Violence escalates as independent truckers launch nationwide strike,

By The Associated Press

Violence escalated overnight in a nationwide strike by independent truckers when one man was killed and another wounded by snipers in unrelated shootings as they wheeled their rigs through the darkness, authorities said.

Another driver was wounded by a sniper and a teen-ager suffered a fractured skull when a brick bounded off a tractor-trailer into her family's car as violence and acts of sabotage in 10 states marked the first day of the protest against higher fuel taxes and

But the initial success of the strike appeared limited Monday. Officials in many states reported near-normal truck traffic, some drivers expressed more fear of militant strikers than any desire to stop work themselves, and shippers reported no major problems moving their goods.

George Franklin Capps, 33, was shot and killed by a single rifle shot about 11:30 p.m. Monday just outside Newton Grove, N.C., as he was driving a truck along U.S. 701, said Sampson County sheriff's deputy Gerald

"I don't think his (Reagan's) budget would have much chance of passing the House," said Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass.

"It's going to be pretty difficult," for Reagan to get his budget enacted, said Sen. Lawton Chiles of Florida, the senior Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee.

"This is the same stay-thecourse budget we have seen for the past two years," said Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee.

Republican criticism was more muted, but members of the president's party freely agreed that Congress would make big changes in the budget blueprint which Reagan formally submitted Monday.

First on the list is deeper cuts than Reagan has said he will allow in his $238.6 billion defense budget for next year.

Chiles, for one, said $8 billion in cuts to which Reagan has already agreed is the product of a decision by Reagan's aides to use different guesses about the impact of inflation than members of Congress are employing. "It's as if you had a sale and announced 25 per cent off, but you had marked up your products 26 per cent before the start of the sale," said Chiles. "You really don't have a cut in defense in those

BERLIN (AP) - In a surprise move to counter Soviet overtures to Western European officials and peace groups, President Reagan has offered to meet Kremlin leader Yuri V. Andropov 'wherever and whenever he wants" to sign a disarma-

Briton faces trial on charges he sold arms

DALLAS (AP) - A British arms dealer faces up to 70 years in prison and fines totaling $61,000 if he is convicted of illegally smuggling weapons to Iran and Iraq.

Attorneys selected a jury of eight men and four women Monday to try Ian Smalley, 41, of London. Testimony was scheduled to begin today.

U.S. Attorney Jim Rolfe said U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agent Tom Hupp is scheduled to be the first witness to testify.

Rolfe said Hupp is expected to describe a meeting with Smalley in Washington regarding the acquisition of airplanes and weapons for Libya.

Court records show that most of the government's case against Smalley is built around 80 to 85 hours of tape recordings made during a 15-month investigation by U.S. Customs agents.

Smalley was indicted last November by federal grand jurors on charges of conspiring to ship 100 tanks from the United States to Iran and 8,300 missiles to Iraq.

The indictment also charged Smalley acted as an unregistered foreign agent by possessing property in aid of a foreign government.

Smalley, who is free on $100,000 bond secured by his $1.5 million Texas ranch, was arrested Sept. 20 and accused of giving false information when he bought some firearms in Dallas

Smalley has seven lawyers listed on his defense team, including nationally known Houston lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes.

AG says pollution suits are new direction

HOUSTON (AP) - Announcing "the beginning of a new direction" for his office, Attorney General Jim Mattox has sued the owners of five sewage treatment facilities which he says were polluting a source of Houston's drinking water.

Mattox, who filed the suits Monday, said he intends to seek injunctions and penalties ranging from $50 to $1,000 per day per violation against each facility. Those penalties and legal fees will be paid by residents of the utility

The suits cited two utility districts each in Harris and Montgomery counties and the city of Cleveland's sewage treatment facility in Liberty County. The facilities drain into creeks feeding Lake Houston, which is the source of 40 percent of Houston's drinking water.

Large city native a country girl at heart

BY LINDA CAUDLE Family News Editor

From Houston to Hereford...quite a change. But Kim Moore says she's adjusting very well.
"I like this size town," she smiles. "You can see the grass roots - people working together. And I've always thought that an agricultural environment gives a wholesome attitude. The first thing that impressed me about Hereford was the people. It's a progressive town."

"I'm proud to be a native Houstonian," adds Kim, "and I enjoyed living there - the convenience was fantastic. But I never liked the hustle bustle. I'm a country girl at heart."

"It seems like my family spent a lot of time moving farther and farther away from the downtown - to the edge of town. We've always liked that kind of lifestyle. So when Bobby and I moved to Hereford, the first thing I wanted to do was move to the country. I wasn't satisfied until we were really 'out in the country.' "

Kim and her husband, Bobby, who is operating manager at Moore's Jack and Jill, were married and moved to Hereford just over a year ago. They reside about four miles outside of Hereford off the Dimmitt cutoff.

Bobby was born in Quanah and grew up in Olton and Friona so was quite familiar with the Panhandle. Kim, on the other hand, had never been to the Panhandle.

'My first day in Hereford was the day the tumbleweeds blew in - the big tumbleweed storm - and the next day it sleeted," says Kim. "It was an astounding first impression of Hereford and the Panhandle. I flew back to Houston to get some more things and I think Bobby was back!

"But I really do like it here. There are certain qualities in the Panhandle that you don't find anywhere else. I like Texas because it's so diversified. You can stay in Texas and see almost anything."

Kim and Bobby met at Abilene Christian University, where Kim earned a bachelor's degree in oral communication and Bobby received a master's degree in business administration. He has his bachelor's in business from Lubbock Christian Col-

Bobby was assistant manager of a supermarket in Abilene while in school there. "His dad is a grocer and Bobby has worked in that business since he was about seven years old," says Kim. "He loves it. I think it's great to have a job that you really enjoy.'

Kim is employed at KPAN Radio - something right down her alley. "I thoroughly enjoy the communication field," she comments. "It lets me use my mind and express myself."

She is involved in operations, writing and production of commercials, and "of course the paperwork that goes along with it. I really enjoy writing commercials," she notes, "I like expressing creativity through words and I feel like it keeps my mind sharp." She also does features occasionally.

When she was in college, Kim worked for an advertising agency, which helped her gain experience in several areas. She was involved in debate and forensics, going to tournaments and competing at nationals. After beginning with a major in mass communications, she finished with an emphasis in pre-law as well as oral communica-

She was also involved in a Toastmasters Club in Abilene. One of her favoriate pastimes is reading. "My childhood dream was to be an author," says Kim. "I love to read."

Kim also enjoys a variety of crafts and handwork, from embroidery to wordworking to calligraphy. "My tastes are old fashioned countrytype things - old weather vanes, rustic book shelves," notes Kim. "Nothing real fan-

"I just started calligraphy, using a book borrowed from my aunt who took a class. Wood burning is new for me too, and I can tell I'm going to have a ball with it.

"I like to try everything and often get ideas from magazines. I especially like to make things for Christmas.

Kim also likes to sew and decorate. "I wanted some ruffled country curtains for the kitchen when we moved out to the country," she comments, "and I couldn't find any I liked, so I decided to make my own. This is the first time I've had a chance to decorate a place myself (it's different than an apartment) and I'm really enjoying it."

"Something I want to try my hand at this year is planting a garden," adds Kim. "I'll have to get used to the growing season here - it's a whole different thing. In Houston we could have as many as three growing seasons."

Another of Kim's favorite things is animals - all kinds. "Just lately we've been working with my brother-in-law's horses. He has a farm in Dim-

Public Notice

In order to implement prior orders of the Public Utility Commission of Texas in Docket No. 3957, notice is hereby given of Southwestern Bell's proposal to implement a new schedule of intrastate long distance rates, effective April 1, 1983, unless otherwise determined by the Commission.

It is expected that the proposed rate schedule will not increase the company's net intrastate revenues, but rather, the increased rates will offset increased settlements paid to certain other telephone companies.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas, and is available for inspection in each of the company's public business offices in Texas.

Notice to Customers of Other Telephone Companies

Changes in intrastate long distance rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies because such companies provide intrastate long distance service in accordance with rates specified in Southwestern Bell's

Aviso Público

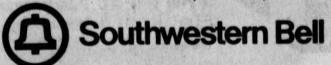

Southwestern Bell, con el objeto de cumplir con el decreto previo del Public Utility Commission (Comisión de Servicios Públicos) del Estado de Texas, Acta No. 3957, por la presente hace saber su intención de establecer un nuevo arancel de tarifas para servicio intraestatal de larga distancia, con vigencia a partir del 1o de abril de 1983, a menos que la Comisión haga otra determinación.

Se espera que el nuevo arancel de tarifas que Southwestern Bell se propone establecer no aumentará sus ingresos netos intraestatales, sino que servirá para compensar el aumento de los ajustes que se les paga a algunas otras compañías de teléfono.

Una copia completa del nuevo arancel de tarifas se ha archivado en las oficinas del Public Utility Commission (Comisión de Servicios Públicos) en Austin, Texas, y esta disponible para inspección pública en todas nuestras oficinas en el Estado de Texas.

Aviso a los Clientes de Otras Compañías de Teléfono

Cambios en las tarifas para servicio intraestatal de larga distancia tambien afectarían a clientes de otras compañías de teléfono porque dichas compañías proveen servicio intraestatal de larga distancia en conformidad a tarifas especificadas por Southwestern Bell.

Villanova's ominpresent forward hauled down 20 rebounds and scored 27 points, including the two winning free throws with eight seconds left. The seven-foot Ewing, meanwhile, was in foul trouble most of the night and left the Big East game with 6:45 remaining after collecting only eight points and six rebounds.

"That was the finest, most thrilling, most hard-fought victory that I've coached in my 26 years," said Massimino after watching his Wildcats beat a Georgetown team for the first time since Georgetown had beaten Villanova the last six times the teams met.

"We got the ball inside when we had to," Massimino said. "And everything just worked down the stretch. They (Georgetown) are a tough, tough team. They play terrific defense."

Noted Georgetown Coach John Thompson: "The momentum shifted, but that's all part of the game. It was a highly emotional game. The Big East is a well-balanced league. All the games are tough.'

Knicks find ways to replace star

NEW YORK (AP) - The New York Knicks are finding ways to compensate for the loss of star forward Bernard King, while Larry Drew's sprained right wrist is playing havoc with the Kansas City Kings.

The Knicks improved their record to 5-4 since King's knee injury Jan. 14 and Kansas City fell to 0-6 without Drew when New York raced to a 114-97 National Basketball Association victory Monday night.

In the only other NBA game, Boston tripped Chicago 110-104.

King was averaging 22.6 points when he was injured, nine per game more than anyone else on the team. But in the last nine games, Bill Cartwright, Len "Truck" Robinson and Paul Westphal have boosted their production significantly.

That was the case again Monday as Robinson scored 21 points, Louis Orr 20, and Cartwright and Westphal 18 each.

"There is no way we're as good a team without Bernard King," Coach Hubie Brown has said since the injury.

"If King were here, we never would have lost to Utah and San Diego," he said Moning 600 teams. We should be the victory.

playing better because we're not playing teams like Milwaukee and Boston."

The Kings kept the game close in the first half, but their offense disintegrated in the first 91/2 minutes of the third quarter, when they were outscored 25-6. Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons says Drew, averaging 19 points per game and third in the NBA in assists, would. have made the difference.

Robinson and Westphal scored eight points apiece and Orr scored seven during the 25-6 third-quarter spurt.

The Kings, who got no closer than 16 points after the Knicks rally, were led by Ray Williams with 18 points and Eddie Johnson with 16.

The Knicks led 52-48 after a tightly contested first half that had 13 lead changes and seven ties.

Robert Parish had 30 points and 16 rebounds and Larry Bird added 27 points to lead Boston past Chicago at Hartford, Conn.

It's been a rollercoaster year for defending national champion North Carolina which started the season ranked third and then dropped out of the college basket-ball rankings after losing three of its first six games.

The Tar Heels are back on top now, ranked No. 1 in the weekly Associated Press poll for the first time this season and riding a 14-game winning streak.

North Carolina received 34 first-place votes and 1,073 points from a panel of 56 sports writers and broadcasters, becoming the fifth team to top the poll this year, succeeding Virginia, Indiana, Memphis State and UCLA.

"There are too many good teams to say someone is the best," said North Carolina coach Dean Smith after the rankings were announced Monday night. "Since we're such a young team, maybe this will be good for our confidence.'

The only unbeaten Division team, Nevada-Las Vegas, moved up to second place in the latest rankings, receiving 13 first place votes and 1,017 points, and that made Coach Jerry Tarkanian happy.

"This is great for the university, great for the community and great for everybody." he said.

It marked the loftiest spot in the history of the school, surpassing the No. 3 ranking achieved in 1976 when the Rebels went to the NCAA finals.

Another happy coach was George Raveling, whose Washington State team broke into the Top 20 as No. 18 this

The Cougars squeaked past California and Stanford last weekend by a total of six points to run their record to 15-2, 7-0 in the Pac-10.

Raveling was not surprised at his team's performance: "I said before the season started that people were shouldn't be.'

UCLA, first for two straight weeks, lost Friday night to Alabama and dropped to seventh. It still managed two first place votes.

The remainder of the firstplace votes were split among Virginia with three; St. John's two and Memphis State and Houston with one

Virginia, 17-2 after beating Louisville Saturday, moved up from seventh to third. Memphis State, 16-1, advanced a notch to fourth and St. John's moved from eighth to

Indiana, No. 2 last week, dropped to sixth after losing to Iowa, followed by UCLA.Houston routed Rice 76-40 and moved up a notch to eighth, while Arkansas climbed from 12th to ninth. Missouri, the only other team

Riggins 'super'; parity in 3-5A?

Sports Editor

SUPER....that's the best word to describe John Riggins and the Washington Redskins.

Maybe, now, they'll gain the respect they deserve in a strike-plagued 1982 National Football League season.

After all, the Redskins wound up with the best record in the league (12-1 following Sunday's 21-17 win over Miami in Super Bowl XVII).

Riggins, the catalyst, was sensational.

Consider this .. in nine regular season games, the former Kansas U. fullback gained 533 yards on 177 carries. When all was said and done, he'd rushed for 1,143 yards in the 13 games Washington played.

That means, he gained 610 yards in four playoff games ... an average of 152.5 yards per game.

He averaged 3.0 yards per carry during the regular season, but 4.5 per try during the playoffs. His 38 carries for 166 yards Sunday represented Super Bowl records. And, his 43-yard scoring run, on a fourth-and-inches play in the final period, proved to be the difference, although Washington added a final TD later.

All of that from a man who quit football a few seasons

It was Washington's year, all right. And, heroes were plenty. OB Joe Theismann enjoyed a great season, the offensive line (the Hogs) was brilliant, as was the defense throughout. Kicker Mark Moseley won games early in the season, and the Smurfs (Washington's corps of diminutive wide receivers) did their thing, too.

It was a combined effort, and quite a turnaround for a team which lost its first five games under new coach Joe Success has been a short-lived thing in the NFL the last couple of years. Just ask the Raiders and 49ers .. Super Bowl champions prior to Washington.

After the Raiders defeated Philadelphia in Super Bowl XV, they slumped to a sub .500 season, and didn't make the playoffs a year ago.

The same happened to San Francisco. After winning Super Bowl XVI last year, the 49ers ended the 1982 campaign with a losing record, and failed to make the playoffs.

Will the same thing happen to Washington? Based on what's happened in the last couple of years, don't bet against it.

Perhaps, finally, NFL commissioner Pete Rozell has seen parity at its competitive best.

Talk about parity.

Take the current District 3-5A boys' basketball race. Starting play tonight, Plainview leads the way with a 8-2 record, but after that it's anybody's guess as to who'll make the playoffs.

While the Bulldogs appear to have the inside track for one of two post-season berths currently, five teams are in a dogfight for the other spot.

Caprock (red-hot after winning its last six games), Lubbock High and Palo Duro share second place with 7-4 records. Amarillo High and Tascosa are a game back with Tonight, Plainview is at Tascosa, Caprock visits Monterey, Lubbock takes on Coronado and AHS hosts Hereford. Palo Duro is idle.

One of Plainview's two district lossses came at the hands of Tascosa (and it came in Plainview). Caprock also was a loser to Monterey earlier in the district season. The girls' race is all but over, as far as the playoff spots are concerned.

Monterey leads with a 12-0 mark, while Plainview is close behind at 11-1.

Amarillo High, a state tournament qualifier last year, is 10-3 and all but out of the playoff picture. The Sandie girls' 17-3 season record is the best, but unfortunately the three losses came in league games, and they likely will prove Lubbock High's 16-9 record is the best overall mark for the boys. Only four boys' teams are playing .500, or better at this stage of the season. They include Plainview (11-9), Palo Duro (12-9) and AHS (13-10), Caprock and Tascosa, still in the playoff hunt. are 12-12 and 11-11, respectively.

Salazar said he voiced his charges after receiving a copy of a four-page letter sent last month from Alvin Chriss, administrator of TAC's trust fund operation, to Joe Henderson, editor of a West Coast running magazine. Both races are scheduled for Monday, April 18. The Brisbane race, which Salazar said was offering $90,000 in prize money, with $30,000 to the winner, has acquired a big television contract. No TV is planned for the Boston race, which is to be the qualifier for the United States team that will compete in the inaugural World Championships Aug. 7-14 at Helsinki,

He claimed that TAC officials involved in the bribe offer were Chriss and executive Director Ollan Cassell. The offer, he said. was made through his coach, Bill Dellinger.

Chriss and Cassell denied the charge.

"This is not true," Cassell said. "No members of the TAC staff have ever made such a proposal, either to Mr. Salazar nor any of his coaches or representatives. "It appears that Alberto is having a tantrum because he can't bend the rules to suit himself," Cassell said.

Chriss was quoted as terming Salazar's charge "an incorrect assertion."

It "doesn't even have the kernel of truth in it," he add-

Salazar said $40,000 would be for conducting a clinic the day before the race - a means he said Chriss had suggested as a way of circumventing the rules for accepting prize money. The rest would be for running and go into his trust fund, he said.

Gibbs knows danger lurks in Redskin title

By HAL BOCK AP Sports

LOS ANGELES (AP) -Joe Gibbs, coach of Washington's newly-crowned Super Bowl kings, knows there is danger lurking in the Redskins' championship.

For evidence, he need only look at recent history. In the last four years, the Super Bowl has hosted eight different teams. It has not exactly been the citadel of consistency since the decade of the '70s when Dallas or Minnesota in the National Conference and Pittsburgh or Miami in the American Conference seemed to show up every season.

Gibbs thinks about Pittsburgh, Oakland and San Francisco, the previous three Super Bowl champions who failed to make it back to the title game the next year.

"This is going to be a tough act to follow."

He will try anyway, and one method will be to keep the Redskins aware of their character.

"When you win, you can start thinking you're better than what you are," Gibbs said. "That can kill you. If we do that, we'll get beat and beat badly. We're a team that has to fight every inch. If we lose that character, we'll be doomed."

So the coach preaches a down-to-earth approach for game, 'You're the same persons you were 16 weeks ago. Just because you win a few football games, that doesn't change anything. You're just another human being."

Gibbs thinks the line between success and failure in his business is awfully slim.

"You're never more than two games from disaster. You get a test every Sunday and you can't get a 'C.' It's an 'A' or you flunk. Two flunks and you're in trouble."

Gibbs said he saw room for improvement in his team and that Washington would be using the draft for that purpose. After many years with few or no choices as a result of trades, the Redskins have most of their selections in the April draft.

We have our choices back and we will build and add to our team," he said. "I'll be comfortable taking players at almost any spot. I feel we could use another big lineman, another tight end, a cornerback, a defensive lineman. Except at safety and quarterback, we can use anybody. We have our one, two and three picks and they will be important."

Gibbs rejects the theory that he is an instant success after turning the Redskins around from also-rans to National Football League chamed the numbers "huge." Murphy's agent, Bruce Church of Atlanta, said he expected the agreement to be signed, "probably by the end of the week." The contract would tie the 26-year-old slugger to the Braves through the '87 season. He otherwise could have become a free agent after this year.

"We arrived at the value of the contract by looking at all the precedents set in baseball," Church said. Church said precedents included contracts of players "at the top end of the game," such as Gary Carter of Montreal, Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia and Dave Winfield of the New York

Murphy hit .281 with 36 home runs and 109 runs batted in for the Western Division champions last season.

Murphy, who was in Portland Monday night for Oregon's annual sports awards banquet, said he was "extremely happy" with the new contract

"The Braves have been nice to me and my family," he said.

Asked if he really signed for $8 million, he said, "You know I can't answer that. With figures what they are today, all you can do is go in in a businesslike mannner and discuss the situation sensibly.

The odds are millions to one against a collision between a comet and the earth. Banging into a comet's nucleus - Halley's comet, for instance, weighs 30 million tons - could be devastating. Some astro-nomers think a comet caused the cataclysmic 1908 Siberian explosion, which made railroad tracks heave 400 miles away.

"The main thing I'm interested in is having the image of a mayor who is successful in managing the city services. I think that's really what people are concerned with more than image. They're concerned with basic city services at a reasonable cost," Mrs Whitmire said in an interview on her first year

She was not a member of the established political machinery and she did not use charismatic speeches or political wheeling and dealing to carry her into the $81,500-a-year job.

She created somewhat of a stir by accepting the endorsement of the gay community, a move that once might have been considered a political liabilty.

But she sold the voters on back-slapping good ol' boy.

"She has a good working knowledge of the office and she probably has more of a for what the mayor should do than she probably can do, and she's picked up a lot of support," Macey said. "She's a good city manager. She's not vulnerable. I don't

Mrs. Whitmire refuses to describe 1982 as easy or difficult, choosing instead "busy and challenging."

In her annual State of the City address to the Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Whitmire summed up the year:

"In 1982, Houston became the nation's fourth largest city and the mayor was one of the 10 worst-dressed women in the world. I'm not sure which brought more acclaim, but somehow I suspect it was the latter," she said.

Mrs. Whitmire said she has

Whitmire-one year later

HOUSTON (AP) - Don't expect Mayor Kathy Whit-mire to exhibit the calm, ironwilled demeanor of Chicago's Jane Byrne or the showy, politically ambitious style of San Francisco's Dianne Feinstein.

The 36-year-old mayor is a no-nonsense, fiscal watchdog who, like any typical accountant, is more concerned with the bottom line than a high profile.

She says she's not disturbed by the unflattering remarks of fashion designer Richard Blackwell, who says she's one of the world's 10 worst dressed women and looks like "Tootsie," the movie character portrayed by Dustin Hoffman in drag.

in office.

Mrs. Whitmire stormed into office one year ago, knocking off incumbent Jim Mc-Conn and tough-talking Sheriff Jack Heard to become the first female mayor of the nation's fourth largest city.

the idea that way to curb the city's runaway growth, traffic jams, pollution and crime was to capitalize on her experience as a certified public accountant and not hire a have been a little too visible. Blackwell placed her in a 10th-place tie with Hoffman Among them was Police on his annual fashion swipes, saying both looked like they were wearing "Betsy Bloomingdale's discards."

Mrs. Whitmire said she noticed the resemblance betgrown accustomed to the way national news reports about her sometime dwell on her height (5 feet), her hairstyle (short and curly), her personal life (a widow) and her wardrobe. She would rather they focus of her work as mayor. Since moving into the third-floor office at City Hall, she has set out to streamline city's 24 departments and to get legislation passed revamping the state Civil Service system governing police and fire departments. She wants less emphasis placed on seniority and written test scores and more on performance and wants the police chief to appoint his own deputies.

Her biggest accomplishment, she said, was getting a city budget drawn up and approved before the fiscal year began for the first time in 25 years.

Without a budget, the city operated under personnel freezes and department heads had no authority to initiate programs and to make staff expansions, Mrs. Whitmire said.

"Before, the year always started Jan. 1 and maybe sometime in May or June or not decided whether to seek a July the city council would second two-year term as finally adopt a budget for the current year. So it operated While she refused to grade half of the time without any her performance in the first half of her term, Macey kind of formalized plan.

"So we went to city council to change our accounting year so that it now begins July 1. That gave us time to put together a budget, take it to council, have it considered and get it adopted before July 1," she said.

day and looked at that and said, 'That person there looks just like me' and that was before I knew it was Dustin Hoffman. I was just thumbing through the paper one day and it caught my eye. I didn't think anyone else would notice," she said.

But the mayor said she has no plans take the fashion critics' advice and trade her 'dress-for-success" business suits, bows at the neck and large round glasses. She dismissed the suggestion as another gimmick by gossip columnists and society

"I feel comfortable about what I wear; I hope Dustin Hoffman does too."

Spinach

Spinach is exceptionally high in nutritional value. Starting in the 1920s, spinach received much publicity for its wealth of calcium and iron, along with vita-mins A and C. But research has found spinach is also rich in oxalic acid, which prevents the calcium from being used by the body.

Pizza tips

DEAR POLLY - No matter what recipe I follow for pizza dough, my cooked pizza comes out of the oven with a very hard and brittle bottom crust. What am I doing wrong?

DEAR J.M. — It's difficult to say what you're doing wrong when I don't know exactly what you're doing at all but here are a couple of hints that may help you out. You could be baking the pizza too long at too low a temperature, allowing the crust to dry out and become hard before it becomes brown and crisp. Try baking the pizza at 450 degrees for no more than 15 to 20 minutes.

Bake the pizza on an oiled or greased pan. Put a little olive oil or vegetable oil into the dough. If your recipe already uses oil, increase the quantity slightly. This could help give you a more tender crust.

Make your dough a little thicker. Thin crusts are usually quite crisp and brittle. Thicker crusts tend to be more bread-

Be sure to allow your dough to rise for at least an hour before shaping it into a pizza crust.

Good luck—and keep baking! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY - Instead of putting treasured photos in expensive leather-bound albums, paste them in everyday cookbooks and other favorite books you refer to frequently. Most cookbooks have blank spaces at the end of recipes on many pages. In my favorite cookbook, I put pictures of our garden harvest and flowers. In the cold winter, when I'm baking my frozen summer harvest, it will be fun to see the pictures. Pictures of grandchildren in the pool would also brighten up a winter afternoon when you come across them unexpectedly. — R.B.

DEAR R.B. — This is one of the best ideas for using favorite photos I've heard in a long time. Your Pointer of the Week will certainly brighten up a few of my favorite volumes! Perhaps you'll even find space for a snapshot or two in your autographed copy of Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Household Hints for Making Everything Last Longer.—POLLY

Ski resort planned in Sierra Nevada

TRUCKEE, Calif. (AP) -Hoping to succeed where Walt Disney failed, a group of California and Nevada developers is quietly planning what could be the nation's largest ski resort — a $1 billion complex in the Sierra Nevada.

When finished, the proposed Sunstream ski area, nearly twice the size of Vail, Colo., would cater to 25,000 or more skiers a day.

"I really believe a place like this would do twice the gross they do in Vail now," said Alain Lazard, a former coach of the French national ski team and a partner in the proposed resort a few miles from Lake Tahoe. He estimated the cost could top $1 billion with construction lasting as long as 20 years.

It has been more than a decade since a major ski resort was built in the Sierra Nevada. Environmental protests in the mid-1970s helped stop two resorts proposed by Walt Disney Productions, one

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

In a quandary about calcium

DEAR DR. LAMB -When I was 60 and had been without calcium tablets for three months I broke one hip. At 69, after another period of no calcium, I broke the other hip in a fall on ice.

I have been taking calcium on the advice of a physician in Connecticut but a kind and conscientious doctor here in New Hampshire said I should not take calcium. He, of course, felt vindicated after I had difficulty passing a kidney stone. It was the calcium oxalate

Now I am in a quandary. I know I need the calcium for my bones but I don't need it for my kidneys. What am I

DEAR READER - The question of whether to restrict calcium intake in a person who has calcium kidney stones is a subject of much disagreement. The real answer probably depends on the way each ndividual handles calcium.

To start with, you form calcium stones because there is an increased amount calcium in the urine Regardless of how much calcium is in your blood or your bones it is the calcium in your urine that counts.

Doctors can decrease the calcium in the urine by giv-ing patients thiazides. These work on the kidney to prevent the movement of calcium out of the blood and into the urine. In that way they prevent kidney stones. If you can do that and follow a regular diet with adequate calcium for your bones that could be your solution.

Beyond that, the calcium in your urine may not be solely dependent upon the calcium in your diet. It can come from your bones, weakening your bones and resulting in fractures. Restricting calcium in the diet makes this problem worse, as in your case. Before restricting dietary calcium a doctor should study his patient well enough to know whether the patient has an increased calcium absorption. If she doesn't the calcium should not be restricted. Since patients with osteoporosis (dissolving bones that fracture) often have decreased calcium absorption anyway, this is important in your case.

DEAR DR. LAMB - If someone has a cancer about the size of an orange or grapefruit located on the aorta, what type of action should be taken? DEAR READER - My first question is, how do you know it is a cancer? A lump or mass can be caused by many things other than cancer. If the aorta is involved I wonder if the lump is simply an enlargement or dilation of the aorta (aneurysm).

Obviously the first step is to try to find out what the mass is. Usually that requires a biopsy so a part of it can be looked at under the microscope (of course you would not biopsy the aorta as that could cause massive bleeding).

If it is a tumor you need to know if it is benign or malignant; if malignant, whether it is localized or has spread to other parts of the body.

In short, it will require a careful and extensive evaluation before making a decision. You have to know what you are dealing with before deciding on treatment.

at Mineral King in the southern Sierra and one at Independence Lake, 13 miles from Truckee.

But developers and conservationists say the Sunstream proposal is different, partly because its location is not as unspoiled as Mineral King or Independence Lake. The land, located in Coldstream Valley, southwest of Truckee, is mostly owned by developers, although there are some U.S. Forest Service and other private land holdings on the site.

Sunstream's slopes would be sandwiched between two other well-established ski areas, Squaw Valley and Sugar Bowl, and the area has been targeted for ski development in government planning reports.

"The area is not as environmentally sensitive or pristine as some of the other areas that have been proposed," said Ted Cobb, chairman of the Mother Lode chapter of the Sierra Club.

"If they are very careful and are really concerned about making a good project, I seriously doubt if we will oppose it."

Cobb's view is not universally shared, and the developers expect some opposition, but not from government officials. "The state of California under the Brown administration was unalterably opposed to any use of ... the Sierra Nevada," said Don Steinmeyer, chairman of Sunstone International Ltd., Sunstream's parent com-

"I think the new administration, both nationally and in California, has a different view of how those kinds of resources should be used for human beings," said Steinmeyer, 51, a Nevada land developer.

Planning consultant Roy Brewer said it would be several months before the earliest proposals are submitted to local planning authorities. Steinmeyer said kiing at Sunstream could begin no earlier than the inter of 1984-85.

As part of the planning process, Lazard, an expert skier, spent nearly two months last year skiing and studying the Sunstream site. "It's just perfect," he said.

'As far as the trails, it is very diversified. There are some very steep chutes, and some nice level areas for beginners. You can accommodate a lot of different types of skiers."

The Lake Tahoe region already includes more than a dozen ski resorts, the greatest concentration in the Sierra Nevada. Lazard said Sunstream would be different than the others because it would be a "destination" resort with everything needed for a lengthy stay.

"It's self-contained," he said. "You have hotels, you have restaurants, you have condos, you have shopping, you have everything. You park your car and you don't go anywhere for a week."

Lazard said the 16-squaremile site has about 4,200 acres of terrain suitable for skiing. He envisions 25 "major" ski lifts, as well as smaller lifts and rope tows on beginner slopes.

By comparison, nearby Heavenly Valley, now considered the nation's largest ski resort, boasts 26 lifts and over 20 square miles of terrain. Lazard said Sunstream's "skiable" acreage would be larger, and

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an 18-year-old girl who has a 21-year-old boyfriend. We are very much in love.

A year and a half ago we started having sex. I am a Christian who doesn't believe in fornication. Somehow we didn't think what we were doing was fornicating. We were just enjoying ourselves a lot.

I have been giving this matter a great deal of thought lately and decided that doing something just because it feels good is not a good enough reason. Especially when it goes against one's Christian teachings.

I am having a terrible time making my boyfriend understand my new way of looking at things. In fact, he thinks I am nuts and has told me so. Now I am torn between my feelings of wanting to be a moral person and wanting to continue to enjoy myself and please my boyfriend.

When I am away from him I feel very strong. But when we are together I become weak and give in. We get the Chicago Tribune and the Sun-Times, and I enjoy reading both you and Dear Abby. Please, Ann, help me with my problem. - Fighting A Hard Battle

DEAR FIGHTING: This is one I wish you had sent to Dear Abby. But I'll do my

A girl, 18, who has been "enjoying herself" for a year and a half and says she is in love is bound to have a difficult time suddenly abstaining. Worse yet, her boyfriend is not about to take kindly to her new guidelines. The solution may boil down to one question. Are you able to give him up? Only you know the answer to this one.

DEAR ANN: I just began a job as a teacher in a Brooklyn grammar school.

For the first few days I felt like a stranger who wasn't really accepted by my colleagues. I kept telling myself all new teachers feel this way, and it would pass. Well, it passed yesterday.

I was driving from my

Long Island home to Brooklyn. Suddenly, over the car radio came the report of a tragic crash of a DC-10 in Spain. I knew my sister was a passenger on that plane. (As it turned out, thank God, she was a survivor.)

I kept on driving and listening to reports. By the time I reached the school I was hysterical.

The faculty was fantastic. I was overwhelmed by their show of concern. From that moment on I felt as if I was no longer a stranger. They were not merely colleagues - they were close, caring friends.

I wish it hadn't taken a tragedy to prove they really liked me, and that I "belonged," but I guess it was my own insecurity that made me feel like an outsider.

I have tried to express this to the best of my ability, but I don't think I did a very good job of it. Please fix up my letter and print it. - A Grateful

DEAR GRATEFUL: Your letter needed very little fixing up. The simple message that people can rise to the occasion in time of trouble and be truly magnificent came through loud and clear.

Some restaurants have a great deal of atmosphere; others rarely use the fans to remove the smoke-andcooking miasma.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I've learned a thing or two about men in my time. One of the things I've learned is that a man may love several wives, embrace several cars, be true to more than one political philosophy and be equally committed to several careers, but he will have only one comfortable chair in his lifetime. It will be an ugly chair. Count on it.

It will match nothing in the entire house.

It will never wear out.

Separate him from it and his heart will stop beating. I have seen men who couldn't care less how you decorate a house. They don't care if the sofa is covered with spit-up green chintz, if the bed revolves on an axis, or if the walls are covered in Astroturf. Just give them their comfortable chair with a light beside it and they'll be happy for the rest of their lives. I have one of the few marriages in North America that has survived getting rid of her husband's favorite chair. Maybe survived is too strong a word. Floundered is better. The chair, in my vernacular, had "stayed too long at the fair." When it was young it had been gold brocade. Now it was faded and dull. The arms were threadbare. When you pushed a lever on the side, a footrest slid out to the center of the room and the back hit the wall. Traffic in the room always had to accommodate the chair. It was like walking around someone who was "laid out." I gave the chair away. My husband looked at me like the dog after we had him

I won't bore you with the arguments and the trial separation that ensued. It is sufficient to say that we eventually got together to shop for a new "favorite chair." There was no pleasing the man. He wanted one that was soft, supported his back, had a head rest, arms big enough to relax his arms, a stool to stretch his feet out and material that didn't scratch. "You have just described your bed!" I said.) I felt I was reasonable. I wanted a Louis XIV antique with a seat measuring no more than 14 inches with a hot pink satin cushion. "You'll love it," I said. "You've always made new friends easily.' We bought the chair. I don't know how I'm going to tell him if he sits on it, he has to sit in the spare bedroom and
