Hereford Grain object of civil suit

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

For chemicals in creek

Based on the results of an investigation by the Texas Department of Water Resources, the Texas Attorney General's office has taken legal action against Hereford Grain Corporation.

According to a civil suit filed Friday in 222nd District Court, the local business violated several state environmental acts by allowing the discharge of agricultural chemicals into Tierra Blanca Creek.

The DWR became aware of the situation after an employee of the Municipal Golf Course last spring found empty chemical containers near the creek.

According to the suit, the DWR investigation revealed that herbicide discharges flowed from Hereford grain Corporation "under a railroad track, down a stormwater ditch and into Tierra Blanca Creek adjacent to the Pitman Municipal Golf Course."

The herbicides, said the department, included Atrazine, Propazine, Sinazine, Stomp, Treflan and MCPA.

The discharges, the attorney general claims, are in violation of the Texas Water Quality Act, the Texas water code and the Texas Solid Waste Disposal Act.

The suit is asking for injunctive relief that would restrain the company from permitting any further violations of the aforementioned acts, and requests that the defendant be required to clean up the soil contaminated with herbicides. The court is also asked to require that Hereford Grain replant trees, shrubs and grasses damaged or destroyed by the discharges.

In addition to injunctive relief, the attorney general is seeking civil penalties "in the maximum amount of $1,000 for each and every day and act of violation."

The DWR, in asking the attorney general to pursue the matter, described the soil along the creek as having "high concentrations" of the chemical.

Incentives offered to students

By O.G. NIEMAN
Publisher-Editor

For attending classes in October

Students in the Hereford Independent School District will have some special incentives for perfect attendance during the month of October, it was revealed this week by Supt. Harrell Holder.

Elementary students will receive ice cream treats each Friday if they attend all five days of the week. Junior high and high school students who attend all of the week will be eligible for drawings for a stereo radio receiver, and there will be other incentives for perfect attendance all month.

The HISD promotion is in response to changes in the method of funding school districts, according to Mal Manchee, curriculum coordinator. The funding is based on average daily attendance (ADA) and, in the past, was based on the entire school year.

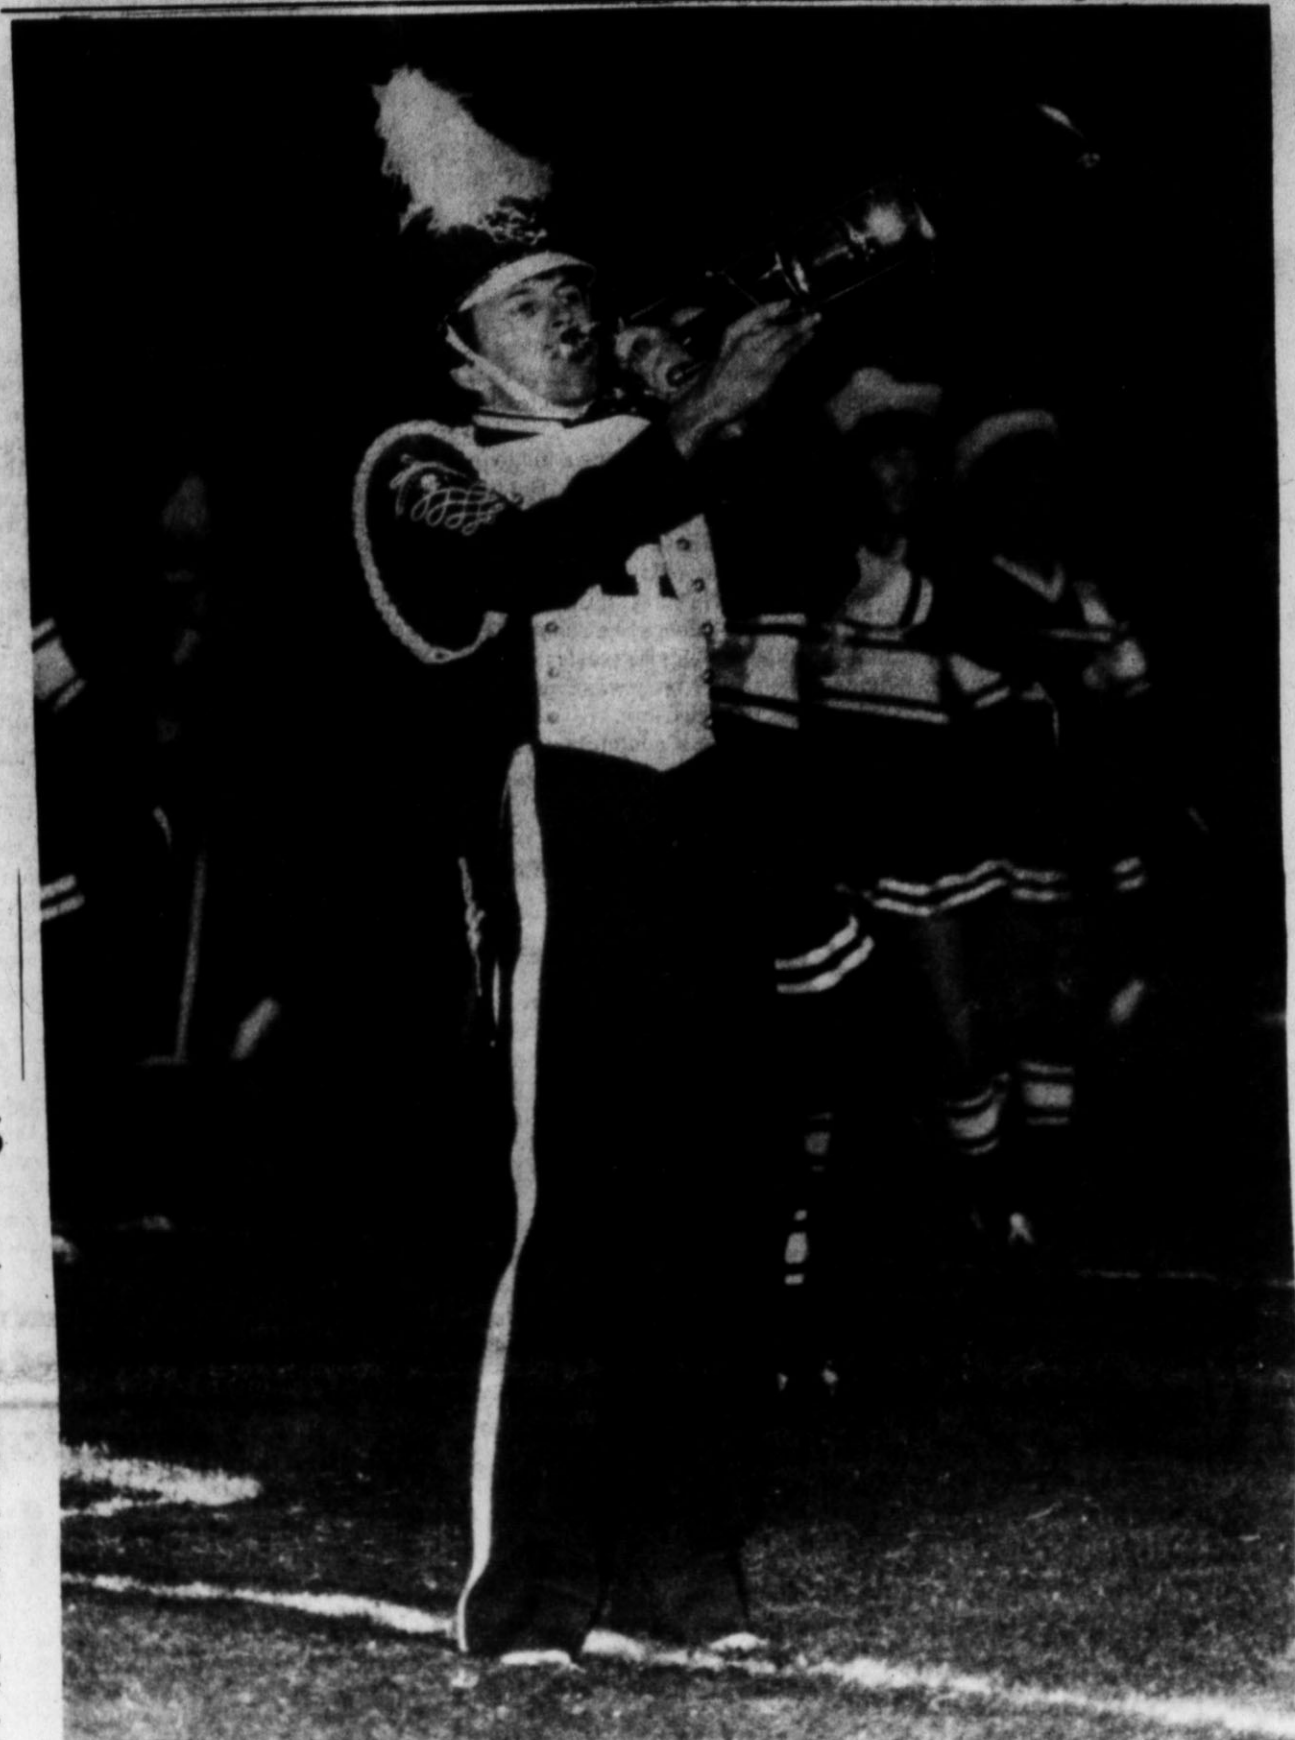

This school year the funding base was changed to count two of the six 6-week periods. The first of these is in October and the other will be in the spring. Manchee said the ADA for the Hereford district has been around the 95 percent mark.

"For each one percent increase we have in ADA," said Manchee, "the district will gain approximately $40,000 in state funds." He said the administration feels the attendance promotion will help improve the ADA and will provide important attendance habits throughout the rest of the year. Hopefully, it will give teachers an even better opportunity to work with the students, he added.

Dr. Holder said "it is important to the taxpayers of the district that we have good attendance in October, and we think the incentives will promote better attendance."

Students who have perfect attendance for the entire month will receive a coupon for a free burrito at Taco Villa, a coupon for french fries at McDonald's, and a coupon for a 16-ounce drink at Mr. Burger.

Local Roundup

Tax discounts being offered

Discounts are being offered those who pay their local taxes before year's end, Fred Fox of the Deaf Smith County Appraisal District has announced.

Tax statements for 1984, according to the chief appraiser, were mailed Thursday, meaning residents should receive them by Monday.

Those who pay their taxes before the end of this month are to receive a 3 percent discount. Two percent is to be knocked off with payment in November, while December features a 1 percent break. No discounts are to be offered in January, with penalties to begin after that.

In addition to encouraging people to pay taxes before the end of the calendar year, Fox would like residents to erase their tax debts at the beginnings of months.

Free shots to be given

Immunizations against several childhood diseases are again to be offered this month at the Deaf Smith County Public Health Clinic, located at 902 E. Fourth St.

As has been the case for several months, shots are to be administered every Tuesday and Thursday from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3:45 p.m. There is to be no charge for the service.

The offered vaccines are to help give protection against diphtheria, lock jaw (tetanus), measles, mumps, polio, rubella and whooping cough (pertussis).

Friday deadline to register

Friday, Oct. 5 is the last business day to register to vote in the November general election, reminded Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland.

The 30-day deadline actually falls on Oct. 7, but Ruland said the office does not plan to stay open during the weekend to take voter registrations.

Registration applications may be picked up at Ruland's office on the second floor of the courthouse, or a person can call and ask for one to be mailed to his residence.

To legally vote, one must be at least a 30-day resident of the county, be 18 years old by Nov. 6 and not have been convicted of a felony offense. A person who has been found mentally incompetent by a court of law also cannot vote, Ruland pointed out.

WEATHER OUTLOOK: Mostly cloudy Saturday night with a 20 percent chance of rain in the evening hours. The low is expected to be in the upper 30s and winds are to be 5 to 10 miles per hour from the southeast.

Sunday is to have decreasing cloudiness and be a little warmer, with the high to be near 60. Winds are to come from the south at 5 to 15 miles per hour.

Reagan upbeat despite elusive progress

By MAUREEN SANTINI AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was described as upbeat after his first meeting with a senior Soviet leader, but beyond an agreement to "keep in touch," little progress was reported toward easing the "distress and apprehension" in superpower relations.

Following his 3 1/2-hour meeting with Reagan at the White House on Friday, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko issued a statement that America wasn't willing "to take a realistic stand on the substance of the acute problems of war and peace."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz told reporters the only agreement Reagan and his guest made was to "keep in touch."

"There's lots of distress, there's lots of apprehension, there are lots of differences of opinion and I don't think one discussion is going to clear the air completely but I think it undoubtedly made some progress in that direction," Shultz said.

The president and Gromyko discussed a variety of subjects ranging from nuclear weapons to problems in the Middle East, but there was no agreement to resume arms control talks or any other specific course of action.

In his Tass statement, Gromyko said that despite his conversations with Reagan he could not "draw a conclusion about practical positive changes in the foreign-policy course of the U.S. administration." He called again for actions, not words.

Without a change in U.S. policy, Gromyko asserted, "a turn for the better is impossible either in Soviet-U.S. relations or in the international situation."

Gromyko claims America unrealistic

Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale, who met Gromyko on Thursday, said, "I hope that we are going to hear more about what was accomplished than we heard from Secretary Shultz this afternoon."

U.S. officials had said in advance that the meeting's main objective would be an attempt to clear the air of hostilities.

But after the meeting, a White House official said the goal had been to allow the Soviets to size up Reagan, on the assumption that he will be re-elected to another four-year term. Speaking on the condition that he remain anonymous, this official said he believed Reagan had sufficiently impressed Gromyko.

In a more positive tone than Shultz used, the official said Reagan was "upbeat and confident he achieved the goal he set out to achieve."

The official added, "Not so much that he (Reagan) charmed him, but he showed he was a man who knew what he was talking about, knew what he wanted, and was firm in his convictions."

Just before lunch, Reagan pulled Gromyko aside for a private eight-minute chat without interpreters. The White House official said Reagan wanted to let Gromyko know that although the United States and the Soviet Union will always be competitive, they can compete peacefully.

Reporters in the Rose Garden could see part of the one-on-one encounter through the glass doors of the Oval Office. Reagan and Gromyko, who speaks English, were standing face-to-face, each using his hands to gesture with extreme animation. But Shultz denied there were angry overtones.

During a reception before lunch, Gromyko offered a toast to Nancy Reagan, saying that each night she should whisper the word "peace" into her husband's ear, according to an account in today's editions of The Washington Post.

The paper quoted an unnamed U.S. official as saying that the first lady told Gromyko that she would whisper the word to her husband.

Throughout the day, Reagan appeared somber, serious, but polite. Gromyko arrived at the White House with a big grin, but his demeanor throughout most of the visit suggested weariness, boredom and indulgent exasperation with the hoopla.

Express Mail to be possible here

Third pickup announced by Grady

After three years of negotiations, the Hereford Post Office will finally be allowed a third mail pickup that will allow quicker delivery and next-day Express Mail.

Postmaster Nolan Grady said beginning Monday, mail will leave Hereford at 3 p.m. each day as well as 5 a.m. and 5 p.m.

"At the present time, our 5 p.m. mail arrives in Amarillo at 7 p.m. after stopping at Dawn, Umbarger and Canyon. That is too late to make the last flight out of Amarillo. Therefore, it is trucked in to Dallas," Grady explained.

"With our 3 p.m. outgoing mail, arrival in Amarillo will allow us to have the mail worked and put on the flight to Dallas. That should make a one-day difference to distant points."

Grady said the new afternoon pickup will also allow Hereford access to the Amarillo network for Express Mail, which means next-day delivery to almost any location in the United States.

"The decision for better service came from our sectional center manager in Lubbock, F.A. Sutton," Grady pointed out. "I've been working on this for three years."

Grady said a survey of the volume of mail that was ready for pickup by 3 p.m., coupled with the fact that Hereford's mail was arriving in Amarillo after the last flight had left, made the service possible for Hereford.

The availability of Express Mail also had a big bearing on the decision, Grady added. "My personal opinion is that the Express Mail business generated in this office will pay for contracting the truck to deliver it."

The three pickups will take place on Monday through Saturday. Hereford has not had outgoing Sunday mail for about two years.

State

Secretary politicized nuclear site

DALLAS (AP) — Energy Secretary Donald Hodel unfairly dipped his department into the Texas Senate race by saying Republican Phil Gramm virtually eliminated the state as a site for the nation's first nuclear waste repository, some Democrats have charged.

Hodel said in Houston earlier this month that Gramm had been "bombarding my staff" with objections to the selection of two sites in the Texas Panhandle as possible burial sites for nuclear waste.

"I don't believe that the nuclear waste repository is going to be built in a state where there is strong opposition from the people," Hodel said in Houston Sept. 7.

Rep. Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., fired off a letter to Hodel this week, saying the energy secretary's remarks may have violated site selection procedures in the law, The Dallas Morning News reported Saturday.

"You have apparently permitted the carefully prescribed process set forth in the act to be corrupted by your zeal to assist Congressman Gramm, who actually worked to limit the role of states and the public in the site selection process," Ottinger wrote.

Parents remain in jail

HOUSTON (AP) — A teen-ager remained free today following his indictment on a murder charge in the slaying of a female mail carrier, while his parents stayed behind bars for their refusal to testify against him before a grand jury.

Attorneys for Bernard and Odette Port tried to convince a judge to release the couple after the indictment was returned Friday. But the judge refused, saying the grand jury's inquiry was not finished and that the couple still needs to answer some questions.

Grand jurors returned the indictment against David Port, 17, on Friday. The teen-ager remained free on $20,000 bond on the murder charge, stemming from the shooting death of Debora Sue Schatz, 23.

Miss Schatz disappeared June 7 while making deliveries in the Ports' affluent west Houston neighborhood. Her body was found two days later in an isolated, wooded area north of Houston.

The youth's parents were jailed Sept. 12 on a contempt citation after they refused to testify before the grand jury investigating the killing.

Senate tries to break filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, facing delays that threaten plans by Congress to adjourn next week, was trying today to break a filibuster by conservative lawmakers who oppose a controversial civil rights bill.

Supporters of the civil rights measure want to attach it to an emergency money bill designed to keep the government solvent. Without the spending bill, a number of agencies will go broke at midnight Sunday.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr. says he hasn't the "foggiest idea" when Congress may adjourn this year.

Sixty votes would be needed to limit debate by conservatives opposing the so-called Civil Rights Act of 1984, and there was some doubt whether supporters could muster that many backers during the unusual weekend session.

If the move fails, another attempt to get 60 votes would be made Monday — when chances would improve, given the legislation's 63 co-sponsors.

But even a successful "cloture" vote would allow several days of debate on the civil rights measure and leave the Senate in a crisis.

Conferees approve waste bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major legislation to place millions of tons of hazardous waste under federal regulation for the first time appears headed toward final passage by Congress after winning approval of House and Senate conferees.

The conference committee on Friday approved a compromise version of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, which will bring an estimated 130,000 small businesses under Environmental Protection Agency regulation. It is expected to win final approval in the House and Senate next week.

But prospects were not as bright for the bill's companion measure, a proposal to expand the $1.6 billion "superfund" program to clean up abandoned hazardous waste dumps.

The Democrat-controlled House has voted to expand the superfund to $10.2 billion, and the Senate Environment Committee has approved a $7.5 billion expansion. But the Senate Finance Committee has failed to write the tax provisions for the Senate bill that are needed to raise the money.

The disposal bill approved by the conference committee was a compromise version of bills passed earlier by the House and the Senate updating the federal law that tells businesses what they can and cannot do with the hazardous wastes they produce.

Temple returned to high priests

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government formally returned the historic Golden Temple complex to the Sikh high priests Saturday, the United News of India reported.

The temple, the holiest Sikh shrine, was the scene of a bloody battle in early June between Indian army troops and Sikh extremists. More than 600 people were officially reported killed in the fighting. Reliable sources, however, placed the toll at 1,220.

Indian army troops seized the 12-square-block temple compound in the battle.

Mrs. Gandhi announced last Tuesday that her government had decided to withdraw soldiers from the shrine complex since damage to its buildings in the army raid had been repaired.

Authorities reached agreement with Sikh religious leaders earlier Saturday under which troops were to withdraw from the Golden Temple, UNI said.

Peace hopes linger anyway

LONDON (AP) — Hopes of a fresh initiative to end Britain's seven-month miners' strike lingered today, despite an overwhelming vote by mine foremen to launch their own work stoppage and bring the few operating coalfields to a standstill.

The independent Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service said in a statement Friday night that it plans exploratory talks with the state-run National Coal Board and miners' leaders next week.

"Both the NCB and the National Union of Mineworkers have today indicated their readiness to meet ACAS officials," the statement said.

Arbitration service Chairman Pat Lowry said his mediators were "continuing the process of exploring the ground privately and confidentially."

The British news agency Press Association earlier reported that a new formula had been devised and the 183,000-strong miners' union had accepted it, but the coal board had not reached any decision yet. Nine earlier peace attempts have collapsed.

Campaign charged 'lie-buy'

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Both candidates for Texas' U.S. Senate seat claimed victory after their first debate in which Democrat Lloyd Doggett charged Republican Phil Gramm with running a "lie-and-buy" campaign.

Gramm countered in the televised Friday night matchup that Doggett, a state senator from Austin, had "promised every special interest group" that he would support raising taxes and that he voted five times against right-to-work laws in Texas.

The big question, however, was whether anyone watched the debate, broadcast from Gramm's home town of College Station across the state on public television stations. The 8 p.m. confrontation was running opposite the season premier of CBS' "Dallas" series, always a ratings topper.

Friday night also is high school football night in Texas, drawing thousands of people away from television.

Indeed, asked by moderator Ron Stone, an anchorman for a Houston TV station, to define the "average Texan" to whom he was trying to appeal, Gramm said he guessed the average Texan would be "watching high school football now instead of this debate."

Topics ranged from national defense to gay rights and immigration laws as the two answered 11 questions from four reporters.

Doggett identified himself as "David" in a "David and Goliath" scenario and accused Gramm of running a "lie-and-buy" campaign.

Gramm, meanwhile, sought to tie Doggett to the Democratic presidential campaign of Walter Mondale, labeling him a liberal big-spender and a "millionaire lawyer" who has accepted campaign donations from a male strip-show in San Antonio.

"I think we won," Gramm said. "I think it was a clear-cut debate. I think we got to the heart of the matter. I think we won not because I'm inherently better-looking, but we got by those rocks my opponent has been throwing. I don't think it helps the political process to be calling people a liar."

"You heard a lot of very harsh rhetoric and name-calling, but you didn't hear it from me."

Throughout the debate, Gramm accused Doggett of wanting to raise taxes and opposing a strong defense.

"I thought it was so much fun, I want to do it again," Doggett said afterward.

Asked who won the debate, Doggett replied, "We did."

As Doggett gave his concluding remarks, Gramm gave a thumbs-up sign to the audience. At the conclusion of the debate, one of Doggett's daughters ran up and hugged her father.

While Doggett was speaking, Gramm repeatedly wiped his brow with a white handkerchief. On occasion, Doggett would speak directly to Gramm and ignore the camera.

Doggett called Gramm a "servant for those who already have it made," while he said his supporters are "going up the ladder."

Doggett attacked Gramm for "fiscal irresponsibility" and also complained that Gramm supported cuts in Social Security, denied education to those that need it and cut loans to farmers.

Gramm, meanwhile, remarked it was "humorous" for Doggett to quote from the Bible "when he is opposed to school prayer."

Questioned how he would raise money and cut spending, Doggett said he would "survey every federal spending program" help reduce waste and look at loopholes. Gramm replied that his record shows that "no one is more committed than I've been" when it comes to trimming federal waste.

"I'm not going to vote to cut the heart out of your budget by raising your taxes," he said.

Doggett said that Gramm favored elimination of income tax deductions for home mortgages, a statement that Gramm denied.

Doggett accused Gramm of "trying to develop fear" through statements about campaign donations made by the owner of a San Antonio male strip club. Doggett insisted that the $300 contribution was returned. "I don't share their perspective, but I'm not going to see them made an object of fear or hate" he said of Texas' homosexuals.

"When you go in and cut Social Security and cut education, you've got to concentrate on such issues," Doggett said.

Gramm said the issue is "pandering." He said Doggett is "pledged to support their legislation," referring to the gays.

Doggett shot back, "The only reason he's made this an issue is because there are more Gramm wrongs than gay rights."

On prayer in public schools, Doggett said he is committed to voluntary prayer, but "we don't need more politicians telling us how, when and in what places we can pray."

Gramm responded, "the bottom line is that my opponent voted against voluntary school prayer."

On immigration legislation, Gramm accused Doggett of changing his position on the Simpson-Mazzoli Act, saying he had originally supported segments of the bill, then switched.

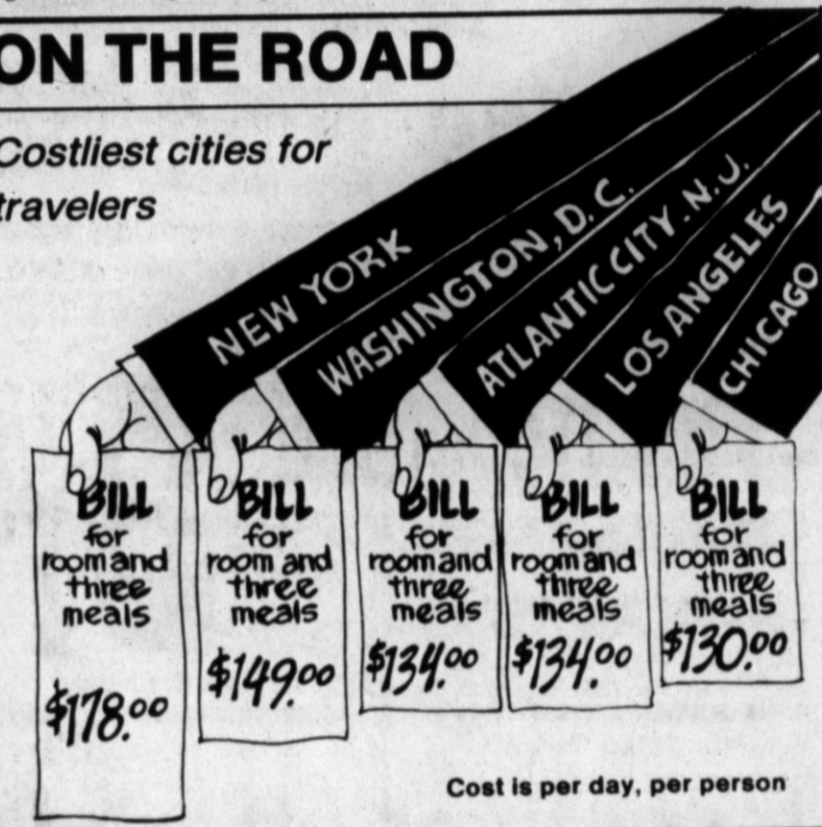

On Central America, Doggett said it is important to "protect our national interest and curb Cuban influence." He added that current policies have not worked.

Gramm said he was alarmed that Soviets might "have a foothold in Central America" and said that the United States could not allow such a foothold to influence Mexico or "20 million refugees" would be fleeing to this country.

Doggett repeatedly accused Gramm of cutting Social Security benefits, but Gramm said his mother was the recipient of those benefits and said "I'm not going to take that checks away from my mama."

Gramm appoints local resident

AUSTIN — U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, the co-author of President Reagan's economic recovery program in Congress and now a candidate for U.S. Senate, has appointed Mrs. Wayne (Mary) Thomas, of Hereford, to be his Deaf Smith County Chairman.

"I am honored to have the active support of key leaders in the economic and civic life of 225 counties across Texas," Congressman Gramm said in making the announcement.

"These men and women of courage are the strong right arm in our fight to insure that traditional Texas values win out over the out-of-state special interests represented by the Mondale-Doggett ticket," he noted.

"Strong grassroots organization, I believe, is the key to overcoming the anti-Texas proposals of my opponent and his supporters in the Northeast," said the congressman.

Congressman Gramm, of College Station, earned a Ph.D. in economics, the subject he taught at Texas A&M University for a decade prior to winning election to Congress in 1978.

Gramm said he would have active coordinators and steering committees operating in all of Texas' 254 counties by election day.

"As Texans become increasingly aware of the clear choice which faces our state in this election—Reagan and Gramm vs. Mondale and Doggett — our campaign is gathering momentum in every region of the state," he said.

New tax includes newspapers

Besides increasing the state sales tax by one-eighth cent on Oct. 2, a number of goods and services formerly exempt from taxation are now on the taxable list.

Newspapers are one of the items now included, and the 5.125 percent tax will apply to news-stand sales of single copies and to subscriptions starting Tuesday.

Counter sales of newspapers will result in a 21-cent price on weekdays and 32 cents on Sunday. The annual subscription price of $34 will have a $1.74 tax added to it beginning Tuesday.

Carriers will be required to collect 17 cents on the monthly home delivery rate of $3.35, making that total rise to $3.52. Any new subscription or renewal made on Monday will be at the current price, no tax added.

Brand subscribers can pay for a month, or for a year, on Monday, and beat the tax. Home delivery customers can pay at the Brand office Monday, and we will pay the carrier his portion of the account.

Surprised at response

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your response to "Not Kosher Enough in Texas," the parents whose children had become Orthodox Jews and refused to eat in the parental home, was a far cry from your usual replies that have demonstrated respectable research and common sense.

I'm sure your informed readers were aghast at your statement, "Those dietary laws were written thousands of years ago, before refrigeration. They made a great deal of sense in those days."

If refrigeration was a factor, can you tell me why a cow killed with a perfectly straight blade is permissible to eat, whereas the same cow, if killed with a blade with a nick in it, is not permitted?

The dietary laws have nothing to do with refrigeration, physical health or the human body. They have to do with the soul. I hope I have helped you understand why your answer was a poor one.—D. In Toronto

DEAR D.: You can be sure I heard from thousands of Jews who had plenty to say about that answer. I have since consulted with one of the nation's top authorities, Rabbi Mordecai Waxman, president of the Synagogue Council of America. This council embraces all three branches of Judaism: Reform, Conservative and Orthodox.

Rabbi Waxman said, "Observing the dietary laws is one of the basic principles of Jewish life. According to the book of Leviticus, Jews are bidden to be holy. That holiness involves the observances of both ethical and ritual laws."

"One of the ways in which Jews can demonstrate their holiness is by following the dietary laws laid down in the Torah, which are the five books of Moses. Eating is considered a sacred act. Jews must therefore wash their hands before each meal, offer a prayer of thanksgiving and limit the foods they eat."

Rabbi Waxman pointed out that

Maimonides, a physician, a legal authority and perhaps the greatest Jewish philosopher of medieval times, said that there was indeed a hygienic reason for the dietary laws. The rabbi repeated, however, that the essential reasons were the commandments in the Torah, the attempt to achieve holiness in daily life and to give meaning to ordinary behavior.

And now to respond to your question about the cow: I knew the answer but decided to take no more chances. I consulted with Dr. Albert S. Goldstein, Rabbi Emeritus of Temple Ohabei Shalom of Brookline, Mass. He said, "Jewish laws in reference to slaughter are the most humane of any culture. Animals must be killed in the manner that inflicts no unnecessary pain."

The wild prairie rose is the state flower of North Dakota.

Aida Morgan

Wedding planned

Aida Morgan and Joe David San Miguel plan to exchange wedding vows Nov. 9 at the home of the bride-elect's parents in San Juan.

Miss Morgan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodolfo R. Morgan of San Juan and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Domingo San Miguel of 235 Ave. E.

The bride-elect, a 1984 graduate of Pharr-San Juan Alamo High School, was active in the Deca organization. Her fiancé, a 1981 graduate of Hereford High School, is employed at Brandon and Clark Electric.

Motor Cross races today

Motor Cross races sponsored by the Magic Triangle Competition Association of Hereford will take place today at noon.

The track is located two and one-half miles straight east of the Hereford Bull Barn on the Dairy Road. Gates open at 9 a.m. Admission is $3 and pre-schoolers may get in free.

All popular classes including motorcycles, three-wheelers, four-wheelers and Odysseys are welcome.

Church hosts homecoming

The First Assembly of God Church located at 606 E. 15th street will be having a Homecoming-Note Burning Service Sunday at 9:45 a.m. and 6 p.m.

All of the friends of the church in the past years are invited to come and celebrate the paying off of the church in this special service.

Rev. J.W. Farmer, the superintendent of the West Texas District of the Assemblies of God, will be the morning speaker and Rev. H.T. Goodwin, the former Pastor who led the church through the building program, will be the evening speaker.

There will be a noon meal in the fellowship hall and everyone is invited to attend.

School days have made big change

My, how times change!
A case in point is the Hereford School District's October promotion on school attendance, reported on today's front page. If an elementary student attends five days a week, he will get an ice cream treat on Friday. If a junior high or high school student attends all five days, he is eligible for a drawing on a stereo radio receiver. There are also incentives for perfect attendance for the entire month.

We had incentives when I was in public school, but we didn't call them that. The correct terminology, I assume, would be "threats."

If we attended classes every day of the week, we didn't get a paddling at home or extra work or duties from our teachers and coaches. Come to think of it, the school distributed a lot of "perfect attendance certificates" back in those days.

Attendance at school was expected, and only dire circumstances would get you a day off. If I had a report due in some class on Friday and got up feeling sick at my stomach, my mother knew if my "sickness" had developed for purely physical reasons or because I probably missed some homework.

And, during football season, I couldn't even think about missing school or I wouldn't be in the starting lineup on Friday night.

My mother got her bluff in early. For years, I thought she could tell if I was telling the truth or not by looking at my tongue. It started in pre-school days.

"Did you and Johnny get some apples of Mrs. Jones' tree?" she might ask. "No, Mommy, not us."

"Stick out your tongue and I'll see if you are telling the truth," she ordered. "Oh, it was you and Johnny so I'll have to punish you!" She already knew, of course, that we were guilty because someone had seen us. It took a few years for me to figure out why my tongue was such a good lie detector! For a while, I'd confess without sticking out my tongue because I knew it would betray me.

But times change, and maybe that's okay. It does no good to explain to your teenager that you had to walk a mile to school; he still wants a car just like all his friends have!

And the rules have changed for the schools. They need some incentives on attendance, because just a one percent increase adds $40,000 in state funds. And, if that happens, the district doesn't have to raise our taxes as much!

I believe the students need those incentives, don't you?

Not all welfare goes to needy

The federal government gives about $50 billion of taxpayers' money annually to the needy. Most may be needy but some are surely lazy and others are bilking the treasury and could make it on their own.

Despite a certain percentage of fraud and laziness, most Americans are in favor of welfare - food stamps, housing subsidies (a political racket in many metropolitan areas), Medicaid and other payments-in-kind, as they are called.

That's because most Americans want to help fellow citizens in need. But most Americans also want the chiselers and cheaters weeded out. The bureaucracy which administers this $50 billion doesn't. Jobs and advancement depend on bigger and growing programs.

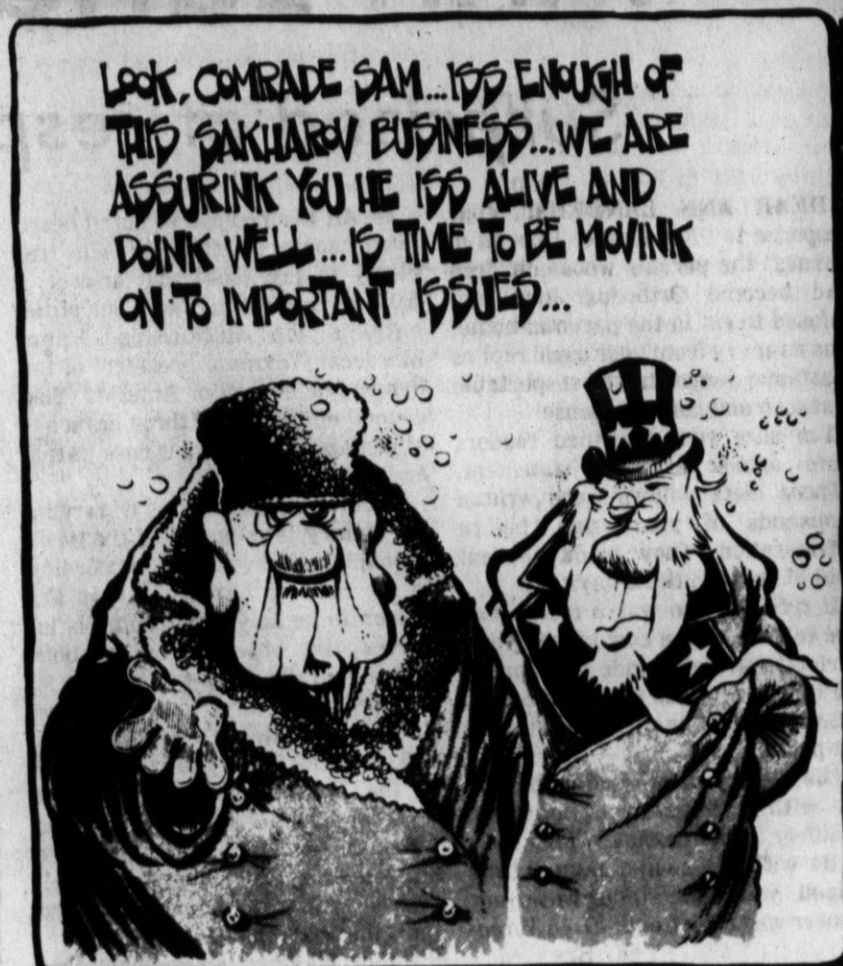

Perhaps the worst injustice to taxpayers is the continued illogical system of not counting federal payments-in-kind as income. The Census Bureau, despite years of protests from realistic economists, refuse to count the forms of federal aid listed above in determining a family's poverty status.

Only the family's cash income is counted. So if families can list total income just a few dollars below what the federal government thinks they should have, they can get a host of benefits - which make them, actually better off than the proud, working family just above the poverty level.

Murray Weidenbaum, former chairman of the presidential council of economic advisors, says the bureaucracy, and politicians getting elected by enlarging federal aid payments, shouldn't have it both ways. They claim all these aid programs shouldn't be counted because they are not really of the dollar value they're represented to be!

That's a crock of government cheese!

Bootleg Philosopher Foreign policy

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm has trouble with foreign policy this week.

Dear editor:
One of the issues in the presidential race, if there are any other than who can get televised the oftenest with the biggest crowds with the most flags, is supposed to be foreign policy-which candidate is better equipped to handle it.

I have never understood foreign policy or what it's for. For the most part it looks like trying to settle a family squabble next door, something most people had rather dodge if they know what's good for them.

Some prospective candidates, looking ahead to a race, visit a lot of foreign countries to prepare themselves, if they get elected, to handle foreign affairs.

Getting acquainted with heads of foreign governments who may not be in office by the time you get elected, is like a football coach's using a 5-year-old scouting report to prepare for next week's opponent.

Also, it's hard for countries to understand each other's foreign policy when they don't understand their own. I doubt if there are 10 voters out of 75 million or 2 congressmen out of 435 who know what our foreign policy is right now, and none who know what it'll be tomorrow. Count me among those who don't know what it was yesterday.

I remember that when Richard Nixon and Jack Kennedy debated about foreign policy on television they spent half their time talking about a couple of islands we had heard of at the time and nobody has heard of since.

Trying to establish a foreign policy with the squabbling shape the world's in today is like a farmer's trying to plan next year's farming operations on a normal year, when every farmer knows there never has been a normal year. The weather, like nations, operates in a very haphazard pattern. How does anybody know when the next uprising is going to break out in Central America or a hail storm in Deaf Smith County?

Yours faithfully, J.A.

The Penultimate Word

IT'S TIME FOR BASEBALL AGAIN

I never watch baseball during the season. There are too many games and they last too long with far too little action.

As a baseball fan I am Mr. October. I begin to notice the teams that have a chance for the pennant sometime in mid-September. Around October 1, I watch a game or so to get acquainted with the teams and decide who I will root for during the series. By series time I am ready for some serious baseball watching.

When I turned into baseball this September, I was horrified to find the Chicago Cubs in first place. This should never have happened. Don't get me wrong. I am a Cub fan but, like thousands of others, I think part of the mystique that drew me to the Cubs was that they always lost. In spite of their losses they somehow kept loyal fans year after year. The "Bleacher Bums" are world renowned for their love and enthusiasm in the face of sure defeat.

I am afraid this year will ruin it all. Now we will expect the Cubs to win. Now, instead of loving them in their ineptitude, we will be crushed by their defeats. If they become successful someone will put lights on their field and they will be one more clone of a ball club. Say it ain't so, Cubbies. Blow the playoffs and lets get back to the way we were.

Every year, when I make my return to baseball, I remember my favorite baseball story. They swear it really happened, but I don't know who "they" are who so swear.

A minor league manager thought his players should be prepared to play all of the positions on the field. To equip them to do so he often moved the players to new positions for a game or so. This particular game he moved the third baseman over to play first base. The third baseman had never played this position in his life, but there he was.

A batter hit a ground ball toward first. The guy now playing first charged the ball and with his natural reflex came up throwing the ball across the diamond as any good third baseman would do. In mid-throw he remembered that he was not supposed to throw to first base since he was already at first base. It was too late to stop the throw but he at least was able to divert the direction and threw the ball to the catcher.

This action startled the batter and he stopped half way between home and first base. The catcher and the first baseman got the guy in a run down and he, in desperation, broke for home, slid in just as the catcher tagged him. The umpire ruled the batter was out. The batter looked at the umpire and said, "What if I had been safe?"

Go Cubbies!

Religion not issue in Presidential race

Emotionally and intellectually, each of us can be two different animals.

Who hasn't thought perhaps aloud, "Half of me wants to be bad; half of me wants to be good?"

Each of us is a paradox, a contradiction, a combination of saint and sinner.

Voltaire likened each of us to "a chariot driver pulled by two horses - a white one and a black one - and the trick is to keep both pulling in the same direction."

Each of us is proud of our elected leader embraces our own religion; none of us wants a political leader imposing any religion.

I wish in the present confrontation between two nice guys wanting to be president the subject had never come up.

But it has.

At the GOP convention in Dallas, packets of materials furnished to the delegates included a copy of the New Testament. Not the whole Bible. Just the New Testament.

In a secular gathering that was an unkind and stupid affront to Jewish delegates, to all Jews.

Walter Mondale's assertion that Reagan is trying to sell the idea that "God is a Republican" - is unworthy and divisive.

And if this subject is admitted into the upcoming campaign debates voter attention could be diverted from pertinent issues of federal deficit, taxes, arms, Latin American policy, welfare, immigration and Soviet relations.

New York's eloquent Gov. Mario Cuomo, a Catholic, at Notre Dame defended the overlap of principles and politics. "Unless we Catholics set an example that is clear and compelling, then we will never convince this society to change the civil laws to protect what we preach."

But then he limited that "example." He said, "The use of religion for political gain is frightening..."

He, too, struggles with the grand dichotomy.

The religious right, paradoxically, did not unanimously support the profession born-again believer Jimmy Carter. It is supporting a president who rarely attends church and whose contributions to church and charity are less than exemplary.

But President Reagan does espouse traditional family values, a timely response to a present national hunger.

David Little, professor of religious studies at the University of Virginia, offers reassurance. He says, "There is a strong commitment to tolerance in this country. If any group pushes too hard, there is a reaction."

And sure enough, the latest Gallup Poll shows that 75 percent of Americans wish the politicians "would stop even mentioning religion."

As the Years Turn

75 YEARS AGO

The rain on Saturday disappointed a party of young ladies who had prepared a feast of good things to eat and had planned to spread these goodies at the courthouse yard on that evening. As many young gentlemen received a like disappointment as each lady had invited her best beau to help her enjoy the fruits of her culinary labor.

About two years ago there was talk of building a $50,000 courthouse. An investigation was made and it was found that the taxable values were not sufficient to issue $50,000 of bonds, and now it is proposed to issue $225,000 in bonds. Yes, our taxable values have increased at such a rate that we can now issue $125,000.

50 YEARS AGO

During Friday and Saturday of last week, government agents purchased 364 head of Deaf Smith County cattle in the Drouth relief program.

There are 22 seats for sale in the new bleachers at Whiteface Stadium at one dollar each, announces B.H. Hopkins, business manager. The bleachers were widely financed through sale of seats to citizens.

25 YEARS AGO

The fund for erection of a historical marker at the townsite of La Plata, first county seat of Deaf Smith County, is now a little less than $70 shy of the $475 needed for its completion.

The farmers are very busy at this time trying to get their wheat and barley sowed. Thursday morning was a little cool and reminded everyone that fall is not far away.

Members voted to organize a board, incorporate and plan for early construction of a Hereford Country Club during a meeting Thursday night.

10 YEARS AGO

The Hereford School Board, in regular session Monday afternoon, voted to change the method of electing trustees for the school district, heard a mother's lengthy complaint against the school's dress code, heard reports from the vocational and community education programs, handled other routine business matters and approved payment of bills.

With their road and bridge fund reflecting a deficit balance, Deaf Smith County Commissioners welcomed at $29,771 check from the state Monday for the county's share of surplus lateral road money fund.

1 YEAR AGO

Challenger's astronauts guided their ship 54 miles nearer to earth today to test how samples of future space materials can stand up under constant bombardment by particles of atomic oxygen.

Yet another delay has been encountered in Hereford Cablevision's attempts to place Public Broadcasting Station KTX-TLubbock on its cable television system.

Broncos attempt to derail unbeaten Raiders today

By The Associated Press

The Denver Broncos, a tough team at home, take on the unbeaten Los Angeles Raiders, a tough team anywhere, in one of the key National Football League matchups Sunday.

The Super Bowl champion Raiders, who have won their last eight games, four this year, visit the Broncos, who have won eight in a row at Mile High Stadium. The Broncos are 3-1.

The last team to beat the Broncos at home?

The Raiders, 22-7, on Sept. 25, 1983.

The Raiders are coming off a 33-30 comeback victory over San Diego last Monday night, while the Broncos blanked Kansas City 21-0 last Sunday. Marcus Allen, the Raiders' running back, scored four times against San Diego.

The Raiders have rallied to win their last two games.

Miami and San Francisco are the only other NFL teams with 4-0 records. The Dolphins visit St. Louis, 2-2, and the 49ers are home against Atlanta, 2-2.

In other NFL Sunday games, it will be Dallas, 3-1, at Chicago, 3-1; Cleveland, 1-3, at Kansas City, 2-2; New Orleans, 2-2, at Houston, 0-4; New England, 2-2, at the New York Jets, 3-1; Buffalo, 0-4, at Indianapolis, 1-3; Philadelphia, 1-3, at Washington, 2-2; the New York Giants, 3-1, at the Los Angeles Rams, 2-2; Seattle, 3-1, at Minnesota, 2-2; Green Bay, 1-3, at Tampa Bay, 1-3, and Detroit, 1-3, at San Diego, 2-2.

Cincinnati, 0-4, visits Pittsburgh, 2-2, Monday night.

St. Louis will try to stop Miami quarterback Dan Marino, the top-rated passer who leads in touchdowns with 12. The Dolphins lead in scoring with the Marino-Mark Duper passing combination showing the way. The Cardinals rank No. 1 in the National Conference in offense but running back Otis Anderson is questionable.

Both San Francisco and Atlanta piled up points this season — averaging 30.5 and 29.5 per game, respectively. The Falcons have won two straight with quarterback Steve Bartkowski and running back Gerald Riggs leading the attack. Matt Cavanaugh may be at quarterback for San Francisco again if injured Joe Montana isn't ready.

Quarterback Jim McMahon, who suffered a hairline fracture of the hand and a back injury Sept. 9 and was used sparingly the next week, is expected to return for Chicago's game against Dallas. Bears running back Walter Payton is 221 yards shy of Jim Brown's all-time rushing mark. Running back Tony Dorsett of the Cowboys has yet to get untracked this year and faces the NFL's top-ranked defense.

Cleveland boasts the AFC's top-going in beating Pittsburgh last week. Kansas City has lost two straight.

Richard Todd, the New Orleans quarterback, was erratic but he faces Houston, whose defense is ranked worst in the league, yielding an average of 33 points. The Saints lead the NFC in sacks, which doesn't bode well for Oilers' quarterback Warren Moon.

The Jets go for their third straight triumph behind the passing combination of Pat Ryan and Wesley Walker and the running of Freeman McNeil. The Jets have prepared their defense for either New England quarterback — Tony Eason or Steve Grogan.

Buffalo quarterback Joe Feguson is listed as questionable against Indianapolis. The Colts have lost five straight to the Bills and are coming off a 44-7 beating from Miami.

Washington has won two in a row and Philadelphia has lost its last two. The Redskins have a powerful offense, led by quarterback Joe Theismann and running back John Riggins. The Eagles managed only three field goals in a loss to San Francisco last Sunday.

Rams quarterback Jeff Kemp, who had a winning debut in place of Vince Ferragamo last Sunday, faces a Giants' defense headed by ranking in total defense and in pass defense and got its offensive game Lawrence Taylor. Los Angeles running back Eric Dickerson is nursing a sprained right wrist. Phil Simms' passing has regenerated the Giants, who could equal their best start since 1968 with a victory.

Seattle, coming off a big victory over Chicago, is riding a two-game winning streak. Minnesota also has won two straight.

Green Bay, a loser of three straight, has scored the fewest points in the NFL with 44 and Tampa Bay has managed only 62. Packers' quarterback Lynn Dickey has an ailing back and Bucs quarterback Steve DeBerg is trying to rebound after being sacked five times in a loss to the Giants.

Earnest Johnson turned in his best rushing effort (155 yards) in San Diego's loss to the Raiders. Quarterback Dan Fouts and tight end Kellen Winslow help make the Chargers the No. 1-ranked NFL team in total offense. Detroit has dropped two in a row.

Cincinnati, behind quarterback Ken Anderson and wide receiver Cris Collinsworth, is rated No. 2 in offense, but the Bengals' defense hasn't firmed up enough to give Coach Sam Wyche his first NFL victory. And Pittsburgh heads the AFC defending against the rush.

Retired Oiler remembers days as player in Houston

By J.C. DEAVORS
The (Conroe) Courier

WILLIS, Texas (AP) — He spent part of his 10-year professional career using his 6-foot-4, 250-pound frame opening holes in the defensive line for Heisman Trophy winner Billy Cannon and protecting quarterback George Blanda in a passing situation.

And former Houston Oilers offensive tackle Walt Suggs wouldn't trade one minute of his gridiron career with anyone.

"I loved it," the 43-year-old Suggs said, reminiscing about the early days of the Oilers, who this year celebrate their silver anniversary. "I would do it all over again if I could."

Suggs, now a general contractor in the construction business in this small town about 50 miles north of Houston, was a rookie when the Oilers were two years old, along with the fledgling American Football League. In 1961, the Oilers drafted Suggs from Mississippi State in the third round but he did not play that year due to a leg injury. His active career spanned from 1962-1971.

Reflecting on some of his former teammates, Suggs said Billy Cannon's style of running was "straight up...but he could fly. He was so fast after he broke out in the open, nobody could catch him. Of course, you know, the 'sprinters' didn't play football back then. They were too fragile, it was said."

"I played against Cannon in college when he was at Louisiana State and I was at Mississippi State. He was a heck of a player."

"George Blanda was a smart football player. He was a real good field general and required a lot of discipline from the huddle and from his ball players. I really enjoyed playing with him."

In Suggs' rookie season, Charlie Tolar was the first Oiler running back to gain over 1,000 yards (1,012 on 244 carries). Suggs smiled at the mention of Tolar's name and referred to him as "the little bowling ball. He was tough as a boot... If he ever brok] en the clear, he was liable to

Larger Amarillo team wins

Sandies crush Herd

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Friday night's Hereford-Amarillo High School football game played in Hereford now is a story that resembles that of David and Goliath in the Bible, but the outcome is a little different — Goliath won.

And for Whiteface fans, it is a story that may have been better left untold. The Sandies buried Hereford 45-0, the third consecutive defeat for the home team in Whiteface Stadium.

Hereford dropped its District 3-5A record to 1-2 with the loss, and Amarillo upped its to 1-1.

Outmanned the entire night, the smaller Herd squad seemed to begin having things go its way only to have the Sandies get wise and stop the Whitefaces short-lived success.

"I tell you," Hereford coach Jerry Taylor said, "I don't want to make excuses, but we were just outsize and outmanned at almost every position. I can't fault our players for lack of effort, and I don't believe anybody can."

After receiving the opening kickoff, the Herd picked up two quick first downs, running primarily outside to the right. Soon the Sandies stopped the Whiteface march at Hereford's 48-yard line, and took over for themselves on Amarillo's 20 following a Stefen Hacker punt.

From there, a touch of the past returned when on third down-and-two from the Sandies' 28, Amarillo fullback Thomas Huyck broke through the line for a 72-yard scoring burst, similar to the Palo Duro scoring play two weeks ago when Richard Owens got the Doñis' first score on a 72-yard run.

The play put the Sandies on the board with just under eight minutes to play in the opening period. Doñy Riggan booted the PAT to make the score 7-0.

"We got the big play early," Amarillo coach Larry Dipple said. "It's those kind of things that always help you out."

But again the Herd showed promise on its next possession. Five plays netted two first downs, and the Herd was in business at the Amarillo 46. However, when quarterback Mike Scott attempted to pass on third down-and-15, a host of Amarillo defenders broke through the line and threw him for a four-yard loss.

But that was only the beginning of more trouble. A punt snap sailed high over the head of Hacker back inside the 30-yard line. Hacker never had a good chance to get the punt away and after a bizarre turn of events, the Sandies took over at the 30.

Hacker tried to pick up the ball and still get a punt off, but merely shanked it while running to escape defenders. Hereford guard David Parsons recovered and the ball went over to Amarillo.

The Sandies put together a drive that took 4:17 to cover those 30 yards. In that drive, the Sandies called 10 running plays, while converting two fourth downs. Riggan got the six-pointer on a sneak from the one-yard line on one of the fourth downs.

Riggan kicked the PAT, and the score was 14-0 with 11:53 remaining in the half.

Amarillo got one more score in the first half. The Sandies recovered an Alan Dudding fumble at the Whiteface 32-yard line, and Riggan hooked up with Koy Eddleman on Riggan's only completion of the first half. The gain was good for 32 yards, though, and Amarillo tailback Timmy Smith jumped over the goal-line from the two.

"Even though we were down 21-0 at half, I felt like we could get back into it in the second half," Taylor said. "You know, we could if we didn't give them any Christmas gifts."

But the holidays did come early in the second half, and Amarillo began celebrating them with a 44-yard run by Huyck to the Hereford 18-yard line. Riggan scored again five plays later when he kept the ball from six yards out. After he added the extra-point, Amarillo was ahead 28-0 and never looked back.

"I don't want to take anything away from Amarillo," Taylor said. "They have some good coaches and some good, smart players."

When Huyck was finished, and after Riggan had hit a 42-yard field goal into the wind, Matt Coburn got his turn to run the fullback spot awhile.

"He's been with us a little while," Dipple said. "Matt has a little speed, and he made some good runs for us."

That he did. Coburn picked up 139 yards on six carries, including a 69-yard run that accounted for Amarillo's final score.

For the night, the Sandies wound up with 432 yards offensively. Hereford had 170.

"The law of averages just caught up with us," Taylor said. "Again, I don't want to make excuses, but we were just outmanned. When you've got a blocker on another guy that outweighs that blocker by 70 pounds, something has to give."

Brown played only a short time for the Herd, his ankle weakening early in the ball game. Brown was injured in Monday's practice when he twisted his ankle. Neither did Casey Smith play for the Herd. Smith spent Thursday night in the hospital with a viral infection, Taylor said.

"Our kids are doing the best they can," he added. "They work hard and they play hard."

Amarillo is back in the thick of the 3-5A race with a .500 league record.

Preseason favorite Palo Duro bowed to Plainview Friday and stands only one-half game in front of the Sandies.

"Of course, we've already got one loss," Dipple said. "Two losses put you kind of behind, but Hereford is by no means out of it."

Cold temperatures disturb co-leader

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — The bone-chilling wind even had the Canadian begging for mercy.

"Just because I'm Canadian, don't think I'm used to weather like this," Dan Halldorson said after he'd struggled through rain, wind, mud and biting cold — a wind-chill factor of 13 degrees — to a share of the 36-hole lead in the $350,000 LaJet Golf Classic.

"On the first nine, I was ready to quit," said Halldorson, who rallied for a 4-under-par 68 and a tie at 135 with Curtis Strange. "I was thinking, 'How can they let us play in stuff like this?'"

"Under these conditions, maybe my best round ever," Strange said Friday after he'd compiled a no-bogey 5-under-par 67.

"I don't have any secret for keeping warm. I just got luckier than some of the others," Strange said.

The early starters were interrupted by a heavy shower — in an area that, until this week, had been suffering through its worst drought in decades — that caused a 32-minute suspension of play. Temperatures ranged through the 40s. North winds gusted beyond 20 mph.

Players bundled themselves in layers of sweaters, foul weather gear, gloves, mittens, toboggan caps — even, in the case of Mac O'Grady, a fur-lined face covering.

"It's a terrible thing to say you shot 67 with no bogeys and didn't have any fun," Strange said.

Rookie Brett Upper and Mark O'Meara were three shots off the lead with 138s at the tournament's halfway point. O'Meara had a 70 and Upper matched par-72 on the Fairway Oaks Golf Club course.

Vance Heafner was next at 72-139.

The group at 140 included Hubert Green, Andy Bean, Dale Douglass, Dan Forsman, Ronnie Black, Scott Simpson, Tony Sills, John Cook and Ed Fiori. Bean had a 68, Douglass and Fiori 70s, Green, Simpson, Cook and Sills 72s, Forsman 73 and Black 74.

Tom Watson, the season's leading money-winner who is attempting to nail down a record sixth Player of the Year title, was 4-under par at one point until, he said, "I hit three bad iron shots and three-putted the 18th."

Low-scoring affair foreseen

Cowboys travel to hunt Bear

By JOE MOOSHIL AP Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — A tight struggle is in the making Sunday when the Dallas Cowboys and the Chicago Bears, two of the top defensive units in the National Football League, clash in Soldier Field before a capacity crowd of more than 65,000.

Both teams have 3-1 records. The Cowboys are coming off a 20-6 victory over Green Bay while the Bears saw their perfect record topple with a 38-9 loss at Seattle last Sunday.

The Bears hope to get their offense back in gear with the return of Jim McMahon at quarterback.

McMahon, who suffered a hairline fracture of the hand and a back injury against Denver Sept. 9, was used sparingly the following week against Green Bay and was kept out of last week's loss at Seattle.

Usually, a game between the Cowboys and Bears is billed as a battle between running backs Tony Dorsett of Dallas and Walter Payton of the Bears. One might still develop but while Payton is bearing down on Jim Brown's all-time rushing record, Dorsett has had some problems.

Payton rushed for 116 yards in 24 carries against Seattle to give him 466 for the season and a career total of 12,091 or 221 yards short of Brown's mark which stands at 12,312.

Dorsett rushed for 44 yards in 20 carries against Green Bay and has 286 yards for the season. His 8,621 career yards rank sixth on the all-time list.

"We've just been missing," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry of the running game. "When we jell, we'll start moving the ball."

The Cowboys have relied more on passing this season. Quarterback Gary Hogeboom passed for 230 yards against Green Bay and has passed for 1,135 yards this season.

"Gary is improving each week but he keeps facing a new set of circumstances each week," said Landry. "Sometimes he doesn't know when to deliver the ball."

Against the Bears, the Cowboys will face the NFL's top defensive team. They have given up the fewest yards rushing, the fewest yards passing and the fewest total yards.

The game also features a meeting between teacher and pupil in the coaching ranks. Mike Ditka was an assistant coach under Landry before taking the Chicago job three years ago.

"I don't think you'll find any fear in Tom Landry's heart of coaching against me," said Ditka.

Landry called Ditka "a good football coach who has matured as a person. Chicago reflects Mike's personality. It's a tough, hard-nosed team. When you go against the Bears, you'd better tighten your helmet."

The Cowboys also have a strong defense which is second only to the Bears in the National Football Conference. They showed it against Green Bay last week.

"It was one of the best defensive games we've had in a long time," said Landry. "We had an excellent rush, we kept 'em shut down all the way."

The Cowboys had four interceptions, six sacks and limited the Packers to 204 total yards.

Mattingly vs. Winfield

Batting title still up for grabs

By TOM PADULLA For The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Their respective batting averages are about the only thing New York Yankee teammates Don Mattingly and Dave Winfield have in common.

Mattingly, 23, is a 5-foot-11 left-handed batter with a compact swing who sprays the ball to all fields.

Winfield, 32, is a 6-6 right-hander known for a sweeping batting stroke that frequently causes the bat to fly from his hands. He usually pulls the ball or slashes line drives into the power alleys.

Before Friday night's game with the Detroit Tigers, Mattingly, hitting third in the Yankee lineup, had 202 hits in 591 at bats for a .3418 batting average. Winfield, hitting fourth, had 189 hits in 554 trips to the plate, a .3412 average.

One will become the sixth Yankee to win the batting title, joining Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Joe Dimaggio, Mickey Mantle and George Sternweiss.

"I think of me and Dave as a kind of sideshow," Mattingly said. "People come out to see us win, but this is a little added excitement."

Considered a utility player when he came to spring training, Mattingly's bat earned him the job at first base and he became an All-Star in his first full major league season. He is the first Yankee to collect 200 hits since Bobby Richardson in 1962.

Winfield has been an All-Star outfielder the last eight years, four times with the Yankees and four years with the San Diego Padres.

Winfield came to New York as the highest-paid player in baseball. He is known as the "$23-Million Man" because the 10-year contract he signed. Mattingly, on the other hand, earns $125,000 a year.

Both players have downplayed their duel for the title.

"We don't discuss it," said Winfield. "We don't allow any friction to develop."

Said Mattingly: "We both understand what's happening, but we want to keep it as low-key as possible. Whatever happens, happens."

The duo first appeared atop the AL batting chart on June 15, with Mattingly spending the rest of the summer trying to catch Winfield, whose average peaked at .377 on July 5.

Winfield, who spent 15 days on the disabled list with a hamstring injury, saw his average sink as low as .242 on May 7.

"When I came back, we weren't scoring a lot of runs or getting a lot of hits," Winfield said. "I figured I could contribute by getting hits, getting on base and scoring runs.

"It's been a great year. What can you say? Regardless of whether I win the title, how many right-handed hitters hit .340?"

Mattingly credits his success to consistency.

"That's been the key this year," the left-hander said. "I keep getting one a day. There haven't been any prolonged 0-fers."

Royals finally clinch AL West

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Steve Balboni, the hottest hitter in Kansas City's September title drive, sent the Royals ahead with a fourth-inning single Friday night and they beat the Oakland A's 6-5 to clinch the American League West crown.

Dan Quisenberry survived two home runs in the final three innings to earn his 44th save, one short of the major league record he established last season. He relieved Charlie Leibrandt, 11-7, who allowed five hits and two runs over the first six innings.

The Royals, who were deep in the division standings at baseball's All-Star break, won for the 10th time in their last 13 games and made their record 44-25 since July 18. The division title was their fifth in nine years.

Their victory over the A's, coupled with the second-place Minnesota Twins' 11-10 loss to Cleveland, settled the last contested division race in the major leagues.

Frank White drove in the Royals' final three runs, with a sixth-inning homer and a two-run triple in the seventh. The Royals held a 6-2 lead before Rickey Henderson belted a two-run homer, his 16th, off Quisenberry in the bottom of the seventh. Quisenberry also gave up Dwayne Murphy's 33rd homer in the eighth.

The Royals will face the Detroit Tigers, wire-to-wire winners of the AL East race, in the Championship Series which opens Tuesday night in Kansas City.

Balboni hit safely for the 17th time in his last 18 games and has 13 RBI in that stretch. He has six game-winning RBI this month, three in the last week.

Clark Griffith, famous for his long tenure as owner of the Washington Senators, managed the New York Yankees from 1903 to 1908.

SUGGS

Lemm by being selected to the AFL All-Pro team, playing in the pro bowl three times.

In one of those games, Suggs became acquainted with N.Y. Jets quarterback Joe Namath. On one play, a defensive lineman got past Suggs and sacked Namath. "The guy just nailed Namath. Namath picked himself up and came over and talked to me and said, 'That was your man that got me, wasn't it?' I said 'Yeah.' Then Namath said, 'He won't do it again, will he?' I said, 'No.'"

"I would have gotten a hundred holding penalties before they would have touched Namath again," Suggs said. "Joe Namath was one heck of a football player and one heck of a guy. He was a team player."

Suggs believes offensive linemen of today's game "have it a whole lot easier. Linemen continue to get bigger but they use their hands so much. We couldn't do it. I think we had to be more agile to do the job. The guys playing today in pass protection, all they have is bulk and keep somebody off balance; push 'em. They can push them back and get in front of them. When I was playing, we locked up with them more. We had to stay with them that way, because we couldn't push them away."

With a twinkle in his eyes, Suggs continued, "We couldn't use our hands...we weren't supposed to...the better offensive linemen knew how to hold without getting caught."

Suggs, an easy-going type, played with tremendous desire — "I played in the first pro football game in the Astrodome (1968) and dislocated my shoulder during the game and went on and played because I just had to be in there. It meant a lot to me."

Suggs named two other defensive linemen he played against and respected; Dallas Cowboys George Andre and Bob Lilly. "I played in front of Andre. He was a heck of a defensive end. Lilly played beside Andre. Lilly, to me, was the best defensive tackle that ever played the game. I really had that much respect for him as a person and as a ball player."

Suggs cited one of the Oilers' own defensive players that he thought was someone special — strong safety Ken Houston (now a member of the Oilers' coaching staff.) "Defensive back is the hardest spot to play, and then offensive line," Suggs proclaimed. "Defensive backs and offensive linemen have to react to someone else's movements. They have to be able to think quick enough to move and react to someone's movements."

"I think Ken Houston was one of the best defensive backs in football. What he had for him was not only his athletic ability but his leadership. He was one heck of a leader for the Oilers — and he was so quiet about it. I considered myself a leader, too. We did it with action and not with words. We got out there and worked at it."

Suggs played under five head coaches. "The one I played under that I really liked the most was Wally Lemm. When Lemm quit (1970), I guess that's when I more or less began to lose interest."

Suggs liked Lemm because "he was honest and you could talk to him. He didn't try to hide anything from anybody. I think all of us (players) felt like he was one of us and not one of our superiors."

As far as Suggs' association with the Oilers, he said, "I never looked back at any contract I ever signed... My relationship with Bud Adams was very good. He's a good businessman...I don't have anything but good things to say about any of them. I really did like playing for the Houston Oilers."

What Suggs remembers most about his rookie year in 1962 is signing his contract for the next year. "I didn't play a whole lot that year, only about half the time, and we won all the ball games, almost undefeated. I went in to negotiate my contract. You know, then they didn't write contracts for three or four years — you did it every year and an option for another year. Nobody ever signed big, multi-year contracts. But John Breen (Oiler Player Personnel Director)...I had to go in and talk to him. I had a $8,500 contract my rookie year and I told him I didn't deserve a raise. I didn't ask for a raise but he gave me a $500 raise. And I thought that was the greatest thing in the world...I got a $500 raise."

"Football was fun. It wasn't like it is today, such a big business. You went out there and everybody had a good time. There wasn't but 33 of us on the ball club but we'd go out and have a party or somebody would give a party. The other players would expect you to be there — and they would all be there. There wouldn't be but two or three that couldn't make it."

Hard Work

Our early settlers knew that, if they were going to survive in their new surroundings, they would have to work hard. Everyday there were many chores to be accomplished around the home. They could rely only on themselves to get the job done.

In 1900, the First National Bank of Hereford was founded. The folks who started our bank knew it would take a lot of hard work to make it successful.

As we look back over 84 years, we're glad we could lend a helping hand to a lot of people. We're proud to be a part of Hereford and the Texas Panhandle. But our hard work isn't finished yet. At First National Bank of Hereford, we're still pioneering new ways of service and security for you and your family.

Local family fills role of good shepherds

By LISA BALL
Staff Writer

Involvement. What does that word mean to most people? Simply writing a check? Or maybe dropping off a sack of garage sale items that did not sell so someone else can distribute them to those in need? Or just saying to friends how sorry they feel for those "poor people?" For Bill and Elva Devers, involvement means none of those things. Rather, it means getting out with the people in need, actually finding them help or food or whatever they need and sometimes even taking them in to their home for a night or two. Simply, involvement for them is losing their own lives in service to others.

"It's only when you lose your life and are helping others that you're truly happy," Bill said.

In March of this year, Bill dedicated all of his talents to full-time Christian work. At that time, he was ordained as a community pastor, the first man so designated. He currently heads Operation Good Shepherd.

"I just had an idea of wanting to be of service," he explained.

"We had all teased him about being a jack-of-all-trades," Elva said. "He's an excellent speaker, singer, and can do all kinds of work with tools.

"Now he can use all those talents for the Lord. I've never seen him so happy."

Operation Good Shepherd is only two and one-half years old and has as its main thrust food and clothing. The operation primarily matches volunteers with people who need help.

Some of the churches in town support Operation Good Shepherd which does not work from written rules and regulations. As Bill described it, it is a "concept based on love."

The ministry, as a result of not being tied to rules, is not limited as are other agencies. Numerous needs may be met and different things accomplished through the operation, especially when it works closely with all the other agencies in town.

Today, under Bill's guidance, Operation Good Shepherd has expanded its services. One of those expansions is a prison ministry.

Several men had been going to the jail every Thursday to witness, according to Bill, and he simply started going with them so the prisoners would recognize him and possibly come to him when they got out of prison and needed help.

"I figured if those of us on the outside need people around us, then surely those in jail need it more," Bill explained.

Soon, however, weekly meetings were not enough.

"A week must seem so long to those in prison," Bill said. "We really needed to go there every day."

With that idea, the daily devotionals started.

"Today," Bill said, "we are into our fourth week of daily devotionals. About 14 men show up and start their day with God. There's just no better way to start the day."

Another growth in the ministry is the area of follow through. Those involved with the operation try to get to the root of the problem, instead of simply putting a band-aid on the situation. A soup kitchen is also an idea that Bill wants to put into action.

"I'd like to someday be a facilitator," Bill said. "In that capacity, I would become aware of a need, find a person to meet that need and then get the two people together."

"I'm also hoping to start classes to educate people," he added. "Classes on marital relations and financial planning for the poor, for example."

Working with Operation Good Shepherd has taught Bill that there are tremendous needs not being met. He has also learned that people who are actively involved with a church do not need Operation Good Shepherd.

"When you're involved closely with a church, you have other people to help you," Bill explained.

Work is not all that the ministry offers Bill. It also has its rewards.

"The biggest thrill I get," Bill said with his eyes sparkling, "is to have someone sit in the office and explain their problems and (I can) see their frustrations and disappointments. Then I can say 'Don't worry, we're going to help you,' and the relief that comes across their face is the biggest thrill."

Before Bill took on the responsibility of Operation Good Shepherd full-time, he taught school for 14 years as a choir director. He also sold life insurance for six months prior to starting work in the ministry.

"In those six months," Bill said, "I came to realize that money doesn't bring joy. It (money) is essential, but it doesn't bring joy."

With the ministry, however, Bill is able to experience joy. Yet, even with joy as a reward, why does he spend every day giving to others and not asking for anything in return?

"God calls us to enter others' worlds and leave ours," Bill explained. "It's the same thing Christ did for us when He came."

"The rich have written checks, and the poor have received welfare checks, but we need to go ourselves and help."

"We're all living such fast, mobile lives," Elva added, "and there is so much loneliness. We need to get back to the time when people gave of themselves."

Bill further explained that people who go to church and are involved, yet do not give to others, are like the Dead Sea. There is fresh water going in, but nothing going out, he said. So, the water gets stale and nothing can live in it.

With the time he has at home, Bill likes to read and think.

"Bill's the dreamer between the two of us," Elva said. "And I'm the practical, detailed person. It takes us both to balance out our lives."

He enjoys reading Thoreau and Kahlil Gibran and gets much of his philosophy from the two men.

"People say I'm a human being," Bill said. "But I like to think of myself as a human becoming. 'Being' implies something static."

And static is definitely not a word to describe Bill Devers. His walk with the Lord is a growing, changing experience.

"I think of the Bible as an owner's manual," Bill said. "I turn to it when something goes wrong in order to fix whatever is wrong."

"I think everyone is searching for peace, love and joy—and they come as a gift from God."

Bill is also the interim music director for First Baptist Church. He likes to fish in his spare time.

Bill has support for his work, not only from the local churches, but from Elva.

Elva has a bachelor's degree in music and a master's degree in counseling, and is certified in early childhood and counseling. She teaches early childhood and handicapped at Shirley Elementary.

Elva also teaches Sunday School and is scheduled to teach during the training for the Stephen Ministry. Additionally, she plays the piano and is an excellent cook, according to Bill.

Elva does not limit her counseling abilities to the office, either. She brings that part of her work home.

"I try to use counseling techniques with my kids," Elva explained.

"One day I would like to do full-time counseling and be a family counselor in a church setting."

The Devers have three children. Diana is a senior in high school, Monica is a sophomore in high school and Scott is an eighth grader at La Plata.

Together, the Devers have noticed a change in their lives as a result of full-time Christian work.

"I've noticed a happiness and joy that weren't present before," Bill said.

"Everyday is a happy day, now," Elva added.

Maybe Bill best summed up their feelings when he described their lifestyle.

"Involvement—that's what we're into."

Extension Homemakers fall luncheon scheduled Oct. 9

Interested in some good eating? Come to the Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Fall Luncheon on Oct. 9, from 11 a.m. - 1:30 p.m.

There'll be lots of homemade cooking. Like turkey, dressing, gravy or prefer ham? You're in luck. There'll be a choice of vegetables, green beans, marinated carrots, or broccoli and rice plus a salad (green or gelatin). Homemade rolls, cake, and drinks finish the meal for the low price of $5.

Some of the club members preparing the food are Emma Smith, Ford, Pett Ott, Wyche, and Jewell Hargrave, Cultural. Everyone knows they're good cooks. And there's another hundred plus that are equally a good at cooking hummy things for the tummy.

This fundraiser does support the Extension Homemaker Club program. Presently, there are nine Extension Homemaker Clubs.

The Extension clubs are organized for a three-fold purpose. First to study homemaking and to develop and put into practice the best methods involve din successful homemaking; second, to offer to women an opportunity for self-improvements; and third, to advance community interest and life.

If you're interested in becoming an E.H. Club member, call Louise Walker at 364-3573.

Whatever, come out and support E.H. club work and enjoy a luscious home cooked meal on Oct. 9 at the Banquet Room, Community center. Serving will be continual from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Care of Silk Clothing

If you've been shopping for your fall wardrobe, you've probably been admiring the silk and silk blend garments now on the market. The familiar mail order catalogs...Sears and Wards...offer many silk and silk blend clothing items.

Most of us have become accustomed to the easy care "machine wash-tumble dry" labels in our synthetic clothing.

Silk is an elegant, delicate fiber that must be handled with care if it is to retain its full beauty.

Silk fibers are easily broken when wet. For this reason you should never attempt to remove a stain from your silk garment by rubbing with a damp cloth. Instead, blot the area gently. Once surface fibers are damaged, a permanent light area may appear.

If a spot is not easily removed by blotting, take the garment to your drycleaner and tell him, if possible, what it is. If you already have a light spot on your garment caused by rubbing, point it out to your cleaner. He can sometimes improve the appearance of the area with a special treatment.

To avoid fabric damage, have perspiration stains removed as soon as possible by drycleaning. Perspiration contains chloride salts, which will weaken the structure of the garment if left in the fabric. Prolonged contact with perspiration, deodorant, or body oils can cause permanent staining as well. If you perspire heavily, consider wearing under arm shields to protect the garment.

Color loss in silk can occur in several ways. One cause is water-soluble dyes. Some dyes bleed when wet with water. This can cause shaded areas in the underarm area because of dye bleeding when wet with perspiration. Color loss can also occur as result of spillage of a food or beverage. Water and water-based chemicals are needed to remove these stains, and may cause additional bleeding. If a bleeding problem causes serious color loss, the garment should be returned to the retailer.

Some dyes used on silk will bleed when wet with alcohol. Alcoholic beverages, perfumes and deodorants all contain alcohol. Allow perfume and deodorant to dry before dressing, and remove beverage stains as soon as possible to avoid permanent color loss.

Spilled soft drinks, fruit juices and mixed drinks, as well as coffee and tea can develop into permanent yellow stains if they are not removed immediately. These substances are usually not particularly visible when first spilled, but as they dry, they become more difficult to remove.

When taking your silk garments to your drycleaner, keep these things in mind:

-Take in a stained garment as soon as possible.

-Tell the drycleaner what the stain is, if at all possible.

-Be sure to point out unapparent spills, such as from white wine or ginger ale.

Farm

Oct. 21-23 in Amarillo

Block to speak at convention

AMARILLO — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block is expected to discuss the upcoming farm legislation and related issues which will affect the beef industry when he speaks at the Texas Cattle Feeders Association Annual Convention, Oct. 21-23 in Amarillo.

officials, he eventually won and the embargo was lifted in April 1981. (2) He has played a major role in reaffirming the U.S. as a worldwide reliable source of agriculture products—always working on the theory that agricultural producers will benefit most from expanded trade.

A native of Gilson, Ill., Block was raised on a farm and graduated from Military - the U.S. Military Academy at West Point in 1957. After serving in the Army he returned to the family farm and formed a partnership with his father.

In 1969, he was named the U.S. Jaycees outstanding young farmer. In 1977, he became the Illinois state director of agriculture, a position he held until being named agriculture secretary by President Reagan in January 1981.

Block will be one of several speakers on the TCFA convention program. Others include Howard K. Smith, long-time network television anchorman and political analyst; Dr. Margaret N. Maxey, director of the Chair for Free Enterprise at the University of Texas at Austin; Dr. William J. Rathje, an anthropologist at the University of Arizona; and Dick Waterfield, current TCFA president.

Further information on the convention may be obtained by contacting TCFA at 5501 W. Interstate 40 in Amarillo, or calling (806) 358-3681.

JOHN BLOCK

(3) He was also responsible for the successful payment-in-kind program, a self-terminating voluntary program designed to reduce the volume of surplus grain stocks which contributed to depressed commodity prices.

Secretary Block is scheduled to address some 900 cattle feeders and others associated with the cattle feeding industry during the convention's final general session on Oct. 23 at the Amarillo Hilton Inn, said Charles E. Ball, TCFA executive vice president.

It will be the 17th annual convention for TCFA, an Amarillo-based association which represents cattle feeders in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, an area that supplies about 22 percent of all the fed cattle in the U.S.

"Insight '84" is the theme of our convention this year," said Ball, "and Secretary Block certainly has much insight as to what's ahead in agriculture. We are eager to hear his thoughts on these important matters, which will undoubtedly have an impact on the cattle feeding industry."

Secretary Block often has been in the public spotlight during the last four years:

(1) In early 1981 he fought to lift the controversial U.S. grain embargo against the Soviet Union that had been imposed by former President Carter. Although he met with resistance from some cabinet members and other administration

Block believes

Crop programs to be popular

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John Block says he expects at least half of all feed grain producers to sign up for next year's price support program, despite complaints from Corn Belt congressmen that it is inadequate.

But Block's optimism for corn does not extend to wheat and other crops, whose price prospects for next year remain dim because of huge inventories.

"There haven't been any good solutions for wheat," Block said, noting that efforts to curb production have been largely thwarted by the planting of new wheat acreage in the South and by increased efficiency and per-acre yields of hybrids.

Overall, Block told the House Agriculture Committee Wednesday, next year's price outlook for wheat, rice and cotton "doesn't look as good as I would like for it to."

He said he had no plans to change any of the programs, which include payments to farmers for idling some of their cropland in wheat, rice and cotton — but not in corn.

"These programs have been well received by producers," Block told the panel, adding that he expected 70 percent participation in the programs with paid land-idling features, and 50 percent in corn and feed grains — "a relatively high level for feed grain producers who historically have not participated in acreage programs at such high levels."

Rep. Berkley Bedell, D-Iowa, attacked the corn price support program, saying "farmers need better prices to get out from under their debt burden."

Rep. Timothy Penny, D-Minn., said without prospects for price relief farmers now stretched to the breaking point will be failing in greater numbers. "My fear is that there is going to be a tremendously high number of failures by next spring unless farmers and lenders can see some light at the end of the tunnel," he said.

Block said he had no new figures on anticipated farm failures, repeating the figure of 3 percent to 4 percent nationwide that the department has been projecting.

"I'm not so sure the farm programs could be managed ... in a way that would be a salvation to them," Block said.

Act bring changes

Farm tax planning important

COLLEGE STATION — The Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 brings about a number of tax changes that remove all doubt that tax planning should be a year-round effort.

Farmers and ranchers as well as others need to take a close look at the changes and to start their tax strategy now to avoid new pitfalls and to capitalize on unexpected write-offs in 1984 and beyond, according to Dr. Forrest Stegelin.

The new legislation reveals tax increases that stretch depreciation write-offs, squeeze income averaging and foreclose on most interest-free loans, added Stegelin, an agribusiness economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. It also creates tax breaks, such as a shorter capital gains holding period for investors, and it effectively leaves open many legitimate tax-saving techniques.

In addition, the new tax law removes tax disputes from divorce and separation proceedings.

Regarding investments, assets such as stocks, bonds, gold and real estate bought after last June 22 must be held only six months instead of the old one year holding period to qualify for favorable capital gains tax rates. Long-term gains are taxed at 40 percent of an individual's tax bracket while short-term gains are fully taxable as ordinary income, Stegelin pointed out.

The new law also treats profits from the sale of market discounted corporate and U.S. Treasury bonds issued after mid-July as interest subject to ordinary income taxes instead of capital gains taxed at the more favorable rates.

Another provision of the tax act is that deductions will be disallowed for interest or business expenses charged off one year but actually paid in a future year. This primarily affects private real estate partnerships, research and development ventures and cattle feeding programs with the main purpose of tax avoidance, Stegelin said.

The deadline for IRA (Individual Retirement Account) contributions has been shortened to the April 15 tax filing date. Regarding IRAs, pensions and annuities, heirs have been given greater flexibility as to when to take taxable distributions. Also, part of the tax on long-term gains in variable annuities has been eliminated, and such annuities will now be able to completely defer long-term capital gains until they are paid out to the annuitant.

Some changes also have been made regarding tax credits and depreciation write-offs for business related use of a personal computer or a car bought after June 18 of this year, Stegelin noted. Henceforth, the IRS will want proof that a computer is required for work and that it is used for business use more than 50 percent of the time.

South cotton needs hot, dry weather

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — While farmers and ranchers in most parts of Texas welcomed the cooler weather at mid-week, that was not the case in the South Plains, which needs more hot, dry weather for the cotton crop, says Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

That area of the state is boasting one of its best cotton crops in years but needs about another month of hot, dry weather for the crop to mature fully, Carpenter said in his weekly report on Texas agriculture. More than half of the state's cotton acreage is in the South Plains.

Cotton harvesting continued to dominate the agricultural scene in other parts of Texas, with harvest operations active in Southwest and West Central Texas as well as in central and northeastern counties. Yields continued to run fairly low due to this year's drought except in irrigated areas. Farmers in Far West Texas were applying defoliants to get their crop ready to harvest, Carpenter said.

This year's cotton acreage is down sharply in some areas due to the dry spring which either limited planting or caused poor stands. For example, Taylor County which normally has about 20,000 acres of cotton only has some 500 acres this year.

Other harvest operations include peanuts in central and eastern counties and sugar beets in the Panhandle and South Plains. Bell peppers, cabbage and cucumbers also are being harvested in the South Plains. Pecan harvesting is about to start in southern counties although this year's crop has been cut short by the drought, Carpenter said.

Livestock conditions remained under pressure over most of Texas although scattered rains in eastern sections helped some and conditions have improved along the Upper Coast. Lack of forage and stock water is causing ranchers to continue culling operations in many counties, and stock on hand has to be fed. Lack of moisture is also hampering small grain plantings although some producers are dry-seeding wheat and oats.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Sugar beet

harvesting is increasing and the corn harvest is starting. Carrot harvesting is in full swing. Cotton in southeastern counties is starting to open. Some farmers are continuing to sow wheat for winter grazing but rain or irrigation is needed to get the crop up.

SOUTH PLAINS: This week's cool weather and rains have slowed cotton development. The area needs about another month of hot, dry weather for the cotton crop to mature fully. Harvesting of sugar beets, bell peppers, cabbage and cucumbers is active. Corn and grain sorghum harvesting will start soon. Scattered rains should help wheat.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cotton prospects are continuing to decline due to lack of moisture; early fields are opening. Grain sorghum harvesting is active in some counties, with yields generally fair to poor due to the season-long drought. Producers are dry-seeding wheat and oats. Some drought-selling of livestock continues as stock water and grazing remain short.

NORTH CENTRAL: About 30 percent of the cotton crop remains to be harvested; yields are low due to the dry summer. Planting of wheat and oats continues although rain is needed to get the crops up. Producers are continuing to cull cow herds and, in some cases, are selling entire herds due to the lack of grazing and stock water.

NORTHEAST: Cotton harvesting remains in full swing while the grain sorghum harvest is about over. Yields of both crops are generally short due to dry conditions during the growing season. Sweet potato harvesting remains in full swing. Recent scattered rains should boost the planting of winter pastures although more moisture is needed. Cattle marketings remain heavy in some counties.

FAR WEST: Farmers continue to apply defoliants to cotton to get it ready to harvest. Ranges are continuing to deteriorate under dry conditions, and ranchers are shipping sheep and cattle to market.

WEST CENTRAL: Cotton and grain sorghum yields are down sharply due to the drought. Cotton acreage is but a fraction of normal, as witnessed by about 500 acres in Taylor County compared to a normal crop of 20,000 acres. Sell-off of livestock continues in most counties due to the lack of forage and stock water. Cattle numbers are down 60 to 80 percent in Sterling County.

CENTRAL: Cotton harvesting is moving toward completion while digging of irrigated peanuts is in full swing. Armyworms area problem in emerging small grains and irrigated Coastal bermudagrass. Cattle continue to move to market due to the lack of grazing and stock water. Pecan drop is heavy due to the dry weather.

EAST: Harvesting of peanuts and sweet potatoes continues along with some hay making. Both peanut and hay yields are short due to the season-long drought. Dry conditions continue to hamper fall gardening and planting of winter pastures although scattered rains fell in some locations the past week.

UPPER COAST: Most counties have good moisture due to recent rains, so pastures have improved considerably. Peanut and soybean crops are doing well. Fall gardening is active. Pecans are in the soft dough to early shuck split stage.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Dry conditions continue to plague area cattlemen although the open weather has allowed farmers to complete dryland cotton harvesting. Some farmers are continuing to plant wheat and oats for winter grazing, and fall gardening remains active.

SOUTHWEST: Harvesting of irrigated cotton and pickling cucumbers remains in full swing. A short pecan harvest should start next week. Farmers are waiting on rain to plant small grains for winter grazing. Most fall vegetable crops have been planted and are requiring heavy irrigation. Livestock feeding remains active, with numbers down 60 to 70 percent of normal.

COASTAL BEND: Early soybeans are being harvested but yields are short due to the season-long drought. Farmers are dry-seeding wheat and oats for winter grazing and are still baling a little hay; hay supplies remain short. Livestock marketings remain heavy due to the lack of grazing and stock water; many cattle have suffered severe weight losses.

SOUTH: Northern and western counties continue to suffer from lack of moisture while flood recovery operations continue in Willacy and Cameron counties. Vegetable crops and citrus groves suffered possible damage from standing water. However, the rains boosted hay crops and grazing.

AN APPROACH TO INCREASED CORN YIELDS that may be well worth looking into is the application of starter fertilizer. According to an agronomist with an industry group, starter fertilizer can have several beneficial effects including quick corn emergence and vigorous seedling growth following early planting or during a cool spring. Application of starter fertilizer places nutrients close to the seed, aiding plant growth until the root system can obtain nutrients elsewhere in the soil. Long term research carried out at Iowa State University indicates starter fertilizer application can increase yields most when applied to fields where phosphate was first broadcast, then plowed down. Heavy plowdown rates, however, resulted in smaller yield increases. The Iowa State study has been ongoing for a 21-year period.

Supplements vital for Yankee eating habits

COLLEGE STATION - Vitamin and mineral supplements are a popular—even if not always necessary—part of the American diet, according to a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

A recent Gallup Poll shows that about 40 percent of the adult population uses vitamin or mineral supplements, said Dr. Alice Hunt. Multivitamins lead the product sales, followed by Vitamin C, B vitamins and Vitamin E, she adds.

Food and Drug Administration (FDA) studies indicate that women are more frequent users of supplements than men in all age groups, the nutritionist said. Heaviest users are those over 65 years of age. While half of all users take only one supplement, about 11 percent take five or more different supplements daily.

One recent study of national health and nutrition suggests that this vitamin and mineral use is not related to actual need, except for iron supplementation in women of childbearing age, Hunt reported. But vitamin use is influenced by advertising and promotions as well as individual health beliefs.

"The vast majority of people can get all the vitamins and minerals they need by eating a well-balanced diet," Hunt maintained. "If you are concerned about your nutrient intake, a physician or registered dietitian can tell you whether you need a dietary supplement or not."

If you take vitamins and minerals without consulting a physician, be cautious, the nutritionist said. The FDA has only limited authority to regulate supplements, except for those intended for children under 12 or for pregnant or lactating women. The FDA is not allowed to limit the combination or number of vitamins, minerals or other ingredients in a supplement product.

Most supplement products are safe, says Hunt, since they contain modest amounts of vitamins and minerals which approximate the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance (RDA). However, higher potency products can be a cause for concern, Hunt said.

For example, extremely high potency selenium products were recalled by the FDA this spring because they resulted in the loss of hair and other adverse effects.

Jimmy Payne, at left, and Tracy Martin are attired in western apparel. Payne wears the working cowboy's flannel plaid shirt with the necessary red one-piece union suit underneath to help fight the harsh winter weather of this area. He also wears leggings, along with the wild rag, boots and black beaver hat. Martin is suited in the traditional western grey corduroy jacket with 15 percent wool sweater, polyester jeans, boots and grey beaver hat with corded hat band. The western wear is furnished by West Texas Western Store and will be modeled during the Women's Division style show scheduled at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Community Center.

That romantic old-world look is projected by the gown furnished by Sweetbriar. Reva Crafton wears a slipper-length crinkle country cloth dress fashioned with a lace bib and a white satin bow tied at the back. The apron overskirt is edged by a deep lace flounce.

Carolyn Baxter is shown wearing a fall ensemble that is fashionable this season. Today's fashion hit is the patchwork tweed sweater vest which is worn over a simple long-sleeved blouse and the ever popular split skirt. To complete the look is a Fedora hat. These coordinates are provided by Louise's.

Children's clothes this season are brightly colored and easily cared for. Rick and Peggy Cooper's two children take time out from modeling to have some refreshments. Four-year-old Elizabeth is wearing a plum colored corduroy jumpsuit trimmed with bows and a printed blouse decorated with matching bows. Three-year-old Richard is attired in grey corduroy pants and a cranberry and grey striped knit long-sleeve shirt. These fashions from J.C. Penney's Store will be modeled at the Fall Fling style show set at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Community center.

Fun To Wear

Fashions for the younger generation are fun to wear as well as being practical. Connie Reyes, at left, wears a fuschia colored parachute ensemble and Karen Jones, center, selects a two-piece plaid dress designed with a platter collar. Black suspended pants, a long sleeve cotton shirt and a red, blue and black plaid tie is worn by Martha Ramirez. Clothes are provided by C.R. Anthony's at Sugarland Mall. The public is invited to attend the style show hosted by the Women's Division.

Gala style show scheduled Tuesday by Women's Division

Fall and winter fashions for women, men and children will be viewed during the Women's Division Fall Fling style show and quarterly meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Community Center. The public is invited to attend with tickets priced at $1 per person. Anyone interested in attending the event is asked to make their reservations at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office by 5 p.m. Monday. Refreshments, which will be provided by the four Women's Division's host committees, include assorted salads, crackers, relish trays, cookies, coffee and tea. Also, door prizes of potted plants and silk floral arrangements will be given away. Following the style show, new division officers will be elected and will be installed at the first quarterly meeting of 1985 in January. Helping with the event are Jane White, chairman of the animal action committee, and committee members Susan Barrett, Margaret Formby, Helen Smith, Mysedia Smith and Carol Gerk. Joyce Skelton heads the Little Miss Hereford committee and her

Pool, Hix exchange wedding vows

MRS. MATT HIX
...nee Debra Kay Pool

Debra Kay Pool of Harlingen became the bride of Matt Hix of Harlingen Saturday evening in Temple Baptist Church of Hereford with the Rev. W.H. Bartlett officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd R. Eubanks of Hereford and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hank Thompson of Lubbock and Mr. Jerry Hix of Hereford.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, Floyd Eubanks, the bride wore a formal floor length gown of sheerganza and re-embroidered chantilly lace over bridal taffeta. The dress was designed with a high neckline, empire waist, long camelot sleeves and a semi A-line silhouette.

Inserts of the lace, enhanced with tiny seed pearls and sequins, complimented the neckline, bodice and sleeves. A small border of matching lace added beauty to the hemline, and the full back of the gown ended in a sweeping chapel length train.

The bride's derby hat had a brim covered with sheer illusion. The upswept side of the hat was accented with silk flowers and the top was covered with lace and tiny seed pearls.

She carried her bouquet of large white silk roses accented by smaller blue and apricot roses down the aisle to the front of the church which was decorated with a centered white arch way with blue and apricot flowers and large white bows. The arch way was further accented with two large sprays of white silk gladiolas and blue and apricot silk roses.

Kim Emsley of Harlingen served as maid of honor while Andrea Pool, of Harlingen sister of the bride, and Annette Vaughn of Hereford served as bridesmaids.

The attendants wore full length dresses of apricot sheerganza with a ruffle, empire waist, lace bodice with scoop neckline accented by tiny seed pearls and long sleeves with lace cuffs.

The bridesmaids' halos were of blue and apricot silk daisies accented with baby's breath with a bow and streamers of ribbon and lace in the back. The attendants carried long stem blue and apricot roses with a bow and streamers of ribbon and lace.

James Carr of Hereford served the groom as best man with Cliff Gouddy and David Patrick, both of Hereford, serving as groomsmen. Rodney Miller and Tate Baker, both of Hereford, were ushers.

Chastitie Bone, daughter of Mrs. Robert Bone, was the flower girl and James Martinez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Martinez, was the ring bearer.

Music was provided by organist Tommie Sue Lookingbill and pianist Mrs. Bruce Edwards, the bride's sister. Bruce Edwards, the bride's brother-in-law, sang "When You Look at Me."

A reception followed the wedding in the Fellowship Hall of Temple Baptist church. Marlyn Otteman of Lubbock served the three-tiered wedding cake decorated with blue and apricot roses with a porcelain figurine of a boy groom and a girl bride on top of the cake. Mrs. Chris Kahlick of Amarillo served the punch while Linda Blackwell of Hereford served the groom's cake and coffee.

After a wedding trip to Possum Kingdom Lake, the couple will make their home in Harlingen.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Hereford High School and is currently employed at Godwin and Sons advertising company in Harlingen.

The groom is a 1982 graduate of Coronado High School in Lubbock and is presently employed by Lone Star Sign Company in Harlingen.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Bud Cumberledge of Lefors, Mrs. Doug Reeves of Lefors, Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Eubanks of Wheeler, Mr. Al Cumberledge of San Antonio, Mr. Ross Pool of Harlingen and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Woodall of Hooker, Okla.

MRS. RAYMON BRYCE GALBRAITH
...nee Jenness Lynn Self

Self, Galbraith exchange wedding vows

In a Friday evening ceremony, Jenness Lynn Self of Amarillo became the bride of Raymon Bryce Galbraith of Clayton, N.M. in Palo Duro Baptist Church of Wildorado with the Rev. Cliff Hargrove officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Charles and Virginia Self of Hereford, and the groom is the son of Robert and Imogene Galbraith of Vega.

The front of the church was outlined with greenery and ferns while lighted oil lamps decorated the piano and organ. The lamps were encircled with cedar which was decorated with pink and blue bows along with ropes. The aisle was decorated with blue and pink bows fastened with double rings of rope.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride wore a turn of the century gown of ivory voile. The lace caplet around the shoulders was accented with a medallion. The neckline was traditional Victorian with layers of brocade medallions pointing to a "V" in flounce.

Her gown had lace ruffles on the skirt. The back of the skirt separated with lace on each side and was topped with a big bow and cinched at the waist. The gown was ball length with underskirts of moire ribbon and chantilly lace.

To complement her dress, the bride chose a Victorian hat of ivory brocade re-embroidered lace that was dotted with pearls. The side was turned up and decorated with ivory roses and a cascade of wedding bell flowers. The veil of candlelight bridal illusion gathered and fell to her waist.

As she walked down the aisle, the bride carried a cascade bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and pixie carnations with candlelight lace.

Tori Self served her sister as maid of honor. Laurie Kahlick and Terri Harkins were bridesmaids. The maid of honor wore a baby blue full long formal dress while the bridesmaids wore light pink long formal dresses. The attendants carried a single rose of blue and the maid of honor carried a single pink rose.

The groom's brother, Randal Galbraith, served as best man while Brad Cannon and Steve Cook were groomsmen. Ushers were Brent Self, the bride's brother, and Shannon Leavitt.

Tandi Galbraith, daughter of Randal and Paula Galbraith, was flower girl. Robbie Cook, son of Jason and Charlette Cook, was ring bearer. The two children are the groom's niece and nephew, respectively.

Verna Kay Crist accompanied Tori Self on the piano. Miss Self sang "There is Love," "Lord's Prayer" and "We've Only Just Begun."

Following the ceremony, a reception took place in Palo Duro Baptist Church. Sharon Self, the bride's sister-in-law, registered guests while Beth Sisk served punch and coffee.

The three-tiered wedding cake was served by Judy Rogers and Diane Reynolds. The cake was decorated with pink roses and enhanced the table which also held a centerpiece consisting of the family Bible with the bride's bouquet in the center of it.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Las Vegas, Nev., the bride wore a prairie skirt and western cut shirt that matched the groom's shirt.

The couple will return to their home in Clayton, N.M. on Pacheco Ranch after Oct. 1.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Hereford High School and a RFO graduate of Clarendon Junior College in 1983. She was formerly employed at Terminix International in Amarillo.

The bridegroom is a 1982 graduate of Vega High school. He graduated from Clarendon Junior College in 1984 with an associate degree in applied science in range and feedlot operations. He is currently employed at Pacheco Ranch in Clayton, N.M.

Out of town guests were the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cox of Lazbuddie and Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Self of Tuttle, Okla.

FLYING FREQUENTLY

Anyone who travels regularly for business or pleasure should certainly take advantage of the frequent flyer programs offered by any of the airlines. Application blanks are generally available at ticket counters. If you fly a certain number of miles on that airline, you may earn premiums or free travel. Some people do not bother with these programs because they think they may never accumulate the necessary mileage. However, it is easier than it sounds. One major airline credits passengers with at least 1,000 on each flight, no matter how short. Another gives extra credit for flying business class or first class on trans-Atlantic flights. Still others offer special mileage bonuses during certain periods, and to some destinations.

HEREFORD TRAVEL CENTER can get you anywhere you want to go, at the lowest available prices. We are proud to be able to coordinate all your travel arrangements down to the smallest detail. There is never any additional charge to you for our services. We offer travel planning assistance for individuals, couples and groups. With each airline ticket purchases from us the traveler will receive $25,000 life insurance. We are located at 144 W. 2nd, 364-6813. Most major credit cards honored. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8:30-5:30, Sat. 9-12. If possible, allow stopovers to work to your sightseeing advantage.

Fair scheduled Oct. 16

A Health Fair, sponsored by the Deaf Smith family living committee and county extension office, will be held Tuesday, Oct. 16 in the Community Center.

Over 30 health related agencies will have educational booths. Screenings and tests will include blood pressure, diabetes, TB, breast self-examination, hemacritis (anemia) and hearing.

The fair is free of charge both to exhibitors and those attending.

Honor scholars from HHS named

WTSU — More than 300 students attending West Texas State University as freshmen have been awarded $200 Don and Sybil Harrington Scholarships for the 1984-85 academic year.

Scholarships are awarded each year to students who were members of high school National Honor Society chapters or similar organizations.

Don and Sybil Harrington honor scholars may receive an additional President's Honor Scholarship if they score 28 or more of a possible 36 on the American College Test (ACT) or 1,220 points of a possible 1,600 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) college entrance examinations. They receive an additional $100.

Don and Sybil Harrington Honor Scholarships were begun in 1979 with an endowment from the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation of Amarillo. Additional grants have grown to a total endowment of $1.2 million and students are eligible to retain the scholarship for four years at WTSU if they maintain a 3.0 grade point average on a 4.0 scale.

A competitive scholarship of $200 or more at WTSU waives out-of-state tuition.

Don and Sybil Harrington Honor Scholars from Hereford High School are Cindy Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Duncan; Jeanette Grotegut, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josef C. Grotegut; Michelle Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Hughes of 430 Avenue I;

Chartering A New Club

Pilot Club chartered with 49 members

Hereford has its first international classified service club for executive and professional women - Pilot Club International.

The Pilot Club of Hereford was chartered with 49 members in ceremonies held Thursday night at the Community Center. District Governor Donna Walker from Baytown presented the Charter to Margaret Bell, president of the local club.

Charter members names were read by June Darnell of Amarillo, 1st Lt. Governor of Texas District as they came forward to sign the charter. Membership certificates were presented by Ruth Gilliam of Amarillo, district extension leader.

Greetings and welcome to the community were extended by Mayor Wes Fisher and Mike Carr, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce. Bringing greetings from Pilot International was Janette Bowers, one of only five international directors.

A gift from the organizing club was presented by Mrs. Rose Smothers, president of the Pilot Club of Amarillo. Governor Donna Walker presented a gift from the District.

Speaker for the evening was Rocky Lee of Hereford, Lt. Governor of District 2-T-1, Lions International. His subject was "Why Service Clubs."

The Code of Ethics was given by Louise Orr of the Pilot Club of Amarillo.

The Pilot Club of Hereford was organized by members of the Pilot Club of Amarillo. Ruth Gilliam and Louise Orr served as Extension Leaders.

Local Officers are: Margaret Bell, president; Donna West, vice president; Wanda Cobb, recording secretary; Brenda Thomas, corresponding secretary; Mary Jean Gore, treasurer; Irene McKinster, Berta Ottesen and Diane Hoelscher, directors.

Pilot Club International was organized in Macon, Georgia in 1921. The civic-service club took its name from harbor and river boat pilots who conducted ships through waterways, guiding them safely to anchorage. In keeping with this image, the Pilot wheel was chosen as the emblem - symbolizing the responsibility of a leader and guide. Colors of green to denote life and vigor and gold to represent sincerity of purpose were adopted.

Pilot International now has 21,000 members in 620 clubs.

Clubs and members work with numerous national and international organizations for the improvement of health, education and welfare of all people. Pilot International is a member agency of CARE, Inc., and is affiliated with the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped and Freedoms Foundation. Pilot Club International is identified worldwide through its major emphasis on full citizenship for handicapped people.

Between the Covers

By DIANNE PIERSON
County Librarian

Mysteries are featured this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. The mysteries featured are "Death in Kashmir" by M.M. Kaye, "Mrs. Pollifax On The China Station" by Dorothy Gilman, and "The Eye" by Bill Pronzini and John Lutz.

"Death in Kashmir" continues M.M. Kaye's tradition of murder and romance set in exotic locales. When young Sarah Parrish takes a skiing vacation to Gulmarg, a resort nestled in the mountains above the fabled Vale of Kashmir, she anticipates an amusing but uneventful stay. When

Public invited to view film

"Preparing for Adolescence-The Origins of Self-Doubt" will be the film viewed at 6 p.m. this evening during the Church of the Nazarene's evening services.

This film is one of seven consecutive film series featuring Dr. James C. Dobson, a leading psychologist and expert in family counseling.

Until 1796 there was a state in the U.S. called Franklin. Today it is known as Tennessee.

she discovers that the deaths of two in her party are the result of foul play, she finds herself entrusted with a mission of unguessable importance. When she leaves the ski slopes for Waterwitch, a private houseboat, she discovers to her horror that the killer will stop at nothing, including her murder, to prevent Sarah from piecing the puzzle together.

It all adds up to dazzling, hypnotic entertainment that no mystery reader will want to miss reading. M.M. Kaye is also the author of "Death in Zanzibar," "Death in Cyprus," and "Death in Kenya."

Hold on to your hats! In "Mrs. Pollifax on the China Station" by Dorothy Gilman, the inimitable Mrs. Emily Pollifax of New Brunswick, N.J., is off and running on another adventure. This time out, she's posing as a respectable, middle-aged tourist (perfect typecasting by the CIA) on an exotic tour of Marco Polo's legendary Silk Road through China. This is a remote corner of the Orient full of ancient archaeological treasures few tourists ever see.

But hidden away in the Chinese hinterland is another treasure, a certain Mr. X, a political prisoner whose knowledge of Chinese defense makes him a highly sought-after prize for the Russians, and the Americans as well.

How Mrs. Pollifax acts as a cover for a CIA agent whose identity she's not permitted to know until a critical point, and how she sniffs out a KGB agent and saves the day in a daring act of courage, makes for a thoroughly enjoyable "good read." Once again Dorothy Gilman offers readers a rare treat—a fast-paced suspense novel starring plucky, lovable heroine, Mrs. Pollifax.

The entire city block is adopted on Manhattan's West 98th Street by Lewis Collier, who calls himself God, in "The Eye" by Bill Pronzini and John Lutz. Using the telescope he calls The Eye of God, Collier is aware of everything in the lives of those he has taken for his own. When his "children" displease him, he metes out punishment. But there is no penance to be done for this god; in this domain the wages of sin is death.

Detective E.L. Oxman is the man who must save 98th Street from its deranged protector. Detective Oxman becomes involved with Jennifer Crane, a woman on 98th Street, and therefore, is scrutinized by the killer. In the sight of the Eye of the God, they have sinned.

Bill Pronzini is the author of the popular "Nameless" detective series and is a resident of San Francisco. John Lutz, who lives in Missouri, has published several acclaimed novels. This is their first collaborative novel.

Other new books this week include "The Company of Saints" by Evelyn Anthony, "Dirty Dealing" by Gary Cartwright, and "The Orchid Tree" by Virginia Coffman.

Library Events:

Thursday mornings - 10:00 a.m. - Public pre-school story hour. Bring your children to hear a delightful story and see a film or filmstrip each week!! If you have any questions about story hour, please feel free to call Mely Gamez at 364-1206.

Martin, Gaede vows spoken Saturday

MRS. JACKIE LEE GAEDE
...Lillian Jayne Martin

Lillian Jayne Martin of Clovis, N.M. became the bride of Jackie Lee Gaede of Altus, Ok. during an afternoon ceremony Saturday held in the gazebo at King's Manor Retirement Home. The Rev. J.L. Bozeman officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Barbara Martin of Hereford and Charlie C. Martin of New Smyrna Beach, Fla. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Gaede of Plainsfield, Iowa.

The gazebo was decorated with lavender and white streamers and bells.

Barbara Finly, the bride's cousin, served as matron of honor and Randy Russell of Plainsfield was best man. Michlynn Hobbs, daughter of Ms. Finly, was flower girl.

The bride's escorts included her brother, Philip Martin, and her uncle, Danny Rauler.

Given in marriage by her mother, she wore an organza gown she and her mother designed and made. It was fashioned with a high neckline, natural waistline and long lace sleeves gathered at lace cuffs. The full skirt was edged in matching lace.

The bridal veil of illusion, edged in lace, fell to a knee-length and was attached to a lace coiff. She carried a cascading bouquet of lavender and white roses trimmed with long satin streamers.

Her only jewelry consisted of a cameo belonging to her mother.

The bridal attendant wore a lavender gown and carried a basket of lavender roses and the flower girl carried a basket of petals.

Darlene Cornelius and Patsy Webb served the wedding cake at the reception held at King's Manor. Shantel and Danielle Cornelius and Brandie Webb invited guests to register and poured punch and coffee.

The bride, a 1975 graduate of Hereford High School, is currently serving in the U.S. Air Force stationed at Cannon AFB in Clovis, N.M.

The bridegroom, a 1978 graduate of Plainsfield High School, is also serving in the Air Force stationed at Altus AFB.

Out-of-town guests were from various parts of Iowa.

Calliopian members attend fashion show

Guests and members of Calliopian Study Club were given a preview of new fall fashions when they met Thursday evening at Gaston's at Sugarland Mall.

Virginia Holmes, club president, gave a brief welcome before Kay Lynn Schachter began narrating. Fashions ranged from sports wear to formal evening wear.

Models included Joyce Lomas, Margaret Golden, Kristina Kerr, Laura Kerr, Susan Gage, Cameron Gully, Kevin Hull, Hunt Foster, Matt Gilliland, Rex Lee, Bobby Boyd, and Charlie Kerr. Club members who modeled included Claudia McBrayer, Cherry McWhorter, Amy Gilliland, Jane Gully, Kathryn Ruga and Faye Holt.

After presentation of fashions, a social hour was held with Teddi Alexander, Sheri Kerr, Ms. Gully and Ms. Gilliland serving as hostesses. Refreshments served were finger foods, cookies, tea sandwiches, cheeses, coffee and punch from tables covered with gold colored cloths.

Guests present were Katherine Perrin, Juanita Perrin, Helen Spinks, Mozelle Neill, Bubby McBrayer, Ruth Allison, Morgan Cain, Delores Foster, Jean Lyman, Della Hutchins, Jolene Bledsoe, Paty Giles, Nadine Hill, Dottie Darden, Bertha Dettman, Kathleen Brockman.

Also, Mildred Brown, Nita Hart, Marguerite McGee, Joan Hopper, Carol Gage, Sid Kerr, Ruth Kerr, Norman Kerr, Boyd Foster, Beth Burran, Mary Marrow, Zaki Wilson, Ruby Boston, Vi Owen, Mitt Hastings, Marguarite Newell, Rosalie Gilbreath, Charalett Palmer, Edna Gault, Lee Ann Frazier, Elizabeth Cesar, Leona Kimbell and Helen Langley.

Other members present included Lee Cave, Kay McWhorter, Mary Sue Hull, Meredith Wilcox, Kathleen Palmer, Mary E. Fraser, Audine Dettmann, Zella Mae Crump, Elizabeth McDowell and Marjorie Mims.

Be kind to beef

Rough treatment can hurt the quality of the beef you've brought home.

A recent study conducted at the University of Arizona showed shoppers simply toss the meat they've purchased into their freezer. They do not moisture-vapor proof. It lets meat dry out. Within two to three weeks the meat will have freezer burn. Even in just a week, this causes your beef to lose some of its flavor. When meat is frozen slowly, in a home freezer, it ruptures the cells and allows moisture to escape. There will be an extreme juice loss when it is thawed. The meat will be dry and tasteless when it is cooked. If this happens to you, you are not getting your money's worth.

You can still buy your meat a week ahead or take advantage of sales by using a little care. You will protect your flavor and quality by rewrapping the meat in freezer-weight aluminum foil, polycoated freezer paper and in freezer plastic bags before putting it in your freezer.

Remember, protect good lean tasty beef with a little "kindness" and get the most for your money.

The dumbwaiter was invented by Thomas Jefferson.

Lies they tell our children

"I don't have a future."

With tears streaming down her face, a 13-year-old girl made this bleak assessment to her father. To back up her pessimism, she had brought home from school a mimeographed sheet listing the horrors that awaited her generation in the next 25 years: Worldwide famine, overpopulation, air pollution so bad that everyone would wear a gas mask, befouled rivers and streams that would mandate cleansing tablets in drinking water... a greenhouse effect that would melt the polar ice caps and devastate U.S. coastal cities... a cancer epidemic brought on by damage to the ozone layer.

Moved by the girl's misery, her father, Herbert I. London of the Hudson Institute and New York University, wrote a book, Why Are They Lying to Our Children? The book documents how some of the myths of the 1960s and 1970s—and some much older than that—are being perpetuated and taught as gospel truth in some of our schools. And the book raises a question in our minds: Will the next generation have any better understanding of science and technology—both their merits and their problems—than our own?

Professor London's book is not a plea for unbridled technology. But it is a plea for balance. And school textbooks, he believes, are notoriously unbalanced. In dealing with environmental questions, for example, no textbook the professor could find made any mention of the following facts:

■ Total automobile emissions of hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide, and nitrogen oxide in the U.S. are less than half what they were from 1957 to 1967.

■ The amount of unhealthy sulfur dioxide in the air has been steadily declining since 1970.

■ The bacteria level in the Hudson River declined by more than 30 percent between 1966 and 1980.

Textbooks, Professor London finds, mythologize nature as eternally benign until disturbed by man. It's a rare schoolbook that talks about volcanoes belching radiation into the air, floods that overwhelm river towns, and tornadoes that lift people into oblivion. Moreover, textbooks hardly mention the promise of a bright future already on the horizon—when average life expectancy may approach 90 years, when products derived from recombinant DNA research will eliminate most viral diseases, when we will enjoy greater leisure, and materials—especially plastics—will be better, stronger, and safer.

Professor London's conclusion—with which we heartily agree—is that we should help our children think for themselves and reach balanced conclusions. Let's look at their textbooks, not to censor them but to raise questions. Let's give them different points of view and help discuss them. That way we can educate a new generation of citizens who aren't scared by science, and who won't be swayed by old mythologies.

Our youngsters do have a future. We, and the schools, should help them look forward to it with hope, even as they prepare to deal with its problems.

Johnny to celebrate 22nd season on tube

JERRY BUCK AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Johnny Carson joined "The Tonight Show" in 1962, his hair was black and plentiful, he was married to his first wife and his sidekick was Ed McMahon.

As he celebrates his 22nd anniversary as host of the NBC late-night show, only McMahon is still around.

"I followed Jack Paar as host, which was dangerous in a sense," said Carson, his hair now silver and thinning, his third marriage coming to an end. "Paar was such a mercurial personality. Everyone wants to make comparisons. You have to find your own format, your own style, and whatever comparisons there are will go away after a while."

Lucky for us, Johnny Carson is an American original, at 58 the country's most visible humorist. His four-times-a-week appearances on "The Tonight Show" give him more exposure than any other comedian.

Carson handles that exposure adroitly. His monologues are funny not because the jokes are great; they aren't. But Carson is faster on his feet than Muhammad Ali at his peak, and his recovery from a deflated gag is a delight.

Once again, Carson will celebrate his anniversary with a two-hour prime-time collection of memorable moments. It will be shown Monday.

"The retrospective will have at least 45 minutes of stuff from the past year," he said. "The problem is always what to put in and what to leave out. Everyone has a piece they like. So, we'll have a few old classics, but we wanted to show some new things.

"The only thing live will be the monologue, which you can never do ahead," he said in an interview in his NBC office. He sat at his usual workplace, a couch. On the coffee table before him was the material for that night's show.

Since his last anniversary, Carson has handily dispatched the latest competition, "Thicke of the Night," starring Alan Thicke. "I think they ballyhooed the show too much," he said. "They should have just sneaked it on and let it find its own audience. There is a danger in promising more than you can deliver."

At every anniversary the question comes up about how long Carson will stay with the show.

"I know I'll eventually be replaced," Carson said. "I think NBC will keep 'The Tonight Show' on whether I do it or not, and they should. There aren't many shows left that are live and spontaneous. Whoever follows me will have to make his own transition."

He said he had "no idea" whether David Letterman or Joan Rivers, his permanent substitute host, or anyone else, was being groomed to be his successor.

"I have another year on my contract," he said. "I haven't made up my mind yet whether I'll continue. As I've said before, I will continue only as long as it's fun and we're first in the ratings. I wouldn't want to do it if we fell out of first place."

One country, one rock

Russell reappears with two records

By JOE EDWARDS Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Leon Russell, the extraordinary musician whose trademark is his stovepipe hat, has ended a self-imposed exile from recording by releasing two LPs — one country, one rock 'n' roll.

The rock 'n' roll record is "Solid State." The country album is "Hank Wilson Vol. II."

Russell, 42, was a commanding figure in the music field in the 1970s.

The pianist-songwriter-singer is known for his albums "Leon Russell," "Leon Live," "Leon Russell and the Shelter People" and "Carney" and "Hank Wilson's Back," and for songs others recorded and turned into hits.

One of his biggest hit singles was "This Masquerade." It was recorded by jazz guitarist George Benson, who won the Record of the Year Grammy Award in 1977. Other big Russell hits were "A Song for You," "Roll Away the Stone" and "Tightrope."

Russell played at recording sessions in Los Angeles during the '60s and recorded some of his own material at home. He toured with Delaney and Bonnie and went on to lead Joe Cocker's touring band, Mad Dogs and Englishmen. But his material began to wane in the '70s after "Leon Live" went gold in 1973.

Russell also played piano on a few Rolling Stones' albums and made surprising forays into country music with "Hank Wilson's Back" and "One for the Road," the latter with Willie Nelson. Country singles that became hits for Russell included "Rolling in My Sweet Baby's Arms" and "Heartbreak Hotel."

Today, he is doing concerts with country kingpin Hank Williams Jr. He and Nelson have a duet version on Roy Acuff's classic "Wabash Cannonball."

"Hank Wilson Vol. II" includes such country classics as "Oh Lonesome Me," "Tennessee Waltz," "Heartaches by the Number," and "Tumbling Tumbleweeds."

"It's all for those people who like traditional country music," Russell said, twirling his sunglasses during a rare interview.

He's been away from public attention for three years to move his business interests from Los Angeles to Nashville and to recover from his divorce of about four years ago from Mary Russell.

But Russell says he did not miss being out of the public eye.

"I enjoyed it," he said. "I have a certain amount of difficulty dealing with too much limelight. It puts lines in your face."

He said he's tried to write songs every day — Cocker's "Delta Lady" and Tom Jones' current "All the Love Is on the Radio."

"There's a lot of good music out there," Russell said. "Three or four times the number of acts that there was in 1973," Russell said. "Michael Jackson is definitely the front-runner. He's the best, what more can I say."

"Of course, he's been in the business longer than anybody, too," he added with a soft laugh.

Former copy editor

Scheller art donator

MILWAUKEE (AP) — From his small, cluttered apartment on Marquette University's campus, Leonard Scheller gazes at the school's new glass and brick art museum.

It's appropriate that the 78-year-old retired copy editor for Milwaukee Journal should have this view, for he is one of Marquette's most generous art donors. He has given the school a set of 58 prints by the French artist Georges Rouault.

His small apartment was cluttered with newspaper clippings, religious statues and books one recent day. A handful of yellow daisies in a tin can adorned his kitchen table, still littered with crumbs from breakfast.

Scheller has lived on campus since first coming to the school as a journalism student almost 60 years ago, and he has lived in his present apartment for the past 16 years.

His love of art was born long after he had graduated and started work. One day, he stumbled across a TV program about Rouault and his somber, charcoal prints and was instantly entranced. When a traveling exhibition of the 58-print "Miserere" series came to Marquette, Scheller went to see it.

"I visited it every day — and it was at Marquette for a few weeks," said Scheller as he sat in his favorite rocking chair with Marquette's insignia inscribed in gold on its back.

He looked like a misplaced owl, with ruffled feathers of white hair and benevolent myopic eyes behind thick gold-rimmed glasses, as he talked about why he loved the simple lines of Rouault's work.

"Look at the noses — that's his trademark," he said. "The more an artist can tell you with one line, the more of an artist he is."

Scheller was especially taken by print No. 8, which shows a melancholy clown. The clown reveals a universal aspect of the human character, he said.

"The clown paints himself a face whenever he works," Scheller said, like people who hide behind a mask in their dealings with the world.

After seeing the Marquette exhibit years ago, Scheller decided he wanted a print for himself.

Wyoming was the first state to allow women to vote.

Your Money Counts

by Rick Roberts, C.P.A.

"ERTA" NEWS IN TAX CREDITS.
In 1982, thirty-two percent of all dollars spent on non-residential construction went toward alterations and additions. This represents a more than two-fold increase over the figure for 1977. One significant reason for rehabbing older structures is the Economic Tax Recovery Act of 1981 (ERTA). ERTA established a new three-part investment tax credit. Under the new law, an investor may take a 15% tax credit for a 30-year-old building; 20% for a 40-year-old structure and 25% for qualified rehabbing of residential and non-residential certified historic structures. The new law provides financial incentives and encourages the restoration of architecturally significant structures.

For more information on "ERTA" and help with your taxes, financial statements, payroll records and much more stop by and see us at RICK ROBERTS, CPA. A large part of our work involves tax and financial statements for ranchers, farmers, feed lot operators and other commercial accounts in the area. We understand the agricultural industry. You can trust us to make the right decisions based on full information regarding taxes and all your financial needs. We are located at 138 Third, Suite A, Monday thru Friday 8:30 to 12 and 1 to 5, 364-7525.

Prospective homeowners can use the above information to help buy and restore a historic structure that can be your new home.

HEAT PUMPS

NEW YORK AP - Heat pumps are energy-saving devices which provide heat and air conditioning in one unit.

To make them even more energy-efficient, Honeywell says it is offering a microelectronic thermostat to automatically control home temperatures year-round. It claims the thermostat can decrease users' annual heating and cooling costs by up to 41 percent and 27 percent respectively.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids and to waive any informality in bids received.

Paula Artho, Barry Jossierand

Couple to exchange vows

Kenneth Artho announces the engagement and approaching marriage of his daughter, Paula Christine Artho, to Barry James Jossierand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Jossierand. The couple will be wed Dec. 28 in St. Anthony's Catholic Church. The bride-elect is a 1982 graduate of Hereford High School. She is a junior nursing major at West Texas State University and is currently employed by Dr. Dennis L. Canon of Canyon.

The prospective bridegroom is also a 1982 graduate of Hereford High School and is a senior finance major at WTSU. He played football for WTSU for two years and is a member of Alpha Chi, a national scholastic honor society. He is presently employed by Banc Central in Amarillo.

Garden Club's Flower Show scheduled

"Down Memory Lane," a Mini Flower Show sponsored by the Bud to Blossom Garden Club, will be presented Oct. 4 from 1:30 to 3 p.m. in the Heritage Room of the Deaf Smith County Library.

The show will consist of four divisions: horticulture, design, juniors and educational.

The horticulture division has five classes which include showings of pot plants, flowers, needled evergreens and deciduous trees and landscape shrubs.

The design division also consists of five classes. These classes include arrangements of all fresh plant material with accessories permitted, but with the primary emphasis on the fresh material, and arrangements from fresh and-or dry plant material.

Also in the design division is a class for novices only and one for interpretive design. The novice class is for persons who have never won a blue ribbon in the design division in a standard flower show. The interpretive class will consist of design elements which suggest a given theme, idea, occasion or mood in the arrangement.

The junior division will consist of award-winning posters made by students from Hereford schools. The theme of the posters is "Ways to Save Water for the Future."

The final division will include displays on corsage making, gardening studies and water and soil conservation.

Everyone is invited to come and enjoy the flower show. Club members will be happy to explain how the designs were made and how the various horticulture specimens were cared for.

For further information, contact Mrs. John Seth at 364-5536 or Paula Hamby at 364-1908.

Cake decorating to be explained

Members of the Sweet 'n' Fancy Cake Decorating Club will offer classes in cake decorating beginning Monday at 7 p.m. in the Community Center.

Four lessons will be presented, each on different aspects of decorating. The first lesson on Monday will cover the basics of beginning cake decorating.

The second lesson planned Oct. 8, will explain buttercream flowers, stems, leaves and flower arrangements.

Borders, writing and finishing touches on cakes will be emphasized Oct. 22 and the final lesson slated Oct. 29, will explain the intricacies of wedding and anniversary cakes.

Each class costs $5 per person. To register, contact Mary McCutchen at 364-3528 or Alice Koenig at 364-1982.

Pictures of recent trip shown during club meeting

Joy Vasek exhibited pictures of her recent trip to Saudi Arabia, Holland, Germany, France and Norway when members of Sweet 'n' Fancy Cake Decorating Club met Thursday.

During the meeting, upcoming cake decorating classes were discussed. A basic beginners class will be held Monday evening at the Community Center. Each student should bring an uniced cake and icing. Fee for the class is $5 and for more information contact Mary Mc-Cutcheon.

The next meeting was scheduled Oct. 11. Alice Koenig will give instructions on how to use a spray gun and silk screens.

Guests recognized included Vasek, Maudie Henson of Cheyenne, Ok., Ann Vasquez and Maria Castillo.

Members present included Betty Henson, Evelyn Crofford, Isabel Cervantez, McCuchen, Susanna Gonzalez, Margaret Gomez and Koenig.

The first airmail service in the U.S. began on May 15, 1918. The first airmail stamp cost 24 cents in 1918, but was reduced to six cents by 1919.
