

60 Percent of Flights Taking Off

Striking Controllers to Be Fired

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration said it was getting 60 percent of the scheduled flights off the ground as it threatened to fire thousands of striking air traffic controllers and asked courts to abolish their union representation.

The controllers, however, showed no signs of giving up the first nationwide strike by federal employees. The illegal walkout Monday caused passengers widespread delays at airports and cost the airlines millions of dollars.

"We wouldn't have entered into this if we weren't going to stay," said Robert E. Poli, president of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization.

Reagan, described by White House aides as being "as tough as nails," said the strikers would be dismissed if they're still on strike at 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Meanwhile, FAA administrator J. Lynn Helms said the government's contingency plan for keeping air traffic operating at reduced levels was "working well." He said 60 percent of regularly scheduled flights, including some commuter service, operated Monday.

Helms said he hoped as many as three-fourths of the 14,200 daily scheduled flights might be able to fly later today. He said an increasing number of controllers may return to work today because of the president's ultimatum. The FAA chief said 70 percent of the 17,000 did not report for Monday's day and night shifts. The union said 85 percent stayed off the job.

U.S. District Judge Harold Green imposed accelerating fines Monday night that would reach $1 million a day by Thursday.

The administration says the demands of the union would cost $681 million a year.

Later Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis said the administration would not back down regardless of how many controllers would have to be dismissed. It does not matter whether "we're talking about 10,000, 12,000 or 100,000," Lewis told reporters.

"If we're all fired, I want to know who's going to work the airplanes," Poli said.

The administration: —Said it would not negotiate with the union as long as a strike continued.

—Asked the Federal Labor Relations Authority to have the union decertified as the controllers' bargaining agent. The authority is expected to issue a ruling next week.

—Asked Greene to fine the union $1 million a day and put its 11 top officers in jail and fine them $1,000 a day each individually. Greene leveled accelerated fines totaling

$4.75 million by Thursday if the strike continues, but refused to order any jail sentences. —Filed criminal charges against 22 union members in 11 cities for allegedly violating laws against strikes by government employees.

Maximum penalties would be a year in jail and a $1,000 fine. The airlines, meanwhile, asked a federal court in New York City to hold the controllers in contempt for violating a long-standing injunction against a strike.

Fire Damage

Damage was extensive to this trailer home at 438 Mable early today after a fire swept through the rear portion of the structure, owned by Jesse Cervantes. Fire officials said the fire "looked like" it was electrical in nature. A

Local Impact Now Being Felt

Phone calls to Hereford Travel Center were slower than expected on Monday, but the calls "started off with a bang today," according to Mae Wofford.

Air traffic controllers went out on strike illegally Monday, affecting all air travelers in some way. The strike represents the first nationwide strike by federal employees in the history of the United States.

Local travelers, who booked through Hereford Travel Center, have been calling to check on cancelled flights, book alternate flights or cancel airline travel altogether, said Wofford.

Most flights out of Amarillo Air Terminal were not cancelled Monday, however, American Airlines delayed and cancelled some of their flights along with TWA and Braniff International.

Braniff International has cancelled all their flights out of Amarillo today, but Southwest Airlines is trying to pick up some of the slack on flights from Amarillo to Dallas' Love Field.

"If a passenger gets to Dallas from Amarillo, the next problem," according to Wofford, "is finding a connecting flight to their final destination, if the passenger is going further than Dallas."

"If they fly Southwest, they not only change terminals but airports, because Southwest flies into Love Field, not Dallas-Fort Worth Airport in Irving. The taxi ride from Love Field to D-FW sometimes costs more than the flight from Amarillo to Dallas," said Wofford.

When will the strike end? "I have no earthly idea," said Wofford. When the strike does end, she said it would probably take about a day to get flights back on original schedules.

City Buys Carpet During Short Session

The Hereford City Commission hardly earned their salary Monday night, dispensing with a four-item agenda in about 15 minutes. The city fathers, minus commissioner Ed Coplen, bought some floor covering, okayed a lease of city property, and renewed a contract during the brief session at city hall.

Two of the three firms contacted for bids on carpeting for the Pro Shop at the John Pitman Municipal Golf Course submitted bids for the 226-yard job. The city awarded the contract to Simmons Carpets, which tended the low bid of $4,255.58 for the work. The other bid of $4,520 was submitted by C&W Carpets.

Simmons' bid came to $18.83 per yard of carpet, while the C&W bid was based on a cost of $20 per yard.

The law firm of Perdue, Brandon, Blair, Shiever, and Fielder, of Amarillo, had its contract for collection of delinquent city taxes renewed by the commission Monday. The current contract for that job expires Aug. 31. The firm currently is paid 15 percent of delinquent taxes collected as per state law, but will get 20 percent of collections beginning Jan. 1, 1982 due to a change in the Property Tax Code.

A request for a special use permit by Craig Keating was approved by the city fathers Monday as they followed a recommendation to do so by the Zoning and Planning Commission.

Keating plans to use the old Hacker Packaging Plant site to operate a new company, "Hereford Custom Packing." The land is near Tri-State Feeders. Keating plans to offer custom killing of cattle and hogs at the location.

Finally, the commissioners agreed to lease a 200 foot by 500 foot plot of land on 15th Street to the Hereford Day Care Center, Inc. on a 99-year, $1 per-year basis. The lease, approved earlier by the commission, calls for the day care group to build a facility on the land within two years.

Day Care Administrator Betty Dickson and board president George Warner were present at the meeting Monday night.

State House Votes to Return Redistricting Bill for Rewrite

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Several members of Speaker Bill Clayton's conservative Democrat team joined with liberals and moderates Monday to hand the speaker a resounding defeat on congressional redistricting.

The result could be a remap plan that tips more toward Democratic interests than either the Senate or Gov. Bill Clements will accept. That could cause another special session.

House members voted 78-66 for a motion by Rep. Bob Bush, D-Sherman, to send the redistricting bill — which they had tentatively approved last Wednesday — back to committee for rewriting.

Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, chairman of the House redistricting committee, said the panel probably would meet Wednesday to start drafting a new bill.

An almost four-hour break, called by Clayton to hustle votes for a modified version of the committee's bill, was used by Bush and the House Democratic Caucus to gather votes to send the bill back to committee.

The bill before the House was similar to one passed by the Senate and blessed by Clements. It assured the defeat of liberal Congressman Jim Mattox of Dallas and carved a new GOP district between Dallas and Fort Worth. The district of Congressman Martin Frost of Dallas would become more than 60 percent minority.

The Texas congressional delegation will increase from 24 to 27 because of population gains.

Von Dohlen said the measure gave Democrats 20 congressional seats and Republicans seven — two more than they have now.

But hard-core Democrats, led by Bush and Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, said a Democrat-controlled Legislature should give the GOP no more than six congressional seats.

Smith said "nobody likes" the bill that came out of Von Dohlen's committee, even with some changes made in last week's debate.

"I don't want to get the House in a situation where we have to lower our heads and look at the floor and shoo a bill over to the Senate," Smith said.

Several conservative Democrat members of Clayton's "team" of loyalists and committee chairmen voted to recommit the bill, despite the speaker's obvious interest in getting a final vote.

Among them were Reps.

Bennie Bock II, D-New Braunfels, chairman of the Environmental Affairs Committee, and Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, whom Clayton has assisted in the race to succeed him as speaker.

Bock said he was concerned that the Von Dohlen bill split his home town between two congressional districts and hoped the problem could be cured by sending it back to committee.

"I'm the only rural member whose hometown is split," Bock said. But many regard the split as a means of putting Bock in a position to run against Congressman Bill Patman of Ganado.

"I didn't consider it a team vote," Lewis said. "... I just didn't like the bill ... and if they sent it back to commit-

Torrijos Buried Today

Uncertainty Clouds Panama's Future

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Strongman Omar Torrijos is being buried today in an atmosphere of political uncertainty and optimistic expectations among his opponents.

Opposition parties, which had been agitating for a speedup in Torrijos' timetable for presidential elections in 1984, believe their chances for gaining power have been improved by his death.

A major unanswered question is whether the national guard, Panama's army and Torrijos' power base, will continue to back President Aristides Royo, who was put in office by Torrijos. Royo's leadership has come under increasing criticism in recent weeks.

Torrijos, who died in a plane crash Friday, lay in state Monday in the Metropolitan Cathedral while thousands of mourners passed by the closed, flag-draped coffin. The general's trademarks, his 45-caliber pistol belt and his cavalry hat, were atop the coffin. Many in the crowd wept.

Today was a day of national mourning, with all businesses closed. After a requiem Mass at the cathedral and a funeral procession through downtown Panama City, burial was to be in the Amador cemetery.

The U.S. delegation to the funeral included the chair-

Brady Having Seizures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential press secretary James S. Brady is experiencing recurrent minor seizures in the aftermath of Monday's severe seizure, but doctors today said his condition is good.

His deputy, Larry Speakes, said Brady "is responsive and awake. His condition is good."

Yet, Speakes reported, doctors noticed some drainage from Brady's nose, probably of spinal fluid, during the "grand mal" seizure Monday.

Brady had been making steady progress in recovering from the gunshot to the head suffered during the assassination attempt on

Injunction Filed Against MX Plan

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Two citizens organizations and three Utah and Nevada state lawmakers have filed a motion in federal court here seeking an injunction against further planning and spending for a land-based MX missile system.

The motion was filed Monday as part of a suit that contends federal law was bypassed when a decision was made to chose Utah and Nevada desert valleys or the Texas-New Mexico border area as basing sites for the missile system.

The motion was filed in U.S. District Court for Utah by Utah Senate Majority Leader Karl N. Snow, R-Provo, Utah State Sen. Frances Farley, D-Salt Lake City, Nevada Assemblyman Paul Preaman, the Great Basin MX Alliance Legal Defense Fund, and Citizen Alert.

House Okay Expected Today

Reagan Tax Cuts Closer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax cut that President Reagan promises will restore the United States' economic prowess is about to reach his desk in time to give Americans slightly larger paychecks during the last three months of 1981.

Expected House approval today of the largest tax cut in history would send the measure to Reagan. He probably will add his signature on Wednesday, clearing the way for the first small stage of the personal tax reduction to start showing up in paychecks after Oct. 1.

The Senate approved the compromise version of the tax bill by a 67-8 vote Monday after rejecting, 55-20, an effort by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to slash the measure's special tax breaks for the oil industry.

The bill will permanently reduce personal tax rates in three steps, with the rate cuts totaling about 25 percent for each income level. Starting in 1985, the rates for each income bracket would be changed automatically each year to offset the "bracket creep" caused by inflation.

A typical four-member family with two wage earners and a $20,000 income can expect a tax cut of about $2 a week the last three months of 1981.

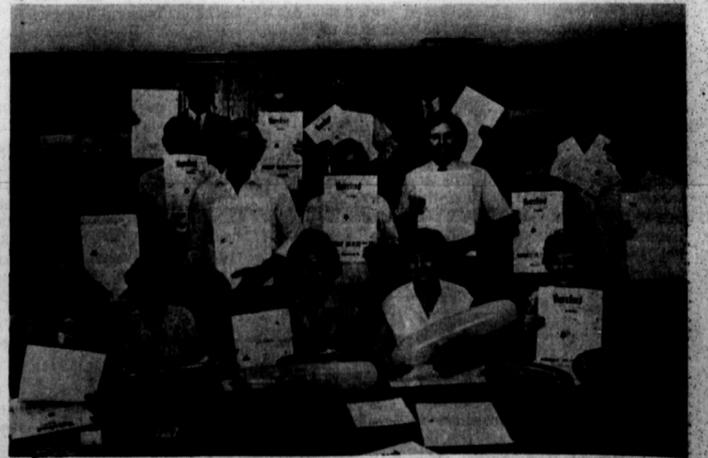

Next year, the bill would give that family $323; in 1983, $554. When the bill is fully effective in 1984, the family's tax liability — which this year is about $2,013 — will be cut by $662.

Democrats claim that inflation and rising Social Security taxes will offset the cuts and leave a majority of families — those earning $20,000 a year or less — with a bigger federal tax burden than they have today.

The bill gives 32 percent of the personal tax cut to those with incomes of $50,000 or more. Reagan and his supporters say these upper-income taxpayers, who now pay 33.8 percent of all income taxes, will invest their reductions in ways that will benefit the economy.

The bill also provides extra relief for working married couples, who often pay more taxes than if they were single; a bigger tax benefit for child-care expenses; a deduction for charitable contributions for those who don't itemize and a sweeping cut in estate taxes.

Update tuesday

Voters To Decide On Surplus For Water Development

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas voters will be asked Nov. 3 to approve a state constitution change that would let part of any state revenue surplus be used for future water development.

The House, which approved the measure earlier, accepted minor Senate changes by a vote of 117-23, sending the amendment to the general election ballot.

The measure, proposed by Speaker Bill Clayton, had been approved by the House but was returned after the Senate added two technical amendments.

If approved by the voters, the Legislature could dedicate one-half of any Texas Revenue surplus to a special fund to be used by the State Water Development Board for water quality, development, conservation and flood control.

It would be up to the Legislature to determine how much goes into the fund at the end of each two-year business period.

The amendment also would allow the state to guarantee up to $500 million in water bonds issued by water district, river authorities, cities and other political subdivisions.

It would raise from 6 to 12 percent the interest the state may pay on bonds.

The House also approved late Monday several amendments made in a state law change that would put the water fund project into immediate effect, if approved by voters in November. The bill goes to the governor.

The vote to concur with Senate changes was 116-26.

Texas Plant Planned

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (AP) — Lockheed Missile & Space Co. says it will build a new plant in Austin, Texas.

The company is looking for a plant site in the Texas capital city, with construction expected to begin in 1982, said Robert A. Fuhrman, the company president, on Monday.

He said the new plant would employ about 1,000 people shortly after it opens, with total employment as high as 6,000 in 10 years.

"We intend to create a new product division in Austin," Fuhrman said.

Lockheed, a subsidiary of Lockheed Corp., is a leading aerospace and defense firm. In addition to its main Sunnyvale plant, it has facilities in Palo Alto, Santa Cruz, San Diego and Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.; Huntsville, Ala.; Charleston, S.C.; Cape Canaveral, Fla., and Bremerton, Wash.

Exploratory Drill Reaches Halfway Mark

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — An oil-drilling consortium's exploratory drilling near Tombstone, Ariz., has reached the halfway mark of 10,000 feet, a spokesman for a consortium spokesman said Monday.

The drilling reached 10,000 feet Friday and is expected to go to 20,000 feet before it is finished early next year, said Dan Harrison, a Phillips Petroleum Co. spokesman in Bartlesville, Okla.

Besides Phillips, the consortium consists of Anschutz Corp. of Denver and People's Energy Corp. of Chicago.

Harrison said plans announced in June to drill test wells at 10 sites from Kingman to Douglas have been postponed until next year.

Across the state, spokesmen for another oil and gas exploration company and for Yuma County farmers said that a natural gas discovery by Pemex, the Mexican national oil company, has sparked a scramble for oil and gas leases near Yuma.

Pemex discovered natural gas off Isla Montague, an island at the northern end of the Gulf of California at the mouth of the Colorado River. The island is about 70 miles south of Yuma.

Antiques Stolen From Hall of Fame

WACO, Texas (AP) — Police in this Central Texas city were searching today for thieves who apparently have a great deal of nerve as well as eleven stolen antique guns.

The eleven antique guns valued at $68,600 were stolen early Monday from the Texas Ranger Hall of Fame at Fort Fisher on the Brazos River, police said.

Waco police spokesman Dennis Kidwell said the burglars entered the building honoring the famous Texas law enforcement agency between 5:25 a.m. and 8 a.m. Monday by knocking out a window and squeezing through metal bars.

The night watchman left at 5:25 and turned on the burglar alarm, but it didn't sound during the break-in, he said.

The burglars smashed a display case and took the guns, which had an insured value of $68,600, he said. Kidwell said police have no suspects.

Second-Hand Spaceship Getting Prepared For Sept. 30 Launch

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two astronauts who will take the world's first second-hand spaceship on a five-day voyage next month say preparations are going smoothly for a scheduled Sept. 30 launch.

"I've been waiting to fly in space a long time. I just can't hardly wait," said Navy Capt. Richard Truly, the pilot of America's second space shuttle flight.

He and Air Force Col. Joe Engle, the flight commander, will ride into space on the Columbia, the stubby-winged craft that launched the nation into the age of reusable space vehicles last April.

It was America's first manned spaceflight that did not end in a splashdown.

Like astronauts John Young and Bob Crippen before them, Engle and Truly will soar into space from a launch pad at Cape Canaveral and then land the Columbia like an airplane.

The second flight will keep

Columbia in Earth orbit two days longer than the first trip of three days, and will carry a heavier payload. But otherwise, Engle and Truly said their mission will be essentially the same as before.

"If we get up and back down all right I will consider that pretty successful," said Engle.

The astronauts will test a 50-foot-long mechanical arm that will extend from the payload and be controlled inside the cockpit. It is equipped to "grapple" certain objects that are fitted with stems.

"Other designs have claws but we are not ready to do that yet," Engle said. He described the existing arm as having a cylinder for a "hand" that grabs by squeezing a special stem attached to the target object.

Columbia's payload also will contain equipment for five "earth resources" experiments designed to show the commercial adaptability of the space shuttle. It will fly upside down and forward relative to the Earth during these experiments, which include a special radar that NASA says could detect mineral resources, including oil, from space.

Another experiment will scan the ocean, note color differences and could locate schools of fish or possible effects of pollution.

Extra-vehicular activity — spacewalks — have been ruled out. But the Columbia will carry spacesuits for both men just in case a serious enough problem develops — such as with the payload or its doors — and an "EVA" is required.

Truly acknowledged, "We are the first to fly a used spacecraft. I wish we could buy used cars that look as good and from people like Crip and John (Young)." Columbia's first "owners."

Truly said his biggest concern was not some catastrophe in space but the possibility of an early return to Earth caused by the extreme conservatism he said was built into the shuttle program.

"We are very conservative. If we see one failure — it doesn't matter that we are four deep in avionics (four back-up systems) — we want to get out of orbit," he said.

He said space scientists would rather diagnose a problem on the ground than allow the astronauts to "build up flight time."

"We have defined the minimum mission of the flight at about two days," he said. The top priority experiments will take place during the first 48 hours, with lesser priority duties to follow.

"The thing I've always wanted to do is look out the window and see," Truly said. "We have very little time for gawking, but whatever time there is, you can be sure my nose will be pressed to the glass."

Man Arrested In Connection With Smuggling Untaxed Fuel

AUSTIN, TX — Efforts to halt the smuggling of untaxed diesel fuel along the Texas-Mexico border Friday resulted in the arrest of a 58-year-old Laredo man, according to State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Bullock said Milton Trujillo, also known as Jose Milton Trujillo, was arrested in Laredo on an indictment from the Travis County grand jury.

Trujillo was charged with selling fuel without a state permit after his arrest by agents of the Comptroller's office, the Webb County Sheriff's office and U.S. Customs.

According to Bullock, Trujillo was jailed in Webb County after being arraigned on the fuels tax charge which is a third-degree felony.

The arrest is part of a continuing investigation ordered by Bullock to crack down on diesel smuggling along the Rio Grande and Bullock predicted "two or three more arrests will follow."

Bullock's investigation showed an estimated 100 million gallons of untaxed fuel was coming into Texas from Mexico each year. "I intend to put the contraband fuel business out-of-business because these smugglers are stealing from the taxpayers in this state," Bullock said.

Texas taxes diesel fuel at six and a-half cents a gallon with the revenue going to highway and state education funds.

Inexpensive diesel fuel in Mexico — sometimes as low as 17 cents a gallon — helped create the blackmarket for fuel in Texas.

Texas routinely collects taxes on more than a billion gallons of diesel fuel a year sold by legitimate dealers.

Cuban President Fidel Castro had been reported planning to attend, but he sent Vice President Carlos Rafael Rodriguez. Rodriguez said Castro wanted to come but his cabinet decided against it because of "the atmosphere prevailing in Latin America."

He did not explain. But the government newspaper Critica sharply criticized Castro last March 24 after it became known that Colombian guerrillas returned home via Panama after being trained in Cuba. Informed sources said Torrijos also had become increasingly worried about the massive military buildup in Nicaragua and its swing toward Cuba.

Torrijos handed over the position of chief of state of Rojo in 1978, after 10 years of dictatorial rule, but continued as commander of the national guard and remained the real power in the country.

Well-placed political observers believe his death greatly diminishes the chances of his Democratic Revolutionary Party winning the presidential election in 1984, if it is held as promised.

The possibility Torrijos himself might run hampered efforts by other parties to line up candidates.

tee; they could come back with a bill... that is more acceptable to everybody."

Asked for specifics, Lewis said, "There were a lot of things I didn't like."

U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth has urged legislative leaders to pass a bill minimizing Republican gains. Democrats hold an edge of only about 30 votes in the U.S. House, and Wright's chance to succeed Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill would vanish if the Republicans gained control.

Grange, who drafted the redistricting plan that squeaked through the Senate by one vote, said the House action presents an opportunity "for them to come to their senses, pass the Senate bill or improve the Senate bill."

Bush, chairman of the Democratic Caucus, attributed his victory to the four-day weekend Clayton had declared to allow time to collect votes for the Von Dohlen bill.

He said during the four days, House members heard from their constituents.

"People are asking, 'Why can't you Democrats come up with a plan with a little more Democratic flavor to it?'" Bush said.

Bush contended Clayton and Von Dohlen had "attempted to force feed the House" and it "backfired on them."

He acknowledged that passing a bill providing 21 Democratic districts and six Republican districts would risk a veto that would mean a second special legislative session. But he said the risk was worth running.

"I think we are willing to come back for another special session. If we draw it (the bill) properly and are geared up, we can override a veto," Bush said.

The redistricting committee last week rejected, 10-9, amendments designed to give Democrats an edge. Bush said the vote would be different this time because Reps. Bill Clark, D-Tyler, and Reby Cary, D-Arlington, had decided to join hard-core Democrats.

Management and President Reagan.

The Air Force has proposed basing 200 of the new intercontinental ballistic missiles among 4,600 launch shelters in Utah and Nevada. Each missile would be shuffled among 23 launch sites to avoid detection by the Soviet Union. The New Mexico-Texas area is also being considered as a possible site.

White House spokesmen have said Reagan has reservations about a land-based MX, but has made no final decision. Administration spokesman David R. Gergen has said Reagan probably will decide within 30 to 45 days.

The lawsuit argues that the Utah-Nevada and Texas-New Mexico areas were chosen as MX sites before the completion of environmental studies as required by the National Environmental Policy Act and without consulting with state and local officials as required by the Federal Land Policy and Management Act.

The motion asks that the defendants be required to submit to the court for approval a schedule for preparing and distributing an environmental impact statement analyzing the effects of and alternatives to a land-based missile system. It also asks for a plan to guarantee that state and local officials are consulted in the MX planning process. The motion asks that the plans be submitted to the court within 45 days.

In addition, the injunction would require the defendants to halt design work and implementation of any MX deployment plan until after they comply with the plans approved by the court.

Vandals Strike Three Homes

Hereford Police report that three Hereford homes were vandalized over the weekend. Automobiles and sidewalks at the homes were painted with white and black shoe polish. Those vandalized were Gary Kreighauser of 226 Centre, Richard Layman of 216 Centre and Doug Barker of 235 Elm.

C.R. McGee, of 500 West First Street, advised police that someone stole his newspaper on Sunday morning, replacing it with an empty whiskey bottle.

John Alvarez, of 915 West Highway 60, advised that someone on Friday or Saturday someone broke into his 1979 Pontiac and stole some papers dealing with car ownership.

In addition, Hereford Police were kept busy this weekend with 25 traffic citations, 15 incident reports, three arrests for public intoxication, one arrest for DWI, and one minor traffic accident.

Robert Cox of 310 16th Street, reported Monday to Hereford Police that someone in the last two weeks someone took a tennis court net, valued at $117, from behind the high school. Police have no suspects at this time.

Andrea Flores of 110 Alamo Calle, advised that Monday at 11:30 p.m. she was having someone knock at her door then run.

Crown Auto Sales at 1315 East Park Ave. advised that sometime between Sunday and Monday someone had taken two wheel covers valued at $60.

Hereford Police also answered one minor accident in the alley between 15th Street and Willow Lane, had 14 non-offense reports, and issued five traffic citations Monday.

Vernon Hope of the Police Department advises that anyone having lost a bicycle should contact him at the police station. This includes bicycles that have been abandoned or lost.

In Insect War, They're Winning

The insect crisis in California has been confined to one county.

The fruit fly menace threatened mostly the 630 square miles south and east of San Francisco.

At the same time, another insect pest is spreading across the northeast — whole states at a time.

The gypsy moth caterpillar stripped more than 5 million acres of forests last year — will strip 9 million acres this year.

And there appears to be nothing we can do about it.

Leaf-eating gypsy moth caterpillars grow to 2½ inches long, distinguished by red and blue warts on their fuzzy backs.

They strip a mountainside in a week, take over picnic and camping places, destroy home plantings, foul residential areas.

Evergreens may die after one stripping; hardwoods after a few.

And we've already had more than a few in Pennsylvania and New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut, Vermont and New Hampshire and Maine.

Over Pennsylvania you can air witness enormous woodland acres denuded of all that's green. There will be no food for wildlife, no acorns for deer, no berries for birds. Laurel, oaks and apple trees — stripped. The hemlocks will not come back.

If California quakes and Florida hurricanes and Texas tornadoes get more attention — the annual dollar loss from all of these cannot compare to the relentless plague of gypsy moth caterpillars moving east to west across our nation.

They move with the wind. Newly hatched larvae drop from tree branches on silken threads which can be carried far by the slightest breeze.

Or the pest may spread itself farther by attaching itself to recreational vehicles and motor homes.

We're not doing nothing about it. More than 340,000 acres in five stricken states were sprayed this year. Federal and state officials are using insecticides, insect-growth regulators, a virus that seems promising, the release of sterile insects...

Nonetheless, defoliation was more severe this year than ever and is expected to increase for as far ahead as we can see into next year.

Exaggeration by the media and by some environmentalists has caused most of us to develop an immunity to the long-range remote threats to our health and safety.

But for those Americans who are in the front lines of this year's gypsy moth caterpillar invasion, the threat is immediate and terrifying.

And the gypsy moth caterpillars are hopping mountaintop to mountaintop as they move toward the rest of us.

At Wits End
BY ERMA BOMBECK

I could have predicted that men wouldn't stick with "handbags" in their wardrobe.

Oh sure, it looked wonderful, didn't it? Having a bag that held all those little notions close to you at all times, like a clean handkerchief, breath spray, car keys, money and comb.

I knew they'd get sick of it.

Handbags have been millstones around women's necks for years - banging against their hips like broken shutters.

I only knew of one woman who was born with a handbag: Queen Elizabeth. The birth was tricky because the purse would not turn and the handbag was born breach. The rest of us, however, received one when we were little girls. They usually had a chain on them and a picture of Donald Ducks or Snow White's castle.

They always had a shiny new penny in them. For some of us that's as good as it ever got. Whenever we put it down our mother would say, "Where's your purse?" That was to be the beginning of purse paranoia.

A woman learns early that a handbag is as much a part of her anatomy as any of the four major appendages. She carries it to the beach, the ski slopes, to church, to school, to her wedding and to picnics. It's the first words she utters to her children: "Get my purse." It's the last thing a policeman places on your chest at the scene of the accident. It's the only meaningful conversation she ever has with her husband: "Watch my purse."

Some women (who are into self-punishment and weekend flogging) also dedicate their lives to having a purse match something. Heaven forbid they should be caught with the red lizard shoes and the navy wet leather handbag at the same time.

I refuse to play that game. It's bad enough that since I have been able to balance myself, I have had to carry a purse around that has held everything from used nose tissue to a dead hamster awaiting a hero's burial...from plastic silverware to rubber bands...from road maps to laxatives...from footlets to batteries.

If you want to know the truth, I'd rather carry a sow's ear...than a silk purse!

Texas Folklife Festival Scheduled Early In August

At the tenth annual Texas Folklife Festival, August 6 through 9, you can take home a lot more than a souvenir, you can take home a skill.

The 15-acre grounds of the University of Texas Institute of Texan Cultures in downtown San Antonio becomes a giant, open-air schoolhouse as craftsmen become teachers and visitors, students. Each "class" teaches the how-to's of pioneer living, many with a distinctive ethnic flavor, from making your own lye soap to building a home of adobe.

Each of the 6000 participants from around the state enjoy the Festival because it is their chance to teach interested visitors about their craft. And many of these skills help save money as well as being enjoyable pastimes.

For example, you can save money on food by preparing staples at home. The San Antonio-Houston Loafers will show you how to bake "Depression" bread, made in a coffee can. And while the bread is hot, spread it with peanut butter or jelly that is all homemade.

O.T. Baker will demonstrate how to smoke meats and sausage at his smokehouse located on the "Back Forty" and Barbara Stall, a German descendent from Cuero will teach picking and preserving vegetables. Sauerkraut and wine-making will be taught by a group of Germans, noodle-making by the Wends, and tortilla-making in the Mexican Market. Most of the participants have been making their specialties for as long as they can remember, using methods and recipes passed down through the generations.

Not only can you learn to sew your own clothes and make quilts at the Festival, you can even learn to make your own fabric from the shearing of the sheep, to the spinning of the wool, to the dying of the yarn with natural dyes to finally weaving the yarn into fabric on a loom. It may take a while to learn, but it's free and it's fun.

Another useful skill in these days of high-priced housing is the technique of homebuilding. The dog-run, log cabin and the one-room schoolhouse on The Institute's grounds were built during previous Festivals with the help of visitors. This year, craftsmen will complete the log cabin's kitchen and in the process, demonstrate sawing logs and making mud mortar.

Adobe is another mud based homebuilding material and visitors can learn to make adobe bricks of clay, straw, manure, sand and gravel. A chimney-maker from Kountze will be constructing chimneys of cypress poles and bluejack Hardin County mud and a participant from Laredo will be teaching the art of roof thatching.

Other craftsmen will be teaching skills of furniture making, basket weaving, candle dipping, herbology, glassblowing, gun engraving, in all, more than 60 unique and enjoyable crafts.

In addition to crafts, the Texas Folklife Festival showcases entertainment, food, music and games from the some 32 ethnic groups who helped settle the state. Nine Festival stages continually feature talented performers and food booths offer more than a hundred selections of food - from Alsatian parisa to Yugoslavian raznji.

Tickets to the tenth Texas Folklife Festival are $4 for adults ($3.50 in advance), $1 for children and 13 and children under six are admitted free. Park and ride service is available from major shopping malls and a shuttle bus serves downtown parking lots. For more information write The Institute of Texan Cultures, P.O. Box 1226, San Antonio, Texas 78294; or call (512) 228-7651.

Ann Landers

What's Happening To Education

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If you, like many others, are wondering what is happening to education in this country, I can tell you. It is going to hell in a hand-basket.

This choice item is from The Critic—a Thomas More (Catholic) publication. The article quotes an ad for DePaul University from The Reader (a Chicago weekly). Among the mini-courses offered - and this is a college, mind you - are: Advanced ballroom dancing, aerobic exercise, cake decorating, camping and backpacking, country and Western dancing, horror film appreciation, massage, Mexican cooking, professional woman, self-hypnosis, stress reduction, survive your child's summer and Tai Chi.

That sound you hear is John Newman chasing St. Vincent DePaul around heaven.—Ashamed Of Us

DEAR ASHAMED: I always felt my education was incomplete because I didn't graduate from college. Now that I see what I missed, I feel more inadequate than ever. Maybe I'll sign up for a summer course in cake decorating. This column might not last, and it might not be a bad idea to have something to fall back on.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My father-in-law—I'll call him Bill—is an elder in the church, well thought of in the community and considered a fine family man.

Yesterday Bill came to the house (he and his wife live nearby) to thank me for a small favor I had done. He asked if my husband was home. When I said no, he put his arms around me and gave me a passionate kiss. I pulled away as quickly as I could, truly in a state of shock. One of my children was calling me from outside, so I quickly shoved Bill aside and ran out of the house. He shouted after me, "Now keep that to yourself, Honey." I was so furious I wanted to slap his face, but I managed to control myself.

As soon as he left I went to the bathroom and threw up. I never want that man to come in this house again unless my husband or his wife is here. How can I manage this? I would never tell anyone about this incident. It would be ruinous if these facts ever got out. Please tell me how to protect myself from this cunning lecher.—No Signature, Nowhere, USA

DEAR NO SIG: If you act frightened and helpless, your father-in-law will continue to snatch a kiss and cop a feel. My advice is to tell him at the earliest opportunity that if he so much as puts a hand on you again, you will go directly to your husband with the news that you do not want his father in your home ever again. Then, keep your word.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I simply must say something to that woman who wrote to complain about her minister being a "cold fish". Please allow me, Ann.

Dear Lady: Your minister may indeed be devoid of emotion. There are misfits in every profession. If you have come to this conclusion because of some personal experience, you ought to go to another church. But please be fair. Do you really know him as a person? Have you observed the man under circumstances that have nothing to do with the pulpit? If not, perhaps you should give it a try. It might be worth the effort.—D.C. Reader

DEAR D.C.: Interesting point. Too often we decide someone is a cold fish when there has been no basis for an honest evaluation. Thanks for putting on my hat today.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Insomnia: Suffered By Fifty Million

You go to bed worrying about whether you'll be able to sleep that night. After a little while you start tossing and turning. Then, still not asleep, you worry about how tired you'll be tomorrow. By this time you're in a vicious cycle of worry and you have insomnia.

Nearly 50 million Americans have some trouble falling asleep, says the Texas Medical Association (TMA). There's a lot you can do without taking any kind of drug to help get the sleep you need.

Establish certain nighttime habits that will put you on a regular sleep schedule and help you relax. Go to bed the same time each night. Cultivate a nightly routine before bedtime, which may include reading a chapter of a book, or working on a relaxing hobby.

Some people find exercise beneficial in burning off excess energy. This is a fine idea, but don't exercise right before bedtime. The effect can be more stimulating than relaxing.

Avoid drinking anything with caffeine in it after mid-afternoon. This includes coffee, tea, cola drinks or cocoa.

Food Poisoning In Potato Salad Is Frequent In Summer

Aunt Tillie may make the best fried chicken and potato salad in seven counties, but if she isn't a careful cook, the family reunion may be something less than a gastronomic delight. Food poisoning from dishes such as potato salad is a frequent occurrence in the summer months.

One of the most common causes of food poisoning is Salmonella, a little one-celled bacterial organism that may be found in all kinds of food, particularly raw meat, poultry, eggs, milk, fish and products made from them. Salmonella germs are killed by thorough cooking, but if conditions are right they may find the proper environment to grow, right in Aunt Tillie's salad.

This is how it could happen: First Aunt Tillie cut up the fresh chicken on her cutting board. While the chicken was frying, she cut up the cooked potatoes for the salad - but she didn't wash the knife and cutting board. Salmonella left on the board and on the knife from the raw chicken ended up in Aunt Tillie's potato salad. While the food stood in the sun on the picnic table, waiting for the party to begin, the Salmonella germs incubated in the warm mixture and multiplied rapidly to the level that caused food poisoning.

Symptoms of Salmonella food poisoning are fever, headache, diarrhea, abdominal discomfort, and occasionally vomiting. These appear within 24 hours after eating contaminated food. Most people recover in 2 to 4 days. Children under 4, elderly people, and people already weakened by disease could become seriously ill.

The moral of the story, says the Food and Drug Administration, is to take care when preparing foods for summer picnics. Be sure to thoroughly cook those foods that need to be cooked. Clean cutting boards and utensils between uses, especially if you have been cutting poultry or meat. Refrigerate foods that are to be eaten cold until they are served. Don't leave leftovers setting on the table. Put them in the refrigerator if they are to be kept for another meal. Cooked leftovers should be heated thoroughly before they are served the next time around.

Pets are another source of Salmonella germs. FDA warns. They should be kept out of areas where food is being prepared and cooks who have occasion to touch them should wash their hands before handling food.

For more information about food poisoning, contact your nearest Food and Drug Administration Consumer Affairs Officer at 500 S. Ervay, Suite 470-B, Dallas, Texas 75201.

Elderly Will Receive Assistance From HEAP

To help relieve the harsh effects of the Texas summer heat on elderly persons, low-income families with members age 65 or older may apply for financial aid to help pay their summer cooling costs.

Under the Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP), households eligible by reason of low income and containing at least one person 65 or older may qualify for one-time payments that will range from $91 to $114. The cooling assistance announcement was made today by Marlin W. Johnston, commissioner of the Texas Department of Human Resources (TDHR) which is administering the program.

Some elderly Texans will receive the cooling assistance automatically. These are people already receiving benefits from Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Food Stamps, or Supplemental Security Income.

Other low-income households which do not receive the automatic payment will be required to apply HEAP benefits during an application period from August 3 through August 31. A face-to-face interview is required for certification, as is verification of household income.

Johnston said the following guidelines can be used in determining if an elderly member of a household is eligible for the federally-funded cooling assistance:

A household's resources cannot exceed $1,800 for one person or $3,000 for more than one person. The value of the homestead, cars, personal and household belongings will not be considered as resources. Household gross monthly income cannot be more than the following figures for eligibility:

Numbers of people in household, in parentheses, precede income limits: (1 person) - $296.49; (2 persons) - $446.49; (3 persons) - $613.49; (4 persons) - $756.49; (5 persons) - $893.49; (6 persons) - $1044.49; (7 persons) - $1195.49.

Each county in Texas will have a designated location for households to apply for energy assistance. These locations may be determined by calling the local office of the Texas Department of Human Resources. If there is not a local TDHR office in a particular county, an applicant should contact the nearest TDHR office or any local organization serving the elderly to inquire about the arrangements for that particular county. If certified as eligible for the assistance, applicants should receive their payments within 20 to 30 days.

A baby shower for Gladys Cavness? Members of the Hustler organization surprised Gladys with a "shower" at the group's recent meeting, after she had mailed cards to the members to remind them of the monthly meeting and added that she had "a very important announcement to make." Mrs. Cavness reportedly stated, "If it wasn't for the honor, I'd just as soon not be president of such a weird group!"

Press Barred From Hearing

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Claiming the public "would not understand" many of the decisions that might be made, a state district judge barred reporters from attending a pre-trial hearing in a bank civil suit.

Acting on a motion by a lawyer for the bank's directors, visiting Judge Marcus Vasconcelos of Longview ordered everyone but parties to the suit out of the courtroom.

The Lufkin News was unsuccessful in legal efforts to gain access to the day-long hearing.

The hearing concerned a suit filed by three minority stockholders for Texas National Bank of Lufkin against five bank directors, claiming they usurped the bank board's authority.

The ruling barring the press came on a motion by Houston lawyer Jim McBride, representing TNB directors B. H. McVickers, Larry Risinger, R.M. Shumaker, Robert Dollak and Juanita Spencer.

The Lufkin News later obtained a copy of the motion, which said the hearing involved "sensitive and confidential matters, impinging upon the operation and reputation" of the bank.

The judge reaffirmed his decision after a Roger Moss, a lawyer representing the newspaper, argued that the hearing should be open.

The paper's position was that, because Texas National is a banking institution which affects the financial interests of many in the county, the public has a right to know about what happens in a pre-trial hearing, Moss said.

Game Set for Sunday

All-Star Interest High

CLEVELAND (AP) — The annual three-day midsummer celebration has been pared to two days, but planners say interest in this Sunday's All-Star Game equals or possibly exceeds what was expected for the July 14 affair, postponed because of the players' strike.

"Media requests are heavy," said Bob DiBascio, spokesman for the host Cleveland Indians. "I'd say we'll have at least as many reporters here for this game, and maybe more than we expected for the first one."

The game in 76,685-seat Municipal Stadium is still not a sellout, with several hundred tickets available.

But while a few refunds have been granted to July 14 ticket-holders who will be unable to attend on the re-scheduled date, "People are grabbing those up as fast as they come in," DiBascio said.

As interest in the game picked up, another problem arose Monday for All-Star planners already facing difficulties with groundskeeping, booked-up hotels and revised requests for press credentials.

The strike by air traffic controllers cut sharply into commercial air traffic and forced baseball officials to begin considering alternative ways of bringing players to Cleveland.

"We would hope that cooler heads prevail and that they settle this in a day or so," Vince Naus, a spokesman for baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, said of the air strike. "Obviously, we are monitoring the situation closely."

Naus, though, did not believe the All-Star Game was seriously threatened by the controllers strike.

"We don't exactly know where all the players will be coming from at this point," he said. "The two league offices will make the players' travel arrangements through the traveling secretaries of the various teams. We know the starters, but we don't know the rest of the teams yet."

Should the air strike continue, Naus said it is possible All-Star players would be brought to Cleveland on trains or buses.

"We will examine various alternatives. We can't chance having them fly in and then be stranded," he said.

If travel problems do not interfere, All-Star players were slated to work out at Cuyahoga Community College's west campus in suburban Parma on Saturday afternoon.

They are prevented from using Municipal Stadium that day because it will be set up for Saturday night's National Football League exhibition game between the Cleveland Browns and Pittsburgh Steelers.

Indians officials are concerned about possible overcrowding at the college field, which has only 300 bleacher seats and parking for 2,000 cars. Some portable bleachers were to be brought in, according to Indians President Gabe Paul.

Playing in Hall of Fame Game A Thrill for Minor Leaguers

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The only major leaguers around were oldtimers, retired and, for the most part, in the Hall of Fame. So the youngsters who bathed in the spotlight at Doubleday Field Monday provided the only game in town.

It was terrific baseball, too, as the Oneonta Yankees rallied to defeat the Elmira Red Sox 8-6 in a New York-Penn League Class A contest. Not one complaint was registered about the missing major league players, who are working out this week in preparation for reopening the season Monday after their 59-day walkout.

Normally, the Hall of Fame Game is an exhibition affair between a couple of major league teams. This year, after Bob Gibson, Johnny Mize and the late Rube Foster were inducted into baseball's shrine on Sunday, the Cincinnati Reds and Oakland A's were the scheduled participants. But the strike wiped that out.

"We scrapped that game a week ago," said Howard Talbot, director of the game. "We knew when the strike was imminent we'd have to find what to do."

"We contacted Oneonta and asked if they would move their Aug. 3 night game to Doubleday Field in lieu of the regular game. The proceeds, up to $2,500, went to the Yankees, and anything over $2,500 we would split the difference with them so that we could defray costs in planning for the regular game."

There were 3,229 fans at the game, about half the number the Reds and A's would have drawn. Probably the most thrilled people in the ancient ballpark were the players.

"It's a great honor to play in this game," said Oneonta second baseman Steve Scafa. "This is just my first year as a pro and right away I'm playing in a famous game like this."

"A few weeks ago someone mentioned it casually to us, and then it became a reality. The guys really are psyched about it and we all feel a little nervous," added Scafa as he warmed up before the game.

"We've played in some fields like this, but the grooming is the best I've seen. It looks like an Olympic stadium to me."

Art Mazmanian, who manages Oneonta, felt the spectre of playing in the Fame Game hurt his team last week.

"It affected us a little and we lost three of four to Little Falls," he said. "Our minds were not on what we were supposed to be doing."

"This is something they'll never forget, so how hard can you be on them if they look ahead? Heck, this park is no advantage to us because it's a hitter's field and the Red Sox are a power team. But it's worth it."

Yankees Headline American League All-Star Selections

NEW YORK (AP) — Four New York Yankees — outfielders Dave Winfield and Reggie Jackson, second baseman Willie Randolph and shortstop Bucky Dent — head the American League All-Star team announced today.

They will be joined in the AL starting lineup for Sunday night's game at Cleveland Stadium by first baseman Rod Carew of California, Kansas City third baseman George Brett, catcher Carlton Fisk of the Chicago White Sox and Baltimore outfielder Ken Singleton.

Earlier Monday, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced the starting lineup for the National League stars. It is headed by Philadelphia's Pete Rose, named at first base for a record fifth starting position.

Joining Rose in the NL infield are second baseman Davey Lopes of Los Angeles, Cincinnati shortstop Dave Concepcion and third baseman Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia.

In the outfield, the NL will have three sluggers — Cincinnati's George Foster, Dave Parker of Pittsburgh and Montreal's Andre Dawson. Gary Carter of Montreal was named the starting catcher.

Pitchers for both squads will be named Thursday and the reserves on the 30-man teams will be announced Friday.

The 52nd annual All-Star game, originally scheduled for July 14, will mark the return of major league baseball following a 50-day strike that ended last Friday.

The major league owners, who had been scheduled to meet today in Chicago to ratify the strike settlement and discuss plans for the remainder of the season, were forced to postpone the meeting because of the air traffic controllers walkout.

The owners will meet Thursday instead or, if necessary, talk via conference call.

Major league teams continued working out, preparing for the resumption of the regular season next Monday.

Richard Due to Pitch In Houston Exhibition Friday

HOUSTON (AP) — Just over a year ago, fireballing Houston Astros pitcher J.R. Richard lay near death in a hospital bed, the victim of a stroke.

Monday night, the 6-foot-8 right-hander threw about 100 batting practice pitches to teammates in a 15-minute display of reflexes that delighted his doctor and Astros General Manager Al Rosen.

Not bad for a man whose physicians thought he might be paralyzed forever — if he survived.

"When you got God, ain't nothing impossible," Richard said after the practice, held before an audience of about 1,000.

The 6-foot-8 fastballer collapsed on the field July 31, 1980, during a practice session. He had complained of a tired arm for several days.

Doctors operated twice to remove blockage in a blood vessel in the right side of Richard's neck.

A workout program which built up to two-a-day sessions during the recently concluded major league baseball strike has put Richard in good enough shape that he will pitch in Friday night's exhibition game with the Texas Rangers at Arlington Stadium.

Rosen said Richard, who is still on the disabled list, will probably pitch only an inning or two.

"I thought he threw very well," Rosen said. "Some pitches were way off, but that's just due to a lack of concentration. That happens during batting practice."

"I think he did fine," said Dr. William Fields, a neurologist who has been treating Richard.

Fields said he was especially pleased by what he saw on one ball that called on Richard's agility.

"That first ball hit went right at him, and he was out of the way right now," Fields said.

But the man behind the plate was more conservative in his assessment of Richard's performance. Batting practice catcher Strech Suba said Richard still tires easily.

"He gets to the point where he starts losing a little and it (the ball) starts to go all over," Suba said.

Chandler Sympathetic To Kuhn's Dilemma

An AP Sports Analysis
By WILL GRIMSLEY AP
Special Correspondent

In the continuing turbulent aftermath of the baseball strike, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has a strident defender in one of his predecessors, A.B. "Happy" Chandler.

"It's an outrage what they did to that man — a well-educated, decent and highly ethical man — and I'm afraid they're still out to get him," said the 83-year-old former commissioner, one-time U.S. senator and governor of Kentucky.

"They by-passed him in the recent strike, acted as if he didn't exist. It was a tragedy. I don't know of anything that happened in my lifetime that left me with a sicker feeling."

"If they now try to get rid of him, they will be treading on dangerous ground. The government might just decide to put the game under a federal commission. It's possible."

Chandler said he was distressed when owners, testifying in strike hearings, repeatedly disassociated themselves from the commissioner by insisting, "He doesn't speak for us."

"That was one of the worst things I ever heard," he said. "It was unjust, indecent. I don't like to second-guess the commissioner, whom I admire greatly, but if such a thing had happened to me, I can tell you the consequences would have been different."

"I would have got my hat and coat and told them they could take the job and stick it."

The "Governor," as they fondly refer to Chandler in the land of blue grass and thoroughbred race horses, could never be accused of running his office with a velvet glove.

He made strong decisions, playing no favorites between owners and players. He gave amnesty to major leaguers who jumped to the Mexican League during World War II. He suspended Leo Durocher indefinitely. He launched investigations of such influential owners as the Cardinals' Fred Saigh and the Yankees' Del Webb. He mandated that TV and radio monies from the All-Star game go to the players' pension fund.

With owners aligned against him 15-1 (the Dodgers' Branch Rickey representing the lone minority vote), Chandler mandated the break in the color barrier that opened the way for Jackie Robinson in 1947.

He was too headstrong and unyielding for the owners who, after plucking him out of the U.S. Senate in April 1945, forced him out of office in July 1951 at the All-Star Game in Detroit.

Saigh led the small faction that pulled the rug. Freddie Hutchinson immediately launched a crusade to have him made commissioner of the developing players' union. The players presented him a silver tray decorated with bats and balls on which were inscribed the words, "For Valuable Service to Baseball."

"It's my proudest possession," Chandler recalled in the telephone interview from his home.

It was signed by all 16 clubs and presented to me by a players' committee including Freddie Hutchinson, Ralph Kiner, Danny Littwhiler and Allie Reynolds."
