Britain arrests 21 Libyans out of in action for 'national security'

LONDON (AP) - Police arrested 21 Libyans in a series of raids early today, including a pilot who threatened to form an anti-American suicide squad. The Home Office said they would be expelled from the country as a matter of national security.

The Home Office said the Libyans were suspected of involvement in "student revolutionary activities,"

AUSTIN (AP) - The "Great Texas Trash Off" will be Saturday, the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation announc-

"Littering is a habit," said Don

The state spent a record $24 million last year to keep highways clean, he but did not elaborate.

The Libyans, almost all of whom are university students, were arrested in England, Wales and Scotland, said the Home Office, which is responsible for Britain's police. Five of them were arrested in London, it said.

All of the 21 detainees had been been under surveillance, said the British domestic news agency Press Association.

The Libvans were detained a day after the 12 Common Market members, with Britain leading the way, decided to clamp down on Libyan trade and diplomatic representation in Western Europe.

The Home Office identified only one of the detainees, 23-year-old Adel Masaoud, a trainee at the Oxford Air Masaoud was the only one of the estimated 250 Libyan aviation, engineering and technical trainees in Britain to be arrested, the Home Office said.

Libya has criticized Britain bitterly for allowing U.S. F-111 bombers based in Britain to be used in the U.S. air strike on Libya last Tuesday. Britain was the only member of the 12-nation Common Market to publicly approve of the raid. A Home Office statement said the move against the 21 came as the result of information about their involvement in "Libyan student revolutionary activities in the United Kingdom" and said their deportation was "conducive to the public good in the interests of national security."

Britain severed diplomatic relations with Libya in April 1984, after gunfire directed from the Libyan embassy at a crowd of demonstrating opponents of Col. Moammar Khadafy killed London policewoman Yvonne Fletcher.

In 1983, 28,500 Libyan nationals were admitted to Britain. The number was cut to under 8,000 in 1984 and in the first six months of last year, only 1,300 were admitted, about one-third of them students.

Pioneer costumes, riders to welcome

Arrangements for hosting the Texas Sesquicentennial Wagon Train in Hereford May 15 were discussed again Monday when a special subcommitte of the Deaf Smith County Sesquicentennial Committee met at the chamber office.

Jim Ward, chairman of the Wagon Train project, announced that the train's route through Hereford has not been finalized. The wagon train will not go all the way down Main Street as previously planned. A tentative route, subject to approval of wagon train officials, will have the train go down Main and turn on Third Street, passing the courthouse enroute to Veterans Park for an overnight camp.

Ward also announced that anyone who wants to ride with the Texas Wagon Train must fill out an application and pay a fee. Application forms are available at the chamber office. The fee is $15 a person or $25 per

The wagon train is scheduled to arrive about 4 to 6 p.m. on May 15. A committee plans to travel to Lamesa and visit a campsite when the wagon train arrives there. This committee includes Garth Thomas, Vesta Mae Nunley, Betty Henson, Ruth Knox and Andrew Kershen.

Thomas, who is serving with Argen Draper as co-chairman of the Sesquicentennial committee, and C of C Manager Mike Carr are working on arrangements to feed the approximately 600 people who will be with the wagon train. A food committee for the general public includes Steve Wright, Joe Brown, Temple Abney, Dempsey Alexander and A.G. May.

Mrs. Draper announced that the Women's Division of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will spearhead a promotion to have merchants and all interested persons to dress western or pioneer style on "Wagon Train Day". The group will sponsor a "historical look-alike contest" for those who want to dress like a favorite person or personality in history. The chamber's retail trade

During this Sesquicentennial year, we should have noted the birthdate of Erastus "Deaf" Smith last Saturday. It was in his honor and memory that our county was named when it was created from Bexar Territory on Aug. 21, 1876.

nith was a noted Texas scout, te and Indian fighter who earned place among Texas heroes by icipating in the battle of San Anduring General Sam Houston's retreat after the fall of the Alamo, and the battle of San Jacinto.

He was sent by Gen. Houston to verify the news that the Alamo had fallen and met Mrs. Dickerson who aped with her child. She conrmed the report of the fall of the lamo and the slaughter of its efenders. Deaf Smith accompanied irs. Dickerson to Gonzales, carrying the child in his arms. With a small company, Deaf Smith covered the retreat of Gen. Houston from Gonzales, keeping constantly between the Mexican army and the fleeing families. Through his capture of a Mexican courier, Smith learned the location of the Mexican army just prior to the battle of San Jacinto.

prior to the battle of San Jacinto.

Smith was put in charge of scouts under Houston in March of 1836. On the morning of April 21, 1836, he was sent by Gen. Houston to destroy Vince's Bridge, which cut off the retreat of the Mexican army and led to its defeat. On the following day, it was Deaf Smith who took orders from the captured Santa Anna to the camp of Filiscola, commanding that officer to withdraw from Texas soil.

Smith was born in New York state on April 19, 1787 and moved with his family to Mississippi in 1798. He set-tled in Texas in 1821. He was hard of hearing from childhood, according to historians, thus the nickname "Deaf." His exploits in the final battles of the revolution led to his being named a captain of the Rangers, but he soon retired and established his home near Richmond, Tx., where he led on Nov. 30, 1837. His monument tentifies him simply as: "Deaf mith, The Texas Spy."

Water reconnect fee raised

The Hereford City Commission elected to raise the fee from $5 to $10 for each time water has to be reconnected after it has been disconnected for non-payment. City Manager Darwin McGill told the commission that raising the reconnect fee may deter people from paying bills late. "We are averaging over 100 disconnections per month," said McGill. "Hopefully this fee increase will stop some of these disconnections. We could not possibly afford to reconnect for $5 any more, will not even break even if we charge $10."

The commission also authorized the city manager to obtain bids on the Frazer Farm lease, and bank depositories.

War on drugs continues

HOUSTON (AP) - The United States' war on drugs and drug smugglers nabbed 1.7 million pounds of marijuana, about 11 tons of cocaine and over 1,300 arrests during a 15-month effort, Vice President George Bush said.

The vice president, in a visit to Ellington Field on Monday, said the government has joined with Latin American countries to destroy drug-producing crops in the fields, drug processing laboratories and to seize illegal drugs.

"The war on drugs is precisely that — a war," Bush said. "And it will be waged on every front, with every tool the federal government can bring to bear and in full cooperation with the state and local

AUSTIN (AP) - More than $86 million in proposed construction projects at the state's colleges and universities would be blocked under a resolution to be considered Friday by the board that regulates higher education.

New construction would be halted for more than a year under the proposal if it win support from the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

Khadafy's wife vows vengeance

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — The wife of Col. Moammar Khadafy wiped a tear from her eye and vowed that if she ever finds the American pilot who bombed her house, "I will kill him myself."

"When I see what happened to my children and people here I will do my best to fight these terrorist actions," said Safia Khadafy, leaning against a crutch and sitting in a chair before her bomb-shattered two-story home.

Libyan authorities say the Khadafys' 15-month-old adopted daughter, Hana, was fatally injured in the bombing raid, and that two other sons - Kamis, age 3, and 4-year-old Seph al-Arab - were wounded.

"If I get the pilot of that airplane, I will kill him myself," Mrs. Khadafy told reporters Monday night during an appearance arranged by the government at the Bab al-Aziya military compound.

Reporters were not allowed to ask her questions.

Two of her sons stood behind Mrs. Khadafy as she railed against President Reagan and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher for the April 15 bombing raid. F-111 fighterbombers based in Britain were used in the aerial attack, which U.S. officials described as a blow against Libyan-sponsored international ter-

She introduced the two boys as Sadiq, 13, and Sephal al-Salim, 14, whose arm was bandaged.

Mrs. Khadafy's appearance was part of a campaign to stir up sympathy for Libya and portray it as the victim of unprovoked superpower

When reporters returned to their hotel after seeing Mrs. Khadafy, Li-byan Information Ministry officials handed out color photographs of a young girl they said was Hana.

One of the pictures showed a smiling Khadafy seated on a couch and holding the child. The caption in English read: "You adopted me. Reagan assassinated me."

In another picture the plump-cheeked little girl, wearing a frilly white dress, stared at the camera above a caption reading: "Kids should never forget my killers, Reagan and Thatcher."

During her appearance, Mrs. Khadafy, wearing a red dress and black sequined cape, said her husband is not a terrorist.

"If I thought he was a terrorist, I would not stay with him and have children with him," said Mrs. Khadafy, speaking in Arabic.

A government interpreter translated her remarks into English.
"Moammar Khadafy is a human being and he has adopted children without parents. Moammar Khadafy is for the peace," she said.

After her statements she hobbled into an auto and was driven away with her sons.

Before they left, Khadafy's son Sephal al-Salim said of the U.S. warplanes: "I don't think they hit other military targets. They tried to concentrate on that house."

Consumer prices drop steeply in March

Espire Moretin Company F. S. Sex Society

WASHINGTON (AP) - A record plunge in gasoline costs last month pushed consumer prices down 0.4 percent, matching the February fall and the steepest back-to-back declines in more than 36 years, the government said today.

For the first three months of the year, consumer prices fell at an annual rate of 1.9 percent, the best quarterly performance since 1954. Prices have not fallen for two months running since 1965 and have not fallen at such a steep pace since matching 0.4 percent declines in December 1949 and January 1950.

Most of the March decline was attributed to a record 12 percent fall in gasoline prices, more than double the 5.9 percent February drop.

Gasoline prices are tumbling because of the worldwide slump in oil prices. Oil on the spot market is now selling for $12-$13 per barrel, less than half the cost just six months

Gasoline prices at the pump have already fallen well below $1 per gallon for all grades in much of the country. These prices, last seen in 1979, represent a 27 percent drop from the peak prices of March 1981.

Economists say they expect that gasoline costs will probably post further declines in April and May before leveling off.

"We expect the consumer price decline for April to be similar to March, a big drop with energy prices by far the biggest factor," said Donald Ratajczak, head of the economic forecasting unit at Georgia State University. "We think con-sumer energy prices will bottom out by the end of June. We don't see them continuing to collapse."

Reflecting the sharp drop in crude oil prices, the average cost of all energy commodities declined at a remarkable annual rate of 52.3 percent in the first three months of the Home heating oil costs were down 6.5 percent last month after an a record 11.5 percent February decline and were also 27 percent below their peak, set in April 1981.

Natural gas prices fell 0.7 percent; electricity costs were off 0.5

Food prices, which fell a sharp 0.6 percent in February, edged upward 0.1 percent last month.

Beef, pork and poultry prices all declined while prices for fresh vegetables rose 0.3 percent.

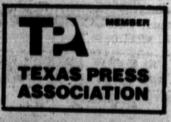

If the overall March decline held for 12 months, the annual rate would be 5.4 percent, the Labor Department said. For all of 1985, consumer

An in-take is a tip from someone in law enforcement, the schools, or the neighborhood, suspecting that a child is being abused.

JOE DAVID ORTIZ... Caseworker

"Sometimes we even get family members within the family to call in saying there has been abuse in the home," said Ortiz. "But this is rare." And, he added, the victims themselves never call in.

He said Hereford also has an alarming high rate of sexual abuse. "This mostly involves family members but we do get some that are non-family members," said Ortiz.

One morning last week, two calls were received within a half hour. "Sexual abuse is any sexual act or practice by persons responsible for the child's health or welfare which threatens or harms the child's physical, emotional, or social development," detailed Ortiz.

He said little boys are the hardest to deal with because they have the hardest time admitting they've been abused. After getting the intakes, the caseworkers go to the home or wherever the child is at and talk to the family members.

"We determine if there is any abuse and what type or neglect there is on the part of the child and then we confront who is suspected of doing the abuse," explained Ortiz simply. Once abuse and neglect is found in the home, Ortiz said confronting the parents is the next hardest duty he has. "Parents tend to deny the whole situation or seem shocked that it is even brought up," said Ortiz. Ortiz said his agency averages 35 cases of general abuse per caseworker each month. "We have approximately 30 intakes a month." Since January, caseworkers at the agency have picked up six children who were abused. "Right now there are 14 kids, in both Parmer and Deaf Smith Counties; in foster care," said Ortiz.

"We need to recognize the foster parents here," said Ortiz. "There are seven families in Hereford that work with the disturbed kids that have been abused."

Other resources the agency depends on are Family Services Center, Red Cross, Planned Parenthood, and the Clothes Closet. Ortiz also wanted to thank the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints for organizing parenting and homemaking classes from which clients have benefitted greatly.

Scientists studying cancer causing genes

The discovery of genes that can transform healthy cells into cancerous ones offers a greater hope of understanding cancer than any other previous finding. This and other facts on cancer are in the April issue of Texas Medicine.

According to author K. John Morrow, Jr., PhD, oncogenes are segments of DNA that can turn normal cells into malignant cells. DNA is the basic material of a cell that carries human traits and characteristics. This is coded as genetic information and is more commonly known as heredity.

A virus or misfunction of genes is what causes cancer, according to the oncogene hypothesis described by Dr. Morrow in the official journal of the Texas Medical Association. A technology that isolates and helps determine the characteristics of genes has enabled scientists to study the oncogene and come to this conclusion, writes the author, who is in the department of biochemistry, Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, Lubbock.

Dr. Morrow writes, "over the years, cancer has emerged as a bewildering disease, and it has been difficult to develop a mechanism that would explain its confusing and contradictory characteristics. The discovery of oncogene has successfully explained many features of malignancy." Some of these features include how oncogenes permit the cancerous change in cells as a result of environmental hazards, such as radiation or ultraviolet light from the sun. Another involves its role in changes in chromosomes, the material that carries hereditary material in the cell.

WHiel the oncogene hypothesis is promising, Dr. Morrow writes that understanding the role of oncogene proteins is still unknown. When the function of these proteins is understood, it may be possible to develop drugs that will regulate their activity, he adds.

Much cancer research is currently underway that may lead to further understanding of how the oncogene transforms healthy cells into cancerous ones.

With the growing concern about with the growing concern about osteoporosis in women, the NWTH Center for Continuing Education is presenting a community program by Morris Notelovitz, M.D. on May 2.

Dr. Notelovitz, founder and director of the Center for Climacteric Studies at the University of Florida and professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Florida College of Medicine will focus attention on the problems of osteoporosis, its prevention, diagnosis and treatment.

This evening program is free of charge to the public and will begin at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, May 2, 1936, in the Auditorium at Amarillo High School in Amarillo, Texas.

Infections are DR. GOTT far from simple

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

One evening last month, a man approached me at a dinner party and cordially offered to give me an idea for a column. I don't usually go in for this kind of unsolicited activity; I mean, I don't go places bug-eyed, an-tennae aquiver, notebook in hand, eagerly awaiting the Big Idea. But, I fig-ured, what the heck. If it comes, it comes. Go ahead.

What the man told me has - presto! - become a column but, as you will see, not quite in the way he expected. It seems that many years ago, the man (then in his 20s) was visiting somewhere in the Midwest. This was unfamiliar territory to him and, as luck would have it, he developed a foot infection. Not knowing any of the area practitioners, he went to the emergency room of the local hospital. There the doctor told him he had a "staph" infection that was serious. Our uninsured protagonist was admitted to hospital, given intravenous anitibiotics, kept for two or three days, dis-charged and subsequently billed for $600 plus change. Although he could ill afford such a fee, he grumbled and eventually paid it.

Some years later, he was vacation-ing in Mexico and again came down with what he thought was a repeat staph infection of the same foot. Not trusting foreign doctors or Mexican hospitals - and having been "once burned, therefore more wary" - the man took himself to a pharmacy where, without prescription, he was able to purchase penicillin pills for $6. The treatment worked.

"Now," he concluded, "isn't American medical care a ripoff? Why should I have been originally soaked $600 when six bucks would have taken care of the problem? Why is the medical establishment so willing to overcharge for a simple staph infection and why enicillin available without prescription in this country?" He beamed. He thought he had me.

There are several ways to answer his questions. And I did.

To begin with, penicillin is a danger-ous drug. This was imprinted on my brain in 1962 when, as an intern, I was working in the emergency room of a large New York City hospital. The ambulance brought in a strapping, previ-ously healthy fellow who was in the process of dying from a condition called anaphylactic shock. An hour be-fore, a local doctor had given him a penicillin injection for a cold. The poor victim had suffered an acute allergic reaction to the drug. We couldn't save him. Since then, I've been relieved that penicillin can be bought only by prescription in the United States. Were it more readily obtainable, there would surely be more deaths from it.

Second, penicillin is effective for. Second, penicillin is effective for only a narrow range of infections. It is totally useless in treating virus diseases and is not generally useful against staph bacteria. One of medicine's greatest modern challenges is that of pairing an infection with the proper antibiotic. That's a tough problem, because there are many varieties of infection and a whole truckload of different drugs to treat them. The different drugs to treat them. The skillful professional must pick and choose carefully.

Third, there was an even cheaper d simpler method that my dinner mpanion might have used in the exwilderness south of the border. He id have flamed the tip of a sharp be blade, opened the infection, and it to drain with hot compresses avoided antibiotics altogether. On ection, he wasn't at all sure this on suited him.

ourth, staph infection can be seri-Without treatment, especially on hands and feet, it can spread into arhands and feet, it can spread into areas surrounding nerves and tendons. This can result in deep tissue inflammation that is dangerous and tricky to control. It can cause astonishing damage, disability and — sometimes — the need for extensive surgery, called debridgement. I don't know what my acquaintance had in the Midwest, but if it ware more than a beil in Mexico. if it were more than a boil in Mexico, he could have been a very sick gringo.

Finally, I told him that if you walk into a shoe store, they are going to try to sell you shoes. Hospitals, like private colleges, are there to keep themselves in business. I have a lot of trouble convincing people that hospital treatment offered in emergency rooms is more expensive than similar therapy given by private practitioners. therapy given by private practitioners in their offices. You can hardly enter an emergency room without being socked with a $50 fee just for being there. But, of course, the fees are paid with "funny money" — insurance, third-party payers and Medicare; it rarely comes out of patients' pockets. Therefore, it seems cheaper. In the long run, it isn't.

So that's that. Infections, like so many other problems in life, can be more complicated than they may appear on first glance. And there always eem to be two sides to every issue.

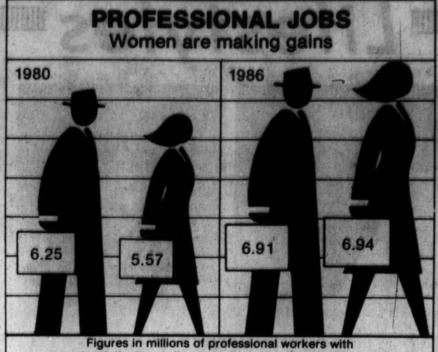

DEAR DR. GOTT - I am 5 feet 6, 108 pounds and can't gain any weight. I was checked for thyroid problems two years ago, but there was nothing wrong. I am also hypoglycemic. Should I be checked again?

DEAR READER - Some people are thin; they readily burn up calories. Before going through another medical evaluation, try keeping a diary of all the food you eat. At the end of the day, calculate the number of calories you consumed. If the figure is less than calorie intake exceeds 2,000 per day, and you honestly believe you are underweight, get back to your doctor for another checkup.

Cleaning your POLLY'S garbage disposal

DEAR POLLY - My garbage disposal has developed an unpleasant odor. How can I clean it to eliminate

DEAR K.W. — The following recommendation comes from the Association of Home Appliance

Fill the disposer with ice cubes sprinkled generously with scouring powder. Run the unit until the ice is gone. Then freshen the disposer by grinding a quartered lemon with a generous quantity of cold water to flush out the unit. To keep the disposflush out the unit. To keep the disposer clean and odor free, run it frequently to dispose of food waste as soon as it accumulates, using a good flow of cold water while grinding. Keep the disposer and cold water running for about thirty seconds after the food-grinding noise stops. You can further freshen the disposer by occasionally running orange or lemon peels through it. This should keep your disposer fresh and sweet-smelling at all times. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Can I offer your readers a "stop smoking" schedule readers a "stop smoking" schedule that works and isn't the terrible experience that cold turkey is? I was a smoker who smoked a cigarette as soon as I got out of bed in the morning and kept at it all day and night - an addict of the worst kind until I tried this. I get up at 7 a.m., so on the first day of my new method, I didn't smoke until 9 a.m. I kept that up for one week. Funny, but at the end of that week, I didn't miss cigarettes until 9 a.m. The second week, I didn't smoke until noon. Once again, at the end of the week, I didn't miss them until noon. So it went, waiting until 3 p.m. the next week; 6 p.m. the next week; 9 the next week, until by the seventh week (abstaining until midnight) found me off cigarettes. It took quite a while, but it didn't really hurt much at all. I am so glad to be free of that addiction. I hope some others may be able to do the same. — C.C.

DEAR C.C. — Congratulations on kicking the habit! I hope others may find your method successful. If anyone finds adding three hours to the postponement schedule each week is too much, try just waiting an extra hour each time. And if I may add my own Pointer, if another family member smokes, try quitting together. You can reinforce each other while you suffer together, then celebrate to-gether, patting each other on the back when you succeed! It really helps! Good luck, everybody! — POLLY

Fast driving may not be cause

DALLAS (AP) - Highway traffic deaths are caused by cars traveling at different speeds, not by motorists breaking the speed limit, according to a study.

Slow drivers cause as many traffic deaths as fast drivers, says the study, which concludes that annual traffic deaths would be halved if motorists drove the same speed whether 55, 60 or 65 mph.

The study's author, Dr. Charles Lave, is chairman of the economics department at the University of California at Irvine and was a member of a federal commission that reviewed the 55 mph speed limit, imposed nationwide as an energysaving measure in 1973.

"The common sense of it is when everybody's going about the same speed the overtaking and passing ac-tivity is much smaller," Lave said Monday by telephone from his office in California.

The study, based on data collected for the commission, does not include Hawaii and Alaska and reviewed only rural segments of interstate highways. It was published in the December issue of the American Economic Review, based in Nashville, Tenn., and released this week by the Dallas-based National Center for Policy Analysis Center. The center reviews technical reports and condenses them into more easily understandable forms.

Lave said the purpose was to deter-mine the effects of speed limits. The study indicated it might be better not to have limits, but to issue tickets for reckless driving instead, he said..

Deputy Chief W.F. Gentry in the Dallas Police Department's traffic division said Monday he does not disagree with the study's conclusion that speed variances cause accidents, but he said the lower speed limit saves lives.

"I don't know how we're going to make the slow drivers go faster or the fast drivers go slower," Gentry said.

The conclusion that fast driving does not cause traffic accidents was reached by comparing state-by-state average speeds and traffic fatalities.
Results showed no correlation, Lave

"In states where there's a lot of variance in speeds the accident rate is high," he said.

The federal commission last year recommended that states be allowed to set higher speed limits on rural portions of highways, but the suggestion was not pursued, Lave said.

The federal government controls state highway limits by threatening to withhold highway subsidies to states who raise the limits. Federal officials have issued statistics showing the 55 mph limit reduces traffic

Some state officials have indicated they may push for higher speed limits despite the risk.

Lave said he has not taken a role in the legislative fight over the speed limit, but he expects Congress to take up the issue in the near future.

Tax Tips

Eighteenth in a series of "tax tip" articles provided by the Panhandle Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Q. I received a substantial commission in 1985 in addition to my regular salary. May I benefit from income averaging?

A. You could lower your taxes by income averaging. Income averaging is an elective method of computing income tax benefitting an individual who has unusually large income in the current taxable year compared with income from the three preceeding years. Although the Tax Reform Act of 1984 generally tightened the rules on income averaging. Schedule G should still be completed to determine if income averaging is beneficial.

For White House meeting

Texas governor too political

WASHINGTON (AP) -Texas was not among the states represented by gover-nors meeting today with President Reagan because Democrat Mark White would 'probably misuse' the meeting for political pur-poses, says a White House

Reagan is scheduled to meet with governors from Oklahoma, West Virginia and Wyoming. Although White wanted to come, too, he was not invited because of "a recognition that someone who has taken a political approach to this subject from the beginning would probably misuse this forum." presidential assistant Mitch

Daniels said Monday.

White, who is running for re-election, said when the attendees at the meeting were announced last week that he thought it was a "mistake" to exclude a governor from a large oil state but that the president already well knew his position on the issue. "I am very pleased that the president is meeting with some of the oil-producing states," White said. "And if they will listen to the governors that are going up there, then I'm very hopeful we'll see action out of the administration." Other Democrats, though, said the White House was "playing politics" by ex-cluding White. White has asked Reagan to impose an oil import fee to stabilize oil prices, which have dropped by as much as two-thirds from last year's level due to an OPEC-induced glut on the world market. Reagan opposes import fees.

Daniels said the meeting was limited to the two Democrats and a Republican from different regions because "we thought that it would be a more useful meeting if it were small and of people who would take a constructive rather than purely political approach to he problem." Daniels said the meeting

if, frankly, it were composed was requested by Nigh, also a Democrat, but White "tried hard to invite himself."

Nigh, who with White cohosted a meeting of oil state governors in Dallas last week, said he wanted White at the meeting.

"I know of no other governor more concerned about the light of the oil and gas industry than Mark White," Nigh said. "It would be appropriate that he be included in this discussion, particularly since Texas produces almost one-third of the nation's oil."

"I think it is an insult to the people of Texas," said Democratic National Committee spokesman Terry Michael.

"It's really outrageous that the administration has decided to play politics with the economic well-being of people who have lost their jobs because of a crisis that has affected Texas as much or more than any other state," he said. "It's not even logical. it's not rational to exclude the chief executive from those talks. There's no way it can be justified."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said it was a "mistake" for the White House to seek "partisan advantage in this fashion."

But Texas Republican Party Chairman George Strake said White "has proven that what he wants to do is embarrass the president."

"I don't know why he (White) wasn't invited. I'm just saying it doesn't make me think we're not getting a fair hearing by not having him there," Strake said
