

American Legion celebration is set for Tuesday

The Hereford Post No. 192 of the American Legion has cause for a double celebration Tuesday.

Tuesday marks the 52nd anniversary of the founding of the American Legion and the highlight of the celebration will be another celebration of the burning of the mortgage on the Legion's building.

The local American Legion Post was organized in October of 1929. Dr. D. K. Robinson was the first commander and the meetings were held in the courthouse then later moved to the city hall.

Shortly after World War II, war surplus barracks were purchased and used as the Post home until 1967 when the new modern metal building was erected on New York Street, just inside Veteran's Park.

The meeting, which will begin at 7:30 p. m. in the Legion Home, will have as its guest speaker, Jack W. Flynn, National Executive Committeeman Department of Texas. Other Legion guests expected are Department Vice-Commander Bill Brady of Claude, and 18th District Commander Dennis Holland of Dodson.

American Legion Auxiliary guests expected are Kathryn Webster, 18th District president, Mrs. Dennis Holland, 18th District vice-president, Mrs. Jack W. Flynn, past department president and Mrs. Sam Williams, past 18th District president from Friona.

Mrs. Ira Ott, department vice president, 4th Division, of Hereford, also will be present.

A special invitation has been extended by post commander

Ben Childers and Auxiliary president Mrs. E. L. Vance to all charter members, past commanders and presidents and Gold Star member or mothers.

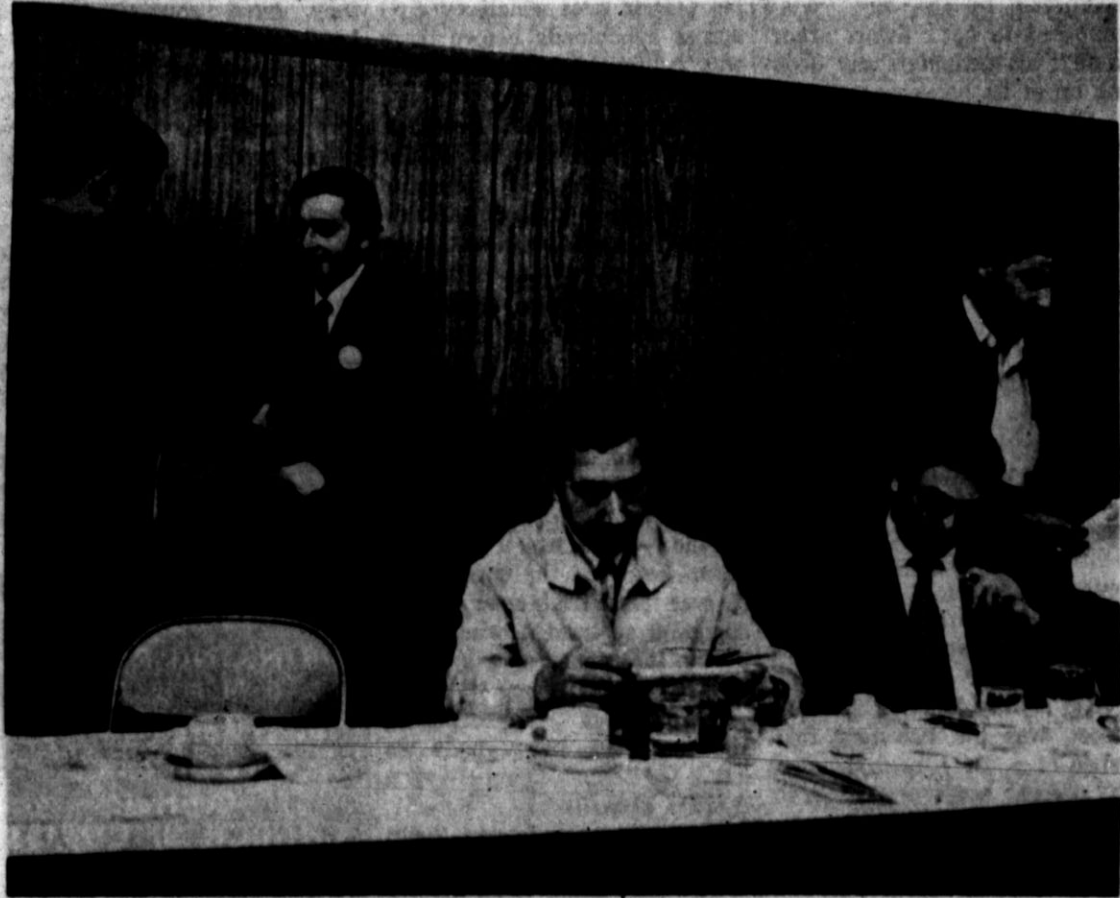

Food for the dinner will be furnished by the American Legion and will be prepared by members of the Auxiliary.

Cattlemen's woes aired

The ease with which 20th century cattle rustlers have gone about their evil deeds may well be over.

Cattle raisers in a five-county area — Deaf Smith, Castro, Farmer, Oldham and Randall will be getting together in the next few weeks to discuss the rising rustling problem and try to come up with a feasible brand law that can be enforced in the Panhandle area.

Some 100 area cattlemen met with local and area law enforcement and cattle officers Thursday where plans were laid to come up with a 15-man committee to look into these and other problems facing cattle raisers in the Panhandle.

Deaf Smith County sheriff Travis McPherson, who called the meeting, was appointed to contact the sheriff's offices in the surrounding four counties and have them appoint three men to represent their county on the 15-man study committee.

The three men from each of the five counties are to be well informed in one of three areas — feedlot, packing or pasturing.

"I couldn't appreciate the cattlemen's problems until the recent snow storm, but now, all of us realize the problems facing you," McPherson told the cattlemen.

Shipping regulations passed for laws is there is no penalty if you break the law.

"Things are different in New Mexico," he said. "There no one can have the same brand, you can't move cattle without the permission of the state brand inspector and if you do have cattle and don't have a bill of sale for them and they are not wearing your brand, you face a very stiff penalty."

"From what I can see of our problem, we've got to start somewhere so it might just as well be here — a type of American Revolution to get something done in this area," he said. "We need to get some general ideas together and maybe think about approaching the problems from a local option basis."

Deaf Smith County attorney Andy Shuval, county attorney, presented the legal aspects of trying to get brand laws and shipping regulations passed for laws is there is no penalty if you break the law.

He explained that permissive statutes allow a person to put "county" brands on their animals, such as DS for Deaf Smith but the problem there lies in that if the animals are moved to another county, the brand must be changed. If this happens very often, he said, a cattlemen has an animal with brands all over it.

Shuval said another thing wrong with the Texas brand laws is there is no penalty if you break the law.

Emmett Duke, former deputy sheriff here and presently with the New Mexico State Brand Inspectors office, gave a detailed outline of the procedures of the laws in that state and presented several recommendations to the cattlemen.

He said in New Mexico brand system was established in 1885, almost 25 years before New Mexico even became a state. The system was set up where the governor appoints a six-man board. From those six men a director is named who runs the entire operation.

The state is divided into districts with each district supervised by an inspector and his deputies.

"When cattle are to be moved, a state inspector must be notified 24 hours in advance before the cattle can actually be moved," Duke said.

Under the New Mexico laws, cattle can be transported within the boundaries of a district, without notifying an inspector, but any time they are to be moved out of their registered district, an inspector must be notified.

The state board is financed primarily by costs assessed the owners for the inspection of their cattle. The cost in New Mexico is set at 15 cents a head.

Absentee balloting to begin this week

Registered voters in Deaf Smith County can get their writing hands limbered up beginning Monday if they plan to be out of town on election days and wish to vote absentee.

Absentee voting begins Monday in three of the four elections that are to be conducted in early April. The Hereford Independent School District, along with the Walcott Independent School District and the County School Board, will begin their absentee voting Monday. Absentee voting in each of these three elections will end on March 30 with the elections to be April 3.

Absentee voting in the Hereford school board election will be at the tax office at 323 N. Sampson, and for the Walcott school board and county school board, absentee voting will be done at the county clerk's office in the courthouse.

Up for reelection to the Hereford school board are Dr. A. T. Mims and Hilery Aven who are both unopposed for their posts.

The county school board election will be for Robert Strain for Precinct 1, Grant Hanna for Precinct 2 and L. J. Straffus for Precinct 4. All three of these men are running unopposed.

In the Walcott Independent School Board of trustees election, four men are seeking the three offices that are up for grabs. Incumbents Earnest Brown, Richard Fortenberry and Buel Monroe are seeking reelection and Bill White is seeking his first term.

Those who vote in the Walcott Independent School board of trustees election must reside within the boundaries of the school district.

The only other election where voters will cast their ballots is the city election which is scheduled April 6 at the Community Center.

The mayor's office, along with two commissioners' posts, were up for the voters this year and all members of the board have filed for reelection with the exception of Troy Carmichael who has served as commissioner, Place 1.

Arthur Manjeot services held

Funeral services for Arthur Lloyd Manjeot, 74, of 303 Westhaven, resident of Hereford since 1920, were conducted Saturday morning in First Baptist Church, of which he was a member.

Dr. Gerald Mann, pastor, was assisted by Dr. A. Hope Owen of Lubbock, retired Baptist pastor, in conducting the service. Burial was in West Park Cemetery, directed by Gilliland Funeral Home.

Mr. Manjeot, a grain elevator manager for many years, died in a local hospital early Thursday after a long illness. His family has asked that memorial contributions be made to Boys Ranch.

A native of Kansas, he was born Feb. 5, 1897 at Spivey, and came to Texas in 1920, living in Floydada a short time before moving to Hereford.

Registration for students who will be enrolled in Hereford High School next year will be conducted at both junior high schools and the high school during the next two weeks.

Wilma Braddy, high school counselor, said all next year sophomores will be registered individually at each junior high school beginning this week.

Motorcycle riders from throughout the area converged on Hereford last weekend to participate in Hereford's first Sportsman Moto-Cross races.

The races, sponsored by the Hereford Motorcycle Association, drew entries from Canyon, Amarillo, Friona and other area towns.

Winners in the 9-100 cc class were Mike Ellis of Friona, followed by Jon Birdsong of Hereford, Mike Suatall of Canyon and Randy Lyles of Canyon.

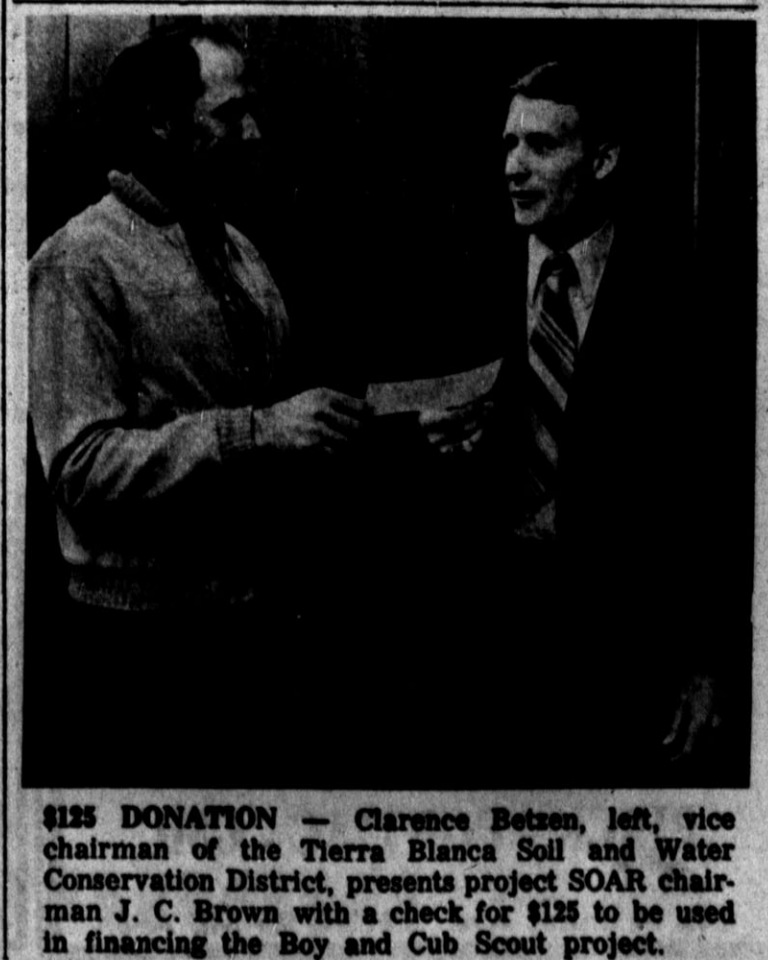

In the 101-175 cc class, Lonnie Cardinal of Hereford took first followed by Wayne Woodward, James Keese and Fred Morris, all of Hereford.

Student sign-up planned

Registration for students who will be enrolled in Hereford High School next year will be conducted at both junior high schools and the high school during the next two weeks.

Wilma Braddy, high school counselor, said all next year sophomores will be registered individually at each junior high school beginning this week.

Orientation for next year's juniors will be March 22 at 8:30 a. m. in the high school auditorium, and senior orientation will be Friday, March 19, also in the high school auditorium.

Workshop set on alcoholism

Two well-known speakers and workers in the field of alcoholism will present a workshop Thursday at the First Christian Church entitled "Everything You've Wanted to Know About Alcoholism — But Were Afraid to Ask."

Dr. F. E. "Gene" Seale, M.D., admitting physician at San Antonio State Hospital, and George V. Clark, consultant with the Texas Rehabilitation Commission in Austin, will conduct the workshop.

The program is being sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Council on Alcoholism.

The Texas Commission on Alcoholism also has indicated it will have a consultant in Hereford for the workshop. Representatives of the commission said they would be unable, however, to indicate who it would be at this time.

The workshop will be in three sessions. The first will be from 9 a. m. to 12 noon, the second from 2 to 5 p. m. and the third from 7 to 9 p. m.

It is designed so people may attend the whole workshop or only part of it and still benefit. In the morning and afternoon sessions, three different areas will be discussed simultaneously and many of the activities will be repeated throughout the day.

There is no fee or charge for attending the workshop. Everyone is invited to attend.

SOAR project gets SCS aid

The Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District last week donated $125 to the local Boy and Cub Scout organization to help finance its five-year "Save Our American Resources" (SOAR) project.

Clarence Betzen, vice chairman of the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District, presented the money to J. C. Brown, county chairman for project SOAR.

"This money will go toward the needed information items such as films, slides and tables that will be necessary to push this project," Brown said.

Project SOAR is a part of the five-year, long-range plan of "BOYPOWER 76" which is comprised of various good deeds that will be done by Boy and Cub Scouts across the nation.

"The money will also be used to purchase awards that will be presented to boys and packs and troops that carry out outstanding activities under the project. In other words, if a group of boys undertake a project to clean up a particular street, plant trees or grass and so forth, if they qualify for an award, this is where the money will be spent," Brown said.

The purpose of project SOAR is to motivate action programs that will help improve the environment and to focus public attention on problem areas and create a concern for environmental betterment.

Brown said the project will help boys develop an understanding of the vital importance of natural resources to themselves and their country with an emphasis on community improvement through conservation projects. The projects, he said, will be based on the needs of natural resources of each urban, suburban, or rural community and will lead themselves to boy participation in such areas as anti-air and water pollution, litter prevention and waste disposal and recycling.

Sisters living in house owned by family 65 years

STREET OF MEMORIES — Still residents of the house on East Fourth where they came with their parents from Denton County in 1906, Mrs. Essie Cardwell and Miss Mary Brown remember the street as it looked in the upper photo. At right is the house occupied by Dr. G. F. LeGrand and next to is the Bourn home, with cupola since removed. Lower photo is of the house today, with 60-year-old arborvitae tree in foreground and, center back, the utility room wing added about 1954.

By SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

A HOUSE occupied by the same family since 1906 is still the home of Mrs. Essie Cardwell and her sister, Miss Mary Bourn, at 711 East Fourth.

Remodeling and addition of a new wing have changed the house on the outside, but it has the same spacious, high-ceilinged rooms and carved woodwork inside. Most noticeable change was the removal of a cupola over the entrance hall, made necessary in the 1930's when the roof began to leak.

When the J. D. Bourn family came to Hereford from Denton County in February, 1906, they bought the house from Will Evans, "and it wasn't very old then," Mrs. Cardwell says. Evans, who had the house built, was the son of S. S. Evans, pioneer of the area who originally owned the land.

That part of Hereford is still called the Evans Addition. The elder Evans was known to old-timers as Sam-Sam, Mrs. Cardwell remembers, because his name was Sam and he had the double initials.

AN OLD photograph owned by Mrs. Henry Neely, not dated but with a note that it shows a scene on "Missouri Ave.," pictures the house and its neighbors much as they looked when the Bourn family came here, although Mrs. Cardwell says the street was no longer called Missouri Ave.

Several of the houses are still there, but have been remodeled. Also, the street has been paved for many years; young trees in the picture have grown tall; windmills in every yard have been removed, as have the neat fences around the front yards.

Among the trees are several at the Bourn place, a huge arborvitae in the front yard which was one of a group planted by the late J. D. Bourn 60 years ago and a backyard pecan tree from a seed he planted. The evergreen, by the way, "was supposed to be a dwarf arborvitae," his daughters say, looking up at its housetop height.

IF THE BOURN family ever needed a doctor, there were plenty in their neighborhood. Across the street east was the home which Dr. Houser built and occupied for a time, then Dr. G. F. LeGrand bought and added to. It now belongs to Mrs. J. W. Kirby.

On another corner, across to the north, Dr. J. W. Hicks lived. The house there was later moved to another location on East Fourth, remodeled, and has been the home of the W.C. Quattlebaums for a number of years. Replacing it is a newer house, now the home of Miss Vida Hicks, daughter of the pioneer doctor.

Also nearby but not on this street, was the two-story residence of a Dr. Johnson, near the present home of Mrs. W.E. Dameron.

Next door west of the Bourn house was one built by Reese Hough, now the home of Mrs. John P. Robinson, next a vacant lot where the Joe L. Hamilton home is now located. Across the street west and now occupied by the Justin McBrides is a house built by "Uncle Summy" Higgins and bought by G. R. Jowell, father of Mrs. Neely.

IN ADDITION to the two who still live here, the Bourn family included a third sister, Johnnie Mae, now Mrs. Fred Fuqua of Amarillo, and a brother, Bill Bourn. After her husband's death in 1912, Mrs. Bourn continued to live in the house until she died in 1959.

Mrs. Cardwell taught a year in the Frio School near Hereford, and also at Wichita Falls, then after her marriage lived for a number of years in Kansas City. She came back to Hereford in 1933.

Mary Bourn, who was employed by an insurance firm, worked in its Kansas City office and then in Chicago when the headquarters were transferred there. She returned to the Panhandle because she disliked "those nine-month winters up there."

Snowstorms that stopped traffic in spite of constant work by city crews, and sidewalk paths shoveled out with snow head-high on either side were too common for her taste in the city to the north.

WEATHER on the Texas Plains caused the Bourns and other old-timers many uneasy moments, the sisters say.

"Things happened that we weren't used to, and we were panic-stricken," Miss Bourn explained as she told of one of the big prairie fires which swept across ranchlands before there was cultivated land to check them.

It was west of Hereford, fanned by a west wind, and it burned to within a mile of town before a shift in wind direction stopped the blazes, she says.

"Older boys were allowed to leave school to help fight that fire," she adds.

Soon after the family came from Denton, where the main fear was of tornadoes — and Mrs. Cardwell calls them "cyclones" as all the old timers did — there was a bad dust storm here and the entire family was much frightened as they supposed so hard a wind must be the forerunner of a cyclone.

"AND THERE were no storm cellars in this neighborhood," she continued. "Everybody we knew in Denton County had a cyclone cellar!"

That was a sandstorm "with dust so thick you couldn't see across the street" the sisters remember, and Miss Bourn talks of others which blew dust and grit into her face as she walked across town to Central School, then the only one in Hereford.

The sisters have seen much growth in the city including building of Deaf Smith County Hospital on land diagonally across from their home, and many homes and business houses to the east.

THEY HAVE kept their house in excellent condition, so the door and window facings with graceful carvings on the lintels, and the front door with its carved panels have their original look.

In keeping with the house, they have some furniture bought when they first came here, of solid oak and leather in the mission style popular before World War I, and a few pieces brought from East Texas.

One of those is a small walnut drop-leaf table of the sort to raise an antique collector's blood pressure. Handsomely polished, it graces the dining room where there is also a round oak dining table, but it wasn't always there.

"When we first came here, it was put in the kitchen to set the water-bucket on!" Miss Bourn confides.

M.D. CHATTER
Dollars and cents sense

By Mrs. Argen Draper
Home Demonstration Agent

"THIS MEETING could mean dollars to you, if you can or need to apply the principles to your estate planning," this opened the first session of the Estate Management course at the Hereford Community Center.

Thanks to all forms of mass media and news coverage, there were approximately 80 persons present who benefitted from facts, figures, and good teaching.

Wayne Thomas outlined some of the problems that arise from an estate being left without plans of distribution or a will. Wills are the product of the English speaking world; in the early civilizations the act of making a will was unknown. An amazing fact is that six out of 10 persons die intestate, meaning without a will.

USING the examples in our problem statement — John Messenger showed us that for this person's estate to be settled without a will would cost $17,200; with a will and using the same situation or problem statement it would cost $7,300 to settle the estate.

Herman Ford used the situation to show how all estates should have some liquidity to pay expenses and taxes without converting parts of the estate that would be good to keep intact. In Herman's summary he cited a four-legged stool for estate planning.

The four parts are: legal (see an attorney); financial (life insurance serves here); accounting (tax consultant or certified public accountant); management (trust officer).

THE FIRST question from the audience: Where should a person start in estate management? Life underwriter? Attorney? Trust officer? Tax consultant?

The answer: start where it is convenient but . . . it will take four specialists to help with the estate planning. Your lawyer can advise on legal matters and prepare your will. Your account-

L-774 Estate Planning; you were given this inventory sheet at the meeting. Questions may arise from the packet of seven leaflets you were given Thursday night; these questions will also be answered along with others.

IT'S THE time of year to check up on your finances, reminds Mrs. Doris Myers, Extension home management specialist at Texas A&M University.

Consider your answers to these questions. How am I doing financially? Is my income adequate to easily cover the costs of living? What financial shape would I be in if a large, unexpected bill popped up? Am I able to put funds aside regularly for long-range goals, such as a new house or retirement?

If these questions plague you, now is the time to sit down with the family and figure out where you stand financially, Mrs. Myers suggests.

FIRST list all your assets, using L-774 including cash on hand and cash in the bank and in savings accounts; securities, such as stocks and bonds; cash value of all life insurance policies, plus any dividends the policies may have accumulated the current market value of any real estate you own; the value of all personal property, such as your car, furniture, appliances, jewelry or sports equipment; and any other assets, such as a coin collection or the amount due on a personal loan.

Next list all your liabilities. Liabilities include the outstanding balance on a mortgage, installment debts and unpaid bills, such as utilities, charge accounts, credit card accounts, unpaid taxes or personal loans.

Add the total value of your assets, then add the total liabilities. Subtract the difference to find your net worth. The difference is the figure that shows what you would receive if you cashed in all your assets and paid all your debts.

The significant thing to plan for is what you will be worth a year from now, Mrs. Myers says. Unless you compute your net worth annually, you will never be able to know if you have made progress or not.

Some financial experts suggest that an average family with sound financial planning should show at least a 10 percent annual growth in personal net worth over a 10-year period.

Small talk

By SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

TABLE NEIGHBORS at the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division board lunch last week delighted me when they gave hearty (unofficial) endorsement to Mrs. Deward Robertson's remark (unofficial) that it would be great if the city fathers noticed how some of the trees in Dameron Park are dying, and take steps pronto to replace them before they are entirely gone.

This was not business taken up in the meeting, where the beautification committee had enough to think about for one time in making plans for this year's city cleanup. It was just conversation at our end of the table but it was about a matter that has me deeply concerned. Mmes. A. J. Schroeter, Stan Knox and John Blocker, seated nearby, spoke up at once to say they agreed, and we went ahead to discuss the loss of trees all over town.

THAT WAS in the 1920's and 30's, and that was when our presently biggest Chinese elms were set in Hereford as well as in other West Texas cities. Plain arithmetic tells you those first trees have lived their lives.

So it's time we make plans, not just to whack them down, but to replace them. If a tree is in any condition to save, I'm certainly in favor of keeping it and trying to make it live longer. But it's as well to face the fact that some of our finest shade trees will go each year.

As they go, there should be young trees already set to take their places in parks and public places, and on home grounds as well. Since it takes about 20 years to get a tree of most varieties up to a handsome size, it's already late to start, but not too late.

VISITORS TO Hereford often remark, "It's such a pretty town," and add in the next breath, "so many pretty trees." They are talking about the trees which have grown big, and shade the streets in older parts of the city. We aren't going to have those long if we don't do something about it now.

Of course many people hate Chinese elms and want to get rid of them all. I concede their bad qualities, especially their roots which run all over a lot, picking up water from flower beds, getting into sewer pipes and cracking foundations (but that's how they survive in droughts and grow fast, you know).

They are disliked enough that they probably won't be used to replace the dying trees, but there are other trees which make good shade and will grow here; just see your friendly neighborhood nurseryman and take your choice!

WHEN NADINE Wade went to a convention of the National Association of Bank Women last weekend at Midland, she was pleased to find a former Hereford resident on program. Welcome to the convention visitors from the Midland Chamber of Commerce was spoken by H. A. Tuck Jr., now public relations director of that organization. He is a former editor of the Hereford Brand.

Nadine, the only Bank Woman from Hereford at the meeting, says she got some good information and had a good time too. State Representative Delwin Jones of Lubbock talked of proposed legislation affecting banks, and there was a panel on consumer credit to give the information.

DPS looks into 7 accidents here

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated seven accidents on rural highways in Deaf Smith County during the month of February, according to Sgt. W. E. Wells, Highway Patrol supervisor for this area.

The rural traffic accident summary for the 40 counties of the Lubbock Department of Public Safety Region for February shows a total of 473 accidents resulting in 24 persons killed and 254 injured. This compares with February of last year when 404 accidents were investigated resulting in 23 persons killed and 181 injured.

Bippus members present three part program

A program presented by members of Bippus Home Demonstration Club touched three various areas of interest at a Wednesday afternoon meeting in the home of Mrs. C. F. Burke.

Mrs. Wayne Sifford presented the beginning program on cakes and cookies made with a master mix followed by Mrs. Jimmie Bradley's Vocational Skills topic.

Mrs. Bradley told of vocational courses offered and at what cost at Texas State Technical Institute in Amarillo.

Mrs. J. V. Perrin concluded with a display of crafts, tie-dyed articles, macrame or knotted belts, necklaces and wall items, and an explanation of chip carving.

Other members attending the covered dish luncheon were Mmes. John Hill, C. F. Homfeld, Argen Draper, Jack Fortenberry, G. V. Hall, Kenny Tolbert and Inman Larson.

Members will meet as hostesses for the Westgate birthday party April 7. Next regular meeting will be one week later, April 14, with Mrs. C. T. Douglas.

This time of year there are always a lot of aging trees hacked down and not replaced, and a lot of limbs lopped off other trees on the theory that a sharp cutback makes trees grow better. This year it seems even worse because there's no doubt many of the city's trees are dying.

It's been remarked for several years that the Chinese elm trees and most of the big trees in town are of that variety — have been hit hard by disease and insects. Those have taken their toll, and I'm sure the toll is larger simply because the trees are about old enough to die.

Bad as I may hate to admit it, I'm old enough to remember when Chinese elms were introduced to West Texas, strongly promoted because they grow fast and withstand droughts and high winds. But it was said also that they are not long-lived trees, like oaks or American elms, and something was said about 40-year lifetimes for the trees.

KIWANIS GUEST SPEAKER — Coach Larry Wartes presents Bill Krisher, former All-American football player at Midwest City, Okla., and Oklahoma University, a certificate of appreciation for acting as guest speaker at Kiwanis noon luncheon Thursday. Krisher, Southwest regional director of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, spoke concerning the organization of the FCA in Hereford. He also spoke at Hereford High School. Krisher played with the Pittsburgh Steelers, was captain of the 1960 Kansas City Chiefs and was named All-Pro offensive guard.

Westway club meets Thursday

Mrs. Andrew Kerben and Mrs. Bess Werner gave the Westway Home Demonstration Club program at the regular meeting Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. D. W. Dieter.

"College is not for everyone, thus vocational education is becoming more and more the answer to a person's future and career," they said.

Members attending were Mmes. Vernon Sherman, T. B. Thomas, Merlin Weber, Joe Lander, Albert Lamb and Agnes Buechler.

5 receive acclaim in sorghum group

Leroy Johnson, A. E. Hodges, Alfred Smith, Carl Strauss and A. J. Urbanczyk have been accorded national recognition as a member of Northrup King and Company's 1970 Carload Sorghum Club. The award is given in acknowledgment of his production achievement. The 1970 NK Carload Sorghum Club is made up of 667 sorghum growers from sixteen states. Their total production from more than 150,000 acres exceeded 2,750 carloads of grain — more than 550 million pounds. The 667 NK Carload Club growers averaged over 3,900 pounds of grain per acre — this exceeds the national production average by more than 1,000 pounds per acre. The purpose of the award program, NK officials explain, is to call attention to the fact that the new grain sorghum hybrids are rapidly becoming one of the nation's major grain crops. The annual-awards program recognizes the achievements of growers throughout the nation's sorghum belt and includes a national conference of top winners designed to stimulate an interchange of new ideas and techniques in sorghum production.

RABBI COMMENTS
LONDON — Religious leaders stand for the preservation of values and hence can never be as newsworthy as those who challenge them, said Dr. Immanuel Jakobovits, Chief Rabbi of the British Commonwealth, in an address about news media. The dilemma of the press, he said, was that the exceptional became the norm. "The quietly normal which ought to govern our way of life is not news," he said.

Jr. high schools get II ratings

Competing for the first time in regional music contests for school orchestras, the combined Stanton and La Plata Junior High orchestra received a rating of II in both concert playing and sight reading this week.

Charles Jones is director of the orchestra which is being built in Hereford schools, from a beginning only a few years ago. For the string section which is the basis of an orchestra, instruction began in elementary schools.

Now enough of the pupils have progressed to junior high that orchestras have been formed there, preparing for the time when the schools will have enough string players for a high school orchestra. Performers on other instruments are available through the school band program.

Ben Gollehon, school music coordinator, expressed satisfaction at the showing of the budding orchestra in its first contest, noting that it was competing in the region with long-established orchestras from larger cities.

Mark Waters
was a chain smoker.
Wonder who'll get his office?

Too bad about Mark. Kept hearing the same thing everyone does about lung cancer. But, like so many people, he kept right on smoking cigarettes. Must have thought, "been smoking all my life... what good'll it do to stop now?" Fact is, once you've stopped smoking, no matter how long you've smoked, the body begins to reverse the damage done by cigarettes, provided cancer or emphysema have not developed. Next time you reach for a cigarette, think of Mark. Then think of your office — and your home.

Silk saris show Indian culture

Mrs. Tom Kendrick and Mrs. Hazen Woods, wearing colorful, exquisite silk saris draped by Mrs. Gene Parsley, who grew up in India, illustrated the program on India at a Calliopean Study Club meeting hosted Thursday evening by Mrs. D.W. Palmer.

Mrs. Parsley, in her talk, said "Indian culture is one of the oldest and most consistent on earth. That culture has been a contemporary to almost all civilizations."

"It existed in the nascent form when the sun rose on Egypt's first kingdom in fourth century B. C.," she said.

Other members present were Mmes. Clyde Cave, C. J. Crump, Alton Fraser, J. T. Gilbreath Jr., Roy Grubbs, Sue James George Warner, Jack Wilcox, Ansel McDowell, Millard Nobles, Keith Simmers and Dale Furr.

Calliopean members will meet March 25 with Mrs. Wilcox at 205 Ranger Drive.

Camp Fire Girls begin 61st anniversary celebration today

Hereford Camp Fire Girl groups, commemorating the 61st anniversary of Founders Day March 17, will observe CF Week March 21-27 beginning with group attendance at the church of their choice wearing the Camp Fire costume.

Local CF and Blue Bird groups are encouraged to attend church today. Anyone having any questions is asked to phone Helen Cherry at 364-2088. Camp Fire Girls organization is composed of girls ranging from ages six through high school age, regardless of race or religion.

The youth-serving organization pioneers programs benefiting the girls in their preparation for realistic decision-making and assuming adult responsibilities.

The CF Law is: Worship God, seek beauty, give service, pursue knowledge, be trustworthy, hold on to health, glorify work and be happy.

Severe malnutrition of either the mother or her baby while in early stages of development has been found to be the cause of some mental retardation according to the National Society for Medical Research.

Music by pianist Stanley Potter, of the West Texas State University music faculty, entertained guests when Mr. and Mrs. Allen Cansler were hosts Thursday evening in their home, 833 Willow Lane.

Five couples were invited for a buffet dinner and the informal evening of music. Potter's selections included works of his favorite French composers, Ravel and Debussy, also of Bach and others. He talked about the music as he played, and answered questions of the hearers in pleasantly casual conversation.

Guests for the evening were Messrs. and Mmes. Buddy Bloomer, Tom Burdett, Mack Cansler and Bill Devers, also Mr. and Mrs. Terry Milligan of Canyon.

Potter, who was the hostess' piano teacher while she was a WTSU student majoring in music, has been on the faculty of the Canyon university since 1962 except for a year on leave while he studied in Paris.

A native of Tyler, he earned his undergraduate degree from North Texas State University and his masters at Michigan State, and is working now on his doctorate at the University of Texas. He studied in France with Yvonne Lefebvre, a teacher in the Paris Conservatory.

The young pianist had not been especially interested in French composers before his study abroad, he said, but developed enthusiasm as he studied "because the French approach to French music is different from the American."

While he was in the U. S. Army for a period of military service. Potter played in the Seventh Army Symphony in Germany.

He is to be presented in a faculty recital at WTSU near the end of the spring semester, probably in early May.

Prince Valiant
A SERIES OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: IN HIS DARKEST HOUR BLIND LUCK HAD LED PRINCE VALIANT TO MERLIN'S CAVE. THERE THE OLD PHILOSOPHER, LIONORS, HAD OPENED HIS EYES AND SET BEFORE HIM HIS GREATEST QUEST: THE SECOND WINNING OF QUEEN ALETA.

OUT OF THE WILD WELSH HILLS HE COMES, RIDING HARD, TO THE FULL EXTENT OF ARVAK'S GREAT STRENGTH. AT CAERLEON ON THE RIVER USK HE SEEKS OUT THE GOVERNOR OF THE PORT AND ASKS: "IS THERE A VESSEL IN PORT THAT CAN OVERTAKE THE SHIP OF GUNDAR HARL?"

"QUEEN ALETA SAILED ON HIS SHIP SOME WEEKS AGO AND I WOULD OVERTAKE IT," THE GOVERNOR FROWNS: "NO SHIP AND NO NAVIGATOR CAN MATCH GUNDAR HARL AT SEA."

"THESE ARE TRADING VESSELS. THEY HUG THE COAST AND MUST ANCHOR EACH NIGHT FOR FEAR OF ROCKS AND SHOALS IN THE DARKNESS. BUT GUNDAR HARL SAILS FAR OUT ON THE WIDE SEA, DAY AND NIGHT. HIS KNOWLEDGE OF THE STARS TELL HIM WHEN TO TURN IN TO THE LAND."

EACH DAY THE GULF BETWEEN THEM WIDENS. ONCE PRINCE VALIANT HAD FOLLOWED HER ACROSS WIDE OCEANS EVEN TO THE NEW WORLD.... WOULD HE DO SO AGAIN? OR IS JEALOUSY, PRIDE, MISUNDERSTANDING TO HOLD THEM APART FOREVER?

AND ABOUT THIS TIME VAL THUNDERS INTO CAMELOT.

HE HURRIES TO HIS RESIDENCE EXPECTING TO FIND IT EMPTY, BUT ARN LOOKS UP FROM HIS BOOKS AND GREET'S HIS FATHER. THEN HE STANDS SILENT AND HIS EYES GROW MOIST.

"IS SOMETHING WRONG, ARN? CAN YOU TELL ME?" ASKS VAL. "OH, FATHER, IS ALL HE CAN SAY AS TEARS RUN DOWN HIS CHEEKS."

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
Yesterday, I went with my mom to help work at a bazaar. While I was there, I saw some cute and very handy things that the women had made. Here is one:
This is how to make "sodas" last forever. Take a tall, clear glass, such as a soda glass, and fill it 3/4 full with any color bath crystals.
Now take a half-sphere of a styrofoam ball and cut it down or around to fit the glass you are using. Put this on top of the bath crystals in the glass.

Find some small flowers the same color as the crystals and stick them in the ball. You can use lily of the valley for white, lilac for purple, etc.
Be sure to cut the flowers off at the stem and stick them in the styrofoam so that the styrofoam doesn't show.
Just stick in a straw and there is your "soda"!
K. C.

the plants not only in place, but from floating around in the bowl.
Patty Age 13

DEAR AUNT HELOISE:

I have a goldfish bowl that looks quite plain without some plants in it. I went to the pet shop to buy some, but they were too expensive, so I am on an allowance. So I went to the dime store and bought a fake fern branch which was much cheaper.
I removed the cap from an empty flat-topped nail-polish container, took out the brush part and washed it.
I snipped off a bunch of small ferns from the artificial fern and pushed the stems down into the cap and arranged the fern to look like a bush. Then I "planted" the cap down into the gravel on the bottom of the fish bowl.
The cap and gravel keep

Any small cap from any liquid detergent bottle could be used, too.
You're a sweetie pie if I ever heard from one.
Aunt Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

This is for all the people who drink skim milk: I drink powdered milk because it's economical, but I do "doctor" it up just a little.
I put about seven ice cubes in my blender with almost a full cup of dry milk. Cover the cubes with water and a tablespoon of sugar and some vanilla. Blend this on your highest speed for ten seconds or so and WOW, skim milk was never so good.
Carol Van Roekel

GRATE IDEA!

DEAR HELOISE:
When I needed a trivet to put under a hot casserole on the table the other night—I used a COLD grate from the burner of my gas stove. Sure saves buying one and there is definitely no storage problem.
Dee

DEAR HELOISE:

Have you ever thought how much silver and gold is in the bottom of the Hudson River right in front of the Statue of Liberty?
On my last trip on the Staten Island Ferry I saw a lady toss her wedding ring overboard. I asked her why, and she said she was just divorced and it denoted freedom, and what better place was there to toss it.
Enlightened

DEAR HELOISE:

I am twelve years old and I came across an idea that I haven't seen anyone use yet. I bought one of those popular felt hats, you know, the ones with the large brim.

Well, I didn't have scarves to put around the crown part like I have seen people do with these hats. I started looking around for something else to use and lo and behold, I came across those yarn ties I use in my hair.
Bang! I put one of those around the hat instead of a scarf.
These can be changed to match your outfit, and if you wanted to you could even use two different colors of yarn together.
Amy Crews

UP TO THE ELBOWS!
DEAR HELOISE:
Have you had your beautiful sweaters wear out or become thin at the elbows? Now I cut a piece of nylon mesh hose and sew this to the inside of the sweater sleeve in the elbow area.
It doesn't show and helps keep the sweater wearable much longer.
Charlotte Johnson

FOILED AGAIN!
DEAR HELOISE:
Have you ever tried to line a pan with aluminum foil? I often wind up with a crumpled mess.
I solved this problem by turning the pan upside down and covering the bottom of the pan. Then I simply turn the pan over and insert the liner I have made by following the contour of the bottom of the pan.
"Ange"

"Ange," you are a real angel for sharing your ideas with us.
Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I have a very unique and attractive pincushion that hangs on my bedroom wall. I just took a round throw pillow (I used a brocade one), sewed a small piece of ribbon on it and hung it on a nail on the wall.
I stick all my costume-jewelry pins in this cushion and also use old hat pins to hold my rings. I put the hat pins in slantwise with the head of the pin pointing up.

Makes a handy holder for my jewelry and sure beats digging in my jewelry case for these items.
Dona

DEAR HELOISE:
When a lady in our neighborhood takes her small white poodle for a walk she carries a small plastic bag and a play shovel to clean up after her dog.
Many owners have picked up the idea, and all the neighbors really appreciate their clean yards.
Mrs. R. Ross

DEAR HELOISE:
When my baby girl, Becky, outgrew her frilly waterproof pants I wanted to buy her some more, but hated to spend the money.
I solved this problem when I found a package of regular ruffled panties for less than the frilly waterproof ones. There were three in the package and in different colors.
What I do is put her plain rubber pants on, then put the regular frilly pants on top.
Mrs. Judith King

DEAR HELOISE:
I have a very unique and attractive pincushion that hangs on my bedroom wall. I just took a round throw pillow (I used a brocade one), sewed a small piece of ribbon on it and hung it on a nail on the wall.

Money Madness

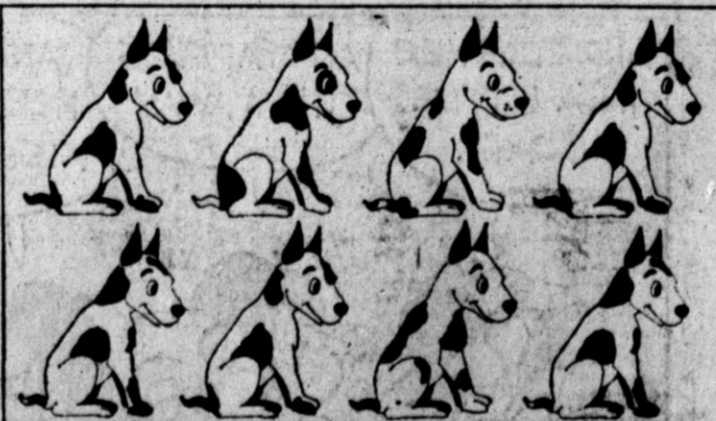

DOUBLING money is an easy stunt for a magician, as shown above. First, the performer shows a coin resting on the first two fingers of his hand (1). Then, with a sudden twist, his open palm shows two coins (2). To accomplish this, the performer uses a second coin hidden between his fingers (inset). In the rapid movement of the hand, the invisible coin shifts to the palm, joining its conspicuous counterpart there.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS WEEK MARCH 21-27

FOUNDERS DAY, March 17, and National Camp Fire Week, March 21-27, are celebrated each year with special programs and activities in the Hereford Camp Fire program. Older girls in Horizon Clubs and younger girls in Bluebird groups join Camp Fire Girls in elementary and junior high age groups to observe the anniversary. A sampling of the many activities carried on throughout the year by scores of girls and their leaders in the local program, was photographed by Betty Koelzer of the Brand staff.

NEW TITLE is carried by these three girls from the Horizon Club, the Camp Fire organization for high school age. They have recently been made members of the local Camp Fire board of directors, the first girls ever included in that adult group which has the responsibility of overall direction of the program in this county. Looking over material at the official Camp Fire supply shop at Gaston's store are, from left, Angela Grubbs, Holly Young and Jeannie Coffin. Also a board member is Carolyn Langley.

TORCH BEARER RANK, highest for Camp Fire girls, is the aim of these girls from Wa-Tah-Ni-Ki junior high group. A child care course, one of the requirements, is being explored by Grace Valdez, Helen Lesly, Debra Jones, Cathy Walker and Tamra Hagans. Mrs. Robert Holman is their group leader with Mrs. Luther Lesly as assistant.

Musical comedy review and songs to be heard

Big city or small town, audiences all over Texas and in other states have acclaimed Mary Allen Vincent's singing reviews of hit musical comedies, like the one of "I Do, I Do" which she will give Thursday evening in First Baptist Fellowship Hall.

"You can't categorize audiences; sometimes the small town audience is more sophisticated than a city audience," the vivacious entertainer is quoted. Her reviews are of shows which have been widely popular.

L'Allegra Club members, who are bringing Mrs. Vincent and piano accompanist Ray Plagens here, believe residents of this area will fully appreciate the program, which they are sponsoring as a worthwhile live entertainment rather than as a money-making project.

Mrs. Vincent, who originated the review-with-songs which has pleased audiences at country clubs, women's groups and conventions in the Dallas-Fort Worth area since her first in 1962, has been in demand for many return programs.

Cities where she has been heard include Temple, Wichita Falls, Breckenridge, McKinney, Galveston, San Antonio, Salado and Abilene in Texas, also Nashville and Denver.

The first musical comedy she adapted for her reviews was The Unsinkable Molly Brown, before she had ever seen that show. Its success launched her into the series of shows which has included Mame, Fiddler on the Roof, Wildcat and South Pacific.

From occasional appearances, she has progressed to the point where she books shows a year in advance and sometimes does two or three performances a day.

The show she will review here was described after she presented it for Temple Country Club as "a wonderfully warm and humorous dialogue on those ripplings of rapport which make marriage worthwhile."

The wife of Glen Vincent, whom she married a few years after the death of her first husband, Glenn Allen, she is the mother of two sons, Bill and Tommy Allen.

Jacki Brownlow shower honoree

Miss Jacki Val Brownlow, bride-elect of Kelly Tyler, was honored at a shower Friday afternoon in Hereford Country Club. The couple will be married in an evening ceremony April 9 in Avenue Baptist Church.

The courtesy was hosted by Mmes. Palmer Norton, Nathan Hopson, Paul Harvey, Jim Lookingbill, Donald Nielsen, Mack Ragsdale, Lon Morton, R. M. Mason, J. D. Gilbert, Gerald Wilson, Jerry Landers and Billy Wall.

Also Mmes. Johnny Town-

Guests were received by the honoree, her mother, Mrs. James Brownlow, and her fiancée's mother, Mrs. N. E. Tyler. Yellow and white daisy corsages were worn by members of the houseparty.

Mrs. Robert Baum registered guests who were served refreshments by Mrs. Coy Riegin, Mrs. Johnny Trotter, and Misses Nelda Norton and Lori Hopson.

A silver tea service, silver epergne with burning yellow tapers and an arrangement of yellow and white daisies centered the serving table which was covered with a yellow cloth and overlaid with white netting. Cake squares brought out the Civic Beauty is a civic duty. There wards of the gardener, who plants, grows, shares adds beauty to the home town, and seeks to create an attractive landscape, brings many rewards to the person or persons who seek to do this. What are your plans for the coming growing season?

I hope that you have planned to use some of the new friends (New All-America Introductions) (which we have recently made the acquaintance of through reading, and our column.

So many intriguing names, descriptions and outstanding qualities of all of these have been included in the introductions of our new garden friends.

Usually in making out a list of planned plantings, the gardener selects roses. It is our wish that the following article, "ROSES," written by Dr. H. H. Lanford, will be helpful in your selections and planting of roses. He writes the Lancaster Garden Center newsletter, Has written it well. Is simple, yet plainly written, and the amateur gardener can follow the directions and be a successful rose gardener.

Have seen many bare root roses on the markets. These can be planted now. Use care and select the very best quality of plants.

A good rose for planting should have at least three well established and strong canes. Select named varieties, and some of those recommended for our area.

ROSES
(By Dr. H. H. Lanford, writing for the Lancaster Garden Center newsletter.)

Anyone can grow roses. The most common error made by many gardeners is to attempt to grow too many varieties put out too many plants. Given careful attention, 10 well chosen varieties will produce as many flowers as 50 poorly-tended plants.

There are many different types of roses but the most popular types are the Hybrid Tea, Floribunda, and Grandifloras — bride-elect's chosen colors.

For the afternoon Miss Brownlow wore a black and white tunic-style plaid dress with white accessories.

also the Climbers.

Selection of a proper planting site is very important. Select a location in your garden where your plants will receive a minimum of 5 or 6 hours of sunlight each day. In our Texas, a location that is slightly shaded in the afternoon is ideal. We should not plant roses too close to trees or too near a fence which reflect the hot afternoon sun. But do give as much wind protection as possible, any well drained garden soil mixed with peat or other organic matter that is well fertilized will produce good roses. Prepare the rose bed well by spading to a depth of at least 12 inches and work in peat moss, leaf mold or other organic matter.

Dig the hole large enough so that the plant's roots can be spread out in a natural manner or spreading out like fingers of your hand. Build a mound of soil in the center of the hole and arrange the roots vertically, press down well around the plant to force out any air pockets in the soil mound. Cover the roots with top soil and tamp firmly. When the soil has been firmly tamped around the plant, water it thoroughly.

There will be a need to prune the roses after planting, and be sure very sure that the soil has been well tamped around the roots, this is very important.

The amount and kind of pruning varies with varieties and types of roses—no Fall pruning should be done. Spring pruning on Hybrid Teas and Floribundas should consist of the following: cut out all dead wood, remove all weak or spindly stems or canes, prune all canes about 34 inches from the ground. Hybrid Teas are pruned more severely than Floribundas. Apply a good fertilizer when the new growth is about 4 or 5 inches long then another application in about 8 weeks. Be sure the soil is moist before you put on fertilizer, NEVER apply fertilizer to dry soil.

Mulching your rose bed with peat moss, cottonseed hulls or some loose material is almost a MUST. Mulching saves water and is better than cultivating your rose bed.

Diseases and insects may attack your roses — the use of present day all purpose dusts and sprays containing combinations of fungicides and insecticides is a good preventive measure in controlling this. For insects a hard stream of water will wash them off and they seldom return.

The essentials for success with roses are proper planting, a well drained soil, plenty of water and a sunny (or partial sun) location. You should always select NUMBER ONE plants for your rose garden.

And remember that all our plants respond to loving care and attention.

TIPS — — — For a real breath of springtime loveliness, see the Daffodils which are in full bloom at the Post Office.

It is time now to dress and groom the iris, and give them a side dressing of your selected, well balanced fertilizer.

Have just received the Newest copy of "Handbook For Flower Shows" which includes information on many phases of gardening and Garden Club projects, etc. National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc. has done a marvelous job in this new edition. It is by far the largest book that they have edited for Garden Clubs and interested gardeners. Am eager to delve into its information, and some of the new instructions.

Ever be mindful that one of the best therapies is, Gardening. It affords rest or the incentive to the ambitious, and comfort to the broken-hearted.

Acreage measurements available to farmers

Acreage measurement service is now available from the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) Office.

Farmers signing up for the feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs — through April 9 — are encouraged to request the measurement service at the time they sign up. "When a farmer obtains measurement service from his County ASCS office, he is guaranteed he will be in compliance with the acreage requirements of the farm programs he has signed up for, if he stays within the measured and staked acreage," Frank Bezner, said Chairman of the Deaf Smith County ASCS Committee.

Producers may request acreage measurement for any farm program purpose, but almost all requests come from farmers who want to be certain of compliance in the seed grain, wheat, or cotton programs.

"This year, participants will want to be sure their set-aside acreage is correct," Bezner said. "Cotton producers also will want an exact measurement of the acreage planted to cotton, since the price-support payment is based on production per acre. Feed grain and wheat program participants may want the acreage of these crops measured if they are not certain they have planted enough acreage to maintain their base or allotment history."

Each producer should determine which acreages he will need measured.

When a farmer participates in the 1971 set-aside programs for wheat, feed grain, and cotton, he certifies to the required set-aside acreage on his farm, and lists the acreage planted to the program crops. He must also be certain that he has enough acres in conserving uses to meet his conserving base requirement. Errors in certification can result in reduction or loss of payments.

Increase seen in beet pay

Sugarbeet growers in the Texas-New Mexico area will receive an additional beet payment this spring averaging about $1.50 a ton on their 1970 crop. Holly Sugar Corporation president John B. Bunker announced.

Bunker recently announced that the highest returns in history per ton of sugarbeets were possible for the 1971 crop.

At that time, he stated that with improved sugar content, current sugar prices and recent market trends, cash returns to growers in excess of $18.50 a ton of beets is a real possibility.

Candy Howell places in race

Candy Howell of Hereford, a freshman at Eastern New Mexico University, placed fourth in the barrel race during the recent West Texas State University Intercollegiate Rodeo.

The Eastern New Mexico University rodeo team finished second behind Tarleton State College in the rodeo. Despite their second place finish, the Eastern team held on to its first place lead in the Southwest region of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association.

The competition before capacity crowds also saw the Eastern women grab first place and move into second place in the team standings in the region.

During the seminar the students were introduced to the eleven major buildings, the educational media, and the philosophy of the University, which is in its sixth year of operation with an enrollment of 1,033. The University is well known in academic circles for its innovations in the field of electronic teaching methods. It was the

Weed, brush control may become like 'mending fences'

Weeds and brush which choke Texas rangelands have the upper hand now, but control — which has long been feasible — will in time prove itself so economically advantageous that "it will become a practice just like mending fences."

Dr. Joseph L. Schuster, director of the Brush and Weed Control Research Project at Texas Tech University, made the prediction Tuesday (March 9) in reviewing more than 44 research projects conducted during the past year.

"Some leads are beginning to pay off," he said. "We're not about to eradicate brush in Texas, but the problem is beginning to look solvable — and that is progress."

"We've got a good start," Schuster said.

He made it clear that no one process will solve the problem, and researchers are looking at all possibilities to find the right combination of processes to match land and brush condition. Brush control research at Texas Tech. — supported by state funds — involves the faculty in five departments in the College of Agricultural Sciences, the Department of Biology in the College of Arts and Sciences and the Department of Food and Nutrition in the College of Home Economics. In addition, the last year's studies have included faculty at Abilene Christian College and cooperative work with the United States Forest Service in California. Research assistants are drawn from graduate student ranks.

The program covers innovative systems — for chemical, mechanical and biological control of brush and weeds. Extensive tests have been made in control by fire and insects. Studies have dealt with brush and wildlife relationships, with the effect of soil conditions on growth and control of brush, with the protection of cleared rangeland, and even with the highly promising use of mesquite as a source of high protein food for animals.

Interrelationships of the problem are demonstrated by mesquite studies. Mesquite is a principal brush offender. Even its growth cycle thwarts control. One tree may have all ages of flowers plus seed pods so that a likely effect of a chemical control is to kill the big tree only to have shoots crop up immediately afterward. One new approach under study is to use chemicals to synchronize all the growth stages so that a kill is really a kill.

Environmental influences on mesquite control are important, too. If the temperature at a soil depth of 18 inches is between 73 and 75 degrees, applications of 2,3,5-T appear effective. Colder soils inhibit the chemical — unless other chemical additives are used to compensate for the lack of soil heat. Movement of the herbicide through the plant is the primary problem in this study.

In combating sand shinnery oak, control experts are working against a plant that shows only one-tenth of its whole above ground — nine-tenths growing below ground.

With both shinnery oak and redberry juniper, picloram is able to aid in control, but this chemical still has testing to undergo before it is approved for the general market.

There is value in killing brush. "A most striking response was in the forage beneath junipers killed by spraying," Schuster said. "On a deep hardland site, forage under dead trees averaged 1,357 pounds per acre compared with only 493 pounds per acre under live trees."

The pricklypear problem is solvable with night spraying using 2, 4, 5-T with diesel oil.

Entomologists are interested particularly in the twig girdler and wood borers that control mesquite and the juniper webworm on juniper and shinnery oak.

"The use of fire as a brush and weed control method has been expanded," Schuster said, "to include the use of fire for grass management. Prescription techniques are being developed now for the use of fire for control."

Emphasizing repeatedly throughout the report that studies still are incomplete, range scientists said that grass utilization following a burn was 83 per cent for tobosa on the burn and 14 per cent on a control area. For buffalograss, it was 33 per cent on the burn and 6 per cent on the control area.
