Board Studies Juvenile Post Applications

By MARSHALL DAY

The seven-man juvenile officer screening board, meeting for the first time Tuesday night, appointed Lowell Sharp chairman of the group and reviewed seven applications for the juvenile officer position.

"I don't think we need to jump right into this hiring, because it would be the worst thing we could do at this time with just this many applications in," Sharp said.

"We will just hold off until a later date and see if we receive any more applications."

Sharp said that while the quality of the applications received so far was very good, "the perfect man might not have written an application yet but may do so soon."

The group, consisting of two members of the city commission, county commission, and the school board, along with County Judge H. C. Williams, discussed the possibility of hiring another deputy who would be assigned only to the juveniles, but they did not reach an agreement on that matter.

"The man we hire will need to have the understanding of what his duties will be," Sharp said. "If he can't get out and work with these kids we don't need him. If he is just going to hold 'prayer meetings' with the kids once a week and that is all, we don't need him."

"We need someone to go to their meetings, dances, baseball games and so forth and get involved with their activities," he said.

"What we need," said Earl Holt, "is someone with some law enforcement experience, someone interested in the youth activities and someone you would trust your boy or girl with."

The group agreed that the officer would need to be deputized and that he should be responsible to the county commissioners, who, in turn, would act as a go-between from the board to the officer.

"We need to let this man know he will be able to meet with anyone when he wishes to discuss anything pertaining to his job," Dudley Bayne said.

Under the proposed set-up, the officer would be able to approach the screening board for advice.

"The commissioners court and the officer would have the privilege to counsel with these three organizations, not necessarily members of this screening board, but with officials in any capacity connected with these organizations," Bayne said.

Though most of the board members were in agreement throughout the meeting that a juvenile officer was needed, Bayne continually said he did not feel there was justification for such an office.

"As I have said from the very start, we don't need a juvenile officer," Bayne said.

Bayne did agree with the idea of hiring another police officer or deputy and assign him to work only with juveniles, but the board deferred any action on the names of selection.

New Population Count Costs Cancer Award

The preliminary Census report showing an increase in population for Deaf Smith County has cost the local American Cancer Society chapter an achievement award.

Officials of the local Cancer Society group, after having conducted the most fruitful drive for funds ever in this county, were under the impression they would receive a Crusade Golden Achievement Award.

When they were announced at the annual district meeting at Borger last Friday, however, Deaf Smith County was not among the winners. The awards for exceeding the state goal of 38 cents per capita and reaching an all-time high amount of funds went to Hansford, Ochiltree, Sherman, Gray and Dalhart-Hartley counties.

Deaf Smith County met the goal on the basis of the population on which the local organization was planning its drive, but the district came up with a higher population figure after the preliminary Census figures were released and the county therefore was not judged eligible for the award.

Mrs. Hilton Higgins and Mrs. Ansel McDowell from Hereford attended the district meeting. They were among about 50 delegates. Larry Fuller of Borger and formerly of Hereford, as the district director, presided.

Fuller called the meeting "extremely successful. It was one of the best district meetings held in recent years." He said the majority of units over the district were represented.

The district set as a goal for next year the organization of Cancer Crusade chapters in counties in the district which now have no drives. District officials urged the representatives from the various county chapters that fall in this category.

Dr. H. J. Sannan, vice president for area medical affairs of the Western Division of the American Cancer Society, told the delegates "extremely effective" treatments in the forms of surgery and drugs are now being used in the fight against cancer.

This era has seen the peak of what surgery can do for cancer patients, Dr. Sannan said.

"We are limited to how many and how much of the body's organs we can remove," he said. "But the Denver medical expert said 25 to 30 drug treatments are in use now and researchers are experimenting with many others."

"We are further along toward a cure for cancer now than we have been any time in my life," he said, describing the search for a cure to the disease as "a massive jigsaw puzzle without a picture. We have laid the border and are now slowly coming to the more difficult area of the center."

COLUMBIA DRIVE IS BEING PAVED — Jake Diel's paving crew Wednesday set about paving Columbia Drive, which serves the new Tierra Blanca Elementary School in south Hereford.

Paving Starts On Street To School

By CHARLES RICHARDS
News Editor

Work began Wednesday morning on putting down paving, curb and gutter on Columbia Drive, the road that will provide the primary access to the new Tierra Blanca Elementary School.

City Manager Dudley Bayne said the paving is expected to be completed next week.

Also being paved is a short, one-half block segment of Hillcrest Drive that will provide a complete street into Columbia Drive.

A. N. Hopson is paying for the paving, curbs and gutters, under an agreement of several years ago when he sold 15 acres of land to the School Board for $1,500 an acre. It is on that land that Tierra Blanca Elementary School sits.

Hopson had asked for the permission to get only "strip" paving—paving without curb and gutter—on part of Columbia Drive, but the City Commission decided after some discussion to remain in line with its policy of requiring curb and gutter on all city streets.

To help Hopson's financial situation in paying for the work, however, the city agreed to buy about six acres of land from Hopson, and the school and contractor Jake Diel both agreed to buy one lot each.

The city's six lots—just across the street from the new school—will be made into a city park as soon as the money is available to do so, Bayne said. The school board, although expressing reluctance to get into the "real estate business," bought its land for the time being, with the intention of selling it whenever convenient.

The School Board agreed to buy the lot in a special meeting Monday morning and the City Commission had offered to purchase land in its regular meeting about 10 days ago. As soon as the School Board took its action Monday morning, a contract was quickly signed by Hopson, Diel and representatives of the school and city.

"The contract was signed. Hopson had asked for the permission to get only 'strip' paving—paving without curb and gutter—on part of Columbia Drive, but the City Commission decided after some discussion to remain in line with its policy of requiring curb and gutter on all city streets."

They started the curb and gutter this morning. Everything is fine and ready to go," Bayne said Wednesday.

The cooperative efforts that resulted in Monday's signing of the contract and the prompt beginning of work on the road brought sighs of relief to many, especially school officials who want very much for the opening of Tierra Blanca to come off without a hitch.

"Everything has worked out real fine," Supt. Roy Hartman said.

Among the alternatives was the paving, with curb and gutter, adjacent to the school and strip paving along an 800-foot section of Columbia Drive west of the school toward U. S. 385.

There also had been the possibility—one that no one wanted—that the city would have to order the land paved by levying an assessment. With this alternative, officials were aware of the possibility of subsequent appeals in court that would mean a possible delay of up to two years before the street could be paved.

The work on Tierra Blanca Elementary School itself is in the final stages.

The carpeting is expected to be completed by Friday. After that, only the routine cleanup work and installation of some of the kitchen equipment will remain.

On the outside of the school, a parking area must be paved. Diel also has the contract for that work, and probably will pave it while he is doing the work on Columbia Drive.

The classroom furniture itself will not be installed until after the School Board approves and formally accepts the building. Some of it has arrived and the rest is expected to come before Aug. 1.

The School Board's final inspection of the building and acceptance of it is expected possibly in mid-July, Hartman said.

City Suffers Setback On Litter Program

The city's hope to have permanent litter containers placed down in some residential alleys this summer has been stifled for the time being.

The containers were to be similar to those in the downtown area, only smaller.

"The company in Lubbock that was making them for us was destroyed in the tornado," City Manager Dudley Bayne said Wednesday. The local representative for another company interested in getting into the act was killed this month in an automobile accident.

Bayne had pointed out in March that the Lubbock company was making the litter containers for Hereford and several other cities, and the delivery date depended on when the manufacturer could make them available.

Under the plan, the permanent litter containers were to be three cubic yards in volume, with hinged lids fixed in such a way that children would be able to open them and deposit trash. Their size and weight would be enough "that we wouldn't have the problem any more of overturned barrels and lost lids," Bayne said.

When the litter containers finally arrive, they will be placed close enough together in residential alleys that no one would have to walk farther than the width of his yard to get to one.

The program of putting the containers throughout Hereford was to cost approximately $1,000 a year for the four years it is expected to take to cover the city.

Walcott Seeks Board, New Tax Status

The proposal to convert Walcott Common School District to an Independent School District will be put before the residents of the Walcott school district Friday in an election at the school building.

Voters will vote at the school building between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. Friday. To vote in the election, a person does not have to be a property owner, but must live within the boundaries of the school district.

Approximately 50 persons attended a meeting Tuesday night at the school to discuss the switching over of the school district, to where it would assume the same authorities of an independent district.

Bill Phillips, secondary coordinator for the Hereford Independent School District, said the only major difference between the present school system at Walcott and the one they are seeking is that its authority would be widened and it would not be tied to the county through tax valuation.

"There is a maximum rate and a common school district is under the jurisdiction of the county board," Phillips said. "All of their (Walcott) taxes are collected by the county and based on the county tax valuation."

Should the voters elect to convert to an independent school district, they would then be able to set their own tax rate. Also under the change, the school would be dealing more directly with the state agency instead of the county and all reports by the school would not have to be approved by the county school board.

"They will have to have a board of trustees of seven members," Phillips said. He added they would not necessarily have to hire a superintendent, as such, but the principal of the school could be designated one though his salary would not increase.

"In certain limits they would not have as complete authority as a large school district, but the school board of trustees would have more authority in conducting their own affairs," Phillips said.

Accidents, Shooting Kill 3 In Hereford

An accidental shooting and two vehicle accidents over the weekend claimed the lives of two Hereford residents and one Lamesa man and injured five other persons.

Killed were: —David G. Lopez, of Lamesa, 36, who died Saturday evening in a two-car collision south of Hereford.

—Curtis L. Russell, 66, who died Monday morning when the tractor he was driving overturned and crushed him, and, —Jose Antonio Ramirez, 21, who died Sunday morning from a wound received when he was accidentally shot in the chest.

Injured in the two-vehicle accident Saturday were Mrs. Juana Vasaldua, 59; Flora Estella

Ruiz, 15; Mrs. Mary M. Rodriguez, 20; Mrs. Jess Osuna, 49; and Mrs. Nativida Ruiz, 38.

Mrs. Osuna and Mrs. Ruiz were taken to High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo where they were reported in satisfactory condition. The other three were treated and released at Deaf Smith County Hospital.

Investigating Highway Patrolman Don Hendrix said the car driven by Lopez was traveling west on a dirt road and failed to stop at a stop sign on U. S. 385 south of Hereford and collided with the other vehicle.

Both vehicles overturned and Lopez was pronounced dead at the scene by County Judge Hank Williams.

Ramirez was dead on arrival at Deaf Smith County Hospital following an accidental shooting at 706 Knight around 9:30 a. m. Sunday.

According to police reports, Ramirez and another man were "fooling around" with a .22-caliber rifle when the gun accidentally discharged, striking Ramirez in the chest.

Reports said several other people were in the house at the time of the accident, and they told Ramirez to stop playing with the rifle.

Russell, an employee of the county road maintenance crew, was mowing weeds along the highway a quarter of a mile south of Hereford when his tractor overturned and pinned him beneath it. He was taken to Deaf Smith County Hospital where he died a short time later.

Terry Hulsey, with Russell at the time of the accident, told investigating officers Russell was going south when he attempted to pull off to the side of the road, and the tractor overturned.

Funeral services for Lopez were pending with Branon Funeral Home in Lamesa.

Services for Ramirez were conducted Tuesday in St. Anthony's Catholic Church with the Rev. Michael Graham officiating.

Burial was in St. Anthony's Catholic Cemetery under the direction of Gilliland Funeral Home.

Ramirez came to Hereford in 1955 from Rankin. He was a laborer and a member of the Catholic church.

He is survived by his mother and father, four brothers and two sisters.

Services for Russell were conducted Wednesday at Greenwood Baptist Church where he was a member. Burial was in El Paso.

He came to Hereford from Fort Worth in 1969.

He is survived by his wife, Essie Bell of Hereford; one son, Chirles, of Fort Worth; two brothers, Jess of Hereford and D. W. of El Paso; and one sister, Mrs. Faye Brownlow of Hereford.

ful such flights would be to them. This would involve about $6,400 in cost.

Local officials admitted frankly they have never before heard of such a program, where pictures taken more than a half mile in the air could show disease in individual plants below. But they indicated their desire to go along with a test on the chance that it would.

Bob Ginn, agricultural manager for Holly Sugar, was tabbed as the coordinator for the program. Crop dusting and chemical firms represented at the meeting indicated their interest in the venture and said they would back it financially.

Various agricultural associations were to contact Ginn and indicate the extent to which they would be willing to back the program. If several of the associations joined the movement, the cost per member would be in the range of $1 to $2.

"We have heard from Dr. David Rosenberg, who is head of the plant pathology department at Texas A&M, and he said

A&M is willing to give their support to this program," Ginn said Wednesday. "At the present time we do not have the financing finalized. A&M will give consulting help and they will stand part of the cost which is involved to them. Their people will be up here supervising and helping to read these films and correlating ground work to the film."

Officials of Remote Sensing, Inc., a firm with offices in Houston and Oklahoma City, said they can not guarantee the success of the venture because the pictures have never been taken before to show disease in sugar beet crops.

The pictures have been used on other kinds of crops for crop identification and inventory, plant disease inspection and irrigation planning, however, with excellent success, however, they said. The pictures also have been used in petroleum and mining, pipeline construction and inspection, electric power generation and transmission, oceanography, urban development and land use, and forestry.

"There is a risk at it not developing the information we need, but it's a risk we need to take," a plant pathologist told the Hereford area farmers.

"We're talking about these pictures detecting the plant disease 10 to 14 days before we could see it by naked eye, as opposed to its detection three years before the naked eye can notice it in forestry," he said. "What we're interested in is whether this will make it possible to detect plant disease

Poarch Brothers On Same Ship

Lewis and Wayne Poarch, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Poarch 213 Fuller, are serving as officers in the Navy aboard the same ship, the USS Henry W. Tucker.

Lewis has served on the destroyer since March, 1967 and his brother transferred to the ship June 9, 1970. Wayne had been serving aboard the oiler, the USS Cacapon.

The ship they are serving on now is stationed off the coast of Cambodia and will return to the states in August.

early enough that we can say, 'It's time to spray.' That's what we're looking at, and that's why we should take the risk."

A representative of one crop dusting company asked that the local officials not commit themselves to Remote Sensing, Inc. He said he had a camera he could use in his crop dusting plane and take quality infrared pictures at a much lower cost than offered by the other company.

Partnership Golf Tournament Set

The annual Hereford Partnership Golf Tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday, with a field of more than 40 teams to compete for the title.

Through Wednesday, 36 teams had registered for the two-day tourney, and assistant pro Terry Albracht said more are expected before the Friday deadline.

Entry fee is $30 per two-man team and each team will be flighted according to combined handicap. The two-man team cannot have more than a five stroke spread in handicap Albracht said.

"We are still lacking teams in the championship flight," Albracht said, "because there have only been six teams registered so far."

Jimmy Young and Mike Holder are defending champions of the tournament and will be challenged by Jerry Hrciar and Jimmy Holmes and Dick and Mack Tubbs.

"These other two teams are real strong and should give the defending champions a run," Albracht said.

A shotgun start has not been scheduled for Saturday because of the conflict with the Coaches All-America football game at Lubbock. Teams may play their rounds any time Saturday and

REVERSE TAX

CHICAGO — Family income maintenance, considered to be a financial alternative to public assistance and other aid programs, may be put into effect within the year.

W. Bowman Cutter, special assistant to Ben W. Heineman who was chairman of the federal Commission on Income Maintenance Program, says the method is considered to be a revolutionary social welfare concept.

Sometimes called the "reverse income tax," it would provide for payment of funds to families and individuals when their income drops below a certain level considered necessary for the maintenance of basic human needs.

STEINBERG RECOVERED
PITTSBURGH — William Steinberg, 71, fully recovered from an illness for which he was hospitalized in January, returned to conduct the Pittsburgh Symphony in two of its three final programs of the season.

Steinberg, who is music director for both the Pittsburgh and Boston Symphony orchestras, will conduct both during the summer. He will conduct the three opening concerts of the Temple University Music Festival in Ambler, Pa., where the Pittsburgh Symphony will be in residence for six weeks. And at the Berkshire Music Festival in Tanglewood, he will conduct the Boston Symphony in six summer concerts honoring the 200th birthday of the birth of Beethoven.

LONDON'S SUPERMICE
LONDON — Supermice, reportedly tougher than the super-rats already identified on the Welsh border, have been noted in London.

These mice, increasingly resistant to the poison Warfarin, invaded Westminster Palace and it took two years with a new poison to bring them under control. But public health officials have been beset by calls for help from hotels, food factories, hospitals and private homes — more than at any time in 25 years.

Mice, which can nibble at 200 different food sources in a night, breed faster than rats — one pair producing up to 2,000 descendants in a year.

It has finally happened. The cost of chewing gum is no longer 5 cents. The manufacturers have announced wholesale price increases and many retail outlets throughout the state have already raised the price. The manufacturers have suggested 6 cents but we have seen some places that are now charging 8 cents for a pack of gum.

For years, the candy manufacturers have been raising the price of the nickel bar of candy while cutting back on the amount of candy but chewing gum has remained the same since depression days. Five sticks to the pack and a nickel a pack.

While the nickel pack of gum is apparently still a nickel in Hereford, it will probably go up soon as it has over the state. Lifesavers, by the way, have already gone to 7 cents in at least one store and we suspect that this little pack of candy will soon be 7 cents all over town.

Well, it couldn't last forever. The retailers are having to pay more so when you purchase that next pack of gum and it costs you a little more, don't fuss. Just blame it on the affluent society that we live in. Or, as is the trend today, blame it on the establishment.

Bartley Dowell, a member of the HHS Class of 1940, is trying to locate some missing members of that class. They plan to have a reunion here soon and do not have the address of some six or eight members of the class. There is a story elsewhere in this issue of The Brand listing all the errant members and if you happen to know the whereabouts of any of these, please contact Bart.

Earl Stagner, president of the Hereford Whiteface Breakfast Kiwanis Club, has informed us that the organization will operate a fireworks stand this year.

The stand will open Thursday, June 25, 1 p. m. until 10 p. m. daily, and will remain open through July 4th. The stand will be located on West Park Avenue just beyond the cemetery.

Proceeds from the sale of fireworks will be used by the Kiwanians for worthwhile community activities.

Had an opportunity to tour the fabulous Astrodome this past weekend while attending a Texas Press Association meeting in Houston.

We've been hearing wonderful things about the Astrodome, or the Harris County Domes Stadium which is supposed to be its official name, and have always wanted to see it. This was our first opportunity and we thoroughly enjoyed the tour. Unfortunately the Astros were not playing while we were there so had no opportunity to see a game, nor did we get to see the fabulous million dollar scoreboard in action. This, we understand, is a show in itself. According to the guide, it costs the association about $500 every time they light the board, so needless to say, they weren't too anxious to fire up the works for the press association. We understand that it takes three technicians and a production manager to operate the board.

Noticed all the adults riding bicycles lately?

Johnny Pool, owner of Western Auto Associate Store in Hereford, left the following note on our desk recently.

"Blessed are the young because they are the bicycle buyers of the future."

The City of Hereford has wasted no time in getting paving started in front of the new elementary school in South Hereford. The contracts were signed Monday morning for the purchase of lots near the school (story on front page of today's paper) and the paving of the street actually started Wednesday morning. With cooperation from the "weatherman", the project will be finished next week.

Included in the paving project (also curb and gutters) will be all of Columbia Drive plus that portion of Hillcrest that intersects Columbia running north to Country Club Drive.

NASA has decided to name its new Apollo spacecraft, which will carry a 4-man crew and be able to stay in orbit a year or two, the "Man Orbiting Module," on the grounds that no one will fight against funds for MOM.

And then there's the story of one of the entries in a "Housewife of the Year" contest who had 18 children and when asked what quality she most admired in a man she replied, "Moderation."

The Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court has assured us that the redistricting of the county will be done by the August 1 deadline. The county should be redistricted to equalize the number of voters in each precinct as nearly as possible. Precinct lines will have to be redrawn accordingly and will take some time and a lot of work on the part of the court, and we realize that it will not be an easy job. In redrawing the boundary lines the commissioners will also have to keep in mind the maintenance of county roads which is still a major task in the rural counties, and certainly, no one commissioner needs to be saddled with an excessive number of miles to maintain. This particular problem could be alleviated however, with the establishment of a county manager type of government and the use of modern radio communication to aid in the direction, along with the county manager system is becoming more and more popular throughout the nation and modern communications brings the outlying areas closer to the center of operations. We believe that all counties will eventually be forced to modernize and to move to this type of county government.

What's right about America?

Today, the surest means of a book becoming a best seller is for the author to highlight and denounce bitterly the faults of this country. The same can be said of television and the movies, which prefer in these modern days to depict the seamy side of life in America.

But there's hope. As I have moved across this state, I have sensed that our people are growing weary of gloom. It's becoming easier to strike up a conversation on what's right about America.

I always suggest that there are a lot more level heads in this country than we are sometimes led to believe. There are a lot more decent, law-abiding citizens than there are criminals and cheats and sharks. There are a lot more young people in the "now" generation who want to improve America than the handful of radicals who want to burn it to ashes and start all over.

I can understand why the "majority" has broken its "silence." There's a growing impatience with agitation and controversy. But I feel we should continue to approach our nation's problems with a cool head and an open mind. I've listened to the voices of dissent. I think I know what they're asking of their government.

One thing they want is confidence. They want the assurance that their public officials have the courage to meet the issues of the 1970s with imagination and integrity, and not with some form of "old politics" that thrashes around with problems but never quite locates the workable solutions.

It was my desire to answer this urgent need that prompted me in January to seek the office of United States Senator.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Step In The Dark

Frank, visiting at a suburban home, went to look for the bathroom. He opened a door, encountered total darkness, took one bold step forward, and toppled down the stairway to the basement.

Could Frank hold the home owner legally liable for his accident? A court said he could not, because he had no one to blame but himself.

"Darkness," said the court, "constitutes a warning to proceed either with extreme caution or not at all."

A step in the dark is, all too often, a step in the wrong direction. Literally thousands of accident victims, seeking to recover damages, have found their rights impaired by their own failure to heed the warning that darkness gives.

True, there may be extenuating circumstances. In one case, a shopper was held not negligent for having ventured into a dark storeroom, after a clerk had assured her it was all right to go there.

In another case a member of a lodge, coming to the locker room, found it in darkness. He stepped inside to reach for the light switch. But as he did so, he stumbled over a bench that someone had left in the aisle.

Again, a court found the man not negligent, since he had done the natural thing under the circumstances. The court pointed out that he had no reason to expect an obstacle where, in his past experience, there had always been an open space.

However, even if you are justified in stepping into a dark place, you should still use reasonable ingenuity to cut your risk to a minimum. For example, it may be negligent in the eyes of the law for you to fail to use matches if you happen to have them in your pocket.

One man who fell down an elevator shaft in a dark warehouse was held negligent because he had forgotten to use the cigarette lighter he was carrying. The court commented:

"The parental precept, 'Look where you are going,' is a sound statement of conduct which has become crystallized into a rule of law."

YOUR HOUSE

STRETCHES and SHRINKS

SO DOES OUR HOUSE PAINT!

That's why it lasts longer...

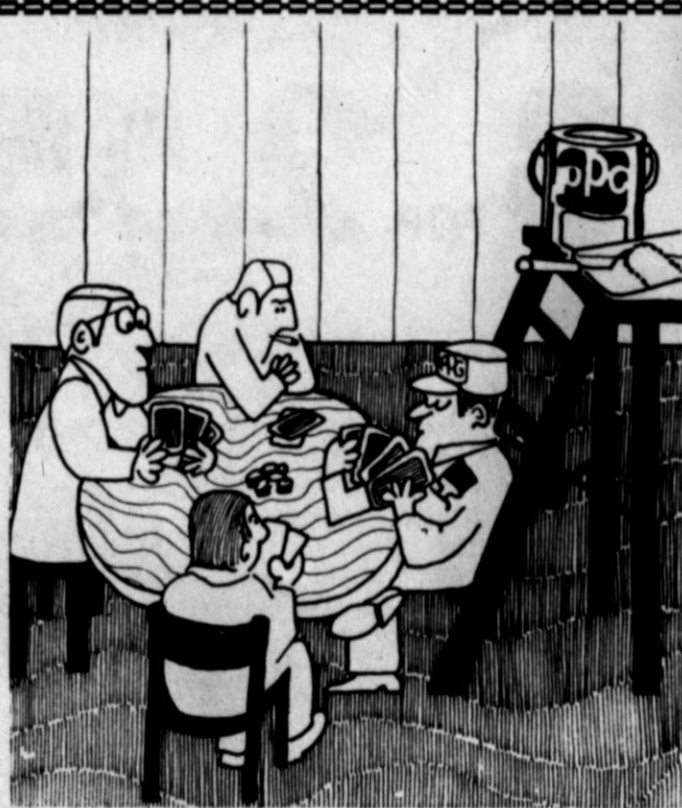

Your house actually stretches and shrinks with variations in temperature and humidity. It's this expansion and contraction that often causes house paint to work loose, crack and peel.

Pittsburgh Paints new SUN-PROOF® Latex House Paint stretches and shrinks with your house... this flexibility enables it to resist the cracking that ruptures an otherwise sound paint film. It has four times the stretch power of other latex paints, and it resists fume staining and discoloration. Available in a wide choice of attractive outdoor colors. Come in today for a free color chart.

For your inside or outside house decor needs come to McCASLIN'S. Many new items to make your house a better place now in stock.

Your wife says, "Paint the house before you do anything else this summer." So what do you do? As little as possible.

That's why you need Sun-Proof Latex House Paint. It does as much as possible.

To begin with, it normally allows you to skip priming completely. Further, it stretches and shrinks with your house.

Which eliminates cracking and peeling. Also, a special paint film resists air pollution, smog, and mildew. This all means that your paint will last up to four years longer. So you spend less time painting and more time relaxing.

Study Shows Little Seepage In Playas

A study of a playa lake used to impound runoff water from a feedlot has shown that little or no seepage occurred.

The study was initiated in March of last year to determine if pollutants in runoff water from cattle feeding operations seep through the playa soil and into the water table. Many feedlots are now using playa lakes as natural lagoons to impound all runoff from their operations.

Researchers conducting the study were Dr. B. A. Stewart, Dr. A. C. Mathers and O. R. Lehman, all located at the U.S.D.A. Southwestern Great Plains Research Center at Bushland. Site of the study was the Randall County Feed yards about 10 miles southwest of Amarillo. This facility went into operation in the fall of 1967 and now has a capacity of 60,000 head of cattle.

Soil samples were taken at 11 different locations across the playa at depth increments ranging from 1 foot to 13 feet. These samples were analyzed for nitrate, ammonium, chloride and water content.

High chloride accumulations were found in the soil to a depth of three feet while nitrates were high only in the surface foot, the study shows. Findings also indicated that the low nitrate values were due to a small amount of nitrate present in the runoff water plus the loss of nitrate from the soil or playa water.

According to the researchers, nitrate does not accumulate under conditions where oxygen is lacking. So, little nitrate was present in the soil while it was covered with water high in organic matter. The amount that was found probably accumulated after the playa surface dried, and the soil was once again exposed to oxygen. Therefore, findings in the study indicated that little or no deep nitrate seepage will occur through the bottom of fine-textured playas that receive feedlot runoff.

Low concentrations of ammonium or nitrate in the soil also indicated that much of the nitrogen washed into the lake was volatilized to the atmosphere.

The researchers pointed out in the study that more data over longer periods of time are required for evaluating the effect of accumulated salts and or-

However, playa slopes may not be significantly affected by such a buildup. Thus, the hazard to ground-water pollution invitations, said the committee has located all but nine of the 52 class members.

may be greatest for the smaller, deeper playas which impound a higher percentage of water on the more permeable sloping soils immediately surrounding playa bottoms.

Attorney General Crawford Martin has held that school districts must pay tuition fees for pupils sent to another district for training in a 12-grade school system where higher-grade training is not available in the home district.

Woman Celebrates 100th Birthday

By JANIE REINART
Staff Writer

Mrs. Policarpiya Cervantez, who recently celebrated her 100th birthday, said "I am happy and glad to have lived such a long life and I feel I have done all in this world there is to do."

"I have led a very happy life and am especially happy now to live with my son. I had very little suffering all my life."

Mrs. Cervantez lives at 213 Vera Cruz with her only living son, 52-year-old Jose Cervantez. Other children were born to her in 1910, 1912, and 1915 in Uvalde where she was married to Manuel Cervantez, who died in 1925. Born in 1870 in Zarasosa, Old Mexico, she has returned to Hereford each year for the harvest season, from May to January, for the past 25 years.

She has ten grandchildren and twelve great grandchildren who lovingly commented "grandma, you don't see very well but you hit hard!" referring to the times they do something wrong.

Mrs. Cervantez still cooks "the best tortillas" according to her family and does so on occasions.

She said "I have less energy now than I had in the past years and am losing my eyesight but feel quite strong yet."

Sometimes she forgets things of the past but at the same time she does have some good memories.

Mrs. Cervantez lives in Hereford, Texas the remainder of the year.

Satisfied To Slow Down To Small Town Living

By JANIE REINART
Staff Writer

"In a smaller town like Hereford things move more slowly than in a city of over 250,000 people. In a big city like Philadelphia everything is just boom, boom, boom; it moves real fast."

However, Mrs. Donald Day enjoys slowing down and enjoying her time, especially the home life with her two children, Paul Edward 2½, 4-month-old Michelle, and her husband Don.

Originally from Philadelphia, Penn. the Days moved to Hereford in January from Cedar Rapids, Iowa and Nancy describes, with good reason, their adjustment to the city as "hectic." They were expecting the baby the latter part of February first living in a motel then moving to an apartment, and finally to their present home at 206 Greenwood, all within a 6-week period.

They are not quite used to the Texas heat and, as all women, she doesn't like the dust storms because of the clean-up job that always follows. The wind recently made quite a debut at their home when it broke out a window in the front door as Nancy opened it one day. "The glass was spread as far as the living room," she said.

"One thing Texas can have is their silly spiders," laughed Nancy, who has had to get rid of many since their move here. Regardless of the spiders the Days plan to live in Hereford quite permanently since they, in a three-year span, lived in Chicago, Iowa, and now Texas.

Living on Greenwood has put them in a very nice neighborhood. A friend tells Mrs. Day there are about 70 children on their block alone, so her son has no problem with playmates, let alone one! Two-year-old Paul doesn't yet know the difference between little boys and little girls, explains his mother, and calls all the kids "Hey, little boy!" with the objection of a little blonde headed girl down the street.

Nancy hasn't joined any clubs and gives a sound reason. "I don't know how much time I would have to commit to a club and I want to stay at home with my children until they are both in school, then I would like to teach again." She taught high school level math for two years in Danville, Ill. while her husband attended the University of that state.

A very concerned mother, Mrs. Day said "We are thinking of getting Paul a shelter, that's a miniature collie, so I won't have to worry about him going into the street to play." Paul has the answer to the summer heat in his backyard where he has his own private swimming pool. He may also grow up to be a photographer as interested as he seemed in the reporter's camera the morning of the interview.

Don, assistant coach in the PeeWee League, enjoys another sport — football. His wife muses "Yes, he sits in front of the television from early Saturday morning to late Sunday night during the football season."

They hope to join a bowling league this fall because they haven't had the chance of late due to the addition to the family. They also enjoy a good game of golf together each week or as often as possible. When home, in Pennsylvania, Day hunts and fishes with his dad but is not so interested in the pastimes to go it alone.

"We're going home next week to visit the family for two weeks and we are going to tour Philadelphia as though we had never been there before, even though we've lived there all our lives practically. We'll be going to the Valley Forge Music Fair and probably some shows in New York City, where one of Don's sisters lives." They will be attending the wedding of another sister while in Philadelphia.

Being from rather large families, Don and Nancy can travel, inexpensively, from New York to Florida with a place to stay all the way. Day has a sister who lives in New Jersey and members of Nancy's family live in North Carolina, Philadelphia, and Germany.

They visited friends in Oklahoma City last weekend and thought "It was quite nice since we had never been there before."

Day is with the Wilson Plant here and works a 10-hour day, 6-day week which "gets kind of old after awhile" says his lovely green-eyed wife.

As an "inside-the-home" hobby, Mrs. Day enjoys the final results which come from antiquing. She recently antiqued the furniture in her infant daughter's bedroom.

Her Year At Helm Of Kings Manor Was 'Rewarding'

DEKE KENDRICK
... Manor Mom

By BARBARA SWIMMER
Women's Editor

A soft-spoken, brown-eyed woman who filled in for the past year as executive director of Kings Manor says it was all "well worth the experience and rewarding memories."

She did it all without pay, at her request, from 11 months ago until recently, when Dr. John English assumed the executive director's job.

Mrs. H. K. "Deke" Kendrick, a member of the Kings Manor executive board since 1962, talked at length with her husband and two children when the position was offered her a year ago. They decided that since they could not contribute a lump sum to the church, as they would like, they could make a contribution this way—by giving their time and services to help others.

She took over as executive director of the Methodist home last July after the unexpected death of Dr. Don Davidson. A short time later, she was asked by the board of trustees to go on the payroll but she refused.

Since that time she has driven from her home in Friona each day and continued her role as director, mother and daughter of some 80 senior citizens.

In recognition for her work, the board of trustees for the Manor recently rewarded Mrs. Kendrick and her family with an expense-paid 12-day trip to Hawaii.

They are counting the days until they leave July 7. They plan to spend the first six days touring the island and the last half of the vacation on the beach.

Their 16-year-old daughter Sally, who works part time in the office at Westgate, is just as excited about the trip. So is 18 year-old Danny, a recent graduate of Friona High School.

Mrs. Kendrick served as president of the board of trustees at the time of Davidson's death and was one of eight persons on the executive committee.

"Any one of the others could have done the job," she said,

"but I was the only one that had the time for the position."

Others on the committee were J. C. McCracken, Jim Conkright, Rev. Clifford Trotter, all of Hereford; Dr. Charles Lutrick of Amarillo, Mrs. Swain Burckett of Dimmitt, C. H. Hamilton of Lubbock and M. L. Wiggins of Munday.

"I just don't know what I would have done without Manson Waits, administrator of the nursing home, who helped me so much during the past year, and the executive committee, who were always ready to drop everything if we needed them."

She feels that holding things together at the Manor, until Dr. English took over recently as director was a family affair. She felt she was neglecting her family but they stood by her, she said.

"They just accepted the fact that the job had to be done and never once did they complain."

When she recalled the times her family had to fend for themselves, she smiled and talked of a conversation she once had with a friend.

The friend told her, "You can always tell a well-read woman by looking at the wrinkles on her husband's shirts."

"This is just about the way I feel," she said, "because I could never seem to keep my family's laundry done."

Mrs. Kendrick first became affiliated with Kings Manor in 1962 when Dr. Davidson called her and asked her to serve on the advisory board. She claims he really wanted her father to serve but took her when he was unavailable.

She took the appointment and has had a whole world open up to her. It has been such a joy and delight to her to have close contact with the senior citizens and the rewards have been many, she said.

"We are so proud of where we've been, what we have done and where we are going, and we have wonderful plans for the future. Kings Manor is the only retirement center of its kind in Texas. We intend to be the best, but not the largest—keeping it a home instead of an institution is our goal. It has grown from nothing to this in eight years with facilities for 100 residents on the campus."

She spoke of the many plans for the home, which include the building of a 42-bed wing, new apartments and cottages and recreation areas for arts and crafts. They hope to eventually connect Westgate and the retirement home by adding a wing that will house a central kitchen.

Would she take for the experience she has received, the memories and the new friends she has gained in the past year? She says no.

"It's a wonderful feeling to be able to bridge the gap and to help people in every day problems such as the residents have here," she answered. With so many stories at the Manor, she hopes to someday write a book.

The Kendricks are members of the First United Methodist Church in Friona, where she is church organist.

Now that Dr. English is here, she hopes to work on other civic hobbies such as her auxiliary work at Farmer County Community Hospital and her activities with Modern Study Club there.

For the past two years she has been in charge of the queen's contest for the community celebration "Maize Days" at Friona, held each September. She hopes to return to her golf game when they come back from Hawaii.

Her husband, owner of Kendrick Oil Company at Friona, is a member of Chamber of Commerce in Friona, Post and Bovina where they hold business interests, and Mrs. Kendrick has tried to be active in Chamber work.

"I believe in telling the world how great you are," and the local chamber has apparently helped Kings Manor in this endeavor. Inquiries have come from people as far away as Florida who plan to spend their retiring years at the home.

CWU Sponsors One-Week VBS

Hereford Church Women United will sponsor a Vacation Bible School at St. Joseph's School in July.

The one-week session is scheduled for July 27-31, 1-3 p.m. with the six-member churches sharing the teaching and serving of refreshments.

Mrs. Jim Arney of First United Methodist Church will direct the preschool class, Mrs. Johnny Johnson of St. Thomas Episcopal Church will direct first and second grades, Mrs. Bob Spangler of First Presbyterian third and fourth, and Mrs. Beryl Fish of First Christian fifth and sixth.

Each of these teachers will have assistants from the various churches.

Members of the Wesley Methodist Church will prepare and serve refreshments to the students each afternoon.

At a recent planning meeting of the board of directors of CWU, Mrs. John Pitman, president, appointed Mrs. Walter London to head a committee which will establish a nursery for children of the teachers.

Termining last year's pilot program in this field as successful, the executive committee agreed to establish the endeavor as an annual project.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH
CHICAGO - A new process of implanting artificial teeth into the bone, its developer says, makes for better health because of better digestion due to more natural chewing.

Dr. Leonard L. Linkow demonstrated his technique to Chicago dentists under the sponsorship of the Institute for Advance Dental Research. His invention of a blade implant enables artificial teeth to fit into the gumline. The implants are possible for a single tooth or a complete set of upper and lower teeth, he said. The installations become permanent.
The implants are fabricated of titanium, a metal which is readily tolerated by the body.
The metal supports the teeth.
Linkow said he has performed over 2,000 implants.

Despite the fact that I per-results of the voter opinion poll

I conducted last summer.

Americans were killed in action, and 280,782 were wounded. It is safe to say that well over half of the individuals who made these sacrifices were not too young to fight, to die, to spend the rest of their lives crippled lying in a Veterans' home, but they were too young to vote. I believe this condition should be rectified.

I also believe that due to rising levels of education, youths of today are better qualified to vote than the youth of past generations. We all are well aware of instances of lawless behavior by some young people, particularly on college campuses, but we must not let the media blind us to our young.

Over half of all 18 to 20 year olds are not in college at all. Instead they work and pay taxes - about 1 million serve in the armed forces, and more than 1 million are housewives. A presidential commission has reported that less than 2 per cent of all college students can be classified as militants or radicals.

The Justice Department has determined that many so-called "hard core campus radicals" are over 21; for example, all of the infamous Chicago 7 are well over 21.

In the main, the youth of today are responsible citizens who yearn to fully take part in the political processes that govern our country. I believe they are entitled to participate. I believe they should participate. But I do not believe the spirit of the Constitution should have been distorted to provide them this privilege.

This legislation also contained provisions extending the 1965 Voting Rights Act. In the first session of this Congress I voted for the Administration's National Voting Rights Act which would have given voting rights protections to residents of the fifty states rather than focusing federal regulation unfairly on our sister Southern state as does the 1965 Act.

Postal Reform

The United States Post Office stands in sore need of reform. Postal operations run at an annual deficit of well over $1 billion. Most postal equipment is 30 to 100 years old. Last year the Post Office handled about $2 billion pieces of mail. In another 10 years the figure will reach almost 110 billion pieces. Unless something drastic is done now, just imagine what the operating deficit will be in coming years.

For the past 4 months the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee has been laboring over postal reform. The product of their deliberations was the Postal Reorganization and Salary Adjustment Act of 1970. The Act will provide many meaningful and economic reforms in our national postal system.

The Act converts the Post Office Department into an independent establishment in the Executive Branch of Government. It frees the Department from political pressures. Finally, and most importantly, it provides the means by which a truly superior mail service can be developed on a business-like basis.

My main reservation about the legislation centered on my strong opposition to a provision which would have legalized the union shop in the Post Office Department. As badly as Post Office reform is needed, I would have voted against the reform package had the final version contained the union shop clause.

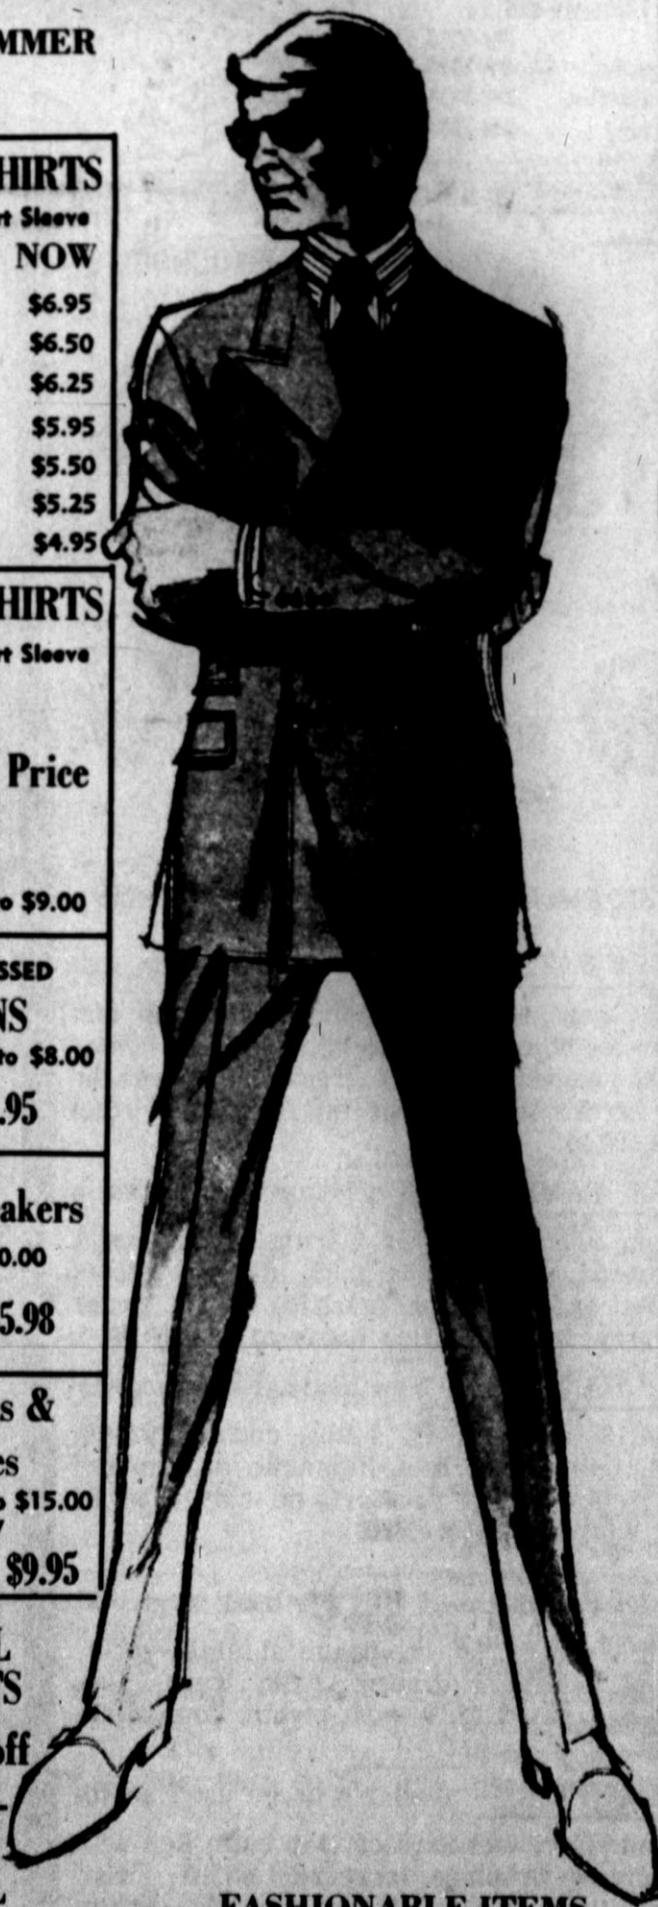

No person should be forced to join a union as a precondition to working for his government. Besides, I felt if this were allowed it would set a dangerous precedent, and unions would have made a giant step toward their stated goal of unionizing public employees at all levels of government. Fortunately, many other members believed as I did; and together, were able to remove the offensive provision from the Act.

In the final analysis, the Postal Reform Act is the biggest overhaul of the U. S. postal system since its inception. I am proud to be a member of the Administration's team that worked to bring the idea of postal reform to fruition.

Once, the Act has passed Congress, however, it is up to Post Office officials to make it work. For several years Congress has been told the mail service would be greatly improved by certain reforms.

The 91st Congress, under President Nixon's guidance has substantially enacted these reforms. Only time will tell if the performance of the new post office meets our expectations.

Fire Facilities Improve

The local fire department facilities are shaping up to be among the finest in the area.

When the work is completed on the new building south of City Hall and new equipment arrives, the Hereford Fire Department will be operating in high gear.

Along with the good facilities, Hereford residents should bear in mind they're getting by a lot cheaper than many other cities are. Hereford has a volunteer fire department, which means the city's money is going for operation costs and new facilities instead of predominantly toward salaries.

Local people got off considerably cheaper when the City Commission decided to remodel an existing building instead of erecting a new structure.

From a fireman's point of view, one of the good things about the revamping is that their facilities will be in one building instead of two. If you've ever been around the fire station when a general alarm went off, you've noticed the confusion as firemen rushed here and yonder. Soon, they'll all be in the same building, operating in a more organized fashion.

The recent work on Miles Street to take out the dips works to residents' advantage, since the insurance people would logically figure residents deserve a lower rate if the fire department has a fire and that will get their trucks to the scene of a fire quicker.

The City Commission deserves a round of applause and a pat on the back for taking care of the city's fire department needs and doing it with residents' pocketbooks in mind.

Keeping Ahead

Someone has determined that today's physician must read the equivalent of 27 books a day merely to keep up with developments in scientific journals. If he did nothing else at all during his working day, the best he could manage would be about one book, we would imagine. This would put him about 10,000 books behind each year.

Today's physician is no worse off, however, than the average executive, scientist or engineer. And did you ever look at the roomful of books a lawyer is supposed to absorb? Nearly everyone in an executive or professional capacity today has to take home some reading at night. Whether he reads it is another matter, but taking it home makes him feel better, we suppose.

The object of reading this mountain of material is to keep you ahead of the other fellow, but there will always be several people you can't keep up with no matter what. They are the ones who write the books, and are roughly a year ahead of you at least.

The only way you can actually stay ahead of the pack is to give up reading, declare yourself an expert and take to writing. With all of the readers writing, eventually there would be no one to read the stuff. The supply would dry up and we could all go back to honest work. — Orlando Sentinel

Justices Should Meet Standards

There is an encouraging movement to apply to present members of the United States Supreme Court the rigid standards the Senate invoked to reject President Nixon's nomination of Judge Haynesworth and Judge Carswell. As an initial step a sizeable group of representatives is considering impeachment proceedings against Justice William O. Douglas. Simple consistency indicates that any activity that disqualifies a nominee for appointment to the Supreme Court would also disqualify a member of the court from continuing to serve.

In rejecting Judge Haynesworth and Carswell the Senate has applied far higher standards than in the past. If these standards are directed toward elevating the court's service they should certainly test members of the court who are in a position to serve for the rest of their lives. — Asbury Park (N.J.) Highlights and Sidelights FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL BY VERN SANFORD

AUSTIN, Tex. — A massive emigration from the state capitol, followed by a major overhaul and interior remodeling of the historic building, is about to get under way.

Unfortunately, the big reshuffle will take place at the peak of the tourist season, so visitors may be dodging carpenters, painters and movers for awhile.

Soon after July 1, the new $6.6 million State Finance Building will be ready for occupancy. Employees of the State Treasurer and Comptroller will move immediately from their capitol quarters into the state's largest office facility.

As the finance departments vacate their space in the capitol, remodeling contractors will move in to re-do their quarters.

Between late July and next January when the Legislature convenes, office space for all 150 state representatives enlarged quarters for many state senators and new committee rooms hopefully will have been built into the vacated space.

A $15 million appropriation was set aside by the Legislature last year for the renovation and a new elevator already is being drilled through the northern end of the capitol.

A painting contractor also is at work on the Senate chamber (a $32,850 face-lifting job), and approximately $40,000 more will be spent on 1,200 yards of new green carpet for the senators' floor.

A model committee room is among the Senate's plans. It will include a raised dais for members, individual microphones and theatre seating. Senators expect to gain two or three other committee rooms.

Those who will stay in the capitol aren't too happy about the branch postoffice moving to the new finance building, but they are assured removal of a lot of temporary, makeshift structures in hallways will restore much of the old building's original basic architecture and dignity.

PENAL LAWS BEING REVISED — Texas' 1854 "frontier" penal code is being rewritten by a State Bar Committee for submission to the Legislature.

Major overhaul would eliminate duplicate articles covering the same crime and overlaps.

Proposals further seek to weed out so-called "unenforceable" laws including those against sexual acts between consenting adults. A strong new paternity law is recommended to identify fathers of illegitimate children and make them responsible for financial support.

Bar's draft would leave sentencing of convicted persons to judges instead of juries except in cases where the death penalty is involved. But it would permit judges to refuse to impose the death penalty though assessed by jurors.

Instead of general sentences for crime, the revision would substitute four degrees of felony and three misdemeanors, leaving prison terms to be fixed according to the specific nature of the offense and circumstances.

Code redraft also would make corporations criminally liable (as in pollution cases), establish a general trespass article (covering such offenses as college disruption) and define prohibited conduct short of completed crime.

University of Texas Law School Dean Page Keeton said the code, if adopted, would be the "best in the nation."

GALVESTON ISLAND PARK BOUGHT — State closed its deal to buy the 1,781-acre Maco Stewart Ranch on Galveston Island for a seashore park, paying $890,875 (half to be reimbursed by the federal government).

Actually, Maco Stewart, Jr. willed the land to the state in 1960 pending continued use by his heirs for their lifetimes. Parks and Wildlife Commission agreed to pay three heirs $800 an acre so full title could be obtained immediately.

First development will be on the Gulf beach side, although no date has been set for opening. Galveston County clerk's office will conduct purchasing before the government put an end to that nonsense in 1952. In the contiguous states, eagles have had protection since 1940.

So in years to come, if you can travel far enough, it may not be necessary after all for you to look on the back of a dollar bill for your only glimpse of an eagle. He's far more interesting in the wild than in an engraving.

The most stirring sight for many visitors to the Everglades National Park is an eagle perched on its bulky nest atop some tall tree. Proud as a national symbol should be, he looks strangely familiar as his fierce eyes regard you calmly.

Long since absolved by scientists of significant inroads on lambs, poultry and game (not to mention the myth of baby snatching), the eagle prefers fish and carrion.

Devoted parents and faithful spouses, the birds return year after year to the same nest, which may in time weigh tons and may crash to earth with eggs or fledglings.

With a wingspread of 6 to 8 feet, and weighing up to 12 pounds, they can mount terrific bursts of speed and knock a duck out of the sky, but usually they take life easy by scavenging the shore or frightening fish hawks into dropping their prey.

By the way, the bald eagle isn't bald. Those are snow white feathers encasing his head.

FOR YOU TO DO

Become an activist by talking to your huntmen friends about the criminal practice of some in shooting every big bird in sight, whether or not protected by law. Most are useful to man, all are priceless as surviving remnants of our natural wildlife.

MARCH OF EVENTS

GOP IS ELATED OVER YARBOROUGH DEFEAT

WINNER'S STRATEGY PAYS OFF IN TEXAS

By HENRY CATHCART

Central Press Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Republican strategists, worried that the depressing state of the nation's economy may drag GOP congressional candidates to defeat this fall, were elated with the recent defeat of Sen. Ralph Yarborough in the Texas Democratic primary.

Lloyd Bentsen
Effective campaign

Yarborough was one of the South's most liberal representatives in Congress and chairman of the Senate Labor Committee.

But it was not so much the defeat of the liberal Yarborough as the effectiveness of the issues used by his opponent that lifted the spirits of Republicans here.

The victor in the race was former Rep. Lloyd Bentsen, whose positions on national issues were remarkably close to those of the Nixon administration.

MILLIONAIRE MOVES IN—Months ago when Bentsen, a politically obscure millionaire, decided to run against Yarborough, a public opinion firm was hired to explore the mood of the people.

Texans were deeply troubled, the pollsters found, by the "breakdown of law and order, the youth rebellion and social unrest." They wanted an end to the war in Vietnam but not without an "honorable" settlement to the conflict. Down the line of issues, the voters were found to be opposed to the positions of Yarborough, a man they had twice elected to the Senate.

With these statistics in hand, the Bentsen organization and an advertising firm began television commercials and newspaper ads to show that Yarborough was an "ultra liberal" who was out of step with his people.

While the "fairness" of the ads may be open to question, they were no doubt the key to Yarborough's defeat.

Almost every night in prime time spots, viewers were shown such examples of violence as the Weathermen-led assault on the Justice Department during the Vietnam Moratorium march November 15. Then the voice of Lloyd Bentsen delivered this message: "That was the violence in Washington during the Moratorium last fall. Senator Yarborough endorsed the Moratorium. Did he represent your views on these demonstrations?"

Newspaper ads reproduced the vote by Yarborough against a constitutional amendment to permit prayers in public schools. "What's wrong with prayers?" the ads ask.

GOP Pattern?—The general strategy, if not the specific techniques, appear ideally suited to GOP campaigns in November.

The senators up for re-election this year were elected during Democratic sweeps in 1958 and 1964. There is little doubt that such Democrats as Senators Vance Hartke of Indiana, Albert Gore of Tennessee, Frank Moss of Utah, Joseph Montoya of New Mexico, and Howard Cannon of Nevada stand well to the left of their constituents.

This is not to say the GOP will have it easy in Senate races this fall. Republicans are battling over their nominees in several states, including Indiana and New Mexico.

The prospects of a significant boost in the nation's economy by November are slim.

But Republicans here think the party has the political ammunition to bring down veteran Democrats this fall. Ralph Yarborough would probably agree.

Prospects elsewhere interesting

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

Of all the sham techniques in the liberal-leftist bag, nothing is more shabby than the endless references to "the kids," meaning the campus demonstrators and protesters.

In the first place, the radicalized element in the country isn't made up of children—the group to which the label "the kids" truly belongs. We have today in this country a new class of professional or permanent students, as Latin America has had for generations. Many of today's militant "students" are in their late twenties, thirties or even forties. University fellowships and grants are so abundant that shrewd, once-young people manage to hang around college and university campuses for years and years. They "study revolution and disruption while millions of other Americans, who have to work for a living, are employed in offices, in factories and on the farms of the nation.

These "old" youths affect the wears and manners and dress of college students and speak in a special jargon that is supposed to be youthful. The cult of youth is carefully developed by many individuals whose own youth has long since passed. This kind of posing is tragic in a sense and also hurtful and misleading, for it involves deceit.

Then, too, this element with its artful poses also has produced a new breed of sympathetic commentator whose endlessly repeated slogan is "youth." Nothing is more absurd than the over-age TV commentator attired in extreme "mod" fashion and whose thinning hair is dressed by a youth stylist.

The liberal-leftist references to "the kids" are deliberate and purposeful. They are aimed at promoting the idea that there are two Americas with utterly different sets of values—the young Americans who want radical change and the middle-aged and older Americans who allegedly represent a dying society. One hears this theme stressed on television all the time. It is what has been called the Big Lie technique.

What is so wrong and misleading about the use of the term "the kids" is that it suggests all American young people belong in the radicalized camp. Some of them are that camp, especially the affluent protesters who can afford to attend Ivy League schools and travel around the country to various trouble spots, using credit cards supplied by permissive parents.

But millions of young people—the real youth of America—believe in the national ethic of work, saving, home ownership, a happy marriage, and service to community and nation. You don't read about these responsible "kids" in Look Magazine. You don't find them getting the attention of Time or Life or the TV networks. Almost all the space and network are reserved for the lookers, the haters, and the destructionists.

Ask yourself how many interviews you have seen on TV with young construction workers marching in support of the President? How many interviews have been taped showing patriotic "Strike Back" students on campus who back their country and who oppose closing down universities?

How much attention is given to young people generally who believe in the American system, who embody its fine values and who stand up for America? The truth is that the liberals don't want to talk about these "kids." The liberals are engaged in a conspiracy of silence against young people who promote a sane society based on free enterprise and constitutional government.

The liberal technique is to lavish attention on, the young SDS members and ignore the young people who believe in their country. It's time the public spoke up when the liberals start their deceptive talk about "the kids"—their own special variety—that is.

THE GOOD EARTH CRUSADE

National Symbol Gets Temporary Reprieve

By JOE WING

The slow death sentence hanging over the head of that noble bird, the American bald eagle, has been lifted—just the least bit—this season.

A resident throughout the United States when designated as our national symbol in 1782, the eagle has been shunted towards extinction south of the Canadian border by hunters, by developers, by lumbermen who chop down tall nesting trees, and finally by pesticides that affect its reproductive organs and make the shells of its eggs too fragile to incubate.

But this year in one of the eagle's last strongholds, the Everglades, its nesting has been unusually successful. The 55 pairs of birds there have raised an average of more than 1.5 fledglings each. That's like battling 350 in a very tough league. The research director of the National Audubon Society, Alexander Sprunt IV, attributes the success to a heavy kill of fish, due to cold weather, just when the young birds needed a lot of food.

There have been indications also says Sprunt, speaking from his office just outside the Everglades National Park, that there was a slight increase in productivity last year in the 50 or more pairs of nesting birds in the Chesapeake Bay area, and the 30 or so in Maine. This year's results are not yet known, and it will take several years to confirm any such trend.

Meantime catastrophe has befallen the birds along the Great Lakes where there once was an eagle's nest for every five miles of shore line, where only about 14 are now known for the whole region, and where productivity may be only about 10 per cent, against a normal 50 to 75 per cent. Why is that?

"DDT," says Sprunt succinctly.

Sixteen years ago, even before the effects of DDT were realized, Herbert H. Beck, a director of the Hawk Mountain Sanctuary, wrote me:

"By 2050 the official seals which go out of Washington will be carrying the figure of a mythical bird which, like the dodo, is gone."

Does Sprunt agree?

"Yes," he says grimly, "unless we get rid of DDT."

Actually DDT is being phased out but the process has a long way to go. Its residue in streams, lakes and oceans is concentrated in ever heavier amounts first by plant life and then by fish and such. By the time a bald eagle eats an affected fish, he may be eating a near lethal dose of the stuff. The Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife recently announced that dieldrin, an even more toxic member of the DDT family, is causing increasing mortality among eagles.

Will the hydrocarbons, as these pesticides are known, disappear quickly enough to save the few hundred remaining eagles in the United States, the fish hawks, the falcons, the brown pelicans and other birds especially affected? You just can't tell. It takes perhaps 30 years for DDT to dissipate.

One good thing though is that ornithologists have found an unexpectedly large population of eagles in the wooded areas of central Canada, and that the eagles still seem to be going strong in Alaska, where about 120,000 were slaughtered for bounties during a 35 year period

SIPPING SAKI is an important part of the wedding ritual. The bride's headpiece is designed to hide her horns of jealousy.

For Women Still Preserves Customs

—Japan, modern and progressive as the day after tomorrow, manages still to preserve some of the colorful customs of her distant past. A case in point—the wedding ceremony, which is as stylized and ritualistic now, at least on the surface, as it was in grandmother's time.

The exotic trappings—the marriage rites, dress and symbolism—are part of the heritage of the Japanese. But the attitudes of the young, especially those of the bride, belong to the present.

Fast disappearing from the scene are the arranged marriages, when parents with the aid of the "nakoo" or go-between, entered into negotiations for the purpose of selecting their children's mates. More and more the young insist on doing their own choosing. And in some cases (shocking to their elders) even do a bit of public pre-marital courting and spooning.

The go-betweens (usually a man and wife) are still much in evidence during the ceremony. The title of "nakoo" may in truth only be honorary, but ancient custom dictates that the honorable matchmakers be seated directly behind the bridal couple while they take their vows.

Before the rites are solemnized the "nakoo" couple undertake the serious responsibility of formally introducing members of the two families. The Japanese sense of propriety does not permit the introductions to be eliminated even if the families have met, are neighbors or have known one another for years.

A large percentage of the weddings in this island country are performed by Shinto priests, which does not give the ceremony the religious connotation a westerner might think. Rather than being a religion, Shintoism is more of a set of traditional rituals and customs as they relate to the worship of nature and ancestors.

The ceremony may take place at a Shinto Temple, but most often the setting is a wedding hall, or even a restaurant, hotel or department store. In rural areas, the home of the bridegroom is often used.

The betrothed stand in front of a small table facing an altar, usually laden with pine boughs, rice and fruits to symbolize longevity, prosperity and fertility. Family and friends are seated behind and on either side of the bridal pair.

At the onset the priest waves a duster made of white paper streamers to purify the atmosphere. The ceremony, usually of 30 minutes duration, is then underway.

The highlight of the ceremony is the performance of the "san-san-kudo" which translates literally to "three-three-nine times" and which is depicted by having the bride and bridegroom in turn drain three different cups of sake (rice wine) by taking three sips from each cup. Thus, the "san-san-kudo"—three sips from three cups of sake equals nine, sips that is.

Assisting at the ceremony and charged with the pouring of the wine are two "miko" (young and female). The requisite for these attendants is chastity.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the couple often steps up to the altar and each reads from a scroll a report of the marriage to their ancestors.

Then follows the tedious but inevitable picture taking session. A variety of pictures may be taken, but the static, group shot of the wedding party, the one that is known to the family as the "memorial shot" is a must.

At the reception there is entertainment, food and drink and many toasts. It is the custom for the bridegroom's elders—relatives, teachers, employer—to praise him. It is also customary for his boyhood companions to divulge humorous incidents or slightly tinged escapades in which he featured. This causes much hilarity on the part of everyone except the bride who must remain decorous through it all.

The bride wears a "homon-gi", bridal kimono of heavy silk, often lavishly embroidered with colored flowers and a golden dragon. Her face, under a heavy bridal wig, is masked in its thick chalk-white

Griffin-Martin Engagement Told

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin L. Griffin of Bartlett have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Sarah Kay to Fred David Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don T. Martin of Hereford.

Vows will be solemnized July 19 in First Baptist Church at Bartlett with the Rev. Doyle Darwin conducting the ceremony.

Miss Griffin is a recent graduate of Mary Hardin-Baylor College at Belton with a B.S. degree in business education and English.

Martin was graduated from Southwestern State College at Weatherford, Okla. and is working toward a Master's degree at Texas A&M University. He is employed as an athletic coach in the Belton schools.

make-up. She must at all times keep her eyes downcast, in an attitude of subservience. Japanese woman keeps toward the men in her life.

The most important part of the bride's attire is her headpiece, a stiff band of white or pink silk, to hide during the ceremony and hopefully to restrict forevermore the female's inherent horns of jealousy.

Originating in feudal times when jealousy was regarded as a woman's most despicable vice, the "tsunokakushi" or horn hider became commonplace in a country where until a few decades ago, a man's status was determined by the quantity of his concubines. The modern bride still wears the "tsunokakushi", but most of the emancipated young married women of Japan admit freely that it takes more than a silk band to keep their horns of jealousy dormant for long.

PROGRAM CUT

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Kentucky's Medicaid program costs this fiscal year will be cut appreciably because of tightened procedures all along the line, Economic Security Commissioner, Merritt Deits says. He estimated the aggregate expense will be $32 million rather than the original $60 million estimate.

Mothers Pour Forth Their Gift Of Love

The wonder of motherhood, the love that shines forth from each and every one of them, the special gift they radiate and direct toward their children... read all about this remarkable person in a book now available at the Deaf Smith County Library. Also available is the story of the region north of the nearby city, Amarillo; as interesting as the first.

MOTHERS ARE ALWAYS SPECIAL

BY Celestine Sibley

Here is the wonder of motherhood, not in saccharine clichés or cynical smiles, but captured in Celestine Sibley's own inimitable style—straight-forward and charming, touched with humor. Miss Sibley writes of some very special mothers. They are not, she admits, "radiant Madonnas, not silver haired saints but ordinary women, stumbling along with neither special know-how nor special vision, rearing children as well as they can. Some of them aren't exactly white carnations, notable for their sweetness and purity, buy nearly all of them have had their lives illumined at least for a time, by active, working, mountain-moving love."

Mama Sarah was a foster mother to over 200 children. Grandma Aken, who lived to be one hundred, raised 17 of her own and 25 adopted children on Deer Island, off the Gulf coast. Cora Purefoy sold her baby for 300 dollars and then fought to get it back, and Montell Purcell took the responsibility for her baby's blindness—or death—into her own hands.

Miss Sibley concludes, "I do not know what makes a woman a good mother... the single gift they have in common is that they love."

It is that love which shines up from the pages of this book.

KING OIL

BY Max Gates

In King Oil, the author of The Banana Men and Murphy's War recreates the heroic myth of the West in the very real person of Frank Dibbler—a tough, ambitious and dominating Texan, who seeks to carve out an empire of his own in the arid plains north of Amarillo.

Dibbler is a hero-figure, strong enough to survive any adversity, totally confident of his ability to overcome anything a malignant nature or his fellowman can throw in his path. His troubles begin when he travels to Spain in search of a bride and—in his own ruthless and decisive way—chooses the obstinate, proud and unwilling daughter of a distinguished Spanish grandee.

Bringing her home to Texas, he must face both his wife's hatred and contempt and the collapse of his empire, beset by weather, marauders and sheer perverse ill luck.

His triumphant struggles to survive against all odds make King Oil perhaps the most exciting novel to date from Max Gates. But more than this, it is a dramatic and powerful story of masculine strength pitted against feminine pride—and a remarkable novelistic portrait of Texas in the making, two generations before the tycoons of Giant but recognizably moved by the same epic ambitions and weaknesses.

USDA Creates New Grades For Peas, Carrots

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced issuance of the first U. S. standards for grades of canned peas and carrots combined.
USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service said the standards provide for two quality levels—U. S. Grade A and U. S. Grade B. The standards require that the mixture consist of 50 to 75 percent sweet-type peas.
A slight change was made from the proposal, announced Feb. 10, to increase the amount of succulent and tender peas required in U. S. Grade A.

Establishment of grade standards for canned peas and carrots will help canners and distributors market this product and assure consumers, of consistently good quality.
Use of Federal grade standards and inspection is voluntary, but many processors use them as a guide in quality control and as a basis for sales. Processors who use the USDA inspection service pay a fee to reimburse the Government for its expense.

Canners and distributors who use USDA's continuous inspection service to certify the quality of the product may use the USDA grade shield on the label of the cans.
The new standards are scheduled to be published in the June 19 Federal Register and will become effective July 20, 1970.
Copies of the standards may be obtained from the Fruit and Vegetable Division, Consumer and Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

Beef Industries Acquires Eads Rendering Co.

Russell Ellisasser, secretary-treasurer for Beef Industries, Inc., has announced the acquisition of Eads Rendering Company of Amarillo.
The Company has processing plants in Amarillo and Bovina that process about 150 carcasses a day. These carcasses are processed for pet food manufacturers. The rendering plants employ an average of 30 employees.
Beef Industries, Inc. is an Amarillo-based firm with offices in the Bank of the Southwest Building.
Officers for the Company are John R. McCoy, President; Boots McCoy, Vice-President and Russell Ellisasser.
Ernest H. Eads, Jr., and C. Van Horn will serve with the company officers as advisory members on the company board of directors. Eads and Horn served previously as officers and owners of Eads Rendering Company. They will continue in their managerial roles for Beef Industries, Inc. Both men attended Texas Tech prior to venturing into business for themselves.
Beef Industries, Inc. now owns in addition to the Eads Rendering Company a 12,000-head feed lot in Lamar, Colo., and a 3000-head pre-conditioning operation.
Expansion of Beef Industries, Inc. into more cattle feeding operations and feed storage operations are being negotiated. Ellisasser said expansion and growth by the company will provide a diversified operation in the rapidly expanding cattle feeding industry.

That Word in Anger...

You spoke it loudly and without concern, but did it solve any problems for you? You told him off, but did you get the order? Sure, relief at the time may seem sweet and bear up your own ego, but soon a dirty, gray regret sets in. Count ten??? Ah, you'd better count to a hundred or more and, by so doing, have a word fitly spoken. God said, "Be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry: for anger resteth in the bosom of fools." Eccl. 7:9. Angry words can't be called back. One can't unsay them. The damage they do may be irreparable. Want to quit your foolishness? Then, seek out righteous men for your companions and ask God to help stay your tongue for, "He that is soon angry dealeth foolishly."
