By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Department of Energy officials and contractors outnumbered audience members Wednesday at a nuclear waste dump briefing in Austin, the Associated Press reported today.

The "interactive briefing" was the third and final one given this week by the DOE regarding its attempt to locate the nation's first high-level atomic garbage repository.

Few state officials attended Wednesday's briefing, held in the Sheraton Crest Hotel. Steve Frishman, director of the governor's nuclear waste programs office, told the AP he had urged Gov. Mark White and other elected officials not to attend.

"We didn't expect anything new," he said, adding state officials would participate in the three DOE public hearings scheduled in about six weeks. The hearings are part of a 90-day period established by the Energy Department during which public comments are sought for draft environmental assessments (EAs).

An EA was prepared for each of the nine candidates sites for the dump. The document helped rank the locations and resulted in Deaf Smith County's site being pegged as one of three "preferred" spots.

Such a distinction means Deaf Smith will likely be subjected to a detailed site characterization study - which includes construction of an exploratory shaft - over the next five or six years.

The other preferred sites are at Yucca Mountain, Nev., and Hanford, Wash.

In Austin Wednesday

White, in his state-of-the-state address Tuesday, had some words of warning for DOE officials regarding Texas being a possible host for the repository.

"I will not stand idly by," he said, "while the federal government waits on a political whim to decide if this nation's high-level nuclear waste is going to be dumped in our backyard."

Deaf Smith is an especially inappropriate site for the repository, White said, due to the rich agricultural land and large underground water source.

"The federal government should just put the waste where the people want it - and where scientific standards could be met - instead of trying to make Texas the dumping ground."

White, who has pledged he would use his power of veto should Deaf Smith be nominated to host the waste storage facility, appeared in Hereford last month to stress his opposition. "Here in Texas," he told a large gathering in Hereford High School's auditorium, "we are not about ready to roll over and let the federal government shove this program down our throats."

Should Deaf Smith be selected for the dump in 1991, the Texas governor or legislature would have the right of veto, DOE officials have said. An override could occur only by a majority vote by both houses of Congress within 90 days of the veto.

Jim Mattox, state attorney general, said Wednesday he has received assurances from Energy Secretary Donald Hodel that Congress would not impose a dump "on an unwilling state." It is difficult for Hodel to be believed, claimed Mattox, who cited an incident which occurred prior to the November elections.

"Mr. Hodel," the attorney general said, "was quoted by the Associated Press as saying he did not think any nuclear waste dump sites in Texas would open because of public pressure and Phil Gramm."

"But a month after Mr. Gramm was elected, DOE nominated one site in Deaf Smith County as one of the top three possibilities in the nation for a dangerous high-level nuclear waste dump."

"So, after that fiasco," Mattox continued Wednesday, "Mr. Hodel is wanting us to trust him again? I think not. I intend to pursue the lawsuit I filed in the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals because I truly believe that we will not get straight answers out of Mr. Hodel until we get him on the witness stand under oath."

Mattox was referring to legislation filed Dec. 19. It requests review of the decisions used to determine where the nine-square-mile sites would be in Deaf Smith and nearby Swisher County, which has been virtually removed from further dump consideration.

Reagan wants more than paper

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, saying he wants more than a "piece of paper" from new arms talks with the Soviets, is calling for a verifiable agreement guaranteeing deep cuts in the nuclear arsenals of both superpowers.

Reagan cautioned his senior arms control advisers Wednesday that they should have "no euphoria"

Produced from new arms talks about the U.S.-Soviet decision to resume negotiations that lapsed more than a year ago.

In a 20-minute meeting with members of the delegation that returned from Geneva with the promise of renewed U.S.-Soviet arms talks, Reagan said, "We can't rest on our laurels. This is the beginning of a process."

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes, who quoted Reagan's comments for the benefit of reporters, said the president told the group that although the United States wants an arms agreement, "if it isn't a good agreement, if it won't work, we just don't seek a piece of paper."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, who led the U.S. delegation, said the negotiators were able to nail down an agreement and "get what we wanted in Geneva" because of their advance preparations and Reagan's instructions, Speakes said.

"We did not have to come back and ask for additional guidance," Speakes quoted Shultz as saying. "We knew as a negotiator that we were free to walk away from the table if we didn't get what we wanted."

Reagan met with the arms control advisers to congratulate them on their success in Geneva and to encourage them to continue working hard.

There was no discussion of talks between Moscow and Washington for setting a precise time and place for the resumption of talks, Speakes said. Nor was there any mention of who will head the American negotiating team.

Speakes said the president told the group he wants "comprehensive and thorough preparations" to be continued.

White House National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane, in an interview on the Cable News Network, called the meeting an occasion for the president to express gratitude to the team "but also to say, 'Get back to the grindstone and make sure we have a thorough, comprehensive position ready for the talks which we hope will open in March.'"

Meantime, the new chairman of the House Armed Services Committee said President Reagan must demonstrate that the MX missile is a necessary bargaining chip in arms talks to win his continued support for the weapon.

Rep. Les Aspin said Wednesday he is undecided whether to continue backing a compromise MX formula, under which 21 of the missiles were approved last year and spending authorization for an additional 15 will be battled over in Congress in March.

Clayton eyes run for governor

Former speaker of state House, 58

DALLAS (AP) — According to his friends and associates, former House Speaker Bill Clayton is giving serious consideration to running for governor in 1986 as a Republican, a newspaper reported today.

"With some encouragement, he has got more than a passing interest in being the third Republican governor of Texas," Bert Hurlbut, a Republican oil and gas operator from Austin, told The Dallas Morning News.

Hurlbut confirmed that he recently sent out letters to more than 200 conservatives across Texas seeking their support for a Clayton race.

Clayton, 58, a West Texas farmer from Springlake, served in the Texas Legislature as a conservative Democrat for 20 years and was elected to the speakership an unprecedented four terms. He has remained in Austin as a lobbyist.

The News said Clayton tried to play down any interest in challenging incumbent Gov. Mark White when he was asked earlier in the week about the possibility, but did not rule out the possibility.

Asked specifically about running as a Republican, Clayton said on Tuesday that anyone considering a statewide race "must look at it both ways" as a Democrat and Republican, The News reported.

Clayton endorsed Republican Gov. Bill Clements over White, who was then attorney general, in 1982.

Clements said Wednesday, "Billy and I are such good friends that if he is serious, I'm sure he will talk to me about it," The News reported.

The newspaper said one Austin legislative aide said Clayton told him earlier this week that he intends to talk to Clements soon about the race.

A West Texas legislator and close friend of Clayton said, "He has convinced me he is running, but he still has some convincing of himself," The News said.

Hurlbut and other Clayton friends said the former House speaker is concerned about making any formal announcement now because, as a lobbyist, some legislation sought by some of his clients might be "vetoed by White."

Clayton was indicted near the end of his tenure on federal bribery charges in an FBI "sting" operation that became known as "Brilab" because of alleged bribery and involvement of labor unions. However, he was acquitted by a federal jury in October 1980 and retired as speaker after the 1981 session.

Death row inmates subdued

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Billy G. Hughes said he and other Death Row inmates felt "a little bit of despair" after hearing of Doyle Skillern's execution.

Hughes, who was convicted in the 1976 shooting death of a state trooper, said Wednesday most of the inmates awaiting execution were quiet and somewhat fearful after Skillern was put to death.

Skillern, 46, was executed early Wednesday for the 1974 killing of Patrick Randel, an undercover narcotics agent who worked for the Department of Public Safety. Trial testimony showed Skillern and Charles Sanne, 51, were trying to sell Randel $1,000 worth of Quaaludes when Sanne fired six shots that killed the officer.

Although Skillern was sentenced to die, Sanne was sentenced to life in prison and could be paroled soon.

"There's a little bit of despair in the air," Hughes told reporters. "If they can execute someone who didn't commit the crime, then what about men who know they did commit the crime? And what about men who are innocent? You have to wonder."

Wife gets part of spouse's estate

BAY CITY, Texas (AP) — A former hairdresser sentenced to life in prison for her husband's murder reached an out-of-court settlement with the dead man's mother to accept $20,000 from his estate.

Fran Turner, convicted of murder in the hired killing of her husband, Robert Turner, agreed to the settlement with Turner's mother, Roberta Turner, of Bay City.

Turner was killed in March 1982 at a roadside park near Richmond. An autopsy showed he had been stabbed more than 60 times.

Mike Miller, a lawyer in the case, was quoted in the Houston Chronicle Wednesday as saying that Roberta Turner made the agreement rather than have her son's $500,000 estate tied up in litigation while Fran Turner appeals her murder conviction.

Fran Turner, a former Bay City hairdresser, married Turner in Colorado and separated shortly after she was named beneficiary on his $300,000 in life insurance.

In her trial last February, testimony showed she hired a Bay City cable television installer, Michael Hunter, to help her kill Turner.

Friends, associates honor Shivers

AUSTIN (AP) — Lifelong associates of former Gov. Allan Shivers memorialized him at his funeral as a courageous man in public life who always had time to care for his friends.

"He was a man of principle and devotion to his state and country who put that devotion above politics," said Hayden Head, prominent Corpus Christi attorney and political figure.

"He was a living legend of our time, an ageless man," Head said in simple, moving funeral services at the First Baptist Church in downtown Austin Wednesday.

"Allan Shivers was a courageous man in public life, in humanitarian enterprises and in his personal goals," said the Rev. Browning Ware, pastor of the church and a golf partner of Shivers.

After the 40-minute service, Shivers was buried in a grave on the crest of a hill in the State Cemetery, surrounded by many of Texas' heroes and officials.

Gov. Mark White and four former Texas governors attended the church service. They were Price Daniel, Preston Smith, Bill Clements and Dolph Briscoe. Former Gov. John Connally was in London.

Veterans' debts being sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration, armed with enhanced enforcement powers from Congress, is trying to recover $1.4 billion owed by more than a million veterans who collected money they weren't entitled to.

Delinquent debts totaling $367 million were collected last year, according to VA officials, but the amount of money owed to the agency by veterans actually grew during fiscal 1984 — from $1.2 billion the year before and $1.1 billion in fiscal 1982.

Some debts stretch back to the end of the Vietnam War, and agency officials doubt they'll ever be able to close the books on all the money owed.

"We keep adding and we keep collecting," Milt Jones, chief of benefit payment and accounting policy in the VA controller's office, said.

"The collection of debt is an ongoing process," added Douglas Bartow, a VA collection official. "Paying public benefits sort of lends itself to that."

Pot bellies thought dangerous

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — People with pot bellies are three to five times more likely to suffer heart attacks and strokes than those with fatty thighs and hips, according to a researcher who says it's not how much fat that counts, but where it's located.

"The degree of obesity does not mean very much as a risk factor for cardiovascular disease," said Dr. Ulf Smith, chairman of medicine at the University of Goteburg in Sweden.

"The point is that if the fat is distributed on the abdomen, the chances are considerably greater that the individual will have a heart attack than if the fat is distributed over the thighs, the hips or the back," Smith said Wednesday at an American Heart Association forum for science writers.

The conclusions were based on Smith's analysis of a 13-year epidemiological study of about 1,500 Swedish men and a 12-year examination of 1,500 Swedish women.

Security forces continue patrol

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Using armored personnel carriers and heavy road equipment, security forces patrolled the streets of this Caribbean capital today and removed roadblocks set up by demonstrators during two days of protest over fuel price hikes.

By late Wednesday, most major streets in the capital had been swept clean of roadblocks. The government news agency, Jampress, said most roads in the north coast resort areas also were clear.

Police said four people had been killed and 18 injured in the protests over Monday's announcement of a 20 percent increase in fuel — the latest in a three-year series of austerity measures instituted by Prime Minister Edward Seaga.

Seaga said "a coalition of opposition political groups" was responsible for the roadblocks. He acknowledged the demonstrations had created transportation problems for tourists, but said there had only been 11 cancellations of tourist trips compared to 12,000 arrivals on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Eastern Airlines, which canceled flights to Jamaica on Tuesday, returned to its regular schedule Wednesday. Air Jamaica canceled two of its three flights from Miami on Wednesday, blaming its action on labor problems in Jamaica unrelated to the protests.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Independent oil drillers who tapped into a natural gas field illegally diverted billions of cubic feet from interstate commerce and federal pricing, an administrative law judge has ruled.

Dorchester Gas Producing Corp. had taken the case to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission complaining that 37 independent oil companies tapped into the company's gas reserves on a 20,000-acre Panhandle field in Carson and Gray counties.

Dorchester said the drillers removed 8.6 billion cubic feet of natural gas that was to be sold in federally controlled interstate markets.

Judge Brenda Murray listened to weeks of testimony in the case last summer and issued a ruling Wednesday afternoon.

Two of the 37 oil drillers — Meyer Farms and J.B. Watkins — were dropped from the case due to lack of evidence, but the judge recommended that the commission seek additional information on their cases.

"Apparently it is an unfavorable ruling for all but those two," said Charles Moore, a former FERC counsel now practicing law in Houston and representing the oil drillers. Moore said he had not read the 47-page ruling and could not comment in detail.

But, he said, "Her (the judge's) decision is simply a recommendation. The next step is to see what the commission wants to do with it. The ball's in their court."

John L. Dannelly, Dorchester's vice president in Amarillo, declined comment Wednesday night because he hadn't seen the judge's order.

But Jim Whitlock, an independent oilman from Amarillo who isn't directly involved in the case, said the decision would hurt independent drillers if it stands.

"It's going to really hurt the economy of the Panhandle," he told the Amarillo Globe-News, adding that he expects Pampa and Borger to be especially hard hit.

Dorchester owns gas rights on the field and the 37 energy companies had oil-drilling rights.

The oil companies admitted they were bringing up gas, but contended it was "casinghead gas," a normal byproduct of oil drilling that is not subject to federal regulation.

"FERC Administrative Law Judge Brenda P. Murray said expert evidence left no doubt that most of the companies' gas production was not casinghead gas," said a FERC news release accompanying the ruling.

The gas that was not casinghead gas was subject to federal price controls, and by selling it for higher prices in unregulated markets, the oil drillers violated federal rules, the judge found.

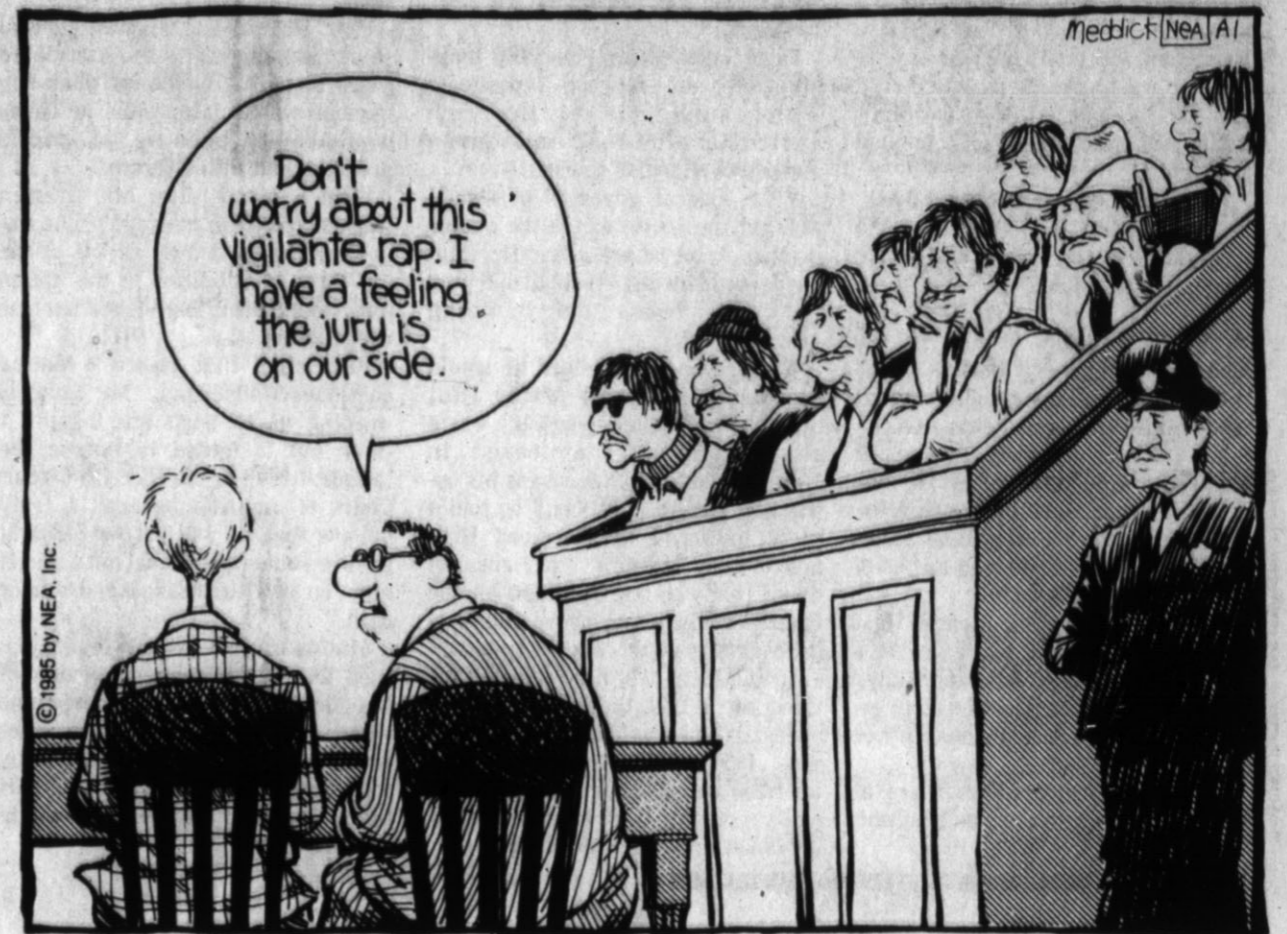

Moore has said that the case could eventually affect billions of dollars worth of gas if the agency rules for Dorchester and broadens the ruling to apply to other similar cases.

FERC staff members, taking Dor-chester's side, have called the case the "tip of the iceberg."

Attorneys in the case have also said that the ruling could bring into question the way the Texas Railroad Commission issues drilling permits. The state has been watching the case.

The commissioners could accept the judge's recommendation, or could order additional proceedings. If the commissioners decided federal law was violated, a remedy hearing follows, and the oil drillers could be ordered to return money they made from the gas.

Regarding benefits freeze

Republicans debate on Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration and congressional budget writers are in agreement that this year's deficit-reduction plans should spare programs designed exclusively for the nation's neediest.

But Budget Director David Stockman, after meeting with GOP leaders of both House and Senate on Wednesday, conceded that there is sharp disagreement among Republicans over whether a spending freeze should include Social Security benefits. "It's an open question," he told reporters.

Senate Republicans are working on a proposal that would include such a freeze while House Republicans have shown little enthusiasm for altering the formula for Social Security benefits.

"We don't see that there's that much mileage in it. That's not the route to go," said House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., after the meeting with Stockman.

House Republican leaders were meeting today with Defense

Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who has advocated large increases in defense spending in the face of pressure to cut spending in other areas of government.

Michel said many GOP members of the House "have serious questions in the defense area." He said he himself may put on the table a proposal to trade GOP support for the MX missile for a commitment by the administration to limit its request for defense spending increases to around 4 percent.

Stockman said that the administration's budget for fiscal year 1986 is nearing completion and that while there are bound to be disagreements over specific spending cuts, "In the end there is going to be a consensus, at least among Republicans, on a target."

The budget will be submitted to Congress early next month.

Stockman confirmed that cost-of-living increases in programs containing a "means" eligibility test would be left alone. These programs include food stamps, disability benefits and supplemental security assistance.

"We felt at the outset that they shouldn't be freezing low-income programs. They're back where they ought to be," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kans.

Participants in the meetings with Stockman also said that cost-of-living increases in veterans' pensions would likely not be frozen. However, Stockman said that scheduled increases in other government pensions and salaries would be frozen, under the administration's proposal.

Michel said Stockman told GOP House leaders that the administration's budget would call for reductions in the deficit "in the vicinity of $40 billion" next year.

Senate Republican budget writers are working on a plan to write a 1986 budget that would include plans for reducing the deficit.

Nourishment

The author of a cooking column writes, "We Americans have an untapped nourishment resource in our streets, in our living rooms."

He says, "In much of the rest of the world people eat dogs; why don't we?"

Instead of us feeding dogs, he says they should feed us.

And he's serious. So am I.

I don't want to eat dog—and I resent and reject the noxious notion that our enlightened country should be imitating the most backward ones.

Carl Sandberg said it: "When a nation goes down or a society perishes, one condition may always be found; they forgot where they came from."

All of the debilitating plots concocted by the enemies of our nation, none has been more effective than the mariel boatlift.

Damming the streams of Florida with the carcasses of sacrificed chickens and deploying themselves and their narcotics network across a dozen states.

Our nation's once revered tradition of an "open door" has been violated, perverted, profaned.

An illegal comes in any time — in any condition — and makes himself at home.

Ann Landers

Most truckers try hard

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I regret that truckers no longer have the White Knight image. That view was expressed in your column recently and I'm sure there is some validity to the charge, but please listen to the other side. The truckers have a story to tell.

The 18-wheeler drivers who bully motorists ought to be taken off the road. I've enclosed data which show that almost 90 percent of the long-haul truckers would agree—even exert peer pressure to rid the highways of the troublemakers.

But please, Ann, consider the motorists who don't know (or don't care to learn) how to drive around trucks. The antics of such ignorant drivers kill or maim a great many truckers each year. Uninformed motorists come in a variety of models, but in the interest of brevity I'll describe only two.

There's the motorist who suddenly cuts in front of a truck. Apparently such a motorist does not realize that a truck can't stop as quickly as passenger vehicles. Many a semi has jackknifed as a result of such thoughtlessness on the part of motorists.

Then there is the motorist who remains firm in his (or her) resolve to continue at exactly 55 m.p.h., even when traveling downhill...in the truck lane...with an 80,000 gross-weight vehicle a few inches from the car's rear bumper.

No good driver would try to teach a trucker (or even another motorist) a lesson while driving a car. If a truck is speeding or tailgating, move to another lane as fast as you can. Let the truck pass. Let the police handle truck driver violations. It isn't a case of one's rights, it's common sense.

Most truckers are hard-working, honest people. Today, however, a trucker who stops to aid a motorist can get hit over the head, hijacked, fined, disciplined by his dispatcher, or otherwise harassed. If a trucker uses his lights to signal conditions ahead, he can be sued if the motorist misconstrues the signal or makes a driving error which results in an accident. Perhaps the real tragedy is that society has changed—not just truckers. W.A.C.

DEAR W.A.C.: Thanks for an excellent response. Here is more on the same subject.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been a truck driver for 25 years and driven more than 2 million accident-free miles. I have always regarded myself as a professional. May I give an opinion to the person who wanted to know what has happened to the "White Knight of the Road"?

It is the fault of the companies that hire "scum" drivers, whether they are company drivers or independents. Until the companies require a better conduct code and the Department of Transportation regulates the behavior of these drivers so they meet the standards of common courtesy, things will only get worse.

I challenge you drivers to shape up and conduct yourselves in a professional manner so you will once again enjoy the respect of the motorists on our highways and be regarded as "White Knights."—Centreville, Ala.

DEAR ALABAMA: Thanks for an earful. Others expressed a similar point of view but you said it in the most forthright manner. Thanks to all who wrote.

Ann Landers' new booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. Friday's game reviewed

Free throws sink Tascosa in OT

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Some strong free-throw shooting by Whiteface hoopers in the final 14 minutes of last Friday's boys basketball game aided Hereford's 64-63 boys basketball win over Tascosa, Hereford coach Mike Fields said Wednesday.

The Herd connected on 14 of 16 free-shot attempts in the fourth quarter and both overtime periods. It was a good thing, too. The Whitefaces had to overcome a 49-42 deficit in the final 1:41 of regulation and a 59-56 deficit with 1:29 to go in the second OT.

Canning free throws for the Whitefaces in the last part of the game were Kevin Redus (3 of 5), Rodney Torres (2 of 2), Bobby Baker (4 of 4), Daniel King (2 of 2) and Blair Rogers (1 of 1).

"It's fun to win one of those kind once in a while," Fields said. "It shows the players that if you keep trying and don't give up, sometimes you can pull one out."

Fields said some of the Whitefaces' better free-throw shooters were playing in the last part of the contest. However, three of Hereford's starters were not in the game. Baker, Sammy Suarez and Mike Scott were on the bench with five fouls apiece.

"Usually, you won't win with three players fouling out," Fields said. "But we had played a lot of people in the game, so they were ready. Some of the people on our bench are just as good as starters."

Fields' confidence in his bench is evident. He substitutes frequently in most games, noting when players become tired. Fields also said that players sometimes benefitted from sitting on the bench and watching the game.

"A lot of times, though, I'm just looking for a combination that works," he added.

Tonight, Hereford, 2-5 in District 3-5A competition, must face Lubbock, also 2-5. The winner of the game can move up at least one notch in league standings.

"Lubbock is supposed to be a lot better than their record shows," Fields said. "They were picked pretty high in district. But I've never seen them play."

Hereford is 8-10 overall, and Lubbock is 8-11.

Game time is 7:45 p.m.

Sowers hopes defense ready for Lubbock girls

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Larry Sowers on Wednesday still expressed satisfaction with Hereford's defensive effort in a 57-38 Whiteface basketball win over Tascosa last week.

However, the varsity girls coach didn't gloat over his team's performance. He realized what's ahead tonight in Lubbock — the Westerners in the LHS gym at 6 p.m.

"We've put some pressure on ourselves," Sowers said. "We really shut down Tascosa the second half last week, and we beat Lubbock pretty bad the first time we played them. Now, we can't get overconfident. We'll have to play well to win."

Last time Hereford and Lubbock met was Dec. 7 in the HHS gym. The Whitefaces won that contest, 70-41.

In the second half of the Tascosa-Hereford ball game, the Whiteface defense allowed the Rebels only five of 20 field goals in the final two quarters last Friday, and gave up only 12 second-half points.

"I don't know what made our defense so effective the second half," Sowers said. "By the end of the third quarter, some of the pressure we were using took effect."

"Stacie High did an excellent job of sparking our defense, too. What she does seems to be contagious."

By the time Tascosa started shooting with some success in the second half, the game was over for practical purposes, Sowers added.

High ripped the cords for 22 points against Tascosa. The game marked her third 20-plus-point output in 15 games. However, Sowers said the scoring burst on High's part was not totally unexpected.

"We changed some things in our style of play to take advantage of Stacie's scoring and driving ability," he said. "And when we get the break going, Stacie has a lot better chance of scoring."

Hereford edged a little closer to the playoffs last week. By beating Palo Duro Tuesday night, and Palo Duro beating Plainview Friday night, the Whitefaces are within a game of second-place Plainview. Three teams — Hereford, Palo Duro and Amarillo — are tied for third with records of 6-3.

Amarillo faces perhaps the toughest schedule this week, playing Monterey today and Palo Duro Saturday. Sowers knows that either one or both of Amarillo and PD could fall from third place this week. However, he isn't putting a whole lot of stock in what other teams might do.

"If we can win the rest of our games, it doesn't matter what anybody else does," he said. "It's been a long time since we've been in a position to be excited about the playoffs."

"We've certainly got a chance, but we can't afford to overlook anybody. Maybe the kids will be ready to play (against Lubbock)."

Lubbock has never beaten Hereford in girls basketball.

At NCAA convention

Another NIT okayed

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The struggling National Invitation Tournament, which has been having trouble funding one tourney, suddenly has two.

Approval of a preseason NIT was the highlight Wednesday as the National Collegiate Athletic Association concluded its 79th annual convention, one of the tamest in memory.

The delegates overwhelmingly made the NIT, the nation's oldest postseason tournament, the newest preseason one, as well.

Jack Kaiser, athletic director at St. John's University, said 16 teams will be invited to play on the last two weekends in November "to provide a dramatic opening to the basketball season."

The amount of money in the NIT's television contract has decreased and Kaiser said the preseason tourney "will help us stabilize our tournament. We could still make the NIT go without the preseason tournament, but we weren't sure."

The delegates also rejected a proposal that could have wrecked national champion Brigham Young's football program by eliminating the exceptions to the NCAA's limit of four years' eligibility in a five-year period for time spent in the armed services, on official church missions or with organized foreign aid services of the U.S. government. Many BYU players served a two-year mission for the Mormon Church, which does not count against their five years.

"We're elated, really pleased," said BYU athletic director Glen Tuckett, who had prepared a four-page speech opposing the plan but never had to use it.

Wilford S. Bailey, faculty representative at Auburn and a member of the policy-making NCAA Council, which sponsored the legislation, said it was intended "to eliminate inequities. There was nothing vindictive against Brigham Young because of its present position. It's been a concern for years."

Opponents claim the exemption gives BYU an edge because players who have been on missions are older and more mature.

The postseason NIT format will not be changed by the preseason NIT, which will not count against the NCAA's 28-game limit on regular-season basketball games. Kaiser said the first weekend would consist of a quartet of four-team regionals around the country with the survivors playing the next weekend, "hopefully in (New York's) Madison Square Garden."

He said it would be "different in nature" from the established NIT. "I think the postseason tournament will be for middle-echelon teams that can't get into the NCAA Tournament," he said. "We hope the preseason NIT will attract some Top Twenty-type teams."

The games will be held on Friday and Sunday nights so they won't conflict with pro and college football.

According to Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, one of the convention's most significant actions was abolishment of complimentary tickets for athletes. Instead of tickets, frequently sold in violation of NCAA rules, there will be given a pass list which can be used only by an athlete's relatives or fellow students.

"One of the favorite devices has been to give the complimentary tickets to the parents of a prospect and tell them, 'The tickets are yours and you can do anything you want with them,'" Byers said. "Selling them at substantially increased levels would finance whatever was proposed in the recruiting — such as automobiles."

Hereford's basketball program received some good news recently. Six-foot 2-inch senior Kevin Redus was selected as an all-tournament pick in the Borger Holiday Basketball Tournament, Dec. 20-21. It was the second time Redus had copped all-tourney honors, also making the elite team at the Clovis Tournament, Dec. 27-29.

"That's really nice for him," Fields said. "I think it's good for the team, too. It compliments the players."

Tech trounces 'Hogs

Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton was feeling tired and philosophical over the worst conference game loss one of his teams has ever suffered in Southwest Conference play.

"We've had a lot of great games here in Lubbock, but this wasn't one of them," he said after Texas Tech drubbed his Razorbacks 64-48 Wednesday night. "We've won a lot of close games here, but this certainly wasn't very close. Texas Tech displayed its maturity and shot extremely well."

Senior guard Bubba Jennings canned 20 points and Texas Tech hit a school record 67.5 percent from the floor en route to the thumping.

In other Southwest Conference play Wednesday night, Texas A&M overcame Texas Christian 65-60 in overtime, Texas squeezed past Baylor 68-65 and Houston beat Rice 77-73.

Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers was quick to credit his defense after the Raiders limited Arkansas to just 19 of their 55 field goal attempts.

"We came out in the second half and played with great effort on defense," Myers said. "I have to give everybody on our team credit for the job they did. Our defense was good throughout the game and we just had a tremendous effort by all of our guys."

Jennings fueled Texas Tech's hot-handed effort by hitting nine of 12 field goal attempts, including seven of seven in the first half, as the Raiders withstood a tremendous 32-point performance by Arkansas senior center Joe Kleine.

The Raiders are now 3-1 in conference play and 10-4 overall, while Arkansas fell to 3-2 and 12-5.

Texas A&M's squad also showed its mettle in their overtime victory over Texas Christian.

Only seven players — six in the second half — played in the entire game, and they'd fought to a 51-51 tie before going into overtime and pulling out the victory.

"I am really proud of our guys," said a relieved A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf. "They showed a lot of courage down the stretch. We only played six men in the second half and they had to be tired."

A&M raised its record to 10-5 overall and 2-2 in the conference, while TCU slipped to 9-7 and 1-4.

Houston guard Eric Dickens scored six straight points and Braxton Clark hit a layup in the final 1:36 to rally the Cougars to their narrow victory over Rice.

The surge by Dickens and Clark gave Houston a 70-69 lead with 1:20 left in the game, and Dickens added two more free throws with 12 seconds to go that put the game out of reach for the Owls.

Houston, 11-4 for the season, upped its SWC record to 3-1. Rice dropped to 8-7 and 1-3 and now trails the series 28-1 against their cross-town rivals.

In Waco, Texas center John Brownlee scored 21 points, and the Longhorns held off a furious 12-point Baylor rally to defeat the Bears.

Paced by guards Carlos Briggs and Eric Johnson, the Bears subsequently outscored Texas 12-0 to tie the game at 59 with 2:36 remaining. Six points, four on free throws in the final 44 seconds by Texas guard Karl Willock, lifted the Longhorns to their third SWC victory against two losses.

Texas is 10-5 overall while Baylor is 7-8 and 0-4 in the conference.

Garden features same outcome for L.A.

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Magic Johnson remembers last June's National Basketball Association Championship Series with some regret. Although the result was the same, the Los Angeles Lakers' latest trip to Boston Garden won't have the same bad memories.

"You take it hard because you lost. But I'm taking it good because we played well," Johnson said after the Lakers lost to the Celtics 104-102 Wednesday night on Kevin McHale's short bank shot with one second left.

"We're not sitting here thinking about last season . . . I think everybody knows if it (a Boston-Los Angeles final) ever happens again, it'll be a great series again."

Twice in last year's finals the Lakers blew leads down the stretch before succumbing to the Celtics in seven games.

On Wednesday, they led 102-99 in the final minute, but Robert Parish's three-point play tied the score with 44 seconds left. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who led all scorers with 33 points, missed a shot for the Lakers and Johnson also missed the rebound follow, setting up McHale's last-second game-winner.

Boston has won seven games in a row.

76ers 122, Hawks 99

Philadelphia won its 13th straight game and kept pace with the Celtics atop the Atlantic Division as Moses Malone scored 34 points and Julius Erving 23 against Atlanta.

A 20-8 streak by the 76ers in the second quarter extended a one-point lead to 59-46. The Hawks, who got 22 points from Dominique Wilkins, got no closer than 14 points in the second half.

Nuggets 115, Warriors 107

Calvin Natt scored 19 of his 27 points in the second half and pulled down 15 rebounds to help Denver add to its Midwest Division lead with a victory over Golden State, which now has lost nine in a row.

Denver, which leads the Houston Rockets and Dallas Mavericks by 1½ games, got 22 points from Alex English.

Clippers 98, Rockets 88

NBA field-goal percentage leader James Donaldson scored a season-high 23 points as Los Angeles handed Houston its fourth straight loss.

The Clippers trailed by one point after three quarters, but an 11-2 spurt in the next three minutes put them in front to stay.

Donaldson, leading the league with a .694 percentage, connected on nine of 10 shots and teamed with Bill Walton to hold Twin Towers Ralph Sampson and Akeem Olajuwon to 21 and 16 points, respectively.

Suns 98, Mavericks 95

Maurice Lucas scored 28 points and Phoenix overcame an 11-point halftime deficit by outscoring Dallas 34-22 in the third quarter.

The Suns took a 76-75 advantage into the final period, but the lead seasawed until Larry Nance's layup put Phoenix ahead to stay at 86-85 with 5:42 left.

Mark Aguirre led the Mavericks with 27 points.

Nets 100, Bulls 94

Otis Birdsong scored 20 points and New Jersey's 8-0 streak in the fourth quarter carried the Nets past Chicago.

The Bulls led 81-77 early in the final period before the Nets started the decisive run. Darryl Dawkins, making his first appearance since the second game of the season after a back injury, scored one of the baskets during the streak.

Chicago, which played without injured forward Orlando Woolridge, was led by Michael Jordan with 27 points.

Bullets 103, Jazz 101

Greg Ballard's jump shot at the final buzzer lifted Washington past Utah.

The Bullets led 82-64 going into the final period, but the Jazz rallied and finally tied the game on Darrell Griffith's three-point basket with only two seconds left.

Gus Williams led Washington with 31 points and 12 assists, while Utah got 22 points from Adrian Dantley and 21 from Griffith.

Super Bowl coaches boast different styles, but both win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Don Shula and Bill Walsh are two very different individuals — the first forceful, the other professorial; one caustic, the other contemplative; one with a military demeanor, the other with a corporate outlook.

Yet, in their own ways, they are very much alike — both winners.

They have, in one respect, common roots. They are both alumni of the Paul Brown School of Coaching, Shula as a defensive back with the Cleveland Browns, Walsh as an assistant with Cincinnati after Brown had taken over as head coach of the Bengals.

Yet they have taken the Miami Dolphins and San Francisco 49ers along very different, almost ironic, routes to Super Bowl XIX.

Shula has a defensive background, yet his Dolphins scored more points than any National Football League team this season. Walsh is offense-minded, yet his 49ers allowed fewer points than any team.

On Wednesday, at a news conference for much of the estimated 2,000 members of the media descending on the Bay Area for Sunday's game at Stanford Stadium, Walsh called Brown the creator of the modern era in coaching.

"He was a teacher, the first person who really taught about organization, about planning. He brought science to football and anyone associated with Paul had an opportunity to live in that atmosphere and absorb it."

Of relief supplies

Australia to protest Ethiopian seizure

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Australia says it will protest Ethiopia's seizure of the cargo and crew of a ship carrying Australian famine-relief food and supplies to rebel-held areas of the impoverished African nation.

Ethiopia's Marxist government seized the cargo ship Golden Venture at the Red Sea port of Assab, and a spokesman for the Ethiopian Foreign Ministry on Wednesday described Australia's plan to aid rebel areas as "tantamount to interference in our internal affairs."

An estimated 7.75 million people are suffering from drought-related food shortages in Ethiopia. Many of the victims live in guerrilla-controlled areas of northern Tigre and Eritrea provinces.

In Australia, Foreign Secretary Bill Hayden said his government would protest the seizure.

"I have directed that our representatives in Addis Ababa should lodge a very strong protest and a demand that the commodities and other items be released," Hayden said in a radio interview in Sydney.

He stressed the estimated $1.2 million in aid for rebel areas was for humanitarian purposes and not intended to support guerrillas. "We only supply humanitarian aid because people are starving," he said.

Hayden said the ship had disregarded instructions and put in at the Ethiopian port Monday instead of one in Ethiopia's neighbor Sudan, where it was supposed to have unloaded the goods.

Diplomatic sources in Nairobi, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the ship was carrying 6,000 tons of wheat for rebel-controlled areas and another 3,500 tons for elsewhere in Ethiopia, plus trucks, medicines, blankets and a well-drilling rig.

Each bag of wheat reportedly was marked as a "Gift of Australia" to the Eritrean Relief Association or the Relief Society of Tigre. Both groups work closely with the rebels who long have been fighting for autonomy in those provinces.

Australia's Freedom from Hunger Campaign, Community Aid Abroad, and the Melbourne Herald and Sun newspapers helped supply the water pumps, trucks, medical supplies and thousands of tons of food.

The Freedom from Hunger Campaign issued a statement calling on Hayden to take the matter to the U.N. Security Council.

"The Marxist-Leninist government of Ethiopia is committing regular and premeditated atrocities on its people with guns and bombs," said the director of Freedom from Hunger, Hans Paas.

"Now comes the hideous obscenity of the obstruction of vital aid from reaching starving people — aid shipped under the auspices of the Australian government and which is the property of the Australian people who donated for its purchase," he said.

The Ethiopian Foreign Ministry official, who spoke only on condition he not be identified, said his country will do whatever is necessary to prevent aid from reaching the secessionist rebels.

"We ask the government (Australia) to desist from this kind of activity and warn other groups or countries who may do likewise," the spokesman said.

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Eat wisely

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently I became concerned about my figure. I felt I was overweight, so I went from 136 pounds to 120. I'm 16 and 5 feet 4. Could you send me information about how much I should weigh for my height and age? I am fairly active physically and play on the varsity sports teams. How many calories should I consume each day? I have read from 1,100 to 2,500. I think 2,500 sounds like a lot of calories for one day.

DEAR READER — The average girl of your age and height weighs 120, but figures like these serve only as a guideline. It depends on how much fat is under the skin, rather than how many pounds register on the scales. A muscular, athletic girl may weigh more.

Girls in your groups consume from 1,200 to 3,000 calories a day. How many calories you need depends on your lifestyle. Active girls will need more calories. The average recommended intake is 2,100 calories a day. If you don't get enough calories, you will not have your normal amount of energy. If you had excess body-fat stores, that might not occur, but in lean individuals, this makes a lot of difference in a person's energy level.

Try to learn what your diet should include, not just count calories. You can use a balanced diet and control your calories to the desired level. I'm sending you The Health Letter, Special Report 16, The Balanced Diet. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Pay particular attention to getting the right amount of iron and calcium in your diet. The dairy group is important for your calcium intake. Building strong bones at this stage in life will help to protect you from bone loss later in life. The skeleton keeps maturing and getting heavier until after age 25, so don't neglect the dairy group. You need the meat group for complete protein and because it provides heme iron, which is absorbed better than elemental iron.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband is 33 and in good health. We have two children and decided before our second was born that my husband would have a vasectomy. That was two years ago, and he hasn't had it done yet. He said he heard that having a vasectomy may cause some kind of prostate trouble in later years. Is this correct? If so, what kind of trouble and could anything be done to avoid it?

Since he has decided against having a vasectomy, I would like to have a tubal ligation. Does this have any side effects? I am 27 and definitely do not want any more children. My doctor said I could have this done on an outpatient basis.

DEAR READER — There have been a lot of questions about vasectomies in the last several years, but I think that most of them have been dispelled. There is no evidence that a vasectomy increases the risk of any disease. It doesn't increase the risk of heart disease. It doesn't cause immune diseases. It doesn't cause impotence in later years and it doesn't cause prostate trouble. There are cases of postoperative inflammation of the testicles, but that is about it.

Tubal ligations are equally benign. However, many young women like yourself are absolutely certain they never want to have another child, but then their lives change, such as with a divorce and a new husband. Therefore, if you have a tubal ligation, consider a procedure that does not destroy too much of your tubes. If you ever wanted to reverse the procedure, you would then have a better chance.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Are any diseases transmitted via touching other people's hands. My job requires that I touch the hands of many different people. How can I avoid catching anything?

DEAR READER — We could start with the common cold. Cold viruses are spread chiefly by the hands. Colds are not usually caught by inhaling air that has cold germs in it because someone coughed. Instead, the cold germs (viruses) are on surfaces that have been touched by hands. Those infected hands then touch the nose and mouth area, allowing the cold viruses to enter the body.

Cold viruses can survive for some time outside the body. This is not true of many other viruses. The herpes virus, for example, cannot survive very long on a dry surface.

The skin is a natural barrier against germs, so if you don't inoculate yourself with germ-laden hands, you can do a lot to protect yourself. The first rule is don't touch your face. Exposure to cold temperatures makes the nose run, and when a germ-laden hand wipes the nose, a cold is born.

Wash your hands after a long session of hand-touching, before eating and before going to bed. Wear gloves when you can to avoid picking up germs from doorknobs and other surfaces.

A gallon of nectar can provide enough energy for a bee to cruise 3 million miles at 7 mph.

cises involving infantry tactics; the construction and camouflage of fighting positions; and the use of mines, demolitions and intra-company communications equipment.

A 1983 graduate of Hereford High School, he joined the Marine Corps in March 1984.

NO WATER

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Water makes the area around pipes, sinks and faucets a favorite gathering place for cockroaches and other household pests.

Spectracide, a maker of insect control products, says insects need water to survive, so denying them access to water is an important part of controlling or preventing insect problems in the home.

It recommends mopping up spills and wet spots immediately, repairing leaky plumbing and drying all dishes and pots and pans after washing.

HOW YOUR IRA CAN SAVE YOU TAXES WHILE YOU BUILD YOUR RETIREMENT FUND!

Q What is an IRA?

A IRA stands for Individual Retirement Account. An IRA is a special savings account which is tax-deferred. This means you pay no federal taxes on annual contributions or the accumulating interest until funds are withdrawn at retirement.

Q Am I eligible for an IRA?

A If you're a wage earner or you're self-employed you can start an IRA. Contributions are limited to earned income only. Income from other sources such as investments and inheritances may not be sheltered in an IRA. Contributions may not be made for or after the year in which you reach 70½.

Q What if I'm already covered by a Pension Plan?

A New laws now permit every wage-earner even those covered by company pension plans to start their own IRA.

Q How much can I contribute to my IRA?

A Every year you can contribute up to $2,000 or 100% of compensation (whichever is less) to a regular IRA.

Q Must I contribute the full amount every year?

A You can contribute any amount your budget allows. In fact, if you choose, you need not make any contribution in any given year.

Q Can I use my IRA funds as collateral for a loan?

A Pledging an IRA as collateral for a loan would subject the amount pledged to be treated as a distribution and that portion subject to taxation and penalty.

Q When do I pay taxes on my IRA?

A When you begin making withdrawals, you will be taxed on only the amount you withdraw each year. The remaining funds continue to earn tax-deferred interest.

Q When can I make withdrawals?

A Withdrawals (distributions) are permitted anytime after age 59½ but must start not later than the end of the taxable year in which you reach 70½. After age 59½ you may make withdrawals even if you continue to earn income. It is not necessary to be retired in order to make withdrawals.

Q What is a spousal IRA?

A A Spousal IRA is a dual account IRA specifically for married couples with one non-employed member. To qualify for the higher Spousal IRA maximum of $2,250, you and your non-employed spouse must file a joint return. Yearly contributions may be unequally divided between the accounts provided the total contribution does not exceed $2,250 and neither account is allocated more than $2,000.

Q My spouse is employed, can we both have separate IRA's?

A Yes, and each of you may contribute up to $2,000 or 100% of compensation (whichever is less). You can each take your respective deductions on a joint return or separate returns.

Q How does my IRA save me tax dollars?

A You save taxes in three important ways: Your annual IRA contribution is fully deductible from your gross income. The more you save in your IRA the bigger your deduction. All the interest you accumulate in your IRA remains tax-sheltered until you withdraw it.

When you retire and begin making withdrawals from your IRA you will probably be in a lower tax bracket.

Q What is the deadline for opening my IRA?

A You can open or make deposits to your IRA anytime up to and including the due date of your tax return for the previous tax year (April 15th).

Q Can I withdraw my IRA funds if I become disabled?

A Yes, if you are disabled you may make unlimited penalty-free withdrawals.

Q What interest rate will my IRA earn?

A Depending on the IRA plan you choose and due to interest rate fluctuations, it is necessary to quote interest rates on a daily basis — call us for the most recent rates available.

Pretrial hearing resumes today with Elder on stand

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The director of a sanctuary movement shelter is scheduled to be back on the stand today as his lawyers continue their fight to get charges of transporting illegal aliens against him dismissed.

Jack Elder, who heads Casa Oscar Romero in San Benito, allegedly took three Salvadoran illegal aliens from the shelter to a bus station in Harlingen about 10 miles away.

His trial is scheduled to start Monday, but his lawyers are trying to get the charges dismissed before then.

Elder, 41, testified during pretrial hearings in U.S. District Court Wednesday that his knowledge of atrocities in Central America motivated him to try to help its people.

"What I feel compelled to do is to respond and not shirk that responsibility," he said. "The service to others, to me, is a redeeming factor in my faith."

Elder spent time in Central America and Mexico for 10 years before becoming director of the Casa Oscar Romero shelter in the Rio Grande Valley.

The shelter, sponsored by the Roman Catholic diocese of Brownsville, was started in 1982. Bishop John Fitzpatrick testified he became acquainted with Elder and his wife, Diane, after they began directing the home about 18 months ago.

When asked what he thought motivated Elder to give the Salvadorans a ride, the bishop said, "I think it was out of his religious conviction." He said he considers Elder a "first-class Christian."

The case is before U.S. District Judge Hayden Head Jr. after being moved from Brownsville, where the federal judge excused himself from the case.

Defense attorneys, in their move to have the charges dismissed, called clergymen from around the country to testify there is ecumenical support for the sanctuary movement, which aids Central Americans fleeing their war-torn homelands.

Elder, who was arrested April 13, 1984, also faces transportation of illegal alien charges in Brownsville along with another shelter volunteer.

That trial is scheduled for early next month.

Senate OKs finance proposals

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has approved three proposals to keep closer track of state funds and also to advise local governments how to get more interest for their money.

Sponsor John Leedom said his resolution directing the treasurer to check out the benefits of helping local communities earn a higher interest income was aimed at the "big brother relationship" between banks and government in smaller towns.

"As it is now, the banker might not quite be objective as to where funds are deposited," Sen. Leedom, R-Dallas, said Wednesday.

Another resolution by Leedom, chairman of the interim Senate Committee on Agency Funds Management, directs the Legislative Budget Board to study funds in the state treasury, with a report due Aug. 1, 1986, on whether there are any funds that can be abolished or consolidated.

Leedom said Texas has more than 400 funds and "there is now no control over the state funds that are established."

"This is like having 400 bank accounts — it's hard to have money in all of them at the same time," he said.

Leedom's committee has recommended limiting the number of funds.

A Leedom-sponsored bill, which also was approved, would create the State Cash Flow Policy Committee to "monitor and review the state management of its cash flow" and to make recommendations to the Legislature.

The recommendations, according to a printed bill analysis, would include "long-term cash flow problems, including the timing and methods of payments of state and local taxes."

The committee would include the governor, comptroller, treasurer and two members of the Budget Board.

The two resolutions and bill were sent to the House on Wednesday without a dissenting vote.

Leedom was asked about the resolution to provide local communities with financial assistance, and he said the treasury department would offer assistance in getting higher interest income, with the communities paying the department a small fee to offset the state's cost.

He said State Treasurer Ann Richards felt communities would be receptive to the proposal.

Says group leader

State government employees continue pay raise push

AUSTIN (AP) — State government workers won't back away from demands for a pay raise, says the leader of a major employee group.

Gary Hughes, executive director of the Texas Public Employees Association, said the group's top priority in the 1985 Legislature is "the passage of a tax bill or bills to fund all necessary pay raises and benefit increases being requested."

His statement Wednesday came the day after Gov. Mark White, in his state-of-the-state address, urged lawmakers to avoid a tax increase this year.

But Hughes said state employees have been slighted already and deserve an emergency raise this year and a pay hike in the 1986-87 budget biennium that begins Sept. 1.

"TPEA will not accept the idea of no pay raises for state employees for the next two years, as is reflected in the Legislative Budget Board recommendation and the governor's budget request," Hughes said.

Hughes said a 6 percent pay raise, if it becomes effective March 1, would cost the state $98 million. A similar raise for the 1986-87 budget years would total $360 million more, he said.

Hughes said the governor's call for a freeze on replacing state workers who quit or retire is a good plan.

"It's something I think they've got to consider," he said, adding that White's proposal "still leaves room for the agencies to replace positions that are critical."

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated that state revenues in the next two years will fall about $1 billion short of current spending.

White and legislators have been looking for ways to cut costs and keep from raising taxes.

During a news conference, Hughes admitted that employees will have to sell lawmakers on the idea of raising taxes to fund a pay increase.

"It's not there now," he said of lawmaker support, "but by the end of the session it will be."

"I think once these (spending) cuts start taking effect ... I think the people of the state are going to be talking to the members of the Legislature when they come home and discussing priorities with them and state services. By the end of the session, we're going to see a lot more consideration for a tax bill."

Hughes also said he believes the state's financial crunch will last longer than this year, and that a tax increase may be inevitable.

"This isn't just a single-year problem. We're looking at a funding problem for probably the next six years," he said. "We've got to look long term ... not just wait until the session's over and be talking no new taxes."

Failure to give state workers a raise would mean more trouble for agencies, Hughes predicted.

"If they thought they're not going to have any kind of increase for the next two years, you're going to have a lot of good, solid state employees looking for employment elsewhere," he said.

"You're going to have a serious turnover problem. You're going to have a problem of maintaining, keeping competent people to administer a $32, $33 billion budget. The state budget is big business," Hughes said.

Woman Senator gets huge fake ID

AUSTIN (AP) — State senators, who seldom miss a chance to rib House members, have presented a suitcase-sized ID card to a senator whose attempt to get on the House floor was blocked by doorkeepers.

Sen. Cyndi Taylor Krier, on the job only about a week, was barred from the House chamber Tuesday when she showed up to hear Gov. Mark White's speech to the Legislature.

Ms. Krier, a lawyer and San Antonio Republican, chose to go upstairs to the visitors' gallery rather than insisting on a downstairs seat with other senators.

Ms. Krier, who was not carrying her official Senate photo identification, said, "I guess I could have bullied my way in, saying, 'I'm a state senator.' But I didn't."

"Lots of those in the Senate are new faces to us over here," said House Sergeant-at-Arms Ron Hinkle, who wrote Ms. Krier an immediate letter of apology. Hinkle said he told her "it won't happen again."

Legislators never wear their IDs, depending on employees and others to recognize them.

On Wednesday, Sen. Chet Edwards presented Ms. Krier with a large photo ID labeled "Official Legislative Identification — Texas Department of Public Safety."

"Carry it with you everywhere you go," said Edwards, D-Duncanville. "It might even get you a parking place at the Capitol."

The youthful-looking Edwards, at 33 the youngest senator, told the 34-year-old Ms. Krier "I can empathize with you." Edwards said that during his legislative career he had been mistaken for a page and high school student.

He also recalled for reporters a possibly apocryphal story about former U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, trying to get on the Senate elevator in Washington after returning from a barbecue, dressed in a cowboy hat and boots.

"Hey, short stuff this is only for senators," Edwards quoted the elevator operator as telling Tower, who stands a shade over 5 feet.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, jokingly said he had received a telegram from former presidential candidate Jesse Jackson telling Ms. Krier to heed Jackson's advice: "I am — somebody."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said several years ago after a woman House member had been denied access to a private club in the downtown Driskill Hotel, she made a speech asking her colleagues to boycott the hotel.

"I will recognize you if you'd like to introduce a resolution to boycott the House," said Hobby, smiling.

Ms. Krier responded, "I want to thank all of you for your gallant efforts. I do hope to accomplish a few other things besides getting on the House floor." She said she would frame the ID.

Teachers opposing competency tests

AUSTIN (AP) — The law requiring competency tests for teachers should be repealed or substantially modified, the Texas Classroom Teachers Association says.

"Our first choice is that it be repealed," said Jeretta Thompson, president of the 25,000-member group.

If the testing law isn't repealed, then the teacher's association believes it should be amended so exams could be given on an individual basis and as part of a broader evaluation, she said.

Ms. Thompson said teachers are concerned because, as stated in the school reform law passed last summer, "It's written as the sole thing to make up a teacher's competency."

Susan Crocker, a high school English teacher from Grand Prairie and chairman of the TCTA's legislation committee, said the morale of many long-time teachers is suffering.

She said teachers who have received undergraduate and advanced college degrees now are finding that the state apparently doesn't consider that proof of their abilities.

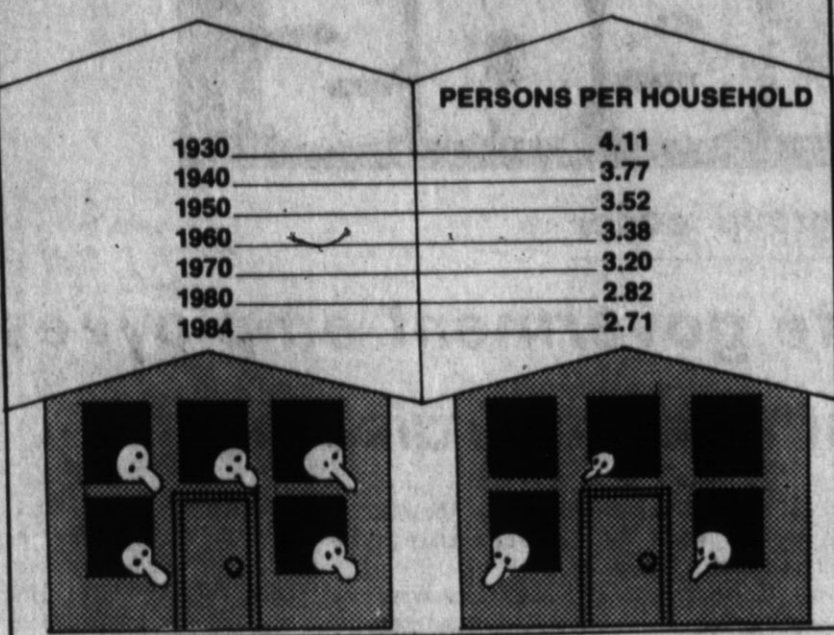

"You'll find that low morale comes from the fact that we feel like the things we've done in the past, that we did in good faith based on the system that Texas education had, are no longer recognized as valid," Ms. Crocker said.

"Teachers feel that through course work, they've demonstrated their competency. And they're rather insulted that they have to prove it again," she said.

"But more than that, they don't feel that the problem with incompetent teachers rests primarily in subject matter knowledge."

Hail to bountiful bulbs!

DEAR POLLY — When I dug up my gladiolus bulbs to store this fall, I found several small bulbs on almost every bulb. I suppose they are the seeds and this is the way the flowers multiply. What should I do with these little bulbs so they will produce flowers next summer? — BETTY

DEAR BETTY — Indeed, this is the way gladiolus and many other bulbs multiply. It's one of the bonuses of growing bulbs. You start with a few and after several years, you have many!

The main gladiolus "bulb" is called a corm and the little offspring are known as cormlets. Simply break the corm and cormlets apart. (You also can leave them attached to grow in a clump while still small, but when the cormlets get larger, it's best to divide them from the main corm.) Store in a cool, dry, dark place just as you do your main corms. Plant next spring in the regular manner. However, you probably won't get flowers from the new cormlets the first year. It usually takes a couple of years for these to mature enough to produce blooms.

When main corms get very large, they can be divided by simply splitting them in half and planting each half. With a little care, your gladiolus garden should be getting larger and more splendid every year! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — While my husband was painting the house, I suggested he put a pair of socks over the ends of the extension ladder. This served two purposes. The socks kept marks from the ladder off the house, and he kept small brushes in the cuffs of the socks. — NAN

DEAR NAN — What a clever idea! We've had lots of ideas in this column for using old socks, but this is a new one to me — and a worthy one to remember. PUBLIC NOTICE

In accordance with the Public Utility Regulatory Act and the Rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc. (AT&T Communications) gives notice to all of its Texas customers that a new procedure for long distance billing was made effective on an interim basis on August 6, 1984 in Docket No. 5800.

The procedure referred to is "Rate Period Specific Billing" and it applies to all message telephone service (AT&T Long Distance calls) including non-REACH OUT Texas calls within the State of Texas. This new procedure affects all AT&T Long Distance customers. All intra-LATA long distance calls and all interstate long distance calls are currently billed using this procedure.

Under this procedure, customers are billed a specific charge for long distance calls according to the rate or rates in effect throughout the time of each call. If a call begins in one rate period and extends into a different rate period, the customer will be charged whatever rate is in effect for each portion of the call.

For example, if a customer places a call at 4:58 p.m. on a weekday and talks for ten minutes, the first two minutes of the call would be charged at the full weekday rate which extends from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. The remaining eight minutes of the call would be billed at the evening rate which extends from 5:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. and includes a 25% discount. If Rate Period Specific Billing were not in effect, the entire call would have been billed at the higher day rate. Calls which extend from the evening rate period (25% discount) to the night and weekend rate period (40% discount) or from the night and weekend rate period (40% discount) to the day rate period (no discount) would also be billed according to the actual minutes of use during each rate period.

AT&T Communications anticipates a minimal increase of approximately .02% in its revenues or approximately $250,000 annually.

A complete copy of the "Rate Period Specific Billing" tariff is on file with the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene or participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Jury decides against time on issues

NEW YORK (AP) — Ariel Sharon's lawyer is happy with a jury's ruling that Time Inc. defamed the former Israeli defense minister, and says the panel can now "get down to the critical issues" that bear on a verdict of libel.

But a magazine official said he doubted "the jury's going to come to that conclusion."

The jury, which began deliberating

Sharon's $50 million libel suit Monday, announced Wednesday its conclusion that Time defamed the former Israeli defense minister in a Feb. 21, 1983, cover story about the findings of a probe into a massacre of Palestinian refugees in Beirut, Lebanon.

The jurors still have to decide whether the article was false, and whether the magazine knew it was false and published it with "actual malice" or "reckless disregard" for the truth.

Deliberations were to resume this morning.

If the panel finds against Sharon on any of the three issues, he loses. If it finds for Sharon on all three, a second set of hearings with more witnesses will consider harm to his reputation and possible award of damages.

Legally, if there was no damage to Sharon's reputation, he was not libeled.

Jury foreman Richard Zug said that the Time story defamed Sharon because it meant he "consciously intended" Christian Lebanese militiamen to massacre Palestinian civilians in 1982.

"I'm pleased that we won on this point," Sharon said outside the courthouse. "I was sorry that Time magazine is charging that Time did not understand plain English. I understand that it is still a long way to go and I do not want to comment any more at this point."

"One down, two to go," said Milton Gould, Sharon's chief attorney. "I'm glad we didn't lose on a point of grammar or what the words mean. Now we can get down to the critical issues, whether it was false or not."

Ray Cave, Time's managing editor, said: "Time continues to believe, totally believes, its story is correct. The jury has in no sense suggested yet that Mr. Sharon has been libeled. If it does, Time will say whatever it has to say on that matter, and I can't imagine the jury's going to come to that conclusion."

At issue is an article that said Sharon reportedly "discussed" revenge for the assassination of Lebanon's Christian president-elect, Bashir Gemayel, with Phalangists a day before the Christian militiamen massacred hundreds of Palestinians in Israeli-occupied West Beirut in 1982.

Sharon has denied discussing revenge "with any Lebanese."

Bus recall urged

Manufacturer denies hazard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government says there is a potential safety hazard in about 1,600 transit buses being used by nearly two dozen cities, and has urged the manufacturer to recall the vehicles for repairs.

But the buses' maker, Neoplan USA Corp., issued a statement Wednesday night claiming that no safety-related problem exists, although it acknowledged "hairline cracks" in the A-frames of some of the buses and said it was developing a solution to the problem.

Some transit authorities, including Los Angeles, already have taken some of the buses out of service because of cracking in the vehicles' A-frame, according to federal officials. The rear A-frame of one of the buses collapsed last August in Washington.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration told Neoplan in a letter dated Dec. 27 that if the company did not recall the buses "in the interest of safety" the agency would begin a formal investigation that could lead to a recall order.

A copy of the letter was obtained Wednesday by The Associated Press. Neoplan said in its statement that it "is confident that the proposed solution is satisfactory," but that it would not elaborate further on the solution until all tests are concluded.

The statement gave no indication how or when repairs would be made or whether it would go along with a complete recall of the buses.

The manufacturer, whose headquarters is in Lamar, Colo., already has tried various ways to strengthen the A-frames of some of the buses being used in Washington, D.C., and in Pennsylvania, according to government officials. But they said so far those efforts have not proved successful.

Industry sources said there are at least 1,600 of the 40-foot Neoplan buses in use in the United States, many of them in Pennsylvania. The state bought 1,000 three years ago for use in 16 Pennsylvania cities.

Among the cities with the largest number of the buses are Los Angeles, 415; Pittsburgh, 403; Philadelphia, 300; Atlanta, 96; Washington D.C., 76; Oakland, Calif., 61; and Milwaukee, 44.

Philip W. Davis, acting director of NHTSA's Office of Defect Investigation Enforcement, wrote Neoplan president Bob Lee, urging that the buses be recalled and the latest A-frame design installed.

Neoplan has added metal plates to reinforce the A-frame of some of the buses, but the federal investigators said that solution apparently has not worked.

Davis, in his letter to Neoplan, noted the company's safety tests last year were conducted on an empty bus traveling at less than 40 mph. The agency suggested the test speeds were too slow.

According to the American Public Transit Association, other communities using the Neoplan buses include: Iowa City, Iowa; Rockford, Ill.; Columbia, Md.; Lynchburg, Va.; Steamboat Springs, Colo.; and the Pennsylvania communities of Kingston, Lancaster, Scranton, Altoona, State College, Erie, Greensburg, Allentown, Johnstown, and Reading.

Volkmar out of jail but still getting eye

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A man released from jail after his fingerprint was wrongly matched with one on a dead woman's car will still be treated as a possible suspect, officials say.

Timothy Paul Volkmar was released from the Tarrant County jail Wednesday, not long after authorities dismissed a murder charge against him that was based on a misidentified fingerprint found on Lisa Griffin's car.

Ms. Griffin, 20, was the latest of five women to either disappear or be found slain in southwest Fort Worth since September. Four other area murders of women are also under investigation.

Tarrant County Sheriff Don Carpenter said detectives will continue to investigate Volkmar as a possible suspect in the Jan. 9 murder of Ms. Griffin.

"We're still working on evidence," Carpenter said. "But we don't want anyone in jail unless he deserves to be there."

Also Wednesday, a state district judge dismissed a probation revocation motion that had also kept Volkmar, 25, in jail.

"I'm kind of surprised," said Volkmar, who had been arrested Saturday and charged with murder. "I didn't know the truth could work so quick."

His parents, Faye and Lloyd Volkmar, met their son outside the jail.

"It has been a nightmare, but we were confident he wasn't guilty," Mrs. Volkmar said.
