

Now they have their chance

'71 grads had own ideas of shaping the world

BY DAN MUDD
Brand Staff Reporter
"It's a kind of spray they advertise on T. V."

"It's something like a rock and it makes you rich. You find it in the hills, I think."
"You turn it on and you get music and news on it."
"My grandpa was in it once, but my Daddy wasn't."
Those are a few of the answers given by second graders in Hereford schools recently when they were asked to define "Radar."
With the headlines screaming out the mounting problems in the world today, we were wondering what was going to happen tomorrow. So we decided to conduct interviews with some of the leaders of tomorrow to get their viewpoints on modern world affairs, persons in the news and innovations which are molding the future.

We selected second graders—14 of them—because they had lost most of their shyness in the first grade and because children in that age group seldom fear speaking their piece frankly and openly.
We conducted the "playground interviews" on the theory that if a child didn't know the answer to a question he would at least take a guess.

After studying the answers to the questions, we predict the human race in 1980 will be made up predominately of politicians—if they don't know the answers, they'll bluff their way through them.
First, we showed them a picture of Nikita Khrushchev and asked who he was. Here are some of the replies:
"I saw him rassel on television one night."
"He's a movie star."
"I think it's Jimmy's uncle cause Jimmy says his uncle ain't got no hair."

"I saw him at the convention on television."
"I don't know, but he looks like a nice man."
Some were a little hesitant on that question, but when we asked them what a satellite was, they really cut loose:
"A star that moves by at night. My momma says it moves faster when it comes up than when it comes down."
"A big round thing that travels around the world."
"I saw it eight nights, I think it got busted, cause we don't see it any more."

"A thing that's shot up in the air. I saw it once—we looked for it in the back yard and found it in the front yard."
"A balloon that shots off in an hour."
"It's a big ball that goes round and round in the sky at night. It comes down to the ground in the day."
"It's a star that goes real slow. It's about the size of a close to it."
baseball when you're real

"One of those things that go up and around in the sky. It shines in the sky and looks out for planes."
We asked them for the name of the President of the United States, and got the following answers:
"George Washington."
"Mister Lincoln."
"President Icingour."
They were asked if they would like to be President, and why or why not.
"I would like to be President because I could go all over the world and see Africa and France and New York." (Where is New York?) "New York is real close to the desert."

"Yes, cause a President has more money than I do. I had $1.85 before I went to California this summer. Now I have only 55 cents."
"I wouldn't want to be President cause I'm just a little girl and I would mess up things."
The second graders were asked to define the "President's Cabinet."
"Where Mrs. Washington keeps her dishes."

Officials to discuss RR crossing

County, city and Santa Fe officials will try Wednesday to come up with a solution for the accident-prone Progressive Road railroad crossing in East Hereford.

The meeting will begin at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the Commissioners' Courtroom at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse. County Judge H. C. Williams called down that date after talking Thursday with K. C. May of Amarillo, regional superintendent of Santa Fe Railway.

One person suffered a broken neck and another person died in train-vehicle accidents this spring at the crossing, which has neither flashing lights nor crossing gates.

The holdup has been that the local governing groups tend to consider it Santa Fe's financial responsibility to put up protective devices at crossings. Santa Fe feels it should be a joint venture, with the railway paying no more than 50 per cent and perhaps as little as 10 per cent.

While in Hereford, May left copies of an Interstate Commerce Commission report of seven years ago. He noted, in particular, one point made by the ICC:

"That since the benefits from crossing protection are almost entirely to the public, the Federal, State or local governments or a combination of all three should provide for the payment of the major portion of the cost involved . . ."

He also left literature with Williams giving information on the 1968 Highway Act, which provided $200 million in funds to implement transportation safety programs in cities of more than 5,000 persons. The city or county should be able to get federal funds to help with its share in its part of an agreement with Santa Fe to put up flashing lights and gate crossings, he said.

May and Bill Spann, trainmaster from Amarillo, said there are 4,900 crossings in this region and 950 already have automatic protection devices, such as flashers or flashers and gates. The other 3,950 have just the white crossbuck.

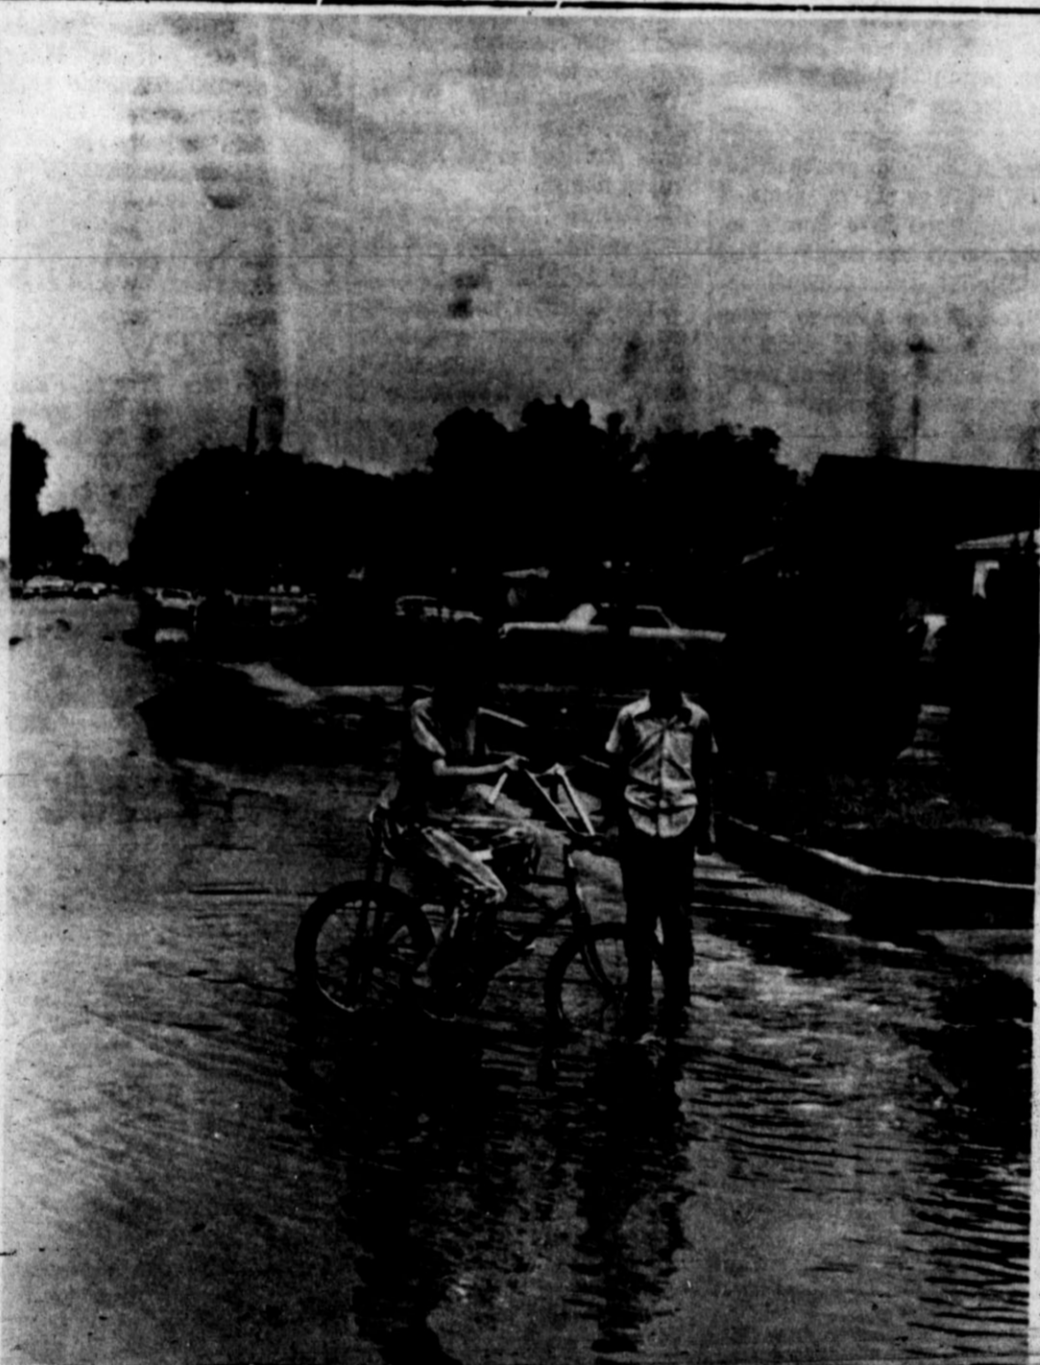

If crossing gates and flashers were installed at only 500 of the crossings, the cost at $22,000 each would be $11 million, May said. Putting flashers at the 3,450 remaining crossings, at $16,000 each, would cost $55.2 million, making a total expense of $66.2 million for the 3,950 crossings. On top of that, the railroad must bear the maintenance expenses each year.

In Hereford, May said, $200,001 has been spent for crossing protection—$407,763 by the state and $92,239 by Santa Fe. The state spent $205,000 of that and Santa Fe $22,000 for the underpass on U. S. 385. The state spent $11,983 and Santa Fe $1,318 on the gates and flashers at Main and U. S. 66, he said.

Some $29,000 went for flashers at Lee and Lawton and flashers and gates at the access to the Bull Barn near Dairy Road. The entire cost of protecting those three crossings was borne by Santa Fe, May said, meaning that neither the city nor county has paid anything in the past for any of the protection devices for crossings within the city limits.

Ira Ricketts is 'Pioneer of Year'

Ira Ricketts, a Hereford pioneer who came to Deaf Smith County in 1900 at the age of 14, was honored Saturday by Radio Station KPAN and other area pioneers as the "Pioneer of the Year."

Roy Faubion, assistant manager of the radio station, made the presentation during the noon luncheon at the Bull Barn of the annual meeting of the Mid-Plains Pioneer Association.

The annual meeting of the Mid-Plains Pioneers Association attracted some people from across the Panhandle. Old friends renewed their acquaintances during registration which started at 9:30 a. m.

The business meeting began at 10:30 a. m. with Glen Witherston, president of the Mid-Plains Pioneer Association, presiding. Glenn Nelson, justice of the peace, gave the invocation and the welcome was given by Wayne Phillips.

The noon meal was in the form of a basket lunch brought by local pioneers.

Awards were presented to those who traveled the farthest to attend and to those who were the oldest and youngest.

Ricketts became the fifth person to receive the honor. Other recipients were Ezra Norton, 1967; S. H. Oberdier, 1968; Bess Werner, 1969; and Edgar Ireland, 1970.

Gentle pelting rain, with an occasional rough downpour, covered most of Deaf Smith County for three consecutive days last week, depositing as much as three inches during its stay and keeping area residents on their toes with threats of possible tornado activity.

Friday night was the most active of the three days, with one inch of rain reported in a 45 minute period. Also, there were several reports of tornadoes that touched down in a path around the city. One was reported to the south of Hereford, another on the east, and still a third north of town.

It was the second night in a row members of the sheriff's department, highway patrol, city police, band radio and volunteer fire department spent on the outskirts of the city and surrounding area looking for possible tornadoes.

The tornado siren was sounded at about 8 p. m. Friday. During much of the 45 minutes, rain was falling so heavily that visibility was limited to about one mile in some areas west of town.

The Easter Community, which was by-passed both Wednesday and Thursday by the rain, received its first taste Friday with seven-tenths of an inch. Gene King, at Community Praying, said the rain was accompanied by some hail that did do some damage. He said there were one or two places around Easter where the hail damage was real bad.

A tornado watch was issued early Thursday afternoon and was cancelled about midnight. Sheriff Travis McPherson said he and his deputies had just gone home from the first watch about midnight when he received another call saying there was another watch.

"We had units north on 385, west on Harrison Highway about 12 miles, and at Art's Corner, (west of Milo Center)," he said. "The highway patrol and one of our deputies thought they saw a tornado come down out of the clouds about 1:20, 17 miles northwest of town."

The reported funnel-looking sightings did not show up on the area radar in Amarillo.

Scot Russell, superintendent of schools at Walcott, said the rain in that area was very light. He said .10 of an inch fell Wednesday afternoon and evening and .18 of an inch Thursday night.

Russell said a very small amount of hail fell in the Walcott vicinity, although it was very light and small. Vega reported heavy hail from the Thursday night storm.

Mark Koenig, manager of the elevator at Farmer's Corner 20 miles north of town, said his rain gauge showed 1.10 inches of rain from the Wednesday night shower and an even one inch from the Thursday night rain.

"This is just right here," he said. "Overall we got about 1.90 See RAIN Page Two

Woman eyed for Juvenile Board

The school system may put a woman onto the Juvenile Board as one of its two appointees to the newly created body, the School Board indicated Thursday morning.

The board, meeting in special session to accept the resignations of two top school officials, discussed the qualities they want for the job and decided to name its two Juvenile Board representatives on its June 10 meeting.

The county named its two members last Monday, and the city will select its two members June 7.

The Juvenile Board-at-Dumas has served as a model for the planned Hereford board. Like here, the county judge is a member in Moore County, with the city, school and county each naming two members. In Moore County, the board has a doctor, nurse, principal and a lady or two. Supt. Roy Hartman told the school trustees Thursday.

The county named two of its commissioners—Earl Holt and Donald Hicks—to the Juvenile Board, but the School Board members said Thursday they felt their appointees should be persons who have a closer knowledge, and day-to-day awareness about the youth and their problems.

Hartman said he was told that city officials are leaning also toward appointment of persons outside of the City Commission.

Lowell Sharp, a member of the board, said it is his understanding that the county commissioners appointed two from their own midst to be on the Juvenile Board only at the start. One of them probably will resign in the near future and the commissioners will replace him with a layman, Sharp said.

"It would appear to me that in dealing with girls and boys, you should have someone in education, a counselor for example," said Bob Holman, assistant superintendent.

The board authorized Hartman to contact several persons—especially from among high school and junior high counselors and from the principal positions in the various schools—about the job and whether they would be willing to serve.

The School Board also officially accepted the English Language Arts Guide, drawn up by Holman. It projects the basic principals of the Hereford educational system.

The resignations were submitted by Tom Harkey, director of special services, and by Walter Bryan, vocational director. Harkey is moving to Loraine and Bryan to Baird, both as superintendents.

"It is a real loss to us but at the same time it is a credit to the school system, because these two schools have decided these two are the men who will do the best job for them," Hartman said about the pair.

The board accepted the resignations, "with regret."

Clyde Schmer is promoted

Clyde C. Schmer, assistant factory manager at Holly Sugar here, was promoted to factory manager of Holly Sugar Corporation's Delta, Colo. plant, it was announced by George W. Miles Jr., vice president and general superintendent.

He will replace Louis R. Garcia, Jr., who is being transferred to manage the Torrington, Wyoming factory and fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of O. P. Kittwitz. The changes are effective June 1.

Schmer is a graduate of Colorado Springs Senior High School and was awarded a bachelor of science degree in chemistry by Colorado College in 1949. While in was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Delta Epsilon societies.

He joined Holly's research laboratory in Colorado Springs in 1959 and remained in that position until he was promoted to assistant chemist at the World, Wyoming factory in 1964. In 1967 he was promoted to chief chemist at the Hardin, Montana factory and in 1964 was transferred to Holly's newest and largest factory in Hereford as chief chemist. He was made assistant factory manager at Hereford in 1968.

During World War II, Schmer served with the Army Corps of Engineers from 1940 to 1946. He is a member of the American Legion, 46 & 4, and Elks.

Former longtime county resident is buried here

Funeral services for Mrs. Albert S. Higgins, 86, of Texline, a Deaf Smith County resident from 1914 to 1947, were conducted Saturday in the Church of Christ at Texline. Burial in West Park Cemetery here was directed by Kilburn Funeral Home of Texline.

Mrs. Higgins died Wednesday in Coon Memorial Hospital at Dalhart. She was born at Dexter, as Sally Jackson, and in 1907 she married her teacher. He continued to teach in Grayson County until 1914, when the Higgins family came by covered wagon to a ranch north of Hereford which he had bought previously.

After farming in this county 33 years the Higgins bought a ranch near Texline and have lived there since. The couple celebrated their 63rd wedding anniversary last October. Mrs. Higgins was active in the Church of Christ and helped establish the church at Texline. With her husband, she was the writer of two books titled What the Bible Says. She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Wilma Sheets of Texline; four sons, John of Limon, Colo., Noel, Howard and Garland of Texline; 13 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

The threat of possible tornadoes prompted many city residents to head for protective cover Thursday night and early Friday morning. McPherson said there were about 200 people at the courthouse during the tornado alert.
Radio station KPAN went on the air at 1:50 a. m. Friday and remained on until 2:31 a. m. during the alert.

NEW CD DIRECTOR — Bill Bradley, right, took over the duties of Civil Defense director for Deaf Smith County Thursday. Jay Spain, second from right, was named assistant director. Presiding over the ceremony were Mayor Jim Sears, left, and County Judge H. C. Williams. Bradley succeeds Bill Thompson, who has resigned as local Chamber of Commerce manager to take a similar position in Leavenworth, Kan.

Tornado prompts big increase in building permits during May

The tornado season and the continuous demand for new homes in Hereford vaulted the May building permits to the second highest of the year with a total of $297,250 invested in construction.
The city issued 32 building permits during May, mostly for the construction of residences and storm shelters. There were eight permits, totaling $4,800, issued for the building of storm shelters.

Keep moths out of wool

By Mrs. Argen Draper
Home Demonstration Agent

Before you store the family's wool clothing, take some precautions to protect them from damage from moths and other insects. Good woolens represent a considerable investment, so they should deserve the best of care during storage. Here are suggestions for keeping stored woolens moth-free:

Wash or dry-clean before storing to remove soil that might attract moths.

Store in an airtight chest, trunk, or closet, not to be opened during summer.

Clean closet or container and treat with a contact moth spray. Remove clothes from closet before spraying so walls can be treated thoroughly.

Use moth flakes, crystals or balls for additional protection. Follow directions on container for use. Or, use a moth spray or clothing.

Treat fabrics made of wool blended with another fiber as if they were all-wool. Unless they are absolutely clean, these blended fabrics are an appetizing dish to moths and carpet beetles.

Again this week the 4-H club members are offering their friends and neighbors excellent eating chocolate; this is a reminder that it can also be used in cooking. These choice chocolate recipes are from the files.

Naturally we have more or less ulterior motives in wanting the members to succeed in their money making project. Chocolate products travel well and will be great to take to the lake or other outings. I also think the chocolate is easy to care for, if it lasts very long.

1 cup water
4 T. cocoa
2 cups flour
2 cups sugar
1/4 t. salt
1 t. soda
1/2 cup buttermilk
2 eggs
1 t. vanilla
Sift dry ingredients together, except soda. Melt margarine water and cocoa. Bring to a boil. Pour margarine mixture over dry ingredients. Mix well. Dissolve soda in buttermilk and add to mixture. Add eggs and vanilla. Bake in 13 x 12 inch pan for 18 minutes.

ICING
Melt 3 oz. chocolate or 1 stick margarine, and 4 T. cocoa. 6 T. milk.
Add 1 box powdered sugar.
Beat well.
Add 1 cup nuts and 1 t. vanilla
Pour over cake while still hot.
FUDGY BROWNIES
Two-thirds bar of Worlds Finest Chocolate (4 oz.)
1/2 cup butter or margarine
2 cups sugar
4 eggs, beaten
1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

Melt chocolate and butter together over hot water. Cool slightly. Gradually add sugar to eggs, beating thoroughly a few each addition. Blend in chocolate mixture. Stir in flour. Then add vanilla and nuts.
Spread in greased 9-inch square pan. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees F.) about 40 minutes. Cool in pan. Cut into squares. Makes about 2 dozen brownies.

NO-BAKE BROWNIES
1 cup chopped walnuts
4 cups graham cracker crumbs
1/2 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
3 bars Worlds Finest Chocolate (12 oz.)
1 cup evaporated milk
1 teaspoon vanilla.
Combine nuts, crumbs, and confectioners' sugar in large mixing bowl. Melt chocolate in evaporated milk over low heat, stirring constantly. Blend well. Add vanilla and then set aside 1/2 cup of the chocolate mixture. Stir crumb mixture into remaining chocolate mixture.

Spread in a well-buttered 9-inch square pan. Spread rest of chocolate mixture over top. Chill. Before serving, cut into bars. Makes about 32 brownies.

DOUBLE-DECK BROWNIES
Two-third cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
One-third cup shortening, melted
One-third cup flake coconut
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
One-third bar Worlds Finest chocolate Measure sifted flour, baking powder and salt and sift together. Gradually add sugar to eggs, beating thoroughly. Blend in shortening. Add flour mixture and mix well. Pour 1/2 cup of the batter into a small bowl; mix in coconut and almond extract. Add chocolate to remaining batter and spread evenly in a greased 8-inch square pan. Drop coconut batter by spoonfuls over chocolate batter and spread carefully to form a thin layer.

Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees — 25 to 30 minutes.) Cool in pan. Cut in bars or squares. Makes about 20 brownies.

Westgate given afghan knitted by Walcott girls

Fifth and sixth grade students at Walcott School used spare time during the school year to knit an afghan which they presented to residents of Westgate. Each girl contributed colorful 7-inch blocks, sewed them together and knotted fringe around the afghan.

Songs and poems were included in the Wednesday morning presentation.

Penny Burton, Kay Whitson, Teena Self, Brenda Robison, Isabel Cortez, Linda Fortenberry, Brenda Duggan, Rene Russell, Patty Harris, Rhonda Hall and Sherry Blasingame were assisted by their teacher, Miss Gladys Setliff.

CARD OF THANKS

WE would like to express our deepest gratitude to all the wonderful people for the phone calls, prayers, cards, flowers, food and visits during Gladys' illness. May God bless each of you.

DWI charges placed against 3

Charges were filed in county court this week against three men for driving while intoxicated and against another man for wife desertion.

Two men were brought back from Colorado to face felony charges in Deaf Smith County, one for removal of mortgaged property and the other for forgery and passing.

The DWI charges were placed against Alfred James, 39, of 4719 47th St., Lubbock; Ruben Ybarra, 22, of 319 Avenue E; and Jim Robert Marnell, 27, of Route 1, Hereford.

Ybarra pleaded guilty Wednesday and was fined $50 and sentenced to 30 days in jail, with the jail term put aside during a one-year probation period.

Nickie Garcia filed a charge of wife desertion against Elias R. Garcia.

The two men taken into custody in Colorado were Jerry Sheffield, 26, of Colorado Springs, Colo., who formerly worked here, and Richard Wallace, 23, of Jacksborough, Tex. Sheffield was charged with removal of mortgaged property and Wallace with forgery and passing.

CAUSE TO CELEBRATE

HAMILTON, Bermuda — When the Queen Elizabeth 2 made her first call here in March on a 14-day Caribbean cruise, the Bermuda Chamber of Commerce honored Commodore Willia E. Warwick.

The commodore of the Cunard fleet received a Bermuda flag, a Bermuda kite and a specially engraved cedar ash tray.

TO MARRY IN AUGUST — Elizabeth Gandy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Gandy, 414 Star, and Ralph William Warren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warren of 801 Baltimore, plan an August 6 wedding in St. Anthony's Catholic Church. Miss Gandy attended Hereford High School. Her fiance graduated with the class of 1968 and attended West Texas State University. He is presently employed by Wilson's Beef and Lamb Company.

KIWANIS GUEST SPEAKER — Travis McPherson, program chairman, presents George Dowlen, Criminal District Attorney for Randall County, a certificate of appreciation from Hereford Kiwanis Club for speaking at Thursday's luncheon. Dowlen told of narcotics cases from the prosecutor's point of view and said drug misusers don't realize the penalties they face for illegal use of drugs. He also gave a rundown on some Amarillo undercover agents and problems they face in all drug cases uncovered.

OUTSTANDING JUNIOR — Glynda Kay Landers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Landers of 205 Higgins, was awarded the Amanda Rodes Alumnae Prize which is presented each year at Centre College in Danville, Ky. to the outstanding junior woman.

Glynda Landers is top Centre junior

Glynda Kay Landers of Hereford, a junior at Centre College in Danville, Ky., has been awarded the Amanda Rodes Alumnae Prize annually presented to the outstanding junior woman student at Centre.

Miss Landers was presented the award at Honors Convocation on the campus by Dr. Thomas A. Spragens, Centre president. Approximately 300 students and faculty members attended the convocation. Miss Landers is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Landers, 205 Higgins, Hereford. She graduated in May 1968 from Hereford High School where she won many honors. She was named DAR Citizen of the Year, "Most Intellectual" at Hereford High School, Who's Who in Mathematics, and the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Student of the Year. She also won third place in the Panhandle Science Fair. Miss Landers became acquainted with the Centre campus when she attended a National Science Foundation program here in the summer of 1967. As a Centre student she is a biology lab assistant, a member of Student Congress, a leader in the Campus Crusade for Christ program, and is on the Dean's List with a high scholastic average.

Centre College, founded in 1819, is an independent coeducation college of the liberal arts and sciences with 740 students. During Centre's 10-year development program just completed the school completed 13 new buildings. Now under construction is a $5,000,000 Fine Arts Center.

Bluebirds need big coffee cans

Members of the Hereford Bluebirds have their annual day camp June 14-18 and they're trying to round up some special equipment they need during the week.

Each girl needs a three-pound coffee can and two plastic lids to go on the can. Anyone having such a can would help one or more of the girls by calling a Bluebird or taking the can or cans by the Campfire Lodge.

The camp is at Camp Alani Wa, which means "Bluebirds Outdoors." To get there you go out South Main to the first dirt road and then turn east one-quarter of a mile.

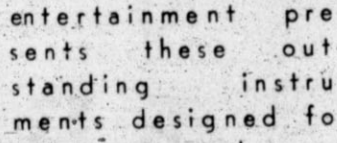

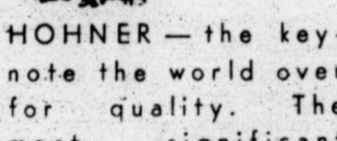

The camp will be open from 2 to 5 p. m. Monday through Thursday and from 3 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. Friday. Parents are invited to attend the ceremonial Friday, June 18, from 6:30 to 7:30 p. m.

The girls will take part in games, arts and crafts.

The dahlia is named for the Swedish botanist Dahl.

Preceding her wedding scheduled for June 18, Miss Dianne London was complimented with a tea-shower Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. Robert Hickman. She is the bride-elect of Bill Ailshie.

With her mother, Mrs. Baxter London, and her grandmothers, Mrs. John Austin and Mrs. Walter London Sr., the honoree received callers in rooms brightened with spring flowers in pink and white, colors she has chosen for her wedding.

A bouquet of phlox in those colors centered the tea table, which was covered with a cloth of lace and chiffon.

Mrs. Leslie Combs and Mrs. Lewis Fanning served refreshments to the guests who presented the bride-to-be an array of gifts.

Other hostesses were Meses. George Stringer, Lewis Lea, Dick Gholson, Ron Crist, Clayton Sanders, C. W. Pierson, H. T. Goodwin, Jack Wederbrook, Richard Layman, J.T. Boynton, N. E. Stowers and Clyde Rush.

Small talk

By SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

EVEN IF THERE'S a drouth again next week, isn't it great to have had a rain? Makes everybody feel better, for a little while, at least.

But why did it have to add insult to injury Thursday night by coming just after I'd dragged the hose to the last dry spot and finished a four-day job of watering the lawn? Oh well, I'm not one to look gift horses in the mouth, especially in a dry year.

GUESTS AT A luncheon Thursday for Julia Davis, one of our most-entertained brides this spring, exclaimed over the table decorations which featured a blue wheelbarrow full of blue and yellow carnations, set under a blue umbrella in the center of the yellow cloth. There were smaller umbrellas at each end of the table.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Owen Seamands, Mrs. J. C. McCracken and Mrs. Gaylor Newell. The latter played hostess under some difficulties; she got home the day before the party after a 10-day absence, and you can guess how much last-minute rushing she had to do.

DIANE ROBERSON and her son, Edward Ray Jr. who is better known here as Buddy, were here from Austin last weekend to visit her mother, Mrs. Roy Jowell; her mother-in-law, Mrs. Jeff Roberson; other relatives and as many friends as they had time to see.

The Robersons, former residents, have lived in Austin about a year while Roberson, ex-sheriff of Deaf Smith County, has worked in the identification and records division of the Texas DPS. Diane is employed in a doctor's office at Austin, and Buddy has a job with Continental Car Co.

A CLUB REPORTER who goes beyond the usual definition of her job, Jewel Awtry mailed back from Ulysses, Kan., where she is visiting her son, W. H. Awtry Jr. and his family, an account of a meeting of that busy bunch, the Mothers' Needle Club.

That kind of attention to a duty sort of restores our faith in humanity and counterbalances the frustration that occurs when we not only fail to hear from a reporter on schedule, but can't find her when we try to track her down.

P. S. — Hope Jewel is having a fine time on her visit.

PIONEER STUDY CLUB, which was listed for numerous awards in the Top of Texas District, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, this spring, went on to receive state awards at a recent TFWC convention.

Mrs. Delmar Sigle was given one of the individual awards for her work as district chairman of safety, and Pioneer Club won second place in the savings bond division.

Keenan-Brooke vows repeated

Miss Vicki Keenan and Elery Mark Brooke exchanged marriage vows Saturday in a ceremony conducted by the Rev. H. V. Fields, pastor, at Grace Gospel Church.

The bride has resided with her grandmother, Mrs. Ora Hill, 329 West Fifth. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Brooke, 117 Northwest.

Flowers in lilac and white decorated the church for the wedding, in which the couple's only attendants were Miss Nellie Cockrum, maid of honor, and Guy Brooke, the bridegroom's brother and his best man.

Given in marriage by her father, Carl L. Keenan, the bride was dressed in white lace over taffeta, a street-length frock with empire waistline, circular stand-up collar and short sleeves puffed at the shoulders.

Her brief tulle veil flared from a coronet of seed pearls and she carried an orchid bouquet. The maid of honor wore the wedding colors, lilac and white.

A reception was held after the wedding at the home of Mrs. Ira Otto, 120 Northwest. The couple was assisted in greeting guests by the bride's aunt, Miss Jo Hill, and the bridegroom's mother.

Miss Cockrum and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Elaine Brooke, served the wedding cake; punch was ladled by Miss Winnetta Gay Hill, cousin of the bride, and Miss Sherry Janssen.

After June 14 the couple will be at home in Apt. 10, Lynette Apartments.

The bride is a Hereford High School student and the bridegroom was graduated from Dimmitt High.

CARD OF THANKS

THE family of Mrs. Flossie Harris express their deepest gratitude and appreciation to those many friends who were so thoughtful and helpful during her long illness. This is extended to Dr. Mims and Dr. Rush and to all the nurses at Deaf Smith County Hospital. To everyone who eased our burden with prayers, food, flowers and expressions of sympathy. May God bless each of you.

Have you lost a pair of prescription glasses? Emmett Duke, who lives at 621 Avenue G, found a pair at the corner of Avenue G and 15th Street Thursday morning and would like to return them to the owner. He thinks they may belong to either a newspaper carrier boy or his parents since Mrs. Duke happened to see someone loading some papers and a bicycle in a pickup Thursday morning at that intersection. Perhaps the glasses slipped out of the owners pocket at that time.

Anyway, he has the glasses at his home and if the owner reads this, he is welcome to pick them up at the above address.

Another school year is over and we suspect that a lot of parents will be packing-up and heading in various directions for the annual vacation. A lot of school teachers will be doing the same. Another thing that comes to mind, is that a lot of parents are going to be facing the increasing cost of higher education for the first time this year, and we hope the shock isn't too great. If we had a Junior College here, a lot of the 1971 graduating class could be entering college in their home town this year. Living at home, working, and spending their money with the local merchants.

And before we forget — again, that is — we want to express our appreciation to Bill Brady, Brady Photography Studio, for furnishing the individual pictures of this year's graduating class. . . all 270 of them.

We always rely on whichever studio takes the annual pictures to get copies to The Brand and this year it happened to be Mr. Brady.

Most stores throughout the city will be closed Monday for the Memorial Day holiday, as will the local post office, city and county offices, etc. However, the banks will be open, along with the supermarkets and the drug stores. We believe the drug stores will open late and close early, but will be open during the middle of the day.

We suspect that highways will be crowded because of the long week end, so if you're taking a trip, do drive carefully.

The rain has finally come. We hope it will continue for a few days. We can use it.

Dr. John English, out at King's Manor, likes to tell the story about the Appalachian hillbilly who, upon completion of his timber cutting chores, desperately needed a good rain to float his logs to the mill.

He decided to turn to prayer. "Oh, Lord," he said. "Don't just bring a silly drizzle. We need a sod soaker."

And that's the way it is here. We really need a sod soaker to bring us out of the drought. However, we can sure do without all the winds.

Leave it to the Texas legislature to make a tough job out of a relatively simple one. Now, the Senate Redistricting committee has come up with another plan for splitting the Panhandle in half, stretching Representative George Mahon's district from Midland County on the South to Ochiltree to the North. This plan, if adopted, would put all the Western Panhandle counties in Mahon's district, but would leave Amarillo and Wichita Falls in what will

Retired teacher dies at Dimmitt

Funeral services for Mrs. Grace Loyd, 81, of Dimmitt, mother of Mrs. W. R. Hair of Hereford, were conducted Saturday afternoon in First Baptist Church of Dimmitt by the Rev. Raymond M. Perkins, pastor. Burial at Littlefield was directed by Gilliland Funeral Home.

Mrs. Loyd, who died at her home Wednesday, had taught from 1948 to 1961 in Dimmitt schools and previously in other West Texas cities. She served as Lamb County sheriff in 1937 and 1938, completing a term after her husband, F. A. Loyd, was killed while carrying out his duties.

Born Sept. 12, 1889, in San born the new 13th district. That would still mean a race between incumbent representatives Bob Price of Pampa and Graham Purcell of Wichita Falls. Deaf Smith of course, would go to the 19th district.

Actually, we're not as much concerned about the Price-Purcell race as we are the splitting-up the Panhandle. We think it should be left as a unit.

And a cordial welcome to the folks returning home for the Mid-Plains Pioneer Day celebration. We know you're enjoying your stay.

Saba County, she was married in 1910 in Dickens County.

In addition to Mrs. Hair, survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Lucille Bley of Olton, Mrs. Silvia Adams of Lubbock, Mrs. Jeannie Cryer of St. Joseph, Mo., and Mrs. Wilma Colbert of Brownwood; two sons, Tommie of Lubbock and Aubrey of Borger; two sisters, Mrs. Arline Sprayberry of Dimmitt and Mrs. Josie Morrison of San Antonio; and a brother, Tom Owen of Amarillo.

Crown Center, Kansas City's $200 million "city within a city," is being financed entirely by private capital, with no state or federal assistance.

More than four million acres of Texas forestlands are now certified tree farms.

MILO $2.65 PER CWT. MINIMUM
NOW BEING CONTRACTED

ALL FARMERS are urged to attend a meeting at The Deaf Smith County Bull Barn. Tuesday, June 1st, to receive information as to how they can now contract their 1971 Milo Production for a minimum price of $2.65 per c.w.t. and put a floor price under the 1971 production. NFO Members, your neighbors, are asking YOU, Every Farmer, who has not as yet joined in the fight for fair parity prices for all agriculture commodities to be present to HEAR THE FACTS.

It is now apparent that NO PRICE HELP IS COMING FROM WASHINGTON. We must do it ourselves, we must work together to make up the Loss of income suffered in the new Government program.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: SUNDOWN, AND THE WIND DIES AWAY TO A LIGHT BREEZE. GUNDAR HARL'S SAILING SHIP CAN NO LONGER OUTFRAN THE CORSAIR. THE DARK LINE ON THE HORIZON PROMISES A COMING WIND, BUT UNLESS THE PIRATES CAN BE SLOWED DOWN IT WILL ARRIVE TOO LATE. THEN GUNDAR NOTICES THE CRUEL RAMS AND AN IDEA COMES.

THE HUGE FISH NET IS DRAGGED FROM THE HOLD AND PAVED OUT OVER THE STERN.

THE SAILING SHIP CHANGES COURSE AND THE CORSAIR TRIES TO FOLLOW, BUT IT IS TOO LONG AND HEAVY TO MANEUVER QUICKLY AND PLOWS INTO THE NET.

PICKED UP BY THE RAM THE NET TRAILS BACK AMONG THE OARS. IN THE FAILING LIGHT THE CONFUSION IS GREAT AND THE CAPTAIN'S RAGE ONLY ADDS TO THE DISORDER. FOR IT WILL SOON BE KNOWN ALL ALONG THE BARBARY COAST THAT HE HAS ALLOWED HIMSELF TO BE CAUGHT LIKE A FISH AND ROBBED OF HIS PREY.

SLOWLY THE TWO VESSELS DRAW APART AND AS DARKNESS FALLS THE WIND RISES, SAILS FILL AND THE SHIP COMES ALIVE. ANOTHER DANGER HAS PASSED.

DURING THE HOUR OF PERIL ALETA STOOD WITH HER BROOD AS A QUEEN SHOULD, CALM, COMPOSED, AND THE CHILDREN HAD DRAWN COURAGE FROM HER. NOW THE CRISIS HAS PASSED AND ALONE IN HER CABIN SHE IS BUT A MOTHER WHOSE CHILDREN HAVE BEEN VERY CLOSE TO AN AWFUL FATE.

MIDNIGHT, AND THE SAILORS PUT AWAY THEIR ARMS, A CASK OF MEAD IS BROACHED, AND THANKS GIVEN TO THEIR FIERCE NORTHERN GODS FOR BRINGING THEM THROUGH SAFELY.

hints from

DEAR HELOISE:
My husband is a teacher working on his master's degree away from home during the summer months.

In order that the little ones (we have six children) don't forget what Daddy looks like, I took a head-and-shoulders snapshot of him shortly before he left. I securely fastened a small piece of clear plastic around it to keep it clean, then hung it on the wall low enough for the smallest to see it easily.

It's surprising how many times a day the two smallest touch the photo and "talk" to their Daddy.

Margaret Edwards

A lovely idea... and when Daddy does return, he will be no stranger to those wee ones.

Heloise

BLOCKED TO SIGHS!

DEAR HELOISE:
When hanging tight-necked items, like sweaters, take the hanger and slip the article over the hanger. This can be done in one easy movement if you put your arm down the neck of the sweater (your arm will not stretch it), grasp the hanger, and pull it up through the sweater.

Easy as that proverbial pie!

Mrs. J. H.

BEDTIME BLUES

DEAR HELOISE:
Here is a hint for the mother of a bed-wetter—a predicament that both parents and children dislike. The best mattress protector is a fitted plastic sheet, but if you don't have one, try an old swimming raft that just can't possibly be repaired.

You just remove the plastic plug that you blow the air into, then split the seams on both ends and the sides. Place this on your child's bed and you will find that it is long enough to tuck under the mattress and heavy enough to stay in one place.

Beverly A. Hoyt

TRAVELING TIP

DEAR HELOISE:
"Necessity is the mother of invention," sure nuf. I found my zippered clothes-bag carrier was torn and I didn't have time to go out and buy another, so... I used my clear white plastic raincoat which buttoned over the clothes I was taking on a trip.

It served two purposes—because it rained where we went and it sure kept my clothes clean and intact.

Jessie Wand

TAKE YOUR PICK!

DEAR HELOISE:
This one I must give my husband credit for: He always likes to have toothpicks with him, so he puts them in an empty gum foil pack.

By folding the end, they stay put and much cleaner, since he works outside. It also saves wear and tear on the shirt pockets, and they are less likely to slip into the washing machine.

Loyal Reader

DOGGONE GOOD!

DEAR HELOISE:
We have been troubled by night-prowling dogs opening the garbage cans and spilling garbage all over the back yard.

In our neighborhood, there is a St. Bernard dog we are especially fond of. However, we weren't so fond of him the morning we found our garbage scattered all over the lawn.

He is large enough to take the handle of the lid in his teeth, thus opening the can. So I hit on this idea: I save a snack from our dinner table and at night I place it on top of the garbage can. Now "Boopsie" takes his snack and leaves the can alone.

A Constant Reader

FLOATING SHAMPOO

DEAR HELOISE:
It's quite a chore to wash a little girl's hair without a good deal of discomfort to the child and the mother.

The other day my daughter was in the tub with a plastic float she had used for swimming. I immediately shampooed her hair right then and there while she was floating on the water.

No trouble at all. Her head was hanging backwards into the water where I could rinse it without soap getting on her face.

Mrs. D. McRorie

HOT DIGGETY DOG!

DEAR FOLKS:
Next time you make that hamburger or Coney Island, instead of using a knife to put the mustard on with (like this housewife has done for centuries), try using a fork!

That old fork will spread the yellow goop so divinely you simply won't believe it. Not only that, but when your jar of mustard collects liquid on top, you'll have that fork handy to beat it up with.

Wonderful for toast or sandwiches too.

Heloise

HOW MANY LEGS!

DEAR HELOISE:
Will you please warn your many readers never to bring their lawn chairs into the house without first tapping them hard on the sidewalk or patio?

The hollow tubes of these chairs (and most of the less expensive aluminum chairs and lounges are hollow with open ends) are full of insects—spiders, pill bugs, earwigs, etc. They even nest inside the legs.

Will save you headaches in trying to rid your house of them if you'll just fold the chairs up outside and knock them down hard against the concrete.

Mrs. Vander Zee

BEAUTIFUL QUIET!

DEAR HELOISE:
Before the plumber comes, a good drip silencer is one of your fluffy nylon scrubbing balls.

Just put it down in the sink or washbowl, or in the bottom of the shower, directly under the drip.

Gladys Rice

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:
At last all of my problems are over!

I have a son 14 who is a "bully," and a son 12. There was constant bedlam in our home because of the older boy harassing the younger one... until... I enrolled the 12-year-old in a judo school where they teach self defense.

The "bully" is now an angel, and no punches are being passed either way.

One Sweet Trick

THIS is a sweet trick—if you master it. Grasp a tumbler, as above.

Place two lumps of sugar on your index finger. Now, one at a time, see if you can flip both cubes into the glass.

It's easy to flip the first cube with an upward motion, but to transfer the second without dislodging the first is another story. The secret: Drop the hand quickly, and, as the second cube descends, catch it in the glass.

BULLETIN BOARD

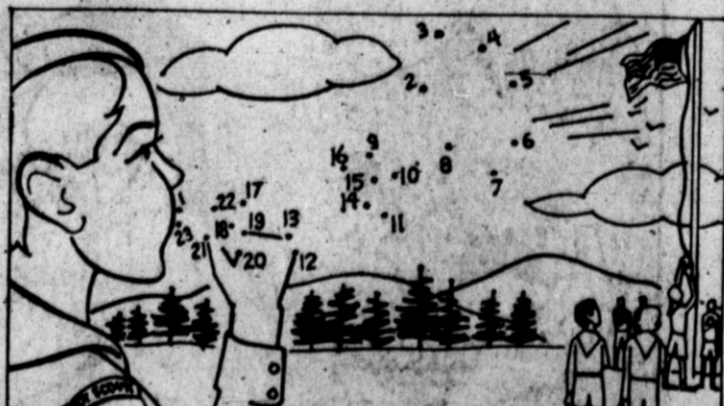

- SAFE BET? "I'll race you," said a chubby stranger, "and you'll never pass me if you give me a 3-foot start. But you must let me choose the course." Where's the course?

Tip: A ladder!
- Think Fast: What number multiplied by one-half of itself equals 12½? Time limit: 30 seconds.

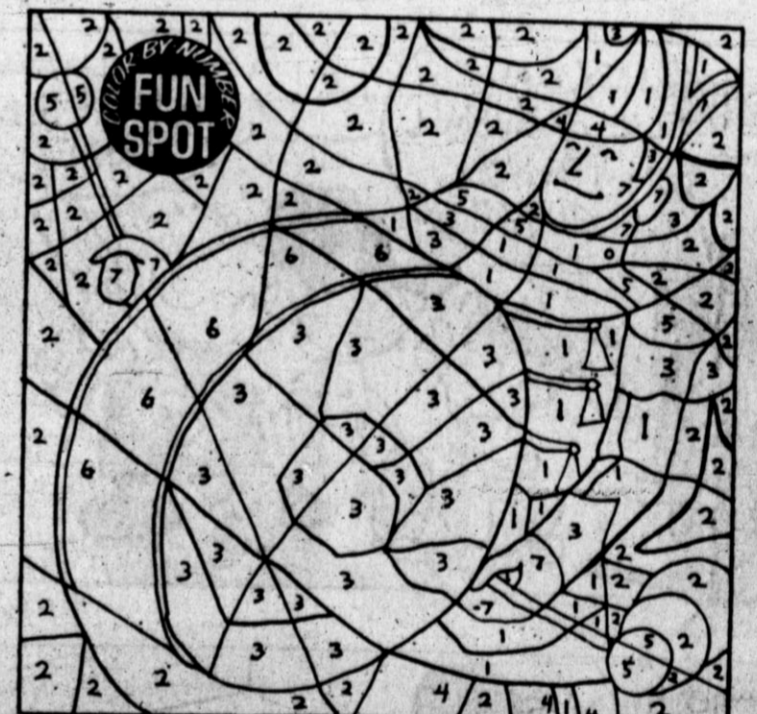

Number first.
- What's so odd about the way a horse eats?

He eats without a bit in his mouth.
- The names Dixie Belle, Charlestown Grey, Congo, Black Diamond, and Cannon Ball read like entries in a harness race. Actually, these are varieties of what popular edible fruit?

The watermelon.

SOMETHING seems to be missing from the Memorial Day scene, above. How quickly can you complete its outline, dot by dot?

BIG BEAT! Join in the fun of the big parade by adding colors as follows, above: 1—Red, 2—Blue, 3—Yellow, 4—Black, 5—Brown, 6—Green, 7—Flesh tones. Add colors neatly as possible, of course.

SPELBINDER!

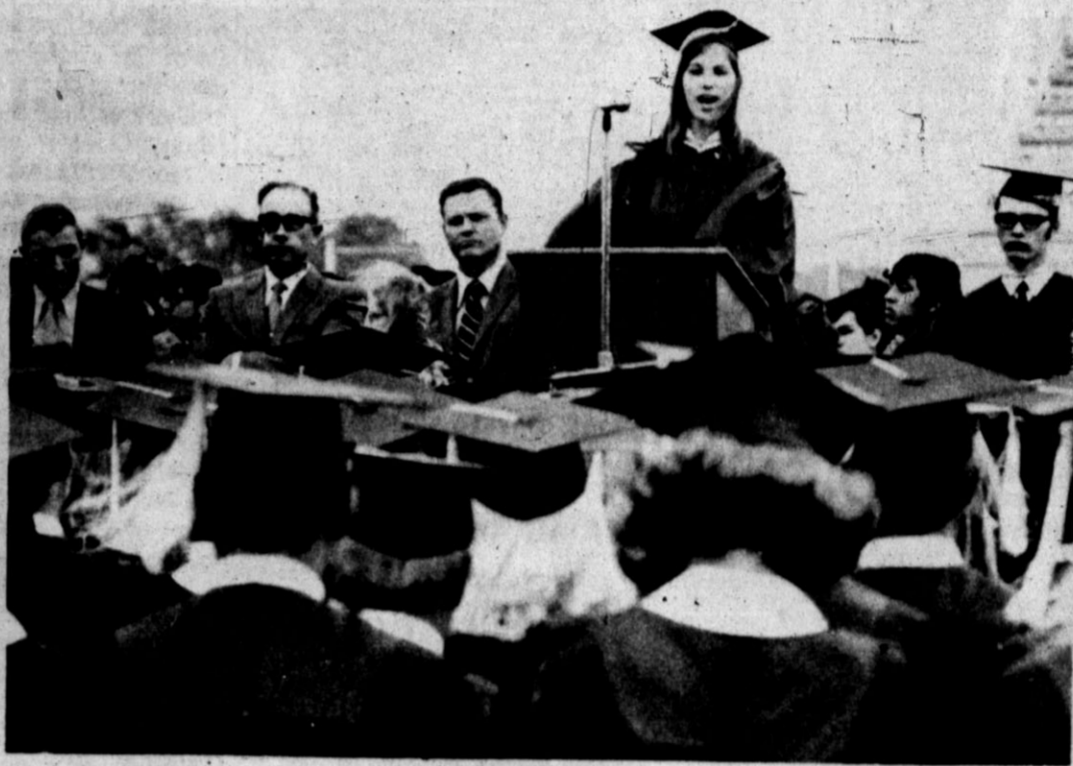

SCORE 10 points for using all letters in the word below to form two complete words:

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters. Try to score at least 50 points.

Use possible anagrams: Note, later.

Victorian England setting for novel

An unusual example of strength and sensitivity are shown in events which take place throughout a novel now available at Deaf Smith County Library. Check it out today.

THE DWELLING PLACE by Catherine Cookson
Once again Catherine Cookson has created a heroine of rare sensitivity and strength. Cissie Brodie has grown up on a tenant farm where life is a continual struggle for survival.

When she is only fifteen, the fever sweeps the English countryside, leaving her to cope with the death of her parents and the care of her nine younger brothers and sisters.

Rejecting the offers of town officials to care for the children in the workhouse, Cissie is determined to keep the family together and manages to move them to a cavelike dwelling place on the fells.

Then one afternoon as she is returning home, she is attacked by young Isabelle Fischel and raped by her twin brother, Lord Clive Fischel. Nine months later she bears him a son.

Despite offers of wealth and comfort from the young Peer's father, Cissie refuses to give up the child until one of her young sisters faces imprisonment in the House of Correction for a childish misdemeanor.

It is not until many years later that Cissie gains the love and security she has always sought.

Set against the rough class-divided society of Victorian England, this vigorous Gothic narrative portrays a young woman who uses her intelligence and determination to defy the circumstances of her birth and to gain wealth, position and happiness.

THE STREAM by Robert Murphy
This is the story of a natural, unspoiled, two-thousand acre tract of woodland and stream, of the animals and birds that have their habitat there, and of Ohmstead, a lonely man who draws a deep pleasure and spir-tual sustenance from the contemplation of these things.

When the land is threatened, and the life within it to a great extent destroyed, due to ignorance, uncaring, and simple greed, Ohmstead feels that a part of the best part of himself is also destroyed, and, quietly but deeply angry, he determines to do something about it:

"Why had he thought he could sit uselessly in the sun? He would join them (the Conservationists), and the more militant organization that wanted to take him in, the better."

BIRDS APLENTY
...ANDROS BEACH COLONY, Bahamas (AP)—There are so many game birds here that the government permits a bag limit of 50 wild birds a day or 200 birds total possession.
The birds range from white crowned pigeon to wild ducks and geese. Hundreds of thousands of duck make their winter home in the bays and marshes on the uninhabited west coast of Andros Island.

Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico join at one point.

Officers installed at dinner as Art Guild closes season

Closing meeting of this year for Hereford Art Guild was a dinner in the Cason House, with installation of new officers as the program feature. Dr. John English became president to succeed Mrs. Ludwig Kovacs. Varying shades on the color wheel symbolized duties of the officers in the installation conducted by Mrs. Kovacs. Penned with bows in primary colors were presented the 1971-72 officers as Mrs. Kovacs noted that these were also the U. S. flag colors, red and blue with white in the flag itself and gold on the eagle topping its staff.

Mrs. Charles Newell took office as vice president, Mrs. J. Newman as secretary and Mrs. Hilrey Aven as reporter.

A report of the recent art show and sale sponsored by the Guild and the merchants at Sugarland Mall showed that 60

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Bruce Brown, Mrs. Mark Schaffner and Bob Wert, editors of the Art Palette, a monthly newsletter for the Guild.

Places were laid for 25 members and a guest, J. V. Perrin.

of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril J. Albracht, 215 Western, Hereford, received the Bachelor of Science degree in nursing cum laude today from Incarnate Word College in San Antonio.

An honor student, she has been selected for Kappa Gamma Phi, a National Catholic College Women's Honor Society. It is a post-graduate honor and service society with membership effective upon graduation. Only eight of the 215 undergraduate degree candidates for 1971 were selected for this honor.

In her junior and senior years she was nominated to the Alpha Chi National Honor Society, open to the top ten per cent of college upperclassmen in the United States. She was also named, in 1969, to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

The 247 undergraduate and graduate degrees for May were conferred by interim president Dr. Sterling F. Wheeler in ceremonies at the Theatre for the Performing Arts. It was the largest class in the College's 90-year history.

Dr. Earl Jones of Texas A&M of IWC, delivered the commencement address.

Back to the budget

In the view of Charles L. Schultze, who was President Johnson's budget director, failures to adequately control federal spending can be blamed partly on the fact that Congress tends to be more program-minded than budget-minded.

Congress, he observes, has good mechanisms, through its committee staffs, for examining the merits of specific programs. But it lacks good mechanisms for appraising the likely impact on the budget and the economy of all the programs it has under consideration.

The criticism is timely in this era when Congress seems inclined to press the administration for more spending rather than less, which would be a more proper role. Of course, the administration isn't always frugal either, as its advocacy of the SST subsidy proved. Congress must nonetheless bear an important part of the blame for the large deficits the nation faces and for the government's inability to bring inflation under adequate control.

Some of the current difficulty no doubt results from an assumption by the Democrats who control Congress that a Republican administration cannot be counted upon to spend as much as it should. That assumption is hardly warranted, since Mr. Nixon has willingly embraced the concept of a "full-employment budget," which holds that big federal deficits are permissible and even desirable when unemployment is high, just so long as the budget would be balanced if the economy were operating at full employment.

Still, it would seem that Mr. Schultze has a valid point when he ascribes some of the blame to the way Congress is set up and the way it functions. Congressmen do indeed think in terms of programs and each has certain net programs that interest him because they are supposedly beneficial to his constituency. He tends to be more concerned with those than with the total effect of passage of the net programs of all Congressmen. Thus, the natural energy of Congress is directed toward spending more money.

The lack of an overview also was once true in the administration, where individual executive agencies submitted their money requests directly to Congress and any such instrument as a federal budget was not to be found. The Budget and Accounting Act of 1921, which set up the Budget Bureau and the General Accounting Office, corrected this haphazard system, although some vestiges of it remain.

The budget does act as an overall control but Congress doesn't have to stick to the budget when it makes appropriations and it often doesn't. Mr. Nixon has tried to put some control on congressional tendencies to exceed what he regards as prudent spending. He has simply delayed spending of some appropriated funds. But this has brought him under some strong pressure from Congressmen, who have been under similar pressure from constituents who expected to benefit from the funds once they were appropriated.

The key question, then, is what can be done to give Congress a greater sense of responsibility about the total effect of its legislative actions, including the long-range as well as the short-range effects. A strengthening of the House Ways and Means Committee staff might help, giving Congress a stronger "in-house" capability to examine priorities.

One thing should be clear, however. As the cost of government has risen steadily, both in absolute terms and as a percentage of the total economy, more and more taxpayers are coming to question whether the resulting benefits are more than very marginal ones. Resistance to new taxation is likely to become stronger, which means that Congress may have to find better ways of saying no.

As Mr. Schultze notes, a control mechanism is lacking. Any Congressman who devises one will deserve a vote of thanks from beleaguered taxpayers. —The Wall Street Journal

Is Congress crazy?

A POINTED question, "Is Congress Crazy?" is asked by the Daily Oklahoman of Oklahoma City.

For those who might think that the question, itself, is crazy, the newspaper supplies the answer in an editorial which is too convincing for comfort.

On May 10, it is pointed out, the National Debt was more than $392 billion. The debt limit is authorized by Congress until July 1 this year is "only" $395 billion. Increasing deficits between May 10 and June 30 are expected to overrun that limit.

In March, Congress passed a bill raising the authorized debt limit to $430 billion, but not until July 1. Increase in the deficit between May 10, 1970, and

May 10 this year was more than $25 billion.

European and some other countries are flooded with more than $30 billion in U. S. dollars which this country has guaranteed to redeem in gold. One country, Belgium, has demanded and received $80 million in gold for the dollars it held. If other countries do the same, the U. S. will have to go off the gold standard and repudiate its pledge to support the dollar with gold.

Now, asks the Daily Oklahoman, "What is Congress doing to halt the deficit and strengthen the dollar?" Answer—nothing. One bill, just introduced in Congress, would give $2,400 to every welfare family of four or more. This would mean an expenditure of several billions of dollars. Another Congressman has introduced a bill to give every welfare family of four $5,500 a year, which would require about three times as many billions.

"Congress greatly increased payments of Social Security, adding millions to this year's deficit without any increase in revenue to offset it."

Health insurance proposals would cost somewhere between $25 billion and $75 billion. Since World War II, the Government, with approval of Congress, has given away or loaned with little hope of repayment more than $152 billion dollars of U. S. taxpayers' money. Most of the recipient countries are pointing because they've not received more.

The Oklahoman finishes it off like this:

"Scores of bills are pending in Congress, authorizing the expenditure of huge sums, some of them designed to influence voters in the 1972 election. Congress gives all its attention to next year's election and the Vietnam war while every month Russia is piling up huge weapons, missiles, submarines and ships with which to bury us.

"It appears that Congress is not interested in the survival of the American government."

That's a harsh conclusion, but it's one which is based, sad to say, on a lot of powerful evidence. Lubbock Avalanche-Journal

Congress is neglecting its rail responsibilities

By BERT MILLS
Washington, D. C.—Four times in the past 18 months, Congress has been forced to take emergency action either to head off a national railroad strike or to stop one already in progress. It happened again May 17 and 18, just as it did last December.

Each time, Congress got the trains to roll again by legislation, and each time the striking union was rewarded with a pay increase as part of the price paid for a temporary peace. This time it was the signalmen that caused the crisis, but various brotherhoods have been involved in past emergencies.

The public, which pays the bill for all national emergencies, cares little whether it is the fault of the unions or the railroads that "disagreements" cannot be resolved without hurry-up legislation to meet the immediate crisis. What the public wants is a solution so that these tie-ups do not continue to occur.

The crying need is for permanent legislation to prevent national paralysis strikes, no matter whether caused by the intransigence of either labor or management, or both. The public interest must come first. That means Congress must stop temporizing and revise the National Railway Act in such a way that a permanent solution to the rail strike problem will be found.

Those four piecemeal laws passed on a crash basis last year and this year have contributed nothing to preventing future strikes. All were ad hoc actions aimed at ending a particular shutdown, either prospective or actual. Nothing has been done to protect the public against the next crisis, already predicted for next October.

Congress Has Procrastinated
In February, 1970, President Nixon sent Congress a plan to amend the emergency strike provisions of both the Railway

Labor Act and the Taft-Hartley Act. His proposal would establish new mechanisms for handling labor disputes that threaten to disrupt the national health or safety, in any part of the transportation industry.

Whether the Nixon blueprint is the right answer, nobody knows. Congress hasn't even held a single hearing on the plan, or any substitute therefor. In short, Congress has abdicated its responsibility, with the result that each new emergency has to be met in a few hours when a crisis is at hand.

Chiefly responsible for the procrastination are the committees whose jurisdiction includes railroad strikes. They are the Senate Labor Committee, headed this year for the first time by Sen. Harrison Williams (D., N.J.) and the House Commerce Committee, whose perennial Chairman is Rep. Harley Staggers (D., W. Va.).

Both Williams and Staggers are pro-labor, which explains their reluctance to do anything to offend the unions except when under the gun. Inevitably, rewriting national emergency provisions of the Railway Labor Act and Taft-Hartley Act would offend labor, and the controversial question of compulsory arbitration would be sure to arise.

As the result of the signalmen's strike, both Williams and Staggers have promised to hold committee hearings, but not right away. Also, Staggers has warned a bill may not be reported, that "it is going to take months and months of hearings," and that neither labor nor management will be satisfied with the result. He should be reminded it is the public that needs to be satisfied, not the warring parties.

Public "Fed Up"
Rep. Gerald Ford (R., Mich.), the House minority leader, said during House debate on the resolution to end the recent strike that he was certain "that many members of the (Commerce) committee are as fed up as I am with this periodic crisis coming to the Congress." He called for quick hearings on permanent legislation.

The Republican leader also sounded a note that probably will be acceptable to many Democrats. He said the history of labor-management legislation is that Congress will do nothing until the public says: "You do something." He added he believed the public was telling Congress that "we have to act on permanent legislation." OK, Congress, do something!

Talk of Texas

By JACK MAGUIRE

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY — It was 121 years ago next week that the city of Austin learned that it would continue as the capital of Texas for at least another 20 years.

On March 4, 1850, Texans had voted on whether the capital should remain in Austin or be removed to one of four other sites. Tehuacana Springs, Palestine, Humbleville and Washington-on-the-Brazos all were strong contenders for the seat of government.

Vote-counting was slow in those days, and it was not until almost three months after the election that the results were announced. On June 3, Austin learned that it had won with 7,979 voters favoring it as the capital. Tehuacana Springs had 3,143 supporters and each of the other contenders got more than 1,000 votes each.

The question of where the permanent capital of Texas would be located wasn't decided until 23 years later. In November, 1872, Texans voted on the proposition again. This time Austin received 63,297 votes and won. Houston was next with 35,188 and Waco third with 12,776 votes.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? — For singles who once were married, there's a lodging place at 3021 North Main in Houston that is known simply as Divorce Hotel.

Owned and operated by Felix Aguirre, who is divorced, the eight-room hotel caters primarily to men without spouses. It offers a room and three meals a day for $19.95 per week.

HERB DOCTORS — During the Civil War, much of the medicine given to the Confederate troops was made from herbs purchased from Indians in East Texas.

"Headache Springs," outside of Tyler, was the site of a medical laboratory during the war. There Confederate physicians, cut off from their supply of regular drugs by the U. S. blockade of Southern ports, made medicines from herbs like poke root, snake root, mullein, Jimson weed, Jerusalem oak, nighthshade, mistletoe and cherry bark. Headache Springs actually was an old spa whose mineral waters were supposed to have healing qualities.

TRAVELING TEXAS — Dallas is converting its City Park into a re-creation of the way the town looked between 1840 and 1860.

The project began in 1969 when the local Heritage Society purchased Millermore, a mansion built more than a century ago by William Brown Miller. The mansion was dismantled and moved to the park where it was reconstructed. Now it is a museum.

Plans call for the addition of a pioneer barber shop, an early-day grocery store, a church, a wigwag, a covered wagon and other authentic mementoes of the last century to the City Park Living History Center.

THE PASSING PARADE — When the Southern Pacific Railroad closed its station in Moscow, Polk County, several years ago and put the building up for sale, the citizens got together and held a proper funeral for the old landmark.

SENSING THE NEWS

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — No city better represents the industrial heart of the South than this bustling post-Civil War city that grew and flourished because the vital elements in steel-making iron, limestone and coal — were available nearby in abundance.

Steel production began here at the turn of the century. Today, the iron used in the process no longer comes from Birmingham's Red Mountain. Instead, the iron ore originates in Canada and Venezuela and is transported to Mobile where it is off-loaded onto barges for trans-shipment to the Birmingham mills. The rich deposits of local coal are still used, however. Steel-making here is a huge enterprise. The giant Fairfield Works of the United States Steel Corporation is the largest employer in the State of Alabama. Indeed the huge mills constitute a vital unit in America's steel production.

Our era often is referred to as the Atomic Age. It is more accurate to describe it as the Steel Age. Everything a nation does — from producing consumer goods to building nuclear plants, pipelines and tankers — requires steel. Thus steel is the key index in determining a country's industrial strength.

Not many years ago, America's steel industry dominated the world. Today, the steel industry of the United States faces grave problems. It is no exaggeration to say that, in the long-run, the industrial leadership of the United States is threatened. Japan could become the No. 1 steel-making country in the world and, in the process, the No. 1 power in the world.

In order to expand production facilities and to install new processes, American steel-makers need to increase their earnings. But this isn't happening. Earnings of steel companies average 4.8 per cent of stockholders' equity, or less than half the rate of return for all manufacturing corporations in the United States.

The prospect for a healthier earnings picture is dimmed by the fact that the current three-year union agreement ends Aug. 1. Grave danger exists that the United Steelworkers of America will call a strike that will cause immense damage to the industry and to the American economy in general.

Wages in the steel industry are among the highest in all U. S. business. Steelworkers' hourly earnings average $4.25 per hour. The wage structure is the reason that the American steel industry faces an almost impossible situation with respect to foreign competition. Employment costs for U.S. steel companies are $3.88 per hour over the costs of Japanese companies. This gap widened from $3.51 in 1965 despite an 85 per cent increase in costs in Japan.

Increased automation isn't the solution for American steel market. This means a severe loss of jobs as well as a de-Japan, man-hours in American companies would have to be reduced two-thirds — a virtual impossibility.

Under the existing wage structure, Japan sells steel at approximately $40 a ton less than American steel companies can market their products. Prior to 1959, the United States was a consistent net exporter of steel. By 1968, foreign steel companies sold more than 18 million tons in the American market. This means a severe loss of jobs as well as a decline in corporate income.

Family shares interest in traditional dancing

BY JANIE BANNER

An inborn ability and fondness for traditional Mexican, Spanish and Flamenco dancing spurred Mrs. Gus Gonzales to learning more about each, regardless of her father's objections when she was small.

"I always wanted to be a dance teacher but couldn't practice or take lessons until I was married and away from home." Gloria (better known as G G) took piano lessons when she was eight from a teacher who also taught dancing. The annual recitals were a combination of piano playing and dancing and were rather large affairs.

"I enjoyed them so much and just took the piano lessons so I could watch and learn dancing too," she said. "I really liked it and it came natural for me. I never have taken a lesson."

Her 12-year-old sister-in-law from Corpus Christi, who has been taking private lessons for six years, "is really a good dancer for her age" and dances for all types of programs and assemblies, said Gloria.

Following each lesson she shows Gloria the new steps she has learned. In turn, Gloria sews all her costumes and has made three for herself.

When asked, Gloria is happy to dance for friends at parties and at school and other public gatherings.

"Larger cities don't seem as opportune a place for this kind of dancing because so many people are around to do it," she said. "But in Hereford it's something different and people seem to enjoy it immensely."

Mrs. Gonzales prefers dancing for small-fry audiences because they seem to get so much satisfaction from it. Probably the most fascinating for children is the sound of the casanets she uses to accompany herself as she dances.

One casanet is held in each hand and is a rhythmic instrument. It makes a clackety-clack sound and blends in with the music and tap of her shoes.

The Gonzales' five-year-old daughter Cathy dances "by sight" just as her mother and at times joins her in dancing before crowds.

Cindy, four, takes ballet and tap dancing lessons but is not as interested in the traditional dancing as her sister and is quite shy.

"Cathy just has it in her," says her mother. "She knows the music, when to turn and when to go down. She'll dance for anyone who asks and isn't shy at all."

"We hope she will keep her enthusiasm and teach dancing someday."

"She never plays with dolls or other toys but would rather dance all day and into the night," Mrs. Gonzales smiled. "She always has her record player going."

Gonzales dances only polkas and slow dances. "He's an outdoorsman and highly approves of his daughters' interest in dancing. He's a real good audience," said his wife.

He is Federal Meat Inspector at Wilsons and Caviness Packing Plants for the Agricultural Department of the U. S. Government.

Gloria is a licensed vocational nurse at Deaf Smith County

Senior voice recital presented by student

Randy Jorde, baritone, was presented in senior recital Wednesday evening by his voice teacher, Mrs. Dolson Plamer, with members of his family and other guests invited to her home. A graduate this spring from Hereford High School, Jorde is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Jorde, 148 Mimosa. He has been a member of HHS A Cappella Choir three years, and was a soloist in the UIL district music contests at West Texas State University three years.

With his family, he left this week for his father's farm in North Dakota where he will work this summer. He plans to study at either North Dakota State University or WTSU next year. Out of school, his special interest is bowling and he is a member of the Major Bowling League and the City Traveling League.

Songs from the musical stage as well as popular and standard selections for baritone voices made up his recital program. He sang first I Shall Not Pass Again (Effinger), Vittoria, mio core! (Carissimi) and Cuando Callenta el Sol (Rigual).

In the second group of songs were He (Richards), the popular Born Free, the Exodus Song (Gold) and The Impossible Dream from the musical, Man of La Mancha. A third group included Pale Moon, The Vagabond, Water Boy and a humorous Hop-Li the Rickshaw Man.

Jane Bezner is award recipient for second time

Jane Bezner was recipient of a Top O' Texas Chapter of the American Business Women's Association award Tuesday evening for the second time in two years.

The award was presented at a dinner of the Young Women's Christian Association of Amarillo.

Miss Bezner is an honor roll nursing student at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo and candidate for Kappa Theta Phi National Honor Society.

She is candidate for graduation next May. She graduated from Hereford High School in 1968.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Bezner.

Hospital. She has been in the profession for 10 years.

The Gonzales family resides at 206 Beach. They came to Hereford six months ago from San Antonio.

Miss Phipps is bride of David L. Huckert

The marriage of Miss Vicky Ann Phipps and David Louis Huckert, both students in South Plains College at Levelland, was solemnized in a late afternoon service in the Baptist Church at Welch, Friday, and the couple will be at home in Levelland after a honeymoon in Galveston.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donavan Phipps of Welch and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Huckert of Summerfield.

An arch of green foliage with candelabra tied with yellow bows set on either side, made a background for the wedding party as the Rev. J. R. Williams, pastor of the church, conducted the ceremony. Yellow bows marked special pews for parents of the couple.

Miss Mary Ellen Goode of Welch was maid of honor and Miss Ellen Herington of Farwell the bridesmaid, while the bridegroom's attendants were his brothers, Joe Frank Huckert as best man and Bob Huckert as groomsman.

Ushers were Glenn Phipps, brother of the bride, and Kenneth Mitchell of Denver City. Other brothers, Ted and Ben Phipps, lighted candles before the processional, which was to music by Mrs. Dorman Kinard of Lamesa, organist.

Ben Gollehon sang the solos, More, One Hand One Heart and The Lord's Prayer.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white linen gown, designed by her mother, its panel seams accented with bands of lace and more of the lace used on the chiffon lantern sleeves.

The portrait neckline allowed to advantage a cameo necklace which had belonged to her paternal great-grandmother. Her illusion veil, which lengthened into a chapel train, was held to her blonde hair by beaded lace pearls. She carried a cluster of yellow and white daisies with a bridal Bible.

Her attendants' dresses were fashioned like the bride's, of yellow dotted Swiss with white daisy trim along the seams and on the short sleeves. They wore wide-brimmed white crocheted straw hats and carried baskets of daisies.

The couple greeted guests at a reception in the church fellowship hall. Miss DeeAnn Phillips of Lamesa was at the registry.

Miss Gwin Lewis of Morton served the three-tiered wedding cake while Miss Patsy Henson of Welch poured punch. Mes. A. C. Goode, Bill Harp and J. C. Paige assisted. White and yellow spring flowers centered the ecru lace cloth on the table.

For travel Mrs. Huckert wore a brown and white pantsuit costume and a corsage from her

When the Pittsburgh Pirates traded Matty Alou to the St. Louis Cardinals last January they dealt off their best run producer of 1970. Alou figured in the scoring of 143 runs.

Ron Hunt, traded by the San Francisco Giants to Montreal, figures to help the Expos score more runs than they got last year. Hunt accounted for 185 runs for the Giants in 1970.

Weed control in beets continues

The use of Treflan and Eptam at thinning time offers the best weed control in sugar beets in West Texas, according to research studies over the past seven years. However, mechanical equipment still does the best job of controlling careless weeds in young beets.

Both Treflan and Eptam can be applied over the top of the crop, reports Dr. Allen Wiese, weed control scientist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Bushland. However, these herbicides must be incorporated into the soil to be effective.

Eptam is volatile and must be applied and incorporated in the same operation. It is a short residual herbicide and two applications may be required to keep the field weed-free during the rest of the growing season.

On the other hand, Treflan will control weeds for the remainder of the season, adds Wiese. Since the herbicide has a longer residual effect, sorghum planting next year in the same field should be delayed until May 15.

A new postemergence herbicide, Betanal, has been tested for two years and has given good control of both small grass weeds and careless weeds in young sugar beets (two-to-three-leaf stage). Preplant application of Ro-Neet may help control volunteer sorghum that emerges with the beets.

According to Wiese, herbicides applied and incorporated prior to planting and irrigation have not given satisfactory weed control. However, some weed control has been obtained with preplant incorporated herbicides applied after April 15. Warmer weather apparently increased the toxicity of some of these herbicides to weeds.

Preemergence application of herbicides after planting without incorporation has also been ineffective in controlling weeds.

Since sugar beets in this area are furrow irrigated for emergence, weeds germinate while herbicides remain useless on the soil surface.

About 50 herbicides have been tested since 1964 for controlling emerged weeds in young sugar beets, explains Wiese. None of these have proved completely satisfactory although Betanal looks promising for supplementing mechanical weed control methods.

Most of the weed control research in sugar beets during the past four years has been at the Holly Sugar Co. farm at Hereford in cooperation with Agronomist Paul Scott, says Wiese.

Studies are presently underway to evaluate the effect of furrow or sprinkler irrigation on pre-plant herbicides. Other studies are designed to determine the feasibility of following preplant injected herbicides with a combination of postemergence herbicides and cultivation.

Additional tests will evaluate new postemergence herbicides at two stages of sugar beet and weed growth. A final experiment is designed to determine the earliest possible time to apply and incorporate Treflan and Eptam in emerged sugar beets. Results of all these studies will be available in late summer from the Holly Sugar Co. or the USDA Southwestern Great Plains Research Center at Bushland.

Mrs. Christopher Hutcherson
nee Glenda Champ

Newlyweds make home in Houston

After a Colorado honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Alfred Hutcherson are at home at 1500 Scharpe, Houston, where he is a senior music education major at the University of Houston. The bride was Miss Glenda Ann Champ before their recent marriage here.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Clark, Star Route, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kinda-father, 201 Ave. H.

The Rev. Eugene Brink, minister, officiated for the wedding in First Christian Church. Miss Veronica Gauthier of Nederland and Jim Haile were honor attendants.

Bridesmaids were Miss Celia Lyn Hutcherson, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Dennis Downey of Lubbock and Miss Patricia Carrigan of Canyon; groomsmen were Dale Dempsey of Lake Jackson, Lonnie Cox of Pasadena and Bill Laycher of Houston.

Ben Gollehon, vocal soloist,

Travel talk is class program

A personal view of the Holy Land was given, and pictures and mementoes were shown by Mrs. Martha Davies, guest speaker to Bethany Class of First Baptist Sunday school Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Mike West was hostess in her home for a bring-a-dish luncheon and the program.

Mrs. Davies, a resident of Kings Manor, is a former missionary in foreign fields.

Members at the meeting were Mrs. J. V. Pickens, H. J. Robertson, E. B. Moseley, J. T. Gilbreath, C. J. Mountz, O. G. Smith, W. W. Hill, T. W. Robertson, J. J. Buckner, Ky Higgins, A. O. Thompson and Miss Thornton Shirley.

Needle club has lunch, quilting

Quilting occupied members of Mothers Needle Club at a recent meeting in the home of Mrs. W. H. Awtrey Sr., and during the afternoon the group finished a quilt for the hostess. A covered dish lunch was served at noon.

Two guests, Mrs. Roy Boyd and Mrs. Velma Kerkingdol, were present with Mrs. Adam Flowers, Annie Springer, W. T. Gunstenson, Haskell Eenson, C. N. McClure, J. L. Shirley and Cordie Battey.

and James Willis of Galveston, organist, presented the wedding music.

The bride wore a Chantilly lace gown with sculptured bodice, slightly puffed sleeves and skirt formed of lace tiers, with train. Pearl-edged lace petals held her shoulder veil. She carried a nosegay of white roses and lavender babybreath.

Her attendants were dressed in lavender lace over purple satin and their nosegays were tied with streamers in the two colors.

At the reception in the church fellowship hall, Misses Charlene Fadenrecht of Greeley, Colo. and Susan McKellar of Wichita, Kan. served the wedding cake and punch. Miss Patty Herman of Flagler, Colo. registered guests.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hutcherson are Hereford High School graduates and she attended West Texas State University the past term.

Out-of-city wedding guests included the bridegroom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Morris and Mrs. Ida Hutcherson of Memphis.

FIGHTING MAVERICK — Jim Marsh, freshman student at La Plata Junior High School, received the Fighting Maverick Award as the outstanding athlete for the school year.

Tech offers beginner course in the piano

LUBBOCK—For those who have always wanted to play the piano but lack the necessary skills, Texas Tech's Department of Music is offering a beginners course during the first summer session tailored especially to their needs.

The six-week course featuring the McClintock method of instruction for non-musicians will be taught by Miss Lorene McClintock of New York City, originator of the system and author of a three-volume manual used in the structured program.

Applicants may sign up for the one-hour credit course, Applied Music 1123, during regular registration, May 31-June 1. The class will meet from 1 to 2:30 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday, beginning June 2.

This is the first time such a course has been made available to non-music majors, said Dr. Thomas Mastroianni, head of the piano division at Tech. "It is unique in its approach to group teaching and offers a challenging opportunity for those who wish to learn piano for personal enjoyment."

By the end of the course, participants should be able to play simple melodies and chord accompaniments, he said.

Miss McClintock, who has been teaching in New York City for a number of years, is a native of Slaton and earned her degree at Southern Methodist University. She is the author of several books on piano techniques and her work has received the endorsement of several leading educators, including the musician-composer Howard Hanson, director of the Institute

Former resident heads faculty at N.C. university

Dr. Ray L. Graham, a professor of mathematics at Appalachian State University since 1963, has been named chairman of the 20-member mathematics faculty here.

Graham attended Hereford High School.

Appalachian president Dr. Herbert Wey cited Graham's administrative capabilities and his excellent rapport with fellow faculty members as reasons for his appointment.

Dr. Graham served as acting chairman of the department during 1969-70. He is a graduate of West Texas State University and he received advanced degrees in mathematics from New Mexico State.

He holds membership in the Mathematical Assoc. of America and in the N. C. Teachers of Mathematics. He has published the results of research in technical journals at White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico.

Graham was born in Hale County, Texas, and is married to the former Laura Smith of Canyon, Texas. Their three sons are Kelly, Kyle and Kent. The Grahams live at Rt. 1, Blowing Rock.

Pocahontas married John Rolfe.
