Schultz accepts Soviet invitation to Moscow

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, described as "extremely pleased" with growing allied solidarity, is sending Secretary of State George Shultz to meet with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in an attempt to narrow superpower differences prior to the Geneva summit.

Shultz, following a two-hour meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze in New York on Friday, virtually ruled out the possibility that Reagan and Gorbachev would conclude an arms control agreement at their Nov. 19-20 summit meeting.

But he said a major summit objective would be to "set out an agenda for the future, to have a sense of direction of where we think and they think this relationship should go."

With Reagan's encouragement, Shultz said he accepted a Soviet invitation to meet with Gorbachev in Moscow on Nov. 4-5 in keeping with a joint pledge by Shultz and Shevardnadze to lay the groundwork for well-prepared and productive summit talks.

"I would have to say there are major differences that need to be resolved, and we hope that some of them may get resolved before the meeting in Geneva," Shultz told reporters outside the U.S. mission to the United Nations following his breakfast meeting with Shevardnadze.

The Soviet foreign minister told reporters that "great hopes are pinned to that summit meeting by literally all peoples in the world," and that both sides were dedicated to seeking a successful outcome.

Shultz and other U.S. officials denied that Reagan had decided to make a counteroffer to Gorbachev's recent proposal for a 50 percent reduction in nuclear missiles and warheads.

But these officials left open the possibility that Reagan might decide on a U.S. response in time for Shultz to take it to Moscow.

Also Friday, NBC News reported Reagan and Gorbachev have scheduled four private meetings at the Geneva summit.

The network also said Gorbachev plans to invite Reagan to Moscow in 1986 "if there are visible results at the summit — meaning some kind of agreement on arms control principles." NBC also said Reagan is prepared to invite Gorbachev to visit the United States.

White House spokesman Mark Weinberg declined comment on the report.

The president concluded his three-day New York visit by conferring separately Friday with Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone of Japan and Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany. From New York, Reagan and his wife, Nancy, flew directly to their Camp David, Md., mountain retreat for the weekend.

Bloodmobile to visit, needs increasing

With the holiday season approaching and specified donations to the Coffee Memorial Blood Bank being discontinued there is a greater demand for blood donors on the local level, according to Betty Taylor, chairman of the Women's Division Chamber of Commerce blood drive.

Taylor said the monthly visit of the bloodmobile was cancelled last Wednesday due to a blood drive at West Texas State University. The bloodmobile will make its Hereford stop this Wednesday from 4 until 7 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

County commission to meet

Purchase of vehicles for the county sheriff's office and how the courthouse will be lighted for Christmas are among items on the Deaf Smith County Commissioners' agenda for Monday. Commissioners will meet at 10 a.m. in the courthouse.

Other agenda items include discussion of the county's caliche policy, appointment of a person to a grievance committee, discussion of a hearing date for herbicide regulation revisions, discussion of the Panhandle Alcoholic Recovery Center, and a closed session to discuss personnel.

Gramm in Amarillo today

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm will be in Amarillo today for a regional town meeting.

The meeting will be at 5:45 p.m. in the second floor conference room of the Amarillo National Plaza, Fifth and Taylor.

Beehive of success

Faithful volunteers keep Center active

By MARGARET BELL
Staff Writer

The Senior Citizens Center of Hereford is a beehive of activities, and its director, Margie Daniels credits much of the success of its varieties of programs to the large number of volunteers who give their time willingly and faithfully.

"We simply could not continue the operation of this center without all the volunteers who are here without pay," Mrs. Daniels says.

The six ladies who serve behind the counter each day at lunch make possible the quick and cheerful serving of meals to hundreds each day. These volunteers who have agreed to put the food on the trays as it is selected by the senior citizens diners are scheduled to be there on a regular basis, and others are standing by an substitutes should they be needed.

Two other volunteers who add cheerful atmosphere to the dining room are those who take requests from seated handicapped diners and bring their trays to the tables for them. These two also carry pitchers of tea and coffee to offer refills to everyone and to greet newcomers and the center's regulars with a cheerful "hello" and welcome. This service eliminates the need for people wanting refills to go back and forth to the serving line.

The senior citizens center provides home delivered food service to about 140 clients each day. The requirement for receiving this service is to be 60 years of age and to be unable to prepare one nutritious meal each day because of physical handicaps. Drivers of the two home delivery vans are paid workers, but four volunteers from the Frio Baptist Church come to the center each day to assist in the deliveries. One volunteer takes the food from the hot and cold boxes which have been filled in the center's kitchen. On arrival at the home of the client, the food is delivered to the person's table by the other volunteer. His/her job is not only to present the food in an appetizing way to the disabled client but also to make sure that the person is all right and can continue to stay alone. "Sometimes the volunteers come back here to report to me that a client needs medical attention. We move quickly to secure services of a doctor, and we have on occasion arranged for a person to be taken to Deaf Smith County Hospital," Mrs. Daniels reports.

The volunteers who make this government Title III home delivery of food possible begin their route at about 10:30 a.m. and complete the circuit at about 12:15. Mrs. Daniels expresses hope that another van can be added to the center's fleet so that the deliveries can be made more quickly and involve more clients, too.

Barbers, beware! If a woman comes to your shop and asks for a shave, you'd better give her one.

A woman in California recently sued a hair salon because her three-year-old daughter's haircut cost $2 more than her four-year-old son's. The woman took a stopwatch into the salon and found it took 13 minutes to cut her son's hair and only 11 minutes to trim her daughter's bangs.

So, in the first hairy case in the nation, the woman sued, claiming sex discrimination. Last week the beauty shop agreed to settle out of court. What we label as "silly lawsuits" are popping up all over the nation. We've read about instances where young women have filed suits in order to play on varsity football teams.

Women reporters want in the football locker rooms, and there is the long-time controversy about equal pay. Another suit on sex discrimination had to be ironed out recently when a customer sued a cleaners in Los Angeles that charged more to clean women's clothes than men's.

Sometimes this "equal rights" business goes too far. Female guards at a Minnesota state prison have now been given the authority to pat-search male inmates. One female guard hailed the ruling as a milestone in women's rights. She called it "a big step forward in cor-

Thanks For All The Help

Dr. I.M. Atkins, left, was honored Tuesday by the Golden K Kiwanis Club for his service as club president. Dr. Atkins was instrumental in leading the club in many community projects over the past year. He was presented a plaque by Cecil Boyer.

Golden 'K' boys to sell light bulbs

The Golden K Kiwanis Club of Hereford will begin its second annual Light Bulb Sale this week, it was announced by club President I.M. Atkins.

The club was organized among senior citizens in April 1984 and has now completed its first year of programs and activities in Hereford.

The first project accomplished from funds of the fund-raising light bulb sale was the improvement of the small triangle park across from Stanton Junior High. By establishing a series of species, flowers have provided a beauty spot throughout the year.

Starting with mums last fall, the small park then had red tulips, followed by marigolds for the summer and mums again this fall. It was named "Beauty Spot of the Month" in April by the Women's Division of the chamber of commerce.

Golden K, in cooperation with the noon and breakfast Kiwanis Clubs, provided funds to the Senior Citizen Center for a complete lawn sprinkler system. It was installed by Golden K members, who have also provided a projector and screens for the center. Members have also assisted in care of the Hereford Cemetery and participated in the Town & Country Jubilee in August.

Dr. Atkins reported that Golden K members have devoted 1,777 hours of service to the community and provided $2,100 in funds for the several projects during 1985.

CENTER

Clyde and Catherine Russell, longtime residents of the Hereford area, are given special recognition for their willingness to take persons to Amarillo doctor appointments when the center vans have been used to take five or six persons a day to Amarillo for long term treatments at centers there.

Adding tremendous interest to the HSCC program are the volunteer instructors who give lessons to the center's members. Lorene Newman is a longtime volunteer in giving lessons in oil painting. Carmen Angel teaches photograph tinting and many of the avid bridge players who gather in the center's game room each day are students of the bridge expertise of Mozelle Neill.

Money for the center's general operating fund is earned by quilters who sit around their "quilt-in-progress" every afternoon for some visiting and work. One room in the center is designated as the quilting room because of the importance of the activity taking place there. Area citizens may bring quilts to the center to be quilted and finished. The schedule of charges is $30 for a baby quilt, $40 for a twin size, $50 for a full size, $60 for a queen size, and $70 for a king size. Pauline House and Juanita Hershey are the volunteers in charge of the quilting service and spend long hours at the work.

Another special room at the center is the meeting space for the Golden K Kiwanis Club whose members are mostly also members of the HSCA. Their volunteer work at the center has included the raising of funds to provide a sprinkler system for the exterior landscaping. At present, the Kiwanians are hard at work putting in the grass seed to assure the new lawn's beauty when the spring of 1986 arrives.

The keeping of records of volunteer hours is of great importance to the center's operation, Mrs. Daniels reports, and she credits Sue Coleman and Audrey Powell with the very fine records which have been done. Sue's fine work includes the recording of all donations made to the center with a careful card file kept of the donors' names.

Opal Elliston and June Patterson serve regularly in checking in everyone who has made a reservation for lunch, and other volunteers assist the staff in counting the donations made each day. Guidelines for serving the meals require that two people must be involved in the money tally, Mrs. Daniels states.

A new activity soon to begin at the center is line dancing, with Olga Harris as the volunteer instructor. Once the dancers have learned the routines, costumes are planned so that the line dancers may present programs to center audiences. Other programs which are arranged by center members involve devotionals by area ministers and musical events with rhythm band or handbell participants. Birthday socials are a part of each month's agenda with center senior citizens as the honorees.

A key group of volunteers in any on-going agency is its board of directors and the HSCC is no exception. The board will soon be appointing new committees to carry out projected plans, and these include the gift shop and those of the activities personnel.

Motorists should be extra careful during Halloween

Major V.J. Cawthon, Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety Region 5 said, "Halloween can be fun if celebrated legally and safely. Small children should be accompanied by an adult when trick-or-treating."

The motorists should be extra careful. Children will be excited while trick-or-treating and not paying attention to traffic. The life you save, may be your own child.

A pedestrian's chance of getting killed or injured are increased 800 percent at night. The adult must think of the children's safety. Halloween should be a safe and enjoyable time for everyone.

Major Cawthon said, "Parents should carry a flashlight to serve as a warning to the motorists. As an added traffic safety measure on poorly lit streets, children should be instructed to use sidewalks and not jay walk."

The DPS cautions against permitting youngsters to carry jack-o-lanterns with lighted candles due to the possibility of the costume catching fire. Also throwing objects such as water balloons at moving vehicles could result in disaster.

In summary, it is suggested that trick-or-treaters not do anything to anyone, even in fun, that they would not want done to them during Halloween, or any other time.

rections for equal opportunity for women."

Opportunity? We'd better not touch that line.

There is much talk and more concern about the AIDS-Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome problem, but an article in the Wall Street Journal has some revealing facts about the disease.

According to the federal government's Center for Disease Control (CDC), 13,834 cases of AIDS has been reported since the CDC started investigating AIDS in 1981. That's not near as many cases as the public generally thinks.

Another point is that the general public thinks AIDS strikes healthy people. The CDC study reveals that 79 percent of the AIDS patients are drug abusers. AIDS had been primarily identified with sex among homosexuals, but now the shared traits appear to be sexual experimentation, promiscuity and drug abuse. The other big announcement is that the disease after big increases, is nearing a stable level.

Additionally, the course can knock off 10 percent of a driver's tab for liability, personal injury and collision insurance, usually for three years.

"We have a lot that take advantage," says Sharon Johnson of Jerry Shipman State Farm Insurance. "Even if you take it in the course of work you can use it for personal insurance cuts."

She said most utility companies and other firms require hired drivers to take the course. Even if the course is taken with the intent to erase a current ticket, insurance companies usually count it for the discount.

Jeanie Grace, who recently completed a course, says, "Everybody should take it. It teaches you that every accident is preventable."

Area courses being offered are: On Saturdays from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. at Amarillo College, 24th and Jackson in Amarillo, on the following dates, Nov. 2, Nov. 9, Nov. 16, Nov. 23, Dec. 7 and Dec. 14.

AC also offers the course on Tuesday and Thursday nights, both sessions are needed to complete the course, from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m. on the AC campus. Sessions will be held Nov. 19 and 21 and Dec. 10 and 12.

Monday and Wednesday courses from 6 until 10 p.m. are set at AC's campus on Nov. 4 and 6; and Dec. 2 and 4.

AC extends the course to the Randall County Courthouse on Nov. 9 and Dec. 14 for 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday sessions.

In Hereford, AC will conduct the course on Nov. 16 and Dec. 7 at Hereford High School, room 110.

Pre-enrollment is required and all enrollment must be finalized through the office of Charles Gaither, 376-7904, or Box 447, Amarillo, 79178. The course costs $20.

WIPP site has been cursed and commended, both in court and Congress for past ten years

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — The Waste Isolation Pilot Plant has been cursed and commended, both in court and in Congress, in the 10 years since its inception.

Today, it continues to be controversial, although the crusades against the nation's first home for low- and intermediate-level defense-related nuclear waste have quieted somewhat as the repository nears completion.

Construction of the $2.1 billion dump in the underground salt beds southeast of Carlsbad began in 1981, six years after the federal government first proposed placing in the area the radioactive waste generated by its defense activities.

Officials with the Department of Energy, the project's guardian, estimate the finishing touches will be put on the WIPP late next year. Waste, however, is not expected to be buried at the site until 1988.

On the surface, WIPP looks similar to any other construction site.

It is 2,150 feet below ground that the project's uniqueness becomes apparent.

A canary yellow elevator cage slowly glides visitors through the long, dark shaft, the length of which is more than twice the height of New York's Empire State Building.

The elevator jolts to a stop in the center of the repository's 5,200-foot main drift.

At the southern end of the cleanly excavated salt tunnel, rooms that eventually will be the burial ground for the waste are planned.

To the north, similar cubicles already have been carved out of the massive salt beds — "rooms that are as close to simulating actual waste rooms as possible," said Wendell Weart, project director for Sandia National Laboratories, which is responsible for the scientific experiments supporting development of WIPP.

The rooms already are being used for a variety of tests related to the project that 10 years ago was only a proposal on a piece of paper.

In 1975, the federal government began studying the salt beds in southern New Mexico for possible nuclear waste disposal.

The DOE's original proposal was to use the site solely for defense-related waste and for limited experiments on the burial of high-level radioactive material.

Later, proposals included suggestions that storage of high-level waste from commercial nuclear reactors also could be placed at WIPP, but eventually, only the original defense-related facility was authorized.

Still, some experiments on the disposal of defense-related high-level waste will be conducted at WIPP beginning in 1990.

After a series of environmental reports on the site, the Energy Department announced in the summer of 1983 that it would proceed with full construction of the project. Limited construction had begun two years earlier.

WIPP has been the subject of congressional and legislative action, dozens of technical documents, numerous hearings by government and environmental groups and at least two lawsuits.

Several attempts were made to block its construction. At one time, it was the federal government that nearly killed the project.

In 1979, the Carter administration tried to dump WIPP as the project was authorized, saying it should be studied as a possible repository for high-level waste from commercial nuclear reactors.

Congress, however, balked at the suggestion and continued funding for research and development at WIPP as originally authorized.

Today, as construction continues on the project, much of WIPP's focus is on experimentation.

Four of the testing rooms in the repository are being heated above the constant 85 degrees Fahrenheit temperature of the dump to allow scientists to study what could happen once nuclear waste is stored. Because many radioactive wastes produce heat and disseminated water trapped in the rock salt tends to move toward the heat source, the experiments should provide data on how well the salt walls close in on the stored waste, Weart said.

The salt beds are expected to seal themselves around the stored waste during the 25-year project lifespan.

"Temperature is the most important factor in how rapidly the walls will come in," Weart said. "What we're trying to do here is to provide real answers in a real setting to all those technical questions that have arisen."

With more than 1,000 different gauges collecting data from the experiment rooms, Weart said the tests are of the "largest scale ... ever conducted like this."

Weart said one storage room measuring 18 feet wide, 300 feet long and 18 feet high will close in by about one foot in three years.

Experiments also are being conducted on the permeability of the salt walls and on how well waste containers survive in the environment.

Nearly all the experiment rooms have been excavated, Weart said.

Drilling is to begin this month on the waste storage rooms. Two panels of seven rooms are expected to be completed in late 1986. The drilling of the waste rooms will continue throughout WIPP's life, Weart said.

"As soon as we begin filling in one panel with waste, the drilling will begin on another panel," he said.

About 6.3 million cubic feet of transuranic waste, such as sludge and contaminated workers' gloves, is expected to be dumped at WIPP during its lifespan.

To construct a facility to hold that much material, about 1.5 million tons of material must be mined, Weart said.

Already, 500,000 cubic feet of salt have been excavated. The salt rests above the surface on the WIPP site, where a waste-handing building and other project facilities, such as a security building, are being built.

Work also has been completed on 5.5 miles of railroad to the site, as well as on 13 miles of access road to be used in transporting waste shipments to WIPP.

The waste is to be transported by truck and train in a transuranic package transporter dubbed TRUPACT, a stainless steel box within another stainless steel box. In between the two boxes, rigid foam is sandwiched. The containers' steel doors are equipped with three seals.

It is TRUPACT that is the latest bone of contention for WIPP. State officials contend the containers are not safe enough.

Concerns about the project's safety remain in the minds of many, but a lot of the vocal opponents have been quieted over the years, said Robert Neill, chief of the New Mexico Environmental Evaluation Group, a state panel independently studying the project's development.

"I'm sure people still feel as strongly as they did before. There's always been a spectrum of views," Neill said. "You just may not hear them vocalized as much now."

We Invite You To Our Halloween Party!

47 YEARS AGO (Oct. 30, 1938)

...“War of the Worlds” was first heard on the radio.

The original broadcast, featuring Orson Welles, was part of a series of radio dramas based on famous novels, and heard on “Mercury Theater on the Air.”

The Mercury Players’ production is one of Broadcasting’s most famous events, based on the fact that many listeners took the simulated news bulletins (describing a Martian invasion of New Jersey) for real.

On Halloween night, immediately following the KPAN Halloween Party, you’ll be able to hear this classic radio drama just as it was presented in 1938.

Also on October 31, KPAN listeners will be able to enjoy several other Radio “Horror” Classics from the Golden Age of Radio.

Then at 5:00 p.m., KPAN will begin a remote broadcast from the Halloween Carnival at the Bull Barn, where KPAN staffers will participate with their “House of Cheap Thrills.”

At 8:00 p.m., the Annual “Halloween Party” will be broadcast on AM, FM, and Cable Channel 3, with many prizes to be awarded to youngsters whose names are drawn and call KPAN within the allotted time. (Rules for the Halloween party are given on the registration cards that were distributed through the schools.)

Registration cards for the Halloween party will be accepted at the KPAN Studios until 5:00 p.m. October 31. Pre-schoolers may sign up at KPAN, 218 E. Fifth.

Vote for No. 11

Viewpoint

Texans will decide the fate of 14 proposed constitutional amendments on Nov. 5, and the state water plan presented as amendments 1 and 2 have been getting much of the attention.

We think those two are important to the state and should be approved, but don't overlook Amendment No. 11. It needs the full support of law-abiding citizens who are tired of letting criminals get away because of technical errors.

Far too many convicted criminals have their convictions overturned on appeal because of some technicality in the court proceedings. There was the famous case where a woman was killed by her husband who stomped her to death and the appeals court reversed the decision because the indictment did not specify that he stomped her to death with his feet.

A number of trials have been reversed on similar principles of law—none of them having anything to do with the basic question of whether a convicted criminal murdered an innocent victim or not. Lawyers find a tiny defect of language, wait until the trial is over, then file an appeal.

If voter turnout is anything like it should be, Texans are expected to pass this amendment. Anticipating voter approval, lawmakers already have endorsed a measure that requires defendants to object to legal defects in an indictment before their trials, or lose their rights to object when appealing their convictions. We urge you to vote for Amendment No. 11.

Learning English

The busy bees of liberalism are swarming for the kill.

They're after Secretary of Education William Bennett who nudged their hive a couple of weeks ago by tackling the topic of bilingual education.

Bennett made these liberals sore on two counts. First of all, he made it clear that the intent of bilingual education is to teach children English. This was the stated intent of the first bilingual legislation passed by Congress in 1968.

Bilingual education had grown out of the civil rights struggle and Congress in its enthusiasm passed the bilingual education bill as a means of helping school children who were less than proficient in English. Those who suffered English language deficiencies would get training to help them learn English.

But things changed. In 1974, Congress, bowing to demands from the Hispanic lobby eager to make bilingual education a part of their ethnic pride display, changed the Bilingual Education Act to require school districts to offer instruction in the student's native tongue and culture.

The result has been an absurdity. Students have been able to graduate from high school still lacking in English language skills and some can hardly speak the language.

It is possible for a student to go through the public schools in Texas without really learning how to function in the English language because our absurd laws require that he be taught in his own language. This is supposed to keep from offending the Hispanics.

Bennett proposes a change in the way this is handled. He asks that local school authorities be given more flexibility in structuring bilingual programs. He insists that local schools be free to return to teaching English and moving students into that language as fast as possible. He argues that every other ethnic group with a different language has functioned in American society by learning English and not by clinging to another language.

His stinger to achieve this is to deny federal funds to any school system which doesn't place enough emphasis on teaching English.

What is truly amazing is the allegiance to a system that has been proven dubious at best. No one has produced any evidence that bilingual education works. Until students are made to master English, there is no reason to abandon their other language.

There is opposition to the Bennett plan, of course. But surely there are enough Congressmen with common sense, and enough backbone to stand up to the Hispanic lobby, to get this done. We will be better for it.

Sesquicentennial

What is the meaning of this?
They say: "Ignorance is Bliss,"
But I'd like to know
So my ignorance won't show!

Aha! Sesquicentennial means 150 years;
Now it's clear, dispelling all fears,
Thus, in 1986, in our great nation,
Texas will have the biggest celebration!

They'll be celebrating "Down Under",
I've heard tell,
In our twin city, Bordertown,
as well.
So hearty congratulations to both nations,
With best wishes for their sesquicentennial celebrations.

The Penultimate Word

THE BEST COACH I EVER HAD

He came to my high school to follow the nearest thing to a legend we ever had. His predecessor took a team to the finals in the state. His name was Gordon Gore but he was called "Cake", for reasons I never learned. He was a bear of a man who had been a star athlete in college and played pro football in the days when pro ball was still old-fashioned rough.

Gore was a throw-back even in my day. He believed in the old single wing when everyone else ran the new sissy T-Formation. His forte was all blockin' and tacklin'. He thought wearing pads was a sign of weakness. As poor an athlete as I was, I could have played first string if I had been willing to do so without a helmet. My idea was that I would play only if they furnished me a full suit of armor.

Well, old Cake didn't have a chance. Small schools get a good team about every 15 years. From a state contender two years prior to us: my class had 19 players report for football. We could not even scrimmage because we did not have two teams. Of the 19 players we had about five that could play and the rest of us went from bad to terrible. We won two games and were fodder for the rest of the teams we played.

The town got upset and we listened to the critics. The arm chair quarterbacks decided we would be winners if we ran the T-Formation. One day in practice, we rebelled and started running T-Formation plays. Gore acted like he didn't notice but I'll bet it hurt. One season and Gore was no longer the coach.

He was the best coach I ever had. He was one of the best I've ever known. He was best not because he won. He was best because through all of the pain he still had fun and made the game fun for us. His pregame speeches were beautiful examples of a laid back man who knew it was not a matter of life and death. He teased and laughed us through a disastrous season. When the town got down on us, Gore kept on laughing.

I can still remember him telling us how he used to play with five "Charley horses" in one leg, three in the other, a strip of leather for shoulder pads and no helmet, but he just bowed his neck and went after them. When we acted injured, he would ask if there were any bones showing.

Thinking back on it, Gore taught us a great deal about life and laughter and being true to ourselves no matter what the pressure. Come to think about it, that's what a coach is for.

Warm Fuzzies,
Doug Manning

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:
As landowners in the immediate vicinity of the proposed nuclear waste dump, we have a very personal interest in the matter and we are positively and definitely against it.

As longtime and lifetime residents of this wonderful area, including eight years of being on the farm in Deaf Smith County, we are appalled and alarmed that people in important government posts can use their power to destroy the economy of an area, and will try to accomplish this by deluding people into being impressed by a few short-term gains.

We are now, and have been for a very long time, residents of Amarillo. It has come as a distinct shock to find that Amarillo people, as a whole, have no understanding of the economy of the Hereford area. They have little knowledge or interest in the fact that a tremendous health food industry flourishes there. They don't seem to understand that quality food—stuffs—grains and seed-are shipped from that area all over the world. They don't seem to know that beef cattle from the area are important in feeding the world. And the big thing they don't understand is that the proposed construction of the shaft into the ground at the nuclear site is not a familiar or proven action, purely experimental.

Maybe the Hereford Brand could get some information out on all these things that would enlighten people and enable them to make a more realistic and intelligent assessment of the situation.

Thank you for your help.

Erline Buntin

Dear editor:
Mrs. Vinson's letter to the editor in the Sunday Hereford Brand of September 6 contained several inaccuracies that need to be corrected about Planned Parenthood and Margaret Sanger.

Since Sanger has always been a heroine of mine, it distressed me for someone to say that she promoted abortion. The truth is that Sanger was always vehemently opposed to abortion. This position provided the impetus for her to seek legal, medical, and public support for contraception—a cause to which she devoted her life.

Another inaccuracy that needs to be corrected is about the abortion clinics. Planned Parenthood is not supported by and has never been a supporter of abortion clinics.

I wish those who criticize this organization would become informed about Planned Parenthood and would love babies and mothers enough to give women a chance to plan pregnancies. It is an inescapable fact that children who are wanted are less likely to be targets of child abuse, and planned children reap the extra benefit of improved prenatal care.

As Beth Duke commented in the Amarillo Globe News, "I found a tragic irony in the fact that the people who were most vocally against abortion would make it more difficult for a person to get supplies or information about family planning." And, I agree with Duke that people who oppose the approach of Planned Parenthood must be against babies.

Sincerely,
Charlotte Rappsilber, Ph.D., R.N.

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm comes up with an odd idea for helping the national economy.

Dear editor:

A prominent economist who achieved prominence by guessing right on which way the economy was going last year says the way to avoid a downswing this year is to increase consumer spending.

Most consumers I know would be glad to spend more if somebody'd tell them how.

Since economists won't, I'll take on the job myself. I got the idea from Congress.

As everybody knows, when the government wants to spend more, Congress obliges by raising the debt ceiling. It has been raised so high so often the support beams are beginning to crack.

The consumers of this nation, in a patriotic fervor to keep the prosperity ball rolling, should vote to raise the credit limit on their individual credit cards. If your credit card says you can charge up to $1,000 and you've already done that and still want to help avoid an economic downswing by increasing consumer spending, raise it to $2,000 and get going.

And there's another way. Some people order stuff from catalogs by using money orders. The post office is glad to sell you a money order and doesn't ask what you want to buy with it. But the money order business hasn't come into the 20th century. It could double, triple and maybe quadruple its business if it'd sell money orders on the installment plan. Ten dollars down on a $100 money order with 36 months to pay.

You could then take the $100 and make a downpayment on a $1,000 catalog item, and consumer spending, like government spending, could go through the ceiling.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Whitefaces outrun, pound Bulldogs, 34-14

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
 Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces survived a shaky start Friday night and came back strong to crack the Plainview "Dot," 34-14, in a District 3-5A football contest at Whiteface Stadium in Hereford.

The victory moves Hereford up to third place in the district standings with a 4-2 record. Plainview fell to 4-3. For the season, Hereford and Plainview both have 4-4 records.

Plainview scored in its first offensive play of the game, but the rest of the game was Hereford's. The Whitefaces led 14-7 at halftime and scored one touchdown in the third quarter and two touchdowns in the fourth quarter.

Hereford received the game-opening kickoff and began its first possession at its own 24-yard line. Mark Artho gained six yards in the first offensive play of the game, but in the next play Plainview intercepted a pass at the Hereford 41-yard line.

Picking off the pass was Thomas Curry.

Plainview needed just one play to reach the end zone. Willie Ansley caught a 41-yard touchdown pass from Connor Evans for the score and Mike Cork kicked the extra point.

Not even half a minute had gone by in the game when the touchdown was scored.

The Whitefaces began their next possession at their own 30-yard line. After gains of nine yards by Stefan Hacker and three yards by Allen Dudding, Hacker completed a 48-yard pass to Jimmy Hazzard to move Hereford to the Bulldog 10-yard line.

The touchdown march was thwarted when Ansley, on defense, intercepted a pass at the three-yard line for Plainview.

Plainview was unable to get a first down against the Herd defense and was forced to punt.

Hereford put together a nine-play, 55-yard touchdown drive to even the score at 7-7. The touchdown was scored in a fourth down play, with seven yards to go, from the Bulldog 20.

Plainview had possession of the pigskin the rest of the first quarter, only to lose it on a fumble in the second play of the second quarter.

The Bulldogs had just two first downs in the first quarter, compared to five for Hereford.

Plainview's fumble came when the Bulldogs were faced with a third down and four yards to go at the Hereford 36-yard line.

Scotter Billington lost control of the ball and Curtis Cotten of Hereford recovered the loose ball on the 34-yard line with 11:19 left in the first half.

Despite a clipping penalty, the Whitefaces were able to drive for a touchdown that put them ahead to stay for the rest of the contest.

The sixth play of the possession was second down and 24 yards to go. The big play to keep the scoring drive going was a 47-yard pass completion from Stefan Hacker to Bobby Baker.

That completion put the Herd at the Plainview 23-yard line, and a facemask penalty called on the tackle of Baker put the ball five yards closer to the end zone.

Mark Artho recorded gains of four years in two straight plays, and Hacker rushed the last 10 yards in a quarterback keeper.

Artho was successful in the extra-point attempt, and Hereford led for the first time, 14-7, with 7:55 left in the first half.

Plainview, which had only one first down in the second quarter, was forced to punt from its own 45-yard line in its next possession.

Hereford appeared to be headed for another touchdown, having moved from the Whiteface 25-yard line to the Plainview 43-yard line.

But Willie Ansley of the Bulldogs intercepted another Hereford pass, this time at the Plainview 10-yard line with 2:52 left in the half.

Plainview attempted to run the clock out, but Thomas Curry fumbled away the ball, with Curtis Cotten recording his second fumble recovery of the game. Cotten fell on the fumble at the Plainview 29-yard line with 18 seconds left.

The Whitefaces had an eight-yard pass completion and then an incomplete pass before attempting a 37-yard field goal with four seconds left. The field goal attempt by Artho was not good, and the score remained 14-7.

The second half began with each team losing a fumble. In Plainview's opening play of the half, Hereford defensive end Mark Scott stripped the ball from quarterback Connor Evans and also recovered the fumble at the Bulldog 21, with 11:52 showing on the third quarter clock.

But three plays later, Whiteface quarterback Stefan Hacker fumbled the ball and Plainview linebacker Brent Barton fell on it at his team's nine-yard line with 10:52 left in the period.

Plainview then consumed more than seven minutes off the clock without scoring. The Bulldogs moved from all the way to the Hereford 33-yard line before losing the ball on downs.

After Plainview achieved a first down on the Hereford 36, Hereford linebacker Brett Clements stopped Ansley for no gain and Mark Scott then sacked Plainview quarterback Blaze Mayberry for a five-yard loss.

Moments later, Hereford gained possession of the ball at its own 33-yard line after a Plainview pass fell incomplete.

The Whitefaces got one first down, but ended up punting from their own 48 with about two and a half minutes left in the third period.

Plainview fumbled Hacker's punt at the Bulldog 26-yard line, and Brett Clements of Hereford was in the right spot once again as he fell on the ball to give his team possession of the ball.

The Whitefaces capitalized on the Bulldog mistake to score a touchdown and extra point for a 21-7 lead. Allen Dudding gained 20 yards in three carries, and Stefan Hacker followed with three straight carries, the last one for a one-yard touchdown run with one second left in the third quarter. Mark Artho kicked the extra point.

In Plainview's second play of the final period, quarterback Evans fumbled the ball at the Bulldog 25-yard line. The ball was knocked loose and rolled to within the five-yard line where Hereford appeared to have recovered it.

The referee, however, ruled that Evans had been down with possession of the ball at the 20-yard line.

The Herd defense stopped Plainview, and after a punt, the Whiteface offense had the ball at its own 42-yard line.

Ten plays later, Marcus Brown rushed 27 yards for a touchdown but it was called back because of a clipping penalty.

Not to be denied, the Whitefaces still reached the end zone. A 26-yard run by Dudding put the ball at the seven-yard line.

Hacker carried for four yards, and then with 5:23 left in the game, Dudding broke through the line untouched by the Bulldog defense for a three-yard touchdown run.

The extra-point kick was not good after this touchdown.

Hereford's other touchdown came with 2:08 left when Marcus Brown caught a lob pass from Todd Shire for a 39-yard scoring play. Artho's kick made the score 34-7.

Plainview then scored with a 68-yard touchdown pass from Blaze Mayberry to Denny Bess, with 56 seconds left in the game.

Hereford had a balanced offensive attack, totaling 225 yards on the ground and 175 yards through the air for 400 yards total. Plainview had 239 yards total offense, including 122 yards rushing.

Allen Dudding led all ball carriers in the game with 107 yards in 18 carries. Other rushing yardage totals for Hereford included Stefan Hacker with 44 yards, Marcus Brown with 40 yards and Mark Artho with 31 yards.

Hacker completed six of 17 passes for 136 yards and three interceptions. Shire's only pass attempt was the touchdown pass to Brown.

Plainview was led in rushing by Scotter Billington with 56 yards in 14 carries and Blaze Mayberry with 33 yards in nine carries.

Hereford had 21 first downs in the game compared to just nine for Plainview.

Next Friday, the Whitefaces play at Lubbock Monterey at 8 p.m., and Plainview hosts Caprock.

A LONG SNAP
NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Sweeney, an offensive lineman for the New York Jets, is rated highly by the coaching staff, probably at guard.

Sweeney, who attended the University of Pittsburgh, set some kind of a record when he played center for that school in 1980.

In a game against Temple, making the long snap to the Pittsburgh punter, Sweeney snapped not wisely but too well. The ball sailed over the punter's head all the way into the end zone where it was downed for a safety. The play started from the Pittsburgh 43-yard line.

LIPPS VERSATILE
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Louis Lipps, a 1984 rookie for the Pittsburgh Steelers, impressed people all over the NFL as a future star with his 45 receptions, nine going for touchdowns.

A wide receiver in the pro game, Lipps was known as "Mr. Versatility" when he played for Southern Mississippi.

He ran like a tailback, had the good hands of a receiver, was an excellent punt returner and was rated one of the better blockers on the team.

As a senior he played in the Senior Bowl and was rated the South's Most Outstanding Offensive Player.

NBA EXPANSION

NEW YORK (AP) — NBA Commissioner David Stern announced that his office had received inquiries for an expansion franchise from nine cities. However, Stern said no addition to the 23-team league was likely before the 1987-88 season.

The NBA Board of Governors had voted to authorize the commissioner to begin accepting applications in June. The last time the NBA expanded was in 1980, when Dallas came into the league.

Among applications already in are those from Anaheim, Charlotte, Kansas City, Miami, Minneapolis-St. Paul, St. Louis, Santa Ana, Tampa-St. Petersburg, and Toronto.

A BASEBALL DAD

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) — One of the newest card-carrying members of the PGA Tour, Jay Delsing, has a name that might bring back memories for baseball fans in the tournament galleries.

Jay's father, Jim, played major league baseball for 10 years. He performed for five teams at one time or another. They were the New York Yankees, Detroit Tigers, Chicago White Sox, Kansas City A's and the defunct St. Louis Browns. An outfielder, the senior Delsing had a career batting average of .255.

DON'T BE SCARED

DENVER (AP) — Calvin Nutt, one of the stars of the Denver Nuggets, says the NBA is a league in which you have to be tough to survive.

"Once you establish yourself as tough, you don't get picked on so much," Nutt said. "I had to learn to be tough just to survive. I've seen guys picked on who backed down and then they are harassed the whole game. I've seen guys who let other players rile them up or frighten them. I don't let anything like that happen to me."

THE POWERSTRETCHER

NEW YORK (AP) — Are you into powerstretching, as in working out with a Y-shaped machine called a Powerstretcher, manufactured by Treco Products?

The Indianapolis Colts of the NFL and the Cleveland Cavaliers employ the machines which are designed to increase muscle flexibility and strength in the legs and lower back.

The newest group to try the machine is the U.S. Secret Service, which hopes to improve the physical condition of its agents.

Both teams in the 1983 World Series had playing managers—Fred Clarke for Pittsburgh and Jimmy Collins for Boston.

The great Cy Young was the first pitcher to lose a World Series game. He was beaten in the 1903 opener when Pittsburgh topped Boston, 4-3.

St. Louis has three-game losing streak

Oilers play struggling Cardinals Sunday

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach Hugh Campbell was happy that his team exploded for 44 points last Sunday and broke a five-game losing streak. But now he's a bit worried, having seen what a team is capable of when its back is to the wall.

This Sunday, you see, the Oilers play the St. Louis Cardinals, whose backs are definitely against the wall.

The Cardinals, 3-4, dropped their third straight National Football League game last weekend, a 23-10 decision to Pittsburgh, while the Oilers, 2-5, were rolling over Cincinnati 44-27.

Houston's victory was its first since an opening-day upset of the Miami Dolphins and its best offensive performance of the season, which reaches the halfway mark this week.

In St. Louis, the Oilers face a highly rated team that has not been able to score consistently since a 43-28 pasting of Green Bay on Sept. 30. In subsequent losses, all on the road, to Washington, Philadelphia and the Steelers, St. Louis scored a total of 27 points.

Campbell said in a telephone news conference that he expects the Cardinals to be charged up Sunday.

"I'd be surprised if they weren't," he said. "It was a surprise they didn't win the last three games. It happens to all teams. Everybody goes through it."

To end a slump, he said, a club has to play an emotional, mistake-free game. Like the Oilers did against Cincinnati.

"It had to help," he said of the victory. "We're a young, spirited team."

Against the Bengals, running back Mike Rozier, the 1983 Heisman Trophy winner from Nebraska, played his finest NFL game. The former United States Football League back rushed 17 times for 75 yards and a touchdown, and caught two passes for 56 yards.

Rozier played in the USFL's spring season with the Jacksonville Bulls before jumping to Houston, but he said the non-stop football hasn't tired him.

"I still feel fresh," Rozier said. "I'm happy playing football."

When he started with the Oilers, Rozier spent a lot of time watching other people get the ball. Campbell said it took the 5-foot-10, 198-pounder a while to settle in the Houston offensive system.

"My spirits were never down," Rozier said. "I just needed the opportunity to play. It was just a matter of time until they put me in."

Mental mistakes caused the Oilers' skid, Rozier said. "We're a good young team," he said. "When we haven't made mistakes, we've won."

The same can be said for St. Louis, which started the season with two victories before dropping four of its next five games. Against Pittsburgh, the Cardinals committed three turnovers that led to 13 Steeler points.

Coach Jim Hanifan said the defensive unit played well against Pittsburgh, but the offense, led by quarterback Neil Lomax, has been tentative. Along with the turnovers, which included an interception and two fumbles, the Cardinals failed to score on seven straight plays from inside the Steeler 20-yard line in the fourth quarter.

Last season, Lomax threw for more than 4,000 yards and teamed with receiver Roy Green to become one of the league's most dangerous passing combinations. So far this season, opponents are blanketing the Cardinals in deep zone coverages, shutting off the long aerial strikes to Green.

Lomax has thrown nine interceptions in seven games, while Green has caught 27 passes for 387 yards and three touchdowns. His longest reception went for 47 yards.

Lomax "has had a tendency to want to make the big play," Hanifan said. "We tell him, 'Hey, take what they give you.'"

But the coach saw some hope in Lomax's second-half performance against Pittsburgh, when the Oregon native completed 18 of 27 passes.

"I really admired how he came back," Hanifan said. "He showed me a lot. He's going to come through this."

Open-Field Tackle

Patrick Phibbs (48), starting cornerback for the Hereford Whitefaces, makes an open-field tackle in stopping Plainview running back Willie Ansley. The Herd defense allowed Plainview only nine first downs in defeating Plainview 34-14. Hereford had 400 yards total offense compared to 239 for Plainview. (Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery)

The ball in the so-called hammer throw in track and field weighs 16 pounds and is attached to a spring-steel wire.

A TOUGH COURSE
SANDWICH, England (AP) — The Royal St. George's Golf Course, the site of the 1985 British Open, has been described as all sandhills and solitude. The top players in the world had trouble this July on the course with its blind carries, sloping lies, deep bunkers and treacherous hollows. In addition, a salt wind blows in from the English Channel which is two miles away. Sandy Lyle, the first Scotsman in more than half a century, was the winner of the 1985 edition of the Open.

19,230 runners are entered

New York Marathon is Sunday

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty five years ago, when a barefooted Ethiopian runner won the 1960 Olympic marathon, front-page headlines heralded the performance of Bikila Abebe.

After a few days, it was learned that the runner's name was Abebe Bikila, not Bikila Abebe.

Earlier this year, Fred Lebow, race director of the New York City Marathon, announced that Saleh Ahmed of Djibouti, winner of the World Cup Marathon at Hiroshima, Japan, in April, would be running in his race.

But Lebow later learned that the runner's name, which had been listed in the World Cup official entries and results as Saleh Ahmed, really was Ahmed Saleh.

Sunday, Saleh goes into the 16th New York City Marathon as the overwhelming favorite, and if he runs the fastest marathon in history — as he is intent on doing — there should be no more mistakes about his name.

"I try every time to break the world record," the 29-year-old soldier from the small East African country said through a translator, Omar Chirdon Abass, General Secretary of Defense and president of the athletic federation of Djibouti.

"I will do my best to break the record Sunday," added Saleh, whose best time for the 26-mile, 385-yard distance is 2 hours, 8 minutes, 9 seconds, the fifth-fastest clocking in history. The world best of 2:07:12 was set in April at Rotterdam, The Netherlands, by 1984 Olympic champion Carlos Lopes of Portugal.

Since Saleh arrived in New York Monday from Chicago, where he watched three of his countrymen run Sunday in the America's Marathon, he has done a lot of sightseeing, a lot of eating — he reportedly eats as many as 10 meals a day — and a lot of running. One of his sightseeing adventures Thursday was a tour of the second half of the course.

"He only wanted to see the end," said Abass.

Not only will Saleh be chasing Lopes' mark, he first will be aiming to break the Djibouti record of 2:08:08, set by Robleh Djama, the runner-up at Chicago last Sunday, behind Steve Jones of Wales, who missed the world best by one second.

There also will be significant financial incentive to win Sunday.

The men's and women's winners will receive $25,000 apiece from the total purse of $273,800, plus a Mercedes-Benz. In addition, there will be a $10,000 bonus for a course record and a $50,000 bonus for smashing Lopes' best.

Norway's Grete Waitz is favored to capture the women's division of the New York City Marathon for the fourth consecutive time and the seventh time overall.

Two-time Olympian Julie Brown, the second-fastest American marathoner in history, New Zealander Lorraine Moller and Australian Lisa Martin are considered the strongest competition for Waitz.

Saleh's toughest challenges are expected to come from Britain's Geoff Smith, winner of the last two Boston Marathons and the 1983 New York City runner-up, and Italy's Orlando Pizzolato, the 1984 New York winner and the 1985 World University Games champion.

The field totals 19,230, a record for a marathon in the United States.

New Blue Jays manager has tough act to follow

TORONTO (AP) — Jimmy Williams has a tough act to follow, but the Toronto Blue Jays' new manager is confident chapter 10 in the club's story can be every bit as successful as the ninth.

Williams, after spending the last six years as the Toronto's third base coach, was named Friday as the successor to Bobby Cox, who left the club earlier this week to become general manager of the Atlanta Braves.

Pat Gillick, Jays' vice-president of baseball operations, said although as many as eight men were considered, Williams was the "only serious candidate."

"He's the most qualified," said Gillick. "He's been with us for six years and he knows the players, both here and in the farm system."

"Continuity is very important and we feel that Jimmy can pick up where Bob Cox left off."

Cox, a prime candidate for manager of the year honors this season, helped guide the Jays to 99 regular-season victories and the American League East Division title in their ninth season. The Blue Jays fell one victory shy of its first league pennant and a berth in the World Series, losing in the seventh game at home to Kansas City.

"I don't think people should look for a whole lot of changes" either in managerial strategy or the makeup of the club, Williams said. "We've already got the nucleus of a good club."

Williams, who said "nobody will be able to fill Bobby Cox's shoes," concedes he'll be on the proverbial hot seat if the club falters in 1986.

"I'll be the first guy to accept the blame," said Williams, who signed a one-year deal believed to be worth about $200,000.

Although he has never managed in the majors, Williams was interviewed by Oakland after the 1982 season. "And Houston had asked for permission to talk to him for next season, so the other clubs in the league recognize his talent," Gillick said.

The Jays also announced Friday that batting coach Cito Gaston, bullpen coach John Sullivan, first base coach Billy Smith and pitching coach Al Widmar have been resigned to one-year contracts for 1986, to serve as the A's manager and was pursued by Seattle Mariners after the 1983 campaign.

Cynics say it means 'Sure Will Cheat'

Does SWC stand for 'Some Wacky Conference'?

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Could the SWC stand for "Some Wacky Conference"?

The Southwest Conference is fast becoming known outside its Texas-Arkansas borders as much for being out-of-control as for ball-control offense.

Only Rice and Arkansas can claim they haven't had dealings with the NCAA in the last year about possible rules violations. Basketball at

Angels will not offer new contract

Rod Carew is without a team

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Rod Carew, one of baseball's premier hitters in recent years, is 40 years old and without a baseball team.

And he's not surprised.

The California Angels announced Friday that they don't intend to offer the seven-time American League batting champ a contract for the 1986 season.

"I expected something like this," Carew said in an interview with KNBC-TV. "I've expected it since July so it's not news to me. I'm 40 years old and I know I can't do the things that I used to do."

The Angels also announced that veteran left-handed reliever Al Holland, acquired midseason last year, will not be offered a contract either.

Carew, who joined the Angels as a

DAVIS EXPLAINS

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The American League has been searching for reasons for its miserable showing in the annual All-Star Game and has found few, if any.

Tommy Davis, a former National League batting champion, had some, however, after watching the Nationals whip the Americans, 6-1, for the 21st time in the last 23 games.

"The National League is a fastball league and the American is a junkball circuit," Davis said. "The American League batters take too many pitches and you can't do that against the National League and win."

Baylor and Houston has been under scrutiny, and the remainder of the schools have talked about their football programs with the NCAA.

Commissioner Fred Jacoby says the SWC may be the cleanest conference around because, like a small town, everybody gossips about everybody.

Nobody can get away with anything very long without a neighbor squawking to the authorities.

But the SWC has given new meaning to "The Neighborhood Watch" signs you see around town. The conference has an outlaw image, like it or not.

No, SWC doesn't really stand for "Sure Will Cheat," but the cynics say it's so.

Which brings us to the refreshingly clean program of Baylor Coach Grant Teaff, who has proved you can win without casting greenbacks on the recruiting waters.

Teaff is in his 14th year as the head papa Bear. During his tenure, Baylor has been in two Cotton Bowls and is threatening to pay yet another visit to the Dallas landmark.

The football Bears have accomplished their goals without a hint of slush funds and payoffs.

This is not to suggest Baylor has been perfect in its recruitment of prospective high school athletes. It's hard not to break some of the hundreds of minor NCAA rules which include, for example, no pictures of a coach and an athlete together on signing day.

But being "perfect" in the scandal-ridden SWC takes on a whole new definition after Kenneth Davis' stories of payoffs at TCU.

Baylor hasn't been accused of doing anything wrong of a major or minor nature by the NCAA since Teaff has been in Waco.

How do we know? You haven't forgotten about the SWC "the neighborhood watch," have you?

Teaff, who has undergone some sniping recently for hiring former TCU Coach F. A. Dry as an assistant, has kept his program free of scandal. He's had a few pebbles tossed at his program. There have been a few off-the-record minor grumbles by other SWC members about Teaff's uncanny ability to land talented Texas black athletes. Baylor is represented by more players in the National Football League than any other SWC school.

Teaff has kept the Green and Gold remarkably clean with all the cheating dirt flying around in the SWC over the big bucks business of bigtime college football.

He once walked out the front door of the house of a high school recruit who suggested some under-the-table business, and never called him again.

With his team ranked in the Top Twenty and free of scandal, let's give Teaff some credit.

The SWC could use another hero.

49ers battle Rams in NFL showdown Sunday

By The Associated Press

When the San Francisco 49ers meet the Los Angeles Rams Sunday in a California showdown, the focus will be on Montana.

Quarterback Joe Montana, who led San Francisco to the Super Bowl championship last January, will have to be at the top of his game if the 49ers are to stop the Rams, who are atop the National Football Conference's West Division with a 7-0 record.

So far it's been an up-and-down year for Montana, whose trademark has been consistency, and the 49ers, who are tied for second with New Orleans at 3-4 in the West.

Last Sunday, Montana passed for only 97 yards in an upset 23-21 loss to Detroit.

In the game at Anaheim, the Rams once again will count on their defense, which is ranked second in the NFC, and will be hoping for a 100-yard rushing effort by Eric Dickerson, who has not hit that mark in any of his last four games.

The Chicago Bears, the National Football League's only other unbeaten team, will put their 7-0 mark on the line at home against the Minnesota Vikings, 4-3, who are tied for second with Detroit, three games behind the Bears in the NFC Central.

Chicago is coming off a 23-7 win over Green Bay in a sloppily played Monday night game in which quarterback Jim McMahon suffered an ankle injury. But he is expected to play against the Vikings.

The Bears, who have the NFL's No. 2 offense, have the league's top-ranked defense against the rush. What the defense will have to stop in the passing of Tommy Kramer, who leads the NFC in completions (145) and attempts (250) for 1,759 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Other Sunday matchups are Denver at Kansas City, Miami at Detroit, Seattle at the New York Jets, Atlanta at Dallas, the New York Giants at New Orleans, Washington at Cleveland, New England at Tampa Bay, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, Green Bay at Indianapolis and Buffalo at Philadelphia.

San Diego will play at the Los Angeles Raiders Monday night.

Denver, 5-2 and tied with Raiders atop the American Football Conference West, will try to take sole possession of first place, at least for a day, by beating the Chiefs, 3-4, in what shapes up as a game of give and take.

Denver quarterback John Elway has thrown nine interceptions in 270 attempts, and the Broncos have not lost a fumble in three games and have lost only four this season.

Detroit, 4-3, will be looking for its second straight upset. Last Sunday, the Lions stopped Montana. This Sunday, they will have to stop Dan Marino, who completed 27 of 39 passes for 302 yards and three touchdowns in Miami's 41-38 win over Tampa Bay. The Dolphins, who are tied for first with the Jets in the AFC East at 5-2, have suffered both of their losses on the road.

The Jets, back home where they are 3-0, will be trying to bounce back from 20-13 loss to New England, against Seattle, who has a 7-0 record against them and have outscored the Jets 161-77 in their series. Dave Kreig, who has thrown a touchdown pass in 25 consecutive games, will be trying to bring the Seahawks, 4-2, back from a 12-10 overtime loss to Denver. Freeman McNeil of the Jets, the AFC's top rusher with 645 yards, missed the game against Patriots, but is expected to play Sunday.

Tony Dorsett will try to have a 100-yard game in Atlanta — he's had 43 in his career, but none against the Falcons, when the Cowboys, 5-2, first in the NFC East, try to rebound from a 16-14 loss at Philadelphia. Gary Hogeboom started at quarterback against Philadelphia in place of Danny White, who again is listed as questionable with bruised ribs. The Falcons, 1-6, will be trying for their second straight win after a 31-24 victory over New Orleans.

New Orleans, 3-4, will have to overcome the NFL's No. 1 defense (average yield of 259 yards) to bounce back from its loss. The Giants, 4-3, used ball control to snap a two-game losing streak with a 17-3 triumph over Washington.

Washington, 3-4, will take the NFL's No. 1 rushing offense against the Browns, 4-3, first in the AFC Central, who the No. 2 rushing offense.

Pittsburgh, 3-4, snapped a three-game losing streak last week and will try to avenge a 37-24 loss Sept. 30 to the Bengals, 2-5. Cincinnati, which lost 44-27 to Houston last Sunday, has scored 211 points, most in the AFC, but has given up an NFL-high 240.

St. Louis, 3-4, has history on its side — and the struggling Cardinals might need it — when they play the Oilers, 2-5. Houston has not beaten an AFC East team since beating Dallas 30-24 in 1979 and are 0-3 against the Cardinals.

Philadelphia, 3-4, will be seeking its third straight victory when it hosts Buffalo, 1-6. The lone Bills' victory came last Sunday — 21-9 over Indianapolis.

Could Patriots Coach Raymond Berry really be talking about the only winless team in the National Football League?

"It's strange about Tampa Bay at this point, from the perspective that you look at their films and they're playing tremendous football against great competition," Berry said of the 0-7 Bucs, who play host to 4-3 New England this Sunday.

"They've got all the weapons that any defensive coach hates to face. There's speed at the receivers, a big tight end who can catch and the great running back."

The Bucs also haven't beaten anybody, and that makes Berry leery, even though his team comes off an impressive defensive effort in a 20-13 win over the Jets, which snapped New York's five-game winning streak.

"It just points up the reality of the fact that there's not a whole lot of difference between a team that's 0-7 and 6-1," said Berry. "It's good for the NFL and it's also a reason why every week there's really not any difference in getting ready for someone. Everybody you play can knock your block off. It doesn't make any difference what their record is."

Despite their poor start, the Buccaneers are playing decent football. Their last three losses have been to the unbeaten Chicago Bears and Los Angeles Rams — in games Tampa Bay — led at halftime, and tough Miami, which won 41-38 on a last-second field goal. Tampa Bay amassed a team-record 476 yards of offense against Miami.

"Those are three difficult teams we have played in the last three weeks, and we have played them on close to even terms," Bucs Coach Leeman Bennett said.

Tampa Bay, 0-7, which couldn't stop Marino last week, will try to stop Steve Grogan this week. Grogan made his first start for New England since Oct. 16, 1984, and, calling his own plays, led the Patriots past the Jets.

After clamor of farm bill dies, next stir will be over federal marketing orders

WASHINGTON (AP) — After the clamor of the farm bill dies down and there is a lull in the debate over help for the family farm, one of the next agricultural tempests to confront the Reagan administration will be the rising fury over federal marketing orders.

The Heritage Foundation, a conservative think-tank located in Washington, has just issued a report condemning marketing orders as "government-backed marketing cartels" that cost American consumers millions more for food than

One of the points of attack has been the citrus industry, namely the marketing orders that affect navel oranges grown in California and Arizona.

The latest flare-up occurred Thursday when a senior Agriculture Department official denied charges by Sunkist growers that the agency rigged an economic analysis to support last winter's suspension of federal "prorate" marketing allocations for navel oranges.

The prorate, which limits the volume of fresh oranges producers can market each week during the season, was suspended by Agriculture Secretary John R. Block last February.

Restrictions were lifted so that unlimited oranges could move to market and help ease price increases brought about in part by freezes in Florida citrus groves.

A report by the department's Economic Research Service showed recently that the effect of the prorate suspension on grower income during the 1984-85 navel orange season "was quite small" and that, in fact, gross income was an estimated $1.3 million to $2.5 million more than if the prorate had been in effect.

Robert L. Thompson, USDA's assistant secretary for economics, on Thursday defended the agency's analysis in a letter to R. L. Hanlin, president of Sunkist Growers Inc., Van Nuys, Calif., a large cooperative of citrus growers.

Hanlin had circulated a letter to Sunkist members about the USDA report and called attention to a recent move by opponents of federal marketing orders to use the material in their campaign against prorate.

"We disagree with this report and consider it a transparent attempt by some within USDA to justify their previous questionable actions," Hanlin said.

Further, Hanlin said in his letter, the Navel Orange Administrative Committee, which handles the federal marketing order at the local level, estimated "damage to growers to be in the neighborhood of $10 million" because of the suspension of prorate.

Thompson told Hanlin the accusations were wrong and that the Economic Research Service is an independent research organization within USDA and has "no affiliations with the department's programs and policies."

"The study ... was conducted in a professional and impartial manner," Thompson said. "The results were supported by the data and reported without regard to past, present or future policy decisions."

As to the loss of $10 million to growers seen by the administrative committee, Thompson said that estimate was based on an assumption that navel orange prices would remain at the high levels just prior to the prorate's suspension.

"Typically, navel orange prices exhibit a seasonal decline," Thompson said. "Therefore, by assuming prices would decline, the committee's estimated income is overstated."

Thompson also noted that when the prorate suspension went into effect last Feb. 8, about 48 percent of the navel orange crop remained to be shipped.

"Thus, this season marked the first occasion in 33 years in which the navel orange crop was largely marketed in the absence of the shipment prorate," he said.

Stoy installed as president of TSTA

The vice president and general manager of Garrison Seed Co. in Hereford was installed Tuesday as president of the Texas Seed Trade Association.

Art Stoy began his one-year term at the association's convention held last week in Corpus Christi.

Stoy has served on the association's board for three years and has been in the offices of second and first vice president. He has chaired committees for the divisions of small grains, grass seed, sorghum seed and Texas certified seed.

As president of the association he will attend and speak at regional and state conventions of other seed associations.

Stoy relinquished his chairmanship of the Soil Conservation Committee of the American Seed Trade Association to take the Texas presidential post.

Fruit production generally increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although fruit production has fluctuated widely during the last 15 years, mainly because of the weather, total U.S. output generally has increased during that time, according to an Agriculture Department report.

Fruit production rose from an annual average of 21.4 million tons in 1970-72 to 26.1 million tons each year in 1982-84, the department's Economic Research Service said Monday. Increases were reported for all fruit except apricots and peaches.

Also, the report said, the largest increases during the 15 years were for non-citrus fruit, which was up 44 percent, while citrus production rose only 3 percent. Consequently, the non-citrus share of total fruit increased to 53 percent by 1982-84, compared with 45 percent in 1970-72.

"Citrus production was slowed by freezes in Florida and Texas that severely damaged crops in recent years," the report said.

By contrast, the bearing acreage for non-citrus fruit gained 10 percent during the same period.

Despite the large production of fruit, the index of prices received by growers for fresh and processed fruit rose sharply during the 15-year period, the report said.

"The increase was primarily due to rising citrus prices following the Florida and Texas freezes," the report said.

AAM convention set Saturday in Lubbock

American Agriculture Movement, Inc., will have its Texas AAM convention Saturday at the Lubbock Plaza (formerly South Park Inn) at 3201 S. Loop 289 in Lubbock.

Registration fees of $5 each will be collected starting at 9 a.m.

David Senter, the national coordinator for AAM in Washington, D.C. will be the featured speaker at a dutch treat lunch at Furr's Cafeteria.

All interested persons may attend. For detailed information contact Marion Garland, Texas AAM president, at 948-5624.

Currently there are 47 marketing orders

they otherwise would pay.

James L. Gattuso, the author of the report, said the federal programs allow producers of certain crops to limit the type and amount of food sold to the public.

"Both consumers and growers are harmed by the practice," Gattuso said. "Americans pay higher prices for food. Perhaps more important, the program costs the economy millions in wasteful overproduction."

Currently, there are 47 marketing orders covering a variety of fruit, vegetable and specialty crops — more than half the fruits and tree nuts, and about 15 percent of the vegetables.

Typically, a marketing order is voted into effect by producers themselves. It can set minimum standards for quality, or limit the amount of commodity that is allowed to be sold.

Cotton shelf life may be longer than thought

LUBBOCK — The "shelf life" of cotton may be longer than textile manufacturers have previously believed.

That conclusion comes from cotton aging studies conducted in Texas Tech University's Textile Research Center (TRC) over the last four years, reports TRC Director James S. Parker.

"For almost as long as the textile industry has been using cotton, the quality of the fiber after storage for several years has been a concern," Parker said. "Today numerous textile manufacturers do not use cotton that has been stored for more than two years."

To determine the effects of cotton aging, the TRC in 1982 began a series of tests on six bales of cotton harvested the year before. The cotton was evaluated over three years for strength, color and changes in its spinning properties.

"The most noticeable change," Parker noted, "was the color from a creamy white to a light yellow. While a decrease in yarn strength was statistically significant, it was very slight and noticeable in certain yarn numbers."

Farm stat book may liven trivia parties

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1984 edition of Agricultural Statistics may not be on everyone's Christmas shopping list, but it could be just the thing for livening up dull parties this winter.

Imagine the looks you'll get after chiming in, "Did you know Oregon produced more than $1.1 billion worth of filberts in 1980?" Or, "Can you believe we cranked out 1.4 billion pounds of hotdogs in 1983?"

And what could be snappier as the snacks are passed than noting with authority, "We're eating less lard than we used to."

The official Agriculture Department figures are all there in the 558-page book, an annual volume that for decades has been a standard reference for anyone with even a slight interest in agriculture.

It has an international flavor too, with foreign trade and U.S. export figures for major commodities, along with food stamp participation, conservation payments to farmers, farm income and land in farms. Even the number of farm telephones and average bills are listed, by state.

One of the standard features in the book is a table of weights, measures and conversion factors. Everything from alfalfa seed to wheat is listed — in metric units as well as in U.S. terms.

For example, a bushel of alfalfa seed weighs the same as a bushel of wheat, 60 pounds or 27.2 kilograms.

Soybeans also weigh 60 pounds per bushel.

A short ton, the "regular" kind known by most Americans, is 2,000 pounds. A long ton is 2,240 pounds. A metric ton is 2,204.6 pounds.

In international agricultural trade, the metric ton is a common unit. And a metric ton of wheat is about 36.7 bushels, the same for alfalfa seed and soybeans.

But shelled corn weighs 56 pounds per bushel, so there are about 39.4 bushels of corn in a metric ton. Oats weigh 32 pounds per bushel, so there are 68.9 bushels of oats in a ton.

The USDA book also shows that castor beans weigh 41 pounds per bushel and that cranberries are measured by the barrel, which is equal to 100 pounds.

The 1984 edition of Agricultural Statistics can be ordered in paperback at $10 per copy from:

Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Onions lead in state vegetable income

COLLEGE STATION — The Texas vegetable industry adds substantially to the state's gross income.

Gross income from vegetables last year was $456,387,000, almost $90 million higher than the bad freeze year of 1983, points out Tom Longbrake, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Some 211,300 acres of vegetables were grown in Texas last year.

Onions are the leading vegetable crop, accounting for 20 percent of all the vegetable income in Texas. And the new onion developed by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, TED 1015Y, should add to the competitive advantage of onion growers. It yields more because of its globe shape versus the semi-hat shape of Granez and Grano 502 and also has better shelf life, says Longbrake.

Growers have increased the yield and quality of cabbage so that it ranks second in value among Texas vegetables. Increased sales of cole-slaw, especially at fast-food outlets, has boosted income from cabbage.

Cabbage and onions are grown primarily in South Texas, with some acreage in the Trans Pecos and High Plains areas, notes Longbrake.

White potatoes rank third in value followed by cantaloupes, watermelons, carrots and bell peppers. Sweet potatoes, broccoli, spinach, honeydew melons, cucumbers, lettuce, tomatoes and cauliflower round out the top 15 vegetables grown in Texas, according to the horticulturist.

While gross returns from vegetables are up, growers are not reaping all of the profits, says Longbrake. Many supporting industries depend on vegetable growers and shippers for their livelihood, including tractor and implement companies; those involved in sales of seed, fertilizer, cartons and boxes; pest control applicators; chemical suppliers; and the labor force who does the thinning, weeding, irrigating, harvesting and packaging of all these vegetables.

Fall and winter vegetable crops are being established now in South Texas and will soon be ready for harvest, adds Longbrake.

More than 90 percent of the produce trucks will be heading for terminal markets in Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Oklahoma City and points to the north.

Vegetable growers are a diminishing species, contends Longbrake, so each one is becoming more and more important to the consuming public.

SOLIDLY-PACKED SOYBEANS, NOT TUNA. MAKE FARMERS HAPPY. Soybeans planted in solid-seeded or narrow-row configurations make better use of sun light and field space, states soybean researcher, Charles Liable. Seeds need to be planted an equal distance apart for each plant to have plenty of room to develop a good, healthy root system. Most soybeans planted this way will give a 2% to 10% better yield. Each plant's leaf canopy also seems to grow more evenly with equal spacing. One of the drawbacks to solid seeding, Liable observes, is the tendency for the soybean plants to develop white mold. This occurs because of the even growth of the plant canopy leading to high moisture levels caught with little air movement. An ideal situation is created for white mold to get a good hold. However, most experts believe the positive points for solid seeding greatly outweigh the potential of white mold.

Between the Covers

By DIANNE PIERSON
Library Director

Novels are featured this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. The novels featured are "Song Of The Wind" by Madge Swindells and "Swan's Chance" by Celeste DeBlasis.

Madge Swindells is the author of "Summer Harvest" which captured a worldwide audience, garnering critical acclaim coast to coast. In "Song Of The Wind," Swindells fulfills the promise of her first novel to create a sweeping saga international in scope and timeless in its appeal.

It begins in 1940 when Marika Magos, a beautiful young Catholic girl, is deported from Nazi-occupied Poland and sent to live with foster parents in South Africa. Confused by the passions and violence of a war-stricken world, Marika tries to adjust to her harsh new life in the rugged African desert. In time she meets and falls in love with handsome U-boat commander Gunter Grieff.

Shortly before giving birth to his child, she learns that he is not Swiss-born, as he'd told her, but German.

Betrayed by his lie, Marika flees to London where, amid the glamour of the fashion world, she finds wealth and fame, marriage, and eventually reconciliation with Gunter. But Marika is haunted by the brutal wartime murders of her parents. When shocking news brought by a Nazi hunter threatens her chance at happiness, she must confront her past one final time.

Poignant and powerful, "Song Of The Wind," has all the elements of a classic page-turning fiction carry the reader on a journey of romance, adventure, and intrigue.

Sweeping from the golden serenity of the Marland horse country to landscape aflame with war as North and South clash, to the High seas where great ships journeyed to the Far East, "Swan's Chance" continues the magnificent saga begun in "Wild Swan."

For Alexandria Thaine Falconer, life centers around Wild Swan, home to her remarkable racing and breeding stock and sacuary to her beloved husband and children. Now Wild Swans's indomitable matriarch and guiding spirit, in her heart Alex is still the young woman in whose arms Rane Falconer discovered love and all its sensual majesty. But the dreams she and Rane have built demand that the torch be carried by new generations. Alex devotes herself to shaping the lives of her children and grandchildren. Swan's Chance is a stunningly detailed and moving story, an epic saga of love and loyalty, passion and pride, that continues the spellbinding tradition of "Wild Swan."

FIRE ENGINE YELLOW

OWEGO, N.Y. (AP) — The safest color for a fire engine is not red but lime-yellow, says an optometrist and member of the Owego volunteer fire department. He says the eye is most sensitive to yellow and greens.

He noted that fire fighters in Miami, Philadelphia and San Francisco, where the engines are red, have more than twice as many collisions at intersections as fire fighters in Detroit, Newark and Kansas City, where the engines are painted lime-yellow.

"It's a grating, irritating color," he says, "which is exactly why it should be used."

DAYDREAM INSTRUCTION

EATON, Pa. (AP) — In a national art program that encouraged grade-school children to daydream and draw, the prevalent themes were scientific advancements, excellence in sports, and ecology.

Evaluations need to be viewed positively

Teaching could be more rewarding and less frustrating if evaluations were viewed more positively, says a Texas Tech University educational psychologist who taught seventh grade students during a leave of absence last year.

With increased attention placed on accountability for public school teachers in recent educational reforms, teachers need to see evaluation as a positive process more than ever, according to Dr. Myron L. Trang. Trang taught industrial arts at a Midland junior high last year to get in touch with the concerns of public school teachers.

"A lot of people haven't separated the tasks of evaluation for merit and evaluation for the improvement of teaching," Trang said. "For improvement to occur, there has to be some kind of evaluation. However, it should not be the kind that threatens a person."

The relationship between observer and teacher in an evaluation for improvement is a special one, Trang said. The teacher recognizes there are areas which need improvement and desires help. The observer is an expert who is sensitive and empathetic toward the teacher. Those qualities may not be present in a merit evaluation, he said.

Apprehension about evaluations by supervisors or peers is a common tendency, but teachers may experience the fear more than others because of their isolation, he said.

"Teaching is very much an isolated profession. It's one of the few professions where you don't work with colleagues. Instead, teachers are in a classroom with students all day," Trang said.

He contrasts the resistance of teachers to being observed in action by peers or administrators with the willingness of surgeons to be observed. During surgery, there are normally several back-up physicians on hand and some residents watching from the observatory. For surgeons, observing experts at work is an integral part of education, he said.

"I'm absolutely convinced that teachers need to be in other teachers' classrooms," Trang said. "If it got started in a school, the pay-offs would be so high that teachers would work out their schedules to have time for it."

The biggest benefit of peer evaluations is that discussion about technique generally follows. When teachers study why they chose a particular teaching technique and how it could be improved, instruction will benefit, he said.

The historical purpose of evaluation and how it has been accomplished have helped to develop reluctance to being evaluated.

"The Legislature picked up on the evaluative component because it is a facilitator for instructional improvement," said Trang. "But, that's not always the idea teachers get. We've got to have the data to see if teaching is taking place, but evaluation ought to lead to something other than indictment or dismissal."

Teachers also learned fear of evaluation from their role models who may have had the same fear, he said.

"The leadership in colleges and in school districts needs to be more in tune to modeling. They ought to be more willing to demonstrate their expertise."

Evaluations are not the only stress teachers encounter, Trang discovered.

"Teachers get worn out. It's like being on an assembly line and things just keep coming," he said. "Now I have felt the strain of having 12 agendas all at once."

Teachers need more support, both from their colleagues and administrators, to help them cope effectively with the increased demands, he said.

"I thought I had it all together and then I found myself wondering if I was going to be good enough; what I could do to cope with the demands," he said. "I began to wonder what it is like for a new teacher to walk into a school system. People do get into psychological messes and we need to acknowledge that and help them with it."

Strengthening Dealing With Family Stress

Stress is a family affair. One family member experienced a day piled high with stressful happenings—the farmer's hay was rained on for the third time, his truck's transmission went out, and his prize Holstein got sick. The entire family was affected by these events.

Serious, single stressful events and pile-up situations call for creative planning to master family stress. Experts in family relations have identified three steps in mastering stress as recognizing the symptoms, finding the sources, and then taking action to deal with the stress.

Family members display warning signals when they experience stress. Among them may be sleeplessness, irritability or physical symptoms, such as headaches, fatigue or backaches. Symptoms such as frequent parent-child conflicts, breakdowns in communication, fault-finding and sarcasm, or hostile behaviors among family members, also show up in the family. To recognize that your entire family is under stress rather than thinking that only one member has a problem is an important first step.

You will often have trouble finding the source of family stress, since it can come from both expected and unexpected sources. You might not consider events that you look forward to or plan for as stressful; yet they can bring change and disruption to your life. The long-awaited birth of a baby, for example, can be a source of stress for a family.

It's easier to recognize unexpected events such as having to move, a child's serious illness or a natural disaster as a source of stress. Sometimes unexpected but pleasant events—like a visit from a favorite relative—can cause stress too.

Identifying sources of stress is especially useful for anticipating stressful family times so you can be prepared for them.

You can take four actions to deal with family stress. First, you can control some events. When surgery is planned for Mom, for example, Dad or another family member can learn to manage in the kitchen before she goes to the hospital.

Second, you can control your attitudes, or how you look at events. A financial emergency can ruin a planned vacation or give a family the opportunity to relax and enjoy each other at home—it's all in how you look at it.

Third, you can control the responses you have to the stressful event. A distressed family does not need to treat each other with criticism that ends in angry conflict, or resort to over-eating or isolation, for relief. A family can even choose to play together in order to work off some tension that is building up.

The fourth way to take action is to recognize and use resources. Reaching out for help is not a sign of weakness. It is knowing your own limits and then asking for help when you are feeling pulled beyond those limits. Family members, the family unit and those outside the family unit are among the resources to consider for help.

Probably every family experiences stress. Learning to cope with it can help strengthen your family.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Middle aged people face double responsibility

More middle-aged people are finding themselves "sandwiched" by financial obligations to both their elderly parents and their college-age children, says family economics expert Nancy L. Granovsky.

"Saving for a child's college education has become a part of financial planning for many middle-income families, but these plans can be side-tracked by the impact of a parent's unexpected medical expenses or need for financial assistance," says the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service specialist.

"Some good, honest money talk between adults and their aging parents can help the entire family plan for the future," advises Granovsky.

She suggests that adult children ask their parents the following questions:

-Do you have assets or debts I don't know about?

-Do you have enough income and have you considered ways you could get more, if necessary?

-Is your health insurance, life and homeowners insurance adequate? Do you have health insurance coverage for medical expenses not covered by Medicare?

-Do you know the eligibility requirements for receiving government aid?

-Do you know how to manage your money? This may be an especially important question if a widowed parent was accustomed to letting his or her spouse handle the finances.

"One of the best things aging parents can do is to share financial information with their adult children, for everyone's peace of mind," Granovsky says.

She suggests that elders tell their children who, if anyone, has been appointed to take care of their affairs if they become incapacitated.

The specialist also recommends that parents let their children know how they feel about life-prolonging measures, any preferences about their funerals and the location of their wills and financial papers.

"While this may be a difficult subject for many families to deal with," says Granovsky, "honest talk about finances and the future may be necessary so families can meet the needs of both their older and younger members."

Texas railroads topic of study club program

Brick Autrey of the Rhodes Library in Dimmitt presented a program on Texas railroads when Calliopean Study Club met Thursday evening in the home of Mary Sue Hull.

Autrey traced the building of railroads in Texas from the 1850's to the present day. He said there were 700 charters granted from railroads in Texas and of that number only 275 were ever built. There are seven major companies left today.

The Katy and Southern Pacific Railroads are the most used. Many of the small lines have gone out of business and more are expected to be sold or abandoned. Many towns were made important by the railroads and others were eliminated when the railroad missed them. The railroads played a large part in making Texas history.

Kay McWhorter, acting chairman, called the meeting to order and conducted a brief business meeting.

Following the program, refreshments were served to Katherine Ruga, Wilma Nobles, Virginia Holmes, Sue James, Kathlee Palmer, Jane Gulley, Marjorie Mims, Cherry McWhorter, Irene Coneway, Mary Fraser, Vera Threewit, Claudia McBrayer and McWhorter.

The next meeting was scheduled Nov. 14 in the home of Marjorie Mims.

Promises of love no guarantee for success

Promises to love are an important part of marital vows, but after that they do little to contribute to a successful marriage, a Texas Tech University family studies professor claims.

If love were an important factor contributing to marital bliss, virtually all marriages would succeed because all couples believe they are in love at the onset of marriage, said Dr. Carl M. Andersen.

"People have come to believe that love has something to do with success in marriage," Andersen said. "I'm not saying love is not important. But, as a predictor of success, love has nothing to do with it."

The major force in determining the success of a marriage is the compatibility of the couples' histories, said Andersen, who recently received the 1985 Spencer A. Wells Award for excellence in teaching from the Texas Tech Dads Association. Personal histories include family background, class, beliefs, goals and motivation.

The societal move from courtship to dating as a precedent to marriage led to the belief in love as a reason to marry.

Courtship existed prior to World War I when people lived in small communities and knew everyone. Marriages generally occurred between people whose families knew each other fairly well. Family influences on mate selection was very powerful.

"When someone was going to get married, the decision of who they were going to marry came first and then came the courtship relationship in which the couple would try to work out the kinks," Andersen said.

Although they may not realize it, parents then and today have a basic understanding that similar backgrounds are helpful in establishing a strong marital relationship.

"Arranged marriages are rated as more satisfactory than romantic selections," he said. "Cultures that have arranged marriages basically match histories. Today, parents don't arrange their child's marriage, but they do discourage children from dating certain people simply because they know that being compatible is important."

After World War I, people began to move to the cities and more young people attended college. It was no longer possible to know a person's background.

"The phenomena we call dating was a special tool developed to cope with the fact that you no longer knew everybody," Andersen said. "That chemistry which draws two people together frequently leads them to believe they are in love. They begin operating on that greatest of all myths that 'love conquers all' and we can work out our problems.

"Dating is for two people to get together and find out about each other's history and where they are going with their lives," he said. "If their histories are compatible when they might decide to begin forming a relationship. Many times the chemistry starts working before the history."

Andersen tells his "Courtship and Marriage" class, an elective taken by more Texas Tech students than any other elective, that the first 50 people they date should just be for training. During that time, young people should decide what characteristics they enjoy in others and begin seeking out those people.

"Dating isn't to check out how you feel about a person because you feel good about a lot of people," he said. "I call it the Baskin-Robbins theory. You can't really know how well you like one flavor of ice cream until you've tasted all the others. If you have done that, then you can say you like pralines and cream best."

Two people who have dated many other people have the best success rate in marriage. Two people who have dated a little fall below that.

One person who has dated a lot and one who has dated a little have the least probability for success together.

About 50 percent of all marriages end in divorce, but Andersen predicts the divorce rate will go down in the future.

One reason for the prediction is that people are waiting until later in life to get married, improving their chances for better marriage.

"We used to think marriages between older people were more successful because they were older and more mature," Andersen said. "Now we know it relates to having your life picture in focus. Some couples graduate from high school and go directly into the family business rather than going to college. These couples know pretty much what life holds for them and can marry with a fairly good probability of success."

"As soon as you go to college everything goes out of focus. It doesn't get back in focus until four or five years after the person gets out of school," he said.

A more startling figure than the divorce rate is the number of marriages which do not end in divorce, but which are not happy relationships. Andersen said three-fourths of all people who stay married say their marriages are boring and unsatisfying.

Part of that is a result of the history they experience with each other after their marriage.

"What holds a marriage together and makes it genuinely satisfying are the chapters they write in their personal history together. Those people who have written some real neat romantic chapters will reread them internally or talk about them 50 years from now. Those who spend their time together watching six hours of television a night have less success. You probably aren't going to remember 10 years from now what you watched on TV today, but you will always remember walking to the store together in the rain."

DR. GOTT

Peter Gott, M.D.

Medication has side effects

DEAR DR. GOTT - What information can you give me on the drug Dipyridamole? My doctor wants me to take three tablets daily for the rest of my life. This is for a very slight stroke I had a year ago. I was not disabled and I had no high blood pressure. I am 74. I also take aspirin. Can there be any effects from it? Is there any food that counteracts it?

DEAR READER - Dipyridamole is purported to improve circulation. There is no convincing proof that it helps prevent stroke; in fact, it has been classed as being only "possibly" effective in alleviating angina (poor circulation to heart muscle). It can cause headache, dizziness, weakness, skin rash and stomach upset. I do not know of any particular foods to be avoided when taking the medicine. The combination with aspirin should not be harmful.

You may take several months for your body to return to a pre-pregnancy state. In the meantime, check regularly with your obstetrician.

DEAR DR. GOTT - I have a sore above my anklebone. The doctor used silver nitrate on it for a while, but he doesn't seem to know what the sore is. I have varicose veins and am 82. He told me to stay off my leg, but it is hard to do, as I am a housewife. What might help?

DEAR READER - You may have developed a varicose ulcer due to poor circulation in the skin near your varicose veins. This may require surgical attention. Elevate your leg when you can, use warm compresses three times a day and keep the ulcer clean.

The Newspaper BIBLE

CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE!
Gazing intently at the Council, Paul began: "Brothers, I have always lived before God in all good conscience!" Instantly Ananias the High Priest commanded those close to Paul to slap him on the mouth.

Paul said to him, "God shall slap you, you whitewashed pigpen. What kind of judge are you to break the law yourself by ordering me struck like that?"

Those standing near Paul said to him, "Is that the way to talk to God's High Priest?" "I didn't realize he was the High Priest, brothers," Paul replied, "for the Scriptures say, 'Never speak evil of any of your rulers.'"

Then Paul thought of something! Part of the Council were Sadducees, and part were Pharisees! So he shouted, "Brothers, I am a Pharisee, as were all my ancestors! And I am being tried here today because I believe in the resurrection of the dead!"

This divided the Council right down the middle-the Pharisees, against the Sadducees-for the Sadducees say there is no resurrection or angels or even an eternal spirit within us, but the Pharisees believe in all of these. So a great clamor arose. Some of the Jewish leaders jumped up to argue that Paul was right. "We see nothing wrong with him," they shouted. "Perhaps a spirit or angel spoke to him (there on the Damascus road)." The shouting grew louder and louder, and the men were tugging at Paul from both sides, pulling him this way and that. Finally the commander, fearing they would tear him apart, ordered his soldiers to take him away from them by force and bring him back to the armory. Acts 23:1-10

Chimneys need to be inspected

Chimneys with heavy creosote deposits are a leading cause of home fires in the United States each year.

Chimneys should be inspected annually for creosote build-up, and now is a good time to do so, says Dr. Gary Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Creosote is produced when wood burns. It escapes from a stove or fireplace in the form of smoke and condenses on the inside of the chimney. Creosote is highly flammable, and deposits one-fourth of an inch deep or more should be removed, emphasizes Nelson.

Once ignited, creosote can burn at temperatures up to 3,000 degrees F. The strong upward draft caused by high-temperature chimney fires can lift burning creosote out of the chimney and onto the roof, possibly spreading the fire to the rest of house, or even neighboring houses.

Chimney cleaning is a messy and sometimes dangerous task which may require climbing onto the roof. Although chemical cleaners are available, most have been proven ineffective.

Nelson suggests steel brushes to clean a chimney, using extension rods to reach the entire length of the flue. To avoid getting soot all over the house, fasten a sheet over the opening of the fireplace.

Chimney cleaning may best be handled by a chimney sweep. He will have a selection of brushes and will be able to spot improper installation of wood stoves or chimney damage, notes Nelson.

Once the chimney has been cleaned, proper use of the stove or fireplace can reduce creosote buildup, he adds.

The newer, more efficient stoves and fireplace inserts allow less heat loss through the chimney. This lower temperature inside the chimney encourages the accumulation of creosote, Nelson explains. With hotter fires, creosote is burned as it is produced, leaving less to condense in the chimney.

If the chimney and stove pipes are free from excessive creosote deposits, accumulation can be controlled by burning a hot fire for about 15 minutes each day to burn off any thin layers of creosote which may have formed the previous day.

Should a chimney fire occur, call the fire department immediately. If possible, shut off the air supply to the stove or fireplace but do not close the damper since this will force smoke into the house. If there is still a fire in the stove or fireplace, extinguish it with an approved fire extinguisher or throw baking soda onto the fire, Nelson says.

Residents' son receives promotion from department

Texas DPS Trooper Richard L. Waters has received a promotion to Trooper II, Texas Department of Public Safety, Highway Patrol. Waters is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Waters of Hereford.

Waters is a graduate of Hereford High School, attended Panhandle State University and West Texas State University and graduated from the Texas DPS Law Enforcement Academy in May, 1981.

Vega was the location of his first assignment, and in June, 1985, Waters transferred to Silverton where he became the first DPS

Trooper to be stationed in Briscoe County. With 14 other troopers, he covers the Briscoe, Swisher, Castro County areas and parts of Hall and Motley Counties. Their base is located in Tulia, Swisher County.

The Briscoe County Peace Officers Association honored Waters, his wife, Judy and son, Luke, with a cookout at Lake MacKenzie soon after their arrival in Silverton.

Waters is a member of the Texas Peace Officers Association and he and his wife are members of First Baptist Church, Silverton.

READY-MADE MINI-SLATS

Mini-slat blinds, once only custom-made, are now sold in standard, ready-made sizes. Pre-cut window blinds make it easy to install new mini-slats and they save money for the consumer. Although ready-made blinds do not offer the same range of sizes of custom blinds, they do come in approximately 66 sizes. While it is not practical to keep all sizes in stock, the most popular are usually readily available. Blind widths start at 23 inches and go up to 72 inches, in one-inch increments. The standard length of 64 inches can be shortened by taking out slats at the bottom. Larger blinds for patio doors are also available.
