84th Year, No. 127, Hereford, Tx. Deaf Smith County

While most Americans were monitoring presidential race developments and two Olympics, local residents had to settle for garbage being the year's most spotlighted story.

On Dec. 19, the U.S. Department of Energy announced Deaf Smith County was one of three preferred hosts for the nation's first high-level nuclear waste dump. That distinction probably means the nine-square-mile site 16 miles northwest of Hereford will be subjected to a detailed site characterization study beginning in the spring of 1987.

At a series of hearings and DOE "information exchanges" last spring, several area citizens expressed strong disapproval of the DOE's site selection process. Their main charge was federal officials were not being thorough enough in their scientific studies and were toying with placing a dump in one of the country's leading agricultural areas.

A 90-day period for public comment concerning the three preferred sites - the others are in Nevada and Washington state - is now underway. Through March 20 local citizens and state officials may send their opinions concerning the Deaf Smith site to the DOE.

Though now under investigation, TRLA did enjoy several successes with lawsuits during the past year. Among them was the Cecilia Garza vs. Deaf Smith County case which resulted in the county being ordered to provide back pay to all Hispanics who can prove they were discriminated against in applying for county jobs since 1979.

Two months earlier, in July, TRLA lawyers won a case against, among others, the Texas Department of Public Safety. Any Hispanic who has lately been "questioned, arrested, incarcerated or charged by DPS" about their immigration status is entitled to awards of no more than $1,000 apiece from the department.

Postmaster will retire after 38 years

Grady to quit Dec. 31

By LISA BALL
Staff Writer

"I've enjoyed serving the people, and my only regret is that our budget will not allow us to give the service that I feel they deserve."

That statement was given by Nolan Grady, U.S. Postmaster, as he announced his retirement after working with the postal service for a little more than 38 years. Grady will officially retire at the close of business Monday.

"The pressures are increasing rapidly," Grady said in explaining why he decided to retire. "There is an awful lot of stress and we are trying to get the job done with too limited an amount of manpower. At times I feel the tasks are impossible to achieve."

Monday Grady will appoint Gerald McLain, currently postmaster at Fairview, Okla., as a temporary postmaster. The position of postmaster here will be advertised in the southern region, covering 11 states. After a 90-day period is up, the postal service will announce the new postmaster.

Under current regulations, according to Grady, McLain is not eligible to be selected as postmaster because "no one can fill a job on a temporary basis if he wants the job full-time."

Raised in Hereford, Grady just completed his 37th Christmas at the local post office. When he originally applied here, he was told his job would only be temporary.

"I guess the time is up now," he laughed.

Grady began his service with the post office Jan. 16, 1948, as a substitute clerk. Seven years later he was promoted to a regular clerk, and then, in 1961, he was appointed acting postmaster until he received senate confirmation in August of that year.

Prior to 1948, he worked for the Santa Fe Railroad.

During his years of service, Grady

Brand closed Monday, Tuesday

The Hereford Brand will be closed Monday and Tuesday for the New Year's holiday, along with a number of other businesses in the community.

Some stores will be open on Monday. Readers may check ads to see which firms will be open on New Year's Eve.

New Year's Day is one of the four holidays taken by the newspaper. Since there is no Monday issue, the newspaper staff will take off both Monday and Tuesday for the holidays.

Stocking fund helps 103 families here

A total of 103 families were helped by the Christmas Stocking Fund over the Christmas week, it was announced Saturday by CSF volunteers.

City and county residents contributed a total of $7,313.97 to the CSF fund to help make Christmas brighter for the less-fortunate families. The CSF is a non-profit organization set up to help the needy at Christmastime.

The Brand served as the fund-raising agency for the project, while the Social Services office at the courthouse took applications for needy families. A CSF screening committee checked the names to assure that donations were used for truly needy persons.

The Brand asked Robert Mercer to share his New Year's resolutions with the public but had no idea that he would bring in a seven foot 'list'. ## Some local citizens reveal resolutions

By SANDY PANKEY
Lifestyles Editor

"This year I resolve to..."
Oh, sure! Do people really keep those New Year's resolutions? It's a popular tradition to make resolutions at the beginning of each year but actually keeping them are something else entirely.

Let's be realistic. Breaking resolutions are as much as an American tradition as making them. If everyone did what they said they would do, it wouldn't be any fun at all.

The big mistake made by most well-intentioned individuals is letting others know what they plan to do (or not do) during the new year. If they would just keep their resolutions a secret no one could come back with "Yeah, I knew you would wait until five minutes until midnight (April 15) to start working on your tax return" or "Hear you are on a diet and plan to lose 30 pounds in two months. That German chocolate cake you are fixing to stuff in your mouth should help you lose weight really fast."

Once again, The Brand has called several Hereford residents who didn't mind having their resolutions in print for all the world to see. (It will be interesting to see just how many New Year's resolutions are actually kept in 1985 and to find out what some of them are talking about.)

United Way drive totals $113,000

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

The United Way of Deaf Smith County has unofficially ended its fund-raising campaign for 1985 with a total of $113,000 contributed to help fund the 10 participating agencies.

The total represents 88 percent of the goal of $128,150, reports Wayne Amstutz, executive director of the UW, and contributions will be welcomed at any time during the year.

"All our officers feel the volunteer solicitors did their best and we sincerely thank each of them," said Amstutz. Several groups reached their goals, including the General Division headed by Carol Legate and Terri Hutson, the Major Division led by Mark Andrews and M.D. Gentry, and the Whiteface Division under the leadership of June Owen and Helen Lee.

B.J. Gilliland, campaign chairman, reported that pledge cards are still out and may be mailed to the United Way, Box 206, Hereford. The new UW office is now housed at the YMCA building.

James Self, president of UW, announced that IBM Corporation of Dallas had donated a truck load of office furniture to United Way and its agencies. Desks, tables, chairs, file cabinets and blackboard were shared by the UW, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, YMCA, Red Cross, Senior Citizens, Camp Fire, Inc., the Satellite Center and the Good Shepherd program. IBM also sent a contribution, said Self.

Amstutz said a number of new pledges were recorded this year. He previously reported companies with employee involvement and others include: Stagner-Orsborn, Deaf Smith Appraisal District, Allred Oil Co., American Dusting, White Implement, Edward Jones Co., County Courthouse, William E. Allen Co., Plains Insurance Agency, Hereford Brand, North Plains Printing, J.C. Penney, The Service Company, First

Big gift helps National Cowgirl Hall of Fame keep going here

A sizeable financial contribution from the son of an inductee has again benefited the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

Howard Metcalfe, son of 1983 honoree Augusta Corson Metcalfe, Thursday presented a $10,000 check to Chairman of the Board Bill Allen. Metcalfe also donated $10,000 in 1983.

"The gift is greatly appreciated and has been one of the main reasons the hall has been open on a day to day basis," Allen said.

Metcalfe, who lives with his wife Helen in Durham, Oklahoma, is the only son and only surviving relative of the woman who was known as the "Sagebrush Artist of Oklahoma."

Augusta Metcalfe traveled by covered wagon with her parents from Pennsylvania to Illinois, then Kansas, and finally to the home on the Washita River in Oklahoma where she herded cattle, raised her son alone, cared for an invalid mother and taught herself to paint.

After winning a prize in the Oklahoma State Fair in 1911, Augusta went on to do sketches and paintings that appeared in the Sportsman Review and Life magazines.

The Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman said of her: "Few of us can escape the primeval sentence that we shall live by the sweat of our brows, but all of us...may reach out and rise above the daily grind of household duty to seek for the beautiful and claim some of it for our own."

Howard is now 78 and semi-retired from raising Longhorn cattle on a section of land near Durham. He spends much of his time shopping for antiques, which are housed in four specially maintained buildings on the Metcalfe ranch.

According to Allen, Metcalfe has a special interest in the Cowgirl Hall of Fame as a safe resting place for several of his mother's paintings.

Boost For Cowgirl HOF

Surrounded by his mother's paintings and other belongings, Howard Metcalfe makes a generous contribution to the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center as his wife Helen looks on.

Accepting the $10,000 check is Bill Allen, chairman of the board. Augusta Corson Metcalfe, a western artist, was inducted into the hall in 1983.

YEAR IN REVIEW

manslaughter case was dismissed in March of 1983 by District Judge David Wesley Gulley continued to darken as the year wore on.

Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul became the object of a state bar lawsuit just before the new year began, with a similar suit filed against his former law partner and assistant district attorney two weeks later. Yet to be tried, the suits charge the two men with such offenses as misappropriation of state funds and conflict of interest and ask that they be "reprimanded, suspended or disbarred as the facts shall warrant."

A Deaf Smith County grand jury indicted Smith on two counts of official misconduct and one for perjury late in March, but the indictments were ruled faulty and dismissed in October. Early in December, a new jury was impaneled which returned two perjury indictments against the Hereford attorney based on the same evidence.

An investigator with the Legal Services Corporation responded to pleas from area citizens wanting an investigation of the local Texas Rural Legal Aid Office, which LSC funds.

Wendell Wylie traveled from Washington, D.C. in mid-November, spending three days with Deaf Smith County residents who wanted to report on their dealings with the controversial firm.

Complaints against the office were based primarily on the outcome of class action lawsuits filed by TRLA against the county, school board and sheriff's office.

JANUARY

Ruben John Leal arrived Jan. 4, the New Year's baby at Deaf Smith General Hospital. Eight men announced their intentions to run for the posts of County Commissioner Precincts 1 and 3 and Deaf Smith County Sheriff. Two Lubbock men pleaded guilty to theft charges in connection with indictments against them and Hereford farmer Robert Strain. Art Reinauer told county commissioners he would try to get the county changed from "dry" to "wet" so he could build a winery.

Texas Rural Legal Aid and the Hereford Independent School District reached agreement on dividing the town into districts which TRLA said would give Hispanics more voting power, and HISD named the Rev. Henry Amar to the school board. Phillip Carnahan and Larry Lomas died in a truck accident just north of the city. Charles Saterfield resigned as jail administrator, hinting at communication problems between he and Sheriff Joe Brown.

FEBRUARY

The slate of candidates for local and state offices to be voted on in the May primaries continued to grow, with Hereford's Justin McBride and Garth Thomas announcing as candidates for state representative from the 86th District. Hereford Senior Citizens broke ground for a $500,000 center. Leroy Johnson said he would challenge Mark Campbell for the position of Deaf Smith County constable, an office that had been vacant since the 1950s. The trial of Robert Strain was postponed, after his attorney argued that Amarillo television reports could prejudice jurors. Candidates began filing for school board elections. Roland Saul was reprimanded by the Prosecutor's Coordinating Council, and local residents complained about a manure-fueled electrical plant to be built near the airport.

MARCH

Assistant Attorney General Linda Walden convinced the Deaf Smith County Commission to give a local grand jury as much as $10,000 to continue with its investigation of the district attorney's office. Art Reinauer secured enough names to call for a wet-dry election, and a local Baptist minister announced his plans to combat a successful vote. Dewayne Kimbell created the only race for city commissioner by filing against incumbent Emroy Brownlow. Walden managed to stay out of jail after being found in contempt of court for failure to return financial records to Hereford attorney Jerry Smith. A local jury gave Alvin Salomon a 70-year jail sentence after convicting him of burglary with intent to commit sexual assault on an elderly Hereford woman.

APRIL

Two local men were found dead, suicide was the apparent cause. Hereford went "wet" by 218 votes. School board, hospital and city commission races were also decided. Norma Jean Perez was killed in Amarillo by a hit-and-run driver. Law enforcement officers raided a home south of Hereford where undernourished dogs and cats were found shut up in the house, outbuildings and an old car. Dean Butcher, candidate for Deaf Smith County sheriff, announced that his chances at being appointed to the post the previous summer had been lessened by interference from local attorney Schalan Atkinson. County commissioners denied they were influenced by her remarks.

MAY

Swift Independent Packing Company laid off 90 workers. Sheriff candidates Joe Brown and Dean Butcher finished the primaries neck-in-neck, gearing up for a June run-off. Both county commission races also resulted in the need for run-off elections. The first beer was sold in Hereford since 1901. Democrats and Republicans held county conventions to elect delegates to the state convention. A Dawn man was found dead of an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound. Robert Strain was convicted of theft, sentenced to seven years probation by a local district court jury.

JUNE

Sheriff Joe Brown defeated former chief deputy Dean Butcher in what had become a heated primary run-off election. One of two Hispanic men missing since May was located in Ft. Worth; he claimed to have no knowledge of his companion's whereabouts. County Commissioners opened bids for jail construction, only to discover they were all more than the $1.5 million allotted for the project. A local jury sentenced Victor Duran to 40 years in prison after convicting him of marijuana sales. Duran had a prior conviction of rape of a minor.

JULY

A severe hailstorm July 1 destroyed many crops in an 18-square-mile area near Easter. Deaf Smith County taxes were raised 8 percent and the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA concluded its successful drive to raise more than $900,000 for its new building.

Jesus Moya, migrant farm labor union organizer, protested outside the courthouse as a crew of CBS cameramen were arrested briefly for trespassing on farm property. By the end of the month, the 1984 wheat crop yield was termed "bumper."

AUGUST

Dana Cabiness, a freshman student at Texas Tech University, was named Miss Hereford for 1984. That same night in Perryton, 1983 winner Gina Griffin was crowned the new Miss Wheatheart. Despite constantly rainy weather, the annual Town and Country Jubilee was well-attended.

Two local men - 30-year-old Greg Black and Sergio Cerda, 27 - were killed in bicycle wrecks just 15 days apart. Reports emerged for the first time of cotton damage due to weed killer 2,4-D. Dean Butcher filed a slander lawsuit which the later dropped, against a local attorney Schalan Atkinson.

SEPTEMBER

Ten cars of a Santa Fe train derailed near town when an Amarillo woman driving a semi-truck failed to yield at a crossing. She was not injured. A group of tenants at Blue Water Gardens apartments filed suit against their landlords on racial discrimination charges.

Employees of the local TRLA office went picketing one cold Friday to protest their salaries. Hereford Grain was the object of an attorney general lawsuit regarding chemicals allegedly dumped into the golf course creek.

OCTOBER

Hereford City Commissioners approved a rate increase request by Energas. A voluntary sex education course for Shirley Intermediate School fourth graders was being considered by school board members. Robert Strain pleaded guilty to three of the 16 theft charges remaining against him.

NOVEMBER

Troy Don Moore defeated Republican Bill Allen in the sole local election which was contested. Also on Nov. 6, local resident Justin McBride's bid for a state representative seat was thwarted by his GOP opponent, John Smith of Amarillo. Use of herbicide 2,4-D will not be allowed here April 15 to Oct. 1 of 1985, county commissioners decided. George Strait performed for the Cowboy Country Club's opening festivities. Bids for renovation work at Deaf Smith General Hospital came in lower than anticipated leaving the project with an approximate $180,000 cost.

DECEMBER

The area's first significant snowfall occurred Dec. 4. Valley View Energy Corporation of Dallas received permission to sell $92.1 million in bonds for its proposed manure-fueled electrical generating plant east of Hereford. Directors of the Hereford Independent School District sought public comments on renovation work and the proposed consolidation of the two junior high schools. County commissioners accepted a bid of $1.56 million to perform state-required work at the county jail.

To hike oil prices

OPEC to continue efforts

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — OPEC ministers faced the divisive issue of how to price varying grades of crude oil today as they continued their efforts to prop up world oil prices.

Debate on the "differential" pricing issue was scheduled after Friday's announcement of unanimous agreement on plans for an outside audit of members' adherence to production and pricing rules.

When the 13 oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries resumed their year-end meeting Thursday, many spoke of a package agreement involving both pricing and the auditing mechanism, which OPEC hopes will halt cheating on pricing and production. But they now appear to be taking up the issues one at a time.

United Arab Emirates Oil Minister Mana Saeed Oteiba has warned that OPEC might sink into a price war unless the meeting reached agreement on both problems.

Details of the auditing plan were left for a later date and a committee was assigned to study the issue. Analysts said the failure to face the problem squarely could damage OPEC's credibility.

Up for discussion when today's meeting resumes will be the system under which premiums or discounts are fixed to varying grades of crude using the $29 per barrel price of Arabian Light as a benchmark.

Nigeria, the United Arab Emirates and other members producing chiefly the more expensive lighter grades of oil have been pressing for an adjustment of a differentials system that has left them at a competitive disadvantage with OPEC's heavy crude producers like Venezuela.

In recent years, demand has increasingly shifted to cheaper, heavy crudes as technological progress allowed them to be processed more readily into such products as gasoline and jet fuel.

Prices soared in the OPEC boom years of 1973-1981, Arabian Light rising from $2.75 to $34 a barrel. That made it more economical for refiners to convert plants to process less expensive, heavier crudes.

Military commander expects camp attack

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnamese forces were reported today moving more tanks and armor to positions outside the camp housing the headquarters of an anti-communist Cambodian rebel group that appears to be the prime target of Vietnam's offensive in Cambodia.

A top Thai military commander, Lt. Gen. Pichitr Kullavanijaya, told newsmen today he expected an attack against the Khmer People's National Liberation Front in Ampil camp "soon."

Pichitr, who commands Thailand's 1st Army, toured the Thai-Cambodian frontier Friday with the country's supreme military commander, Gen. Arthit Kamlang-Ek. Thai forces on the border area have been placed on alert.

The English-language daily Bangkok Post reported that sporadic fighting occurred Friday at the lake bordering Ampil, and quoted Thai military sources as saying the Vietnamese moved six more tanks and armored personnel carriers to the lake area.

The newspaper quoted a Liberation Front commander as saying that Vietnam had eight Soviet-built T-54 tanks and 50 armored personnel carriers ready to attack.

Ampil is 40 miles north of the key Thai border town of Aranyaprathet and 12 miles north of Rithisen, the largest Liberation Front camp that was overrun and burned by the Vietnamese on Wednesday, the second day of the offensive.

The guerrillas have been trying to recapture Rithisen since, reportedly finding it difficult going against accurate fire from long-range Vietnamese artillery. Thai officers and guerrillas reported heavy fighting inside Rithisen on Friday and newsmen in Thailand, just opposite the battlefield, saw wounded guerrillas being carried for treatment into Thai territory.

Thai military officers reached by telephone at the frontier said Liberation Front discipline appeared to be good and that the basic tactic was to divide into small groups and make darting attacks against Vietnamese lines where possible.

Lia Ne, who was the Liberation Front commander of Rithisen, crossed into Thailand and spoke with reporters Friday, saying his troops killed or wounded 70 to 80 Vietnamese during the day. Thai and Cambodian rebel officials have reported hundreds killed or wounded since the offensive began.

The Vietnamese are fighting not only the Liberation Front but another anti-communist group loyal to onetime Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, as well as the communist Khmer Rouge.

tion and awards for his work. For several years, he worked as a postmaster trainer in addition to his other responsibilities.

Grady's accomplishments do not stop at work. He has been active in Lions Club since 1962, serving as secretary, treasurer, president for 1972-73, zone chairman in the district and deputy district governor.

Through Lions, and partly on his own initiative, Grady has worked for the last seven years as district Girlstown chairman. In such a capacity, he has helped raise funds for Christmas presents for the girls.

"I really love to see the joy on the kids faces," Grady said. "All the girls have one need, like most of us, to be loved. And, we try to show them some of that love."

He has also been on the Girlstown board of directors for several years. In addition, he has worked as a scoutmaster for many years and was district chairman for Boy Scouts for almost four years.

He earned the Silver Beaver award — the highest award given at the council level based on accomplishments in scouting.

In past years, he was chairman of the Chamber of Commerce civil defense committee and county civil defense director.

"Most of my efforts go to scouting and Girlstown through our Lions district," Grady said.

He is also interested in photography and remodeling his home — an endeavor he hopes will keep him busy as he adjusts to semi-retirement.

Grady said that he will continue to work, but that he was not sure just where or when he would start.

"Another job would be exciting and challenging," he stated. "I'm looking forward to it."

Despite years of medical progress, far more American deaths are attributed to cancer today than in the mid 1940s. Further, nearly half of all U.S. deaths still involve cardiovascular/renal diseases. Accidents other than traffic accidents, however, take a much smaller toll than before.

Maverick filmmaker dies of heart failure

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maverick filmmaker Sam Peckinpah, who wrenched the guts of millions with gruesome violence in "Straw Dogs" and "The Wild Bunch," lived the "extreme impressions" he conveyed on the screen, friends say.

Peckinpah, 59, died Friday of heart failure at Centinela Hospital Medical Center in Inglewood, where he was flown Thursday from Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, after doctors found a blood clot in a lung, said aide Nancy Galloway.

He had a history of heart trouble, said his brother, retired Fresno County Superior Court Judge Denver Peckinpah.

Peckinpah got his start writing for such television westerns as "Gunsmoke" and "The Rifleman" and created the classic western "Ride the High Country" for the big screen.

He reached new heights of movie gore in "The Wild Bunch" and particularly in "Straw Dogs," starring Dustin Hoffman, with its stylized, slow motion views of bloody mayhem.

Peckinpah "was little understood within Hollywood, but vastly appreciated by the world film community which knew that his field of vision transcended his subject matter," director Walter Hill said in a statement. "His loss will be acutely felt by everyone who really cares about film."

But James Coburn, who appeared in three Peckinpah films — "Major Dundee," "Pat Garrett and Billy The Kid" and "Cross of Iron" — said the aggressiveness was part of the director's genius.

"He lived a life of extreme impressions and he was able to convey those impressions on film," Coburn said.

Coburn, speaking from his Los Angeles home, said he doesn't know of any young filmmakers to carry on Peckinpah's work. "I don't see anybody as brave as he is. Most of them are a bunch of wimps," he said.

"I liked him because he was kind of like the old-style director," actor Lee Marvin said from his Arizona home. "He liked to rant and scream and fire people, and if you couldn't take it, you didn't belong there."

Peckinpah's family was gathering in Los Angeles, but no services were scheduled immediately, said Ms. Galloway. His second wife, Begonia Palacios, and sister, Fern Lea Peter, were with him when he died.

Born Feb. 21, 1925, to a family of lawyers and judges for whom the Peckinpah mountain range was named, Peckinpah earned a master's degree in theater arts at the University of Southern California.

Beginning in the 1950s, he produced and directed shows for the Huntington Park Theater and was a stagehand at a Los Angeles television station before writing for such shows as "Gunsmoke."

His first feature film was "Deadly Companions" in 1961, followed in 1962 by "Ride the High Country," about two retired lawmen played by Joel McCrea and Randolph Scott.

Following "Convoy" in 1978, he took four years off and retreated to a log cabin in Montana, where he concentrated on writing.

Peckinpah's most recent work was

"The Osterman Weekend," which failed at the box office, and two music videos for Julian Lennon, son of slain Beatle John Lennon, including "Valotte."

He had been in preproduction on an independent film, "On the Rocks," to be shot in San Francisco, Ms. Galloway said.

Overpopulation can be terminal

The world is always wringing its hands over something. We won't admit what any psychologist knows; that we like to see on TV people who are worse off than ourselves.

As in any hospital ward, somebody worse off makes us feel comparatively fortunate.

Thus the airplane crash which does not involve us or anyone we love — the super-rich car dealer caught trafficking in cocaine — the beautiful actress with a mastectomy — the public official in hot water — the ex-President in exile...

These will continue to be on page one for as long as the fire which burns them warms the rest of us.

And now Ethiopia. Ethiopia is but one of a dozen African nations in which starvation is decimating the population.

In the 1960s Africans drove out white colonists — the British, the French, the Dutch, the Belgians — choosing to manage their own affairs.

They did not know how and have not learned how.

Presently some Africans blame drought but...Africa is the only region in the world where per capita food production has dropped over the past two decades by 1 percent per year.

While population has continued to multiply 3.5 percent a year. Nor can the rest of the world be blamed for Africa's hunger. The United States and eight other nations plus the World Food Program have sent millions of tons of food aid to Africa.

So Ethiopia's destitute — the pitiful babies with distended bellies — are not our fault.

Ethiopia is a Soviet-bloc state. Though significantly the soviet has done the least of several nations to alleviate starvation there.

Again, Ethiopia is a Soviet-bloc state. It is run by the homicidal Mengistu.

He is dissipating his nation's resources — not fighting starvation — but fighting border wars. And his government has consistently stopped the distribution of foreign food until the donors "paid off."

When you see Ethiopia on TV you are not seeing an indictment of us; you are seeing an indictment of communism, of guerrilla wars, of agricultural neglect, of parasites and tsetse flies.

You are seeing an indictment of undisciplined, uncontrolled, malignant multiplication of population.

Americans will be the last to learn but will: Overpopulation inevitably is a terminal illness.

Overpopulation is presently taxing this world's resources beyond this world's capacity.

The Penultimate Word

Someday I want to make it through a Christmas without guilt. I mean the guilt used on me, not the justified stuff I use to help guide others in the way more enlightened.

I used a little of the justified kind on the astute editor of this paper a few weeks ago. It worked semi-wonders. Speedy felt guilty enough to take me to lunch at the Country Club, no less. Then he sold by space to a fertilizer company.

I even got caught in a guilt trap over Christmas lights. You must understand that my hero is a guy who lives in Bishop Hills of Amarillo where they are famous for their lights. My hero lives in the middle of this extravaganza and does not have one light burning. He doesn't even keep his yard mowed. That is my kind of people. He marches to a different drummer.

I have no lights. I don't like crawling on the roof in the winter time. I don't like it in the summer, either. Besides, have you ever noticed how often the ones who decorate the most go to church the least? (That probably isn't true, but it sounds good when you don't want to put up lights.)

Well, Clint Formby, our town's mother-in-law in residence (hereafter referred to as M.I.L.I.R.), came to town long enough to notice who had not hired the florist to decorate their houses. (Clint doesn't like crawling on the roof, either.) Every morning the radio announced my negligence and total lack of Christmas Spirit. That did not make me feel guilty.

Every night my street was ablaze with color. Santa Clauses graced front yards. Lights outlined houses. My house remained dark. That did not make me feel guilty.

I had a mean streak one night. I fixed one red light on the end of my flag pole and turned it on. I tried to get old M.I.L.I.R. to come for an official lighting ceremony but he was out of town. Every night my one red bulb pointed to the sky. Some folks thought it looked like an obscene gesture. Others laughed. I giggled as the cars drove by and double takes nearly caused wrecks. Still no guilt.

Then I met a dear sweet little lady. In deep sincerity she thanked me for at last discovering a fitting symbol for this Holy Time. She said, "One light pointing to the heavens signifying the only Son of God come down to be with us." She gushed on, "The light was red signifying the sacrifice needed for us." That did it, friends. Like some theologian said, "You feel guilty because you are guilty."

There's waste in defense budget

By RICHARD L. LESHER,
President

WASHINGTON — Many fiscal conservatives have no problem exposing waste and abuse in federal spending when it comes in welfare spending programs, yet are curiously reticent to criticize extravagance in the defense department. There, fiscal conservatives know that the federal government is by its very nature rife with waste and mismanagement, yet they hesitate to admit that the Pentagon suffers from the same problems.

This seeming paradox is understandable.

National defense, after all, is one of the few legitimate functions of a central government. The prologue to the Constitution states clearly that the central purpose of the government is to "provide for the common defense." The Army and the Navy are actually mentioned by name in the Constitution—unlike so many federal spending programs these days. (Try finding the Legal Service Corporation in the Constitution, for instance.)

The first reaction, quite naturally, of serious budget cutters is to begin by getting the government out of the business of doing those things it ought not. The money spent enforcing such counterproductive laws as the Davis Bacon Act or the ban on homework is not simply wasted money but actually hurts the economy and denies many American workers the right to earn a living.

Second, many critics of defense spending are not serious opponents of government waste. Those phony "budget cutters" who vote against the entire defense budget yet support every give-away program that comes down the pike are, sadly, too numerous to list in this short column. Serious critics of the quantity and quality of defense spending have damaged their case by allying themselves with those who oppose all defense because they are contemptuous of America's values.

Third, fiscally responsible conservatives realize that America's defense spending needs are not set in Washington, but in Moscow. If America and her values had no enemies in the world, there would be no need for national defense.

Yet, granted all the above, there is waste in the defense department and it must not escape the scrutiny of this administration and Congress. The Grace Commission, which has exposed wasteful spending throughout the government, has found examples of same in the Pentagon's budget. The Commission's report has pinpointed many areas where Members of Congress use the Pentagon's budget as their own private "buy-a-vote" pork barrel project and, in so doing, waste precious taxpayer dollars and weaken our nation's defenses.

***There are some 4,000 military installations in the United States. Only 300 of these are considered significant. Yet, since 1976, Congress has blocked closing any of the bases. Potential Savings: $2 billion.

***The Veterans Administration takes 56 days longer than the private sector to process a medical claim. Excess cost: $272 million annually.

***The Army spends $4.20 to process a payroll check versus $1 on average paid by the private sector.

***The Veterans Administration spends $61,350 a bed to build a nursing home, or almost four times the $16,000-a-bed cost for a major private nursing home operator.

***There are 238 commissaries in the United States. Originally established to provide goods on the wild frontier, these subsidized stores now compete with private stores. Total 1983 cost of the commissaries: $738 million.

Such waste and abuse of the taxpayers' dollars is indefensible. It costs our nation too much and undermines the national consensus for a strong defense second to none. And this the nation cannot afford, for the world remains a dangerous place.

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm on Tierra Blanca creek discusses a new fad this week.

Dear editor:

According to the latest figures, millions of families now own a VCR, the gadget that lets you tape a TV program while you're doing something else and then switch it on and watch it at your convenience. Moreover, it's estimated that before long practically every home will have one, not counting some college professors who don't allow their kids to watch TV.

One interesting aspect of a VCR is that it's got a button you can push and cause the program to skip right through the commercials and go on with the program uninterrupted.

This is going to cause some wrinkled brows among the network tycoons.

How are they going to feel, and what's more to the point, how are their advertisers going to feel, when a commercial costing $250,000 a minute is blanked out by millions of people who taped the show earlier?

Off-hand, I can think of lots of commercials that'll be blanked out, especially those that are downright embarrassing. So far, TV hasn't found anything much it won't advertise if somebody will pay for it.

There are two sides to advertising. If it weren't for advertising some of the worst books ever published wouldn't have become best-sellers, and some of the worst politicians wouldn't have been elected. On the other hand, without advertising, which allows mass production, most things for sale now would cost ten times what they do, and a lot of them we'd never have heard about.

A lot of magazines went under when television came along and took away their advertising customers. Newspapers however kept going and are stronger than ever. You can't tape a newspaper and play it back with the ads deleted, and who'd want to? They're some of the best reading in the paper. I bet a lot of your readers prefer the ads to this column. I don't urge a scientific survey.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Letters to the Editor

To The Public Forum:

Why should 70,000 tons of nuclear waste be stored in Hereford or any other place for that matter? I thought that our primary aims included economy and the saving of energy?

Now if what I read is correct after the fuel rods have been in the cooling ponds for some 6 months, they should be taken to a reprocessing plant where they are cut in small pieces and dissolved in nitric acid, in order to extract the remaining fission uranium and the plutonium formed in the rods, and to recycle it into fresh fuel.

This is not what is happening in America. President Carter prohibited the reprocessing and the plant at Barnwell, S.C. - ready to perform it - lies idle. The fuel rods have been piling amidst the talk of energy conservation and energy shortages, quadrillions of BTU's locked up in these fuel rods go untapped.

This is merely politics. Reprocessing technology is not only well developed, but is in commercial operation in Britain (Windscale), France (LaHague) and in the USSR (location undisclosed but quite likely in the Dimitrovograd on the Volga.) Two other countries, Germany and Japan, now send their spent fuel to France for reprocessing, both did have advanced plans for reprocessing plants and may even now have them.

After reprocessing, with most of the uranium and virtually all of the plutonium (Much more precious than gold) extracted chemically from the acid, there remain the high level wastes which are responsible for 99 percent of the radioactivity but only 1 percent of the volume.

Why do not our elected representatives insist that this precious uranium and even more precious plutonium be utilized? How many years do we have to wait to use this energy? How many years do we have to wait to catch up with the Europeans in this very thing? Do we really have representatives or don't we?

Sincerely,

Reagan preparing bargaining strategy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan is spending part of his New Year's vacation preparing the bargaining strategy for next month's U.S.-Soviet arms talks in Geneva, his spokesman says.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan would review written recommendations on what posture the United States should adopt for the Jan. 7-8 sessions in Geneva, Switzerland.

Speakes tried to play down reports that Reagan's key foreign policy advisers have different views on how to approach the talks between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

National security adviser Robert C. McFarlane, who was to arrive today in California, would be carrying the strategy recommendations developed by an interagency group, Speakes said.

Speakes said it was possible Reagan would take time out from his six-day holiday to meet with Shultz, McFarlane and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Shultz and Weinberger are joining the president in Palm Springs to attend an annual New Year's Eve party at the estate of millionaire publisher Walter Annenberg.

However, Speakes said no meeting currently is scheduled.

Speakes declared the administration has "high hopes" but no preconceived expectations for the Geneva session.

Reagan, in an interview with a Japanese newspaper, said he hoped the Soviets were approaching the session with the same "constructive spirit" as U.S. negotiators.

In written responses to questions from the newspaper Yomiuri Shimbun, Reagan also said that while he was encouraged that the Soviets had agreed to talk, "we must temper our expectations with realism."

"A two-day meeting cannot solve the complicated issues before us," said the president. "We hope it will be a constructive beginning for further detailed negotiations."

Reagan said Shultz would be prepared to offer "concrete suggestions on a full range of arms control issues. We hope the Soviets will show a similar constructive spirit."

Speakes said the recommendations McFarlane was carrying were the result of meetings by an interagency task force that has been preparing Geneva strategy.

He said Reagan could either make decisions based on the written material, or seek further discussions with his foreign policy advisers.

In any event, Speakes said Reagan and Shultz will meet in Washington late next week before Shultz departs for Geneva on Jan. 5.

Weinberger, reflecting the Pentagon's deep suspicions of the Soviets, prefers a limited agenda that would restrict Shultz to sounding out Gromyko on whether the Soviets are ready to reopen nuclear arms negotiations and attempt to set a schedule.

Shultz reportedly would like to get started on some of the major issues in dispute.

That could mean considering possible compromises on both medium-range and longer-range nuclear weapons.

Speakes said he hoped the session would result in agreement to continue nuclear arms talks but added that further meetings might be necessary to set up such a framework.

Secret police lieutenant testifies

TORUN, Poland (AP) — A secret police lieutenant testified there were plans to abduct and possibly kill other Polish priests besides the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, with the support of top officials in the Communist government.

Lt. Leszek Pekala, 32, took the witness stand for the second day Friday in a trial in which he and three other secret police officers are charged in the kidnapping and killing of Popieluszko last October.

He described how the pro-Solidarity priest was repeatedly beaten unconscious when he kept trying to escape from the car in which he was being driven off to be killed.

Reporters covering the trial said he also testified that the abductors had a pass that got them through two police checkpoints during the 30-mile drive from the kidnap site to the reservoir where the priest's body was found Oct. 30.

The court was read testimony by Pekala given in the pre-trial investigation, in which he said, "I was sure the kidnapping was part of a very wide operation and (Capt. Grzegorz) Piotrowski made me believe I was taking part in a noble cause," the reporters said.

The report on the pre-trial investigation said Pekala mentioned the other possible priest targets as the Rev. Henryk Jankowski of Gdansk, a close adviser of Solidarity union founder Lech Walesa, and the Rev. Stanislaw Malkowski of Warsaw.

Pekala, Piotrowski, 33, and Lt. Waldemar Chmielewski, 29, are charged with Popieluszko's abduction and murder. A fourth Interior Ministry official, Col. Adam Pietruszka, 47, is on trial for aiding and abetting them.

The trial, which started Thursday, is the first public trial of secret police officials in a Communist country on charges connected with the death of a dissident — in this case, the slaying of a priest who supported the outlawed Solidarity free trade union movement.

The Polish regime has termed the death an intended provocation against the leadership of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski that could have been the work of Communist hard-liners opposed to his policies.

The four defendants could be sentenced to death if convicted.

Sheep scrapie found in some states

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three more cases of sheep scrapie were confirmed in November in Indiana, Michigan and Ohio, says the Agriculture Department.

Dr. Jack R. Pitcher, chief veterinarian in the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said recently that the "usual eradication measures" will be carried out in an effort to curb the disease.

All exposed sheep, along with any closely related animals, will be destroyed, he said. Owners will get indemnities of two-thirds the appraised value of the animals, not to exceed $300 each.

Pitcher said that 25 cases of scrapie were confirmed in the fiscal year that ended on Sept. 30, compared with 15 cases in 1982-83.

Scrapie is a disease of sheep and goats that attacks the central nervous system. It has an extremely long incubation period of 18 to 42 months or longer before clinical signs appear.

Although scrapie is not a hazard to human health, it is nearly always fatal to infected animals.

The largest European city—and the fourth largest in the world—is London, England.

Anti-cancer agents can now be made

NEW YORK (AP) — A new class of natural human anti-cancer agents so rare that some scientists doubted its existence can now be made in the laboratory in unlimited amounts for scientific study, according to new reports.

The two substances are the first natural agents to be found with the ability to directly attack and kill tumor cells, while having little effect on normal cells, said Rik Derynck of Genentech Inc. of South San Francisco.

And researchers say there is a possibility the substances could one day be used to fight cancer in humans.

In two articles in the current issue of Nature, Genentech reports the production through genetic engineering of lymphotoxin and tumor necrosis factor, previously available only in extremely small amounts for study.

"The actions of lymphotoxin and tumor necrosis factor seem to be much more pronounced than interferon," Derynck said Friday in a telephone interview.

Interferon has been shown to help fight some kinds of cancer, but has not become the powerful cancer weapon that some of its advocates once envisioned.

The new agents differ from interferon in that they are able to directly attack and kill tumor cells, Derynck said.

"In terms of direct anti-tumor killing, lymphotoxin and tumor necrosis factor are the two major ones, if not the only ones," he said.

"At this point we're trying to understand what they're going to be useful for, but we definitely think they're going to be very important in the clinic," Derynck said.

The effect of tumor necrosis factor on cancer in animals is dramatic, said Dr. Seth Rudnick of Biogen, a genetic engineering firm in Cambridge, Mass.

When the substance is injected into a mouse with a tumor, "the tumor literally necroses — breaks apart," Rudnick said.

Officials of Biogen told securities analysts last week in New York that they had synthesized tumor necrosis factor.

Derynck and his colleagues report that the long chemical chains that make up the two substances are partly identical, suggesting that the substances had a common chemical ancestor in evolutionary history.

"It seems likely that they are probably meant to be produced together and act together in the defense against tumors," said Dr. Jan Vilcek, a microbiologist at the New York University medical school who has done preliminary studies of tumor necrosis factor.

Tumor necrosis factor was first detected in animals in the early 1970s, said Vilcek.

It was eventually purified, but until now has been available only in very small quantities, he said. Lymphotoxin was identified independently before tumor necrosis factor, said Vilcek.

Genentech is raising $31.5 million from private investors to prepare for clinical trials of these agents, perhaps next year, said Debra Banister, a Genentech spokeswoman.

Genentech has licensed marketing rights to Fujisawa of Kyoto, Japan. Biogen licensed the right to develop tumor necrosis factor to BASF, a large German chemical company, which plans to market the drug through Knoll, its pharmaceutical subsidiary.

Jury convicts Erwin

DALLAS (AP) — It took a federal jury six hours to find Bonnie Burnette Erwin and 10 co-conspirators guilty of federal charges stemming from a 3½-year drug distribution conspiracy that spanned several states.

Erwin, 42, was convicted Friday of directing a continuing criminal enterprise — a federal charge referred to as the "kingpin statute" that carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment without parole.

He also was convicted of 14 other charges including interstate traffic in aid of racketeering, unlawful possession of a weapon during commission of a crime, dealing in counterfeit money, distribution of cocaine and income-tax evasion.

Sentencing is set for Jan. 21. Erwin also faces state murder charges in the torture death of a man who allegedly crossed the drug ring.

Charles E. Lloyd, Erwin's defense attorney from Los Angeles, said after the verdict that Erwin was "despondent and claims he's absolutely shocked."

The federal court jury, which heard three weeks of testimony in the trial, also decided Friday that Erwin should forfeit three pieces of real estate and 20 vehicles that he bought with money from drug sales or used in the drug enterprise.

Ten of 11 members of what prosecutors called the Erwin drug organization were found guilty of conspiracy, but one woman was found innocent, said Lonny Watson, an investigator with the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency.

Guilty verdicts were returned against Erwin's wife, Jo Carol Erwin; his son, Tyrell Erwin; his daughter, Tarenthia Erwin; his brother, Don Wayne Erwin; Maranetta Smith; Robin Norma; Glenda Lawton; Diana Berry; Grace Helen Davis; and Joe Neal Jr.

The jury returned an innocent verdict against Sarah Elizabeth Dornes, who had been indicted for conspiracy and aiding and abetting.

Jury foreman John Andrews said the "government built a very good case" and that the jury had no difficulty in its deliberations.

Managers offer reactions to "happy hour"

Kent Leopold, owner of the Caribana, a reggae music club in central Houston, changed a sign advertising three-drinks for the price of one to show they will now be sold at a reduced price of 99 cents.

"Whatever TABC tells me to do, I'll do," said Leopold, the owner of the Caribana.

But he added, "Two or three shots in one drink are more devastating than the same amount of liquor over two or three drinks."

Leopold was among Texas tavern and bar owners reacting Friday to a new mandate from the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission prohibiting two-for-one alcoholic drink specials in what is known as "happy hour."

The rules, announced Thursday and effective immediately, bar two-for-one happy hours, but do not prohibit selling doubles for the price of singles or offering half-price drinks. Steve Rich, manager of Dallas

Confetti, was generally pleased with the ruling, saying that the Alcoholic Beverage Commission's decision will "help eliminate these 'Bar Wars' we've got."

"Some places go for five-for-one," he said. "It's become a continual contest to see who can offer more for less and lure in the customers."

Houston Restaurant Association executive director Jim Manley said most club and restaurant owners with whom he's spoken say they only have happy hours to stay competitive.

"Somehow this got started and everybody has to meet the competition," Manley said. "None I know of are anxious to do it."

The decision may benefit clubs if patrons begin to drink at a deliberate pace, said Eddie Gattus, the manager of Monopoly's Park Place in Dallas.

"I agree with the whole concept," Gattus said. "If there were no happy hours or two-for-one's, people might not come out to drink so much and business might slack off initially. But eventually, it'd work out to the management's advantage. There'd be more games, pinball, talking and more dancing."

But other bar owners said they would look for ways around the ruling.

"Where does the crud end?" asked Greg Winborn, whose Baxter's clubs in Houston and Austin serve the equivalent of two happy-hour drinks in one big glass.

Winborn said he believes the TABC makes rules as it goes along.

"I liken them to the Gestapo," he said.

C.W. Ross, manager of Cooters, a southwest Houston club, said the TABC mandate won't affect his business much.

"We feel we have more to offer than drinking at the club," Ross said. "People don't come here just for two-for-one drinks. We have a full-service restaurant, a 20-foot free buffet, shuffleboard and pool."

Ross said his club will serve larger drinks in one glass, instead of two, in compliance with the order.

W.H. "Buckshot" Price, executive vice president of the Texas

Restaurant Association, said the commission's policy is "inconsistent, inadequate and confusing - and doesn't focus on alcohol abuse at home, work and school."

Marinelle Timmons of Houston, the state director for Mothers Against Drunk Drivers, said the commission's action is "great" but that MADD will still lobby to have the Legislature ban happy hours.

"My feeling is when you license someone to come into a community and sell alcoholic beverages, you also are charging them with the responsibility that the beverages are served and sold in a responsible manner," Ms. Timmons said. "I don't see anything responsible about two-for-one drinks or discount drinks."

Today in History

Today is Sunday, Dec. 30, the 365th day of 1984. There is one day left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Dec. 30, 1853, the United States bought 45,000 square miles of land from Mexico in a deal that was called the Gadsden Purchase after the man who engineered it, James Gadsden. The area became the southern part of Arizona and New Mexico.

On this date:

In 1865, author Rudyard Kipling was born in Bombay, India.

In 1894, suffragist Amelia Jenks Bloomer died. She had gained notoriety for wearing in public a short skirt and baggy trousers that became known as "bloomers."

In 1903, about 600 people died when fire broke out at the Iroquois Theater in Chicago.

In 1911, Sun Yat-sen was elected the first president of the Republic of China after the fall of the Chinese dynasties.

In 1936, the United Auto Workers union staged its first "sit-down" strike, at the Fisher Body Plant No. 1 in Flint, Mich.

In 1944, King George II of Greece proclaimed a regency to rule his country, virtually renouncing the throne.

One year ago: A federal judge blocked a plan by the government to release 1.5 million of the most confidential documents that were in the White House when President Richard M. Nixon resigned in 1974.

Today's birthdays: Actress Jeanette Nolan is 73. Television personality Bert Parks is 70. Actress Jo Van Fleet is 65. Singer Bo Diddley is 56. Actor Jack Lord is 54. Actor John Hillerman is 52. Actor-dancer Russ Tamblyn is 50. Baseball hall-of-famer Sandy Koufax is 49.

Thought for today: "If a man has common sense, he has all the sense there is." — Sam T. Rayburn, speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives (1882-1961).

'Skins look to another Super Bowl berth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Redskins will be facing one of the league's best defenses Sunday when they take on the Chicago Bears in a National Football League playoff game in Washington's quest for a third straight Super Bowl appearance.

But defensive end Dexter Manley doesn't care about statistics. He's hoping the Redskins' defense will be the best when it counts — on the turf at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium in the NFC semifinal game.

Manley has racked up 13½ quarterback sacks this season despite missing two midseason games with an ankle injury. The team attributes the improved performance of the 25-year-old, four-year veteran to maturity.

"Dexter's settled down. He's over the young years," says Redskins' Coach Joe Gibbs. "I think he's had a darn good year."

Manley has experienced a few changes since the 1983 season, which ended in the Redskins losing to the Oakland Raiders in the Super Bowl, 38-9, in the worst Super Bowl loss in history.

Marriage has helped him become a more consistent player, according to General Manager Bobby Beathard. Manley was wed on Sept. 1, the day before the season opener.

"Dexter's got a great wife now and the thing I've noticed is his maturity," said Beathard. "You see it everywhere. He used to spend a lot of time pouting. Now, if you were to put his emotions and his level of play on a chart, instead of going way up and down, it would be a steady line."

"My wife Glinda has helped me a lot," Manley agreed. "I guess I've matured."

But Manley's record for the season still shows some performance inconsistencies. He had a career high of three sacks against the Detroit Lions on Nov. 11, but was sackless in six other games.

"I feel like I can be the best, but I'm slipping and sliding," Manley said. "I want to be a complete player. In all sincerity, I think I could get 20 sacks in a season. But it's like one day I'll have a great game and then I'll go two or three weeks without a sack."

Manley's improved performance follows a 1983 season marred by training camp contract disputes.

"They are paying me pennies," he said before signing a renegotiated deal last year. Manley arrived at camp sporting a mohawk haircut that earned him the nickname "Mr. D."

Late in the year Manley said he wouldn't mind a trade, and the Redskins even tested his value in the trade market during the offseason.

Then came 1984. "Before this season started, I did a lot of thinking about my future," Manley said. "I felt it was best for me to be in a good frame of mind. The only thing I wanted to do was what I do best — play football."

the Steelers their identity through the four Super Bowl titles in the 1970s — Terry Bradshaw, Franco Harris, Rocky Bleier, Lynn Swann, L.C. Greenwood, Jack Ham, Mel Blount — are gone.

Bradshaw has been replaced by Mark Malone, a fifth-year pro who hardly played until this season when David Woodley suffered a leg injury. Walter Abercrombie and Frank Pollard have replaced Harris and Bleier in the backfield. Rookie Louis Lipps gives the Steelers a Swann-like dimension at wide receiver, teaming with 11-year veteran John Stallworth. Mike Merriweather and Robin Cole are the best of a new crop of linebackers, and 11-year veteran Donnie Shell is the lone holdover in the secondary.

Despite the wholesale changeover in personnel — Noll riffs to call it "rebuilding" — the Steelers remain one of the league's most dangerous teams. They are the only team this season to beat the 49ers (they did it in San Francisco), and they knocked off the Raiders in Los Angeles in the regular-season finale to clinch a playoff berth with a 9-7 record.

Denver, 13-3, beat Seattle 31-14 to nail down the AFC West division title in the final game. Denver's strength has been a ball-hawking defense that has produced 24 fumble recoveries and 31 interceptions, a solid running attack keyed by 1,153-yard rusher Sammy Winder, and the talented but still erratic John Elway at quarter-

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — On a night when Pat Jones completed a record-breaking season as Oklahoma State's rookie head coach, his background as a defensive specialist came in handy.

The headlines will show that the ninth-ranked Cowboys rallied to defeat No. 7 South Carolina 21-14 in the Gator Bowl when tight end Barry Hanna turned a short pass from Rusty Hilger into a dramatic 25-yard touchdown with 1:04 left to play.

But in the final analysis, it was OSU's defense, ninth stingiest in the nation, which played a key role by holding the Gamecocks to 298 total yards, 138 below their seventh-ranked season average. And 148 yards came on two sudden touchdown thrusts in a five-minute span of the third period that wiped out the Cowboys' 13-0 halftime lead.

"We used a different (defensive) front, something we used to do quite a bit but hadn't shown since the Missouri game last year," explained Jones, who has taught defense since he began his coaching career in 1969, except for a one-year stint in 1982 as OSU's offensive coordinator.

"It was a five-man front that over-shifted toward the tight end side and freed up (outside linebacker Rodney) Harding more (Harding recovered two South Carolina fumbles). Normally, we overshift to the split end side and stack the linebackers. We felt like it would be more effective against their Split-Back Veer."

Both teams finished with 10-2 marks and record-setting seasons as two of college football's Cinderella teams. Oklahoma State won 10 games for the first time in its history — the 1945 and 1976 Cowboys won nine — while no South Carolina club had ever won more than eight games or cracked The Associated Press Top Ten. However, the Gamecocks' postseason record is now an embarrassing 0-6.

The defense kept OSU in the game and the offense, which unleashed impressive, clock-consuming touchdown drives of 69 and 74 yards in the first half, came through with an 88-yard march as time was running out.

"I wasn't trying to make anything big happen, just execute," said Hilger, who completed six of nine passes during the winning drive for 75 yards, including a 13-yarder to Hanna on fourth-and-six from the South Carolina 49.

Hanna, a 232-pounder and, like Hilger, a senior, crossed left to right, took Hilger's short pass near the sideline, avoided a would-be tackler and lumbered to the eight, where he was hit by three more defenders but dragged them across the goal line.

Bronco, Steeler fighting rematch unlikely today

By JOHN MOSSMAN AP Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — It was the punch seen round the world — by everyone but the officials — and it proved to be the turning point in the Denver Broncos' first-ever playoff game.

The Broncos and Pittsburgh Steelers were playing on even terms in that 1977 contest when, late in the first half, Steeler All-Pro defensive tackle Mean Joe Greene unloaded an uppercut to Denver guard Paul Howard's stomach in full view of most of the 75,000 fans at Mile High Stadium.

The blow occurred after a play had ended, and Howard lay on the turf for several minutes while fans reacted vociferously and a few altercations broke out among players on the field.

No penalty was called, and Denver Coach Red Miller stormed off the field at intermission, hurling accusations at referee Gene Barth and Steeler Coach Chuck Noll. In the second half, it was a fired-up Bronco team that crushed the Steelers 34-21 en route to the Super Bowl.

There isn't likely to be such a galvanizing incident on Sunday when the Broncos and Steelers get together again in a National Football League divisional playoff game here.

Greene retired after the 1981 season and although the Steelers continue to play outstanding defense, they don't really have any volatile players like him in the lineup, especially with Jack Lambert on the injured reserve list.

NBA roundup

L.A. runs past Denver in fourth quarter

By The Associated Press
Playing at home in the rarified air of mile-high Denver, the Nuggets figured to have an edge on the invading Lakers from the sea-level city of Los Angeles. But it was the Lakers who seemed to thrive in the thin air.

The Lakers broke open a tight game with a 14-2 fourth-quarter run and went on to a 135-123 triumph over Denver in a battle of National Basketball Association division leaders.

Denver, leader of the Midwest Division, held a 101-100 advantage with 1:16 left in the third quarter when the Lakers, tops in the Pacific Division, took charge.

With 37-year-old center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and 33-year-old forward Bob McAdoo kicking up their heels like youngsters, Los Angeles rolled to a 114-103 advantage and never looked back. Jabbar finished with 33 points and McAdoo 17 — including nine during the big run — as the Lakers won their sixth straight game and 18th in 23 outings.

Alex English had 31 points for Denver and Calvin Natt added 25. Dan Issel scored all of his 16 points in the second half to keep the Nuggets in contention.

Pistons 116, Pacers 110
Reserves Earl Cureton and Brook Stepe each scored 10 points in the fourth quarter as Detroit wiped out a six-point deficit and ended a four-game losing streak. Cureton had eight of his points and Stepe six of his during a 22-7 fourth-period run that gave the Pistons a 102-93 edge.

Kelly Tripucka led Detroit with 23 points, while Isiah Thomas added 22 points and 17 assists and Cureton 13 points. The Pacers were topped by Clark Kellogg's season-high 31 points.

Bullets 125, Hawks 111
Gus Williams scored 37 points and running mate Jeff Malone added 27 as Washington ran its home record to 14-3. Williams canned all four of his three-point field goal attempts, the last giving Washington a 103-90 advantage with 10:24 left in the game. Williams also had 11 assists and five steals.

Atlanta, which dipped to 3-11 on the road, got 34 points from Dominique Wilkins, who was held to four points after helping the Hawks to a 65-61 halftime advantage.

Nets 100, Knicks 97
Bernard King scored 39 points, but once again his individual heroics weren't enough to provide a New York victory. New Jersey's Kelvin Ransey, who scored 23 points, hit a rebound jumper with 42 seconds to go to put New Jersey on top for good. Mike Gminski had 26 points to lead the Nets, who have beaten New York five consecutive times. The Knicks have dropped eight straight road games, the club's 29th straight in nine years.

76ers 114, Jazz 111

Julius Erving scored 20 points to become the No. 4 scorer in pro basketball history as Philadelphia kept pace with Boston in the Atlantic Division race. Erving's 12th point of the night gave him 26,711 and moved him past Oscar Robinson on the career scoring list.

Andrew Toney scored 21 points as the 76ers overcame a 13-point deficit to win for the 14th time in 16 games. Philadelphia, 23-6 in all games and 1½ games back of 25-5 Boston, never trailed after an Erving layup gave the 76ers a 108-107 lead.

Adrian Dantley scored 31 points for Utah, which lost its 10th straight battle with the 76ers.

Mavericks 125, Suns 111

Jay Vincent scored 39 points and Mark Aguirre added 23 as Dallas posted only its second victory in 11 games at Arizona Veterans Memorial Coliseum in Phoenix. Phoenix trailed 91-81 after three periods, but crept within 95-90 before Vincent scored 10 points.

Get High

Hereford High School basketball player Shelly Edwards works on getting off the floor for rebounds Friday in the HHS practice gym. Girls assistant coach Cindy McMillin looks on.

Herd moves to finals

The Hereford Whitefaces were to meet Albuquerque St. Pius for the championship of the Clovis Tournament at 9:30 p.m. CST Saturday at Rock Stabus Gym in Clovis.

The Whitefaces earned the right to play for the championship via a 63-61 win over host Clovis Friday night. Bobby Baker scored 19 points and Kevin Redus had 17 for the Whitefaces.

Hereford had to overcome a 9-point deficit at the end of the first quarter, trailing 18-9. The Whitefaces used a strong third period in the win, outscoring Clovis 20-12.

A black fighter named Bobby Dobbs, who later became a boxing instructor, had 1,024 fights during his professional career.

Sports in retrospect

1984 tabbed year of surprises, turnarounds

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Some sports fans might call 1984 a year of surprises.

And some might call 1984 a year of turnarounds.

Top stories of the year included such turnarounds as in football. A total of 110 prospective athletes turned out for spring practice in March, but Hereford coaches were forced to upgrade the status of some players from junior varsity to varsity because not enough Whitefaces were on the varsity. A sophomore team failed to materialize.

Also in football, Hereford's varsity opened the year with two 21-0 setbacks and entered the fifth game of the season 1-3. Hereford turned the tables on its opponents, however, and won its last six games to finish 7-3, in a tie for second place in District 3-5A.

The Hereford and Vicinity YMCA, originally scheduled to move in Sept., set up offices in a new building at 500 15th St. The new 26,000-square-foot facility was delayed in completion because of lack of needed funds among other problems.

Suddenly in November, Bowling's Bowl was forced to lock its doors, leaving Hereford without a bowling alley. Owners sold the alley, quickly removing its interior.

Officials and interested persons got moving, however, and planned a new bowling facility tabbed the Hereford Bowling Center. Location and opening date of the new alley were not disclosed in 1984.

Other sports highlights included: Cathy Bartels and Darla Alford being named all-district on the second and third teams, respectively, of 3-5A girls basketball; Jeff Streun named to the second team all-district boys squad and Lee Brockman honorable mention; Jeff Streun and Teresa Phibbs chosen Athletes of the Year at the annual All-Sports Banquet, and Streun and Jan Harwell given the Fighting Heart Awards.

Also, Selma Moreno qualified for the state track meet in the 3,200-meter run in April and in November would become Hereford's first-ever qualifier for the state cross-country meet; and Lee Brockman, David Parsons, Mike Scott and Sammy Suarez named first-team all-district in football, with Augustine Castillo, a second teamer.

January
The month saw both the boys varsity and junior varsity win their first district games of 1984 while both girls teams lost. La Plata's ninth-grade boys team won its 11th straight contest against no losses.

La Plata's eighth-grade and ninth-grade boys won their divisions in the Canyon Basketball Tournament. And West Texas State University made a verbal commitment to stay affiliated with the Missouri Valley Conference, at least "for the foreseeable future."

SELMA MORENO

February
The boys varsity basketball team started the month with a narrow loss to first-place Amarillo; the girls also lost.

Rodney Murphy, a former Hereford football assistant coach, resigned from the McMurry College head position after being named TIAA Coach of the Year in 1983. Reports claimed Murphy planned to go into private business.

The girls basketball team ended the season with a 52-42 win over Coronado. Final standings indicated the Hereford girls finished district play with an 8-8 record and 11-11 overall, an improvement over 1983's 9-11 team. Cathy Bartels was chosen second-team all-district, and was invited to play in the NWIT All-Star game in March. Darla Alford was picked third-team all-district.

The boys basketball team ended its year at 9-17 and 5-11 in district with 64-62 win over Lubbock. Jeff Streun was chosen second-team all-district, and Lee Brockman was named honorable mention. La Plata's ninth-grade boys team concluded the season at 18-0.

HHS tennis coach Robert Cox resigned, reportedly to accept a job with a Texas school textbook company. Ruben Vargas was selected as Cox's replacement.

Hereford's girls track team fared well at Sweetwater, with a score of 153, enough to win had points been kept.

High school golf got underway.

March
Hereford was planning a semi-pro football team as the month began, primarily to compete with teams in Amarillo. The boys tennis team won first place in the Hereford Eight-Team Tennis Tournament, and the girls placed third.

Stanton Junior High seventh- and eighth-grade girls won their respective divisions at the Dalhart Track Meet. Hereford football coach Jerry Taylor was selected to choose Class 5A players to compete in the Texas High School Coaches Association North-South All-Star game.

More than 15 schools from Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma competed in the Tri-State Rodeo, held in Hereford. Hereford High School sophomore Jana Johnson was named Rodeo Queen and placed fourth in goat tying. Chet Burrows was second in bull riding and teamed with Shawn McConnell for third in team roping.

The Hereford High School baseball team lost its district opener, 9-1 to Monterey.

The Hereford boys golf team continued to improve its stroke total, but not its district standing, in Amarillo. The baseball team concluded the month with a three-game win streak.

April
Stanton won first places in the seventh- and eighth-grade girls district track meet, while La Plata won the ninth-grade division. The varsity girls placed second in district track behind Amarillo. However, Lisa Redmon, Bernice Thomas and Selma Moreno all qualified for regional.

Blair Rogers advanced to the semifinals of singles competition in district tennis. Cathy Bartels won a basketball scholarship to Frank Phillips College. Selma Moreno qualified for the state track meet in the 3,200-meter run.

The Whitefaces lost their final two baseball games of the month, including a 21-17 setback to Coronado in a windstorm with gusts of 65 m.p.h. Stanton took second place in junior high golf, and La Plata tied for third at the district meet.

May
The month began with Selma Moreno placing first in a state qualifiers meet for tracksters at Plainview. She ran a 12:03.1 in the 3,200 meters.

Jeff Streun and Teresa Phibbs were Athletes of the Year at the annual all-sports banquet. Streun joined Jan Harwell as recipient of the Fighting Heart Awards. Other athletes, recognized by sport, were: Micky Stengel, football; Jeff Streun and Cathy Bartels, basketball; Craig Jones and Selma Moreno, track; Ronnie Collier, baseball; Rosemary Castillo, volleyball; Dana Cabiness and Eliseo Ramirez, cross country; Blair Rogers and Connie Zinser, tennis; Matt Albracht and Whitney Drake, golf.

A Fan of the Year also was recognized at the banquet. That award went to Leo Withowski.

Hereford Kiwanis and the high school Key Club sponsored an intermediate school track meet.

Spring football practice started with 110 players reporting. An intrasquad scrimmage concluded practice late in the month.

Selma Moreno placed fifth at state. Jana Johnson was named All-Around Cowgirl at the Tri-State Rodeo in Adrian.

Canyon wrapped up the junior high golf title. La Plata placed third and Stanton was fifth. Bobby Baker was district medalist.

And a local basketball camp for youths was planned.

WELDON KNABE

Tournament got underway and featured Markay White winning first place in junior high girls singles. Kevin Hansen won the boys title. Connie Zinser won the adult singles of the event.

The Hereford 13-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars won the West Texas regional tournament and advanced to the regional tourney in Bay City. The 'Stars were defeated in Bay City by the South Texas champs.

IF YOU AUTOMATICALLY THINK YIELD LOSS whenever you see a dropped leaf or unusual color pattern in a corn field, you may have to change your thinking. A Purdue agronomist says these signs don't necessarily mean yield decreases. For example, the bottom one or two leaves will often die after corn reaches the five leaf-stage. A slippery appearance on the upper side of young leaves may be the result of a cool night, followed by a warm, sunny day. Cool temperatures acting on the dew on the leaves is responsible, and no damage is involved. And, anhydrous ammonia burns will turn corn leaves white. If the whorl isn't affected, the emerged new leaves will be normal. The effect on the overall growth due to anhydrous burning will probably be negligible.

Hereford High School seniors Lee Brockman, David Parsons and Mike Scott were chosen as pre-season all-state football selections by Top-O-Texas Football Magazine. Kevin Cardinal won the Central Region Nationals at Austin in jet-skis slalom competition. Frank Lyons and Chad Stephan participated in the National Rifle Association Junior Olympics Shooting Camps in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The All-Girls Rodeo was postponed because of rain. The event would kick off again in four weeks.

Eliseo Ramirez received a $250 scholarship from the Whiteface Booster Club. Charlie and Bryan Kerr and Lacy Driver witnessed the Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

James Salinas qualified for the Texas State Open Golf Tournament in Dallas. Also in golf, Hereford course pro Mike Horton was one of 10 area pros invited to participate in the Amarillo Pro-Am to benefit Ronald McDonald Houses.

Dana Rush and James Salinas tied for first place in Men's City Championship at 148. Ron Weishear won the low net competition with a 136.

Meet the Herd featured watermelon and coach Jerry Taylor expressing concern over House Bill 72. Estacado won a scrimmage from Hereford, 2-1, at Whiteface Stadium.

September

The Whitefaces got off to a shaky start in football, going 1-3 the month of September. After losing its first two games — 21-0 to San Angelo Central and 21-0 to Palo Duro — Hereford rebounded with a win over Lubbock High. Amarillo handed the Herd its third loss, a 45-0 beating.

The first pep rally was held at Damron Park. Larry Cohorn was named director of the Cowboy Country Club.

Lewis Block and Tom Simons won the championship flight of the member-guest golf tournament here. Selma Moreno began her string of first place finishes in cross country with a 12:27 at Levelland.

The HHS tennis team moved to 2-2 with a team win over Caprock.

Bill Dirks and Tiffi West claimed first in the Couples Golf Tournament, sponsored by the Hereford Women's Golf Association. In high school golf, Hereford and Plainview split a match.

October

HHS Rodeo Club officers were named. Lee Vanlandingham was chosen president, David Frische vice president and Jana Johnson treasurer.

The Hereford football team began a six-game win streak with a 7-3 victory over Coronado in Lubbock. The streak included a 31-7 trouncing of Clovis, who later would win the New Mexico state championship. The Whitefaces also beat 3-5A champion Plainview in Plainview, 17-16.

Hereford golfers were first in an Amarillo Triangular Match.

Basketball practice began with girls coach Larry Sowers eyeing post-season play and boys coach Mike Fields hoping for 35-40 players out for the teams.

The Hereford Junior Twisters soccer team won the Amarillo Invitational, sponsored by the Panhandle Soccer Association. And Hereford girls placed second in district cross country, the boys placing fifth. Selma Moreno won first individually.

November

Selma Moreno became Hereford's first-ever qualifier for the state cross country meet. She placed 29th at the state meet, and later was named all-state cross country runner.

Stanton beat La Plata in two games of the annual intracity football rivalry. The varsity football team finished the year tied for second place in District 3-5A, but stayed at home while Palo Duro and Plainview went to the playoffs. The all-district football team was released, and the roster listed Lee Brockman as Defensive Player of the Year. David Parsons, Mike Scott and Sammy Suarez also were named to the first team. Augustine Castillo was a second-team pick.

Bowling's Bowl shut its doors the middle of the month, leaving

Hereford without a bowling alley. However, interested parties quickly were making plans for a new alley to be called the Hereford Bowling Center.

Basketball season opened and featured the Whiteface boys as winners over Levelland. The girls lost.

December

Ronnie Bell won $100 in Hereford Bucks by taking first place in the Hereford Brand Football Sweepstakes Contest. Joan Kalka was second and Dave Hopper third.

In Cotton Bowl Tuesday

Cougars, Eagles meet as strangers

DALLAS (AP) — Houston may never have seen anything like Doug Flutie, but Boston College hasn't seen anything like the Cougars' veer offense either.

They'll be strangers when they meet in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day. They'll depart possibly knowing too much about each other for their own good.

"I think Boston College is going to have a hard time defending the veer," Houston quarterback Gerald Landry said Friday. "They haven't seen it this year. The veer is something really hard to contain because there's a whole lot of things you can do off it."

Flutie also has been hard to contain. He set major-college career records this year for total offense and passing yardage and won the Heisman Trophy.

"It'll be a heck of a test for our defensive kids," said Houston Coach Bill Yeoman. "They (the Eagles) have shown a great ability to get the ball in the end zone and I think we're going to have to evidence a similar ability on our part to be in the game."

"Houston does nothing fancy on defense. They're not going to try to fool us with anything," Flutie said

Friday. "They're pretty basic." Eighth-ranked Boston College, 9-2, leads the nation with 36.7 points per game and is second with an average of 483.4 yards gained. But it also has allowed 24.4 points and 399.8 yards per contest.

Despite the problems, defensive tackle Scott Harrington said the Eagles also would stick with their basic defense.

"We made a couple of modifications, but it's basically the same concept we've used the last three years," he said. "We won't do anything until we see what the offensive linemen's first move is."

In the veer, Landry has the options of pitching the ball out or throwing to speedy receivers Anthony Ketchum, Larry Shepherd and Carl Hilton.

"The biggest problem we face in their offense is their team speed," Harrington said. "I don't think we've faced a team in the past two seasons with that much speed, especially in the backfield."

"We're worried about them beating us to the outside."

Harrington said if the Eagles can stop unranked Houston's attack, it will overshadow criticism of their defense and "silence some people."

The Cougars also have something to prove.

"We're in a pretty good position," said Houston center Todd Schoppe. "I like being the underdog."

MR. AND MRS. HERMAN DRAKE

Drakes celebrate 50th anniversary

In celebration of their golden wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Drake were honored with a dinner tonight for family and friends at the Herring House.

Hosts for the occasion were their three sons and their wives, Lee and Betty Drake, Bill and Ann Drake and John Bob and Diedra Drake, all of Hereford. The couple also has eight grandchildren.

Herman Drake and Mildred Young were married Dec. 22, 1934, in Krum. They have lived in Deaf Smith County since 1937.

He is retired from the Texas Highway Department and is currently employed by Oglesby Equipment. She has been an employee of Harman's Department Store for 24 years.

Facts presented on cheese nutrition

It may look and even taste like cheese, but these days, only the label will tell you what you're eating.

Under Food and Drug Administration (FDA) regulations, a dairy product which does not meet the relevant standard of identity must be called "imitation," says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Mary K. Sweeten.

But if the product substitutes for and resembles another food and is not "nutritionally inferior" it does not have to be called imitation, she adds.

Some cheeses are labeled as imitation simply because of a change in ingredients from real cheese. For example, some grated Italian style cheeses which contain added whey fall into this category.

Another class of "imitation" cheese is the non-dairy product, made from vegetable oils, sugars, a protein source such as sodium caseinate and other ingredients.

Some of these products, like imitation cream cheese, are not nutritionally equivalent to the products they imitate, says Sweeten. They must be labeled imitation, may be worked "non-dairy product," and may bear a nutrition label.

An "imitation label also appears on a popular and economical category of substitute cheese which have been fortified to contain the same amounts of protein and the 19 other ingredients for which U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances have been established, says the nutritionist.

The nutrition labels on these products indicate that they are equal to or better than natural cheese in providing protein, vitamin A, riboflavin and calcium. These products may be equivalent in fat content to natural cheese.

For consumers, the labels on packages of imitation cheese can be confusing, Sweeten maintains. The FDA requires full ingredient listing but nutrition labeling is not normally required.

Shoppers may have even more difficulty identifying imitation cheese in processed foods, she says, since the processor does not always have to state on the label that imitation cheese is being used.

For example, if a pizza is called "cheese" pizza and the processor uses imitation cheese, the word imitation must be stated on the label. When a pizza is called "mushroom pizza," that means mushrooms are the primary topping ingredient and any cheese used is secondary, so the imitation label does not have to appear.

When the cheese is genuine, the word cheese will appear in the ingredient listing, Sweeten says. But the only way a consumer can identify imitation cheese in many processed foods is to look for sodium caseinate and vegetable oil, its two primary ingredients, on the ingredients listing.

POWELL HONORED

NEW YORK (AP) — The Hudson Review says British writer Anthony Powell has been named recipient of the 1984 Bennett Award "in recognition of his distinguished achievement in the art of the novel."

Powell, who lives in Somerset, will attend the formal presentation of the $15,000 award at the U.S. Embassy in London Oct. 25.

The citation accompanying the prize describes Powell as a writer who in "seeing life as a dance that is graceful and dangerous, time as both an opportunity and a menace, and people as comic heroes, equally brave, clownish and lovely, has created in his writing what only great artists can create: A world for which we can weep and cheer."

DEAR POLLY — Do you have a recipe for making marzipan? My family just loves it and I think it would be fun to make and shape it myself. — CAROL

DEAR CAROL — It is fun to work with marzipan. You can make so many fanciful shapes — fruits and vegetables, animals, flowers, etc. — and it's quite easy to make.

The following basic recipe for marzipan is adapted from the book "Elegant Desserts" (HP Books; 1984), a beautiful new dessert cookbook filled with both classic and unusual desserts. Each is illustrated with a full-color photograph.

Dissolve two and one-fourth cups sugar in two-thirds cup water over medium heat. Add a pinch of cream of tartar, stir until dissolved and bring to a boil. Boil without stirring until mixture reaches the softball stage (238 degrees) on a candy thermometer. Remove from heat.

Stir in three cups finely ground blanched almonds and two egg whites which have been beaten until stiff but not dry. Return to heat two to three minutes, stirring constantly.

Turn onto oiled marble slab or oiled baking sheet. Work paste with a spatula five to 10 minutes, bringing edges to the center of the mixture repeatedly. When cooled enough to touch, knead until smooth. If necessary, add small quantities of powdered sugar as you work to keep the paste from sticking.

Extension service launches integrated beef program

COLLEGE STATION — The Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, is intensifying its educational efforts in integrated livestock management.

"Our overall purpose is to develop an integrated approach to on-farm problem solving and advanced production planning as far as the livestock industry of Texas is concerned," points out Dr. John R. Beverly, animal reproduction specialist and supervisor of the Extension animal science project group.

"Basically, we'll be working with livestock producers over the state through our county Extension agents to help them optimize their production systems," he says. "Beef cattle producers have been caught in a severe cost-price squeeze for several years and are struggling for economic survival. This means cutting costs while maintaining their level of productivity or increasing productivity while keeping costs in check."

Optimum production efficiency is the direct result of timely decisions and management actions based upon herd management, health programs, forage production, range management, record systems, market information, feed acquisition and financial management, Beverly points out. All these things must mesh together, or be integrated, if production efficiency is to be increased.

Objectives of the integrated livestock management program are fourfold:

1. To effectively accelerate the transfer of technical data to producers to reduce present production inefficiencies.
2. To develop a statewide production and economic database for beef producers to better address and give evidence to the principles, practices and problems which impinge upon optimum production efficiency.
3. To strengthen and develop innovative integrated subject matter methods and management systems to enhance livestock production efficiency.
4. To develop computer software aids to assist producers in the decision-making process as related to overall herd and ranch management.

"Profitability of Texas cattle producers has been greatly affected by continuing increases in production and capital costs," says Beverly. "This has dictated that producers seek greater levels of production efficiency."

"By looking at all production aspects and integrating these into an overall efficient operation, we should be able to help Texas cattle producers become more competitive," says Beverly.

While the Extension Service is taking the leadership in this integrated livestock management program, numerous other groups and organizations will have input.

To boost this programming effort, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service has received a $22,500 grant from the Extension Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture. The grant was a direct result of the successful South Central Texas Beef Herd Improvement Program that was launched about a year ago. Funds will be used to support some of the activities of this 17-county area program as well as similar efforts in other parts of the state, Beverly notes.

Other states receiving similar grants to support efforts in integrated livestock management were Kansas, Kentucky and Idaho. Program emphasis will be on a concerted effort to accelerate the adoption of known and newly developed technology for producers.

WATER NOT BEST FOR NEST PEST

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Homeowners who want to knock out a nest of stinging insects may not want to use a blast of water from a garden hose, according to Spectrum Home & Garden Products.

It says a stream of water may knock the nest down, but the insects will frequently linger at the site for the rest of the day. The best solution, it says, is to call in a pest control expert for safe removal.

Farm

For Texas farmers, ranchers

1984 a year to forget

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — What kind of a year was it?

Ask most Texas farmers or ranchers and they'll likely tell you it was one of those years in which things went from bad to worse.

A whole passel of things hurt Texas' farmers and ranchers in 1984, but the one that most will recall for years to come can be spelled out in one word — drought.

It was a relentless drought that affected virtually all of Texas except for the South Plains and part of the Panhandle.

In much of South Texas and West Texas, it was a continuation of dry conditions that had plagued farmers and ranchers a year earlier. It became progressively worse as spring turned into summer and early fall. Many likened the drought to the mid-50s.

Little Escapes Drought

Few in agricultural circles were spared the miseries dealt by the '84 drought. Crops in many areas were planted on "a hope and a prayer." There wasn't enough spring moisture to sustain growth and, in many cases, little moisture was to follow.

Many crops literally "ran out of gas" midway through their growth cycle. Grain sorghum heads and ears of corn shriveled up or failed to develop due to lack of moisture. Some corn and grain sorghum was

TFB showed big gain for 1984

WACO — Texas Farm Bureau finished fiscal year (Oct. 31) 1984 with 317,575 member families to remain the largest state Farm Bureau in the nation for the third consecutive year, according to TFB President S.M. True.

"We're very proud and thankful for the many accomplishments Texas Farm Bureau has enjoyed these past three years," True stated. "It could only have come through the hard work and dedication of our volunteers in the 217 county Farm Bureaus which make up Texas Farm Bureau."

TFB showed a gain of 4,007 over fiscal year 1983, when it finished with 313,568 member families. Meanwhile, Illinois Farm Bureau finished FY 1984 with 310,336 member families to remain No. 2 among state Farm Bureaus.

By exceeding its 1983 membership total, TFB showed a gain for the 32nd straight year, True noted.

There were 174 county Farm Bureaus which showed a membership gain during FY 1984.

Lard is the most caloric food—over 900 calories per 100 grams.

cut and baled for hay because of dismal crop prospects and because livestock needed something to eat because hay supplies were exhausted.

Oh yes, the poor livestock — how they suffered through this ordeal. Hundreds starved or died of thirst. Thousands went to market before their time because there was no grass and water. Others were kept alive on water that had to be hauled from wells and hay that eventually had to be shipped in from other states since the drought limited Texas production.

Texas wildlife also suffered from the long drought, with the '84 fawn crop light and quail and turkey hatches extremely poor.

Many ranchers threw up their arms in despair as the drought continued its relentless grip past mid-year. Summer rains did come to parts of Far West Texas, but elsewhere total herds of livestock were liquidated as once flourishing pastures and ranges yielded nothing but bare earth.

Livestock went to market in record numbers in July and August, leaving inventories at 60 to 70 percent below normal. And as markets became overloaded, prices plunged.

Ranchers had little choice but to cull their herds sharply. Then, finally came October and the rains — sweet, beautiful, heaven-sent rains! However, parts of South and Southwest Texas still lacked sufficient rains for runoff to fill stock tanks and lakes for city water supplies.

Fall Rains Too Late

While the rains put some green back into pastures and ranges to provide some late-season grazing for livestock, they came too late to help summer crops.

Yields suffered in many areas with the exceptions being the Rio Grande Valley, parts of the Coastal Bend and Upper Coast, the South Plains and irrigated areas of Southwest Texas.

The cotton crop in the Rolling Plains and West Central Texas suffered severely. Many acres were not planted. For example, the normal crop of about 20,000 acres in Taylor County was down to almost 5,000 acres. In some counties it took 8 to 10 acres to make one bale where normally one to two acres would do the job.

Vegetable production increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — An annual review by the Agriculture Department shows that this year's vegetable production increased from 1983, including gains for both fresh market and processing vegetables.

Production of the principal fresh market vegetables totaled an estimated 211 million hundredweight, a 5 percent increase from last year, due to both larger yields and a greater acreage, the department's Crop Reporting Board said Thursday.

The value of the nine major vegetable and melon crops harvested in 1984 was put at $3 billion, a 3 percent increase from 1983.

Fresh market vegetables, including melons, included: broccoli, carrots, cauliflower, celery, sweet corn, lettuce, honeydews, onions and tomatoes.

California, Florida, Texas, Arizona and New York accounted for 78.3 percent of this year's fresh market vegetables.

Processing vegetable production — which was reported in tons — totaled 12.1 million tons, up 11 percent from last year. The value, at $1.04 billion, was up 16 percent, the report said.

Those include: snap beans, sweet corn, green peas, tomatoes, broccoli, carrots and cauliflower.

California, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Oregon and Ohio produced 81.9 percent of this year's processing vegetables, the report said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most winter wheat remains in "fair to good" condition as the year winds down, says the government's Joint Agricultural Weather Facility.

A weekly report said Thursday that some limited planting remained to be done in the Southeast as of Dec. 23, however. Elsewhere, the crop appeared to be doing well.

"Warmer-than-normal temperatures in the southeastern Corn Belt and southward aided late-seeded wheat germination," the report said.

"Adequate snow cover protected winter wheat in the northern plains and northwest, but additional cover is needed in Wisconsin, Nebraska and Oregon."

New stands of wheat were said to be "fair to mostly good" in the major producing areas. Recent precipitation "which is helping prevent wind erosion" of fields helped wheat in much of the Great Plains, the report said.

The United States, which is the fourth largest country in total land area, occupies 6.4 percent of the world's land area.

FAIL SAFE

Have you wondered about the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation's ability to pay off in the unlikely event that one of the nation's banks should actually fail? Consider that the FDIC's insurance fund totals some $16 billion. The corporation can borrow an additional $3 billion from the U.S. Treasury. Instead of paying off depositors and closing a troubled bank, the FDIC may choose to merge the bank into one that is healthy. It often gives the acquiring bank an undisclosed infusion of cash. When that is done, depositors of the trouble bank simply become depositors of the new bank. In no case do the depositors lose money.

For sound financial planning come into the office of RICK ROBERTS, CPA at 138 Third, Suite A (364-7825). We are a full service accounting firm providing such services as: financial statements for ranchers, farmers, feed lot operators, tax returns, tax planning and much more. For the personal service that such matters need we are at your service Monday thru Friday 8:30-12 and 1-4. We would like to wish you all health and happiness for the new Year.

The FDIC's fund has always earned income that exceeds the amount paid to depositors of failed banks.

WATCHING WATER IS WORTHWHILE
DENVER (AP) — While the world has plenty of water, it's still wise to help conserve it.

The American Water Works Association says ways to avoid running unnecessary water include:

- Keep cold drinking water in a refrigerated bottle.
- Run dish and clothes washers only with full loads.
- Turn off the faucet when using a toothbrush or razor.
- Take quick showers, or better yet, shallow baths.

McCarley, Parsley exchange vows

MRS. DANE PARSLEY
...nee Deborah McCarley

Wedding vows were exchanged Friday evening by Deborah Ann McCarley and Dane Andrew Parsley in Lefors at the First United Methodist Church. The Rev. Sidney Parsley, father of the groom, officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill G. McCarley, of Hereford and the bridegroom is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Sidney Parsley of Crowell.

Two solid oak altar chairs flanked on each side by gleaming 15-branch brass candelabras formed the background for the wedding. The candelabras were draped with garlands of greenery and roses. The communion table held two large bouquets of navy, dusty rose and periwinkle blue roses. A unity candle was nestled in the center of the table. Family pews were marked with silk bows and roses.

The church featured 10 antique stained glass windows, which were lighted by the placement of small candles. The Lefors First Methodist church has sentimental significance for the bride and her family. The church was built in 1946. All the oak altar furnishings were built by the bride's grandfather, H.L. McCarley. Each altar piece was designed to reflect the arch of the gothic windows.

The couple's grandparents stood at the altar railing with lighted candles as the parents of the bride and groom entered the church. Each parent lit a candle from his or her respective parent group. The parents next moved to the communion table, where they lit one candle each for the two respective families. The bride and groom, after their vows, lit the center candle to unite the two families.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. Richard Bayless of Arlington, sister of the bride. Serving as best man was Joe Darden of Lubbock.

The flower girl was Stepheny Parsley, the groom's niece, daughter of Debra Parsley of Springlake-Earth.

Guests were escorted by Richard Bayless, brother-in-law of the bride, Rusty Griffin of Amarillo and Shane and Kirk Parsley, both brothers of the groom. Lighting candles during the ceremony were Richard Bayless and Shane Parsley.

Guests were invited to register by Carrie Jones. The table was decorated with the bridal book and a basket of rose, navy and dusty silk flowers, which were made by both

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Coleman, the bride's grandparents. The flowers were filled with birdseed, which was used to toss at the couple as they departed the church.

Pre-nuptial selections were played by Mrs. Joe Dan Watson. She accompanied Mrs. Richard Bichsel of Pampa, cousin of the bride who sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "Some Day-Some Where."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of organza and alencon lace designed with a Victorian bodice, a sheer yoke of schiffli embroidery, and a deep lace ruffle which encircled the shoulders. Her sheer bishop sleeves were appliqued in lace and caught at the wrists by deep lace cuffs and ruffles over her hands. Her bouffant skirt was accented by a panel of alencon lace at center front, which fell to a flounced lace hemline sweeping into a cathedral train. Ruffles of lace formed an apron panel back falling from her dropped waistline. Seed pearls were re-embroidered on her bodice front.

She wore a wreath of silk petals which held her fingertip veil of scalloped bridal illusion. The center back was marked by organza bows and streamers ending in flower petals. The bride chose to carry a Bible that was a childhood gift from her sister, Dianna Bayless. The Bible was covered with a winter white lace jacket made by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Dorothy Coleman. Atop the Bible was a small arrangement of navy, dusty rose and powder blue silk flowers and streamers.

Special accessories included as something old, her Bible; for something new, her dress; something borrowed, pearl earrings belonging to her mother and which her sister wore at her wedding; something blue, the traditional blue garter. She had a penny in her shoe, with her birthdate, which was given to her by her father.

The matron of honor wore a formal length gown of dusty blue silk taffeta and chantilly lace. The gown was fashioned in a Victorian style featuring a slim yet full skirt which gathered to a small bustle.

Long bishop sleeves, which gathered onto cuffs, were closed by self covered buttons. A deep flounce of lace edged the skirt hem.

She carried a winter white fan covered in dusty rose and blue flowers with blue cascading streamers, which were tied into

"love knots."

The flower girl carried a white basket of silk roses, carnations and baby's breath. She wore a dress of dusty rose crepe in a mid-length style.

The bride's mother wore a teal-length dress of navy moire, featuring a fitted waist, falling into a full skirt. The groom's mother wore a street length dress in a turquoise color. Silk flower corsages, in the bridal colors were presented to the mothers and grandmothers.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception and dinner were held in the Lefors Civic Center. Teresa Carter of Panhandle and Marcia Crowley of Hereford served the bride's cake, and Carrie Jones of Waco and Carol Smalts of Hereford served punch and coffee. Barbara Coleman of Twitty and Ruby McCarley of Canadian, aunts of the bride, presided over the buffet supper, which was prepared by Mrs. Dorothy Coleman and Ann McCarley, both grandmothers of the bride.

The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated in swirls and scallops. The base of each tier was decorated with powder blue and pink roses. The top of the cake held two porcelain figurines from the Betsey Clark Collection, entitled "Betsey 'n Beau-Lover's First Kiss".

The bride's cake, flanked by silver candlesticks, which held navy colored candles and flowers, was the central decoration on the lace covered table. A silver punch bowl and silver coffee service were the other appointments that adorned the table. The bride and groom toasted each other using crystal wine goblets, which belonged to the bride's maternal great grandmother.

Following a short wedding trip, the couple will be at home in Canyon. A rehearsal dinner was held Thursday evening in Pampa, hosted by the groom's parents.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Hereford High School. She is currently attending West Texas State University in Canyon, where she is working toward a degree in communication disorders.

The groom is a 1982 graduate of Hamlin High School and is also attending West Texas State University where he is majoring in computer information systems.

Thawing frozen pipes

If this winter is anything like last winter, some Texans will find themselves confronted with frozen plumbing.

Even in a normal moderate Texas winter, it's possible to have pipes freeze because of a sudden drop in temperature, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service housing specialist Dr. Peggy Owens.

Pipes are most likely to freeze if homeowners turn the heat off while they go away on vacation, she warns. Whenever the house will not be lived in for a period of time, set the thermostat at 55 degrees Fahrenheit to protect the plumbing, advises the specialist.

"Should the pipes freeze, there are two important rules for thawing them in a way that won't do more damage in the process," Owens says. First, always open faucets connected to the pipe being thawed. When faucets are left closed during the thawing process, she says, the pipe may burst if steam develops in the blocked pipe.

Second, don't use open-flame heat sources to thaw pipes, she cautions. The pipes could be damaged and dry or flammable materials near the pipe may ignite.

The safest and most effective way to thaw pipes is to use electric heating tape, says Owens. Simply wrap the tape around the pipe at the points most likely to be frozen, and plug it into an appropriate outlet to start the thawing process.

According to Owens, one advantage of electric heating tape is that it can be left in place on pipes likely to freeze frequently during the cold season and plugged in when needed. Consumers should check to make sure the heating tape bears an Underwriters Laboratories (UL) label.

Other means of thawing pipes include the following:

-Hair dryers or other hot air gun-type heaters - Use the high heat settings and direct the hot air along the frozen pipe. Clear cobwebs and flammable material from the area to be heated.

-Vacuum cleaners - Connect the vacuum cleaner hose to the discharge outlet of the machine and blow air from the vacuum cleaner and the room onto the pipe. This is good if the room is warm and the pipes are in cupboards, closets or under floors and in walls where air can be easily blown.

-Small fans - If the room is above 40 degrees Fahrenheit, direct the fan onto the area where the pipe is frozen. This works well if the pipes are in cupboards or closets.

-Hot water and rags - Wrap the pipe with rags and pour hot water on the rags.

Ann Landers

It gives comfort

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Help me understand why some people write open letters in newspapers to long-dead relatives.

I can understand a small notice commemorating the anniversary of a death, but lately I have seen letters that sound as if family members are letting the dearly departed know what's been going on for the past year since they last "wrote."

It must cost a tidy sum to have such letters published. Are the writers under the impression that they may get an answer, or do they write because they feel guilty for not having paid more attention to that person when he or she was alive? What do you think of this practice?—Mystified In Jacksonville

DEAR JACK: I have never seen such a letter but my guess is that people who pay to have such letters published in the paper believe the deceased are alive in heaven and able to receive messages.

If it gives them comfort I see no harm in it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column a reader pointed out that the longest word that could be written on a single row of a typewriter keyboard was TYPEWRITER.

I'm no authority on words but I decided to fiddle around and see if I could come up with another one. I discovered two: REPERTOIRE AND QWERTYUIOP. They also have 10 letters so it sounds like a three-way tie.—Hunt & Peck In Beaumont, Tex.

DEAR BEAU: Let's call it a two-way split. "Qwertyuiop" is not a word. It's the top row of typewriter keys reading left to right.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I read your answer to "Too Many Tears in Oklahoma" I had to smile.

You said, "The vast majority of husbands who don't want children are crazy about the baby once it arrives." How true.

I was the third oldest in a family of 10. My husband, Bill, was the baby in a family of four. Every small child he was around made him nervous. When we talked about having a baby, Bill always said, "If you want one it will be YOUR responsibility. Please don't expect any help from me. I'll be too busy working."

It took five years of debating with myself before I decided to take a chance on raising a child with no help from my husband. Guess what? When our son was born Bill's feet didn't touch the ground for months. He telephoned everyone he had ever met to tell them the great news ever—he had a son! The nut even brought a football to the hospital.

Two years later we had a daughter. He absolutely adores that child. Bill goes to work early so he can get home early and play with the kids. He is the coach for our son's hockey team. Everyone says he is the best dad in town.

Maybe "Oklahoma" can make deal with her husband. The baby will be her responsibility unless he decides he'd like to take an active interest. When the time comes, God willing, she just might have a man like mine.—Glad I Risked It In Detroit

DEAR D.: Can you clone Bill? He sounds terrific. But you took a big chance—one that I would not recommend.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You—For Teen-Agers Only." Send 50 cents and a self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Taking medications

Elderly people who take many medications may be tempted to crush or mix pills so they will be easier to swallow.

But not all medications can be safely treated this way, cautions gerontologist Dr. Judith Warren. Some tablets are coated to conceal the unpleasant taste of the medication, prevent irritation of the mouth and esophagus, or to delay release of the drug, says Warren, a specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economics program.

Crushing a coated tablet immediately released the drug and may cause a bitter taste in the mouth, stomach irritation and nausea. This may cause some elderly to avoid taking the medicine as prescribed, Warren notes.

Drug overdose can also result since some preparations are designed with multiple coatings or beads that permit gradual release and slow absorption of the drug, cautions the specialist. When time-release capsules are crushed or mixed with a liquid, a greater than normal amount of the drug is released and the symptoms of overdose or intense side-effects can occur, she adds.

Some elderly may prefer to mix their medication with milk or fruit juice, but this is not always safe either, says Warren. These liquids can alter the solubility and absorption of some drugs. Fruit juices can also inhibit drug action, she explains.

Since crushing or dissolving any medication can alter its effects, elderly patients or those who care for them should ask the pharmacist, doctor or nurse whether an alteration will be safe or not, Warren suggests.

Other questions to ask include: Can this drug be taken with fluid? If so, how much? With what food or fluid can this drug be safely mixed?

Louise's Latest

Ronald's Final Letter For The Year

I'm 15½ months old. My vocabulary consists of "kiKa" for kitty cat and Dada and see. My words are few but I still have the whole house at my command. Guess you might say I have a handicap. My legs are a little crooked. An Orthopedic specialist has me in night braces. It consists of some funny looking shoes (white leather) with a very rigid bar in between. It's next to impossible to walk in them but they certainly do not keep me from crawling. The doctor says I'll probably wear them until I'm two. He told my mama I'd cry a bit each night until I got used to them. The fitting technician said the same thing. I heard them both so I decided I'd be a big boy and just smile through the braces and that's what I'm still doing. I'm not a cry baby!

Both my brothers have a mouth full of metal and plastic in the form of an appliance to straighten their teeth. I think they have more to cry about than I do. They can't eat comfortably and now they sound like they need to go to a speech therapist.

Then Bryan has another problem. He broke his glasses. His old pair is so old that he has headaches. So he's wearing a temporary pair until the repair part travels from New York. With the holiday rush, wonder how long that will take?

I'm on real food now. That stuff in the jar is absolutely tasteless. Bananas are one of my favorite foods. Mom says I look like a chipmunk after I've put a big piece of banana in my mouth. Yesterday I got to peel my own banana. I tasted the peel. It wasn't very good. Dad said my actions showed I wasn't kin to a monkey.

While eating, I sometimes lean back in my booster chair and put my feet on the table. Everyone laughs so I just keep doing it.

Then many times I find a chair positioned just right so I can climb onto the table and then into my chair. Everyone says that's cute. May I remind you Mother bought a very nice solid oak dining room suite about four years ago. She waited to spend that kind of money until the children were old enough to take care of it. The table and chairs didn't have a scratch on them until this fall. I've put a few marks on it. Daddy just smiles and says it's like silver, it's just more valuable. I don't think he'd have been that patient with my brothers and sister.

Let me tell you how I relax. Yesterday I came home from the sitter. There were three chairs. My two brothers were glued to the chairs watching T.V. I crawled into the third chair and did likewise.

Then there's a big blue pillow made by the county judge's wife, Helen Nelson. I like to fall on the big fluffy pillow and relax for at least 30 seconds. Then sometimes I lay in front of television as do my brothers and sister. Sometimes I like to crawl onto the piano stool and play my own tune on the piano.

The Christmas tree was quite an experience. Allison sat with me in front of the tree and we talked about all the ornaments. I like flashing lights. We drove around town to see all the lighted decorations.

I've had a good year. I hope you have, too. Here's hoping you have a prosperous and happy new year.

Love,
Ronald

Opinions expressed from other newspapers

Here is a sampling of excerpts from editorials around the state:

POSTAL RATES

Now comes an announcement that is no surprise. Postal rate raises will become effective Feb. 17, 1985. Each time a raise is made, the announcement points to the need of modernization.

Too frequently we get mail that has taken four days or more to arrive from another city in Texas, longer than it takes to receive letters from overseas, in some instances. If you're getting fewer Christmas greetings, season by season, you might decide maybe you're getting crabbiest or maybe the higher postage rates have made friends and acquaintances who greet you reduce the number of cards they can send.

And that may be one of the prices of modernization.

—Del Rio News-Herald

GETTING CRUDE

Since he is no longer the most important man in the world, economically speaking, Saudi Arabia's Ahmed Zaki Yamani has not been in a festive mood. The world oil market becomes less and less hostage to OPEC. For the last several months prices have averaged $2 to $3 a barrel v. Q.V. KJE C, MARK WRSCF OF 1/4&. ADUSOME FORECASTERS SEE EVEN STEEPER DECLINES IN 1/8&—3/8&.

The price shocks of the '70s alerted the world to the importance of both conservation and greater production, and demand is slackening. Worse, the oilgarchs themselves can't be kept in line. Member nations discount prices and overproduce in violation of OPEC's price and production controls.

Let's not laugh too loud at OPEC's writhings. The U.S. energy industry isn't at a flood tide of prosperity itself. There are still too many incentives for mergers, and too few for exploration and production. Drilling activity is falling off as companies warily regard the current tax-reform debates in Washington. But at least they no longer tremble before OPEC.

—Dallas Morning News

LOUD OPPOSITION

The Department of Energy announcement that a site near Hereford in the Texas Panhandle is one of three locations nationwide still under active consideration as a burial ground for high-level radioactive wastes really comes as no surprise. Some people at the department may think the Hereford site will remain radioactive for many thousands of years. It could conceivably threaten the Ogallala Aquifer which is located under the Panhandle or the farming region of the High Plains.

Perhaps no other site would be better, but until that determination is made and all alternatives are fully explored, Texans should put themselves on record — loudly — as being staunchly opposed to the Hereford site.

—Midland Reporter-Telegram

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger has accepted $8.7 billion in cuts for his department, $28 billion over three years.

The Washington press corps, to go by the questions they ask, do not think that is enough to be "fair" to the domestic side of the budget. Budget Director David Stockman doesn't think it's enough to meet President Reagan's deficit reduction goal for the year. Senate Republicans, now under the leadership of Bob Dole, who has the reputation of being tax collector for the welfare state, are likely to adopt both lines of reasoning.

The danger here is not cutting too little from the defense budget, but too much. It is a dangerous world, and protecting this country is the federal government's first and most important obligation.

NOBODY'S PERFECT!

Well, then, are we Jews better than others? No, not at all, for we have already shown that all men are sinners, whether Jews or Gentiles. As the Scriptures say, "No one is good—no one in all the world is innocent." No one has ever really followed God's paths, or even truly wanted to. Every one has turned away; all have gone wrong. No one anywhere has kept an doing what is right; not one. Their talk is foul and filthy like the stench from an open grave. Their tongues are loaded with lies. Everything they say has in it the sting and poison of deadly snakes. Their mouths are full of cursing and bitterness. They are quick to kill, hating anyone who disagrees with them. Wherever they go they leave misery and trouble behind them. And they have never known what it is to feel secure or enjoy God's blessing. They care nothing about God nor what He thinks of them.

So the judgment of God lies very heavily upon the Jews, for they are responsible to keep God's laws instead of doing all these evil things; not one of them has any excuse; in fact, all the world stands hushed and guilty before Almighty God.

Now do you see it? No one can ever be made right in God's sight by doing what the law commands. For the more we know of God's laws, the clearer it becomes that we aren't obeying them; His laws serve only to make us see that we are sinners.

But now God has shown us a different way to heaven—not by "being good enough" and trying to keep His laws, but by a new way (though not new, really, for the Scriptures told about it long ago). Now God says He will accept and acquit us—declare us "not guilty"—if we trust Jesus Christ to take away our sins. And we all can be saved in this same way, by coming to Christ, no matter who we are or what we have been like.
