Wreck kills Cerda

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Sergio Cerda of 705 Second St. died at approximately 5:55 a.m. today when his bicycle was struck by a semi-truck on W. Highway 60.

According to O.K. Neal, Deaf Smith County coroner, Cerda was pronounced dead at the scene. He was 27 years old.

The accident marked the second fatal one in slightly more than two weeks involving a bicycle rider and truck. On Aug. 15, local resident Greg Black, 30, was killed southeast of Hereford while riding his bike through the intersection of Austin and Progressive roads.

According to Neal, who also serves as county justice of the peace, Cerda was on his way to work when the accident occurred. The young man was reportedly about 100 yards from where he would have turned off for his place of business, Cavines Packing Company Inc., located about one mile west of Hereford on the state road.

Cerda apparently veered from the right side of the road into the first lane, where a westbound semi-truck was approaching going the same direction. Driving the vehicle was Plainview resident David Carl Day, who was on his way to Friona, the coroner understood.

Neal said Day was apparently not seriously injured despite having been bumped around a bit in his truck.

On his way to work

Road conditions were dry at the time of the accident, Neal reported. It was still dark at that hour, however, which may have contributed to the mishap. It is thought Cerda had reflectors, though no lights, on his 10-speed bicycle.

According to information supplied by Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home, Cerda was born in Raymondsville on Oct. 7, 1956. He was married July 28, 1976 to Olga Reta in Las Cruces, N.M. They moved to Hereford five years ago from Raymondsville.

Cerda is survived by his wife, four daughters (Candy, Caryn, Cindy and Crystal), one son (Sergio Jr.), three brothers and three sisters. Services are pending with Gilliland-Watson, an agency spokesman said at 10:45 this morning.

In light of the two recent tragedies, Corporal Sammy Sanchez offered some suggestions for bicycle riders. "They've got to follow rules kind of like pedestrians," he said. "They have to look both ways and so forth."

Sanchez also stressed rules for bicyclists are the same as those for drivers. "People often don't realize that," he said.

Children are frequently seen doing dangerous things on their bikes, the corporal claimed. "A lot of kids are out there popping wheelies and so forth," he said. "That's very dangerous."

Laws specifically prohibit having two or more people on a bike designed for just one occupant, Sanchez pointed out. Also, riders must proceed in single file, not side-by-side as they tend to do when in pairs or groups.

All cyclists, the policeman said, should have reflectors on the front, rear and wheels of their machines. Bright clothing, reflective tape and lights are strongly suggested for those traveling in dim or no light.

"The more reflection they put on their bikes and clothing," Sanchez emphasized, "the better you can see them."

Sanchez produced a police handbook which has a rule saying, "A person operating a bicycle upon a roadway at less than the speed of the other traffic on the roadway at that time shall ride as near as practicable to the right curb or edge of the roadway."

Three exceptions are listed for that rule, the first when the rider is passing another vehicle going the same direction. He may also leave the extreme right side should he be preparing to turn left or a hazard on the road's right side prompts a move to the left.

Shuttle finally departs

Fourth attempt works

By HOWARD BENEDICT AP
Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — America's new shuttle Discovery finally soared into orbit today on its thrice-delayed maiden flight, carrying three communications satellites and a six-member crew that includes NASA's second woman astronaut and its first paying passenger.

After three frustrating postponements in two months and a last-minute wait to get two airplanes out of the way, Discovery lifted off into blue, cloudless skies on a mission critical to rebuilding the confidence of customers in the shuttle's commercial reliability.

Nine minutes after the fiery departure at 8:42 a.m., Mission Control in Houston reported the liftoff was perfect and Discovery was in orbit 184 miles high and streaking around the globe at 17,400 mph.

Also aboard is a drug factory that will manufacture a hormone whose identity has been kept a secret but which is said to be of potential benefit to millions.

"I know it's been kind of rough, turning this thing around ... and getting it ready to go again," commander Henry Hartsfield, 50, told the control center shortly before launch. "We're ready to go and we thank you for it."

The flight combines two missions into one as NASA struggles to get back on schedule and packs 24 tons of cargo, the heaviest yet for a shuttle.

Discovery's inaugural, the 12th shuttle flight, began almost seven minutes late because two private aircraft had penetrated the Kennedy Space Center airspace. One had to be chased away by a government plane.

With tens of thousands of spectators watching from the Kennedy Space Center and nearby beaches and highways, the blastoff culminated a countdown that was interrupted for 24 hours Tuesday night.

That halt was required because of an electronic malfunction that theoretically could have prevented the booster rockets and fuel tank from dropping off after they exhausted their fuel.

But a hastily redesigned computer program worked perfectly, and the twin boosters peeled away two minutes seven seconds into the flight to splash down in the Atlantic for retrieval.

Hartsfield, who flew on a shuttle two years ago, is joined by five first-time space fliers. They are pilot Michael Coats, 38; mission specialists Judy Resnik, 35, America's second woman astronaut; Steve Hawley, 32; and Richard Mullane, 38, and payload specialist Charles Walker, an industry engineer whose employer, McDonnell Douglas, paid NASA $80,000 for his training.

The crew's main job will be to deploy the three satellites for commercial customers, while Walker will operate the drug factory to produce the hormone in greater purity than is possible on Earth. Also aboard is a 10-story-tall solar sail that will be unfurled in a test of a device that may one day convert the sun's rays to electrical power for space stations.

The flight is to end Wednesday morning at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

A successful journey is vital to NASA, which must demonstrate to its commercial payload customers that the shuttle is a reliable space transportation system.

School, Labor Day safety tips given

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

The Texas Department of Public Safety has issued its annual reminder that the start of school can mean an increase in traffic accidents involving school buses and children.

"Most of these accidents," said Major Vernon Cawthon, regional commander out of Lubbock, "are caused by drivers who fail to follow safe operating procedures as well as laws pertaining to passing a stopped school bus."

Texas Department of Public Safety

State law requires drivers, on the same roadway as a school bus that has stopped to load or unload children, to stop and remain stopped until one of three things happen. The driver should not move until the bus driver has signaled him to do so, turned off the flashing red lights or put the school vehicle into motion.

This law applies whether the person is meeting the bus or following in the same direction, Cawthon reminded. It applies inside city limits as well as in the country. Any violators are subject to a fine up to $200.

Texas DPS officials also warn that while Labor Day is the last holiday of the summer for most, it may be the last holiday ever for some. Because of carelessness such as speeding, drinking before or while driving and not wearing seat belts, many will lose their lives during the long holiday weekend.

"At least 52 lives (in the state) were lost last year, and 56 percent of those were in one vehicle accidents," Cawthon reported. "Almost always, these one vehicle accidents are caused by the drinking driver or by speeding or a combination of both of these."

Cawthon said 3,823 persons were killed in traffic accidents in Texas last year, with 97.8 percent of the victims not wearing any type of restraining device. "If people would only use their seat belts, at least 25 percent of these deaths and possibly as much as 80 percent of the injuries could be prevented."

The drinking driver accounts for 55 percent of all fatal accidents in the United States, Cawthon pointed out. "If motorists would slow down and not drink and drive, more people would enjoy the Labor Day weekend."

DPS headquarters in Austin has estimated as many as 54 deaths will result from traffic accidents during the coming weekend. Director Jim Adams said the estimate is based upon previous holiday experience.

"Obviously, we would be pleased to have no fatal accidents during this 78-hour holiday," Adams said, "but our statistics show that is not probable. We know that some drivers will insist upon driving while intoxicated, others will deliberately exceed the speed limits and still others will drive in a careless or reckless manner. Unfortunately, fatal accidents can be expected."

"DWI and speeding are always the biggest contributing factors to our traffic deaths," Adams continued, "but the failure to use seat belts is another reason we have so many fatalities. If more drivers would simply stay sober, drive within the speed limits and wear seat belts, fatalities would decline still further."

Motor vehicle accident deaths are down 2 percent nationwide, according to DPS statistics. "While the decline in fatalities is not as substantial as we'd like to see," Adams commented, "we do feel that seat belt use is increasing and may be a factor in this decrease. It is an obvious lifesaving device that is available in the vast majority of our vehicles."

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says as election campaigns warm up, many candidates are standing for anything voters will fall for.

"I'll bet the time ain't far off when a woman won't know any more than a man." Will Rogers

When some school youngsters were asked what they would take with them if they were going to be marooned on a deserted island, one 11-year-old replied: "I'd like to have an American Express card and another boat."

Most of the attention of Texas taxpayers had been focused on the educational reforms, and not much has been written about the second part of the big tax bill.

Remember that a 5-cent a gallon increase in the motor fuel tax was supposed to help the Texas Highway Department bring our roads and highways up to snuff. Things are not always what they seem, according to State Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland. He says the whole thing was a "sham".

Craddick told a Lubbock newspaper that "the average person on the street has been duped." And State Rep. Jay Gibson of Odessa concurs. He says the highway funding over the next three years will be a "wash", or about the same as now.

The extra revenue from the fuel tax increase goes into the general fund, and the formula for dispensing those funds to the highway department has been changed—so that the department will realize very little additional money from the tax hike.

Ann Landers Call Unitarian

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to comment on the letter from the person who criticized you for "pushing God in your column." He said you were not respectful of the rights of atheists and agnostics.

I am an agnostic who is frank to admit that I am deeply envious of the true believers who view God as a personal friend. I have searched for such a relationship for many years and never found it.

I am a middle-aged male and very ill. From the time I was old enough to reason I hoped I would find God before I needed him. It didn't happen. I sometimes wonder if this void in my life is really the biblical hell. The alienation and aloneness I feel are indescribable.

So, dear Ann, please keep plugging God in your column. If you can help someone find Him you will have done a beautiful thing.—D.C.C. in Buffalo, N.Y.

Dear D.C.C.: Are you open to just one suggestion? Look in the phone book and call a Unitarian clergyman. Make an appointment and take this column with you. Let me know what happens. I am betting you will make the connection you have been searching for.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married 15 years to a man who has been a good husband and father, but my life with him has not been easy. He always has been the suspicious kind even though I was completely faithful and never gave him cause to be concerned about other men.

All my life I have bruised easily, but in the last few years it has gotten worse. The slightest bump will give me a black-and-blue mark—especially on my arms and legs. Every few days my husband will ask, "Where did THAT come from? Whoever the guy is, he must be pretty rough on you."

Yesterday, I collided with the vacuum sweeper. This morning there was a big purple bruise on my hip. At bedtime my husband had a lot to say on the subject. He went to bed angry.

Please check with your medical consultants and find out why I seem never to be without a black-and-blue mark. Do I have some illness?—Rhapsody In Blue, South Bend

Dear Bend: My medical consultants tell me that if you are in good health, the bruises are of no importance. They are caused by the breaking of tiny blood vessels. Some people's vessels break more easily than others. This tendency is an inherited trait.

Inform your physician of this little domestic problem and ask him if he will accept a call from your husband. The next time Mr. Adorable needles you about a bruise, suggest he call your doctor—and hand him the telephone number.

Dear Ann Landers: I am not educated, so please give me a definition of the unconscious I can understand.—Not To Smart In Oregon

Dear Oregon: Norman Lear gave the best definition I've ever heard. He said, "The unconscious slips you pieces of paper with answers on them and ideas come like letters that were dropped into the mailbox. One must keep the lines open to the unconscious and be there when the phone rings."

Are drugs OK if you learn how to control them? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2.00, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Polly Fisher
Adjust recipes

DEAR POLLY — Do you or any of your readers have recipes for using honey? Recently, my husband bought a stand of bees. Now we have eight quarts of honey and I'd like to be able to use it as a natural sweetener. Thanks for your help. — JANE

DEAR JANE — You don't need special recipes to use your honey. Simply substitute honey for white sugar and other sweeteners in your recipes.

Since honey has nearly twice the sweetening power of white sugar, start with half the measure called for in the recipe (for example, if the recipe calls for one cup sugar, try one-half cup honey). Increase the honey slightly if you find this is not sweet enough. Honey can be used in most baked goods, beverages, desserts and other sweetened foods. It does have its own special flavor, however, so be prepared for a different — although delicious! — flavor result.

One note of caution: Never feed honey to infants. Some honey contains a type of botulism spore that is harmless to older children and adults, but can cause severe illness in babies. Keep the honey for the older children and grown-ups! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Years ago, we used to put an egg into leftover mashed potatoes, add a little bit of flour and baking powder, put it into a greased cast-iron skillet, put it in the oven, and bake it. This was good with eggs, bacon, sausage or ham for breakfast. — S.K.

DEAR POLLY — Here's my method for fast and easy white sauce: Put two tablespoons cornstarch in a pan. Stir in two cups cold milk, making sure all the cornstarch is dissolved. Add four tablespoons margarine or butter, salt and pepper. Place over medium heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Cheese can be melted into this mixture if a cheese sauce is desired. — MILLIE

DEAR POLLY — To cut extra-fresh soft bread in thin slices, dip the knife in boiling water before slicing. Shake off the extra drops of water before slicing, to prevent soggy bread. — P.H.S.

DEAR POLLY — I no longer rely on the per-pound price when selecting the least expensive cut in the meat case. Instead, I figure out the price per serving. For example, I can serve my family of four a single meal with a whole three-pound chicken, but I can get away with a single pound of boneless chicken breasts to feed them, especially if I serve the breasts with a sauce or stir-fried with vegetables.

Recently, my store had whole chickens for 69 cents per pound and boneless breasts as a special for $1.89. With a whole chicken going for more than $2, the more "expensive" breasts were clearly the better buy for my family! — JANET

Staubach admires Hogeboom

DALLAS (AP) — Roger Staubach says he knows the pressure Gary Hogeboom is facing as the new No. 1 quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys.

"I was scared when Coach (Tom) Landry named me to replace Craig Morton," said Staubach. "It'll make you nervous and (take) some getting used to."

Staubach replaced Morton in 1971 and eventually led the Cowboys to two Super Bowl titles.

When Staubach retired five years ago, Danny White took his place but failed to win in three National Conference title games which would have placed the Cowboys in the Super Bowl.

"I guess you could say my taking over from Morton and Gary taking over from White are similar circumstances," Staubach said. "It's never easy. All I know is that when I got scared during a game I ran. I don't know what Hogeboom will do."

Staubach said he wasn't certain "the evidence justified" Hogeboom taking over.

"White is one of the top three quarterbacks in the NFL," Staubach said. "Maybe it was because he didn't get the Cowboys to the Super Bowl that did it. I call that the 'Super Bowl mentality' of Dallas."

The pressure to win the Super Bowl is probably greater in Dallas than any city in the National Football League, Staubach said.

"It's just not much of a season in Dallas if you don't win a championship," Staubach said.

"Look at how great a quarterback Don Meredith was," said Staubach. "If he had won the 'Ice Bowl' game with Green Bay in the late 1960s he might still be quarterbacking the team and winning championships."

Staubach, a fiery performer in his day, is an admirer of Hogeboom.

"I think Gary is a heckuva player," said Staubach. "He is unproven, but he is getting his chance now. I like him — he's a tough cookie."

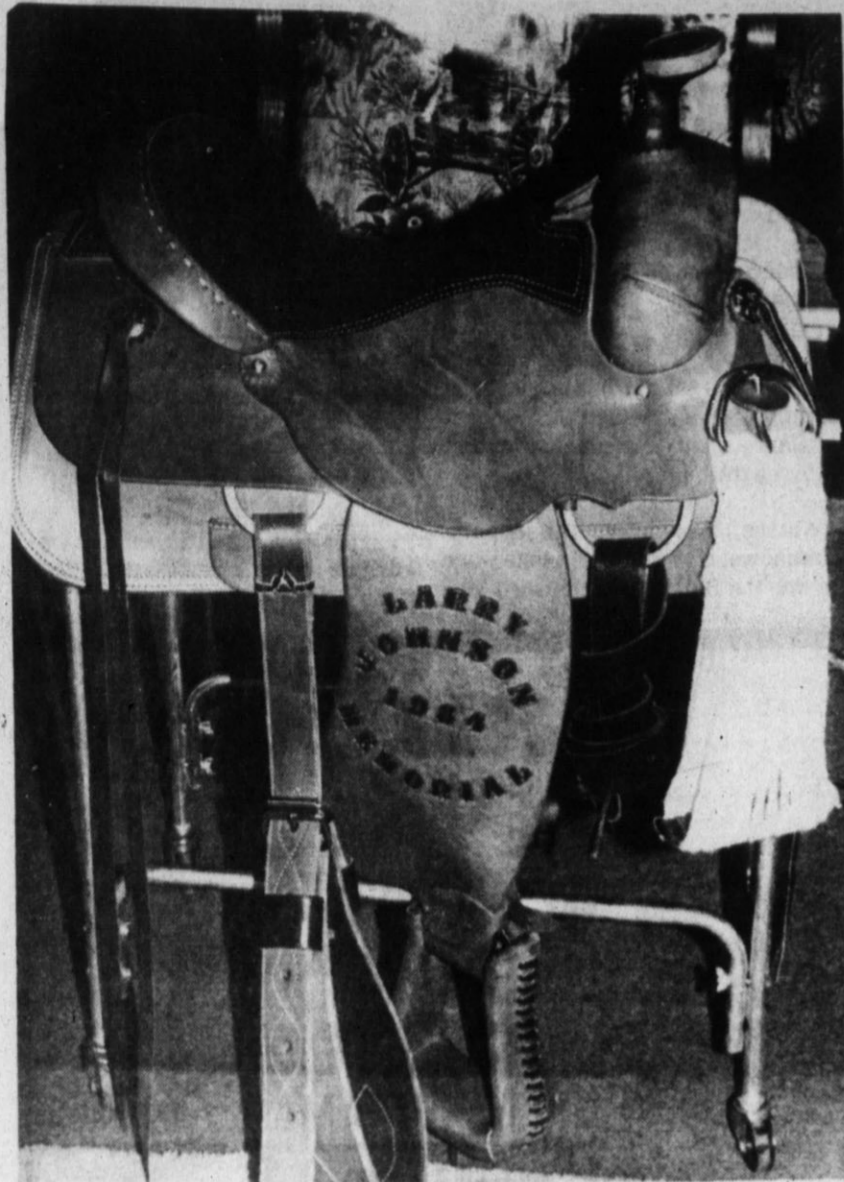

"Sometimes I was terrible for three quarters but could pull the game out," said Staubach. "They've got to give him a chance."

Staubach said he thinks it would be unfair to play Hogeboom just half of a game and expect results.

Staubach said he felt sorry for White.

"He has really got to be bewildered with as many games as he has won for the Cowboys," he said. "But this has been brewing for awhile. It always does when you don't win the Super Bowl in Dallas."

McEnroe can't look ahead

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — They like to talk about playing them "one match at a time." It's a cliché — but in John McEnroe's case, he takes it seriously.

McEnroe, the No. 1 men's seed in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships, says he can't afford to look too far down the road to a potential semifinal showdown with third-seeded Jimmy Connors.

"With this type of ball, which is relatively quick, it's a little bit tougher to play a big server — and (Sweden's Stefan) Edberg is a good server," McEnroe said Wednesday, looking ahead to his second-round opponent on Friday.

"That's the best part of his game and that's going to help him in the long run because he really has a different serve than a lot of people. ... I would have preferred to have a really easy draw to whatever round it may be, but it's just going to test me earlier."

McEnroe, ranked No. 1 in the world by the Atari-ATP Computer, was hardly tested in Wednesday's first-round match. He beat Colin Dowdeswell of Britain 6-1, 6-1, 6-1 while the unseeded Edberg, ranked 22nd, swept Larry Stefanki 6-4, 6-3, 6-0.

McEnroe wasn't the only highly seeded player to breeze to a straight-set victory Wednesday.

Connors, seeking to match McEnroe's mark of three consecutive U.S. Open victories, put away Matt Mitchell 6-3, 6-0, 6-2.

When was asked at a postmatch news conference whether he felt any undue pressure to maintain his U.S.

Open winning streak, Connors replied: "I haven't had pressure since you guys wrote me off five years ago."

Also Wednesday, No. 2 seed Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, the loser to Connors in the final each of the past two years, turned back Brian Teacher 6-4, 6-4, 7-5, and fourth-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden defeated Canada's Glenn Michibata 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Martina Navratilova, the No. 1 women's seed, likewise had an easy first round, beating Lea Antonoplis 6-4, 6-2, and No. 4 Pam Shriver blitzed Beverly Bowes 6-0, 6-1.

A third seeded woman was ousted as No. 11 Kathleen Horvath fell 7-6, 6-0 to Susan Mascarin.

The recurring themes sung by the top seeds through the first two days here have been: (a) playing a "nobody" can be deadly; and (b) it's nice to survive the first round.

"When I was young and I played the top players," Navratilova said,

Lewis, Smith

Raider backs injured

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech football coach Jerry Moore found Wednesday that trouble comes in twos after learning Red Raiders tailback Robert Lewis will miss a month of contact drills because of a fractured arm and tailback Timmy

Smith has a broken wrist. Lewis, the starter and the team's leading rusher with 750 yards last season, suffered the injury in a scrimmage Tuesday.

Trainer Ken Murray described the injury as a non-displaced fracture of the forearm. Lewis, a senior from Greenville, Texas, will be able to participate in all team drills except contact, Murray said, but he'll likely miss the season opener Sept. 15 against Texas-Arlington.

Smith, of Hobbs, N.M., had been a contender for the starting job in light of the Lewis injury but Murray said Wednesday that his broken left wrist, also suffered Tuesday, normally takes six weeks to heal.

YOU AUTO KNOW

Don Henslee

Q. My car is equipped with an oil pressure gauge and, for the first time since I've owned the car, the gauge is indicating oil pressure much higher than normal. I know what to do about low oil pressure, but this is new. Any suggestion as to where to look for problems?

A. First, look at the gauge to make sure it's functioning properly. If the gauge checks out, recheck to make sure you're using the correct type and weight oil for the engine. High pressure readings can result from using oil that's too heavy. Also, the oil pressure relief valve adjustment may be set too high or the valve may be stuck shut. This valve is incorporated within the oil pump. Also, it is possible the main oil passages on the pump's pressure side are clogged with sludge. But, as always, check the obvious first: The gauge itself and the oil weight and type.

DON'T KISS $8,938 GOODBYE

That's how much you could lose just on resale value if you don't buy a John Deere

Looking for a big discount when you buy a tractor? Don't get stuck with an even bigger discount when you want to trade.

Always consider resale value when you price a field tractor. Because the differences among brands may sometimes be bigger than ANY purchase incentive.

Compare John Deere with our two leading competitors. According to the Spring 1984 Official Guide of the National Farm and Power Equipment Dealers Association, the average 5-year-old John Deere 4440 sells for 106 percent of its 1979 list price. One leading competitor averages 87 percent of its 1979 list price. The other averages 73 percent.

What's that mean in dollars? Add the John Deere gain on original price to the competitor's loss. The John Deere advantage is as much as $8,938!

Is this only true of one model? No. Every 40 Series 90- to 180-hp tractor has an average resale price that's higher than its new price five years ago.

Is resale your only John Deere advantage? No. Don't forget the remarkable fuel efficiency of today's 50 Series John Deere Tractors. And don't forget our unmatched reputation for high quality and high reliability. See your John Deere dealer. He'll be happy to explain the big difference between a low-price tractor and a low-cost John Deere: 100-hp 4050, 120-hp 4250, 140-hp 4450, 165-hp 4650 or 190-hp 4850.

NOTE: Average resale prices taken from Spring 1984 Official Guide of The National Farm and Power Equipment Dealers Association.

Olympians urged to turn professional

By MARV SCHNEIDER AP Sports Writer

They've got the gold, now they go for the green.

The promoters are breaking up the U.S. Olympic boxing team, which captured a record nine gold medals at the Los Angeles Games. Fancy contracts and dreams of fabulous wealth are being promised the fighters who until now have sweated and bled for medals, trophies and glory.

The response is understandably receptive and certainly not unexpected. It happens every time. Olympic teams of the past have supplied professional boxing with the likes of Muhammad Ali, Joe Frazier, Floyd Patterson, Sugar Ray Leonard, and the Spinks brothers, Michael and Leon, among others.

Most did very well at their profession.

Now, comes the class of 1984. Steve McCrory and Frank Tate are the first to graduate publicly — their first professional fights were announced on Wednesday.

Others have signed and the promoters are waiting only for a propitious moment for the announcements.

The most glamorous of the crop is Mark Breland, the 147-pound champion, being guided along the road to big money by Shelly Finkel, who made his mark and fortune with rock concerts and television.

Breland's first pro fight is being saved for mid-November, at Madison Square Garden, as part of a television extravaganza for which a network is said to have committed seven figures.

McCrory and Tate will get quite a bit less when they debut at Madison Square Garden on Oct. 19, but Tate could make a fortune before he's through. He will fight as a middleweight. McCrory will start off as a flyweight, down at the bottom of boxing's price list.

Putt-off necessary to decide winners

It took a four-man team three extra holes in a sudden-death putt-off Wednesday night to win the weekly scramble at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course, the final such scramble tournament of 1984.

George Ochs, Bill Davis, Bartley Dowell and Joe Saucedo fired a 29 in regulation play. However, another 6-under score was turned in by the team of Elmore Rains, Kirk Procter, Dave Workman and Bob Blankenship to force a playoff.

In the putt-off, both teams two-putted two holes. On the third hole, Bill Davis sank a 21-foot putt to give his team the victory.

Fifty-three golfers took part in Wednesday's event.

Course professional Mike Horton said next year's scrambles would begin about May 15.

Golfers' Association tour event has ever had to a repeat champion.

But second place four strokes behind Pat Lindsey was not another title, and the 38-year-old Oklahoman is hoping for a faster start this year in the $300,000 tournament.

A total of 140 pros tee off today in the first round of the 72-hole event on the par-71 En-Joie Golf Club course.

Seven of them — 1974 champion Richie Karl, Morgan, and 1979 through 1983 winners Howard Twitty, Don Pooley, Jay Haas, Calvin Peete and Lindsey — have a shot at repeating.

Morgan, however, has the best year-in, year-out record on the 6,966-yard course.

"I'd like to shoot low rounds every day and not have to rely on a 65 round (the last day)," Morgan said Wednesday. "You need to have a chance to stay in contention coming down the last nine holes."

In 1983, Morgan started the final day five shots behind Lindsey, who blew away the field with 64-65 scores on Friday and Saturday. Morgan shot a 4-under 67, but Lindsey had another strong round of 68 to stay out of range.

Morgan ranks 10th on the current money list with $276,248 but is still looking for his first title this year.

He thinks the reason for his strong play here is the tight, narrow layout of the public course, which favors accuracy and does not always reward long hitters. With the greens slow and tricky after days of rain, 10-under might be enough to win, he said.

Morgan is a perennial favorite here, but this year he has to share the attention with another B.C. Open regular — Denis Watson, the hottest golfer on the tour.

Watson, 28, a native of Salisbury, Zimbabwe, is coming off a tear when he won the Buick Open, finished 33rd at the PGA Championship and won the World Series of Golf on successive weekends.

Jim Palmer, recently retired pitcher for the Baltimore Orioles, won the Cy Young Award three times and was a 20-game winner seven times.

Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees ranks sixth among baseball's all-time home run hitters with 536 round-trippers.

Mets attempt to keep pace

AP Sports Writer
Keith Hernandez had seen the scoreboard and realized the New York Mets needed another victory to keep pace with the high-flying Chicago Cubs.

"With Chicago winning the way they have, the gun barrel has been pointed right between our eyes," said Hernandez, whose double in the bottom of the ninth inning gave the Mets a 3-2 victory Wednesday night over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Cubs had beaten Cincinnati 7-2 earlier in the day for their fourth consecutive victory, and the Mets had to match that streak just to stay within 5½ games in the National League East. They had the right man in the right place at the right time.

Hernandez, whose hit produced his 16th game-winning RBI to tie him with George Hendrick of St. Louis for the league lead, rifled a double into the left-field corner to score Danny Heep.

"This team's got guts," Hernandez continued. "We've risen to the occasion all year."

The latest victory, which gave the Mets a sweep of their three-game series with the Dodgers and a 9-3 edge for the season against Los Angeles, was a textbook example of clutch hitting.

First, with the score tied 1-1 in the seventh, Rusty Staub, with only one pinch hit in his last 22 appearances, doubled to score Mookie Wilson, whose hustle had just turned a routine single to right field into a double.

Then Heep, hitless in his last 19 at-bats as a pinch hitter, started the ninth against Pat Zachry, 5-4, with a bad-hop single. He scored all the way from first on the gamer by Hernandez.

Cubs 7, Reds 2
Chicago won for the ninth time in 11 games with Leon Durham leading the way with a home run, a single and three runs batted in. Bob Dernier broke an 0-for-20 slump with a homer that started a four-run third inning to give Rick Sutcliffe his 11th straight victory. He has a 13-1 NL record since coming over from Cleveland June 13.

Padres 2, Phillies 0
Mark Thurmond's three-hitter cooled off Philadelphia, which had scored 30 runs in three games and 63 in the last eight. Thurmond, 11-7, who fanned two and walked one, retired the first 11 batters. Loser John Denny, 6-5, limited San Diego to just four hits in eight innings.

"When you get away with shutting these guys out anytime, anywhere, anyhow, that's something," Thurmond said.

Cardinals 10, Braves 6
Willie McGee drove in four runs, three with a bloop double in the fourth inning and another in a five-run eighth as St. Louis whipped error-prone Atlanta. Trailing 6-5 in the eighth, the Cardinals used three hits and errors by pitcher Donnie Moore and second baseman Jerry Royster to spark their outburst.

"We hit some high choppers, for a muddy field," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said of the eighth inning in Atlanta. "If we'd been on Astro turf, they would have been doubles."

Giants 4, Expos 3
Catcher Bob Brenly hit the first inside-the-park home run of his major-league career as San Francisco handed Montreal its sixth straight loss, all by one run.

"My feeling coming around third base was 'I hope I don't have a heart attack,'" Brenly said of his 19th homer. "I didn't have enough left in me for a pretty slide, so I kind of tumbled across home plate."

Pirates 4, Astros 2
Winning pitcher Don Robinson's RBI single in the ninth inning scored Marvell Wynne to lead Pittsburgh over Houston.

Wynne started the inning with a single and was sacrificed to second before Robinson, 3-5, singled to make a loser of Frank DiPino, 4-7.

Red Sox 4, Twins 0
What a difference a division makes.

The Boston Red Sox beat the Minnesota Twins 4-0 Wednesday night, leaving both teams with 69-63 records.

The Twins are leading the American League West by three games. The Red Sox are fifth in the AL East, a whopping 17½ games behind Detroit.

Mariners 5, Tigers 1
Rookie Mark Langston took over the AL strikeout lead while bedazzling Detroit with a two-hitter. The left-hander fanned 12 Tigers, boosting his strikeout total to 167, three ahead of California's Mike Witt.

White Sox 8, Blue Jays 5
Greg Luzinski helped himself and his Chicago teammates get out of a power slump.

Luzinski, Carlton Fisk and Scott Fletcher each hit solo home runs as the White Sox scored as many as eight runs in a game for the first time since July 18 when they beat Detroit 10-6. All three home runs led off innings.

Royals 4, Rangers 1
Hal McRae homered and doubled as Kansas City continued its hex over Frank Tanana.

Tanana, 14-12, had won five straight decisions for Texas, but lasted just seven innings as his career record against the Royals sunk to 6-18.

Angels 7, Orioles 5
It was a home run derby at Anaheim Stadium, where consecutive solo homers by Fred Lynn and Brian Downing with two out in the eighth won it for the Angels.

Yankees 4, A's 1
Rookie Mike Pagliaro and Ken Griffey hit solo home runs to lift New York in Oakland. Pagliaro and Willie Randolph each had three hits for the Yankees.

John Montefusco, 2-2, got the victory by allowing only four hits over 6 1-3 innings.

Oakland shortstop Tony Phillips made an error on what could have been an inning-ending double play in the fourth, paving the way to New York's first two runs.

Indians 5, Brewers 2
Cleveland is in sixth place in the AL East, and has won just 60 games. But the Indians can beat Milwaukee, which is in last place.

Joe Carter's RBI double sparked a three-run outburst that broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning and carried the visiting Indians to their sixth straight victory over the Brewers.

In 1945 the Washington Senators hit only one home run all season long at their home park, Griffith Stadium. It was an inside-the-park homer by Joe Kuhel.

Champ to defend title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Tim Witherspoon says he'll be a flashier fighter Friday night when he makes the first defense of his World Boxing Council heavyweight crown against Pinklon Thomas.

"People are going to get a little more excitement from Tim Witherspoon this time than before," Witherspoon promised. "I'm going to throw a lot of punches, more than I ever have before."

Witherspoon, still upset over the size of his purse — $450,000 — and what he expects to take home from it — about $50,000, says he realizes he must show more in the ring if he ever wants to get the million dollar-plus fights that have gone to other, flashier boxers.

"I'm doing what the (television) networks want to see me do — throw more punches," he said. "After they see how fast I am and how loose I am, they are going to be convinced."

Witherspoon threatened Tuesday to pull out of the title contest because of the relatively small sum he says he will wind up with after paying expenses and taxes and the 50 percent promoter Don King's son, Carl, takes off the purse under his contract as his manager.

'Adam Smith's Money World' premieres

NEW YORK (AP) — Once there was a connection between missing anchovies and the price of grain, and Adam Smith knew about it. Smith — not the 18th century British economist, but George J.W. Goodman, the American writer who borrowed the name in 1966 — probably didn't discover the relationship, and certainly wasn't the only one aware of it. But it does illustrate the way he thinks. Smith described the chain of unlikely circumstances involving Peruvian fishermen, European cattlemen, American grain dealers and the Russians in "Paper Money," the most recent of his three best-sellers on global economics. Now, he's taking his unique brand of journalism to television in a weekly series called "Adam Smith's Money World," and, he says, it's not easy. "It's hard, because you have to convert what is abstract information into something that is visual," Smith said. The weekly, half-hour series premieres Sunday night on many public television stations. Goodman, a Harvard graduate, wrote a novel instead of a Ph.D. thesis that was published as "The Bubble Makers." He worked on Wall Street, first as a magazine editor, then as a securities analyst and fund manager, and continued to write fiction. He took his pseudonym — and we'll call him that from now on — for a column in the New Yorker magazine that first appeared in 1966. "Adam Smith's Money World" is his first up-to-the-neck involvement in TV, and he says the objective of the show will be to keep the focus as current as possible. "I used a phrase in 'Supermoney' that's quite old now," he said, referring to the book he wrote in 1972. "It came from the days when the British owned almost everything, including Moscow Power & Light. They would get these reports from all over the world on the weekend, and ask themselves, 'What do we do Monday morning?' "I want the show to have that feeling," he said. "We will try to give the people information to start the new week. What can you do with what you now know?" That's the basis for what Smith calls a "Big Picture-What If?" format. Each program will begin with a background piece explaining and updating the issue, followed by a studio discussion on the same topic: "What if the economic boom turns to bust?" Or, "What if the price of oil falls to $15 a barrel?" The "Big Picture" portion of the program will try to illustrate the abstraction. "That's the hard part," Smith said, "because these are the kinds of things that will make your eyes glaze over. If you give them the option of watching the Olympics or watching the deficit, most people will take the Olympics. I would. "Why should more than three people watch this show?" he asked. "Well, everybody interacts with the economy every day. You and it have things to do with one another, whether you want to or not. So my job is to illustrate the connections that people don't see — like the anchovies and the price of grain."

Detroit could have big impact

NEW YORK (AP) — It isn't quite true that as autos go so go the rest of the big union-management negotiations, but what happens in Detroit this month could have a big impact on them.

It could also have a sizeable impact on the general economy over the next few years, as unions seek to regain during prosperity what they lost during the recession.

Closely watching the auto talks are more than 1.5 million union workers in basic industries whose agreements run out over the next two years. Among them: 300,000 truckers in March and 130,000 electrical machinery workers next June.

Many of the industries and workers who will be negotiating new contracts have their own problems, from imports to the future of unions themselves. But all share a common concern too, best expressed in a question:

Will bargaining and agreements revert to the pre-recession style, when unions demanded and industries acquiesced in settlements so large they often turned out to be inflationary?

Even before the recession, considered the worst in more than three decades and by some measures the deepest since the Great Depression of the 1930s, many industry officials complained loudly about the size of union demands.

They talked, and then they signed, and among the signers were officials of the automotive industry, confident that they could pass on higher costs to the public. The public rebelled. The economy rebelled too.

The public rebelled by purchasing smaller cars, a rising number of them imported. The economy rebelled with inflation; many of the union-management deals erased productivity gains, the best defense against rising prices.

Both management and unions got the message.

Management, especially in the automotive industry, was finally pushed into cutting overhead. The efficiency experts sought savings with an intensity that industry hadn't seen since the years immediately after World War II.

By no means was the inefficiency all blue collar. White-collar staffs were cut by the thousands, along with announcements that the cuts were permanent rather than temporary expedients. Robots and other creatures of automation and modern electronics were introduced into assembly lines.

The mood of management was that if efficiency was to be improved, it was now or never. To the surprise of some, unions agreed, reasoning that a weak industry meant job insecurity. In the new environment, big demands were seen as weakening the company, and union give-ups became a way of saving jobs.

Leader calls for debate

The brewing of beer is recorded as far back as 6,000 years ago.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A leader in the Southern Baptist conservative movement has called for a debate on biblical interpretations raised by a seminary president.

Dr. Paige Patterson, of Dallas, one of the two main organizers of the inerrancy movement within the Southern Baptist Convention, issued the debate challenge in response to a "holy war" declared against the movement.

Dr. Roy Lee Honeycutt, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary here, said Tuesday he called a "holy war" because of "my conviction that unholy forces are at work in our midst — forces which, if left unchecked, will destroy the essential qualities of both our convention and this seminary."

He said fundamentalists were destroying the denomination's heritage.

Patterson, president of the Criswell Institute of Biblical Studies and associate pastor of First Baptist Church in Dallas, asked for the debate after hearing Honeycutt's charges.

"I would love to meet him at a neutral site in a public debate to discuss these questions, with the secular press present," Patterson said.

Honeycutt said he won't debate but proposed a conference at which the two groups would present their positions in scholarly papers.

Honeycutt, in his third year as president, said Tuesday during at the seminary's 125th convocation, that the fundamentalists are "seeking to hijack the Southern Baptist Convention."

The Louisville seminary, the oldest Southern Baptist institution, has been a target of fundamentalists, who declared in 1979 that they would take over the convention's presidency and its institutions in 10 years.

His address, he said afterward, was the first effort to replace the Rev. Charles Stanley, a fundamentalist elected in June, with a moderate president at the next convention in Dallas.

The fundamentalists believe in biblical inerrancy, which is the belief that the Bible's original texts were without error.

Patterson said he did not rule out taking part in the consultation suggested by Honeycutt, but he said scholars talking to scholars would not resolve anything "as far as the grass-roots people are concerned."
