

More DOE complaints voiced Thursday

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Dissatisfaction with the U.S. Department of Energy in its search for the nation's first high-level nuclear waste repository was continually expressed here Thursday night at a state hearing.

Deaf Smith County, for which Hereford is the county seat, contains one of nine sites still being considered by DOE for the nuclear waste storage area. Nearby Swisher County, which has one of the other possible dump locations, hosted a state hearing Monday which produced similar comments.

Thursday, local resident Margaret Marshall claimed DOE is using "a demented process" in its search for a repository site. "Object now," she said, "before we become the nuclear industry's sacrificial lamb." Her comments and those from various state official representatives and other concerned citizens were addressed to the Texas Nuclear Waste Programs Office. Formed at the request of Gov. Mark White, TNWPO conducted this week's two hearings and is to send the accumulated comments to the DOE early next month.

In late March, the Energy Department recommended the dump candidate sites in both Panhandle counties be reduced to nine-square-mile areas. They had previously been 300 and 190 square miles in Deaf Smith and Swisher counties, respectively. A 45-day comment period was granted when the recommendation was announced.

As presented, the Deaf Smith location would be in the northwest part of the county, approximately 19 miles northwest of Hereford and five miles southwest of Vega. On ly four miles separate Tulla, Swisher's county seat, from the proposed nine-square-mile area to its north.

The primary purpose of the TNWPO hearings was to gain reactions concerning the two technical report volumes DOE used to explain its recommendation. "Shoddy," "innacurate" and "useless" were words used to describe the documents at both the Deaf Smith and Swisher county hearings.

Tonya Kleuskens, chairman of a local group opposing placement of the nuclear waste dump near here, pointed out DOE is operating under guidelines which have yet to be approved by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. The NRC, which originally said approval would probably be granted by April, now reportedly expects no announcement will be before June.

"It seems that the DOE keeps putting its cart before its horse," Kleuskens said, "and we in Texas know that will only take them backwards."

Aside from her remarks, Kleuskens also read a letter she received from White. "Texas will not bow to a DOE program," the governor was quoted as having written, "that manipulates law to fit its own convenience."

Kleuskens' group, titled People Opposed to Wasted Energy Repositories (POWER), had more of its ranks testify Thursday evening. One, Georgia Auckerman, wondered how DOE officials could continue downplaying problems with transporting nuclear waste to the storage facility.

"The idea of an accident is not 'if,'" she commented, "but 'when and where.'"

Marshall, whose baby was harnessed to her chest, complained about DOE's claimed "discriminators," from which the nine-square-mile recommendations were derived.

Of the six priorities given on page 5 of the Deaf Smith

County document, she said, only the first two were used. They were "ecological habitat; projected water yield from Ogallala in the year 2020" and "saturated thickness of the Ogallala; depth to host rock."

Marshall also pointed out DOE officials, in effect, admit there will be radioactivity leaks at the dump site. On page 136 of the Deaf Smith technical report, it is stated, "The release of radioactivity during facility operations should be minimized consistent with maximizing long-term performance, i.e., some radiological exposures may be necessary to achieve maximum long-term performance."

The document, Marshall said, was indicative of DOE's "track record of ambiguity and deception...We ask that the state not sit by and let this charade continue. Object!"

John Fuston, executive director of the Agriculture Stabilization and Service, testified Deaf Smith has either been the first or second most productive agriculture county in Texas during the last five years. "A lot of folks in our heavily-populated towns would go hungry," he said, if a dump were to locate here and contaminate the surrounding land.

An associate of Richardson Seed Company, Donald Richardson, said DOE has ignored possible contamination and/or depletion of the Santa Rosa aquifer. Located below the Ogallala, the source is now tapped by two wells, he said. It contains more than enough water, Richardson maintained, to serve the city of Vega for 30 years.

President defends democracy

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer

PEKING (AP)—President Reagan extolled the virtues of capitalism and democracy to a Chinese audience today and announced an agreement allowing sales of American nuclear technology to the world's most populous nation.

Reagan said the United States and China were writing "a new chapter" in their relationship, but Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang cautioned separately that U.S. ties with Taiwan were an obstacle to progress.

In a speech to a group of several hundred Chinese scientists, intellectuals and other officials, Reagan said, "Today, China's economy crackles with the dynamics of change... China is beginning to reach out toward new horizons and we salute your courage."

Reagan was warmly applauded by the handpicked audience, many of whom understood English, when he said, "As China moves forward on this new path, America welcomes the opportunity to walk by your side.

"You will choose your own path to development," Reagan said. "But we are not surprised to see the fresh breezes of incentives and innovation sweeping positive changes across China."

Reagan also received standing applause at the end of the speech, delivered in the Great Hall of the People with the American and Chinese flags displayed side-by-side behind him on the podium.

Outside, several thousand people stood in Tiananmen Square behind barricades, waiting for a glimpse of the American leader who arrived here Thursday on a six-day visit.

Reagan's speech was to be broadcast later on Chinese television to an audience that White House officials estimated might number 200 million.

Reagan said the nuclear energy agreement, the product of three years of negotiations, would create broad opportunities for American firms to sell nuclear equipment to China and help build the country's nuclear power industry. He said the accord complies with U.S. nuclear nonproliferation standards.

U.S. officials say China hopes to build as many as 12 nuclear electric power generating plants by the year 2000.

Extolling the achievements of the capitalist economic system, Reagan said that nations which allow their people to think and work for themselves and profit from their own labor have become the nations that are "the most prosperous, progressive, dynamic and free."

"Nothing could be more basic to the spirit of progress for a farmer, laborer or merchant than economic reward for legitimate risk and honest toil," Reagan said.

Meanwhile, Premier Zhao told reporters that China wanted "more actual action" from the United States in meeting its commitments to China regarding relations with Taiwan.

"The question of Taiwan remains a major obstacle to the sustained, stable development of Sino-U.S. relations," Zhao said in a brief news conference with reporters.

But Zhao, who visited Reagan in the United States in January, was noticeably friendly with Reagan as they sat down a short time later for a meeting in the Great Hall. He joked with Reagan about his age, telling him that most Chinese thought he looked younger than his 73 years and adding, "It's a pity Nancy isn't here. She'll be happy to hear these words."

Reagan laughed and said, "As far as I'm concerned, the meeting's already been a success."

Neal orders woman's pets sold

"I'm just here to tell what happened. I didn't starve my dogs," 71-year-old Audrey Mills announced on Thursday in justice of the peace court. Apparently Judge O.K. Neal was not convinced; he ordered the woman's seven dogs, five cats and one Shetland pony be sold at an auction.

Hearing followed sheriff's raid

The hearing, called to determine the disposition of the animals, followed an April 17 raid by the sheriff's department on a home occupied by Mills. Deaf Smith County officers were acting on an anonymous tip from a neighbor who often observed Mills out walking near the residence six miles southeast of Hereford.

The caller asked officers to check the home because she was concerned about Mills' welfare after not seeing her for several days. After making several trips to the rural residence and not getting an answer at the door, officers entered through a window and discovered the animals being kept in the cluttered, poorly ventilated, one-story house.

Officers reportedly fed the animals, then returned the next day with Animal Control Officer Butch Trevino to confiscate them. The pets were taken to the veterinary office of Dr. Steve Lewis, who testified in court Thursday that the animals showed clinical signs of being "malnourished, dehydrated and parasitic."

Besides the veterinarian, Assistant Criminal District Attorney Dino Barela called as witnesses sheriff's deputy Dean Jones, Trevino, a neighbor who said she had known Mills about 20 years and Department of Public Safety Sergeant Bill Scott.

Mills, who did not have an attorney or any witnesses in her behalf, took the stand on her own defense. Dressed in blue jeans, boots, two shirts and a heavy winter coat, Mills often trembled while sitting alone at a table in the county courtroom and cried when Neal pronounced the order.

"I hope God takes care of you for lyn," Mills turned to proclaim to the neighbor woman seated behind her. The neighbor had testified that the animals "have always been real skinny, they've never been fat." She claimed it was "not natural for a dog to be that poor."

The neighbor said she had seen one of the dogs locked in a car, which was where officers found it when they went to Mills' home, and that Mills often stayed gone for three or four days at a time. Mills said she was never gone longer than overnight, and that it "wasn't good for dogs to feed them more than every other day."

The neighbor testified that she had counseled Mills to start feeding the animals more often and that she had called the humane society in Amarillo and the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department last summer to investigate

Premier liquor license approved

By KIM THOGMARTIN

A local motel owner, who said many of his customers ask him where to purchase liquor as they check in for the night, has become the first person to have a request for a liquor license approved by Deaf Smith County Judge Glen Nelson.

Kirit Parikh, who along with his wife Maya owns and operates the Holiday Motor Motel, had requested a package store permit and beer retailer's off-premise license. He appeared for what turned out to be an uncontested hearing on Thursday afternoon in Nelson's office.

County Clerk David Ruland was also in attendance.

Holiday Motor Motel

Nelson found Parikh's application to be in order, so it is to be forwarded to the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission in Austin. Approval from the ABC should take about two weeks.

The 41-year-old native of Bombay, India, who bought the local business three-and-a-half years ago, said he already has space to install a liquor store. He expects to invest $40,000 to $50,000 for inventory once the permit is approved. He foresees hiring several persons to staff the new business.

Parikh said he knows drinking takes place at his for a permit on Thursday, but the judge found that application to be incomplete. She is asking for a beer and wine retailer's permit.

Hearings scheduled for today are Dawn Oil and Grocery, Handy Hut Grocery and Wil-mart of Hereford. Also reportedly planning to make applications are J. Martin Basinger and J.D. Basinger, who would operate B&B Liquor Store on North 25 Mile Avenue and David Hutchins, who would move The Store to the Sugarland Mall.

Justice of the Peace Precinct 1 has been "wet" since April 7, when county residents passed a local option liquor election by 218 votes. The county had been dry since 1901.

Daylight Savings Time nears

Spring forward; fall backward! Daylight Saving Time begins at 2 a.m. Sunday, but most folks don't sit up to make the change on their clocks. The time should be moved forward one hour before going to bed Saturday night.

If one goes to bed at 10 p.m. Saturday, the clock should be set ahead one hour to 11 p.m. The Hereford Ministerial Alliance encourages everyone to remember to set their clocks so they won't be late for Sunday School or church on Sunday morning.

Mother undergoes surgery

Jamie Young of Hereford underwent surgery Thursday afternoon in Dallas for a kidney transplant just six days after her daughter, Tracie Hargrove, had an apparently successful kidney transplant.

Mary Hargrove, Jamie's sister, called The Brand Thursday evening to report the news. She said doctors at first said Young was not a favorable candidate for the surgery because of other health problems.

Mary Hargrove also reported that Tracie, a Hereford High School student, was "doing great" following her transplant last week. Both mother and daughter are in Methodist Central Hospital.

These transfers must be registered by Tuesday. The statewide deadline is set up for students going from one school district to another. Any question concerning the transfer student registration should be directed to the superintendent's office (364-0606).

Final arguments slated in trial

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — Shari Bower testified at her husband's capital murder trial that she could not remember where her husband was the day four men were killed in an ultralight airplane hangar.

Mrs. Bower, testifying for the defense, was the final witness Thursday before both sides rested. Final arguments were scheduled for today, after which the case goes to the jury.

If convicted, Bower could face a sentence of death by lethal injection.

Mrs. Bower testified that her husband left home early in the morning of Oct. 8 and did not return home until 6:30 p.m. when he came home for dinner.

She said when Bower returned, "he was in his normal, good spirits."

Nun turns government witness

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A federal prosecutor says a Catholic nun has agreed to turn government witness under an arrangement which could free her from a charge of conspiracy to transport illegal aliens.

Sister Dianne Muhlenkamp, 36, of Fort Wayne Ind., applied for "pre-trial diversion," on Thursday, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Jack Wolfe.

Under the agreement, the nun waived her right to a speedy trial and will be on probation for one year, Wolfe said. If the probation period is completed to the government's satisfaction, the charge against Sister Dianne will be dropped, the prosecutor said.

Muhlenkamp's attorney, Robert Yzaguirre, wouldn't comment on the agreement.

"I'm just not going to do nothing," said Yzaguirre, who first denied the agreement and then confirmed it.

TEC fires top administrator

AUSTIN (AP) — The former administrator of the Texas Employment Commission, fired after a 30-year career with the agency, will start his job-hunting in the courtroom, looking to get his $52,300-a-year job back.

Ernie Tullis, the apparent loser in a power struggle with the three employment commissioners, said he was "a little surprised" when the commissioners axed him Thursday.

"I said 'a little surprised,'" Tullis, 50, told reporters. "I didn't say I was totally surprised."

The commissioners fired Tullis during an emergency meeting called after Attorney General Jim Mattox said in an opinion Wednesday that the commissioners — not the administrator — are in charge of the agency that hands out unemployment checks.

Panel vows closer watch

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee says it will tighten procedures for overseeing U.S. spy activities following CIA Director William J. Casey's admission he did not adequately inform senators about the agency's role in mining Nicaraguan ports.

Senators said Casey made the acknowledgment, which one described as an apology, in a closed-door meeting Thursday at which Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., agreed to stay on as the panel's vice chairman.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., the committee's chairman, said the senators were in a "very happy mood" at the meeting, but Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said it was a "very spirited, sharp exchange" of views.

"There were strong statements made on both sides," Bentsen said. He said Casey "apologized for not having highlighted the question of the mining before."

Judge asked to dismiss charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The judge in John Z. De Lorean's drug-trafficking trial pondered a dismissal motion based on allegedly destroyed evidence after a defense lawyer pressed relentlessly for the inside story of the government's cocaine "sting" investigation.

De Lorean watched with a bemused smile as his lawyer, Howard Weitzman, pried from an FBI agent the disclosure that he had thrown away original notes detailing the events of the De Lorean case.

It was the first volley in Weitzman's stated plan to "try the government" for its actions in the "sting," which resulted in the arrest of the maverick automaker in a hotel room with 55 pounds of cocaine.

FBI undercover agent Benedict Tisa, who spent nearly five grueling hours on the witness stand Thursday, confirmed Weitzman's statement that a prosecutor was "yelling and screaming" at Tisa during a break following his disclosure.

Libyans leaving embassy

LONDON (AP) — Libyans began leaving their besieged London embassy today, 11 days after a gunman fired an automatic weapon at a Libyan dissidents' rally outside the building in St. James's Square.

A go-between emerged from the embassy and led a group of five men out the front door of the building to waiting police vans. A short time later, another group of five was led out.

Videotape pictures of the evacuation were aired by the British Broadcasting Corp.

A Libyan plane, a Boeing 727, was due at London's Heathrow airport at 4 p.m. (10 a.m. EST) and filed a flight plan to leave four hours later, airport officials said.

The siege began April 17 when a gunman firing from a Libyan Embassy window at a crowd of demonstrators killed a British policewoman. British police and sharpshooters immediately ringed the building.

Naval exercises in Gulf

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Two U.S. Navy warships have joined maneuvers in the Gulf of Fonseca aimed at tightening surveillance of Nicaragua's coast and deterring arms shipments to leftist rebels in El Salvador.

The Pentagon says the U.S. ships, which joined Salvadoran and Honduran boats Thursday, will clear of Nicaraguan waters of the gulf, which lies between El Salvador and Nicaragua.

A U.S. military source in Honduras, meanwhile, said U.S. reconnaissance plane have been flying over Nicaragua and have sometimes drawn groundfire, according to reports today in The Los Angeles Times and The Washington Post.

The unidentified source said the Pentagon has denied there have been such flights but said Nicaragua's leftist government has denounced them.

In devastated town

Twister kills at least six people

MORRIS, Okla. (AP) — All survivors were evacuated today from this town of 1,300 after a tornado swept through, killing at least six people and leaving the downtown "devastated." Utilities were shut off and only rescue vehicles were allowed in.

"It's almost all gone," Okmulgee County Sheriff Gene Rice said of the town, about 40 miles south of Tulsa, where the twister struck shortly before midnight Thursday.

Six people died in Morris and three more confirmed tornado deaths were "scattered around" the county, Rice said. A 10th Oklahoma death occurred in Terlton, a town of 155 people about 30 miles west of Tulsa, where 25 injuries were reported.

Fifty to 60 percent of the buildings in Morris were leveled, said Highway Patrol Lt. Leon Spencer. He said the death toll could rise as emergency crews picked through the rubble this morning.

Officials at Okmulgee General Hospital, where people wept and hugged relatives they feared they had lost, said they were too swamped to begin to estimate the number of injured people they had treated.

"It just caught everybody in bed," Rice said. The tornadoes began at 5:45 p.m. Thursday, sweeping eastward in two waves of heavy thunderstorms, hail and winds gusting to 72 mph. Most of the damage occurred between 11 p.m. Thursday and 3:30 a.m. today, when the turbulence cleared the state.

Injuries and damage were reported in seven other towns, with 15 communities in all reporting funnel clouds or tornadoes.

Morris looked today like a blackened field as survivors were taken to neighboring towns.

Patrolman Bill Burchett, his head swathed in bandages and his left arm in a sling, sat quietly in the hospital. He had been 30 minutes into his patrol when the tornado struck without warning.

The twister picked up his patrol car, slammed it against two buildings and then flipped it over before a tree fell on it, he said.

"I've been shot at and cut, but I ain't never been so scared in my life. The man upstairs was sitting next to me tonight," said Burchett, a nine-year police veteran.

Gov. George Nigh ordered up to 20 National Guardsmen into northeastern Oklahoma.

Little information was immediately available from Terlton, where the twister struck at 11:05 p.m. Thursday. Greg Sturge, of the Civil Defense office in Tulsa, said telephone lines were down and it was difficult to get an accurate picture of what happened there.

Another twister destroyed about 15 homes and a convenience store early today in far western Wagoner County, which includes a part of the city of Tulsa, Deputy Sheriff Carl Munoz reported.

Near the Missouri border in far northeastern Oklahoma, police dispatcher Coleen Cole said a tornado touched down five miles north of Grove at 1:25 a.m., injuring an undetermined number of people and damaging eight mobile homes in the Iron Horse resort.

Tom Lester of the Tulsa Civil Defense said one house was destroyed in Cleveland, north of Terlton. He said he did not know whether anyone was injured.

Red Cross crews had been dispatched to the Terlton area and to Morris and Skiatook, said Betty Seaman, public affairs director.

Others were working in an area north of Broken Arrow where she said six homes had been destroyed, 20 suffered minor damage and 15 had major damage.

Up to seven people were injured near Skiatook, about 15 miles north of Tulsa, when a tornado touched down there, causing considerable damage, police Officer T.J. David said.

Other funnels were reported at Norman, Tuttle, Chickasha, Langston, Tonkawa, Stillwater, Perkins and Glencoe.

The National Weather Service said the first tornado to touch down hit Guthrie, about 30 miles north of Oklahoma City.

Problems direct result of policies

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Democratic presidential contender Walter Mondale, courting voters in this economically depressed border city, said the financial problems of El Paso and other border areas are a direct result of President Reagan's fiscal policies.

During a campaign swing through Texas, the former vice president told a crowd of 200 supporters Thursday the president's policies were "dagger in the heart of El Paso."

"He (Reagan) has turned his back on this part of the state of Texas," Mondale said at a downtown rally that was cut short by winds that gusted up to 30 mph.

Mondale also visited Fort Worth, Saginaw and San Antonio Thursday. He was stumping in Lubbock today.

Throughout his Texas visits, Mondale emphasized how important Texas is to his political success, saying this year Texas may decide the Democratic candidate.

"This time, you're the boss," he said. Elsewhere around Texas Thursday, U.S. Senate candidate and state Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, decried the use of Mexican workers in the United States and told a news conference in Laredo that the practice may violate federal rules.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, speaking at rallies in Fort Worth and Houston, blasted Texas' delegate selection rules, saying they were as unfair as the voter registration system in Mississippi, where a voter must register twice.

"You've got to vote twice to make it nice," said Jackson, referring to the May 5 Democratic primary and the precinct meeting that follow later that day.

"In Texas, unlike any of the other 49 states, you've got to vote in the daytime, then come back at night to vote for me," he said. "That's designed to discourage us — to break our spirit."

At a morning rally at stockyards in Fort Worth, Mondale wooed Texas fans waving "Howdee Fritz" and "No quitting Fritz" banners.

The front-runner, campaigning in Texas two days before his chief opponent, U.S. Sen. Gary Hart, arrives in the Lone Star State for a major swing, attacked inconsistencies in Hart's campaign speeches.

He said Hart says different things to different people. Mondale said he, on the other hand, is "the people's Democrat, and the same person in Texas and New York."

At an elementary school in Saginaw, Mondale discussed the nation's future with 35 students on topics ranging from the nuclear threat to drug abuse.

Mondale asked his "class" what worried them the most about their future, and all of them raised their hands when he asked how many feared nuclear annihilation.

One girl said she worried the bomb "could blow us up instead of our enemies."

"You're dead right," Mondale responded. "If those bombs go off, there will be no future."

Mondale next aimed his remarks more at the students' parents during a brief news conference, where he attacked Reagan's record on education.

"Reagan has savaged school programs across the board," said Mondale, adding that Texas gets $200 million — or one-third — less for education now than during the Carter-Mondale administration.

In El Paso, Mondale continued his attack on Reagan's education policies and said, "The children of the working families have as much right to go to college as anyone else."

He said if he were to become president, education would be affordable by all Americans.

Hart planned to visit the Brazos River Festival in Waco on Saturday as part of a campaign swing through Texas. However, festival organizers said Hart's campaign workers — as well as the candidate — would have to buy a ticket and that no political speeches would be allowed.

Festival general manager Diane Jordan said Hart campaign workers had indicated the candidate "did not want to be a disruptive influence. He just wanted to see (the festival) and visit with people."

In Laredo on Thursday, Doggett said 205 Mexican farmworkers are scheduled to cross the Rio Grande soon to work in Virginia's tobacco fields.

The federal program allows workers to be brought across the border when Americans are unable or unwilling to fill the jobs.

"I believe this is a travesty to allow such a practice at a time when American workers are suffering from staggering unemployment," Doggett said.

He said statistics show 25 percent unemployment in McAllen, 21 percent in Laredo and as high as 50 percent among farmworkers in Starr County.

"I believe we need to reform the immigration law to halt the flood of foreign workers taking American jobs — both legally and illegally," Doggett said.

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, said in a statement from his Austin office that he has received 20 newspaper endorsements more than either of his two major opponents in the Democratic race for U.S. Senate.

"A common thread runs through these endorsements," Hance said. "The newspapers backing the Hance candidacy praise him for his courage, independence, and his political philosophy."

He said if he were to become president, education would be affordable by all Americans.

Hart planned to visit the Brazos River Festival in Waco on Saturday as part of a campaign swing through Texas. However, festival organizers said Hart's campaign workers — as well as the candidate — would have to buy a ticket and that no political speeches would be allowed.

Festival general manager Diane Jordan said Hart campaign workers had indicated the candidate "did not want to be a disruptive influence. He just wanted to see (the festival) and visit with people."

the situation. She said to her knowledge those investigations were never made.

Trevino, who thought the animals were in "poor condition," said the city still has possession of them and there has been a "100 percent improvement in the way they look."

Mills, who later said, "All my life I've loved animals, told Trevino, "You don't know much about dogs." She told Neal she had purchased two 25-pound sacks of dog food a month for the seven dogs, fed the cats every night and gave the pony raw vegetables, table scraps and hay.

Divorced and living alone, Mills asked the judge if she could have just one of the dogs, "Coyote," back. He did not acknowledge her request.

Neal said Mills would not be allowed to bid on her own dogs when they were sold, but nothing would prevent her from obtaining more animals. He said if no one buys the animals they will be turned over to the animal shelter.

Barela said the district attorney's office is considering filing a charge of cruelty to animals — a Class C misdemeanor — against the elderly woman.

nationally known musical group, will be featured in the service, which is open to the public.

Community Church to host concert

The Spurlows, nationally known musical group, will appear at Community Church on Sunday at 10:30 a.m.

For more than 25 years The Spurlows have produced high quality music in the form of 10 albums with Word, Inc, over 30 choral books for churches, concerts with Youth for Christ, Jesus Festivals, Billy Graham programs, and have ministered in thousands of churches all across America.

More recently, they have become a part of a new concept called Festival of Praise, a musical of praise and worship involving a 40-voice traveling choir.

Organized by Thurlow Spurr, internationally known creator and producer, The Spurlows appeal to all ages with a message as timeless as the Word of God. They have been seen many times on national television specials such as the Bob Hope Show and their own award winning Christmas Special.

They have appeared in a full-length motion picture, in over 500 national conventions, and in world premiers of four musicals. Twice they have had the distinction of being invited as guests of the president of the United States at the White House.

They have performed for more high school and college students than any group in recent history, and have long been recognized as innovators in gospel music.

The Spurlows are a group of young men and women keenly dedicated to the goal of renewal of the individual within the church. The singers and musicians come from all parts of the United States, and they blend their talents and ministries as one. Their musical style is smooth and soft, yet exciting as it covers a broad range of selections.

The public is invited to share in this time of worship. A love offering will be taken.

Straight Talk

Deaf Smith County & its citizens have a big problem - it is called intimidation by law suits filed by TRLA.

It is very hard for me to understand how any organization of this nature could have ever been thought of as being good for the people. Our system has always provided adequate representation for poor people that could not afford a high-priced lawyer. We're being intimidated to the extent that we are all afraid to stand up for what we know is right & our God-given Freedom. We are showing weakness in giving in to their demands. We are letting them change policy in our school system, city & county that we have lived by & been satisfied with in the past years.

I am willing & determined to stand up & fight to the bitter end and whatever this costs, we know we are morally right. One man can't do it, one business can't do it & one company, which we have recently seen harassed, can't do it. We will all have to work together & stand up for what we know is right. This is my stand on this issue.

Sincerely,
Ron Crist

Black Belts In Action

Says local instructor

Control, key to Korean karate

By STAN GODEK
Sports Editor

When a person thinks of karate, images of Bruce Lee chopping down a small enemy army often enters the mind. This impression is wrong according to local karate instructor Loopy Crox.

Crox teaches a Korean form of karate, Tae Kwon Do, at weekly sessions to about 60 students of various age groups. He says his sport is an art and he teaches the fundamentals and allows his students to develop their own style.

The whole idea of karate competition is "to control everything. You know you got the power to hurt but you're not supposed to use it. You're supposed to be wise," Crox said.

While points are scored by making full contact with the hand during a punch or the foot during a kick, competitors are encouraged to control the impact of their blow.

Two Hereford men have recently become the first students to attain the status of black belt through the instruction of Crox, who holds his sessions at Larrymore Studio in Veterans Memorial Park.

Carl Simpson and George Zepeda have been awarded black belts for Korean-style karate after three years of training. Crox said the men will soon be recognized as black belts by the Tae Kwon Do World Federation based in Seoul Korea.

He said Simpson and Zepeda are two of the top contenders in Texas and have placed high in every tournament they have entered. A lot of energy and effort is being directed toward an upcoming tournament to take place in Hereford.

The Texas Panhandle Tae Kwon Do Championship is slated June 23 in the Bull Barn. Crox hopes the tournament will be a springboard to advance some of his students to national or international status.

"There's no personal gain for me... My objective is the Olympics - to get somebody from Hereford in the (1988) Olympics," Crox said, adding, he also hopes to build a true karate school and gym in Hereford to be used for the martial arts.

Since the 1988 Olympics are to be held in Seoul Korea. The International Olympic Committee is considering installing karate as an event. "The Olympic Committee will accept it if we present it right. Karate has been considered as inhuman dog-like fighting... The Olympic Committee has asked Tae Kwon Do teachers to work together and make the karate presentations more art-like," Crox said.

Karate competition, as in boxing and wrestling and other sports, pits opponents against each other according to weight. Head gear is standard equipment for tournaments and face contact is discouraged.

For persons interested in karate, becoming a black belt is no easy task. "It takes a good three years," according to Crox.

The first belt, white, is usually achieved after three months of basic instruction. It takes another three to four months to obtain one's gold belt. The next levels, green, blue and brown lead up to graduating to a black belt.

There also are various degrees of black belt, so even instructors are always advancing and learning new skills and techniques.

Detroit captures series from Texas

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Thanks to a new scoreboard that has created new wind gusts, Arlington Stadium is a hitter's ballpark — much to the delight of the streaking Detroit Tigers and their manager, Sparky Anderson, who's in no hurry for the party to end.

The Tigers, who are off to one of the fastest major league starts in recent memory, took advantage of the conditions Thursday night and beat the Texas Rangers 7-5 to sweep the two-game series and improve their record to 16-1.

The win extended Detroit's latest American League winning streak to seven games. "They say everyone is looking to knock off the Tigers," Anderson said. "I love that and I hope it is that way all year. We are a well-balanced team with no weak spots."

No one could argue with that as the Tigers led off the first inning with Lou Whitaker doubling to center. Rangers starter Frank Tanana then walked Alan Trammell and balked on the next batter, Barbaro Garbey, advancing the runners. Garbey then singled to center to drive in Trammell and Whitaker.

Larry Herndon continued the Tiger attack, doubling to right after Lance Parrish hit into a double play. Chet Lemon followed Herndon to the plate with a double off the left field wall to drive in the runner and make the score 4-0.

Ben Jones trained the most Kentucky Derby winners, a total of six. He had five winners in the silks of the Calumet Farm and one for the Woolford Farm.

Mavericks win first playoff series ever

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Dallas won the first playoff series in its four years of existence, winning at home in a wild finish against Seattle.

Jay Vincent hit two free throws with 17 seconds left in overtime to give Dallas a 105-102 lead. Tom Chambers of the Sonics made a basket with one second left, then caught the inbound pass from Vincent.

Referee Mike Mathis signaled the game over although the clock never started and both teams left the court. But after a conference among the officials, it was decided that there was still a second to go, and both teams were called out of the dressing room.

However, Steve Hawes' inbound pass was caught by Mark Aguirre and the Mavs secured the victory.

Seattle had a six-point lead with 1:06 left in regulation, but three turnovers and a missed free throw allowed Rolando Blackman, who scored a game-high 29 points for Dallas, to force the overtime with 15 seconds left in regulation.

Nets 101, 76ers 98

The New Jersey Nets' road-court advantage was too much for the defending champion Philadelphia 76ers to overcome.

The Nets capped an incredible string of road victories by beating the 76ers 101-98 Thursday night—their third straight triumph at the Philadelphia Spectrum—to win the first-round National Basketball Association series 3-2. Philadelphia, which hoped to become the first team since 1969 to repeat as champions, had won both games at New Jersey.

"I couldn't sleep at all after losing those two at home," Nets Coach Stan Albeck said.

"Winning three at Philadelphia is quite an accomplishment."

It was the first time since the Nets moved into the NBA in 1976 that they won a playoff series. They were 0-6 in postseason games before this season.

"The homecourt doesn't mean as much in the playoffs, probably because we have more time to prepare for the games," Albeck said. "It's a tremendous high for us."

In other series-deciding games, Milwaukee ousted Atlanta 118-89, Dallas edged Seattle 105-104 in overtime, Utah rolled to a 127-111 triumph over Denver and Phoenix defeated Portland 117-105. All the series were tied 2-2 before Thursday.

In tonight's only game, New York is at Detroit in the fifth game of their series. The winner will open the next round Sunday at Boston.

The Hereford Warriors, a local semi-pro football team forming this year, is having a car wash to raise money to help purchase team uniforms, according to club spokesman Matt Morgan.

Morgan said a final team roster of about 25 players is in the process of being completed. The Warriors will Dallas is at Los Angeles Saturday and Phoenix is at Utah and New Jersey at Milwaukee in other Sunday games.

New Jersey got 24 points and six assists each from guards Micheal Ray Richardson and Otis Birdsong. Birdsong had shot 6-for-21 from the field and totaled only 14 points in the Nets' two home losses.

"I wanted to get involved in the offense tonight because I had two bad games in New Jersey," Birdsong said. "Tonight, I got off to a good start and that helped us a lot."

Jazz 127, Nuggets 111

easily beat visiting Denver.

Utah, appearing in its first playoff series of the 10-year history of the franchise, led by as many as 14 points in the first half. A run of 10 straight points rebuilt the lead to 14 in the fourth period.

Dan Issel scored 25 points and Alex English 24 for the Nuggets, but Kiki Vandeweghe, who had averaged nearly 30 points in the first four games of the series, had only 10.

Suns 117, Blazers 105

Walter Davis scored 21 of his 29 points in the second half and Kyle Macy added 17 of his 20 after intermission as the Suns won at Portland, which played without Mychal Thompson, who broke his right elbow Tuesday night.

Blazers forwards Calvin Natt and Kenny Carr also were hobbled by injuries, forcing Portland at times to go with a lineup with no player taller than 6-foot-7. Jim Paxson topped the Blazers with 24 points.

Bucks 118, Hawks 89

At Milwaukee, Marques Johnson and Junior Bridgeman sparked an 18-4 spurt at the start of the second period that carried the Bucks to victory over Atlanta. Johnson and Bridgeman each had six points in the first six minutes of the second quarter as Milwaukee opened a 40-22 bulge from which Atlanta never recovered. The closest the Hawks got in the second half was 13 points.

Sidney Moncrief led the Bucks with 20 points, while Glenn Rivers topped Atlanta with 21.

COMMISSIONER

The current controversy regarding the criteria and process of selecting a sheriff illustrates how important your choice for County Commissioner is. It is certainly possible that within the next few years it will be necessary for the commissioners to make another selection for some county office. You can see how the decisions made in Commissioners' Court impact on every person in the county. That is why you need commissioners who are not easily influenced, and have the ability to make independent decisions based on research and analysis of the pertinent facts. Pressure groups should not be allowed to allude to evidence they are not able to give facts on. To say an insinuation of negative information can be ignored by this decision making body is equivalent to instructing a jury to disregard damaging testimony they have just heard. It is next to impossible to do so.

County Commissioner is not a caretaker position. It is one that requires leadership and someone, who is able to research the issues and make sound decisions. VOTE FOR RESPONSIBLE COUNTY GOVERNMENT. VOTE FOR JONES. WE CAN HAVE "PROGRESS THROUGH SOUND LEADERSHIP"
