Honorary Hereford Bull

Entertainer Grady Nutt, who died in a plane crash Tuesday night, is shown here with former chamber president Ken Rogers in a 1980 file photo. Nutt, a popular humorist, had entertained the crowd at the chamber's annual banquet that year, and was presented with an Honorary Hereford Bull trophy, which he is shown holding. Nutt had just completed a speaking engagement before the fatal accident Tuesday night.

Entertainer Grady Nutt killed in plane crash

VINEMONT, Ala. — Entertainer Grady Nutt, a regular on the television series "Hee Haw," was among three people killed Tuesday night when a light plane crashed after a takeoff from an airport here, Cullman County Coroner Douglas Terry said today.

Terry refused to release the names of the other victims, pending notification of relatives.

Nutt, a former Baptist minister, was in Cullman Tuesday night for a banquet. The popular television humorist had made numerous personal appearances at Baptist and chamber of commerce meetings to tell stories of Christian humor.

The Amarillo native was the featured speaker at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet on Jan. 31, 1980, making a hit with local citizens. He was a close personal friend of former First Baptist Church minister Doug Manning.

Witnesses of the crash said the plane took off from the airport, made a sharp turn, and the engine seemed to stop. Cullman City authorities were dispatched to the wreck scene about one mile northwest of here in a wooded area.

Nicknamed "The Prime Minister of Humor," Nutt graduated from Baylor University in 1957 and from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky in 1964.

In addition to his regular slot on Hee Haw, Nutt had made several appearances on The Mike Douglas Show and had been featured in People Magazine.

He was the author of several books, including "Family Time: A Revolutionary Old Idea," "The Gospel According to Newton," and "Being Me: Self, You Bug Me!" Nutt had also recorded several albums, including "Grady Nutt: Taking Notice!," "Grady Nutt: The Prime Minister of Humor!," and "The Flip Sides of Grady Nutt."

Nutt had been a resident of Louisville with his wife, Eleanor. He was the father of two sons.

Panel to consider sentencing proposal

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A recommendation to take away from juries the job of sentencing criminals needs more study, a commission appointed to find ways to ease prison crowding has decided. Instead of adopting the proposal to require judges to set punishment, the Blue Ribbon Commission on Criminal Justice decided on Tuesday a task force should review the idea.

Harris County District Attorney John Holmes, a commission member, said requiring judges to set sentences would make voters able to "grade their papers."

"They could look at (judges') records and decide if they have pansies on the bench," said Holmes.

The commission's preliminary report said sentencing by jury is confounded by "much confusion and uncertainty." Judicial sentencing would reduce the "wide disparities" in sentences, the preliminary report said.

Commission members said Texas is the only state that allows defendants to choose to have jurors set punishment.

Despite the preliminary report, the commission decided Tuesday that a task force of judges, prosecutors, prison officials and citizens should look at the proposal and a recommendation for

Crist a winner at horse show

Hereford's Mary Crist overcame a broken arm handicap to become the only female recipient of an award at the Panhandle Cutting Horse Association banquet in Amarillo last weekend.

Her trophy saddle was awarded in the novice class which had about 15 entries. She was also honored in the Texas-New Mexico association as the most improved rider.

After never riding a horse more than a block, she said,

Hurricane Iwa hits Hawaii; Honolulu power interrupted

HONOLULU (AP) — Navy ships put out to sea, tin roofs blew along flooded streets, more than 6,700 coastal residents fled homes, and communications virtually stopped as the Hawaiian islands were battered by their first hurricane in 23 years.

At least four injuries were reported as Hurricane Iwa carried gusts up to 110 mph when it swirled Tuesday over the Pacific chain, sweeping through two western islands, Kauai and Niihau.

Winds up to 80 mph struck Honolulu on the island of Oahu, southeast of the storm's center. Electricity in the capital was knocked out for three hours Tuesday night and roads were flooded early today. Palm trees bent double under the force of the winds.

About 5,800 residents of low-lying areas of Kauai were evacuated to higher ground, a local emergency official said. Coastal areas of sparsely populated Niihau were also evacuated.

"At about 8 p.m. their time

(1 a.m. EST), the main force of the storm went over (Kauai) with winds about 105 to 110 mph," said Bob Blair, spokesman for the Federal Emergency Management Agency in Virginia. "They had waves up to 12 feet high."

The hurricane was moving northeast at 14 mph and will go just northeast of Honolulu," about 125 miles southeast of Kauai, he said. Boulders four to five feet across littered the Farrington Highway on Oahu, Bob Williams of Oahu Civil Defense said early today, and 982 people were evacuated from low-lying areas.

As much as two feet of water covered some streets along Waikiki Beach. Palm fronds littered the area. Stores, bars and restaurants closed early, with sandbags placed in front of their doors to block flooding inside and windows taped to prevent glass from flying.

The main telephone link between the island state and the mainland went down at 11:59 p.m. EST when GTE was forced to lower its satellite receiving antenna, taking out 2,500 circuits, said Wayne DuBois, a spokesman for AT&T Long Lines. Service was restored about 5 a.m. One undersea cable went out of service, apparently from storm damage, at 12:50 a.m., knocking out another 163 circuits.

Twelve ships at Pearl Harbor put out to sea before the storm hit. "In storms, a ship is safer at sea," said Lt. Keith Arterburn, a Navy spokesman in Washington.

Crew members on three ships were reported injured, but details were sketchy. Arterburn said the Pentagon was told a medical officer had been dispatched to the USS Goldsboro at sea to treat at least four people.

Iwa — pronounced EE-va — is the first hurricane to strike the archipelago since Hurricane Dot caused $3.7 million damage in August 1959, mostly on Kauai.

"That was a summer breeze compared to this," said Allen Smith, who lives about 10 miles outside Honolulu on the island of Oahu, about 125 miles southeast of the two other islands.

"Everyone is in their homes. No one is traveling in the streets. All the windows are taped up from wind damage," Smith said

Pope to head state court

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — After "rassling" with 36 years' worth of people's legal problems, Texas Supreme Court Justice Jack Pope was ready to retire. The life-long Democrat did not run for reelection this year.

But Pope, 69, has postponed a long-awaited vacation for an honor he did not expect. On Tuesday, Gov. Bill Clements appointed him chief justice of the state's highest court.

Pope replaces former Chief Justice Joe Greenhill, who resigned in October to enter private law practice here.

"Judge Jack Pope is a most distinguished jurist with a proven record of integrity and excellence, and I consider it a privilege to appoint him as chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court," said Clements in a written statement announcing the appointment.

In an interview in his office shortly after the announcement, Pope, an articulate and sprightly man, was obviously delighted at the turn of events.

"After 36 years of 'rassling' with problems — and that's what I deal in — I was accorded this opportunity to be chief justice," he said. "I'm still healthy, and I felt like maybe this is what I've been training for."

Pope has been on the bench longer than any judge in Texas.

Clements made the appointment despite threats that all his appointments between now and January would (See POPE, Page 2)

For slumping economy

Reagan ponders 'fresh boost'

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — After endorsing a massive highway-repair and jobs program, President Reagan is considering additional proposals that he will send to Congress to curb unemployment and give the economy a "fresh boost."

Before flying here Tuesday for a six-day Thanksgiving vacation, Reagan gave his backing to a 5-cent per gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax to finance $5.5 billion in highway and bridge reconstruction projects.

The program has gained bipartisan support in Congress in the face of the nation's 10.4 percent unemployment rate. It will produce an estimated 320,000 jobs. Raising the gasoline tax to 9 cents a gallon would cost the average motorist $30 a year, Reagan said.

Announcing his support of the highway plan, Reagan said he also was considering "a series of other measures that would help to give our economy a fresh boost as we head into 1983."

"It is my hope," he said, "that this package can be high on the agenda when the Congress returns to Washington next week."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan likely will decide on the components of the package during the vacation trip, but probably will not announce it until early next week.

Speaking with reporters on Air Force One, Speakes said the proposals under review include accelerating next July's income tax cut so that it would take effect in January.

The proposal is designed to stimulate the economy by putting more money in the hands of consumers.

That plan has gotten a chilly reception in Congress. Republican congressional leaders already have told the president there are not enough votes to pass it.

But a senior administration official said in Washington that Reagan is leaning toward speeding up the 10 percent income tax cut. The source, who asked to remain anonymous, said the idea had "an awful lot of political sex appeal."

Speakes said the package also includes "unemployment measures dealing with the structural unemployment — such as joblessness among teen-agers and transitional workers."

In the past, Reagan has expressed support for a lower minimum wage for teen-agers, a so-called subminimum wage. However, the plan is strongly opposed by organized labor.

Reagan will remain at his 688-acre ranch high in the Santa Ynez Mountains until Monday, when he makes a brief trip to Los Angeles to address the National League of Cities before returning to Washington.

During his stay, Reagan will have "the usual amount of work, plus some boning up" for his five-day trip to Latin America that he will undertake next Tuesday, Speakes said.

He brought along with him briefing books on each of the countries he will visit.

Brazil, Costa Rica, Honduras and Colombia, Speakes said. Reagan also will hold talks with national security advisor William P. Clark, who flew West with the president.

Andropov closer to Soviet presidency

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist Party chief Yuri V. Andropov moved a crucial step closer to being named Soviet president in likely elections today by the national Parliament.

Andropov, who became party general secretary following the Nov. 10 death of President Leonid I. Brezhnev, was elected Tuesday to the Presidium, a 39-member leadership council which executes daily business between the two yearly sessions of the Supreme Soviet.

The Soviet Constitution is vague on selection of the president but it appears to indicate that a Presidium member should be chosen. The president is actually the chairman of that body.

The vote for president by 1,500 delegates is expected to be a rubber stamp action since the decision is believed to have been made in advance by the party central committee.

Andropov, 68, a former head of the KGB secret police, apparently will win easily. The other main presidential possibilities — longtime Brezhnev aide Konstantin U. Chernenko, 71, and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, 73 — were not elected to the Presidium on Tuesday.

"None of the other people being mentioned as candidates for president is on that board," said a Western diplomat who closely follows Soviet politics. "I'm willing to bet that we'll find ourselves with one choice — Andropov," he said.

Besides Andropov, four other members of the 12-member Politburo hold seats in the Presidium and are technically eligible to be named president.

New space gear will add increased maneuverability

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The machine may not be as speedy or as powerful as the rocket belt Buck Rogers uses to race around his comic book heaven, but it will be sophisticated enough to allow astronauts to prowl free from the confines of a spaceship.

The Manned Maneuvering Unit, the newest piece of space gear, was unveiled Tuesday at the Johnson Space Center. Engineers hope it can be tested in January 1984 and then used three months later to repair an expensive, but crippled, satellite.

Two flight models and a training mockup of the MMU are scheduled for delivery early next year, said project manager Ed Whitsett.

The MMU, built by Maryland-based Martin Marietta, will cost about $7.5 million each. The entire development program will cost about $55 million, said Steve Nesbitt, spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

But testing of the MMU will depend on the success of the shuttle space suits.

A 3½-hour spacewalk on the shuttle's fifth mission had to be scrapped when a fan went out on astronaut Joe Allen's life-support system. Shortly after that, a pressure regulator failed on Bill Lenoir's suit, and the spacewalk was cancelled.

The parts have been sent back to the manufacturer, Hamilton Standard, of Windsor Locks, Conn., in an effort to learn what caused the malfunctions.

The MMU looks like a door with arm rests. It attaches with latches to an astronaut's backpack and allows him to ride jets of compressed nitrogen gas away from the spaceship, roaming out as far as 1,000 feet. The jets are fired by two hand controls.

"The whole idea is to make it fly like a spacecraft so the astronaut can easily adapt. It's the rent-a-car concept — he just gets it on and goes," Whitsett said.

One control fires gas jets to move the astronaut any of six directions — up, down, left right, forward, backward, Whitsett said.

The other fires jets to control his position in space, Whitsett said. Move the stick one way and the astronaut does cartwheels. Another way and he turns head over heels or spins like a skater.

"There's a lot of pep to it, but it's still very controllable. It's not enough to get good sensation of movement," he said.

The MMU carries enough fuel to accelerate from zero to 66 feet per second, or 45 mph, he said. But for practical, safety reasons, Whitsett said, the space voyager will go much slower.

An astronaut probably will not fly faster than 500 feet from the spaceship, Whitsett said. While he is cruising about, the astronaut is actually a separate satellite, susceptible to the rules of orbital mechanics.

These paradoxical rules state that to speed up, an orbiting object must slow down and move closer to the Earth. And to slow down, an object must speed up and move farther out from the Earth.

At 1,000 feet, Whitsett said, simulations show the astronaut could not tell if he were moving toward or away from the ship. Theoretically, the disoriented astronaut could move into a faster or slower orbit and lose contact with the ship.

The first model of the MMU has no guidance or navigation equipment.

Today's issue combined

Today's issue of The Brand is a combined Wednesday-Thursday edition because of the Thanksgiving holiday. No paper will be published Thursday.

The Brand skips the publication date each year so that employees will have the holiday time with their families. Because of the holiday, classified ad orders for the Friday paper will be accepted until 9 a.m. Friday.

All financial institutions and governmental offices and many retail firms will be closed Thursday in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Happy Thanksgiving! The Brand wishes you and yours time off Thursday to count your blessings. Here's a message by O.B. Southard that seems appropriate for the holiday.

"America is the result of pioneers not knowing when they were well off. Risking their lives on the salty deep, starving and racked by fever, shooting and being shot by Indians, snatching garden patches out of the wilderness, moving west and doing the same thing over and over and over again. Why didn't they stop somewhere? Didn't they know when they were well off?"

"When are we well off? Who can say? Europeans say the American is crazy, running around and getting nowhere. The American answers that business in America is a game, not a job; it excites the sporting instinct as much as the acquisitive instincts.

"If we knew when we were well off, would there be anything that seems worth having? We climb and climb; a few of us fall and get up again; a few of us retire only to find we want to get back into the game; it is the climbing upward that has put America at the top."

Children killed in housing project fire

DALLAS (AP) — A 38-year-old woman was hospitalized in critical condition today following an apartment fire that killed her four children, an investigator said.

The mother, Minerva Cruz, 38, and the children were trapped inside the burning two-story apartment Tuesday when firefighters arrived at the South Dallas housing project about 10:08 p.m., Capt. Don Benda said.

The dead were identified as Danny Romero, 12; Sandra Romero, 10; Johnny Cruz, 3, and Jose Cruz, 2.

"They were all overcome with smoke," Benda said.

Their father, Johnny Cruz, 28, jumped from a second-story window, and a brother, David Romero, 16, was sleeping downstairs when the fire broke out, Benda said.

Both were standing outside when firemen arrived to discover flames lapping from the apartment's windows, according to Benda.

Cruz "was trying to put the fire out with a garden hose," Benda said. Another son, 18-year-old Bobby Romero was at work.

Benda estimated damage to the apartment, which is owned by the Dallas Housing Authority, at $25,000.

The cause of the fire had not been determined, according to investigators.

News conference scheduled for 10 a.m.

HOUSTON (AP) — A 41-year-old man was in "critical but stable" condition today after receiving a transplanted heart and lung, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The patient, who was not identified, was the third here to receive an experimental anti-rejection drug.

He was suffering from a severe lung ailment and secondary heart disease, said Texas Heart Institute spokeswoman Hazel Haby. A team of surgeons headed by Dr. Denton Cooley replaced the patient's diseased organs during a 1 1/2-hour operation late Tuesday, she said.

Hospital officials were told Tuesday afternoon the donor organs were available from a 19-year-old man who died in a traffic accident, Ms. Haby said.

The patient immediately began receiving Cyclosporin A, an experimental drug which reduces the chances of the body rejecting the donor organs, she said.

"The first incision was made at 10:12 p.m. The donor heart started beating on its own at 11:25 p.m., and he was removed from the pump about 11:30 p.m.," she said.

Two other heart transplant patients received Cyclosporin A here earlier this year.

Dog to sniff for explosives at plant

CRANE, Texas (AP) — Workers at a natural gas processing plant were kept away from the job today after an anonymous caller said the facility would explode.

The Atlantic Richfield Co. plant was evacuated Tuesday after a caller said the facility would "blow before midnight." However, the deadline passed without incident.

A dog trained in bomb recovery was to be used in the search for explosives, according to Crane County officials.

Nearly all of the 117 workers of the plant were evacuated, leaving only a skeleton crew, which worked until 6:30 p.m. blocking off gas to the plant and bleeding lines in preparation for an explosion, plant supervisor Buern Hale said.

A Midland County sheriff's spokesman said the telephone threat was received about 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Five people sought in slot machine scheme

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Officials here are looking for five people wanted in connection with a scheme to tamper with slot machines in a casino, police said.

Three Texans were sentenced Tuesday in criminal court after convictions for fraud and attempted fraud for tampering with the machines.

Sentenced to 18-month prison terms were Larry Woody, 36, and Mark Ellis, 23. Ellis' wife, Marilyn, 24, was sentenced to eight months. All are from Palestine, Texas.

Being sought is Woody's brother, Gary, 35. Authorities were also looking for Tommy Swearingin, 36; Peggy Near, 29, and Joe Koster, 32, whose hometowns were unknown, and Frenchman Pierre Muller, 31.

The five were charged in international arrest warrants as being alleged accomplices in the scheme.

Authorities arrested Larry Woody Aug. 18 after he won a $2,083 jackpot. A fine wire was found that prosecutors said was used to block the slot machines' tumblers at the winning combination.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I was very interested in Gordon Parsley's letter of Nov. 14 which purported to answer my letter of Nov. 7. Quite frankly, I am almost certain I did not write the letter to which Mr. Parsley responded. That, or perhaps the second half of my letter was missing from his paper. This is the most charitable explanation of his comments. Yet, lest "rumor be half way around the world before the truth has its shoes on", I would like to beg your indulgence to review my position in light of Pastor Parsley's letter.

To begin with, no one who knows me well has ever accused me of spouting a "party line" (my wife sometimes wishes I were more of a conformist). My observations were based upon first-hand encounters with parents of children in church schools, and with pastors who direct church schools (but not in Hereford). My letter does not state that their views prevail throughout Christian education, nor did I suggest that church teachers are incompetent if not certified, nor did I suggest that church schools ought to be closed, and I certainly did not suggest that all public education is beyond reproach. I disclaimed each of these notions in the "missing" second half of my letter.

I have friends who support the Moral Majority, and I agree with some of their objectives. If my generalizations about Falwell and his group were too broad and unfair, then I have been guilty of judging the master by a few of his disciples. Certainly the term "parachurch" is not a "slur", it describes a relationship. The pronoun "para" means "along side of". As Baptists, Parsley and Falwell probably would not describe the multi-denominational Moral Majority as a church. Rather, it is an organization which works "along side of" the churches to achieve a desired goal.

Finally, I wrote in an effort to encourage those Christian public school teachers who have felt the sting of rebuke when public education is criticized by Christian groups. Of course, not all public schools are beyond criticism, but I did not write to oppose all criticism of public education. I wrote to oppose the blanket condemnation of public education that seems implicit in the position of some groups. Consider Pastor Parsley's words: "We are opposed to the philosophy of secular Humanism; an atheistic, playboy philosophy that saturates every school system with evolution, situational ethics, sex-education, and a hundred other ideas taken from the Religion of secular Humanism." (emphasis mine) Perhaps Mr. Parsley is not as pessimistic as he sounds. If "every school system" includes Hereford ISD, I would encourage him to drive past the rodeo team sign which stands east of town on highway 60. It proclaims "Winning With Christ", it is a sign of victory and hope. I don't think the people of Hereford are ready to believe that their school system is saturated with "ideas taken from the Religion of secular Humanism."

To those who are interested in this issue I would recommend Frank Gabelein's "The Pattern of God's Truth." In this book a positive philosophy of Christian education is presented. Gabelein's views are not far from those of Susan Robbins, whose letter puzzles me because I thought I agreed with her when I wrote, "Parents should be allowed to make that choice (between public and church schools)." No "undercurrent" was intended, I had no local school in mind.

Finally (all preachers are allowed at least two finallys), in all fairness, let me suggest that you reread all of Mr. Parsley's letter and all of my first letter. Then decide which one of us tried to be fair and balanced in his presentation. This might surprise Mr. Parsley, had I been in Louisville, Nebraska, I would have joined the other ministers in their prayer-meeting protest.

I have studied American church history for some time, and I feel I have a good understanding of the character of fundamentalism. The man who calls himself a fundamentalist is usually a good, sincere man, a man who is intensely loyal to his cause. Goodness, sincerity, and loyalty, traits to be admired in any man. The great danger is that loyalty, even the loyalty of a good and sincere man, can become a zeal which is blind to all criticism and deaf to any call for moderation. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Jim Hickman

'CBS' '60 minutes' wins ratings race

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' "60 Minutes" was the top-rated prime-time television program for the third week in a row, helping the network extend its run of first-place finishes to a month, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

CBS now has won the network's ratings competition six times in the eight weeks of the current season. NBC won twice in October, thanks in large measure to its broadcasts of baseball's World Series.

The No. 1 network had eight other shows, in addition to "60 Minutes," in the Top 10 for the week ending Nov. 21, including the last two installments in the three-part mini-series, "The Blue and the Gray."

Part II of the expensive Civil War drama was third in the current competition, with Part III in sixth place. The opening chapter was No. 2 in the previous week's survey.

CBS' rating for the week was 20.5, with ABC second at 17 and NBC third, for the fourth consecutive week, at 13.8.

The networks say CBS' rating means in an average minute of prime time, 20.5 percent of the country's TV-equipped homes were tuned to the No. 1 network.

CBS' rating was the highest for any network this season.

The rating for "60 Minutes" was 28. Nielsen says that means in an average minute of the news magazine program, 28 percent of the nation's homes with television were watching the show.

"Love Boat" on ABC was the only program to break CBS' hold on the week's Top 10, finishing fourth.

Shows featuring familiar television faces were the highest-rated of the season's new programs, and both were on CBS. "Newhart" finished in seventh place and "Gloria," starring Sally Struthers, was ninth.

Eight of the week's nine lowest-rated programs were episodes from new series or specials. "Tales of the Gold Monkey" on ABC was No. 62, followed by "Cheers" on NBC, ABC's "Star of the Family," "Voyagers" on NBC, NBC Sports' "Ringside," "St. Elsewhere" "Gavilan," both also from NBC, and two ABC programs, "Quest" and the holdover "Greatest American Hero."

Top Rodeo Performers

Shawn McConnell, left, and Jana Johnson completed the fall high school rodeo season at River Road last weekend, bringing home first place belt buckles. McConnell had a 5.9 time in bulldogging to snatch that event and Miss Johnson had a winning time of 14:43 in barrel racing.

Four new stations on air

Hereford Cablevision subscribers who have not acquired the new four channel converters may call the cable office to arrange for installation or to pick up a converter, according to Lloyd Ames, manager.

The four stations came on the air Monday night on alternate channels of 7, 8, 9, and 10, which give viewing of Nickelodeon, USA Cable Network, SPN, and CNN Headline News networks.

Bunch of Nuts

Hereford High cheerleaders surround teacher Jackie Cabiness in hopes she will buy some Prairie Lite Pecans before the Christmas break deadline. The girls are selling the one-pound bags of shelled pecan halves for $4 to raise money for the general cheerleading fund.

Review

guidelines to make sentences more uniform.

Bruce Lipshy of Dallas, chairman of the commission appointed by Gov. Bill Clements, said requiring judges to set punishment leads to questions about the election of judges.

"I have a problem with a judge setting a sentence if he has to be elected every few years," said Lipshy.

Commissioners voted Tuesday for a recommendation to take away the governor's power to review every parole case. The proposal would expand the Board of Pardons and Paroles from three to six members. The governor would appoint the three new members and pick the chairman.

Lipshy said Clements and Gov.-elect Mark White do not oppose the idea.

Also approved was a proposed weakening of the state's tough habitual offender law, which now requires life sentences for third felony convictions. The proposal would allow sentences as short as 20 years for third offenders.

The commission failed to approve a plan to limit the number of inmates from the 23 largest counties as a way to avoid closing TDC. The prisons were closed in the spring when they hit court-imposed maximum.

The proposal could come up again at the commissioner's Jan. 27 meeting.

Holmes and Dallas County Sheriff Don Byrd complained the limit would make it impossible for them to do their jobs. They said the limit punishes counties that are aggressive in law enforcement.

But Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls and a commission member, said the limit would punish counties — like Harris and Dallas — that do not look for alternatives to sending criminals to state prison.

"It's unfair to allow one or two counties to not look at alternatives and create a crisis for other counties," he said.

Among the other proposals approved Tuesday:

— Provide state subsidies

as incentive for community-based corrections centers that would keep felons out of the Texas Department of Corrections.

— Build four dormitories, at a cost of $52 million, at TDC to help relieve present overcrowding.

— Establish a two-year test program under which inmates would get $500, instead of the current $200, upon release. The $500 would be paid in several payments as ex-convicts meet certain conditions.

— Set up a classification system under which TDC inmates would be ranked according to potential for danger and other factors.

were asked to study the facilities matter after the chamber continued to receive requests from individuals and groups to pursue the project. There were different interests — some wanted an indoor swimming pool, some wanted more gym space, etc. — and the SEC committee, attempted to put it all in one package.

Perhaps, as some have suggested, the project was a good idea at the wrong time. Maybe the joint-venture concept will never come to pass, but the chamber and its past presidents should be commended for challenging us to think about community needs.

We predict the community will have some, if not all, of these facilities in the years to come. It may not be the campus-type plan presented this time and the governmental units may go their separate ways, and we may build them one at a time.

But the planning and dreaming will, and must, continue and hustlin' Hereford has the dreamers and doers who will see that Deaf Smith County is a unique place to live, work and play!

would be honored. My record speaks for itself."

Clements said last week that he intended to go ahead with the appointment and had not even read Doggett's letter. Clements said he expected no problems with Senate confirmation.

Earlier this year, Clements scored a court appointment coup over the Democrats when he appointed Houston District Judge Ruby Sondock the state's first female, full-fledged Supreme Court justice.

She serves until the end of the year in the unexpired term of Judge James Denton, who died.

Since the filing deadline for the November election had passed, the Democrats were put in the embarrassing position of replacing her with their male candidate.

Pope was appointed to fill Greenhill's unexpired term, which is up in 1984. Pope said he does not plan to seek reelection to the job then, but would not flatly rule it out.

Pope announced last year that he would retire when his current term expires on Dec. 31. He said then that he wanted to devote his time to writing books and traveling with his wife, Allene.

An Abilene native, Pope attended Abilene Christian College and the University of Texas law school. He was appointed a state district judge in 1946 by Gov. Coke Stevenson. Pope was elected to the state's high court in 1965.

Pope

be blocked by the Senate if he did not leave the chief justice decision to Democratic Gov.-elect Mark White.

Pope said he was "deeply indebted" to Clements.

"Who can despise an honor that the governor has bestowed upon me like this?" he said. "I would hope that if Gov. White had made this selection, he would have appointed me, too."

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, and 13 other Democratic senators wrote Clements last week suggesting that his naming of a new chief justice would result in all his appointments being blocked by the Senate, which must confirm them by a two-thirds vote of the members present.

Eleven senators can block an appointment.

But Doggett was not returning reporters' telephone calls Tuesday, suggesting Clements' choice of the venerated life-long Democrat might have thrown a crimp in Doggett's strategy.

White side-stepped the issue.

"Judge Pope is a very capable judge and served the people well as Supreme Court justice for many years. I am sure that he will do a good job. Whether or not he is confirmed is a subject only for the Senate's determination," said a statement prepared by White's office on his behalf.

"I won't run from a confirmation fight," Pope said. "If they would confirm me, I

Adventist Church begins campaign

Harold Bohr, pastor of the Seventh-day Adventist Church reminds members of the church that it is sharing time again. The campaign will begin the evening of Nov. 27.

Each year since 1908 the Adventists have attempted to reach every home and business establishment in their vicinity. Each member will be working with all ages, from children to the older citizens, and each will be wearing proper identification, all are volunteers.

Behind their mission to humanity is the Adventist concept of man. To them he represents a physical, mental and spiritual entity. To meet his needs, these people feel they must minister not just to one but to all aspects of his being — thus the humanitarian work fostered by the Adventist includes more than the preaching of the Word. They work for the wholeness of life and the wholeness of man, according to Bohr.

There are eight Seventh-day Conferences in the United States and each conference has a disaster van which contains over 10,000 articles of good clean clothes and bedding. These vans are taken into areas where there have been disasters such as floods or tornadoes to administer aid to the victims of the disaster.

The Adventists have a warehouse in Amarillo and the churches in the district bring in supplies to keep the disaster van supplied. Each maintains a community service within the church. Once each year they go to the public to receive help to defray some of the expenses of carrying on this work.

Pat Varner, lay activity leader of the local church, encourages each one that is contacted to give generously, quoting the saviour, "Give and it shall be given unto you."

With permission of the city solicitors will be out.

Homemakers Council elects new slate of officers

Officers for the coming year were elected when members of the Extension Homemakers Council met in the Heritage Room of the library on Monday. They include Cindy

Norvell, chairman; Gayle Carter, vice-chairman; Mary Carter, recording secretary; Johnny Messer, corresponding secretary; Bertha Dettmann, treasurer; Pat Ott, parliamentarian; and Robert

Ms. Novell presided over the meeting, welcoming Carol Walker of the Palo Duro Club as a visitor. Eight clubs were present, seven with 100 percent attendance.

Mrs. N.A. Brown, Messenger Club, read a poem for the opening exercise and Jewel Hargrave, treasurer, outlined plans for a booth at the Westway Bazaar on Dec. 4. Gayle Carter, Martha Lueb, and Grace Covington were named as a committee to oversee setting up the booth.

Louise Walker, county Extension agent, reported the birth of a daughter to Penny Reinart, assistant agent. She also announced that several 4-H girls will be in Dumas Dec. 4-6 to attend the District Food Show. She asked club members to turn in recipes they plan to bring to the Christmas Tasting Bee this week so a cookbook can be compiled before the meeting. The party is for all EH Club women in the county. New Council officers will be installed and games will be played following the noon meal.

Mariellen Homfield, Gayle Carter, and Roberta Campbell were named to audit the treasurer's books. Kate Bradley, Texas Extension Homemakers Association chairman, stated that the last of the State TEHA Cookbooks had been sold.

Messenger Club women served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Barbara Schlabs selected for membership in Buffalo Belles

Barbara Schlabs, a Hereford senior business major at West Texas State University, is one of 13 students selected as a member of the Buffalo Belles, a women's spirit organization.

Schlabs also is a member of the spirit committee and Alpha Kappa Psi, national business fraternity. She is a resident assistant at Ruth Cross Hall and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Schlabs.

Members are selected on the basis of school spirit and scholarship.

Supporting athletics and promoting school spirit are major activities of the organization. Belles participate in a variety of special campus events and programs as well as organize support projects for the university's athletes.

This year the group is sponsoring a project to renovate the H.A. Hill Memorial Chapel on campus. Belles will raise funds to pay for minor repair work on the inside chapel and landscaping.

Lapidary Club members plan Christmas party

Members discussed plans for the annual Christmas party at a meeting of the Deaf Smith County Lapidary Club Monday night. The party was set for 7 p.m. Dec. 13 at the Flame Room, and members are asked to bring a covered dish for supper and a gift-wrapped rock for the gift exchange.

For the program, Dale Henson showed a container of tumbled rocks from the Oklahoma Panhandle.

A number of thank you cards were read during the business meeting conducted by President Jack Nunley. Working committee chairmen were named and members were appointed to the various committees. The door prize, furnished by Nunley, was won by Pauline Lady.

Two guests were welcomed: Diana Anthony, science teacher at LaPlata, and Tim Inman. Thirty-four members were present.

It was announced that there will be no regular meeting in December, as the Christmas party will take the place of that meeting.

Herd basketball teams lose season openers

Hereford basketball coaches Bobby Decker and Larry Sowers, disappointed at their teams' showing in Tuesday night's season openers, both expressed virtually the same sentiment.

And, that sentiment was simply - "Levelland has a pretty darn good ball club."

The Levelland boys led the entire way as they defeated Hereford, 66-56.

The Levelland girls, returning four starters from a team which reached last year's state tournament, never were headed en route to a 65-38.

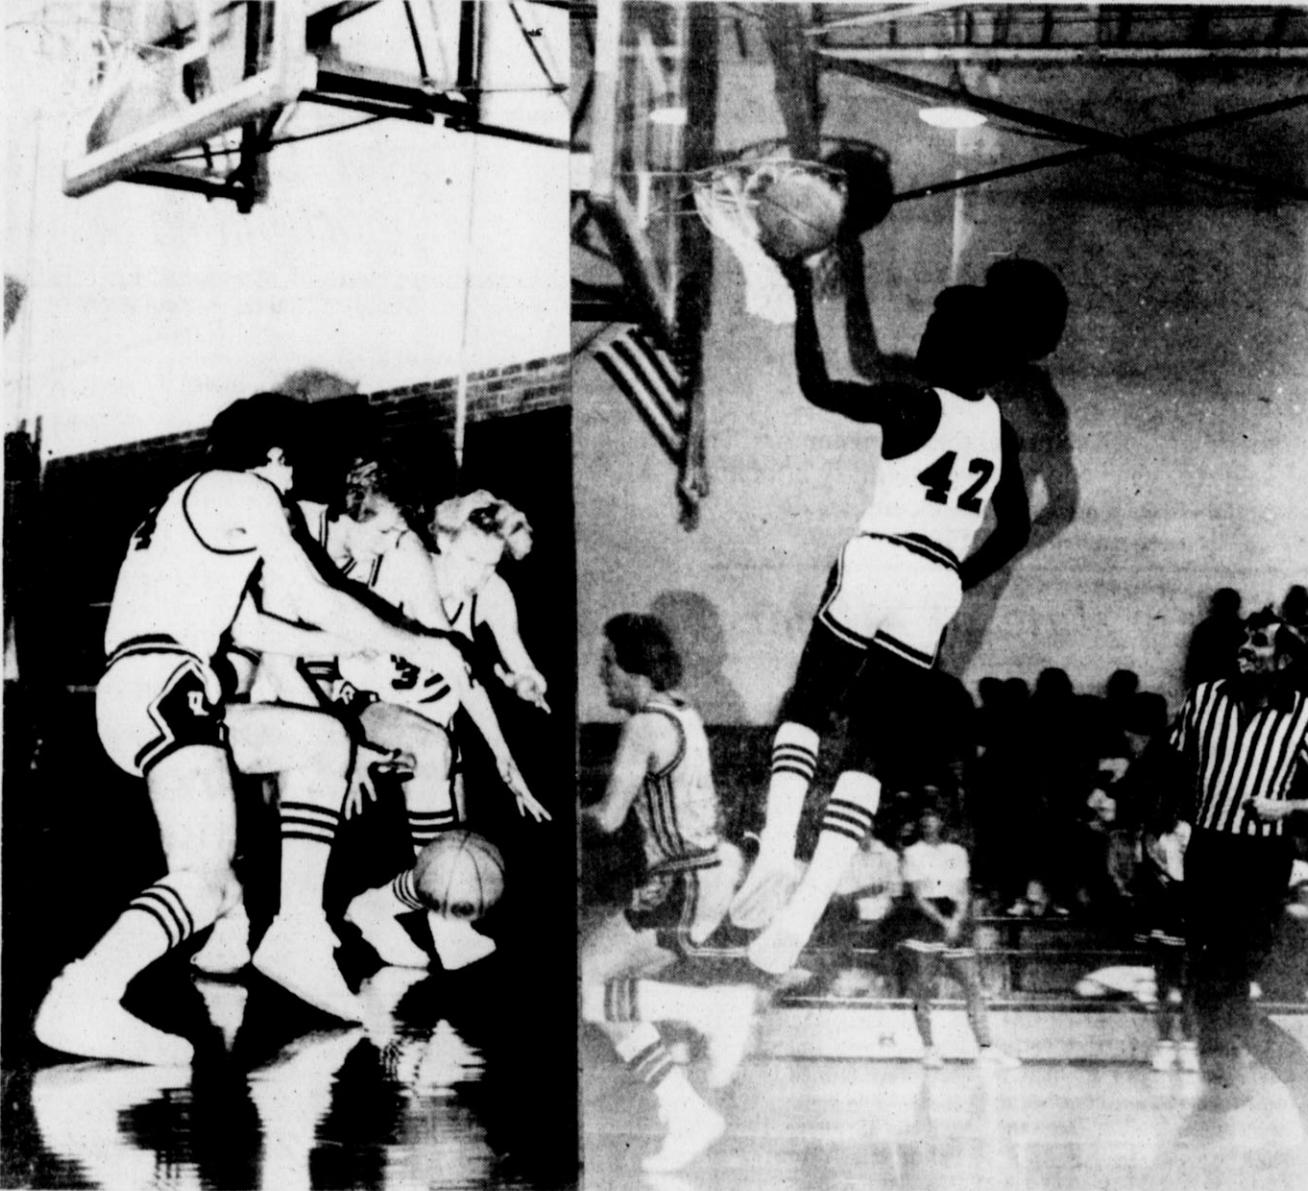

"We were just outmuscled inside," Decker noted. "Their post people dominated the game. They had three players in the 6-5 to 6-6 range (Hereford's tallest starter is 6-2), and they played well.

"We fell behind by 11 points (21-10) at the end of the first quarter and never really made a run at them.

"We did not play consistently at all. We were ragged in the early part of the first period, and again at the outset of the third quarter, and that's where they opened big leads."

For the game, Hereford shot 42 percent (21 of 49) from the field. Brian Taylor led the way with 15 points. Gary Long added 13, Jeff Streun, 12, Steve Welch 10 and Steve Barrett four. Gomer Garcia chipped in with two.

Dorsett nursing sore toe

Cowboys host Browns Thursday

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys may have depth problems at running back in their Thanksgiving Day meeting with the Cleveland Browns.

No. 1 running back Tony Dorsett missed his second consecutive workout Tuesday because of a sore right toe and top reserve James Jones will not play against the Browns because of a knee injury.

For the Cowboys, that leaves Timmy Newsome as Dorsett's only backup.

Rookie George Peoples could be moved from fullback to running back. Also, Landry could switch fullback Ron Springs to tailback and leave Peoples at fullback along with veteran Robert Newhouse.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry expects Dorsett to play.

"Tony showed a lot of courage in the Tampa Bay game by coming back in the second half after he was hurt," Landry said. "Tony didn't work Monday and won't work today, but we believe he can still be effective."

"Dorsett wasn't the only one hurting after Sunday's Tampa Bay game. Landry said the entire team was sore.

"It had been eight weeks since we played and I believe that the Thanksgiving Day game will be even more of a test physically than last Sunday's," Landry said. "We had a lot of energy stored up for Tampa Bay."

Landry said Dallas may have to go more to a passing game if Dorsett is not up to form.

"As he (Dorsett) goes, our running game goes," Landry said.

Dallas only got 75 yards rushing against Tampa Bay in a 14-9 victory with Dorsett logging 52 of those.

Both Cleveland and Dallas will go into the 3 p.m. nationally televised game 2-1. Some 2,500 tickets remained Tuesday for 65,000-seat Texas Stadium, but the Cowboys lifted the local blackout anyway.

"I don't know how much endurance we are going to have for two games in five days," Landry said. "I was kind of surprised how good we were physically last Sunday. We didn't get too tired, but, boy, were they sore Monday," Landry said Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe "is capable of 300-yard games"

THE HERFORD BRAND SPORTS

Page 4—The Hereford Brand—Wednesday, Nov. 24, 1982

Levelland guard Curtis Hall tossed in 16 points as did post player Jimmy Stephens. Another post, Scott Payne, added 11 for the winners.

While Hereford narrowed the gap to seven points (37-30) at the half, Levelland raced to a 55-38 lead after three periods as it outscored the Herd, 18-8, in the quarter.

In the girls' game, the score was knotted at 13-13 after one period.

But, after that it was all Levelland. "They started pulling away in the second period," Sowers noted. "By halftime, they were 12 points ahead of us, and after that they pretty much had their own way.

"We didn't play as well as I'd hoped we would. We turned the ball over too much (Hereford was guilty of 20 turnovers), and we didn't shoot well from the field (16 of 53 for 30 percent). Heck, we didn't even shoot very well from the free-throw line (6 of 14 for 43 percent).

"I thought our girls played hard, but they just made too many mistakes.

"We are going to have to get better play from our guards. They committed 13 of our 20 turnovers.

"And, inside, we're going to have to be more aggressive. Levelland gave us a pretty good lesson underneath."

Sherri Ellis scored 15 points and Stephanie Foster added 12 to lead Hereford.

Lisa Logsdon threw in 26 points for the winners to pace all scorers. Darla Isaacks added 20 from her post position.

"Logsdon is a super outside shooter," Sowers added, "and she really hurt us. We tried to overplay her some, but didn't have much success.

"Isaacks beat us pretty bad inside. She was a big, strong, aggressive player."

Levelland currently is ranked third in the state among Class 4A teams (according to the latest coaches' association poll), and is given an excellent chance of returning to Austin next spring.

Hereford's JV girls, behind 14-point performances by Darla Alford and Stacy High, beat Levelland, 52-39. The Lobo JV boys, meanwhile, outlasted the Herd, 47-42.

Hereford returns to action Friday night as both teams travel to Dimmitt. For the boys, it'll be a clash against the defending Class 3A state champions — a team which returns four starters.

Hereford's girls open strict 3-5A play next Tuesday against Palo Duro in An. rillo.

One of wildest endings ever

Final outcome stands in Stanford-Cal game

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Stanford probably will never admit that it was fairly beaten by California, but it has absolutely no recourse to change the outcome of Saturday's wild ending.

For the record, the score was 25-20 after Kevin Moen, the fourth Cal player to handle the ball (and one of two to have it twice) covered the last 25 yards of a 55-yard kickoff return, weaving his way through the Stanford band for the winning touchdown and capping one of the most bizarre plays in football history.

"It was unbelievable, the darndest thing I've ever seen," says Dave Nelson, athletic director and former coach at the University of Delaware and secretary of the NCAA's Football Rules Committee. "I haven't seen all the strange plays of all time, but I don't know how anything could top this."

Wiles Hallock, executive director of the Pacific-10 Conference, conceded Tuesday that Cal may not have had the proper number of players in the five-yard restraining area; since Stanford kicked off from its own 25 following a penalty, Cal was required to have at least five players between the Stanford 35 and 40. But the play and the game are over and the rule book specifies that "unless the game is forfeited, the team having the larger score at the end of the game, including extra periods, shall be the winning team and the score is final."

There is nothing more final than the final score of a football game, unless it is forfeited or one school offers to surrender a victory, like Cornell did against Dartmouth in the famous fifth down game of 1940. Dartmouth accepted, and a 7-3

Cornell triumph reverted to a 3-0 decision for Dartmouth. But if Cornell had not offered to change the result, Dartmouth's "victory" would have stood.

"A fifth (California) player was close (to the restraining area), but he was not there, in my judgment," Hallock said. The videotape replay shows the official was mistaken. He was subject to human imperfection.

The fact that Cal had only nine players on the receiving unit means nothing. A team can kick off with only a kicker, while the receiving team can get away with five players, provided they are all in that five-yard restraining area, which is between the receiving team's 45 and mid-field on a normal kickoff from the 40. You can put all 11 up there, if you so desire.

In fact, says Nelson, there is nothing that says a team can't play with fewer than 11 men, as long as it meets certain formation requirements. For example, if the offensive team has seven players on the line of scrimmage, that's good enough and no one legally has to be in the backfield. Of course, the center might have trouble finding someone to snap the ball to.

The rule concerning the Cal-Stanford game says that when "anyone other than a player or an official (a) tackles or impedes a runner who is in the clear and on his way to a reasonably assured touchdown; (b) prevents a reasonably assured recovery of a loose ball which could have resulted in a touchdown; or (c) anything or anyone not subject to the rules interferes in any other way," the ruling is as follows:

"(a) or (b) Award a touchdown and disqualify the offender. If there is no possibility of identifying the 12th player or if a disqualified player is discovered during or immediately upon completion of the play, it is assumed that the foul occurred during the down and the penalty is enforced from the basic or previous spot. (c) Inadvertent whistle principles apply."

In other words, if the officials felt the band prevented Stanford from tackling Moen, the play would have been "blown" dead at the spot where they felt he would have been stopped.

"The rule takes care of dogs, cats or band members," Nelson says. "If they tackle or impede a runner in the clear en route to a reasonably sure touchdown, it's a touchdown. If the band assisted him in getting the touchdown, the ball could have been declared dead at that point."

Elway said Tuesday. "What happened was unbelievable. I've seen it several times, but I still can't laugh about it. Maybe some time in the future I'll be able to look back and think it was funny."

"I was in back of the bench and the first thing I saw was our guys on the field thinking the game was over, and the next thing I knew they were still pitching the ball. It was total chaos. I don't think we felt like we lost until Sunday night or Monday."

Nelson also points out there is no such thing as a lateral pass; it is either a forward pass or a backward pass, which is anything other than a forward pass.

One final thought from Nelson:

"The band didn't tackle any better than the Stanford football team."

Ripken named A.L. rookie of year

NEW YORK (AP) — Cal Ripken Jr., a power-hitting infielder who walloped 28 home runs for the Baltimore Orioles, overcame a strong challenge from Minnesota's Kent Hrbek to win the 1982 American League Rookie of the Year award today.

Ripken, who said he wasn't sure he would win "because of such a great season that Hrbek had," collected 24 first-place ballots in the voting by 28 panelists from the Baseball Writers Association of America and finished with 130 points.

Hrbek, a first baseman who batted .301 for the Twins, knocked in 92 runs and slugged 23 homers, received the remaining four first-place ballots and finished with 90 points.

Ripken and Hrbek were the only players named on all 28 ballots.

Wade Boggs of the Boston Red Sox finished third with 10 1/2 points. Seattle's Ed Van der Bilt was fourth with 9 and Minnesota's Gary Gaetti, fifth with 4. Texas' Dave Hostetler (3), Cleveland's Von Hayes (2) and Toronto's Jesse Barfield (1 1/2) rounded out the voting.

Points were on a 5-3-1 scoring system for first, second and third, respectively.

After an early-season slump that had the 22-year-old Ripken fretting and losing some of his confidence, the third baseman-shortstop came on strong in the second half and finished with 93 RBI and a .264 batting average.

"Early in the season, people said I might be Rookie of the Year. But then I got off to such a terrible start," Ripken said. At one time, he said, "I would have been satisfied to have just dug myself out of the hole."

He said he had questioned whether he could hit big league pitching.

"I wondered, 'Is this league too tough?'" he said. "You start to doubt yourself. Those thoughts did cross my mind."

But after he talked with Manager Earl Weaver, who expressed confidence in the rookie's ability, Ripken became more confident in himself. He said his hitting performance in the Orioles' stretch run may have won him the rookie honor.

Orioles General Manager Hank Peters said Tuesday night of Ripken: "I can't think of any rookie in the league — and this is not to take anything away from a lot of other fine players — who's achieved all the things that young man did this season. He has a chance to be one of the finer players in the game."

Stanford quarterback John Elway, who had passed his team into position for Mark Harmon's 35-yard field goal that gave the Cardinals a 20-19 lead with four seconds left, still can't believe the turn of events.

"Here we are faced with fourth-and-17 and we pick it up and kick a field goal,"

Clemson on, ASU goes off probation

By The Associated Press

Defending national champion Clemson is coming on probation and Arizona State is going off. They are just two of the five teams in The Associated Press Top Twenty college football poll serving some sort of penalty for various violations of NCAA rules.

one of the toughest football probations ever handed down. The school that won the 1981 national championship was prohibited from appearing on television or in a bowl game for the next two seasons and was stripped of 20 scholarships — 33 percent of what would normally have been its permissible total in that period. An NCAA official said no other school had ever been penalized more than 10 scholarships.

of probation is for "monitoring" purposes — and SMU was barred from appearing on TV last year and playing in the Cotton Bowl, although it won the Southwest Conference championship.

Peters said while Ripken was outstanding offensively for the Orioles, "the defensive contributions are difficult to measure."

Ripken, whose father is an Oriole coach, began the season at third base but was moved to shortstop.

Earlier this month, Georgia, SMU and Arizona State were ranked 1-2-3, meaning the top three teams in the nation at the time had been slapped in one way or another. All three will appear in postseason bowl games, but only Arizona State has a player on its roster who was involved in the school's sentence.

Nevertheless, Dr. Charles Alan Wright, professor of law at the University of Texas and chairman of the Committee on Infractions, the NCAA's judge and jury, called it "a very damning case."

Nuggets notch scoring record, but lose game

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The Denver Nuggets, who took the place of the San Antonio Spurs in the record book, couldn't quite surpass them on the scoreboard.

The Nuggets scored more than 100 points for the 130th consecutive time Tuesday night, but they lost the game 136-126 to the Spurs, who held the previous National Basketball Association standard of 129 straight contests above the century mark.

"They could score 100 points in their sleep," San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck said. "I don't think there's anybody who can hold these guys under 100 points."

Denver has not been under 100 since it lost 98-97 to the Houston Rockets Jan. 18, 1981. Its lowest point total in that span has been 105 twice, and its record is 71-59.

In other NBA games, Indiana tripped New York 94-90, Portland edged Philadelphia 106-103, Atlanta bombed Chicago 132-102, Utah crushed Cleveland 121-99, Detroit ripped Houston 128-106 and New Jersey outlasted Golden State 110-103.

The Nuggets trailed by as many as 17 points in the first half, but they rallied to take a 109-108 lead with 8:14 left in the game before the Spurs took control again with a 12-4 spurt in the next three minutes.

Denver Coach Doug Moe, who coached the Spurs when they established the 129-game mark from 1978-80, thought the key to the game was when San Antonio took a 16-4 lead.

"We have got to come out ready to play," Moe said. "If you come out not ready to play in this league, you're going to get beat."

Gene Banks, who led San Antonio with 28 points and 13 rebounds, said the Spurs told themselves "to keep our composure when they came back on us."

Banks said that Denver "is the type of team that doesn't worry about being down by 15 or 20 points."

In addition to Banks, Mike Mitchell with 27 points and George Gervin with 25 had big nights for the Spurs. Alex English led all scorers with 36 points for Denver, while Dan Issel had 26 for the Nuggets. Blazers 106, 76ers 103.

Bookie Lafayette Lever hit three of four free throws in the final 16 seconds as Portland handed Philadelphia only its second loss in 12 games.

The victory was the fourth in the row for the Trail Blazers, but they won their first regular-season game in Philadelphia since 1974.

Calvin Natt led Portland with 22 points, while Kenny Carr and Mychal Thompson added 20 each for the Blazers. Moses Malone had 22 points and 21 rebounds for the 76ers.

Jazz 121, Cavaliers 99

Adrian Dantley scored 27 points and Darrell Griffith added 25 as Utah overpowered the Cavaliers in front of a crowd of 2,163, smallest in the nine-year history of Cleveland Coliseum.

The Cavaliers, 1-11, who now have lost 30 of their last 31 games over two seasons, never led as Dantley scored 14 points in the first quarter to pace the Jazz to a 37-23 lead. Dantley had 23 points by halftime as Utah extended its lead to 67-43.

Pistons 128, Rockets 106

Houston also lost for the 11th time in 12 games as Kelly Tripucka scored 27 points for Detroit.

Edgar Jones and Isiah Thomas added 24 points apiece for the Pistons, who shot 68.4 percent from the field to take a 37-30 lead in the first period and then built a 94-76 lead after three quarters by shooting 68.4 percent in the first 12 minutes of the second half. Hawks 132, Bulls 102.

Atlanta got its best point production of the season as Eddie Johnson scored 25 points, Dominique Wilkins 24 and Rory Sparrow 23 against Chicago.

The Hawks broke a four-game losing streak by scoring 21 more points than they had in any of their previous 11 outings. The Bulls never got closer than 20 points after falling behind 30-10 7½ minutes into the game.

Pacers 94, Knicks 90
George Johnson and Billy

Knight scored 21 points apiece and led a third-quarter rally by Indiana against New York.

The Knicks led 68-57 with 5:56 left in the third period, but Knight scored eight points during a 15-2 Pacer streak that gave them their first lead of the game at 72-70. Johnson scored 15 points in the third quarter, which ended in a 74-7 tie.

The game was deadlocked at 80-80 in the fourth period before Indiana scored seven points in a row to take the lead for good. Knight and Johnson capped that spurt with two free throws and a basket, respectively.

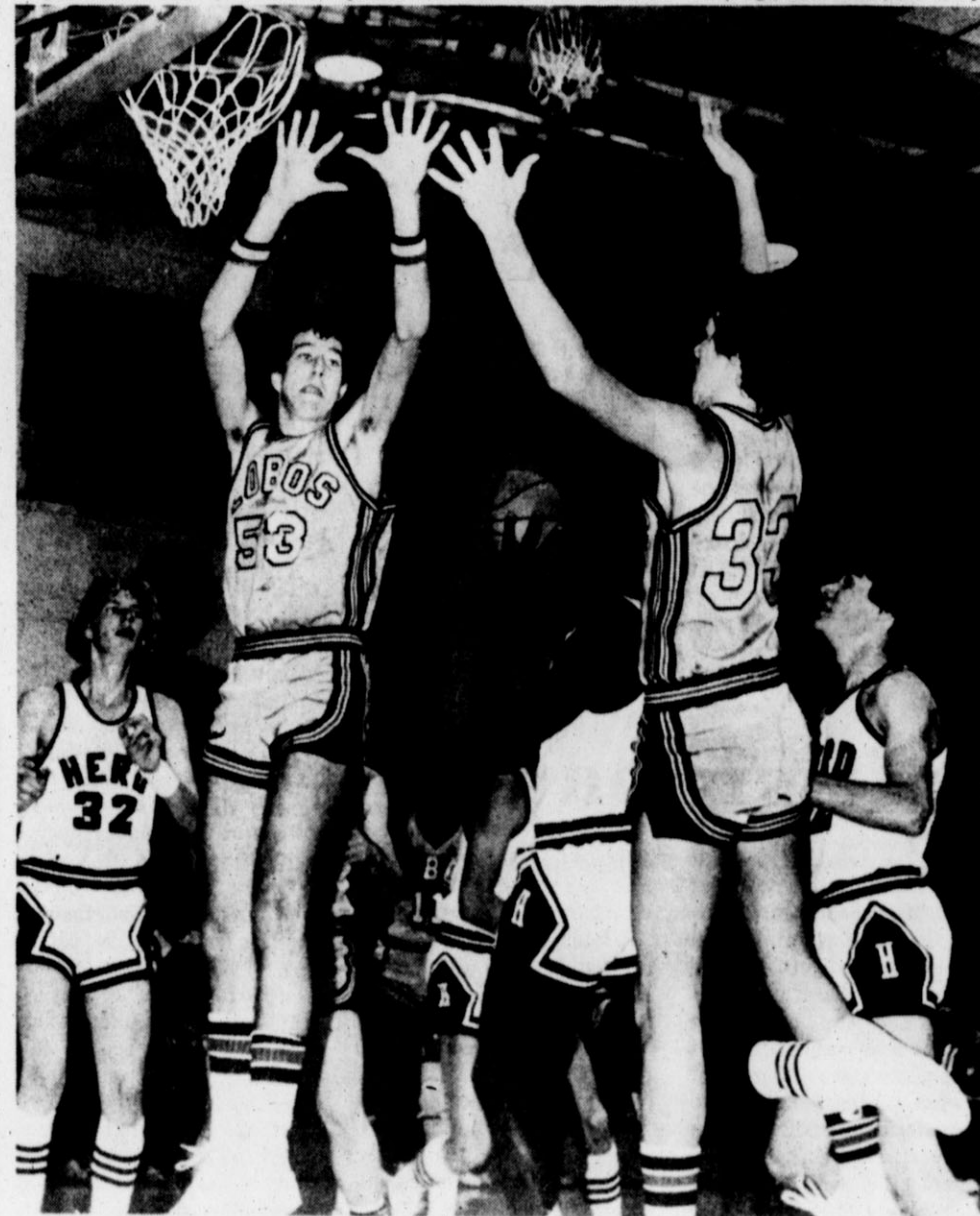

Nets 110, Warriors 103

Otis Birdsong scored 27 points as New Jersey handed Golden State its fifth straight loss.

The Nets carried a 13-point lead into the fourth quarter, but the Warriors rallied to cut the deficit to 103-101 with 1:27 to go. But two free throws by Buck Williams, a blocked shot by Len Elmore and a layup by Darwin Cook put new Jersey comfortably ahead again.

Joe Barry Carroll led all scorers with 28 points for Golden State, while Purvis Short had 24.

In Heavy traffic
Hereford's Brian Taylor (with Levelland defenders. Hereford ball), surrounded by a pair of lost its season opener, 66-56.

Reports say Wacker to be new TCU coach

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Jim Wacker of Southwest Texas State University has accepted the head coaching job at Texas Christian University following last week's firing of coach F.A. Dry, sources at both schools say.

The Austin American-Statesman and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram report in today's editions that Wacker met with his team late Tuesday night and told him he had accepted the job.

The American-Statesman quoted a person within the program, who did not wish to be identified, as saying Wacker had regrets about leaving the Bobcats, who he led to three consecutive Lone Star Conference titles.

"It was terrible," the source told the American-Statesman. "He met with the players, and he cried for 15 minutes. He told us that he's had a dream and that was to coach in major college."

The Star-Telegram attributed the announcement of the Wacker choice to unnamed sources from both schools.

Earlier, Wacker said he would not even consider talking to TCU representatives until after the season was over, including the Division II playoffs.

"He said he made them promise not to let it out before the season was over — that word got out, and something happened to keep us from winning a national title, it would destroy him," the American-Statesman quoted the source as saying. "But it got out, and he said he had to tell us."

The Bobcats scored a 45-27 win over Texas A&I University Saturday to close out the 15C season, and Wacker talked with TCU officials Sunday.

Wacker had been in contact with TCU for the last several days, said SWT athletic director Bill Miller.

"He talked with me some this afternoon," Miller told the American-Statesman. "He said there were still some loose ends on the TCU side — things weren't together. He told me he was going to accept if things were worked out. I guess he assumes they're going to work out."

Amarillo woman speaks for local club

Ann Scamahorn, with the marketing department of the Amarillo Globe News, was guest speaker Monday evening as members of the Young Mothers' Study Club met at Hereford State Bank.

She discussed the Ladies of Legend series in the Amarillo newspaper and the role of women in today's world. Members considered her candor and insight into the business world from a woman's point of view both enlightening and amusing.

Ms. Scamahorn also gave a brief background of the newspaper and discussed what is involved in putting out four separate editions each day.

Information regarding the club's recent money-making project was given, and plans for the upcoming children's Christmas party were discussed.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Kathy Boyd and Carla Hollinger.

Other members present were Georgia Auckerman, Lisa Blakely, Dee Dee Coker, Doris Artho, Jeanne Lomas, Alice Lockmiller, Karla Vasek, Jo Lynn Schilling and Kelly Wagner. Special guest was Rochelle Hutcherson.

Ann Landers
Prefer not to be reminded

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter about the minister who singled out the oldest mother at church services on Mother's Day reminded me of an incident that may be worth passing on to your readers.

I had lunch with a friend who brought along a house guest, her father — a man in his 90s. When he was absent from the table, I asked his age. She replied "His is 93, but doesn't like to be reminded of it." And then she told me he no longer attends Father's Day services or special church functions because they kept making a big deal about his age. She said, "No one wants to be reminded that he has lived beyond the expected time. Why can't people forget age and find something else that deserves mention?"

I had never before thought about elderly people in that way. Since then I have talked with several golden-agers and discovered that all would prefer not to be honored for the number of years they have lived, but rather for something they have achieved.

God provided only one alternative to growing old, and I'm not ready for it. Sign me — O.L. In Peoria DEAR O.L.: Move over. You're singing my song.

Military Muster

Pvt. Edward Salazar, son of Moises and Amelia Salazar of 801 Irving, has completed one station unit training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training.

The training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. Completion of this course qualifies the soldier as a light-weapons infantryman and as an indirect-fire crewman.

Soldiers were taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar squad.

Salazar is a 1982 graduate of Hereford High School.

Eagles mate for life and return to the same nest every year.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

Protein for vegetarians

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — What is the best source of protein for a strict vegetarian diet? This person will not eat eggs. — JANE

DEAR JANE — I assume by "strict vegetarian diet" you're referring to the vegan diet, which does not include meat, eggs or dairy products like cheese and milk. (A diet which excludes meat, but allows eggs and dairy products is known as "ovo-lacto.") Protein in such a diet can be obtained primarily from legumes (dried beans and peas, peanuts), nuts and grains. The protein foods should be eaten in combination to obtain most of the essential amino acids. For example, beans with rice is a nearly complete protein dish. The different amino acids (components of protein) in the beans and the rice complement each other. Soybeans provide a high-quality protein by themselves and are a very popular protein food in a wide variety of forms. (Soybean-based meat "analogs," or imitations, are one example; tofu is another.) In addition, a wide variety of vegetables, fruits and whole grains will provide other necessary nutrients; pure vegetable oil and vegetable margarine instead of butter or other animal fats will provide the necessary fat (vegan diets tend to be low in fats — which is good — but a small quantity of fat should be included in any normal diet). The main points to remember are to eat a varied diet and eat foods in combination. And remember, a vegetarian diet of any kind need not be dull. Experiment with herbs and spices to turn an all-vegetable meal into tempting gourmet fare. Check out cookbooks that feature foreign cuisine: Indian, Chinese and Mexican cooking, for example, have many vegetarian dishes that everyone enjoys. Bon appetit! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — For Millie who wrote about pickled cauliflower turning pink: If she puts a pinch of turmeric in each jar, the cauliflower won't turn pink, but will become slightly yellow. It will also have a better flavor. — TOM

Polly will send you a Polly Dollar ($1.00) if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — Sometime ago, you printed a Pointer on how to clean a steam iron with white vinegar. I tried it and it really worked. Now I have misplaced the clipping. If it was in your column, could you please reprint it? — MRS. L.C.

DEAR MRS. L.C. — It's such an easy and useful technique, I'm glad to repeat this easy way to clean a steam iron of mineral deposits. Simply pour half water and half white vinegar (or full-strength vinegar, if the iron is very clogged) into the water chamber, turn the iron on to the highest "steam" setting, and let it heat up for at least five minutes. Be sure the iron is sitting on a thick pad of newspapers to catch any drips. After five minutes or so, unplug the iron and let it cool, then empty. Deposits and dirt should come out with the vinegar and water. Wipe the outside of the iron with a damp cloth. If your iron still seems slightly clogged, you may repeat. This is a good treatment for cleaning your iron every few months or so to prevent the buildup of mineral deposits. Easy as can be! — POLLY

Welcoming Speaker

Patricia Robinson welcomes program speaker Jack Flynt of Dimmitt, to the Los Ciboleros Chapter of DAR meeting Thursday afternoon in the Friendship Room of Hereford State Bank. Flynt, past National Commander of the American Legion, spoke on national defense.

Jack Flynt speaks to Los Ciboleros Chapter

Los Ciboleros Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met for their monthly meeting Thursday afternoon in the Friendship Room of Hereford State Bank. Mrs. Leroy Williamson, Chapter Regent, called the meeting to order.

Mrs. Tom Draper, program leader, introduced Jack Flynt of Dimmitt, past National Commander of American Legion. Flynt returned recently from Washington, D.C. where he participated in the dedication of the Vietnam War Memorial of which he was instrumental in the completion.

He has traveled extensively during his tenure as National Commander, covering 300,000 miles as he visited 14 foreign countries and all states in our nation.

Flynt's topic "Our National Defense" was very timely. Using the map of the world, Flynt discussed the main shipping routes to Iraq and Saudia Arabia which supplies 80 percent of the oil used by NATO countries.

South Africa is strategically located with Cape of Good Hope where all ships can be monitored as they travel within 20 miles of the Coast for safety to avoid the dangerous winds farther south, he said.

Flynt discussed the growing turmoil in South and Central America. With national security of utmost importance, he feared that the American people, through apathy and complacency, have drifted away from feeling the need to keep the United States strong.

Liberty is threatened today, he emphasized. With all the world crises, precarious peace is maintained only by United States armed strength and leadership in the Free World.

The ratio of armed weapons and military forces of United States and Russia was compared. Many instances where chemical and biological warfare in Afghanistan and Laos had been used.

The increasing naval power of Russia was proof that Russia seeks to gain control of all sea routes in the world. Warning statements from three Soviet leaders, Stalin, Kruchev and Brezhnev, regarding Soviet supremacy were discussed. He reminded members that peace movements play into the hands of the Communistic leaders.

United States cannot be second best. Only the strong nations will survive, said Flynt. The weaknesses of U.S. military capabilities may prove to be the greatest threat to peace in the world. He stressed that all citizens must be better informed on the current events throughout the world.

In the absence of Mrs. Herman Drake, chairman of veterans' patients committee, Mrs. James Jesko, chairman of the Christmas Gift Shop, Veterans' Hospital, of Ladies Auxiliary, reported on the activities at this time in redecorating the Gift Shop, and receiving gifts and contributions from DAR Chapters and Auxiliaries.

She expressed her appreciation for all the gifts given each year at Christmas which makes this project such a success.

She also discussed the need for small tubes (complimentary size) of toothpaste and hand lotions for veterans during their brief stays in the Veterans Hospital. Canceled postage stamps were also brought by members for the Veterans' use in crafts and hobbies.

Guests present included Flynt, Ira W. Ott, Carlos A. Vaughn, James Jesko, Beverly Jesko, Pet Ott, Dee Wiseman, Elaine Van Pelt, and Helen McLarty of Eustace.

Hostesses were Nell Norvell, Kathryn Ruga, Ethel Jordan and Argen Draper.

Members present included Margaret Durham, Mildred Elliott, Wanda Jones, Rachel Henslee, Bea Barrett, Mary Sue James, Mary Van Pelt, Ruth Know, Patricia Robinson, Mary E. Williamson and Leta Kaul.

Los Ciboleros Chapter will meet Dec. 16 in the home of Mrs. Mike Carr, 348 Elm, for a Christmas program, "Let's Celebrate Christmas" with program leaders, Barbara Burkhalter and Cindy Black.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 26-year-old female with skipped beats. I have had all sorts of tests, including a stress test, echogram, Holter monitoring and the works. My doctor says they are benign PVCs. I don't take a lot of caffeine but I do smoke and am slightly overweight. I take no medications except Valium when I get a lot of skips. I get from 200 skips an hour to 10 a day.

I've had skips for three years. It annoys me to feel them in my throat. My husband tells me not to worry about them, but it is hard not to. I'm pretty young to be having these. I've heard of older people getting skipped beats but not so young. Can they damage my heart any? I guess that is what I fear the most. My father died young of a heart attack but I don't know if he had this problem.

DEAR READER - I'm glad you had a complete examination as it is important to be sure you do not have some underlying heart defect, or some medical condition not related to the heart that is causing skipped beats.

But you need to know that these can occur at any age in healthy people. Probably most people have a few if you recorded all their heartbeats on a 24-hour basis. We found that most of the astronaut candidates had a few. They had so much monitoring done that we found them even though they were unaware of an occasional skipped beat.

Just because you don't have heart disease doesn't mean skipped beats cannot be troublesome. When you feel them they can be very disturbing. They will not damage your heart. However, for other readers I must point out that they can also be caused by heart disease. Some forms in the presence of heart disease alert the cardiologist to the possibility of serious heart irregularities.

May I suggest that you do stop smoking. Evidently anything that increases the body's release of adrenaline or sensitivity to adrenaline makes irregular beats worse, hence no coffee, tea or cigarettes. And if a person is not in good physical condition improved fitness may help.

You'll understand your problem better after you read The Health Letter 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias, which I am sending you. Others can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Locating correct cold remedy can be confusing

HOUSTON - The state's 1982-83 influenza season is not expected to be severe. But Texans by the thousands will once again rush to the drugstore - seeking relief from sneezes, coughs and fevers - only to be confused by the number of over-the-counter (OTC) medications.

Flu and drug experts at Baylor College of Medicine have a few pointers on how to avoid the emotional trauma.

Deciding what to choose begins with thinking about the symptoms you have, and treating only the serious symptoms. Robert Couch, M.D., director of Baylor's Influenza Research Center, said. Ingredients are listed on the packages of OTC medications.

If you are "stopped up," or congested, look for a medicine that has a decongestant, such as phenylpropanolamine hydrochloride or pseudoephedrine.

A runny nose can be controlled by an antihistamine, which dries up fluids, but it is recommended only for a very runny nose. One of the popular ones is chlorpheniramine.

Coughs can be helped by suppressants, such as those containing dextromethophan. A dry cough may require an expectorant - one is guaifenesin - to loosen lung fluids.

Most OTC medications for colds and flu are combinations of ingredients to treat a number of symptoms, but in this case more is not necessarily better.

"Many concoctions that contain three or more drugs will probably have something unnecessary in them," Couch said. "And the more drugs you take the more likely you are to have reactions to one of them."

He also said the amount of one or more of the combined ingredients may be too little.

The aspirin in some medications may not be enough to control your headache. It might be better to use a medication with two ingredients, such as a decongestant and cough suppressant, and then take aspirin or an aspirin substitute.

The form medications are in - nose spray, nose drops, liquid, tablet or capsule - should be considered.

Frank Bennett, a registered pharmacist and Baylor graduate student, said that decongestant nose sprays and drops are effective for short term use.

"They have a fairly quick action because they are administered at the site where needed," he said. "But people can develop a tolerance to these in a matter of days, and get what is known as 'rebound congestion.'"

Liquids usually act faster than tablets or capsules and the elderly and children seem to tolerate them better.

Bennett said that there are some individuals who should be careful about cold and flu OTC medications.

People with glaucoma, an increased pressure in eye fluids, should not take antihistamines. They tend to increase fluid pressures.

Decongestants may cause problems for diabetics and those with high blood pressure. They can increase blood sugar levels, and interact with blood pressure medications.

"There is probably little difference between different brands of over-the-counter medications for colds and flu," Bennett said. "If they have the same ingredients in the same dosage level."

But to be sure, Couch and Bennett suggest that people ask their doctor or pharmacist for information on cold and flu medications. And above all, see a doctor if coughing, fever or other symptoms continue for more than three to five days.

Fearful Guatemalans spilling into Mexico

By MONTE HAYES
Associated Press Writer

SANTIAGO EL VERTICE, Mexico (AP)—The guerrilla war in Guatemala is spilling into neighboring Mexico along an unguarded 480-mile frontier where fearful Guatemalan refugees have fled the political violence that plagues their homeland.

More than 30,000 Guatemalan Indians and peasants — including entire villages — have streamed into Mexico since the beginning of the year, say Mexican and international relief agencies.

"In January there were 3,000 refugees, in July 9,000 and in October, at our last count, 30,000," said Pierre Jambor, representative of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, in an interview in Mexico City.

As the flow has increased, Guatemalan army patrols have begun crossing into Mexico in pursuit of the fleeing campesinos because they view them as rebel supporters, the refugees and relief agencies say.

The Mexican government presence on the border is thin and Mexico has not made patrols of the area a priority.

Though they have made at least one official protest over the border incursions, officials in Mexico City, 775 miles to the northwest, say they have little knowledge of the frontier violations.

Dozens of refugees at isolated settlements say they had fled to Mexico because they feared being killed by Guatemalan soldiers. Many said troops had slain people in their villages and that in some cases entire hamlets were wiped out.

Amnesty International, the London-based human rights organization, says it has evidence that 2,600 Guatemalan Indians and peasants — many of them women and children — have been massacred in recent attacks by government forces. The organization says the attacks have increased since Guatemalan President Efraim Rios Montt came to power in a military coup in March and intensified the fight against the guerrillas.

"We do not want to die. That is why we came — to live a little longer," said Carlos Espinoza, who arrived here with his wife and two children on July 1, along with 556 others from the village of La Trinidad, a three-hour walk from the border.

But the peasants have discovered Mexico is not a haven from violence.

A marauding Guatemalan army patrol shot to death a Guatemalan peasant and a Mexican campesino in August near the refugee camp of La Hamaca. The two were clearing a field 500 yards from the border.

Mexico protested, but Guatemalan officials deny that any border violations have taken place.

Foreign Minister Jorge Castaneda last week described the situation along the frontier with Guatemala as "very grave" and said Mexico is studying the possibility of moving the camps farther from the border.

Most of the 36 settlements are within a mile of the boundary, which cuts through sparsely populated mountains and steamy jungles in Chiapas, Mexico's southern-most state.

Here at Santiago El Vertice the border dips and climbs through cool, pine-forested highlands. The division line is marked by a 30-foot-wide cleared strip, concrete monuments on mountaintops visible for miles and a barbed-wire fence.

The border markers did not stop an estimated 100 elite anti-insurgency troops from crossing into Mexico and attacking the Guatemalan settlement here on the morning of Oct. 30, the refugees said, although their account could not be independently confirmed.

Armando Perez Narvaez was the first to spot the Guatemalan soldiers racing silently through the pine forest toward the camp, located about 1,500 yards from the border.

"They saw me and fired twice without saying a word and I ran," said Perez Narvaez, one of seven Mexican brothers who allowed the refugees to settle on their land.

The shots warned the refugees and they escaped into the surrounding forest while the Guatemalan soldiers pilfered the camp, the peasants said.

"These poor people are terrified," said Roque Perez Narvaez, the head of the Mexican family. "We also are afraid they will return at night and kill the Guatemalans and us, too."

The Perez Narvaez brothers said they have asked for protection. But an immigration agent assigned to the refugee camp, who asked to remain anonymous, said

Mexico in the past has not patrolled the frontier with Guatemala "to avoid armed conflicts."

Besides leaving the frontier unguarded, Mexico has shown ambivalence toward the refugees in other ways.

Last month, immigration agents armed with rifles broke up the camp of Rancho Tejas and forced 1,500 frightened refugees to flee.

Luis Ortiz Monasterio, head of the government's Committee for Aid to Refugees, said the immigration official responsible for the incident has been transferred and demoted.

Jambor said the negative publicity following the eviction of the refugees had "the positive effect" of forcing the government to restate its commitment to the refugees.

The government is administering an $800,000 U.N. grant for food, medicine and clothing and is providing doctors to treat the refugees, many of whom arrive weak and ill after hiding in Guatemala's mountains and jungles for weeks and going days without eating.

"Refugees are a totally new problem for Mexico," Jambor said. "But there's no question the Mexicans are slowly realizing the size of the problem."

'When it rains it pours,' goes one hard luck tale

By JERRY GRIMES
Port Arthur News

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP)—For Jimmy Dement, 1982 hasn't been the best of years.

He was one of nearly 4,000 Texaco employees who went on strike last January, and one of four men injured in an Oct. 13 accident when a hot catalyst was sprayed on workers.

Recently, his wife, Lisa, faced surgery and a stay in the hospital.

"Well, you know, when it rains, it pours," Dement said. Unfortunately, it seems to be still pouring on 22-year-old Jimmy Dement.

Last week he got the word that he will be one of about 250 employees who will be laid off by Texaco during the next seven days.

The layoffs, Texaco says, are a part of an overall effort to increase the productivity and efficiency of the Port Arthur refinery.

A former auto mechanic, Dement came to Texaco in June of 1981. He earned the right to bid into the coveted operator's classification at the refinery after having been in the yard department for only a few months.

"When I got the job at Texaco," Dement said, "I really thought things were going to be looking up for me."

Facing the unemployment line only days after being released by his doctor following the catalyst accident, Dement is still unsure of his plans.

"Find a job," he said. "But there don't seem to be too many of those around here these days."

Maybe he'll go back to being an auto mechanic. Maybe he'll get on at another plant or refinery in the area. Or he might have to find a way to cope without a steady weekly paycheck he was so used to getting.

"I'm not too excited about going back to a refinery right now, to tell you the truth," he said.

The accident still weighs on his thoughts, he admitted.

"If you don't mind," he said, "I don't really want to discuss that."

Dement says he will qualify for unemployment benefits of about $147 per week, and adds there is always hope that the economic conditions will improve or that somehow he can be rehired.

Most of his hope, Dement admits, lies in a union-initiated plan which would, if accepted by Texaco, put some of the workers to be laid off back to work as temporary laborers. The job would mean a change in responsibility and a fairly substantial cut in pay, Dement says, but it would also mean working again.

"I loved my job. I couldn't stand doing the same old thing every day at some place," he said.

Working as a temporary employee, Dement would lose his company-paid benefits, which include various kinds of insurance and other amenities. And his pay rate would drop from around $12 an hour to about $8.75 — the

Crossroads

Called a "biological crossroads of North America," the Big Thicket of east Texas is overlapped by Appalachian and southern forests, flora and fauna of the West and varieties of plants indigenous to Mexico's subtropics.

union's bottom scale.

"I could go for that in a heartbeat," Dement said of the plan. "From what I gather it would be all labor work, but there ain't nothing wrong with that. That would be fine," he said.

Dement, like a good number of the rank-and-file employees at Texaco, is an avid supporter of his union.

And while it was a company decision to eliminate jobs at the facility, it was, ironically, the union system — which insures that layoffs will be handled by seniority — that determined he would be one of the workers to be laid off.

"I mean to tell you," he answers without hesitation when asked if he still supports unionism.

"It's the only fair way to do it. You can't have a company picking people they want to get rid of and people they'd like to keep. It's just not fair," Dement said.

Dement says he has "no hard feelings" toward Texaco, either.

"After the accident they treated us real good," he said of the company.

Putnam says talks, over

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP)—Braniff International Chairman Howard Putnam says the refusal by pilots to accept new work rules apparently has scuttled a proposed joint operating venture with Pacific Southwest Airlines.

Braniff failed to meet a PSA deadline of midnight Tuesday for reaching agreement with the Air Line Pilots Association and William Shimp, PSA chairman, refused to "work out some new terms," Putnam said early today.

"The pilots, unfortunately, walked out twice tonight," Putnam said. "I called Mr. Shimp both times and tried to work out some new terms, but he couldn't budge."

Putnam said he did not expect any new negotiations with San Diego-based PSA.

"As far as I'm concerned, we missed the deadline set by PSA," Putnam said. "The talks are over."

Putnam said he would not rule out another reorganization plan for the grounded carrier.

"I am not going to give up, I just can't," he said. "I won't rule out a joint venture with another airline, but I don't have anything definitive now."

Putnam said the Teamsters signed a new contract early today and the flight attendants had agreed to sign.

The dispatchers' union earlier reached agreement. Braniff has asked a federal bankruptcy judge in Fort Worth to throw out its contract with the International Association of Machinists.

The machinists, who did not participate in Tuesday night's talks, earlier said they were opposed to the revised seniority rules.

William E. Hastings, PSA director of public relations, told The Dallas Morning News the talks "are off."

"Anything is possible, but it is highly unlikely," Hastings said. "It would be up to the board of directors... This is a holiday period and it would be hard to get in touch with every member of the board."

Organization honors 18 'Wonder Women'

NEW YORK (AP) — An Indian mental health worker, a union organizer and a mother of 13 were among the 18 "Wonder Women" who each received a $7,500 cash award for having traits like the comic strip character.

The recipients, all over 40, received the awards at a ceremony Monday sponsored by the creators of the fictional Wonder Woman with super powers.

"Wonder Woman ... has been embraced by women of all ages as a symbol of compassion, honesty, courage, strength and wisdom, created last year by D.C. Comics and Warner Communications to mark the 40th anniversary of the comic strip.

One of the winners, Bertha Carter, a mother of 13 from Drew, Miss., said she would use her award to study. "I'd like to get a degree. I want to run for City Council and I need a little more education," she said.

"We don't have one black on our City Council," the black woman said. "I think we have one cleaning up the building."

Another winner, Phyllis Old Dog Cross, an Indian mental health nurse in Rapid City, S.D., said she will make a financial contribution to In-med, a program that encourages young Indians to go to medical school.

"I went through a phase of thinking that the way to get things done was to demonstrate, protest, lobby," she said. "But the mental health of Indians was getting worse. That's when I became interested in getting young people interested in education."

The winners ranged in age from 41 to 70 and for the most part have escaped national attention.

The awards were presented by actresses Marlo Thomas and Jean Stapleton, arts supporter Joan Mondale, singer Judy Collins, feminist Gloria Steinem, television personality Hugh Downs and magazine editor Susan Taylor.

Winner Ann Burlak Timpson, 70, a textile mill union organizer from Boston who braved jailings in the 1930s for her work, said the award will give her time to write a book about her experiences.

"There are many lessons from that period that must be remembered today," she said.

The other winners, culled from 1,300 applicants, were:

—Ada Deer, of Madison, Wis., a former official of the 6,000-member Menominee Tribe. She said she would use the money to pay off campaign debts from her unsuccessful bid for Wisconsin Secretary of State.

—Christine Wells of Tempe, Ariz., a researcher and writer about sports medicine for women.

—Karen Ferguson of Washington, D.C., director of the Pension Rights Center, a national organization that represents pension plan participants seeking information.

—Anita Bracy Brooks of Minneapolis, a black artist who earned her master's degree in social work and her doctorate in educational psychology. She is an associate professor at the University of Minnesota, currently on leave to write her autobiography.

—Robin Morgan of New York, a poet, author and activist. She has written three books of poetry and two plays. She is best known for her book "Sisterhood is Powerful," a feminist anthology.

—Jane Roberts Chapman of Chevy Chase, Md., a women's rights activist now writing a book on positive male-female relationships.

—Mim Kelber of New York, a journalist who served in the 1970s as an adviser to former Rep. Bella Abzug. She is writing a book about women's roles in war.

—Eula Hall of Craynor, Ky., who runs a health care center that serves 14,000 people in her poverty-stricken Appalachian community. The health center was destroyed by arson in June and she is leading a fund-raising effort to rebuild it.

—Virginia Currey of Dallas, a member of the Texas State School Board who demands textbooks for children that are non-sexist and non-racist. She is associate professor of Women's Studies at Southern Methodist University.

—Rita Webb Smith of New York, a neighborhood activist in Harlem who counsels alcoholics and drug abusers at the Harlem Hospital Center.

—Harriet Bell of New York, a handicapped rights activist who was crippled by polio in 1954.

—Rosetta Reitz of New York, author of "Menopause: A Positive Approach," who is cataloguing the jazz music of black female vocalists.

—Lupe Anguiano, of San Antonio, Texas, who was active in migrant workers rights and created the National Women's Employment and Education Inc., which helps get women off welfare and become self-supporting.

—Muriel Vaughan of St. Paul, Minn., a human rights activist and organizer who works for women candidates and women's issues.

—Pauline Cardenas of McAllen, Texas, who lobbies for safe medical care for poor women seeking abortions.

Family is reunited after eight years

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Linda Crosby was 16 months old when her father left South Vietnam. It was just a business trip and he planned to return to his young daughter and his Vietnamese wife and stepdaughter. That was in 1974.

Eight years later, the family has been reunited by last month's airlift of Amerasian children, but their first Thanksgiving dinner in America is an occasion of mixed joy and sadness: Ernest Crosby has gone away again.

In a stroke of bad timing, the 37-year-old Crosby had only 19 days with his wife, Lee, his 9-year-old daughter and his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Sally, before business called him away again, this time to a job in South Yemen.

He will be gone five months, training helicopter technicians for Augusta Inc. He was a civilian doing similar work in 1974 when the fall of South Vietnam prevented him from returning to his family.

"He had no choice," Crosby's sister, Pam Woods, 35, said of Crosby's Oct. 25 departure for South Yemen. Ms. Woods has brought her brother's family into her home during his absence, and because her sister-in-law and nieces speak no English, she speaks for them.

"At first the children just wouldn't believe it," she said. "The night we had to take him to the airport, they wouldn't listen. So we put them to bed. The following morning we told them."

Their reaction, Ms. Woods

said, was that father had left for eight years the first time, and now he's gone again. But she added, "I think that they know that he is coming back this time."

Crosby was in Thailand the first week in October when he learned that his daughter, who had been on a list of Amerasian children waiting for permission to go to the United States, would be released Oct. 7 with her mother and half-sister. He flew to Vietnam to join them on their 11-day trip home.

Crosby's absence filled the house with sadness for days, his sister said.

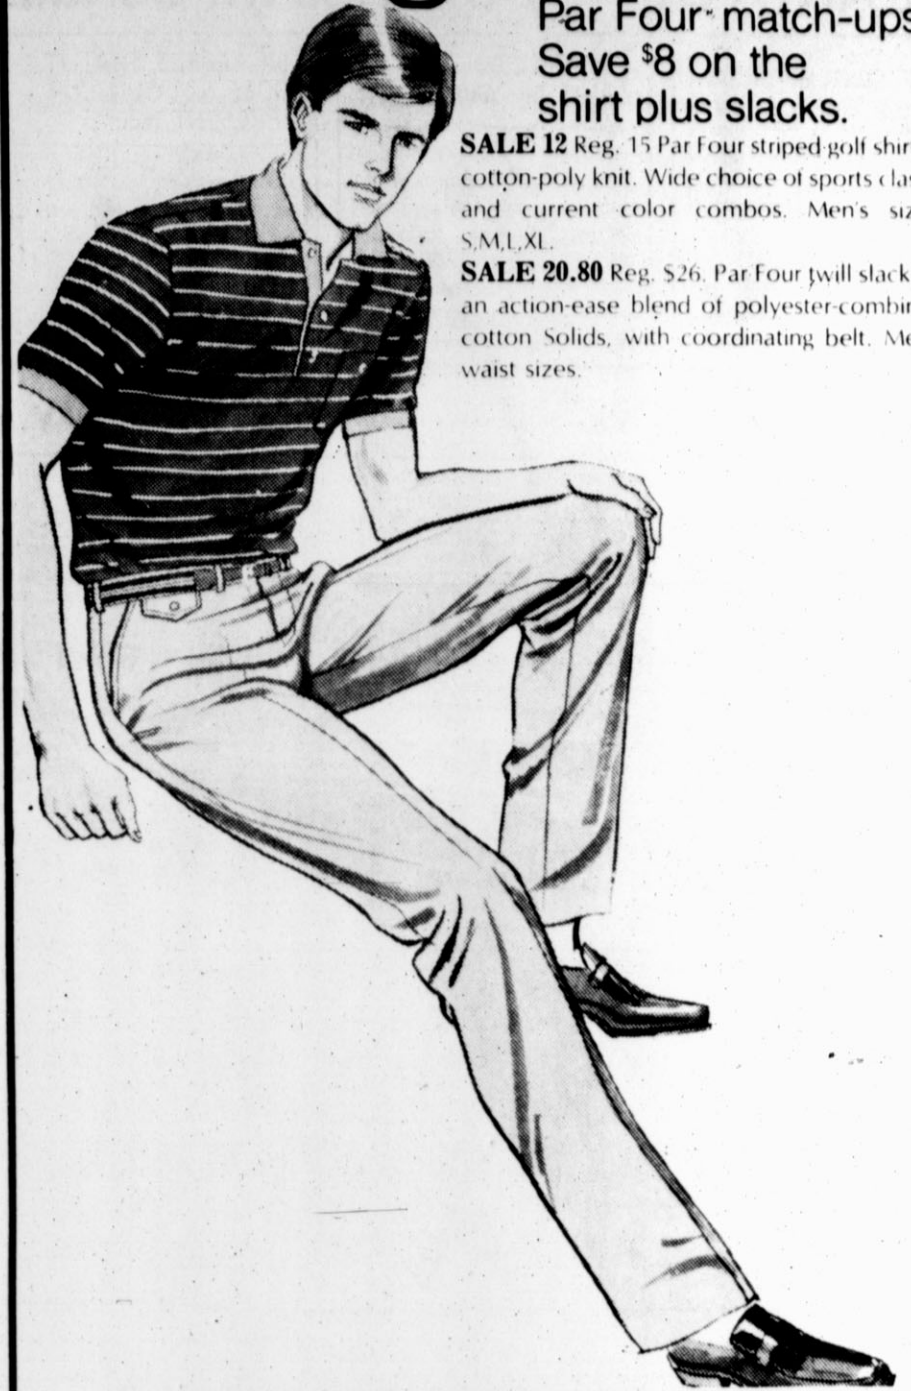

The remedy? "Just start talking up father," she said, adding that Crosby was writing letters once a week and calling home each month.

Courts coping with an increase in female prisoners

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — Linda Shaw, imprisoned for stealing to support her drug habit, might not have been jailed a decade ago. Today, she is serving a one-year sentence in Framingham State Prison.

Traditionally, lower conviction rates and shorter sentences kept Ms. Shaw and women like her out of prison. That is changing.

Although women account for just 4 percent of the nation's prison population, the number of female inmates — now estimated at more than 16,700 — has jumped 25 percent in the last two years, almost twice the rate of increase for men, prison officials say.

"The courts have decided that sentencing women is not as bad as it used to be and they've got public support for doing so," says Anthony Trivisono, head of the American Correctional Association, a national group of corrections workers. "A few years ago, it was like a father punishing his daughter, a very difficult thing to do."

Alvin Bronstein, director of the American Civil Liberties Union's prison project in Washington, thinks there has been "a particular toughening attitude toward women."

"This is much more accountable for the women's rate of incarceration than any change in criminal behavior," he says.

Hard economic times and greater involvement by women in drug trafficking have also contributed to the increase in women prisoners.

Whatever the cause, women are entering a system ill-equipped to handle them. One problem is space. There isn't room for new prisoners in male institutions and there aren't many women's prisons. Some states, like New Hampshire, must send female inmates to other states.

In Massachusetts, the recent increase has taxed the state's only women's prison. There were 111 women confined at the Framingham facility in January 1981. Now there are more than 250.

Part of the increase reflects tougher judges and a strict parole board, says Joe Landolfi, Corrections Department spokesman. Women transferred from jammed county jails make up the remainder.

In the Awaiting Trial Unit, where women facing trial are locked up 16 hours a day, 60 prisoners are jammed into space for 19.

"They are imprisoned because they couldn't afford bail. Yet their living conditions are much worse than for convicted male prisoners," said Democratic state Sen. Jack H. Backman after a surprise inspection of the institution in October.

"A number of the women are bunked three-deep in cells designed for one person, without toilets or running water," he said.

Administrators say they don't like the situation but haven't much choice.

"The rate of women sentenced is increasing," says Joyce Murphy, Framingham's deputy superintendent. "I don't see much alternative."

Linda Shaw shares a 7-by-12-foot cell with another female prisoner. The two live in a one-story, red-brick building on the prison grounds.

In many ways, Ms. Shaw is a typical female prisoner — 30 years old and in jail for a drug-related crime. Her sentence is one year — the average sentence at Framingham. Like two-thirds of the women at Framingham, she is a mother.

She shares the problems of other women inmates — the worst, she says, is the possibility of losing her children.

Ms. Shaw's eyes soften as she speaks of her three children, one of whom may be adopted by the time she gets out of prison.

"The most important thing to me now is to keep up a relationship with them," she said. "There has to be a reason for me to keep going on."

Traditionally, society tagged women prisoners as unfit mothers, says Evelyn Machtinger, who helps coordinate Boston's Aid to Incarcerated Mothers program. "There are instances when children were adopted whose mothers still thought they were in foster care."

Her group, formed in 1980 by female prisoners and their supporters, brings children to the prison to visit their mothers and promotes the rights of female prisoners.

"Just because I'm in prison doesn't mean I don't love my children," says 32-year-old Charlene Lofstrom, imprisoned for a second time on drug charges. "What hurts is the label: drug addict, junkie, neglectful mother... I've just made so many changes, I don't want them to be ashamed, I want them to be proud."

Vocational training for women also lags behind programs being offered male prisoners. In Kentucky, for example, state officials are under court order to upgrade vocational training for women prisoners.

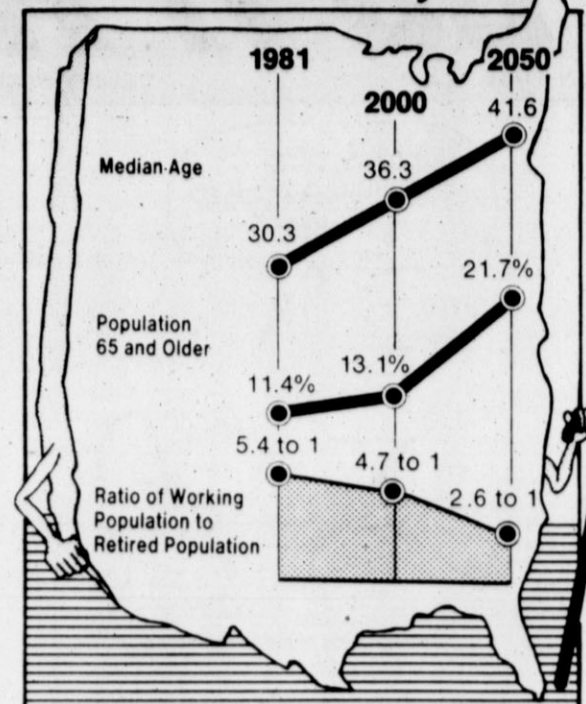

At Framingham, high school and some college courses are given, and many women work on the prison grounds. But other than a typing course, few job skills are taught. A computer program was shut down in January when officials feared its office was being used for clandestine gambling.

A drug treatment program was launched at Framingham this summer, but there are far more prisoners than it can serve. And many women say they aren't prepared for the outside world and soon return to jail.

"You have so many things working against you getting out of an institution," says Ms. Shaw, looking back on her first release after serving four months on another drug charge.

"I really feel like I wasn't prepared to go out," she said. "I had no job lined up, no nothing."

AGING AMERICA Looking Ahead to the 21st Century

SOURCE: Census Bureau NEA/Mark Gabrenya

The U.S. population will have a significantly different age structure in the year 2050, when it is projected to hit a peak of 309 million, than today's 230 million Americans. The median age will rise by more than a third, older people will represent a far larger portion and there will be a sharp decline in the numbers of working age (18 to 64) for each retired person.

Peacekeeper may not be such in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has dubbed the MX missile the "Peacekeeper," and maybe it will be — but not in Congress.

There's no sign of peace there, on missiles, on the overall defense budget, or on taxes. Those topics are on an agenda of controversy in the lame-duck session opening next Monday. They will spill over to the new, more Democratic Congress that takes office in January.

Reagan's decision to produce the MX and deploy 100 of them near Cheyenne, Wyo., will be one of the first issues facing Congress as it takes up defense appropriations in the post-election session.

Reagan said Monday his plan "is absolutely essential" as a deterrent to keep the peace. He also said it is better and cheaper than proposals to spread the missiles over the Southwestern desert, or to put them at sea, so that the Soviet Union couldn't find them.

Former President Jimmy Carter wanted to spread them out, put 200 real missiles among hundreds of decoys, and then move them around to keep the Russians guessing.

Reagan decided on an opposite course. The theory is that should the Soviets strike at them, the attacking warheads would cripple one another, and most of the MX force would survive to strike back.

The theory has not been tested. But the Soviet Union doesn't know whether it would work, either, and that's deterrence.

Reagan announced his plan in accordance with a Dec. 1 deadline set by Congress. Congress has 30 working days to accept or reject it, and opponents say they have the votes to block it.

US Intelligence to probe El Salvador's violent right

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The U.S. Embassy, for the first time, is devoting significant intelligence resources to find out who is behind rightist death squads accused of killing thousands of civilians here, U.S. officials say.

The decision to investigate is seen partly as a move to pressure Salvadoran rightists to reduce human rights abuses which some American officials say are jeopardizing continued U.S. aid.

The investigation also follows a Sept. 22 report by the House Intelligence Committee criticizing U.S. intelligence agencies for the "dearth of firm information" about who is responsible for rightist violence in El Salvador.

Critics of U.S. aid to this Central American nation have complained that the Reagan administration has twice certified that El Salvador's government is making a "concerted and significant effort" to respect human rights while having little investigative evidence to back that conclusion.

Twice-annual human rights certifications are required by Congress for continued U.S. aid to El Salvador. The next certification is due in January.

Last month, in a break with the administration's "quiet diplomacy," U.S. Ambassador Deane R. Hinton lashed out at rightist "thugs" who kill civilians and warned that $320 million in U.S. aid might be stopped if the Salvadoran government didn't act.

"You don't have to kill people in the night. You don't have to decapitate people" to defeat leftist guerrillas, Hinton told a luncheon of Salvadoran businessmen. "The Mafia must be stopped."

Embassy and State Department officials, who asked to remain anonymous, said intelligence assets were now being used to investigate the structure of the violent right and to try to determine who is responsible for the killings.

One official said a risk of the investigation is that it might incriminate high-ranking officials or other politically influential Salvadorans and thus further damage U.S. public support for the Salvadoran government.

A State Department official said, however, he doubted that high-ranking involvement would be found. He contended that much of the rightist violence appeared to come from rural civil defense groups that have been resistant to central government authority.

Amnesia patient baffles psychiatrists

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — He has a package of fish hooks, a neat haircut and the clothes on his back. He likes to read the Wall Street Journal and believes his dental work means that he was once well-off.

But the patient, who appears to be in his 60s, says he does not have a name or a memory. He refers to himself as John Doe, and his case has baffled police officers and psychiatrists at the Maricopa County mental-health annex where he is being treated.

While "Doe" says he wants to know his identity, he insists he is not upset at having amnesia.

"This might sound a little peculiar, but if you don't have anything to get worried about, you don't get worried," he said Monday. "What goes on here (at the annex) keeps me plenty busy keeping up with it."

Doe said the first thing he remembers is looking out a window at the mental health annex.

"I look like I've had expensive dental work done, so I'm not poor," he said. "If the question of a wife and child came up, I think they're well taken care of."

Stuart Siless, a social worker who has tried to trace Doe's identity, said the man's calm about his missing memory is one of the unusual aspects of the case.

"We've had other patients who didn't know who they were, but they were a little more anxious about it," Siless said.

Most amnesiacs have some clue to their identities, he said. Sometimes it's a name in a billfold. Sometimes they are able to recall details of their past lives a few days after being admitted for treatment.

Doe had only a package of fish hooks when he was transferred to the annex from the Veterans Administration Medical Center here at the end of October.

He was wearing a pair of striped overalls and was clean-shaven, with neatly cut white hair.

Doe "looked like he was right off the farm, sort of," said Judy Knight, a Salvation Army caseworker who sent the man to the VA on Oct. 30.

When VA officials couldn't confirm that Doe was a veteran, they transferred him to the county for treatment, Siless said.

Doe, who has difficulty hearing, said he believes he was in the military service. He says he remembers Okinawa.

According to some of the half-dozen psychiatrists who have seen him, Doe also appears to be familiar with Prescott, Ariz., Chicago and Portland, Ore.

Fingerprint checks through the missing-persons bureau of the Phoenix Police Department have turned up no clues.

Dr. Robert St. John, who is treating Doe, said there is conflicting evidence on whether Doe's problem is physical or mental in origin, and the prognosis for regaining his memory is uncertain.

Diamond Jubilee Thanksgiving

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Thanksgiving has come to mean eating turkey and dressing until your stomach aches and watching football until your eyes bulge, and it was no different when Oklahoma celebrated its first Thanksgiving as a state in 1907.

reference to the celebration in the newly dry state. But it was Hertha Hess Johnson in a Page One Thanksgiving commentary in the Daily Oklahoman that shows the more things change, the more they stay the same.

Oklahoma County jail prisoners were served a Thanksgiving luncheon of chicken, dumplings and cranberry sauce.

Wood-burning stoves have highest repeatable efficiency

COLLEGE STATION — Airtight wood-burning stoves have the highest repeatable efficiency, says a wood products specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Such stoves burn wood slowly and have energy efficiency ratings of 55 to 80 percent, which means only 20 to 45 percent of the generated heat is lost up the chimney, says Chuck Stayton of Texas A&M University's Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Overton.

football will take up the day will depend greatly upon the individual," she wrote in 1907.

Assault trial in final day arguments

PECOS, Texas (AP) — Final arguments were scheduled today in the federal assault trial of "El Gato," a Mexican teen-ager accused in the near-fatal shooting of a U.S. Border Patrol official along the Rio Grande.

Research and Extension Center at Overton. Non-airtight stoves can achieve up to 40 percent efficiency and conventional fireplaces only 15 percent.

But when it came to food, today's Thanksgiving traditions are the same as observed by Oklahomans' "simple-minded ancestors" in the new state.

Federal prosecutors have charged that 19-year-old Juan De Dios Levario-Quiroz, nicknamed "The Cat," ambushed a patrolman, who stumbled into a camp carved out of thickets on the Texas side of the Rio Grande.

Wood-burning stoves with catalytic converters can achieve high energy efficiencies. Stayton emphasizes these units reduce wood gas ignition temperatures from around 1,100 degrees F. to 500 degrees F., which causes more complete combustion in the firebox.

But when it came to food, today's Thanksgiving traditions are the same as observed by Oklahomans' "simple-minded ancestors" in the new state.

Levario-Quiroz has already been indicted in a state murder charge in Monahans, where he allegedly gunned down a 21-year-old man at a local dance hall.

Firebrick or metal liners, placed in the stove's combustion area, reduce the chances of cast iron cracking, steel warping and corrosion. Thick stove walls are less likely to distort, crack or corrode.

Thousands of fowl have been slaughtered," observed a writer in 1907 about the upcoming Thanksgiving celebration.

But Tuesday, Levario-Quiroz told the 12-member jury he shot Conover in self-defense.

Internal baffling of airtight stoves increases heat transfer. Stayton explains, insuring hot flue gas contact with the stove's outer layer instead of quick exit up the chimney.

Family finds gold in a pile of turkeys

MARSHALL, Mich. (AP) — Turkey time stops on Thanksgiving for Wayne Cornwell and his family.

Also, people, furniture and walls can be closer to the stove. However, energy efficiency is similar for both radiant or circulating stoves, Stayton points out.
