ficial said last night that DOE will not back off from its search "solely on the basis of public opposition."

Critz George, from DOE headquarters in Washington, D.C., was the focal speaker as DOE held a public meeting at the community center last night; a meeting which lasted nearly four hours as concerned citizens sought information on the DOE search for national repositories of this nation's nuclear waste products.

A panel of three DOE officials, including George, and four representatives of the Battelle Memorial Institute, the firm conducting the search for nuclear waste dump sites, presented a basic outline of the National Waste Terminal Storage (NWTS) Program and answered both written and verbal questions submitted by the audience.

George, a nuclear engineer, told the group that the continued purity of the Ogallala Aquifer is a "key issue" in the DOE search for repository sites in this area.

The search for sites to deposit solid high-level nuclear waste has been going on since the 1950's as the government attempts to locate permanent storage sites for nuclear waste.

Presently, commercial nuclear wastes are located in temporary storage pools at the sites of commercial power plants that use nuclear energy to produce electricity. Defense program wastes are being held on DOE reservations. Both are temporary solutions to the problem George said.

As of today four test holes have been drilled in this area, which is located in the Palo Duro Basin within the larger Permian Basin. Those test holes are located in Oldham, Randall, Donley, and Swisher Counties.

Plans call for two drillings in Deaf Smith County in the near future, and DOE has secured leases to three sites in the county upon which to conduct the drilling operations.

The immediate area surrounding Deaf Smith County met criteria of salt thickness (at least 125 feet deep) and depth (between 1,000-3,000 feet) as established through prior geologic screening.

Other criteria used in the screening process included the absence of active salt dissolution, the quality of salt, the existence of active or abandoned oil or gas fields, flood zones of perennial streams, wildlife refuges, reservoirs, and parklands, and population centers of 5,000 or more.

The National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council recommended in 1957 that geologic disposal of nuclear waste in salt be considered. That position was reaffirmed by the academy in 1970.

Alternate disposal methods such as subseabed and space are also being studied by DOE as long-range options and supplements to geologic repositories.

DOE is currently studying sites in 28 states to identify potential repository sites. Types of rock being studied include bedded salt formations in Utah and Texas; salt domes in Louisiana, Mississippi, and Texas; Basalt (hardened lava) at the Hanford Reservation in Washington; tuff (hardened volcanic ash) at the Nevada Test Site; and crystalline rock in 17 other states.

According to the officials last night some 104,000 cubic feet or 78,000 metric tons of nuclear waste has "piled up" over the past 30 years, and a work force of approximately 2,000 people are involved in the search for permanent repositories of the nuclear waste products.

On Jan. 30 the DOE is expected to issue to the State of Texas the draft Permian Basin Location Recommendation Report, recommending locations for further study.

In May the principal drill hole designed to obtain detailed data is expected to be begun, with a completion date of sometime in August.

In July, 1983 DOE will issue to the state a draft characterization report, including a design for the exploratory shaft, which will allow data to be obtained at the repository depth as required by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC).

And, in December, 1983 the DOE will issue a Record of Decision on the environmental impact statement and construction of the exploratory shaft will begin at the first salt site, selected from among sites being studied in the Gulf Interior Salt Domes, the Paradox Basin (Utah), or Permian Salt Basins.

Also in 1983 exploratory shafts will begin at the Hanford Reservation in basalt, and in tuff at the Nevada Test Site.

Selection of the first repository site from among the three exploratory sites will be made in 1987, and an application for a license to construct a repository at the selected site will be submitted to the NRC in 1988.

A review period of up to four years by the NRC will follow the DOE application, with construction on the repository to begin around 1992. The repository is expected to be in operation between 1998 and 2,006.

The total NWTS program calls for a nationwide network of from 3-6 repositories, with George saying that DOE is looking for the repositories to be distributed evenly across the nation.

DOE, Battelle Reps Thoroughly Prepared

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

Deaf Smith Countians, including State Senator Bill Sarpalus, who presented questions to a panel of seven DOE and Battelle Memorial Institute representatives at a public meeting last night at the community center, were met with polished answers by the group, which obviously is thoroughly prepared.

Some 250 people attended the meeting as DOE officials explained what the National Waste Terminal Storage Program is, and what possible effects the location of a waste repository here might be.

DOE spokesman Critz George of Washington, D.C. was the focal point of the meeting, accompanied by two other DOE officials from Columbus, Ohio, and four Battelle representatives.

After a brief explanatory period at the meeting, which was moderated by Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce President Bill Johnson, George answered a list of 16 questions submitted under the auspices of Serious Texans Against Nuclear Dumping (STAND) before other written questions were collected from the audience.

As to how much money is being spent on the project George said that the annual budget for the NWTS program is $186 million, with $13.7 million planned for the study of the Palo Duro Basin itself.

Asked what liability insurance is provided by the DOE to the potential accidents in transporting waste George said that liability coverage has been provided by the Congress through the Price-Anderson Act, with coverage up to $560 million. George added that additional funds for liability coverage would be forth coming if the need ever arose, but DOE expects such an occasion never to occur.

A question about a concern that containers used to store the nuclear waste might degenerate in the future and open the way for leakage of the lethal substance drew this response, "We will not depend upon the containers to uphold for the full life of the waste; there will be engineered barriers built into the repository to make the chance of a radiation leak remote."

George added that, the waste to be stored in the repositories will be in solid form only, not in liquid form, so that leakage is no problem.

Bill Madia, Battelle spokesman, explained that the wastes which are liquid in form will be run through a series of heaters to dry it into a powdery substance. The powder will then be mixed with glass frit, and heated in furnaces so that it becomes incorporated into the glass itself.

Madia said the process is much like adding a coloring agent to glass, and that if the waste material ever became broken in the future no leakage danger would be present.

Sen. Sarpalus, commenting during an oral session following the written questions, thanked the DOE and Battelle officials for coming to Hereford, and assured the audience that the NWTS program has not been kept secret from public officials as some have hinted, and that he has been brought up to date several times on its progress.

Sarpalus asked the panel what kind of economic impact the location of a repository near Hereford might have. Suzanne Gray, of

Faulty School Water Heater Causes Explosion, Six Killed

SPENCER, Okla. (AP) — An explosion that killed five children and a teacher in an elementary school cafeteria was caused by a water heater that malfunctioned and built up a mighty head of steam a few hours after being repaired, officials said.

A cook in the elementary school kitchen turned on a tap around lunchtime Tuesday, but the faucet only coughed steam, Oklahoma City fire department spokesman Phil Cooksey said.

The cook went to report the problem, he said, and minutes later an explosion ripped through the kitchen wall, blowing off part of the roof and raining glass, metal and concrete blocks on children in the cafeteria.

Thirty-five other students and adults at the Star

Elementary School were hurt, but Oklahoma City schools superintendent Tom Payzant said many children playing in the schoolyard were saved by the unusual 65-degree weather. In severe cold, he said, children often huddled against the wall of the one-story brick building in the northeastern Oklahoma City suburb of Spencer.

Officials estimated the blast did $100,000 worth of damage.

"I don't think there was any question as to the cause," Cooksey said. "The 75-gallon water heater experienced an internal steam explosion. The safety mechanism failed."

The blasted heater was found 200 feet from the building, Cooksey said.

Cooksey said state fire marshals and investigators from Spencer were trying to find out why the heater's safety mechanism didn't work.

Payzant said at a news conference that a school maintenance worker was called to fix the water heater before classes began Tuesday. He said the gas flame under the heater had gone out.

The worker was not interviewed by school officials, and Payzant said he would leave an inquiry into the cause to fire officials.

But kitchen employee Florence Hardy, who was

December Hospital Census 'Not Good'

The average census for Deaf Smith General Hospital during December was "not very good" according to Jim Bullard, administrator.

"The census average was 21.9 for the month, according to a report given at the board of directors' monthly meeting Tuesday.

Due to the low census the hospital depended on tax money to keep the books in the black. The net income was reported at $23,759, however that included $67,846 in tax money.

The board also heard results of the Project Christmas Card. The $5,000 raised will probably be designated for a recently purchased birthing chair.

Reyna to Run For Commission

Jerry John Reyna, 24, of Hereford has announced his intent to file for County Commissioner, Precinct 2 for the upcoming May Democratic Primary. Reyna will oppose incumbent commissioner Austin Rose, who has also announced his intent to file for re-election.

Jerry John Reyna

Reyna is a 1975 graduate of Hereford High School, and holds a bachelor of science degree in Political Science from West Texas State University with emphasis in criminal justice and administration.

He is presently employed with his parents in the restaurant business here.

"The reason I am running for county commissioner is that it has been a lifetime goal to enter the political structure," Reyna said. "Above all, I am concerned with the progress of our community as a whole."

"The time has come when alternatives need to be found to utilize the great talents and skills of our community and county," he added.

Reyna is secretary of the local unit of the American GI Forum. He worked for Pioneer Natural Gas Company while in college.

Industrial Foundation Officers

Stanley Simmons, vice president. Waddell succeeded Bud Eades as foundation chief. Waddell and Lane are new directors, along with Butch White, Rex Easterwood and Gene Ehler.

update wednesday

State Rep's Son Gets Life Sentence

HOUSTON (AP) — The 25-year-old son of Houston State Rep. Senfronia Thompson has been sentenced to life in prison as a habitual criminal.

Jobie Wayne Thompson was sentenced Tuesday by state District Judge William Hutton after a jury convicted him of robbing a security guard at a shopping plaza.

Thompson and three other men were accused of robbing the guard and then robbing a restaurant in the same area.

Thompson had been convicted of two previous felonies in 1976 and 1978. State law mandates a life sentence as a habitual offender on a third felony conviction.

Assistant District Attorney Tom Henderson said Thompson was previously convicted of retaliation, for attacking a police officer who gave him a traffic ticket, and aggravated robbery.

One of the men arrested with Thompson, Deen Young, 17, testified against Thompson after pleading guilty to a robbery charge.

Cases against the two other men, Andre Joseph Norman, 18, and Craig Anthony Mitchell, 17, still are pending.

Loan Officer Killed By Armed Bandit

DALLAS (AP) — A 26-year-old loan officer was slain with a single shot to the face "for no apparent reason" by a bandit brandishing two guns during a robbery at a North Dallas savings and loan, police say.

A man and a woman were taken into custody at an area hotel Tuesday, after the man exchanged gunfire with police officers and FBI agents outside his third-floor room, according to police Sgt. K. W. Lybrand.

The woman already had surrendered without resistance, he said. Killed was Mark Frazier, who was shot in the left side of the face. Frazier was pronounced dead at the scene by a field agent for the Dallas County medical examiner's office.

Frazier apparently was standing by a teller's window at First Texas Savings Association when the robber entered the bank, said Homicide Sgt. Bill Parker.

The loan officer apparently started back toward his desk during the robbery, attracting the gunman's attention, Parker said.

"He was shot for no apparent reason," the officer said.

He said the bandit matched the description of a man who had held up two other savings and loans in North Dallas Tuesday afternoon — snatching an undisclosed amount from Metropolitan Savings and $4,000 from Heritage Savings Association.

Police Have No Clues In Rice Coed's Death

HOUSTON (AP) — A search for clues in the slaying of a Rice University architecture student whose fully clothed body was found locked in the trunk of her car a block from home has turned up no new leads, police say.

Harris County medical examiners completed their autopsy on the body of Margaret Everson Fossi, 25, of Lake Forest, Ill., but a spokeswoman said the results would not be released until toxicology tests were completed.

No suspects have been arrested, and detectives said Tuesday robbery did not appear to be a motive.

Mrs. Fossi, a fifth-year architecture student, was reported missing early Sunday by Wayne and Cathy Gregory, her brother-in-law and sister-in-law with whom she had been living with since August.

Mrs. Fossi's husband, Larry, is a law student at Yale University.

Detectives said Mrs. Fossi went to Gilley's Club on Saturday night with a group of students. She returned to her car, which was parked on the Rice campus, about 2:30 a.m. Sunday, police said.

Gregory went looking for her later Sunday and discovered the car about a block from their southwest Houston home.

Police did not open the trunk until Monday afternoon, because they had to wait for permission from the victim's relatives.

Fog May Have Caused Crash In Rockport

ROCKPORT, Texas (AP) — Authorities say dense fog shrouding Copano Bay may have caused two light planes to collide in flight when both tried to land at an Aransas County airport here. Three people were killed.

"We found a small single-engine plane upside down in the bay," said Lt. Steve Sparks of the Corpus Christi Coast Guard. "We also found a twin-engine airplane that was nearby in the water broken in half."

Sparks said three bodies were recovered Tuesday afternoon by divers from the Aransas County Sheriff's Department, which had a boat on the scene.

Killed were John S. Luetche and Elmo C. Blake, both of Corpus Christi. The pilot of the single-engine plane was not identified.

Pakistani Family Wins Airline Suit

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has ordered an airline to pay $45,000 to the family of a prominent Pakistani because it took too long to return the man's body home for burial after he died in Houston.

U.S. District Judge Allen B. Hannay concluded Tuesday the delay by Pakistan International Airlines disgraced the man's family because Islamic religious tenets requiring quick burial were violated.

Hannay granted damages to the widow, son and nephews of Feroze Tarar, who died here in 1979. He was 72.

The judge said Tarar was "long famed in his native land in the field of letters: journalist, author, poet, linguist, historian and 'father of the Punjabi language.'"

President Said Ready To Shift Welfare Programs To States

By DAVID ESPO Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is preparing to recommend complete federal takeover of the giant Medicaid program in exchange for turning welfare and food stamps over to the 50 states, sources say.

He said the swap of the enormous, multi-billion dollar programs would be in addition to a plan to provide states a greater portion of federal tax money in exchange for taking over as many as 40 social programs in health, education and other areas.

This shift would be financed at least in part through an increase in federal excise taxes, according to the sources, who asked not to be identified by name.

In addition, Reagan has settled on a plan to create up to 25 "urban enterprise zones" where the federal government will try to induce business investment in hard-hit areas around the country by offering tax breaks or relief from regulatory requirements. Sources put the cost of the program at $100 million or $200 million a year.

The sources insisted that all proposals are still tentative and subject to final review, including major, last-minute changes.

But they also said they expect Reagan to unveil his recommendations in a nationally televised State of the Union address before a joint session of Congress Jan. 26.

Reagan declined to discuss specifics of the proposals at a news conference Tuesday, but repeated his long-standing belief that states should have a greater role on providing government services.

"I know how well states can operate," said Reagan, who was governor of California for eight years.

"I believe in many of the things that the federal government has usurped in the last half century and is now doing — that they could be better run at the state level," he added.

Citing his experience in California, Reagan said, "We found that the restrictions imposed by the federal government — the red tape, the administration overhead, was such that had we had more leeway, more freedom, we could have given better service to the people that we were trying to help and at a much lower cost."

Sources said the biggest change Reagan would propose, in terms of the money involved, would have the federal government pay the full cost of Medicaid, a program that provides health care for 22.5 million needy people.

The federal government now pays about 56 percent of the $30.5 billion Medicaid bill and states have long expressed the hope that the federal government would pick up more of the tab.

In exchange for that, the states would pick up total responsibility for the $11.5 billion food stamp program that now financed by the federal government, sources said.

These sources also said the states would inherit the government's largest welfare program, Aid to Families With Dependent Children. AFDC costs about $14 billion a year to provide benefits to 11 million people, with the federal government picking up about 54 percent of the share.

GNP Takes Plunge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Confirming the deep recession, the government said today that the economy declined in the final quarter of 1981 at the fastest rate since the record quarterly downturn of spring 1980.

The inflation-adjusted gross national product — the broadest measure of economic activity — declined at an annual rate of 5.2 percent in the last three months of 1981, the Commerce Department said.

It was the economy's worst showing since the plunge at a 9.9 percent rate at the deepest point of the 1980 recession.

For all of 1981, inflation-adjusted or "real" GNP rose 1.9 percent, thanks mostly to the robust gain of 8.6 percent at an annual rate in the first quarter at the start of the Reagan administration.

Real GNP declined 0.2 percent in 1980. Gross national product is the retail value of all goods and services produced in the economy.

Inflation, as measured by an accounting method tied to GNP, rose 9.1 percent last year compared with 9 percent in 1980, the report said.

Also on Tuesday, Commerce officials said Americans' personal income rose only 0.2 percent in December, the smallest increase in nearly two years.

The personal income figures were just the latest indication that December was the worst month so far in the 1981-82 recession.

Divers Recover Recorders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Divers today recovered the two critical on-board recorders or "black boxes" that may provide clues to last week's crash of an Air Florida jetliner into the Potomac River.

Both the flight data recorder and one recording cockpit conversations were rushed to the National Transportation Safety Board laboratories for examination.

Board spokesman Robert Buchhorn said it was not immediately known whether either recorder was damaged.

The recorders were pulled from the river seven days after the Boeing 737 crashed on takeoff from National Airport.

Investigators had hoped to retrieve them when the plane's tail section was pulled from the river Monday, but they were not found.

The flight data recorder makes a record of air speed, bearing, the plane's angle of flight or descent, and forces that push a plane up or down.

The voice recorder records pilots' words and other cockpit sounds.

The voice tape will be dried out at the NTSB facility, less than a mile from the crash site, and then played for the pilots' final conversations, if any, and telltale background noises.

The noises might indicate, for example, whether the plane stalled or power was lost in one engine.

Buchhorn said today the recorders would have to be taken apart and cleaned and that some preliminary information might be available later in the day from the voice recorder.

The plane had no contact with the airport control tower during its less than a minute of flight.

Three bodies were recovered by the divers on Tuesday. Officials believe 18 other victims are still missing and have raised the possibility that some bodies may never be found.

Seventy-eight people were killed when the plane hit the 14th Street Bridge, including four motorists.

District To Buy Computer

The Deaf Smith County Appraisal District Tuesday accepted the bid of Turkey Leasing Co. for digital computer equipment. Amount of the bid was $40,003.20.

The board passed a resolution authorizing the district to finance the purchase through a bank, according to Fred Fox, chief appraiser.

The 3 p.m. meeting began with the oath of office being administered by County Clerk B.F. Cain. Bills were approved and minutes of previous meetings were read. No action was taken on the selection of a retirement program.

The board discussed the development of policies for the district, and a study will be made for office and personnel policies at the next meeting.

knocked to the floor by the blast, said one of two water heaters located against the northwest wall of the green-painted kitchen had been making water too hot earlier in the morning.

"It had been running the dishwashing water way up above 200 degrees and that's way too hot. They took it (the hot water heater) out and brought it back a little later, and it was supposed to have been fixed," she said.

Frantic parents rushed to the school after hearing of the blast, although officials pleaded via radio and TV for parents to go instead to a community center to pick up their children.

One woman, Susan Brown, ran three miles to the school after her mother-in-law called her. Her 8-year-old child, Holly Chase, said she had finished eating and was waiting for her table to be recessed to the playground when the blast knocked apart the kitchen wall.

"I ducked my head like they told me to during a tornado and it missed me...the glass," she said.

"Somebody told me they saw a brick fall on a little girl's head and a table fall on top of her. A teacher came by and helped me and the other kids out. There were kids running and screaming." She said they were led outside to wait for their parents.

Although one corner of the cafeteria was blown away, lunch tables on the other side of the room stood covered with undisturbed lunchpails.

Ed Forman of the nearby Midwest City Police Department identified the dead children as Paul C. Motes, 7; Latasha M. Brown, 8; Marlow T. Wallace, 9; Gira M. Hiter, 10; and Kareem R. Manora, 8. The teacher was identified as Dinnah Manroe, 34.

Dr. Fred Jordan, a state medical examiner who performed autopsies on the victims, said all of them died almost instantaneously of broken necks. It was believed all the victims had been seated at one table waiting to Batelle, told the senator that studies on the economic impact have not yet been completed, but that a direct and secondary impact would be felt due to the influx of construction personnel needed for the project, and its operation.

The senator also cautioned the panel that a main concern of the people of the area is the preservation of the purity of the Ogallala Aquifer. "We depend on the aquifer for our livelihood, and don't want to take the chance that it will be jeopardized," he said.

George assured the senator that the safety of the aquifer "is a major question on our (DOE) mind." "The real thing we want to be sure of, and research is continuing in to the matter, is that no waste will ever contaminate the ground water here."

Forman said the 28 injured children ranged from kindergarteners to the fourth graders.

Midwest City Police Sgt. Paul Long, the first officer on the scene, suffered a heart attack after resuscitating some of the injured children. He was reported in good condition at a hospital.

Police accounted for all 270 children enrolled at the school, easing fears that more bodies were beneath the rubble.

Other questions and answers provided included:

—Why don't you consider using uninhabited atolls in the ocean for storing the nuclear waste?—"In the first place most atolls are located in international waters; also atolls are comprised mainly of volcanic activity, and the results of any volcanic activity where a repository is located are obvious."

—What are the hazards of transporting nuclear waste across the country?—"Transportation of nuclear waste is an ongoing process throughout the country today. The material is contained in heavily-shielded casks which weigh between 20-50 tons each, primarily made of lead and steel. These casks have been subjected to strenuous tests, and have been found to be safe.

—How much of the activity at a repository will be classified, and will the plant be open to the public?—"None of the activity will be classified, and yes, the repository will be open to public inspection."

—Has research been done to see if the waste can be sent into deep space?—"That possibility has been studied, and it was determined that the risk of launch aborts, which would deposit the waste somewhere on the earth would be much greater than the geologic disposal method."

Coke Plans To Buy Columbia Pictures

ATLANTA (AP) — The Coca-Cola Co., the world's largest soft drink company, is venturing into the entertainment industry by agreeing to pay nearly $796 million for Columbia Pictures Industries Inc.

"Columbia is one of the creative and financial stars in this industry," Coke chairman Robert C. Goizueta said Tuesday in announcing the deal.

The price of Coke shares dropped when the deal was announced, partly because of concern over the 75 percent premium Coke would pay over the value of Columbia Pictures stock before the deal was announced.

Under the agreement, shareholders of Columbia would receive 1.2 shares of Coca-Cola common stock plus $32.625 in cash for each common share of Columbia, the two firms said. There will be 10.8 million shares of Columbia outstanding when the deal is made, Columbia said.

Columbia stock soared $20.75 to $62.50 a share in New York Stock Exchange trading after the deal was announced, while Coke stock dropped $2.25 to $32.

some things I don't even remember. I think it's selective forgetfulness."

He spent Tuesday splitting a two weeks' supply of wood with his son and stacking it in his basement. "Now let it rain," he said.

Army Col. Charles Scott, 49, of Stone Mountain, Ga., said there would be no special ceremonies for him. Instead, he would do the same things he has been doing for many months now — work on a book about his captivity and give a speech.

About two dozen of the former captives and their spouses said they would attend a reunion on Sunday and Monday at Stewart Airport outside Newburgh, N.Y., where the hostages first touched American soil last year.

Monday's celebration will be called "Freedom Day," said Campbell Thompson, chairman of the committee planning the event.

AGRICULTURE, GOVERNMENT AND YOU

AUSTIN — Our good friend Congressman Kent Hance looked into the future of agriculture the other day in Hereford and he didn't like what he saw. Neither do we.

Kent saw low grain and cotton prices, overproduction and little government help. The best farmers are losing money right along with the not-so-good ones.

Some sort of set-aside program, he said, is essential to preserve our means of agricultural production. We don't know if this is the best solution, but the federal government needs to do something. Kent's best guess, though, was that the Reagan administration would not do anything.

"We hoped the Reagan administration would be better (than Carter), and they've been just as bad or worse," Kent said.

While we all would agree the current farm bill is a disaster, that is not the point of this column. The federal farm bill does not have much to do with the state legislature.

The point is the kind of people we elect to public office, or let other people elect for us. The small amount of tax money appropriated for farming in the federal farm bill reflects the amount of involvement in the political process that Congress perceives by farmers and ranchers. In other words, the squeaky wheel gets the grease, and agriculture doesn't squeak.

Nothing could be more important in times like these than knowing who is running for office, what they stand for and what they plan to do for agriculture. This is particularly true at the federal level, where agricultural policy, foreign trade policy and subsidy policy are decided.

We have a good friend in Kent Hance, but we must be aware of every candidate. Once a candidate is elected, we must follow his record closely and see if he is friend or foe to agriculture. In agriculture, nearly every elected official either is part of the solution or part of the problem.

At the state level, we have begun the first major interim study of agriculture that the state has undertaken in years. We hope this study will point out new areas for legislation to help agriculture at the state level.

Remember, our $9.8 billion a year Texas agriculture industry has been neglected for too long. You must become involved in the political process if you expect any help from the government. A good place to start would be to write us and tell us what we should do in the Texas legislature. Write to Senator Bill Sarpalus, P. O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Flynt Is American Legion Guest Speaker

Jack W. Flynt, National Commander of the American Legion, was the speaker for the Zone 2 meeting at Hereford Post 192 American Legion Hall Monday night.

Commander Flynt told of his travels since assuming his position last September. He stated how proud he is of the men serving in the armed forces who are manning the outposts of Korea, who are literally sitting on a powder keg of communist infiltration.

Other Asian countries on his itinerary were Japan, Taiwan, Australia, the Philippines and Hawaii. He was in Hawaii in time to participate in the Dec. 7 Pearl Harbor Memorial Ceremony. The American Legion party visited Legion posts in all these areas.

Back in the United States, Commander Flynt testified before congressional committees on veterans affairs, in addition to numerous speaking engagements.

Commander Flynt was accompanied by his wife, Mary, who is a Past Department of Texas Auxiliary president. She was presented a corsage and the Commander was presented two neckties by the local post.

Eugene Hochstein, Zone 2 Commander from Nazareth, conducted the business session at which time reports were heard.

At a concluding ceremony, Post 192 officers from 1982 were installed by Commander Flynt. They include Robert Lohr, Commander; Lloyd Crume, 1st Vice Commander; Jacob King, 2nd Vice Commander; Grant Hanna, Adjutant; Meinard Koelzer, Sgt.-at-Arms; and Charles Threewitt, Chaplain. Truitt Wiseman, Finance Officer, was not present.

Greetings from the Chamber of Commerce were extended by Dr. Milton Adams.

Legion Officers

vice president; Charles Threewitt, chaplain; Grant Hanna, adjutant; Lloyd Crume, first vice president; Mike Koelzer, sergeant at arms; and Carlos Vaughn, sergeant at arms.

The first All-American Soap Box Derby was run in Dayton, Ohio, in 1934.

The Egyptians flew the first flaglike symbols thousands of years ago. Soldiers tied streamers to poles and carried them into battle, hoping that their gods would help them win.

Leeks make an interesting and different vegetable, served hot or cold with melted butter or a sauce. They're also delicious "au gratin"—boiled, sprinkled with grated cheese and browned in the oven.

Pregnant Women Can Drink Coffee

BOSTON (AP) — Pregnant women can drink coffee without harm to their unborn babies, even though the government has warned them to avoid caffeine, Harvard researchers say.

Although the three-year study found that women who drink a lot of coffee are more likely to give birth prematurely and to deliver small babies, the researchers said these problems were caused by smoking, a habit common among heavy coffee drinkers.

In September 1980, the Food and Drug Administration advised pregnant women to avoid caffeine, because the stimulant causes birth defects in rats.

The agency had noted the effect of caffeine on infants was unknown, but advised expectant mothers to be cautious.

Reagan Accepts Blame On Exemption Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan celebrated his first anniversary in office this week with his biggest gaffe and there was no trouble finding someone to accept the blame.

The question involved the policy of denying tax-exempt status to schools that discriminate on racial grounds. The policy had been in effect since the days of Richard M. Nixon's presidency, but Reagan threw it out because he said such decisions should be made by Congress, not such agencies as the Internal Revenue Service.

Reagan's decision, which hewed to the Republican Party platform, prompted an outcry and led his aides to worry that he was being perceived as a racist.

It was followed by an announcement that he would submit legislation to remedy the situation — to deny the tax-exempt status by law, rather than by administrative fiat. Then came the legislation itself.

Reagan, asked at his news conference Tuesday whether it was his staff who was to blame, said: "No one put anything over on me. The buck stops at my desk. I'm the originator of the whole thing, and I'm not going to deny that it wasn't handled as well as it could be."

News stories appeared last weekend bearing the imprint of leaks from the White House aimed at placing Edwin Meese III, Reagan's counselor, at the center of the controversy.

Administration insiders were said to have reported that it was Meese's handling of the entire matter, with little help from the other top members of the White House staff, that brought the problem on. It was Meese's behavior, these reports said, that brought a flash of anger from Michael K. Deaver, the deputy chief of staff.

David Gergen, the cautious, quiet White House spokesman, tried on Tuesday morning to put the matter in perspective. No, he said, there was no ill-will between Meese and Deaver. He said the matter could have been handled better. "I think Ed feels that way," he said.

Pointing a finger at the White House staff — and not at Reagan, Gergen said: "I think the staff work could have been better. If there's blame, all of us share responsibility for it, including myself."

To a White House staff filled with lawyers, "it sounded like a fairly narrow issue, a legal issue," he said. "I was not aware at the time that it was a 12-year policy."

Gergen, the director of communications, said he did not understand the full implications of the initial decision and blamed himself for not taking the time to understand it.

The Reagan White House, one year old, is thinking of forming a Cabinet Council on Legal Affairs. Thus, Reagan could get Cabinet-level advice when he is contemplating a step that may again take him into such legal hot water.

the abundant life

OVERCOME ILL-TEMPER
By BOB WEAR

Ill-temper causes much misery, heartache, discouragement and strife. It is one of the greatest sources of human loss. Even though we may try to overlook the various expressions of it, and make allowances, the hurtful effects occur just the same.

It is usually wise to be charitable in our view of the ill-temper in others, but we are more than foolish; if we permit it to have a comfortable place in our lives. There is no proper justification for this ugliness.

In addition to the ill-temper, lingering regrets usually follow each display of it. We are displeased with ourselves, and we are concerned about the damage we have done in alienating someone.

"Bad temper is its own scourge. Few things are more bitter than to feel bitter. A man's poisons himself more than his victim." -C. Buxton.

We cannot afford to be ill-tempered. Even though others may overlook it in our behavior, it continues to have its pernicious effects upon us. There is no way to prevent this. We must not settle for the attitude, "I am just this way, and can't help it"; because we can help it, we can overcome it.

Some people who live on the highest moral level are ill-tempered; some are malevolent, spiteful, unpleasant, cranky and generally harsh and severe. Most of these people, however, are pleasant, affable and congenial in their talk, actions and responses.

Ill-temper can be overcome. In overcoming it, we will improve our self-image; and then we will feel better toward others. In acquiring and maintaining a good feeling about ourselves, we will be able to interact with others in the best possible manner.

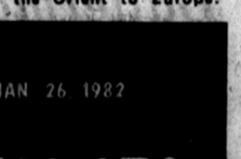

"For embittering life, for destroying the most sacred relationships, for withering up men and women, for taking the bloom of childhood-in short, for sheer, misery-producing power-ill-temper stands alone."

We can undo just about every desirable aspect of our behavior by permitting ourselves to be ill-tempered. On the other hand, a pleasant manner of behavior will cover a multitude of shortcomings.

Ann Landers Teen-Age Boy Bugged By Letter

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am the mother of a 16-year-old boy who has always been open and above-board with me. I hope you will not think I am bragging when I say he is the kind of son most mothers pray they will have.

About three months ago a 15-year-old girl began to telephone Jack once or twice a week. He had never taken her out of town an interest. Now the girl phones him every night, usually in the middle of supper. He is polite to her, but I know he is also embarrassed and annoyed. His responses are brief and he gets off the phone as soon as possible.

Yesterday Jack received an eight-page handwritten letter from this girl in the mail. He showed it to me and said, "This kid is some kind of a nut. The things she describes in that letter never happened." When I read it I blushed. Now I am concerned. I believe she is mentally ill. Shall I speak with her mother—whom I know only slightly? Please advise at once.—Need to Know In Tennessee

DEAR TENNESSEE: By all means, telephone the girl's mother and ask if you can meet with her about a matter of importance. Tell her what you know about her daughter's inability to separate fact from fiction.

If she tells you to mind your own business, at least you will have the peace of mind that comes from knowing you tried to help. It is obvious that the girl could profit from some counseling. Let's hope she gets it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I both have adult children by our previous marriages. Whenever I invite his daughter and her family to dinner, she says, "I'll see." I then have to ask her two or three more times before I get a definite answer. It makes me feel as if I am begging, which I resent. Sometimes it's "Yes," but more often it's "No,"...and always at the last minute.

I work an eight-hour job and like to prepare well in advance, so everything is just right. An extra four people does make a difference. The women is 36 years old—no kid. How do I deal with this irritating problem?—Undelighted In Denver

DEAR DEN: You have allowed your stepdaughter to trap you in the "wait-and-see" syndrome. You must now take positive steps to extricate yourself from the victim role, and the sooner you do it the better you will feel about yourself.

The next time you invite your stepdaughter and her family to dinner say, "If it isn't possible to give me a definite answer now, I will invite you another time." If she doesn't give you a firm "Yes," tell her, "I understand—we'll miss you." Then get off the phone promptly.

You set yourself up for irritation by letting her keep you on hold until she feels like making up her mind. When she discovers you can no longer be dangled—end of problem.

DEAR ANN: Recently, at a raffle, my number was picked first. I was given third prize. The next number drawn won second prize. The third number received first prize.

DEAR MONT: They select the main prize winner last to add suspense and excitement to the drawing. This is good showmanship.

Be satisfied with the third prize, Toots. Whatever it is, it's more than you came in with.

Super Bowl Teams Are Most Anonymous in Series History

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Because they have both been consistent losers until now, the San Francisco 49ers and Cincinnati Bengals come into Sunday's Super Bowl as two of the most anonymous teams in the history of this series.

Their national exposure has been limited at best and Cincinnati linebacker Jim LeClair knows why.

"Not many people like to look at 4-12 teams on Monday night football," said LeClair.

Or 2-14 teams, either, for that matter.

The Bengals were 4-12 three years ago and repeated that record two seasons ago.

"Bad," admitted LeClair. "Really bad."

The 49ers, however, were worse at 2-14 in both of those seasons. Losing, it seemed had become habit-forming for both franchises.

"It's hard to come in week after week and lose week after week," said LeClair. "But losing is just like winning. If you start losing, it seems you find ways to lose every week. And if you start winning, you find ways to win every week. This year, we found ways to win."

Sanucco tackle Keith Fahnhorst struggled through the 49ers' 2-14 seasons. They left some scars. He remembered this season's opening game against Detroit in the Pontiac Silverdome, site of Sunday's game.

"When I ran out on the field, I saw the Super Bowl sign in the corner of the Silverdome," he said. "I thought to myself, 'Wouldn't that be neat? To go to the Super Bowl.' But I didn't think we'd be there."

That was understandable. The 49ers were 6-10 last year, same as the Bengals.

When Fahnhorst trotted out on the field for his team's first Super Bowl workout this week, he glanced up at the sign again. And he smiled. Like the Bengals, the 49ers had found ways to win.

What the Cincinnati and San Francisco veterans remember most about the lean years is the instability that surrounded their teams.

"We had talent but we were not getting mileage out of it," LeClair said. "We needed some direction to turn this around."

Bengals Coach Forrest Gregg provided it.

In San Francisco, Fahnhorst remembered almost perpetual rebuilding. He played under five coaches in his first five seasons. The low point was 1978 when Pete McCulley was dismissed after nine games, replaced by Fred O'Connor.

Fahnhorst's head was spinning by the time Bill Walsh arrived on the scene and began weaving order out of chaos. The team was 2-14 in his first season but Fahnhorst saw hope.

Both teams underwent huge reconstruction jobs directed by Walsh and Gregg. San Francisco has 20 players on its Super Bowl roster who were not with the team last year. Eighteen Bengals are in their first or second year with the club.

The recipe worked and instead of Super Bowl regulars like Dallas, Pittsburgh, Oakland or Minnesota, two unlikely candidates will battle Sunday.

Monterey Tops Whiteface Fems

The Hereford Whiteface girls fell to Lubbock Monterey Tuesday night, 68-54, bringing the Herd's season record to 16-3 and a standing of 1-1 in District 4-5A play.

Three-time all-starter Kamie Ethridge put in 23 points for the Plainsmen to outscore the Herd's top hitters Lori Albracht and Stephanie Foster who each had 12. Cathy Lane was second highest with 10 points.

"We were just too tired, too nervous," Coach Larry Sowers said today noting that the Herd did not score during the first 3½ minutes of the game.

Another indication of being tired, Sowers said, was the free throw average percentages. Monterey hit 26 of 35 shots from the line while the Herd hit 22 of 43 chances. Sowers said the 'Faces missed the front end of 11 one-and-ones in the 63-foul game.

Monterey is now 19-2 on the season and 1-0 in the district.

Hereford travels to Lubbock Coronado next Tuesday for its third loop game.

SWC Basketball Race Confusing

By The Associated Press

There is no sense of propriety in the Southwest Conference basketball race this year. None of the teams has any respect for the way things ought to be.

Consider: —Texas Tech, preseason picks for a second-division finish, beat Arkansas and came within five points of a win over Texas, then lost by nine points on its home floor Tuesday night — to Rice.

—The Owls, preseason cellar choices, knock off No. 5 San Francisco during the Christmas week, then lose their first three conference games before winning Tuesday — on the road.

—Southern Methodist, looking for all the world like the conference doormat, beats the Cougars in Houston last week, then takes a 20-point whipping from Texas A&M — at home.

—And Arkansas snaps out of its SWC slump just in time to ambush Baylor, 70-58, in Fayetteville, knocking the Bears from second place to fourth in the conference standings and promoting the Aggies to second, 1½ games behind the high-riding, unbeaten Texas Longhorns.

"This win gets us back into the thick of the race," said Aggie forward Claude Riley, after the 81-55 win over SMU in Dallas.

Meanwhile, Ricky Pierce hit 30 points for Rice in the 66-57 win over Tech in Lubbock, then said, "We needed this win ... to get our momentum going again. Even if we are 1-3, we are still in the race, especially if we can beat A&M at home next Saturday night."

"We have decided to take them one at a time," said Rice coach Tommy Suits. "Each time, we figure the next game is our biggest one."

Baylor coach Jim Haller had a ringside seat Tuesday for the Razorbacks' Scott Hastings Show. The 6-10 senior center scored 22 points and dominated the backboards, keeping Baylor from scoring in close.

"We couldn't control him," Haller said. "He's four inches bigger than anybody we could put on him."

Arkansas' two SWC losses have knocked it from the national Top Ten down to 15th in The Associated Press basketball poll, but Haller thinks it's too early to dismiss the Razorbacks.

"I think they're as good as they were two weeks ago when they were ranked No. 5," he said.

The Hogs get a stern test Saturday, when Houston visits. Other SWC games that night include Texas Christian at SMU, Baylor at Tech, A&M at Rice and Texas hosting South Carolina in a non-conference match.

Rogers Eyes New Golf Season

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Bill (Buck) Rogers, golf's Player of the Year in 1981, takes a patient, wait-and-see attitude toward his 1982 campaign.

"You have to be realistic about it," Rogers said after a practice round for the $300,000 Phoenix Open, where he'll start his American tour schedule Thursday.

"I can't expect, don't expect, to have the kind of year I had last season," said the skinny, 29-year-old Texan who dominated world golf last year.

"But who can say? I might win a major. I might win two majors. I might not win anything at all."

"I'm not a goal-oriented person. My plan is to play as good as I can possibly play in each tournament, in each round. I'm not setting goals, or building my season around one particular tournament or one particular performance. "But there's no question that the big stuff comes out of the big tournaments. So I'm anticipating the four majors, yeah, let's say it that way, anticipating, the majors more than ever."

"It's from the majors that you get the recognition," he said, and flashed an infectious smile.

"And I've found I like the recognition." He's received it, particularly abroad.

"The British Open opened up a lot of opportunities for me," he said. "People abroad consider it the World's Open. All of a sudden, when I'm playing abroad, my name is in headlines and I'm the man to beat. It's fun." And he's handled it very, very well.

Nuggets Scoring Game Nets 140

BY WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

When Denver Nuggets Coach Doug Moe says he was happy with the tempo of a basketball game, you can be sure it had more baskets than an Easter egg hunt.

The Nuggets, runaway leaders in scoring in the National Basketball Association this season, poured in 140 points Tuesday night. But Denver's run-and-gun style has its price on the defensive end of the court and the Nuggets needed every one of their baskets to beat the Los Angeles Lakers 140-139.

"I like the tempo we're playing at right now," said Moe. "I guess you could say this was a big one for us. When you're fighting for a playoff spot like we are, every game is big."

In other NBA games, Boston outlasted New York 111-107, Atlanta beat Portland 112-101, Seattle edged Cleveland 99-97, Chicago topped Indiana 111-100, Houston defeated Kansas City 120-112, Utah trimmed Detroit 123-117 and Phoenix belted San Antonio 108-96.

Alex English, the game's high scorer with 28 points, made the final basket for Denver with 46 seconds left when his layup gave the Nuggets a 140-137 advantage.

Jamaal Wilkes scored with 27 seconds left for the Lakers, and then Denver did something uncharacteristic, allowing the 24-second clock to expire without getting a shot off.

Suns 108, Spurs 96
Dennis Johnson scored 21 points and Phoenix took control of the game by outscoring San Antonio 30-17 in the second quarter.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Suns and their third without a loss against the Spurs this season.

George Gervin, the NBA's No. 1 scorer, had 27 points for the Spurs.

Celtics 111, Knicks 107
Larry Bird hit 18 for 24 shots from the field and scored 39 points, including four in the final minute, to lead Boston over New York.

The Knicks battled back from a 90-67 deficit with a 21-6 spurt and then cut the Celtics' lead to two points, 105-103, with 1:57 remaining.

Michael Ray Richardson scored 28 points for New York, 12 of them in the fourth quarter when he quarter-backed the Knicks' rally.

Sonics 99, Cavaliers 97
Jack Sikma scored 28 points and broke a 97-97 tie with seven seconds remaining with a 10-footer to give Seattle its eighth straight victory, while Cleveland lost for the 10th time in 11 games.

Ron Brewer and James Edwards scored 20 points each for the Cavs.

Hawks 112, Blazers 101
John Drew scored 26 points and Eddie Johnson 23 to lead Atlanta, which saw a 35-point third-quarter lead dwindle to six in the fourth period.

Portland outscored the Hawks 40-18 in the fourth quarter and 30-3 in the first 6:10 of the period after falling behind 94-59 with 47 seconds left in the fourth quarter.

Rockets 120, Kings 112
Moses Malone scored 29 points and pulled down 18 rebounds and frontcourt mate Elvin Hayes added 19 points and 12 rebounds to lead Houston over Kansas City.

The Kings' 2-0 lead was their only edge of the game, and the Rockets led by as many as 19, at 60-41, in the third quarter.

Bulls 110, Pacers 100
All-star center Artis Gilmore scored 27 points and grabbed 16 rebounds as Chicago broke a four-game losing streak with a victory over Indiana.

The Bulls led by only three points, 85-82, in the fourth quarter before a 21-7 scoring binge led by Gilmore, Dwight Jones and Ricky Sobers saved the victory.

Jazz 123, Pistons 117
Adrian Dantley had 42 points and Rickey Green scored all of his 24 points in the second half as Utah also broke a four-game losing streak.

Was Cowboy Assistant for 9 Years

Ditka Named as New Chicago Bear Coach

CHICAGO (AP) — Former All-Pro tight end Mike Ditka will be the new head coach of the Chicago Bears.

Ditka accepted the job Tuesday after an afternoon meeting with team owner George Halas and was to be named formally at a news conference today.

Ditka was unavailable for comment, but other sources, including his wife and his former boss, Dallas Cowboys head Coach Tom Landry, confirmed that he had accepted the job.

"Mike has accepted the Bears' offer and it's fantastic," Ditka's wife, Diana, said.

Also, during an interview with a Dallas radio station, Landry said he had been told of the hiring earlier Tuesday and that he wished Ditka well.

Landry said Ditka, who has worked as one of his assistant coaches for the last nine years, had not sought his advice before seeking the Bears' coaching job.

"I think Mike knew this was something he wanted to do," Landry said. "If it had been anything else, I think he wouldn't have been so quick to take it without talking it over with us. But he didn't specifically ask my advice because he's wanted in his heart to do this (coach the Bears) for so long."

Terms of the contract were not made available, but reports indicated that Ditka might be offered a two-year pact.

Ditka is expected to instill strong discipline in the Bears, who finished last season with a 6-10 record, and improve the team's sagging offense.

Three weeks ago, shortly after he personally took charge of shaking up the Bears coaching staff, Halas said Ditka was the front-runner for the job.

Ditka, 42, was a college star at Pitt before he began his career with the Bears as a tight end. He had written a letter to Halas expressing interest in the coaching job before the dismissal of Coach Neill Armstrong Jan. 4.

"I have never wished anybody to lose a football job or any kind of job," Ditka said later. "The gist of the letter was very simply that if and whenever the job ever becomes available in the future, I would be interested."

While holding his various news conferences, Halas, who will become 87 on Feb. 2, more than once indicated that Ditka would be the man to replace Armstrong.

Ditka played tight end for the Bears for seven years and was a member of the 1963 championship team. In 1964 he set an NFL record for a tight end by catching 75 passes for the Bears. That mark stood until Kellen Winslow of San Diego broke it last year.

The Bears traded Ditka to Philadelphia and from there he went to Dallas where he finished his active career before becoming an assistant to Landry.

Superstars Show To Start Sunday

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

Super Sunday has a different Super ring for Super achiever Dick Button.

It's the XVth birthday for football's Super Bowl. It's the Xth birthday for Superstars, the thriving TV sports spectacle that sprung from the mind of this former world and Olympic figure skating champion-turned-entrepeneur.

"We wouldn't dare go head-to-head with the Super Bowl — it's a religious rite," Button said, "so we are starting our tenth season on the air three hours earlier on Sunday."

The competition designed to determine the premier all-around athlete will begin its ten-week run at 1 p.m. EST on ABC. The Super Bowl kickoff is scheduled for 4 p.m. on CBS.

Some of the stars of the professional championship game at the Pontiac Silverdome may be seen later testing their athletic skills against hand-picked competitors in other fields.

Superstars began as a germ of an idea while Button was pursuing a law degree at Harvard. He offered it to various networks. They shrugged it off as gimmicky and unlikely to persevere.

Button's persistence finally paid off and in 1973 the first Superstars competition was launched in a remote real estate development in Rotunda, Fla., a men's competition offering $122,000 in prize money. ABC decided to give it a try.

The project caught the public fancy. Since then, it has been expanded to include the Women's Superstars, the World Superstars and the Superteams, matching the Super Bowl football champions against the World Series baseball champions.

Prize money has increased to $870,000. Ratings remain high.

Button's sports experiences triggered his thought process along with a picture he saw in Life magazine of Edward Villella, a former boxer and ballet star over which a caption read, "Is this America's best athlete?"

"I asked myself, 'Who is the best athlete?'" Button said. "That's how it all got started."

In the competition, athletes compete in a variety of sports — cycling, running, rowing, bowling, weightlifting, tennis and golf — while ineligible to vie in their own specialty.

In one of the early events, then-heavyweight boxing champion Joe Frazier almost drowned in the swimming pool. Bob Seagren, Olympic pole vaulter, won the first title in 1973 and the World Superstars Crown in 1977. A soccer player, Kyle Rote Jr., was a three-time winner, earning more than $200,000.

Button presses the buttons from the mid-Manhattan offices of his Candid Productions, Inc. and is still searching to learn who is the best athlete of all.

"One thing I know — I'm not," he conceded.

49ers Thrive On Game Turnovers

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — All season the San Francisco 49ers have thrived on big defensive plays — interceptions that thwarted last-ditch drives by the opposition and fumble recoveries that set up touchdowns.

If the 49ers defeat Cincinnati in Super Bowl XVI Sunday, it could be a big play or two that makes the difference, says the team's defensive coordinator, Chuck Studley.

During a photo-interview session at the Silverdome Tuesday, Studley said it took several big plays early in the season to give San Francisco's defense the confidence it needed to survive the pressure of the drive to the National Conference championship.

"We played apprehensively all through the preseason and we (the coaches) kept saying they just need to make a big play. All they needed to do was make a big play and they were going to be all right."

The play came against Washington in the fifth game of the season, when a vicious hit by cornerback Ronnie Lott produced a fumble which safety Dwight Hicks took in midair and ran 80 yards for a touchdown.

Hicks scored on an interception in the same game as the San Francisco defense accounted for 14 points in a 30-17 victory over the Redskins.

"For the next four consecutive weeks we scored on defense," said Studley.

"Ours is a big play defense. It doesn't dominate the line of scrimmage like the Steelers did when they were Super Bowl champions, or like Dallas did with their great teams."

The 49ers were at their defensive best in a 21-3 victory over the Bengals at Cincinnati Dec. 6 when they forced six turnovers — three fumbles and three interceptions.

In the National Conference playoffs against the New York Giants, Lott sewed up the victory with a touchdown return of an interception.

Sheep, Lamb Slaughter

Down 5%

WASHINGTON (AP) - The number of sheep and lambs being fed for the slaughter market as of Jan. 1, totaled 1.56 million head, down 5 percent from a year ago, says the Agriculture Department.

In the seven major production states - which accounted for 63 percent of the total - the Jan. 1 inventory was 987,000 head, down 4 percent from a year ago, the department's Crop Reporting Board said Tuesday.

Those and their percentage change from a year ago included: Arizona, 57,000 head and 121 percent of a year ago; California, 200,000 and 114; Colorado, 230,000 and 77; Iowa, 85,000 and 110; Nebraska, 85,000 and 85; Texas, 200,000 and 95; and Wyoming, 130,000 and 108.

Alternative To Owning A Bull

COLLEGE STATION - In Texas, renting a bull to settle cows is an alternative to owning one, though cattlemen need to consider numerous factors before making a decision either way.

Several factors exist favoring bull leasing for the producer, according to Dr. Ashley C. Lovell of Stephenville, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

These include the tax deductible rental charge, less investment capital needed, and less annual expense in feeding and caring for the bull.

"An important factor for smaller producers is that renting gives them a chance to use a better quality bull than they often could afford to own," says Lovell. "Also, by using a different bull each year, producers can keep heifers from each calf crop, and there is limited bull death risk."

The economist states that acquiring a herd bull has short- and long-term consequences, and these must be weighed and individually considered before deciding whether to rent or own.

Long-term satisfaction to cow-calf producers from choosing bulls is measured by the performance of the progeny through future generations, he says. Bull costs per calf and pounds of beef weaned per cow are the short-term consequences from the bull selection that may determine if the producer can stay in business long enough to realize any long-term benefits.

"To achieve the economic advantage of low annual feeding and maintenance costs, producers might need to keep a bull only three to four months a year, which is where renting would be the ideal answer," Lovell says. "For herds that calve all year, six-month to one-year leases are necessary."

In comparing figures for a three- to four-month bull leasing program, the economist notes that leasing is $2,125 a year is projected as less expensive per calf than owning a $750 bull.

In many cases, renting a high-performing bull for periods up to one year will be more economical than owning an average bull when rental costs, bull ownership costs and performance of offspring of the two bulls are observed and compared, Lovell adds.

Removing Settleable Solids From Cattle Dip Solution Saves Money

COLLEGE STATION - Removing settleable solids from a cattle dip solution can save money and also reduce pesticide disposal problems.

A recent study at two Texas Panhandle feedyards compared the use of two different size sedimentation tanks during dipping operations, explains Dr. John Sweeten, agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

One 25,000-head feedyard used a 300-gallon tank with four compartments beside a 3,300-gallon dipping vat. The other feedyard with a capacity of 40,000 head had a 5,000-gallon dipping vat and used a 975-gallon sedimentation tank with two chambers.

This feedyard also used a Hydrasieve static screen during dipping to remove coarse solids from the pesticide dip.

With the first unit operating at flow rates of 25 to 66 gpm (gallons per minute) for 36 to 100 minutes, from 13 to 57 pounds of dry matter were removed per dipping.

The second unit operating at 44 to 125 gpm for 44 to 333 minutes removed 42 to 122 pounds of dry matter.

Sweeten suggests a number of conclusions from the study. First of all, sedimentation tanks must be used at least four hours per 1,000 head of cattle dipped to be effective in removing solids from the pesticide.

For increased effectiveness, pesticide material should flow slowly enough or the sedimentation tank should be large enough to provide an average detention time of at least five to eight minutes.

Using a sedimentation tank, the number of cattle dipped per vat recharge increased an average of 99 percent at one feedyard and 154 percent at the other.

Use of a Hydrasieve and sedimentation tank together gave a four-fold increase in the number of cattle dipped per vat recharge.

As far as pesticide disposal is concerned, sedimentation tanks alone reduced by 50 to 62 percent the amount of pesticide material to be disposed of. When combined with the Hydrasieve, the amount of pesticide solution to be disposed of was reduced 72 to 82 percent to only 0.2 gallons per head.

And what about the cost-effectiveness of this system? With estimated savings of 9 to 21 cents per head on pesticide, the money saved could pay for the system in a few months, points out Sweeten.

Casein Not Interfering In Price Support Program

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. International Trade Commission has ruled that imports of casein - milk protein - are not interfering with the government's dairy price support program.

The dairy industry wanted the Reagan administration to limit imports of cheap casein - widely used in food and feed - either by quotas or tariffs.

Industry spokesmen say the imports are endangering the price support program. With less imports, they say, more American products would be used and money would be saved in the program.

President Reagan, acting on a recommendation from Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, asked the commission last August to investigate whether casein imports were forcing the government to buy excessive amounts of dairy products.

But the commission found otherwise in its decision announced Tuesday.

ITC spokesman Hal Sundstrom said, "The commission announced its intention to advise the president, by a 4-1 finding, that the imports of casein are not interfering with the price support program."

In another vote, the commission unanimously agreed that imports of lactalbumin, made from whey protein, also are not interfering with the program, he said.

The panel expects to submit its report on the investigation to Reagan by Jan. 29, Sundstrom said. Reagan is not obliged to follow ITC recommendations.

In 1980, the United States imported about 152 million pounds of casein, two-thirds of it from New Zealand, Ireland and Australia. New Zealand is the chief exporter of lactalbumin to the United States.

Casein, a protein derived from milk, is used in imitation cheese, coffee whiteners, calf milk replacers, adhesives, animal feed, medical products and paper products.

Block, in advising Reagan, cited an Agriculture Department study on casein imports. Without casein imports, the study found, American manufacturers would have used the equivalent of 333 million pounds more dried milk in 1980 to make paint, glue, animal feed, coffee whitener and medical products. That would have saved the government about $300 million in price support costs, it said.

Safety, Health Pros To Meet

COLLEGE STATION — Safety and health professionals will meet at Texas A&M University Feb. 8-10 to discuss new technology and prepare for current and future challenges to the preservation of life and property.

"Preparing Today for Tomorrow's Technology" will be the theme of the American Society of Safety Engineers' Region 3 Tenth Annual Professional Development Conference, points out Dr. Gary Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. The Extension Service is cooperating in the meeting along with the Texas A&M Department of Industrial Engineering and the American Industrial Hygiene Association.

This year's conference will feature authorities in the fields of loss control, construction safety, industrial hygiene, human factors research and law. They will address a variety of subjects, with special emphasis on industrial safety and health, public and private sector environmental exposures, effects of judicial decisions, professional development and certification, and ergonomics (matching machine design to human characteristics).

Items of special interest will be discussions on the future of OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Administration), the Love Canal incident, hazardous waste disposal, confined space entry, manual materials handling, exposure to formaldehyde and other chemicals, and drug abuse in the workplace, says Nelson.

Speakers will include a number of government and university officials as well as chemical company executives, health and safety experts, and an oil company attorney.

Registration information is available from Nelson, 303 Ag Engineering, Texas A&M University, College Station, Tex. 77843.

Price Tags on THE AMERICAN HOME

Median Values of Owner-Occupied Houses in the 50 States and District of Columbia

Values of American homes vary widely, as buyers and sellers are well aware. But in addition to price differentials according to house size and equipment, there is also a geographical factor. In the 1980 Census, selected home owners were asked to estimate the value of their residences, including land. The results were tabulated to produce these median values (rounded off to the nearest $100) for each of the 50 states and District of Columbia.

Reagan Accepting Tax Furore

By MAUREEN SANTINI Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, declaring "no one put anything over on me," is taking full responsibility for a decision to grant tax-exempt status to schools that discriminate.

"The buck stops at my desk," the president declared at a nationally broadcast news conference Tuesday, the eve of his first anniversary in office.

"I'm the originator of the whole thing and I'm not going to deny that it wasn't handled as well as it could be."

But Reagan maintained he was trying to change a procedure — not a policy — when he reversed a 12-year precedent Jan. 8 and told the Internal Revenue Service not to deny tax exemptions to schools that exhibit racial bias.

An uproar quickly ensued, leading Reagan to reverse himself and ask Congress to prohibit the IRS from doing what he authorized it to do 12 days ago.

The president acknowledged that the matter could have been better handled, but insisted that he had only been trying to prevent the IRS from making social policy. He said decisions like that should be left to Congress.

At his seventh news conference since taking office, Reagan also said: "His economic sanctions against Poland and the Soviet Union have had an unspecified impact, but 'we're not going to wait forever for improvement' in the lives of the Polish people under martial law. 'We have those steps we can take.'"

Reagan said there was "no question the situation in Poland is still deteriorating. They have tried to present it as moderating; it isn't."

The president did not spell out — nor was he asked — just what positive effects he believes were produced by the U.S. sanctions on trade, aviation and fishing rights against the Polish and Soviet governments in the wake of the military crackdown on the Solidarity reform movement.

Reagan said Pope John Paul II, himself a Pole, sent a lengthy communication. "He approves what we have done so far."

—His tax returns show a "small percentage of deductions for worthwhile causes" because he gives "in ways that are not tax deductible with regard to individuals that are being helped." Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said he would not release the names of people Reagan has helped nor the amount of money he has donated privately.

On their 1980 federal income tax return, the president and his wife, Nancy, showed charitable contributions of $3,085 on a total income of $227,968. "And I'm afraid that to avoid future questions of this kind, maybe beginning this year, I'm going to have to start publicly doing some things," Reagan said.

—He sympathizes with Americans who are out of work, but "there are a million people more working than there were in 1980."

That statement directly contradicted figures compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which reported total employment in December was 97,188,000, down more than a half-million from January 1981, the month Reagan took office, and 94,000 fewer than December of 1980.

"He just mispoke himself on that," deputy press secretary Peter Roussel said later. "In reality, it (employment) has slipped...by about half a million during that period."

Roussel said the president was briefed on the employment situation shortly before the news conference and apparently was "off a little bit on the numbers."

—He does not believe American business has rejected his economic incentives. "I think we're just seeing a little caution. They want to make sure before they proceed."

—He does not rule out the use of lie detectors as one method of ending leaks of classified information to reporters. His crackdown on news leaks, Reagan said, was necessary to "protect national security and our ability to conduct foreign policy....What we're doing is simply abiding by the existing law."

On the matter of tax exemptions for schools that discriminate, Reagan said there was no basis in law for the IRS ban, and that the IRS "had actually formed a social law and was enforcing that social law."

"We didn't anticipate that it was going to be as misinterpreted as it was," Reagan added. "I am opposed with every fiber of my being to discrimination."

While the president's legislative proposal to correct the situation is pending, the IRS is being told not to enforce Reagan's earlier decision except in the case of two schools. The administration already had promised the Supreme Court it would grant tax exemptions to the two institutions "that have cases pending."

However, if the legislation passes as the administration wrote it, the two schools — Bob Jones University and Goldsboro (N.C.) Christian Schools — would have to give back any benefits they gain from their exemptions.

The two schools acknowledge they have discriminatory policies but maintain they are based on religious belief and are therefore exempt from government scrutiny.

Accountant Says Cauble Broke

TYLER, Texas (AP) — An accountant who worked for millionaire Rex Cauble said the rancher's business was overburdened with debts at the time prosecutors allege Cauble financed and profited from a massive marijuana smuggling ring.

Richard Williams said Cauble Enterprises was in a "cash flow strain" position while he was controller for the business from 1976 to 1979.

"The operation was overburdened with debt. It had insufficient income... and the only way the business kept afloat was by refinancing and renewing loans," Williams said Tuesday in Cauble's federal racketeering, conspiracy and embezzlement trial.

Prosecutors contend Cauble masterminded an elaborate smuggling operation that used shrimp boats to ferry 106 tons of marijuana from Colombia to Texas during 1977 and 1978. And they say he did so because he needed the cash.

Government witnesses testified that large cash deposits were made to Cauble's accounts during the two years the smuggling ring operated.

"I informed Mr. Cauble I could not take any responsibility for the propriety of cattle sales or payment on sale of the (Cherokee) ranch," Williams said.

Williams was referring to a dramatic increase in cash cattle sales during 1977 and 1978.

He also said $100,000 in proceeds from the sale of the Cherokee ranch was not reported until January of 1979, although the ranch was sold in 1977.

Williams said when he expressed his concern Cauble "was surprised.... He indicated it was common to have cash sales in the cattle industry," and told him to go back and make sure everything checked out.

He said he became nervous about the cash situation when he learned that Cauble's ranch foreman, Charles "Muscles" Foster, allegedly was involved in a marijuana-smuggling ring.

Under cross-examination, Williams acknowledged that although Cauble Enterprises had a net operating loss, no loan was in default or called.

Dr. Donald Wayne Whaley, a North Texas State University psychologist, testified that Foster was not capable of conducting an operation the scope of the smuggling ring — dubbed the "Cowboy Mafia."

Although Foster was targeted as the ringleader in the scheme, he was acquitted by reason of insanity in 1980. Federal authorities say Foster used hundreds of thousands of dollars in loans from Cauble to operate the smuggling ring.

Whaley testified that psychological tests showed Foster suffered brain damage from shock treatments he received for his mental problems.

The psychologist said he had approached Assistant U.S. Attorney David Baugh and requested that Foster be hospitalized for mental problems.

"You advised Baugh as to the mental status of Foster, but Mr. Baugh said he was sane despite of this and it took a jury of 12 citizens to give him his freedom?" asked defense lawyer G. Brockett Irwin. Whaley agreed.

Carolyn McConnell, an accountant and office manager for Cauble Enterprises, testified that she often made large cash deposits into Cauble's business account.

She also said there was no documentation of several large cash cattle sales except for deposit slips.

But under cross-examination by lead defense attorney Roy Minton, Ms. McConnell said she spent many hours attempting to document the cattle sales by Foster in late 1977 and 1978.

She also told Minton that Cauble had not been on several of his six ranches for years and that he depended on his employees for information. She said Cauble depended on Foster to tell him about the cattle sales.

Seven Of Top 10 On CBS

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS won the networks' prime-time ratings race for the eighth consecutive week, with the season's two most-watched shows, "Dallas" and "60 Minutes," leading the field, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

CBS had seven of the 10 top-rated programs in the week ending Jan. 17, including a made-for-TV movie, "Help Wanted: Male," in third place, and a "Walt Disney" film, "Tales of the Apple Dumpling Gang," 10th.

CBS' average rating for the period was 21.5 to 19.3 for ABC and 14.8 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute, 21.5 percent of the country's TV-equipped homes were tuned to CBS.

"Dallas" was first in the race for the seventh time in the 15 weeks of the TV season that began in October, and "60 Minutes" — No. 1 four times in the period — was second.

The rating for "Dallas" was 31.1. Nielsen says that means of the homes in the nation with television, 31.1 percent saw at least part of the show.

ABC's top-rated program for the week was a made-for-television movie called "Victims." That show starred Suzanne Pleshette, as did CBS' "Help Wanted: Male," and finished fourth.

CBS' "Falcon Crest" was the highest-rated of the season's new series, in 23rd place, with ABC's "Fall Guy" 24th. "Maverick" on NBC was 30th, with NBC's "Fame," introduced two weeks ago, 44th.

NBC had four of the week's five lowest-rated shows, with "NBC Magazine" 66th followed by "Darkroom" on ABC and three NBC shows, "The Electric Grandmother," "Alice at the Palace" and "Live from Studio 8H: Caruso Remembered."

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated programs:

"Dallas," with a rating of 31.1 representing 25.5 million homes, "60 Minutes," 29.2 or 23.9 million, and Movie "Help Wanted: Male," 28.8 or 23.6

million, all CBS; Movie "Victims," 27.2 or 23.3 million, ABC; "Magnum, P.I.," 26.7 or 21.9 million, and "Dukes of Hazzard," 25.5 or 20.9 million, both CBS; "Three's Company," 25.3 or 20.7 million, ABC; "Too Close for Comfort," ABC, and "M-A-S-H," CBS, both 24.2 or 19.8 million, and "Walt Disney: Tales of the Apple Dumpling Gang," 23.6 or 19.3 million, CBS.

DAINGERFIELD, Texas (AP) — A survivor of the bloody carnage that left five people dead and 10 wounded inside a crowded church sanctuary called it fitting that the accused gunman ended his own life.

Alvin Lee King III, accused of directing a flurry of gunfire at worshippers inside the First Baptist Church of Daingerfield on June 22, 1980, was found hanged in his cell Tuesday, officials said.

Morris County Sheriff Joe Skipper said King, the only prisoner in his jail wing, apparently tore a towel in half, tied the pieces together and around his neck and then hanged himself. He said King could "have changed his mind" at any time by putting his feet on various objects in the cell.

"It's a fitting end," said Jack Dean, who was shot in the hand when he tried to wrest a gun from the man firing indiscriminately into the congregation.

"It relieved the pressure and keeps innocent people from having to get involved. He chose his own death. No one chose it for him," said Dean.

"I've no idea why he would do this," said King's mother, Hazel King, who visited her son in the jail Monday night. "I talked to him yesterday. He said nothing about this. I told him I loved him."

"I'm all alone now. He was all I had." Skipper said King, who had been under heavy security since his transfer last month from a state mental hospital to jail, was found at 5:25 a.m. dangling from a crossbar in his cell.

Morris County attorney Jim Stanley said his office and Texas Rangers would investigate the death. Skipper said the body has been sent to Dallas for an autopsy.

Larry Moser, the city manager of this Northeast Texas town of 5,000 called King's death "unfortunate," but added, "it has been pretty much a relief for everybody."

"All these months we've been in limbo and now a conclusion's been made," he said.

Prosecutors say King was the gunman dressed in battle fatigues who burst through the church door on June 22, 1980, yelled "This is war," and opened fire on Sunday worshippers.

Authorities said King shot himself in the forehead after he was wrestled from the church by two men who were mortally wounded during the scuffle.

Psychiatrists at Rusk State Hospital ruled last month that King, charged with five counts of murder and 10 counts of attempted murder, was mentally competent to stand trial.

"This is the most bizarre thing I have ever handled," noted Houston defense lawyer Percy Foreman said Tuesday. "I've handled homicides, even brutal homicides, but nothing holds sail like this where somebody goes into a church and starts shooting the place up."

"It's unfortunate, we had prepared a defense we thought was adequate and proper considering the mental capacity of the defendant."

King, 46, a Hughes Springs farmer and former high school math teacher, appeared at a pretrial hearing here Monday. State District Judge B.D. Moye planned to rule on a change of venue request Tuesday.

Courtroom spectators wept during the hearing as they listened to a tape recording of a live broadcast of church service and to the burst of gunfire.

Blind Art Lover Unique

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Lowell Lebermann is a wealthy enough Texan to indulge himself as a regular at the Metropolitan and the Guggenheim and the Museum of Modern Art in New York, and he has developed some very definite ideas about what kinds of paintings he likes:

"While I enjoy moderns, I am a good deal more comfortable with the more traditional kinds of art. But I have an abstract over my fireplace at home that looks like those mysterious runways in Peru in the Andes."

But while Lebermann can talk art, the 41-year-old businessman can't see the painting over his fireplace.

He is blind.

"I had a gun accident when I was 13 — classic 'unloaded' gun," he said in a recent interview. "Kid shot me with ratshot when he was showing me the gun. Lost one eye right away and vision in the other eye deteriorated until I finally lost everything except light perception in that eye when I was 21 or 22."

His blindness has not dented the independent investor from a distinguished career of civic involvement, which he added to last year when he took over as President of the Board of Austin's Laguna Gloria Art Museum.

"He has come to every exhibition," said museum director Lawrence Miller. "He has one of the museum staff take him around and describe the works of art to him. It's a great challenge to us to do that, because most of us are visually oriented and we have to translate those feelings into language."

"We had an exhibition called 'Five on Fabric' a while ago," Lebermann said. "These five artists essentially paint on tarps, quilts and all sorts of things, and they use the gamut — from paint to glue and glitter. I examined every piece. It was very tactile."

"You miss the color, but if you have memory of color and form, which I do — I didn't have my gun accident until I was 13 and didn't lose my sight entirely until I was about 21 — so if someone describes something to me, I can conceptualize it pretty well, if fancy."

"But as you would expect, I enjoy sculpture more than anything. I mean, I enjoy having paintings. But I particularly enjoy wood sculpture and metal things — you know, 'touchy-feely' things."

Largely privately supported, Laguna Gloria resides at its original home, a lovely old tree-shaded, Spanish-style residence on Lake Austin once owned by Clara Driscoll, credited with saving the Alamo as a historical shrine.

"Back in '52, my mother was president of Texas Fine Arts and Laguna Gloria," Lebermann said. "As a pre-teenager, I used to play at the Clara Driscoll home on the lake, so I have an emotional attachment to the place."

But museum directors have always been frustrated by a lack of display space. So with Lebermann's help, the museum has begun negotiating acquisition of four large historic warehouse buildings in downtown Austin.

The cyclone that hit Darwin, Australia, on Christmas Day 1974 reached wind speeds of up to 160 mph. The storm killed 50 people and destroyed 90 percent of the city of Australia's remote north coast. An airlift evacuated half the 45,000 population. The code adopted for Darwin's rebuilding now bars structures incapable of withstanding cyclone-force winds.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Sub-freezing temperatures, sleet and snow slowed the pace of state government this week, but the inclement weather didn't stop the political scene from continuing to heat up.

Austin's bad weather forced the state offices to shut down for a day, but Gov. Bill Clements and other political contenders didn't take a day off. Clements, the first Republican governor in Texas since Reconstruction, has let it be known that he intends to make things as difficult as possible for his Democratic challengers. The GOP incumbent says those Democrats—who will be going to the "same trough" for funds—will find it very hard to raise enough money to combat his high name identification level.

On the other hand, the governor says his record in office, favorable rating in the polls and long list of supporters and contributors will make it easy for him to raise the money he needs.

The prospect of a hard fought Democratic primary, however, hasn't kept Clements' Democratic opponents from continuing their attacks on him.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, who is challenging Attorney General Mark White and Tyler Sen. Peyton McKnight for a chance to tackle Clements, has criticized the governor's stand on the recent Texas Employment Commission findings.

Armstrong says Clements was wrong in praising the lay offs. He says the cuts "will not serve the interests of this state."

Campaign Announcements Meanwhile, a number of the state's lawmakers and leading officeholders were officially announcing their plans to seek re-election.

State Sens. Kent Caperton of Bryan and Ed Howard of Texarkana, both Democrats, have announced they will seek another term in their present positions. Howard is a member of the Sunset Advisory Commission, which will review the Public Utility Commission in 1983, while Caperton was a staunch supporter for more stringent radioactive waste regulations during the 1981 session.

Others announcing their candidacies for re-election included Reps. Irma Rangel of Kingsville, Gary Thompson of Abilene and Bo Crawford of Beaumont.

Longview Republican Mike Martin, who still faces felony charges for alleged lying to a Travis County grand jury, has paid his filing fee to seek a second term in the Texas House. Martin goes to trial on aggravated perjury charges in April in Fredericksburg.

Land commissioner candidate Garry Mauro and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, both Democrats, also have paid their filing fees. Hobby's GOP opponent, former Secretary of State George Strake, meanwhile, has picked up the endorsement of the National Alliance of Senior Citizens, Inc., which reportedly found Hobby "lacking" in leadership.

Gov. Clements joined Louisiana Gov. Dave Treen in urging President Reagan to move swiftly to lift the remaining price controls on natural gas.

Following a meeting with Reagan at the White House, the two governors reported that they were optimistic that Reagan would move "aggressively" to end controls. Texas Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and John Tower, however, have indicated it will be difficult to lift the regulations without passing a windfall profits tax similar to the one imposed on oil.

Before his trip to Washington, D.C., Clements told Austin reporters he opposed any windfall profits tax on gas.

More TEC Layoffs The Texas Employment Commission has decided that 500 employees—not the expected 400—will have to go in the latest round of layoffs which become effective Jan. 31.

Those cuts are among some 1,300 employees expected to get their pink slips because of federal budget cuts in job placement programs. TEC says the cuts will be done on the basis of seniority, and one TEC spokeswoman says she narrowly escaped with her job, which she has had since 1977.

The commission, meanwhile, gave its remaining employees more bad news with the announcement that the budget cuts will be harsher than expected, possibly requiring the closure of another 10 to 15 regional job placement offices. Some 59 of those local offices already are being shut down.

Home Care Project In one piece of good news, the Reagan administration announced that Texas will receive $2.2 million to conduct pilot projects aimed at helping both welfare recipients and elderly and disabled Texans.

The program is being funded by the federal Health Care Financing Administration and will use mothers receiving payments under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program to provide home care services to elderly and disabled persons who otherwise could not afford them.

The women will receive training and minimum wage for their work, while the elderly and disabled will receive services that will enable them to remain in their own homes rather than moving to institutions.

Attorney General's Race

A dozen East Texas prosecutors have endorsed former U.S. Attorney John Hannah of Tyler in his bid for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

The district attorneys, led by Nacogdoches County District Attorney Herbert Hancock, say Hannah's experience as a district attorney, state representative and U.S. attorney gives him "the best background possible for the office he seeks."

Hannah says his experience as a U.S. attorney has prepared him to represent state agencies and officials as the state's top legal officer.

Hannah faces former state senator and West Texas State University President Max Sherman in the Democratic primary.

Unless Sen. Bill Meier, a former Democrat, has announced as a GOP contender for the attorney general's post.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — To remove ground-in dirt in the indentations and grooves of my vinyl floor covering, I use sudsing ammonia and a small brush. Pour about two tablespoons of the ammonia directly on the floor and spread over a two foot square area. Then clean with the brush and rinse with warm water. — MRS. W.L.

DEAR POLLY — If your straight pins accidentally spill out of the container, pick them up with a magnet. I recently purchased a feather duster. Now I wonder how I ever did without one. It is so handy for quick clean-ups. My 7-year-old daughter even enjoys dusting now. — MARY

DEAR POLLY — Because large detergent boxes are difficult and messy to handle, I pour the detergent into a plastic pitcher with a cover and large spout. This is easy to manage. A quart-size pitcher is good for about a dozen washer loads. — N.L.

HEALTH Loss of lungs' elasticity

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Several people in our family have been diagnosed as having "Alpha-Trypsin Disease." Would you explain it to us? Is anything being done in the way of research? What is the usual treatment? Cortisone has been prescribed and bronchometers to open lung passages.

DEAR READER — I'm sure you are talking about one of the causes of emphysema, the lung disease associated with expanded lungs. Terminology has changed through the years but today emphysema is used to mean a loss of the normal elastic characteristics of the lung. Normally as you breathe in your lungs stretch, and as you exhale there is an elastic recoil from elastic fibers within the lung sacs.

As we get older all of us lose some of the elasticity. But when too much is lost the air sacs collapse during expiration and obstruct the air flow out of the lungs.

Those elastic fibers are made of protein. Our bodies naturally produce substances called protease. These are enzymes that attack protein and break it down. That is an important function in some instances. But there can be too much of a good thing and some protein, such as the elastic fibers in your lungs, need to be maintained.

To protect against protease, our body produces another enzyme called alpha-1-antitrypsin globulin. When you have enough of this your elastic fibers are protected and your lung elasticity is maintained.

In about 15 percent of adults with emphysema they have an inherited defect in not producing enough alpha-1-antitrypsin globulin. In these people the elastic fibers will degenerate, leading to emphysema. Incidentally, these people can develop emphysema without smoking.

disease worse. Smoking and other sources of air pollutants should be carefully avoided. Once emphysema develops, additional measures, including breathing exercises, postural drainage and lung rehabilitation, may be helpful.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Our newspaper cut off your objection to the use of vitamin E in the treatment of fibrocystic disease of the breast. I have been taking 600 units per day as I understood was recommended by a doctor on the Today Show. I would like to know what your objections to taking it are.

DEAR READER — There has been a preliminary report that vitamin E helps resolve breast lumps from fibrocystic disease. Because of the small series I must consider it preliminary. And my main objection is not about the vitamin E but the real danger that some woman with a lump will start treating herself and not have a qualified examination. No lump in the breast should be ignored or treated at home without an examination. That is very dangerous. If the lump turns out to be cancer and valuable time is lost in having an examination and proper treatment, it could cost a woman her life. That is reason enough to object.

Refugees Now Must Wait Under Rigid Quotas

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — The door flung open by the United States when Fidel Castro took power in Cuba 23 years ago has slammed shut.

With more than 800,000 Cuban exiles now in this country, the federal government has served notice that Cubans who wish to leave the communist island 150 miles from here must wait their turn under rigid quotas.

Andres Rodriguez Hernandez, a 20-year-old stowaway, scrambled off a Panamanian freighter last Wednesday prepared to begin a new life.

Two days later, he was placed on a charter flight back to Havana — the first Cuban sent back to that island nation since 1959.

Epilepsy Association Gets Grant

A $10,200 grant from the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation of Amarillo has been awarded to the High Plains Epilepsy Association, executive director Betty F. Brown has announced.

The grant will be used to expand and enhance the services of the agency through the use of additional staff. Those services include medical guidance and arrangements, counseling, job assistance, transportation, public education, information and referral. The services are available throughout the Panhandle.

Informational meetings which are open to the public are conducted monthly and followed by a newsletter.

The Epilepsy Association is a member agency of United Way of Amarillo, Pampa United Way, Hutchinson County United Way, Moore County United Way and United Way of Deaf Smith County, Inc.

Anyone interested in participating in the agency's activities should contact the Amarillo office at 573-3891.

As many as 5,000 members of Miami's Cuban exile community took to the streets Saturday in a protest finally quelled by police who used tear gas and jailed 34 Cuban-Americans on charges ranging from inciting a riot to assaulting an officer.

Tensions and frustration remain high following the disturbance. Some officials say there is a realization that the Rodriguez deportation was only the most clear-cut of recent indications that U.S. policy for Cuban immigration has changed.

"Cubans have grown accustomed to seeing Miami and the rest of the United States as the lifeboat they have traditionally climbed aboard. The deportation of Rodriguez Hernandez is symbolic of the end of an era," explained Roberto Fabricio, a Miami Herald columnist.

Although the great majority of this country's Cuban exiles arrived legally aboard the "Freedom Flights" of the late 1960s, officials estimate that as many as 10,000 Cubans came here the same way as young Rodriguez — without documentation — and were welcomed with full refugee status and federal assistance.

But the Refugee Act of 1980 — aimed at putting this country "in control of its own borders" — stated that merely fleeing a communist country isn't sufficient grounds for political asylum — the refugee has to prove a "well-founded fear of political persecution." Quotas were established for all regions, including 3,000 in fiscal 1982 from Latin America.

Later that year, Castro made a shambles of the new law by opening the port of Mariel to Cuban-Americans who wished to pick up their relatives. The Cuban government sent nearly 125,000 people — thousands directly from Cuban prisons — to the United States during the "Freedom Flotilla," then refused to take any of them back.

But last year brought strict enforcement of the refugee law, and only about 100 Cubans came to this country as legal immigrants in 1981, with several hundred other Cubans who were political prisoners admitted in a special category.

"In the past years we went out of our way to admit Cuban refugees. But the law has made a very dramatic change," Phil Chicola, of the State Department's Bureau for Refugee Affairs, said in an interview last month. "We are not going to allow any large numbers of Cubans to come in as refugees any time in the near future. If they wish, they can apply to come in as immigrants," he said.

But the Rodriguez deportation brought the new Cuban policy into focus. The Reagan administration, under growing criticism from blacks and liberal leaders for holding all Haitian refugees in refugee camps while seeking court approval to deport them, now faces anger from the Cuban community, too.

"There's no questions left — this case definitely was saying that 'We're going to be tough with Cubans, just like we're tough with Haitians,'" said Monsignor Bryan Walsh of the Catholic Archdiocese of Miami.

Walsh and other observers say that U.S. officials may have misinterpreted negative reaction to the Mariel refugees from Cuban-Americans to think they would also accept the restricted immigration.

"With the fact that every Cuban here has relatives in Cuba that they're concerned about, I think there is genuine anger," said Miami attorney Alfredo Duran, a leader in Cuban-American community.

Duran, Walsh and others expressed outrage at the speedy disposal of the Rodriguez case, saying the youth should have received a full hearing before deportation to a country where, Duran said, "thousands of people have been put in jail for the mere fact that they tried to escape."

State Department officials declined comment on the exile community reaction to the Rodriguez case, but INS spokeswoman Beverly McFarland in Miami observed: "It had not been clear in the Cuban community that the Refugee Act of 1980 ended blanket asylum. "Because of the Cuban boatlift, the attention that would have been paid to the law was focused on the boatlift. This case has highlighted the law."

"I'm sure it's very confusing. These people came here under a different set of rules. It was easier for them," she said. "But we are now applying the same rules across the board."
