

North Pole Base Planted By Russians

Eleven Men Wait On An Ice Floe For Additional Equipment

FOUR PLAN TO STAY AT TOP OF WORLD

Russia May Claim Ownership Of Region As Result Of Flight

MOSCOW, May 22 (AP)—Eleven Soviet Russians waited tonight on an ice floe near the north pole for the equipment that will enable four of them to spend the summer and winter at the top of the world.

Three planes were awaiting a signal at Rudolf Island, 560 miles from the pole, to take provisions and a warmly-lined easily-carried house to the party which flew over the pole yesterday and made camp on the ice 13 miles away.

Seven will be brought back to Rudolf Island. Four men and a dog will establish the first permanent north pole air base as the initial step in a plan for airplane flights between Russia and the United States across the top of the earth.

The dog, a small pet animal, is expected to help by giving warning of bears or other animals that approach the camp.

All In Good Health

"All the men are in good health and good spirits," said a terse radio message received from Dr. Otto J. Schmidt, the black-bearded head of the expedition. It was the first word from the pioneers since their report of the landing yesterday.

Moscow newspapers indicated Soviet Russia intends to claim ownership of the polar region as a result of the flight, even though no land exists there. Headlines said the red flag would continue to wave over it.

In Washington, state department officials said earlier the fact that Admiral Robert E. Peary planted the American flag in that region in 1909 does not mean the United States claims it. They declared no question of sovereignty ever has arisen because there is only ice-filled sea.

The trail-blazing plane was not expected to remain long at the pole, and the three others at Rudolf Island, once they have flown the equipment north in response to Schmidt's awaited signal, will start back quickly.

Ice Drifting

Drifting ice may make the landing field on the ice floe hazardous within a few days. The four who will remain are prepared, however, to let the ice drift as it will while they make their observations. They can move their portable home to a safer spot if the ice cracks beneath it.

Schmidt will be one of those to return. The four to remain will be Ivan Papanin, the leader, a former military commander and later manager of a polar station in Franz-Josef land; Ernest Krenkel, radio operator, a long-time Arctic explorer who went to the Antarctic with Admiral Richard E. Byrd in 1930; Pyotr Shirinoff, hydrobiologist, and Eugene Federoff, magnetologist.

Reviewing The BIG SPRING WEEK

by Joe Pickle

Graduation and little else seems uppermost in the minds of the people these days, and certainly it is an important season of the year. Society has a way of forgetting that it has an obligation to those young people who must be injected into the endless stream of generations, and those exercises serve as a forceful reminder to the people that something constructive must be given these young men and women if the order of things is to be preserved and prosper and progress.

And society has some sort of an obligation to tiny children who are learning to beg in increasingly large numbers. Parents, although destitute, have little right to teach their offsprings to be professional paupers. Yet this very thing is happening right under the eyes of Big Spring folks every day. Something out to be done to remove these pseudo-salesmen and their needles, flowers and vases from the streets and put them in school, or some place where both they and the public will be benefitted.

It seems incredible that so small a thing as a nozzle should make so much difference in fire fighting methods but a new spray type of nozzle last week promptly smothered out an oil fire where a full stream of water only agitated it. Often times it's not the size of a thing, but what it can do which counts.

The chamber of commerce directors Friday evening considered a program of work outlined by the manager, J. H. Greene. Outstanding items were a proposed campaign for the West Texas hospital for insane and a road to Andrews. See WEEK, Page 8, Col. 4

Drive For New Labor Standards To Start Monday

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Capitol Hill heard with interest today on Monday President Roosevelt will toss his long-awaited recommendations for labor legislation into a congress seething with controversy over his court reorganization bill.

He was quoted as telling congressional leaders today that he would propose the establishment of a board of three to impose a flexible working week of 35 to 40 hours, a minimum weekly wage of $16.00 and a ban upon the shipment of child labor-made products in interstate commerce.

Chairman Black (D- Ala.) of the senate labor committee and Chairman Connery (D-Mass.) of the house labor committee also intend to introduce in their respective houses identical bills framed to carry out the ideas advanced by the chief executive.

Continuing a series of conferences on the labor program, Mr. Roosevelt conferred today with Connery and Majority Leader Rayburn of the house. Connery outlined the program to reporters upon his departure from the White House.

Just as yesterday Mr. Roosevelt talked labor questions with William Green and other officials of the American Federation of Labor, he discussed them today with John L. Lewis and Sidney Hillman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, bringing in both branches of the American labor movement.

Tomorrow he will go over his proposals with Black and with Majority Leader Robinson of the senate, who will jointly bear the responsibility over uniting behind the measure a democratic party widely discredited by the court reorganization bill.

Leading supporters and opponents of the court bill predicted that the next major turn in that dispute would come with the supreme court's decision on the constitutionality of the social security act.

Court Order Takes Five From Payroll

County Commissioners Order Reduction In Official Personnel

AX FALLS IN THE NAME OF ECONOMY

Saving To Amount To $475 Monthly; Into Effect June 1

The ax fell in the name of economy for the second time within a week Saturday to curtail administrative costs of government.

On the heels of an administrative order abolishing the district WPA office in Big Spring, county commissioners court Saturday ordered a reduction of five persons in the official personnel.

Scheduled to go June 1 in keeping with the court order are two deputies from the office of the tax collector-assessor, one from the county clerk, one from the sheriff's department, and the county trapper.

Further Reductions
Elimination of these positions together with the withdrawal of $30 monthly rent to the West Side day nursery, was calculated to save the county $475 monthly or $7,125 annually. Late Saturday afternoon, the members of the court withdrew for the day, indicating that they would return Monday to consider further reductions in expenditures by cutting on rentals for state and federal offices.

With an eye on further economies, the court named County Judge Charles Sullivan purchasing agent and ordered that "supplies and equipment for the various county offices," effective Saturday, be requisitioned through him.

An order drawn up by the commissioners court said that in view of the deficit in the officers' salary fund, "the court is of the opinion it is very necessary and imperative that the court make a reduction in the expense of operating the affairs of the county."

John Wolcott, tax collector and assessor, was authorized to employ only two regular deputies of his own selection. He now has four.

Lee Warren, county clerk, was authorized to hire only two regular deputies instead of the three he now has.

The court ordered part time deputy sheriff position, held by E. F. McKinney of Coahoma, discontinued, and did the same for the office of county trapper, held currently by Earl Browning.

Deficit Shown
At the end of April the officers' salary fund showed a deficit of $98,977. It was the only fund on the wrong side of the ledger.

Monthly rentals, now being paid by the county and subject to the Monday study of the court, total $110. Of this amount, $50 may be saved by the end of June when WPA district headquarters are discontinued here.

Sharp Rise In Proposed City Budget

Increase Due To Street Work, Water System, Bond Purchase

Note—This is the first of a series of three articles dealing with the proposed city budget for 1937-38, public hearing on which will be held June 8. A second article will appear in Monday's Herald.

The sharp increase in the city's proposed $272,753 budget for the current fiscal year is due chiefly to three things, a program of street pavement, water system improvement, and purchase of city bonds.

Because of the nature of soil conditions, the maintenance of 80 miles of city dirt roads has become overly expensive, making paving a desirable alternative. To this end the city proposes during the year to cooperate with the state and property owners in widening Third street from city limit to city limit to 50 feet at a cost of $27,400, $22,000 of which is to be refunded by property owners.

30 Blocks of Paving
Paving of an additional 30 blocks of 30-foot pavement is calculated to cost $21,000, and the purchase of a new maintainer, or similar equipment, to assist in the work and to maintain present dirt streets will add $5,250 expense.

Thus $33,650 of the proposed $272,753 appropriation for the street department will go to new improvements. If these improvements are not accomplished, the money will not be expended.

Activities of the water department are important for two reasons. First the city must have an adequate supply of wholesome water at a reasonable rate. Second, all of the city's operating costs are borne out of water revenues. Sixty per cent of the water users are not on the city tax rolls.

The budget provides for the replacement of lines under every block of new pavement, for new See BUDGET, Page 8, Col. 1

Four Slain In Family Shooting

Murder Complaint Is Filed Against Bill Helbig

KNIPPA, Uvalde Co., Texas, May 22 (AP)—Four persons were slain, one wounded and one charged with murder today in a family shooting at two homes north of here last night.

Justice of the Peace David R. White held that Jarrett Sampier had slain his wife, from whom he had been separated six weeks; that his mother, Mrs. William Helbig, Sr.; her son, Louis Helbig; and that Sampier then was shot to death by William Helbig, Jr., Mrs. William Helbig, Jr., was wounded in the arm. Her condition was not serious.

Sheriff W. H. Smyth filed a complaint charging murder against William Helbig, Jr., in connection with Sampier's death.

Sheriff Smyth, in reconstructing the affray, said Sampier's mother-in-law and his wife were shot to death in bed with a .22 calibre rifle at the home of Mrs. William Helbig, Sr. Louis Helbig's body was found on the front porch of the farm home.

The slayer then drove to the home of William Helbig, Jr., wounded Mrs. Helbig with the rifle, and was shot down with a .38 calibre rifle, the sheriff said. Sampier was shot once in the head and twice in the chest.

Had Been Separated
Officers were told that Sampier had been separated from his wife and that she and her six children, ranging in age from six months to 10 years, had been living with her mother. Officers said Sampier was under a peace bond sought on complaint of his wife, who told them she had been beaten.

Mr. and Mrs. Sampier, friends said, were about 40 years old. Louis Helbig was 17.

Allred Makes No Comment On Session

Had Urged Millions In New Taxes To Bolster Financial Condition

AUSTIN, May 23 (AP)—The 45th legislature completed work of its general session early today with adoption of a conference report on a bill appropriating $5,500,000 for support of rural schools in the next biennium.

AUSTIN, May 23 (Sunday)—Weary and sleepy legislators worked into Sunday morning to complete the business of the 131-day biennial session.

The only major matter blocking adjournment was the appropriation bill for rural school aid for the biennium starting next September 1. The first ever conference report on the proposed bill was rejected by both branches but conferees agreed on another bill about midnight.

The legislative machine will be geared up again within less than a week and propelled toward a new goal.

Governor James V. Allred reserved comment in this connection until next week, but his views were pretty well known. At the outset of the session, he had listed a large variety of legislation as needed, and very little of it had seen approval.

No Revenue Provided
Among other things, he had urged millions in new taxes to bolster the state's financial condition, yet not a dime in revenue had been provided. He also had recommended repeal of the horse racing betting law, and a bill to do this had died in the senate after a long controversy.

Four bills to boost taxes on natural gas, oil, sulphur and corporation franchisees passed the house at a reasonably early date but were smothered in senate committee. Meanwhile, appropriations for the next biennium were increased from $19,000,000 to $19,000,000 above those for the current two years.

On the other hand, hundreds of bills did not run the legislative gauntlet successfully, and it was decided to submit seven constitutional amendments, six at a special election August 23 and one at the general election in 1938.

Amendments
The amendments to be submitted next August would:

Authorize discounts for prompt payment of taxes.

Eliminate double liability for stockholders in state banks.

Authorize Harris county by an act.

PLANES TO DEFENSE OF BESEIGED BILBAO

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, May 22 (AP)—Fifteen Spanish government warplanes flew to the defense of besieged Bilbao today as insurgent armies shifted their attack with a drive on a sector southeast of the Basque capital.

The government planes had been forced down by scuttler Monday on French territory, but French authorities and officials of the international non-intervention committee finally permitted them to take off. Four French planes escorted them to the frontier.

GIRL, ON STAND, NAMES LOVER AS THE SLAYER OF HER MOTHER

Pair Say They Were Attacked In Kitchen

JERSEY CITY, N. J., May 22 (AP)—With both accusing and defending words for her former choir boy sweetheart, 17-year-old Gladys MacKnight told their murder trial jury today that young Donald Wightman rained the fatal hatchet blows upon her mother and threatened to kill her also if she told what had happened.

But she said her mother was attacking them with a knife after discovering the youth hugging and kissing her in the MacKnight kitchen.

The 17-year-old Bayonne high school graduate's story set defendant, weeping with head buried in his hands.

The girl the state accused of welding the hatchet had told only a part of her story when court adjourned until Monday. But to the accusation that Wightman himself struck the hatchet blows she had added the assertion that he stopped her from telling a neighbor by threatening:

"If you do, I'll kill you too."
Describing the slaying, Gladys said she and Donald were alone in the kitchen of the MacKnight home in Bayonne the evening of last July 31, and Mrs. MacKnight was on the porch. She had started to prepare dinner, she said, and then:

"Donald grasped me and put his arms around me and kissed me and hugged me and was running his hands over me."

"I turned around and saw my mother just inside the doorway. She was standing there with a black handled knife in her hand. Gladys said she struggled with her mother and finally got the knife. It had cut her mother's hand, she said, and some of the blood dripped on Gladys' blouse.

Then Mrs. MacKnight seized another knife, Gladys said, and lunged at Donald. Again she said her mother struggled, and then, Gladys' story continued:

"My mother screamed a couple of times, the last one ending in a gasp, and slumped in my arms. "I turned around and saw Donald standing there with the hatchet in his hand. There was blood on it."

Directors of the Big Spring chamber of commerce Friday centered their attention on a campaign to secure the location of a state hospital for insane at Big Spring as the foremost project of the organization.

At the meeting, attended by 15 directors, two visitors and the manager, reports were heard from R. F. Schermerhorn, president; G. C. Dunham, past president, and Jimmie Greene, manager, on information secured from members of the board of control at Brownwood during the WTCC meet.

George White, chairman of the sites committee, discussed the requirements, particularly in reference to water. E. V. Spence, city manager, offered city co-operation in testing any sites for water and R. L. Cook agreed to furnish logs of oil wells near proposed sites.

Directors approved in whole a program of work submitted by Greene for the remainder of 1937. The program included as its major projects the securing of the hospital location, opening of a direct route to Andrews, and broadening of individual support.

First up for consideration are those furthest delinquent, and so on down the line until those behind only one year are notified. See DIRECTORS, Page 8, Col. 2

Latin Classes Try Projects

'Dead Language' Brought To Life By Clever Modeling

Gathering suggestions from their books and transforming their ideas into projects, have formed a large part of the work of the first and second year Latin students at the Big Spring high school.

Miss Lillian Shick, teacher in both courses, has gathered and graded all the projects that include soap carvings, Roman houses, wax tablets, models in clay, sandals, oen yokes, dolls and other things that the people of the Roman period used.

Students of the second year Latin course took their subjects from the life of Julius Caesar.

Before gaining their objective students in both classes contributed notebooks containing the modern day pictures described with Latin terms and phrases.

Miss Shick, in forwarding her work through adoption of this method, believes that it better acquaints the student with Latin language. Certainly the constant use of the Latin phrases and words keeps the students' minds at work on the subject.

'HOT OIL' BILL UP FOR DEBATE

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—The Connally "hot oil" act extension bill is on the house program for a two-hour debate and vote Tuesday.

While the senate passed a bill which would make the Connally act permanent, the house measure merely calls for a two-year extension.

As originally introduced in the house by Rep. Martin Dies of Orange, Tex., the bill was identical with the senate's. It was amended by the interstate commerce committee after several days of hearings, in which many independent jobbers denounced it as a "tool" of the major oil companies.

Senator Tom Connally of Marlin, Tex., author of the act, said if the house passed the bill as an extension measure, he would demand in committee conference at least a four- or five-year compromise.

CONSERVATION OF WATER IS STARTED

Ranchers of Howard county are going in for a bit of water conservation under the federal range program, a survey of all 50 applications in the hands of the county agent showed Saturday.

Thirty-three of the 50 ranchers co-operating in the program are going to build more than three acre tanks, many of them comparatively large affairs.

Many To Build Tanks Tank building was easily the most popular part of the program with ranchers who listed a total of 212,387 acres of land to be affected by the program. The tanks represent about two-fifths of the county's acreage.

Deferred grazing (letting overgrazed pastures lie idle for a season) ranked second with 22 applications for benefit payments under that title. O. P. Griffin, county agent, said that this figure might have been larger but for the fact that many ranchers have followed the practice for several years.

Eighteen are to carry on a prairie dog eradication program and a like number will seek to rid their lands of cactus. An even dozen will rescue their ranges from mesquite, ten will erect range fences, eight will throw up contours, four spreader dams (or terraces) and two will rescue land from juniper cedars.

The applications are complete save for the forage acre requirement, Griffin said.

GREEN BROOKS IS ACQUITTED ON 1ST OF 2 INDICTMENTS

JONESVILLE, Va., May 22 (AP)—Green Allen Brooks, bearded o to genarian, was acquitted by a Lee county jury on the first of two indictments charging him with the murder of Deputy Sheriff Robert Bailey and Arch Redmond.

The verdict, reached after more than four hours of deliberation during which the jury twice reported themselves deadlocked, brought shouts of approval from members of the family of the twice-married defendant and tears from the widows of the slain deputies.

Brooks, former judge, Sunday school worker and crack rifle shot, on hearing the verdict, moved nimbly around the counsel table to receive congratulations of his friends and relatives.

Judge Ezra T. Carter said he would set a date for Brooks' trial for the slaying of Redmond at the earliest possible time.

The 82-year-old defendant, who admitted he shot the two deputies down at his Cumberland mountain home in July, 1935, when they came to arrest Luther Poore, his son-in-law, was arrested last spring in Lubbock, Tex., and returned here for trial.

Many Investigations During General Session

AUSTIN, May 22 (AP)—Like most other sessions of a Texas legislature, the general session concluding today witnessed a full quota of investigations, several of which will carry on for indefinite periods. A few had been concluded or produced preliminary reports.

The joint committee which had been investigating charges purchasing companies discriminated against oil produced in West and North Texas planned to have at least one more hearing and to report to the special session convening Thursday.

A similar committee which studied means of preventing recurrence of gas explosions such as wrecked the schoolhouse at New London and took the lives of hundreds of children had about concluded its work.

After reporting briefly that many examples of law violations had been found, a committee of the house inquiring into operations under the anti-nepotism statute planned further inquiry.

Another house committee had just started on an investigation of the state department of education, and its chairman, Rep. Bowen Bond of Fairfield, recently told the house much evidence of distribution of rural school aid money for political purposes had been found. Both house and senate, nevertheless, voted overwhelmingly to leave administration of the funds in the department.

Big Demand For Report On Westex Oil Fields

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—The interior department announced today that demand for copies of the bureau of mines' report of the Big Spring and other West Texas oil fields has been so great that a second edition has been published.

Copies are obtainable from the Midland, Texas, chamber of commerce, which cooperated with the government in publishing the report. The first edition, containing 223 pages of text and 40 illustrations, was printed last November. The work deals with the accumulation of oil in natural limestone reservoirs in the Permian Basin, comprising the area south of the Texas Panhandle and west of the bend arch. There are 70 oil fields with 4,200 producing wells in the area. The data pertains also to fields at Yates, Hendrick, Churchfields-McElroy, Big Lake, Penn and West Brook in Texas, and Hobbs in Southeastern New Mexico.

Americans Surround The Duke Of Windsor

MONTS, France, May 22 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor, former British king now in a French castle, found himself entirely surrounded by Americans tonight.

First and foremost was Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, Mrs. Warfield's "Aunt Bessie" from Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Rogers of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bate, "personal American friends" of the duke. Bate is London representative of the National Broadcasting company.

At dinner the Duke of Windsor was the only "foreigner" present. An American trailer was parked at the gates of the Chateau De Candé. It harbored Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. He sought to enter the grounds, but police turned him back. Rogers later revealed he "politely requested" Vanderbilt to move his "home" further down the road—a couple of miles away.

There was a mystery man. Villagers said he called himself "the senator from West Virginia," but nobody could find him.

Strike Committee Named By Miners

GILLESPIE, Ill., May 22 (AP)—The first break toward settlement of an underground sit-down demonstration of more than 300 coal miners who have been voluntarily entombed below the surface at nearby Wilsonville since Thursday afternoon came tonight when they authorized a strike committee to begin negotiations with company officials.

John Fisher, president of the Gillespie local, Progressive Miners Association of America, came up from the mine shaft shortly after dark.

"The men are willing to have the strike committee begin negotiations, but they will continue to remain underground during the conferences," he said. Earlier in the day F. S. Pfahler, Chicago, president of the Superior Coal company, whose No. 4 mine at Wilsonville is being held by the miners, said the company would not settle the strike until the miners had evacuated. The strikers are demanding a "share-the-work" plan to give jobs to idle employees.

THE SPORTS CIRCUIT—Ending The Week With A Cleanup

The Amerasia Oilers of Hobbs, N. M. may prove to be just the kind of competition the Cosdenites have been looking for.

There are twelve teams in the Hobbs softball league and a composite All-star team will probably be chosen to meet a local aggregation according to Wood. Fincher's outfit may meet the Hobbs softballers.

Seabiscuit Wins At Bay Meadows

MRS. PAGE DEFEATED BY KIRBY

ATLANTA, Ga., May 22—A 17-year-old school girl, Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, displayed the competitive spirit of a veteran today to win the women's southern golf championship.

Playing determinedly, the youthful Georgia titleholder annexed the crown by turning back the threat of Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Greensboro, N. C., 3 and 1.

Miss Kirby, a junior in high school, treated a gallery of more than 1,200 wildly cheering home folk to their first championship performance in the southern since Miss Margaret Maddox triumphed in 1929.

Throughout 35 holes of the scheduled 36-hole skirmish for the 1937 crown in the 26th annual tournament Miss Kirby was never behind, but the North Carolinian rallied to square the match twice, and the Georgian took it and came back.

As late as the 29th hole they were deadlocked and the pressure was on the Atlanta sharpshooter, who won her first Georgia crown when only 13 years old. She has been state champion for the last two years.

Mrs. Page, medalist in the 1936 women's national tournament and noted for her consistency with long iron shots, was far off her game today in comparison with her record-breaking performance yesterday of five under par for 12 holes. She turned back the challenge of Mrs. Frank Goldthaupt of Fort Worth, Tex., a former champion, 7 and 6, in that match.

University Of Texas Student Beats Dawson At Corsicana, 1 Up

CORSICANA, May 22 (AP)—Billy Boyer of Abilene, University of Texas student, eliminated Johnny Dawson of Chicago, 1 up, in their second round match of the championship flight of the fifth annual Corsicana invitation golf tournament today.

Reynolds Smith, defending champion and Texas amateur title holder, was forced to the eighteenth green by Clifford Spikes of Mexia, playing his first tournament. Smith shot par 71 while his youthful opponent stayed out of the rough all afternoon, and came in only a stroke behind.

Quarterfinals tomorrow morning will find Smith facing Jack Mungo, of Dallas, who disposed of Charles Holloway, Corsicana, 2 and 1 today. Boyer is paired against David Davis, of Tyler, victor today over Bill Skeeters, Dallas, 1 up.

Other pairings pit O'hara Watts, winner over N. Russell, Denton, today, 6 and 5, against Don Schumacher, Dallas, who defeated A. W. Freddie, Dallas, 5 and 4, and Newton Burnett, Greenville, who defeated Chuck Taylor, Dallas, 5 and 3, against Harry Todd, Dallas, winner by 1 up over E. B. Gober, Wichita Falls.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 22 (AP)—The league leading Tucson Cowboys made it three in a row over the hapless Bisbee Bees by a 7 to 4 count today.

The tilt provided some of the sloppiest and some of the most sensational play seen here this season.

Bisbee made five misplays and the Cowboys three. Eddie Matthews of Tucson limited the visitors to six hits, but he walked seven, wild pitched in a pair of scores and was charged with a balk.

Mungo Set Down With $1000 Fine

Sports 'Shiner' Following Brawl With Jim Bucher

ST. LOUIS, May 22 (AP)—Van Lingle Mungo's temperamental outbursts got him into the deepest hot water of his career today. The Brooklyn Dodgers' fireball right-hander was fined $1,000 and suspended for three days for a before-dawn fist fight with his teammate, Jim Bucher.

The story at the Dodgers' hotel headquarters was that the big "bad man" returned from a round of merry-making in the early hours, entered Bucher's room and woke the infielder and his roommate, Woody English. Even in the ensuing fight, he came out second best, for he turned up today with an elegant shiner.

The fine is one of the heaviest in National League history and tops everything in baseball since Babe Ruth's famous $5,000 tummy-ache of 1925.

"And believe me, it's going to stick," said Manager Burchleigh Grimes.

Because just about everyone on the Dodgers, from officials down to batboy, became close-mouthed as soon as the story of the fight got around, many of the details were still clouded in secrecy.

It was known, however, that Grimes was not in the hotel at the time of the fracas. He had gone to his home in New Haven, Mo., after yesterday's game.

From witnesses and those who heard the row, it was learned the fight lasted a half-hour, furniture was smashed, and things, generally, wrecked, until the hotel night watchman and other employees begged in, broke it up, and led Mungo to his own room.

Mungo, reached in his hotel room, at first refused to believe the fine was so high. Finally convinced, he said:

"Well, I'll pay it and forget about it. I have no intention of leaving the team. However, that Bucher, an infielder with a reputation for being able to handle his fists, turned up for today's game with his right hand heavily taped. At first, he said he was not involved in the fight, explaining he hurt his hand in yesterday's game. When told, however, that Business Manager John Gorman had named him and his roommate, he glanced at his hand, smiled and steepled with:

"Well, what can I say to that."

HOMER NORTON DIRECTS SCHOOL

COLLEGE STATION, May 22—The eighth annual Texas Aggie free coaching school will be held Aug. 22-28, inclusive, Coach Homer Norton, Aggie athletic director, has announced. The school originally was slated for Aug. 16-21, but was changed to its present dates in order to avoid conflict with the annual farmers' short course at the college.

The Aggies' free coaching school, offering instruction in virtually every phase of high school and college athletics popular in this section, annually attracts approximately 125 high school and college coaches and athletes.

Coach Norton will be assisted in football work by Blair Cherry, former coach of the Amarillo Sangers, 1936 state interscholastic grid champs, and now assistant coach at the University of Texas; and Jack Sisco, coach of the North Texas State Eagles, 1936 Lone Star Conference champions.

Other classes during the school will be conducted daily by Aggie athletic staff members as follows: J. W. Rollins, track; H. R. McQuillan, basketball; J. V. (Ski) Sikes, baseball; Li Dimmitt, prevention and treatment of injuries; and W. L. Penberthy, physical education and intramural sports.

A feature of the school will be motion pictures showing football fundamentals and "shots" of a number of Aggie games. A member of the Southwest Conference Football Officials' association also will be invited to lead a grid rules interpretation meeting.

JOHN SUTER GETS NEWSPAPER "BEAT" OF WASHINGTON YEAR

WASHINGTON, May 22 (UP)—John T. Suter, who broke the story about Justice Willis Van Devanter's decision to retire from the supreme court, has known many justices intimately since he began newspaper work at 19 in 1885.

Two rules always were observed, never to discuss a case pending before the court and never to break a confidence.

White-haired, now at 71, but on the job every week day, he had his highest reward yet this week.

John, as fellow reporters affectionately know him, heard the telephone ringing at his home at eight o'clock Tuesday morning.

"Mr. Suter, Justice Van Devanter wants to know if you can drop by his apartment on the way to the office?"

"I wondered what he could want," Suter said today. "There was only one story I could think of in the taxi—the justice's retirement."

Talked About Health "But that seemed out of the question when Justice Van Devanter wearing his office jacket and puffing his pipe, talked for 15 minutes about my health. He told me what I should do.

"Then he said: 'What I really wanted to see you about is that I'm going to notify the president of my retirement.'"

Justice Van Devanter handed him a copy of the letter, stipulating that it not be published until the official copy reached the White House.

"Be sure and visit me on my farm," he said as Suter departed with the best newspaper "beat" of the Washington year.

Allowing time for the messenger to arrive at the White House, Suter then broke the news of Van Devanter's decision.

Training To Be Discussed

Industrial Groups Meet This Week With Pascal Buckner

With a survey completed showing 4,276 gainfully employed persons residing within the city limits of Big Spring, a series of conferences with industrial committees will be held here this week under the direction of Pascal Buckner, diversified occupations class coordinator, to determine vocational training needs in this city.

The committees, representing eight classifications of industry, will survey needs of their fields with the view of suggesting training needs for both adolescents and adults.

Clowning Serious Business For Men In Gainesville's Community Circus

Clowning for a circus is serious business. Take Bill Basinger's word for it.

Basinger, weight 250 pounds, is the star clown for the Gainesville Community Circus, a civic show that has gained renown in its eight-year existence. When he's not clowning for the circus, Basinger operates a Gainesville restaurant.

"Half of 'em who take up clowning drop out," said Basinger. "It's too hard work. You've got to take this business of being funny serious. A man can walk a tightwire and there it is. But the clown must sell every gag. People dare you to make them laugh."

One night late in April, Basinger closed his cafe at the end of a day and drove to the tent for the opening night of the three-circus. He put on white makeup and a

Italians Don't Grumble Despite Sharp Increase In Living Cost

By STEWART BROWN United Press Staff Correspondent ROME, May 22 (UP)—Report painstakingly compiled by absolutely neutral and disinterested foreign experts reveal that the "cost of living" in Italy has increased 69.8 per cent throughout the peninsula since Premier Benito Mussolini ordered his Black Shirts large into Ethiopia on Nov. 25, 1935.

A large part of this increase can be attributed to the 40 per cent devaluation of the lira. League sanctions against Italy and Mussolini's policy of economic autarchy at all costs are responsible to a lesser degree.

The basis for comparison was the official prices in effect on Nov. 2, 1935, (the day before war was initiated against Ethiopia) and the official prices in force on March 1, 1937.

The increase in the price of household textiles (155.8 per cent jump during this period) is largely responsible for the sharp upward trend of the entire index. Other commodities listed in the "cost-of-living-index" showed increases varying between 10 and 27 per cent.

The persons who feel the pinch the hardest fall in those classes whose standard of living is above the spaghetti-bread-wine-cheese diet of the Italian laborers. The latter class is aware of slight, higher prices, but not to the extent of the middle and upper classes.

To offset the upward price trend, which was initiated at the beginning of the Ethiopian war, the government has ordered a general wage increase of approximately 10 per cent to more than 6,000,000 workers. The increase went into effect before the devaluation of the lire and since then the government has been doing everything within its power to keep prices down.

It has succeeded in controlling the price of spaghetti and bread, but in other fields it has been defeated by the rigid laws of supply and demand.

The immediate reaction, after a study of the foregoing figures, is that Italians must be protesting and grumbling against the new sacrifices they are making for Mussolini's Empire.

People Not Grumbling Such is not the case. Fifteen years of Fascism have taught the Italian people discipline. Many of them are appalled at the price they are paying for Italy's new "greatness," but they don't grumble—at least not in public.

It cannot be denied, however, that there is a considerable amount of unexpressed dissatisfaction at the new burdens placed on their shoulders. Since the Ethiopian war, more and more taxes have been added to pay for Italy's armament program and these combined with the increase in the cost of living, have made life extremely difficult.

Mussolini's new 1937-38 budget for national defense totals $276,600,000, or an increase of approximately $36,280,000 over the previous year.

SPEAKER CALVERT TO DEFENSE OF HOUSE

AUSTIN, May 22 (UP)—Speaker Robert W. Calvert today rose to the defense of the house of representatives against any criticism on grounds the house accomplished nothing during the long session ended today.

"You have worked hard and done a good job," the 32 year old speaker told his colleagues. "I'm ready to go before my constituents and defend what this body has accomplished."

"The house has acted on as many important, complex, vital matters as any house with which I have been acquainted. The passage of four major tax bills was quite an accomplishment."

"I hardly think it possible for anyone to say with respect to the house at least that this has been a disappointing legislature."

The speaker was responding to tributes paid Mrs. Calvert and himself as they were showered with gifts from members and employes. The gifts included a living room suite, chinaware, silverware, radio, lamp and table.

Calvert pointed out the house had passed 490 bills and 171 senate bills.

Ranchers and farmers from over a wide area are expected to take part in the annual feeders day program Friday at the U. S. experiment farm when 40 choice calves will be coming off a 180 day feed test.

Results of the tests will be tabulated and made available.

During the morning visitors will inspect the calves, and hear appraisals by competent stock agents. At noon a chuck wagon luncheon will be served, and in the afternoon the result will be discussed by qualified speakers. E. E. Keating, farm superintendent, has announced.

ECKENER BLAMES BROKEN BRACE WIRE

LAKEHURST, N. J., May 22 (AP)—A spark from the sky and a broken brace wire—these two things Dr. Hugo Eckener said today—were the probable causes of the flaming disaster which overtook the majestic Hindenburg on May 6.

The veteran German zeppelin master, however, acknowledged that his theory called for the coincidence of two extremely remote possibilities to account for the holocaust in which 36 died.

election to levy taxes for a road plan.

Authorize state assistance to the needy blind not to exceed $15 a month.

Authorize aid to dependent children up to $5 a month for one child, $12 for a family and $1,500,000 for the whole state.

Authorize the legislature to provide for remuneration of county officials. This amendment was aimed at return to the fee system and abolition of the salary plan adopted two years ago.

Elimination of the ancient duelling section of the constitutional oath will be voted on at the general election.

Bills to make effective constitutional amendments providing for teachers retirement and temporary commitment of the insane for observation were passed, but another, setting up a new clemency system and locating the pardon board ran into a gubernatorial veto.

Other important bills passed provided for:

Extension of the conservation laws and the interstate oil and gas compact; examining applicants for drivers licenses, mandatory imprisonment for driving while intoxicated, doubling the highway patrol; issuing search warrants for seizing liquor and otherwise tightening enforcement of liquor and narcotic laws; increasing penalties for livestock theft and regulating livestock auctions; creating various water conservation districts and amending laws affecting existing projects; requiring malodorants in gas lines; a statewide soil conservation program.

Among proposals which failed to pass were state public utilities regulation, sale of hard liquor by the drink, ratification of the child labor amendment, abolition of the poll tax, reduction of the automobile license fee, universal hunting and fishing licensing, old age pension liberalization; abolition of the liquor board, the department of agriculture and several other boards; strengthening the antipollution laws; submitting amendments for a unicameral legislature reducing length of general legislative sessions, extending terms of county, district and precinct officials to four years, classifying property for taxation and advertising Texas.

Uses Veto Powers
Governor Allred used his veto powers freely, rejecting, in addition to the pardon board bill, measures remitting taxes to Harris county for flood control purposes, exempting merchant-owned trucks from contract-carrier regulations, authorizing purchase of part of Padre Island for a park, and appropriating $817,000 for a new hospital for the insane in East Texas.

In the contest to bring about action on the race betting repeal bill, the governor also vetoed the joint rules of the legislature, which he said enabled a minority in the senate to thwart the will of the majority.

The legislature sent the governor a bill requiring dealers in oil field machinery to obtain bills of sale when they purchased machinery worth more than $25. Its purpose was to reduce theft of oil field equipment.

Week

Both are worthy undertakings and would go far toward the creation of a greater Big Spring. But programs without pushing are just scraps of paper. It's up to the residents of this place whether they prefer a city in fact or on paper.

In the connection, the hospital campaign looms ahead. For some reason there appears to be a faint doubt in the minds of some few whether the city would be justified in seeking the institution. Consider that it is to be a $817,000 affair, will house 540 patients and require about 100 administrative employees, and you see the wisdom of the fellow who observed that "the ones who don't want it are the ones who ought to be in it." Big Spring has an excellent chance at the hospital location, and although there may be difficulties to be overcome, the fight can be carried to a successful conclusion.

Appearance of an architect's conception of a new courthouse at the county judges office again stirred speculation concerning the structure. Some objection to the sale of any of the courthouse square has about frightened the commissioners court out of that possibility. The talk now runs to a bond issue, probably for around a quarter of a million dollars. This would mean a tax equivalent to 15 cents on the $100.

Whatever happens to them, you must give the members of the commissioners court credit for being one of the most courageous set of men to hold those offices in the history of the county. Not long ago they dared political disfavor by abolishing the pony grader system, and although there may be objections in the deputy personnel of the official family, simply because they said the officers salary fund couldn't continue under the present load. This move was in their minds several months ago but Minor recommendations included pledges of co-operation, affiliation with the Texas Chamber of Commerce Managers association, more activity with press and radio, seek conventions, co-operate with all of several organizations and boards, promote good will projects, to assist the WTCC. The report shied off of an affiliation with the U. S. chamber of commerce and assisting in the soliciting of members for that body.

Details of a membership campaign were outlined and support of the annual feeders' day program Friday was authorized as was co-operation in the staging of the second annual July 4 celebrations.

SWEDISH PRINCE RENOUNCES THRONE

Prince Charles of Sweden, shown with the Countess Elsa van Rosen, for whom he renounced his title, will marry the countess with the king's permission—adding his name to the long list of Messrs. Bernadotte—Swedish princes who have renounced their royal rights to marry commoners.

the court had hoped for natural adjustments to clear up the situation. Don't be surprised if the ax is wielded again, likely upon the rental road, a part of the charity outlay.

A great many people are asking: "What will become of the WPA district staff here since the office has been ordered abolished?" The answer is easy. Most of them will be dismissed from service to seek entrance into private employment. A few will be absorbed in remaining districts. Although Big Spring does not relish the loss of the administrative payroll, broad minded citizens must admit that relief work expenditures must be curtailed and that less administrative costs means more for security workers for whom the program largely is designed.

County Agent O. P. Griffin is following this trend of thought in clearing his office of all clerical help because "the less we use, the more the farmer gets."

The proposed city budget is much as we predicted here several weeks ago. An ambitious program is anticipated at no additional cost to taxpayers. The city now stands to really benefit from good management for the past few years.

ACTORS THREATEN TO DRIVE OFF PICKETS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., May 22 (AP)—Film actors, charging that strike pickets are molesting them, declared today they would drive them away from the studios.

"Lay off molesting, intimidating or attempting to intimidate actors or we will get out a 'wreck crew' and run every picket away from the studios," was the ultimatum issued by the Screen Actors Guild.

The threat of another film strike, by the powerful International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, was made today as labor leaders exchanged heated charges.

Sunkist Beauties Remember The Ballroom As Well As The Beach

SUNKIST BEAUTY
Tempering her tanning with discretion, Nancy Spro of Sandusky, Ohio, guards against unbecoming sunburn.

By VIRGINIA CHUMLEY
MIAMI BEACH, Fla., May 22 (AP)—With summer coming, the burning question is: "How does one get a good tan, and how deep a tan will be fashionable this year?"

A light olive color is the most popular shade here.

A few seasons ago everybody tried to brown as deeply as possible. Then smart women awoke to the fact that too much tan was bad for the skin.

They also discovered that the dark glaze, no matter how beautiful she may be on the beach, is inclined to look dull and uninteresting in evening clothes. On the other hand a gold or light tan will not fade into the background by night but will enhance a colorful evening frock.

With color playing such a great part in new fashions, the shade of the skin is more important than usual. A light olive complexion will blend well with almost any color costume.

Another point in favor of the medium tan is that it will not harm the skin. Those midnight-browns almost invariably coarsen the skin. And for the new winter clothes at the end of summer olive beauties bleach out nicely while ultra-dark damsels are inclined to come out yellowish.

Acquire Tan Gradually
How to get sunkist instead of black or broiled? First, remember that the best tans are acquired gradually. Second, remember that salt water drying on the body will give a darker tan.

All manner of lotions and creams are offered by the cosmetic companies for a pretty—and painless—tanning. Lots of women, however, still prefer old favorites.

One school uses vinegar and olive oil. About 50 life guards and swimming instructors consulted on the matter are again vinegar. It is inclined to give a dull tan—and so will anything else that is acid, because it browns too quickly.

Olive oil used alone is considered much better. Oil puts a smooth film over the skin and results in a smooth, bright color.

For those who do their sun-slouching on the sand, however, olive oil is too greasy. Cocoa butter is more satisfactory, because the oil in it seems to disappear even though it continues with its good work.

The speed with which you tan should vary according to the sensitiveness of your skin. Ten minutes is often long enough to stay out the first day. Twenty minutes is right for the second day. Then, if there is no redness that night, a half hour is not too long for the third day. If still no redness appears the fourth day may be stretched to 45 minutes, the fifth day to one hour.

One hour is as long as you should ever stay under the sun until you have a tan sufficient to keep you from burning.

Skip A Day
If, at any time around the second, third or fourth day, you become burned, skip a day. This will give your skin a chance to come beneficially as well as to come. Those first few days are the most important.

You should use oil, or some good lotion, until the tan is acquired completely. Even then it is well to continue using oil at regular intervals so that your skin won't get too dry.

As for how much of yourself to tan—let your most delicate evening dress decide that. You don't want any white areas peeping out by night to embarrass you. Skip down the straps of your bathing suit occasionally. Roll your cover over with the regularity of barbed wire and you'll be as brown on your fore side as aft.

GRADS ON PROGRAM
Special features for graduates will be incorporated in the C. P. program today at 12:30 p. m. Other than Jimmie Wilson at the organ, the program will include a talk by a graduate, and special reading for the occasion.

Senior Sermon In Auditorium This Evening

Commencement Activities Of Local School Moves Toward Climax

Commencement activities of the Big Spring schools move toward the climax this evening with the holding of the senior sermon in the municipal auditorium at 8:15 p. m. Final major acts will be staged Thursday evening with the promotion of 190 seventh grade pupils and the commencement exercises for 126 seniors Friday evening.

Henckell Speaks
Rep. P. Walter Henckell, rector of the St. Mary's Episcopal church, will deliver the senior sermon, speaking on the "Golden Age—Today." The program will be opened with Handel's Largo as the processional, the doxology, invocation by Rev. W. S. Garnett, pastor of the East Fourth Baptist church, and the response, "Hear Our Prayer," by the chorus.

The high school chorus will sing Zundels "Love Divine," and Bradbury's "He Leadeth Me," and Clarinda Mary Sanders and DeAlva McAllister will be heard in Hammond's "Behold the Master Passeth By."

Rev. C. A. Bickley, pastor of the First Methodist church, will read the scripture. Rev. Henckell will speak, and Dr. Bickley will pronounce the benediction, while the chorus will furnish the response with "God Be With You 'Till We Meet Again." The brilliant "Pomp and Circumstance" by Elder will be by the recessional. Mrs. Bruce Frazier will direct and Miss Lurline Paxton will accompany.

Horace Mann Theme
Commencement exercises will carry out the dominant theme of the Horace Mann centennial. Horace Mann, a young attorney, resigned his post in the Massachusetts state assembly 100 years ago to accept a post similar to the current state superintendency and to lead a fight for tax supported schools for all children.

In appreciation of Mann's profession, another prominent young attorney, similarly named, will deliver the feature address. He is Gerald C. Mann, Dallas, former secretary of state and executive secretary of the state planning board. Mann's outstanding accomplishments in the past few years have overshadowed his feats as all-America football timber in his college days. He will speak Friday evening on "Horace Mann—A Practical Idealist."

The commencement, climax to the school year, will begin at 8:15 p. m. Friday at the municipal auditorium. The municipal high school band will be heard in "Salute to the Colors" before Dr. G. C. Schurman, pastor of the First Christian church, asks the invocation.

Student Speakers
Evelyn Clements will bring the dedication of the program and Nina Rose Webb will review "Horace Mann's Contributions to America."

Presentation of diplomas will be supervised by R. L. Cook, a member of the board of trustees. George H. Gentry, principal of the high school, will make the announcement of class honors. Rev. Schurman will pronounce the benediction.

Grads Get That "Empty Feeling" But Are Determinedly Ambitious

Facing the world upon graduation is something new in the life of the high school senior, but most of the boys and girls who will pass from the halls of learning into the halls of doing are intent on conquering obstacles that stand before them.

Five typical members of the 1937 graduating class have put their ambitions into writing.

Nancy Phillips says: "In a way, graduating brings on a pretty miserable feeling. Four years ago I jumped up and down with happiness upon being ushered into high school but now it seems as if the bottom has dropped out. I hardly know where to turn. The idea of college thrills frightens me for I hear the college work is much harder. But on the other hand I'll be on the road to the realization of some of my highest ambitions and, like every one else, I want success and happiness."

Pivotal Date
According to Camille Koberg, the things for which the seniors have waited has come at last. Miss Koberg says that she and her fellow class members have conquered the first major battle of life. In years to come, whether there be success or failure, Miss Koberg voices the opinion that one of the outstanding dates to be remembered in her life was that of May 28, 1937, the time when she walked from that "stage of life so full of joy into young womanhood filled with ambitions."

Bobby McEwen brings forth his plans by stating: "The realization of graduating did not dawn upon me until my senior year in school. It meant I had completed and mastered 11 years of school work. The future stretches out before us like an endless road and only careful travel will bring us to our goal.

Sometimes an empty helpless feeling grasps me. The professions are either overcrowded or are not suitable. It seems the future is something that one must put more into than a person gets out of it."

Must Work
Miss Nina Rose Webb says: "Each of the graduating boys and girls must travel their own road toward success and failure, differing widely from that space of years when in school. A graduate must realize that he or she must work toward the goal they have received the little white slip of paper which symbolizes their entire school work. At the close of the commencement sermon the first lap in our life will be over and from then on it will be up to us to weather the storm."

The transformation from a student to a woman of the world gives Miss Evelyn Clements one of her greatest thrills of life. Miss Clements says, "I realize that I have changed from a plugging student to a dignified young lady of the world. I hardly can make myself believe that school days have passed on. My only ambition is to assume a responsibility so that I can be independent. I have yet to find out what my real work in this world is but I will work toward that goal. Unfortunately I have no idea where I would like to go to college. I do not know what my talent lies in but the best way to find out is not to be stopping here. Wherever I go I want to get the full benefits of it and amount to something."

American occupation of the Panama Canal Zone began in 1904, though the canal was not completed until 1915.

THESE STUDENTS STUDY, BUT NOT FOR GRADES

These students, busy with their work, put in as much or more study than any of their fellow pupils in the Big Spring schools, but not for grades. At the end of their six week's periods and at the end of the year they go without report cards or comparative grades. The top picture shows the arts and craft class at the junior high school under the direction of Clara Secrest and Zillah Counts, and the lower picture shows the North Ward arts and craft unit for grades one to five, hard at work. The pupils are given projects of their own choosing, insofar as possible. Study of these leads them to acquire the more academic type of learning. They may paint, sketch, read, design, fashion leather, work wood, etc. Similar work is being carried on in all the elementary schools, but on a grade basis.

Students at Fort Hays (Kans.) State college held a "leap year week." Co-eds who refused to foot their escorts' bills had their faces painted. Chivalrous males who insisted on paying their way were ducked in a campus creek.

Wheel Staff Publishes Special Edition In Honor Of Senior Class

It was "30" for members of the Big Spring high school Wheel staff last Friday as Editor Maurine Montgomery and her staff of associates completed their spring work by publishing a special 12-page edition in honor of the graduating seniors.

The last edition was the thirtieth paper published by the school staff this year.

Under the supervision of Sponsor Wayne Mathews The Wheel has prospered to where members of next year's staff may buy a small press. The paper has been published on a mimeograph the past two semesters.

The final edition, the largest of the four dedicated to individual classes of the high school, included class prophecies, names of class officers, a resume of the school year, and reviewed the sports year.

Miss Montgomery was assisted by a staff of eight, including Winell Fischer, assistant editor; Bobby McEwen, business manager; H. C. Burrus, sports editor; Lily Jean Cook, exchange editor; and Tell Bartlett, Dorothy Dean Sain, and Marvin House, Jr., reporters.

Fire Marshall Warns Against Trash Fires

E. B. Bethell, city fire marshal, Saturday issued a warning to residents against burning trash too near buildings or without proper care.

"Practically all of the fires reported recently have been the result of carelessness in burning trash," said the fire marshal. He urged people to watch fires when burning trash, or to place the trash in a barrel and cover with a screen.

Bethell also warned against keeping trash adjacent to buildings. He pointed to one fire within the month originating from a cigarette or match dropped in a trash container against a house.

Colonial Garden Theme Used For Annual Pep Squad Banquet, Prom

Affair Climaxes Gay Events Honoring May Graduates

Climaxing the social events arranged during the month complimentary to members of the High School graduating class, the annual Pep Squad banquet was held in the Settles hotel Friday evening in a particularly beautiful setting arranged to represent an old-fashioned garden. Following the banquet the prom was held in the high school gymnasium.

Miss Anna Bell Edwards, gowned in a colonial costume greeted the guests in the alcove where Miss Wanda McQuinn and Marvin House, Jr., planned, boutonniere with colored ribbons on the boys. Miss Patsy Zafoneta and Gerald Anderson headed the receiving line and ushered the students to the garden gate that was opened by little Ethel Jean Berry who also was colonially attired. A white picket fence enclosed the garden where 27 tables, covered with cloths of pink, green, yellow and orchid were laid.

The colors corresponded to the ribbons on the boutonniere and by this means the couples found their tables. On the inside of the garden Miss Harriett Hall and Merlan Smith received and Miss Edythe Rae Lees and Tommy Hunt invited the guests to the old-fashioned well where they were served punch from an old oak bucket. The well was appropriately surrounded by grass, roses and trees, the theme of which was used throughout the ballroom.

Buffet Supper Miss Marie Tingle, dressed in the gown of a southern belle, directed the partners to the supper table where the meal was served buffet style. After serving themselves the couples were seated about the handsomely decorated tables that held tiny potted plants for the girls and pink and silver horns for their escorts.

Programs, shaped as morning glories, were passed by Misses Edwards, Tingle and Berry.

Miss Hall was mistress of ceremonies and introduced the speakers and entertainers. Superintendent W. C. Blankenship gave a short talk which was followed by the program by the Swing Sisters who sang "You're Just a Flower From an Old Bouquet."

Miss Mary Vance Keneaster was their accompanist. Principal George Gentry spoke briefly and Misses Edwards and Tingle sang a duet after which Miss Tingle favored the group with a toe dance. The boys' trio composed of Raymond Lee Williams, Nelson Haminger and James Underwood took entertaining honors of the evening with their rendition of "Moonlight and Roses" which they sang in an atmosphere of an artificial moon that lighted the trees entwined with roses. As an encore they sang "My Wild Irish Rose."

Impressive was the tribute paid the departing members of the squad by the remaining members of the group. As the young girls placed floral wreaths about the neck of the seniors Miss Zafoneta said this was a symbol of undying friendship and that each petal represented a wish for good luck and Godspeed. The affair concluded with the underclassmen and guests singing "Goodbye Seniors."

At the gymnasium the floral theme was carried further in the decorations that were formed by means of a white crepe paper ceiling from which dropped streamers of pastel shaded flowers.

Music was furnished by an orchestra from San Angelo.

Members and their escorts were Miss Marie Dunham and Bert Bartlett; Miss Betty Lee Eddy and Harold Talbot; Miss La Fern Dehlinger and Fred Mitchell; Miss Cleo Dixon and Miras Woods; Miss Josephine Edwards and Merie Creighton; Miss Mickey Gordon and Weldon Bigony; Miss Jane Lee Hannah and Nelson Henninger; Miss Margie Hudson and Lewis Bankson; Miss Don Hutto and Lawrence Liberty; Miss Clara and Mary Sanders; Miss James Underwood; Miss Bobby Taylor and Vance Lebkowsky; Miss Nina Rose Webb and Durwood Riggs; Miss Mary Louise Wood and Roy Bruce; Miss Inez Knaus and Frank McCleskey; Miss Wanda McQuinn and Marvin House; Miss Mary Frances Robinson and Prentice Bass.

Reading AND Writing By John Selby

"A HOME IN THE COUNTRY," by Frederic F. Van de Water; (John Day-Reynal & Hitchcock; $2).

We watched Dwight Farnham work with good-humored tenacity all one summer to produce a book called "A Home in the Country." The book turned out most amusing and quite different from anything this reader had seen.

Then a book by Frederic F. Van de Water came along bearing the title, "A Home in the Country." It looked as if yet another publisher had yielded to the feeling that because one book succeeds, every publisher must imitate it. But that is not the case.

It is perfectly true that the idea of the books is the same. But the approach is different, the style is different, and the general atmosphere widely dissimilar. Mr. Van de Water is still a mere amateur at country place owning, and Mr. Farnham, for all his gay pretense of innocence, is actually rather a veteran.

One of the most amusing parts of "A Home in the Country" concerns the Van de Waters' long search for their farm. The search began in Fairfield county, Conn. The house was to be colonial, there was to be a view, and there was to be a trout stream. These and other advantages were to be found convenient to New York, for then the Van de Waters had no intention of staying the year 'round in the country.

But the search led through most of New England and the neighboring states, and when the house finally was found neither the author nor his wife recognized it. Some friends forced them into the purchase, which was in Vermont, incidentally, nearly 200 miles from the spot where the search began.

Errol Flynn As A Soldier Of Fortune In 'The Prince And The Pauper' At Ritz

Handsome Irishman Again Seen As Englishman

Stepping from Twainson to Twain is Errol Flynn's job as he appears Sunday and Monday at the Ritz theatre in the Warner Brothers' production, "The Prince and the Pauper" with a competent cast that includes the Mauch twins, Billy and Bobby, Claude Rains, Henry Stephenson, Barton MacLane, Alan Hale, Eric Portman and Flynn's romantic interest, Phyllis Barry.

The handsome Irishman was last seen in "The Charge of the Light Brigade," taken from the pen of Alfred Lord Tennyson. In this picture, although he again portrays an Englishman, he assumes a slightly different role. He is cast as a soldier of fortune who becomes mixed up with British royalty when little Prince Edward, through a mixup with an identical twin, is cast into the streets as a beggar boy. The heir-apparent is beaten by a gang of ruffians and Flynn, whose name in the picture is Miles Hendon, comes to the rescue.

Meet Secretly Before the mixup between the prince and the beggar boy, the twins meet secretly and exchange clothes. While admiring each other, they are spied upon by the king's attendants and the real prince is thrown into the street.

Following the incident, the king passes on and the "beggar boy" is placed on the throne under the protection of a jealous Lord Protector who intends to take the crown.

Meanwhile, Miles Hendon discovers the wrong done his little friend and sets about to right matters. While Hendon is away on a mission, a rascal by the name of John Canty breaks into the household, seizes the little prince and secretly sends him. Long has he hated Hendon, and whips his little friend for revenge.

Upon returning Miles swears to get even, and hunts Canty with intent to kill him. In a duel Canty dies.

The revenge Hendon gains wins him nothing but arrest by the local constable, but he is set free by a romantic maiden in time to learn that the young beggar on the throne of England is about to be murdered by the Lord Protector.

Hendon fights his way into the court, and in a series of exciting adventures puts the rightful ruler back on the throne and banishes the men who have tried to gain the British power.

J. B. Mills, president of the National Hotel company, Galveston, was a visitor in Big Spring Saturday. He was accompanied by Ray Centrell, also of Galveston. They continued to Lubbock to inspect company properties there before returning to Galveston.

IN PICTURE SHOWING AT THE LYRIC

Will Rogers, late beloved Oklahoman who was known throughout the world for his wit, has a part in "David Harum," showing at the Lyric today and Monday.

Will Rogers At Lyric In 'David Harum'

Plays Part Of Small Town Banker Who Does Horse Trading On Side

Playing the part of a small town banker who did a little horse trading on the side, Will Rogers had his greatest role in "David Harum." The picture appears at the Lyric theatre Sunday and Monday.

The story opens as Harum takes on a new man in his banking firm. He gains an unfavorable impression of the young fellow (Kent Taylor) due to the fact that he seems backward in the ways of living in a small town.

Both men's ideas toward the other suddenly change when Kent discovers that beneath the rough front Bill throws to the public, is a kind hearted and generous man, and Will in turn finds out that Taylor possesses an inferiority complex due to lack of funds.

Will succeeds in breaking down that reserve by getting Kent to bet all his savings on a horse he is to drive in a forthcoming trotting classic, a feature of the county fair.

The horse will win, however.

A BAD LEAK IN BIG SPRING PROSPERITY

Citizens who do not stop to think what Big Spring stores mean in our social and financial structure spend some of their money elsewhere annually for merchandise that could be purchased here just as economically and much more conveniently.
To a greater extent than in many communities, our prosperity depends on the success of our retail establishments. We have some very important industries but we are not a typical manufacturing city. Twenty-five per cent of our people depend for their livelihood on Big Spring Stores.

Our Stores do credit to our city. Visitors are always favorably impressed with our retail section. Our merchants are progressive. They buy in the same markets with the smartest shops of our largest cities. They ask and expect your patronage only when quality and price are equal. If they fail to have what you want they will gladly get it for you at no premium in price.

It is the thoughtless person who cuts down the volume of Big Spring Stores—the person who buys unnecessarily when visiting in other cities, or who yields to the age-old fallacy that fields elsewhere are greener.

We need to think, that's all. And hereafter let's do think before we spend a single dollar elsewhere that could be spent to equal advantage with Big Spring Stores where it can and will react to our own advantage.

BEAUTY Too Much Society Without Rest Is Detriment To Bride's Beauty

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW
(AP Feature Service Writer)

There is such a thing as over-doing preparations for the wedding.

By the time the last gift has been listed and the rehearsal supper is over the bride often is too tired to be interested in her attire gown. And if she's not careful, she'll feel like snapping at her husband the moment the title becomes his.

So here's a word of beauty advice to add to the last words of rejected suitors and relatives-to-be:

Take a little time off between social functions for complete relaxation. Fifteen minutes can make a world of difference, if that time is spent stretched out, with every muscle at ease.

But, the bride counters, relaxing is much easier to preach than to practice. Especially when the brain is whirling with all the last-minute details of the fifteen-minute ceremony.

But it can be done. Begin with a long stretch, extending feet and hands as far as possible.

Then deliberately try to sink as far into the mattress as possible. If the toes are jumpy, don't ignore them and hope they'll relax. Concentrate on them; they'll stop twitching.

If social engagements permit a half-hour of rest, even though sleep is out of the question, take a hoins facial.

Cover the face with plenty of cleansing cream, then wipe it off thoroughly. The lines in the face and under the chin should be rubbed in a circular motion as the cream is applied.

Then spread on a thin coat of cleansing cream, to be left on while lying down. Later, after it has been washed off, apply a little ice for a final smooth finish.

For a particularly soothing rest, moisten pads of cotton with a favorite astringent, and place them over the eyes.

If time permits, take a hot bath before resting. In water that is fragrant with plenty of bath salts. Follow it with a shower in water of body temperature. (Colder water will act as a stimulus, and will make relaxation difficult.)

Wedding-Day Cosmetics

A word about wedding cosmetics: There's a superstition that the bride should go to the altar looking as natural as possible. But that doesn't mean she should spurn cosmetics.

It simply means that she should wear the same shade of rouge and lipstick.

Following the same principle she shouldn't wait until the last minute to get a wave. At least 24 hours should be allowed to give her curls time to loosen up and look more natural.

Plans For 4-H Dress Contest Are Completed

TRAMPS, DEMURE MAIDENS FLOCK IN H. S. HALLS

The halls of the high school were filled with alarming looking tramps and sweet, demure little girls recently. The reason... it was the annual Senior Day! This day is looked forward with eagerness by all the seniors as it is a happy event that will come only once in their lifetime to be remembered always.

The day started off with a program held in the gymnasium at 10 o'clock in which Camille Koberg was in charge. The program opened with a song by the boys trio, Raymond Lee Williams, James Underwood, and Nelson Hemminger. Lola Mae Hall sang a popular blues song and Kathleen Williams gave a piano solo followed by the reading of the last will and testament of the senior class by Nancy Phillips. As a grand finale Clarinda Mary Sanders and Jane Lee Hannah led the group in singing "School Days."

Immediately after the program the seniors left the school in peace again and went out to the park for the picnic. Games were played and many went wading in the wading pool. At 12:30 lunch was ready and inside of five minutes nothing was left but paper and dirty faces.

Later in the afternoon many went for a cool plunge in the swimming pool. This ended a perfect day for the seniors—N.P.

MEETS POPULAR DESIRES

The proposed municipal budget for the ensuing fiscal year is a record instrument, but it is noteworthy that the program of activity to be provided by the budget is to be carried out without the necessity of increasing taxes.

At the same time the citizens of Big Spring will be in a position to receive the two things they have most desired, better streets and a more adequate water supply.

For the past five year now there has been a popular agitation for a paving program. Now the city proposes to build as many as 20 blocks of paving during the year if property owners cooperate. In addition, provision has been made for widening of Third street from city limit to city limit.

While water supply, in the sense of potential supply, has been a popular objective for lo these many years, the question of immediate supply, or pressure, also has been an urgent demand. The city proposes to solve the first question with an extensive water survey of the territory, and plans to meet the second with new mains and booster pumps.

These, aside from the purchase of bonds (already effected) are the high points of the suggested budget. They are the things which the public as wanted.

Accumulation of a tidy surplus during the past six years will enable the city to accomplish these projects without hiking the tax rate.

Some will say that the surplus should be applied to a normal budget in order that taxes could be reduced drastically. The Herald does not believe that this would meet with the approval of a majority of the citizenship. In the first place, taxes hammered down are vastly more difficult to raise, and they surely would have to be raised with depletion of the surplus. Secondly, the people have indicated a desire for a progressive program, and the budget as proposed pretty well satisfies that desire.

+ Man About Manhattan +

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Manhattan has many fine restaurants but you will search far and wide before finding any more satisfactory ones than the better Swedish restaurants up in the west Fifties. I suppose it is the acres of hors d'oeuvres which charm the senses and so excite the palate, but just wandering around them is one of the highlights of dining in New York.

They tell me a trick in savoring these delicacies is an abundance of pickles. A bite of pickle or condiment should be taken between each hors d'oeuvre, such as a wine taster uses coffee or a cigaret between each sip of grape.

It is not an exaggeration to say that a minimum of 100 kinds of appetizers are laid out for the pleasure of guests, and if you aren't careful there'll be no room for the sumptuous dinner which is supposed to follow the hors d'oeuvres. It's a lot of fun at these places. The attractiveness of the delicacies seems to excite the crowd, and as you go in there is always a crowd milling about the vast center "island," where the hors d'oeuvres are arrayed, laughing, talking, whispering excitedly, choosing this and that item, most of which are wholly unknown to the diner.

And the most delightful phase is the check at the end of the repast. With their rich abundance of excellent food and fine serving, the prices are uniformly small. If you contemplate visiting New York at any time, it would be a mistake to leave without having dinner at least once in one of these throw-backs to old Stockholm, the names of which one may always find in the newspapers.

A unique dinner show and one that is timely is the ice carnival in the Summer Terrace at the New Yorker. It is not so much the idea, rather it is the execution which makes for such rapt attention as the entertainment unfolds. After all, it is soothing, on warm nights, to have the dance floor suddenly converted into an ice rink and then have a host of lovely girls appear magically on skates to glide and swirl around the ice with such poise and ease.

All are expert skaters and, together with a number of real stars on the ice, they provide an hour of such fine entertainment that one's dinner is likely to be forgotten. They swirl with terrific speed, they drift into dreamy Vienna waltzes, they revolve in comedy and acrobatic numbers, all on skates. If there is nothing miraculous about it, it is at least a pleasing innovation in a city where so much of the entertainment is stereotyped.

That odd looking hombre who wanders the town in knee-britches and a black beard isn't a ballyhoo man or the leader of some strange religious cult. He's Oscar LeRoy, still paying off election bets. One day each month for a year he must parade during the noon hour up and down Fifth avenue.

NEWS

BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLOTT

Spring Fever
WASHINGTON, May 21—The administration seems to be positively bored with the new agricultural program. President Roosevelt says it is not administrative legislation and he does not know whether he is for it. Agriculture Secretary Wallace yawned the other day that it was not his baby and, in fact, he did not like its tariff reduction proposal. House farm Chairman Jones is being quoted as murmuring drily that the hearings may last a long, long time because it is not an administrative bill and must be looked into carefully. Farm politicians are telling newsmen to point out clearly in their stories that it is not an administrative bill.

These four negatives may not make an affirmative, but they certainly make a very interesting situation. The most noticeable result has been to make everyone in congress and elsewhere a little sleepy. Some say it is just spring fever, but there is other evidence that it may be just plain old-fashioned political fever.

In fact, all observers able to leave their eyes open in the face of these soporific influences agree the bill contains everything the administration wants, from the soil conservation benefit payments to Pharaoh Wallace's ever normal granary.

In other words, it isn't an administration bill, but it is. Papa
The language of the child is being claimed by capable Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American farm bureau federation. As a proud father, he will say the agriculture department knew nothing about it. If pressed, however, Mr. O'Neal will also add that, of course, his two legal drafters did not have all the necessary statistics and information at hand for their work. He is naturally worried, the best hope, and wondered where they could get it. After deep thought, they happened to think of you guessed it—the department of agriculture.

Now Mr. Wallace is not the kind of man who would deny help to his best friend, Mr. O'Neal, especially in distress. In his big-hearted way, he agreed not only to send Mr. O'Neal statistics and information, but his own general legal counsel, not to draft the bill, oh, no—but merely to hand Mr. O'Neal a statistic now and then. Of course, some inaccurate newsmen here will probably be so inaccurate as to speculate that Mr. O'Neal could get a better statistic from one of Mr. Wallace's statisticians than from his lawyer, but everyone knows how patient Mr. Wallace has always been with newspaper inaccuracies.

Purposes

There appear to be many reasons why this is not an administrative bill, even though Mr. Wallace's lawyer helped to write it. In the first place, the anti-administration sentiment sweeping congress will not be directed against the bill, if the farmers espouse it as their own. Congressmen generally are ready to give the farmers what they want, even when it happens to be what Mr. Wallace has been saying in speeches throughout the land that they should have.

Furthermore, the bill is very drastic in scope, possibly leaning to the unconstitutional side of the AAA decision by the supreme court. For one thing, it repeats the supreme phrase about "the flow of commerce" in the Wagner decision so frequently as to indicate the author himself had his doubts. He might well have because the bill is obviously designed to control production strongly and effectively in spite of the AAA decision. It carries a note set-up such as the court suggested was necessary to constitutionalize production control.

Now, if congress will just remain droned, the bill may be worked around into a position where it can be shoved through the last minute of the session, when everyone is anxious to get home.

Consequently, you must not let your mind become so inaccurate as to believe this is an administrative bill or that it will be passed this session. Catch?

Terminology

Another similar inaccuracy which has been going around is that Mr. Roosevelt would send a power message to congress. The White House announced the other day that the president had no such idea in mind. It was said he intended to send a national resources conservation message to congress, another on hours and wages, etc.

However, just as a tip, if you will look into the national resources conservation message, you will find the lost power message. Aside from containing some minor points about soil conservation, it was written to contain major points about a survey looking toward establishment of eight other TVA's around the country.

Mr. Roosevelt's unofficial attorney-general, Tom Corcoran, appeared behind the senate scenes the other day to take charge of compromise negotiations.

A 1935 Iowa agricultural census just reported shows that a majority of Iowa farm operators have been on the land they now occupy more than five years.

The Thrill That Comes Once In A Lifetime

THE SPORT SHIRT

Hollywood

Sights and Sounds
By Robin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—The names Astaire and Rogers over the box office will mean more than ever after "Shall We Dance?" And the name of Mark Sandrich, who directed this most original of their offerings, should go up five or six ratings higher on the ladder.

Not since "The Gay Divorcee," first co-starring vehicle of the dancing pair, has Hollywood seen their talents displayed so sparklingly.

A Tangled Plot
Astaire, playing a Pennsylvania boy masquerading as a Russian for professional reasons, falls in love with Ginger's photographs and decides to marry her. He pursues her from Paris to New York, where a gossip report of their marriage has preceded them. Ginger's efforts to untangle the situation and marry a dull playboy only enmesh them further, leading to a proposal of marriage from the pursued to the pursuer as the way out. But it doesn't end there, of course.

All of this permits the logical introduction of such high spots as Astaire's imitation of a temperamental Russian dancer for Ginger's benefit; his steam room dance on shipboard; his dance on roller skates with Ginger; his ballet performance with Harriett Hector, who plays herself; and Eric Blore's hysterical attempts to explain to Edward Everett Horton, via telephone, that he is detained at the Susquehanna police station.

Music By Gerashwin
George Gerashwin did the music and Ira the lyrics. The support includes Jerome Cowan, Ketti Mark Sandrich is a young director (36) from New York who has been in pictures since 1922. He wrote and directed features and comedies in comparative obscurity until one of his shorts—"So This Is Harris"—impressed RKO.

Since then he has done several of the Astaire-Rogers hits, all excellent but none so marked by individuality as his latest. Credit must be given for many laugh lines and situations to Allan Scott and Ernest Pagano, screen playwrights, but the touch of Sandrich is always present. Laugh situations they developed on the set include Blore's Susquehanna episode, so hilarious that many lines are lost in laughter; Astaire's weaving trickery to make Horton senesick; the surprise ending to the roller-skate dance; and Horton's reaction to the news picture brought in by Astaire.

ANITA LOOS' SARATOGA

Illustrated by Vincentini

CHAPTER THREE

Although they sailed home with in two days and on the fastest boat ever built, the voyage seemed almost endless to Carol. She urged Hartley not to cut short his vacation she would be quite all right, especially as one of her trachers would be on the boat to chaperone her. But he would not hear of being separated from her. Before they left, she had spoken over the phone to her father and his voice reassured her. She said playfully she would like to have him send a radio to her each day, so people would know she was important. Surely, she would say to herself when she refused to be banished, everything was all right; it was only that horrible upstart of a Duke Bradley who for some reason had wanted to hurt her.

They were to arrive in Saratoga on one of the big race days of the season. Trains were slow, only a plane would be an antidote to Carol's impatience. When their car stopped at Brookdale, Carol had jumped out almost before it stopped. The door was open and she ran in, only to run out again, her face glowing with happiness.

"They're at the races," she cried. "So Daddy must be all right!" Carol was conscious of the sensation they created when they reached the track. Perhaps she held her head a little higher than usual, perhaps there was a little more of what she believed to be an Oxonian accent when she spoke to old friends who greeted her, perhaps she was a trifle too graciously formal to people she had known all her life. Hartley's distinction, the knowledge that no woman in all the gay crowd was more beautiful or more smartly gowned than she, the excitement of coming back in triumph may have turned her head.

There were raised eyebrows and shrugs of shoulders as they pushed their way through the crowd, but even the most scathing critic would have had nothing to find fault with when she saw her granddaughters. "You old darling," she said, running to him. "How are you—did you get my message I'd be here—where's Daddy—any of the horses I know running—"

"Humph," said the old man, "you can talk as fast as ever, even if you do sound kind of funny. And stop hugging me and introduce this young man. Seems to me we should know each other."

"I have completely lost my head," said Carol, as the two men shook hands.

"Never had any to lose, I'd say," grunted the old man.

"And Rosetta, you darling—Hartley, this is my nurse. How I got along without her these two years I don't know, but when we've seen't you, you bossy old thing."

"I sure is honey," said the beaming Rosetta.

Suddenly Carol cried. "But, Daddy! Isn't he here? Is he in the hospital or—"

"Are you plain loony," answered her grandfather. "Whatever would he be in a hospital for? He wasn't quite up to scratch a while back, but nothing serious—I have let you know, if it has been. He's here where you might know he'd be, up at the tracks and time we got there, too. If we see the Grand Hotel Stakes, do as you like, of course—you always have and always will—but I intend to see that race."

Carol had never been more angry in her life. Her rage swept away the relief she felt at her grandpa's arrival. He—her father had said, "You can scold me whenever you want to, but no one else can."

Then she saw her father and her first thought was, "Oh, he looks so much older—and grayer—and—"

"Daddy," she cried and ran into his outstretched arms. "Oh, darling, darling, was I ever glad to see anyone before in all my life! I was so excited she couldn't introduce her father and her fiancée. For one awful moment she thought she was going to weep for joy. She was saved by a gay young voice, saying:

"As self-introductions seem to be in order—Miss Clayton, may I present Duke Bradley?" Instantly her poise returned. She nodded and flashed a smile which was too brilliant at him.

"Of course," Duke went on, "this is really superfluous—we have introduced ourselves before—do you remember our telephone conversation?" "How could I ever forget it?" she asked in a voice too sweet. "And now, Hartley, this is evidently Mr. Bradley. Mr. Bradley, this is Mr. Madison."

He looked in his friend's face and stopped. Hartley Madison and the doctor came running toward them. In the distance he could see Carol. Duke looked at the doctor. One glance was enough.

"Madison," said Duke. "Take Carol home. And you'll have to break it gently to Grandfather—Jim and I didn't let him know this might happen any minute. I'll tend to everything."

Tragedy had entered into Carol's life on her very first day back home. Will it change the course of her plans and affect her marriage with Hartley? Don't miss tomorrow's astounding disclosures.

FOUR TESTS ARE INDICATED NEAR DISCOVERY WELL

Iron Mountain, Eastland, Magnolia To Sink Offsets To Moore Bros. No. 1 TXL, Garza Test To Deepen

Completion of the Moore Bros. No. 1 TXL discovery well midway between the East Howard and the Chalk pools for 216 barrels a day on a 24-hour test, coupled with two other completions gave this area an additional potential of 1,343 barrels.

Showing of the Moore Bros. No. 1 TXL precipitated four additional locations in the immediate vicinity. Iron Mountain Oil company staked location for its No. 1 D. H. Snyder, 330 feet from the east and south lines of section 28-30-1a, T&P, a direct north offset to the TXL well which is located 330 feet out of the northeast corner of section 33. Eastland Oil company staked tentative location for a diagonal offset on the northeast in the southwest corner of section 27, while Magnolia is planning a direct offset on the east 330 feet out of the northwest corner of section 34. Moore Bros. will sink another test soon 600 feet from the north run and cemented. The test is approximately 38 feet higher on the oil bearing formation than the Moore Bros. No. 2 McDowell, 660 feet to the south, and is 12 feet higher than any of the surrounding World Oil Co. wells. The No. 2 McDowell was completed several weeks ago for 850 barrels.

Nearing completion was Continental No. 15-A Clay, which was cleaning out at 3,178 feet after a 270-quart shot. It was bottomed at 3,245 feet.

In the Harding area, just southwest of Big Spring, the Moore Bros. No. 1 J. B. Harding, section 19-33-1a, T&P, drilled to 1,400 feet. Two companion wells, the Moore Bros. No. 1 I. B. Cagle, section 21-33-1a, T&P, and the Moore Bros. No. 1 Mabel Quinn, section 23-34-1a, T&P, were around 150 feet, experiencing trouble with gravel.

Continental listed two new locations for the week, its No. 34-S Settles, 1,330 feet from the north and 440 feet from the west lines of section 159-29, W&N, Howard county, and Esau No. 8, 440 feet from the south and 1,100 feet from the west lines of section 6-32-2a, T&P.

Continental No. 32-S Settles shallow sand test in section 129-29, W&N, was at 1,266 feet in sand and its No. 33-S Settles, in the same section was at 801 feet in red rock and shale. Continental No. 3-A Bell Overton, section 8-32-2a, T&P, drilled to 2,360 feet in lime. Continental No. 7 Klob, section 5-32-2a, T&P, drilled past 1,444 feet in shells. Merrick and Lamb No. 1 Clay, section 126-29, W&N, drilled to 2,050 feet in lime.

Plans were made to deepen the S. "Blackie" Caprio No. 1 Post estate outpost Garza county test west of production on the southern outskirts of Post. It was drilled at 3,295 feet and will be deepened to 3,350 feet. It had a hole full of sulphur water at 3,107 feet after encountering several shows the deepest at 2,990 feet. It is located in section 12-30. K. Aycock, T. E. Patton refinery at Post City started taking runs from two Gartex wells south of Post in section 6-5, Aycock survey. The two are running 80 barrels a day having been shut in since February. Emerald Oil company will market its crude to the refinery from its three wells, each with a 20-barrel allowable.

Humble Gets Acreage For Deep Tests

New Upton Area Opened And New Pay Found In Winkler

SAN ANGELO, May 22—Obtaining of production in a new area in southwestern Upton county and from a deeper pay in the Eaves pool in northern Winkler county and acquiring by Humble of lease on a 26,000-acre block in southwestern Ector county, supposedly with a primary view to Ordovician exploration, headlined developments in West Texas this week.

On the border line between West Texas and West Central Texas, a new pool was opened in Fisher county 2 1/2 miles northeast of Rotan by Southern Oil Corp. No. 1 Joe Robinson, which flowed 25 barrels of 41.7 gravity oil through a control head on 8-inch casing from 3,905 feet, only three feet in sandy lime pay. The pay is at the base of the Noodle Creek formation. A test awaits storage and probably will not be made until next week.

The well is three miles west of the nearest pool, the Howard, and in the center of the east half of the 172-2-H&T.C. On an extension of the structure to the west Forest Development Corp. drilled two deep dry holes. Land owners were asking—and some receiving—$12 to $15 an acre for leases one mile south of the 4,000-acre block on which No. 1 Robinson is located, and royalty one-half mile distant was held for $100 an acre base.

Water Increases

Reverses included the showing of more water than oil by Stanolind No. 1 Kyle, south offset to the discovery well in northwestern Loving county's Delaware pool at 4,930 feet, past the regular pay, indicating the first failure, and estimates that L. F. White and A. R. Eppner's No. 1 Rector-Monroe, 1 1/4 mile east of a lone Delaware producer in western Ward county, was good for only 20 barrels daily at 4,689 feet after shooting. Graham-Hunter Corp. No. 1 Montgomery, Reeves well at northern of Toyah, and Dunigan Bros. & Brahany No. 1 Sealy, southwestern Winkler county well, were abandoned dry at 3,205 feet.

The Edwards Plateau obtained another scheduled deep test in the staking of a location by Amon G. Carter of Fort Worth and associates in Edwards county on the Frank J. Sweeten ranch, 1 1/2 miles east of Rocksprings. Lee Drilling Co. has the contract to drill 7,000 feet, unless production is obtained shallower, and will move equipment from Kerrville. Tentative location is 2,310 feet from the south and east lines of section 49-2-B&B.

Basin Oil Properties, Inc. (R. H. Henderson and others) No. 1 A. J. Herrington in Upton county, 2 1/2 miles north of wells in the northwestern part of the McCamey district, swabbed 250 barrels of oil in 24 hours through 5-inch casing, bottomed at 2,825 feet, 10 feet below the top of the pay. Treatment of the lime with 2,000 gallons of acid was scheduled. No. 1 Herrington is 650 feet from the south line and 1,650 feet from the east line of section 4-3 1-2-C&S&F.

Fred T. Hogan of Midland assigned to Hal C. Peck and J. H. Croft, also of Midland, for the drilling of a second wildcat on the Ralph H. Harris block in Upton county near the Crockett county line. The test will be 330 feet from the south line and 2,310 feet from the west line of section 3-W-GC&SF, five miles southeast of McCamey production and near two high, dry holes.

More Tests Indicated

B. C. Mann of San Angelo acquired from Tide Water an 80-acre lease with one well in the northeast part of Wm. Teer survey 4 in the McCamey field and will start a test soon. Webb-Ray Oil Co. of San Angelo spudded its No. 2 Cordova-Union in section 3, A. E. Baxley survey, 657 feet north of his No. 1, which in the fall of 1935 opened a new producing area 3 1/2 miles southeast of the Hurdle pool. J. W. Ellis, Julius C. Peters and others No. 5 J. W. Robbins became the operators. Amon G. Carter well on a 320-acre lease in section 4-GC&SF, pumping 20 hours at a rate of 908 barrels daily.

Producing from lime that possibly corresponds to the pay zone in the Eaves pool in Lea county, New Mexico, several miles to the north, Gulf No. 1-A Edwards in northern Winkler county flowed 49 barrels of oil in three hours with 1,712,000 cubic feet of gas daily at 3,148 feet. It then was shut in for storage, will not be deepened but may be shot. The well is a west offset to Fields, Cherry and others No. 1 Daugherty, pool on over two miles north of the Leck field, producing from a higher zone, and is 2,970 feet from the south line and 330 feet from the east line of section 6-32-pal.

The lease obtained by Humble through Louis Link on 26,000 acres of the T. B. Yarbrough ranch embraces tracts in section 16-B&pal in southwestern Ector county, in section 32-8-14-pal in northwestern Crane county, in section 21-B&pal in southeastern Winkler county and in blocks B-13, B-14, B-17 and B-18 in northeastern Ward county. It was reported $3 an acre was paid for the 10-year commercial lease with an annual rental of 50 cents an acre.

Two Wildcats In Gaines Co.

Continental And Argo To Drill On Jones Land, Royalty Moves

Argo Royalty company and Continental each spudded a wildcat on Dr. E. H. Jones' ranch in northwestern Gaines county and Continental stated another location on a lease nearing expiration. Argo, in the center of the northeast quarter of section 2-47-pal, spudded 168 feet and was rigging up rotary. Continental No. 1 Jones, 1,980 feet from the north line and 660 feet from the east line of section 22-A7-pal, spudded Wednesday. Continental staked No. 1 J. T. Horton, 440 feet out of the southwest corner of section 46-AX-pal, a north offset to Carter-Continental No. 1 W. McGarty Moore, staked earlier in the week, in the northwest corner of section 47.

Carter-Continental No. 1 A. L. Wasson, northern Gaines wildcat, 2,310 feet from the south line and 230 feet from the west line of section 48-AX-pal, had drilled to 4,450 feet in lime. It logged the first brown lime stringer at 3,860 feet, 311 feet below sea level. This was reported high and stimulated royalty buying.

George Etz of Rowell, N. M., and E. H. Robertson of Lubbock staked No. 1 Enoch, a wildcat in southeastern Bailey county, in the center of labor 66, league 182, Floyd county school land. M. S. Ingelright and others staked No. 1 Dugan, a short distance northwest of the Cochran county discovery well and 660 feet out of the northeast corner of labor 14, league 55, Oldham county school land.

East Texas Companies Follow Magnolia Boost

DALLAS, May 22 (AP)—Oil companies operating in East Texas today followed the Magnolia Petroleum company's eight-cent increase in the price of East Texas crude, making $1.35 per barrel the top price.

At Longview, officials of the Atlas Petroleum company, the Tide-water Oil company and the Tidewater Oil company announced they would meet the price boost. The Bell-General Pipeline company at Shreveport, subsidiary of the General American Oil company of Texas, also said it would increase the price. The latter concern has 600 connections in East Texas.

There was an unofficial prediction that a general increase in mid-continent crude prices was forthcoming. Officials of the major companies, were studying the increase.

The Magnolia company announced it made the increase to halt loss of connections in East Texas due to the fact other purchasers were paying higher prices.

Deer Casualties Higher

GOLD BEACH, Ore. (UP)—Mortality among deer in this region has been unusually high this year, reports indicate. Residents of the back country say the loss has been about as great as among sheep herds on the upper ranges, which exceeds 50 per cent.

Crane To Get 7,000 Ft. Test

Gulf Deep Test Showing More Water, To Seek Ordovician

Between the Yarbrough ranch and Gulf's Ordovician producers in Crane county, Wilcox Oil & Gas company of Tulsa plans to spud by July 1 a scheduled 7,000-foot wildcat to test the Ordovician in the center of the southeast quarter of section 12-35-U, was completed at a plugged back depth of 3,591 feet for a flow of 342 barrels of oil in 24 hours through 3-inch tubing.

E. R. Minshall and others No. 1 Banker, Pecos county wildcat three miles northwest of Fort Stockton, which late in March indicated opening of a new pool, was abandoned this week at a plugged back depth of 2,968 feet. It had been flowing 10 barrels of fluid daily, only 10 per cent oil, 60 per cent water and 30 per cent basic sediment. Location was 1,990 feet from the north line and 610 feet from the west line of section 25-146-T&SL. Plans are underway for the drilling of two tests in the area.

Safety council tests show only 25 per cent of the nation's motor car drivers have perfect vision.

STOP and GO all year round

ROUND TOWN A OUT OF EVERY 5 MILES YOU DRIVE ARE STOP AND GO

SUPER-SHELL

JUST "starting up" after a normal traffic stop can waste enough gasoline to drive your car a third of a mile.

To reduce the waste of stop and go, Shell engineers developed a way to "balance" gasoline.

This balancing process completely rearranges the chemical structure of gasoline... makes Super-Shell "digestible" for your motor... just as cooking will make some foods digestible for you.

"Motor-digestible" is the best way to describe this gasoline. Under all stop-and-go driving conditions, you'll find your motor gets the full benefit of Super-Shell's high energy content.

And you get the savings! Super-Shell is on sale from coast to coast. There's a Shell station in your neighborhood.
