Reagan offers compromise

Contra vote showdown set

By BRIAN BARGER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, on the eve of a House vote on his proposal to give Nicaragua's Contra rebels $100 million in aid, has offered a compromise that he hopes will attract enough wavering lawmakers to bring him victory in the neck-and-neck contest.

The Democratic leadership countered by promising votes on other alternatives on April 15 if Reagan's plan is defeated in today's scheduled vote.

Whatever the outcome in the House, the Senate plans a vote next week under ground rules permitting amendments.

Today's vote followed a day of bitter debate in which opponents said the aid could draw U.S. troops into Nicaragua's war and supporters argued that it was needed to stop the spread of communism in Central America.

Until now, Reagan has been seeking a $100 million package: $30 million for non-military logistical aid and $70 million for military purposes.

But with each side still expecting a close vote, Reagan proposed a compromise that would limit aid to anti-aircraft weapons, military training and logistics for the first 90 days to allow time for negotiations. The aid could be stopped if the rebels engaged in human rights violations or drug smuggling.

Seeking the handful of votes that could mean victory, the White House promised that if Congress approves the package, Reagan would sign an executive order containing the 90-day restriction.

Under that order, all types of military aid would be permitted after 90 days if the leftist Nicaraguan Sandinista government does not negotiate seriously with the rebels — a step the Nicaraguan government has repeatedly refused to take, charging that the Contras are a creation of the United States.

Congress could block the aid at that point, but that would require majority votes in both the House and Senate. Reagan could then veto such a move, and it would require a two-thirds majority in each house to override him.

Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Latin America, said the proposed compromise "doesn't really change anything. ... It's an obvious indication that the administration doesn't have the votes on the merits and they're grasping for ways to get some votes."

During the House debate, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., described the upcoming House decision as a "Tonkin Gulf vote," a reference to the 1964 resolution that enabled then-President Johnson to introduce U.S. troops into Vietnam.

"I see this leading to war," said

O'Neill. "I see a quagmire down there."

House Minority Leader Bob Michel, R-Ill., denied that U.S. troops would be sent to Nicaragua. "Let's put that notion to rest," he said.

Rep. Bob Livingston, R-La., urged passage of the aid as necessary to stop the spread of communism in Central America. "Those Sandinistas, those communists (in Nicaragua), are closer to me in Louisiana than I am to New York City," he said.

Marcos may go to Panama

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is negotiating with the government of Panama about the possibility that deposed Philippines president Ferdinand Marcos will move to the Central American nation, according to government sources.

The sources, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said Wednesday that the U.S. effort to find a new home for Marcos had centered on Panama after he was rejected by several other nations, including Singapore, Spain, and Indonesia. Marcos is now in Hawaii.

Panama told the State Department Wednesday that Marcos would be allowed to enter the country, one source said.

Another source said "the negotiations (with Panama) are at a very sensitive stage" and had been going on for several days.

A third source said the effort to find a new home for Marcos had been initiated at Marcos' request. That source said Panama is currently the chief possibility.

But they cautioned that the move to Panama could only be temporary and said it was unclear whether Panama was willing to take Marcos permanently or for only several weeks.

Marcos has been staying at Hickam Air Force Base in Hawaii since shortly after he left Manila on Feb. 25, ending his 20-year rule.

Personal incomes show increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' personal income rose a healthy 0.6 percent in February while consumer spending was up 0.3 percent, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the gain in incomes followed a weak 0.1 percent January rise while the increase in personal consumption spending followed a 0.4 percent decline in January.

While both categories showed improvement, they were still well below the pace set in December.

The consumer spending increase was basically attributed to a swing in the weather. Unusually mild weather in January had sent utility bills down. In February, gas and electricity costs sprang back to more normal winter levels, which helped to push spending in the services category up at an annual rate of $16.3 billion last month.

This was the only area of strength in consumer spending as purchases of both durable goods, items expected to last three or more years, and non-durable goods fell for the second consecutive month.

Because of this weakness, analysts were likely to take little encouragement from the overall gain in spending last month. The big concern this year is whether consumer spending, which accounts for two-thirds of all economic activity, will continue rising.

Income growth was also affected by several special factors last month, including a big swing in subsidy payments for farmers, a pay raise for the military, the rise in Social Security taxes in January and the cost-of-living increases in Social Security benefits.

Jury begins deliberations

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — After six months of testimony, jury deliberations began in the state's murder case against a Houston-based nursing home chain and four of its current and former employees.

The eight-man, four-woman jury spent two hours behind closed doors late Wednesday and were to return for more deliberations early today.

The state has charged Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc. and the four individuals with murder in the Nov. 20, 1978, death of 87-year-old Elnora Breed.

The elderly woman died 47 days after she entered an Autumn Hills nursing home in Texas City.

The state claims she died of starvation and infection, both result of poor nursing care.

The defense contends she died of cancer.

The trial was moved 250 miles west of Texas City to San Antonio because of heavy publicity.

Board moves to ease crisis

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas businesses may find it a little easier to obtain liability insurance coverage after two moves made by the State Board of Insurance.

"The State Board of Insurance is taking some very positive steps to begin to assist the general public that purchases commercial, general liability insurance," board chairman Lyndon Olson Jr. said Wednesday in announcing the actions.

An emergency rule would require 45 days written notice before a company could cancel or refuse to renew general liability policies, thus providing additional time to find new coverage. The current notification period is 10 days.

The board also approved an assistance program designed to help businesses, doctors and local governments find insurance companies that can provide them with liability coverage.

The actions come as prices for general liability insurance nationwide are soaring and policies are becoming more difficult to obtain.

"That insurance often is unavailable. And today, often if it is available, it's unaffordable," Olson said.

The 45-day cancellation rule is needed because it is taking much longer than in the past to find insurance coverage, Olson said.

Junior colleges find ways to save

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The state's 49 junior colleges are joining their university counterparts in a search for ways to cut spending and help make up for an estimated $1.3 billion shortfall in state funds.

Junior colleges are local units of government rather than state agencies, and because they are funded differently, they were not included in the governor's request to trim 13 percent from agency budgets, said Bob Youde, coordinator for higher education with the governor's office.

The junior colleges do receive state funding, however, and as recipients of state funding they also have a stake in helping out, Youde said.

Stanton Calvert, executive director of the Texas Public Community and Junior College Association, told the Corpus Christi Caller Times that junior colleges statewide will be considering salary, promotion and hiring freezes, travel restrictions and fewer new program offerings.

Some schools may have to seek tax increases at the local level, he said.

Del Mar College President Ed Biggerstaff said he does not know how much the college will be able to cut.

He said he does not intend to seek a tax increase or ask Del Mar regents to raise the tuition. The regents raised the junior college tax rate last August by about 2 1/2 cents and increased tuition last June by $4 per semester hour.

Panel looks at NASA phone logs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The telephone logs of acting administrator William Graham and other NASA officials have been turned over to presidential investigators, who "are anxious to lay to rest" reports that the White House pressured the space agency to launch Challenger on Jan. 28.

The telephone records also have been furnished to some members of Congress who requested them, congressional and administration sources said Wednesday.

NASA Assistant Administrator John F. Murphy wrote to one congressman, in the only exchange made public, "There is no record of the White House playing any role in the launch of the Challenger." The same finding, according to sources, was made by the commission.

Since the accident, there has been a persistent undercurrent of speculation that the space agency was pressured by the White House to proceed with the launch despite unusually cold weather at the launch site in Florida.

One version has aides to President Reagan pushing for launch because he had a paragraph devoted to the Challenger flight in his State of the Union speech scheduled the evening of Jan. 28.

Two peso rates move closer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Despite Mexico's cloudy economic outlook, the gap has narrowed sharply in recent days between the rate set by the government for the peso currency and its value on the free market.

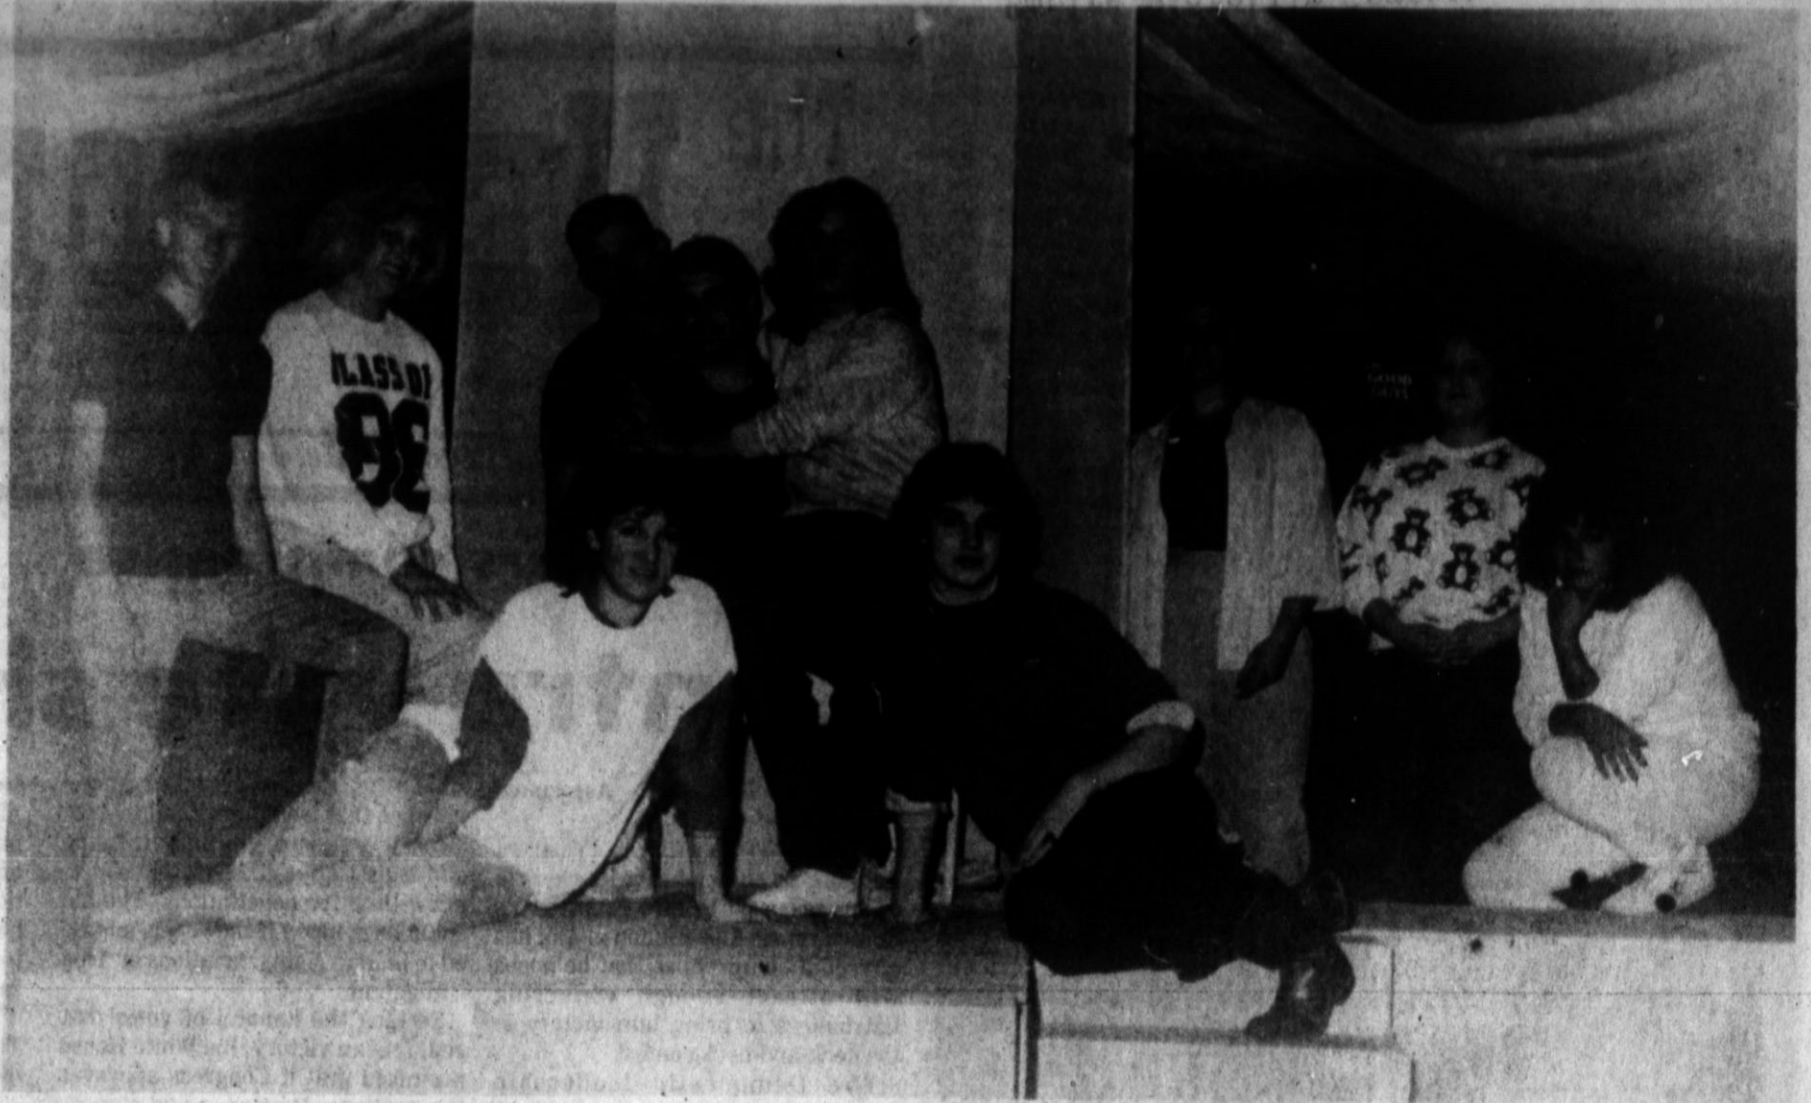

The difference between the two rates has been trimmed to 2 percent to 3 percent, the smallest since the dual-rate system was established in December 1982.

Private analysts had expected the free-market rate to plummet in response to the sharp decline in world oil prices, which has forced Mexico to ask the international financial community for additional help. Mexico depends heavily on sales of its crude to overseas clients to bring in enough money to make payments on its $96.4 billion foreign debt and buy imports.

Thirteen oil ministers agree

GENEVA (AP) — OPEC leaders, eager to reverse the collapse of world oil prices, entered a fifth day of tense deliberations today with no clear sign of movement toward agreement on a common strategy.

The 13 oil ministers, having already agreed they must cut their oil production to prop up prices, reportedly were at odds over how deep the cuts should be and how they could be shared by the member nations.

Oil bust has many families on edge

HOUSTON (AP) — The tumbling price of crude oil has had an immediate, discouraging effect on the lives of Houston companies and families. Reduced drilling activity and slashed budgets already have thrown thousands out of work.

Each day, many more who still have jobs go to work wondering if they will be the next to go.

"Everybody is on edge," says Robert Perez, a machinist who has worked for the same large oil field equipment company for 18 years. "You see it happening every week. People are getting laid off. We've got a seniority system and you can pretty well figure out what's going on. Right now, they are laying off people with 14 years."

At one commercial architecture firm, layoffs were announced two weeks in a row. "There wasn't much talk at the water cooler," one architect said. "Everybody stayed at his desk, working."

"The horrible thing about being laid off is it is totally out of your control — even if you do a good job," said a landman who negotiates drilling leases for an exploration and production firm that has cut back operations in recent weeks. "All you can do is try to make it so you are not totally strapped."

"I don't think any of us ever believed this would affect the upper and middle management," said one executive at a natural gas pipeline company gobbled up in that industry's consolidations. "What happened was we had a few Indians and a whole lot of chiefs. It is the chiefs who are getting laid off."

Many Houstonians worried about layoffs were adamant about not using their names or the names of their employers. Many said they did not want their supervisors to see them quoted about corporate problems when layoff decisions are being made. Others remain loyal to their employers.

"Don't use the name of my company," warned one. "They would lay me off."

"Our management has really looked after people," another said. "Please don't use the name."

Many economic experts, such as Harold Gross of Southern Methodist University, say the prospects for the Houston economy over the next year or so "are pretty grim."

"We are forecasting unemployment in the double digits by early April," says Gross, of SMU's Cox Center for Enterprising. "By mid-summer, it will be a little higher."

For the next 1 1/2 to two years, the Center for Enterprising is forecasting a Houston area unemployment rate near 10 percent.

In a new survey of opinion in the Houston area, Rice University sociologist Stephen L. Klineberg found that 71 percent of survey participants believed job opportunities are fair to poor, while only 26 percent believed the opportunities are excellent or good.

The negative rating in Klineberg's survey stood at only 23 percent in 1982, but jumped to 56 percent in February 1983, after the first effects of the worldwide oil glut reached the city. The negative rating was 58 percent one year ago. (Klineberg's survey involved 619 telephone interviews conducted in February.)

The landman would qualify for about $804 per month in unemployment compensation, but it would take four to six weeks to get it started. "I am updating my resume. My skills have to be transferable, but I may have to move and take a cut in pay."

"There are jobs out there," said the pipeline company manager, who has accepted a severance pay package and is leaving the company. "A friend called and asked how I was doing. At first I was embarrassed — I said I was leaving. Then he gave me a lead on another job."

"The company offered a severance program, or we could stay and take the risk that we wouldn't have a job. I think the people who are taking the severance pay are the ones with more confidence."

Richard Evans, a University of Houston social psychologist, said the city's perception of the economic woes affects the way outsiders view the city, which makes it difficult for those firms not affected by the downturn to recruit top job candidates. Also, it affects the way residents make personal financial decisions.

Even more far-reaching, he said, is the danger that Houston's "total community future-time perspective" will be damaged. "One of the things that has always characterized Houston is its optimism about the future."

At the same time the energy sector is reeling, another shining example of that future-oriented view — the Johnson Space Center — is still stunned by the Challenger explosion and continuing investigations into its cause.

The depression about the future feeds on itself, Evans said. "Things start looking worse than they really are."

Participants in the Rice survey also were asked if their financial situation had improved, worsened or remained about the same in the last few years. Thirty-nine percent said it was about the same, 33 percent reported improved circumstances and 28 percent said things were worse.

However, 58 percent said they believe things will improve three or four years down the road.

Congressmen heed warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Solomon Ortiz said he was undecided on his vote on military aid for Nicaraguan rebels, partly because of President Reagan's warning that Nicaragua is a haven for communists "just two days' drive from Harlingen, Texas," which is in Ortiz's district.

"I just want to be sure, you know. This is a very crucial vote, and I want to do what I think is the best thing to do for democracy in Nicaragua," Ortiz, D-Corpus Christi, said Wednesday.

The House began debate Wednesday on Reagan's request for $100 million in military assistance for the rebels fighting the left-wing Sandinista government.

Reagan offered a compromise late in the day that would limit the military aid to "defensive" weapons and training for the first 90 days.

Ortiz said mail from his district had been running 70 percent in favor of Reagan's request for military aid before the compromise was offered.

"I think that they're just concerned about our proximity to that area — we're closer than most of the other districts — and I think that's one of the reasons they're calling and asking me to support aid to the Contras," Ortiz said.

The Nicaraguan capital, Managua, is about 2,000 miles from the southernmost tip of Texas, a fact Reagan mentioned in a speech last week.

However, Ortiz said, Democrats in the district had been urging him to vote against the aid request.

"As you can see, I'm caught between a rock and a hard place," he said.

Rep. Albert Bustamante, D-San Antonio, whose district also includes part of the Texas-Mexico border, was not impressed by Reagan's assertion that, if unhealed in Central America, communists could wind their way up through Mexico into South Texas.

"I have faith in my company. It will always make money," said the landman, a four-year employee, but wondered how much the company will have to cut back. "It has always been boom or bust — I just hope I am still around to reap the benefits."

In the short term, however, the landman is cutting back on expenses, waiting until the end of the summer to get an eye check — "It isn't covered by insurance" — and paying off debts.

Dennis Dorman, president of the Cameron Iron Works Employees Credit Union, said he sees the uncertainty "in members' reluctance to borrow, and the fact they are saving more."

Individuals, like businesses, need a return of stability, said one survivor. "It won't be the way it was before — during the boom. That was a fluke."

Said another: "We didn't realize how good it was until it was gone."

Information about your changing telephone service from Gary Stevens, Manager-Community Relations

Diversifying the Lone Star Economy

News about tumbling oil prices is a reminder that Texas faces some knotty economic challenges. But the outlook for an upbeat economy appears good. One reason for the optimism is the state's efforts to diversify our economy.

Economic diversification may not be a new twist, but you may be surprised to learn about the new ally in this campaign. Meet your new partner: telecommunications. Yes, the telephone company. Surprised?

Consider that many businesses today, including the so-called high-technology industries, are heavily dependent on information. These firms need to move large amounts of data across the state and the world. Much of that information will zip across the telephone network—an intricate web of circuits, transmitters and lines.

Without a first-class telecommunications system, Texas cannot compete with other states vying for new jobs and industry. Remember, most every state is recruiting the same firms. How does Texas set itself apart from the crowd? One way is to parlay our telephone network into a major advantage for our state.

An economic edge

Homegrown Texas firms also will find it increasingly an edge to be served by a dependable communications network. For example, in the oil and gas industry, millions of dollars are riding each day on the ability of these firms to transmit and receive geological data from drilling sites. That puts a premium on fast, reliable communications.

In our homes too, telecommunications is playing a more important role. Many Texans are using computer linkups over telephone lines to start new businesses, expand their education and even receive health care—all this without leaving their homes.

Much of what we take for granted in our everyday lives would be impossible without telecommunications. Consider that in Texas there are $15 million in goods and services sold each day by phone... more than seven million transactions between financial institutions are processed every day over the telephone network... and nearly 248 million times a year Texans use phone lines and automatic teller machines to bank at their convenience.

A mind-boggling figure

There's one more statistic that perhaps tells the story best. On a typical day, Southwestern Bell Telephone handles more than 82 million voice and data messages from homes and businesses across the state. And, this figure is expected to continue to grow. Obviously, huge investments are required to meet this growth. In fact, for eight consecutive years, my company has spent more than $1 billion annually to improve and add to the state's telecommunications network. This year will be no different.

We all have a stake in the economic future of Texas. All of us must do our share. For our part, we want to provide a telecommunications network that is second to none. We have the resources and people to achieve that goal. Given adequate earnings, there is no doubt we will succeed.

THE NOT-SO-DRY
Some people find German wines too sweet to go with most foods. However, do not be too quick to embrace that idea. In Germany, as well as among connoisseurs throughout the world, wines of Kabinett or Spatlese status are often superb choices to go with richly-flavored dishes, particularly game. Many QbAs and Kabinets are quite dry. Spatleses are usually lightly sweet of off-dry. There is a renewed trend in Germany toward drier wines. They often are labeled "Trocken" (dry) or "Halb-Trocken" (half-dry). The wines of Franconia (Franken), those that are sold in a "Bocksbeutel" (squatly green flagon), are also dry for the most part. As for the superior levels of naturally sweet wines (Auslese and above), they go best with dessert of drunk by themselves.
For a full selection of domestic and imported wines, including many fine German wines see us at THE STORE. We love to talk about wines so come on in and feel free to ask us any questions you may have about them. Browse around through or shelves fully stocked with liquor, cordials, brandies, beer and wine. # We Know How Our Garden Grows!

Farmers and stockmen across the area play a big part in supplying America, and the world, with the vital necessities of life, as well as contributing to our economy. They're our greatest providers, who'll work long, hard hours each and every day so that we can enjoy a higher standard of living and the best quality products. We're very proud to recognize these important people in agri-business on Agriculture Day, and throughout the year.

Ag Week activities set in Hereford

National Agricultural Week was observed across the country March 14-20, and several activities in Hereford are being held to celebrate the special week.

Today is National Ag Day, and the Hereford Cowbells are giving a beef certificate to the first baby born here today. The Cowbells are also displaying a Beef Biproduces Kit in the Deaf Smith County Library this week. The club will conduct a beef cookbook sale Saturday in Sugarland Mall.

Hereford State Bank is hosting its annual hamburger cookout and new car and implement show Saturday to climax local activities for National Ag Week.

The party will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday on the south side of the bank. Beef certificates will be given away in drawings during the day. Farmers and ranchers can pick up tickets for the event at the bank or from one of the participating merchants.

New car and implement dealers participating in the event include Stagner-Orsborn Buick-Pontiac, Whiteface Ford, Stevens Chevrolet-Olds, White Implement, Oglesby Equipment, and New Holland. K-Bob's is also providing hamburger patties and Hereford Tortilla Factory is providing chips.

Why an Ag Day?

Thursday, March 20, is AGRICULTURE Day in the United States. Each year, the Agriculture Council Of American Education Committee designates the first day of Spring as a special day to salute the nation's producers of food and fiber.

American farmers and stockmen deserve this special recognition for they make an immense contribution to our country's economic prosperity and the high standard of living enjoyed by Americans.

Any way you cut it, farmers are important to the U.S. and its citizens. Here are a few reasons why:

*Agriculture employs more workers than any manufacturing industry. The flow of farm products—in addition to related dollar purchases and expenditures—requires the services of nearly 23 million people, a full 20 percent of the labor force throughout the U.S. economy.

*Annually, farm operators spend about $131 billion for goods and services to produce crops and livestock. Hence, farmers are important consumers as well as producers.

*American farmers today produce over 76 percent more crop output on the same number of acres than did their fathers. One farmworker now supplies enough food and fiber for 78 people. Only 10 years ago, the farmworker was producing enough for 47.

*The increased productivity and efficiency of American agriculture has contributed largely to a higher standard of living. Today Americans spend less than 17 percent of family income for food compared to 28 percent in 1930.

*Agricultural exports totaled $38 billion in 1984 and generated $80 billion of economic activity in the U.S. economy.

Farmers have until April 11 to sign up

COLLEGE STATION — Texas farmers have until April 11 to sign up for the various commodity programs administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Because the programs are complex, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is lending a hand in helping farmers interpret the programs so that they can make knowledgeable decisions.

In particular, worksheets and computer programs have been developed by Extension Service economists along with crop budgets to help farmers in analyzing all aspects of the programs so that they can determine what's right for them.

"The many facets of the programs make it tough for a farmer to decide what is best in his particular situation," says Lawrence Lippke, Extension economist. "We've tried to break down the various parts of the programs as they apply to different crops. With these decision-making aids, farmers can get a better handle on what to do."

According to Lippke, farmers can get copies of worksheets and other aids at county Extension offices or from Extension economists.

To assist farmers, Extension economists have analyzed four major production areas in Texas for the major program commodities—cotton, feed grains and wheat. Consideration was given to deficiency payments, the acreage reduction program, and planting a non-program crop on acres taken out of production.

"In all analyses involving these crops, participation in the farm program was found to be highly profitable compared to nonparticipation," Lippke points out.

For corn, returns to participation exceeded those to non-participation by values ranging from about $50 per acre in the Blacklands to more than $130 per acre in the northern High Plains.

Returns to participation for sorghum ranged from $39 per acre in the Coastal Bend to almost $90 per acre in the northern High Plains.

For cotton, the advantage of a farmer taking part in the government program exceeded nonparticipation by almost $69 per acre for dryland production in the Rolling Plains to more than $150 per acre in the Coastal Bend. These wide margins indicate that the level of deficiency payment could be reduced substantially without affecting the decision of whether or not to participate, says Lippke.

Regarding wheat, returns to participation exceeded those to nonparticipation by some $15 per acre for dryland production in the northern High Plains to $87 per acre for irrigated production in the same region.

Two other issues of concern relate to whether to participate in the optional diversion portion of the wheat program or whether to reduce planted acreage to a level lower than permitted acreage on any of the commodities. "The decision of farmers to participate in either of these options is marginal, depending on whether yields per planted acre increase when moving to a lower level of planting," Lippke points out.

Another factor which may influence the decision to plant less than permitted acres is the return a producer might receive from a non-program crop planted to that reduced acreage.

"While farmers need to look at all particulars of the various government programs, we have tried to sort out some of the main aspects so as to help them with their decisions," notes Lippke. "They need to continue to keep in mind the $50,000 limit on government payments, and they also need to look at the government's new Conservation Reserve Program.

Soviet's grain may survive bitter cold

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's fall-planted crops of winter grain, mostly wheat, probably survived the bitter cold of February and early March, says an Agriculture Department report.

"In most cases, a protective snow cover preceded the coldest weather, protecting most winter grains from widespread winter-kill," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said Monday.

"Recently, temperatures moderated to above freezing over winter grain areas, melting snow. The southward extent of the early March snow cover lies from the central Ukraine through the lower Volga, which is normal for this time of year."

Weather and crop developments are watched closely for signs that the Soviet Union might need more foreign grain to meet needs, or less in the case of bumper harvest prospects.

Last year's total Soviet grain harvest has been estimated by USDA at 190 million metric tons, one of the largest since the record of 237.4 million tons in 1978. No forecast has been issued for the 1986 harvest.

Soviet grain imports in the 1985-86 international marketing year, which will run through June 30, are expected to total 34 million tons, a reduction of one million tons from estimates a month ago, the report said. Imports of corn and other so-called coarse grains were reduced by two million tons, while wheat imports were increased by one million tons.

The Soviet Union has been buying large amounts of U.S. corn and soybeans, but relatively little wheat.

Under a long-term agreement, the Soviets have bought 6.1 million tons of corn for delivery through Sept. 30 but only 153,000 tons of wheat, the report said. Additionally, U.S. soybean sales this year total more than 1.4 million tons.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or soybeans, or 39.4 bushels of corn.

The report said one reason the Soviet Union is scaling back imports of coarse grain may be Moscow's purchases of feed quality wheat from Europe and Canada.

"Given the Soviet Union's heavy use of wheat in domestic (livestock) feed rations, and the large supply of feed quality wheat around the world this year, it would not be surprising for the Soviets to have purchased significant quantities of feed wheat," the report said.

Farmers are taking their hats off to TR-3303.

A change for the better.

To be a good farmer, you've got to find the best products and stick with them. But when something better comes along, you know that in order to be the best, you've got to go with the best. That's why farmers all over the country are making a change to TR-3303 by Terra. It's a hybrid corn variety that always performs well at harvest time. Terra wouldn't put its name on it if we didn't think TR-3303 was the best corn seed available.

A better product.
A high-yielding variety like

TR-3303 doesn't just happen, it starts with a good healthy plant. TR-3303 corn seed produces a medium tall plant with excellent stalk quality; its upright, erect leaves provide good ear retention that makes this variety produce strong, full ears of corn.

A better yield.
At Terra, our corn varieties are proven best because we don't just settle for one year of testing. Terra's TR-3303 is proven dependable, because it consistently tests well year after year.

It's high-yielding results make it one of the best to switch to if you're looking for maximum yields under a broad range of growing conditions. Farmers are taking their hats off to TR-3303 corn seed by Terra, you'll want to, too.

ANN LANDERS Pharmacists

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have given a platform to firefighters, policemen, teachers, physicians, lawyers, secretaries, waiters and waitresses, clergymen, bartenders, census takers and salespeople. It's time for the American people to know a little more about their pharmacist.

Most folks think all a pharmacist does is lick, stick, pour and count. I wonder how many of your readers have waited for an hour or more outside a doctor's office and paid $50 for a visit, then complained because they had to wait 10 minutes for a prescription to be filled.

The pharmacist is the only person who can take an emergency prescription over the phone. He (or she) is called on dozens of times a day to explain what a medication is all about and how it should be taken. Pharmacists don't practice medicine, but they answer an awful lot of questions from people who want relief from an earache, a headache, nausea or an aching back. I am amazed at how rude customers can be when they are told what a medication costs. Don't they know the prices are set by the drug companies and now by us?

After reading this letter you may find it hard to believe that I love my profession, but I do. I know in my heart I have helped a lot of people and even saved a few lives. Thanks for letting me sound off in your column, Ann. I just felt it was time the public knew the facts.—RX FROM NY

DEAR RX: You've helped a lot of people understand and appreciate what a pharmacist does. Thanks for a look at the profession from the other side of the counter. The next letter might be of interest to some of your best customers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was intrigued by the letter from the woman who was sick and tired of her friends who constantly complained about their ailments. We all know people like that. They deserve our sympathy, not scorn. What a way to live!

This verse by Ella Wheeler Wilcox is dedicated to that sad segment of society. Wouldn't it be wonderful if they took her advice?

"Talk health!
"The dreary, never-ending tale of mortal maladies is worn and stale.

"You cannot charm or interest or please by harping on that minor chord—disease.

"So say you are well, and all is well with you.

"And God will hear your words and make them true."—FROM A HAGERSTOWN, MD. READER

DEAR MD.: Beautiful! Thanks for sharing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have a $10 bet. I say pantsuits are acceptable for women who go on job interviews. He says a dress or a suit makes a better impression. You decide.—FINGERS CROSSED IN SALINAS, CALIF.

DEAR CAL.: Your husband wins. Conservative attire (a dress or suit) makes a better impression. I suggest that he send the $10 to DIALOGUE. They are a great group of dedicated workers who do a splendid service for the blind. The address is: DIALOGUE, 3100 Oak Park Ave., Berwyn, Ill. 60402.

County agent gives program on caring for house plants

"Don't fix it if it isn't broken and don't water house plants if the ground is still damp," said Dennis Newton, county extension agent.

Newton spoke on house plants when members of Bippus Extension Homemakers Club met recently for a luncheon in the home of Juanita Perrin.

Introduced by Mrs. G.V. Hall, Newton also stressed two other points including checking often for insects and seeing that plants have as much light as that variety of plant requires.

Roll call was answered with by members naming a native plant in this area.

During the business meeting under the direction of Kate Bradley, members discussed the District I T.E.H.A. meeting to be held April 3 in Amarillo. Also, further plans as to what to do for a club project concerning neighbors who are shut-ins were discussed.

It was announced that the Easter Sunrise Service will be held at 6:30 a.m. and those planning to attend are asked to meet on the east side of the Bippus community building. It is located in the northwestern part of Deaf Smith County.

After a short service and songs, a country breakfast will be cooked and served at the community building. An Easter egg hunt will be held while the breakfast is being prepared.

Guests are welcome to the annual event and are asked to bring sausage, eggs, canned biscuits, juice, etc.

The April meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. C.F. Homfeld.

Other members present included Cindy Freeman and sons, Jerry and Aron, Mariellen Homfeld and Flora Homfeld. Alta Mae Higgins was welcomed as a guest.

Farm families survive through adaptability

Current interest in the economic survival of Texas family farms has overshadowed an equally important issue—the survival of the farm family.

That's the concern of Dorothy Taylor, a family life specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service (TAEX).

According to the specialist, those families which are likely to survive as intact units have strong family relationships to fall back on, and the ability to face up to and adapt to their extremely difficult situation.

"By this time next year, some farm families will still be in business and others will have gone under financially," she says. "But the strain of either may result in divorce, rifts between relatives, stress-related illness and even suicide."

Taylor has worked with TAEX agricultural economists to present educational programs on "Managing for Survival" to farm and ranch families throughout the state.

These programs teach financially strapped farm families about debt restructuring and other business decisions as well as family communication and dealing with their stress to promote wellness.

She says a major adjustment for farm families is adapting to a reduced lifestyle. That may mean not having the cash to buy extra clothes for the teenagers, put the same type of food on the table, eat out, or travel long distances to shop at the city malls.

"Many financially troubled farm families are headed by couples in their thirties and forties," Taylor observes. "They often experience the added stress of realizing they cannot afford to send teenage children to college, nor is it likely that their children will be able to farm the family land in the future." "These household heads may also be working land turned over to them by their now-retired parents, and facing the guilt of possibly losing a farm that has been in the family for generations."

The family relations specialist says these families are also experiencing the stress of role changes.

"Although almost half of farm women now work off the farm, even more will take jobs to help support the family," Taylor explains.

If the farm wife, or her husband, does not want her to work away from the farm, it can create a strain. The farmer or rancher may also have to adjust to not having his wife as an important helper in the farm operation.

Some younger farmers and ranchers who planned to be in agriculture all their lives may find themselves having to adjust by retraining for different kinds of jobs they find less appealing and satisfying.

But Taylor says that close-knit farm families have many strengths that enable them to adapt and survive their financial crises as a functioning family unit.

"The families that are pulling together best seem to be able to communicate — to talk to each other about their concerns and to say things that show support and love for one another," she notes.

The Bill of Rights went into effect on Dec. 15, 1979.

Advance planning can reduce stress

Employed women with families commonly experience conflict and stress over childcare arrangements and household tasks, says home economist Mary Clayton Nance.

While the problem of balancing the demands of a job and home is not easily solved, advance planning can reduce some of the stress, says the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service (TAEX) specialist.

To avoid being thrown into a turmoil of a babysitter moves or a child gets sick, plan for backup child care before an emergency arises, Nance advises. A good back-up plan will require a list of several people—relatives, neighbors, friends or professional sitters, who could be called on in a particular situation.

Check the school calendar or call the school to find out in advance about important daytime school activities, such as parent-teacher conferences or the class play. Often you can arrange a parent-teacher conference after work hours.

But for special events you may wish to take paid vacation hours or make arrangements to work overtime as compensation for the time taken to attend these events. If your work record is free of tardies, it may be easier to request an hour or two off to attend a school event, notes the TAEX home economist.

Working women who do not have the flexibility to take off work time for a daytime school event, can make it a point to attend parent-teacher association meetings and special events held in the evening.

Nance also suggests having a plan to keep from being overwhelmed by children, husband or meal preparation the minute you walk in the door. Discuss with them what can be done to give you 15 to 20 minutes of time to relax.

You may need to lie down for a few minutes, do some exercises or just have some quiet time before starting dinner and listening to all the happenings of the day.

Having pre-dinner snacks on hand can keep you from being pushed to cook immediately or tempted to overextend your food budget by eating out too frequently.

Try to get the entire family to agree on a workable schedule for after-work hours, says the specialist. This might include time set aside for homework, chores, making lunches or advance food preparation for the next day, dinner clean up and relaxation.

Also consider a family work night so the weekend can be left for rest, recreation, worship and family sharing. Make a complete list of weekend tasks such as grocery shopping, laundry or yard work. Then divide tasks among family members and do those chores on a Thursday or Friday night.

"Since the average full-time employed woman works 40 hours per week outside the home and another 22-27 at home, she shouldn't feel reluctant about getting other family members involved in planning for and doing household chores," says Nance.

Skaggs feted

A bridal shower was given for Sharon Skaggs, bride-elect of Randy Ellis, Saturday in the home of Mary Frye, 144 Liveoak. The couple will exchange nuptials April 26 in First Baptist Church.

Sandra Fairweather invited guests to register and refreshments of finger sandwiches, cookies, tip with toast point, coffee and punch were served by Beth Frye and Kim Sims.

The refreshment table was covered with a beige lace cloth and enhanced by silver and crystal appointments. The centerpiece consisted of an ivory and peach floral arrangement with navy accents.

Serving as hostesses were Frye, Pat Scott, Judy Mitts, Sue Sims, Velta King, Jan Barnes, Lucy Rogers, Betty Hughes, Adelle Clements, Jo Ann Richburg, Della Hutchins, Patricia Weldon, Marcia Snyder, Evelyn Bodkin, Mary Thomas and Gerry Taylor.

GENE THERAPY

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Scientists are getting closer to finding a cure for some of man's most destructive hereditary diseases.

Human gene therapy, in which doctors transplant copies of a normal gene into cells of a patient whose own body lacks the gene or has an abnormal gene, may eventually be used to cure patients with cystic fibrosis, various forms of hemophilia, and possibly muscular dystrophy.

Foreign genes have been transplanted successfully in animals, but scientists say successful human gene therapy is still a few years away. "There is still plenty of work to be done before we get too optimistic," said one scientist.

DEAR SANDRA — Believe me, I know exactly what you're going through! As cute as those little backsides can be, it's not very convenient to have a baby running around the house without a little "wet" protection!

My husband had a suggestion that seems to have been effective with our own daughter, for the moment. We put the diaper on her backwards, with the tapes fastening toward the back instead of the front. Give it a try. I'm not guaranteeing that it will be a baby-proof method for long, but it might keep her busy for a while anyway!

Abundant Life

TOPSY-TURVY WORLD
By Bob Wear
TOPSY-TURVY means upside down; hence, in confusion or disorder. To whatever extent this describes the world in which we live, it becomes a matter of grave concern for all of us. We must realize that this does not mean that the individual life must be 'topsy-turvy', because we do have the power to make of our personal lives what we wish them to be. Of course, the confusion and disorder going on around us is and will be of great concern; but it is not mandatory that we become part of it.

THE INVERSION OF VALUES is the framework which supports the topsy-turvy world. Putting last things first, and first things last always causes confusion, disorder and the continuing distress. The euphemistic practice of calling 'evil' good, and 'good' evil, or putting 'darkness' for 'light' and 'light' for 'darkness', of putting 'bitter' for 'sweet' and 'sweet' for 'bitter' develops a horrible kind of confusion. Of course, this rather common practice can take over one's personal life. This is what we must avoid by being well informed regarding values, and choosing for ourselves the best available value system.

MUCH OF the disorder and confusion, not all, but much of it comes from the old, old philosophy of 'humanism'. Some folk obviously think that 'humanism' is the cure for our ills, but it is the disease or a big part of it. It formed the views of the German philosopher, Nietzsche who was the author of the false "God is dead" view. He was also author of much of the German Nazi view which brought about world war two. It was the dominant influence in Freud's animalistic and degraded concept of man.

Club members hear program on plants

Members of Cultural Extension Club met recently in the home of Jill Rogers with Edith Hunter, vice-president, presiding.

County extension agent, Dennis Newton, presented a program on the care of house plants and trees. He distributed leaflets concerning information on planting time, watering, and sprays suitable for both trees and plants.

He also stressed the importance of watering trees during cold weather.

Roll call was answered with a plant native to this area by those present.

Pledge of Allegiance was given and the minutes read and approved from the previous meeting. Also, the treasurer's report was given.

The next meeting will be in the home of Edith Hunter.

Rogers served refreshments of coffee, apple cider, finger sandwiches and banana split cake to Bertha Dettman, Carrie Mae Doak, Hunter, Mildred Lewis, Vernis Parsons, Virginia Sumner, Marie Thames, Winnie Wiseman and Este Walton.

Students trade books for beaches

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP)—The boys are there—and so are the girls. Meanwhile, the cops are keeping an eye on both sexes as the crowds convene for the annual seaside ritual known as "spring break."

Thursday signals the start of spring and thousands of college students on break from classes have invaded beaches from Galveston to this deep South Texas resort.

For a few days, they will trade their books for the sandy beaches where they can flirt and frolic in the sun.

Students from Texas and as far away as Wisconsin have traveled to South Padre Island where several concerts and contests have been planned for the next week.

"We've just been partying. We've been drinking a lot," said Griff Perry, 27, a junior at Southwest Texas State University. "We've been on the beach. We're just having a good ol' time."

By the end of March, about 150,000 people will have visited South Padre Island, leaving behind about $8 million in the economically depressed area, said Viola Espinoza, office manager of the Port Island-South Padre Island Chamber of Commerce.

The 4,000 hotel and condominium units available at South Padre Island are booked through the end of the month and some students are camping out on the beach.

"Some of the kids come down here because of the border," Ms. Espinoza said. "They like South Padre Island because they can go to Mexico to get some good bargains and have fun and they can go to the beach and it's not as crowded here as it is in Florida."

The Gulf of Mexico water still is cold, but the hotel swimming pools are being put to good use.

Some boys have been chasing the girls and some girls have been chasing the boys. Police have been busy chasing many of those "party animals."

"They're down here to have fun. They're partying," said Police Chief Ed Sanders. "Some of these kids are down here and do things down here that no way they're doing back at home.

"They want to have a good time and some of them get real careless and that's what worries us," he said.

Sanders' 16 officers have had help from agents from the Texas Department of Public Safety, the Texas Alcohol and Beverage Commission and the Cameron County Sheriff's Department.

Within the past month, officers have arrested about 150 people for public intoxication, 130 for driving while intoxicated and about 80 for other offenses, including minors in possession of alcoholic beverages and disorderly conduct.

The city jail has a drunk tank, but offenders are booked and released as quickly as they can post bond.

"Most of them are having fun. There are a few that are having problems," Sanders said. "You don't try to control them. You try to keep them moving along in one direction."

Some hotels have raised their deposits because of the amount of damage left last year and are trying to limit four people to a room.

The Chamber of Commerce is conducting a survey in an attempt to determine what kind of students come to South Padre Island and how much they spend. They want to know if the raising of the drinking age in Florida attracted more students to Texas beaches.

Whatever the reason, Sanders said that there are more people at South Padre Island and Ms. Espinoza said merchants couldn't be happier.

"Business is fantastic," said Alan Reeder, manager of On The Beach sportswear store. "Business is real constant. This is the best crowd we've ever had."

Merchants and authorities are readying for next week when other college students are on vacation and local school districts will have their break. Mexicans also traditionally cross into South Texas to shop during Easter week.

Two other concerts also are scheduled next week and the weather will likely cooperate with temperatures expected to reach the 80s daily.

"We're kind of in a slack period right now," Sanders said. "But Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday is really going to put us to the test."

CARNEGIE CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK (AP)—The Campaign for Carnegie Hall says it has recently received a $750,000 grant from the Pew Memorial Trust.

It says the gift from the Philadelphia-based trust will be applied to the renovation of the stage wing area of the main hall. The work is to begin in May when the hall will close until mid-December.

Other parts of the hall scheduled for restoration and renovation during this time include the main hall lobby, the auditorium and the recital hall.

A SURE FORMULA FOR NATIONAL PROSPERITY!

Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, whose people he has chosen as his own. The Lord gazes down upon mankind from heaven where he lives. He has made their hearts and closely watches everything they do. And with a breath he can scatter the plans of all nations who oppose him, but his own plan stands forever. His intentions are the same for every generation. (Psalm 33:12-15, 10-11)

The best equipped army cannot save a king-for great strength is not enough to save anyone. A war horse is a poor risk for winning victories--it is strong but it cannot save.

But the eyes of the Lord are watching over those who fear him, who rely upon his steady love. He will keep them from death even in times of famine! We depend upon the Lord alone to save us. Only he can help us; he protects us like a shield. No wonder we are happy in the Lord! For we are trusting him. We trust his holy name. (Psalm 33:16-21)

One night the Lord appeared to Solomon and told him, "I have heard your prayer and have chosen this Temple as the place where I want you to sacrifice to me. If I shut up the heavens so that there is no rain, or if I command the locust swarms to eat up all of your crops, or if I send an epidemic among you, then if my people will humble themselves and pray, and search for me, and turn from their wicked ways, I will hear them from heaven and forgive their sins and heal their land. I will listen, wide awake, to every prayer made in this place. (2 Chronicles 7:12-15)

Tax Tips

Ninth in a series of "tax tip" articles provided by the Panhandle Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Q. How much can I deduct for contributions to my favorite charity?

A. Taxpayers are generally allowed to deduct any contributions to bona fide charitable organizations.

If you itemize deductions on your tax return, you are allowed a deduction for the full amount of your contributions as long as it doesn't exceed a certain percentage of your income. If you don't itemize your deductions, you may deduct 50 percent of your total contributions.

When using your car for charitable purposes, you can deduct 12 cents per mile or deduct actual expenses (such as gasoline) if it is higher than the flat mileage rate. Parking fees and tolls also can be deducted whether you elect to use the 12 cents per mile method or actual expenses.

Deductions over $500 for donated property require completion of Form 8283. If the value exceeds $5,000 an independent value appraisal is usually required.

In 1917, the Russian republic was proclaimed under Alexander Kerensky.

The Israeli government, on Aug. 17, 1977, approved construction of three new settlements in territory which had been captured from Jordan in the 1967 Six Day War.

BUD CURTIS... lecturing on kinesiology

Right nutrition can build immune system

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

Bud Curtis of California is demonstrating how to tap into this art and make nutrition work for one's body with kinesiology, the science of muscle testing and their relationships to vitamins and organs.

"Basically, we're trying to put the health back in the hands of the people. We leave the medical care to the doctors. By using these techniques we can find weaknesses in both muscles and organs before it becomes a medical problem," Curtis says.

Curtis will be lecturing at The Lemon Tree on Tuesdays and Thursdays throughout the month. The course costs $60 and will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. For information call Trisha Lemons or Beverly Wagner at 364-7022.

"You use nutrition to strengthen," said Curtis. "Anytime you build your nutrition you're building your immune system."

"I continually destroyed my health until I made enough money and I decided health was important enough to enjoy the money I made," said Curtis, half-jokingly.

"I now spend all my time lecturing and teaching so others can enjoy the same health and prosperity that I now have," he said.

Curtis said his reward was in his heart, in helping other people.

Explaining the art of kinesiology, Curtis gave examples and stressed nutrition. For example, Curtis said if you smoke, you have a weak lung. If your lung is weak you have a detroid muscle that's weak on the same side.

"By using acupressure and meridians to strengthen muscles, this can be cleared up," said Curtis.

Acupressure is the similar to acupuncture but without the needles. Meridians are the energy flow that makes the muscle work.

Curtis said you can determine where your vitamin or physical weaknesses are by using kinesiology.

"You must be structurally, chemically, and mentally sound," said Curtis. "In kinesiology, we make the body tell us how weak it is. We use the subconscious mind, which cannot lie, to tell us what is wrong."

Curtis explained that mainly he begins with finding out what people have been eating. He said incorrect eating will destroy the person's nutritional support.

"The worst thing you can do is eat white flour, grease, caffeine, and theobromine or chocolate," said Curtis.

"We find out if they are deficient in the vitamins, and we supplement their diets," said Curtis. He said fibre is a necessary ingredient in having a clean colon, something Curtis is very adamant about.

"Fibre is a lubricating factor in that with water it allows the colon to expand and contract to move the waste," said Curtis.

He said by using nutrition bran to cleansing the colon, even backaches may go away since the toxins would be flushed out.

Curtis advised to give one's body exactly what it wants in food, vitamins, minerals, and exercise. "Most people give their body junk and expect it to perform perfect," added Curtis.

DR. GOTT

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — For the past three years, my mother, 65, has been having problems with memory loss, an impairment severe enough that she was pressured into early retirement. Two doctors did extensive tests and say they have ruled out most of the possible causes of these problems. But she is on Inderal, which I understand has loss of memory as a side effect. Even assuming that Alzheimer's disease is a possibility, should she be taking a drug that has memory loss as a possible side effect?

DEAR READER — You are correct that Inderal (a drug in the beta-blocker family) can cause mental alterations in elderly patients. I think you could do your mother a service by asking her doctor to change the medicine to one that is not associated with memory loss. Even if the change only results in some small improvement, the quality of her life may be enhanced.

Lack of skepticism not humane

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Stiller, the sculptor-hero of the Max Frisch novel that made the author's mark around the world, likened Switzerland to a prison because of its "panicky fear of intellectual adventures."

However, after decades of travel, the novelist-playwright and outspoken critic of Swiss complacency has once again settled in his homeland.

Frisch, who turns 75 on May 15 and who dislikes interviews, gave a reluctant one shortly after receiving the news that he had received the Neustadt International Prize for Literature.

It was a surprise, he said, and a special honor because there were other prominent nominees including his friend, Guenter Grass, and Eugene Ionesco.

Official Switzerland, target of much of his criticism, has been hesitant in celebrating the dean of its literature, who holds honorary doctorates in the United States and West Germany. Neither his native Zurich, nor the Federal Institute of Technology where he studied architecture, plans any birthday ceremonies.

"We are a parsimonious people," said Frisch with a sardonic smile.

In Switzerland, prizes are for him a "sort of credit card," obliging authorities to a certain respect.

"His world fame is only tolerated here; at best he is treated like a well-paying guest," observes fellow writer Adolf Muschg, who nominated him for the Neustadt Prize.

Frisch's relationship with the United States has been somewhat strained, too, especially since what he calls "the war against the Vietnam people." Still, it is a country that has always fascinated him. He first went there in 1952 on a one-year Rockefeller Grant for Drama.

"I was less interested in drama than in the desert," he said. "But they did not ask anything from me."

Until then, Frisch had been "only a Sunday writer," but he began writing full time.

Three years later, Frisch finished "I'm Not Stiller," about the man who seeks to discard his identity and take up a new life. It became an international best seller and has been translated into 17 languages. Critics in the United States showered it with accolades, as they did the later "Homo Faber" and subsequent works.

In contrast, "The Firebugs" and "Andorra," his best-known plays which won wide acclaim in Europe, were panned by American reviewers after they opened in New York in 1963.

He moved to Zurich in 1963 "partly for private reasons, partly because I had difficulties with the present America." He mentions the Reagan administration and cites a dictum from one of his books: "Lack of skepticism is not humane."

Frisch has done little writing since his return. His last book, "Bluebeard," a widely praised novella about a doctor who explores his conscience after being acquitted from a charge of murdering one of his seven wives, was published in 1982.

He lives now in an elegant, sparsely furnished duplex in downtown Zurich. It is close to a pharmacy and other shops, though he has to put up with noise from a neighborhood construction site.

However, there's a seafood store nearby where he can buy lobster.

"Don't miss it in New York," he tells a visitor. "Cold lobster and American sauterne at Sweets in Fulton Street is the best."

The albatross-bird drinks sea water. It has a special desalination apparatus that strains out and excretes all excess salt.

There's a difference between a strain and a sprain. A sprain occurs in a ligament, while a strain is in a muscle.
