BY BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR
Deaf Smith County commissioners batted 500 at their meeting Monday, pleasing one group which confronted them while leaving another less than satisfied. More than 40 nuclear waste dump opponents gave the court an ovation after they passed a resolution opposing the location of a nuclear waste repository here, while two representatives of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame Rodeo Association found themselves coming out on the short end of a request for help with staging a dance at the Bull Barn this summer. After moving their meeting from the commissioners' courtroom to the county courroom due to the overflow crowd, the court heard yet a third request by a group for help with paying the $1,500 deposit required for use of the Bull Barn. Jimmy Rowton and Margaret Formby, representing the rodeo association, made a plea for the commissioners to put up $250 each to help pay the deposit for a dance on Aug. 13. The four commissioners had already done the same for two organizations of seniors at Hereford High School within the past month. Citing difficulties in coming up with the deposit, Rowton asked the court to show the rodeo association the same courtesy it had shown the two high school organizations.

To that request, Pct. 4 Commissioner James Voyles, who came up with the subsidy idea originally when the court was approached by the Mexican-American Seniors said, "we helped them with their deposit as a personal gesture to the senior class at the high school. But, this is getting to a point where I want to stop; people are cramming this thing down our throat." To that, Pct. 3 Commissioner Bruce Coleman added, "we did it for the kids whom we felt didn't have the ability to put up the deposit. Personally, I've put up the last deposit that I intend to."

Pct. 1 Commissioner Bill Brady, who said that putting up $500 of his own money already has strained him financially, moved to lower the deposit to $500, but that motion died for the lack of a second. Mrs. Formby, who compared the Bull Barn's notoriety to that of San Francisco's Cow Palace, asked the court to consider changing the regulations for use of the structure, but County Judge Glen Nelson told her that any action on the matter would have to come at a later date, with the issue placed on the court's formal agenda. After dealing with that issue, the court turned to the capacity crowd concerned with the imminent location of a nuclear waste repository in this county, which apparently has been named a finalist for consideration according to a Department of Energy official in Utah. Two Dawn area spokesmen, Dale Kleuskens and Ralph Diller, presented their case to the commissioners, urging them to become as informed as possible about the issue. "We are here mainly to urge the court to start studying the documents which are available to see how the location of a repository here would affect our county," Kleuskens said. "Timeliness is the main thing we have to

Waste transport threat probed

While some anti-nuclear groups are protesting the building of nuclear waste disposal systems, such as the one being considered in Deaf Smith County, others are more concerned about the transportation of radioactive fuel waste. In Washington, D.C., today, the Council on Economic Priorities (CEP) warned that federal plans to begin trucking vast amounts of nuclear waste pose a "major, avoidable threat to the public."

study, Sen. William Proxmire stated, "With the passage of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982, transportation of nuclear waste will soon increase as much as 100 times, yet we have taken no extra precautions to guard against accidents." CEP's findings criticize industry and Department of Energy (DOE) plans to establish central temporary waste fuel storage sites in Oak Ridge, Tn., Savannah River, S.C., and Idaho Falls, Id. Utilities would truck their backlogs of nuclear waste over the Interstate Highway system, even where such routes pass through crowded metropolitan areas or sites where toxic waste accidents are frequent.

The plan is both unnecessary and unsafe, according to CEP. The public research organization's two-year study concludes that utilities can continue to store waste fuel at their reactor sites, using new dry storage technology. Such methods would allow

The CEP is a public service research organization "dedicated to accurate and impartial analysis of vital issues facing the nation, and is non-aligned, independent and non-profit." In the first independent study of the nuclear transportation industry, CEP calls for the retirement of casks used to transport radioactive fuel waste. The findings conclude that utilities can continue to store waste fuel, using new dry storage technology, until and if a permanent Federal disposal site is designated. In reaction to the CEP

Police arrest trio during busy weekend

A man involved in a pickup crash under the railroad overpass on U.S. 385 Sunday night was arrested later at a friend's home on five warrants from another county. George Roberto Ramirez, 26, was taken into custody about 30 minutes after the wreck. Ramiro Cantu was arrested for questioning on the burglary of Tide Products, Inc. during the weekend. According to the police report, Cantu's car was parked near the Tide office when patrolmen arrived. Cantu later came running from a field saying that he was trying to chase some guys off who had tried to steal his car. His story kept changing and police arrested him. Ruben Orosco was arrested on a warrant out of Stanton for felony violation of probation and forging a check. Other reports through Monday include the following. -Theft of $5 worth of gas

Two dogs are being observed after bitings at the labor camp and a city residence. Firemen were busy Sunday afternoon with calls at 2:21 p.m. to a grass fire at 308 Avenue I and a storage barn fire at 310 Avenue I. A minute later the crew was alerted to a garage fire at 316 Avenue I.

Crime rate in state increases

AUSTIN - The Texas crime rate rose 4.2 per cent in 1982, according to DPS director Jim Adams. The rate was 6,297.5 major crimes for every 100,000 residents compared to 6,042.4 in 1981. "This is not the most dramatic increase we've seen in recent years," Colonel Adams said. "But it does indicate that there can be no let up in law enforcement efforts to address this problem, especially in light of the serious concern by citizens for their safety and security of their property." Adams said the total number of major index crimes reported in Texas last year was 962,260 an increase of 7.9 per cent compared to 1981. Robbery led the four violent crime categories, registering a volume increase of 17.8 per cent in 1982. Aggravated assault cases were up 11.2 per cent, while murders increased by one per cent. A slight change was recorded in the number of rape cases. "The murder rate, homicides keyed to population, actually registered a decline of 1.8 per cent," Adams pointed out. In the property crime categories the number of theft cases was up 10.4 per cent, while motor vehicle theft and burglary increased by 4.6 per cent and 3.7 per cent respectively. Adams said twenty-three per cent of the major crimes were cleared by arrests in 1982. Total arrests for all offenses excluding traffic law violations totaled 908,858, an increase of 9.6 per cent. "Included in the total arrests are 112,407 for DWI, up 25.6 per cent compared to 1981," Adams said. The estimated value of property stolen during the commission of all major crimes in 1982 totaled $927 million with approximately $194.7 million recovered. Nine Texas police officers were killed in the line of duty by felonious action last year. Eight others died in duty-related accidents. A total of 3,728 officers were assaulted last year. Arson cases reported to the DPS in 1982 totaled 8,201. Twenty per cent of the cases were cleared by arrests. The crime statistics are compiled by the DPS Uniform Crime Reporting Bureau based on reports from 755 local law enforcement agencies.

Brockman family honored

BY LINDA CAUDLE Family News Editor
Surprise and gratitude were the feelings expressed by the Allan Brockman family Sunday afternoon when they were named Hereford's 1983 Family of the Year during the second annual Family Week ceremony sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints. The Brockmans have six children, ranging in age from 11 to 24. They have lived in Hereford since 1969, and are both originally from the Panhandle area. Allan was born in Nazareth and Donna grew up in Groom. "It was a very humbling experience to be honored like this," comments Allan. "The first feeling I had was that there are many more deserving families, and we feel very honored to have been chosen." "We called our oldest son, who lives in Dallas," smiles Donna, "and he was real excited too. We haven't been able to talk with our second son yet, but we're sure he'll share our happiness." Neither of the two oldest sons were able to be here for the ceremony on Sunday. Don, 24, is a graduate of West Texas State University and is presently employed as an accountant in Dallas. Greg, 23, graduated from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and is a lieutenant in the U.S. Army currently residing in El Paso. Paul, 19, is a freshman at WTSU, where he is treasurer of the freshman class. Three of the Brockman's children are still at home.

Lee, 16, is a sophomore at Hereford High School, where he is involved in Pegasus, football, basketball, and track. Walter, 14, is in the eighth grade at Stanton Junior High. He is on the Science Team and plays football, basketball, track and golf. Carmen, the Brockman's only daughter, is 11 years old and in the sixth grade at St. Anthony's School. She plays basketball, will soon be starting track, and recently earned a bronze medal in the American History Essay Contest sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution. "All of our older children have been members of the Hereford Key Club," says Donna, "and Lee is currently a member. They have all played YMCA flag football and Carmen plays YMCA basketball." "We try to attend all of

School board to consider textbooks

The Hereford Independent School District board will be preparing for next year as it considers the school calendar, textbooks and teacher employment at a 5 p.m. meeting today. The meeting will be in the school administration building, Union and Avenue F. Other agenda items include a request for use of La Plata gym, use of school buildings by the YMCA, and a request by James Self to introduce a family cancer insurance plan. Routine agenda items include professional organization reports, personnel report, superintendent's report, ratification of bills, policy development, curriculum report and updates on enrollment, transportation, cafeteria and tax office status.

Cattle meeting Thursday

The Deaf Smith County Livestock Committee will be sponsoring a Beef Cattle Meeting at the Hereford Community Center - Banquet room, east side, at 7 p.m. on Thursday. Dr. John McNeill, Extension beef cattle specialist, Amarillo, will be presenting a program concerning stocker cattle forecast and use of the computer in decision making concerning stocker programs and cattle feeding. A demonstration will be given using a computer, with information run through the computer to assist in decision making.

PIK signup report coming

Participation in the Payment In Kind program was one of the best for any program, according to John Fuston, local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Signup concluded last Friday. Fuston said he will have a report to release by the end of this week.

Stuntman unfazed by miscalculation

HOUSTON (AP) - A stuntman seemed undaunted by his apparent failure to crack the 1,000-foot mark by scaling the 75-story Texas Commerce Tower, after he miscalculated the building's height. "You read your almanac, I'll read mine," Ron Broyles said about midnight today, shortly after posting an $800 bond on a charge of criminal trespassing, a misdemeanor. "If that didn't do it technically, I'll go back and climb another one." The building is 1,049 feet above sea level, but only 999 feet over the street. Officials said the face Broyles chose rises 993.33 feet to a parapet where police took the climber into custody. Broyles, a 29-year-old stuntman from Los Angeles, was to be arraigned before County Court-at-Law Judge Al Leal at 9 a.m. today. Hundreds of spectators cheered and honked horns when Broyles, clad in a white tuxedo, ended his trek by swinging himself onto the roof. He began his climb at 4:30 a.m. and finished at 10:44 p.m. Officials said he was not noticed until he was at the eighth floor, beyond the reach of fire

Unemployment money close to running out

AUSTIN (AP) - Unless Congress acts right away, Texas will run out of money for state unemployment benefits this week, according to the Texas Employment Commission.

"We have enough money to pay unemployment benefits through Thursday, maybe Friday," said Jo Bevil, TEC cashier. "We understand the Department of Labor will have some money they can use for at least through Friday."

Ms. Bevil said the Texas TEC would write out checks for jobless benefits and hold them until the money was available.

The U.S. House has already passed a bill giving additional unemployment compensation loans to 29 states. However, the measure is pending in the Senate.

Last October the TEC was forced to borrow $300 million from the federal government to keep the unemployment compensation fund solvent. The legislation pending in Congress would make more money available for loans to states.

400 evacuate homes after 9 cars derail

HALLSBURG, Texas (AP) - About 400 people forced to leave their homes after a chemical spill were back home today after authorities mopped up a highly toxic chemical that spilled from a derailed train.

Investigators were trying to determine what caused nine Missouri Pacific cars to derail, puncturing a tank car that leaked 10 gallons of the chemical phenol.

No injuries were reported.

Families living within a one mile radius of the wreck were ordered to evacuate. Several highways in the area eight miles east of Waco and 75 miles south of Dallas were closed until the chemical was cleaned up Monday afternoon.

The Hallsburg elementary school, three miles from the accident site, was closed for the day.

Three train employees were taken to Hillcrest Hospital in nearby Waco as a precaution and were released, said hospital spokeswoman Sue Ann Smythe.

"They exhibited no symptoms of having inhaled whatever this stuff was," she said.

The phenol, owned by Dow Chemical Co., was sealed off by 8 a.m. and workers began righting the three tanker cars and six boxcars that derailed, Texas Department of Public Safety Lt. Ralph Briscoe said.

The train, bound for North Platte, Neb., from Houston, derailed as it broke off the main line and onto a side track to allow a southbound train to pass, authorities said.

A car carrying another hazardous chemical, butadiene, derailed but did not spill, Briscoe said.

Dallas County man questioned for killings

MOUNT PLEASANT, Texas (AP) - Police released few details concerning the arrest of a 28-year-old man held in connection with the May 10 slayings of three pizza restaurant employees killed during a robbery in this Northeast Texas city.

Calvin Loyd Padgett, a Dallas County resident, was jailed Monday. He was arraigned last week on a charge of theft of more than $200, according to State District Judge B.D. Moyer. No bond was set, Moyer said.

Padgett was arrested March 8 in Oklahoma, according to a brief statement released Monday by police.

The statement, cited to Police Chief B.C. Sustaire, said an "investigation into the case is continuing and further arrests are pending."

Shortly after the killings, a statewide manhunt was called for four men believed to be traveling in a 1973 Chevrolet that was seen in the Pizza Hut parking lot by several witnesses.

Police refused to release further details of the arrest.

"In order to protect the suspect's rights to a fair trial, no other information concerning this arrest will be released," Sustaire said.

District Attorney Charles Mack Cobb refused comment.

Authorities said the employees apparently were killed with a pistol, butcher knife and claw hammer.

Chief wants to shake speed trap reputation

SELMA, Texas (AP) - The police chief says it could take 10 years to change this small South Texas town's reputation as a speed trap.

"This reputation of Selma's has been here a while," Chief Joe Potempa said Monday. "It's not going to change overnight."

But Potempa, who has been in office since December 1981, says some attitudes already have started to change.

"They used to call it 'Hemorrhoid City' on the CB," Potempa said. "I know for a fact we're changing slowly. People are talking decent about us on the CB."

Potempa, 41, has been a member of Selma's police force for six years.

"This city's been labeled a speed trap for I don't know how long by the media," he said. "The media can really hurt a city."

Potempa has changed the police cars from an inconspicuous brown to blue and white so motorists on Interstate 35 who pass through this town, about 10 miles north of San Antonio, can identify a patrol car more easily.

The police shield on the car doors also has been enlarged to make it more visible.

Selma never really had a speed trap - just officers who enforced the law, Potempa says.

"If they're speeding out there," the chief said, "we're going to enforce it."

consider."

Kleuskens cited the adverse affects on the "marketability of this area's agricultural products," and the DOE's continual changing of criteria concerning the location studies being conducted.

"They've (DOE) changed their criteria to fit their needs," Kleuskens charged. "They can't decide on the depth of the repository to begin with ... they're changing their criteria to meet this area, not making this area fit their original criteria."

Diller said that the county has "basically invited them (DOE) in with our apathy." At this point we can stop it, but there will come a time when we will not have any choice."

Kleuskens said that the DOE has "thrown safety out the window" on this project. "They haven't studied it enough, and they're rushing to find a location for the waste products of commercial power companies who are on the verge of bankruptcy because they can't find a solution."

Boyd Foster, spokesman for Arrowhead Mills, said the location of a repository here "would be very detrimental to our existence. The very economic existence of Deaf Smith County is at stake here."

After Voyles and Coleman each voiced their opposition to the issue, Brady presented a resolution calling for official county opposition to "the storage, transportation, or testing for nuclear waste storage in Deaf Smith County."

That motion was approved unanimously by the court, which pledged to have copies of it sent to officials in Austin, including Gov. Mark White.

In other matters Monday, the court:

-Approved the hanging of sponsorship signs at the Kids, Inc. complex on Whittier St., providing those signs don't cause damage to the fences.

Kids. Inc. spokesman John Bunch said that the plywood signs would be hung carefully and would be taken down and stored during the winter months.

Climb by stuntman department ladders.

The crowd, which gathered on streets ordinarily deserted after sundown, chanted "Go, go, go" as Broyles rested for several minutes at the 74th floor. Some lay down on the sidewalk and watched through binoculars.

Robert Narvell, 11, charged $1 for a look through his $300 telescope. Dark and distance rendered Broyles almost invisible to the naked eye as he reached the roof.

Broyles said he was given sandwiches and soft drinks when he reached the top, then taken down an elevator to a waiting patrol car. He gave a thumbs-up signal to the crowd as he was driven away to the Harris County jail.

"I felt good to the 25th floor. At the 50th, I didn't think I was going to make it," Broyles said after he was released on bond. For the last 25 floors, he said, "My arms were dead, my legs were going. My fingers wouldn't work."

He said his equipment - two short-handled wedges fitted inside a window washer's track and attached to a stirrup and a web seat - did not slide as easily as he had expected. Broyles climbed by alternately moving the wedges upward.

Broyles would not say specifically what he plans to climb next, but mentioned the possibility of climbing a building in a foreign country.

Building officials and police made no attempt to stop the climb, explaining that they did not want to take any action that would endanger Broyles.

Broyles seemed to be having a good time. He stopped frequently outside windows and used a portable telephone to call news reporters and office workers who posted signs in windows as he went past.

At one point he clowned by throwing himself backward and faking a fall. Onlookers on the safe side of the windows gasped and then applauded.

Many women asked Broyles for dates or issued dinner invitations by posting signs on windows as he climbed past their offices. Broyles replied to most by saying, "I can't tonight. I'm going to be in jail," but said later that he accepted some of the offers.

Jim Martin, a member of Broyles' ground crew, said the climber has scaled three other buildings, including the 732-foot Peachtree Plaza Hotel in Atlanta. He failed in an attempt to climb the Transamerica Tower in San Francisco, Martin said.

Family of the Year

their ball games, which keeps us pretty busy in itself," she continues. "We enjoy doing things together as a family."

"I think our vacations together have been one of the highlights of our family life," adds Allan. "They've helped to keep our family close. We always try to plan things that both the older and younger children would enjoy."

"Some of our favorite vacations have been to the mountains. One year we took a camper to New Mexico and stayed in the mountains for three days. It wasn't the longest vacation we've taken, but one of the most memorable times together."

"The older kids love to ski," comments Donna. "Allan and I don't ski, but the kids go together sometimes, which seems to help keep a closeness between them."

Both Allan and Donna admit they're very proud of their six children. "They really are good kids. They have high ideals and good morals, and have been very involved at school and in other activities."

Also important to the Brockmans is attending church together as a family. They are members of St. Anthony's Catholic Church. Allan is a member of the Knights of Columbus and Donna is a member of the Advisory Board of St. Anthony's Parish and St. Anthony's Women's Organization.

Allan is also on the board of directors of the National Kidney Foundation of West Texas.

One of the tests of a family's strength and solidarity is how well they are able to stick together and build each other up in times of adversity.

The Brockmans have had their share of trials, but they have always faced the hard times together, something that Allan and Donna believe has drawn their family closer and made them stronger.

Allan has undergone kidney dialysis treatment for about seven years and has suffered with the condition for about ten years. Prior to his illness, he had been superintendent at a grain elevator in Dimmitt and manager of grain elevators at Tucumcari, N.M., and Summerfield. His father was in the grain business while he was growing up and he has worked with that business for about 30 years.

He now operates a grain brokerage business out of his home, dealing mostly with grain used in feed lots - corn, milo, and wheat. He owns one semi truck and leases several others.

Most of his work is done over the telephone. Donna helps with the paperwork. She says that the arrangement has worked well for them, and that they have been able to rearrange their schedule so that they can attend more of their children's games and activities since they started working out of their home.

"I feel it is very important for mothers to be at home," states Donna. "I wanted to be able to work at home." She

Energy analysts doubt OPEC agreement will work long

By ROBERT BURNS AP Business Writer

LONDON (AP) - OPEC oil ministers wrapped up 12 days of bargaining with an agreement to cut oil prices by nearly 15 percent and restrict production to keep them there. But many energy analysts doubt the historic plan will work.

The main threat to the accord announced Monday is the likelihood that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, faced with declining demand for oil, will continue to lose customers to more flexible exporters outside the ranks of the cartel.

"This OPEC strategy is not a strategy that can deal with a shrinking market," said John Mugno, an energy specialist at Citibank in New York. "If the market doesn't strengthen then this agreement doesn't make any sense."

World demand for oil has steadily dropped in recent years, partly because consumer nations have adopted conservation measures and resorted to alternate energy sources.

The 13 OPEC ministers announced after a marathon six-hour negotiating session that 12 of them had agreed to reduce the $34 base price by $5, a reduction of nearly 15 percent.

The move was the first such cut in the cartel's 22-year history. It was in response to price cuts three weeks ago by non-OPEC producers Britain and Norway, followed by OPEC member Nigeria, which competes directly with the British and Norwegians for petroleum sales in Europe.

Iran, a cartel maverick, said it disapproved "in principle" of cutting prices, but that it would announce its new prices "soon."

Other OPEC members said they had not decided when they would reduce their prices, though most are expected to make the cuts retroactive to Feb. 1. At $29 a barrel, the OPEC base price is at its lowest level since 1980, when it averaged $28.67 a barrel.

Mexico announced Monday that it will follow OPEC's lead and lower the price for its top-grade Isthmus crude from $32.50 a barrel to $29 and its heavier Maya crude from $25 to $23. Mexico generally follows the cartel's pricing policy.

Mohammad Gharazi, the Iranian oil minister, told a news conference the OPEC strategy for stabilizing oil prices was not jeopardized by his country's unwillingness to sign the price cut agreement. Iran did accept the production-sharing part of the accord, which sets an overall production limit of 17.5 million barrels a day.

Several other ministers, including Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani of Saudi Arabia, said they were certain the agreement would reverse the downward trend of oil prices that has threatened to break up the cartel.

Many analysts doubt that all 13 members will be able to resist offering secret discounts for their oil in order to boost sales. Iran and Libya reportedly have been discounting for months.

It was the steady and unexpectedly long decline in world oil demand that has depressed OPEC sales and complicated the cartel's efforts to agree on production limits. It agreed to such a system in March 1982 but the deal fell apart within four months after several members - including Iran and Libya - began selling as much as they could.

Committee hears ways to attract good teachers

By KEN HERMAN Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, a former math teacher whose salary was only $15,000 after 22 years on the job, says teacher groups pushing ambitious pay raise packages might not be asking for enough.

Officials from several groups brought their requests to the House Public Education Committee on Monday. Most called for substantial increases, including a hike in beginning salary.

Barbara O'Neal of Waco, president of the Texas State Teachers Association, testified for starting teacher salaries of $15,100 in 1985, up from the current $11,110. She said the raise "starts to address" the problem of attracting good teachers.

Johnny Veselka of the Texas School Administrators Council called for starting salaries of $14,530 in 1985. "It's a step in the right direction," he said.

But Ms. Glossbrenner, D-Alice, said it might take more than a step to make teaching careers more attractive.

"Everybody says it's a step in the right direction," she said. "I want to know when we're going to get there."

"When you take 36 percent of something that isn't very much, you still don't have very much," she said of one of the proposals.

Ms. Glossbrenner, a committee member, asked Veselka if $13,000 would lure good students into education.

"Are these kind of figures really going to get the best and the brightest, or at least the good, students into the teaching profession?" she asked.

Veselka said it would not be enough. Districts using local funds to bring starting salaries up to $14,000 have not found it easier to find quality teachers, he said.

Ms. Glossbrenner, who was chairman of the Alice High School math department when she quit in 1976, said legislators might be "kidding ourselves" in thinking anything less than a huge pay hike would whittle down the teacher shortage.

She said many young Texans want to teach, but "it's too expensive a hobby."

The Monday hearing also pointed out differences among several teacher groups pushing for pay hikes.

Odessa teacher Betty Pyle, president of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association, called for starting base salaries of $14,000. She said, however, that raises for more experienced teachers is more important.

"We believe you should raise beginning salaries, but you should not do that to the detriment of the experienced teacher," she testified.

Rep. Noel Grisham, D-Round Rock, a former school superintendent, said any salary increase plan should "give more incentive to getting people into the profession."

But Mrs. Pyle said, "Once you get them in there, there's got to be an incentive to get them to stay."

Committee chairman Bill Haley, D-Center, a former history teacher, said some of the pay hike proposals might force higher local property taxes because many school districts hire more teachers than the state funds.

Witness saying victim's family 'Kidnapped'

DALLAS (AP) — The common-law wife of an alleged brutality victim says that some New Orleans police officers "kidnapped" her family from their home, ransacked the house, gave them $1,000, and told them to move.

Patricia Ann Bolden, the common-law wife of Johnnie Brownlee, testified Monday in the civil rights trial of seven policemen, who are accused of beating several residents of New Orleans' predominantly black Algiers section while investigating a fellow officer's murder.

Another alleged victim, Robert Davis, 20, testified Monday that he was taken to police headquarters, tied to a chair with elastic bandages, punched, beaten with a heavy book and had a plastic bag put over his head.

Ms. Bolden said several officers, some of them armed, came to the couple's home, handcuffed Brownlee and took them with her 7-year-old son to a police station, Ms. Bolden said.

When Brownlee emerged from questioning, his clothes and hair were dirty, he had a bruise over one eye and a cut under the other, Ms. Bolden said.

Officers kept the family in a motel overnight, returning them home the next morning, she said.

"I felt I was kidnapped, couldn't go now where, had no freedom of choice," she said. The officers said "not to talk to anyone and for Johnnie not to go to a hospital."

Police told the couple to "move across town or to Mississippi," and gave them a $1,000 check, she said.

She testified that she discovered bruises on Brownlee's back after the interrogation, although she admitted under cross-examination that she told a grand jury that his back was scratched.

Davis said he did not name a suspect in the killing of the white patrolman, until officers took him to a secluded area where they beat him and threatened to blow his head off with a shotgun.

"They would tighten (the bag) up on me so I couldn't catch air ... I felt I was going to die," Davis said. "If you can't get no air, you can't have no choice but to pass away."

Five officers later took him to an isolated wooded area on New Orleans' West Bank where he was kicked, punched and pushed to the ground, he said.

"They put me on my back and one officer stood on my stomach," said Davis, who identified defendant Richard LeBlanc, 32, as one of the officers who attacked him.

He said one officer held a shotgun to his head and said he was "going to blow my head off, push me off the bridge and I'd be just one less nigger just floating down the river."

Davis said he then gave police the name "Comanche," a nickname for James Billy, one of two suspects in the Nov. 8, 1960, slaying of white patrolman Gregory Neupert. Billy, another suspect and a woman were killed five days later in a shootout with police.

Defense attorneys have tried to convince an all-white jury that the alleged victims lied about the beatings because they had cooperated with police and were afraid of what might happen to them on the streets.

Under cross-examination by defense attorney Ralph Capitelli, Davis admitted he lied to a grand jury when he denied he had ever used narcotics.

Capitelli also pointed out discrepancies in detail between Davis' testimony Monday and his earlier statements to state and federal grand juries.

Hezekiah Clark, an Orleans Parish district attorney's investigator, and later testified that Davis identified pictures of four of the defendants, LeBlanc, Detective Ronald Brinks, Detective Thomas Woodall and Officer Stephen Farrar, from a display of 72 photographs.

Davis said only Woodall and Brinks beat him, Clark said.

Prosecutors have portrayed the defendants as members of a homicide department out of control — willing to take information at any cost.

A police crackdown in Algiers after Neupert's shooting resulted in the deaths of four residents. No charges were filed in connection with the deaths.

However, the controversy surrounding the crackdown prompted the resignation of Police Superintendent James Parsons, his second-in-command, David Kent, and generated extensive publicity that caused the trial to be moved to Dallas.

The defendants include LeBlanc, 32; Brinks, 37; Woodall, 32; Farrar, 31; Sgt. John E. McKenzie, 40; Officer Dale Bonura, 34; and Stephen Rebol, 29.

Rebol was fired on an unrelated matter, but later reinstated. All seven were reassigned to desk jobs.

The officers face a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine if convicted on a felony civil rights charge, and a year in jail and a $1,000 fine if convicted on a separate misdemeanor count.

New trial date set in case involving slaying

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Cameron County grand jury has reindicted a La Feria couple on murder charges in connection with last summer's slayings of a schoolteacher and her fiancé, who prosecutors say tape recorded his own death.

State District Judge Darrell Hester ordered the grand jury into special session Monday after Harlingen attorney James Mardis complained earlier indictments against his client, Paul Wolf, were vague.

Wolf and his wife, Sherry, both 21, are charged with killing Mrs. Wolf's former husband, Billy Staton, and his fiancée, schoolteacher Leticia Castro, over a child custody dispute.

Wolf's trial for the slaying of Miss Castro, which was to have begun Monday, has been reset for April 11. Hester scheduled a pretrial hearing for March 28.

Hester threw out the indictments against the Wolfs Friday and admonished Cameron County District Attorney Rey Cantu for his handling of the case.

"This is the type of case any second year law student could prepare. It's a simple murder," Hester said. "This is the very sort of thing that is undermining the public's faith in our justice system."

Hester had thrown out the indictments once before because of technical errors by prosecutors.

Assistant District Attorney Ted Campagnolo said the second indictments failed to include the "exact nature" of the murder weapon used to kill Staton and Miss Castro, both 26 of San Juan.

Prosecutors allege Staton was killed by a blow to the head with a blunt instrument and that Miss Castro's death was caused by a shotgun blast and a blow to the head with a blunt instrument, Campagnolo said.

Texas law, however, requires that indictments specify the murder weapon or include a line saying "the exact nature of which is unknown to the grand jury," said Campagnolo, who is assisting Cantu in the case.

The stipulation was excluded from the indictments, Campagnolo said.

Wolf, who is free on bonds totaling $100,000, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to the slayings. Mrs. Wolf has pleaded innocent to the killings. She is out on two $35,000 surety bonds.

The case has received widespread attention because of a bizarre piece of evidence prosecutors plan to reveal during the trials.

When Staton's body was pulled from a Rio Grande Valley drainage canal last Aug. 6, investigators discovered a micro-cassette recorder taped to his stomach. The cassette, which Cantu claims contains "23 minutes of murder," remained intact and was sent to a Federal Bureau of Investigation laboratory for preparation.

Cantu said Staton had been advised by his attorney to conceal the recorder on his body when he went to the Wolf home to visit his 2½-year-old daughter, Melanie.

Mrs. Wolf, Melanie's mother, and Staton had been fighting over custody of the child, Cantu said.

Prosecutors claim Staton was attacked and bludgeoned while in the Wolf house, dragged to the trunk of his car then dumped, still alive, in the canal.

Miss Castro, who Cantu theorizes waited in the car while Staton went into the Wolf house, was beaten and shot during the melee, prosecutors claim.

20 victories do not assure NCAA tourney bid

BY LES GILES
Sports Editor

Ever wonder how some teams make it into the NCAA basketball tournament, which this year features an all-time record number 52 teams?

Think 20 victories assures you a bid? If you do, ask teams like St. Peter's (22-5), Texas Southern (22-7) or Arkansas-Little Rock (23-6). Not only didn't they get an invite to the NCAA, they didn't even make the field of 32 in this year's NIT.

It helps to belong to the strong conference ... such as the Big 10, or the Southeastern Conference.

Eight of the 10 Big 10 teams are in post-season play this year, while seven SEC teams advanced. The NCAA took four other Big 10 teams, besides conference champion Indiana, while three others besides SEC tournament winner Georgia made it.

The fields are interesting, to say the least, and both should be outstanding tournaments, and they get into full swing this week.

Houston, Louisville, St. John's and Virginia are the top seeds in the NCAA - St. John's in the East; Louisville in the Midwest; Houston in the Midwest and Virginia in the West. That's right, Virginia to the West. Remember, last year, Georgetown, runnerup to North Carolina in the NCAA Tournament, was the top seed in the West region.

Looking ahead a couple of weeks, the showdown in the East region finals might likely be St. John's vs. North Carolina. Or, perhaps some team like West Virginia or Syracuse, or even Virginia Commonwealth might come out of the pack.

In the Midwest region, it might be anyone. Louisville is the No. 1 seed there, but teams such as Arkansas, Kentucky or Indiana might make the trip to Albuquerque (site of the Final Four). Or, maybe Oklahoma or Tennessee.

Houston appears to be the best bet in the Midwest, but don't count out the likes of Memphis State, or Villanova or even Missouri.

The West region showdown might be Virginia vs. UCLA, although teams like Boston College or UNLV might have other thoughts.

Picking an eventual winner is tough, let alone trying to guess the final four teams.

But, my guesses to go Villanova, Louisville, UCLA and North Carolina to wind up at Albuquerque. If that happens, UCLA would meet North Carolina in one semifinal game, while Villanova would take on Louisville in the other.

The winners?

How about UCLA and Louisville? Then, the guess goes to Louisville in the championship game.

Sound far-fetched?

Perhaps ... but let's see what happens.

It came as a surprise to absolutely no one that Dimmitt walked away with its second straight Class 3A state championship last week in Austin.

The Bobcats weren't even pressed in the championship game, beating Van Vleck by 27 points, 81-54.

In winning 38 games this season, without a loss, the Bobcats' average margin of victory was over 26½ points per game. So, the outcome against Van Vleck was pretty normal.

For the first time in four years, virtually no championship game Saturday was close.

Snook won the 1A crown, its sixth in a row, by 36 points; Morton won the 2A title by 22 points; Dimmitt the 3A banner by 27; Waxahachie the 4A crown by 13 points over Berger and Bryan the 5A championship by 17 points over Fort Worth Paschal.

Probably the biggest upset came in the 5A semifinals when Houston Yates, ranked among the nation's top 25 teams, was beaten by Paschal.

Is Dimmitt's team the best to ever come out of this area?

I've been watching high school basketball since 1968, on a pretty regular basis, and I'd say the Bobcats have one of the best teams I've ever seen.

I've seen some good Pampa teams, which didn't even get to the state tournament, and I've seen some good Berger teams, and in my opinion Dimmitt could play with any of them.

The Bobcats had an experienced team, good outside shooting and a solid inside game.

And, they played defense. Their 2-3 zone didn't just sit back and wait for teams to shoot the ball over them, they made things happen.

And, they seemed to have one quality few high school teams possess ... they had great court awareness. It seemed every player on the floor knew what the other would do, and when he'd do it. It comes from experience.

Congratulations to local girls' players Sherri Ellis and Stephanie Foster.

They'll participate in the 13th Golden Spread High School All-Star game, which begins Thursday in Amarillo, in conjunction with the Converse National Women's Invitational Basketball Tournament at the Civic Center.

Both Hereford girls will be members of the Class 5A all star team, which will meet 2A all stars at 7 p.m. Ellis averaged 12.3 points and 7.6 rebounds this past season, while Foster averaged 13.6 points and 3.8 rebounds. Foster was a second-team all-district selection.

First-round games

NCAA, NIT set tonight

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP
Sports Writer

Matt Furjanic doesn't put his Robert Morris team up with the Indianas and Kentuckys of the college basketball world. But Georgia Southern, well, that's something else.

"Georgia Southern is a team we know we're competitive with," says Furjanic as he prepares for tonight's first-round NCAA playoff game in Dayton, Ohio.

Furjanic recalls a 66-63 loss to Georgia Southern in the consolation game of the Mountaineer Classic tournament in Charleston, W. Va., last December, and feels his team is better now.

"I think we're a lot different team now than we were then," he said. "We're a much better ballclub. The biggest key is that offensively we're getting the ball to different people, being unselfish. We were taking quick shots at that time. We've become a more patient team."

The Robert Morris-Georgia Southern game will be one of two at the Dayton Arena. In the other half of the doubleheader, Xavier of Ohio meets Alcorn State.

Another first-round NCAA doubleheader will be held in Philadelphia, with Princeton meeting North Carolina A&T and La Salle facing Boston University.

The winners of these preliminary rounds will advance to the first regular round of the NCAA tournament which begins Thursday.

The opening round of the 52-team NCAA tournament - biggest in history - was expanded by four to accommodate winners of smaller conferences. For instance, Robert Morris, 22-7, qualified for the second year in a row as a representative of the ECAC Metro Division.

The National Invitation Tournament also gets under way tonight with two games - Fordham at South Florida and East Tennessee State at Vanderbilt.

Last year, Robert Morris opened in the NCAA tournament against defending national champion Indiana and was routed 92-62. Furjanic feels the experience will help his team this time.

"We know what it's like," he said. "Last year, we were all in awe, the coaches and the players."

Georgia Southern, 18-11, earned its NCAA berth by winning the Trans America Conference championship. The winner of this game advanced to the Midwest Regionals Thursday at Tampa, Fla., against Purdue.

Xavier, 22-7, winner of the Midwestern Cities Conference, will play Alcorn State, 21-9, the Southwestern Athletic Conference champion for a trip to the Midwest regionals and a game Friday against Georgetown.

Boston University, 21-9, champion of the ECAC North, and LaSalle, 17-13, which won the East Coast Conference, both qualified with tight victories. BU beat Holy Cross by one point and LaSalle took American by two. The winner of their game advances to East regionals against Virginia Commonwealth Thursday at Greensboro, N.C.

Princeton, 18-8, champion of the Ivy League, and North Carolina A&T, 23-7, which took the Mid-East Athletic Conference, battle for the right to play Oklahoma State in the West Regionals at Corvallis, Ore., Friday.

Under Coach Lee Rose, South Florida is coming off its best season ever. The Bulls finished with a 21-9 record and lost out on a prestigious NCAA bid by bowing 64-47 to Alabama-Birmingham in the Sun Belt Conference Tournament finals.

Fordham, 19-10, finished with victories over Iona, Notre Dame and Stetson. Fordham enters the NIT on the wings of winning the Metro Atlantic Conference Tournament.

While the Bulls are seeking their first victory in post-season play, it's a different story for Rose, who is making his fourth NIT appearance. He captured NIT runner-up trophies at North Carolina Charlotte in 1976 and Purdue in 1979.

The NIT bid is the first for Vanderbilt, 18-13, which has competed in two NCAA tournaments, and the third for C.M. Newton, who took his Alabama teams to the NIT in 1973 and 1977, reaching the semifinals each time. East Tennessee State, 22-8, also is making its first NIT appearance.

"I hope we can sell out the gymnasium," Newton said. "It gives Nashville and Vanderbilt a chance to show the basketball interest it has to New York and to others nationally. And a positive showing of support will determine our team's attractiveness for national events in the future."

In a related development, Loyola (Ill.) Coach Gene Sullivan blasted the NCAA selection committee after his Ramblers were slighted for the second straight year by post-season tournament committees despite winning the Midwestern City Conference.

Boss can't complain

Yanks rout Bucs, 11-0

By The Associated Press

Even George Steinbrenner can't complain about this one.

In the past, the hard-to-please owner of the New York Yankees has taken exhibition games more seriously than his managers and players, especially those that were televised back to New York.

Monday night, the Yankees were on TV for the first time this spring and Ron Guidry and Dale Murray combined to pitch a no-hitter, an 11-0 rout of a split squad of Pittsburgh Pirates.

Another group of Pirates didn't fare much better against the New York Mets, managing only seven hits and bowing 8-1 as Hubie Brooks and Tom Verzyer doubled home two runs apiece in a five-run third inning. The Mets sent 10 batters to the plate against Ross Baumgarten in the big inning with eight getting hits.

The Atlanta Braves had some good news and some bad news in the pitching department. The number of casualties among the Braves' mound corps grew to four with the aching arms of Phil Niekro and Rick Camp, considered the team's two top starters.

Niekro, suffering from a sore shoulder, was taken out after pitching one inning on Sunday.

However, rookie right-hander Craig McMurtry extended his scoreless streak to 11 innings Monday, while Claudell Washington and Glenn Hubbard drove in two runs apiece in a 5-0 victory over the Texas Rangers.

McMurtry pitched the first five innings, holding the Rangers to three hits, walking none and striking out two. Only one Texas runner advanced as far as second base and McMurtry retired 10 batters in a row during one stretch.

The 6-foot-5 McMurtry, who was 17-9 with Richmond of the Class AAA International League last year, said he is trying not to think about making the jump to Atlanta.

Elsewhere, Ken Phelps hit two home runs against his former team as the Montreal Expos blasted the Kansas City Royals 12-2. Jim Rice drilled a solo homer, his fourth in seven games, pacing the Boston Red Sox to an 8-2 pounding of the Cincinnati Reds.

Mike Ivie had three hits, including a homer and game-winning single, to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 10-9 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Gary Ward drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Gary Gaetti's two-run homer capped a six-run fifth inning as the Minnesota Twins defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-5.

An eighth-inning double by Jesse Barfield drove in the winning run as the Toronto Blue Jays defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 and Dane Iorg and Orlando Sanchez hit home runs to power the St. Louis Cardinals to a 12-5 victory over the Houston Astros.

Mike Davis hit a two-run homer and Bob Kearney drove home two more with a double to lead the Oakland A's over the Chicago Cubs 9-1. Dan Gladden put San Francisco ahead with a run-scoring triple and Jeff Leonard belted a two-run homer in a fourth-inning rally that carried the Giants to an 11-7 victory over the California Angels. In a morning 'B' game, Max Venable had a homer and single off Angels starter Tommy John and the Giants won 5-3.

Ruppert Jones rapped a two-run single and Eric Show pitched three scoreless innings as the San Diego Padres defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-2. Paul Molitor homered in the Milwaukee Brewers' 4-1 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

HOF controversy rages

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

Monte Irvin is a great admirer of Enos (Country) Slaughter. Stan Musial has high regard for Horace Stoneham. Walter Alston would like to put in a vote for his old shortstop, Pee Wee Reese, and a rival, Marty Marion. Buck Leonard, one of the greats of the old Negro leagues, thinks the blacks still haven't had their just due and he puts in a plug for Willie Wills, a onetime shortstop with the Newark Eagles. George Kell also feels that shortstops, such as Phil Rizzuto, Marion and Reese, don't get their just due. On the theory that it takes one to know one, some of baseball's Hall of Famers, congregating in St. Petersburg last weekend, were lured into the seething controversy over what has been called discrimination against the "good glove" man as opposed to slugging and pitching stars. The question put to them was a simple one: "If you could pick someone not in the Hall of Fame who you think should be in but is not, whom would you pick?" "Pee Wee Reese and Phil Rizzuto," unhesitatingly replied Kell, the strong-hitting third baseman of the Detroit Tigers who was voted into the Hall of Fame last Thursday in his first year of eligibility for consideration by the Committee on Veterans. Reese was a Brooklyn Dodger and Rizzuto a Yankee. "Luis Aparicio of the Chicago White Sox is another very deserving candidate as is Glenn Wright, who many thought might make it this year. The shortstop is a solidifying force on any team. Take him out of the lineup and the club is in trouble." "I agree," said Alston, another member of the Hall of Fame's 1983 induction class, who managed the Dodgers to seven pennants and four World Series crowns on a year-to-year contract for 23 years.

"Pee Wee's value to us isn't fully shown in the stats (statistics). He was a great competitor. He could do a lot of things on and off the field and he was a great team leader. I roomed with Marion in the minors. He proved to be a great shortstop. So did Rizzuto." Stan Musial, elected in 1969 for his 22 productive years with the Cardinals, said Horace Stoneham, longtime owner of the Giants, should have a plaque in the Hall of Fame but he also joined in the growing groundswell for overlooked shortstops. He and Marion were teammates on the Cardinals. "The thinking is changing," Musial said. "There has been a tendency, because of so much media attention, to favor big hitters and strong pitchers, but defensive men are getting more attention. The defense does its job. The guys should get credit for it." Ralph Kiner, a 1975 inductee who hit 369 home runs, most of them for Pittsburgh, said players should be rewarded for their defensive as well as offensive talents. "Who can deny the contributions that Rizzuto and Reese made to those great Yankee and Dodger teams of the 1940s and 1950s?" he said. Irvin, inducted in 1973, agreed that a legitimate Hall of Fame should recognize players in all positions but had a special feeling for the tough, hard-playing Slaughter, a 19-year outfielder for the Cardinals touching three decades, a man who played in five World Series and had a career batting average of .300. "He was in the mold of Ty Cobb, Honus Wagner and Pete Rose," Irvin said. "He was a good fielder and was a terror on the bases. He had no fear whatever. He wasn't all that popular but he was a fine ballplayer." A mild tempest has been raised over the continual omission of Rizzuto, who played on nine Yankee World Series teams, had a lifetime batting average of .273 and was a constant bunt-and-steal threat batting just ahead of Joe DiMaggio. He hit .324 and won MVP honors in 1950. A member of the Veterans Committee was quoted anonymously last week as saying Phil would have been an ordinary shortstop on any team but the Yankees. This raised the hackles of Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, who threatened a Hall of Fame boycott. Word is that the Veterans Committee may name Rizzuto and Reese as a twin selection next year, when Pee Wee becomes eligible. That would be very nice.

Humble Federals, 20-3

L.A. Express rolling

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Every game in the United States Football League is a learning experience for the teams, and the Los Angeles Express seems to be catching on faster than most. The Express, featuring a solid defensive performance and two touchdown passes from Mike Rae to Ricky Ellis, ran its record to 2-0 Monday night with a 20-3 triumph over the winless Washington Federals. "We weren't dominant," said Express Coach Hugh Campbell. "We still have a lot of things to worry about. Our team is showing a lot of spirit, but we still have a long way to go academically." Considering the club has played just two games, the Express actually made few mistakes against Washington, suffering no interceptions, no lost fumbles, and drawing just five penalties for 44 yards. "We're still young and will make mistakes," said Rae, a pro veteran of nine years in the National Football League and Canadian Football League. "We have a long way to go. We don't know how good we are yet; we've won two games, but we don't know how good the other teams are." "I've been watching TV and trying to analyze the other teams in the league, but it's still too early to tell." Rae, quarterback on Southern California's national collegiate championship team in 1972, threw scoring strikes of 17 and 18 yards to tight end Ellis in a 35-second span of the second quarter to pull the Express away from a 3-3 tie.

He completed eight of 14 passes for 110 yards in the first half, then gave way to rookie Tom Ramsey — under Campbell's two-quarterback system — in the second half. Spearheading the Los Angeles defense against the Federals were safety Alvin Burleson, who logged seven solo tackles, one assist and one quarterback sack; and linebacker Ron Seawell, who was in on six tackles, deflected two passes and intercepted another. The Federals, who have scored just 10 points in their first two games, suffered a couple of blows to their offense in the first half. Running back Craig James went out with a sprained back, quarterback Mike Hohensee suffered a bruised sternum and wide receiver Reggie Smith hurt an ankle.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Okay, all of you high school seniors out there — and you all know who you are — you say your graduation picture makes you look like a convicted shoplifter? You say under student activities, all they listed was lunch? You say in the class history they called you Dan instead of Jan?

Take heart. I have before me a book by Dan Carlinsky called "Celebrity Yearbook" that I've blown a half day on. Inside are the graduation pictures of a couple of hundred celebrities as they appeared in their high school yearbooks. You're supposed to guess who they are. There are a lot of surprises (and hair colors) that could sustain your ego for 15 or 20 years.

Let's get the cheerleaders, princesses and queens out of the way first. They're born with congenital cuteness, pom-pom hands and there's nothing anyone can do about it. They never change, so let's get it over with: Ann-Margret, Cheryl Ladd, Shirley MacLaine, Sally Struthers, Cheryl Tiegs and Phyllis George.

Now, onto the graduates, some of whom were lucky to find their way out of the parking lot following graduation exercises.

Paul Newman ran a student laundry, Bella Abzug was a member of the Freshman Sing, Dolly Parton was a member of the Future Homemakers of America and Penny Marshall was an "Aide to Mr. Fitzpatrick" and aspired to become a secretary.

The man whose goal was to be president of the United States had to settle for Mel Brooks, comedic genius, while the part-time lifeguard at Dixon High in Dixon, Ill., turned out to be Ronald Reagan, president. Those are the breaks.

David Letterman fattened out his accomplishments with "hall monitor," Julia Child was a "Grass Cop" (and we all know what a future there is in that) and Pat Boone was chairman of the Courtesy Week Committee.

I tried to imagine as I read through the book who among all that talent would have leaped off the pages at me. Maybe Johnny Carson of Norfolk High, class of '43, who wrote the funniest class histories I've ever ready. ("I was turned down so many times for a date for the Junior Senior Banquet, I felt like a bedspread.")

Maybe Fred MacMurray from Beaver Dam, Wis., who was just plain handsome.

But most of them ... ordinary. They looked just like the pictures in your yearbooks ... young, apprehensive and wondering how they were going to unload the 200 billfold-size pictures that were left.

Members discuss annual plant sale

Members of the Hereford Garden Club met Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Clinton Jackson. Mrs. Edgar Vinson was welcomed as a visitor.

Members discussed the annual plant sale to be held in April and a wild flower tour scheduled April 22.

Mrs. H.R. Cocanougher spoke about gladiolas. She stated that bulbs should be planted deep in early spring and then additional bulbs should be planted every two or three weeks for continuous color throughout the summer.

She suggested that bulbs should be soaked in Lysol water before planting to keep down disease (one tablespoon to a gallon of water).

Mrs. John Jacobsen spoke on "Espaliered Plants," noting that fruit trees or vines may be used. "You should start to train the plant no older than one year; and after plants reach the desired size, it is helpful to use root pruning," she said.

Mrs. R.L. Wilson told members "How to Attract Birds." She noted that it is helpful to have bright plants and added that large birds like sunflower seeds. In the winter she wraps suet and grain in cheesecloth and hangs it on a tree.

Other members attending were Mmes. Edgar Lemons, W.C. Hromas, Ben Childers, O.G. Hill Sr., Brenda Campbell, David Grounsnick, Alfred Smith, R.L. Ethridge, and Dyal Garner.

House gives tentative OK to limit on elections

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House has given its tentative OK to a measure that should prevent the state from losing $300 million in federal highway funds.

Federal officials threatened to shut off the money if Texas did not pass a new truck weight limit law by April 30. Rep. Charles Fennell's bill would make the limits — now enforced only outside city limits — apply to state highways within city limits.

The House, in a voice vote, approved Fennell's bill on Monday. The measure faces final approval before going to senators.

Fennell, D-Holliday, wants the Department of Public Safety and sheriff's deputies to enforce the limits in cities. The House, however, voted down Dallas Rep. Al Granoff's amendment to allow enforcement by local police in cities with greater than 50,000 population.

There was no floor opposition to the Fennell bill.

Also Monday, the House tentatively approved a bill that would force governors to call special elections only for Tuesdays and Saturdays.

Rep. Paul Colbert's bill resurrects a 1981 measure approved by the House and Senate but vetoed by then-Gov. Bill Clements.

The Colbert bill, which faces final approval before going to the Senate, also requires the governor to specify the nature of the emergency that forces an election on a date other than the four days designated by state law.

Colbert, D-Houston, said he added the emergency declaration requirement "to discourage frivolous ignoring" of the four special election dates.

"I don't like the proliferation of elections we've had. I think it discourages people from voting," he said.

In 1980, a special legislative election called for a Thursday drew only 7 percent of the voters. Some voters mistakenly went to the polls on Saturday, according to a House report.

There was no floor opposition to the Colbert bill, which won tentative approval on voice vote.

Rep. Jim Turner, D-Crockett, won tentative approval Monday of a measure giving judges the right to decide whether a "legally blind" Texan can be barred from a jury. Turner said the bill would "eliminate discrimination against the legally blind."

Under current law, lawyers can keep blind people off juries. The Turner bill, which won tentative OK on voice vote, gives judges in criminal and civil cases the final say on blind jurors.

Meteorite may have come from Mars

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — University of Minnesota researchers say they've detected apparent traces of Martian gas in a meteorite found in Antarctica, which would make it the first object from another planet known to reach Earth.

"Personally, I don't think there is any other explanation right now: This meteorite came from Mars," said Robert Pepin, the physicist who heads the study team.

However, Pepin said other scientists still may be skeptical and call for more study of the 17-pound rock. The university's findings will be reported this week at the 14th Lunar and Planetary Science Conference in Houston.

Scientists had suspected the iron-rich meteorite came from Mars, since it is much younger than the common types of meteorite that chip from asteroids and fall to Earth. But until the Minnesota team found gas traces in the rock unique to Mars, all evidence of a Martian origin had been circumstantial.

University researchers worked from a small sliver of the rock, which was discovered three years ago and is currently stored at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

Pepin, a nationally recognized meteorite expert, and his colleagues analyzed sand-size particles scraped from the rock. Using heat up to 2,700 degrees Fahrenheit, they "cooked out" the gases from the particles, he said.

The researchers said they found that the meteorite is rich in "heavy nitrogen," which the unmanned Viking spacecraft also found in the Martian atmosphere when it landed on the planet in 1976.

Mars is only planet in the solar system known to have a high concentration of heavy nitrogen, Pepin said.

Crew cleans up chemical leak

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Shell Chemical Co. crisis crew has cleaned up a pool of lethal insecticide after ferreting out a "very small crack" that had allowed the toxic material to seep out of a barrel on a truck, authorities say.

A stretch of Interstate 10 was closed and about 30 houses were evacuated in a square-mile area early Sunday after a truck driver noticed fluid dripping from the back of his rig.

The poisonous material — which authorities said was similar in composition to nerve gas — was cleaned up by early Monday afternoon and residents were allowed to return home, according to Bexar County Sheriff's Lt. Alvin Johnson.

The two-man Shell crew from Mobile, Ala., wearing special suits and breathing equipment, discovered the crack Monday in one of 127 barrels aboard the truck, Shell spokesman Bill Gibson said.

"We have found one barrel that was leaking," Gibson said. "It had a very small crack. Without physically unloading the truck, that's what we came up with."

The crisis crew used "overpack barrels" to seal up contaminated material, Gibson said.

"Anything that might be contaminated — rags, brooms, barrels, soda acid — will be put in the overpack barrels for safety reasons," he said.

Roy Hall of Albany, Ga., said he noticed the leaking fluid when he parked his rig at a truck stop between San Antonio and Houston.

"When I saw it, I just turned right back around and headed for the phone," he said.

Hall said he was warned when he picked up the chemicals that they could have the same effects as nerve gas.

Hall's rig was carrying 127 30-gallon barrels of the agricultural insecticide Phosdrin from a plant in Axis, Ala., to Rinchem Co. in Phoenix, Ariz., Shell spokesman Peter Fisher said.

Phosdrin, Fisher said, could be hazardous to anyone exposed to a high concentration of its vapors.

Six people were overcome by fumes while trying to clean up the spill, but none seriously.

Gibson said the barrels would be taken back to the plant in Alabama.

"For safety purposes, we'll take all of the barrels and look at them very carefully," he said. "We don't know yet why that barrel had the crack in it or how it may have happened."

After eyeing some recent primaries, the thought occurs that the best candidates are running from office.

THAT'S TELLING IT LIKE IT IS!

"Sir," said an expert in religious law who was standing there. "You have insulted my profession too, in what you just said."
"Yes," said Jesus, "the same horrors await you! For you crush men beneath impossible demands—demands that you yourselves would never think of trying to keep."
"Woe to you! For you are exactly like your ancestors who killed the prophets long ago. Murderers! You agree with your fathers that what they did was right—you would have done the same yourselves."
"This is what God says about you: 'I will send prophets and apostles to you, and you will kill some of them and chase away the others.' And you of this generation will be held responsible for the murder of God's servants from the founding of the world—from the murder of Abel to the murder of Zechariah who perished between the altar and the sanctuary. Yes, it will surely be charged against you."
"Woe to you experts in religion! For you hide the truth from the people. You won't accept it for yourselves, and you prevent others from having a chance to believe it."
The Pharisees and legal experts were furious; and from that time on they plied Him fiercely with a host of questions, trying to trap Him into saying something for which they could have Him arrested.

Texas world parrot-smuggling capital

By NANCY STANCILL
Houston Chronicle
HOUSTON (AP) — In a town along the Mexican border not long ago, U.S. Customs agents stopped a stout, middle-aged woman when they observed a strange fluttering in the ample folds of her blouse.
"The demand here is staggering," adds Klein, a special agent for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. "But people just can't seem to get enough of the birds anywhere."

And though the two agents can smile about the woman who tried to smuggle the bird in her cleavage, they are deeply concerned about the upsurge in smuggling, because they believe the public is unaware of the economic and health hazards. Also, they say, organized crime is beginning to tap the lucrative bird-smuggling market and the instances of large-scale parrot smuggling are on the rise.
"It's been suggested that bird smuggling is as profitable as marijuana smuggling," says Charles Conroy, a spokesman for Customs, which estimates that at least 10,000 parrots are brought into the United States illegally each year.
No one knows how many come into Texas, but agents believe that the number of parrots confiscated by Customs yearly in the southwest region (Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arizona and part of Louisiana) is only a fraction of the number smuggled. Customs confiscated 216 parrots in 1980 and 668 in 1981. Last year's total of 405 birds may reflect a shift in manpower to other enforcement priorities, says Conroy. Friend and Klein, who once concentrated exclusively on investigating parrot cases, now have added responsibilities.

The two men are worried about a decrease in efforts to halt parrot smuggling. "One of these days we may see an incredible outbreak in Newcastle disease that could destroy every chicken, duck and pigeon in Texas," says Klein.
Parrots can carry exotic Newcastle disease, an outbreak of which destroyed 12 million birds, mostly laying hens, in southern California in 1971-74. Eradicating the disease, which spreads quickly among birds, cost the government $56 million, mostly in payments to chicken farmers whose fowl had to be destroyed. The infected parrots came from South America. Parrots also can carry psittacosis, a flu-like disease transmissible to humans.
For these reasons, people who wish to import a Psittacine or hookbilled bird must make advance arrangements with the U.S. government, reserving a space at one of nine quarantine facilities for 30 days to ensure that the parrot is free of disease. The hefty $80 cost tends to encourage smuggling.

Klein says smugglers hawk their birds "at fast-food restaurants along the border, in newspaper ads" and through unscrupulous pet shop operators.
Friend says parrot smuggling goes hand-in-hand with illegally transporting other items, such as drugs, because the smuggler usually has conveyances such as airplanes or boats that must be kept working so they can pay for themselves.
"We recently picked up a man in Austin who had 18 parrots, two ounces of cocaine, $1,700 in funny money and a bunch of dirty pictures," Friend says.
Similarly, he recalls, hundreds of dead parrots were found floating alongside bales of marijuana near a capsized boat abandoned by smugglers two years ago.
Klein and Friend say they have seen attempts to smuggle the birds in such containers as ice cream freezers, diaper pails, oil tanks and between trailer loads of Mexican brick. In border towns, smugglers have brazenly floated rafts of bird cages across the Rio Grande in broad daylight.
The chain of profit, they say, is almost unbelievable.
"A man buys a parrot from a Mexican farmer for $8," Conroy says. "It's sold in the village for $18. It's smuggled into the U.S. for $50. It's sold wholesale to a pet shop for $200 and it retails for $400 or $500 or more."
Most of the birds coming into Texas are from Mexico and range greatly in retail value, but some sell for $3,000 or more. One parrot, an Imperial Amazon found only on certain Caribbean Islands, would fetch $65,000, Friend says.

Mexican profiteers, he says, will "knock parrot nests right out of the tree, destroying nine out of 10 babies. A tremendous amount of birds is being destroyed."
Many birds die en route, Friend says, because "they have weak respiratory systems and stress out easily."
Friend and Klein believe that the problem will keep escalating until the public and the judges in parrot cases realize its seriousness. Many smugglers receive probation, they say, and promptly arrange to bring in another load. Cases are difficult to prove, because it's often hard to tell the birds apart and establish that they were smuggled. But the men say they'll keep trying, partly because they've come to care about the parrots' welfare.

"You have to see them as babies," says Friend. "They all huddle together and they're very curious and tame. It's a shame what happens to them."

Burning garbage ignites opposition

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Burning garbage to produce energy once kindled the imagination of civic leaders as a solution to the mounting problems of urban solid waste disposal and scarce energy. Now it is igniting opposition across the country.

Last November, voters in at least two cities blocked construction of new recovery plants. Technical failures and financial problems plague many other completed plants.

"Resource recovery has a miserable record in this country of cost overruns, technical breakdowns and environmental problems," said Mimi Roberts, a member of the Berkeley (Calif.) Solid Waste Management Board and a proponent of a successful initiative that slapped a five-year moratorium on any garbage incinerator in the city.

"We kept looking for examples of a system that worked, to be some sort of model," she said. "We were hard pressed."

But manufacturers of garbage-to-energy plants still insist more will be built, as cities, particularly large ones, realize they have no other way to get rid of garbage.

"They make an energy source out of a nuisance product," said John Kehoe, of Wheelabrator-Frye Inc., a New Hampshire-based manufacturer of the plants. "And they're not violating the earth, as landfills (do)."

However, besides Berkeley, proponents have lost a battle recently in Oregon City, Ore., a Portland suburb, where voters blocked municipal plans for such a plant. And in New York, where city officials plan at least five resource recovery plants, angry citizens turned out at public meetings last year to protest placement of plants in their neighborhoods.

Unlike ordinary incinerators, resource recovery plants use heat from incineration to generate steam. The steam can be used either for heat or for propelling turbines to generate electricity.

But despite the criticisms, the environmental opposition is not united.

"None of the big national environmental groups has taken a position one way or the other, because resource recovery is an alternative to landfilling, which we're all opposed to," Ms. Roberts said.

Still, opponents of resource recovery cite some troublesome technical and financial history to support their case. They tick off failure after failure:

—In Bridgeport, Conn., a resource recovery plant closed in 1981 when its operator, Combustion Equipment Associates, Inc., could no longer pay its bills.

—In Hempstead, N.Y., a plant operated by Parson Whittemore Co. closed in 1980 because of serious odor problems and the discovery of dioxin, a hazardous chemical, in its stack emissions.

—In Eugene, Ore., county officials refused to accept a plant built by Allis-Chalmers Corp., until the company made a cash settlement. Officials said the plant's high ash output made its fuel unmarketable.

—Emissions from plants in Nashville, Tenn., and Saugus, Mass., failed to meet air pollution standards until expensive corrections were made in the late 1970s.

—Plants in Akron, Ohio; Chicago; Milwaukee; Tacoma, Wash., and Baltimore have faced difficulties ranging from low heat recovery to lack of cleanliness.

"They failed for technical, legal and financial reasons," said Neil Seldman of the Washington-based Institute for Local Self-Reliance. "As a result, we don't have much burning of garbage going on."

When discussing the success rate of resource recovery plants, some authorities distinguish between plant types. Some plants work better than others and many of the smaller plants are operating without major problems, federal officials say.

Two major processes have been used in this country's resource recovery plants.

The most common shreds garbage and sorts it, pulling out the burnable part to create a "refuse-derived fuel." It has been plagued by problems.

The second process, known as mass burning, simply feeds unsorted garbage onto a grate for burning. Nearly all of the 16 plants across the country listed by the U.S. Conference of Mayors as in the advanced planning stages would use this technique.

"Mass burning has a much higher success rate than anything else," Seldman said. "The Canadian government has even stopped research on refuse-derived fuel. It doesn't work."

Proponents, discounting past and present failures, say mass burning plants will prove the reliability and safety of resource recovery.

"These are the latest in technology, and they're environmentally safe," said Kehoe of Wheelabrator-Frye. "They make good neighbors."

John Charles, executive director of the Oregon Environmental Council, agrees that time is on the resource recovery industry's side. "The garbage has to go some somewhere," he said.

The future of resource recovery may depend on educating people to accept garbage burners as an alternative to landfills, viewed as environmentally unsound because of possible leaching of hazardous wastes into groundwater.

"People have been saying for the last 10 years that the industry is going to take off," said Christopher Kouts, a program manager in the Energy Department's resource recovery division. "It has never happened. But we're seeing projects happening nonetheless."

4-H First Hand

4-H similar to family group

BY PENNY REINART
County Extension Agent

Being a family member is like a delicate balancing act. A lot of personalities have to be considered at once — the special interests and feelings of parents, children, relatives and other people in the community. These are important things to always take into consideration.

The people who you go to school with or even work with share these same characteristics of a family. These are the people who can give you a sense of counting for something or a sense of worthlessness. This sense of belonging is good for you, and it can be devastating to your moral, self-esteem and attitudes when you do not receive it.

I point out the importance of receiving this from your school friends and people you work with as well as your family, because a larger majority of one's time is spent with these peer groups rather than with one's family.

It is important to select your peer groups, outside of your family, carefully because these close relationships can give you an important outlet for your feelings. Good feelings are more joyous and bad feelings less depressing when you can freely express them to people who care.

4-H is an organization of just this type of support peer group. It can offer motivation, fun, awards and knowledge. Call 364-3573 and get involved in 4-H!!

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Garrison to attend McMurry board meeting

S.L. Garrison of Hereford, a member of the McMurry College Board of Trustees, has been invited to Abilene this week for the college's annual Bennett-Willson Lectures and fall meeting of the board.

Dr. Thomas Kim, McMurry College president, will play host to the 65 members of the board on Thursday and Friday.

The featured speaker for this year's Bennett-Willson Lectures will be Dr. Harry Haines, chief executive for the United Methodist Committee on Relief, an organization which administers aid to foreign countries to help relieve poverty and hunger. He will speak twice Thursday in McMurry's Radford Auditorium, at 9:30 a.m. and 8 p.m.

The various committees of the board will meet throughout the day Thursday. A trustee-faculty dinner is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. that evening in the United Methodist Campus Center. A general session is set for 10 a.m. Friday morning.

The members of the board will be considering an operating budget for McMurry's 1983-84 school year. They will also be developing methods to help the college raise funds for a $1.5 million remodeling project, planned for next spring.

The 65-member board is made of prominent businessmen, United Methodist ministers and lay leaders from throughout the Northwest Texas and New Mexico Conferences of the United Methodist Church, which owns and operates the college. The Board meets twice a year.

Although most starfish have five rays, some have six or more. Twelve-armed species have been taken in the Gulf of Mexico.

Ann Landers

Concerned about publicity

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to say a few words about the world's oldest profession — as a former lady of the evening put it.

I was extremely upset to learn that here in Los Angeles a new procedure will be followed along the same lines as the one in New York. The law enforcement agency plans to release to the press the names of the men who visit prostitutes. They claim it has helped reduce the number of crimes connected with that profession.

Several members of the media say, however, there is no point in naming the prostitutes because they are "beyond embarrassment."

I believe no one is beyond embarrassment. Furthermore, the real victims of such publicity would be the families and business associates of the men who are caught with prostitutes. It could be extremely humiliating and damaging. Will you comment on this social issue that will surely be the center of much controversy soon? — What Next, For Heaven's Sake?

meone as "homely." In fact, you used the word in your answer.

Who among us has the right to decide who is homely and who is beautiful? How are these standards set? Each individual has his own idea of beauty and homeliness based on notions formed in early childhood. For example, I think Barbara Streisand is one of the most beautiful women who ever lived. My mother disagrees with me vehemently.

I believe you owe every homely person in the world an apology. — Grand Junction, Colo.

DEAR GRAND: By apologizing to all the homely people in the world I would be putting them in a category you say does not exist.

The first part of your letter was fine. You should have quit when you were ahead. Beauty, I agree, is indeed in the eye of the beholder.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Christmas is long gone, but I am still bugged by something that happened in the home of old friends, and I need to unload on someone.

My husband and I dropped by on Christmas eve. Under their tree were three gifts for their new puppy — beautifully wrapped. The tags read, "To Bowser with love, Mum and Dad." I nearly threw up.

What on earth is wrong with people who do things like that? Surely they know dogs can't read. And going to all the trouble of gift-wrapping for an animal makes them look like idiots. Please comment. — Steamed Stella in Short Hills, In. J.J.

DEAR S.S.: Obviously you are not a pet lover and I'm not going to turn you into one, but people who care deeply about animals feel that they are very nearly human. Their carrying on has nothing to do with you, so cool it, Lady.

In Yugoslavian tradition, a couple's oldest relative enters a new household first, bearing traditional gifts of bread and salt.

The soil carried down and spread out at the mouth of a river is called a delta because its triangular shape resembles the 4th letter of the Greek alphabet, called delta.
