

Thomas Is 'Outstanding Senior'

HHS Graduation Held For 323 in Class of '82

Trent Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Thomas, was named Outstanding Student for 1982 last night as 323 Hereford High School seniors received their diplomas at commencement exercises.

John Walch, HHS principal, presented Trent an engraved plaque during the ceremony, which was held in Whiteface Stadium in spite of threatening clouds and slight showers earlier in the day. The clouds managed to disseminate somewhat by 8 p.m. so that the night was clear and no rain hampered the event.

Trent is the third in his family to receive the noted award, which recognizes one student each year for dedication to his class, involvement in school activities, and high achievement throughout his high school career. His brother, David, earned the title in 1972 and his sister, Shyla, was named Outstanding Student in 1975.

Also recognized were the 39 honor graduates; and the valedictorian, Paula Alexander, and salutatorian,

...in family tradition

Saleh Igal, who were presented trophies by Walch after their traditional speeches.

Dr. Harrell Holder, Hereford Independent School District Superintendent, presented the 1982 senior class, and James Gentry, president of the Board of Directors, awarded the diplomas.

David Fortenberry, president of the senior class, gave the invocation. The class song, "Do You Know Where You're Going To?" was sung by Carla Weemes, accompanied by Paula Alexander.

The combined concert and symphonic bands from Hereford High School, under the direction of Randy Vaughn, provided special music as well as the processional and recessional.

Commencement 1982

Hereford High commencement for the class of 1982 was held Thursday night in Whiteface Stadium. Paula Alexander gave the valedictory address and Saleh Igal the salutatory address for the 323 graduating seniors. A special presentation saw Trent Thomas named as Outstanding Senior by the faculty.

British Troops Meet Stiff Argentine Resistance

By The Associated Press

British troops ran into fierce Argentine resistance as they pushed toward Darwin in a bid to secure one leg of their two-pronged assault on Stanley, the Falkland Islands' capital, the British Broadcast Corp. reported today.

Citing unofficial report, the BBC said paratroopers opened fire from high ground Thursday on the estimated 600 Argentine troops at Darwin, about 20 miles south of Britain's San Carlos beachhead, and at nearby Goose Green, site of a key island airstrip.

The Argentine defenders put up fierce resistance, the BBC said. It gave no details.

The Times of London said helicopters were ferrying troops under cover of darkness for a "big push" to Darwin and Goose Green.

Another British press report said the attackers might try to bottle up the Argentine defenders and push on to the capital, 50 miles to the northeast.

While the paratroopers were advancing on Darwin and Goose Green, the BBC said Royal Marines with Scorpion light tanks and artillery moved directly east from the beachhead toward Stanley in the main thrust of the pincer assault apparently aimed at gaining the high ground overlooking the capital garrison.

The British are expected to use positions overlooking the capital to pour 105mm artillery fire down on the estimated 7,000 Argentine defenders entrenched in a wide arc reportedly stretching from Green Patch to Bluff Cove.

The British Defense

Ministry imposed a blackout on official news of troop movements after Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told the House of Commons Thursday afternoon that British forces had pushed out of their beachhead in a drive to recapture the South Atlantic colony from Argentine forces who seized the islands April 2.

"Our forces on the ground are now moving forward from the bridgehead." She declined to be more specific, saying, "Too much discussion about timing and details of operations can only help the enemy."

Argentine military sources denied the reports that the drive to retake Stanley was under way. They said British forces have been "halted and stabilized," and the military command in Buenos Aires said an offensive was improbable because the British had taken heavy casualties from Argentine bombing Wednesday and early Thursday and were short of supplies.

The Argentine sources also claimed the British were hampered by cold, wind, rain

Work Shifts To House To Adjourn By Holiday

By JACK KEEVER

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A

spurt of Senate action, including completion of its main business, put legislators in position today to finish a special session in five days.

Most of the work shifted to the House, which scheduled a 10 a.m. opening, an hour earlier than the Senate.

The goal was to adjourn by Friday night and get home for the Memorial Day weekend.

Senators approved four proposed constitutional amendments Thursday, including one to repeal the state property tax, and voted to spend $50 million to speed up construction of state prison cells.

It was estimated that 4,600 additional prison beds would be ready by the end of 1982.

Money for college construction and settling differences in what senators and House members want to spend at once to ease prison overcrowding appeared to be the major items of unfinished business.

The House, however, still had to approve three of the constitutional proposals that cleared the Senate to put them on the Nov. 2 general election ballot.

Clements called the special session to repeal the 10-cent per $100 valuation property tax, but he also said he wanted legislators to find construction money for 17 colleges that had relied on the tax.

On Monday, he authorized lawmakers to see what they could do about overcrowded prisons and a few other issues.

The Senate defeated an attempt by Sen. Carl Parker on Thursday to substitute a 3-cent property tax, which would be phased out in building a $2 billion college construction fund for colleges outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M University systems.

Parker, D-Port Arthur, said senators had told him privately that his proposal was the "easiest" and "best" way to finance college construction, but they feared political opponents might use a tax vote against them in November.

"I want to serve notice to the people of Texas that what you're about to witness is a case of politicians rising above principle for the sake of politics," Parker said, then watched as his measure failed 23-8.

The Senate approved the proposal to repeal the tax, 30-1, with Peyton McKnight, a lame-duck Tyler Democrat, casting the lone "no" vote. House members had adopted the measure, 132-14, on Tuesday, and it now goes on the November ballot.

Country Music Show Here Saturday

A little bit of country music nostalgia, a little bit of the contemporary, and buckets of laughter and fun. That's what's in store for Hereford residents Saturday night when "Raisin' A Ruckus!" comes to town Saturday evening.

The country music road show, produced by South Plains College and sponsored locally by the Hereford Lions Club, is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in Whiteface Stadium. Tickets are $3 per person (children under six free) and may be purchased from any member of Lions Club or at The Hereford Brand.

In its sixth year of touring West Texas and Eastern New Mexico, the show's cast is composed of a dozen South Plains College faculty and students. Featuring more than 50 classic and contemporary country music hits, "Raisin' A Ruckus!" is a spectacle of music, lighting, costumes, skits, and dance which runs the gambit of country music tastes.

Last season's show, which toured 26 cities and played before more than 15,000 people, saluted country music greats. This year's show points out the broad influence country music has had on other music forms.

"Those in the audience who really are not strong country music fans will find melodies in the show which they will enjoy and relate to," says Helen Roberts, the show's scriptwriter and choreographer, and also a professor of speech and drama at SPC. "You just can't beat the quality of music which goes into this show."

John Hartin, director of SPC's country and bluegrass music department, and Ed Marsh, SPC fiddle and bluegrass music instructor, have teamed up for the past five summers to arrange the music for SPC's road shows. Hartin is the show's music director and Marsh, the show's vocal director.

Randy Ellis, director of SPC's sound technology program and a veteran of the 1979 tour, "The Golden Years of Country Music," returns as a performer, playing bass and singing back-up vocals.

Raisin' A Ruckus

South Plains College's annual road show will be at Whiteface Stadium at 8 p.m. Saturday to bring a special brand of country music song and dance to Hereford. This year's show, entitled "Raisin' A Ruckus!" is being sponsored by the Hereford Lions Club, and the $3 tickets may be purchased from any Lion or at The Hereford Brand. Performing in the summer show are, left to right, Darrell Thrash of Ropesville; John Hartin, SPC's country music director; Bunk Lawson of Levelland; Scott Barton of Levelland; Doyle Marvin of Lewiston, Idaho; Kay Stephens of Plains; Kathy Tutt of Muleshoe; Ira White of Tahoka; Randy Ellis, SPC sound technology instructor; Carol Howell of Levelland; and Ed Marsh, SPC bluegrass music instructor.

Senate Gives Up Tax Break

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Without a voice raised in objection, the Senate is ditching the politically unpopular tax break that gives members of Congress an audit-proof $75-a-day deduction.

But the fate of the special deduction will rest with a House-Senate conference committee that could overturn the Senate's 70-23 action late Thursday.

By that vote, senators adopted an amendment by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to repeal the tax break of nearly $20,000 a year, a deduction that generated a public outcry. Congress voted to give itself the break last year.

Proxmire's tax-break repeal was attached to an unrelated funding bill which was then passed and sent to the conference committee. Since the House-passed version of the bill does not deal with the congressional tax break, conferees could vote to cancel the Senate's action.

Proxmire told reporters "it will be tough" to get the conference committee to go along with his plan. But he noted House members must stand for re-election every two years, and might come under considerable voter pressure to go along with repealing the tax break.

At issue is the amount of money members of Congress can deduct for expenses associated with living in Washington.

In voting to repeal the new tax break, the Senate agreed to restore a $3,000 annual deduction that was enacted in 1954.

"The public well understands and disapproves of the action last year," Proxmire told the Senate. "There was almost universal condemnation."

Congressional offices have been flooded with mail denouncing the tax break. The Internal Revenue Service reported receiving more than 34,000 letters of protest.

Although 23 senators voted against Proxmire's amendment, none rose to urge retention of the tax break, although some argued for a more-moderate change than returning to the $3,000 deduction.

And Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., complained that Congress is giving itself a bad reputation by regular efforts to raise its pay or tax deductions.

Under the provision enacted last year, members of Congress may deduct a flat $75 for each day Congress is in session.

Or, they can deduct $50 for each such day plus interest and taxes on their Washington home.

Members could take the deductions even for days when they are not in Washington.

House Rejects 3 Budget Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Efforts to write a budget for the 1983 fiscal year collapsed in chaos Thursday and early Friday when a rebellious House rejected all three plans — and one last minute fallback — presented to it.

The final blow came as the House rejected the pleas of its leaders and the original, unamended budget resolution that was drafted by the House Budget Committee. Rejection came on a 265-159 vote with Republicans almost solidly opposed to the plan and Democrats badly divided.

Earlier in the lengthy late-night session, the House had rejected a proposal endorsed by President Reagan, a budget submitted by moderates of both parties, and a Democratic-sponsored initiative. Rejection of all possible plans sent the whole process back to the Budget Committee.

Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., chairman of that committee, suggested that the panel meet in an "informal, off-the-record" session Friday in hopes of working out some compromise.

Both House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., and Republican Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., made unavailing personal appeals to the House to put aside differences and accept the fallback plan. Acceptance would at least have put the House into a conference committee with the Senate, which has passed its own version of the budget.

Heavy Rains Increase Bug Populations

By The Associated Press
Texans may want to forget about the heavy rains that belted the state recently, but the wet weather will leave a few hundred thousand little reminders behind.
Bugs, especially mosquitoes, roaches, horseflies, hornflies, houseflies and ticks love damp weather and that's bad news for Texans. State officials are predicting an insect population boom unparalleled in recent years.
The "psorophora" or floodwater mosquito, which breeds in water pooled on the ground, probably will be one of the more noticeable species, said Jimmy Dickens, director of the general sanitation division of the Texas Health Department in Austin.
"That type of mosquito is a fierce biter and bothers people but is not known to carry disease," Dickens said Thursday.
Texans also can expect to see more "culex" mosquitoes, which can carry encephalitis but are not noticed as much by their victims.
"They're just kind of a shy mosquito and people don't feel them biting as much," Dickens said.
Such mosquitoes like to breed in water that contains sewage and in water standing in containers, such as flower pots and pet dishes, that commonly are found around houses.

Senator's Income Tax Returns Being Investigated

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Federal income tax returns filed by a state senator are being examined by investigators from the criminal division of the Internal Revenue Service, according to a newspaper report.
The Corpus Christi Caller, in a copyright story in today's editions, said IRS Special Agent Glenn Bartlett III of Corpus Christi has been assigned to review Sen. Carlos Truan's tax records.
Bartlett told the newspaper Thursday he could not comment on the specifics of what he does but he said his job is to investigate potential criminal violations of the federal tax code.
Truan and Betty King, secretary of the Senate, confirmed there is an inquiry, but both said they understand it is a routine audit.
"It is an investigation and they are getting all the info they request and as far as I know that's all it is, an investigation," Truan told the Harte-Hanks Austin bureau Thursday.
"I've been audited before," said Truan, "so I just accept it as a routine."
He said the last time he was audited was in 1976.
The newspaper said the audit concerns financial records from Dec. 1, 1976 through Jan. 31, 1980.

Space Monkey With Right Stuff Celebrates 25th Birthday

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Miss Baker, one of the first two animals recovered alive from an American space flight, celebrates her birthday and the 23rd anniversary of her historic journey today, literally a museum piece but still adored by the nation's children.
Miss Baker, at 25 the oldest squirrel monkey in captivity, gets an average of 100 letters a day at the Alabama Space and Rocket Museum, where she lives in a plexiglass home amid space-age exhibits and replicas of flying machines.
"Sometimes they address their letters to 'Miss Baker, Space' and they find their way here," said Lee Sentell, a spokesman for the space center.

Pope John Paul II Makes Historic Visit To Britain

LONDON (AP) — Pope John Paul II arrived in Britain Friday on a historic first visit by a Roman Catholic pontiff and made an immediate plea for peace in the Falkland Islands.
As British troops fought to expand their Falklands beachhead, the pontiff said, "This tragic situation has been one of most serious concern to me...It has claimed numerous lives and has even threatened to expand to still more dreadful proportions."
The pontiff recalled his repeated pleas for a cease-fire and said: "As I stand here today, I renew my heartfelt appeal, and I pray that such a settlement of the dispute will soon be reached."
After his Alitalia Boeing 727 touched down at Gatwick Airport, the pontiff appeared at the plane's door, made the sign of the cross, then strode down the arrival ramp and kissed the ground, as he has done on each of his trips abroad.

Cardinal Basil Hume, primate of England and Wales, led a select welcoming party of 2,500 Britons invited to the airport to greet the pope under bright, sunny skies.
The public was barred from the arrival area, an example of the stringent security precautions being taken by Scotland Yard to safeguard the pope, who has twice been the target of assassins. No open motorcade from the airport was planned. The pope was to take British Rail's special royal train into London's Victoria Station.
None of the pope's 11 previous trips abroad were so fraught with potential political and religious conflict as this one.
The six-day visit, planned for two years, was almost cancelled because of the outbreak of war between Britain and mostly Catholic Argentina over the Falklands. To appease the Argentines, the pope hurriedly scheduled a visit to them on June 10 and canceled all meetings with British political leaders including Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.
The visit will be "strictly pastoral, in no way political — an incessant prayer for peace," the pope said earlier this week in a letter to Argentina's President Leopoldo Galtieri.
Leaders of the Church of England hailed the papal visit as a giant step of encouragement to all non-Catholic Christians toward eventual reunion with Rome.
Some militant Protestant groups, adhering to the centuries-old tradition of hostility to "popery," planned hostile demonstrations at each of the nine cities to be visited by the pontiff: London, Canterbury, Coventry, Manchester, Liverpool, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Cardiff, and York.
On his first day in Britain, John Paul was to pay a courtesy call on Queen Elizabeth II, the temporal head of the Church of England, at Buckingham Palace; hold services at two Roman Catholic cathedrals and address his British bishops at a private dinner.
The pope will underscore the importance he attaches to improving relations with the Church of England by going to Canterbury Cathedral, the Anglican mother church, Saturday to join Runcie in a "Celebration of Faith" service to be attended by Prince Charles, the heir to the throne.

Jaw Broken In Scuffle Grad Night

Hereford police are investigating a fight which broke out at 9:15 p.m. Thursday at Whiteface Stadium. The scuffle left Norbert Frausto, no age or address given, with a broken jaw. He was transported to Amarillo hospital for treatment.
Officers say charges would probably be filed after a full investigation.
About three-fourths of a tank of gas was reported stolen from a car at Bluewater Gardens Apartments.

Police issued 11 citations.

Reagan, O'Neill Blame Each Other

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every drama needs a villain. So President Reagan has his Tip O'Neill. And the speaker of the House has the president.
Their mutual denunciation society has enlivened, if not enlightened, the debate over who's at fault for the recession, high interest rates and about everything else that has gone wrong.
Reagan blames the Democratic side of Congress as personified by O'Neill, representing big spending, big taxes and politics as usual.
O'Neill blames Reagan, and seeks to cast him as the ultimate Republican elitist, who doesn't care about ordinary people because he doesn't know any.
Reagan regularly describes the speaker as a demagogue. O'Neill has called the president a tightwad, a reincarnation of Herbert Hoover, and a man so ill-informed that he can't even carry on a conversation about the federal budget.
But Reagan certainly can give speeches about the budget, and about O'Neill. "We did our best to compromise," the president said in Los Angeles the other night. "Instead of compromise, Tip wanted surrender. Instead of progress, he wanted to cancel the election of 1980."

That was relatively tame. The day before, Reagan had accused O'Neill of "sheer political demagoguery" for criticizing proposed cuts in the Medicare budget.
Details do not inhibit the rhetoric. On Monday, Reagan was told that O'Neill had accused him of breaking a promise by supporting a budget that would cut Medicare funds, after saying on Feb. 18, 1981, that they would not be cut.
The Republican budget would cut Medicare spending by $23.3 billion over the next three years. O'Neill didn't mention it, but the budget he advocates would cut spending $9.4 billion during the same period.
Advocates of both budgets argue that the cuts wouldn't reduce medical care for the elderly but would come instead in reduced payments to the health care industry. It isn't clear how that works.
Reagan didn't say. Instead, he denounced O'Neill. "I think it is very obvious after last year and this year that the speaker is obsessed with the idea of trying to create a Social Security issue for the coming election," the president said. "And I think that's pretty irresponsible with the program now that is actually out of balance."

The word war is into its second year, with periodic breaks for a gesture or an expression of respect, and an assurance that the dispute is a matter of political philosophies, nothing personal.

There haven't been any of those lately. When Gerald R. Ford was president, he and O'Neill, longtime House colleagues, would argue politics and policies, then put it all aside to go out for a game of golf.
Reagan isn't a golfer, which may be just as well. Given the vehemence of his dispute with the speaker, they might be at each other with sand wedges before they'd finished the first hole.

Cargo Carrier Gets Top Slot

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tiny Miami-based cargo carrier collected the biggest bonanza in a lottery conducted by the Federal Aviation Administration for allocating the rights to 276 daily landings held by Braniff International Airways.
Of the series of 37 random drawings Thursday for slots at airports in 19 states and the District of Columbia, Fleming International Airways won first place seven times and a total of 12 in the top four.
"Fleming is a cargo carrier. But there isn't any restriction. They can fly cargo if they wish," said Dick Stafford, an FAA public affairs spokesman.
Continental Airlines, Delta Airlines, New York Air, Northwest Orient Airlines and Frontier Airlines fared best among carriers who plan to offer passenger service in time slots formerly held by Braniff.
In 37 separate drawings that lasted 2½ hours, Continental was the first selected in the draw at three airports, second at one, third at four and fourth at six airports. That gave the line a total of 14 finishes in the top four.
Delta, New York Air and Northwest Orient won top-four selection rights at nine airports each, while Frontier was in the top four at eight airports.

Pan American World Airways and U.S. Air were top-four picks in the lotteries of seven airports apiece, while United Airlines finished in the top four at six airports.
The number of landing "slots" up for grabs varied from one at some airports to as many as 57 at Dallas-Fort Worth, where Braniff has its headquarters.
Braniff had an allocation of more than 400 arrival slots when it suspended its operations May 12 and filed for court protection from creditors under the bankruptcy laws.
Many at the FAA auditorium for the lottery had never heard of Fleming and had not expected a cargo carrier to compete for the landing rights.
Whispers of "Who's Fleming?" spread across the room after the carrier was picked first twice in a row early in the lottery.
Fleming's success began on the fourth lottery of the day, for available slots at Corpus Christi, Texas, when Gwyneth Jones, an attorney for the Civil Aeronautics Board, reached into a hopper, drew one red capsule from among nine and announced, "The first in priority is No. 31," the number assigned Fleming for the drawings.

About five minutes later, she again picked a capsule bearing Fleming's number first, this time from a field of 30 airlines seeking choice landing slots at Washington's National Airport.
Minutes later, Fleming's capsule was plucked first from 24, giving it first choice of slots at Newark Airport. After being picked eighth out of 11 at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the cargo carrier was selected first from eight capsules in the drawing for landing slots at Harlingen, Texas, then from 10 carriers seeking choice slots at Washington Dulles.
At that point, she traded jobs with Paul Smith, also a CAB lawyer, who had been calling out the selections on a public address system after each capsule she pulled from the hopper.
The audience, mostly comprised of airline representatives and newsmen, gave an audible sigh of relief when Smith's first selection for 25 available slots at Houston was not Fleming, but Emerald Airlines.
But then Smith drew the capsule for the airline with second priority, opened the capsule and read the number inside. It was — of course — No. 31, Fleming International Airways.
"I've never heard of them," Ms. Jones said of Fleming during an intermission.
"That's the first I've heard of them," Smith said.
Later in the day, during lotteries for landing slots at New Orleans and Seattle, Fleming again was selected first.
An executive of Fleming said the company planned to fly cargo flights. But the success in the lottery appeared to give company officials cause for reflection.
"We would expand to passengers if we were awarded slots that matched up and made sense — if we determined that we could make a profit. The idea wouldn't be to start flying passengers unless it's lucrative," Larry Rudolph, Fleming's vice president and treasurer, said in Miami.

The FAA emphasized that the fact that an airline won a high pick in the lottery did not assure that the airline would get a slot at the airport concerned. It has to meet various FAA regulations — such as one requiring that planes serving Washington National Airport have at least 56 seats.
"The actual allocation of the arrival slots will not, repeat, will not be made today," an agency spokesman said before the drawings began. "The FAA Slot Allocation Committee is scheduled to accomplish that task during the week of June 1."
Airlines were told that any arrival slots given them would be taken away if they did not begin operation within 10 days of receiving notice of the allocation from the FAA.
Each carrier submitted requests for Braniff arrival times at an airport. If the carrier placed high enough in the lottery to get one or more slots, it would be given the arrival times it specified first, if no other airline had chosen them.
If one or more choice had already been plucked by airlines choosing ahead of it, the carrier could get its second or third choice, if they were still available and provided the carrier specified those choices before the drawing.
Allocation slots won in the lottery may not be sold but may be traded among airlines participating in the lottery, the FAA said.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, May 26, the 148th day of 1982. There are 217 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On May 28, 1940, more than 300,000 Allied troops began evacuating Dunkirk, France, as Belgium surrendered to invading German forces during World War II.
Also on this date:
In 1533, England's Archbishop Crammer pronounced Anne Boleyn's marriage to King Henry VIII valid.
In 1874, fighting in France that came to be known as "Bloody Week" ended — with the defeat of the Paris Commune.

In 1969, the government of Argentina imposed a limited state of siege throughout nation to control student unrest.
And in 1976, the United States and Soviet Union signed a treaty limiting size of underground nuclear explosions set off for peaceful purposes.
One year ago: Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, the Roman Catholic primate of Poland, died of stomach cancer at age 79.

British and spongy island terrain as well as by Argentine artillery and mortar fire, bombings and infantry attacks.
"The battle is going very well for us," Brig. Gen. Basilio Lami Dozo, commander of the Argentine air force, told foreign reporters in Buenos Aires Thursday. "We have our capacity intact."
An Argentine military communique Thursday night reported British air raids on Stanley, Darwin and Howard, which is on West Falkland Island across the strait from San Carlos. The communique claimed a British Harrier jet was downed, bringing to 22 the number of British planes Argentina claimed to have downed since the fighting began. Britain has admitted the loss of five planes and nine helicopters and claims 68 Argentine aircraft destroyed.

A British Defense Ministry spokesman in London said he had no information about the reported Argentine air attacks.

Both Britain and Argentina have barred foreign reporters from the battlefield in their week-old undeclared war for control of the wind-swept archipelago now in the grip of a chill South Atlantic winter.
The official British toll in the conflict so far was put at 109 dead. Argentina acknowledges 92 dead and says 309 men are missing, including 301 missing and presumed dead in the sinking May 2 of the nation's only cruiser, the General Belgrano, by a British submarine.
U.S. support for the British came under sharp attack Thursday from Latin-American nations at a meeting in Washington of the Organization of American States. Despite a conciliatory speech by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., the OAS was expected to adopt a resolution today supporting Argentina and calling on member states to take "measures they deem appropriate" to help the Argentines.

Cindy Alvarado and Amy Daniel were State winners, and District winners included

Alisa Hoelscher, Yvonne Balderaz, and Jaci Edwards. Local winner was Heather Kleuskens.

Others presenting solos were Cristy Mullin, Becky and Susan Brownlow, Jennifer Legate, Sherry Vermillion, Stefanie Latham, Nikki Hutson, and Kristi Urbanczyk.

Stacy Schroeder and Becky Brownlow presented a duet entitled "Stars and Stripes" at the conclusion of the recital.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

For the last couple of years, Manpower, Inc., has conducted a poll among secretaries to pick the ideal boss.

The results have been the same for a couple of years: Alan Alda, Phil Donahue, President Reagan, Dan Rather and myself.

I can't figure out why I'm so far down on the list. Surely not sexism. I make coffee for my secretary, Norma, I sharpen her pencils, laugh at all her jokes and when a teacher calls and wants to talk with her, I tell them she's not here.

Frankly, if I weren't an Equal Opportunity employer, she wouldn't stand a chance working for another woman. She is beautiful and weighs 102 pounds. Who else would hire her?

I have to admit appreciation for secretaries has been a long time in coming. "Nine to Five" should have reached the big screen and the small one long before this.

So should a soft-cover book that came across my desk that's due to be published this month called, "Take a Letter Yourself!" by Kathy Matthews.

It's clever and it's funny, especially if you're a secretary. Sprinkled throughout are Office Maxims: "If you have your choice of seats on the bus, you're late for work," "If there's a bug going around, you'll get it on Friday night," and "The more copies of a given document, the less important it is."

There's a practical section on activities that burn away extra calories: Typing something that was due yesterday, 30 calories. Putting the company president on hold (which somehow disconnects), 25. Riding five floors with the office Don Juan, 80 calories per minute. (Riding eight floors with him, 300 calories a minute.) And one hour of work on the day before vacation, 900.

As I told Norma, the mark of a successful boss is having the security to laugh at oneself. I used to be a secretary myself. I appreciate those little harmless jobs that make the boss look inept and ridiculous. I told her I bet I laughed more than Alan, Phil, President Ronald or Dan.

She took the book and began to leaf through it. Finally, she started to laugh. "This is very funny," she said, "Why aren't you as funny as Kathy Matthews?"

That does it! I'm going to get the office closest to the bathroom if I have to be the last one to pick my vacation for the next three years!

A Veterans Administration study indicates a continued increase in the number of visits made for outpatient medical care at VA facilities, especially by the aging veteran population over the past 25 years, from 3.3 million in 1957 to 17.9 million in 1981.

Ann Landers

Accent The Positive

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I often hear people say "Jesus Christ!" or "Oh, my God." I wonder if they realize that every time they do this they are breaking the Third Commandment. I bet my friend $20 that you would consider the following too square to print. Please help me lose.—A.G. In Scranton, Pa.

THE LORD'S NAME IN VAIN
Last week I answered the door And there was another salesman. "Oh, God," I said aloud. "I don't need another brush!" And firmly told him so. I meant it about the brush, Lord. But I never meant to use your name. That was my outlet for exasperation. Surely you know how mindless it is...everybody does it. But then, here I am...making excuses when All the time I know I am wrong. You've set it down so simply and clearly. Your name should not be taken in vain. The next time I say, "Oh, God!" I won't stop there. I'll make it a prayer that starts, "Oh, God—how great thou art!" For how really great thou art, oh God! —Exodus 20:7

DEAR SCRANTON: You lost. Tell the winner it would be awfully nice if he sent you your check to Dialogue, a Chicago-based organization that does a wonderful job for the blind. The address is: 3100 Oak Park Blvd., Berwyn, Ill. 60402.

The Veterans Administration reports that the number of women veterans has increased significantly during the past 11 years. While the number of ex-service members as a whole is expected to gradually fall in the years to come, the female veteran population is growing rapidly.

The number of military veterans in civilian life has decreased for the first time in 16 years, falling to 30,083,000, a Veterans Administration study shows.

Lakers Crumple 76ers In Championship Opener

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Los Angeles Lakers' Coach Pat Riley proved himself a master of understatement after his team beat the Philadelphia 76ers in the first game of the National Basketball Association championship playoffs.

"We're a team of spurs," said Riley after the Lakers' 124-117 triumph over a Sixers' team that crumpled in the last 26 minutes Thursday night.

The Lakers trailed, 83-68 with 5:59 left in the third period. In the next 10½ minutes, Los Angeles outscored Philadelphia, 40-9, to turn that 15-point deficit into a 16-point lead.

That made it 108-92 with 7:35 left in the game. The 76ers never got closer than the final margin of seven points, and most of that came at the end on two three-point goals by Andrew Toney and another by Steve Mix.

The second game in the best-of-seven series is here Sunday, with the third and fourth at Los Angeles Tuesday and Thursday.

The victory was the ninth straight in the playoffs for the Lakers, breaking the NBA record of most consecutive playoff victories in one season. The 1950 Minneapolis Lakers won their first eight.

Minneapolis actually won nine straight if you count the last game of the 1949 playoffs.

The Lakers, who hadn't won straight in 12 days, previously eliminated the Phoenix Suns and San Antonio Spurs, each in four straight games to win the Western Conference title.

Nicklaus Has His Party At Memorial Golf Tourney

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — It was 25 years ago almost to the day that the U.S. Open golf championship was played in Toledo, Ohio, and a big, friendly Columbus pharmacist named Charlie Nicklaus brought his 17-year-old son to watch the stars.

The kid was a skinny tow-head whose voice was changing and who hadn't begun to shave. He was bug-eyed at the sight of Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, Cary Middlecoff and others.

"He'll be playing in this tournament some day," Ohioans said proudly, introducing the kid around. "He won the state tournament, you know."

"Oh, sure," said cynical members of the press, who are accustomed to hometown pride. They then walked over to watch Hogan on the practice tee.

Well, the kid made it, as his pop and friends predicted, and this is the week that golf pays homage to Jack Nicklaus, the non pareil.

This is Jack's personal week. It's his party. A former President, Gerald Ford, dropped in. So did Bob Hope and Mrs. Hope. The game's high echelon — former commissioner Joe Dey, Masters chairman Horl Hardin, faded legends such as Gene Sarazen, Byron Nelson, Glena Collet Vare and Patty Berg — all are around.

Jack has had many glorious weeks over the past two decades while carving out a collection of 19 major championships — a record that seems beyond anyone else's reach.

But this one's special. It's his own tournament — the annual Memorial. It's on a course he personally designed and almost fashioned with his bare hands, the Muirfield Village Golf Club. It's in his own backyard, the suburbs of Columbus where he grew up, went to college and took his first lessons.

There is a strong similarity between the Masters and the Memorial just as there is a parallel in the careers of Nicklaus and the great Bob Jones, father of the Masters, America's two greatest golfers.

The best words to describe them are "gentleman" and "class" — both from moderately well-to-do backgrounds, both with strong ties to the game's tradition, both emerging as kings of their respective eras.

Jones died without ever winning his Masters. His best was a tie for 13th the first time the tournament was played. Nicklaus won the second Memorial in 1977.

He had subdued his own brainchild, just as he finally brought the Colonial to its knees two weeks ago after 10 frustrating failures.

At 42, Nicklaus has found that expanding business enterprises have not — as some doomsayers have predicted — in any way dulled his desire or game.

He recently bought 75 percent of the MacGregor Company, which manufactures his clubs, projecting him into every facet of the game.

He builds golf courses (47 at last count) with broad real estate investments. He has his own tournament. The Golden Bear trademark is on all his clothes and equipment.

"I love golf," Jack says. "I love to win. I can't tell you what a thrill I got in winning at Colonial."

ple. The winning pitcher was Bob Long, 3-6. Doug Sisk, 5-3, was the loser.

Catcher Bob Cummings and second baseman Doug Wabeke provided the hitting power as the Shreveport Captains beat the San Antonio Dodgers, 9-4, in the first game of their doubleheader.

Someday, Foyt Will Decide To Quit

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Someday, A.J. Foyt will decide that he's had enough of this dangerous business of racing automobiles that travel like rocket-powered missiles.

Someday, he will grow tired of squeezing his body into the cockpit of his car for that breakneck trip around the turns and through the straightaways.

Someday, the joy of competition, the zest for one more trip through Victory Lane, the thirst for one more checkered flag, will be finished.

And, when that day comes, Foyt will walk away from the races — once and for all, with no looking back over his shoulder.

"When I quit, that will be it," Foyt said before his 25th Indianapolis 500. "The day I quit, you can be sure, I won't ever step back into a racing car."

Foyt admires racers who can do that. "That was what Jackie Stewart did," he said. "They offered him all kinds of money to come back but he wouldn't race again. That's what I'll do."

And, how will he spend his spare time when that happens?

Memberships for the Hereford Elks Lodge Swimming Pool, which opens June 1 are now being taken. The Lodge is also taking reservations for any special swimming party arrangements. For information regarding either a membership or swimming party reservation, please contact Ruby Gallagher at 364-7145 after 2 p.m. or The Hereford Elks Lodge at 364-4771. Elks Pool at 364-4511.

"I'm going to go off and learn to fish," he said. "I've always wanted to do that. Get away from everybody."

For now, though, the flounders and flukes will have to wait. Foyt will spend his Memorial Day weekend as he has spent so many others, negotiating the asphalt track at Indy, bidding for a record fifth victory in this spectacle that lures some 350,000 fans to the Speedway.

Sunday's race will be Foyt's first Indy car event since a crash at last July's Michigan 500. He damaged his right forearm in that race and it continues to give him trouble. "My arm won't be 100 percent anymore. I'm lucky to have it," he said nonchalantly.

Foyt qualified at 203.332 mph for Sunday's race and will start on the outside of the first row, alongside Rick Mears and Kevin Cogan. All three were on the oval Thursday for their final practice runs, this time in race day configuration with full loads of fuel. Foyt had mechanical problems and clocked 167 mph. Cogan's 202.292 was the fastest single lap time.

A jubilant crowd sat through intermittent showers which halted the racers several times. Many fans wore buttons supporting Foyt, who has logged 9,045 miles at Indy, some 2,500 more than anyone else. Some said "Fifth for Foyt." Others were labeled, "A.J. 25th Year at Indy." And, some simply carried "5th" with no further explanation needed.

Foyt doesn't need his last name for instant identification. A.J. is sufficient at Indy, the best known track in the business. Nobody's been here longer than the feisty Foyt.

"Twenty-five years was not a goal for me," he said. "I might be here another five. I don't know if I'll be here another 25."

Teen Tennis Princesses Battle

PARIS (AP) — Kathy Rinaldi was back at the scene of her greatest triumph, playing another teen-aged tennis princess.

The 15-year-old Rinaldi made tennis history a year ago when she upset two seeded players to become the youngest competitor to reach the quarterfinals in French Open since the prestigious clay court tournament admitted foreigners 56 years ago.

Her opponent today in the battle for a fourth round berth in the $917,000 event was 16-year-old Kathy Horvath, the 1980 French Open junior champion, who three years ago became the youngest player ever to qualify into the U.S. Open.

The two blonde schoolgirls advanced Thursday with straight set victories. Rinaldi, a dentist's daughter from Jensen Beach, Fla., eliminated fellow American Julie Harrington, while Horvath, who attends high school in Brandenton, Fla., overcame France's Corinne Vanier 6-3, 6-3.

Rinaldi, who was unheard of when she burst upon the tennis scene at the French Open last year, is the No.15 seed this year and ranked 20th worldwide. Horvath is ranked 31st.

The winner of the Rinaldi-Horvath match will meet the winner of today's match between two other Americans — No.2 seed Martina Navratilova and unseeded Lisa Bonder.

In third-round matches among the men today, No.2 seed Ivan Lendl played India's Ramesh Krishnan, No.4 seed Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina met France's Bernard Fritz and No.5 seed Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States faced Switzerland's Heinz Gunthardt.

In other women's third-round matches, No.3 seed

American Tracy Austin played Hungary's Andrea Temesvari, while defending women's champion Hana Mandlikova, the No.5 seed from Czechoslovakia, took on Britain's 36-year-old Virginia Wade.

Top seeds Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert Lloyd both advanced Thursday with straight set victories and were expected to see action again Saturday or Sunday.

The 27-year-old Lloyd, vying for a fifth French Open title, downed her American compatriot Kim Steimetz 6-2, 6-1 in a third-round match.

The French Open is the only Grand Slam title that has eluded the 29-year-old Connors. He moved into the third round with a 6-2, 6-0, 6-2 triumph over 19-year-old Swede Jan Gunnarson.

No.3 seed Guillermo Vilas of Argentina was expected to play his third-round match Saturday against Spain's Juan Avendano.

Vilas, a 29-year-old seeded third, won his match Thursday against Colombia's Jairo Velasco, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1. Avendano survived his second-round outing Thursday with a 6-1, 6-0, 7-5 win over American Lloyd Bourne.

There were two upsets Thursday. Billie Jean King and Balazs Taroczy, the No.10 seeds among the women and men, were eliminated in the fourth day of play at this two-week tournament.

Collier to Play In Greenbelt

Matt Collier, Hereford Whiteface defensive back, has been selected to play in the Greenbelt Bowl All-Star football game in Childress Aug. 6. An All South Plains honoree and second team all-district, Collier was a key player on the championship Whiteface squad. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Collier. He is the second player to be named to a bowl game, as Aubrey Richburg will perform in the Oil Bowl in Wichita Falls Aug. 7.

After Weeks Of Frenzy, Speedway Track Silent

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — After three weeks of frenzied preparation, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's 2 1/2-mile track is silent. The next time the 33 gleaming race cars are wheeled from their Gasoline Alley garages will be on race day.

The next time all of the powerful engines are brought to life, three-abreast in 11 rows along the main straightaway, will be on Sunday at the start of the 66th running of the Indianapolis 500.

Thursday's final practice session for the world's richest automobile race again offered glimpses of the speed that produced the fastest Indy starting lineup in history. Again, front-row teammates Rick Mears and Kevin Cogan were above 200 mph, and car owner Roger Penske pronounced their identical PC-10s as race-ready.

"We got both cars at 202 early in the practice. They were running great, so we took 'em back to the garage."

There wasn't anything else we needed to do," said Penske.

Also leading the speed assault at more than 200 mph were teammates Mario Andretti and Gordon Johncock, both former winners who will start from the second row. Cogan, who will start between Mears and four-time winner A.J. Foyt on the front row, had a lap at 202.292.

Two of the 33 starters failed to take advantage of Thursday's practice session.

Rookie Chet Phillip, who has yet to drive his first lap in an Indy-car race, did not practice because of a clutch problem. The only other no-show Thursday was two-year Indy veteran Dennis Firestone, whose race engine was being rebuilt.

Foyt, who qualified at more than 203 mph for a record 25th Indy start, failed to get his March-Cosworth over 170 mph in a brief appearance on the track. The only four-time Indy winner gruffly said the car had "some sort of problem" and took it back to the garage for work.

After Eye Surgery

Leonard Sees Retirement

WASHINGTON (AP) — At a time when an eye injury may have ended his boxing career, a vision of himself away from the ring is coming into view for welterweight champion Sugar Ray Leonard.

On Thursday, holding his first news conference since undergoing surgery to repair a detached retina in his left eye, the 26-year-old Leonard said he could walk away from boxing if necessary.

"I would miss the challenge but there's nothing left for me to prove. I have destroyed all the animals and the killers," he said.

A gold medal winner in the 1976 Olympics, Leonard later captured the World Boxing Council welterweight title when he defeated Wilfred Benitez. He won the title a second time by avenging his only loss in 34 professional fights when he stopped Roberto Duran in eight rounds.

Leonard won the World Boxing Association junior middleweight championship from Ayub Kalule, a crown he later, voluntarily surrendered. He became the undisputed champion by beating World Boxing Association king Thomas Hearns.

"If I were to fight again it would be (middleweight champion Marvin) Hagler," Leonard said. "Hagler and a fourth title would look good on my resume."

Five days before his scheduled May 14 bout with Ray Stafford in Buffalo, Leonard underwent surgery to reattach his retina.

His physician at the Wilmer Eye Institute in Baltimore, Dr. Ronald Michels, examined Leonard this week, described the operation as a success and said Leonard's vision, 20-15 before the injury, has improved to a nearly-normal level.

Michels added, however, that it would be months before he could advise Leonard whether it was safe to resume his boxing career.

"Time is a factor," Leonard said. "If the doctor advises me against fighting, that's it. If I get the green light I will think about it."

If he cannot continue in the ring, Leonard says he may pursue an acting career. "I wouldn't want to portray myself or any other jock," Leonard said. "I think I'd like to play a doctor," he adds with a laugh.

His news conference, billed as a "good news news conference," was upbeat, the champion smiling and at ease before nearly 100 reporters.

"I don't consider myself unlucky. I was fortunate this didn't happen in 1977 when I couldn't afford the hospital bills," he said.

Pointing to the inexpensive eyeglasses — $7 a pair — he wore to protect his injured eye, Leonard quipped that at least it was better than having to go around with an eye patch.

Problem Won't Correct Itself, Chuckles Maltbie

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — First-round Memorial Tournament leader Roger Maltbie knows why his golf game deteriorated after the last of his three PGA Tour victories here in 1976.

"When you're playing poorly, it hurts," he said after his 4-under-par 68 Thursday. "You know your performance is substandard, but it was not enough to drive me back to the practice tee. I found out the problem wouldn't correct itself."

The fun-loving Maltbie earned a combined $112,000 in the four seasons following 1976, when he won $117,000. He dipped as low as $9,796 three years ago.

Now Maltbie insists he's on the way back. The facts support him. He won $75,000 a year ago and has $34,000 already in 1982.

Why is Maltbie on a comeback?

"She's right there," he answered, pointing to his wife, Donna. They were married in November 1980, shortly before Maltbie began to rediscover his game.

There were other reasons, too.

"I worked harder and corrected some of my nocturnal habits. I'm making strides, but once you lose your ability to play, it's hard to recapture it," he said.

One stroke back, at 69, came defending champion Keith Fergus, former tennis pro Frank Conner, Steve Melnyk and Bruce Fleisher. At 70 was an even bigger cluster, led by Tom Kite, Hale Irwin and Johnny Miller. They were joined by Jay Haas, John Cook and Greg Powers.

The $380,000 tournament's host, Jack Nicklaus, was five shots behind on the course he designed and built eight years ago. But he warned: "I will play better. I am playing too well not to. I am still playing aggressive golf."

Nicklaus wasn't the only big name at 74. Also there were Masters champion Craig Stadler, Tom Watson, Jerry Pate and Ray Floyd.

And then there was Gary

Player at 75, Lee Trevino at 78 and Sam Snead at 81 on his 70th birthday.

The field in this seven-year-old tournament is battling for a first prize of $63,000. Portions of the last two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS.

The collection of second-place golfers was an odd one. Conner is a former tennis pro who did not take up golf until he was 24, 12 years ago.

Melnyk broke his right elbow four months ago and some said he would never play again.

Fergus, Conner Following Maltbie

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Roger Maltbie sank a three-foot, par putt on the last hole for a 4-under-par 68, good for a one-shot lead after the first round of Jack Nicklaus' lightning-delayed Memorial Golf Tournament on the 7,116-yard Muirfield Village layout.

Tied for second Thursday, all at 69, were defending champion Keith Fergus, Frank Conner, Steve Melnyk and Bruce Fleisher.

Sheehan, Lopez Each Shoot 67

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Neither Patty Sheehan nor Nancy Lopez has played much golf this month. Lopez skipped the first three tournaments in May while filing for divorce, and Sheehan took a rest to prepare for her most frustrating tournament.

But their differing motives gave them something in common — the lead — after one round of the $125,000 Corning Classic.

Each shot a 5-under-par 67 Thursday to share a one-stroke lead over Kathy Young entering today's second round of the 72-hole Ladies Professional Golf Association event.
