City, school, hospital elections Saturday

Polls open at 7 a.m.

Saturday is local election day in Hereford, with voters choosing representatives to the city commission, school board, and hospital district board. All elections are to be held at the Community Center, with polls open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

All eligible voters in the city and hospital district elections will have an opportunity to cast ballots, but the school trustee election will only be open to eligible voters in single-member districts 1 and 3.

With many parents and teachers unhappy with curriculum changes in the schools, more voter interest has been reflected in the school board races. However, there will be fewer eligible voters in the races because of the single-member district boundaries.

In HISD voting district 1, the candidates are Steve Coneway, Sammy Gonzales and Margaret Marshall. In district 3, the candidates are Mary Parker and Bud Patterson. A map showing the districts was published recently in The Brand. These boundaries are different from county commission lines, and election judges may have a busy time checking for eligible voters Saturday.

Incumbent Mayor Wes Fisher is running unopposed in the city election. Businessman Robert Rhoton is challenging Joe Reinauer Jr. for the Place 1 commission seat, while Tom LeGate and Mark Kelley are vying for the Place 3 seat. Eligible city voters may cast ballots for all places in the at-large election.

The top three vote-getters from a field of five candidates will win the hospital board seats. Candidates in the at-large election are Dr. Charles Allison, Dr. H.A. Cavness, Dr. Gerald G. Payne, Charles Threewit, and David Workman. Allison and Payne are incumbents.

Although a good voter turnout is anticipated by local officials, it probably won't match last year's numbers. A county wet-dry election was held at the same time last year and drew a record number of voters.

Absentee voting totals showed 102 for the city election and 136 for the hospital district. The unofficial counts for the school election were 122 in District 3 and 30 in District 1. The Brand could not verify the figures this morning with the school absentee judge.

These figures were comparable to last year, which were the largest absentee vote totals recorded. The city election drew 1,605 voters last year; the hospital district counted 1,597, and the school election drew 2,587 voters. In last year's election, the school had one at-large position on the ballots. The total should be much lower this year.

Candidate Forum

Incumbent city commissioner Joe Reinauer Jr., at right, responds to a question Thursday night at a candidate forum sponsored by the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce. Reinauer was joined by Tom LeGate on the city candidate panel. School board candidates Mary Parker, Bud Patterson, Margaret Marshall and Steve Coneway were present for questions concerning that race. Candidates in both races stressed open communications as important to their if-elected posts.

Compromise hits popular programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and Senate Republican leaders are trying to sell a skeptical Congress an ambitious deficit-reduction plan that would restrict Social Security increases, slow the military buildup and eliminate a host of domestic spending programs.

Under a compromise reached Thursday by top White House aides and senior GOP senators after nearly two weeks of private bargaining, federal spending would be slashed $52 billion next year and nearly $300 billion over the next three years by freezing, cutting or eliminating many popular programs.

Among the major changes: —The automatic cost-of-living adjustment for the nation's 36 million Social Security beneficiaries would be suspended for three years and replaced with a 2 percent annual increase. If inflation is above 4 percent, the beneficiaries would get the 2 percent, plus an automatic adjustment for inflation above 4 percent.

—All federal retirement programs — civil service, military, railroad retirement — would come under the formula applied to Social Security.

—The Pentagon would get a 3 percent annual increase after inflation next year instead of the 5.9 percent the president originally wanted.

Nonetheless, the military spending authority next year would be $304 billion.

—Amtrak, general revenue sharing, the Small Business Administration, the Job Corps, postal subsidies, various grants to local governments and other programs would be eliminated or phased out.

—A freeze on Medicare payments to doctors and hospitals and higher costs for patients.

All of that would still leave projected budget deficits of $175 billion next year, $145 billion in 1987 and $99.7 billion in 1988, compared to well over $230 billion a year without action.

White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan hailed the package as "the most ambitious budget reduction plan in postwar history."

He added, "The president is committed to this package, and he intends to fight for passage in both houses."

Budget Director David A. Stockman, noting the hard work is just beginning, said, "This is going to be the most difficult imaginable proposition to pass in the (GOP-controlled) Senate."

Civilian unemployment steady in March

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment held steady in March at 7.3 percent, the government said today, as the creation of 430,000 new jobs just accommodated the number of Americans entering the labor force in search of work.

About 8.4 million people were jobless while the number at work set yet another record at 107.1 million, the Labor Department reported.

As has been the case in recent months, the bulk of the job gains were in service industries.

One of the biggest gains, according to a separate job survey, came in retail trade, which logged 80,000 new jobs last month. Manufacturing employment, on the other hand, has shown no growth since August.

Commenting on the new report, Janet L. Norwood, the commissioner of labor statistics, noted in congressional testimony that adult women — traditionally a heavy percentage of service workers — benefited more than any other single group from the new jobs.

Indeed, she said that adult women have taken more than half the jobs created in the last 12 months.

Civilian joblessness has been moving in the narrow range of 7.1 percent to 7.5 percent for nearly a year — since last May. Analysts predict civilian unemployment will drop to 7 percent, or even dip slightly lower, this summer, then edge upward.

The rate, which hit a post-Depression peak of 10.7 percent in November 1982, dropped to 7.2 percent in June, then headed upward before falling to 7.1 percent in November, the low point since the 1961-82 recession.

When unemployment reached that post-Depression peak, some 11.9 million Americans were out of work.

In the 28 months of recovery through March, the number of jobless people has been cut by 3.5 million and the jobless rate has declined 3.4 percentage points.

The department also reported today that 1.3 million people were counted as "discouraged workers" in the first three months of the year. Discouraged workers are people who say that they want to work but have not sought a job in at least a month because they thought the search was fruitless. Such people are not counted in the labor force and do not play a part in the unemployment rate calculation.

The number of discouraged workers has fallen just 100,000 in the last year.

Among specific groups, today's report showed these unemployment rates for March:

—Adult men, 6.2 percent, down from 6.3 percent.

—Adult women, 6.7 percent, unchanged.

—Teen-agers, 18.2 percent, down from 18.4 percent.

—Whites, 6.2 percent, unchanged.

—Blacks, 15.2 percent, down from 16.3 percent.

—Hispanics, 10.2 percent, up from 9.7 percent.

Texas National Guardsmen imitating Nicaraguan invasion of Honduras

SAN BERNARDO, Honduras (AP) — U.S. tanks roared through an arid plain near the Nicaraguan border as Texas National Guardsmen simulated an armored attack by leftist Sandinista troops.

"We are going to act like the Nicaraguans, if they had a plan to invade Honduras," says Capt. Ron McMurry, 37, of Jasper, Texas, who commands the 15 tanks and armored personnel carriers operating four miles (6.4 km) from the border.

"The maneuvers will simulate Nicaraguan tanks using Russian tactics against Honduran forces."

The troops were practicing Wednesday their upcoming role as the aggressor force in the joint military maneuvers with the Honduran armed forces, scheduled to begin next Wednesday, said McMurry, who is a physician in his hometown.

The Honduran troops will try to repel the simulated invasion by concentrating anti-armored weapons against the tanks as they try to cross tank traps gouged into this plain, dubbed the "Choluteca Gap," McMurry said.

The 20-mile (32 km) gap is the only place along the 375-mile (600 km) mountainous Honduran-Nicaraguan border where tanks can travel, said McMurry, who was a combat officer in Vietnam.

"This area is very easy to defend," McMurry said. "It is excellent tank country, but it is also excellent anti-tank country. If we can teach the Hondurans how to defend the Choluteca Gap, all the Russian tanks (in Nicaragua) will be for naught. ... This area is so easily defended that the Russians could have 1,000 tanks in Nicaragua, and all they would do is rust."

Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government has Soviet-made T-54 and T-55 tanks in its inventory and most of its military hardware comes from the Eastern Bloc. The Reagan administration, which supports anti-Sandinista troops based in southern Honduras, calls Nicaragua a threat to Central American peace.

The 419 guard troops participating in the maneuvers, part of the Big Pine III exercises, brought with them 17 M-60 tanks, 17 armored personnel carriers, and five captured Soviet armored vehicles.

All the armored vehicles will be returned to the United States when the maneuvers are completed April 15, U.S. Army officials say.

"When we leave, the only tanks in Central America will be in Nicaragua," McMurry said.

The M-60 tanks and armored personnel carriers under McMurry's command Wednesday practiced Soviet tank tactics, using a straight-line frontal assault, rather than the wedge line preferred by the Americans.

A few cows and burros fled in fear as the tanks roared across the dry, dusty cow pasture. During one run, the armored column had to stop as a herd of cattle, driven by a man on horseback and a boy, streamed past. Honduran children and adults watched curiously, and gathered around the troops as they took breaks during the day's practice.

At one point, McMurry surveyed (See GUARD, Page 2A)

On Good Friday

Pilgrims retrace Jesus' route

JERUSALEM (AP) — Christian pilgrims from around the world, some bearing wooden crosses, today retraced the route tradition says Jesus took through the narrow streets of Old Jerusalem to Calvary in a Good Friday procession.

At the Vatican, Pope John Paul II donned a priest's black mantle, slipped into a booth inside St. Peter's Basilica and heard 13 worshippers' confessions at the start of a day of mourning to mark Jesus' crucifixion.

Meanwhile, Israelis cleaned their homes of bread and other leavened foods as they prepared to celebrate the Jewish Passover commemorating the Exodus of the Israelites from slavery under the Egyptian Pharaohs.

The holiday begins at sundown today with a traditional feast known as the Seder and continues for a week.

The start of Passover this year coincides with Good Friday, and tens of thousands of Jewish and Christian visitors have arrived in the Holy Land in the past few days.

Led by Franciscan priests, several thousand pilgrims marched from St. Anne's Church at the start of Jerusalem's Via Dolorosa to the Church of the Holy Sepulcher. The Crusader-built church encompasses both the Hill of Calvary where tradition says Jesus was crucified and the tomb where his body was placed.

The narrow alleys through which the crowds passed have been venerated since the Middle Ages as the route taken by Jesus after he was condemned to die.

"You can just picture the crowds when Jesus was going along," said the Rev. Michael Arms, a Roman Catholic priest from Mendota, Minn. "It's good to have the crowds here. It adds to the reality of it."

Church bells tolled, mingling with Moslem calls to prayer from nearby mosques. Out of view of most pilgrims were Israeli border police, watching the procession from the rooftops.

Jerusalem's old walled city was jammed with pilgrims as they stopped to recite prayers at the 14 stations of the cross along the Via Dolorosa.

The stations mark specific events chronicled in the Bible or in early Christian tradition, including the three places where Jesus is said to have fallen under the weight of the cross he had to carry to his place of execution.

The last five stations are in the Church of the Holy Sepulcher. There, many pilgrims knelt to kiss the stone of unction. Tradition says that this is the stone where Jesus' body was placed and covered with a shroud after it was removed from the cross.

TDA plans to survey businesses on repository

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Agriculture plans to survey businesses in Deaf Smith and Swisher counties this month to determine how a proposed, high-level nuclear waste dump would affect the local economy.

The counties have been tentatively identified by the U.S. Department of Energy as possible sites for the nuclear dump.

Nearly 400 businesses from the two Panhandle counties will be contacted beginning April 9, the agriculture department announced Thursday.

"This isn't just another poll to see whether folks are for the repository or against it. We're documenting the basic facts about what's going on in Panhandle businesses right now and about how purchasing and sales patterns, employment and investments could change if a nuclear repository moves in," said Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

Lawyers say warrant invalid

SWEETWATER, Texas (AP) — Lawyers for a city councilman charged with "wholesale promotion of obscenity" tried to convince a state district judge that a large number of purportedly pornographic items seized from the man's business cannot be used against him because a search warrant was invalid.

District Judge Weldon Kirk said after Thursday's pre-trial hearing that he would take the motion under advisement and rule on it at a later date.

Foam Craft, Inc., a business owned by city councilman Frankie SoRelle, was raided last Sept. 10 after an informant showed Nolan County Sheriff Jim Blackley a sexually suggestive statue that supposedly had been manufactured at SoRelle's business.

The raid resulted in the confiscation of 122 statues, some devices, molds, movies, a hospital bed, lighting stands, a videocassette recorder, and videotapes, authorities said.

SoRelle, an often outspoken councilman elected in April 1984 on the Concerned Citizens for Better Government ticket, was later indicted for "the wholesale promotion of obscenity and the promotion of obscenity."

Defense attorney Ed Paynter said the evidence against SoRelle was obtained through a search warrant that failed to specify the precise obscene materials to be searched for.

The blanket description of "pornographic material" on the search warrant should void the warrant and any search, Paynter said.

Despite strenuous defense objections, District Attorney Norman Arnett was allowed to call Blackley to the stand to describe the circumstances that led to the sheriff's request for a search warrant.

The sheriff, in describing the statue that was brought to him, said it was about eight inches tall and depicted a nude man with his oversized genitals "in an erect state."

Tornadoes ripped into southeast Michigan and baseball-sized hail smacked southwest Missouri as heavy thunderstorms — some packing gusts up to 75 mph — raked the Midwest today, overturning house trailers and downing power lines.

A twister overturned a house trailer in Romeo, Mich., about 25 miles north of Detroit late Thursday and another ripped the roofs off several houses in the Detroit suburb of Roseville, the National Weather Service said. Lightning hit a fuel line in Oakland County, setting a fire that gutted a bowling alley, officials said.

Showers and thunderstorms reached from northern Indiana to southeast Missouri and across northwest Arkansas and southeast Oklahoma this morning, the weather service said.

In Macomb Township, Mich., winds gusting to 70 mph splintered a 5,000-pound travel trailer parked next to Kathleen Bell's home.

"It was like watching the Wizard of Oz," Mrs. Bell said. "I saw it fly past the window and crash in the yard, about 75 feet away. My husband was in the trailer not 10 minutes before it hit. Now it's in 50,000 billion pieces."

Two patrons of a restaurant in Roseville, Mich., were treated for minor cuts after the winds blew out a window, police Lt. Joseph Johnson said.

In Fraser, winds that knocked down a wall at the Tireman tire shop felt "like some 500-pound guy was squeezing us," said employee Jeff Schmitz.

In southwest Missouri, the baseball-sized hail socked Springfield and Webb City, east of Joplin, and half-dollar-sized hail pelted Mount Vernon and Sarcoxie. Large hail was also reported in Baxter Springs, Kan., and the Oklahoma communities of Foyil and Choctaw. Springfield received nearly an inch of rain in six hours this morning.

Winds in Washburn, Mo., downed power lines and trees and overturned a house trailer and some sheds, the weather service said.

A thunderstorm-powered wind gust clocked at 75 mph in Pontiac, Mich., felled trees and power lines. In Oklahoma, winds over 70 mph were clocked in Muskogee and Oklahoma City.

Downed power lines set fire to a store in Muskogee, police said. Several trees were blown across cars and homes, and some parts of the city were left without power. The highway patrol reported mobile homes, houses and stores were damaged by high winds in Rogers County. No injuries were reported.

Travelers' advisories for snow were posted in parts of northern Michigan and the mountains of Colorado, and stockmen's advisories for scattered snow continued in the western Dakotas.

Rain and snowshowers lingered in the northern Rockies today, with scattered showers New York state across south-central New England. Four inches of wet snow fell overnight in Stowe, Vt.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 19 degrees at Yellowstone, Wyo., to 76 at Homestead Air Force Base, Fla.

Clinic Ground Breaking

A ground breaking for the Community Medical Clinic to be built at 801 E. Fourth was held this week by the Hereford Hustlers. Dr. Tim Revell, owner, said the clinic should be completed by the middle of June and be open by late summer. The 40x60 foot building. Revell said he plans for the clinic to have equipment and personnel to provide some medical needs not available to Hereford now. The building will be constructed by Vannoy Paschall, a former Hereford resident, who is with Master Craft Builders in Guymon, Okla.

Charges dropped against father

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Kidnapping charges have been dismissed for the father of a 4-year-old leukemia patient who was taken from a hospital against doctors' orders.

The charges were filed last October against Michael Landreaneux of Marshall, Texas, after his son, Brett, was taken from St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

Robert Friedman, Landreaneux's lawyer, said the boy was taken from St. Jude because his parents wanted him treated at another hospital.

At the time, doctors said the boy needed immediate medical attention, and kidnapping charges were filed after the Shelby County Juvenile Court took legal custody of the child.

The charges were dropped Thursday because at the time of the incident, the boy's parents had no idea they no longer had legal custody of their son, Friedman said.

"They were never advised that anyone other than themselves had custody of the child," Friedman said.

Cancer victim caps cross country run

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jeff Keith, who ran across the United States on an artificial leg, walked into the Oval Office and received the American Cancer Society's Courage Award from President Reagan.

"You can't get much better than being at the White House," said Keith after the White House ceremony Thursday. "I couldn't believe how much he knew. He remembered what I did at Boston College. He remembered where I placed in the triathlon."

Keith, 22, of Fairfield, Conn., started his 3,200-mile run at Faneuil Hall in Boston last spring and ended it on Feb. 18 in Los Angeles.

The run took him through 17 states and the District of Columbia. He ran about 16 miles a day and went through 36 pairs of running shoes and five artificial legs.

Keith's cancer was found in 1974 after he experienced pain in his right knee following an ice hockey game. His leg was amputated after a biopsy revealed bone cancer.

Prior to that, he had been a varsity lacrosse player at Boston College, where he graduated in May 1984. It was then that he began his cross-country run.

In addition to that effort, which raised money for the cancer society, Keith skis, bicycles and swims.

In 1983, he was the only amputee to compete against 500 others in a triathlon, an event that includes swimming, running and biking.

Dotson begins savoring freedom

COUNTRY CLUB HILLS, Ill. (AP) — Gary Dotson is "home and he's happy" today after spending his first night out of the prison where he served six years before the woman who accused him of rape testified she made up the story.

Dotson's "whole face lit up" when he walked into his family's suburban Chicago home and saw about 25 friends and relatives waiting to celebrate, said his brother, John. "I missed him and I love him and I'm glad he's back."

Dotson, 28, walked out of Joliet Correctional Center on Thursday into the arms of his mother, Barbara, and his sister, Debbie.

"He's home and he's happy," Debbie said after they arrived home.

"Gary Dotson is innocent and loved and welcomed back home to Country Club Hills by his family and friends," said a sign on the door of the green, one-story, brick-and-frame house.

Dotson was released on $100,000 bond Thursday after a dramatic hearing in which Cathleen Crowell Webb, who accused him of rape and aggravated kidnapping, said she had lied in 1977, when she was 16, because she thought she was pregnant.

For Passover holiday

Israelis give away bread

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israelis cleaned their homes of bread and other leavened foods today as they prepared to celebrate the Jewish Passover holiday commemorating the exodus of the Hebrews from slavery under the Egyptian Pharaohs.

The holiday begins at sundown with a traditional feast known as the Seder, and continues for a week.

Passover marks the flight of Jews from ancient Egypt. The name derives from the account in the Book of Exodus, which tells how God "passed over" the homes of the Israelites when meting out the 10 plagues to their Egyptian masters.

This year, Israelis are drawing a parallel between their ancestors' flight from Egypt and the recent airlift that brought thousands of Ethiopian Jews to Israel. Thousands of immigrants who escaped famine-stricken Ethiopia will celebrate Passover at centers where they have been learning Hebrew and adjusting to their new surroundings.

The Passover rituals practiced in Israel are alien to the Ethiopian Jews, who were isolated for centuries from the mainstream of Jewish life.

The Ethiopian Jews adhered to the fundamentalist teachings of the Bible and slaughtered lambs for Passover, a rite no longer practiced by most Jews. Instead of sterilizing or switching dishes for the holiday, as in modern Jewish homes, the Ethiopians would break their clay dishes and make new ones.

"I have no words to express my heart," said Danni Biadibilin, an immigrant interviewed on Israel Radio as he was practicing a recitation for Passover. "This is a very exalted feeling to be in the Holy Land for the Seder."

Most Israelis don't eat bread over the Passover holiday, commemorating the Israelites, who fled Egypt so hurriedly that they had no time to leaven yeast for bread and had to eat a wafer-like cracker called matzoh, which they baked under the desert sun.

In keeping with tradition, Israel's leavened products were symbolically "sold" to a Moslem lawyer living in Jerusalem with the exchange of IOUs between the lawyer, Ahmed Mugarbi, and Israel's two chief rabbis. They will be returned at the end of the Passover holiday.

the plain from his armored personnel carrier, with the volcanic mountains of Nicaragua in the distance.

"One day there will be a great armored battle here," he said.

Asked to elaborate on his statement, McMurry said, "Hopefully it won't be us," adding the anti-tank maneuvers would lessen the possibility of such a battle taking place.

Back at the Texans' temporary base camp, called "The Alamo," located about three miles from the border, Staff Sgt. Gene Stevens of Austin, Texas, surveyed the machine gun nests dug in behind coils of razor-sharp concertina wire.

"We're looking for maximum safety," Stevens said. "After dark, we have soldiers with night vision glasses scanning the area constantly. It would be hard to approach us. At night this place is surrounded by (our) tanks and armored personnel carriers."

COMPROMISE

even begun worrying about how to pass such a package in the Democrat-controlled House.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the Budget Committee chairman, said the agreement was "tough medicine for a tough time."

Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., has scheduled action on the package by the full Senate later this month. Dole began his sales pitch Thursday saying that "overall, the package represents a balanced and reasonable approach to deficit reduction."

The only response from Senate

Asked under what circumstances American troops would use their weapons, Simmons said, "The bottom line is, if you're getting shot at, we're told to withdraw if at all possible. But if you've got to save your life, then you've got to save your life. But if you have someone in the wire saying, 'GI go home,' you don't pop a round off at him."

About 5,500 Honduran troops will participate in the Big Pine III exercises, which also will include a counter-insurgency exercise in the jungles of northern Honduras, U.S. officials say.

Also in April, U.S. troops will conduct a mock amphibious invasion and air assault along the northern Honduran coast, in an exercise called "Universal Trek," officials said.

Both Big Pine III and Universal Trek, in which 8,000 American troops are to participate, are expected to be completed in early May, officials said.

Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia was a one-sentence written statement: "I am glad that Sen. Dole appears to agree with me that the priorities in this budget should be debated openly and Democrats look forward to joining that public debate."

The compromise was achieved after the president moderated his demand for deep domestic spending cuts and some Republicans moderated their insistence that the president sharply slow his Pentagon buildup.

Blast rocks Baghdad

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — A powerful blast, the eighth in 23 days, rocked the Iraqi capital today shortly after Iran threatened to fire a missile at the city.

A huge plume of dark gray smoke could be seen billowing from the densely populated center of Baghdad moments after the blast. A foreign resident who lives nearby described the explosion as "very fierce."

"The house was shaking for a few seconds and I stumbled while rushing to the balcony to find out what was happening," said the foreigner, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

The explosion occurred after Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaker of the Iranian Parliament, was quoted as warning of a missile attack on Baghdad in retaliation for Iraqi strikes on Iranian cities the previous day.

Rafsanjani's comments were carried by Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency and monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus.

Ann Landers More straight parents needed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you print one more letter about parents who refuse to give in?

I was on the receiving end of "super straight" parents. Only two words come to mind as I recall those days when I thought I was being persecuted: THANK YOU

Thank you for the courage, the strength, the determination and the love you demonstrated by insisting that I live up to your standards. Even though I fought you every inch of the way, you never gave an inch. I hated you then but I realize now how wise you were.

At 23, when someone says, "You are so much like your mother," I feel very proud of myself. As one who was constantly testing the boundaries, looking for soft spots and ways to escape the tough rules and regulations, I am ever so grateful you kept a tight rein on me. I see now that I needed your strength to develop my own.—A FUTURE S.S.P.

DEAR FUTURE: I know of nothing this world needs more than super straight parents. May their tribe increase.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a registered nurse and recent hysterectomy patient, I feel an answer given by one of your experts needs clarification.

He stated that normal sexual intercourse and response is possible after a hysterectomy, except where there was a malignancy. That reply was not totally correct. It depends on where the cancer was and the extent of the surgery.

My hysterectomy was done because of ovarian cancer. Both ovaries were removed as well as the uterus and cervix. As long as the vagina is left intact, there is no medical reason why there cannot be intercourse and orgasm. My surgical procedure has made no difference in sexual pleasure for either myself or my husband.

So many people who read your column have no understanding of basic anatomy and physiology. It would be a shame if even one female felt that she was "less of a woman" or worse yet, unable to enjoy sex to the full because of that answer.

Please check with your experts again and give a more complete reply.—AN ANN WATCHER IN PEORIA

DEAR WATCHER: Your information is correct. Thank you for watching.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please share this with all future home buyers. I wish someone had warned us.

We recently bought a home. When we moved in, we found so many things wrong we were angry at the way we had been tricked. But it was our fault for not checking things out before we signed on the dotted line. For example: If there's a water softener, take a sample of the water and have it tested to make sure you are getting soft water. If appliances are included, make sure they work. Put the dishwasher through a cycle. Make certain the furnace is operating as it should. No matter how new the washer and dryer they "threw in" look, try them out.

We discovered in a hurry that real estate people are interested in one thing: selling. After the closing, you are strictly on your own.—WISER IN SHEBOYGAN

DEAR BOY: Your letter may be the biggest money-saver of a lifetime for some of my readers. Thanks for writing it.

Health Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D. Exercise helps

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 32 and was diagnosed two years ago as having the female variant of spondylitis. I have been on 750 mg. of Naprosyn a day. I have read about the effects of Naprosyn over a long period of time, which include renal problems later. On my own I have reduced my dose to 500 mg. a day with no obvious discomfort.

Does Naprosyn simply prevent inflammation or hide the progressive and inevitable burrs on the spine? I feel that if the bone growth is going to increase with or without drugs, then I should take the smallest bearable dosage to minimize the side effects later. I am supplementing my diet with vitamins and minerals.

I'm very athletic and do some weight lifting. I weigh 126 and don't plan to ever become too sedentary.

DEAR READER — I am glad that you have had your diagnosis established this early in your life, since that will provide the maximum opportunity to minimize the damage from the disease. It is also good that you are physically active. You need to maintain muscle strength. However, you should see a physical therapist for a program that includes exercises for stretching and flexibility. One of the problems that results from spondylitis is that one loses flexibility and the spine may become as stiff as a poker.

The cause of spondylitis is not known. It is sometimes confused with rheumatoid arthritis. I have discussed the disease in The Health Letter, Special Report 10, Rheumatoid Arthritis and Ankylosing Spondylitis, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York NY 10019.

You should limit your medicine to the smallest amount needed to prevent pain. Naprosyn and similar medicines combat the inflammation and provide comfort, but there is no evidence they really delay or stop the disease. Many physicians prefer to prescribe Indocin, when the patient tolerates it, and there is some indication that Butazolidin may delay the rate of fusion of the vertebrae.

DEAR DR. LAMB — When I take medicine it is like opening Pandora's box. Antibiotics are especially troublesome. They trigger an imbalance between bacteria and yeast, causing painful diarrhea and vaginal yeast infections. The only help seems to be to eat yogurt. It takes about two years for me to restore the balance after taking antibiotics. I plan to visit relatives in a Third World country where yogurt is not available. Is there something I can take to replace the yogurt?

DEAR READER — You cannot eradicate a yeast infection of the vagina by treating yeast in the intestines. This is why vaginal suppositories usually are prescribed for this condition.

Antibiotics will eliminate the natural bacterial flora in the colon in some patients, which can lead to a troublesome overgrowth of yeast in the colon. Yogurt can be helpful in these cases, as can medicines that eliminate yeast from the digestive tract.

Legion auxiliary elects delegates

Melissa Sims and Emria Gonzales were chosen as Girl State delegates when the American Legion Auxiliary met Tuesday evening in the American Legion Hall.

Daphne Rosson was chosen as alternate delegate. Girl State is an Americanism program sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary Department of Texas. The girls are assigned to a political party and the government is studied from the precinct level to the presidency. Each girl is encouraged to run for an office. The Bluebonnet Girl State is held in Seguin, June 11-21. They will be flown from Amarillo on Tuesday June 11 and return on June 21.

Following the election of delegates, a business session was held with President Gene Holden presiding. Reports were heard from the hospital, poppy, community service and membership committees. The group will serve a dinner to the state service officers, who will be in Hereford Tuesday at 7 p.m.

The following members were selected to be delegates to the one day convention held in Vega Legion Hall on Saturday, April 13, beginning at 9 p.m. Betty Jo Carlson, Troyce Hanna, Clara Trowbridge, Pet Ott and Beverly Jesko. Delegates were Ruth King, Lela Kemerer, Edwina Thomas, Willie Vinton, and Gene Holden.

Edwina Thomas read an invitation from the Los Ciboleros chapter of D.A.R. inviting the group to a tea honoring Pet Ott, recipient of the D.A.R. medal of honor, April 28 at 3 p.m. in the Community Center. The American Legion met with the Auxiliary for refreshments following the meeting.

The first power dishwasher was completed in 1889.

Local Church News

ST. JOHN'S BAPTIST

An Easter Sunrise Service is planned for Sunday beginning at 6:15 a.m. with the Rev. C.W. Allen, pastor, presenting the sermon.

This service will be the only service of the day for the church. All members of the community are welcome to attend.

ST. ANTHONY'S CHURCH

Holy Week services began at St. Anthony's Catholic Church on Palm Sunday.

Palms were blessed and distributed to the faithful in the school auditorium preceding the morning Mass. The congregation then went in procession to the Church. The Passion of our Lord according to Matthew was read during the Liturgy of the Word.

Holy Thursday is the Feast of the Institution of the Eucharist. The liturgy of the Lord's Supper will commence at 7:30 p.m. after which there will be prayer and adoration before the Blessed Sacrament until midnight.

The liturgy for Good Friday will begin at 3 p.m. Christ's passion and death according to St. John will be read, followed by Veneration of the Holy Cross and Holy Communion. There is no real presence of the Lord in the Church on Good Friday. Until the Easter Vigil, Christians experience something of the great void felt by the apostles after the death of the Lord. Stations of the Cross are to be at 7:30 p.m.

Holy Saturday, the Vigil of the Resurrection, will be celebrated at 8 p.m. in commemoration of Christ's victory over sin and death. No other Mass is as significant as this Easter Mass, for it is the solemn anniversary celebration from Christ's death to new life - for the redemption of the world. Six members of the catechumenate will be received into the Catholic Church and will receive the sacraments of Confirmation and the Eucharist.

The texts of the Easter Sunday celebration show how the Lord's resurrection is a fact with meaning for us here and now; as members of the risen Christ we have access to a new life - the very life of God.

Christ's glorious resurrection from the tomb will be celebrated on Easter Sunday at the 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. masses.

WESTWAY BAPTIST CHURCH

The Westway Baptist Church announces its annual spring revival scheduled to begin Monday and conclude April 14. Featured speaker is Johnny Timms from Tipton, Ok.

Paul and Christy Newberry, evangelistic singers from Floydada, will provide the music leadership.

Monday through Friday from 12 noon until 1 p.m. luncheon meetings designed for those on a limited lunch break are scheduled.

The evening services begin at 7:30 p.m. and the series of services will conclude Sunday evening.

FIRST CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

Michael W. Smith and Kathy Troccoli will appear together in concert in Amarillo Thursday. Tickets are available at the Christian Bookstores for $9.50 or at the church for $8.75.

There are currently 75 tickets at the church office.

There will be an Easter Egg Hunt for all children at the church on Saturday at 2 p.m. Each child is requested to bring 10 candy eggs or five real eggs.

The public is invited to hear the Speer Family in concert at the church Saturday, April 27.

Military Muster

Herbert DeLaRosa of Hereford was recently promoted from second lieutenant to first lieutenant in the medical service corp.

He is stationed in Amarillo with the HHC second battalion 142 infantry.

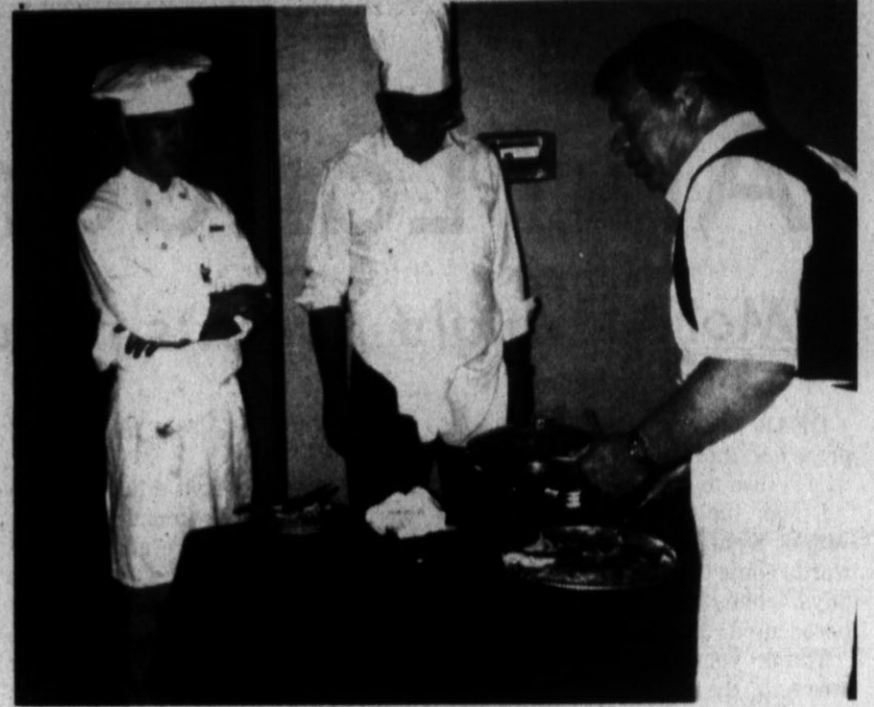

Some mail service officials are just grownup kids who never got over playing post office.

Special Needs track meet

Participants undaunted

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

The participants didn't seem to notice the 35-mile-per-hour winds which sometimes gusted to 55.

Nor did they seem to notice the 100 or so sets of eyes watching them compete Thursday at Whiteface Stadium.

They, 62 clients of area Satellite Centers, seemed concerned only with the finish line, or the hoop, or the line to beat.

Satellite Centers — special work-training centers for mentally and physically handicapped people — from Hereford, Tulia, Borger, Amarillo, Perryton and Wellington, and the Borger Middle School brought residents to compete in the annual Hereford Invitational Special Needs track meet. Participants aged 14 to 51 took part in a softball throw, standing long jump and Frisbee throw as well as 50-, 100- and 200-meter dashes, and relays.

The event, now in its third year, is a major-emphasis project for the Hereford Kiwanis Club.

"This is probably our most successful year," said Gene Brock, a member of the local Kiwanis Club and chairman of the event. "We have more participants this year in terms of clients and Satellites."

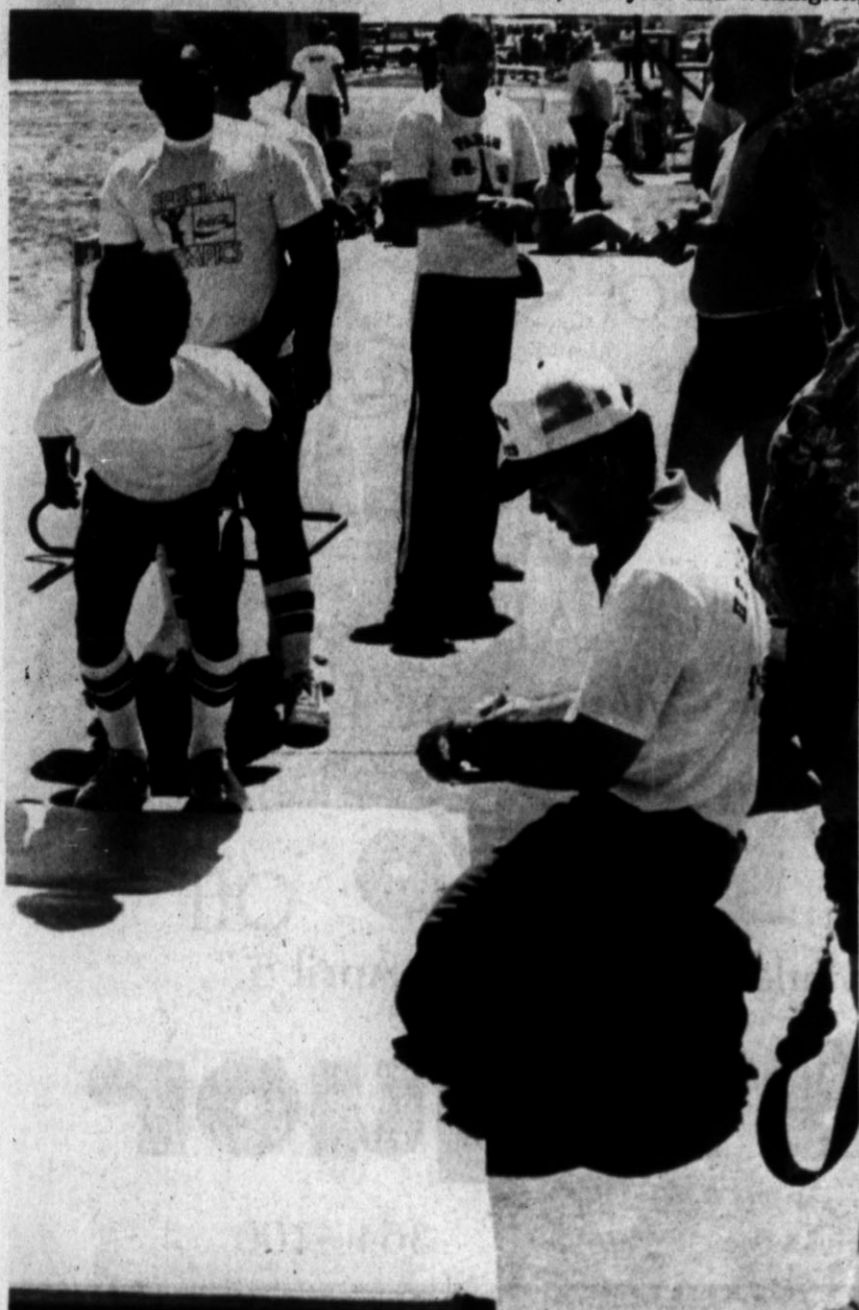

The Hereford Invitational is a practice meet for the regional contest in Canyon, to be held April 20. A state special needs track meet is set May 19 in Austin.

Brock said the spring track meets constitute the majority of athletic competition for the clients. The Satellite Centers also had a bowling competition in the fall, he added.

There were no losers Thursday — at least a person couldn't tell if there were any by looking on the faces of the runners.

"Everyone gets a ribbon, and that just thrills them to death," Brock said, explaining that winners' ribbons were awarded to the first three places in each heat of a race plus participant ribbons to the other competitors. "It gives them a chance to compete for some recognition."

The track meet is not a fund-raiser for Kiwanians. And the only expense they absorb is the cost of ribbons.

Getting Set

Travis Johnson, a resident of the Hereford Satellite Center, sets himself at the line of the standing long jump. Johnson and his teammates (some of them behind him) took part in Thursday's Hereford Invitational Special Needs track meet at Whiteface Stadium.

In Texas Relays tonight

Nation's top sprinters to run

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Roy Martin, the Dallas schoolboy star of last year's Texas Relays, is back again but he could have company in the spotlight of the 58th annual Texas Relays in tonight's 100 meter dash.

Martin and two more of the nation's top high school sprinters, as ranked by Track and Field News Magazine, will be competing.

Martin of Dallas Roosevelt, Joe DeLoach of Bay City, and Henry Thomas of Hawthorne (California) High School are ranked in the top three in the 100 meter dash in 1984 with Thomas drawing the No. 1 ranking.

Thomas, last year's California state champion in the 100 and 200, has already run a 10.3 manually timed in the 100 and a 9.2 manual, wind-aided this year.

Martin, the Texas Class 5A 100 meters champion, was selected the outstanding male performer at last year's Texas Relays when he won the 100 meters and anchored Roosevelt to victories in the 400 and 1600 meter relays.

This year he has run a 10.02 wind-aided, automatic timed 100.

Last year DeLoach won the State 4A 100 meters and won the 100 at the Pan American Junior Championship. He's recorded a 10.22 in the 100 this spring.

All three will anchor their team's 400-meter relays and all three have been excellent this spring.

Martin and Thomas could meet again in the 1600 meter relay. Thomas ran a 46.8 anchor leg as Hawthorne was timed in 3:12.5 earlier this year.

Martin has anchored Roosevelt to the 1600 meter relay title in the last three Texas Relays. Roosevelt has run a 3:12.28 this year. Martin also was an alternate on the U.S. Olympic team.

The high school 100 meters will be held tonight. The high school 400 and 1600 meter relay will be Saturday evening.

Preliminaries were set for this morning in numerous collegiate running events and such field events as the long jump and high jump.

Olympian Kirk Batiste, the United States' silver medalist in the 200, will be in the 100 meter dash in the University Division.

Texas Christian's world class 400 relay team has a time of 39.10 this spring.

More than 2,200 athletes representing 202 schools will compete in the Relays which actually began Wednesday with the decathlon. There are 55 events.

Susan Shurr of Texas, who anchored the Lady Longhorns to a 400-meter victory and ran a leg on the winning 1600 meter relay is also back.

Among the medal winners from the Olympics will be Nawal El Moutawakil of Iowa State and Morocco who won the gold medal in the women's 100 meter hurdles in an Olympic record 54.61.

Mike Conley of Arkansas, who won the silver medal in the triple jump, will compete on the Razorback relay teams but will not perform his specialty.

The Jerry Thompson Mile is expected to be one of the better races and features Baylor-ex Todd Harbour, the collegiate mile record holder at 3:50.34.

Long-shot atop leaders in Greensboro golf

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — It's a new experience for Jeff Sluman.

"Everything felt pretty good. I got into a rhythm. I felt like I was going to play pretty good all day.

"But leading the tournament? Yes, I'm surprised," Sluman said after his no-bogey, 6-under-par 66 had staked him to a one-shot advantage Thursday in the first round of the $400,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

Sluman, now 27, joined the PGA Tour in 1983. "I thought I'd give it a shot," he said. "I didn't want to be 35 and say 'what if'."

The 5-foot-7, 135-pounder failed to meet the minimum performance standards that season, took his game on the Asian circuit last season and rejoined the American Tour this year. He ranks a distant 148th on the money-winning list, has a career-high finish of 25th and is leading a Tour event for the first time.

The turn-around in his fortunes, he said, is the result of some help he received on the practice tee earlier this week from fellow pro Bob Tway. "I had the ball too far away, my stance was too open," Sluman said.

Sandy Lyle, a long-hitting Scot who needs only to qualify for the final two rounds of this event to secure his full playing rights on the U.S. Tour, was the first man off the tee and completed his 67 before winds kicked up and hampered play the rest of the day.

Dan Pohl, Bobby Clampett and Joey Sindelar had 68s, 4-under-par on the 6,857-yard Forest Oaks Country Club course. Lanny Wadkins, a two-time winner already this season, and Roger Maltbie were next at 69.

Ben Crenshaw, who will defend his title in the Masters at Augusta, Ga., next week, shot 75 in the afternoon gusts. U.S. Open titleholder Fuzzy Zoeller matched par 72. Andy Bean, the defending Greensboro champion, struggled to a 74.

For unconditional release

Rangers put Mickey Rivers on waivers

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The "Save O' Gozlehead" campaign didn't work.

In a move that had been widely speculated, the Texas Rangers put popular Mickey Rivers on waivers Thursday to give him an unconditional release, the American League club announced.

That created a post on the roster for rookie outfielder Tommy Dunbar.

"It isn't a popular choice; we were very cognizant of the fan interest in Mickey and his popularity with teammates," Rangers manager Doug Rader said.

"But we can't get too maudlin about it, because the more we eulogize Mickey, the less credit we give to Tommy Dunbar," he said. "It was the consensus that to take our best 25, Tommy had to be on the team."

Rivers, 36, disagreed and agreed.

"I ain't hurt or sad. It's their loss, not mine," he said. "It's going to hurt Buddy (Bell) and Larry (Parrish) and Steiny (Bill Stein) and Tolly (Wayne Tolleson) and all of them. I don't know why they did it, but why couldn't they have done it earlier? Ah, it ain't bad."

The clubhouse was silent Thursday without Rivers, who added "head" to nicknames he attached to everyone he knew and later ended up with the handle "O' Gozlehead" for himself.

"The one reason why — and don't misconstrue this — that Mickey was so special to this club is that our team was so bad, he took our minds off what was going on out there," Rader said.

Rivers hit .300 in a part-time role for the Rangers in 1984 and has a guaranteed contract that will pay him $450,000 for 1985. If he clears waivers, he will become a free agent Wednesday and be eligible to sign with any club at the major league minimum. Texas would be obligated to pick up the rest of his salary.

The Rangers opted to keep outfielder Dunbar, the 1984 American Association batting champion (.337) who is hitting .378 this spring, instead of Rivers.

Rivers, who played for New York Yankees championship teams in 1977 and 1978, is a lifetime .295 hitter in the big leagues. He was hitting .259 this spring.

In other moves Thursday, the Rangers traded catcher Donnie Scott to Seattle for catcher Orlando Mercado, traded minor league catcher Kevin Buckley to Cleveland for a player to be named later, and signed 30-year-old journeyman catcher Glenn Brummer to an Oklahoma City (Triple A) contract.

Scott was outrighted to Calgary of the Pacific Coast League and Mercado was outrighted to Oklahoma City.

The moves trimmed the Ranger roster to 27. The club is expected to cut two pitchers Friday to get down to the 25-player limit for the season opener Monday in Baltimore.

Writer examines league difficulties

USFL's problems numerous

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Two weeks ago, it was the NCAA regional basketball finals. Last weekend, it was the Final Four. On Sunday, most of the world celebrates Easter. Next week, we'll have the Masters golf tournament and the baseball season will be under way.

Still ahead, there are Mother's Day, Memorial Day, Father's Day and the Fourth of July, all traditional spring and summertime diversions.

Does anybody remember springtime football and the United States Football League?

Besides all of the competition from the calendar, the USFL has other problems. It is busy practicing frantic CPR on its Los Angeles franchise. There is the struggling gate at Denver. Bouncing paychecks created by an Internal Revenue Service lien in San Antonio caused a brief crisis there. And there always seems to be an occasionally recalcitrant owner like Tampa Bay's John Bassett, who must be disciplined.

Other than that, everything's just fine.

On top of all this is the basic fact of television life — that viewing audiences go down as the weather improves, particularly on Sunday afternoons. That is not a good condition for a springtime league trying to establish itself as a viable entity with the networks.

"It creates a situation where ratings are declining as we get closer to the playoffs," Commissioner Harry Usher said. "It should be the opposite. In my opinion, there's something fundamentally wrong with a league that declines in interest as you get closer to the climax of the season."

What's wrong, the USFL has decided, is, quite simply, the season. So in 1986, it will switch to the fall, when the only competition will come from the establishment National Football League.

"If we are able to get a network agreement in the fall, in due course the value to advertisers and consumers will evolve to what it should be and the league can sustain," Usher said. "I can't give any piece of evidence that says it will be a sure-fire winner. I am very optimistic, though."

That optimism cannot come from two sets of current numbers — attendance and ratings. Through six weeks, the league is averaging crowds of 26,749 per game, down a hefty 9.5 percent from last year's six-week figure of 29,581. Through five weeks, the TV ratings were 5.7 for the year, down from 7.3 a year ago.

What's more, except for cable agreements, there is no network contract for USFL fall football. That, the league argues, is due to the three networks' contractual and historic ties to the NFL. Hence, the USFL's $1.32 billion antitrust lawsuit, an action that doesn't promise to be resolved any time soon.

And what of the fans? Will they follow the USFL into the fall?

"I don't know if spring fans will be fall fans," Usher said. "But I don't know if continuity is an important issue. I think there are lots of football fans in the fall, tons of them, lots more than in the spring, and enough of them to sustain two leagues. Now, people don't have a choice. Given a choice, I think they'll exercise that choice.

"I don't think attendance is a problem, if the criteria is averaging 25,000. I don't view that as particularly good. It's OK, not great. I don't see the problem as putting people in the seats."

Rather, the problem is putting people in front of TV sets. That's simply easier to do in the fall and winter than it is in spring and summer.

And, at this stage, "simple" certainly appeals more to the league than that came in from the cold and found more problems than solutions there.

Next week may come before Hogs find coach

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Athletic Director Frank Broyles of Arkansas says it may be this weekend or later before a new head basketball coach is named for the Razorbacks.

"It may not be done until Saturday," Broyles said Thursday after he had interviewed three coaches for the job.

Broyles said Wednesday he had three names of possible successors to Eddie Sutton, who resigned to take the head coach's job at Kentucky. That list of names seemed to grow and shrink throughout the day Thursday as Broyles interviewed three coaches: Bob Donewald of Illinois State, Nolan Richardson of Tulsa and J.D. Barnett of Virginia Commonwealth.

Broyles said he would make more phone calls and interview more candidates. "Within the next 24 hours, two or three more will come in here. Or I may have to go out there," Broyles said.

Wednesday night, Broyles slipped Donewald past a television camera crew at the Fayetteville airport. He interviewed him Thursday morning, and Donewald then flew home.

Barnett was interviewed during the early afternoon, and Richardson had a late-afternoon talk with Broyles.

Other names continued to surface throughout the day including that of Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski, who guided the team to a 23-8 record and a berth in the NCAA tournament this year.

"We've got some names you wouldn't believe, who have let it be known in a roundabout way that they are interested," associate athletic director Lon Ferrell said. "We'll get a great coach. No doubt about it."

The Arkansas Democrat reported that rumors had television sports commentator Al McGuire as a candidate. "I think some reports have Dean Smith coming here," Broyles said, laughing. Smith is the head basketball coach at North Carolina.

Donewald, 41, was an assistant under Indiana Coach Bobby Knight from 1974 through 1978. In seven years at Illinois State, he has compiled a 143-64 record, including 22-8 this year. Prior to that, the Redbirds were 23-8 and 24-7. They have been to the NCAA tournament each of the past three years.

Richardson, 43, went to Tulsa in 1980 and has compiled a five-year record of 119-37. His .763 winning percentage is the fourth best among college coaches in their first five years in Division I. He is the first black head coach at Tulsa and took the Golden Hurricane to the NCAA last two years. Tulsa this year won the school's first outright basketball championship in 50 years.

Richardson won the national junior college championship at Western Texas Junior College with a 37-0 record. In 1980, Tulsa won the NIT, making Richardson the first coach to win the NIT or NCAA in his first year in Division I.

A spokesman at Fayetteville said Barnett sought his interview. Virginia Commonwealth officials would not confirm that Barnett sought the job. "I don't know if that's true or not," Mike Ballweg, Virginia Commonwealth's sports information director, said.

She gave a review of the plans for the Sesquicentennial being made in her home town of Dimmitt and offered some suggestions for the celebration for Hereford.

She told of the plans being made for a Wagon Train to begin at Sulphur Springs with approximately 1000 wagons. The trail is to go southwest through San Antonio, to El Paso and through Dimmitt May 14 and Hereford May 15. This is in celebration of the 150th birthday of Texas.

Those attending were Teresa Hale, Opal Elliston, Pet Ott, Emily Suggs, Lola Jewell, Aileen Montgomery, Bea Hutson, Lydia Hopson, Jennie B. Terrell, Lucille Hughes, Della Stagner, Eva Gilliland and guest Dorothy Hopson.

Carter book on Mideast draws mixed reviews

An AP News Analysis
By BARRY SCHWEID AP
Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — To put it diplomatically, Jimmy Carter's latest book, "The Blood of Abraham: Insights into the Middle East," has drawn mixed reviews. So, probably, will the advice he offers.

But as the president who engineered the Camp David accords, paving the way to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, Carter comes to the subject with credentials. When he criticizes President Reagan for showing "little interest in diplomacy" to resolve regional disputes, Carter is arguing for his own busy method. The 1979 treaty shows it can pay off.

"Contrary to the policies of his Democratic and Republican predecessors, he has tended to prefer the threat or use of American military force instead of negotiation," Carter says of his successor.

It would be in error, of course, to suggest Reagan has ignored the Arab-Israeli conflict and diplomacy as a way of resolving it. Carter does not make that claim. In fact, he compliments Reagan for his proposal for a settlement based on Palestinian control over the West Bank, linked to Jordan.

The trouble, in Carter's view, is that after launching the trial balloon, which was shot down immediately by Israel, the president did not fight hard for acceptance of the plan, the Camp David formula, or some similar approach to negotiations.

Carter faults Reagan both on substance and on procedure.

He considers Reagan too easy with Israel — not insisting, for instance, on a halt to all future settlement activity on the West Bank. He thinks it was wrong to form a strategic alliance with Israel. And he thinks Reagan or Secretary of State George Shultz should take personal charge of the effort to set up negotiations.

"The best first step," Carter writes, "might be for the U.S. secretary of state to explore the options unofficially among the disputing powers to ascertain as broad a base of potential agreement as possible."

Carter apparently would include the Palestine Liberation Organization, despite its record of terrorist attacks on Israeli officials and civilians.

Reagan and Shultz tried to sidestep Israel's rejection of the 1982 peace plan, which has softened since Shimon Peres succeeded Menachem Begin as prime minister. Instead, the administration hoped King Hussein of Jordan and Arafat could agree on a mixed negotiating delegation. If they did, it would be hard for Israel to boycott talks.

Hussein and Arafat disappointed the United States. Eventually, they may get together. But until the Arabs decide to talk directly with Israel, the administration intends to limit its diplomatic role.

Hussein and Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak want the United States to meet with a Jordanian-Palestinian delegation. Carter thinks it's a good idea to hold such "exploratory talks."

But, so far, the Reagan administration is standing firm — or aloof, depending on how you look at it. It is counting on the Arabs to provide their own initiative.

Key suspect in agent's killing captured after shootout

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Police officers acting on information from U.S. officials located a key suspect in the slaying of a American drug agent and captured him after a brief shootout outside San Jose, authorities said.

Costa Rican agents found Rafael Caro Quintero, who is reported to be a major figure in Mexico's leading drug syndicate, and captured him on an estate close to San Jose's international airport Thursday, Security Minister Benjamin Piza said.

"There was a very brief shootout, then he gave up," Piza said. No was wounded. Piza said Costa Rican authorities acted on a tip from the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

Police also took into custody four other men and a 17-year-old Mexican girl who said she had been kidnapped, Piza said.

Mexican officials later identified the girl as Sara Cosio, daughter of a Mexican political official, and said she was reported kidnapped last month in Guadalajara.

Piza said the arresting officers recovered pistols, an automatic rifle and $150,000 worth of travelers checks at the estate.

Mexican authorities claim Caro Quintero is a major drug trafficker in Guadalajara, Mexico, and say he had vowed many times to kill Enrique Camarena Salazar, a drug agent who was kidnapped near the U.S. consulate in that city on Feb. 7.

Camarena's badly beaten body, wrapped in a plastic bag, was found on a ranch 60 miles southeast of Guadalajara on March 5, along with the body of a Mexican pilot who worked for Camarena and was abducted separately.

John Gavin, U.S. ambassador to Mexico, has called Caro Quintero "one of the intellectual authors" of Camarena's slaying.

No charges have been filed against Caro Quintero in connection with the agent's killing.

Costa Rican agents began to stake out the estate Wednesday night, Piza said. Early Thursday, about 40 civil guardsmen surrounded the property and demanded that Caro Quintero surrender.

In Washington, John Lawn, acting DEA administrator, said U.S. agents "were in the vicinity at the arrest. They were not physically present at the arrest site."

A spokesman for the Mexican Attorney General's Office said steps were taken to extradite Caro Quintero for questioning. But Piza said Costa Rica could return him without formal extradition proceedings because he entered the country illegally.

Francisco Fonseca of the Mexican Attorney General's Office said Caro Quintero presumably entered Costa Rica illegally in a private airplane with five other people.

Caro Quintero was last seen in February at the Guadalajara airport, where he embraced a ranking police officer and then boarded a private plane.

Mexican authorities later arrested a pilot and co-pilot on charges of violating transportation laws in helping Caro Quintero escape.

A U.S. Embassy source in San Jose, speaking on condition he not be identified, said Caro Quintero had been in Costa Rica since March 17. Lawn said information developed by the DEA led to Caro Quintero's capture.

"Based upon this information, they located a hacienda, surveilled the hacienda, and then during the early hours this morning, effected the arrest of Caro Quintero and several other individuals," Lawn said.

Gavin said in a statement after the arrest: "The United States government welcomes this development and views it as a significant step forward in the government of Mexico's effort to stamp out drug trafficking in Mexico."

Attorney General Edwin Meese III

said in Washington that officials would have to review the case to decide whether to seek Caro Quintero's extradition to the United States.

On Wednesday, the Mexican Attorney General's Office announced the arrests of two Guadalajara brothers it described as associates of Caro Quintero.

It said Eduardo and Javier Cordero Stauffer, both businessmen, were charged with criminal association and drug-related charges.

The Attorney General's Office accused them of participating "in various illicit actions in company of the known drug traffickers Rafael Caro Quintero and Ernesto Fonseca, among others."

Production down on dairy items

WASHINGTON (AP) — The production of butter and other dairy items continues to run below year-earlier levels, reflecting a cutback in milk output the past year.

According to Agriculture Department figures released Thursday, butter production in February was about 108 million pounds, down 5 percent from a year ago.

Production of American-type cheese was 202 million pounds, down 9 percent from a year ago. The output of non-fat dry milk, at 91.1 million pounds, was down 13 percent.

Milk production declined in 1984 for the first time in six years. However, USDA economists say 1985 production could begin rising again.

Wife of MIA still fighting pain after 17 years

By CATHY FRISINGER Irving Daily News

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Joella Wester chooses her words very carefully.

For she is a woman of strong faith who is stalwart in her conviction in the ultimate wisdom of the Supreme Being. She believes in accepting and going on.

Yet, at the same time, she wants to be honest. And the truth is there are some small feelings of resentment, of a life gone to waste.

Mrs. Wester is the wife of an MIA. Her husband, Maj. Albert D. Wester, was shot down while conducting a rescue mission in Vietnam in October 1968.

Wester arrived in the war-torn country just a few months before the fatal incident. He was assigned to pilot one of the Jolly Green Giant helicopters. The motto of the pilots was: That others might live. Wester's helicopter was shot down while he was on a mission to rescue Green Berets stranded on a hill on the Laotian border.

Last summer Mrs. Wester was notified by the Air Force that her husband and other MIAs were to be honored. She flew to Washington D.C. in July for ceremonies on the White House grounds, and in February Congressman Martin Frost presented a bronze medal to her son, Jay Wester, in recognition of his father's heroism and sacrifice.

Mrs. Wester is pleased at the recognition for her husband, but receiving the medal has been a bit-tersweet pleasure, for it has forced her to recall painful times.

Mrs. Wester is a large, commanding woman. Wearing a bright red business suit with her head held high, she looks as if she squared off with the obstacles life presented her and won the fight.

She has worked as a real estate agent for the Red Carpet Nita Miller agency for five years, and taught business courses at area junior colleges before turning to real estate.

Church and family are important to her.

Her 20-year-old son, who is a student at Texas Tech, is her pride, her life.

Her co-worker Edith Ryan describes her as "a very congenial person to work with...She's very conscientious on her job."

Mrs. Wester's life has changed a great deal since she learned of her husband's death 17 years ago.

The first months were very hard, Mrs. Wester said. She had moved to Irving shortly before the tragedy.

"I doubted it (her husband's death) at the beginning. You always knew they made a lot of mistakes...So even though they told me, I hoped they were wrong."

Without support from her family, church and friends it would have been even more difficult. Friends organized a flyover, an Air Force tradition honoring those killed in service. They also did something that helped Mrs. Wester rebuild her life: They tracked down the co-pilot who flew with her husband the day of the crash.

She talked to the co-pilot four months after the crash.

"He saw...the explosion. He (Wester) was burned in the plane. It kind of finalized it that he was dead."

"After I was talking to Sam about this, I just felt like I had to put the pieces back together."

Wester remained on the MIA list because his body was never recovered.

Mrs. Wester said the early years were devoted to her son, Jay, who was 4 at the time of the crash.

"He cried a lot at first. He felt he could go back to Hawaii where he had seen his dad in August and see him again."

She enrolled Jay in a Montessori school right after the accident, and when he was old enough, entered him in a variety of sports activities because of the opportunity it would give him for male role models.

She's proud of her son's accomplishments; he was a National Honor Society student, she says.

Though she was very busy those early years caring for a hurting child, building new financial and personal supports, there were many moments when anger crept in.

"At first I felt that most people didn't care what was going on in Vietnam."

She feels it was a war that the politicians wouldn't let the military win.

"When they stopped the bombing in the North, that's when so many were killed. If they had allowed the bombing, they wouldn't have lost so many."

And she wonders what purpose the deaths served.

"If it would have been that we would not have had any more trouble with the Communists, that would have been one thing..."

Then she worries that her words might carry more resentment than she wishes to express. After all, it's been 16 years. She's built a successful career, and is leading a fruitful life.

"I'm not bitter about it, because I know in my heart my husband was a very fine Christian, and if he was meant to live he would have lived through this."

Her minister, the Rev. Bo Baker, describes her as "attentive to not only being present in church, but also to the message the church serves."

She is, of course, very pleased with the medal her son received on his father's behalf.

Yet, it is an unofficial testimonial received 16 years ago that brought tears to her eyes as she talked.

"I received so many letters from men that were with him to reassure me that if anyone was ready to go meet the Saviour he was. I cry still about the letters. They were so from the heart."

She remembers several of the letters containing the verse, "For no greater love hath a man than to give his life for a friend."

Ethiopian food delays concern U.S. officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ethiopian government is using trucks to resettle people rather than to deliver food to starving citizens, causing huge grain backlogs at warehouses, U.S. officials say.

"How can we not be concerned?" said Hunter Farnham, an Agency for International Development official assigned to a special interagency Africa task force.

Reagan administration officials said Thursday that AID workers in the field have confirmed published reports that up to 56,000 tons of emergency food is backlogged at the port of Assab. The food has been piling up for about six weeks, they said.

The grain buildup comes at a time when more than 7 million Ethiopians are facing starvation. Hundreds of thousands of hungry people have arrived at government-run feeding centers around the country.

U.S. officials believe a major snag is that the Addis Ababa government is using its available trucks to move people as part of a controversial resettlement project, instead of delivering grain to feeding centers.

"The main problem seems to be the unwillingness of the Ethiopian government to provide trucks to get more food from the warehouses to the food distribution centers," said Brian Kline, deputy director of AID's East Africa division.

"They're moving people instead of food," he said.

Additionally, the Marxist-run Ethiopian government has encountered difficulty keeping its trucks running because of broken and worn-out parts, U.S. officials said. About 40 percent of the vehicles are out of commission at any one time, they said.

Although trucks may be stalled, Kline said the Ethiopians "to the best of our knowledge have the trucks."

Girma Amare, the charge d'affaires at Ethiopia's embassy here, denied there was any misuse of trucks. "The government is doing the best it can," he said, adding there is a shortage of trucks.

The resettlement project, which has been repeatedly criticized by the United States, involves relocating Ethiopians living in the north, the site of a civil war, to the south, which is under control of the central government.

The backlog issue has been raised with Ethiopia's government, along with Red Cross officials and United Nations officials coordinating relief grain shipments, American officials said. U.N. officials are trying to take steps to ensure emergency food is hauled to the needy, they said.

Meanwhile, President Reagan is expected soon to receive on his desk for signature legislation approving about $800 million in emergency aid for Africa.

The measure passed Congress earlier this week, and Vice President George Bush, in his capacity as Senate president, ceremoniously signed it Thursday.

Bush, who recently visited Africa, praised private organizations and lawmakers for acting over the last several months to alleviate hunger. "The message is we've got to keep hope alive," he said.

Youth Conservation applications due

Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) jobs will be available this summer at Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge near Umbarger. Applications will be accepted through April 15, with the eight-week program to run from June 10 through Aug. 2.

According to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, no prior work experience is required. Boys and girls 15 through 18 years of age who are permanent residents of the United States are eligible. Employment is without regard to social, economic, racial or ethnic background, and handicapped youth who can effectively participate in most YCC activities are welcome to apply.

According to Johnny Beall, a Fish and Wildlife employee at Buffalo lake, the work will include building and tearing down fences, pouring concrete, building picnic tables and trimming trees.

"It will be labor intensive," Beall said. "We want the kids to understand that before they apply."

The YCC program is to help youth develop an understanding and appreciation of the nation's environment and heritage. Jobs pay minimum wage, $3.35 per hour for a 40-hour week.

Application forms may be obtained from the Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge, P.O. Box 228, Umbarger, Tx. 79091, telephone (806) 499-3382 or from area high schools.

Applications must be received by April 15, and 18 names will be selected in a random drawing at 4 p.m. on April 19.

All applicants are invited to be present at the drawing, and must have a Social Security number by the first day of work.

Deaf coed builds confidence on drill team

By ELLEN HAGGERTY
Richardson Daily News

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — Laura Anderson went to her first high school pep rally and decided that day she wanted to be on the J.J. Pearce High School Pacesetters drill team. Five months of private and class dancing lessons later, she was confident in herself. "I had confidence in myself. I knew I could make it," she said. "It wasn't really hard."

But Laura's efforts, carried by an unfailing determination to conquer a handicap of deafness, had only just begun.

The year has been a struggle for the 16-year-old junior who can sometimes hear the music but counts time when she cannot, who depends on step-by-step instruction from her lieutenant to learn the dances and who feels "like I make the most mistakes."

She has the basic skills, with a left kick that she admits is better than her right kick. But learning the dances in a short amount of time has become her greatest challenge.

"I can't tell when she (the captain) goes on, so sometimes I make the same mistake twice," she said.

When she slipped, she would get nervous and sometimes ruin the routine, she said.

Of the seven tryouts for performances at football games last fall, Laura made one.

"The one game I made, none of my deaf friends got to see me perform," she said.

Deaf education instructor Debi Lewis said Laura often spoke of her frustration on the Pacesetters.

"In some ways she has to understand (the girls) are also frustrated with her because they are not sure how to help her overcome her mistakes," Mrs. Lewis said.

Other deaf students have been successful on the team in the past, and several in the school participate in sports and other activities.

"We have tried not to force her, not to pressure her," Mrs. Lewis said. "She doesn't have to prove to anyone that she has to stay on."

Laura's mother, Harriet, agreed.

"It has been a very frustrating year for her. She has tried very hard," Mrs. Anderson said. "That's one thing — her determination is something else, in everything."

Born deaf, her daughter was on the North Junior High gymnastics team for one year and is now manager of the Pearce gymnastics team.

Laura also has a one-night-a-week job in the junior department at Joske's, Mrs. Anderson said.

"I was really proud of her. It's worked out so nicely," she said.

Laura makes no pretense that she was pushed into drill team. In fact, she said she plans to try out again for next year.

"I want to show people that I really can do it," she said. "It shows other deaf people can do it, so they just don't sit back and say they can't do it."

Laura was inspired mid-year by another deaf girl in a small Texas school district who was the only deaf person in all 12 grades and who made drill team her senior year.

"She says she does exactly the same things as I do. She counts and gets help from the captain," she said.

Laura read in a newspaper that the girl was crowned homecoming queen at her school, and she looked her up when she came to Dallas for a conference.

"She kept me from getting discouraged. I was feeling really down at the time," Laura said.

The staff and students at Pearce are very accepting of the deaf students, Mrs. Lewis said.

But people still need to realize that the profundity of deafness vary from person to person, she said.

"Each one is going to be a little different, but people tend to put them in the same category," she said.

Mrs. Lewis said some deaf people do take a can't-do attitude, but those that try must conform to the standards of the group to which they belong.

"You can't make a whole lot of exceptions," she said.

Laura said she is hoping she will make the team along with another girl from the program who wants to try out.

Overall, she said she learned drill team was harder than she had thought.

And she has learned a lot of dances, sharpness in her moves and better concentration.

But, "I still haven't improved my kicks yet," Laura said with a smile.

Houston customs office to stay open

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. Customs Service, under pressure from Texas congressmen, has canceled a proposal to close its Houston district office, the Houston Chronicle reported today.

The newspaper said Customs officials announced the decision Thursday to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and Rep. Bill Archer, R-Houston, both of whom had complained about the proposed closure and who are on congressional committees with authority over the Customs Service.

The agency had proposed to combine the Houston office with the district office in Dallas as part of nationwide consolidation program. The plan followed by a year a customs proposal to close its Dallas district office and move it to Houston, a plan that also was cast aside after congressional complaints.

Import and export business people in the Houston area complained that the closing of the district office in the city would impair the region's international trade, a contention disputed by Customs Commissioner William C. von Raab as late as Wednesday in an appearance before the Senate international trade subcommittee on which Bentsen is the ranking Democrat.

Von Raab defended his agency's centralization plan as "a valid and worthwhile concept which should be pursued." But von Raab said that because of "persuasive arguments" the service will "no longer pursue" the plan to close the Houston office, the newspaper said.

An aide told the Chronicle that Archer had informed von Raab that the proposal had no chance of passing the House trade subcommittee on which Archer is a senior Republican.

Bentsen called the proposed closure "outrageous" because of the volume of international business handled by the seaports and airports in the Houston area.

Customs Deputy Commissioner A.R. De Angelus informed him of the decision to keep the Houston office open, Bentsen said.

Election party planned

Hereford school board candidate Mary Parker will be honored with an after-election party Saturday at the Dawn Community Center at 7 p.m. Refreshments will be served, and everyone is invited.

Group warns of tornado season

AUSTIN (AP) — It's April, and tornado season again, the Texas Insurance Advisory Association reminded Texans on Thursday.

"Tornadoes are at once selective and democratic in their destruction," said Rick Gentry, manager of the Texas TIAA office. "While the chances of being struck by one are small, the havoc they create is great indeed. And no one is immune from the possibility that the leveling fury of the tornado will be directed at their homestead."

However, Gentry pointed out that planning and preparation can prevent many of the deaths and injuries.

"When it comes to property damage, having adequate insurance and knowing how to file a claim are about the only recourses," Gentry said.

Here are some tips from the TIAA statement:

— The most important rule in tornado safety is to stay put, with two exceptions. "If you are in a car or a mobile home, get out," the TIAA said. "A ditch will provide more protection."

— Plan ahead where to take cover. Generally, basements or smaller interior rooms on the ground level offer most protection, whether at home, the office, school or the local shopping mall.

— There is no such thing as being able to wait to take cover until a tornado gets closer. "By the time you hear it coming, it will be too late," Gentry said.

After surviving a tornado, there are several things a homeowner can do to speed up handling of an insurance claim. These include:

— Look over the damage and be prepared to tell when, and if possible, how much damage occurred. Notify the insurance company immediately.

— Make temporary repairs necessary to prevent further damage. This includes boarding up broken windows and temporarily covering holes in a roof.

— Protect property from theft or vandalism and attempt to salvage and protect damaged property.

— Take photographs of damaged areas and prepare inventories of damaged and destroyed personal property for the insurance adjuster. Photos and inventories taken before a storm can be valuable in determining losses.

— Homeowners may obtain detailed estimates for repairs but permanent repairs should not be made the insurance claim is reviewed.

Oil price drops deplete state funds

By SUSAN HUMPHREY Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Every time the price of Texas crude oil drops by $1 a barrel, the state loses about $100 million in revenues, a state financial officer says.

"It's really rare in this country that a state is as closely tied to an industry as Texas is tied to the oil and gas industry," Dale Craymer, the state's manager of revenue estimation, said Thursday at a symposium on the relation between oil prices and state revenues.

Twenty-eight percent of the state's tax revenues come from the oil and gas industry, Craymer said.

"You may have heard that the oilman is a dying breed in this state," he said. "Well, that may be true. But when they go, they're going to have to pay the inheritance taxes as well."

Craymer estimated oil prices would drop from about $27 a barrel this year to $24.15 in 1987 and $19.48 in 1989.

"For every $1 drop in the price of oil, we lose about $30 million in sales taxes," he said. "By about 1990 — for every drop in oil — instead of $30 million, we'll probably lose about $37 million."

The state experienced a 33 percent drop in sales tax revenues collected from the industry between 1982 and 1984, he said. In 1982, some $372 million was collected in sales taxes from oil and gas, compared to $250 million in 1984.

However, Jared Hazelton, president of the Texas Research League, said Craymer's predictions were based on a "consensus forecast of the optimists."

"I want to remind you that the consensus forecast has been wrong for the last 15 years," he said.

Hazelton, whose non-profit privately financed group studies state and local governments, predicted Texas one day will be faced with a "fiscal crisis" that will force legislators to consider cutting state services, making them more efficient or making them the responsibility of the private sector or local governments.

The other options are to increase revenues by raising taxes, find a way to expand the state's tax base or create new taxes, Hazelton said.

"It's going to come down to whether we have (a state) income tax or whether we don't," he said.

Richard Murray, a University of Houston political analyst, said legislators probably would not pass a state income tax.

"I think we'll do something with the sales tax, and we'll fight over where we go from there," he said.

Murray said the state has "lurched from one fiscal crisis to another" because legislators have failed to plan far enough ahead.

"The state has some major long-term problems, serious problems," Murray said. "But if you look at the political world, it tends to operate on a short-term basis."

State lawmakers' approach to financial problems traditionally has been "you just tinker a little bit ... and you hope something will turn up," he said.

Congress frowns on Japanese trade war

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has left town for a 10-day Easter-Passover recess after giving the Reagan administration and the Japanese a blunt message that it wants American companies to have more access to Japan's markets.

U.S. and Japanese officials were scrambling Thursday to calm the storm on Capitol Hill, with Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III warning potential trade warriors that the United States may be the loser in such a battle.

"We do need more access to Japanese markets for beef and agricultural products and telecommunications and a lot of other things," Baker told the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations. "I'm just not sure that the way to get there is to have an all-out trade war."

"I'm not sure we'd win that," he cautioned.

Reishi Teshima, Japan's deputy foreign minister for economic affairs, arrived in Washington on Thursday to brief administration officials and members of Congress on Japan's view of the situation. In addition, Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe has scheduled a meeting April 13 with Secretary of State George Shultz.

Teshima met Thursday with Rep. Don Bonker, D-Wash., chairman of the Foreign Affairs international trade subcommittee, but had no comment for reporters. He was due to meet with administration officials today.

Bonker, who also is co-chairman of a 22-member task force of House Democrats on the trade issue, said he told the envoy that if changes in Japan's trade practices are not forthcoming, "the pressure will mount (in Congress) and we will have to take stronger actions."

Across the Capitol, three senators introduced legislation that would restrict the imports of foreign telecommunications equipment from countries that do not buy enough U.S. telecommunications products.

"The measure of access to other markets under this bill would not only be the terms of negotiated agreements, but also actual sales," said Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo. "To negotiate a deal is one thing, and it's very important. But the measure of success in negotiation is whether or not the goal is attained."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, another sponsor of the bill, criticized President Reagan, saying it was "ridiculous that our president doesn't get involved."

Baker, meanwhile, told senators at the hearing that Reagan is eager to secure an agreement at the May summit of the major industrial nations to set up a new round of international trade talks. Congressional action restricting imports from Japan would make that impossible, he added.

Legal Notice To light statue of Christ

NOTICE OF INCORPORATION OF A GOING BUSINESS

Notice is hereby given that JOHN W. SUBLETT and wife, CYNTHIA SUBLETT heretofore doing business as Sublett Cattle Company and individually at Hereford, Texas, have incorporated their business and transferred their business assets to SUBLETT CATTLE CO., INC., a Texas corporation, with its principal place of business in Hereford, Deaf Smith County, Texas. This notice is given pursuant to Article 1302.2.02 of the Texas Miscellaneous Corporation Laws and to Section 6.103(7) of the Texas Business and Commerce Code.

Problems foil attempts

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Keeping the lights on at the top of Mount Cristo Rey was turned out to be next to impossible, officials say.

First, the diesel fuel generator blew a piston three months after it was installed to illuminate the 42-foot statue of Christ atop the mountain. When it was replaced with a smaller battery-operated generator, someone stole the batteries.

The batteries were replaced — but the statue remained dark because someone had stolen the generator.

Wednesday, the lights were replaced — but the statue remained dark because someone had stolen the generator.

Robert Munoz, vice president and general manager of KCIK-TV, which sponsored a telethon last fall to raise money to refurbish and light the monument.

"Either someone doesn't want the cross lit, or they are just stealing items for their own benefit. We don't know what's going on, but we will find out," Munoz told the El Paso Times.

The lighting of the stone statue atop Mount Cristo Rey was part of a $40,000 project that included restoration of the base of the statue and the ground around it. Money for the project was donated by individuals and groups throughout West Texas and southern New Mexico.

The cross first was illuminated in October after a yearly pilgrimage up the mountain to the popular religious shrine. The lights were on every night until December, when the generator blew the piston.

Munoz said the El Paso Police Department will be notified about the thefts. He said a security guard may be stationed atop the mountain after the $1,000 generator is replaced.

What surprises Munoz is that the generator was inside a 6-inch-thick concrete bunker behind a solid metal door an inch thick.

"They had to use a blow torch or a hacksaw for a long time to cut through the metal plate," he said. "And then they had to carry it all the way down the mountain. That's a lot of work for a generator."
