

Private clubs bow out to public 'bottle clubs'

BY MARSHALL DAY
Staff Writer

The passage of state liquor laws last year brought an end to many of Hereford's "private clubs," but prompted the revival of a number of common "bottle clubs" not governed by state liquor laws.

Since the passage of the stricter liquor laws last year, three "private clubs" have closed their doors in Hereford. Two of these, along with a new building, have opened in the form of "bottle clubs" where anyone can go to have a drink, provided they have their own bottle.

"A lot of clubs found they couldn't exist in this dry area because of the new laws," said sheriff Travis McPherson. "In the past six months we've had the change-over from the private clubs to the bottle clubs, mainly because the private club couldn't afford to meet the requirements of the new laws."

The new "bottle clubs" have been in existence of a number of years throughout the state. They operate by offering "set-ups" for customers who want a soft drink with their beverage. The only requirement for a "bottle club" is that it have a store license from the state comptroller such as those issued to retail merchants.

No drinks are allowed to be served across the counter in a "bottle club."

The city ordinance which governs consumption of alcoholic beverages in the city limits, reads that no drinking can be done legally in public, meaning the city park, on a city street, or any place that is not private property.

Don Brush, city police chief, said a person can take a bottle or an alcoholic beverage into any establishment and mix himself a drink, provided the proprietor does not object.

An area liquor control official agreed.

"There is no law against having a drink in a dry area," said T.L. Baker, district supervisor for the Alcoholic Beverage Commission in Amarillo. "You can go into any of these places and mix yourself a drink if the owner doesn't mind.

"It would just be like taking a bottle down to your welding shop and taking a drink. There is nothing wrong with it. There are no laws governing this type of consumption."

McPherson said the "bottle clubs" have been in existence off and on in this area for many years, but none of them were ever able to last very long because of their failure to attract customers. He said he feels the same about the ones now in operation here.

"I don't see how they can continue," he said. "People just are not going to go in these places and pay the kind of prices just of a soft drink and a little music."

Judge to reveal probation officer choice this week

A successor for Lowell Sharp as adult probation officer of Deaf Smith County will be named by Dist. Judge Archie McDonald either Monday or Tuesday.

The judge said by telephone from Dumas Saturday he had a "pretty well" made up his mind on his choice from among "six or seven" applicants for the job. He has limited his consideration to only those persons living in Deaf Smith County, he said.

Sharp has resigned, effective Aug. 1, because he is moving to Oregon.

McDonald said he rejected a number of applications from out of Hereford. A parole officer from Amarillo and a man from Panhandle State College in Oklahoma applied, but McDonald said he told them he couldn't consider them because they did not live in Amarillo.

"A man from here (Dumas) said he was willing to move to Hereford, but I said I wouldn't consider that," the judge added.

"Quite a few real capable people have applied. I think we're fortunate in having someone that is interested, applying."

McDonald said he planned to go over all of the applications again over the weekend, but that he is leaning toward the appointment of one man in particular.

Among the applicants are several members of local law enforcement agencies.

McDonald will be in Hereford to hear several guilty pleas on felony complaints Monday. Jury trials may come Tuesday.

TV man hits water waste

Farmers generally tend to keep on doing what they've always done, even if other methods have been proven better, according to the agriculture news director of KFDA-TV in Amarillo.

For that reason, Bedford Forrest added, he is pessimistic about chances for the High Plains to put itself on a sound financial footing in the near future.

The area has two important resources—water and people—but the farmers' stubborn refusal to take on new conservation techniques is going to mean the loss of the underground water on the Plains, Forrest went on.

"The other important thing we have is our people. We'll always have that, but our water is running out. This year the demand is higher than ever before," he said.

It has been estimated that some seven million acre feet of water will be taken from the underground water supply in 1971 alone, the KFDA-TV official told members of the Kiwanis Club Thursday. In turn, about one-tenth of an inch a year is being returned to the underground water table, which means it takes 10 years just to put an inch of water back in.

"You have a banker over here who can tell you what happens when you take money out of your bank account all the time and never put any in. It's called deficit spending. And we've got deficit spending in our water situation. We know beyond any shadow of a doubt the underground water supply is going dry, just as surely as if you left a faucet on all the time on a tank."

County agricultural officials are versed in numerous procedures that will help the farmer stabilize his underground water situation—procedures that have been proven by research and practice to be effective—Forrest said.

"But getting people to change is the hard part. People have been doing things a certain way for so long that they don't want to do it differently. Yet when we take this kind of attitude, we're doing away with water, one of the most important things we have," Forrest said.

Because of the area's dwindling water supply, more and more attention has been given to the possibility of importing water from other states. But there is misunderstanding and hostility elsewhere, too, when it comes to the question of taking their water.

"If you want to make someone mad, talk about people in Louisiana about taking their water out of there and into Texas. They'll say if you pull fresh water away from their shrimp beds to get water for crops in Texas, you'll be taking away their living. They'll tell you it takes the right combination of salt water and fresh water for their shrimp to live," he pointed out.

What West Texas actually needs, however, is not the fresh water but any water, even water from Louisiana sewer systems, Forrest said. Because West Texas needs water not for drinking but for industrial and irrigation use. The water supply here is ample for drinking needs, he said.

Even at that, waste water can be made all right for drinking through a recycling process, Forrest said. It probably would have an odor that would make it unpleasant, though, even if it tasted okay.

He threw a few stones at ecology. See WATER, Page 2

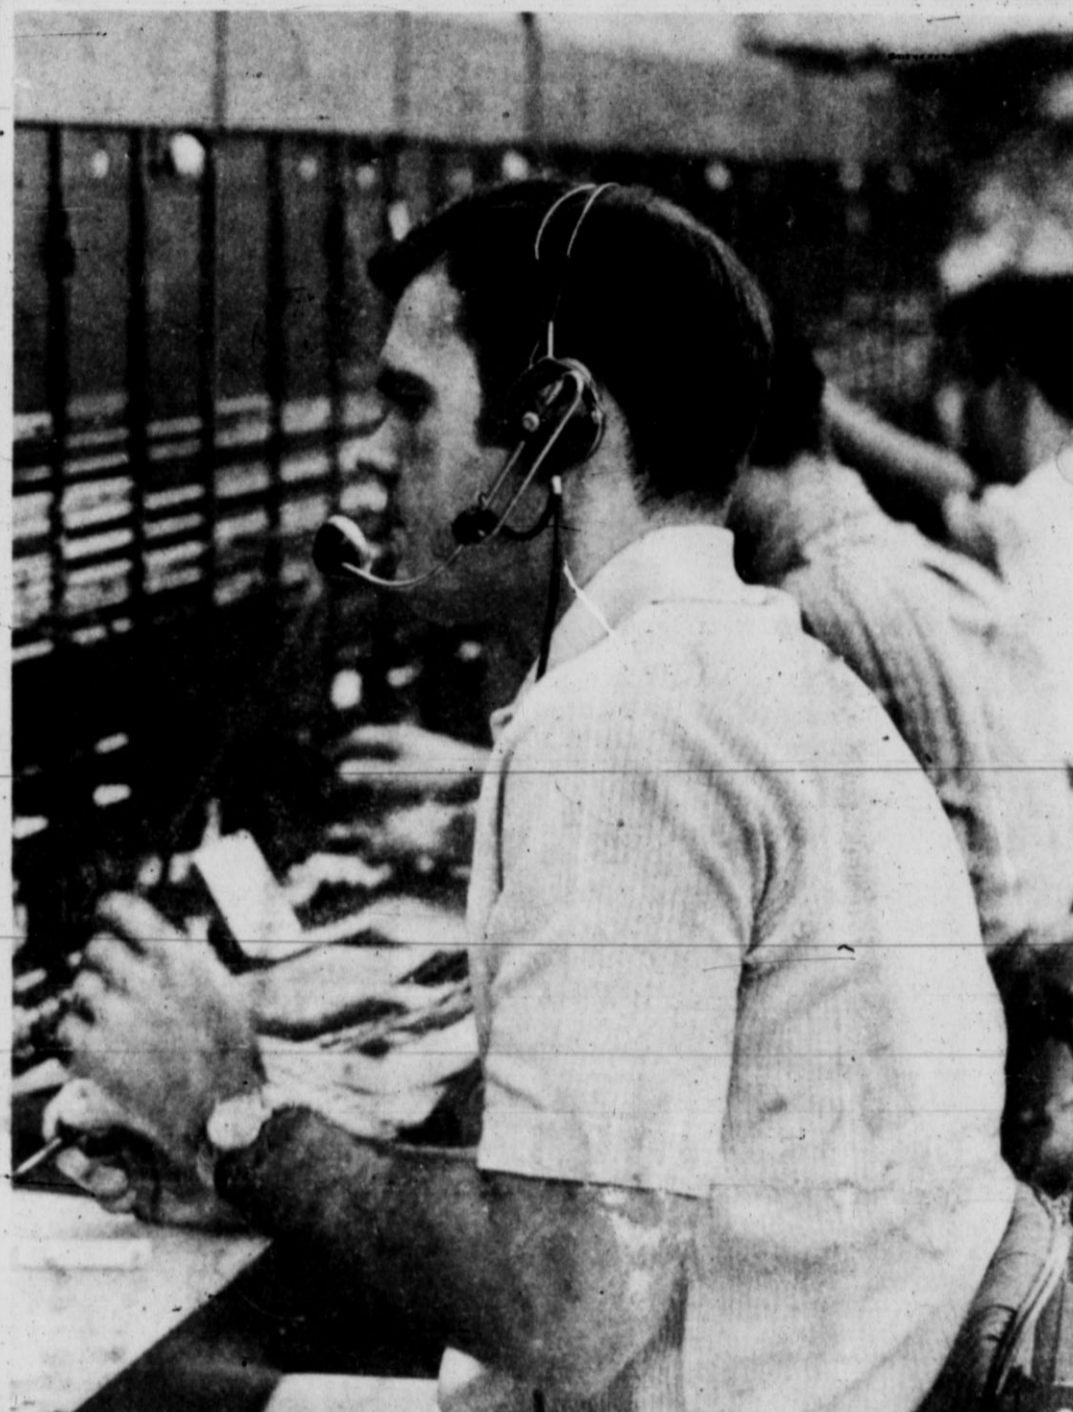

Reception today honors Lindsey

A reception today will honor Jim Lindsey, the new executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Hereford residents may meet Lindsey from 3 to 5 p. m. in the Blue Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Building at Lee and 3rd Streets.

The chamber hired Lindsey a month ago to succeed Bill Thompson, who moved to Leavenworth, Kan., to assume the leadership of its chamber.

Lindsey, 30, has a wife and a daughter. He comes here from Durant,

Workers on strike

At 12:01 a. m. Saturday Southwestern Bell Telephone employees went on strike here and across the nation, but the walk-off did little to add to the mayhem already caused by last Wednesday's Western Electric Company strike.

Mike Patrick, manager of the local office, said he has lost about 75 per cent of his office personnel, 100 per cent of the inside switchmen, 80 per cent of the traffic personnel and possibly 100 per cent of the outside installer repairmen.

"We actually are not any worse off than we were when the Western Electric people went on strike," he said, "with maybe the possible exception that our outside men who were working on installation orders are gone."

Patrick said the WE and Communication Workers of America strike which started at 5:30 a.m. Wednesday has already caused most of the damage that was to be done. He said the strike affected local Bell Telephone personnel because many of them honor picket lines established by striking Western Electric people.

"The Southwestern Bell and CWA strike is not going to do us any more harm than was already done by the Western Electric strike. Our business office will be open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday and we will be staffed with supervisors and regular operators who did not choose to honor the picket lines," he said.

Patrick said two plant supervisors are working to keep repairs at a minimum and see to it that the plant is kept in working order throughout the strike. He said the strike could last as long as six weeks.

Sleeping sickness threatens horses in Hereford area

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin declared the outbreak of Venezuelan equine Encephalomyelitis (VEE) in Texas as a national emergency, but vaccine against the horse "sleeping sickness" will not be available here to local veterinarians until sometime early this week.

The vaccine, which will be flown into an area distribution center, probably at Amarillo, will become available to area veterinarians who will see to it that it is distributed in their areas.

Meanwhile, the federal government also placed a state quarantine prohibiting the movement of any horses out of the state, and the state government has issued a preliminary quarantine prohibiting any movement.

Jack Gilliland of Hereford Veterinary Clinic, said he has been swamped with calls from area residents wanting to know when the vaccine will be available. He said the only thing he can do at this time is to make arrangements before hand to vaccinate the animals, and then sit back and wait on the vaccine.

"I expect there will be at least 200 or 300 horses to be vaccinated around here," he said. The cost of the vaccination is only the veterinarian's fee with the vaccine available without charge.

Aaron Hutto, of Hutto's Veterinary Clinic, said he already has received calls to vaccinate 470 animals and he has applied for 500 doses of the vaccination.

"I requested 500 doses and we will just have to go from there," he said. "I really doubt I will get this much, but this is purely speculation."

The first distribution of the vaccine, Hutto said, will be on a percentage basis as to the number of equines in any area. The state will distribute it to cities and veterinarians will pick the vaccine up.

"The vaccine is supplied by the Department of Defense," Hutto said, "on an experimental basis and the owner has to sign a release saying the government or the veterinarian is not responsible for any side-effects."

The vaccine is shipped in prepackaged form and has to be mixed before it is used. After the vaccine is mixed, it must be kept under ice and is only good for 12 hours.

The disease, in its third week since it spread from Mexico into the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas, is fatal to horses but not confirmed to be fatal to humans. In several cases, persons have become sick with the disease, and several times, young children have died of the disease, but health officials said they are unsure of the exact cause of the death in the humans.

The premises quarantine, issued Wednesday, prohibits any equine to be moved from the pasture to another. Anyone caught doing so is subject to possible fine.

The state quarantine stopped the movement of horses to outside the state and all public and private functions involving the use of horses have been canceled.

Congressman Bob Price said some of the 185,000 doses of the vaccine for VEE which have been sent to Texas will be sent to the Texas Panhandle.

"I am advised that there are approximately 430,000 horses in Texas, and it is hoped that up to 40 per cent of them can be vaccinated during the next two weeks," Price said.

State officials said last week any equine — whether it be horses, mules, jacks, or jennys — can be moved only if the owner has waited 14 days after the animal has received a vaccination for VEE. If an animal is moved after it has received a vaccination, the person moving the animal must have with him a certificate of vaccination which will be issued by the veterinarian.

Buffalo coach outlines upcoming grid season

'71 WT FOOTBALL — Gene Mayfield, new head coach at West Texas State University, spoke to the Hereford Lions Club Wednesday about the upcoming football campaign.

Gene Mayfield, the West Texas State head football coach and athletic director, gave a briefing here Wednesday on his Buffalo football team of 1971.

He was the guest speaker of the Hereford Lions Club.

He came to Hereford with a good feeling, he said, because Hereford has been good to West Texas State. In season ticket sales, Hereford has trailed only Amarillo and Canyon, Mayfield said.

"We've sold 154 season tickets here. I think that's real good, because I know you have a lot to do and that you support your local high school team also," the coach said.

Mayfield recruited Hereford's Mike Wartes for West Texas' freshman football team this fall. In contrast with past years, when West Texas played only one freshman game at most, there will be more action for them this year.

"I think you're going to lose a lot of freshmen, if you just have them there, with no games, and just use them as target practice for the varsity," Mayfield said. The Stomper will play Tulsa, Wichita State, New Mexico and Texas-El Paso freshmen this season, he said. Only one game will be at home, two will be away and the fourth will be at Odessa against Texas-El Paso.

Mayfield comes to West Texas State from Odessa Permian, where his teams made repeated trips to the state playoffs. He brought four of his top players with him to Canyon, and Odessa businessmen promptly lined up the Odessa game between the West Texas and El Paso freshmen.

As far as the varsity is concerned, Mayfield said he will have "a half-dozen quality players, as good as our opponents will have." He also has picked up 11 transfers from Southwest Conference schools. Transfers are ineligible for one season, but upon becoming eligible they will add to an improved program, he emphasized.

Mayfield is, like many coaches, basically pessimistic. One of the bleak pictures he paints is at running back. He has a shortage there, he says.

"Rusty Tucker is the only returning runningback who started any last year," and he has been going to summer school trying to build his grade point average high enough to be eligible this fall, Mayfield said. He hasn't succeeded yet.

The quarterback position is firm in Ed Holwig, who started last year, but there's no depth at the position.

"And he's not the quarterback I'd really go after, if I was looking for a quarterback to recruit. He throws better than most people but he perhaps is not able to run the option as well as we'd like. So necessarily we will probably be a throwing-type team this year, more of a pro-style offense," Mayfield said.

To keep Holwig from getting hurt, the emphasis will be on handing the ball off early instead of letting him keep it on option plays, the coach added.

The future is bright at running back, however. Mayfield recalls seeing a big, strapping lad of 6-feet-4, 230 pounds on campus when he first arrived.

"I said to myself, that's a good-looking tackle, and I wondered if he was offensive or defensive tackle. I asked him and he said, 'No, sir, I play halfback.' He's coachable. He just doesn't have any experience yet," Mayfield said.

Even though the West Texas recruiting season got underway late, because of the late date that Mayfield was hired, he said he was admittedly enthusiastic about the results.

"We signed only two from out of state. I know a lot of people will say you can't win with boys from around here. I disagree. There are good athletes in this part of the country. The question is, whether we can convince them to come to West Texas State."

Plans for putting artificial turf in Buffalo Bowl are being aimed for the 1972 season, Mayfield said. Those behind the Astro turf effort decided to concentrate current efforts on selling season tickets and then hit the artificial turf question hard next year.

"I can't think of a place that needs Astro turf more than West Texas State. Sitting where it is, the grass freezes over every year," Mayfield said. During spring practice, when the wind whipped up it put almost as much grass in the seats as on the playing field, he quipped.

If an artificial turf is laid down on the floor of Buffalo Bowl, it will have to come from private funds, because the university has insufficient money to finance such a project, Mayfield pointed out.

He would be in favor of limiting scholarships, he said. If for no other reason, if each school were limited to 30 football scholarships a season, it would give West Texas State the opportunity to recruit a number of more, talented athletes.

"In the Big Ten Conference, they have just started limiting scholarships to four in each of the spring sports. If teams like Ohio State, Michigan, Michigan State, and the like are feeling the pinch, where they draw seventy to eighty thousand people for football games, then you know the smaller schools like West Texas State do too," Mayfield pointed out.

ogists, who have been opposing importation efforts on the grounds it would throw off the ecological balance of animals in the path of the canals that would have to be channeled.

"The economy of this area is more important than a few birds and snakes," he said. "We're going to dislocate some rattlesnakes and turtles and bumblebugs but we're going to get so water for this area."

He recalled that Houston, which is experiencing a drought now, opposed the Texas Water Plan when it was submitted as a Constitutional Amendment.

"I hope they get a little thirsty down there. Besides the drought, their graves are now sinking deeper and deeper and gradually into their underground water supply. I hope it upsets them to start drinking out of Grandpa's bones."

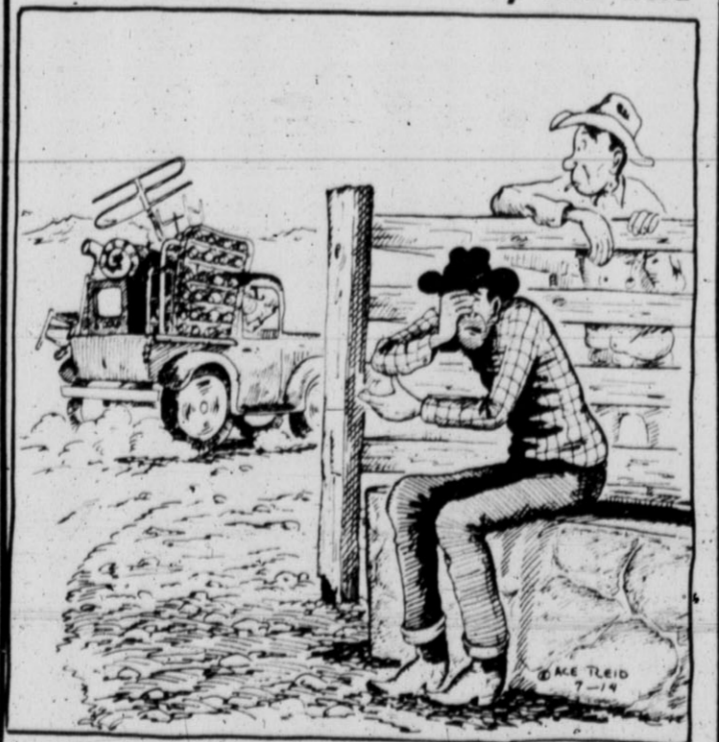

America is better fed for less cost than any other country, "but it's not going to continue if the people remain uninformed about what we're trying to do. There's nothing in the nation that could exist without agriculture," he said.

"Don't cuss the farmers," he asked the townsfolk among his audience. "They're the ones that let us have two or three cars each and let us take a vacation each year."

Highlights and Sidelights From Your STATE CAPITOL by Vern Sanford

AUSTIN, Tex. — Back-to-school time isn't too far off for more than two million young Texans, and State Board of Education has approved a record $302.4 million statewide available school fund allotment. Board set $121.90 as the state allocation for each pupil in public schools this year. Figure is based on the average daily attendance during 1970-71, or 2,479,400, although actual enrollment was over 2.7 million. Local school districts may use their allocation to help pay annual operating expenses, including teacher salaries. Available school fund draws investment earnings from the $835 million permanent school fund. In their preparations for the upcoming school year, Board of Education also: *Approved an $887,500 contract with Southwest Educational Development Laboratory for a bilingual teaching program tailored for four-year-old children of Mexican-American farm workers. Ten bilingual specialists will work with 100 youngsters in McAllen and Hereford to develop an experimental project next school year and field test it in 1972-73.

*Approved a new accreditation plan to provide computer data to warn of developing weak points in school systems. Data will provide scientific analysis of information needed to decide which schools should be visited by accreditation teams. Such teams visit about 200 of more than 1,100 Texas school districts each year.

*Entered an agreement to link Texas Education Agency and U. S. Office of Education in a $1.8 million program to evaluate the special education pilot projects expected to have national impact on the teaching of handicapped children.

*Allocated $23.2 million to buy new textbooks (see below).

DISEASE SPREADS — A sleeping sickness-like disease spread among horses (and in a few humans) in the South Texas-Rio Grande Valley area. U. S. Agriculture Department which originally had scheduled an experimental vaccine against Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis in 13 counties, later released it statewide and slapped an embargo on Texas horses.

Later, a state Animal Health Commission order halted movement within state or out of state of horses not vaccinated at least 14 days earlier.

Several persons were hospitalized in Brownsville with VEE symptoms. Cases in horses increased sharply, though laboratory confirmation lagged behind discovery of symptoms.

Disease, described as "flu-like" among humans, is deadly to horses, and concern was expressed for the equine population. Emergency situation stopped $11 rodeos, horse shows, race meets and other activities involving horses.

TEX BOOKS AVAILABLE FOR REVIEW — Textbooks considered for 1972-73 school adoption can be looked over by interested citizens at 20 regional education service centers over the state.

Texas Education Agency, the largest single buyer of textbooks in the world, has $23.2 million available for the next school year. New books cost an average $8.10 for each of 2.7 million pupils. Proposed new textbooks can be reviewed at Edinburg, Corpus Christi, Victoria, Houston, Beaumont, Huntsville, Kilgore, Mount Pleasant, Wichita Falls, Richardson, Fort Worth, Waco, Austin, Abilene, San Angelo, Amarillo, Lubbock, Midland, El Paso and San Antonio education service centers.

1.5 MILLION NEW VOTERS? — Texas may have 1.5 million new voters in 1972 largely as a result of 18-21-year-olds becoming eligible for all elections, according to a state senator's forecast.

New law goes into effect September 1 which permits registration of a Texas voter for a three year period instead of annually as at present. Registration will also be open year-around except for a 30-day cutoff before any election.

Dallas Sen. Mike McKool, author of the new registration law, sees youngsters as accounting for a large part of the 1.5 million increase in eligibility rolls and predicts they will vote as well as any age group.

AG OPINIONS — All Texas counties must adopt the jury wheel system and terminate selection of jury panels through use of commissions, Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin has held.

New state law providing for waiver of indictment in non-death-penalty cases is constitutional, Martin said in another opinion.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded: *Commissioner of Bureau of Labor Statistics has no authority to promulgate rules and regulations limiting the number of boxing and wrestling promoters in cities within certain population brackets.

*Bridge between Corpus Christi Bay and Gulf of Mexico adjacent to Mustang Island when accepted by Texas Highway Department becomes part of the state highway system.

*Comptroller of Public Accounts may issue a warrant to a contractor or seller of supplies and/or services purchased through State Board of Control without seller's certification of correctness of invoice (correcting an earlier opinion).

*Governor is authorized to make six appointments to Texas Board of Licensure for Nursing Home Administrators — two initial appointees to serve until Jan. 31, 1973, two until 1975 and two until 1977.

APPOINTMENTS — Gov. Preston Smith named E. Byron Crozier of Cleburne as district judge of 18th judicial district, to succeed Judge John A. James Jr. whom he named Tenth Court of Civil Appeals chief justice.

Smith selected Rex Sullivan Jr. of Quannah district judge of the 46th judicial district, replacing Judge Tom Davis who resigned.

Charles D. Kirkham Jr. of Dallas, a native of Cleburne, was placed by the Governor on the Legislative Property Tax Committee, along with Sen. Jaes Bates of Edinburg, Rep. Richard Slack of Pecos, Jack L. Hart of Midland and Carl S. Smith, Harris County tax assessor-collector.

Charles R. Barden, acting chief of the air control section of the Texas State Department of Health, was named to the advisory committee to Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

COURTS SPEAK — District judge in Midland ordered the lawsuit attacking constitutionality of redistricting transferred to Austin where it may be tried this month.

Texas libraries were refunded nearly $500,000 as a result of the Attorney General's price-fixing suit against children's book publishers.

Court of Criminal Appeals upheld a Texas 1969 statute on possession of LSD, but a new challenge was filed here on changes in the law this year. Court again upheld sodomy statute.

PASS BIDS IN — A low bid of $1.4 million on the long-delayed second phase construction of a water exchange pass across Mustang Island apparently was submitted by Brown and Root Construction Inc. of Houston.

Brown and Root bid, including construction of a two-lane bridge across a 100-foot wide channel on Park Road 53, was the lowest of five opened last week by Parks and Wildlife Department. Bids were studied before a recommendation on letting the contract.

HUNTERS HIRE D — A state proposal to turn Canadian River into a wildlife refuge stirred protests of hunters from the Panhandle at a hearing here. Panhandle hunters wanted no part of the Parks and Wildlife Commission's closing of state-owned river beds, streams and railroad rights of way to public hunting.

SHORT SNORTS Governor Smith, House Speaker Gus Mutscher and several others were questioned a second time by Securities and Exchange Commission in its stock probe.

Happiness is what I sell! Cash-value life insurance. It gives you freedom from financial worry. You can live a little. That's happiness.

Major Texas crude oil buyers recommended to the Railroad Commission a $0.344 barrel-daily decrease in production next month.

Under a new law motor boat owners must provide Coast Guard-approved life preservers for children 12 years old or under.

Traffic accidents killed 1653 Texans this year, compared with 1621 in 1970.

Hearing is set August 24 on request of Clear Lake Savings Association for a branch office charter in Houston.

Texas has taken the first steps toward a $1 million updating of law enforcement communications system.

House General Investigating Committee sent out questionnaires to state representatives asking information on stock scandals — and included questions on whether the press had been "biased" in reporting news.

Revenue from —cigarette smoking jumped $3.2 million — to $18.9 million — from June 1970 to June 1971.

U. S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen shies away from talk about his being a favorite son presidential candidate in 1972 and stresses need for Texas Democratic party harmony.

Price joins in resolution praising Nixon

U. S. Rep. Bob Price has joined in co-sponsoring a resolution commending President Nixon on his actions in "conducting a broad-based diplomatic offensive to gain the full cooperation of foreign governments in eliminating the production and illegal traffic in narcotics."

The resolution also requests the President to exercise all economic and diplomatic pressures possible to encourage other nations to stop the production and illegal traffic in drugs and to request an early meeting of the international Narcotic Control Board to consider and adopt proposed U. S. amendments to the Board.

The resolution further states that unless other Nations take reasonable action to stop illegal traffic in narcotics, the Congress will take appropriate unilateral action.

"There are 250,000 heroin addicts in the U. S. and an additional 30,000 to 40,000 among U. S. troops in Southeast Asia. It is evident that internal efforts within the U. S. to control this problem cannot be successful as long as other nations continue to allow a free flow of drugs," Price said.

"For this reason I join with my colleagues in the Congress in congratulating President Nixon on his increased efforts to destroy these drugs at the source."

It is inconsistent for this Nation to continue to give aid to countries which allow the legal production of narcotics. I for one believe that it is time for us to demand that this production and traffic in narcotic halt."

Jewelry fashions, facts, fictions

RUBY COLOR
For many years now, rubies of larger carat weight have commanded exceedingly high prices on the world market. The key to this valuation is color — and, therefore, beauty. The mines in Burma, long the source for rubies of the finest color, have been seriously restricted in their operations and many of the mines are also played out in terms of mineral deposits. However, not every ruby found in Burma is of the most valuable "pigeon's blood" color; that country also produces many rubies that we as jewelers would term inferior color.

Much darker, and less valuable, rubies are found in Siam (Thailand) and light red rubies come from Ceylon. Both, while commanding a fair price as genuine rubies, cannot compare with the finest of Burmese rubies. A few stones of lesser color quality are occasionally found in other parts of the world, even such regions as North Carolina and Montana.

Ruby is one color manifestation of gem corundum which you know better as sapphire. It may be clear or colorless, orange, pink, yellow, green, purple-violet or the familiar blue. It is when the corundum or sapphire appears as a clear, beautiful red with just a suggestion of a violetish overtone, that it may properly be termed ruby. Lighter stones that are sometimes sold in foreign-made or tourist jewelry as "genuine ruby" would more properly be called pink sapphire by gemologists, and of course, by American Gem Society jewelers such as myself.

804 S. 25 MILE AVE.

Horses and horse diseases are subjects of great interest to Texans currently as a dread disease threatens the half a million horses in our State. And there is some concern accompanying the spread of the disease because the effect the virus could have on humans.

The horse disease is known by the tongue-twisting name of Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis, or more commonly by the initials VEE. It spread up from South America—apparently coming into Texas via flies or mosquitoes which are believed to be carriers.

There is a vaccine available which is being widely used by horse owners. The vaccine is still experimental, but it is the only known means of combating the disease in horses. Once contracted by horses, the disease is fatal in 85 to 90 per cent of the cases.

The Department of Agriculture was naturally reluctant to make a mass release of a vaccine which had not been fully tested. However, horse owners argued that it was the only tool available. The government did release the vaccine for use by veterinarians only and on a voluntary basis by horse owners.

Early reports indicate that the vaccine seems to be working in those cases where it has been used. Some ranchers have used the vaccine on hundreds of horses, and have prevented death losses while others who did not vaccinate lost horses.

There is great hope that the vaccine can stop the spread of the dread disease. There is also hope that it will lessen the danger for humans.

As the disease swept upward last month along the coast of Mexico, I urged the Department of Agriculture to join with our Mexican friends to begin a program of vaccination in Mexico. The Department was slow in acting, but it did finally comply. The U.S. furnished the vaccine and the work in Mexico gave officials assurances that it was effective. When the disease jumped the border, the vaccine was used in South Texas and it seemed to work there, too.

While the final results are far from in, the effort is an example of joint work by the Federal, state and local governments in an attempt to stop a fearful disease that threatens the horse industry in Texas, and even has overtones of danger for human beings.

The Sugar Act: it does the job

(Editor's Note: The following is a summary of the Sugar Act by U. S. Rep. Bob Poage, chairman of the House Agricultural Committee.)

Prior to our Sugar Program (1935), we had relatively little domestic sugar production. We admitted sugar under a tariff which simply increased the price to domestic consumers. We had no assurance of supplies when needed and no stability of prices. Under the existing program all sugar, whether domestically produced or imported, pays an excise tax.

Part of this tax is used to pay a subsidy to domestic producers of both cane and beet sugar. But the total tax greatly exceeds the payments. The Treasury has taken in about $600 million more under this tax than it has paid out, making this one of the few programs which pays a profit to the government.

The program has provided a stable supply of sugar because it is profitable for foreign producers to see that we get all the sugar they are authorized to send to the U. S. This is true because in the American market they get a higher price than on the so-called "world market." But if they fail to meet their quota one year, it is reduced the next year.

The program has benefited American beet and cane producers because it enables them to share in the American market on the same price level as foreign producers and, in addition, they receive payments from the excise tax. American producers are allocated 62 per cent of the total sugar consumption but in recent years they have not produced all they were allowed.

Domestic production last year amounted to about 56 per cent. Any shortages or deficits in domestic production are filled from foreign sources in proportion to the size of each nation's quota.

The program, of course, helps foreign nations and I find no objection to helping others when we are helping ourselves. It provides a good market for about 40 nations who provide a little more than four million tons of sugar.

The bill contains authority for the President to reduce or cancel the quota of any country which takes the property of any American citizen without due process or payment. Or, he can levy a special tax against sugar imported from such country and use the proceeds to pay the American citizen who has been wronged.

In the final analysis, the most important part of the program is its aid to consumers. It has not only provided a stable supply of sugar, it has also maintained a stable and relatively inexpensive price level. It does this by matching the total supply placed on the market each quarter with the estimated needs.

The Secretary of Agriculture has been able to calculate this ratio so accurately that the price of sugar has remained stable in the United States even when the price in Canada jumped by 50 per cent and our retail prices of sugar today reflect far less increase than any other major food commodity.

The program is complicated. Until one studies it he is almost certain to say that it can't work. But it is like the Bumblebee, who the aerodynamic engineers say cannot possibly fly — in spite of its apparent contradictions the program works.

We have a dependable supply of sugar. Our domestic sugar producers are generally doing better than most farmers. We have helped foreign countries. We put money in the U. S. Treasury. Finally, we have held down the price to consumers. In other words, the Bumblebee flies.

School's money depends on average daily attendance

AUSTIN—Texas school districts this year will receive $121.90 in state funds for each student in average daily attendance during 1970-71.

This record-breaking Available School Fund allotment, which will total nearly $302,486,800 statewide, was approved Saturday (July 10) by the State Board of Education. The 1971-72 school year allocation is based on last year's average daily attendance by 2,470,400 students in all Texas public schools. Actual enrollment tops 2.7 million.

The State Available School Fund is financed by earnings of the Permanent School Fund and various dedicated taxes. After a portion of the Available School Fund is set aside for the purchase of state-adopted textbooks, the remainder is distributed each year to the public schools.

Local districts may use their allocation to help pay for annual operating expenses, including teacher salaries.

The State Available School Fund is one of two major state sources of public school funding. The other, the Permanent School Fund, is a perpetual resource composed of an investment trust and landed endowment.

Income from this endowment includes oil and gas royalties, motor vehicle taxes, and $45.8 million in ad valorem taxes. Earnings from the Permanent School Fund are deposited to the State Available School Fund.

The Permanent School Fund has grown from $2 million in 1854 to more than $835 million. These funds are invested in municipal bonds, government bonds, corporate bonds, and preferred stocks.

Grand jury indicts 2 more; district court cases heard

The county grand jury, in its final meeting Wednesday before bowing out for another grand jury, indicted two men and passed another man pending further investigation.

The jury, in its third meeting in less than a month, indicted 24 persons and no billed seven persons, declaring there was insufficient evidence to hold the seven for trial.

The two indictments handed down last week were against Joseph Mendiaz for maliciously and willfully destroying a windshield and Juan Reza Martinez for burglary by breaking.

Mendiaz, 22, of 334 Ave. C, is out on $2,000 bond. He was indicted for breaking the windshield of a car belonging to James Short of Hereford.

Martinez, 20, remained in jail after he was indicted for breaking and entering the house of Jose Medina.

The grand jury passed the case against Al Smith pending further investigation of theft of a steer.

Felony charges, including one that was almost four years old, were dismissed by Dist. Judge Archie McDonald Wednesday on the recommendation of Criminal Dist. Atty. Andy Shuval.

A charge of swindling with a worthless check was dismissed against C.K. Cowan Sr. He was indicted July 31, 1967, and a jury ruled in November 1967 that he was insane, then said in January 1968 that he was sane again. Shuval asked Wednesday that the case be dismissed, and McDonald agreed.

Other cases were dismissed against Dale Doan, who had been charged with defrauding with a worthless check; Eska Lee Rogers, driving while intoxicated; Danny Munguia, removal of mortgaged property; Frank Avila, desertion; Alfonso Zuniga, swindling with a worthless check; and James A. O'Laughlin, theft by bailee.

Felony charges were filed the past week against three other persons, before Justice of the Peace Glenn Nelson.

Ricky L. Fletcher was charged Monday with forgery, Billy Latham was charged Monday with swindling with a worthless check, and Truman Sism was charged Tuesday with forgery.

Nine misdemeanor cases were filed in county court recently, with two of them pleading guilty already. Majin B. Garza pleaded guilty to his driving while intoxicated charge of July 7 and was assessed a $50 fine. His 60-day jail sentence was set aside for a one-year probation period. Jimmy Wallace Toney pleaded guilty to his Thursday charge of driving while intoxicated charge and was sentenced to three days in jail and $50 fine.

Other charges were against Connie D. Kerbo, theft; William

H. Ferguson, aggravated assault; Fred Gonzales Jr., child desertion; Robert E. Gordon, driving while intoxicated; Roger E. Edwards, driving while intoxicated; Juan R. Martinez, destruction of private property; and Josie I. Melcher Jr., possession of a dangerous drug.

$20,000 subsidy limitation proposal fails in Congress

Agriculture "dodged lightning" again Thursday when the U.S. Senate voted 56 to 29 against another move to lower the maximum eligibility of producers to receive payments under current cotton, feed grains and wheat programs.

But observers close to the scene in Washington warn that the storm is by no means over.

The Senate vote came on an amendment to the $13.6 billion appropriations bill for the Agriculture Department and environmental and consumer protection programs. Offered by Senator Birch Bayh, D-Ind., the amendment would have cut the present statutory $55,000 per crop ceiling to $20,000.

The House adopted a $20,000 per crop limitations amendment to the appropriations bill on June 23 by a vote of 214 to 198. Differences between the House and Senate versions, including the limitations issue, now will have to be settled in a House-Senate Conference Committee, after which both houses will have the opportunity to accept or reject the Conference report.

Congress plans a month-long recess in August, so it is expected that action on the appropriations bill will be completed this month. Senate conferees have already been appointed.

House conferees most likely will be appointed early this week, and it is at this point that low-level limitations proponents may make their next move. They will no doubt consider the possibility, and perhaps make an all-out effort, to have House conferees instructed to insist on retaining the limitation amendment.

"There is little doubt," Johnson said, "that there is now a majority in both the House and Senate who favor a lower limitation level, and without the strong opposition of the Administration we could never have won on this issue."

Johnson said it was obvious to him that the Senate vote against the limitations amendment was a case of Senators acquiescing to the desires of the Administration and other Senators, not a reflection of majority sentiment.

This is further evidenced, he said, by the fact that, while rejecting the House-approved $20,000 payment ceiling, the Senate Appropriations Committee nevertheless wrote strong language into its report on the bill directing the Agriculture Department to do a better job of policing the $55,000 ceiling now in effect.

And the full Senate adopted a resolution by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., calling for Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin to supply Congress with a full report on the operation and administration of the limit on price support payments.

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. Marine Pfc. Jesse Salazar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Trinidad Salazar of 125 Ave. H, and husband of the former Miss Carmen DeLaCruz of 714 S. The wide margin by which the amendment was defeated in the Senate and the narrow margin by which it passed the House could work against the success of such a move. There is also doubt as to the parliamentary House conferees on an issue acceptability of instructing which the Senate specifically rejected.

"The concensus now is that the lower limit on payments can be avoided for 1972, but the storm clouds continue to build and we dare not become complacent," said Donald Johnson, executive vice president of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., who was in Washington at the time of the vote in both the House and Senate.

Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, the De-Sen. John Tower and Sen. partment of Agriculture and other Administration officials worked to defeat the limitations amendment in the Senate.

Women drivers-- who says that's bad?

Women drivers generally upset men. They are the subject of many jokes and critical remarks.

But on the golf course, it's a different story. There, women drivers do not usually get in the men's way. Sometimes, they are even considered an asset as members of foursomes in competitive tournaments.

"I like to play golf because it gives me a chance to get outside, and gives me an opportunity for fellowship and fun with other women who play," says Mary Gibson, serving a second term as president of the local Women's Golf Association.

From March through October, members of the association gather on Tuesday mornings at the golf course at 9 for "play day." On the first Tuesday of each month, a luncheon and business meeting next door at the Country Club is added to the schedule.

"The membership of the association is diversified in age range, giving the opportunity to know and enjoy the companionship of women whose children are young, as well as others whose children are grown," added Mrs. Gibson, mother of four young children.

Mary Gibson began playing golf three years ago, although she had caddied for her husband, David, while they were in high school.

Being left handed, Mary did not think she would be able to play efficiently. But she tried it, playing right handed, liked it and started taking lessons. She calls herself a "middle-roader," with her scores ranging in the high 40s and low 50s.

Another member of the group, Nancy Day, learned to play golf four years ago while her husband, Donald, was attending the University of Illinois. She joined the local group about six months ago.

"Most of the members are average players, who like to get out and enjoy a friendly game of golf," Mrs. Day said.

Some of the more skilled players, Helen Ann McWhorter, Juanita Sims, V. A. Allen and Corinne Easley, whose scores range in the upper 30s, frequently enter area tournaments, and often come home winners.

The golfing group, formed about 15 years ago, includes 20 paid members with about 10 active players. Membership dues are $5 a year.

Several members unable to play every week attend the luncheon-meeting, keeping current on the members' scores and winners of the monthly contests between the players.

To enter the contest, players turn in their scorecards from their games throughout the month. Mrs. Allen, tournament chairman, tallies these scores and awards the winners at the luncheons. Some of the challenges presented to the players include: least putts, least shots in the rough, shooting from the men's tees, counting the score with handicap or counting without handicap. Golf balls are awarded to the winners.

Nell Spradley, Bonnie Bradley and Juanita Sims, who cannot join the Tuesday morning games, do their golfing after working hours, while Janice Jackson, a secretary, is able to get off for the weekly session on the course.

Mrs. Gibson says she hopes more women will join the organization. Six prospective members are taking golf lessons from Calvin Garrett, golf course professional. These are Velta King, Susan Robbins, Ann Combs, Linda Warrick Daleine Springer and Mary Elizabeth Sullivan.

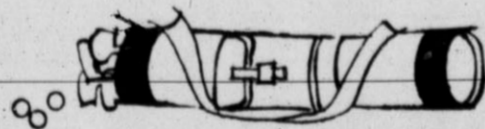

Garrett plans to offer group beginner lessons, free of charge to association members.

The ladies' group will sponsor, in the near future, a Scotch Foursome, when they will pair with men golfers for a Sunday afternoon contest, to be followed by an evening meal.

Other lady golfers holding membership in the organization are: Alma Pittenger, Clarisse McCaslin, Scottie McCleskey, Patsy Patrick, Jan Garrett, Gwen Sellmeyer, Lois Dods on, Idie Gearn, Betty Carrouthers, Sammie Spangler, Janice Jackson, Barbara McCrary, Charlotte Schroeter, Genevieve Guseman, Mary Nell Rudder and Mary Jane Pitman.

All aboard for an unusual sea cruise

A luxury liner attracts such a wide variety of people-types that before the voyage is over, unusual friendships and situations come to light. A novel is now available at the Deaf Smith County Library that is dramatized. Check it out today.

LIFEBOAT NUMBER TWO
By Margaret Culklin Banning
Within hours of the cruise ship's sailing, the crew of The Seven Seas had the passengers sorted out.

They were old hands at that, and round-the-world voyages of luxury liners attract familiar types: the rich and idle widows, the honeymooners, the prosperous middle-aged couples, the single men on the make.

Still, there were some uncommon sorts on this sailing, not quite so easy to pigeonhole.

There were, for example, Mark Claypole, a once-successful writer; Barbara Bancroft, whose parents paid for the cruise to get her over a love affair they abhorred; Father Dugan, the ship's chaplain, pressed by his Bishop to go on the cruise "for his spiritual health."

Also the recently widowed Signe Goode, unworried but rich; and ex-Senator Alec Goodrich, defeated in the recent election because of allegations of scandal.

But not all the passengers were running away, and life on board was a round of entertainment, distraction and luxurious indulgence. A liner at sea has a staff as large as the passenger list to minister to everyone's pleasure and run the complex machinery unobtrusively and well.

Commodore James, whose mandatory retirement would follow this cruise, was an old and able hand, and he hid his disquiet about the ship's mechanical condition, though the holding company's penny-pinching policy worried him.

He knew they had put industrialist Howard Demarest on board to check up on the whole concept of luxury cruising, and his presence, in the costliest suite with a luscious blonde companion tucked discreetly into a nearby cabin, promised trouble from the start.

As the days melted into weeks, routines were established, punctuated by shore trips and lengthy excursions when the ship touched ports on the African coast or in the Far East. And, in the prolonged intimacy of shipboard confinement, hidden passions and injuries sur-

It took the climax of a terrifying storm at sea to crystallize a new awareness—in any event, there were few passengers who were unchanged at the end of their voyage on The Seven Seas.

Dramatic and fast-moving, wise in the ways of human need and purpose, Lifeboat Number Two is perhaps the finest of Margaret Culklin Banning's many novels.

A strike for charity

With a telephone workers strike beginning and a steelworkers strike pending, the stalemate possibilities portend very little but gloom to Americans in general.

It is getting easier to strike. There are so many benefits which flow in from union slush funds, government welfare programs, etc. The cost, very often is not nearly so much to the striker as it is to business and the public in general. Which gives strikers their overpowering clout.

Slush funds are fine and come from union dues. But taxpayer support of strikers is idiocy.

One aspect of this support is food stamps and the question now before the house is: "Does issuing food stamps to strikers interfere with the collective bargaining process?" The answer is quite apparent. When a union strikes a company, both suffer economically. The issuance of food stamps to strikers provides one side of a collective bargaining dispute with financial support paid for through taxes by the public, including business.

Food stamps are generally available to any individual, including union members on strike, whose liquid assets are not more than $1,500 and whose monthly income after taxes is not more than $120. Benefits go up to $550 for families with eight or more children.

Under these loose restrictions, approximately 20 per cent of the population is eligible for food stamps.

The number of persons receiving food stamps grew from 3,343,806 in 1968 before strikers began receiving food stamps to 7,174,521 in 1970. The number of persons receiving food stamps in January 1971 was 157 per cent above the total of the preceding January. The money allotted for food stamps has grown from $115 million in 1967 to $1.4 billion in 1971. The amount allotted for fiscal 1972 and 1973 is open-ended.

The evidence suggests that where food stamps have been available in strike situations, union need for quick settlement has been greatly decreased. During the 1970 auto strike a total of 18,301 strikers in Wayne County, Mich. received stamps. About 20,000 in Flint received stamps, as did 10,000 in Oakland County and 2,500 in McComb County. Overall, 40-50 per cent of the 170,510 strikers in Michigan received food stamps. At a federal subsidy of $100 per user, the total comes to $8,000,000 for General Motors strikers in Michigan alone.

There's nothing to prevent a repetition of this subsidy. Self imposed unemployment surely does not warrant government charity. — Amarillo Daily News

The CBS affair

We think the House was wise to refuse to cite CBS and its president, Frank Stanton, for contempt of Congress. But it is at best an oversimplification to regard the outcome as another victory for freedom of the press in the same sense as the Supreme Court's judgment in favor of the newspapers in the case of the Pentagon papers.

Rep. Staggers, chairman of the House Commerce Committee, had demanded that CBS furnish television film that had been edited out of the broadcast version of the network's documentary "The Selling of the Pentagon," and Mr. Stanton declined. That production has been both praised and criticized, but there is no doubt that — to put it charitably — it was sloppily edited and misleading in places. This criticism in no way gainsays the fact that the Defense Department wastes a lot of taxpayer money, and not just on public relations.

TV news in general has built-in bias even when unintended, simply because of the extreme compression of its format; the regular news reports are usually half-an hour including commercials. Whatever the faults of newspapers, they can at least provide the space to tell a reasonably complete story if their reporters and editors will make the effort. So that is one distinction.

Another is that TV, unlike the newspaper business, is a government-regulated industry, both in technical areas and in matters such as fairness. For that reason, all the claims that TV is entitled to the full protection of the First Amendment are less clear-cut than is the unquestioned position of newspapers.

Having said all that, we nonetheless believe the approach of the committee was high-handed and wrong-headed.

and would have been had it been brow beating a supermarket chain instead of a TV network. Since TV is in fact in the news communicating business, however, a freedom-of-press aspect does come into the issue.

In other words, if CBS had lost, members of Congress and other government officials might have been encouraged to go much farther than they ever have in demanding to see newspaper reporters' notes, to make them reveal their confidential sources and so forth. The unambiguous language of the First Amendment relating to newspapers might deter the authorities, but the government's attempt to impose prior restraint on the publication of the Pentagon papers is not reassuring.

So it is good that Congress avoided a new precedent of harassment in the CBS affair. At the same time it may be hoped that TV news will now do a little soul-searching and look for ways to improve its performance. That might be the most salutary consequence of the whole episode. — Wall Street Journal

WYNNE, ARK., PROGRESS: "One of the old sayings is that 'words will never hurt you' but I'm not so sure that words are not to blame for some of our social problems of today. In the past, a person who used drugs habitually was known as a 'dope fiend' and was considered an outcast from society, a degraded person to be avoided and written off as a human being. Now, a drug-user is an 'addict' which is a pussyfooting term that somehow carries less stigma. There's even a little glamor attached to today's dope fiend, though he's still the same type of individual who has ended his useful life."

SIKESTON, MO., STANDARD: "We cannot always win. Sometimes we must fail. We must take our share of losses, our portion of defeats. The big thing is to be a god loser, not to whine when we are licked. Even though it hurts, we should smile. We should remember that one lesson is not all there is to school, or that one game is not all there is to the season. We must cultivate patience for the next chance. In the defeat of today we can learn the path by which we can win through tomorrow."

MILLHEIM, PA., JOURNAL: "The future of transportation in this country doesn't seem bright. Our rail system and Merchant Marine, vital to the National Defense, are becoming shells of their former selves. Were we ever to be faced again with a war of the magnitude of World War II, with our present declining railroads and Merchant Marine, we would indeed be in trouble. They literally moved armies in those days. Recent airlifting of troops to Europe proved that it is not feasible to move large bodies of men in this fashion. So what will happen with no trains and no ships available in sizeable numbers if another full scale war ever comes?"

$2.7 billion marked for revitalizing rural areas

BY BERT MILLS
WASHINGTON—Congress declared in the 1970 Agriculture Act that "the highest priority must be given to the revitalization and development of rural areas," and has followed through by earmarking $2.7 billion to be spent on rural development in fiscal year 1972.

With that much money invested, the House Agriculture Committee is holding hearings this month to get a progress report on rural development, and to get ideas on what should be planned in future years. Under Secretary of agriculture J. Phil Campbell was the opening witness on July 6.

He wasted little time on what he termed "the plight" of rural America, except to note that the recent census showed that half of all the counties in the nation lost population in the last decade, and to repeat the familiar forecast that by the year 2000 four out of five Americans will live in four congested areas, the Eastern Seaboard, Florida, California, and the Chicago-Milwaukee-Pittsburgh area.

Instead, he stressed "the national challenge" to solve the problems of rural America and quoted President Nixon about the need for balanced growth of both rural communities and big cities. Campbell said "we are now on the edge of developing national policies that will lead to more balanced growth."

Jobs, Housing Are Greatest Needs
Under Secretary Campbell said that jobs and housing are rural America's greatest needs. Other needs are transportation systems, educational opportunities, and health care. Manpower training programs, strengthened loan opportunities, and special programs on rural credit and taxes were also cited.

What Congress has done in these fields of late is impressive, at least in terms of dollars. Funds for the principal rural development programs in 1972 will be more than four times the 1961 level, and nearly double what was spent in 1969. Most of the additional money in the past three years has gone for low and moderate income housing programs.

The number of rural housing loans and grants has more than doubled in the past three years. More modest increases have been made in water and waste disposal system loans and grants, in Soil Conservation Service flood prevention programs, and in community development activities by the U.S.D.A. Extension Service.

Last year Congress included in non-agricultural laws two provisions that should aid rural development. A roads bill calls for "economic growth center development highways" and another law allows Federal facilities to be located outside metropolitan areas.

States Deeply Involved
Uncle Sam can do "much to promote rural development but it takes more than dollars dispatched from Washington. State and local governments must cooperate. In all 50 states, there is a State Rural Development Committee and two-thirds of them include representatives from state agencies or the governor's office.

In five states—South Carolina, Ohio, Wisconsin, Oklahoma and Oregon—tests are in progress in selected areas to see what results can be achieved by a concentrated effort. One such cooperative effort by U.S.D.A., the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and the American Medical Association seeks to find out how to bring increased medical aid to rural communities.

Eight Federal departments and agencies are sponsoring a program known as Concerted Services in Training and Education. Cooperation of state and local governments is an essential element in encouraging more rural and small town residents to take advantage of employment and training opportunities.

Under Secretary Campbell told the legislators that rural development must not only involve government at all levels but private enterprise as well. "But most important of all," he said, "it involves the people who reside in the thousands of communities of our nation. The process is one of finding the leadership in these communities and making the leadership aware of the alternatives and opportunities available to them. "Nothing will happen in the local communities and rural areas unless people who reside there want something to happen. They have to be motivated to a point of action."

Talk of Texas

By JACK MAGUIRE

PLACE TO RETIRE — Farwell, on the edge of Farmer County near the Panhandle-New Mexico line, was the unlikely site in 1916 of a plant that hoped to make Texas the world capital for the manufacture of automobile tires.

C. A. Roberson, a promoter who correctly believed that the dry climate of the high plains was favorable to the handling and storing of rubber, organized the Western Tire Company at Farwell. He built the first wing of the large plant that he envisioned someday.

Before the plant could begin producing tires, however, Roberson decided to go into automobile manufacturing instead. He actually produced some prototype models of a touring car called the "Cannonball" and planned to build a plant that would turn out automobiles, trucks and tractors.

By 1919, however, the country was in a post-war recession. Roberson was never able to get his project financed, and both the tire factory and the automobile plant failed to materialize.

LANDMARK IS SAVED — Leon County's 84-year-old courthouse is going to serve justice for a few more years, at least.

County residents defeated a bond issue that would have replaced the old building at Centerville with a modern structure. The first courthouse was at Leona, but the county seat was moved to Centerville in 1850. The first courthouse was destroyed by fire in 1885 and the present building was opened in 1887.

HOW IT BEGAN — In 1933, C. E. Doolin walked into a San Antonio cafe and bought a sack of Mexican corn chips to nibble with his coffee.

He had eaten this corny cousin to the American potato chip many times before, but these particular Mexican "fries" had a flavor that he couldn't forget. When he returned to the cafe and discovered that the unique taste came from the chef's own secret formula, he offered to buy it. For $100 he got both the recipe and the exclusive right to use it.

Not long after, Doolin opened a small factory in San Antonio and began marketing the chips under the name the Mexicans had given them years ago: "Fritos," literally meaning "fries." And not long after that, Doolin's corn chips became one of the best selling specialty foods in the U. S.

THE CHANGING TIMES — Loving County, which prided itself on the fact that nobody had died within its 670 square miles in more than a decade, has reported a traffic death.

A rancher was killed recently when his pickup truck overturned. His death also further reduced the population of Loving County which, with a headcount of only 150 in the 1970 census, has the fewest people of any county in the country.

TRAVELING TEXAS — One of the nation's most unique passenger trains, "The Goober Special," is operating again this year between Dublin and DeLeon over 15 miles of the Texas Central Railroad Company.

For $3 for adults and $1.50 for youngsters, passengers get their choice of four 41-year-old coaches, each equipped with a pot-bellied stove. The "Special" operates every weekday between the two towns.

50 YEARS AGO—1921

The idea of a combination City Hall, Firemen's Hall and Community Swimming Pool, conceived by Fire Chief C.C. Rockwell and talked informally among the people recently resulted in a trip to Clovis Monday afternoon to inspect the swimming pool at that point. After supper at the Harvey House the party started home, but were caught in a hard rain beyond Bovina and were forced to stop in that little city for the night. The members of the party are enthusiastic over the swimming pool idea and express the hope that Hereford will have something of the kind before long.

35 YEARS AGO—1936

With approximately 1,500 eligible voters in the county from poll tax payments and exemptions, Deaf Smith County citizens are preparing to go to the polls Saturday, July 25, to add their voice to the selection of state and district officers and to name their own county and precinct choices. . . . A program commemorating railroad week sponsored by J.E. Beyer, local Santa Fe agent, was presented yesterday at noon before the Hereford Lions Club.

20 YEARS AGO—1951

The Hereford Canning company made its first full day's run on Friday, manager Worth Ware said Saturday morning. . . . The teacher outlook for Hereford is not too bright, especially in the lower elementary grades, Superintendent Graham told the Brand this week. At the present time, five vacancies exist in the Hereford Rural school district, and Hereford is still looking for a home economics teacher, an instructor in the commercial department, two in the upper elementary grades and an assistant coach for the "B" athletic teams.

5 YEARS AGO—1966

Expansion of cattle feeding lots—an up-and-coming industry in Texas and particularly the Deaf Smith County area—is revealing the mushrooming effect of this business on the agricultural output of the county. . . . Hereford's Downtown Variety Park merchants will state their third annual sidewalk sale Monday. Paul Harvey, president of the Retail Merchants Association, said it would be a day of bargains and lemonade. Free lemonade will be served to shoppers on the corners of Main Street during the sale.

1 YEAR AGO—1970

A number of years ago, a man told an Amarillo reporter he was coming into Hereford to plant 800 acres of lettuce. Prospects were so good, he said, that he would be a rich man in a couple of years. That isn't the feeling now. Some people feel the lettuce industry has subsided and that cattle feeding is overshadowing it by a long run. . . . Almost half of the $20,000 needed to firmly establish a Day Care Center here has been reached and the drive extended another week.

New production to follow 'Texas' at Canyon theater

Flaming lights and echoing sound will roll through the Palo Duro Canyon again in the fall of 1971 to tell the story of the Conquistadores who came here, led by Coronado.

Like other men from Spain in the 1500s, they were hardy and strong, and they walked farther, rode harder, dared more, and opened up more new areas to the world than any other men had done.

Flaming torches-buffalo stampedes-hill the size of oranges-clashes of Indians and Spaniards-and above all-SOUND-will carry you back to the days of the Spaniards-sound which surrounds you-sound which flows from the 600 foot bluff you face-lifting you and carrying you to the times of the Conquistadores.

The Indians were stunned when they first saw the Spaniards, and thought that the men on horseback were great beasts with one head and four legs. An early Indian account describes the newcomers this way:

"They wear clothes an arrow does not penetrate, and shining dishes on their heads which do not break, and when they sit, they put their legs over one another as though of stay. Sometimes they make the sign with two crossed sticks and they pray to them."

The Indians also wondered if there was much to eat from the Spaniards' talking sticks which made animals fall down dead when they spoke.

Under Coronado, men who had come from Spain in previous years gathered in Compostela, Mexico in February of 1541 to form a large army, and started north to find the cities of gold, the seven cities of Cibola. After much hardship they reached the place and found it a simple Indian village with no wealth.

Disheartened, they headed east and heard of another place of treasure. They marched to find it, and found themselves on the great plains of Texas, wandering and lost in the vast, flat land. Finally, according to Bolton, the distinguished historian who retraced their route, they reached the Palo Duro Canyon where the Pioneer Amphitheatre now lies, and where this story is being told.

Here was the turning point of the journey for most of the army, 2000 miles from their starting point in Mexico. Though Coronado rode north to Quivira with 30 men, the others went no farther. They stayed in the Canyon several weeks gathering food for their return, and finally turned back to their permanent quarters near Albuquerque.

"They Came From Spain" is the story of these men and their march across the plains. Wherever they went, they saw the land with new eyes and recorded their observations in diaries and letters and reports which are complete and vivid. Here is one quotation from the "Journey of Coronado" by Pedro Casteneda, one of his men:

"Who could believe that 1000 horses and 500 of our cows and more than 5000 rams and ewes and more than 1500 friendly Indians and servants, in traveling over these plains, would leave no more trace where they had passed than if nothing had been there, nothing—so that it was necessary to make piles of bones and cow dung now and then—so that the rear guard could follow the army. The grass never failed to become erect after it had been trodden down, and although it was short, it was fresh and straight as before."

Audiences who have seen "Texas" the musical romance of Panhandle history which pla in this same theatre in the Canyon during July and August, are familiar with the great storm recreated each evening. Visitors to "They Came From Spain" in September and October will have even more opportunities to realize what the great clashes of nature were like in the days when the Spaniards came.

Fall weather in the Panhandle is delightful, and the magnificence of the Canyon with its glorious sweep of color is even more splendid than at other times of year.

For information and to buy tickets to "They Came From Spain," write "SPAIN," Box 268, Canyon, Tex., 79105 or call 806-655-2182.

Cost for adults is $2.50, for children, $1.

Season is Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays in September and October, with Sunday performances on Labor Day and Columbus Day week ends.

Sen. John Tower's weekly report

Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Dodson have almost 10,000 color slides of trips

Thousands of memories in thousands of slides

By JANIE BANNER Staff Writer

A collection of more than 9,000 color projector slides is the result of trips taken during 10-years of traveling by Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Dodson, 114 Beach. Summer excursions have taken them to Alaska, Mexico City and Acapulco, the East and West Coasts and Midwestern states. Some most fascinating territory seen by the Dodsons has been in Canada, the Rocky Mountains, British Columbia, Alberta and the maritime provinces of Canada and states of the U. S.

"I estimate we take between 1,000 and 1200 slides each trip," Dodson calculated. "We take two or three of each subject so we'll be sure to have a good one when we get back." Mrs. Dodson said "We've taken pictures from jeeps, in helicopters, on ski-lifts and in valleys; from every place imaginable."

Her husband smiled and added "But not on mules! I've tried to get her on a mule but do you think she would? No sir-ee!"

When they return home after a trip, Mr. and Mrs. Dodson sort the slides, discarding bad ones and classifying those remaining.

They then select the best picture of each and re-group them to fit a theme for show. Slides are then ready to be shown to the public, a pastime the Dodsons enjoy immensely.

Civic organizations, study clubs and schools are the main interests to view them. Mrs. Dodson, fifth grade teacher at Aikman, uses them as a source for geography learning in her class. And the kids really enjoy them.

Slides taken during their 1959 trip to Alaska were viewed more than 75 times locally and throughout the Panhandle.

"Of course, that was the year Alaska became a state so everyone was particularly interested in seeing the slides when we got back," said Dodson.

The couple has made their way to Canada three times and returned late Saturday night from a second trip to Utah, the state they consider the most scenic of all states.

To Jessie Mae and Virgil Dodson, "America is the beautiful" as the song says. "You just can't imagine the beauty of nature-until you've had a chance to see some of it," said Mrs. Dodson.

She was referring especially to the national parks and forests, caves, monuments, arches and seasonal foliage. Besides slides the Dodsons collect rocks, driftwood and postcards, just in case their slides don't turn out.

Every summer the Dodsons hook up their travel trailer and spend their wedding anniversary away from home. "We always do something extra special on that day," said Mrs. Dodson.

This year their 42nd anniversary was spent in Utah.

On the way there they stopped at the Painted Desert and Petrified Forest in Arizona.

From there they went on into Utah at Kanab where they visited the north rim of the Grand Canyon, Zion National Park, Cedar Breaks and Coral Pink Sand national monuments.

Bryce National Park was the last stop before they got to Salt Lake City where they met Mrs. Dodson's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Lee of Amarillo.

Together they toured the Mormon Temple Square, that church's headquarters, and This Is The Place monument honoring pioneers crossing the continent in early times.

A visit at Hogle Zoo in Salt Lake sent them on their way to Provo and the Bridal Veil Falls. The Lees stayed one week with the Dodsons.

The Dodsons took a day-long jeep ride through the United States' newest national park at Moab, Utah, the center of Canyon Lands.

They especially enjoyed a moonlight boat trip up the Colorado River which featured a light show on surrounding cliffs, giving the history of the river's formations.

In the same area was the Arches National Monument where they observed 80 natural arches. At Mesa Verde near Cortez, Colo. they visited ancient Indian cliff dwellings. They returned home through New Mexico. Dodson is a retired motel owner who owned the Tierra Blanca Motel on East Highway 60 for 15 years. Prior to that profession he farmed northeast of the city, at Progressive Community.

It seems to me that, ideally, children attending public schools should attend those schools which are nearest to their own homes. In this way, the child progresses naturally from his home environment to his neighborhood surroundings and on into the spectrum of his entire city situation as he progresses through his elementary and secondary education.

Education is a vital ingredient of individual ability and a high quality education should be provided for all. But massive busing will not improve the quality of education. Education can be improved by employing more and better teachers, by providing the best possible textbooks, by encouraging study, and by providing an overall environment which contributes to the healthy development of the child's social and psychological attitudes.

I also want a high quality education for all our nation's children and young people. But I feel that some have lost sight of the goal of quality education for all, and are working instead merely to assure that children of different backgrounds and heritages attend school in the same classroom. I see no need for expenditure of taxpayer funds not for improved education but simply for buses in which to transport large numbers of children across towns in opposite directions. The Supreme Court in numerous decisions has required pairing, zoning, clustering, and massive busing in search of the illusive goals of "racial balance" and the "disestablishment" of the dual school system. Such requirements are resulting in a decline in the overall quality of education.

It occurs to me also that the efforts of the Court and others are diametrically opposed to efforts to ensure that all the nation's children obtain a quality education without regard to race. Some years ago, some school systems assigned pupils to schools based upon their race. That was segregation and that was a contravention of American principles. Now it is the courts who are directing that children attend school based upon their race, and this too is a contravention of American principles. Ideally, the schools of our nation should be colorblind in

Robersons from El Paso visit local residents

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton E. Roberson and sons Ricky and Ronny of El Paso, were in town this weekend visiting his mother, Mrs. Jeff Roberson, 137 Avenue D, his daughter, Suzi, and husband Ronny Wagner, and other relatives.

Roberson is also Director of the Border Chorders at El Paso, Society Chapter of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America.

In the Senate, I have sponsored both a Constitutional Amendment and a Resolution which, if passed, would re-direct the Supreme Court-decisions on the issue of forced massive cross-town busing of school children.

The Constitutional Amendment, Senate Joint Resolution 112, would specifically state that children should not be assigned to public schools on the basis of race. The amendment would be wholly within our American principles and it would go a long way toward re-establishing the policy that public schools are primarily the concern of the local school boards and parents of the community. My resolution would tell the Supreme Court that it should more carefully consider the disruptive effects that its rulings have on the educational process in the nation and that busing of children should not be required as a method of balancing ethnic groups-in-public schools.

VISITING CHOIR — A choir from the Main Street Baptist Church in Hattiesburg, Miss., will sing Wednesday evening at the First Baptist Church here. The youth singers will present a program of sacred music, beginning at 7:15 p.m. The choir is on a tour of Texas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

State puts computer to use in detecting school's flaws

AUSTIN—A new accreditation plan which for the first time will give local school districts and the Texas Education Agency computer data to point up the early warning signs of possible weak points will go into effect throughout the state this September.

The data-based system, developed by the Texas Education Agency division of school accreditation, was approved this month by the State Board of Education.

Designed to provide local school leaders as well as the agency with up-to-date analyses on a scale impossible up to now, the new plan will make the whole accreditation process a more realistic tool for improving Texas public education, according to H.E. Phillips, accreditation director.

"The machine will give us a more scientific analysis of information we need to decide on the schools to be visited by accreditation teams," Phillips points out. "But, we won't make our judgments on the basis of computer data alone. These will still be based on what we see in the schools."

Statistics from reports sent by individual school districts to the Agency each year will be lumped into five major categories: professional staff, curriculum, instructional resources, facilities and pupil personnel services.

Twenty major items, each serving as a gathering point for many bits of information are expected to provide the clues to any points of imbalance in an individual school district or even one campus in that district.

"During this first year we will take a careful look at all the highs, all the lows, and even the super-normal figures," Phillips points out.

"When a district deviates sharply from the rest of the state in a number of ways we think could be detrimental to its instructional program, we'll go out and take a look in person as soon as we can."

The number of exceptions, the extent of each one, and the apparent correlation between exceptions will be analyzed for each district.

"This detailed computer analysis of reports will tell us more about Texas schools than we have ever known in advance of an actual visit by an accreditation team," Phillips says.

"For example, if we find a district has an extremely low bonded indebtedness and a high per pupil maintenance budget, team members will know it probably has a physical facilities problem before they ever leave Austin."

Accreditation teams, which include staff members from a number of Agency divisions, have been visiting about 200 of the more than 1,100 Texas school districts each year.

Phillips anticipates a similar number of visits during the 1971-72 school year, including a number of follow-up checks on districts which have been warned that their accredited status is in danger.

During this first year, team members will be checking both the schools and the computer program to make sure the data analysis is giving the Agency the kind of reliable information it needs to modernize its accreditation process.

"We believe the new state accreditation plan will allow us to make reasonable predictions as to how well a school is serving its students—and how we may be able to help it serve them better," Phillips added.

Glady's Garden

By Gladys Howton Manjeot

I hope that my recounting things seen and impressions received are not becoming tiring to you. There are two or three international places that I wish to tell you about, and a garden or two, then we will be getting back to the "gardening" here at home.

The Washington Cathedral is one of the most magnificent buildings that it has been my privilege to visit. The motto of this place of worship struck a very responsive cord to my heart. It is: "Whatever your church faith or nation, you are welcome to this church, which serves everyone as a 'House of Prayer for all People'."

The history of its structure, which dates back to 1893, (and it is not yet fully completed) approximately a million dollars is spent each year to add to the beautiful Cathedral. It is the Cathedral of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington, so often referred to as the Washington Cathedral. It is often referred to as the National Cathedral, as one of their aims is to serve all people, whatever nationality one may be. "The Close" is a name for the grounds upon which the cathedral stands. The grounds contain 57 acres. On these grounds are maintained many schools, offices and other things which are used to minister to the people of the Washington area. The "Close" is beautifully laid out and the grounds are beautifully landscaped. In the landscape plans are several gardens. It was my pleasure to visit some of these.

The Bishop's Garden is located south of the cathedral and is a very beautiful example of a medieval walled garden. The all popular Boxwood was used in many ways in the garden and also among the gardens which are admired are the roses. They are grown in profusion, yet with good taste and appeal.

Another garden which especially interested me was the herb garden. Sometime ago the Hereford Garden Club made an intensified study of herbs. This was of great interest to me, therefore seeing this herb garden was a real treat. It is located near some of the entrance ways to the cathedral. The plantings are placed in interesting patterns around a rustic cottage. In this building there are all kinds of the herbs they have grown. These are offered to the public. The returns from the sale of same are used to aid in mission work and the maintenance of the Close. I was very glad that I was familiar to many of the herbs grown and also their uses. My daughter-in-law, Rosemary, uses many herbs in cooking, and since the study in the Garden Club I learned of their many uses. A bit of herb can add to an old used recipe, and can also make the fragrance of the rose jars more enticing. Herbs can be used in one's meal from soup to dessert. Many desserts, especially cookies, can be made much more delectable by the use of well selected herbs.

On leaving the herb garden and the rustic cottage, which was like a miniature as it wax in the shadows of the magnificent cathedral. Upon entering the cathedral, one is almost speechless at the beauty. The architecture, the furnishings, and the lovely lovely windows. These windows are very much like the historical, wonderful windows of Notre Dame in Paris, France. The colors are undecipherable. Another nationally known feature of the cathedral are the bells. The Gloria in Excelsis central tower, with its unique combination of a 53-bell carillon and a 10-bell ring, which rises above the crossing. When our guide (which was one of the ladies of the church) told us of the bells, and of their weight, it was breathtaking. It's very hard to tie together the facts that the weight of the huge bells (which are some of the largest and heaviest in the world) rest upon the foundation floor. The beams that support them are majestic and beautiful attractions of the cathedral.

One of the beautiful features of the chapels or worship centers, are the prayer treads, which are all covered with gorgeous needlepoint. All of these have been made by the ladies of the church and the patterns are very intricate, and the colors used are beautifully blended. In each chapel, there are different patterns and colors and these have been chosen to enhance the furnishings and to further carry out the lovely colors of the stained glass windows; also the treasured Flemish, 16th century tapestries. It is a soul stirring feeling when one looks at all of the many stitches which have gone into the making of the needlepoint pieces as well as all the other intricate work of laying them. Featured and never to be forgotten, are the pieces of needlework and petti-point which the Mother King of England made and sent to the cathedral. She also sent the altar fittings for the main chapel. The predominant color used in these is rose pink. It was harmonious with the brass fittings. These were dedicated when her grandson and granddaughter recently visited the United States. All the majestic things, the gifts of the adies handwork, the organ, are all undecipherable. It gave one a great feeling and one of humility. To look upon all of this created beauty. . . . and to know that even the least of our talents and gifts can be used to God's glory, if lovingly and humbly given.

Visitors are allowed on all floors except the Crypt floor. The guide, however, told us of this, and of some of the great and near greats which had been laid to rest there. One of these was President Woodrow Wilson. Mr. Dulles, and the ashes of Helen Keller and her secretary were placed in this wonderful edifice.

I know all will be interested in knowing about the chapel of the youth. It is filled to capacity each Sunday and the young people come with their instruments and give of their talents in the services. Many adults join them and they share in their fervor and spirit.

Each of the altars in the chapel are decorated with fresh flowers or plant materials. This appealed to me as there were many lovely creative designs and uses of materials. One of simplicity, yet of beauty, was of magnolia leaves.

GARDEN GOSSIP: Take time to see the beautiful window boxes at Kings Manor. The petunias are lovely, such bright cheerful colors. Many other beautiful annuals are in bloom.

Dahlias are starting to bloom and there are some pretty white cactus dahlias at Miss Della Stagner's; also pretty gladioli in Mrs. G.P. Owen's cutting yard.

In the cool of the evening or early morning is a good time to see some of the beauty spots of Hereford. Daisies have been in full bloom at Glad's; also miniature marigolds. I was so pleased with the good care that my neighbor boy, Jeff Dull, gave the gardens and lawns while I was on vacation.

He has the potentials of a very excellent gardener. We not only enjoy gardening, but we talk fests. Soon we will be having ripe tomatoes for tossed salad, along with fresh onions.

Don't forget to spray. There are many garden enemies very busy these days. When I arrived home there was a real host ready to welcome me—the fuzzy-wuzzy worms. So Jeff and I have been real busy spraying and getting rid of these unwelcome visitors.

Several of the ground covers are in full bloom. They have dainty sprays of petite blossoms, which are very good for filler-in arrangements. I have been enjoying the daisies, etc. for arrangements. All my rooms are graced with roses, daisies, marigolds or other flowers. It is real good fun and enjoyment to be a gardener. . . . even if we do have many problems.

H.D. CHATTER Uses for watermelon

By Mrs. Argen Dracer
Home Demonstration Agent

Watermelons were once used as a source of water by ancient people in some semi-desert regions of Africa where they were found growing wild by David Livingstone, noted Missionary explorer.

He published accounts in 1858 of his discovery. The United States Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service says that watermelons are in plentiful supply this month.

Remember when you were little and a big chunk of red, juicy watermelon seemed about the best part of a picnic?

You held a slice in your hands and took big bites. The juice would run down your chin, and when you got down to the bottom, the edges of the rind would be clear up by your ears! Well, I guess that's just about the very best way to enjoy this bright summer melon.

You know that the young love them! They are great to take along on picnics and cookouts, for what's better than a cool and refreshing dessert that will not melt? And best of all, the United States Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service says they are included on the list of plentiful foods for July. You just won't run out!

Watermelons have been a favorite ever since they were used by ancient people as food and a source of water. The juicy melons are in great demand during the hot summer. June, July and August are their peak production months.

Did you know Texas is the largest producer of watermelons? Texas produced 600 million pounds from 75,000 acres in 1970. Even though drought conditions have stunted production for this year somewhat, Texas is still expected to lead with a total production of approximately 390 million pounds from 60,000 acres.

Watermelons are grown in most of Texas' 254 counties, but major production areas are in south, south central and east Texas. The luscious, red-meat melons are abundant now, so stack up and keep plenty well chilled for the youngsters (and oldsters) in your house.

They can also enjoy the rind, if you pickle it now for use this winter as an accompaniment to roast beef or other meat.

WATERMELON PICKLES
3 pounds prepared watermelon rind
2 pounds sugar
2 cups white vinegar
2 tablespoons whole cloves
2 tablespoons all spice
6 3-inch cinnamon sticks
Canning jars and lids.

Use rind from firm, not over-ripe, watermelon. Trim off outer green skin and pink flesh, allowing a very thin line of pink to show. Cut into 1 1/2-inch pieces. Soak overnight in salt water, using 3 tablespoons salt per quart of water (use pure salt and boiled water). Drain well. Cover with fresh water and cook until tender. Drain.

Heat sugar and vinegar to boiling. Add spices tied up in a cheesecloth bag. Add prepared watermelon rind.

Cook, uncovered, until rind turns transparent, about 15 minutes. (If desired, a few minutes before boiling time is up, add enough green or red food coloring to give desired color to the pickles.) Remove spice bag.

Simmer while quickly packing one hot sterilized jar at a time. Fill to within 1/2-inch from the top. Be sure the vinegar solution covers rind. Seal each jar at once.

When using pickles later on, be sure to keep the juices to use as a pleasing brush on variation for barbecued chicken and turkey. Brush over meat minutes before serving, so the tart flavor doesn't have a chance to es-

This recipe was sent from Dayton, Ohio by May Gene Flatt. I responded to a recipe chain letter and this is one I received; it is Dayton Garden Club Punch.

3 pkgs. cherry kool aid
2 cups sugar
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen strawberries
cans (6 oz.) orange juice (frozen)

Mix ingredients and add enough water to make one gallon.

May Gene comments that this is quick and inexpensive. She should know as they have four children and their yard is a playground for the neighborhood children. It takes a lot of punch for playing children.

State department of health Clarendon College warns of spread of VEE offers budget plan

The role of the mosquito in spreading disease has been dramatically emphasized by the movement of Venezuelan Equine Encephalitis in Texas. In just a short time the disease has crossed the Rio Grande into Texas and resulted in a statewide alert. While its primary victim is horses, VEE can affect humans with a flu-like illness, says the Texas State Department of Health.

Villain in the spread of VEE is the mosquito. If a mosquito bites an infected animal, it can spread the disease by biting another horse—or a human. All mosquitoes should be looked on as possible spreaders (vectors) of VEE; however, a mosquito first must have bitten an infected animal or human before it can spread the disease. Even if it isn't carrying some disease, a mosquito still is a pest to be eliminated.

With mosquitoes as the target in controlling VEE, you can do a lot to help yourself.

The simplest and most effective method of cutting down or controlling the mosquito population is to eliminate the breeding places.

Mosquitoes cannot hatch unless they are in water, so all standing water around your premises should be eliminated. Water can be caught in discarded bicycle and automobile tires, tin cans or old jars, in birdbat unused fishponds, shrubbery or a flat roof. Eliminate these water traps being careful to check behind shrubbery.

Septic tanks, cisterns and tubs provide excellent breeding places unless they are tightly covered. Recent rains may have left stagnant ponds where mosquitoes can breed. If there is standing water on your premises, spraying it with an insecticide or a small quantity of kerosene will kill the larvae—sometimes called wiggletails. To check for larvae, dip up a cupful—preferably with a white cup—weekly and look for the larvae.

Residual spraying of human habitations, screening sleeping and living quarters (or use of mosquito netting) will help control mosquito bites.

CLARENDON — With much attention focused on the increasing cost of attending College,

If you are in the open, especially at dusk, dawn or during the nighttime, use a repellent to lessen the risks of mosquito bites.

A vaccine has been released through the United States Department of Agriculture for horses, and aerial spraying has taken place in South Texas. Halting the movement of horses, mules and donkeys from the affected areas will further limit the spread of the disease. By containing the disease in small areas, or pockets, more effective control measures can be employed in a shorter length of time.

But, says the State Health Department, an individual can play an important part in this activity by practicing good vector control in his own environment.

Persons with further questions on vector control may contact their local health departments.

Clarendon College offers to the students of the Panhandle Area a "package plan" or budget plan of attending college.

This plan has a new arrangement of including the total cost of a semester — tuition, fees, books, board and room — for only $600 a semester.

The following schedule has been adopted: a minimum tuition charge of $25, or $4 per semester hour, for residents of Texas.

An additional fee of $15 will be charged residence students outside of Donley County. All other fees remain constant.

It was recommended also that students that anticipate financial assistance should contact the Financial Aid Officer of Clarendon College immediately if they have not done so already. There is money available for needy students.

Beryl Clinton, dean of Clarendon College, will assist any student in making the above arrangement, by writing or calling him at Clarendon College, Clarendon.

MANCILLAS REPORTS

PENSACOLA, FLA. — Navy Petty Officer Second Class Robert R. Mancillas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Atanacio F. Mancillas of Hereford, has reported for duty aboard the training aircraft carrier USS Lexington, homeported at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla.

Gory Story

Witness by witness, exhibit by exhibit, the prosecutor was building his case against a woman accused of slaying her husband. But when he tried to bring in the victim's blood-blotched garments, the defense attorney raised a vigorous objection.

"Your Honor," he said, "there is no question that the man was murdered. The only issue in this case is whether my client did it. I see no justification for bringing in all this gruesome clothing."

The court saw no justification either, and held the evidence not admissible. The judge said:

"These bloodstained garments could in no manner identify the murderer. We can conceive of no other purpose than to excite the passions and inflame the minds of the jury."

It is on this ground that courts generally take a dim view of gruesome evidence. Nevertheless, the fact remains that trials often must deal with dreadful events. Evidence is not disqualified by gruesomeness if it is really useful.

Another case involved manslaughter by automobile. Here, the prosecutor wanted to show the jury a battered shoe — its laces torn — that had been ripped from the victim's foot when he was struck by the car.

This time, one of the issues was how fast the car had been traveling when it hit the victim. Since the shoe did cast light on this issue, it was held to be admissible evidence. Even if it was inflammatory, said the court, it could still help the jury reach a just verdict.

A similar rule applies to photographs. In another murder case, the prosecutor wanted to show the jury a picture of the victim's body, lying on a table at the mortuary. Over defense objections, the court allowed the prosecutor to go ahead — because the picture gave valuable assistance in showing the location of the fatal wound.

As one judge put it: "Courts and juries cannot be too squeamish about looking at unpleasant things, especially if truth is on trial."

Government run by women is called gynarchy.

The House adopted legislation last week to prohibit individuals or organizations from using the mails to promote or sell pornographic materials to minors. Although I supported this bill, which would prohibit mailing pornographic material to a minor's residence unless the material were completely wrapped, sealed, and addressed to a person at the residence who is not a minor, much better legislation could have been passed.

What Congress must do, if it really wants to establish effective controls on the smut trade and put the pornographic peddlers out of business, is to adopt a bill such as I have introduced and was passed by the House in the last Congress.

My bill would close off interstate facilities, including the mails, to the transmission of salacious advertising, or advertising that would appeal to the lower instincts. The homes of our nation should be freed from the mounting reams of filth being peddled by the smut industry.

Legislation which could prove to be very important to our area was also passed by the House last week by a unanimous vote.

The Saline Water Conversion Act of 1952, which was scheduled to expire next year, has been extended until 1977. The purpose of the project is to develop a low cost method of desalting water. The program thus far has resulted in reducing the cost of desalting water from about $4 per 1,000 gallons to 65 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Industrial and residential water is furnished in Key West and Siesta Key, Florida; Coalinga, California; Buckeye, Arizona; and our naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba by means of desalting plants developed as a result of the Saline Water Conversion Act.

I am hopeful that technology advancements during the five year renewal period will make it economically feasible to desalt water for irrigation purposes.

The Export-Import Bank, which helps finance the sale of goods to foreign countries by businesses in this country, will be given new tools to help increase American exports as a result of a bill adopted by the House last week.

I was pleased that an amendment was added to the bill during floor debate which continues to prohibit the bank from financing trade with Communist countries and trade with nations engaged in armed conflict with the United States.

The continued activity of this bank is essential if this nation is to maintain a favorable position in world trade. However, I am opposed to using American money to finance exports to Communist countries at a time when our young men are fighting and dying in a war pursued by the Communists in Southeast Asia.

Disabled vets will get free automobile license plates

AUSTIN — Details of a new program which will provide free 1972 automobile plates to some disabled veterans have been revealed by the Texas Highway Department.

The program was set up by an act of the 62nd Legislature.

- To qualify, an applicant must:
- Be a Texas resident;
 - Be a veteran of the armed forces of the United States;
 - Have a disability rating of 70 per cent or more;
 - Be drawing compensation the result of service-connected from the federal government as disability.

A qualified veteran is entitled to register one passenger car or light commercial vehicle with a manufacturer's rated carrying capacity of one ton or less for his own use without paying the prescribed registration fee. There is a statutory fee of $1 which must accompany each application.

Specially designed license plates will be issued with the letters "DV" appearing as either a prefix or suffix to the license number. The words "Disabled Vet" also will appear on the plates.

Vehicles with Disabled Vet plates will be exempt from paying parking fees charged by any governmental authority other than the federal government. This includes parking meters.

The license plates will not be available until the beginning three weeks after the end of the first month of school.

"We want the veteran to receive his check on time," Coker said, adding, "Each delay works a financial hardship on the veteran which we want to avoid."

Veterans with questions about their school plans, anticipated change of schools or educational objectives would do well to contact the VA now rather than wait until school starts.

CITY BIRDS

DUNDEE, Scotland — To increase the variety of birds in Dundee, the parks department is breeding gold and silver pheasants, partridges and other birds, and releasing them in the parks.

The birds roam all over the city, where the rule is "Don't interfere with them or try to catch them."

Students under GI bill rises

This fall is expected to bring 26,000 veterans to Texas colleges and universities under the GI bill, according to Jack Coker, Waco VA Regional Office Director.

Veterans planning to attend college for the first time should have applied for their GI bill certificate of entitlement by this time, but if they haven't they are urged to do so immediately. Some delayed or late payments to veterans will be caused by failure to secure the certificate before their school starts classes.

Coker said in cases of veterans who have their certificates at the time of enrollment their school can certify the enrollment promptly and activate their veterans GI bill payment file at the Waco Regional Office. This permits the VA to start payment with a minimum time lapse, normally two to

READY FOR DISPLAY IN AUSTIN — This oil painting of the Santa Fe Freight Depot, located at 148 East First, will be on display this week at the First National Bank along with other Deaf Smith County scenes painted by Mildred Guinn. It will be taken next week to the Country Store

Gallery in Austin for display the end of this month at the request of Raymond Brown, gallery curator. Mrs. Guinn entitled her painting, "The Last Train West." Also on display in Austin will be western and floral scenes done by Mrs. Guinn.

of the 1972 registration year. The law provides that the disabled veteran must make application by October 1 preceding the registration year for which the plates are requested.

All Disabled Vet plates will be issued directly from the Motor Vehicle Division of the Texas Highway Department in Austin.

As a prerequisite, the veteran's disability rating must be verified by the Veteran's Administration or the branch of the armed forces from which he draws his disability compensation.

Also, the Texas title to the vehicle must be issued in the name of the veteran.

Application forms and instructions may be secured from the Texas Highway Department, Motor Vehicle Division, 40th and Jackson Avenue, Austin, Texas 78703.

The forms also will be available from Motor Vehicle Division district offices in Houston, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Port Arthur, El Paso, Fort Worth, Dallas, Lubbock, Amarillo and Longview, as well as county tax offices; county veteran service officers; American Legion headquarters in Austin and Veterans of Foreign Wars headquarters in Austin.

State seeks federal aid for new teacher-training project

AUSTIN — Texas will seek an additional $487,197 in federal funds to develop a new information "delivery system" as part of its one-year-old Trainers of Teacher Trainers project, following approval Saturday (July 10) by the State Board of Education.

Total funding for the second year of the overall TTT project will amount to $850,000 requested from the U. S. Office of Education.

Divided into two components, the new TTT addition will include a Texas Educational Renewal Center and a Texas Informational Services Project.

The renewal center, which carries a $400,000 price tag, is expected to be funded under the Educational Personnel Development Act. It will develop and field test a "delivery system" which will gather and edit the newest research findings from across the nation for use in Texas. These findings will be put to use in a network of existing TTT teacher centers, including colleges of education, regional education service centers, and public school districts.

The second new component, an $87,197 project, will be supported by the National Center for Educational Communication. It will develop and field test new methods for computerized storage and retrieval of educational research data as well as the best personal follow-up by specialists to help teachers put the new ideas to work.

Teacher centers, key points in the existing network designed to update the training of both college and public school faculty members, are now located in El Paso, Canyon, Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Sherman, Prairie View, and Hawkins.

This nucleus, expected to expand to a total of 22 during the coming year, includes representatives from schools and colleges of education in the area, regional education service centers, public school systems, and the community.

The original three-year TTT project was approved by the State Board of Education July 6, 1970. During its first year, the project has sponsored a national conference on teacher education held at the University of Houston, improved the public school-university channels of communication throughout Texas, and developed a number of new models for updating the training of teachers.

A step forward...

There has been less than total satisfaction with the local movie theater over the past few months. Even the last few years, from what I hear.

Apparently things are on the incline, from all indications.

We're getting better movies, quicker, as you probably have noticed. Recently, "Big Jake," featuring John Wayne, came to Hereford before it hit the screens in either Amarillo or Lubbock.

Now, new manager Scott Brewer tells me, at least three "big" movies will arrive in Hereford, for showing next month—"Tora, Tofa, Tora" Love Story" and "The Andromida Strain."

The first two of the three already have made the Amarillo screens, but not the last, which was a best-seller in its book version.

It costs more, but Scott said he will be bringing more and more first-rate movies into Hereford at the same time or quicker than they are brought into the metropolitan areas.

The quality of the movies is not the only thing scheduled for improvement, locally. Scott said Saturday that an announcement will be coming soon about improvements to the appearance and comfort of the local theater.

There have been rumors over the past year or so that another movie chain would locate in Hereford. We always want new businesses in Hereford, although whether two theaters could profitably operate in Hereford currently is a question mark. It's heartening to see what appears to be a program of continued improvement being put into effect in the theater we already have.

Jim Lindsey, the new Chamber of Commerce manager, arrives in Hereford today.

He comes highly recommended from Durant, Okla., where he's been executive vice president of Durant's chamber for the past two years. He's a former high school all-state quarterback and former vice president of the Oklahoma Young Democrats.

At 30—and, by the way, that's a mighty fine age—he's still young and enthusiastic but has enough experience behind him to begin moving Hereford forward.

Bayne gets 2nd master's degree

The past few years for Charles Dudley Bayne Jr. were spent in collecting academic degrees from various highly reputed universities, the latest being a masters degree from the Harvard School of Business.

It was his second masters degree.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Bayne, 514 Star Street, Bayne graduated from Hereford High School in 1960 and then earned a B. S. degree in electrical engineering at Texas Tech.

Following this, he attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology and received his first masters, in electrical engineering, in 1966.

Currently, Bayne and his wife, Jane, are living in South Bend, Ind., where he is the planning assistant for Associates Investments Co.

In ancient Morocco, cities such as Fez prohibit wheeled vehicles and bicycles in the old quarter.

ward. One of his first goals, he has said, will be to put together an industrial team and quicken the pace of bringing new businesses to the city.

Civic leaders in Durant moan that we're robbing them of one of their top leaders.

You can meet him at the Blue Flame Room at the Pioneer Natural Gas Building today. He's being honored at a reception, from 3 to 5 p.m. Doris Hardin, secretary for the local Chamber of Commerce, says the whole town is invited.

Look for expansion of the local Day Care Center in the near future.

A $20,000 fund drive a year ago got the present one in operation. It got underway a little late—in October, after many teachers already had lined up permanent baby sitters for their children and operated most of the past year with fewer children than the 45 it is capable of handling.

The center has 35 children now, however, and gradually is building up toward the maximum of 45.

Members of the Day Care Center's board say it looks like the center will be full this fall, with a number on the waiting list. Tom Burdett said the other day he didn't know of any parents who had enrolled their children in the center and later pulled them out, unless they were leaving Hereford.

The center expects to keep the children it already has and receive applications from teachers and others who want their children in the center next year, he said.

Combined with this is the likelihood that industries needing women labor will be coming into Hereford in the near future, to take advantage of the labor pool created by wives of men who have moved to Hereford to work at such places as Wilson's, Holly Sugar and several smaller operations in the area.

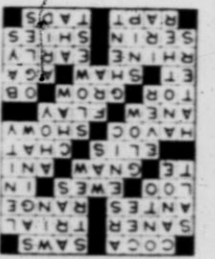

A day care center will be a necessity for these women, Burdett feels, and the present facility would be inadequate.

"I think the board would be enthusiastic about meeting that need," Burdett said. The board, headed by Clara Gillentine, already has given some thought about possible locations for a second day care center.

Prisoners turn to schoolroom

AUSTIN—Nearly half of the men and women now held by the Texas Department of Corrections in its 14 prison units spend part of their time in the school room—learning a new line of work.

Facts which show their progress, along with the startling projections of the prison system's future needs, were outlined Saturday (July 10) for the State Board of Education at its meeting in Austin.

Class work ranges from basic reading and writing to highly reading and writing to highly academic study for a community college diploma.

The system's own Windham School District, for example, has prepared more than 1,000 inmates to pass the General Education Development Test for a high school equivalency certificate during the 1970-71 school year.

Prisoner-students study at their own pace 12 months a year, taught by a faculty of 81 teachers, including 22 who work with vocational trainees. Prisoners who cannot achieve on at least a fifth grade level are required to attend class, while school is voluntary for the rest of the prison population.

Windham School District uses state-adopted textbooks, employs certified teachers, and is supervised by the Texas Education Agency.

Academic students go to class one day a week while vocational trainees attend five full days. Although the elementary grade inmates attend class one-fifth the normal time, they usually advance one grade level a year.

Higher education, at least through the sophomore year, is also making an impact on the men and women who spend time behind bars.

Alvin Junior College began offering classes to 60 inmates in 1964. Today, four colleges—Lee, Henderson, Brazosport, and Alvin—teach 112 academic and vocational-technical courses in the prison units. At the end of the 1971 spring semester, 26 inmates received the two-year Associate of Arts Degree.

According to the latest statistics, 85 per cent of the prisoners are public school dropouts, including the 50 per cent with a less than fifth grade education. About 15 per cent of the prisoners are completely illiterate. Today, some 7,500 of the system's approximately 15,000 inmates are enrolled in school, including special education classes for the emotionally disturbed and mentally retarded.

Latest projections indicate the Texas Department of Corrections will have 27,900 inmates behind bars and will be offering a total of 86 vocational courses through the Windham School District by 1975.

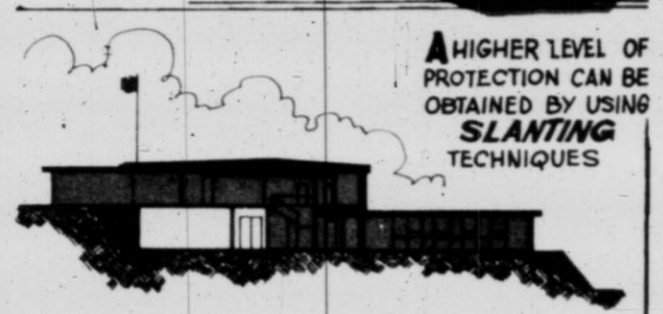

The current figure will grow by 15 new courses as soon as teachers are available, according to Agency officials. Another seven courses, funded by the federal Manpower Development Training Act and keyed to immediate local needs for skilled workers, began in June.

AL Redbirds enter playoffs

The American Legion Redbirds wrapped up sole possession of first place in the South Zone of the district Wednesday by defeating the Amarillo Dusters, 19-2, in six innings, and now prepare for the district tournament Tuesday in Borger.

Borger and either Dumas or Pampa will represent the North Zone in the four-team, double-elimination tournament and Hereford and either Palo Duro or Tascosa will represent the South Zone. Hereford and Borger and the only teams assured of a play-off berth.

Dumas met Pampa Saturday evening in a play-off game for the North Zone second place and Palo Duro met Caprock the same day for a possible play-off spot in the South Zone. If Palo Duro lost, it must meet Tascosa either today or Monday to determine the second place finisher in the South Zone.

The Hereford Redbirds, with an 8-2 record, finished atop the heap in the South Zone. The team now will vie for the district title in the tourney at Borger. The winner of that tournament will advance to bi-district play with a time and place to be determined later.

It was 108 degrees in Wichita Falls Friday and weather forecasters were predicting another week of the 100-plus temperatures for much of the state, including the High Plains. It's so hot, that about all anyone wants to do now is stay inside under the refrigerated air conditioning.

And if it doesn't rain pretty soon, even the weeds won't grow.

—HB—

The dry land grass and everything else that is not under irrigation has withered away and we're sure that it is taking a bunch of water just to keep lawns green within the city. However, there appears to be no water shortage on the city level. We have been fortunate in being able to keep abreast of the needs as the city has grown. It's not hard to understand why towns begin having water troubles when the temperatures soar to the 100 mark and the rains just refuse to come.

—HB—

Incidentally, this would be a good time to take a trip to the mountains — except, that is, there are a number of places in the mountain country still threatened by fire and it has been extremely dry in many, many areas.

We would like to report however, that the site selected for the Camp Fire summer camp this year is a long way from the problem areas. Apparently a few of the parents have been worrying about this situation and have not wanted their girls to attend the camp due to the hazard. We can well understand their thinking, but according to those who are supposed to know, there hasn't been a problem at the new camping site.

—HB—

And summer is passing so fast that the merchants are already thinking about "Back-to-School" promotions.

—HB—

It was Mark Twain who once remarked that the coldest winter he had ever spent was a summer in San Francisco.

We understand that during the summer months you'll find San Francisco's temperatures in the sub-70s, and frankly a welcome relief from the 100-plus here.

However, it has always been our misfortune to hit the Golden Gate city in the winter-time. Like December and January right out in the middle of the Bay on Treasure Island. It'll compare favorably to the North Pole.

—HB—

The economist talk about consumer spending "lagging" but the truth of the matter is that the inflated cost of the necessities of everyday life has left the consumer with little to spend on the frills.

Besides, people's living habits are changing. The trend today is toward more casual living — and that includes clothing — which means that suit manufacturers and others who make the dress-up duds are having problems. Hot-pants, and pants suits have taken over in the ladies fashion field, and the double-knits have stormed the men's wear market.

Just more of "changing times."

—HB—

And with the ecology talk still rampant, we note that one company has now developed a pocket water sterilizer. It generates free chlorine by electrolysis, the same safe disinfectant used to purify most municipal water supplies.

We note too that a British firm claims a new strain of poultry with an increase in the size of extra large eggs, a higher yield, and a heavier carcass among the features.

Developed from a pure White Leghorn strain cross and producing white eggs, the new strain is said to give between 240 to 260 eggs per laying season under average conditions. Extensive trials during six years have shown that about 40 percent of the eggs are extra large.

Well, it's about time. After all, the pork producers have come up with a longer pig that yields more bacon, so why not a bigger chicken laying larger eggs?

—HB—

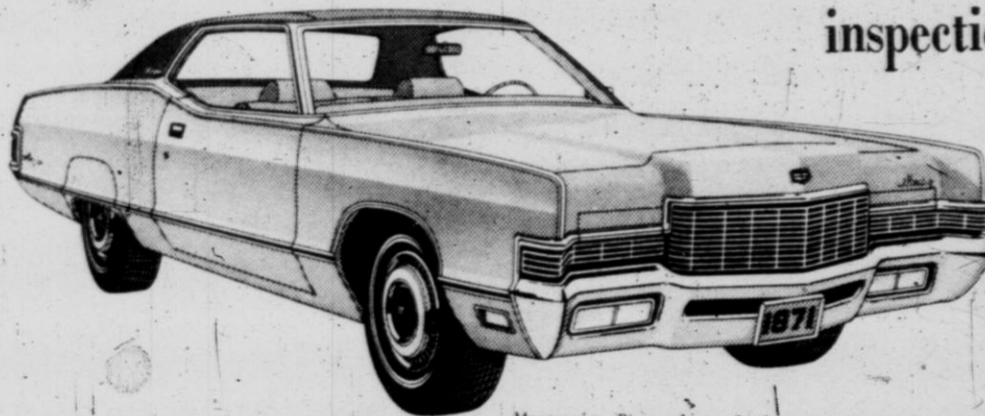

With all the unemployment in California, we may have a reverse of the situation portrayed in "Grapes of Wrath." The Okies may be returning home.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Civil Rights For Cinderella?

At first glance, Mr. Harrison's will seemed plain enough. It left his entire estate to his "children," a word that obviously included his own three daughters. But did it also include his stepdaughter, the child of his second wife?

After a court hearing, the judge decided that the stepdaughter was just out of luck: He said the word "children" did not include stepchildren unless the will expressly or impliedly said so.

This ruling illustrates that even today, in traditional areas of the law, our Cinderellas may still be treated like under-privileged members of the family.

"Although it may appear unjust," commented one court, "we must take the law as we find it."

This applies not only to the right of inheritance but also to the right of support. In most states, the mere fact that a stepchild joins the family circle does not impose upon the stepfather any legal obligation to pay the upkeep.

As a practical matter, however, stepfathers generally do support their stepchildren—and may, of course, go through a formal adoption ceremony.

Furthermore, especially in the newer fields of law, there is a growing tendency—sometimes by specific statutory enactment—to place stepchildren on an equal footing with natural children. Consider this case:

A factory worker was killed in an industrial accident. When his family put in a claim for workmen's compensation, the company readily agreed to pay the victim's widow and young son. But it refused to pay anything to his stepdaughter, even though she had been living for years as a regular member of the family.

However, when the matter was tested in court, the judge took note of the humanitarian purpose of the modern workmen's compensation system.

"Compensation is not inheritance," he said. "Its purpose is to give relief to dependents of one killed in industry."

Thereupon the court ordered the company to pay a full share of compensation to the stepdaughter, since she 1) did indeed need relief and 2) was indeed a dependent.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q) Do I have to report interest from U.S. Savings Bonds on my tax return?

A) Yes. Interest earned on your Savings Bonds is taxable and must be reported. However, you have the option of reporting the interest each year as the redemption value increases or all at once when the bonds are redeemed, or mature, whichever is earlier. If you elect the yearly method of reporting, you must continue it, even for all future bond purchases.

To report the interest from the Savings Bonds, add it to your other interest income, and enter the total on line 14 of Form 1040. If your total interest income is over $100, the amounts and source must be reported on Schedule B, which should be attached to your Form 1040.

Q) Because I am suffering from a deficiency disease, my doctor prescribed vitamins for me. Is the cost of the vitamins deductible on my tax return?

A) Yes. Items such as vitamins and iron supplements prescribed or recommended by your doctor are deductible as medicines and drugs. Then, to the extent that medicine and drug expenses exceed one percent of your adjusted gross income, they may be included with your other medical expenses. Medical expenses in excess of three percent of your adjusted gross income can then be deducted on your tax return if you itemize deductions. More information on the rules for deducting medical expenses can be found in Publication 502, Deduction for Medical and Dental Expenses, available free from your local IRS office.

Q) My son works during the day but is taking college courses at night. May I still claim him as a dependent regardless of how much income he had?

A) No, you may not claim him as a dependent if he had income of $625 or more and was 19 years of age or over at year-end. If your child was a full-time student during any part of each of five months of year, you may claim him as a dependent regardless of age or income provided you meet all the other dependency tests. However, if your child is employed full-time during the day and attends school during the night, he is not considered a full-time student.

Q) I am married and filing a joint return. My wife had no income last year. Does she still have to sign the return?

A) Yes. A joint return must be signed by husband and wife even though only one had income.

Q) I'm 65. Do I still have to file a return?

A) If you are single and 65 or older you do not have to file a return unless your income was $2,300 or more. If you are married and entitled to file jointly and your combined income is less than $2,900, you still do not have to file. Finally, if your spouse is also 65 or over and you are entitled to file a joint return, you do not have to file unless you made $3,500 or more.

However, you must file a return and pay any tax due if you have net earnings from self-employment of $400 or more regardless of age.

Q) Can I deduct the cost of my work clothes on my Federal income tax return?

A) Generally, you may not deduct the cost and maintenance of work clothing. However, if your job requires special apparel or equipment as a condition of employment and the apparel is not adaptable for use as regular clothing, its cost and maintenance are deductible. Examples of work clothing whose cost is deductible as employee expenses are uniforms worn by mailmen, nurses, policemen and firemen and protective clothing required for some jobs, such as safety shoes and hard hats.

DPS investigates nine accidents here in June

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated nine accidents on rural highways in Deaf Smith County during the month of June, according to Sgt. W. E. Wells, Highway Patrol Supervisor of this area.

These crashes resulted in no persons killed and five persons injured.

The rural traffic accident summary for this county during the first six months of 1971 shows a total of 6 accidents resulting in one person killed and 45 persons injured.

The rural traffic accident summary for the 60 counties of the Lubbock Department of Public Safety Region for June, 1971, shows a total of 524 accidents resulting in 10 persons killed and 308 persons injured. This was 19 less accidents, 13 less fatalities, and 46 less injured than during May.

The ten traffic deaths for the month of June, 1971, occurred in the following counties: Floyd with two; Hale, Montague, Palo Pinto, Stonewall, Carson, Donley, Hardeman, and Hutchinson with one each.

State studies special ed pilot projects

AUSTIN — The first state-federal cooperative program to evaluate new special education pilot projects which may have a national impact on the teaching of handicapped children will begin in Texas during the 1971-72 school year.

The agreement, approved Saturday (July 10) by the State Board of Education, will link the Texas Education Agency and the U. S. office of Education in a $1.8 million detailed examination of projects designed to test new teaching methods in all sections of the state.

The new federal role in the evaluation effort will be funded during the first year by a $500,000 grant from USOE's Bureau of Education for the Handicapped. This bureau is the first to cooperate with a single state as a research evaluation project.

A separate $110,000 grant authorized under the federal Education of the Handicapped Act will support the Texas Education Agency's role in the project during the first year.

Thirty "Plan A" programs — special education pilot projects developed to integrate the handicapped child into the regular classroom — will be given a thorough check by the state and federal experts. The first group of five "Plan A" programs was given a partial evaluation by the Texas Education Agency in 1970-71.

The three-year project will be directed by Dr. Martin Kaufman of the Bureau of Education for the Handicapped and Robert Winn of the Texas Education Agency's special education staff.

"We'll be looking for more than the numbers of teachers trained or the total figures on children tested in this kind of evaluation," Winn points out. "We're going to look at the individual child and at how the new ideas in special education affect him."

Specialists assigned to evaluate the 30 Texas projects will study the handicapped child and his relationships to the community, school district, school, classroom, and family as key factors in his emotional, social, and educational development.

During the first year, for example, teachers with one type of training may have had an outstanding success with a specific group of children. This type of training will then be examined on a broader scale during the third year. These children will then be compared with

Girls advance in 4-H competition

Six 4-H girls took top honors in the Deaf Smith County 4-H Dress Revue Thursday night at the Community Center.

Dabbie McPhearson.

Miss Marnell will represent the county at a district contest, where girls will be judged for eligibility at the state contest. She made a gold and green velvet pantsuit worn with a green blouse featuring long puffed sleeves.

A new aspect of the Dress Revue this year was in the Senior Division where girls judged themselves instead of being judged by an adult as in previous years.

Miss Cole wore a green and red printed low-waisted dress with long full sleeves and a pleated skirt.

Wearing a simplified lilac and white wrap-around dress with white buttons accenting the garment was Lea Ann Umstead.

The winners from Divisions I and II will attend the district contest, but will not compete.

THE REAL BERNARDA TROLLEZ HAS POINTED OUT A CERTAIN LONDON HOUSE AS SUMMER'S PRISON

I'D KNOW THEM ANYWHERE!

THE FIRE ENGINES FILL THE STREET - COUNTESS TROLLEZ IS LET DOWN TO THE OPEN WINDOW...

SUMMER GETS ABOARD THE WINCH LIFT AND IS HAULED UP TO THE HELICOPTER...

JUST AS SUMMER'S 'PROTECTORS' SENSE SOMETHING TRICKY IS GOING ON AND BURST THROUGH THE BEDROOM DOOR

YOU OAFS! ALL THE NOISE OUTSIDE! FIRST I LOSE SLEEP - AND NOW MY PRIVACY!

PONYTAIL BY LEE HOLLEY

STICKSHIFT, YOU'VE GOT TO DO SOMETHING ABOUT THAT EXHAUST!

THAT'S EASY... YOU BUY ME A NEW ENGINE!

I GUESS A RING-AND-VALVE JOB WOULD HELP

FORGET THAT... GET A NEW CAR!

VERY FUNNY!... THIS SHOULD HELP SOME

THERE! GOOD AS NEW! THIS I'VE GOT TO SEE!

WHAT DID I TELL YOU! THERE'S NO SMOKE COMING OUT THE BACK!

YOU'RE RIGHT ABOUT THAT, STICKSHIFT

ONLY NOW IT'S COMING OUT THE FRONT!

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
Here is a very slight payment on the debt I owe to you and your many readers.
A day or two before a party, or any time a punch bowl is to be used, take a large plastic flower or bunch of flowers, fill one of your mixing bowls with water, put in the flowers and hold them in position with masking tape over the top of the bowl. Then take the bowl and put it in your freezer.
This gives you a solid piece of ice with the flower frozen inside. Then just before serving time, remove the bowl from the freezer, take off the tape and slip the ice out of the bowl into the punch bowl.
Spoon punch over the top of the ice until the plastic flower "peeks out." It is a very attractive way to cool your punch.

Plastic flowers can be used over and over, but I must remind you that the flowers have to be clean - hot sudsy water and a good rinse should do the trick. I have just done one for a wedding reception using white lotus blossoms and rosebuds...
—Anne Haldane

It goes without saying, but I'm going to say it anyway! I like your idea and love you for sharing it with us. And I'd say it's more than payment in full.

STITCH 'N' SPRAY
DEAR HELOISE:
My hobby is creative stitchery, and I'm particularly fond of doing the pictures requiring various weights of yarn.
My problem was securing knots in back of the work so they wouldn't come loose.
My solution was to apply a quick squirt of hair spray to the yarn as I was tightening the knot. Works like glue. No more loose knots, and it won't discolor or "harden" the fabric.
I have a purse atomizer of spray that I keep handy in my hobby box.
Barbara Peterschmidt

DOGGONE GOOD

DEAR HELOISE:
I learned something today about an easier way to eat chili hot-dogs. If you put the chili, onions and cheese in the bun first, then the hot dog, you won't have quite the mess in eating it. The wiener holds the chili, etc., in place in the bun, so you aren't as apt to get it all over your face, hands or napkin. Sure does help!

E. J.

COLLAR THIS ONE!
DEAR HELOISE:
I've been a dressmaker for years and I find that using those old (and some are very pretty) shoulder pads to cover the clothes hangers at the neck will save you lots of collar pressing.
I take the wide part of the pad... wrap it around the hanger, bring the three points together and sew them or use a safety pin.
Mrs. A. Z. S.

HIS OR HERS?
DEAR HELOISE:
My girl friend gave me the following idea:
If you buy tall-sized clothes, you can buy men's slacks. They come in extra-long lengths and nowadays they look just like women's. Many can be found in flowered designs and bright colors, so you have a wide range to choose from.

Janice Bush

SOME FISH STORY!
DEAR HELOISE:
I started to write and ask you what to do about goldfish jumping out of the tank, and, of course, dying.
Well, just thinking of Heloise is to think of nylon net.
I got some net and cut it a little larger than my fish tank. Then ran some elastic around it. Looks just like a shower cap fitted on top of the tank.
Now no more dead fish on the floor!
Marcella Johnson

A PALETTE'S PAL

DEAR HELOISE:
Artists' brushes can be cleaned and shaped faster if a V-notch is cut in the rim of a plastic or paper cup containing the cleaner.
A Reader

LETTER OF THOUGHT
DEAR HELOISE:
Here's a thought I'd like to pass on to you:
If you really want to meet nice people and you think the world is all bad, just take a small baby or puppy dog shopping or just for a walk.
Doors will be opened by strangers, others will speak and smile, and people will offer a hand nearly everywhere you turn.
I think no one can resist the magic of a baby or dog.
V. S.

NO STRAIN AT ALL!
DEAR HELOISE:
I use a three-cornered sink strainer (the kind that is designed to fit in the sink to catch table scraps, etc.), for a storage container for bathtub toys.
It sits inconspicuously on one of the back corners of the bathtub. It will hold an amazing amount of small toys and any water left on them will drain out the bottom into the tub.
Maxine Breggan

TO THE RACK!
DEAR HELOISE:
Here's a hint for those without enough counter space. I hit on this idea one Sunday when I had more than my usual load of dishes and not enough room to put them all.

I spotted my roasting rack (the kind that's adjustable and has wire dividers) that I had just removed the turkey from, so I set it up where I could place my scraped dishes in it ready to be washed.
It saved more space than laying the dishes flat.
This idea could also be used with a clean rack and to drain clean dishes after your regular dish drainer is full.
Mrs. Bateman

COLOR ME PINK!

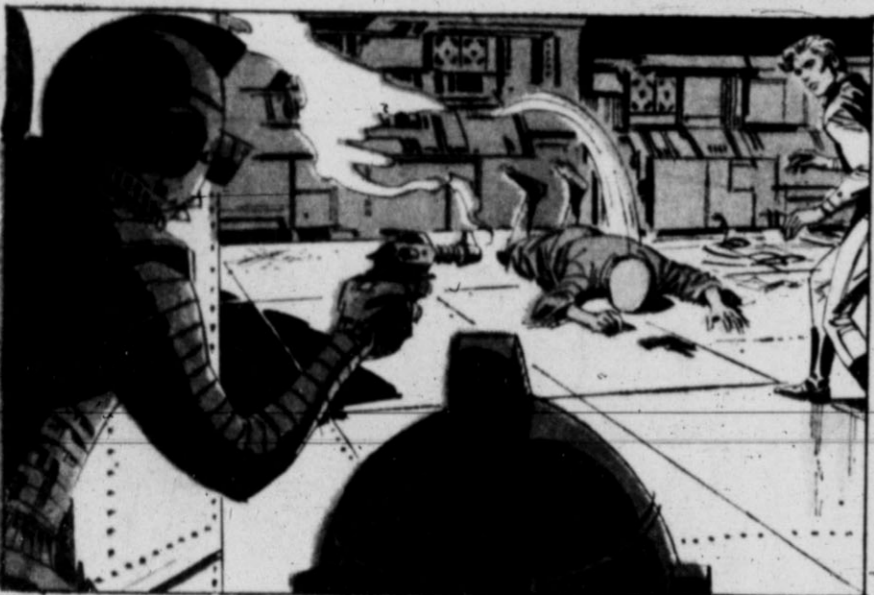

DEAR HELOISE:
Whenever I get through painting and have some left over, I dip an ice-cream stick into the paint and let it dry.
Then when it has dried I tape it to the outside of the paint can.
This will show the exact color of the paint.

BUZ SAWYER featuring his pal Rosco Sweeney.

by ROY CRANE

SIT STILL AND EAT YOUR CANDY WHILE I EXPLAIN THIS DRESS PATTERN TO LUCILLE.

AND DON'T TOUCH THE FURNITURE WITH YOUR STICKY FINGERS!

A PUPPY! O BOY, HE'S CUTE! WHAT'S HIS NAME?

ER, WE HAVEN'T NAMED HIM YET, STANLEY.

I THOUGHT WE MIGHT CALL HIM REX... OR MAYBE KING.

WHY NOT CALL HIM SOMETHING DIFFERENT— LIKE ROVER!

HE LOOKS MORE LIKE AN ALFRED TO ME!

ALFRED? FOR A DOG?

WELL... HOW ABOUT ALFIE?

YEAH, THAT'S IT... ALFIE! HERE, ALFIE, C'MERE, BOY!

SEE, MR. SWEENEY, HE LIKES HIS NAME!

IT'S THE CANDY HE LIKES!

WELL, SAY G'BYE TO ALFIE, STANLEY, WE HAVE TO GO.

OKAY. G'BYE, ALFIE, BUT DON'T BE SAD. I'LL COME OVER EVERY DAY TO VISIT YOU!

I KNEW IT! I KNEW IT WAS A MISTAKE!!

Secret Message

WHAT appear to be four letters above may seem meaningless at first glance, but they actually form a cryptic phrase of three words uttered by a secret agent who'd been called out on a fruitless mission.

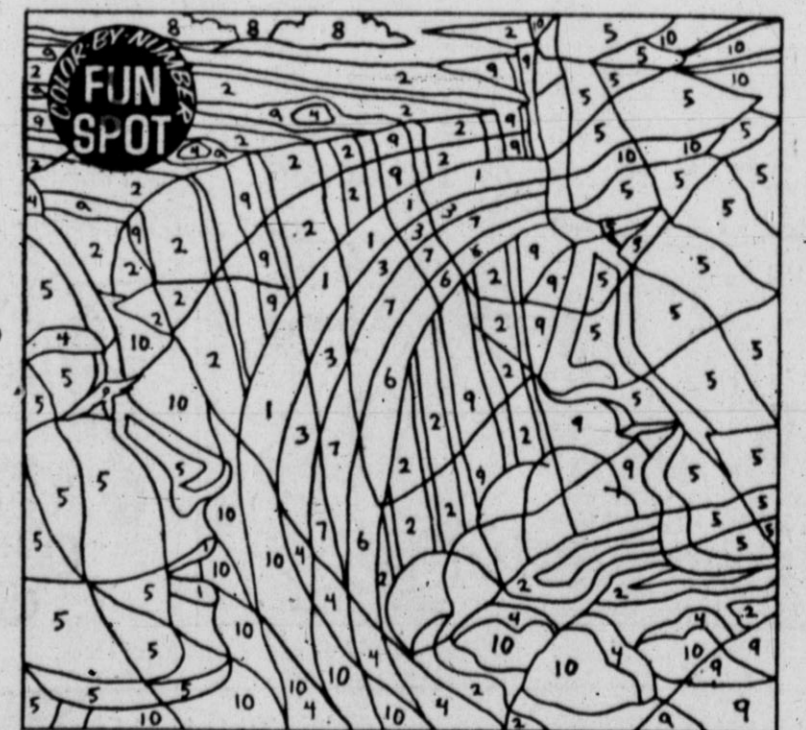

How quickly can you decipher the mysterious message? Remember, we said what "appear to be" four letters.

BULLETIN BOARD

- LIMB CHALLENGE: Stand with your back two feet from a wall, arms at sides. Now, raising your hands overhead, reach back and attempt to touch the wall. Take care! It's a long way back.
- Double this number, turn the answer upside down, and divide by three. The answer is 327. What number? Time limit: Two minutes.
- Repeat aloud as fast as you can: Pickpocket Peter Packet picked a peck of pickets' pockets. If Peter Packet picked a peck of pickets' pockets, how many pickets' pockets did Peter Packet pick?
- President Ulysses S. Grant once claimed he knew only two tunes. One, according to Grant, was "Yankee Doodle," and the other wasn't.

BEAT THE CLOCK! Begin at dot 1, draw a line to 2, 3, 4, etc. If you hurry, you'll see why Cinderella is dashing above.

SPELLBINDER!

SCORE 10 points for using all letters in the word below to form two complete words:

STRANGLE

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 50 points.

One possible anagram: star, slant.
