Justices resign as anti-Marcos purge continues in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Justices of the Philippines' second-highest court announced their resignations today in response to President Corazon Aquino's request that all appointees of Ferdinand E. Marcos step down, the justice minister said.

Court of Appeals Justice Ramon Gaviola met with Mrs. Aquino to submit 18 resignations from the appellate court, and assured her that all 38 of the justices would relinquish their posts, according to Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales.

Some resistance to Mrs. Aquino's request has been reported among Philippines Supreme Court justices, but Gonzales told The Associated Press some retired judges had been sent to convince the 12 high court justices to step down.

Gonzales said it was necessary to clean out the judiciary because it was stacked with Marcos supporters. Marcos fled the country Feb. 26 after a fraud-riddled election sparked a military-backed rebellion that toppled him from power.

"One of the demands of the people in this 'people-power' revolution is to change or clean out the government," he said.

Gonzales also said that as a last resort, the new government would consider simply declaring a revolutionary stance and ordering all posts vacated.

"That is the ultimate option, which we would exercise only when our backs are to the wall," he said.

He said, however, the government deemed itself limited by the Philippine constitution's Bill of Rights, which is similar to the U.S. Bill of Rights, and by international human rights agreements.

Meanwhile, hundreds of supporters of Vice Mayor Johnny Wilson of the Manila financial district of Makati demonstrated today against the Aquino government's appointment of Jejomar Binay as "officer in charge" following the death of Makati Mayor Nemesio Yabut.

The protest was one of several against Mrs. Aquino's moves to oust Marcos supporters from both local and national government across the islands. The efforts have also caused rifts among her own supporters, primarily because of disagreements over who should get the posts.

City approves four new voter districts

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

The Hereford City Commission approved Monday a proposed judgement of a suit filed by a group represented as "All Mexican-Americans persons who are eligible voters of the City of Hereford" by agreeing to create single-member districts and adding two at-large seats on the commission.

The resolution must next be approved by U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson. If approved, the April 5 election would be cancelled and another election could not be scheduled until 60 days after the U.S. Department of Justice approves the resolution.

In the agreement, four commissioners will be elected from single member districts identified as Places 1, 2, 3 and 4. Commissioners for Places 5 and 6 and the mayoral post will be elected at-large by all city voters.

Candidates running for mayor and at-large commissioner positions must reside with the city limits. The candidates for Places 1, 2, 3 and 4 must reside within their respective districts and only voters in those districts may vote for those seats.

Currently, all commissioners are elected by a citywide vote.

The present members of the city commission will be allowed to complete their terms. The length of the terms shall remain at two years.

The at-large commission positions shall be elected from the same ballot. The candidate receiving the most votes will be seated in Place 5 and the runner-up will be seated in Place 6.

By 1987, the two extra seats will be added. The election which will be rescheduled later this year will begin the transition into the single district commissioners.

The election that was to have taken place in April, would have been to elect commissioners for Places 2 and 4. If the judgement is approved, Places 2 and 4 will be elected as single member districts. The 1987 election will see Places 1 and 3 up for election as single member districts also. The at-large seats will also be up for election in 1987 but they will be for a one-year term only. According to the proposed judgement, the elections held during odd numbered years will elect two single member commissioners and the mayor, while the even number years will be set for the election of the other two single member commissioners and the two at-large commissioners. In 1989, the at-large commissioners will begin running for two-year terms.

The suit, filed by Flora Aguero, Domingo Landin and Criselda Landin, on behalf of minorities in Hereford, was established because the defendants felt that the current system of electing commissioners was diluting the voting strength of minorities.

The attorney for the plaintiff, Bill Garrett of Dallas, said that the suit was brought before him in July of 1985. "We had heard some complaints before, but we did not take on the case officially until June," Garrett said.

The plaintiffs claimed that the current system was not providing equal representation for the minorities.

Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher said that the city had not received any complaints until the time the suit was filed. "We had not heard of any problems, but we were sure willing

Court clears way for March 10 teacher tests

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas teachers must take a March 10 reading and writing test to determine if they are competent to stay in the classroom, State District Judge Harley Clark has ruled.

"The decisions made by the State Board of Education... are found to be lawful and in keeping with the intent of the statute and the Legislature," Clark said Monday.

The Texas State Teachers Association, which challenged the constitutionality of the 1984 law said the decision "will allow the state to make or break the careers of professional Texas educators" based on the outcome of a single test.

Gov. Mark White said he had "every confidence that Texas teachers will meet the challenge of the test."

The court decision cleared the way for statewide testing of 210,000 public school administrators and teachers on March 10 by the Texas Education Agency. Those who fail, and do not pass a make-up exam in June, will lose their teaching certificates.

The TSTA had challenged the TEA plans, saying school boards should decide whether a teacher is competent.

"We remain convinced that the (test) requirement and its method of implementation are clearly unconstitutional," said TSTA president Charles Beard of Beaumont.

"TSTA will continue to pursue every avenue to make certain that a single test is not the sole criterion for determining whether or not a teacher keeps his or her job," Beard said. "At the very least, we will insist that remedial assistance be provided for anyone who fails and that this help be provided before a certificate is revoked."

Beard said the TSTA believed the testing would be discriminatory against minorities, handicapped, some bilingual teachers and "those whose area of specialty is outside

Lawmakers trim their own budgets

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers trimmed their own budgets and the state treasurer predicted Texas would soon have to write hot checks as the Legislature began dealing with a projected $1.3 billion budget shortfall.

"Right now, money is going out faster than it is coming in," Treasurer Ann Richards told a rare caucus of Senate members Monday, called to discuss the oil price dilemma that has brought on the budget-cutting.

In long day of budget actions, the House Administration Committee slashed $6.89 million from the House budget and laid off several employees. The Senate administration cut spending by some $2.8 million and imposed a hiring freeze.

But the gloomiest forecast came from State Treasurer Ann Richards, who said the state might be forced to write up to $600 million in overdraft checks by year's end.

"By mid-December, we will have paid out almost $2 billion more than the state's General Revenue Fund has in the Treasury. This puts the state into a serious financial crunch," she told senators.

If oil prices — and oil tax revenues — remain at lower than anticipated levels, state government may find itself asking banks to honor checks for which funds won't be immediately available, Ms. Richards said.

While up to $1.4 billion could be transferred from other state funds to help cover the checks, she said, up to $600 million might remain outstanding.

"We are working on short-term, temporary solutions designed to get us through critical periods of a few days' duration. Should these measures fail to cover the state's obligations, the Treasury would have to enter into some variation on an old-style arrangement used in the past which calls for the state banks to honor hot warrants," she said.

Elsewhere, House Administration Chairman Mike Millsap, D-Fort Worth, said House budget cuts were designed to both help make up the shortfall and set an example for state agencies.

Failure to undertake similar measures across state government may only presage a cut in more basic services," Millsap said.

The cuts totaled 19 percent of the House administrative budget. Gov. Mark White has asked all state agencies to reduce spending by 13 percent through Aug. 31, 1987.

Seat belt law is saving lives

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials say there is a "definite lifesaving trend" appearing because of the state's new mandatory seat belt law.

"More people are alive today with the seat belt law than would have been without it," Sen Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, told a news conference Monday.

Lyon, a sponsor of the mandatory seat belt legislation, joined in the news conference with Director James Adams of the Department of Public Safety and George Gustafson of the Texas Coalition for Safety Belts.

DPS statistics for September, when the law took effect, through December show front seat fatalities in passenger cars and light trucks were down more than 14 percent, Lyon said.

"This indicated 114 fewer deaths occurred than in the same period for 1984," Lyon said.

In December, the first month fines were levied, the reduction was 18 percent.

Adams said DPS troopers are handing out 6,000 to 7,000 tickets each month for seat-belt violations.

Gas antitrust violations looked at AUSTIN (AP) — The attorney general's department said Monday it is looking into possible antitrust violations in the sale of gasoline by major oil companies in Texas.

Ron Dusek, spokesman for Attorney General Jim Mattox, said the investigation began after his office received complaints from the Texas Service Station Association and the Lone Star Gas Station Association.

The complaints said there was a major price difference in gasoline sold in Oklahoma and in Texas. "Major oil companies are selling gas in Texas at higher prices than in Oklahoma," Dusek said.

Dusek said the associations also said gasoline was selling for more in major urban areas than in rural areas.

"There is sometime a difference of 15 and 20 cents," he said.

Still another complaint was that major oil companies are selling gasoline to jobbers who sell it to independent stations for less than the majors sell gasoline to their own stations.

"Our antitrust division is looking into all this with the idea there might be some antitrust law violations," Dusek said. "That is the only action so far."

Unmanned rockets being considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is debating whether to resurrect unmanned, throwaway rockets as a temporary replacement for the grounded shuttle fleet in delivering military and commercial satellites into space.

Acting NASA Administrator William Graham announced Monday he has ordered investigation of the possibility as part of a search for "alternative approaches," based on the premise that the Jan. 28 Challenger explosion could ground the three remaining orbiters for up to 18 months.

The announcement said unmanned rockets — used infrequently in recent years as shuttle flights multiplied — could deliver national security, scientific and commercial equipment, and communications satellites, into space. Graham did not say what he meant by national security items, but that apparently was a reference to surveillance satellites.

In addition to NASA's own efforts, one source, who asked not to be identified by name, said an inter-agency group is considering the same approach and is expected to forward its recommendation to President Reagan shortly.

Proposal for drug tests decried

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charging "witch hunt" and illegal searches, a civil liberties group and a labor union said a presidential panel's proposal for drug testing in government work places would violate the constitutional rights of federal workers.

The President's Commission on Organized Crime issued a report Monday saying the U.S. drug problem has become a threat to national security and justifies drastic measures such as drug testing on the job.

"Forcing someone to submit to drug testing is the equivalent to illegal search and seizure," said Kenneth Blaylock, president of the American Federation of Government Employees, the largest federal workers' union with 210,000 members.

"Drugs have no place at the federal work site or any other work site. We'll support any reasonable plan to eliminate drug abuse or to rehabilitate employees suspected of having a problem," Blaylock said, but, "We oppose the witch hunt approach."

2nd claim made on Palme murder

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Police hunting for the killer of Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme reported they had been told of a second claim that he was shot by a West German terror group, and said the killer could have slipped through border controls.

Police reported little progress in their search for the killer. The national news agency TT on Monday quoted Police Inspector Jan Winner as saying: "We stand about where we were at the beginning."

Alerts at border points and the Stockholm airport continued, but security officials said someone who planned carefully might have gotten through because the controls were not airtight.

Police have said that the killer apparently had stalked Palme for some time, and that the attack was meticulously planned.

Palme, the 59-year-old head of Sweden's powerful Social Democratic party, was shot in the back with a .357 magnum revolver as he walked home from a movie with his wife, Lisbet, in central Stockholm. Mrs. Palme, 55, was slightly wounded.

Thousands of Swedish workers stood silently for five minutes Monday in honor of Palme. At Volvo automobile plants alone, 15,000 workers laid down their tools.

The disclosure of another claim of responsibility Monday from the Holger Meins Commando terror group brought to three the number of reported claims of responsibility.

FmHA may act against borrowers

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration may start action against thousands of delinquent borrowers nationwide as long as the agency, a lender of last resort for farmers, protects their rights to appeal, a federal judge has ruled.

The decision Monday by U.S. District Judge Bruce Van Sickle clears the way for the agency to begin foreclosures for the first time since he ordered the FmHA to overhaul its repayment and foreclosure policies in 1984.

Late last year, the FmHA announced it was preparing to resume action against 65,000 delinquent borrowers and warned those who had not made a payment in at least three years that they were in danger of foreclosure.

to try to work something out," Fisher said. "The city agreed to this proposal after discussing many options and coming up with what we thought was fair."

The proposed judgement will divide the city into four quadrants. Place 1 will fall between Union Street to the south, Fourteenth Street to the north, 25 Mile Ave. to the west and Whitter Street to the east.

Place 2 will consist of the area south of Park Ave. and east of North Street.

Place 3 will be located west of 25 Mile Ave and north of Bradley.

Place 4 will consist of the area north of Moreman Ave.

Commissioner R.W. Eads, who had already filed for re-election for commissioner of Place 4, and Commissioner Emory Brownlow, Place 2, will be able to run for re-election since they reside in their respective districts.

The city was being represented by Ernest Higginbotham of Dallas.

In other business the commission:

— Conducted a work session on the budget. The budget, presented by City Manager Darwin McGill, may see a surplus of over $900,000 due to revenue from the Water and Sewer department. McGill also said that the final total budget figures do not allow for some expenses that the city knows it will have. McGill said that he did not want to include the costs of a new water well and a signal system for the intersection of Highway 385 and 15th, until he could discuss the projects in depth with the commission.

— Elected to re-zone the area at 109 Ave A. from "B-Two Family" to "D-Restricted." The commissioners also approved a request by AzTx Cattle Company, 311 Park Ave., to be rezoned from "D-Restricted" to "E-Central Business."

— Commissioners then denied a request from Mrs. Betty Driver to have an area in the 900 block of South Schley be re-zoned from "A-Single Family" to "E-Central Business." The commission told Mrs. Driver they could not legally re-zone the area because it would be considered as spot zoning.

— Appointed Mark Kelley to replace Len Jones on the County Juvenile Board as the city's representative on the board.

Tabled the consideration of the animal control ordinance because the city attorney was out of town during the Monday night meeting.

Tabled comments by Charlie Ruiz of the Amistad Housing Corporation, who could not attend.

"All of the (cuts) involved difficult choices, and none of them were arrived at without serious thought and careful planning," Millsap said.

Some key cuts include:

- Laying off 8 percent of the 166-member permanent House staff.
- Freezing House hiring and limiting replacement of employees lost through attrition to one out of four.
- Eliminating funding for legislative caucuses and the House

Study Group, the independent research organization that has provided analysis of legislation and other issues before lawmakers. Several study group employees also would be let go.

— Postponing the 3 percent employee pay raise scheduled for Sept. 1.

— Restricting travel by lawmakers and staffs.

Millsap indicated that Monday's spending cuts might not be the last.

language arts."

"Although we were opposed in principle to the so-called 'competency test,' we felt from the beginning that an effort to fight it would be ill-fated and would falsely raise the hopes of teachers," said TCTA president Thomasine Sparks of Kingsville.

"I am confident that 95 percent of our teachers will pass this test," said Commissioner of Education W.N. Kirby. "Only a very few do not have adequate reading and writing skills to teach our children."

Kirby said he was well aware of the damage to the morale of Texas teachers from the long arguments over competency tests.

"We must use this test as a turning point to reverse those morale problems by generating renewed public support for teachers and public confidence in our education system," Kirby said.

The Teachers Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers (TECAT) was part of the school reforms mandated by the 1984 special session of the Legislature in order to upgrade Texas schools.

"This is not the last time we're going to meet to take action," he said.

In the Senate, that chamber's administration committee approved a 13 percent spending cut — but no layoffs in its permanent staff.

However, the plan to save some $2.88 million would include a hiring freeze and elimination of the planned 3 percent employee raise, said Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, committee chairman.

Gov. White has insisted that state agencies can eliminate the potential budget deficit through spending cuts, and he has refused to call a special legislative session.

However, Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, said Monday that failure to call a special session could have dire consequences if oil prices continue to drop.

"I guarantee you that if that deficit continues to mount, by the time they meet next year we're going to be in stark terror as far as meeting the state budget," Traeger said.

Traeger said a special session should be called and the sales tax raised to 5 percent from the current 4 1/2 percent.

"It's whether you want to get up now and anticipate it or wait until you get into a big hole," he said.

Teachers in service held

Dr. Bertie Kingore, professor of education at Harden Simmons University, presented a session on teaching language arts creatively. The presentation was given recently to Hereford school teachers and was informational.

"Modifying the State Curriculum in Meeting the Needs of Special Populations" was the title of a presentation given by Dr. George Gonzales, professor of education at Pan American University in Edinburg.

Ann Landers Have a trial period

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 30-year-old female who has multiple sclerosis. I live alone and am very independent.

I am in love with a nice-looking man. He has had a drinking problem and the reputation of being a partier.

I've known "Larry" six months and he wants to marry me. He has slowed down a lot in his drinking and says he will taper off after we are married. I am a churchgoer. He is not. He has promised to take me to church every Sunday.

Is it possible for a man to really love a woman in a wheelchair? I can walk a little and making love isn't a problem. It would break my heart to marry him and have something go wrong.

Larry says he wants to take care of me, but I am — UNSURE IN FLA.

DEAR UNSURE: If the man has a drinking problem, you might wind up taking care of HIM. The question is not whether a man can really love a woman in a wheelchair (many do), it's what kind of a marriage you would have with a boozier who likes to party. I suggest that you give him a year's trial and see how he behaves. Then decide.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When educators advise parents to read to their children, they assume all parents can read! Unfortunately, this is not true. It is estimated that approximately 25 million people in this country are functionally illiterate.

These folks are genuinely interested in their children's education because they realize how their own opportunities have been limited by their inability to read. They want something better for the next generation.

Local literacy councils, adult education programs, libraries and churches in many states are involved in literacy programs. If any of your readers know of someone who needs instruction or would like to volunteer to help teach these folks, they can call the Contact Center, 1-800-228-8813 (in Nebraska, 1-800-228-3225) for a referral to a local program.—JOYCE BERTMAN, COORDINATOR, LITERACY PROGRAM, LITERACY COUNCIL OF NORTHERN VIRGINIA

DEAR J: Your council is very much on the ball. I received many letters informing me of the work you do. All suggested the hotline.

I hope my readers who have need for this service will hop to it. People who cannot read miss so much in life. Many are on welfare because they can't fill out employment forms and are ashamed to admit it. They are handicapped throughout life because they are unable to follow written directions. Please, if you know anyone like this, do them the biggest favor in the world and get them to call this number.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Been Around in Bakersfield" suggests that single women check a potential lover's underwear to find out if the man is married. She said married men wear boxer shorts and single men wear bikinis. No wonder "Been Around" has been around. It is difficult to imagine circumstances under which you get to check a man's underwear without becoming acquainted with the contents. Sign me — AN OLD BOXER IN CHARLOTTESVILLE

DEAR OLD BOXER: Your premise is hard to argue with. I won't try.

How to—and how much? Find out with Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and when to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy send 50 cents along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Costaline Lee, president, noted a change in the March meetings. Also, it was announced that the Week of Prayer for Home Missions will be observed this week. Meetings are scheduled at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and Friday in Kinsey Parlor. This will take the place of a general meeting in March.

Lee introduced Clovis Seago who led the program on "Servanthood." She was assisted by Theda Seiver. "Servants Like Him", taken from the home mission study book, was used to show the great need to reach across the street as well as the nation to volunteer for mission service. Video was used to show the needs of different groups in various areas of the United States.

DR. GOTT 'Muscle spasm' is mysterious

DEAR DR. GOTT — What kind of specialist should I see for my condition? It's like a muscle spasm that affects the whole left side of my body, from my face to my toes. It lasts 15 seconds and occurs from five to 20 times daily. I'm 25 and have had this condition since I was 13. I've seen M.D.s, neurologists and chiropractors and had an EEG. All tests have been negative.

DEAR READER — Your description is too vague for me to give you any concrete advice. Saying something is "like a muscle spasm" isn't really specific enough. Before coming to a conclusion, a doctor would need to know if the attack is painful or produces weakness. Is there tingling? What brings it on? Is it stress-related? Do you have headaches? Is your speech affected? Are there mental changes or any alterations in muscular function?

Since you have had this problem for 12 years, I suspect it isn't life-threatening. But before you can get help with it, I think you are going to have to play detective and define precisely what it is you are feeling. Despite the use of marvelous new technology for diagnosis, the best doctors continue to rely heavily on the most helpful diagnostic test of all: the accurate medical history.

Lung cancer in women now leading killer

Women are smoking cigarettes now more than ever, and cancer statistics are showing it.

Breast cancer, once the leading killer of the female population, is being overtaken by cases of lung cancer as a result of increased cigarette usage, according to Davor Vugrin, M.D., chief of oncology at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

"In the next decade, about 1.5 million people will develop lung cancer and 1.25 million will die from it, providing there is no breakthrough in treatment or prevention," he said. "It's a quite common problem. In the past 30 years, lung cancer has steadily increased every year 10 percent per 100,000 population in the United States.

"We now know that some environmental factors predispose cancer," he said. "And, everybody knows that smoking promotes development of lung cancer."

Recently released statistics show that in 1983, new lung cancer cases in white men under age 45 decreased—the first time a drop has occurred in that category in 30 years.

"It pretty well coincided with the large number of people, mostly in better socio-economic groups, who have quit smoking or did not start at all," Vugrin said. "It suggests that people can do something to protect themselves from lung cancer."

"But the tragedy is that the number of women with lung cancer has continued to rise," he said.

In the past, breast cancer was reported as the No. 1 cancer that killed women. But the latest statistics show lung cancer surpassing it in 15 states, including Texas, Vugrin said.

"By 1990, it may be the most common killer unless women change their habits," he said.

A good reason to not start smoking, Vugrin said, is to avoid the physical addiction to cigarettes, which he compares to a mild form of narcotics addiction. For those who already smoke, he recommends quitting cold turkey.

"Decreasing gradually just doesn't seem to work," he said.

If a person quits smoking today, he or she may reach a parallel with non-smokers for incidence of lung cancer in seven to 10 years, he said.

Changes occur in the bronchi of smokers that cause a malignancy in the breathing pipes. The cancer begins to grow after prolonged exposure to cigarette smoke, although not as fast as researchers previously believed.

"A person may have occult cancer for several years without knowing it," Vugrin said.

He said the biggest problem appears to be in the chemical carcinogenesis, or production, of cancer cells. Both an initiator, which initiates changes in normal cells, and a promoter, which promotes development of cancer, appear to be involv-

In experiments using animals, cancer cells appeared when an initiator struck first, followed by prolonged exposure to a promoter, Vugrin said. The combination and correct sequence of the two is necessary for cancer to result.

"In lung cancer, we think cigarettes may be the promoter," he said.

Research has shown that the probability of developing the disease is tied to the length of time and number of cigarettes smoked. Heavy smokers (more than two packs a day) are 25 to 30 times more likely to get lung cancer than non-smokers, Vugrin said.

"Some cancers are even 99.9 percent related to smoking," he added.

"But obviously some people are more susceptible to development of cancer after being exposed to some type of initiator. I think most of us at some time are exposed to cancer cells, but our defense systems destroy them," he said. "A break in the defense mechanism allows cancer cells to emerge."

Vugrin has been studying two new treatment programs for lung cancer. He plans to continue research he began at Duke University on early detection methods of cancerous cells and on refining drug regimens used in treatment.

Group to observe cloud formations

LUBBOCK - What has been known about humans for centuries - that if you understand their personalities you have a better chance of influencing them - is being applied to clouds.
 For 10 years, atmospheric scientists at Texas Tech University have been categorizing the characteristics of various types of clouds to determine which of them are most suitable for rain-making ventures.
 Everything they have learned about clouds and seeding them with rain-enhancing chemicals will be applied this spring and summer in a project with the City of San Angelo and the Colorado River Municipal Water District (CRMWD) in Big Spring. Atmospheric Science Professor Gerald M. Jurica and Dr. William L. Woodley, a private consultant from Boulder, Colo., are co-directors of the project.

Along with a team of graduate students and meteorologists for San Angelo and CRMWD, they will observe cloud formations for the right opportunity to induce rain.
 "Clouds are alot like people," said Dr. Jurica. "Different clouds behave differently. Before we can change behavior, we have to understand it. We had to learn what causes clouds to rain, which clouds are likely to rain and what area of the cloud causes rain."
 Texas Tech scientists and others across the nation have been collecting that data since the mid-1970s when the federal government became interested in seeding clouds to increase rain on the High Plains.
 "There is a shortage of rainfall during the growing season almost every year on the High Plains," Jurica said. "If rainfall can be increased at that time, agricultural productivity could be higher.

 "More recently, Texas has experienced needs for additional water for municipal and industrial use."
 Jurica said if rainfall were increased only a few inches, the value of the additional moisture would be high in terms of increased agricultural productivity and of benefits to cities and industries.
 The City of San Angelo, in a contract with a Utah firm, began its cloud seeding effort last summer. Jurica said it appears that the amount of water entering the city's reservoirs during that time was higher than average. However, the data are still being analyzed to determine if the water level rose as a result of cloud seeding.
 "The basic idea behind seeding clouds is that when water drops in clouds freeze into ice particles, heat is created. That heat helps the cloud to grow," Jurica explained. "Most clouds don't develop enough to produce measurable rainfall."

 Clouds which are most likely to produce at least a little rain on their own are chosen for seeding in hopes that rainfall will be increased.
 "After you have been studying clouds for a while, you get to where you have a feeling about which clouds will rain. That's based on knowing that there is no hope for some clouds, that some are too big and some are too small."
 By radar, a cloud system which will probably produce some rain is identified. Researchers then fly into the cloud and find an area where water drop material is concentrated. Silver iodide, a chemical which causes water drops to freeze, is burnt in flames mounted on the belly of the aircraft.
 "If we can find the right part of the cloud at the right time, we should be able to cause it to get bigger than it would have on its own," Jurica said. "The bigger and higher the cloud, the greater its chance for producing rain."
 "This is a very delicate balance we're trying to adjust. The timing of adding the silver iodide is critical."
 Within a few minutes of a successful application, the water begins to turn into ice, he said. The cloud begins to reach higher into the atmosphere and within 15-30 minutes the cloud begins to produce rain.
 Determining whether the application produced more rain than would have fallen, is done by comparing precipitation with the rainfall produced by a nearby cloud system which was not seeded. Jurica said the procedure is somewhat crude, but by comparing two cloud systems which were very similar before the procedure, scientists get a good idea how much extra rain is produced by seeded clouds.
 "We try to do this on a day when the atmosphere wants to make clouds grow naturally," Jurica said. "Clouds grow because of atmospheric conditions—either the ground is being heated or a front pushes them up into the atmosphere."
 "Most small clouds shoot up and then die out because there is just not enough to them. If a group of cloud begins to develop together, they cluster to maintain themselves. Even so, they just don't make it most of the time. We want to give them a boost."
 In 1918, the Bolsheviks dissolved the Russian Constitutional Assembly in Petrograd.
