Beef exports imminent?

Texas ag commissioner, shown here waving enlarged labels from certified "hormone-free" beef during a recent press conference; says Texas could begin exporting hormone-free beef to the European Community as soon as the USDA takes action.

Hightower: Beef could move fast

AUSTIN (AP)--Exports of hormone-free U.S. beef to Europe could begin quickly if federal agriculture and trade officials reach agreement with the European Economic Community, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower says.

"It could happen very quickly. It can happen as fast as USDA wants it to. We do have beef now that would be eligible for immediate export. There's a lot of meat in the pipeline that just needs to move on through without the hormones added to it," Hightower said.

In an interview Monday, the commissioner voiced optimism that U.S. officials now are behind the "Texas plan" for selling hormone-free beef. "All the early signs are good," she said.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yetter, U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills and top trade officials from the European Economic Community are scheduled to meet this weekend, and Hightower said he expects the beef controversy to be discussed.

The federal government's attitude on the subject appears to have undergone a quick turnaround, Hightower said. "They've gone from saying 'hell no' and you may be in violation of federal law to saying, 'Oh please can we work with you?'"

Hightower said he hopes this weekend's trade meeting means peace will break out in the "beef war," which began when the European community announced a ban on imports of beef treated with growth hormones.

When the U.S. Department of Agriculture initially announced that it couldn't comply with such requirements, Hightower moved to establish a Texas certification program to allow export of Texas-inspected hormone-free beef and veal to Europe.

Then last week, the Bush administration appeared to switch signals, with the president himself saying it was time to "rise above fighting about beef hormones."

Hightower said he had no doubts about his fight with the USDA over exporting hormone-free beef.

"The thing that convinced me we really were right (to try to export Texas beef) was not what the European Community was saying but what our own producers were saying," Hightower explained.

"When a guy with the stature and experience of David Eller (chairman of the Granada Corp., an international beef producer) was not only willing, but actually thought it important, to come forward and make a statement...it became clear to me we were on the right trail."

Hightower said U.S. cattlemen had legitimate fears about the growth hormone issue, adding that Texas agricultural officials sought to emphasize that there is no scientific evidence that the hormones do any harm to humans.

"There was genuine concern by the cattle industry that this could generate a widespread health panic or something," he said. "So we took special precautions to make clear we weren't raising a health issue, we were raising a market issue. We're talking about giving customers what they want."

Copter crashes near Tyler today

TYLER, TEXAS (AP)--A Life Flight helicopter struck a high-voltage line and crashed and burned just north of this East Texas city, killing the pilot and two registered nurses, the Texas Department of Public Safety said.

DPS Communications Operator Stacy Gill said the helicopter was leased by Mother Francis hospital of Tyler and was enroute to a patient at the Tyler hospital at the time of the crash Monday night.

The wreckage was scattered over several acres in a wooded area about three miles north of Tyler, she said.

The name of the pilot was withheld pending notification of relatives.

The registered nurses were identified as Jeanne Lackey, 29, of Lindale, and Kathy Ohlheiser, 31, of Haltom City, Ms. Gill said.

Ms. Gill said the helicopter left the Tyler hospital at the time of the crash Monday night.

Rain and fog was reported in the area at the time of the crash.

At 10:23 p.m., a Smith County resident telephoned authorities to notify them of a fire. It was then discovered that the helicopter had struck the high-voltage line and crashed.

Hospital spokeswoman Beverly Mason said the helicopter was only a few minutes from the hospital's helicopter pad when it crashed.

"They had radioed back to say they were aborting the mission because of the weather," Ms. Mason said.

The crash site was being guarded early today by Smith County deputies, pending the arrival later today of investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board and the Federal Aviation Administration.

County clearing road path

BY ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

The road has been a slightly rocky one for landowners and the county in trying to resolve the building of a road off Farm to Market 1259, southeast of Hereford.

Deaf Smith County commissioners may have made some headway Monday in agreeing to survey where the road would etch its way through the individuals' lots so the landowners can see how much land they might have to surrender.

Commissioner Austin Rose Jr., said the problem of landowners not willing to give part of their land for the one-mile road could only be helped if "if they see the red flags out there where the road is going to go."

The road issue began last summer when Luis Lopez fenced off a road running through his property which 14 landowners and the school buses use.

Lopez claimed his neighbor, John Birkenfeld, had his fence on Lopez' property and Lopez retaliated by fencing the road which has never been designated as an official right of way.

Lopez agreed to take down the fence initially, but then another problem arose when Lopez wanted the county to buy an acre for the road which the county agreed to build and maintain.

Frank Celaya, one of the landowners, said Lopez is the only landowner wanting money for his land whereas five or six others are willing to give $100 each to help build the road.

"I just use the road for private use," said Celaya, "but whenever it rains or snows the school bus can't get in. A caliche road would be just fine with me, but we definitely need a good road out there."

The survey will cost the county about $1,500. Once it is completed, the commissioners will meet with the landowners and try to strike a deal.

"It seems that if the county is gonna pay for the road, the landowners should give the land," said Commissioner John Stribling, in whose precinct the road lies.

The commissioners also could pursue eminent domain over the land and buy it from the landowners or could prove the road as an existing right of way.

"Either way," said Commissioner Troy Don Moore, "it could run into a lot of legal expense."

Simons agreed to send each landowner a letter stating that the county will be surveying the land and will meet with the landowners after the survey.

Attorney problems hit courts

BY ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

The Deaf Smith County district and county courts may have only two Hereford lawyers to appoint to cases if a state ethics committee says attorney Terry Langehennig's recent appointment to the city commission disqualifies his firm from court appointments.

District Attorney Roland Saul said Monday that Langehennig's law firm, Cowser, Line, Easterwood and Langehennig, probably will not be appointed to any cases since Langehennig's commission appointment Feb. 6 could somehow conflict with the criminal cases in which the city police are involved.

"Two or three years ago, it was determined that the city attorneys were disqualified from being appointed to cases in which city police were active because the city attorney could give police advice and there would be a conflict of interest," Saul said.

"I'm not completely sure being on the city commission would be the same thing, but it certainly could be a problem."

Langehennig said that he had no idea his firm would be disqualified if he served on the city commission.

"I never even considered it when I put in my application for the position," Langehennig said. "I've handled court-appointed cases for 12 years and I'd have no problem with doing it anymore if I could get (See LAWYERS, Page 2)

Hints from Heloise

DEAR READERS:

With the spring cleaning months quickly approaching, here's a tip to help you complete two jobs in one.

When you decide to take on the task of spring cleaning, update your home insurance policy at the same time. There are sure to have been purchases since the original listing.

Start by going from room to room when cleaning and list any new items or ones you had missed on the original. Record the date you bought the item, the cost and the estimated replacement cost. Don't forget about the garage, attic or basement inventory when cleaning out the cobwebs.

Write down the serial numbers on all televisions, cameras, VCRs, stereos, answering machines and any other kinds of equipment in your home. These items are generally the first things taken during a burglary.

After you have completed the written inventory and your spring cleaning, back it up with pictures of each room and the contents. No one minds taking pictures of the inside of their home when it is clean!

Take individual photographs of your most valuable possessions and complete room snapshots from different angles. To give an indication of a specific item's size in a photograph, lay a ruler on a table and place the item directly behind it. This is especially helpful when documenting jewelry or figurines. If you own a video camera, video each room in your home and zoom in for details on antiques or other valuables.

When your inventory is complete, send a copy to your insurance agent. Keep the original and any photographs, videos, appraisals, receipts or other documentation in a safe-deposit box or fireproof file box for safe-keeping.

With spring, your home will be clean and your insurance policy will be up-to-date. — Heloise

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My beautiful, bright 27-year-old appeared at my doorstep one evening last year with her 18-month-old child in her arms. She had lost 30 pounds and was flying high on cocaine.

We put her in a hospital, but her "connection" kept bringing drugs to her room.

Three weeks into the program, her doctor called me and said, "Come and get your daughter. She is not responding to treatment." I knew she was dying, so I sat and prayed. I picked up the phone, called a substance abuse clinic and told them my story.

That very day I said to my daughter, "Pack your clothes. I'm taking you to a place where you are going to get well." I prayed for 200 miles.

Today my daughter is six months clean. From the clinic she went to a healthy house. She now has a good job, lives with two recovering addicts and will have her little girl with her within three weeks. She goes to Alcoholics Anonymous every day and is very happy.

The message for your readers with loved ones who are addicted is DON'T GIVE UP! Remember that addicts are powerless to help themselves. They need help from someone who is clear-headed and will stick by them and insist that they get treatment.

Thanks, Ann, for listening to a story with a happy ending. No name, please.—Austin, Tex.

DEAR AUSTIN: Beautiful, I'm sure your letter will give encouragement to those who are struggling with the agonizing problem you faced a while back. They need the kind of hope you have given them. Bless you for sharing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've never seen this problem in your column and I'm too embarrassed to ask anyone else about this. I hope you can help me.

I am a 45-year-old woman, happily married for 25 years (I thought).

Last spring, my 16-year-old daughter introduced me to her new boyfriend. He was 22. After meeting him I felt as if I were 16 and it was "love at first sight." They continued to see one another all summer and fall, and she told me that she was crazy about him. Every time I saw the young fella my heart thumped like mad, but of course I kept my feelings to myself. I prayed that they would become engaged although deep down I knew she was too young for that.

Two weeks ago they broke up. I don't know what happened and I didn't ask. But, Ann, I can't seem to get over it. I am heartbroken and there is a big void in my life. My daughter never talks about him and seems to be adjusting very well. But I'm a wreck. None of this makes any sense. I'm ashamed of myself. Am I sick? Can you help? Please try.—Menopausal Mama (San Diego)

DEARM.M.: Some mothers have a tendency to relive their lives through their daughters. I wouldn't call it "sick," but it isn't entirely healthy.

In time you will recover, Mom. Meanwhile, I hope you won't pressure your daughter to get back with the fellow.

"Everybody Already Knows My Store And What I Carry."

Sound Familiar?

Advertising is news about the marketplace, if you don't advertise, you're telling consumers there's no news from your store. But your competition is fighting for the public's interest with regular ads; if you want to keep your share of the market, you need to be in the same arena, bidding for the business. You need to advertise in the newspaper. Plus, people move out of the area and new people move in. Advertise to bring new customers into the store. Sell your store and your service through newspaper advertising.

NOT CONVINCED?

Newspaper advertising is unlike any other media choice. You're reaching a friendly, receptive audience with your advertising message. So receptive that they pay to have the paper delivered to their home. No wonder consumers consider newspapers the most believable advertising medium.

Newspaper advertising can help your business. It can increase sales and in a competitive market, it can give your business and edge over the other guy.

Landry makes coaching moves

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Tom Landry says he might be around a long time as head coach if the dramatic changes he has made in his Dallas Cowboys' coaching staff pay off.

Landry, stung by a 3-13 season and a last-place finish in the NFL in 1988, replaced defensive coordinator Ernie Stautner and pass coordinator Paul Hackett on Monday.

He gave Stautner the axe to go to a three-man front and pushed Hackett aside because of a difference in offensive philosophy.

Then Landry said he might be in Dallas beyond next year if the owners, whoever they may be, want him around.

"I said all along I would step down when I felt it was time or management felt it was time," Landry said. "That's their (management) decision, too."

"But I don't intend to stop as long as I can make the job what I want it to be. Who knows what might happen next year or the year after that."

Landry hired George Hill as defensive coordinator, and Jerry Rhome, a former Cowboys quarterback, was named quarterbacks coach.

"I'm going to be much more involved with the quarterbacks," Landry said.

Stautner, the Cowboys' defensive coordinator for 20 seasons, was reassigned to work on special projects and will retire after the 1989 season, Landry said.

Rhyme, who was offensive coordinator for San Diego last season, replaces Paul Hackett, who has been reassigned to work on special projects for the club.

"I'll try to find Paul a job with another club with what he does best, coordinating an offense," Landry said.

Hackett, who joined Dallas in 1986 from San Francisco, is currently working on special projects.

Hill, who was fired after the 1988 season by the Indianapolis Colts, was defensive coordinator under Ron Meyer for four seasons.

Stautner joined the Cowboys in 1966 as defensive line coach following two seasons as a player-coach.

"I can't say too much for the contribution that Ernie made with the Cowboys," Landry said. "We had some great seasons and some great Super Bowls. He called every defensive play. Sometime you have to make changes."

Stautner took the news well.

"I can understand that Tom had to change up the defense," Stautner said. "I'm looking forward to helping out in any way I can. I still think I did a good job considering the limitations in manpower."

Landry admitted he had philosophical differences with Hackett.

"I think we're still friends," Landry said.

Landry said he is trying to build the Cowboys back into the power they were in the 1970s.

"My objective is to go out with the Cowboys headed into the right direction," Landry said. "I want to see us turn it around this next year. I'm on the bottom and I want to go up. That's why I have no intention of retiring unless it's forced on me."

Landry said he will pay more attention to the offense next year and let Hill work a 3-4 defense into the Cowboys' scheme.

Dallas was 26th in the NFL last year in points allowed.

Asked if his famed four-man-line "flex" defense was dead, Landry said, "You might say it's nicked up some. I don't see the 'flex' as the main part of our defense next year."

Landry likes Hill because his defenses bend but don't break.

His 1987 Indianapolis team allowed only a league-low 238 points.

"His defenses don't give up the big play and that's what has been killing us," Landry said. "He plays a lot of zone. The defense will be his while I concentrate on the offense."

Landry also announced he will go to UCLA soon to see quarterback Troy Aikman and decide if he will be Dallas' No. 1 pick.

"I'll go to UCLA too look at him personally," Landry said. "If we do decide to take him we'd like to get him in Dallas by April. But it would be a miracle if we signed him early."

Landry also is looking to hire a running backs coach after Al Lavan announced Friday he had accepted a similar position with San Francisco.

Billie Matthews, who lost his job with the Kansas City Chiefs, is expected to be hired to replace Lavan.

Asked if he thought his players would take to the new coaches, Landry said, "If they want to be around they will."

Oklahoma QB arrested Monday

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma, plagued by a series of unrelated incidents since being slapped with a three-year probation, was jolted Monday night when FBI agents arrested starting quarterback Charles Thompson on a federal complaint of selling cocaine to an undercover agent.

Thompson, whom Coach Barry Switzer had suspended earlier in the day, is scheduled to appear before a U.S. magistrate today. U.S. Attorney Bill Price said he faces up to 20 years in prison and $1 million in fines if he is convicted.

Price said Thompson's arrest culminated a six-month investigation. Thompson allegedly sold 17 grams of cocaine to an FBI agent for $1,400 on Jan. 26.

Thompson thus becomes the fifth Oklahoma football player to be suspended since the NCAA placed the Sooners' on three years' probation in December, mostly for recruiting violations.

The NCAA also chastized Switzer for failure to "exercise supervisory control" over the program.

Switzer said he would "say nothing more at this time about the matter" when he suspended Thompson Monday afternoon.

"I just said I'm not gonna discuss it anymore," Switzer said later Monday evening. "I've made my decision, and that's it."

Public Notice

On November 9, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company filed a tariff which proposes to prevent local exchange calling over interstate, unrestricted, multi-jurisdictional, WATS Access Lines (UWALs) and intrastate WATS Access Lines (WALs).

UWALs are provided to interexchange carriers for their use in the provision of interexchange interstate and intrastate long-distance and WATS-type services. Similarly, WALs are designed for use in the provision of interLATA and intraLATA WATS services. The UWALs and WALs were not intended to allow local exchange calling.

If these proposed tariff changes are approved, the blocking of local exchange calls over intrastate WATS access lines and UWALs will take place within 30 days. This proposed tariff change will not result in the blocking of local calls placed to an 800 Service number.

The Public Utility Commission (PUC) of Texas has assigned this matter to Docket 8421. A hearing on the merits of these proposed tariff changes is scheduled for March 13, 1989.

It's a different world for Daly, Missouri

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Rich Daly's world had been turned upside down for only a few hours when he realized what the toughest part would be.

"Handling the press," said the only full-time coach Missouri has left.

A week ago, Daly was an obscure junior assistant to head coach Norm Stewart, a recruiting specialist whose real job was on the road, not on the bench. In six years on the staff, there had not been a season when travel demands had let him even attend all Missouri's games, let alone coach them.

But now here he is, matching coaching wits with the likes of Billy Tubbs and Johnny Orr ... talking into microphones and glaring television lights ... awaiting the appearance of NCAA investigators ... taking charge of a talented collection of athletes many experts believe are solid Final Four material, the best Stewart's had in 22 years at Missouri.

"I'm just doing this job day by day," Daly said Monday. "I don't know what is going to happen next."

The most tumultuous week in Missouri basketball history began last Tuesday when the Bob Sundvold story broke, implicating Stewart's No. 1 assistant in violations of NCAA rules concerning former player P.J. Mayes.

Twenty-four hours later, Sundvold was put on suspension with pay pending an internal investigation and a day after that, Stewart passed out and went into convulsions.

A bleeding ulcer, doctors have announced, will keep Stewart hospitalized at least "several more days."

There is no assurance Stewart will be able to return to his team at all this year.

"Like most head coaches, Norm handled the coaching," Daly said. "My job was recruiting. Coach Sundvold scouted the other teams, and gave scouting reports, knew more about the other teams than I did. Everybody knew what everybody else was doing. Now I'm in a position where I have to do the scouting and the coaching. I don't know who's out there doing the recruiting."

A 112-105 loss to Oklahoma the night Stewart fell ill and Saturday's 93-80 victory over Kansas have given Daly a 1-1 record as acting head coach.

Missouri, the first Division I team this year to reach 20 victories, will take a 21-4 mark Tuesday night to Iowa State. Then comes a four-day break, possibly a chance for Daly to get better organized, before Sunday's home game against Nebraska.

"An assistant is still not the head coach," Daly said. "When you can have 5-6 days of practice where you can get after 'em two days; then lighten up before a game, that's what you need."

The team that has been thrust upon Daly is a good blend of youth and experience with four seniors and a savvy junior guard in Lee Coward.

"We have awful good players, including the four seniors," Daly said. "We have some pretty good leadership. We hope that leadership stays with us."

Daly is looking forward to the free days between Tuesday night and Sunday.

"That will be the time right there that will tell what's going to happen with this team," he said.

Sundvold's status with the team is unclear at best. There is no way to know when Stewart will be ready to resume command of his team.

So that leaves Daly, something of a lonely figure on the bench doing his best under exceedingly difficult circumstances.

"It's going to be one day at a time," Daly said. "We just have to see what's going to happen. I talked to Norm on a couple of occasions, and he just says to go out there and have fun and do what you need to do."

Challenging, yes, but all that's been dumped on Daly hardly sounds fun.

"I'm having fun," he insists. "But there are a lot of distractions. It would be easy if you just went out there and coached, but the complete job is everything that goes with it. There hasn't even been enough time between games for practice."

Besides organizing practices and making split-second game decisions, Daly is also unaccustomed to the constant media barrage that head coaches of Top Twenty teams must endure.

"Every time a question is asked, you can't just come back with an answer," he said. "You have to stop and think what the repercussions will be. I'm doing this job day to day. But that's one of the toughest things."

Hoyas halt Syracuse

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Georgetown guard Charles Smith makes his share of baskets, but it's his defense that earns him points in the eyes of Coach John Thompson.

Smith stymied Syracuse playmaker Sherman Douglas in the second half Monday night, holding him without an assist to help No. 4 Georgetown tighten its hold on first place in the Big East with a 61-54 victory over the sixth-ranked Orangemen.

Douglas, the Big East career assist leader, finished with almost as many turnovers (five) as he did assists (six) and missed 10 of 15 shots from the floor before fouling out.

"I thought the key was that Smitty did a great job on Douglas," Thompson said. "Smitty got his scholarship on defense — he knows how he got here."

In the only other college basketball games involving Associated Press Top Twenty teams, Darryl Frue scored 21 points as No. 14 West Virginia defeated St. Bonaventure 80-72, extending the nation's longest winning streak to 19 games — including 13-0 in the Atlantic 10 Conference, and Roy Marble scored 18 of his 24 points in the first half and B.J. Armstrong added 20 to pace No. 15 Iowa over No. 16 Ohio State 83-75.

Led by Douglas' six assists and 16 points by Derrick Coleman, Syracuse held a 30-28 halftime lead over Georgetown. But Smith took over in the second half, scoring five of his 16 points in a 13-3 burst after the intermission that gave the Hoyas a 41-33 lead.

Syracuse, which had a seven-game winning streak snapped, never got closer than four points after that and scored only 24 points in the second half in its lowest-scoring outing of the season.

"Sherman does so much for them," Thompson said. "He gets the offense moving, he throws alley-oops, he gets them in transition."

Normally, yes. But Smith put a stop to all that.

"We didn't get very many fastbreak opportunities," Syracuse coach Jim Boheim acknowledged. "Smith had something to do with that."

Said Smith: "Defense is the key to our victories. You can come to the game without a jump shot, but you can't show up without defense."

The victory enabled the Hoyas, 19-3 overall and 9-2 in the conference, to move two games in front of second-place Seton Hall. Syracuse is 21-5 and 7-5.

Perhaps as important as Smith's defense on Douglas was the job the Hoyas did on Coleman, who had only six second-half points, finishing with 22.

No. 14 W. Virginia 80, St. Bonaventure 72

At Olean, N.Y., the 6-9 Prue had an easy time shooting over 6-3 Kyle Anglin.

"They had a 6-3 guy guarding me most of the second half and we tried to run some plays to get me the ball," Frue said. "I've played a lot of wing (outside) this year, and with Chris (6-6 power forward Chris Brooks) down low, I guess they think Chris is more powerful than I am. I like it. I know play's going to come to my side when they do that."

With West Virginia ahead 40-35 at halftime, Prue scored six of the Mountaineers' first 10 second-half points in a 10-4 burst.

Rocky Llewellyn led the losers with 20 points.

No. 15 Iowa 83, No. 16 Ohio St. 75

At Iowa City, Iowa improved to 18-6, while Ohio State dropped to 17-7. Both are 6-5 in the Big Ten.

Iowa led 44-43 at halftime and scored the first 11 points of the second half. But Ohio State retaliated with a 10-0 spurt and got within 55-53. Iowa then scored eight of the next 10 points, taking a 63-55 lead.

The Buckeyes got within 76-73 layup with 47 seconds left, but Ed Horton hit the front end of a one-and-one and Armstrong made all six free throw attempts in the final 36 seconds.

Ohio State's Jay Burson scored 25 points. Marble led Iowa with 24.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

- All 172 pages in full color
- Each page measures a large 15 x 11 inches
- Presents the entire state in stunning detail
- Appendices and specialty maps of many different features

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Become one of the first in our community to own a copy of this magnificent atlas.

What they're saying about "The Roads of Texas"

"When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS ... you'll wonder how you ever travelled the state without it." —Texas Highways Magazine, October, 1988

Camping club formed for RVers

If you are single and enjoy the RV lifestyle, but do not like to travel or camp alone, consider the LONERS OF AMERICA, and come to the rally for West Texans and Eastern New Mexicans set March 31-April 2 in Gaines County Park.

Loners of America (LOA) is a year-old nationwide group of RVers. Almost all are retired and all are singles--widowed, divorced, whatever--who just can't stay off the road. Membership has topped the 1200 mark, and 100 of them are Texans.

They camp together, rally together, and caravan together, thus helping fill the void felt after being left alone. They travel from one part of the country to another, meeting old friends and making new LOA friends along the way.

About the only thing they don't do together is share the same RV. "Loners of America is not a singles club to help find a mate, or a matchmaking service," says its membership literature. "The club not only frowns on 'hanky-panky' behavior, but will suspend an offender's membership." This is not to say that friendships and companionships are discouraged. These situations must not get out of control to the detriment of other members and the club reputation. Two men, two women, or blood relatives (mother/son, brother/sister) may travel together.

The only requirements for membership are that you must be legally single and have a camping vehicle. If you marry (or adopt that lifestyle at club functions) your membership will be automatically terminated.

Camping equipment is whatever you are comfortable with--van, motorhome, travel trailer, or tent.

Many were family campers at one time, others never camped before; but all enjoy the great outdoors & fellowship the club affords.

Yours $20-a-year national dues brings you a monthly chatty newsletter loaded with club events and campout schedules from all over the country, chapter news, news about members and an annual Membership Directory. Members are encouraged to visit chapter campouts as they travel across country. LOA is a member owned and operated club whose slogan is, 'Of Members...By members...For Members.'

LOA has two very active chapters in Texas: the Texas LOAers in the Houston-Temple-San Antonio area, and the Dixie Wheelers in the Dallas-Longview-Beaumont area. A third chapter is being organized in the Corpus Christi-Harlingen area. They would like to start a chapter in West Texas, and YOU are invited.

Loners of America will have a Spring Rally for West Texans and Eastern New Mexicans at the Gaines County Park, between Seagraves and Seminole on US Hwy 62 and 385 the weekend on March 31st, April 1st and 2nd. Camping fee is $4 per night. The $6 Rally fee pays for the clubhouse and two breakfasts. Also, bring a can of stew and either a salad, vegetable or dessert for the pot luck dinner.

For more information contact Estelle Wallace, 2125 54th St., Lubbock, Tx. 79412--or just get in your rig and come. Visitors are always welcome. 'Bring an adventuresome spirit, a sense of humor, adaptability, friendliness and a friend,' noted a spokesman.

Group welcomes a guest

Monty Campbell of Cherry Point, N.C., son of Ray and Lita Campbell, was recognized as a special guest when members of the Hereford Good Sam Chapter met Feb. 10 at the Hereford Community Center.

The group met for a meal of chili, stew and cornbread and then played card games for the evening's entertainment.

Rosalie Northcutt reported that she had been presented her lifetime membership to the Good Sam Club International. Also, it was announced that the High Plains Good Sam Chapter of Clovis, N.M.

had been invited to visit the local club March 9 at its regular monthly meeting.

Those present included Delbert and Veralee Bainum, Ray and Lita Campbell, Elmer and Norma Carlson, Jake and Betty Mosely, Horace and Mildred LaFever, Clint and Dorothy Lundry, Howard and Mary Jane Gore, Rosalie Northcutt, Catherine Russell, Curl and Pauline Kropff, Auther and Melvina Kropff, Howard and Stella Hershey, L.J. and Irene Mathews, Bob and Ruth Morris and Rhoda Mays.

The group will meet March 9 at the Hereford Community Center.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: When I was growing up I overheard older women talk about having a hysterectomy or going through the change and how it completely destroyed their sex life.

I am 50 years old, had a hysterectomy seven years ago and have never felt better. My sex drive is great! My hysterectomy was a relief for both of us because we didn't have to worry about more babies. We have six children. That part of our life is over. We are able to spend more time with each other and will enjoy grandchildren if we are blessed with some.

Would you please, please do women a favor and tell them their problem with sex may be emotional or physical and has nothing to do with going through the menopause or having a hysterectomy. They are still beautiful, loving women.

DEAR READER: You have told them. The response to a hysterectomy and the menopause is quite varied. The removal of the uterus should not have any effect on a woman's sex life at all. There are no known nerve fibers or hormones related to the uterus that are involved in having sex. However, many women have their ovaries removed with a hysterectomy or their ovaries begin to fail as they enter the menopause. The loss of hormones from the ovaries, not from taking out the uterus, can have significant effects on a woman's interest in sex. Female hormones, specifically estrogens, do make a difference.

When the ovaries are removed at an early age, it is essential that a woman have estrogen replacement. The ovaries of some women who go through the menopause continue to produce a hormone which can be converted to a form of estrogen by body fat cells. These women are less likely to have the changes associated with an estrogen deficiency. Of course, estrogen replacement for those who do have a significant deficiency will have an effect and can affect a woman's sex life.

I'm sending you Special Report 56, Hysterectomy, Cystocele and Rectocele, for more information on how a hysterectomy affects women. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

It is also true that some women have psychological reactions to the menopause or after a hysterectomy. Depression, which may occur independent of either, can certainly affect a woman's sex life adversely.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Please answer my letter in your women's column so my wife will read it. I am 54 and she is 53. We always had a very good sex life until three years ago when she began withdrawing from me. She had a hysterectomy and has gone through her menopause. According to her, when you have a hysterectomy or go through the menopause, your sex life stops.

She will not see a doctor because she said there is nothing wrong with her. Could you please give some advice? I would love to know I have to give up sex and live to be 70.

DEAR READER: As the other letter in this column indicates, a woman's sex life need not be over because of the menopause or because of a hysterectomy. But your wife may be deficient in estrogen. The estrogen level definitely does have a lot to do with a woman's normal sex drive. Or she may have a depression, which would need treating. I must add your personal relationship may be a factor. In any case it is important to her health for her to see her doctor about this. If it is a sign of a low estrogen level or depression she needs medical attention.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Can you have a balanced diet and not use any sugar or sweets at all? My neighbor doesn't use any sugar or sweets and doesn't allow her children or husband to either. She says sugar is bad for you. They all seem to be too thin to me, and her husband is always tired. Is there any danger from not using any sugar at all?

DEAR READER: Much of mankind got along very well without sugar for centuries. Honey was about the only source of sweets. Your body doesn't need sweets. But it does need carbohydrates, which it can get from the starch in vegetables, cereals and the carbohydrates in fruits and even milk.

Sugar is an excellent source of calories for those who need lots of calories, such as people doing lots of physical work. Sugar is the best food source for quick energy. If you limit your calories too much by cutting out sugar, sweets, flour and fats, you will feel tired.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Hysterectomy/Oophorectomy

A partial hysterectomy removes the body of the uterus. A complete hysterectomy removes the body and cervix of the uterus. Removal of the ovaries is not part of a hysterectomy but is an oophorectomy.

Treat minor strains, sprains with R.I.C.E.

With the trend toward more participation in sports and other physical activity showing no slowdown, it is only natural that more minor strains and sprains are being reported. Quick treatment often speeds up the healing process and prevents such injuries from becoming severe or recurring problems.

Many physicians recommend a method of treatment identified as the R.I.C.E. Therapy: Rest, Ice, Compression, Elevation. When initiated immediately following injury, R.I.C.E. treatment can help control inflammation, reduce swelling, relieve pain and speed the healing process after sprains, strains, tendonitis and many other injuries.

-Rest: Do not exercise until pain and swelling have subsided. After several days, you should be able to start moving and exercising the joint, helping to strengthen the muscles and heal the ligaments.

-Ice: Apply cold compresses as soon as possible after the injury occurs. An Ace Reusable Cold Compress is recommended for approximately 30 minutes at a time with 30 minutes between applications.

-Compression: Apply compression with an Ace Elastic Bandage to help reduce swelling: Compression should be used simultaneously with cold compresses.

-Elevation: Elevate the injured part, if possible, to help drain excess fluid from the area.

The key to this treatment is the use of cold. The application of cold reduces the flow of blood and other fluids through that area, and therefore helps to reduce local swelling. In addition, cold also helps to relieve pain in the area by reducing the sensitivity of the local nerve endings. When away from home, the Ace Instant Cold Compress can provide immediate cold therapy without refrigeration.

Heat should never be used when first treating an injury because it increases swelling and tends to immobilize the joint.

After 24 to 48 hours, when swelling has been reduced, alternating heat compresses with the cold compresses will help circulate blood to the injured area, and speed up the healing process.

If pain is severe or persistent, or the area feels extremely tender, see a doctor immediately. There is always the chance that it is a severe strain, sprain or even a fracture. Recurring injuries also should be checked by a physician.

Camp Fire awards given

Several awards were presented during the Feb. 7 annual meeting of Hereford Council of Camp Fire, Inc. The Luther Halsey Gulick Award, named for the organization's founder, was presented to Larry Pagett, left, in recognition of his service to Camp Fire over the years. The national Good News award was given to Chuck Moore, right, citing his efforts in public and community relations.

Develop health plan

Here are some points to keep in mind as you develop a plan for achieving your health goals:

-Start slow. Your body needs time to adjust to the changes you're making. Whatever you decide to do, ease into it.

If you're dieting, don't cut your daily calorie intake drastically, besides making yourself miserable, you will wreck yourself with your metabolism. Frequent crash dieting actually slows your metabolism, making it very hard for you to lose weight.

-Be flexible. Your health plan is not carved in stone, so don't feel that you must adhere to it rigidly. The key is to make the plan fit into your lifestyle.

You may find, for example, that you simply don't have the time for an hour-long aerobic workout, five days a week, or that it's impossible to diet when you're facing a deadline at work. In such cases, you must adapt your plan, so that you can realistically hope to adhere to it.

Variety will keep you from getting bored. With so many different sports and activities available, why not vary your routine?

Cultural Club meets

The Cultural Extension Club met in the home of Naomi Hare last Friday for a program on leadership entitled "Temperament."

Jewell Hargrave and the hostess gave the program.

The opening prayer was voiced by Fannie Townsend and Winnie Wiseman read "Why Feb. 14th."

Carrie Mae Doak served as secretary due to illness of Bertha Dettmann.

Hargrave presided over the business session when members voted to take care of the birthday parties at Golden Plains nursing home for their 1989 project. Perry Keyes and Winnie Wiseman were appointed to finalize those plans.

It was announced that members would have charge of setting the tables for the Appreciation Luncheon to be held Feb. 27 at the Community Center.

Attending were Jewell Rogers, Nell Pope, Edna Marnell, Vernis Parsons, S.T. Walton, Edith Hunter, Townsend, Wiseman, Doak, Hargrave, and Keyes.

Names in the News

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Phil Donahue dressed in drag for a show on transvestites, but talk-show host Sally Jessy Raphael has gone one further: She donned a hooker's outfit on New York's 42nd Street and got a proposition.

Raphael's stunt was filmed for a Feb. 20 show on prostitutes and their families.

"One of the things these women say when you go to interview them is, 'You haven't walked in our shoes.' Well, Sally — who is not a big fan of all that — walked in their shoes," said Burt Dubrow, executive producer of Raphael's nationally syndicated talk show, normally filmed at WTNH in New Haven.

After interviewing a hooker, Raphael last week put on an outfit Dubrow described as tasteless and joined the woman on 42nd Street.

Dubrow said some passers-by recognized Raphael immediately because of her trademark red eyeglasses. There was an attempt to proposition her, but "it stopped as soon as they realized who she was," he said.

"You won't see that on tape," Dubrow added.

Raphael was in Florida on Monday and couldn't be reached for comment, an office assistant said.
