staining bed linens.

Women who do sedentary work are likely to have thighs-out of proportion to their figure. A rolling exercise may help slim them down, but walking at a brisk pace is the best exercise for this purpose. Wear a good fitting girdle and this will serve as a massager as you attempt to trot your fat off. Walking also helps shake weight off the waistline. But don't expect to lose inches if you just mope your way along. Step lively and you'll whittle away inches.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Andrews and children have attended funeral services for his aunt in Colorado City. She was Mrs. Ada Jarvis of Winnebago, Neb. and was visiting Mrs. Frank Andrews in Colorado City at the time of her death. Burial will be Monday in Okeneah. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Starr and son are spending Sunday in Brownwood.

Honeymoon Is Meant To Be A Vacation

Where to go on a wedding trip? This is a problem on which any travel agent will be happy to help any soon-to-be-happy couple, whether it's the Niagara Falls or the royal suite on one of the Queens of Europe.

Dr. Marylna Farnham, psychiatrist, gives an unspecific answer to a specific question:

"Go some place where you can enjoy some mutual interest—and that might be staying home and enjoying some concerts, going out into the country and doing some painting or taking a motor trip to some place you've both wanted to see."

Unfortunately, says this New York psychiatrist and author, a wedding trip usually cannot be decided on such simple, uncomplicated advice. All sorts of factors play a part in the modern post-marriage, convention which frequently is called the honeymoon.

"In the first place," she continues, "why are you taking a wedding trip? It is derived, undoubtedly, from ancient tribal customs to hide the couple which has been through a marriage ceremony."

"Then, too, marriage means something to more than the two young people primarily involved. Every one connected with it has a renewal of hope, they identify with it and re-live through it the charming and delightful fairy tale that it tells—and many of these seniors, including mothers and fathers, would be heartbroken if the bridal couple sensibly elected to take a cab uptown a few blocks to their new apartment and spend their honeymoon at the Museum of Art—even if that was what they most wanted to do."

"A wedding trip is a vacation. All vacations are a recognition that grown-ups need a chance to play. So a wedding trip should take a young couple to some spot where they can have fun, where the bride will have a chance to wear her lovely clothes and they both will have the pleasure of having people know they are glamorous honeymooners."

"And, of course, a wedding trip is an important symbol: the couple is asserting its right to get away from supervising elders. The most perfect description of a wedding trip is in Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women"—Meg took John's arm and walked across the meadow to the house that he had prepared for her. That is the essence of the wedding trip: Meg left the parental home for her own.

"The modern wedding trip is a deliberate prolonging of the delightful Cinderella story being enacted, a postponement for a little longer of the fact that soon alarm clocks will ring, the breakfast coffee will have to be made, and life, real life, will go on."

"There is also the practical side of the wedding trip. Society takes its toll. The bridal pair has been on a constant round of parties, they've had to visit both families—including Aunt Hettie whom nobody has seen for five years, there have been celebrations so tightly scheduled that by the time the wedding day comes, the bride, if she isn't a nervous wreck, is almost too tired to stand up and so is the bridegroom. Both of them need a vacation to get their strength back."

"So it doesn't matter where they go, provided they both want to go there and will have a good time once they are there. The main thing is for them to resist going some place neither one cares to visit, just to show the world they can afford it."

Bingham Studio To Present Recital

shown in the three-act dance drama.

The part of the Little Match Girl will be taken by Cissy Long, while solos will be danced by Patricia Stacey and Diana McEwen. Virginia Morris and Tommy Gentry will be featured as a tap duo, and Mary Jane Engstrom and Diana Dawson of Stanton will execute a ballet pas de deux.

Over 100 children will participate in the two-hour program. There will be an admission fee of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

Prints Make All Around Good Wear

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Fashion Editor

It's a fashion-wise woman who steps out in print this summer. Even the most fanatic fans of plain fabrics and solid colors are rediscovering the charms of prints this season. But these are prints with a difference—sophisticated, small-patterned prints which take their cue from modern art.

Some of the newest printed fabrics have Cubist motifs, random dots or swirling penlines. Some look like streaks of lightning. They're abstract in form but definite in effect.

Color plays a big part in the popularity of the new viscose rayon prints, which encompass the full palette of color, highlighting such tones as cyclamen pink, hydrangea blue, rose red and desert orange.

The new prints are available both in crepes and in georgettes, the latter a brand new addition to the season's fashion favorites. Both drape gracefully, are inexpensive and will add a fresh feminine touch to the summer wardrobe.

HI--TALK

By PEGGY HOGAN

Three black and yellow school buses joggled into Big Spring last night laden with sunburned seniors — tired, but happy with the results of the Senior trip. About 140 members of the senior class had staked out Saturday at McKenzie Park in Lubbock where they had consumed the varied activities, available at the park, to their filling.

The swimming pool was buzzing all day, the tennis courts saw hot action, and midway literally throbbed with excitement. There was miniature golf and dancing in the clubhouse reserved particularly for our seniors. And to top off the day — everybody established their own disappearing acts on halves of barbecued chicken at noon. All in all, it was a day to be remembered a long time.

The student council had their annual picnic Friday night at the park. It was a "farewell" party to all the old members that would not be returning and a "hello" party honoring all the 1955-56 members. After feasting on barbecued chicken, the gang ventured out on what was called a paper ride. Threaded paper took the place of scratchy hay and proved good for lots of laughs.

Don't forget the All-school picnic this Friday night at the city park. It's the year's last activity, sponsored by the student council.

Speaking of the student council, double check the beautiful gold pins the members have been strutting lately. They represent, in a small way, the toil and tears, the fun and frolic of a year well spent.

"Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love" was the sentiment expressed at the conclusion of Senior assembly last Wednesday. The traditional assembly honoring the seniors brought to mind the memories of high school years — through thick and thin — the laughs and tears. Bobby Phillips led the invocation followed with the class history by Peggy Hogan, a poem by Joyce Edwards, and presentation of a gift by class president Tommy McAdams.

Glenn Rogers, on behalf of the student body, accepted the gift of a 6 by 4 1/2 foot portrait of a steer to hang in the foyer. David Ewing gave the farewell speech. It was followed by songs of the senior class after they had given their front row seats to the juniors. Jane Reynolds sang "Home" as seniors joined hands in a circle around the auditorium. After the school song and benediction though, seniors ignored tears and "sentiments" and hooped and hollared.

An awards assembly will conclude all assemblies next Wednesday, May 25. Achievements of the D.E. and D.O. clubs will be acknowledged along with the presentation of other awards and scholarships. A new trend for the student council will be the installing of next year's officers.

Senior editions of the Corral will arrive tomorrow. From reports of editor Glenna Coffey, you're in for something new and exciting! Extra copies can be purchased in the journalism room.

To see a senior struggling with a long black object and balancing a four cornered cap on his head was not unusual Wednesday afternoon as caps and gowns were distributed. The regalia was needed early because several churches were especially honoring their graduates this morning.

Check by the "lost and found" department sometime before Friday to see if any of the various articles belong to you. All of the articles that are not claimed by Friday will be given to the state hospital.

Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y have just about wound things up for this year by electing officers last week. Benny Compton heads Hi-Y as president, assisted by Clyde McMahon as vep. Taking over the job of secretary is Jerry McMahon. Dennis Jones is treasurer and Lewis Porter was elected parliamentarian.

For the girls, Tommie Jo Williamson was elected as president with Mary Sue Hale and Frances Reagan as vice presidents. She Boykin is secretary, Julie Rainwater — parliamentarian, Lora Ann White — historian, and Marlene Mann was selected for the chaplain's duties.

The space in this column that is usually dedicated to some particular this week to all seniors who are graduating.

Here's a tribute to every senior who gave his best for the black and gold of Big Spring High — who has stood up for her glory and has honored her name at all times. Here's to every senior who lit his chin when the goings were rough and stayed in and fought when defeat seemed evident.

Here's to the seniors that never were mentioned in the papers — the behind-the-scenes men who have not accomplished a great feat but who have been essential and integral to our class. Here's to the seniors with plus-spirit, the ones who yelled at the pep rallies and games, who joined in the songs and chants, and the ones who respected the other team. Here's to the seniors who worked for the honors they received, who never shunned duty and who never knew conceit.

Here's a tribute to the seniors who were respectful to teachers and administrators, to those who studied hard and to those who scorned the temptation to cheat. And last, here's to the seniors who were always brave in defeat, modest in victory and who love the name of Big Spring High.

Feudin' Is On With Those Elms And Weeds

By ANNE LEFEVER

Well, my annual feud with the weeds and Chinese elms is now under way in full force! It was about nip and tuck between us until the rains started, but now, I have to admit, I am coming out second best.

To add to my troubles, it takes me half an hour to get out to the garage can and back into the house. "Why?" you ask. Because I pull up weeds and seedlings all the way. And then I can't keep ahead of them.

Those baby elms have learned to hid behind a sprig of larkspur or my one rosebush. Maybe it's underneath a pyracantha that they sneak, and then I have to crawl on hands and knees to get them out. Those pyracantha thorns are sharp, too!

Life would be so much simpler if we would just let things grow where they choose. But no, we must work to get grass to grow in certain spots, when it would be much happier in the flower beds. I have paid out a week's wages to have part of the front yard dug up so I could start the grass again. Now the weeds and seedlings are taking over from both of us. Why I couldn't have let well-enough alone, I'll never know.

If I spent as much time on the knees in prayer as I spend getting those pesky weeds out by the roots, I would be a much better person, I'm sure!

Oh, well, I guess it's a good way to see friends that you don't see very often otherwise, and there are always the "wave-to-a-certain-ance" that drive by. Then other friends stop in — just when you look your worst — you know how it is! — So, I guess it's worth it!

Want Ads Account For Half Of Herald Calls

By CLIFTON LAWHORNE
The department of a newspaper which is most familiar to the general public is the one which handles want ads.

Nearly half of the people who visit the Big Spring Daily Herald office have "want-ad" business, and most residents here at one time or another have submitted such ads for publication.

Chances are, however, that the ads submitted are not for things wanted. Nine out of 10 of them concern things which people have for sale.

The Herald refers to the ads collectively as "classified ads," and the daily number runs between 200 and 250. On Sunday the number is much higher.

Approximately 25 individuals submit new classified advertisements daily, and Ben Ferrell, department manager, says that about the same number of ads are taken out each day.

"That means we have about 25 people each day getting results out of their ads," Ferrell pointed out. Commercial ads which run in the classified section apparently pay off too, judging from the number of changes made. Ferrell's records show that about 13 commercial ads have to be revised daily.

"This means that the firms are selling the items they are advertising," he explained. "New items have to be listed and sold items have to be removed so that the public will know what is available."

Every Sunday there are approximately 60 or 70 new ads placed in the classified section, and the commercial ads swell in space. Normally the classified section has two pages, but on Sunday there are three and sometimes four pages.

Most people who make up classified ads ask the assistance of one of the women who work in the department, and the large majority try to stay within their 15-word minimum charge.

The women of the department try to help the customers word the ads so that the greatest benefit can be obtained in the shortest space. These women try to get all the information possible—from the customers, because more information leads to better ads with more pulling power.

Many people who try to stay in the 15-word limit fail to tell the complete story, Ferrell explained. A little assistance leads to the full story while still retaining the limited amount of words.

"We try to help customers cut out the non-essential words and make needed suggestions," Ferrell explained. "After all, it's our business to make the ad effective so that it will pay off."

The girl who takes the ad from the customer types it on a form, checks it for errors and then sends it to the operator of a typesetter machine. Before the ad reaches the paper, it is handled by at least six people.

The complicated procedure of assembling a classified page takes hours. The ads must be set in type, "proofed" so that they can be checked for errors, placed in page forms, "sterotyped," and placed on the press for printing.

Coordinating all the activities are The Herald's two classified women—Dolores Mikels and Charlotte Lansing.

They are among the busiest of newspaper employees. In addition to accepting the ads, they must also answer the telephone, direct calls to the six or seven other departments, register complaints, read proof, kill out old ads, and bill customers for charges.

Sodding Of Dam Helped By Rains

Rains have cooperated wonderfully well with the Colorado River Municipal Water District's efforts to sod the slopes of the Lake J. B. Thomas dam.

Early indications are that the seeding of Bermuda grass on the lower bench got off to a good start.

The Soil Conservation Service cooperated in the project, which is being undertaken through the Martin-Howard Soil Conservation District. Seed were covered by a spike toothed harrow — and just in time. Successive showers have sprouted a good percentage and a stand seems assured. The grass will be irrigated with a water sprinkler system.

When it is established, the next higher bench will be seeded. This process will be continued until the entire earthen structure, which towers more than 100 feet high at some points, has been sodded to protect the back slope from erosion.

Promotion of the ninth graders from junior into senior high school will come in the afternoon a week from today at the high school auditorium. That same evening at 8:15 o'clock, Dr. H. People in the Big Spring area are receiving better news service than ever before—news on the day it's news—no "pre-date" editions—through 6 special motor routes maintained by The Herald. In the small communities, in the oil camps, on the farms, they're finding in The Herald a newspaper that publishes news of interest to them. West Texas oil, West Texas farming and ranching, West Texas sports, West Texas women's activities, West Texas happenings. That's the reason more and more people on these routes and in this area are saying "Leave us The Herald."

THE PAYOFF TO ADVERTISERS

This is real benefit to Big Spring merchants who have a sales story to tell to the people in this area. The rural daily delivery is, of course, in addition to the 50 city route carriers who put the Herald every day, right at the door of nearly 6,000 Big Spring homes.

Television Table With Swivel-Top

By BILL BAKER

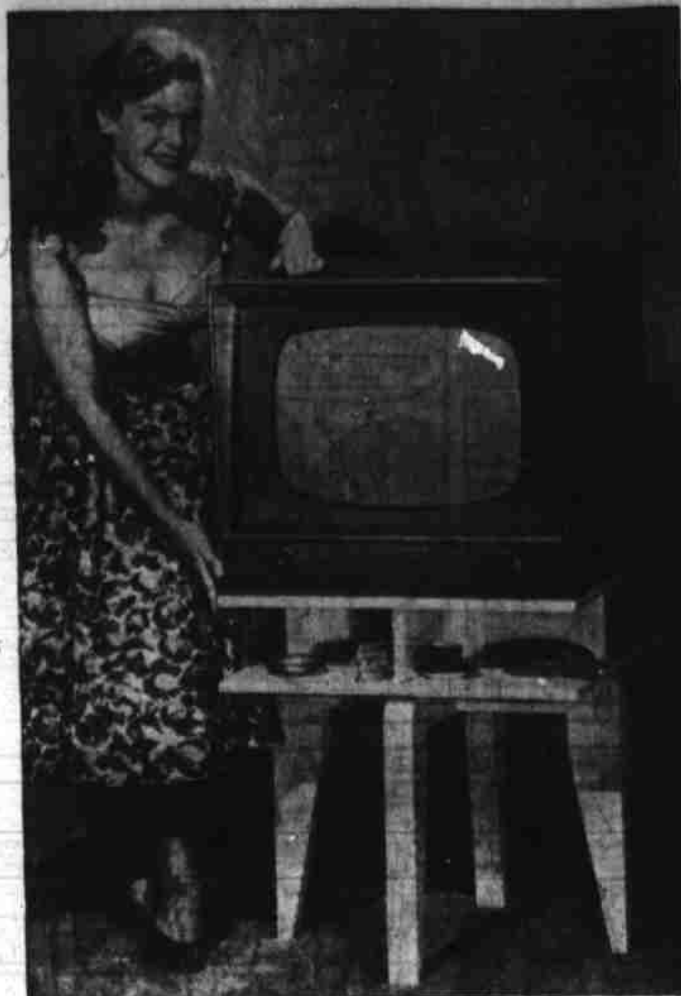

Are you happy with the location of your television set? Have you been wishing that you might find a better stand for it? But have your plans for adding a new TV table been blocked by the fact that your budget can't stand a strain at this time? If these have been your problems, you'll be pleased with the do-it-yourself project I'm going to tell you about today. I've got the smartest TV table you've ever seen, and you'll be able to own it for just a few hours of workshop effort. Take a look at the above picture. This is how your TV table will look. Notice that it features a wide swivel top that will hold the largest table model set. Sturdy, smartly designed legs give you the assurance that your set is firmly planted, too. A unique feature of the table is

To get your swivel-top TV table pattern, send your name and address (clearly printed) together with only one dollar ($1) in check, cash or money order, to Bill Baker, Big Spring Herald, P. O. Box 1111, Los Angeles 33, California. Remember to ask for pattern 122.

smart look to the finished product. The swivel-top feature is one of the best things about this table. With this you'll be able to turn the set to any part of the room. Acting as your assistant in this do-it-yourself project will be my pattern package number 122. Easy-to-follow instructions, a full material list, and exact-size pattern pieces duplicating each section of the table make workshop efforts easy. And you'll need only a few tools, too, when you build the TV table. Because the modern lines are straight, no fancy tricks or unusual skill will be needed. The completed unit can be finished in any way you like. Natural wood, varnished or stained to match or contrast with other pieces in your home, might be the method you select. Or perhaps a bright color of paint might be chosen. I used an inexpensive three-quarter inch plywood in making my own swivel-top TV table, and perhaps you'll choose this material, too. It is easy to work with, and it can be finished very nicely. Naturally you can go into other wood, if you like. You might like to try clear pine, fir, maple, birch, gum or any other solid wood. A trip to the lumberyard can help you make the final decision. You'll enjoy having this modern swivel-top TV table in your home. And I'm sure you'll also enjoy building it.

Swivel Top TV Table

This is Bill Baker's new do-it-yourself design. Hollywood TV actress Jean Carroll is shown here with the easy-to-build item.

Hundreds Of Youngsters Show Interest In Band

Nearly 500 fourth and fifth graders have indicated an interest in playing in the school band. Instrument talent tests conducted in all but two of the elementary schools have singled out those with average, above average and excellent musical aptitudes. Of the number so far tested, 441 have indicated an interest in band, according to Clyde Rowe, band director.

Two more schools, North and East Wards, are to be tested early this week.

With summer band school slated from June 8 to July 5, Rowe is conducting a series of meetings this week with parents of youngsters who may wish to try their hand at playing an instrument.

These conferences will be at 4 p.m. each day with the first at Washington Place School on Monday, followed by College Heights on Tuesday, Park Hill on Wednesday, Airport on Thursday, all in the respective schools. Friday's meeting at the same hour will be with West Ward and Central Ward parents at the Senior High band room. Schedule for other schools will be listed later.

There will be some school instruments available on a first come and first served basis, said Rowe. Arrangements are being made for low-cost rental on others until youngsters can determine if they wish to take up an instrument seriously. Music will be furnished. There will be a slight tuition ($7) fee for the four weeks of instruction.

Beginners will meet in the high school band room at 9 a.m. for an hour of practice. The intermediate pupils will come at 10 a.m. and the advanced students at 11 a.m. There will be a slight tuition ($7) fee for these who desire.

Rowe will be assisted in instruction by Bobby Robbins, director of the high school band. During the summer, there also will be weekly rehearsals for the Community Band. This was set up last summer for those who just enjoy playing — old timers as well as schoolboys — and it proved so popular that it will be repeated, Rowe added.

Slim Whitman Band To Play Here Wednesday

Slim Whitman and his band are coming to the City Auditorium Wednesday evening.

In addition, Whitman is bringing his Western All-Star Revue with such names as Sonny James, who records for Capitol; Charline Arthur, who has made RCA Victor recordings; and the BeLew Twins and Douglas Bragg, both Coral artists.

The BeLew twins—Bobby and Benny—are from Greenville and regularly star on the Big D. Jamboree. In addition they have appeared at numerous North and East Texas civic and other functions. Widely in demand since their first appearance they combine their talent with elaborate costuming to add color and zest in March their initial Capitol record was released. Tickets for the event are on sale at Anderson Music, Big Spring Drug and the Record Shop.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

An Ohio boy, Daniel Bravard, writes: "I read your article about flying saucers, and your request for people to write to you in case they have seen any of them."

"My mother, brother and I were coming home in June of 1950 when we saw a strange object moving fast in the sky. We stopped and looked. I thought it had an oval shape, but my brother said it was shaped like a saucer. The colors were yellow, green and orange. It was burning brilliantly, and disappeared to the northwest."

"My home room teacher at school said that the first flying saucer was reported over Kentucky. The National Guard of that state sent out a plane to learn what the object was. The last words spoken by the pilot were, 'It is huge.' Then his plane blew up, and bits of the wreckage were scattered widely."

If that pilot's last words are on record, I suppose he sent radio messages back to headquarters just before the accident.

Another reader, Mr. G. Hgbert White, writes: "I have just returned from six months in California. Out there are several groups of people who are keenly interested in flying saucers. Many have seen them, and some have taken rides in them, and have been in contact with space men."

"At one time people reported an average of 700 flying saucers a month from points over the globe. One small book, published last year, was written by Daniel W. Fog, and is an account of a trip in a flying saucer from White Sands, N.M., to New York and back in half an hour. The same author in another book tells about a spaceman who warns people against going further into the hydrogen bomb."

There will come a time I believe, when people of the United States and Canada will cross the continent in rockets within the space of half an hour. For the present, however, I suggest that we should be careful about believing tales of human beings taking rides with spacemen.

The Herald's Entertainment Page Of Top Comics

A Musical Mix-Up

Betty Grable, Jack Lemmon and Marge Champion star in "Three For The Show" today at the Ritz. The CinemaScope and Technicolor picture also has stereophonic sound. It plays through Tuesday.

Smugglers In Africa

Maureen O'Hara and McDonald Carey star in the undercover story, "Fire Over Africa," at the State today and Monday. Crowding in love with routing out smugglers proves to be a dangerous practice. The film is in Technicolor.

War And Action

Van Johnson and John Hodiak lead the charge over the top in "Battle Ground" at the Jet tonight and Monday. The picture is the story of men at war when the going is tough and no way out is apparent.

Betty Grable Stars At Ritz. In Musical, 'Three For The Show'

A CinemaScope and Technicolor musical is the star entertainment at the Big Spring theaters this week, starting Betty Grable, Jack Lemmon, and Marge and Gower Champion. "Three For The Show" is the film at the Ritz, starting today, that kicks off the last full week of "May Is Movie Month" here.

Movie patrons who favor dancing and singing musicals should find this one to be one of the best of the crop this year. The gay feature has Stereophonic Sound as well as the other latest technical advances.

Taken from a play written by W. Somerset Maugham, the picture places Betty Grable in a difficult spot. She is a successful Broadway star who suddenly has two husbands. It happens this way.

Her first husband, played by Jack Lemmon who is a composer, is reported missing in action. After a suitable period of mourning, she marries a dancer, Gower Champion. When Lemmon comes back home, alive and kicking, Betty Grable is in a real spot. She must decide between the husbands.

Both Champion and Lemmon go through all sorts of romantic escapades trying to influence her decision. But she can't decide between them.

Finally they both walk out on her and write a musical about their four-in-a-row experiences, for another girl has entered into the picture, Marge Champion. She is secretly in love with Gower. After the two husbands complete their show, they cast Marge in the lead. But it is about to be a flop when the producer persuades Betty Grable to step in. This saves the show and gets the lovers all together again. The love affairs of the group are settled in a most satisfactory manner.

In a good musical film, you would expect the best in music and dancing, as well as acting. All the stars in this picture are well-known for their dancing ability and the music speaks for itself. The songs include "Someone to Watch Over Me," "I've Got a Crush on You," "How Come You Do Me Like You Do," "Down Boy," and "One."

Jack Lemmon who stars in the movie has been referred to as "another George M. Cohan." He is equally good as a comedian, slapstick or sophisticate, as a dancer and as a singer. His versatility has made him one of the fastest growing stars. In "Three For The Show," he demonstrates his abilities.

'Asphalt Jungle' Rated High As Crime Drama

"The Asphalt Jungle" will play at the State Thursday and Friday and is perhaps one of the best pictures to come from Hollywood about the people on the other side of the law.

The action concerns a jewel robbery planned to the "nth" degree of perfection. Sam Jaffe plays the ringleader with Sterling Hayden, James Whitmore, and Anthony Caruso as his cohorts. Louis Calhern plays a crooked lawyer connected with the thieves.

But with all the perfect plans, the robbery is a failure. Not by any planned opposition, but by the happenings of chance. The film was directed by two-time Academy Award winner John Huston and taken from the excellent novel by W. R. Burnett.

Incidentally, this is the film that gave Marilyn Monroe her start in pictures. She plays a "dumb blonde" type of role.

Ray Milland

Star of "Dial M For Murder" with Grace Kelly at the Lyric today and Monday.

Spillane Story Plays At Ritz

Mickey Spillane will be in Big Spring again Friday and Saturday at the Ritz. His third book to be made into a movie is "Kiss Me Deadly" and stars Ralph Meeker as the sadistic detective, Mike Hammer.

As in other Spillane movies and books, a host of shapely women are presented liberally from start to finish. The source of most of the action is around an enigmatic little box with some sort of dangerous atomic force in it. After several killings for its possession, one of the girls opens it and Hammer and girl friend barely escape death.

Bogart, Bacall, Robinson Star In 'Key Largo'

"Key Largo" plays Saturday at the State, starring Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall, Edward G. Robinson, Lionel Barrymore, Claire Trevor, and Thomas Gomez.

The film is an exciting portrayal of one man's rebellion against the rule of a mobster in the Florida Keys. Bogart is forced to carry Robinson and his gang across to Cuba to keep them from harming Lauren Bacall and her father, Barrymore. But once out on the water, Bogart becomes the ship's master and hunts down the mobsters one at a time.

CINEMA COMMENT

By Glenn Cootes

Just a little over a week left for "Movie Month" in Big Spring, and as was promised, the Big Spring theaters had many good offerings. And they seem to be getting better and better. This week would be hard to beat for choice and variety.

A musical, four westerns, seven mysteries, one horror, two war, one humor, and an Academy Award winner make up the program for the week. Take your pick, whatever the choice, there is sure to be one on the roster.

As highlights for this last full week consider "Three For The Show," and "Fire Over Africa."

"On The Waterfront" starring Marlon Brando makes a return run at the Jet Tuesday and Wednesday. The film was a sleeper and small budget product not expected to clear expenses. But it has run away at the box-office and Brando is at his all-time best. Don't miss it this time and go early enough to see one scene twice. You'll know which one.

In the case of Dan Duryea, hisses pay off. "Audiences," says Duryea, "never forget the villain." He plays the heavy part in movies by choice and the more hisses he gets, the better.

He is currently appearing in "The Marauders" at the Ritz. And again he plays a neurotic part. He plays this type so well that one begins to wonder about him.

Grace Kelly Back With 'Dial M'

"Dial M For Murder" stars Grace Kelly, Robert Cummings, and Ray Milland in a Technicolor suspense drama.

Milland is Grace Kelly's husband and also the center of a plot for murder. He draws up a plan for her demise, but she foils it by killing her would-be murderer with a pair of scissors. But Milland isn't so easily discouraged. He tries to see that she is convicted of murder.

Robert Cummings, acting as a good friend, comes to the rescue by digging around and finding out the facts in the case. In the course of his private investigations, Cummings finds that he loves Grace Kelly.

The film is one of her best and plays tonight and Monday at the Lyric.

ROCKY COCKELL FIGHT AT RITZ

Fight fans will be able to see the Rocky Marciano-John Cockell championship fight at the Ritz this week.

The entire fight is filmed from the minute the contestants shake hands until Marciano wins the bout with a TKO in the ninth round.

Maureen O'Hara, McDonald Carey In State Picture

Today's offering at the State will bring Maureen O'Hara and McDonald Carey together in an international intrigue called "Fire Over Africa."

The Technicolor film portrays Maureen O'Hara as an undercover agent in Tangier, trying to recover some valuable papers. She is aided in finding a job with the gangsters by Carey, a happy-go-lucky American ne'er do well. By careful work, she gets a key to a safety deposit box which holds the information she wants.

But then she is kidnapped and the leader of the smugglers is killed. The situation begins to look dark when Carey tries to rescue her.

The picture plays today and Monday.

Dan Duryea The Villain Again In 'The Marauders'

"The Marauders" is the Wednesday and Thursday offering at the Ritz and stars one of the most popular "heavies" in Hollywood, Dan Duryea.

Duryea plays a psychopathic killer who leads a gang of marauders against a lone rancher, played by Jeff Richards. Richards turns his small ranch into a fortress when the gang come to drive him away. He is alone, but the marauders think he has help, as a rifle barrel pokes out of every window.

All the excitement of the film takes place on the ranch that Richards sets out to defend single-handed.

Crime Thriller, 'The Window' On State Program

"The Window" stars Bobby Driscoll at the State Tuesday and Wednesday. The 11-year-old star portrays a boy who witnessed a murder through a window.

When he tells his parents, they won't believe him. But the murderers do and they try to kill the only witness. The film will keep you on the edge of your seat and good steady nerves are apt to be slightly frayed before it is over.

Other stars in the film are Ruth Roman, Arthur Kennedy, Paul Stewart, and Barbara Hale.

Jet Offers Film Of Police Corruption

Jan Sterling and Gary Merrill share the honors in "Human Jungle" at the Jet Thursday and Friday.

The police drama is centered around the corruption of a big city police department. Merrill is a newcomer who is given the task to clean it up after the department fails to locate the murderer of a strip tease.

Jan Sterling is another strip tease who Merrill uses to help locate the murderers and prevent corruption in the department.

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT AND HIS NORTHMEN HEW THEIR WAY INTO THE CITY OF THE KHAN, BRINGING FLAME AND PANIC. PIERRE, SIR GAWAIN'S SQUIRE, HAS NO TASTE FOR SUCH THINGS AND ENTERS THE FIRST DOORWAY THAT OFFERS REFUGE.

ALETA STANDS IN THE EMPTY PALACE, WAITING. THE NEXT ONE TO ENTER THAT DOORWAY WILL BRING EITHER RESCUE OR DEATH!

IN ALL THE BEST TOLD TALES OF ROMANCE IT IS THE HERO WHO COMES AT LAST TO RESCUE THE MAIDEN FAIR. BUT THERE IS NOTHING AT ALL HEROIC IN THE FRIGHTENED FIGURE THAT ENTERS.

PIERRE RISES TO THE OCCASION. STRIDING RESOLUTELY FORWARD, HE CRIES: "FEAR NO MORE, LADY QUEEN, FOR I HAVE COME TO YOUR RESCUE!"

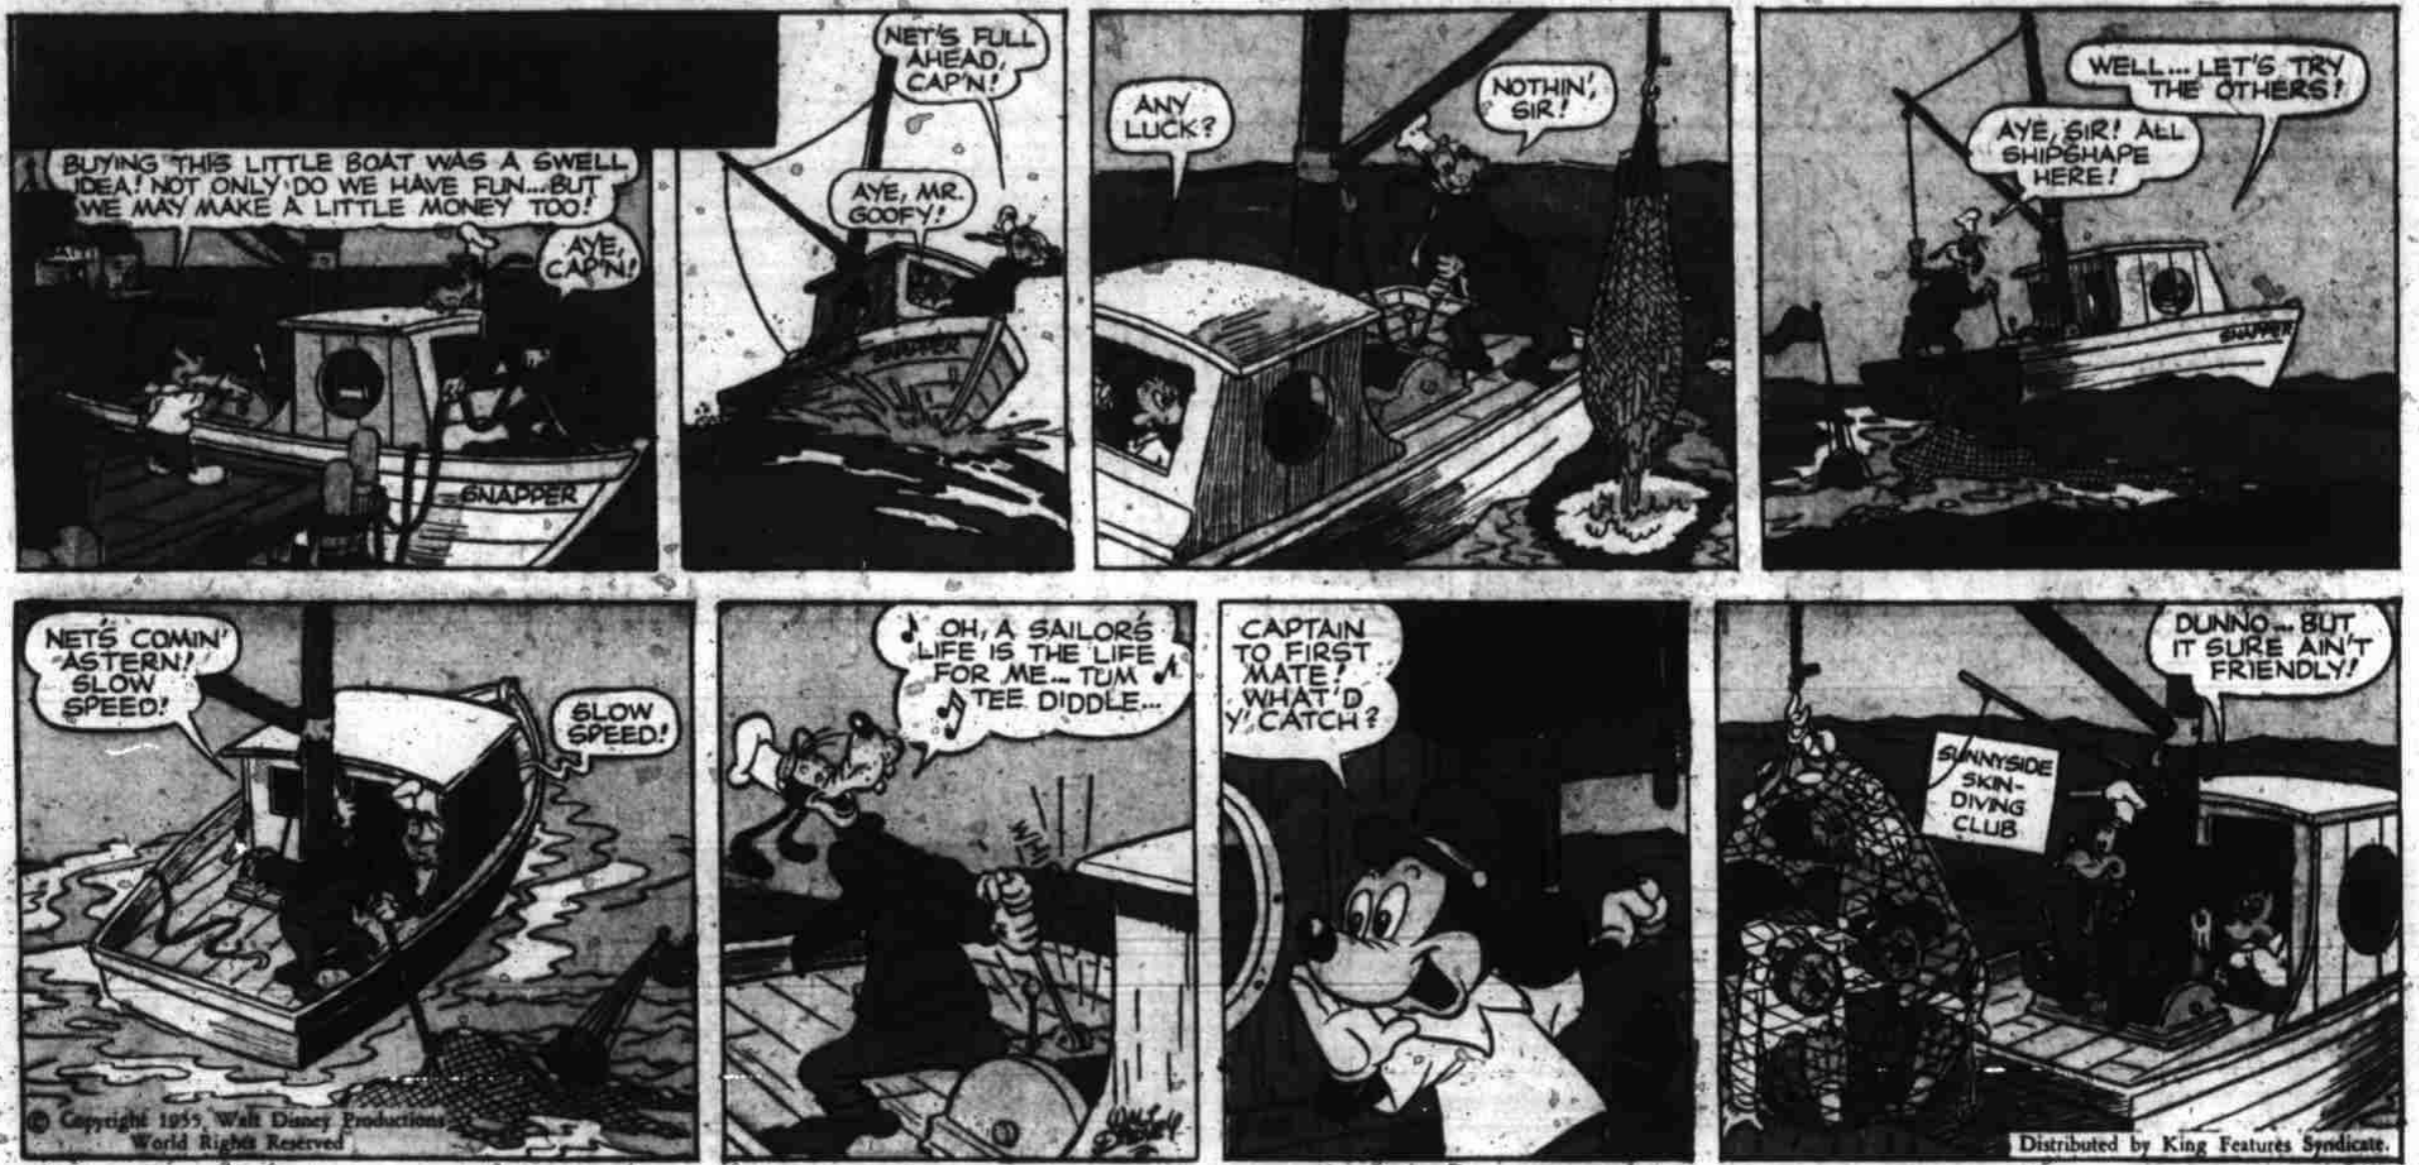

IT IS PIERRE'S GREAT MOMENT! THEN VAL AND GAWAIN HAVE TO COME AND SPOIL IT!

FOR TWO LONG DAYS ALETA HAS KNOWN NO REST OR SLEEP; DEATH HAS BEEN VERY CLOSE. SHE LAUGHS, LOUDER AND LOUDER, UNTIL THE ROOM IS FILLED WITH HER WILD LAUGHTER.

VAL IS HURT. WHAT IS SO FUNNY ABOUT HIS HARD-FOUGHT RESCUE? HE HAS NEVER HEARD OF HYSTERIC.

THEN SHE FLINGS HERSELF INTO HIS ARMS, WEEPING. "I WISH I KNEW MORE ABOUT THE WAYS OF QUEENS!" MUTTERS VAL AS ALETA GOES WEARILY TO SLEEP.

NEXT WEEK--The Retreat.

Family WEEKLY

MAGAZINE SECTION MAY 22, 1955

BIG SPRING DAILY HERALD

In this issue: Fishing: America's Family Sport

I was just thinking...

NOBODY except a neighbor calls her "Red," but it suits her. Her hair is the color of varnished sunlight.

You take somebody like Red for granted. You may say, "Yeah, it's tough raising two kids by yourself," or you might tell a newcomer, "Husband got hit by a car one night. She sat there at the hospital until morning, when he died. It must have been rugged."

Otherwise, you figure Red for just another name in the telephone book, another statistic in the city clerk's office. She's not poor, but she's not rich. She has a good home, plenty to eat, drives a late-model car, needs no pity.

Lots of us worse off. Would anybody trade?

Red's a schoolteacher now. She has two kids to put through college. No doubt about that, Red says. They're going.

But Red gets tired sometimes. When she comes home late, the kids usually have dinner ready. They're good kids; they would have been a credit to their dad.

Lots of nights Red is too tired even to think. She goes to bed in a lonely room in a whirl of bills and the cemetery lot and the aspirin she took for headache. Or heartache.

And there are hot days when the sun fries her classroom, and blizzards when Red shovels her car out of the driveway. And the problems she has to take how to a lawyer or a friend. She's pretty efficient. She's a good teacher and there's no dust in the corners of her bright living room.

Not very remarkable, is she? Just a woman whose husband died and left her with a couple of children who bear his name and the mark of his features on their faces.

But the neighbor who nicknamed her hit it closer than he knew. Red is for courage, too.

Patsy Johnson

IS PATRIOTISM OUT OF DATE?

When we were out riding the other day, we saw a beautiful new American flag flying from a small pole by a doorstep. "What's the occasion?" one of the children asked. Then I happened to think—Lincoln's birthday! And someone wanted to honor it in this very special way.

When I was a child, everyone owned a flag and displayed it on every patriotic holiday. I wonder what has happened to this custom. Is sentimental patriotism dead? Have we been blunted by too many wars? Are we forgetful? Won't we pay the price of a flag? Or is it just negligence?

I'm in favor of revising the custom and the patriotic emotion that goes with it. Our flag is more than just a decoration; it's symbolic of a great nation's undying traditions. I'd love to see a flag flying from every house on every possible occasion. Old Glory is beautiful!—Mrs. Doris R. Jablon, Yardley, Pa.

Faith Helps a Paralyzed Boy

Our little son, who has big blue eyes and blond hair, became paralyzed when he was four months old. My husband and I did everything the many different doctors told us, and I kept a prayer in my heart day and night.

He tried so hard to walk, and at the age of four years he took his first step. As the months passed, he learned to run without falling; but he couldn't talk, and when our neighbor's little boy started to school, we were very sad because our son couldn't go.

He is now seven and is taking speech lessons from a wonderful teacher. With faith and courage, I know that someday he will be able to lead a normal life.—Mrs. L. B. Morrison, Hot Springs, Ark.

Painters on Preserving Our Democracy

As a schoolteacher, I try to teach my children how to be good citizens. There are three things I tell them to do to help preserve our democracy:

1) Believe that the other fellow is as good as you are, and treat him that way. 2) Believe that life is more precious than anything else. If you think your life is valuable, the other fellow will, too. 3) Think. Right thinking has made our great civilization and can save it now.

Why do I attach such importance to these three ideas? Because if practiced they would make for a free and peaceful world.—William Lee Hodge, Springfield, Ill.

"Ask and Ye Shall Receive"

Grandmother and I were out walking late one Summer afternoon. There had been dry, hot weather for several weeks. Grandmother looked at her garden and remarked that it needed rain badly. As we walked along, she scanned the Western sky where a few small gray clouds were gathering. There had been clouds like that for several evenings past, but by moonrise they had dissipated without bringing rain.

"Let us thank God for the rain that the gardens and farms need," Grandmother said.

"Before we get it?" I said in surprise. "Certainly; didn't we ask for it?" she replied.

About nine o'clock that night, Grandmother called me to the door. A gentle rain was falling. It rained all night.

No sermon, no lesson in faith ever did as much for me as Grandmother's words: "Certainly; didn't we ask for it?"—Mrs. Laura Tamplin, Marshall, Texas.

The Man Beyond the Hill

Once there was an echo who lived behind the hill, and his name was Mr. Tuesday. Every day I went behind the hill and talked to Mr. Tuesday because he listened and understood. The trouble with other people wasn't in finding things to say; it was in explaining their feelings, and fugitive thoughts, and vanishing afterthoughts that dangled just beyond reach.

How could I tell Father that Mother was like the gentle evening putting her world to sleep under the protective blanket of darkness? How could I say that he was like the moon, always there to see in moments of doubt, always smiling, no matter what you did? Father would have laughed. But Mr. Tuesday never laughed. He repeated everything I said with a gravity that equalled mine, and no one else knew of our friendship.

Once when my cousin came down from Forestville for a week, I didn't get to talk to Mr. Tuesday, and I missed him. There were so many things I wanted to tell him. As soon as I could, I went over behind the hill to see him. I said, "I'm sorry." He repeated my words, and I knew he'd missed me, too.—Mrs. R. H. Waizel, Port Arthur, Texas.

We'd guess that many a man would be only too happy to go fishing with the attractive miss on today's cover. But even without such charming company, more and more Americans are discovering the thrills of angling. In fact, Dad can't claim exclusive rights to the pastime any more; as you'll learn in the story on page 4, Mom and the kids have joined in the fun and turned fishing into the nation's biggest family sport. FISHING

I used to think fishing was strictly for us fishermen. Or, precisely, for us otherwise home-loving husbands and fathers who simply had to get away once or twice a year to play a little poker and grow whiskers in the wilds.

Not any more! Six years ago, first time I ever took the family fishing, I was hooked; nowadays, Irene and young Bob talk their way onto every fishing trip I plan, and with practically no trouble at all. What's more, we love it—and, more important, you will too.

Along with the couple next door and our friends down the street, we've joined ranks with family fishing folk all over America in what has become the biggest family participation sport in the land. Since 1949, when we began, the number of American anglers has risen sharply from 20,000,000 to nearly 30,000,000 men, women, and children—about one in every five or six members of the populace!

Probably the main reason for this increased interest in a previously all-male sport is the ease with which both wife and children can learn to use the new spin-casting rods, reels, and lures. No longer do the girls need to practice tricky fly and bait-casting techniques; five minutes' instruction makes them, if not expert, at least ready, willing, and able to cast a lure any place they think a fish is hiding. If they don't know exactly where that might be, at least they can enjoy a relaxing sport in the healthful, beautiful out-of-doors.

There's much to recommend it

During the years we've been fishing as a family, we've met a lot of interesting people fishing some of the most beautiful places imaginable. Collectively, our family fishing friends have tried for trout at the bottom of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado and in "lost" lakes atop California's High Sierras where a day-long pack trip through rugged, snow-capped peaks is necessary just to reach the better spots.

Enthusiastically, we've jostled one another as we've stood shoulder-to-shoulder on Yellowstone Park's famed fishing bridge, then taken off to find, within an hour's drive, a trout pool so remote the fish scarcely ever saw an artificial fly. And we've embarked on leisurely float trips through Missouri's wooded Ozark Mountains, canoed and fished our way through Minnesota's Superior National Forest.

Fishing, America's greatest family-participation sport, offers healthy outdoor fun for parents and youngsters. Enjoyment of the sport is limited only by how far you will travel to reach your favorite spot—and how the fish respond to what you've hopefully placed on the hook.

Once reserved "for men only," the healthful outdoor pastime of angling has won

and made one of the few thrilling white-water boat trips down Impassable Canyon on the Middle Fork of the Salmon River in Idaho's largest remaining primitive area in the nation.

Today, more and more fishermen are compromising this urge to see America by carting off the whole family to nature's nearest wonderland to vacation—and to fish. They've learned, too, that the Big Springs area in Missouri, Mammoth Cave in Kentucky, and Lookout Mountain in Tennessee are just as famous for the fish caught there as for the breath-taking beauty of their natural wonders. What's more, you don't need a license to fish any of the national parks like Yellowstone, Grand Canyon, or Mt. Ranier; and the state and national forests contain some of the best public fishing waters for family enjoyment.

Yet as memorable as these vacation fishing experiences may be, you don't need to travel half across the country just to find a good fishing hole. If your state is one of the more progressive in its fish-conservation program, chances are you can find your sport every week end within a short drive of home. Fully half of Michigan's fantastic total of 36,000 miles of excellent trout streams are seldom, if ever, fished. And in Kansas, hard-working state conservationists have turned once-hideous eyesores left by strip-mining operations into an angler's paradise.

Fishing's where you find it

Even in such out-and-out farm states as Iowa, Nebraska, Ohio, and Indiana, a man can turn up a lot of unexpectedly good angling—especially if he has his wife and youngsters along. Irene, young Bob, and I first ran across this sort of thing in eastern Nebraska where, by simply asking permission, we had the time of our lives fishing for bass and bluegills on a Nebraska farmer's state-stocked farm pond. And in Illinois, the state's farm-pond program has been extended to include state aid for any individual sportsman's club, or community desirous of building a fishing hole; there the state not only has helped entire towns build their own lakes, but it has stocked them as well.

Typical of the 400-odd family fishing lakes already constructed under the Illinois program was the one we once visited in tiny Greenup. There, the Cumberland County Sportsman's Club sold 700 charter memberships in its lake-building program at $5 a head, and when it came time to build the lake, whole families got into the act. Daytimes, the women and children helped clear the lake site; evenings, they provided picnic lunches for their men-folk doing the heavier chores. Result: a new and inexpensive family fishing hole where none had existed before.

Happily, the ease with which the folks of Greenup built their own fishing hole at little cost is one of the joys of family fishing; it really doesn't cost much to try. Despite over-emphasis on the high cost of fishing tackle, it's surprising how little you really have to spend. Though you can pay as much as $125 for a deluxe rod, the 50-cent cane pole and the self-dug can of worms are still the most popular fishing tackle in the land. Conservatively, you can outfit the entire family with the new easy-to-use spinning equipment for $15 or $25 apiece.

It's an inexpensive kind of vacation

We've found, too, that the cost of fishing away from home is actually less expensive than any other vacation you can name. Both the Federal government and most states operate public camp sites near prime fishing waters where you can pitch a tent for as little as 50 cents a day. Some also provide trailer camps for the same price, and you can rent a boat practically any place in the country for a dollar and a half a day and up—or from $3 to $5 complete with an outboard motor. One state, Indiana, even operates its own family-type fishing hotel (in Pokagon State Park) where you can stay for $5 a night per person. Half a dozen others will rent you a cabin in various state parks for $5 a day per family.

It's no trick, either, to work such expenses into the family budget painlessly. Some fishing families simply substitute the old fishing hole for summertime movie-going, others put angling into their recreational budget on a year-round basis, and we know of one fishing family in Pennsylvania whose major gift at Christmas time is a $100 annual membership in a private rod and gun club.

So, if it's family fishing you want, come on in—the water's fine. You'll find lots of company in a sport that's as easy as you want it, as inexpensive as you care to make it, and as healthy as all outdoors!

There's nothing like a fast stream and a fighting rainbow trout.

New Eyes for the Needy

Men, women, and children everywhere are seeing the world in a new light, thanks to the vision of one woman.

by Jerry Klein

Volunteers classify and test plastic-frame glasses for re-use by needy persons throughout the world.

Odd specimens donated to "New Eyes for the Needy" depict evolution of glasses over the years.

Although the weekly mail averages about 15 sacks, the search for discarded spectacles never ends.

A FARM LABORER in Iowa pauses in his work to gaze over the fields. And in his eyeglasses are reflected the glorious colors of sunset.

An invalid woman in Texas reaches toward the bed table for her glasses. The pain has returned and once again she must try to find solace in the pages of a book.

For both, eyeglasses are a blessing—a blessing given by a New Jersey organization called "New Eyes for the Needy." A voluntary, nonprofit group of about 35 women, it has provided more than 80,000 needy persons with aids to better sight—without ever asking any financial help!

New Eyes for the Needy asks only for old eyeglasses or discarded bits of jewelry. From such castoffs, it managed last year alone to help about 12,000 persons all over the world.

The group classifies and tests glasses with plastic frames for re-use. Metal frames and jewelry are sold to a refinery, and the proceeds are used to buy new prescription glasses. They help needy persons directly, as well as through welfare agencies, missions, and hospitals.

Every day, old glasses and jewelry pour into the Short Hills, N. J., headquarters in the basement of a church parish house. Contributors range from an Ohio woman who has collected more than 300 pair of glasses for the organization to the woman in Georgia who sent in a gold wedding ring, explaining that her son bought it for his fiancée, but that he'd been killed in the war.

The program began in 1932 when Mrs. Arthur Terry of Short Hills discovered, while doing Red Cross relief work, that some of the depression jobless could go back to work if only they had glasses. She began asking for unused spectacles, broken pieces of jewelry, and gold dentures. She wrote to newspapers and magazines and appeared on the radio to plead for discards. One of her first champions was the late Alexander Woolcott, who referred to her as the "Eyeglass Lady" and added his radio support to her campaign. When she died in 1947, the New Eyes program was continued by the Short Hills Junior Service League.

Today the women bring better vision to practically every corner of the globe. To the mountain folk of Kentucky, mobile libraries carry books—plus the glasses with which to read them. To the little daughter of a South Carolina sharecropper, glasses meant "a bright new window on the whole wonderful world around her." An Arkansas welfare worker made this report on a farmer who received eyeglasses from the organization: "Now at least he can tell his own cow from his neighbor's, and his vegetables from his weeds."

Recently, New Eyes sent 1,800 pairs of glasses to a leper colony on Okinawa. The colony doctor, an American, wrote back: "If only our government would realize that very often the small things are better understood by these people than the grandiose things we try to do for them."

The spectacles received by a proud, 70-year-old Oklahoman meant the difference between his having to rely on old-age assistance or opening his own furniture-repair shop. The glasses given a sick woman in Massachusetts "so improved her attitude toward life that she now is able to walk about." And the artificial brown eye sent to a little boy in Colorado at Christmas meant more to him than electric trains or sleds because he hated the black patch he had had to wear since suffering a playground accident.

New Eyes boasts that it has never turned away a needy person, but requests for help are steadily increasing. In its endless search for discarded glasses, the organization is turning to lost-and-found departments in airline terminals, schools, and sports arenas.

But most of its assistance must continue to come from persons everywhere who are willing to help their fellowmen find a world made rosy again by glasses they couldn't afford to buy.

More than a feeling, it's a fact: with Dial you never worry about odor. You see, normal perspiration has no odor until skin bacteria attack it. Ordinary soaps can't remove bacteria effectively. But Dial does! It's the one leading soap with AT-7 (Hexachlorophene). There's nothing else as good. And it clings to your skin, so it protects you all day — and for several days if need be. THE SATURDAY afternoon rush was on in the supermarket. I had a basketful of groceries ready to check out. Just then a man hurried up behind me with only one item, so I asked the clerk to wait on him first. The clerk did so, and the man thanked me profusely.

Having already been amply repaid by his thanks, I was unprepared when the clerk said, "Mister, that was a mighty nice thing to do. I've worked here for weeks, and this is the first time anybody let me wait on someone back of him—even if the person had only a loaf of bread."

Recently a friend of mine changed jobs and was trying extra-hard to make good. One morning a long-time employee of the company suddenly said, "Say, I want you to know that you're doing a good job here and I enjoy working with you."

"To me, those words meant more than a salary raise," my friend told me. "I went back to work with new vigor."

Both these incidents illustrate that each of us, in our day-to-day activities, has many chances to be nice to others. Someone once said that "kindness is the greatest unused capital in the world today." That's probably true, and courtesy and thoughtfulness together make kindness.

Being polite pays in tangible ways, too. Some years back a Mr. Doremus stopped at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va., to look up the son of a friend. When Doremus asked a passing student where the boy lived, the student offered courteously to take him there. On the way, he made polite conversation.

Doremus was so impressed that he later sent the university a check for a new gymnasium, along with a note explaining the reason for the gift. Today, Dogemus Gymnasium on the Washington and Lee campus is a monument, in part, to a student's courtesy to a visitor.

There are even more personal results of courtesy and thoughtfulness. When promotion time comes in an organization, it's usually the pleasant, courteous employee who is moved up. A sincere smile and courteous manner mean financial and job success for those who possess them.

A kind remark, a thoughtful remembrance, a cheerful letter, a sympathetic ear for someone else's problems, courtesy in any of your personal or telephone contacts, a word of praise for any job well done—these are "gloom-chasers" not only for those who receive them, but also for those who dispense them.

Ralph Waldo Emerson epitomized the philosophy of "giving" when he wrote: "The only gift is a portion of thyself."

Gifts of money and material things are nice; but the greatest of all gifts is a portion of yourself. And, happily, this is the easiest gift for you to make!

ARDEN-FRESH JEWELS

HOW TO COOK VEGETABLES

Broccoli—Tied, with stalks (ends of heavy ones split about 1/2 in.) standing in a deep pan containing boiling water up to flowerets; pan uncovered.

Strong-flavored vegetables (cauliflower, cabbage, and Brussels sprouts)—cooked uncovered in a large amount of water. To restore color of red cabbage, add a small amount of vinegar at the end of the cooking period, just before draining.

A desirable boiled vegetable is free from excess water, retains its original color, and is well seasoned. Pieces are uniform and attractive.

BOILING—Follow directions with specific recipes.

FRYING AND DEEP-FRYING—Follow directions with specific recipes.

PANNING—Finely shred or slice vegetables. Cook slowly until just tender in a small amount of fat in a heavy, covered pan. Move and turn gently with a spoon to prevent sticking and burning.

STEAMING—Steam mild-flavored vegetables except those having a green color.

Cooking in a pressure saucepan is a form of steaming. Follow directions given with saucepan because overcooking may occur in a matter of seconds.

Note: Some heavy saucepans having tight-fitting covers may be used for steaming vegetables in as little as one teaspoon water, no water, or a small amount of butter or margarine.

Wash fresh vegetables, but don't soak them in water for any length of time. If they've wilted, put them in cold water for a few minutes. Cauliflower, broccoli, artichokes, and Brussels sprouts must be soaked 20 to 30 min. in salted water before they are cooked to move small insects and dust which settle in them. To prepare tempting vegetables and to retain their abundant minerals and vitamins, cook them carefully and quickly.

BAKING—Bake such vegetables as potatoes, tomatoes, and squash without removing skins. Pare vegetables for oven dishes.

BOILING—Have water boiling rapidly before adding vegetables. Add salt at beginning of cooking period (1 teaspoon per quart of water). After adding vegetables, again bring water to boiling as quickly as possible. If more water is needed, add boiling water. Boil at a moderate rate and cook vegetables until just tender.

In general, cook vegetables in a covered pan, in the smallest amount of water and in the shortest length of time possible. Exceptions for amounts of water or for covering are:

Potatoes—cooked in water to cover.

Green vegetables (peas, green or lima beans)—uncovered to keep their bright color.

Spinach—partially covered pan with only the water which clings to spinach leaves after final washing.

Asparagus—arranged in tied bundles, with stalks standing in a deep pan containing at least 2 in. of boiling water; pan uncovered.

1/2 cup butter

Beat with whisk beater until butter is thoroughly melted and blended into mixture. Serve hot.

If necessary, this sauce may be kept warm 15 to 30 min. by setting it over hot water. Stir occasionally. Cover tightly.

1 cup sauce

Mornaise Sauce

Follow Base Recipe. Bruise 1 peppercorn and add with the salt. Blend in, after the butter, 3 tablespoons finely chopped fresh herbs such as tarragon, chervil, shallots (or green onion or chives), and parsley.

Vinaigrette Sauce

Ideal to be served hot with the vegetables recommended for Polonaise or as a perfect accompaniment for cooked artichokes. Or serve cooked, chilled artichokes as an extra-special salad complemented by the subtle herb flavor of chilled Vinaigrette Sauce.

Put into a screw-top jar

- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1/4 cup clear vinegar
- 2 teaspoons finely chopped parsley
- 2 teaspoons finely chopped chives
- 2 teaspoons finely chopped pickles
- 1 teaspoon chopped chervil

1 cup sauce

Vegetables Polonaise

Buttered asparagus, green beans, broccoli, or cauliflower are especially delicious when served with this topping.

Prepare, cool, peel, and finely chop

- 1 hard-cooked egg

Set aside.

Heat in a small skillet

- 2 to 3 tablespoons butter

Add to skillet

- 1/2 cup (1 to 2 slices) fine, soft or dry bread crumbs

Set over medium heat. Turn and move mixture gently with a spoon until the bread crumbs are lightly browned. Remove bread-crumbs mixture from heat and blend in the finely chopped egg and

- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Few grains pepper

Serve warm over vegetables, allowing 1 to 2 tablespoons for each serving.

The jewel-fresh brilliance of vegetables brings a fiesta of color to any setting, and flavor to dazzle even the most discriminating palate.

Buffet Salad

A new idea for your next party! Let guests help themselves to this colorful springtime salad. To obtain the full flavor of the delicious French Dressing, be certain they dip down under to get some of the coated vegetables and salad greens.

For French Dressing—Put into a 1-pt. screw-top jar

- ¼ cup salad oil
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- 1 clove garlic, finely minced or crushed in garlic press
- 1 teaspoon minced onion
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon dry mustard

Cover jar and shake until mixture is well blended. Place in refrigerator for about 1 hr. to chill and allow flavors to blend. Shake well before using.

For Potato Balls—Wash, pare, and cut into balls with a melon-ball cutter

- 4 medium-size (about 2 lbs.) potatoes

(The remaining potato pieces may be used in other food preparation.)

Cook potato balls, covered, in boiling salted water to cover about 15 min., or until potato balls are just tender when pierced with a fork. Drain thoroughly.

To dry potatoes, shake pan over low heat. Put warm potato balls into a shallow dish and pour the French Dressing over them. Cover and place in refrigerator; marinate (allow food to stand in liquid to impart additional flavor) for at least 1 hr., turning balls several times.

Cook, shell, and remove black vein from

- 1 lb. fresh shrimp with shells

Set in refrigerator to chill.

For radish roses—Wash and trim, leaving a bit of stem on each of

- 8 radishes

With a sharp knife, cut each radish into 3 equal-sized petal-shaped sections almost to stem around a triangular center. Make another parallel cut in each section to form smaller petals. Chill radishes in a bowl of ice and water until petals spread apart.

Chill a large salad bowl. Prepare the following vegetables and set them in refrigerator to chill thoroughly until ready to use.

For grated carrot—Wash, pare or scrape, and grate

- 1 medium-size carrot (about ½ cup, grated)

For celery slices—Trim roots, cut off leaves, remove blemishes, and wash

- 3 or 4 stalks celery

Cut celery crosswise into ¼-in. slices.

For chopped green pepper—Rinse and cut into quarters

- 1 medium-size green pepper

Remove stem, all white fiber, and seeds with a spoon or knife; rinse. Coarsely chop green pepper.

For onion rings—Cut off root end and a thin slice from stem end of

- 1 large onion

Peel and rinse; cut onion crosswise into slices ¼ to ½ in. thick. Separate onion slices into rings.

For cucumber slices—Wash

- 1 small cucumber

Score by pulling tines of a fork down the cucumber lengthwise. Repeat until entire surface is scored. Cut the scored cucumber into ¼-in. slices.

For tomato slices—Rinse, remove stem ends, and, if desired, remove peel from

- 3 medium-size (about 1 lb.) tomatoes

Cut into ¼-in. slices.

For salad greens—Carefully rinse and dry thoroughly

- Lettuce leaves

- Sprigs of curly endive

For Buffet Salad—Line the chilled salad bowl with the greens.

Drain the potato balls, reserving the French Dressing. Toss the grated carrot, celery slices, chopped green pepper, and onion rings to mix. Spoon evenly over the salad greens. Pour about one half of the reserved dressing over the tossed vegetables in the salad bowl. Arrange the tomato slices, potato balls, cucumber slices, and shrimp over the tossed vegetable mixture in the salad bowl (see photo). Pour the remaining dressing over the vegetables and shrimp. Garnish with radish roses.

Sprinkle over the potato balls

- Finely chopped parsley

Serve immediately.

To retain their delicate flavor, rinse and shell just before using, reserving about one third of the pods

3 lbs. fresh peas

Place the reserved pods in a cheesecloth square and tie the ends securely. Set peas and pea pods aside.

Rinse, shake off excess water, and remove outer leaves (leaving heart) from

1 medium-size head lettuce

(Reserve outer lettuce leaves for use in other food preparation.) Tear lettuce heart into bite-size pieces. Place about one half of the lettuce pieces into the saucepan. Set remaining pieces aside.

BIG DEALER in little horses

by Ken Allen

A Shetland pony hitch is a sight to thrill the crowds, young and old. This six-horse hitch is being trained for showings at fairs by Glen Hanson, with Nelson supervising the procedure.

The kids around Geneva, Minn., love Clarence Nelson, whose business is breeding Shetland ponies

▲ Silver Nevada's broad forehead, straight legs, and high set of tail mark him as a champion Shetland.

◀ Though he doesn't make much money at it, Clarence Nelson enjoys raising Shetlands in his back yard.

▶ Dainty and gentle, Fatima is a real thoroughbred.

Shetland ponies, those midget-size horses that thrill youngsters everywhere, are the hobby of Clarence Nelson of Geneva, Minn. Actually, they're more than a hobby; they're an interesting business, and Nelson has been in it for 34 years.

A horse fancier since he was a young lad, Nelson started raising Shetlands in his back yard. Eventually he sold the general store he operated and turned his full attention to the sleek-coated ponies. Today he has a stableful of them, each one a registered thoroughbred. Some, like Silver Nevada, are ribbon winners. Nelson has rejected a $4,000 offer for this prize pony which is 20 years old but doesn't look it.

"Best little stallion in the state. He's a grand champion himself, and his offspring take honors wherever they are shown," the owner says proudly.

Nelson often is called the dean of Minnesota's Shetland pony breeders. Although he doesn't care much for the title, he's the backbone of most of the horse shows in that area. Showing is very important, he believes, because it advertises the ponies and helps develop successful blood lines. And he takes pride in the fact that Shetlands shown in competition with other animals attract the biggest crowds, especially youngsters.

Though he doesn't make much money at it, Nelson enjoys his pony-breeding business. For one thing, there's a lot of tradition behind it. "Why, the story of raising these ponies goes back a thousand years to the Shetland Islands off Scotland," he explains. But more important than the tradition is the fun Nelson derives from his work. Shetland ponies may be the smallest of horses, he says, but they're also the gentlest and most lovable, as anyone who has ever ridden one will agree.

"SUMMER" ROOMS--

Where the Living Is Easy

by Ruth W. Lee, home-furnishings consultant

IF YOU'D LIKE summertime living to be more fun and, less effort, start planning a "summer" room. Whether an integral part of the house or an addition to it, a screened porch or enclosed "extra" room is a wonderful place for the family to play, relax, and dine informally. Such a room simplifies housekeeping chores during hot months when every leisure moment is a special treasure.

Outfitting a summer-style living room practically and comfortably is no problem, thanks to the great variety of furniture in wrought iron, redwood, wicker, and cane. Inexpensive, weatherproof covers of sailcloth, denim, canvas, and plastic come in colorful patterns which reflect tones of adjoining gardens. Floor coverings in grass cloth, fiber, woven cotton, and asphalt tile are handsome and easy to care for.

The enjoyment of summer rooms can be extended for year-round living with window walls and good insulation.

New and old summer furniture combines happily in this porch. Rattan chaise longue is beside a white iron table; contemporary wrought-iron chairs with woven-reed upholstery are grouped to the right. The rug is natural fiber.

Separated from regular living room by sliding glass doors, this year-round extra room has pecky cypress walls in random width. White fish-net curtains are at windows. Plastic cushions add comfort to the wrought-iron furniture.

The "Vanishing Herd" Is Back!

by K. C. Jerome

BISON AMERICANUS is on the comeback trail!

In the 1800's, America's countless buffalo formed "the greatest congregation of big game the world has ever produced," but by the 20th century they were practically extinct. Today buffalo are again so numerous that every year some are slaughtered for meat while others become targets of officially sanctioned hunting expeditions.

Thousands are flourishing under the care of private and public conservationists. The U. S. Department of the Interior raises bison on ranges in Oklahoma, Montana, Nebraska, and North Dakota.

Assured of forage, medical attention, and protection against indiscriminate hunters, buffalo multiply quickly. Every Summer the director of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service checks the animals on hand against the available hay and pasture. Then, in Fall, at the end of the breeding season, surplus animals are culled from the herds.

A farmer in Warren County, Ohio, bought ten head and turned them out to pasture.

Only a two-strand barbed-wire fence separates the animals from the road to Cincinnati, but they stay where they are. Another farmer in Lockhaven, Pa., started out with six buffalo. At last report he had 26—and a road-house serving buffalo-burgers!

The "last" buffalo in Kansas was killed in 1879 near Dodge City. Now several thousand are thriving on private Kansas ranges and on wildlife refuges at Maxwell, Meade, and Garden City.

In the old days, millions of bison roamed the Western and Central states, but there were few in the more populous East. Nevertheless, buffalo are making a comeback today in the Trexler-Lehigh County Game Preserve in Pennsylvania—about 100 miles from New York! About 60 of the animals graze from May to December on 1,100 acres near Schneeksville. In Winter each buffalo is put in a 25-acre corral and given 15 pounds of hay a day.

About a dozen calves are born each Spring, so the herd has to be thinned out regularly. Not long ago a baby bull buffalo was flown to Mannheim, Germany, as a mascot for the 510th Heavy Tank Battalion.

The Pennsylvania preserve was left to Lehigh County by the late Harry C. Trexler, an Allentown industrialist and philanthropist who played host to William F. "Buffalo Bill" Cody when he brought his "Wild West" shows to Allentown. Having slain thousands of bison to feed Western railroad builders, "Buffalo Bill" was responsible as much as any man for driving the creatures to near-extinction. So, maybe as a gesture of atonement, he persuaded Trexler to help preserve the breed.

Double Tag

Here is an unusual way to play tag. It has the same object as the familiar tag game; but the players form couples. One couple is "It," and tries to catch or tag one of the other couples. The couple who is tagged becomes "It." The chasers must keep their arms locked, and so must the ones being chased. If the two who are "It" break apart, they cannot take any one until their arms are locked again. If any two in attempting to escape break apart, they become "It" as a penalty.

THE MYSTERY OF THE

RAGGED STRANGER

by W. T. Brannon Author of "Yellow Kid Weil: America's Master Swindler"

WHEN CHICAGO POLICE arrived, the body of a tramp lay near that of Mrs. Ruth Wanderer in a dimly lighted hallway, and the woman's husband, Carl, was weeping hysterically.

"We'd been to the movies," he sobbed, "and as we came in, this fellow jumped out, waved a gun, and demanded money. When I drew my gun, he shot and I fired back. He missed me but he killed my wife!"

Wanderer said he had picked up his pistol in an army depot as a lieutenant in World War I. He was so hysterical, the police didn't question him further.

The tramp's clothing, unbelievably old and frayed, contained nothing to identify him. Many viewed him at the morgue but nobody claimed him, and he was dubbed "The Ragged Stranger."

The coroner's jury commended Wanderer for his bravery and he was acclaimed by the press and public for defending his home. In fact, he was a hero to nearly everybody except Sgt. John Norton, chief of the homicide squad, who was perplexed by several questions:

Who was The Ragged Stranger? Why did he carry no identification? Obviously penniless, why hadn't he sold the gun, worth at least $50, to get food and decent clothes? Was it coincidence that his gun was identical with Wanderer's? Why did Wanderer carry a gun?

Quietly, Sgt. Norton started tracing the guns, sending the serial numbers to the manufacturer. He learned that one of the pistols had been sold to the Army; the other to a Chicago sports store.

It took weeks to trace the Chicago weapon, but detectives finally learned that the gun had been sold to Fred Wanderer, a cousin of Carl.

At first, Fred Wanderer told Norton his pistol had been lost, but he finally admitted loaning it to his cousin a few hours before the double slaying. Carl vigorously denied Fred's story.

Then Mrs. Fred Wanderer was questioned. She recalled that when Carl came to the door for Fred's gun, she had seen a man in tattered clothes waiting on the sidewalk. Confronted with this testimony, Carl confessed shooting his wife and the tramp.

He said he had hired the most ragged man he could find on Skid Row to stage a fake holdup so he could wrest the gun from the tramp and be a hero to his wife. That was his story to the tramp, but he had intended all along to kill them both—to silence the tramp and to be free of his wife.

Sgt. Norton wasn't fully satisfied with this story, so he made a search of the Wanderer home. There he found the answer—a note that read:

"Sweetheart: I am very lonesome tonight. I thought I would drop you a few lines, as I am ever thinking of you. I think the world and all of you. Good night, little love, and happy dreams. Carl"

Norton learned that Carl Wanderer had been infatuated with a young girl, a customer at his butcher shop, who didn't know he was married. He wanted to be free to marry the girl.

Wanderer was convicted of murder, and executed on September 30, 1921.

During the next year, efforts to identify The Ragged Stranger were fruitless, and he was finally buried in a plot furnished by a Chicago philanthropist. Occasionally, in the years that followed, flowers were placed on his grave by an elderly woman who refused to disclose her identity.

She finally broke her silence in 1938, and identified herself as Mrs. Nellie Ryan and The Ragged Stranger as her son, Edward J. Ryan, a native of Bloomington, Ill.

"I was a widow with three children," she told Norton. "I couldn't support them all, so Edward was put in an orphanage. Later he was raised by a farmer in South Dakota. I'm sure he came back to Chicago to find me."

John Norton, the skeptic who refused to believe Wanderer's story, solved many other difficult cases and steadily advanced until he became Chicago's Chief of Detectives. But the case of The Ragged Stranger remained his most unusual mystery.
