

Tower says he'll be target of liberals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower has officially declared his intention to seek re-election in 1984 and predicted he'll be the "number one target" of liberal political groups.

"I'm doing a lot of things that would make it appear that I am going to run again, Tower said at a news conference on Thursday.

The Texas Republican said he would not make a formal announcement "until somewhat later in the year or early next year."

"But I would call your attention to the track shoes I'm wearing," Tower told reporters.

In a recent fundraising letter to more than 100,000 past supporters, Tower predicted that organizations backing liberal Democrats "will join with anti-business, anti-growth and anti-nuclear liberal organizations to make me their number one target in 1984."

Tower, a defender of President Reagan's military buildup, also said that "it is very clear that the liberal budget will become the number one target of the liberals in Congress."

He said that "we cannot allow the liberals in Congress to systematically retard our efforts to modernize our military forces."

The fundraising letter, or a similar one, will be sent to nearly 150,000 more Texans within the next several weeks, according to a Tower aide.

Educators criticize migrant regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas educators came to Capitol Hill to protest the Reagan administration's proposed new regulations on migrant education, which the educators say will result in thousands of needy children being denied special help.

"The proposed regulations would dearly penalize these families who have made an effort to keep their children in the same school for years," said Ambrosio Melendrez of the Austin Independent School District.

"We have been encouraging migratory parents to keep their children in the same school as long as possible, and many leave them for a time with other family members or friends when they move," said Melendrez.

"Should we encourage migrant families to have their children leave school early and return late so they can qualify for support services?"

Melendrez was one of a number of witnesses Thursday voicing strong opposition to the proposed regulations in testimony before the House Education and Labor Committee's subcommittee on elementary, secondary and vocational education.

Migrant education programs include special instruction in basic skills — such as reading — and sometimes supplementary services as counseling or health and medical services for the children of such families, many of whom are seasonal farm laborers.

'New' water plan same dry picture

AUSTIN (AP) — More than a year of work and 700 pages later, state water officials have been presented with a 50-year water plan that offers the same old dry picture.

"We do not have a solution to all the projected water demand quantities in the state," engineer Herbert Grubb told the Texas Water Development Board on Thursday.

Grubb, the board's director of planning and development, said conservation is more important than ever, but Texans cannot save their way to plentiful water.

The only hope, he told the board, is importing water from other states.

"We have identified surplus water, but the neighboring states have not volunteered to allow us to secure it."

The 700-page report — entitled "Water for Texas, Planning for the Future" — gives a basin-by-basin glimpse of the future. The report says it will cost $40.2 billion to try to keep up with the growing demand and shrinking supply of water.

Texans will get to comment on the report at hearings around the state in coming months. The board could revise the report after the hearings.

The state's first long-range water plan was produced in 1968. The report released Thursday updates the 1968 report and plugs in newer data.

"There's a lot more emphasis on conservation than there was in the past," Grubb said.

Houston workers unearth cannonballs

HOUSTON (AP) — A construction crew unearthed 75 cannonballs and mortar rounds — many still containing live explosives — that historians believe came from a Confederate supply ship pillaged after sinking in 1862, police said.

The rounds were found about noon Thursday on a National Car Rental Systems lot.

Ron Luce, the firm's manager, said a Coyote Construction Co. crew was excavating a drainage ditch about three-feet deep when "they just started popping up."

Sgt. Bobby Morgan of the Houston Police Department's bomb squad said officers removed 65 cannonballs, ranging from the size of a baseball to a bowling ball, and about 10 mortar-style rounds 10 inches by 4 inches.

Morgan said the ammunition would be detonated at an undisclosed location because much of it still contained black powder, which if kept dry retains its blasting capability even after more than a century.

Historians believe the cannonballs date back to the Civil War because they were round, like those used for muzzle-loading cannons, Morgan said. That type became obsolete soon after the war and was replaced by cylindrical, breech-loaded shells, he said.

Morgan said the cannonballs and mortar rounds were strewn over a 10-foot-square area.

"We looked hard for the cannon, but it wasn't there," Morgan said.

Carroll Lewis, a Houston historian, said several cannonballs have been found in downtown Houston because a supply ship sank and a Civil War munitions plant were looted after Union troops occupied the city.

Lewis said young boys would haul away cannonballs and other wartime artifacts aboard the sunken ship when the water in Buffalo Bayou dropped.

Adelman defends his record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arms control nominee Kenneth L. Adelman, coming out fighting with President Reagan in his corner, says he can't remember ever calling arms reduction talks a "sham."

The 36-year-old Adelman also urged the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which delayed a vote on his nomination Wednesday, to let the full Senate vote so the administration can "get on with the serious business of seeking real arms reductions."

Adelman's opponents earlier produced a 1981 New York Daily News article in which Adelman was quoted as saying arms control talks were a "sham," but his policy "would be to do it for political reasons."

At a new conference in New York Thursday, Adelman said, "I have no recollection of making any such a statement at any time."

Adelman, deputy U.S. ambassador to the United States, also said the statements in the Daily News "are not consistent with my views."

"My views favoring strong arms control with real reductions have been consistent throughout my adult life," Adelman said. Discussing the article, he said: "When these kinds of misunderstandings occur in public policy matters, they need to be cleared up quickly. I hope I did so here."

The foreign relations committee delayed a vote on Adelman's nomination as head of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency after members said the lineup was 9-8 against Adelman.

Meanwhile, Sen. Larry

Pressler, R-S.D., who opposes Adelman's nomination, predicted Reagan's nominee will be confirmed if Reagan and GOP leaders succeed in getting his name to the Senate floor.

"If the president insists, he can have Adelman," Pressler said, guessing there would be 30 votes to 40 votes against the nominee in the full 100-member Senate.

Reagan has said he would try to persuade reluctant senators to support Adelman, even if he has to "make them feel the heat" to do so. And on Thursday, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the president remains

"solidly behind" Adelman and has no plans to withdraw his name.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said, "It is my plan to get it (the nomination) to the floor. I am confident we can get it to the floor."

One dead, two injured in wreck

A Canyon co-ed was killed and two Hereford men were critically injured in a head-on collision late Thursday night near Canyon.

Lorille O'Donald, 22, Canyon, was pronounced dead at the scene by Randall County Justice of the Peace Phil Woodall.

A truck and Ms. O'Donald's car collided west of FM 2590 on U.S. 60.

Raymond Dennis Martinez, 18, 407 Avenue E, is in critical condition with fractures, head and internal injuries at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. He was the driver of a 1971 Ford pickup which was eastbound on U.S. 60 in the westbound lane, according to the Department of Public Safety in Randall County.

Allen Shire, 24, of 222 Greenwood, a passenger with Martinez, is also at Northwest with head and internal injuries.

Block signs credit agreement with Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — After signing a $1.7 billion credit agreement for the sale of American farm products, U.S. Agriculture Secretary flies Friday to Mexico's southernmost state of Chiapas for visits to research centers and tropical plantations.

His schedule called for a stop at the medfly center in Metapa de Dominguez, used to produce sterile flies for eradication programs. The center, which can produce 500 million sterile flies weekly, is designed to stop the agricultural pest from advancing into North America from the south.

The official Notimex news agency said Guatemalan, Mexican and American agricultural scientists and officials would discuss the medfly program during Block's visit.

Other stops in Chiapas, some 650 miles southeast of Mexico City, include an agricultural research center and coffee, cacao and banana plantations.

Block is scheduled to fly back Friday night to Mexico City and return to the United States on Saturday after his three-day visit here.

On Thursday in the capital, the agriculture secretary and Commerce Secretary Hector Hernandez Cervantes signed an agreement extending economically troubled Mexico $1.7 billion in credits to buy 6.2 million tons of American basic foodstuffs.

"The United States looks upon this as a means of providing assurance of a trade relationship which should be of mutual benefit to both countries," Block said. "The United States is pleased that Mexico is a good customer of the United States and we want to be a good customer of Mexico also."

Mexico is the United States' third largest trading partner after Japan and Canada. Block said in a statement issued earlier in Washington that the United States sold almost $1.5 billion of agricultural products to Mexico last year.

The agreement provides credit for the purchase of U.S. farm products this year, including corn, sorghum, sunflower seed, soybeans, cottonseed, tallow and eggs.

It also includes direct sale of powdered milk to Mexico and coordinating transportation from the United States to Mexico. Transportation bottlenecks have occurred at the border in peak traffic periods in the past.

The agreement is the fourth of its kind and was negotiated last August shortly after

$25,000 reward offered for killer of Marshalls

JAMESTOWN, N.D. (AP) — After four days of futile searching, the U.S. Marshal Service is offering a $25,000 reward for the arrest of an anti-tax radical accused of killing two marshals, because "the perpetrator is so dangerous."

The announcement Thursday night came hours after a small army of law enforcement officers searched three houses in Ashley and a farm in nearby Wishek without finding the protester, Gordon Kahl.

"This is the first time we've offered a reward of this amount," said U.S. Marshal Howard Safir. "We do this because we feel that this case is so significant and that the perpetrator is so dangerous that the sooner we can get him apprehended, the better off the citizens of North Dakota and of the country will be."

The reward will be paid for information leading to Kahl's arrest, Safir said. Kahl, 63, has been wanted since Sunday night, when two marshals were shot to death and another was wounded critically as they tried to arrest Kahl for violating probation on a 1977 income tax evasion conviction.

"During Thursday's searching, more than a dozen vehicles carrying 50 to 60 law enforcement officers drove from Jamestown to Ashley, a prairie town of 1,200 residents

10 miles from the South Dakota border.

The officers sealed off highways into Ashley, where they searched the homes of three men involved in a local anti-tax movement, authorities said. They have said Kahl was active in Posse Comitatus, a right-wing paramilitary organization that opposes federal taxation.

Mike Phillips, one of the three, said in a telephone interview that an FBI agent called him about 9:30 a.m. and said his house was surrounded and he should come out peacefully.

"I said, 'Hey, you bet. Right away. I want no trou-

Reagan hedging on executive privilege

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration is now hedging on just what President Reagan meant when he promised not to assert executive privilege over documents Congress is seeking for investigations of the Environmental Protection Agency.

The White House on Thursday said the president was in no way dropping his claim of executive privilege.

At his press conference, Reagan said, "I can no longer insist on executive privilege if there's a suspicion in the minds of the people that maybe it is being used to cover some wrongdoing."

But deputy press secretary

Larry Speakes said Thursday that the president envisioned turning documents over to the Justice Department for review of possible wrongdoing, not to Congress.

The president's statement was "absolutely not" intended to waive executive privilege, Speakes said, adding that the issue was part of on-going discussions with Rep. Elliott H. Levitas, chairman of the House Public Works subcommittee.

The refusal of the administration to turn over dozens of documents to Levitas in December led to an historic contempt of Congress citation against EPA Administrator Anne Gorsuch.

The administration is now offering to let Levitas and the ranking Republican member of the committee see the documents and make excerpts available to other members of the subcommittee. Negotiations between Levitas and the administration were expected to resume today.

"We're very confident an agreement will be worked out," said Justice Department spokesman Tom DeCair. "It just remains for Levitas and (Deputy Attorney General) Edward C. Schmults to get together and nail it all down."

Arrested man held as suspected Soviet spy

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (AP) — The federal prosecutor's office said today a Soviet trade official arrested Thursday in Cologne is being held on suspicion of spying.

"He was working for a Soviet intelligence service, most likely the KGB," said spokesman Alexander Prechtel.

He said the suspect is accused trying to buy documents dealing with secret coding machines used in NATO countries. Conviction on those charges carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison.

Prechtel would not identify by name the 42-year-old Soviet official arrested Thursday by police in Cologne.

But he did not deny a report in the newspaper Bild Zeitung giving the suspect's last name as Batachev. The paper said he operated a top KGB ring from the mission in Cologne.

The report quoted unidentified sources in "security circles." It said Batachev, a member of the Soviet trade mission in West Germany, had posed as a computer expert and contact man but had no diplomatic status.

A spokesman for the Soviet mission confirmed the mission employed a man named Batachev but said he did not know of any arrest.

Senate votes to outlaw armor-piercing bullets

AUSTIN (AP) — Handgun ammunition that can rip through a bullet-proof vest would be outlawed by a bill approved Thursday by the Texas Senate.

The bill, by Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, was sent to the House on voice vote.

There was no opposition to the bill when it was presented to the Senate Jurisprudence Committee. Doggett testified that police call Teflon-coated ammunition "cop-killer bullets."

At a House committee on two similar proposals, however, officials of the Texas State Rifle Association and National Rifle Association opposed the measures.

Richard Behan, director of the Texas organization, said the bills would ban ammunition used by sport shooters. He said there was no record of a police officer being killed by a Teflon-coated bullet.

"We do not get paid to take unnecessary risks," Richardson Police Sgt. D.E. Golden testified at the House committee hearing. "This is a very real threat to our safety."

Doggett's bill would make it a second-degree felony, punishable by two to 20 years in prison, to possess, transport, repair or sell an armor-piercing bullet.

Approved bill would regulate midwives

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Senate has given its approval to a bill that would set up a state board to regulate "lay midwives" — who assist in the delivery of more than 8,000 babies a year.

Sen. Hector Uribe's proposed law would set up training programs for Texans who assist others in childbirth and require midwives to register with county clerks.

The bill, which now goes to the House, would order midwives to tell prospective clients the limitations of their skills.

Also, Uribe's bill would ban administration of prescription drugs by midwives unless supervised by a doctor.

"The purpose of the bill is to promote safer practices among midwives through education," said Uribe, D-Brownsville.

Uribe blocked a proposed amendment to set the midwife registration fee at $200, stating that most midwives "are in no better financial condition that the clients they serve."

The midwifery board would be appointed by the state health department, which would adopt rules, enter contracts and prepare and publish reports on the practice of lay midwifery.

The department would prepare a manual, which would be available in English and Spanish, for a maximum of $10.

The bill authorizes the creation of training courses for midwives to be taught by local health departments, institutions of higher education or through adult education programs.

Railroad Commission sets 100 percent oil allowable

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' oil allowable once again has been set by the Railroad Commission at 100 percent of capacity, continuing a practice that has been in effect almost every month for 11 years.

The commission order Thursday covers all but 10 fields, including East Texas, which was restricted to 86 percent to avoid possible waste.

Commission Chairman Mack Wallace reported that crude oil and petroleum products imported into the United States averaged 4,547,000 barrels daily for the four weeks ending Feb. 4, down 571,000 barrels from the same period a year ago.

Major purchasers of Texas crude oil submitted nominations for 2,449,172 barrels a day in March, a decrease of 8,222 barrels daily from this month.

Sex-change movies pick up total of 19 Oscar nominations

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sex changes are popular this year, with Oscar voters, who heaped a total of 19 Academy Award nominations on movies that feature men playing women or women playing men playing women. It can get a little confusing.

One of those movies, "Tootsie," drew 10 nominations Thursday, including best picture, actor, supporting actress and supporting actor — a total topped only by the 11 nominations for "Gandhi," which had no sex changes at all.

"Tootsie" will vie for best picture of 1982 along with "E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial" (nine nominations), "Gandhi," "The Verdict" (both with five nominations) and "Missing" (four nominations).

In all, 34 movies will be competing in 24 Oscar categories on April 11 in ceremonies broadcast live by ABC-TV from Los Angeles.

Before the nominations were announced by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, movie industry punsters had suggested tongue-in-cheek that Academy voters would not know in which category — male or female — to place Julie Andrews, who played a female posing as a male cabaret artist performing in drag in "Victor-Victoria," and Dustin Hoffman, who was a female soap opera star in "Tootsie."

But Hoffman was adjudged a male and Miss Andrews a female. He won his fifth best actor nomination, while she picked up her third best actress nomination for "Victor-Victoria," a movie that tallied seven nominations in all.

Hoffman won best actor in 1979 for "Kramer vs. Kramer," while Miss Andrews was named best actress in 1964 for "Mary Pop-pins."

Another sexual turncoat, John Lithgow, won a best supporting actor nomination Thursday for his football-player-turned-transsexual in "The World According to Garp."

It was not the first time cross-over acting roles have been nominated: Jack Lemmon picked up one of his eight Oscar nominations in 1959 for "Some Like It Hot," in which he and Tony Curtis were memorable "females" opposite the real thing: Marilyn Monroe.

This year Lemmon picked up his seventh best actor nomination for his role as a worried father in "Missing" — making it a good year for veteran performers.

Other than Ben Kingsley, who was nominated as best actor in his film debut for "Gandhi," the other male lead nominees have been there many times before.

Paul Newman, the down-and-out attorney in "The Verdict," has been nominated five times as an actor and once as a producer, while Peter O'Toole, the perpetually soused matinee idol in "My Favorite Year," has been nominated seven times.

Meryl Streep, who was nominated this year as best actress for "Sophie's Choice," also knows what Oscar jitters are: she's had damp hands on four previous award nights.

This year she'll compete against Miss Andrews and two-time nominee Sissy Spacek — nominated for "Missing" — along with first-time nominees Jessica Lange, "Frances;" and Debra Winger, "An Officer and a Gentleman."

Battered woman found innocent of shooting

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — A trial that tracked six years of savage beatings and mental torment ended with a courtroom full of spectators cheering an innocent verdict for a 29-year-old woman accused of murdering her husband.

"The community has spoken, and justice has been done," defense attorney Allan Karlin said Thursday after the Monongalia County Circuit Court jury acquitted Lorraine Momen.

Mrs. Momen, who was charged with first-degree murder, never denied shooting Wayman Momen last June 21. But she contended that she killed her husband only after enduring years of physical and mental abuse.

"I'd like to think I could have done something else," Mrs. Momen said minutes after the jury returned its verdict. "I'd like to have had another alternative."

The seven-woman, five-man jury deliberated just 40 minutes. Mrs. Momen burst into tears as spectators stood and cheered the verdict.

The crowd included members of a women's group who had said the case showed the failure of authorities and society to protect battered women.

Ms. Momen said she never will recover from the trauma of the shooting last summer or the six years of abuse that preceded it.

"I think you never get over being abused," she said. "It's something you live with, especially after what I did. It's something I'll live with the rest of my life."

During the 2½-day trial, Karlin produced witnesses who said Momen repeatedly abused his wife physically and mentally.

Physician's trail could be landmark

MONAHANS, Texas (AP) — Defense and prosecuting attorneys in the trial of a doctor accused of attempting to murder a mortally wounded patient have just one more chance to sway a jury that includes 10 of the physician's patients.

Cuban-born Dr. Juan Perez

Valladares is accused of trying to hasten the death of a dying gunshot victim by injecting 20 cubic centimeters of air into one of the patient's veins.

Presiding State District Judge Joe Connolly of Odessa told attorneys to present their final arguments today in what he said is the "first trial on murder by air injection in Texas" and perhaps the first in the nation.

The American Medical Association's law department in Chicago said Thursday that no physician has ever been convicted of attempted murder or murder for injecting air into a patient's blood stream.

Perez, 57, is charged with attempting to kill Michael S. Hoffman on Nov. 4, 1981, while the Bloomington, Ind., truck driver was being treated at Ward Memorial Hospital in Monahans.

Two attending nurses, Brenda Rowan and Peggy Brown, testified Hoffman died within two minutes after they saw Perez inject air into the patient's blood stream.

However, pathologist Richard Cohen said the bullet fired through Hoffman's head 40 minutes earlier was the cause of death, not an injection of air.

Perez has denounced allegations by the attending nurses, the hospital administrator and an ambulance driver that he confessed to the injection.

The nurses also testified that Perez complained that he was tired the evening of the incident and wanted to go home.

And they said the Havana native, a popular Monahans physician for 15 years, violated medical ethics when he collected urine and blood samples from Hoffman before the victim had died.

Hoffman had been shot once above his left eyebrow at point-blank range during a barroom brawl in Monahans, a West Texas town of 9,000.

James Ralph Echols of El Paso has been charged with shooting the 28-year-old and is being held on a 1982 robbery charge in Riverside, Calif.

Cohen also testified it would take 100 to 300 cubic centimeters of air injected rapidly to kill an adult.

But Cohen said he was perplexed by allegations that Perez, one of five town doctors, injected air into the victim to cause an embolism. An embolism is a mass of air that travels through the bloodstream to the heart and causes heart failure, Cohen said.

"There is no known therapeutic benefit to injecting air into a human," he said.

Thursday, 31 witnesses, including two priests and two nurses, testified Perez was a gentle practitioner and was incapable of committing a violent act.

Phillips said Kahl hadn't been there since a meeting nearly two weeks ago.

"I think they pretty well know I wasn't there (at the shooting) and wasn't involved in anything," Phillips said. "I told them I didn't know where Gordon was and never have advocated any type of violence."

The FBI agent in charge of the search, Richard Blay of Minneapolis, accused reporters of tipping off Kahl to the search in Ashley by reporting that a law enforcement convoy was en route from Jamestown, but later took the charges back.

Blay said Thursday night that Kahl simply "wasn't there this morning" and had not been scared off.

Agents also searched an unoccupied farm in the Wishek area, about 10 miles northwest of Ashley. Blay said no one was found, although someone had been in the buildings within the last few days.

The negotiations were taking place as two House subcommittee chairmen promised more revelations today of mismanagement at the EPA. Reps. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., and Mike Synar, D-Okla., scheduled a news conference to discuss failings in the $1.6 billion "superfund" hazardous waste clean up program.

Scheuer and Synar are heading two of the six congressional investigations of the embattled EPA into allegations the superfund was manipulated for political purposes, that "sweetheart" deals were struck with polluters and that EPA officials violated conflict-of-interest laws.

In another development, sources inside and outside EPA said Thursday that John P. Horton, the EPA assistant administrator for administration, was under investigation for allegedly using a government secretary and phone for private business.

In addition, the FBI and the Justice Department are conducting their own probes. All the activity was triggered after Reagan last week fired Rita M. Lavelle, head of the hazardous waste program.

Michael Brown, named acting assistant administrator to replace Ms. Lavelle, confirmed Thursday night that Mrs. Gorsuch has referred several items to the Justice Department to investigate.

St. John's trips Connecticut, 98-78

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Leave it up to Lou Carnesecca to put a basketball game in perspective.

"Their Kelley was out — and our Kelly was in," said St. John's colorful coach.

With Connecticut's leading scorer, Earl Kelley, out of action with a sprained right ankle, Bob Kelly of St. John's scored 20 points, dished out seven assists and made seven steals to lead the sixth-ranked Redmen to a 98-78 victory over the Huskies in a Big East game Thursday night.

Kelly had been averaging less than three shots a game this season. But Thursday night, he took nine. He was also having problems with his free throws. But Thursday night, he was 10-for-10 from the foul line.

"All along, Lou's been telling me, 'You have to shoot more,'" Kelly said. "Tonight I got the ball in a lot of great situations. It was easy for me to score."

The Redmen rebounded from a 17-point loss to Boston College Tuesday night.

"It was important for us to win this game, after having such a bad game against BC," Carnesecca said. "You want to bounce back and we did. There was still one part of the game I wasn't happy about, however — turnovers."

Chris Mullin was the high scorer for St. John's with 27 points. The Redmen never trailed, leading by as much as 24 points at one stage, to boost their record to 21-3. Bruce Kuczenski led Connecticut with 17 points, followed by Vernon Gisco with 15.

In other action involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 10 UCLA whipped Stanford 99-86; No. 12 Missouri held off Kansas 74-69 and No. 20 Ohio State walloped Northwestern 71-55.

Top Twenty
Darren Daye scored 18 points and Brad Wright added 15 to lead UCLA to an easy victory over Stanford.

The Bruins, 18-3, displayed a balanced attack with seven players scoring in double figures. Kenny Fields and Rod Foster had 14 points apiece and Ralph Jackson, Michael Holton and Gary Maloncon scored 10 each.

Greg Cavener scored 21 points and grabbed nine rebounds to help Missouri beat Kansas. Missouri broke open a close game in the last three minutes as Cavener scored nine of his points.

Cavener had been shooting only 58 percent from the free throw line this year. But he hit five key free throws in the late stages of the Tigers.

"He made them when we had to have them," Missouri Coach Norm Stewart said. "We thought about taking him out of the game when we went to the half-court offense late in the game, but he hung tough and he was the one who made them when we needed them."

Tony Campbell scored 21 points and Ohio State pulled away from Northwestern in the second half. Campbell hit seven of 15 field goal attempts, seven straight free throws and collected eight rebounds before leaving the game with more than five minutes to play and the Buckeyes owning a 62-42 cushion.

Jim Stack, whose three-point play at the buzzer beat Ohio State in their first game this season, led the Wildcats with 21 points.

"Defense, especially by our guards, was the difference in the second half," said Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller. "We cut down their penetration. We just thought about defense in the first half."

Others
In other action, Derek Harper scored 25 points to lead Illinois to a 91-71 victory over Michigan; Russell Cross scored 31 points and outscored Michigan State 7-1 during a stretch in the closing four minutes as Purdue defeated the Spartans 61-55;

Virginia Commonwealth, led by Calvin Duncan and Randy Corker, hit 20 consecutive free throws in the second half and rallied to defeat Alabama-Birmingham 80-68; Glenn Rivers scored 11 of his 19 points in the second half as Marquette squeaked out a 68-62 decision over Wisconsin and James Jackson scored 19 points and West Texas State withstood a trio of Southern Illinois charges for a 89-81 triumph.

Also, Felipe de las Pozas scored a career-high 30 points to lead The Citadel to an 83-80 overtime victory over Western Carolina; Steve Taylor's field goal with 2:46 left gave Tennessee Tech its first lead of the game and its winning basket in a 66-65 win over Austin Peay; Voice Winters scored 20 points and dished out 10 assists to lead Bradley to an 82-56 win over Indiana State; Troy Lee Mikell scored 22 points as East Tennessee State tripped Marshall 86-82; Mike O'Reilly hit two free throws after time had expired in the second overtime as George Washington defeated Rhode Island 84-82 and Steve Harris' 20 points led Tulsa over Creighton 67-65.

Brett Applegate and Devin Durrant scored 22 and 21 points, respectively, as Brigham Young beat Colorado State 69-58; Derrick Pope's 15 points and 10 rebounds drove Montana past Idaho State 69-55; Charlie Smith hit a 20-foot shot at the buzzer to boost Old Dominion to a 77-76 victory over South Alabama; Anthony Martin and Mike Jackson each scored 17 points to pace Wyoming to a 65-47 romp over Utah; Greg Grant scored 21 points to lift Utah State to a 67-59 triumph over Fullerton State; Vince Hinchin scored 22 points for Boise State, boosting the Broncos to a 68-62 victory over Northern Arizona; Danny Evans sank six free throws in the final three minutes as Oregon State defeated Washington 60-50 and Randy Worster scored 19 points to lead Weber State to a 71-54 win over Montana State.

Herd seeks 2nd straight league win

Hereford's boys, after losing 14 straight district games, will try to make it two victories in a row tonight as they close out the regular season against Lubbock High. Game time in the HHS gym will be 7:45.

Tonight's games, in fact, bring down the curtain on the 1982-83 regular season.

Plainview and Caprock, who tangle tonight in Plainview, have earned playoff spots. About the only thing left to be settled is how they'll represent District 3-5A (either the champion, or runner-up).

Starting play tonight Plainview is 12-3 and Caprock 11-4. Caprock won the previous meeting in Amarillo.

Tonight's other games find Palo Duro (8-7 in league play) at Amarillo High (9-6) and Coronado (5-10) at Tascosa (9-6).

Lubbock brings a 8-7 district mark into tonight's finale vs. Hereford, which is 1-14. The Westerners (17-12 overall) have the most victories of any team in the district. Hereford is 6-21 overall.

Starting play tonight, three of Hereford's five regular season starters are averaging in double figures, and they'll end that way.

Steve Welch's 12.9 average leads the way. Gary Long is next at 11.7, followed by Brian Taylor at 11.2. Terry Shelton, the club's leading rebounder (6.7 per game), is averaging 8.5 points a game and Jeff Streun 8 per outing.

Welch's 50.9 field-goal percentage is the best in the club, but Shelton isn't far back at 49.7. Streun, the top free-throw shooter (76.8 percent) is third in field-goal accuracy at 46.8.

NBA strike this season is a possibility

NEW YORK (AP) — Although at least one owner is hinting National Basketball Association owners would be better off if the players went on strike, the official league line is that a walkout would hurt the sport.

Sam Schulman, owner of the Seattle SuperSonics, said Thursday he would relish a players' strike because it "would enable us to return things to normalcy."

"I dare them to strike," Schulman said. "The players are overpaid."

An NBA spokesman, responding to Wednesday's announcement by players association general counsel Larry Fleisher that a strike was possible if a collective bargaining agreement is not reached by April 1, said, "We think a strike would do great harm to the sport."

The spokesman added that the league believes the best hope for a settlement is for the players to agree to a revenue-sharing plan "to help ensure the stability of the league."

In a written memo, Brian McIntyre, director of public relations for the league, said that NBA players average $246,000 a year. Since the previous collective bargaining agreement expired last June, McIntyre said, "the NBA and its teams have continued to provide every each and every benefit previously given to the players under the prior agreement."

"In fact, there has never been any discussion by the NBA of discontinuing or modifying these benefits," McIntyre said.

The NBA says that at least 10 teams in the 23-team NBA are having financial dificulties that might cause some franchises to fold, be sold or be merged.

In an effort to reduce player costs, the NBA proposes to limit each team's player payroll to approximately $4 million a season. If the players agreed to this proposal, the league would guarantee the players a fixed percentage of the league's revenues that would be disbursed to the players in accordance to a formula established by the union.

McIntyre said that Fleisher said last week at a meeting of the NBA's Labor Relations Committee that he was willing to accept the concept of revenue sharing if the plan was deferred for four years.

"The owners are talking about how they're going out of business and that we are going to give back a lot to save the league," Fleisher said. "We are not going to do that. They are still demanding to take away virtually all of the benefits won by the players over 15 years of collective bargaining."

Fleisher said the league was "demanding that the system of free agency agreed upon in the 1976 Oscar Robertson antitrust suit be modified."

The Robertson settlement established the right of first refusal, in which a free agent can negotiate with every team in the league and then present the best offer to his former club.

Girls' bi-district clash

Plainview loses, 64-51

BROWNFIELD — Plainview's girls couldn't have shot much worse from the field .. and it cost them dearly Thursday here, dropping a Class 5A bi-district contest to Midland High, 64-51.

The loss eliminated the District 3-5A champions from this year's state playoffs.

Lubbock Monterey, the district's runner-up team, will meet 4-5A champion Midland Lee tomorrow at 2 p.m. in Lamesa in another bi-district battle.

For Plainview, Thursday night's bi-district encounter was simply a case of frustration.

The Bulldog girls, who saw their season end at 20-7, took 39 more shots from the field, but sank only one more than Midland, which is making its first-ever playoff appearance.

For the game, Plainview was 20 of 72 from the field for 28 percent. Midland, meanwhile, canned 19 of 33 for 58 percent.

Plainview led in rebounds, 46-34, and was aided in part by 34 Midland turnovers.

The Bulldog girls jumped out to a 9-4 lead early in the opening period, but by the time the quarter ended Midland had gone ahead, 13-11, and never trailed again.

By halftime, Midland led, 27-22, and after three periods enjoyed a solid eight-point (41-33) cushion.

Midland's win Thursday avenged an earlier loss to Plainview this season.

Jeanette Hallman led Plainview with 11 points, while Cynthia Hemphill and Angela Young each added 10. Sheila Christian led Midland with 13 points. Penny Griffin and Rebecca Caton each added a dozen.

Empire State Building "Run Up"

WOW what a race!

NEW YORK (AP) — Al Waque, a mountain climber from New Mexico, and Burke Koncelik, a 29-year-old woman from Oyster Bay Cove, N.Y., are this year's winners of the Empire State Building "Run Up."

"I'm still the king!" exclaimed Waque, a 5-foot-3-inch, two-time winner of the Pikes Peak Marathon, after climbing 86 stories — that's 1,575 steps — on Thursday to win the sixth annual race to the observation deck of the building.

Ms. Koncelik, who celebrated her 29th birthday Wednesday, took first place among the women runners.

"I really wanted to win," she said. "Athletes like to prove they can do things." She is manager of an athletic shoe store in Darien, Conn.

Waque, 31, of Jemez Pueblo, N.M., ran up steps in 11 minutes, 36 seconds.

Ms. Koncelik, declared the "Most Improved Runner of the Year" by the New York Road Runners Club in 1981, did it in 13 minutes, 40 seconds.

Scratched from the contest was Elizabeth Norment, 30, an actress from Manhattan, who showed up in a King Kong gorilla costume.

"I'm used to climbing up the outside of the building. This wasn't my cup of tea," she quipped.

There were 24 male and 12 female competitors. The women started the climb 90 seconds before the men.

Ms. Koncelik said she knew she would be passed by some of the men on the way up, but when she first heard Waque behind her she became "frightened" that it might be another woman runner.

When she saw that it was Waque, she said, the two exchanged words of encouragement, "Good Luck!" and "Go for it!"

She said it took Waque about three floors to get by her in the narrow stairwell. Only one other man passed her, she said.

Longshot grabs San Diego golf lead

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Jon Chaffee, a tour longshot who spent last year as an assistant golf pro in Minnesota, was at a career crossroads when he returned for another try last month.

"This is my fifth year," said Chaffee, 27, who lost his qualifying card in 1982. "I had better make the top 125 this year or find something else to do."

Chaffee, currently ranked 150th in money earnings with $827, got the spurt of the confidence he needed Thursday.

A 7-under-par 65, one shy of the course record, gave him a one-stroke lead going into today's second round of the $300,000 Isuzu-Andy Williams San Diego Open.

"I did what everyone hopes to do on the North Course — and that's play the par 5s well," said Chaffee, who eagled two of the par 5s and birdied the other two during a bogey-free round.

His first eagle came on the 499-yard 18th hole, where he put a 1-iron within three feet. On the final hole, No. 9, he belted a 3-iron to within 15 feet and sank the putt.

Three months ago, Chaffee was among six golfers who tied for 45th and earned a qualifying card by one stroke after a six-round qualifying tournament in Ponte Vedra, Fla.

Fifteen golfers were within three strokes of the Austin, Minn., native after Thursday's opening round. Among the quartet was Ben Crenshaw, who is attempting a comeback after a 1982 collapse.

Crenshaw, 31, said his problems last year — he finished 83rd with $54,227 — forced him to make changes.

"It was time for rebuilding," he said. "I was hitting the ball too stiff legged and my body took over at the top."

Since making modifications, he has rediscovered the form that propelled him to fifth place on the money list in 1979 and 1980. He had six birdies Thursday.

Currently 12th with $37,963, Crenshaw was third in the Hawaiian Open last week, his best finish since winning the Anheuser Busch Classic in 1980.

Tied with Crenshaw at 66 were Tom Jenkins, Scott Simpson and Bruce Fleisher.

At 5-under 67 were Bob Gilder, Barry Jaeckel and Gary McCord. Eight players were three shots off the lead, including Tom Kite, Lon Hinkle, D.A. Weibring and Bill Calfee, who fired their 68s on the more demanding 7,002-yard South Course.

Chaffee's round came on where 36 of the 58 players broke par. Both courses are par 72s.

Defending champion Johnny Miller was five strokes back and Tom Watson, out to become the first three-time winner in San Diego, was among 19 tied at even par.

Heavyweight doubleheader set May 20

NEW YORK (AP) — Don King was really rolling. He'd already announced the May 20 heavyweight championship doubleheader. He had run through the adjectives to describe it. And he was about to introduce the principals.

Baseball playoffs eye change

NEW YORK (AP) — After 13 years of best-of-five league championships, major league baseball might be going to a best-of-seven format like that of the World Series.

Subject to approval by the players' union, the new setup was announced Thursday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn after baseball's Executive Council voted to expand the playoffs.

Since 1969, the league championships have been a best-of-five, with one division winner hosting the first two games, then the series switching sites for the last three contests. Under the new format, the sixth and seventh games would be in the city where the first two games are held.

"It is the feeling of the Council that the time has arrived to take this step," Kuhn said in a statement. "It is not an overnight decision. There has been a great deal of sentiment for some time and that feeling continues to grow."

"One reason that seems to stand out is that after playing 162 games to determine division championships, a best four-of-seven series would be a fairer way to decide league championships. It is a better test of team strength, especially the pitching."

Arthur Schack, administrator for the Players Association, said, "It's the first we've heard of it. We'll have to study it."

If the new setup is approved, the league series would start on the Tuesday following the end of the season in at least one league, Kuhn said. The World Series would return to a Saturday start with Game 7 eight days later.

dawned on him that he'd have to listen to all the accomplishments of more than half a dozen other fighters before getting his chance at the microphone.

"Hey," Holmes shouted, "we ain't got all day."

King, the electric-haired fight promoter, was silenced — but only for a moment. Then, he reeled off all of Holmes' accomplishments, introduced the World Boxing Council heavyweight champ — and stood by, tossing in asides.

Holmes, unbeaten in 41 pro fights, is the crown jewel in this promotion. It will be only the second time both heavyweight titles have been at stake on the same night. On March 31, 1980, Holmes defeated Leroy Jones and Mike Weaver dethroned World Boxing Association champion John Tate.

Holmes puts his title on the line against the WBC's No. 3 contender, Tim Witherspoon, 15-0 with 11 knockouts. On the same night but in a different city, Michael Dokes, the WBA champion with a 26-0-1 record, will defend against Weaver, from whom he wrested the crown in a controversial fight stopped in the first round last Dec. 10. Weaver is 24-10.

Holmes' bout is to be a maximum 12-round, the new length mandated by the WBC following the death last year of Duk Koo Kim. Dokes' fight is to be a 15-round. Holmes wants the same. "It's 15 or I'm not showin' up," he told the news conference.

Holmes hasn't been on the best of terms with King since the fight promoter reduced Holmes' purse following his victory over Randall "Tex" Cobb last Nov. 26 because, King claimed, the fight had not been as successful as anticipated.

Greg Page will fight Renaldo Snipes for the U.S. Boxing Association heavyweight title and a shot at the WBC crown before Holmes takes on Witherspoon. The Dokes-Weaver bout will be preceded by Ossie Ocasio's defense of his WBA cruiserweight title against Randy Stephens.

Las Vegas and Reno, Nev., Miami, Seattle, Anchorage, Alaska, and East Rutherford, N.J., are among the potential sites for the two-city card.

The fights will be shown on closed-circuit television in theaters and on home TVs equipped with special boxes to unscramble the satellite transmission.

Pupils see parents picked up in INS raid

DALLAS (AP) — Some elementary school students saw their parents being taken away by federal immigration agents during a roundup of illegal aliens staged near a predominately Hispanic school, teachers said.

Students, teachers and school officials were able to watch federal agents load suspected undocumented workers on a government bus parked outside a nearby recreation center Thursday, officials at Mount Auburn Elementary School said.

Teachers explained what was happening, but some said their students already knew.

"To see the kids staring out the windows and seeing their parents being put on that bus, it was heartbreaking," said Mara Estrada, a teacher. "They know what that bus is."

Many pupils were forced to spend Thursday night with neighbors or relatives, not knowing whether or when their parents would return, according to school staff members.

"There were several uncles and relatives here today (after the roundup) telling the kids not to go home tonight, but to go to the uncle's house," said teacher Cindy Berry. "It made me sick."

"I understand they've got a job to do, but it seems they could have found a better way," said Bill Wiseman, assistant principal.

Officials of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service said the roundup was not aimed at the school's pupils or parents.

"It was nothing out of the ordinary, completely routine," said INS Regional Director William Chambers.

INS agents conduct daily roundups "where we have reports of illegal alien activity," often in Hispanic areas, Chambers said.

Although INS agents can go anywhere to apprehend illegal aliens, Chambers said INS policy is not to enter schools or school grounds.

"We don't work schools," Chambers said. "We may work sidewalks and streets in a neighborhood."

Judge indicates he won't grant new trial

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal judge, who heard a construction worker testify about a murder cult, has deferred a ruling on a motion for a new trial for Charles Harrelson, convicted of killing U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

U.S. District Judge William Sessions, who listened to the testimony Thursday, said he wasn't convinced a new trial was warranted. But he delayed a formal ruling on the appeal by Harrelson, who was convicted in December of killing Wood for a $250,000 fee.

James E. Benskin, 31, of Austin, testified that he saw a shadowy figure — a man he identified as Charles Brazil — with two women in a Victoria restaurant on Halloween in 1978, and that they talked about joining a professional murder ring known as the "Black Wings."

He said one of the principal prosecution witnesses at Harrelson's San Antonio trial was one of the women he saw with "Charles Brazil" at the Victoria restaurant in 1978.

Benskin said that prosecutors never believed his story, and he even wrote to President Reagan trying to find a forum to give his account.

Wood, known as "Maximum John" for the stiff sentences he meted out to people convicted of drug offenses, was shot to death in May of 1979 in front of his townhouse in San Antonio.

Harrelson's motion for a new trial was based on the premise that prosecutors did not tell Harrelson's attorney of Benskin's contention that Brazil had killed the judge.

Also testifying Thursday was Joe Chagra, who received a 10-year prison sentence on a murder conspiracy charge in a plea-bargain agreement.

Chagra, brother of high stakes gambler Jimmy Chagra, says Chagra got special considerations as a part of a plea-bargain arrangement that his jury should have been told about.

Chagra testified against Harrelson and two others charged in the Wood death, but did not have to appear in the trial of his brother, who was acquitted earlier this month in a trial at Jacksonville, Fla.

Chagra denied suggestions by Tom Sharpe of Brownsville, Harrelson's attorney, that the return of property seized by government agents from Chagra's El Paso home in 1981 was a part of the plea-bargain agreement, although most of the property was returned after the San Antonio trial.

Sharpe contended the return of the property was an

Pre-teen suicide increasing

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have printed many letters in your column about teenage depression and suicide but never have you mentioned pre-teens in this contest. It is a growing problem in America, and I speak from experience.

Three years ago our nine-year-old daughter attempted to kill herself by taking a bottle of aspirin. Luckily we found her in time. We spent two years in family group therapy. The change in her personality and conduct is incredible.

Too often parents are told their depressed and moody children are just going through a stage. Please alert them to the dangers of ignoring melancholy and extremely introverted behavior. It is foolish to assume anything. There may be no second chance. Sign us—The Lucky Ones In Topeka

DEAR LUCKY ONES: Thank you for the opportunity to address this subject. Moody, melancholy, antisocial preteens should be taken to a physician for a thorough check-up. If no organic problem is found, they should be seen by a psychiatrist, psychologist or counselor. Teachers can be helpful by reporting "loner" behavior in school. While we do not think of pre-teenagers as possible suicide victims, let me assure you hundreds of very young children do succeed in taking their lives every year.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 48, male, straight, an Irish Catholic and a virgin. I was brought up to believe that everything that had to do with sex was wrong and sinful. I now know this is not correct, but emotionally I am so hung up that I cannot give a casual kiss, hold a woman's hand, or even let a female get too close.

It would make me feel better to know I am not the only person in the world who is so peculiar, but I'm sure there is not even one other.

Am I beyond hope? What can I do to behave in a more normal manner? I am not out to have an affair. I just hate backing away every time a woman comes near. I suspect some of my acquaintances think I'm a homosexual.—Alone In Chicago

DEAR CHICAGO: You are not "alone"—although more females have this problem than males.

You wouldn't hobble through life on two broken legs, would you? Well, emotionally, you are just as crippled. If you want to break out of that prison of repression, you'll need professional help. Get going.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is not easy to write because it is a complaint against my mother.

My husband and I both work. Mom lives fairly close. She has always been bossy, but now it has gotten beyond that. Almost every day she comes into our house when we are at work, does the laundry, cleans the bathrooms, waxes the floors and moves the furniture around. She also leaves notes for our sons saying such things as "Why don't you clean up your room? It's a mess."

My husband and I resent her intrusion. He has threatened to move out of the state, but jobs are not easy to find and I'd hate to risk it. Please advise.—Going Nuts In Tennessee

DEAR TENNESSEE: Millions of couples who work would be delighted if someone came in every day and did the cleaning and laundry. Since you consider it an intrusion, ask her to return the house keys.

Today In History

By The Associated Press Today is Friday, Feb. 18, the 49th day of 1983. There are 316 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 18, 1861, Jefferson Davis was sworn in as president of the confederacy in Montgomery, Ala.

On this date: In 1546, German religious reformer Martin Luther died.

In 1564, the artist Michelangelo died at the age of 69.

In 1685, the French explorer La Salle established the first settlement in Texas.

In 1945, the World War II Battle of Iwo Jima began.

Ten years ago: U.S. envoy Henry Kissinger conferred for four hours with Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai on the fourth day of Kissinger's visit to Peking.

Five years ago: A terrorist killed Youssef El-Sebai, the editor of Egypt's principal newspaper Al Ahran, at a hotel in Cyprus.

One year ago: President Reagan said there were no plans to send U.S. troops into combat in El Salvador or anywhere else.

Today's birthday: Sen. John Warner, R-Va., is 56.

understood part of the agreement and should have been explained to the San Antonio jury. On that basis, Sharpe said, a new trial should be granted.

Benskin said he attended Harrelson's trial several times last year and recognized local attorney Chrys Lambros as one of the women Brazil was talking to in a Victoria restaurant.

Ms. Lambros testified during Harrelson's trial she saw Harrelson at Wood's townhouse complex the morning the judge was shot while leaving for work.

"I've seen her in this courtroom and I've seen her in Victoria," said Benskin, who testified he worked in Victoria in 1978.

Ms. Lambros, who did not testify Thursday, has denied knowing anyone named Charles Brazil or a friend of his identified only as "Tom." Benskin claimed "Tom" helped Brazil kill Wood.

Ms. Lambros said she was in San Antonio, not Victoria, on the date in 1978 that Benskin says the restaurant meeting occurred.

The construction worker said Brazil talked of joining the "Black Wings," which he described as a mysterious murder ring specializing in killing important people. Brazil often wore a green fatigue jacket of the type Ms. Lambros testified Harrelson wore on the day the judge was shot, Benskin said.

He said a crane operator dropped him to the ground while at a Victoria construction site six days after the judge was shot and he believes he was "brainwashed" while at the hospital recovering from his injuries.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—The lull that has characterized these opening weeks of the Legislature was unfortunately disturbed last week by a fire that ravaged the East Wing of the State Capitol.

The flames that destroyed the Lt. Governor's offices and apartment on the second floor licked around the door frames leading into the Senate chamber, but firefighters brought it under control and senators are still meeting in full session.

In fact, one of the Senate's first items of business last week was to approve an emergency appropriation of $7 million to rebuild the damaged heart of the Senate.

The appropriation was sponsored by Nacogdoches Sen. Roy Blake, who rushed 200 miles from his home to the scene of the early morning fire. On the way, he was stopped for speeding by a police officer, who didn't believe him when he explained the Capitol was burning. Finally, the officer relented, pocketed his ticket book, and let Blake journey on to Austin.

To observers who can maneuver past the Capitol guards to see the ruined wing, the blackened walls and ceilings, the memory of the one fatality and the near escape of others, and the destruction of 100 years of Texas tradition, the experience is grim.

Attorney General Jim Mattox assigned outside experts to investigate the cause of the blaze, believed to be either a faulty electrical appliance or smoking materials.

Capitol Shanties

Two weeks ago, Gov. Mark White addressed national Democratic Party leaders in Washington, D.C., and underscoring his feelings about the recession, mentioned a shanty area in Austin just a few blocks away from the State Capitol.

After Austin police and Salvation Army officials professed no knowledge of his example, White a few days later led a group of reporters to the places 14 blocks from the Capitol where people live in makeshift shacks along creek beds and railroad tracks.

"You have to recognize that these things exist. When I say these things exist, I don't say it lightly," White said.

In January, the national unemployment rate decreased while Texas' rate increased to 8.2 percent, the first time that has happened in years, he said.

"No" To PUC

White also criticized the Public Utilities Commission's attempt to eliminate the controversial automatic fuel cost pass-through. Commission officials said their new emergency rule adopted last week would outlaw the pass-through, but White said "No."

"I made it very clear when I said I wanted the fuel pass-through abolished. That's simple English. I don't want them to hide it. I want them to abolish it."

Battleship Texas

The Battleship Texas moored at the San Jacinto State Park near Houston is like "a slave galley," according to Galveston Rep. Lloyd Criss.

Criss blasted officials of the Battleship Texas Commission for consistently mistreating its employees and ignoring the safety of its workers and tourists.

He pointed out the case of one employee who was fired for reporting a leak in the ship's hull. The report was later confirmed and cost the state $70,000 to repair.

Criss has filed a bill to abolish the battleship commission and transfer control to the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Fee Proposal

Bryan Rep. Bill Presnal, chairman of the powerful House Appropriations Committee, tried last week to offer a compromise to the funding impasse which has developed between the House and Senate.

The Senate appears to favor a tax increase, the House appears adamantly opposed to one, and Presnal suggested a periodic, automatic increase for hundreds of state fees for permits, licenses and other services.

His legislation would be across-the-board increases according to an inflation-keyed formula. A new fee schedule could raise an extra $60 million.

Presnal said his bill could cut down "political demagoguery."

University Funding

A proposed constitutional amendment to create a fund for construction at universities not under the Permanent University Fund got a shot in the arm last week when White designated it emergency legislation.

Sponsors are now discussing whether to send the proposal, if it passes, to the voters for approval in May or November elections.

Blood Tests

Brownsville Sen. Hector Uribe, saying premarital blood tests are costly and don't do the job, has filed a bill outlawing them.

He wants to substitute a required blood test for newborns and retain blood tests for pregnant mothers.

Uribe said only 218 syphilis cases were found among the estimated 400,000 Texans who paid $30 or more for the premarital blood test and the state should revise its method of tracing the venereal disease. His bill has support from the Texas Medical Association.

Wright wants Mexico as partner

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Majority Leader Jim Wright has proposed that Mexico be enlisted as "full-fledged" partner in efforts to craft a new immigration law dealing with the problem of illegal aliens.

"I do believe it is necessary for us to achieve some program," said Wright, a Texas Democrat. "We've got to do something about that growing problem which increasingly affects many parts of our country."

Among other steps, Wright said, "we need to sit down with the government of Mexico and show them the dignity and the respect of asking them to work out with us some of the components of the program."

Most of the illegal aliens come from Mexico and the issue "is a matter of great sensitivity" to that country, he said.

Thus, Wright said Thursday, "I think we need not just to present them with a fait accompli, but rather to bring them in as full-fledged partners" in efforts to legalize the status of some aliens already in the United States and possibly create a "guest worker" program for others who want to enter.

NBC to air 'Rage of Angels'

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's television axiom: You can take out the trash, but you can never get rid of it. NBC's "Rage of Angels," a four-hour trudge Sunday and Monday nights through the power, lust and slush of non-textbook law, ventures over the same low-life terrain as this season's other soapy two-partners: CBS' "Bare Essence" and ABC's "Malibu."

To trash, network style, is to take a contrived, weakling story (preferably from a pulp novel), jet-set it to exotic locales, throw in relationships lacking significance, and then, for alleged substance, use five-and-dime philosophy for dialogue.

That's the essence of "Rage of Angels," from Sidney Sheldon's best-seller. Sheldon, who created "The Patty Duke Show" and "I Dream of Jeanie" before he became a novelist at age 50, is executive producer of the miniseries, which happens to be the first long-form effort from NBC Productions, the network's own filmmaking unit.

Jaclyn Smith stars as Jennifer Parker, who is supposed to be a high-powered lawyer like F. Lee Bailey or Melvin Belli. But the difference is that she's a woman, or as one of her fawning admirers in the movie says, an "astoundingly beautiful" woman.

She's even beautiful in the hospital after being hit by a car, with just the right rouge to authenticate a boo-boo on her cheek.

One of "Charlie's Angels," Miss Smith was better last year doing a carbon of Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy in a TV movie than she is playing this paperback heroine, who comes to New York as a trainee in the district attorney's office.

Immediately, she makes a fool of herself by arriving late for a meeting and then babbling on about missed bus connections.

That same day, she's tricked into delivering a package containing a dead canary to the state's important stool pigeon, causing a mistrial. Her reputation tarnished, this spunky one successfully fights to maintain her right to practice law, but she is laughed out of several offices when job-hunting.

Jennifer eventually gets pregnant and has a son by a future United States senator, who happens to be married to someone else. Adam Warner (Ken Howard of the "White Shadow") is one of two powerful men smitten with "The Canary Girl."

By the time she has the baby, Jennifer is a prestigious lawyer, sharing her office with an alcoholic investigator, played by Kevin Conway in the movie's best acting performance.

Her other lover is a creepy mob lawyer named Michael Moretti. Armand Assante does a poor imitation of Marlon Brando's "The Godfather."

There's location shooting in Acapulco (for a law convention), Paris (for Jennifer's first date with Michael), New York (for big-time law) and New Jersey (for the movie's mob hangouts). But as happens often with trash, "Rage of Angels" travels far but doesn't go anywhere.

Captain Van runs school for marines

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — They were the unsung heroes of World War II. They wore no country's uniform, but the merchant marines sailed under flags of freedom when it seemed the free world might be in danger.

Today, there aren't nearly so many merchant marines. The lure of the sea does not beckon with the same magnetism. But if it does, Captain Van stands ready to point the right direction.

Since 1948, Captain John F. Vandegrift has been at the helm of Captain Van's school for sailors. He has turned out thousands of sailors, navigators and merchant marines for work here and around the world.

Vandegrift, who recently celebrated his 71st birthday, is himself a master mariner, licensed to sail as captain of any type of vessel. He still runs Captain Van Inc., offering navigational charts and equipment, as well as his school for merchant marines.

"We've been here since the late 1940s," he says, turning away from the most modern of computer screens. "At one time, if all of the men educated in the school here stayed ashore, Gulf Oil wouldn't have been able to move a ship."

His ledger dates back to 1948, and it reads like a who's who in sailing circles and refinery management. His little store is decorated with the certification of Vandegrift's place in the seaman's world.

Vandegrift began sailing when he was 17 years old. He went to work in 1942 on the William C.C. Claiborne, the first Liberty ship built in New Orleans. The Liberty ships were built to ferry supplies and material to the Allies during World War II.

"We set out with 9,600 tons of TNT, 300 tons of nitro starch and about 50 pounds of blasting caps," recalls Capt. Vandegrift.

"We sailed right into an area off the coast of Florida where many ships had been sunk (by enemy submarines). Suddenly, an airplane dropped a white flare, which meant that he'd seen a submarine."

"But nothing happened. We maneuvered into shallow water and when day broke, we saw the masts of other ships that had been sunk. But nothing happened to us."

That was the closest to enemy action Vandegrift ever came. Throughout the war years, he sailed to the Caribbean, to South America and to Europe, helping ferry millions of tons of equipment to the war effort.

"I don't know how I managed to live to be 71 years old," he says. "I've been to every hot spot in the world." One glittering moment in

FAITH IN GOD WILL RESTORE YOUR SELF-CONFIDENCE

Are you ever consumed by doubts of your own abilities? Do you sometimes fear that you may be unequal to whatever task you are assigned in your chosen work? Then let faith in God give you the assurance that if the work you are doing is right, then you will be given the ability to perform it adequately and that there is nothing you cannot do if it is required of you. God never intended that man should be limited in his capacity for good work, so go to Church this Sunday and trust Him to give you all the courage and self-confidence you will ever need.

"If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."
— Matthew 17:20

The reason birds can fly and we can't is simply that they have perfect faith, for to have faith is to have wings.
— Sir James Matthew Barrie

Gov. says regulated utilities best bet

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says he would rather have lower utility bills for Texas consumers than a top credit rating for the state's bonds.

White also told a Thursday news conference he thought hardened criminals should be securely confined but he did not want to waste money building "Cadillac prisons."

The governor was asked if the recent shakeup in the Public Utility Commission, when two of the three commissioners resigned, would affect Texas' credit rating.

"It's very simple for a monopoly to make money. The consumer has no alternative, so don't let the bond ratings be the indicator of the vitality of the industry," White said.

He said he was pleased to hear that bonding companies which rate the quality of utility companies had taken Texas out of first place in being the least effective regulator among other states.

"That's a step in the right direction," the governor said. "I want them to say that Texas is the most effective regulator. When you do that, you'll have a healthy utility industry and you'll have a consumer, be he homeowner or businessman, that can afford their electric bills."

White also said he was against an $81 million emergency appropriation to build new prisons. The emergency request by Prison Director Jim Estelle is in addition to the original $1.5 billion prison system budget request.

Estelle said Wednesday the Legislature would either have to pay for the prisons or re-think tougher sentencing laws that are sending more prisoners to Huntsville.

"I would oppose the repeal of these measures," White said. "People who use firearms in the commission of a crime should be dealt with most harshly. I think they are kparticularly the individuals tha need to be placed in the penitentiary and out of society."

"Those are the people that these prisons are being built for. I assure you that we will support prisons of adequate size to take care of those people."

"At the same time, that doesn't mean we have to build Cadillac prisons," White said.

He said the $81 million proposed as an emergency appropriation to build cell blocks for 4,000 prisoners was in addition to $800 million already requested.

"Eighty-one million dollar prisons are rather high when you divide that over 4,000 people," White said.

On other issues, White said:

— He was appointing Robert Lanier, Houston attorney, to the state highway commission to replace Sam Waldrop, whose term expired. Asked if he would make Lanier commission chairman, White said he would announce his decision after the Senate has confirmed Lanier's appointment. Robert Dedman, Dallas, is present chairman.

Three million acres of U.S. farmland are still being lost each year to urbanization or flooding. On productive farmland, 4 billion tons of topsoil are lost yearly to wind and water erosion — from which only half the nation's cropland is adequately protected.

Army opens new drive for nerve gas weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rebuffed by Congress last year, the Reagan administration is launching a fresh drive to win approval for production of a new generation of nerve gas weapons.

Army officials are pushing for a nearly $140 million program which would include money to start turning out 155-millimeter shells to carry binary chemicals.

Binary weapons are those in which two non-lethal chemical components are packaged separately and then combine to form a killing nerve agent while the projectile carrying them is in flight toward a target.

Specialists contend the new binary weapons will not be dangerous either to military personnel handling them nor to civilians living around storage areas.

President Reagan appealed to Congress in 1982 to approve production of new lethal nerve gas weapons, contending they are needed to deter Soviet use of chemicals in a war.

Critics claim the program is militarily unnecessary and politically unwise.

James F. Leonard, a former U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency of-cial, testifying before a congressional committee considering the administration's request last year, said their production "would give the Soviet Union a propaganda windfall it does not deserve and...upset our allies."

— He would support legislation that would let voters say whether the Veterans Land Fund could be used for purchasing homes as well as farms and ranches.

The United States has manufactured no chemical weapons since 1969. Meanwhile, military officials have told Congress repeatedly that the current stockpile of chemical weapons is old and that many of the munitions are unusable.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., whose state would produce the chemical weapons, argued against the plan last year, saying the United States has "an enormous existing stockpile of chemical weapons."

"If this appropriation is approved, we will be launching a program of insanity in a war that neither side can win," he argued last May.

Despite Reagan's 1982 appeal, Congress finally rejected the request for $54.4 million to start producing binary weapons, the 155-millimeter artillery shell and a bomb called Bigeye.

Appeals court ruling could overturn cases

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The fate of hundreds of persons convicted of murder in Texas may be drastically altered after the full Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin hears arguments next week on the wording of the state murder statute.

All nine justices will convene Wednesday to consider the wording of Section 19.02 of the Texas Penal Code, which deals with murder.

If the court agrees with the Dec. 15, 1982 determination of a three-judge panel of its members, hundreds of persons charged and convicted of murder will either have to be re-tried or freed, the Corpus Christi Caller-Times reports.

The statute, in effect since 1974, states in one provision that "a person commits an offense if he intends to cause serious bodily injury and commits an act clearly dangerous to human life that causes the death of an individual."

But Justice Sam Houston Clinton, writing the panel's opinion, said the statute must say "an individual did then and there commit an act clearly dangerous to human life which said defendant intended or knew was clearly dangerous to human life."

The difference is subtle but insidious, says Bell County's chief appellate attorney, Ralph Petty.

"It's like saying, yes, I had a gun and I intended to shoot this person and do him a lot of damage, but I didn't intend to kill him or I didn't know I was going to kill him," Petty said.
