Electrical Accident Leaves Victim Critical

Ismael Anguano, a Muleshoe resident, born October, 1955, was reported in stable, but critical condition after suffering from severe flash burns and electrical burns, according to investigating officer, Bennie Clifton of the Bailey County Sheriff's Department, Muleshoe.

The accident occurred last Wednesday, October 5, 1993 two miles south and 1/2 mile west of Prairie View Dairy.

The team was raising a boom on a truck, preparing to lift a weld casing onto a truck, when the boom got too close to a transmission line and arced from the line to the boom. The transmission line was carrying 230,000 volts.

Anguano was transferred to Lubbock's U.M.C. Hospital and, upon transfer, was reported in critical condition.

Pumpkins Are On The Move---Bumper Crop

Joe Bryant
Extension Communications Specialist

Trick-or-treat time is just around the corner, and West Texas pumpkin growers are enjoying the best "treat" they've had in several years. That's thanks, in part, to the tricks Mother Nature played on growers in other parts of the country this year.

"There's a big shortage of pumpkins in the North and Midwest because of the floods earlier this year," explained Dr. Roland Roverts, professor and vegetable specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service here. As a result, area growers are receiving six cents a pound, or more, for their pumpkins, compared to four or five cents a pound they received in the last few seasons, he said.

"Pumpkins are more valuable than they've ever been before, not only because they're in short supply, but because people are placing more value on their decorative appeal," Roberts said.

"We're getting six and a half cents (a pound) for jack-o-lantern pumpkins," said Hulon Carthel, Floydada grower. "We could get more, but we're taking care of our regular customers. If we have an excess after filling the demand of our regular customers, we could get seven-and-a-half cents a pound on the open market."

Carthel ships his large pumpkins to seven or eight states, primarily in the southeast. But his specialty items of ornamental gourds, miniatures and Indian corn are sold by mail order to 27 states.

Beth Kropp of Lockney, who grows some 150 acres of pumpkins, ornamental squashes and Indian corn, said the dry summer on the Texas High Plains both helped and hindered the crop.

"Yields are down some because of the dry weather, but the quality is excellent," she said.

In the past couple of seasons, prolonged rains and high humidity at the end of the growing season inflicted heavy damage to the growing crop. In many cases last year, farmers were unable to get into wet fields for timely harvest. But this year's lack of rain just before harvest "helped a bunch," Kropp said.

Texas High Plains farmers plant some 2,000 acres of pumpkins and ornamental squash, mostly in Floyd, Hale, and Bailey counties. Floydada, the Floyd County seat, bills itself as "Pumpkin Capital, U.S.A.," and celebrates its specialty crop with an annual "Punkin Days" festival the last Saturday of October. It features arts and crafts, parades, contests, and games for all ages and a street dance.

Mules Trail Floydada Whirlwinds, 32-14 Final

With a lot of pride and enthusiasm, the Mules traveled to Floydada this week to take on the Whirlwinds. Making a slow start, the Mules trailed the Whirlwinds for the first half.

Receiving the opening kickoff, the Whirlwinds put the ball into play on the 25 yard line. Jake Adair tried to get a tackle, but #80, Rob Vela of Floydada went in for a touchdown, leading Muleshoe 6-0. The kick was no good.

Gonzales throws the ball and Adair gains 3 yards on the 31 yard line. Floydada covers the ball, and picked up a 14 yard gain. Gonzales picks up 43 yards for the Whirlwinds, and they went in for another touchdown, bringing the score to 12-0. Whirlwinds leading the Mules.

Floydada kicked off to the Mules and Adair carried the ball down for a 1 yard pickup at the 34 yard line, forcing the Mules to punt to their opponent, while Wilson tackles and blocks the play at the 39 yard line. It was 1 and 10 for the Whirlwinds.

The Mules recovered the ball, Gonzales picked up 9 yards, and it was a first down. Nunez picked up 11 yards to the 45 yard line for a 1st and ten. Gardner caught the ball and took it down the middle of the field for a 27 yard pickup and a 1st and ten.

Nunez took a 27 yard gain to the 45 yard line to 1st and ten. Gardner received the ball and took it down the middle for a 27 yard pick up and 1st and ten. The Mule quarterback missed on the hand-off, fumbled and the Whirlwinds picked it up and went on to gain to the 30 yard line. Floydada goes on to take the ball for a touchdown, and the kick is good for a 20-0 score.

Gonzales punted the ball; down at the 33 yard line, and Angeley took a 3 yard loss, 2nd and 13. Puckett downed the Whirlwinds, with a three yard loss and Nunez gained 6 yards to the 32 yard line. Floydada punted to the Mules and Rodriguez carried the ball to a down at the 12 yard line.

Combust Speaks Out On War And Rumors Of War

I want our troops out of Somalia and back home NOW! I first raised my objections when we went in under the Bush Administration last December and I have continued to register my opposition during the Clinton Administration. In fact, I so strongly expressed the extent of my opposition to this "mission without a mission" that I opposed the recent congressional resolution calling for withdrawal by mid-November because six more weeks is too long to wait. I want us out of Somalia now.

Last winter, we committed troops to pave the way for humanitarian aid. I objected because there was not a clear plan of when we would get out. Now almost one year later, we are still there. Even worse, young American troops have become human targets. As an overall peacekeeping force, the United Nations commanded troops are not doing a good job keeping the peace nor protecting our troops. Like a shifting goalpost, the goal is now something that Bill Clinton calls "nation-building". The Clinton Administration says U.S. troops will leave once democracy is restored, but restored in whose opinion?

In my senior position as Ranking Member of the House Intelligence Committee, I have made our case directly with President Clinton in meetings with his defense and foreign affairs advisors. Recently, when I asked about a time frame for the Somalia operation, his advisors spoke of 1994 or 1995. There was no specific plan on getting out. In the middle of last week's deaths and capture of U.S. soldiers, the president was said to be reassessing the policy in Somalia. He could not be re-thinking our role, but rather re-thinking why we were staying in Somalia. By the time this column is printed in your local paper, I strongly want us to have seen a decision to bring American troops home now.

Somalia has become an expensive lesson, the U.S. having spent American lives and $2 billion. I also want the president to foresee the implications of putting Americans into another war-torn country, Bosnia. Before the first American soldier's footprint falls on foreign soil, the United States must have clear goals, a timetable and clearly-defined conditions for leaving.

Without clear goals in Somalia or Bosnia, American interest has been driven by the pictures of horrors in both countries. U.S. military actions must be driven by clearly-defined, publicly-supported goals.

Somalia's African neighbors and Bosnia's European neighbors are leaning too heavily on U.S. intervention to prevent the starvation and destruction. I insist that those neighbors have a vested interest and must take a greater role to ensure peace. It does very little good and a great deal of harm for American soldiers to be in a country where they have no business and are not wanted.

Windbreak Tree Seedlings Available

"As a service to the Bailey County area, the Blackwater Valley Soil and Water Conservation District is now taking orders for windbreak tree seedlings" stated Ernest Ramm, chairman of the district.

Windbreak trees help control wind erosion in fields, beautify and protect farmsteads, and can provide excellent wildlife food and shelter.

This year the Blackwater Valley SWCD will have several species of windbreak and wildlife seedlings available. Order will be taken until March 1, 1994. Ramm said, "some species are limited in quantity so early ordering is advised". All orders must be prepaid.

Supplemental watering is an essential part of a successful windbreak planting, therefore the SWCD also has drip irrigation systems available to ensure good seedling survival.

For information on prices, orders, species availability, etc., contact the Soil Conservation Service, 105 E. Ave. D, Muleshoe, 272-5124.

Combust: "I Want Us Out Of Somalia---Now!"

U.S. Representative Larry Combust (R-Texas) today issued the following statement regarding U.S. troops in Somalia:

"My opposition to American troop involvement in Somalia began with last December's deployment because there was no timetable for getting out. Now, almost one year later, American troops are human targets in Somalia and the goal has shifted to something called 'nation-building'.

Even last week, I voted against a congressional resolution to withdraw by mid-November because I feel six more weeks is too long to wait. I want us out of Somalia---now!"

VA To Award Additional Benefits For Agent Orange-Related Illnesses

Secretary of Veterans Affairs Jesse Brown today announced that President Clinton has approved a decision awarding Vietnam veterans suffering from respiratory cancers (lung, larynx and trachea) and multiple myeloma (a cancer involving the bone marrow) disability payments based on presumed exposure to Agent Orange and other herbicides. The ruling affects veterans and survivors with an estimated cost of $350 million over the next five years (1994-1998).

The President said, "It is right and proper that the government accept responsibility for the disabilities resulting from military service. The cost of these benefits must be viewed as a continuation of the cost of war."

The decision follows a Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) task force review of the results of a National Academy of Sciences (NAS) study conducted for VA and released July 27, 1993. At that time, Brown announced that Hodgkin's disease and porphyria cutanea tarda (a liver disorder) would be added to the list of diseases VA previously had recognized as being associated with herbicide exposure or Vietnam service. Those diseases included soft-tissue sarcoma, non-Hodgkin's lymphoma and chloracne.

Said Brown, "This action will help to answer some of the remaining questions Vietnam veterans and their families have about Agent Orange exposure and bring us all another step closer to resolving an issue that has preyed on the minds of veterans for decades. This decision also serves as a compelling reminder that a grateful nation must honor its commitment to those who answered the call."

Following the release of the NAS study in July, Brown formed a task force to review findings on diseases for which NAS found only limited or suggestive evidence of an association with herbicides of the kinds used in Vietnam. These conditions included respiratory cancers (lung, larynx, trachea), prostate cancer and multiple myeloma. The task force concluded that positive associations exist with respiratory cancers (if occurring within 35 years of exposure) and multiple myeloma (with no post-exposure time limitation). The task force did not find an association between exposure and prostate cancer at this time, but Brown has asked NAS to focus on prostate cancer and peripheral neuropathy in its next review, which is expected to be completed for VA in July 1995.

Brown agreed with the task force finding that a number of other conditions studied by NAS, and categorized as being less likely associated with exposure, did not meet the statutory definition of "positive association."

The NAS study had included several research-related recommendations. Brown approved expanding the scope of the department's Chemical Corps Vietnam Veterans Study, to include oversight by an independent, nongovernment scientific panel.

NAS also had recommended that biomarkers for herbicide exposure be further developed. Brown has approved the task force recommendation to monitor the scientific literature in this area and solicit proposals from VA researchers who are currently engaged in related research projects. In addition, Brown is asking NAS to assist VA in developing and testing models of herbicide exposure that, if successfully developed, could be used in future studies of Vietnam veterans. VA also will be using existing VA and Defense Department computerized data bases to help identify veterans with Vietnam service, supplementing this effort by asking states that administered bonuses to Vietnam veterans to share the names of those veterans who participated in these programs.

The NAS study, mandated by Public Law 102-4 in 1991, cost $995,000 and included a review and evaluation of available scientific literature on the association between various diseases and herbicide exposure. NAS reviewed more than 6,000 abstracts of scientific or medical articles and conducted detailed analysis of 230 epidemiologic studies.

LUBBOCK, Friday, October 1, 1993
By Shawn Wade

Preliminary collection totals from Wednesday's Waste Pesticide Collection Program in Hereford indicate the effort was a resounding success according to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG). The program is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas Department of Agriculture and funded by the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission.

The program, operated on a "no questions asked" basis, allows producers and other non-commercial users of agricultural chemicals, to dispose of waste pesticides and herbicides in an environmentally safe manner. During the one-day collection effort producers brought in 85 to 90 tons of old, unusable chemical for disposal.

"This collection program is of real benefit to the cotton producers here on the High Plains," says Donald Johnson, PCG Executive Vice President. "The environmental responsibility of farmers and ranchers is illustrated by the tremendous response this program has generated since it began."

In addition to turning in the chemicals themselves participants were also given the opportunity to bring in empty chemical containers for recycling.

The Hereford collection program was the last chance for producers to bring in their waste chemicals in 1993. It is hoped that additional programs can be arranged in 1994 providing High Plains producers with more opportunities to safely dispose of these unusable and unwanted products.

The First Annual Texas Farmer-Stockman Show will make its debut appearance on the High Plains October 12, 13, and 14. The Show will include more than 200 exhibitors and final preparations are underway.

The show site is located approximately 1 and one-quarter miles east of Loop 289 on the Buffalo Springs Lake Road (East 50th).

PCG encourages everyone to come out and help make the show a success. PCG will also have an exhibit at the site and producers are encouraged to stop by and visit with us throughout the show.

State Capital

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams and Ed Sterling

AUSTIN — A federal court jury last week found in favor of Gov. Ann Richards and other defendants in a lawsuit filed by three former Texas Commerce Department employees who contended that they were fired because they were Republicans.

The governor, who attended the seven-day trial, said she was relieved and happy it's over. "I thought this was really a tough thing to go through."

The former employees contended that Richards, a Democrat, ordered a political purge at the Commerce department after her election in 1990.

But the governor's attorney, Roy Minton, described it as a case of employees being dismissed — as warranted — in the reorganization of an agency that was "in chaos."

After the jury verdict, one of the former employees, Jim Mikus, said, "It's open season on state jobs."

The former Commerce workers — Mikus, Eddie Aurisupa and Ray Barnes — said they were fired in 1991 because of their Republican affiliation to make room for Richards' Democratic supporters.

Ethics Complaint Filed

Republican gubernatorial candidate Luis Podesta of San Antonio last week filed an ethics complaint against Gov. Richards, claiming that her "capital for a day" program is nothing but a campaign tactic in disguise.

In the program, Richards and an entourage of state agency heads fly to cities around Texas, where citizens are given the opportunity to meet officials and discuss their concerns face to face.

But Podesta said he saw the program as "a blatant use of state employees and state funds and misuse of the press and their good nature to campaign for re-election."

"We just had a United States senator indicted for allegations that state employees on state time (were working) on her campaign and we've got a governor tomorrow in Paris, Texas, showing up with 40 or 50 state employees, doing the same thing," Podesta said at a news conference.

Richards spokesman Chuck McDonald said two state-owned planes were used to transport the officials, and the only extra cost to taxpayers was a charge of $2,000 per plane. About 900 people attended an earlier "capital for a day" event in Carthage, according to McDonald.

Hutchison Draws Opponent

Republican Stephen Hopkins of Burnet, who finished seventh and received one percent of the vote in the U.S. Senate special election in May, has announced plans to seek the GOP nomination in 1994.

Hopkins predicted he would be the only Republican to challenge Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison in the March primary.

Noted for his "pro-life" television commercials showing photos of aborted human fetuses, Hopkins said he wants to debate Hutchison's stand on abortion, crime and the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Hutchison, who was indicted last week by a Travis County grand jury on charges of using state employees and equipment for political reasons while serving as state treasurer, won the senate seat with 67 percent of the runoff vote over appointed Democratic Sen. Bob Krueger.

Calling the charges politically motivated, Hutchison has said she plans to seek re-election next year and says she will ask for a trial before January.

Richard Fisher of Dallas, who finished fifth in the special election with eight percent of the vote, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic Senate nomination.

Perry Pushes Bond Proposal

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry is urging passage of a measure to provide $75 million in additional bonds for agricultural business loans.

The general obligation bonds, one of 16 proposed constitutional amendments will be decided by Texas voters Nov. 2.

The measure listed as Proposition 16 would raise funding of the Texas Agricultural Finance Authority to $100 million. The money then would be used to help agricultural processing businesses.

Perry said Texas processes eight percent of the raw materials produced in the state, compared with a national average of 20 percent.

TU Rate Hearings Set

The Public Utility Commission will hold public hearings in Dallas and Fort Worth on Oct. 13-14 on a rate increase sought by Texas Utilities Electric Co. All three commissioners are scheduled to attend the hearings.

The utility company is seeking an annual rate increase of about $760.2 million, or 15.3 percent. The PUC staff has recommended a $424.9 million increase, or 8.5 percent.

The Oct. 13 hearing will be held at the International Apparel Mart's Great Hall in Dallas. Two hearings are set for Oct. 14 at the Broadway Baptist Church in Fort Worth.

TU Electric is the largest electric utility in Texas, serving 92 counties.

Other Highlights

- The Texas Supreme Court has sent back to a lower court

a lawsuit by three cities that contend they had zoning authority over an expansion of the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. The case involved whether the airport board had to comply with local zoning ordinances adopted by Irving, Euless and Grapevine to expand and develop the airport.

Thank You

As a ship sails the sea, sailors pray for smooth water. As they steam through the night, emotions are high not knowing what lies ahead. Those at home wait patiently for loved ones to return. As time passes, our sailors come home to stay until God is ready to take them to a better sea. The time has come for our sailor to take his last voyage. He has gone to be with our Lord, never to face another rough sea. As we mourn his departure, friends and loved ones comfort us. So many people have taken the time to help us get through this difficult time. How can we ever thank you? A simple word of "Thanks" is all we can really say. But we do hope you know how much we appreciate everything everyone has done for us.

We would especially like to thank Dr. McClanahan, Bailey County EMS, Deputy Don Carter and Julian Dominguez (Muleshoe P.D.). Having them as our special friends helped ease our minds in such tremendous time of need.

Thank you to Melody Lewis for the following poem.

"CHIEF WAYNE HOMES"

He stood a man among men,
Always tall and upright;
Although at times he could seem quite gruff,
His bark was worse than his bite.
To his children a father adored,
To his wife a sweetheart and friend;
To his co-workers, and all of the town,
A man on whom all could depend.
Now the Lord has called him home,
For he always takes the best;
He'll be gone but not forgotten,
As his badge is laid to rest.
When the last goodbye is said,
And the last salute is given;
'The Chief' will get a promotion,
He'll be guarding the gates of Heaven.

Students Learn About Survival On The Farm

Students in the Honors English III class at Muleshoe High School recently conducted interviews with farmers and other people in agriculturally related industry who lived through the Depression of the 1930's or the farming devastation of the 1980's. This assignment was fulfilled in conjunction with a unit that stresses the importance of the land. Literary selections for this unit included The Good Earth, Giants in the Earth, and the movie Places in the Heart. The results of the interviews were then presented to the class by either an oral report by the students or by the interviewee speaking on cassette tape. The response was excellent, and the experience proved to be positive for the students and for those whom they interviewed.

Students whose reports centered around the Depression years discovered many common problems that affected people during these years. For example, several of those interviewed commented on the poor prices farmers received for their crops, including 2 1/2 cents per pound for cotton and 25 cents a hundred for grain. The farmers found it difficult, if not impossible, to borrow money; if they were able to borrow the money to farm, income from their crops was seldom sufficient to repay the debts. One farmer commented that they usually ended the year as they began it, with nothing. Land sold for $27.00 to $37.50 per acre, but few had the finances to buy.

Other adverse conditions in the 1930's included the "rolling black clouds" of dust bowl days and the devastating drought of 1934-36. The poignancy of having to kill their cows as part of a government aid program revealed indelible memories of personal sacrifice.

"Self-sufficiency" is another term that was heard repeatedly in the student interviews. Farm families of the early 1930's survived by growing their own livestock, chickens, and garden crops; in fact, several stated that they bought only flour and sugar. One lady commented that her grocery budget during this time was $5.50 per month. In addition, they sold some of their products and shared their bounty with others who were less fortunate. Survival became a family project as parents and children struggled together to raise and harvest a crop; survival became more important than education during this time period.

Interviews revealed other adversities such as the stress of losing the land, of having to sell part of the land in order to keep a portion, and the need to seek outside employment during daytime hours and farm in the evening. Some people were forced to drop out of school in order to work on the farm. Rarely did families consider the option of selling their land, however.

Students heard firsthand from those who lived in a boxcar, knew the crudeness of outdoor bathrooms, bathed once a week in water that was used by 3 or 4 children, and endured the hardships of long, hard days and nights of work and deprivation. Positive memories were also part of the picture for the Depression years. One farmer recalled the story of the compassion of a landlord who allowed the family to stay on the farm due to the wife's pregnancy; that son continues to farm the land today. They also heard warm tales of family unity, sharing with others who were more needy, and seeing the return of "better days."

Reports included views of farmers who saw the country turn again to prosperous times. Interviewees related stories about the establishment of the Federal Land Bank, whereby farmers could borrow the money to save their farms; they were given 33 years to repay the debt at 3% interest. One of the men pointed out that World War II, although a very difficult time for the nation as a whole, actually was a key to farmer's survival. They were encouraged to produce as much as possible and received an equitable price for their farm products.

Distinct threads of commonality were detected in correlating the Depression of the 1930's with the trials of the 1980s. Both eras saw the establishment of government programs to assist those in need. During the 1930s, public assistance included the WPA and CCC work programs; in the 1980s, PIC and CRP programs subsidized farmers for leaving a portion of their land out of production. As farmers revealed the efforts of the federal government to establish various types of assistance for farmers, students gained a broad understanding of the public works programs from the Depression years and of a variety of set-aside land with recompense for farmers of the 1980s.

Interviews with farmers who survived the early 1980s revealed a broad spectrum of survival techniques. Interviewees discovered that the transition period from the 1970s into the 1980s produced excellent profits for farmers of this area. The problems, however, occurred when interest rates rose to 21%, prices fell, expenses increased, and exports slowed down. An example of the prevalent inflation was the story of one farmer who purchased a tractor in 1974 for $10,000.00, then sold it a few years later for $15,000.00. Money became deflated and the prosperous trend rapidly reversed; many farmers faced bankruptcy.

Methods of survival during the 1980s resembled those of the 1930s as farmers sold some of their land, family members sought outside employment, and the entire family worked diligently to reduce expenses and learn to use their money wisely. Liquidating assets and limiting purchases became the mode of survival; however, this led to severe problems for agriculturally related businesses. Truckers, for example, found it necessary to diversify the types of hauling, sell some of their trucks, and travel farther distances in order to find work. Some businesses did not survive, pointing out the importance of farm income in an agricultural community.

Several farmers did custom work to supplement their income and farmed their own land at night. Diversification techniques were also employed as farmers sought for

Art Davidson To Speak Lecture/Slide Show

Anthropologist Art Davidson, author of Endangered Peoples, will speak at the University Center (UC) Allen Theater on the Texas Tech University campus on Tuesday, October 19, at 8 p.m.

Tickets, priced $3 for Tech students and $6 for the general public, are on sale at the UC Ticket Booth (806-742-3610) and are also available at Select-a-Seat outlets for $4.50 and $7.50 respectively (including the $1.50 service charge). Select-A-Seat outlets are located at Dollar Western Wear, Memphis Place Mall, both Ralph's Records & Tapes outlets and the Arts & Crafts Center at Reese Air Force Base.

Davidson will speak on the struggles of native peoples, a topic with which he is very familiar. His lecture/slide show deals with the contents of his book, Endangered People, which chronicles the struggles of indigenous people trying to preserve their traditions in a rapidly changing world.

Davidson has written essays on man's connection with nature in his book Alakshak: The Great Country. He has also written a book on the Exxon Valdez oil spill and the effects on the rest of Alaska. Davidson has worked with the Alaskan Natives in order to preserve their way of life. He helped produce an award-winning film with the Yupik Eskimo chiefs entitled "Our Land--Our Life."

crops that could be sold for a profit. Farmers discovered the need to become intense managers as well as tillers of the soil.

The English students who conducted the interviews detected an overall theme of a farmer's love for his land and his willingness to make sacrifice in order to maintain the farm for his children and grandchildren. General comments included an intent to remain on the land and the feeling that the land is the key to their desired lifestyle. One farmer summed up the farmers' rationale by stating, "If you take care of the land, the land will take care of you."

Students reacted positively to the assignment and related stories of enjoyment as they established rapport with parents, grandparents, other relatives, and friends whom they interviewed. Many young people were amazed at the increased price of equipment; for example, they discovered that a tractor cost $14,000.00 in 1980, yet a comparable tractor today costs $75,000.00. The general consensus is that they have a deeper appreciation of their heritage and the sacrifices that were required to keep that heritage.

Fire Commission Receives Arson Dog

The Texas Commission on Fire Protection has gone to the dogs. And that's bad news for arsonists.

Officially, the new program is the canine accelerant detection program; but to most people, it's simply an arson dog. Start-up of the program was funded by State Farm Insurance Companies as part of a nationwide program of arson dog training for fire departments and law enforcement agencies.

"We are very enthusiastic about adding this new component to the agency's arson investigation program," said Executive Director Michael E. Hines. "It's appropriate to publicly announce this new program during October, which is Fire Prevention Month. Arson fires now account for the largest number of fire deaths and a continually growing number of all fires throughout the state. Because arson is continuing to increase in the state, every tool that can be used to investigate suspected arson becomes more important."

To begin the program, arson investigator Johnnie M. Cheney attended a canine accelerant detection course conducted by the Maine State Police during August. The course trained Cheney to use a canine teammate to sniff out petrochemical-based accelerants commonly used to start arson fires. This method of arson investigation saves considerable time and money.

Now, Cheney and the dog are an arson investigation team for the State Fire Marshall's Office, a division of the Texas Commission on Fire Protection. The dog lives at Cheney's home.

Commission Arson Investigation Program Director Joey Porter said that the canine arson investigation team will be available to local fire departments and other law enforcement departments. Assignment of the team will be based on priorities determined by agency staff. Local officials may contact the agency at (512) 873-1700 for information on requesting this service.

State Farm Regional Vice President Bruce Romig explained why the insurance company is sponsoring the program. "Arson is a serious problem for everyone in our society," he said. "It is extremely important that arson investigators and law enforcement officials be provided every tool possible to combat this costly and sometimes deadly crime."

"This program is not the total answer to the arson problem," he added, "But it has helped put arsonists behind bars in other areas, and we hope it will do the same for Texas."

State Farm will sponsor 36 handler-and-dog teams trained by the Maine State Police in the next two to three years. Maine is recognized nationally as a pioneer in training dogs to detect the use of accelerants in fires.

around two to three weeks away. Cotton yields appear to be excellent this year. The southern part of the County where it is mostly dryland, yields will probably be below average.

Preston concluded that Bailey County lost approximately 50,000 acres of cotton in the Southern part of the county this year, and most of it is re-planted in grain sorghum.

The Mules went to the 16 yard line, with a 3 yard gain. Nunez carried the ball to the 6 yard line and Freddy Gonzales took it to just outside the end zone to end the first half of the ballgame.

The Mules made a comeback early in the second half. Gonzales carried the ball to the 32 yard line, and Nunez got the first down at the 42 yard line, a 1st and ten. Nunez gained another 6 yards to the 48 yard line. Gonzales carried a 14 yard gain and Adair added another 6 to the 24 yard line, but the Mules went on to fumble, and the play was intercepted at the 21 yard line.

The Whirlwinds took the ball, Garbadino gained 39 yards for Floydada, and Puckett tackled at the 45 yard line. It was a counterplay and Floydada fumbled the ball at the 21 yard line, a 3rd and 25. The Mules recovered the ball, and Adair carried to the 20 yard line, with a 15 yard pickup. The Mules went on for a touchdown, and the kick was good, Mules trailing the Whirlwinds 20-7.

Floydada took the ball to the 49 yard line, with a 15 yard gain. The Mules received a five yard penalty, with a 5 yard gain, then Floydada took the ball to the end zone for a touchdown. The kick was no good, and the score was 26-7.

Floydada kicked off to Muleshoe and Adair picks up 18 yards, down at the 27 yard line. Gonzales threw, and McClanahan tried to receive, but missed the throw. Nunez carried the ball for a 4 yard gain and was tackled at the 41 yard line for a loss, forcing the Mules to punt to the Whirlwinds, and it was down at the 46 yard line, making a first and ten for the Whirlwinds. Cooper gained 24 yards, with a ten yard penalty, and the Whirlwinds went on to carry the ball in for a touchdown. The kick was no good, making the score 32-7.

Beginning the fourth quarter, a seven yard pickup was made for the Mules, then Adair took the ball for another 11 yard pickup, and a 1st and ten. Nunez picked up another 1st and ten at the 36 yard line, and Adair went in for a 5 yard gain at the 33 yard line and a 2nd and six.

Later a penalty was made at the 8 yard line for the Whirlwinds. Adair picked up another yard, and the Mules went in for another touchdown. The kick was good, and the score was 32-14.

Cooper made a 19 yard gain for Floydada and then went on for another 4 yard pickup. The Mules downed him, but the final score was 32-14, with the Mules losing the game to the Whirlwinds.

Congress of the United States Washington, DC 20515

October 6, 1993

President Bill Clinton
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

We are gravely concerned by the worsening crisis in Somalia that ever more deeply involves the United States. Although Administration consultation with us has been minimal, we must provide you with our views. The escalating loss of American lives in an ill-defined cause must end. Americans deserve an explanation for what is becoming a national tragedy.

In response to a truly horrendous human rights tragedy, President Bush sent U.S. armed forces to Somalia to allow food to reach the starving. In so doing, he made a commitment to withdraw our forces when that mission was completed and return the operation to the United Nations. As has been acknowledged by your Administration, the Bush mission was accomplished, but our servicemen and women have not come home. Instead, large numbers of U.S. armed forces have been turned over to the U.N. and the mission has been changed to include the substantial task of nation-building in a hostile environment. Despite transformation of the mission, the overall size of the U.N. force was never adequate to accomplish it and does not even operate in much of the country.

We have been troubled by this changing mission for some time. On April 1, 1993, House Republicans adopted the enclosed Statement of Republican Policy calling on you "to bring our troops home." As you know, the resolution authorizing U.S. participation in the new U.N. mission that passed the House on May 25 was opposed nearly unanimously by Republicans and it stalled in the Senate shortly thereafter. As recently as September 15, House Republicans went on record in another Policy Statement expressing deep concern that at a time when our Pentagon budget was being cut by the Administration and Democrats in Congress by $127 billion over five years, scarce military manpower and financial resources are being diverted to pursue illusory goals in Somalia.

The situation on the ground and in the air over Somalia has worsened considerably. In addition to the eleven servicemen previously killed in combat, in the last several days at least twelve American servicemen have lost their lives, and over seventy additional American casualties have been sustained. Reportedly eight U.S. servicemen are missing in action or have been captured by Somali warlord Mohamed Farah Aided. But, in a Congressional briefing yesterday, your Administration proved convincingly that it had neither a defined goal nor a plan in Somalia.

Mr. President, this situation is in urgent need of resolution. You must state clearly that our nation holds Aided's faction responsible for any American soldiers held prisoner and you must take whatever diplomatic or military steps are necessary to gain their release. Furthermore, we must urgently shift responsibility for this mission back to the U.N. In addition, African countries should take a more prominent role in resolving Somalia's conflict. Other countries in the general region should also play a significant role.

In our view, the Somalia policy your Administration has pursued is a failure. Therefore, we believe it imperative that you communicate to Congress and the American people your Administration's plan to secure the freedom of any American prisoners held in Somalia and your intention to expeditiously withdraw our forces in a safe and orderly manner. America's international standing must not be jeopardized by an indecisive and naive approach to foreign policy.

Sincerely,

Handwritten signatures of various representatives and members of Congress.

Survey Finds Drugs To Be Root Cause Of Violent Crime And Greatest Threat To Children

by Bill McIntyre
A News Release From The National Rifle Association

"According to the latest Luntz Weber survey, Americans say drugs, not guns, are the real root cause of violent crime by a margin of more than 4-to-1. By the same 4-to-1 margin, drugs are viewed as the greatest threat to children today," said James Jay Baker, Executive Director, National Rifle Association Institute for Legislative Action.

But the larger problem of drug abuse and drug trafficking is being undercut by the Clinton Administration which has slashed the staff of the National Drug Policy office from 146 to 25, recommended $331 million in cuts for new prison building, and has accepted $231 million in House passed cuts in anti-drug education and treatment programs.

"It is the height of hypocrisy for the current administration to consent to cuts in anti-drug efforts and new prison building when Americans believe such efforts would better protect our children and reduce violent crime," said Baker.

"A focus on the safety of our children is needed and the NRA fully supports federal laws which threaten our children--a threat which is growing," said Baker.

Thirty percent of college students used an illegal drug at least once in the last year, compared to 20 percent the year before, according to an annual survey conducted by the University of Michigan and sponsored by the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

News From Congressman Larry Combest

By voice vote, the U.S. House of Representatives on Monday unanimously approved Congressman Larry Combest's legislation honoring George Mahon, the 19th Congressional District's first representative, with the naming of the "George H. Mahon Federal Building and United States Courthouse" in Lubbock. The legislation moved quickly through the House and now goes to the Senate's Committee on Public Works. Combest, a Republican, introduced the legislation as a tribute to his predecessor, a Democrat, on June 28.

"When I first came to Washington, it was easy for people here to know where I was from by telling them that I was congressman from the district served by George Mahon," said Combest. "Because of Mr. Mahon's distinguished 44 years of faithful service to the people of West Texas' 19th Congressional District, no matter how many people are elected to this position over the years, it will always be known as the 'Mahon seat.' George Mahon's compassion, sensitivity and fairness optimize what a public servant should live up to in their career."

Mahon's service to West Texans began in 1926 when he was elected Mitchell County Attorney, then later district attorney, and regent of the Smithsonian Institution. Serving 21 terms in Congress from 1953 until his 1979 retirement, Mahon was Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee continuously longer than anyone in its 128-year history. He returned to Colorado City, Texas when he retired as the dean of Congress, and died on November 19, 1985.

"His legacy lives on from the halls of Congress to the wide-open plains of West Texas," said Combest. "Few have participated in as vital a part of modern American history as George Mahon."

Homeowners Anxious To Slice Energy Bills

According to Professional Builder & Remodeled annual consumer survey, more than 82 percent of consumers said they would spend an extra $1,500 for energy-efficient products to save $250 per year on heating and cooling.

Joining other "investments" like energy-saving appliances and increased insulation are replacement windows, according to Jim Olsen, Operation Manager, Willard Boswell Company.

"Homeowners are realizing the significant effect outdated windows have on energy bills," said Olsen. "Energy-efficient units now have numerous high-tech components to save energy, but three key ratings continue to provide the evaluation basis." Olsen offered definitions for those areas-R-values, U-values and air infiltration.

"R-values measure a window's resistance to the flow of energy. Higher R-values are better," said Olsen. Single pane windows carry an R-value of one, double panes two, and so on. Olsen said technologies like films, coatings and gas-filled panes are aimed at raising the R-value without adding more panes.

How well a unit conducts heat is measured in U-values. The lower the U-value the more energy-efficient the window. While U-value and R-value are both commonly used, experts agree the U-value is preferred because it directly measures the heat-flow rate.

"Air infiltration measures cubic feet of air leakage per minute per lineal foot (cfm/ft)," said Olsen. "The industry standard for a Grade 40 window is .25 cfm/ft, but higher quality windows are below .20 cfm/ft."

For free information about energy-efficient windows, call 1-800-847-3552.

The Lord's Prayer: It Should Be Our Prayer

When we speak of the Lord's Prayer, most of us are thinking of Christ's beautiful prayer recorded in Matthew 6. I do not mean to quibble, but this prayer might be more properly termed, "The Disciples' Prayer," since it is a prayer Jesus taught his followers to pray. It still is, I suppose, far and away the most popular prayer prayed by those who would follow the Lord, and very rightly so.

Focus On Faith
Curtis Shelburne

But I would submit that a prayer of the Savior which might be more appropriately termed, "The Lord's Prayer," is the magnificent prayer of Christ recounted in John 17.

This is a special prayer in several ways. For one thing, it is a prayer prayed just hours before Christ would hang on a cross for our sins. And it is doubly precious when we realize that it is a prayer prayed specifically for you and for me as Jesus prayed not just for the believers of that time but "for those also who will believe in me through their message" (17:20). But the most striking thing about this prayer is its central petition. Christ prayed simply but powerfully, "May they be brought to complete unity to let the world know that you have sent me and have loved them even as you have loved me" (17:23).

William Barclay is right when he comments sadly that there is no prayer of the Lord which his disciples have more ignored or frustrated. But there is no prayer we more desperately need to see answered, for "the gospel cannot be preached in any congregation which is not one united band of brothers. The world cannot be evangelized by competing Churches."

I chuckled the other day to see a cartoon in which a pajamaed little tyke waddled up to his mom and dad, paused, and asked, "I'm about to say my prayers. Does anybody need anything?"

It should speak volumes to us that just before Christ died he pinpointed perhaps the most important need of his disciples then and now. "I pray," he petitioned the Father, "that all of them may be one" (17:21).

Curtis Shelburne is the minister of the 16th and Ave. D. Church of Christ in Muleshoe.

How wonderful it is to take a walk in the woods after the hectic pace of our modern living. The soft rustling of the leaves seem to bring a peaceful contentment to our racing hearts. The warm splashes of sunlight against the rich green foliage awaken our eyes to a vibrant beauty not often seen in the city. The towering trees blend into a majestic cathedral dedicated to the wondrous glory of God's creation.

As we find peace in a quiet walk so will we come to know peace and satisfaction in attending the service in God's house. Go to your church this Sunday and receive the blessings that only God's word can give you.

A Quiet Walk

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

FACTS & FIGURES

Diamond Facts And Figures
(NAPS)—America is not only a major diamond cutting country, we're a big importer of polished diamonds as well.

According to the American Diamond Industry Association, our diamond supply line can be considered multifaceted. In 1992, America's top diamond import nations by value were: Israel which sent us 35 percent of those stones, Belgium with 29 percent, India with 26 percent. In all, loose polished diamonds were received from over 50 countries.

Here's another statistic that may spark your interest: American polished diamond exports remain a strong industry. In fact, last year was the fourth straight year our shipments of loose polished diamonds exceeded one billion dollars.

Pointers For Parents

Getting Your Child To Brush

(NAPS)—Are your youngsters taking the time to brush up on their smiles? On the average, kids only spend 30-45 seconds brushing their teeth, even though professionals recommend brushing last at least twice as long.

A toothbrush with a new color-changing handle gives parents and dentists something to smile about.

Happily, someone has come up with an ingenious way to get children to remember to keep brushing. It's a toothbrush with a "magic" handle that changes color. Called Jordan Magic, it takes approximately two minutes for the handle to completely change color indicating proper brushing duration. It changes back after you're finished—ready for the next time.

Watching the toothbrush handle gradually change makes brushing fun, encouraging longer brushing—one of the keys to better oral hygiene. More than 98 percent of the children surveyed in dentists' offices liked the changing color of the toothbrush so much, they wanted to take it home. Made from a non-toxic, thermal activated plastic, the toothbrush is available in a number of fun, vibrant colors.

It is neither safe nor honest to act contrary to conscience.

The world's newest island, as far as is known, is Pulau Batu Harian (Surprise Rock Island), some 40 miles to the northeast of Kudat, in Sabah, Malaysia. It was first sighted in 1988.

Looking for a little privacy? Consider moving to Bouvet Island. This uninhabited spot in the South Atlantic is the world's most remote island. It's about 1,050 miles from the nearest land, the likewise uninhabited Queen Maud Land coast of Antarctica.

STERQUELL COLLECTION TO CLOSE AFTER THREE YEARS

What began as a one-year experiment continued for a second and a third year to the delight of the public and visitors to Amarillo. What began as a dream proved to be a very successful venture--successful for the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society and successful for tourism in the Texas Panhandle.

Trustees of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society announced recently that the Sterquell Collection will close the end of October after two extensions of the popular educational and entertaining exhibit at 812 South Polk Street in Amarillo. Trustees acknowledged that the temporary exhibit is perhaps one of the longest-running "temporaries" in the history of the Society and determined that efforts must focus on new and changing programs for the Society and its Museum.

Part of that program change includes the Panhandle-Plains and Sterquell Collection exhibit at the Tri-State Fair. Vehicles and farm equipment from both collections have been added to fair attractions and provide a glimpse of what viewers may see at both the museum in Canyon and at the Sterquell Collection in Amarillo through October. Museum hours are Monday-Saturday 9:00-5:00 and Sunday 1:00-6:00. The Sterquell Collection is open Wednesday-Friday 12:00-5:30 and Saturday and Sunday 1:00-5:00.

U.C. and Betty Sterquell dared to dream with supporters of downtown revitalization and agreed to lend their collection of now almost 60 carriages, wagons, and sleighs for exhibit to the public. Mr. Sterquell's lifetime hobby of collecting and restoring sometimes forgotten means of transportation came out of three barns and moved into the old Blackburn Brothers building on Polk Street. The space was initially a gift from John Wright, president of Blackburn Brothers Corporation.

Volunteers came from all over the city to refurbish the old building--replacing, patching, painting--to give the exhibit's home a facelift. Located on the once-bustling main street of Amarillo, the building had served as a storage facility after Blackburn's closing downtown in 1981. September and October, 1990 saw renewed activity on Polk Street as downtown neighbors watched staff and volunteers move vehicles into the former department store.

Funding for building preparation and exhibit interpretation was provided initially by a challenge grant from the Amarillo Area Foundation with funding from its supporting organization, the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation. Matching funds were committed by numerous "sponsors" of individual vehicles. Society organizers continued the sponsor program through the three-year period.

Under the direction of Sherry Hill and numerous volunteers, the Sterquell Collection came alive for thousands of school children, senior citizens, and visitors to the Amarillo area. The exhibit also became a popular site for receptions, dinners, and even one wedding.

Visitors to the Sterquell Collection had a glimpse of what life was like in years gone by, and the community had a glimpse of what can be accomplished when hundreds of people work together for the benefit of all.

Finalists Selected in Texas Teacher of the Year Competition

Six outstanding educators representing public school districts that geographically criss-cross the state have been selected as finalists in the 1993 Texas State Teacher of the Year program. The teachers, with an average of more than 22 years of teaching experience, hail from districts in the Rio Grande Valley and on the Texas-Oklahoma stateline and from the El Paso metro area to the rural piney woods on the Texas-Louisiana stateline.

Two panels for the semi-finalist judging--one for elementary and one for secondary--made the selections last weekend in Austin and were composed of members of the Association of Texas Professional Educators, the Texas Classroom Teachers Association, the Texas State Teachers Association, the Texas School Public Relations Association and the Texas Education Agency.

All the finalists, as well as the other 33 other applicants, were recently named a Regional Elementary or a Secondary Teacher of the Year in their education service center regions. The semi-finalists were chosen on the basis of written responses to a series of essay questions on such topics as philosophy of teaching, personal teaching style and responsibilities as a Teacher of the Year.

Judges said they selected candidates on the basis of their articulateness, their understanding and commitment to excellence and equity in public education and their dedication to the profession. Judges said they also favored applicants who would qualify as exemplary spokesmen for the causes and issues of public education.

The elementary finalists for Texas State Teacher of the Year are: *Ann Anderson of Klein ISD in the Greater Houston area. Anderson is a fifth-grade teacher at the Mittelstadt Elementary School, with an enrollment of 482. Anderson has taught at Mittelstadt for the past 13 years, and has a total of 20 years teaching experience.

*Karla Davis of La Vega ISD in Waco. Davis is a second-grade teacher at La Vega Elementary School, with an enrollment of 418.

Davis has taught at LaVega for the past four years, and has a total of 11 years teaching experience.

*Freddie Peters of Socorro ISD in El Paso. Peters is a fourth-grade teacher at Vista Del Sol Elementary School, with an enrollment of 1,076. She has taught at Vista Del Sol for the past three years, and has a total of 21 years teaching experience.

The secondary finalists for Texas State Teacher of the Year are:

*Eduardo Reyna of McAllen ISD in McAllen. Reyna is a sixth-grade teacher at Brown Middle School, with an enrollment of 825. He has taught at Brown for nine years, and has a total of 20 years teaching experience.

*Mary Elizabeth Fortenberry of Newton ISD, northeast of Beaumont near the Texas-Louisiana stateline. Fortenberry is an 11th-grade teacher in English at Newton High School, with an enrollment of 409. She has taught at Newton High School for the past 15 years, with a total of 40 years teaching experience.

*Ronald Dean Brown of Burkburnett ISD in Burkburnett, a suburb of Wichita Falls on the Humble ISD in the Houston area Oklahoma stateline. Brown is a math teacher at Burkburnett High School, with an enrollment of 895. He has taught at Burkburnett for 18 years, with a total of 22 years teaching experience.

The six finalists advance to interviews in Austin on October 16. The final judging panel will select two State Teachers of the Year--one elementary and one secondary. One of the two winners will be chosen to represent Texas in the National Teacher of the Year competition sponsored by the Council of Chief State School Officers. The Texas Teacher of the Year program is sponsored by the State Board of Education and the Texas Education Agency, with major financial support from the Southwestern Bell Foundation and Encyclopaedia Britannica.

The 1992-93 Texas Teachers of the Year are Kathy Hogan from and Leo Ramirez from the McAllen ISD.
