

Deaf Smith one of top three sites

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Deaf Smith County is one of the three preferred sites for the nation's first high-level nuclear waste dump, sources indicated this morning.

According to Larry Combest, Congressman-elect from Lubbock, the U.S. Department of Energy will today announce Deaf Smith County, southwestern Nevada and southeastern Washington each contain one of the three preferred sites.

Combest received advanced notice of the decision from the Energy Department's Congressional Relations Office early this morning. He was phoned since he would be unable to attend a Congressional briefing in Washington slated for 11 a.m. today.

News given by DOE officials at that briefing was to be repeated at a 1 p.m. (CST) press conference in the nation's capital. A telephone number was established (1-900-410-7000) which was to provide live access to the conference and maintain it as a tape-recorded message for the succeeding 24 hours.

Combest explained today's revelation is to be followed by a 90-day comment period which was to begin immediately. Hearings and briefings are to be held in Washington as well as at the nine sites still officially under consideration, he said. The legislator-elect pledged he would attend the local hearings.

At the conclusion of the comment period, Combest said, DOE officials are to nominate five of the repository candidates, three of which are to be recommended for detailed site characterization and evaluation studies. The three preferred locations announced today are likely to be those targeted for the studies, Combest claimed.

As outlined in the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982, those detailed physical examinations - which are to include a large exploratory shaft at each of the three sites - are to be completed by 1990. Late that year, a final selection for the nuclear waste dump is to be made. Storage operations are to commence eight years later.

The concerned state's governor, Combest stressed, has the option to veto the selection. That move can be overridden only by a majority vote by both houses of Congress.

Prioritized listings of the nine candidate sites are to be based on environmental assessment studies due to be released by the DOE Thursday. "They clearly show which three we consider to be the top-ranked, plus two additional ones that we view as the top alternatives," Ginger King of DOE told the Associated Press Tuesday.

The AP, in a story sent this morning, also claimed an anonymous source within the Energy Department Tuesday identified the five sites to be singled out. In addition to the three already mentioned, locations near Richton Dome in Mississippi and Davis Canyon in southeastern Utah are to remain candidates, the source said.

All nine sites are located in salt formations. Energy Department officials have already begun searching for a second dump site to be placed on a granite formation. Seventeen northeastern states are now being considered.

Junior high merger opinions voiced

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

"We have a good thing going at Stanton. We have a good thing going at La Plata. And I say, let's leave it that way for awhile."

That opinion, offered by Carolyn McGilvary, was one of several voiced Tuesday evening concerning the proposed consolidation of Hereford's two junior high schools. Board members of the local independent school district listened but took no action on the matter.

Also at Tuesday's marathon meeting, it was decided by a split vote final semester tests would not be given at the junior and senior high school levels.

As proposed, a junior high merger would send all HISD seventh and eighth graders to La Plata, with ninth graders assigned to Hereford High School. Part of the Stanton building, located a block south of HHS, would be used for classroom space should the change be made.

District officials are considering the consolidation for several reasons, including finances. Estimates have placed initial yearly savings at $143,000 as a result of the merger. That cut would come from reduction in staff and savings with utility and maintenance bills.

Unification of the junior high system would also, school officials claim, result in more diversified class offerings and better educational grouping of students. Declining enrollment is another prime factor in the proposal.

At Tuesday's meeting, several teachers and students spoke out against the consolidation. Arguments used ranged from anticipated lack of space to feared increased drug use to what to do about band uniforms.

"Everyone I've talked to has been against it," said Vaavia Rudd, a Stanton student who brought up the uniform dilemma. "I'd just like to say I'm against this and y'all ought to consider how students feel about this."

"We have a very close-knit faculty at Stanton Junior High," commented Virginia Phillips, who said she has taught for 14 years there. Stanton students are different than are those at La Plata, she said, adding it is known as "the poor school" which tends to have most of the "hoodlums." Neither the Stanton nor La Plata kids want to be put together, Phillips asserted.

Board member Calvin Jones was first to bring up the space problem. Would there be enough room for library materials and all the necessary files? "We need to seriously consider" that and other questions, he said.

How children living in the town's east side would be transported to La Plata was another frequently voiced concern. Suzanne Duvall, a Stanton instructor, fought back tears as she said the extra distance will make some students less inclined to go to school.

At school board meeting

Already, she said, students are becoming increasingly disenchanted due to all the extensive testing required by a mastery learning system. The fun is being taken from kids, she claimed. "You can see it. You can feel it."

Earlier Tuesday, Duvall said, she had encountered students smoking marijuana. "You think the drug problem is bad now, it'll get worse." Her remarks drew the meeting's only applause.

The inception of mastery learning has also been a drain on teachers, it was pointed out several times. McGilvary said the consolidation

State files lawsuit against DOE

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

A lawsuit contesting the U.S. Department of Energy's method of selecting possible sites for the nation's first high-level, nuclear waste repository was to be filed this morning.

The litigation is being filed in the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, La., on behalf of the people of the state of Texas.

Steve Frishman, director of the Governor's Office on Nuclear Waste, said late Tuesday the suit would be filed by Attorney General Jim Mattox against the DOE and U.S. Secretary of Energy Donald Hodel.

While it appeared at presstime today that an area in Deaf Smith County would be among the top three contenders for the site, Frishman said the suit is based on the state's displeasure at the manner in which both it and the location in Swisher County were identified.

"The type of filing we have made is called a petition for review," Frishman explained. "We're asking that the decision (identification of the two Panhandle sites) be reviewed by a federal court to see if it is in violation of the law."

"Naturally, we wouldn't be filing this lawsuit if we didn't feel there

Contests method of dump site selection was a violation of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act."

Also a factor in the filing of the suit is a site finalization report issued recently which indicated a shift in location of the two nine-square mile areas. Both the Panhandle sites were moved so as to exclude Richardson Seed Company in Deaf Smith and Roll-A-Cone farm implements in Swisher County.

"We have some serious questions about the technical validity of those relocations," Frishman commented. "We're also contesting the process that has been followed the past year-and-a-half in identifying those sites."

Frishman said one of the problems he sees is that in the time since the relocations, which eliminate some landowners but add others, those affected landowners have not had an opportunity to comment on the new sites. "The general public and our office have never had that opportunity either," he added.

"We've also found a number of unexplained technical inconsistencies between the draft site identification and this document (with relocated sites) that was just finalized by the secretary (Hodel)."

It is no accident that the suit was prepared just ahead of further announcements about site possibilities, Frishman said. In spite of what happens next, he pointed out, his office is simply displeased with the way the two sites were identified and wants to make that point clear.

Expected to be filed along with the suit submitted by Mattox is an identical petition listing Panhandle citizens as plaintiffs.

Tonya Klueskens of Hereford, chairman of People Opposed to Wasted Energy Repositories (POWER) said this morning that POWER and its Swisher County counterpart, STAND (Serious Texans against Nuclear Dumping) will be listed as petitioners. Individual names will be added as well, she said, including her's and landowners.

Frishman said this morning that he did not consider today's expected announcement of the DOE's top three preferred sites to be any kind of final decision and that it would not affect the wording of the lawsuit.

Study addresses Houston economy

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Economic Development Council says the state's largest city can diversify its oil-dependent economy by spinning off industries related to the Johnson Space Center, Texas Medical Center and the bellwether petrochemical industry.

The conclusion is among preliminary results of studies commissioned by the council, which is spending $6.6 million over the next two years to find out how to attract "quality growth and economic stability" to Houston.

Stewart Orton, president of the council, said at a news conference Tuesday that the panel was interested in attracting new businesses to Houston, plus convincing existing businesses that now is a good time to expand.

In addition, the panel, formed six months ago and made up of top business and civic executives in the city, wants to "help new, young business to get moving," Orton said.

The effort is aimed at diversifying Houston's oil-oriented economy so the city can better handle a shock like the one that hit in 1982 when the oil boom soured.

Texas has poor education rating

DALLAS (AP) — For the second year in a row, Texas education programs got a low rating from Education Secretary T.H. Bell, and the chairman of the State Board of Education warned that the situation won't change rapidly.

Bell, who retired from his post Tuesday, issued his second annual ranking of educational programs in the 50 states.

Texas education programs were rated 39th, up from 42nd in 1982, in the number of students graduating. In 1983, 69.4 percent graduated from high school, an increase from 68.2 percent in 1982. The national average in 1983 was 73.9 percent.

The report showed that the overall percentage of students graduating from high school and scores on college entrance exams were up in 1983.

Bell, who is stepping down to return to Utah to become an education professor, said in issuing the report in Washington that the rating provides "some evidence that we're getting the beginnings of an academic turnaround."

Bullock suggests money savers

AUSTIN (AP) — The state money crunch is on and that might mean it's time for government to throw out the paper towels and buy used cars, according to Comptroller Bob Bullock's list of penny-pinching ideas.

"In combination, the ideas contained in this report could save millions of dollars and perhaps as much as a billion dollars," Bullock said in the report released Tuesday.

The list includes suggestions worthy of review, not ideas endorsed by Bullock.

He said the state of Michigan found that hand dryers cost only 7.6 percent of the cost of paper towels. The change allowed Michigan to cut its annual drying cost from $117,000 to $9,000. Texas used 508 million paper towels last year.

Used cars also can be a bargain because they "cost less than new cars and some come with a warranty," the report said.

The biggest cost-cutter was a state employee reduction plan Bullock said could cut state spending by $78 million. The reduction would be accomplished through attrition.

Reagan to fight for buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says President Reagan is ready to "show Congress the way" toward lower deficits, but lawmakers of both parties say his three-year plan to reduce the defense buildup by $28 billion isn't enough.

"It's really not a credible performance," Sen. John Chafee of Rhode Island said Tuesday after Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger unveiled the president's decision on Pentagon spending.

Chafee, the No. 3 Republican in the Senate leadership hierarchy, called the reduction "miniscule."

House Republican Leader Bob Michel was reported by an aide to be unhappy as well. "He thinks it falls far short of what we need to reach an agreement in the House" on an overall deficit-reduction plan," said an aide, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

Reagan has tentatively approved domestic spending cuts of $34 billion for the 1986 fiscal year, and several Republicans in Congress have said it will take substantial reductions in the defense buildup to generate support for the rest of the program.

Engineer arrested for sales

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Northrop engineer who gave secret plans for the "stealth" bomber to FBI men posing as Soviet agents said their $25,000 would help him gain "top secret" clearance and lead to even more valuable information, authorities said.

Thomas Patrick Cavanagh said the documents on stealth technology for making bombers invisible to radar "were of the highest value to the U.S. government and that once they were in the hands of the Soviets, they would save them billions," the FBI said.

Cavanagh, 40, of suburban Downey was arrested Tuesday at a meeting with undercover agents at a hotel in Commerce. He is accused of attempting to deliver to the Soviets manuals, blueprints, drawings and documents on U.S. national defense.

In Washington, FBI Director William H. Webster said disclosure of the documents would have caused irreparable damage to U.S. national security.

FBI agents said Cavanagh also took a list of subcontractors from his employer, Northrop's Advanced Systems Division in Pico Rivera, 12 miles southeast of downtown Los Angeles.

International

Soviet human rights defended

LONDON (AP) — Soviet official Mikhail S. Gorbachev sternly defended the Soviet Union's human rights record, criticized unemployment in the West and told British lawmakers: "You govern your society, you leave us to govern ours."

Gorbachev, viewed as second in command at the Kremlin, made his comments Tuesday in meetings with members of Parliament. Today, the fifth day of his weeklong trip to Britain, he visits the grave of Karl Marx, the father of communism, at Highgate Cemetery in north London.

He then lunches with leaders of Britain's opposition Labor Party and afterwards meets with David Owen, leader of the Social Democratic Party, and David Steel, leader of the Liberal Party.

Gorbachev told British legislators Tuesday that Moscow is ready to cut down radically on all types of armaments if the United States and its allies agree to do likewise.

The Soviet official has won plaudits from the London Times and other papers for his affability and humor. But he reportedly bristled when pressed on Moscow's human rights record by members of the House of Commons Select Committee at a closed-door meeting.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A new spy satellite that will intercept radio, telephone and satellite transmissions will be launched into orbit over the Soviet Union during the January military mission of space shuttle Discovery, reliable sources have told The Associated Press.

The satellite is an improved version of payloads the Air Force has launched for years with expendable rockets, said the sources, who spoke only on condition they not be identified.

The earlier satellites were named Elint, for electronic intercept. The new version is called Sigint, for signal intercept, the sources report.

In addition to electronically eavesdropping on communications, the payloads are capable of collecting radio telemetry data from Soviet missile tests, the sources said.

The satellite is a military payload Discovery will carry on liftoff here on Jan. 23 under security so tight that even the countdown will be secret.

The satellite will be attached to a rocket called an Inertial Upper Stage, or IUS. The rocket is to propel the payload to a stationary orbit 22,300 miles high after the combination has been released from the cargo bay by the five-man shuttle crew.

The Associated Press learned of the secret space shuttle payload in early December from sources familiar with the mission. An effort to obtain Pentagon comment at that time led to a Defense Department request that the story be withheld on grounds that disclosure would damage U.S. national security.

The AP agreed not to use the information so long as it remained secret. The Washington Post published the story on the new satellite in its editions today.

NBC News also agreed to a Defense Department request not to report information about the shuttle's payload. Aviation Week & Space Technology had received information regarding the mission's military aspects from confidential sources on the basis it not be published.

The Defense Department on Monday announced its first classified space shuttle mission will begin after a secret countdown designed to "deny our adversaries" knowledge of information about the military cargo.

Reporters will be allowed to watch the launch, but Brig. Gen. Richard Abel, Air Force director of public affairs, said, "You won't know the specific launch time until engines ignite."

News stories that "speculate" on the secret payload will be investigated as a breach of security.

Britain, China sign pact concerning Hong Kong

PEKING (AP) — Britain and China signed today a historic agreement that will return Hong Kong to China in 1997, ending 156 years of British rule over the prosperous capitalist colony.

In the presence of top Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping, dignitaries from both countries and guests from Hong Kong, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain and Premier Zhao Ziyang of China signed the agreement in the Great Hall of the People.

Both Thatcher and Zhao praised the accord.

For China, implementation of the agreement will launch it on an experiment unique in the annals of Chinese Communism. Under a formula known as "one country, two systems," it has promised to retain Hong Kong's capitalistic lifestyle and traditional freedoms for 50 years.

The Chinese, who hailed Mrs. Thatcher for her "foresight and sagacity" in reaching the agreement, accorded her a 19-gun salute at a red-carpet state welcome this morning and promised Peking would implement the historic accord "in every respect."

From the welcoming ceremony, Mrs. Thatcher went straight to almost three hours of talks with Zhao before the signing ceremony in the afternoon. She told him the signing was a momentous occasion, the official Xinhua news agency reported.

Earlier, Mrs. Thatcher lunched with President Li Xiannian and met Deng and Communist Party General Secretary Hu Yaobang.

Under the "joint declaration" initiated in Peking on Sept. 26, Britain relinquishes sovereignty when its 99-year lease on the New Territories — the bulk of Hong Kong's land area — expires on July 1, 1997.

British-ruled since 1841, Hong Kong is the world's third largest financial center after New York and London.

Christmas not joyous time for all persons

Christmas is viewed as a joyous occasion for the majority of people, but some elements dull the spirit of the holiday season for others.

Some face Christmas with real physical needs; others have plenty of material things but are saddened by death, divorce or other mental anguish. Mrs. W is poor, divorced and trying to provide for herself and two young children. She works part-time as a kitchen helper and receives some food stamps. Some clothing and shoes for her children would help make Christmas brighter for this family.

Thanks to the Christmas Stocking Fund of Hereford, families such as these can be helped this Christmas through the sharing spirit of more fortunate families. Donations to the CSF, a non-profit local organization, are used to help needy families in the community.

Contributions can be taken to The Hereford Brand office, or mailed to CSF, Box 673, Hereford. The newspaper is handling contributions for the fund, and the Social Services office in the courthouse accepts applications for help to the less fortunate families.

The fund has increased by about $1,000 since last Friday and now totals $4,816.50. More than $7,000 was raised last year and volunteers hope the fund will reach that much this time.

proposal "is almost too much. I feel that they (instructors) feel like this is one more blow they must withstand."

Sharon Holmes, a counselor at Stanton, suggested HISD officials seek out parents' and other taxpayers' opinions through questionnaires. In asking that examination of the proposal last another year, she pointed out Stanton has two gymnasiums - La Plata has one - and boasts something La Plata does not possess: an auditorium.

Answers to questions raised prior to, on and after Tuesday would be presented in written and oral form sometime next month, Board President Bill Townsend assured. He stressed board members are only interested in doing what is best for the district's educational process.

Also placed on hold were decisions on what to do with the $1.4 million HISD has available this school year for capital improvements. Among the projects being considered are remodeling of HHS and Shirley Intermediate School, completion of air conditioning at Aikman and Northwest Primary Schools and construction of an indoor athletic practice facility.

What to do about the HHS gymnasium is another concern being debated. Many consider the high school gym inadequate for hosting varsity basketball games. John Fuston, a board member, Tuesday facetiously called it a "crackerjack" facility.

Among the possible alternatives to the gym problem is building a new one, having HHS varsity hoop contests played at La Plata (as they were a few years ago) and building La Plata a smaller gymnasium, enlarging the current HHS gym or making the proposed practice facility an adequate place for hosting basketball games.

For about the past month, HISD school board members and administrators have appeared at several local service clubs to get their members' opinions regarding capital improvement priorities.

Consolidation of the junior high schools was favored 171-54. Also strongly favored were renovation of HHS and Shirley and air conditioning of the two primary schools. The practice facility was opposed 133-97 while 98 said they opposed any new gyms, 72 wanted a new HHS gym and 54 thought La Plata should be given a new athletic facility.

Several people Tuesday questioned how much weight should be placed on comments from civic clubs. Among them was board member Jo Garcia, who pointed out that though Hereford's population is around 50 percent Hispanic, only two Mexican-American clubs have been approached about the capital improvement proposals.

Townsend asked the board's long-range planning committee to come up with firm figures and recommendations regarding the capital improvement possibilities by the January and February board meetings.

The board's vote to ban final semester tests followed impassioned pleas for such a move by three teachers. One was N.D. Kelso, social studies instructor at HHS, who pointed out around 25 percent of his class time is now taken up by mastery learning tests. Final semester exams would require more days be used for review.

"What I need is some time to teach," Kelso said. "Talk to the students and I think you'll find they're tested out."

Kelso concluded by saying, "Just do what you said you were going to do: mastery learning."

Marilyn Culppepper, chairman of the board's curriculum committee, joined Townsend as the only dissenters in a 4-2 vote against final semester tests. As a result of the decision, explained HISD Curriculum Director Leslie Paschel, semester grades will be the average of the three six-weeks grades students attain.

Meanwhile Tuesday, Superintendent Harrell Holder presented the HISD accreditation report compiled by the Texas Education Agency based on a visit here Oct. 22 and 23. Only one function reviewed was found to need prompt correction, the report claimed, and it involves safety.

According to the accreditation report, there are not enough well-marked exit signs in HISD buildings and safety precautions are lacking in high school and junior high science laboratories.

Action is being taken to resolve that and other designated "areas of concern," Dr. Holder assured the board.

A program dealing with physical, emotional and social development, commonly referred to as "sex education," is to be tried at Shirley this year, board members decided Tuesday. After turning down Fuston's amendment the program be for fifth rather than fourth graders, directors voted 4-2 in favor of its inception. Fuston and Garcia each signaled "no."

Officers Installed

New Cultural Extension Club officers were installed when the group met Friday for their Christmas luncheon. From left are Nell Pope, president; Tillie Scott, vice-president; Elizabeth Conway, secretary; Fannie Townsend, reporter; Bertha Dettmann, treasurer; Jewell Hargrave, council delegate.

Cultural meets for Christmas party

Elizabeth Coneway was hostess for the Christmas luncheon on Friday at the Cultural Extension Club.

The officers for the coming year were installed by Terri Johnson of the Westway Club. She used different colored candles to present a challenge, each candle being lit from a green one—a symbol of Hope and growth.

A purple candle was used for the president, Nell Pope, denoting justice; a maroon one for vice president, Tillie Scott, symbolizing warmth and earnestness; red for secretary, Elizabeth Coneway, meaning courage and strength; blue for treasurer, Bertha Dettmann, for constancy; yellow for reporter for gladness and joy; white for council delegate, Jewell Hargrave, as white is a mixture of all colors of the spectrum; and orange for the parliamentarian, Bertha Dettmann, for ambition.

Members and guests exchanged gifts and played games led by Carrie Mae Doak.

Special guests were Susan Raney, Mrs. Walter Porter of Carlsbad, N.M., Mrs. Howard Houck of Kansas and Mrs. Johnson.

Others present were Winnie Wiseman, Vernis Parsons, Jewell Rogers, Marie Thames, Edith Hunter, Virginia Sumner, Ruth Gandy and Mary Lou Spinhirne.

Ann Landers

It's lady's own fault

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My world has turned upside down. I am a woman in my early 40s, recently widowed, alone in an area where I know no one. Before my husband's death I suffered a series of physical complaints. My mother was aware of them. Soon after my husband died the problem was diagnosed as genital herpes. I could only have contracted this disease only from him.

I called my mother and told her I was in a state of shock. I also told her she could tell my sister-in-law but no one else. I emphasized that I did not want my nieces and nephews to know. (I gave mother permission to tell my sister-in-law because I know what it's like to have a heavy heart and no one with whom to discuss a problem.)

When I learned my sister-in-law had betrayed me and told my nephews and nieces about my disease I decided it was wrong for my own children not to know, so I told them. Now I am furious with my sister-in-law for forcing my hand. I feel the children think less of me, somehow. Am I justified in my anger?—Done In By A Big Mouth In Denver

DEAR DONE: You made your own trouble, lady—the "Big Mouth" was yours. But perhaps if you understood WHY you told your mother and gave her permission to tell your sister-in-law, you might be more rational and less angry.

I believe your rage at your husband for giving you the disease was more than you could tolerate. Telling the family was your way of getting even with him, though you may not have realized it at the time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a young woman who is obsessed with my weight. I am 5'5" and weigh 130 pounds.

In the last couple of years I have lost approximately 35 pounds. During this time I began self-induced vomiting after eating normal quantities of food. Presently, I drink diet colas and fruit juices. I eat very little and keep my intake below 300 calories a day. I am petrified at the thought of gaining an ounce. I realize this behavior is odd but I can't stop it.

My husband wants to start a family. He knows I diet, but is unaware that I am a fanatic about it. I am terrified of two things: (1) that I will gain too much weight if I become pregnant and will have a terrible time losing it, and (2) that my body is not nutritionally able to support a fetus and I would have a difficult pregnancy that would probably end in a miscarriage.

Is it safe for me to become pregnant? Can several years of poor eating habits and vomiting cause permanent damage? Is it essential that I tell my doctor of my eating problems if I become pregnant?

Please advise me, Ann, as I can't keep up this front much longer.—No Name, No City, No Country

DEAR N.N.N.: You sound as if you have both anorexia nervosa and bulimia. These are serious eating disorders which require the immediate attention of a physician and a psychological counselor. (Overeaters Anonymous can also be very useful. Look in the phone book.)

Under no condition should you become pregnant until you have established normal eating habits. If, by chance, you get pregnant, I urge you to tell your physician at once.

In answer to your question, "Can several years of poor eating habits and vomiting cause permanent damage?" Yes. In fact, it can be fatal.

Ann Landers' new booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Texas score on nutrition test

COLLEGE STATION — Texans understand there is a relationship between exercise and weight control, but are misinformed on the body's use of food and need for vitamin and mineral supplements.

These are the findings of a "Food and Fitness" quiz taken by Texans attending the state fair held during October.

Visitors to the Food and Drug building could take the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service's computerized quiz, says Dallas County Extension agent Jean Carlton. They were asked 10 true-false questions relating to nutrition and physical activity and given informative answers after each response.

The scores from 632 quizzes were tallied. "While people who took the quiz are not a representative sample of the state's population," Carlton notes.

Although the average respondent answered 62 percent of the questions correctly, several questions stumped the majority.

Almost 70 percent answered incorrectly that athletes and other people who exercise regularly have special needs for extra protein.

"Most Americans get the recommended daily allowance for protein, and don't need more simply because they exercise," says Extension Service nutritionist Marilyn Haggard. "There's a common misconception that extra protein builds muscle, when it's actually exercise that builds muscle tissue."

Slightly over 61 percent of those responding believe that high carbohydrate meals eaten three hours before exercise provide fuel for the activity. But most people don't need extra carbohydrates for exercise and may just have to work all the harder to burn the extra calories, Haggard says.

Since carbohydrates are the most quickly absorbed foods, the person who needs quick energy before exercise would be better off having a high energy snack closer to the exercise time, she adds.

Almost 50 percent of the test-takers thought that people who exercise need vitamin and mineral supplements even if they do eat right. This isn't true, Haggard says, because all necessary nutrients can be obtained from eating a balanced diet.

While these were the most missed items, the average test-taker answered 62 percent of the questions correctly, reports the nutritionist. "The message of the fitness craze has evidently gotten through to most Texans," she says, "since 90 percent answered correctly that exercise should be a part of weight loss or weight control program."

But there is still a need for greater understanding of how exercise and weight control relate to each other for maximum fitness, Haggard observes.

DAR members recall past Christmases

Los Ciboleros Chapter, NSDAR, met Dec. 13 at the home of Violet Reinauer.

Holiday refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Reinauer, Laura Blackburn, Mary Van Pelt, Rebecca Goodman and Leesa Clark.

Following refreshments, Chapter Regent Ruth Knox called the meeting to order and led the Opening Ritual. Ruth Fish led the Pledge of Allegiance; Edwina Thomas, the American's Creed and Violet Reinauer, the National Anthem.

Mrs. Knox welcomed special guests Kim Thogmartin and Rebecca Goodman. She also welcomed the children of our junior members to the Christmas meeting. These children included: Joshua, David and Sarah Elizabeth Goodman, Andrew, Stewart and Russell Carr, Grady and Elaine Van Pelt, and Mitchell and Daniel Blackburn.

Kathryn Ruga gave the National Defense Report based on an article by Samuel W. Witwer, "Risking a Constitutional Crisis."

During the business meeting, Mildred Drake, Chairman of the DAR Service For Veteran Patients, reported on the gifts the Chapter sent to the VA Gift Shop at the VA Hospital in Amarillo. The Chapter expressed a special thanks to Gladys Flood for the four beautiful afghans she donated as money-makers for the Gift Shop and the receiving blankets, pillows and scarves she donated to be gifts the Veterans can give family and loved ones. Edwina Thomas reported on the American History Essay Contest. All essays should be turned in Jan. 17, and interested DAR members are asked to meet at the Heritage Room of the Deaf Smith County Library Jan. 18 to read and judge these essays.

Margaret Bell announced that Amy Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Tindall, is the winner of the DAR Good Citizen Award for Hereford High School and Carla Frye, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Kenneth Frye, is the Dimmitt High School winner.

Violet Reinauer introduced the program which was given by Rebecca Goodman and her daughter, Sarah Elizabeth. Dressed in the costumes of the early German immigrants that came to this country, Rebecca recalled Christmas in early 1900 and "Memories Make Christmas Real." As she shared examples of dolls, toys, Christmas cards and decorations from this period, she asked members to recall their favorite Christmas experiences, toys, food, carols and even Christmas smells. She reminded us that in those early days, the Christmas tree was often the branch of a tree wrapped in cotton, strung with homemade garlands of cranberries or pop corn and decorated with figures of boys and girls cut from paper, small candles attached to the limbs and, maybe, a porcelain doll on the top of the tree. Rebecca concluded by reading "The Night Before Christmas" and "The Friendly Beast."

As members and guests sang

Christmas carols, Santa Claus dropped by and handed out gifts for the children and members.

Other members present were Margaret Ann Durham, Mildred Eliot, Nell Norvell, Mary Williamson, Kate Johnson, Lois Gilliland, Janice Carr, Ruth Newsom, Helen Rose, Sue James and Charlotte Clark.

A few of the proposals included air conditioning of schools, renovation of Shirley Elementary, Stanton Junior High and Hereford High School and establishing several media centers. Manchee and Jones gave the pros and cons of these projects and then asked the club members to fill out a questionnaire. Abundant Life

Bob Wear

WE ARE being wise when we recognize the importance of each day of time. It is about whatever we choose to make it, but this does not mean that everything is as we wish it to be; it does mean that we can make the most of this portion of our life, because this is what a day is to us.

EACH DAY can be made to count for something worthwhile, if we are fully conscious of our purpose for being, if we know who we are, what we are doing and why we are doing it, by knowing where we are, by knowing the correct direction of movement and by knowing our destiny. With all of this knowledge serving its intended purpose, we are not overcome by our problems and difficulties. We can justifiably accept the view that "today is important," and this can make all the difference.

IT IS ADMITTED that there will be some frustrated wishes, some blighted hopes and some disappointments, but these can influence us only to the extent that we permit them to do so. We must not allow such things to spoil today. We have the right and the capability to put out of our thoughts whatever may tend to spoil today. This is not done in the sense of irresponsibility, but in a very practical and wise way. It simply means that we are handling things instead of permitting things to handle us.

THE POSSIBILITY for an effective, satisfactory life during today is very real. Today is too important to be spoiled. "Today is, for all we know, the opportunity and occasion of our lives. On what we do or say today may depend the success and completeness of our entire life-struggle." C. Trumbull.

TODAY IS a portion of your life, and that makes it very important.

Some used to say that fern blossoms would find gold.

Whiteface girls lose in OT

Clovis takes No. 3 from Hereford

Soft Touch

Shelly Edwards puts up a short jumper for Hereford over Clovis' Lisa Lewis in Tuesday night's basketball game between the Whitefaces and Wildcats in Clovis. Edwards scored 16 points for Hereford. The Whitefaces took the Wildcats to overtime before bowing 63-58.

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor
CEQUIS, N.M. — For the third time in as many tries this season, the Clovis Wildcats downed the Hereford Whitefaces in high school girls basketball Tuesday night, 63-58 in overtime.

"I thought it would be Larry's turn to win this time," Clovis coach Dale Severson said, referring to Hereford's coach Sowers. "And I'll tell you what, if you'd had number 14 (Natalie Sims) you would have won."

Sowers said Sims, an all season-long starter, was ill Tuesday.

Hereford was impressive with its outside shooting for much of the night, canning 40 percent of its field-goal attempts. One of those field goals good for two came at the buzzer by substitute Kim Williams, a 19 footer to send the game into OT.

Williams attempted two field goals for the night, hitting them both.

But whereas Hereford was shooting well outside, Clovis relied on its inside game.

And the Wildcats' inside game created fouls by Hereford players and sent Clovis team members to the free-throw line 34 times.

"We made it too easy for them on the inside," Sowers said. "But we still could have won if we'd done what we had to do — like make free throws ourselves."

The Whitefaces went to the line only nine times, but sank only four of those. Hereford missed its last three attempts from the line, all front ends of 1-and-1 situations.

Clovis jumped to a 6-0 lead on its inside shooting — all its shots coming from within the eight-foot range. Hereford got back into the game and tied it at 16 at the end of the first period, relying on four field goals by Darla Alford.

Alford canned all of her shots in the first quarter, and they came from no closer than 17 feet.

"I don't care how bad you burn me, I'm not going to guard a player 28 feet away from the basket," Severson said. "The first time we played Hereford, they did the same thing, and I thought it was just luck. The second time I questioned (whether it was luck), and the third time I'm convinced (it's not luck)."

The second quarter almost was as close as the first, Clovis taking a 32-31 halftime advantage. Clovis grabbed a 29-24 lead with 2:25 left before the Whitefaces tightened the contest near the end of the half.

Shelly Edwards, who Sowers said had one of her better games in some time, hit two field goals in a row — one from about eight feet and one underneath the bucket. Edwards, who finished the night with 16 points, got another two on a turnaround jumper with six seconds remaining for the halftime score.

Hereford had two players in double figures besides Edwards. Stacie High scored 18 to lead the Whitefaces, and Alford had 12.

Any Foreman led Clovis with 19 points, going 11 for 15 from the line. Jayia Myers scored 11 and Zelma Ray 10 for Clovis.

Both teams scored 12 points in the period immediately following intermission, Clovis leading by as many as five twice. Edwards got 6 for Hereford, and Monica Devers, Stacie High and Susie Kalka added 2 apiece.

"We were hitting our shots on the inside, and Hereford was on the outside," Severson said. "You got some people in foul trouble (near the end of the game) and that hurt you."

Hereford took the lead on four occasions in the fourth quarter. But then Whitefaces started bowing out of the game with five fouls. First Alford went out at the 2:03 mark, then High at :39 and finally Lori Niblet at :11.

The game was tied at 56 at the end of regulation. However, the Whitefaces managed to score only two points in overtime on a field goal by Edwards.

Tuesday's game marked the final contest for Hereford's girls until Jan. 3. Then they will travel to Lubbock to face Coronado in a District 3-5A contest.

The Whitefaces sport an overall record of 4-7 and league mark of 3-2. Clovis now is 3-5.

CEFALO'S NEW JOB
MIAMI (AP) — Head coach Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins was mildly startled to hear that Jim Cefalo, one of his wide receivers, had signed on with WTVJ-TV in Miami as a sports reporter.

"Now I'm going to have to watch what I say at team meetings," Shula said, laughing.

Cefalo quickly set the record straight. "I won't violate any trust with the team," he said. "Besides, I'm going to be covering a whole gamut of sports, baseball, golf, boxing and others."

SWC recruiting war

Coach says Longhorns' record not harmful

By The Associated Press
University of Texas football coach Fred Akers says the Longhorns' losses in three of their last four regular-season games in the 1984 season apparently have had little effect on recruiting.
"It's going pretty well," Akers said before visiting with three junior-college recruits in Austin Tuesday. "We're getting a great reception like always."

Although several Southwest Conference schools have signed prospects, Texas has not. Schools could sign junior college players beginning last Wednesday.
The Longhorns were ranked No. 1 in the nation for two weeks before stumbling to finish at 7-3-1 and a berth in the Freedom Bowl instead of the spot saved for the SWC champion in the Cotton Bowl.

"Sometimes that's when you have your best recruiting," Akers told the Austin American-Statesman.

"It proves people can come in and play for you. Sometimes we'll go undefeated and find it tough to recruit because other schools will convince kids they can't play at Texas. But our recruiting doesn't look like it's changed."

The Horns hope to sign as many as three junior college players — probably linemen — but none before Thursday. Texas' primary needs, besides linemen — especially defensive linemen — are fast running backs and receivers.

Elsewhere around the conference, according to the American-Statesman:

Baylor has a pledge from Kelvin Johnigan, a 5-foot-11, 180-pound cornerback from Dallas Carter via Navarro JC, expected to sign today.

Rice has signed Caldwell quarterback Travis Williams, 6-4, 212, from Blinn JC and tight end Ken Major, 6-4, 245, from Edison High in Huntington Beach, Calif.

Major originally signed with Kansas but transferred to Golden West JC. Williams, who tore up a knee his senior year in high school and consequently wasn't highly recruited, completed 109 of 252 for 1,809 yards and 10 TDs and ran for 9 more TDs at Blinn.

Other commitments to the Owls include running back Cedric Parson, 5-10, 195, Dallas First Baptist Academy, and tackle Dwayne Devers, 6-1, 260, La Marque.

SMU has signed tight end Doyle Franklin, 6-4, 235, of Denton, Navarro JC, whom Texas was courting. Franklin had 12 catches for 180 yards and 4 TDs.

Texas Tech has signed guard Bo Sloan, 6-2, 255, Cypress Creek, Blinn, and has a verbal commitment from quarterback Tim Tannehill, 6-3, 195, Post, Kilgore JC. Sloan also looked at Michigan State and Auburn.

Tannehill started for Kilgore as a freshman and led it to four wins in as many starts before breaking his throwing hand in preseason last August and sitting out the year.

Houston thought it had a commitment from Luther Turner, a running back and younger brother of Cougar defensive lineman T.J. Turner, but he has gone with Sam Houston State.

Arkansas has pledges from national blue-chip running back James Rouse, 6-1, 205, Little Rock Parkview; quarterback-free safety Jimmy Simpson, 6-0, 188, Searcy, Ark.; tackle Dennis Kirkland, 6-3, 245, Cabot, Ark.; quarterback Drew May, 6-1, 195, Little Rock Catholic; and tackle Jim Mabry, 6-4, 225, Memphis (Tenn.) Briarcrest.

Rouse, one of the top three recruits in Arkansas, ran for 1,629 yards this season with 4,386 career yards and 48 TDs.

TCU has a pledge from hot-shot running back Thomas Roquemore, 6-0, 195, Rockwall.

Darryl Thomas, 6-2, 185, Victoria Stroman, Henderson JC, who is considered perhaps the top junior-college receiver in the state with 42 receptions for 739 yards and 9 TDs, has signed with Alabama after considering A&M and TCU.

Texas is wooing Kilgore JC tight end Mike Jackson, 6-3, 250, from Peoria, Ill.; but he is looking at Baylor and Indiana State, too.

Sun Bowl game just as big to quarterback

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Though he majored in business, Maryland quarterback Frank Reich has a bit of a philosopher in him.

"I believe that once you've become complacent with what you've done, you're not going to get any better," he says. "So, I'm never totally satisfied."

This season Reich could have become complacent after leading Maryland to the greatest comeback in NCAA history. But he thinks Saturday's Sun Bowl date with Tennessee is as important as any game Terrapins have played.

"It's a chance, an opportunity for the team. That's what makes it important," he said Tuesday after a two-hour workout. "We've had a good year, but we can do more."

The No. 12 Terrapins are seven-point favorites, which will be a rematch of last year's Citrus Bowl, won by the Volunteers 30-23.

For the 6-foot-4, 210-pound Reich, the Sun Bowl is a chance "to show people we can win the big games."

Maryland, 8-3 and the Atlantic Coast Conference champion, has lost its last four bowl games.

The Terps, however, did make football history this season when they came back from a 31-0 halftime deficit to beat Miami of Florida 42-40.

Reich, who received a bachelor's degree in finance this summer and currently is a graduate student, sat on the sidelines the first half of the Miami game.

He started the second half and engineered six consecutive scoring drives, completing 12 of 15 passes for 260 yards.

Reich said that when he went in, the possibility of a comeback never entered his mind.

"I just wanted to make the game respectable," he said. "And then before you know it, we just started scoring every time we touched the ball."

It was the "highlight" of his career, Reich said.

But he added, "We can't just live on that."

Against Tennessee, Reich said, the Terps hope to be able to "mix up the plays. Some teams are a little more tentative on passing, some are a little more tentative on the rush. We hope to see what they're going after and go to the other."

Maryland also is hoping to move up in the national polls.

"If we win this game, I don't think they can keep us out of the top 10. That would be a big step for us, just what we need," Reich said.

Reich passed for 1,446 yards this season and his completion percentage of nearly 64 percent was a school record.

"I'm really happy with the way things have gone," he said. "But, we still have work to do."

Tuesday's practice was the first for the Terps, who arrived in El Paso late Monday.

TEXAS FOOTBALL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They play for keeps in Texas, whether it's marbles or high school football.

Eric Dickerson, the outstanding running back for the Los Angeles Rams, recalls his frenzied high school playing days in Hooks, Texas.

"We used to get about 10,000 people just for a high school game," he said. "I remember one time we were playing another school and the coach of that team had his players tackling a goat to get ready for us."

Dickerson went on from Hooks High to become a star at Southern Methodist.

Mach

The prefix Mach is used to describe supersonic sound. It derives from Ernst Mach, a Czech-born German physicist, who contributed to the study of sound. When a plane moves at the speed of sound, it is Mach 1. When twice the speed of sound, it is Mach 2. When it is near but below the speed of sound, its speed can be designated at less than Mach 1. Example: Mach .90.

FBI agent says drifters wanted to leave ranch under an organized crime indictment in connection with Bates' death.

Attorneys for the Ellebrachts are seeking to suppress evidence, including charred bone fragments, handcuffs, chains, a cattle prod, cassette tapes of alleged torture sessions, and various weapons. The lawyers claim the evidence was illegally obtained.

Bohne said officers first visited the ranch April 5 and told the elder Ellebracht allegations had been made that people were being held there against their will.

Ellebracht agreed to let Bohne and other officers interview six workers.

"All except one returned to Kerrville with us," Bohne said. "They asked to leave with us."

The agent also said one of the workers told him a fellow employee had died at the ranch.

Bohne also told the court he seized two pairs of handcuffs from a pickup truck at the ranch that day, even though he did not have a search warrant.

The agent said he spotted

Adair waits at oil well blaze

ROUND TOP, Texas (AP) — The loud roar from an oil and gas fire continued to reverberate through this small town late Tuesday as flames burned out of control.

Earlier in the day, oilwell firefighter Paul "Red" Adair was forced to scrap his plans to extinguish the blaze because of nasty weather.

Five men were injured Monday when the blowout erupted, shooting flames 200 feet into the sky.

Five to six families in the area were forced to evacuate and state Highway 237 was closed to traffic.

Adair had planned to use water under extremely high pressure to douse the flames.

But heavy fog forced a delay in his plans Tuesday. Adair said the water could weight down the gas, forming a dangerous condensate that would stay near the ground.

Officials were not certain when the firefighters would be able to try to extinguish the fire. Late Tuesday, the fire continued to burn.

"We can still hear it, but it's not as bad as it was," said Doris Georges, who lives about two miles from the fire.

"It's a loud roaring sound like a jet taking off at an airport when you're near it," she said.

Monday shortly after the fire erupted, Mrs. Georges, whose husband works for the town's volunteer fire department, said the blowout was so powerful, it shook the house.

Angela McCaa, a spokeswoman for Cedar Hill Petroleum Co. of Bryan, said the well burst into flames about 2:30 p.m. Monday as workers attempted to replace a blow-out preventer with an assembly of pipes used on production wells.

A crane was lifting the assembly into place when the well exploded.

"The crane apparently ignited the well," said Mrs. McCaa. "The roar can be heard at a telephone booth 2½ miles away. The flames can be seen as far away as Brenham," about 15 miles from the well.

Gas had been blowing out of the well uncontrolled since Thursday.

Adair laughed at suggestions he would use explosives to blow the oxygen away from the fire.

"Those who think you can't do it with water haven't been doing it long enough," he said.

Adair said he would pump water on the fire from three points around the well at the rate of 5,000 gallons a minute. He predicted the fire would be extinguished in 40 seconds.

Four men who suffered second- and third-degree burns over 20 to 30 percent of their bodies during the explosion were in stable condition Tuesday at Hermann Hospital in Houston, a hospital spokesman said.

None of the victims had inhalation burns, the spokesman said.

Flora Collier, a dispatcher for the hospital's helicopter ambulance service, identified the injured as Gary Vaughan, 34; Joe Bowden Jr., 25; Joe Bowden Sr., 54; and James Rollison, 40, all of Houston.

A fifth man, 38-year-old Jimmy Chapman of Cedar Creek, was in stable condition at Austin's Brackenridge Hospital.

Bertha Marshall, a spokeswoman for the well operator, Cedar Hill Petroleum Co., of Bryan, said Tuesday that firefighters were planning to use explosives.

Energas claims firm overpriced natural gas

AMARILLO, Texas — Energas Company (OTC) announced today that it has filed a complaint with the Railroad Commission of Texas against Cabot Corporation and its newly acquired transmission operation, Westar Transmission Company.

In the complaint filed today, Energas alleges that Cabot and Westar may have transferred certain utility property and gas supply contracts from Westar to a non-utility affiliate and that Cabot and Westar have failed or refused to provide information required to substantiate the accuracy and appropriateness of the October gas bill issued to Energas.

Also alleged in the Energas complaint is that the utility has reason to believe that higher priced gas purchased from affiliated producers or suppliers of Cabot or Westar was delivered to the utility company instead of lower priced gas supplies that may have been available. If that did occur, utility customers were burdened with unnecessary costs.

Charles K. Vaughan, chairman and chief executive officer of Energas, said the company "considers the complaint to be a most serious matter, particularly at this time because of the larger winter volumes now being used by gas customers at a cost for which we have been unable to get a satisfactory explanation from Cabot and Westar representatives.

"If the concerns of Energas are verified by the Railroad Commission, we are confident that the Commission will order a refund from Cabot for any excess charges resulting from their actions, and will establish a proper mechanism for future billings by Cabot. Any refunds received by Energas will be passed on to our customers," said Vaughan.

The current pricing mechanism was established in 1979 by the Railroad Commission when Energas and Westar were one company under the former name of Pioneer Natural Gas Company. Since that time, the predecessor company was split to form the Westar Transmission Company and Energas Company. Energas Company was separated from the parent Pioneer Corporation in October of 1983 and became an independent publicly held company. Just two and a half months ago, Pioneer sold Westar to Cabot.

Because all former affiliated relationships have changed and all company ownerships have hanged Vaughan said he felt it was in the best interest of Energas and the company's customers to have the Railroad Commission investigate prior charges by Cabot on the West Texas system and establish a proper pricing mechanism for the future.

"At the time we became an independent company some 13 months ago, the new Energas management pledged its best business effort to provide adequate supplies, efficient service and a reasonable and accountable gas cost to Energas customers," said Vaughan.

"Energas is absolutely committed as a business and as a utility to conduct our operations in that manner for our customers, employees and shareholders. Because of the current and regrettable situation, Energas management felt it necessary to take this action to clarify our future business procedures and regulatory requirements."

The gas costs paid by Energas to Westar are passed on to some 210,000 gas customers in 63 incorporated communities and other rural areas on Energas' West Texas System. Also affected, but to a lesser degree, are over 59,000 customers on the utility's Amarillo system where Energas uses gas from Westar to supplement its other major supply for that city.

"We are unable at this time to determine any specific level of refund or price reduction that may be appropriate," said Vaughan. "As the detail required to make such a determination becomes available, we will present our evidence to the Railroad Commission and request that appropriate action be taken."

Border economy on mend

AUSTIN (AP) — Business on the Texas-Mexico border has improved so much that the "worst could be over" for that region, says a state research analyst.

"The border economy is looking up for the first time in almost three years as shoppers from Mexico return to Texas stores and businesses," Tom Pollard of the state comptroller's office said.

Pollard said border cities were booming when the "bottom fell out" as a result of the Mexican government initiating spending cuts and devaluing the peso in February 1982.

Writing in the December issue of Fiscal Notes, which is published by the comptroller's office, Pollard said the region from El Paso to Brownsville was hit harder than any other part of Texas by peso devaluations, the 1983 Christmas freeze, and recent drought and floods.

Employment in the border region declined by 6.5 percent from a peak of 434,000 in early 1982 to a low of 405,000 in mid-1983, but since that time, employment has grown at an average annual rate of 2.5 percent, Pollard said.

The region's unemployment rate fell from 17.2 percent in March 1983 to 13.4 percent in August 1984.

Border department store sales for the first half of this year were running 25 percent ahead of the same period in 1983 — the largest increase by far among the state's economic regions and almost twice the growth rate posted for the state as a whole,

Pollard said. Sales tax collections were up 18.8 percent in El Paso, 21.8 percent in Laredo and 18.2 percent in McAllen. Motor vehicle sales tax collections for the first six months of 1984 jumped 38 percent in Laredo, 22 percent in El Paso, 18 percent in Brownsville and 17 percent in McAllen.

Economic recovery along the border "depends on Mexico's economic stability," which has "improved substantially," Pollard said.

He said non-petroleum exports have risen by 55 percent, Banco Nacional de Mexico projects a trade surplus of $14 billion for 1984, foreign currency reserves are up from 1981, and inflation has been cut from an annual rate of 83 percent to 55 percent.

According to Banco Nacional de Mexico, Pollard said, 215,000 workers will be employed by the end of the year in "twin plants," an arrangement by which components of a product are collected on the United States side of the border and moved to the Mexican side for assembly and back to the United States for distribution.

"Expansion of the work force on the Mexican side of the border means an increase in potential customers for businesses on the Texas side," said Pollard, but he added, "All this good news must be tempered with caution."

Also, he said, "Even though business conditions are looking better, the region still is 19,000 jobs short of its 1982 peak in employment."
