Superpowers agree to negotiate arms

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. officials fanned out today to brief world leaders on the agreement to resume arms control talks with the Soviet Union, an agreement the Americans said was nearly derailed by a Soviet walkout.

No date or place has been set for the negotiations, which the two sides — in a joint statement issued late Tuesday — said would be aimed at "preventing an arms race in space" and "the complete elimination of nuclear arms everywhere."

The agreement came after two days of discussions between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, along with top aides, at the U.S. and Soviet missions in Geneva.

Shultz, before leaving for Washington this morning, made no comment but gave a "thumbs up" sign. Gromyko, who left for Moscow 45 minutes later, read a brief statement in English in which he spoke of the "immense tasks" that lie ahead for the two superpowers.

"There is no need to speak at length that the talks were not simple," said Gromyko, adding that the Soviet Union "will go its part of the road fully aware of the responsibility shared by the two great powers."

President Reagan, interviewed by the Dallas Morning News shortly before the agreement was announced, was quoted as saying, "It sounds very good."

The agreement to reopen nuclear arms negotiations, which the Soviets broke off a year ago, nearly didn't come off, top U.S. officials said, because Gromyko threatened to walk out of the discussions and because of a dispute over Reagan's "Star Wars" research program.

Gromyko "was on the verge of walking out without an agreement," Kenneth Adelman, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said Tuesday night.

If Gromyko had walked out, only a "vague statement" would have emerged from the discussions, Adelman said.

Despite near Soviet walkout

Instead, the superpowers issued a joint statement, saying: "The sides believe that ultimately the forthcoming negotiations... should lead to the complete elimination of nuclear weapons everywhere."

The statement added that the "objective of the negotiations will be to work out effective agreements aimed at preventing an arms race in space and terminating it on Earth, at limiting and reducing nuclear arms, and at strengthening strategic stability."

The principal dispute, according to Adelman and Robert C. McFarlane, the White House national security adviser, was over the "Star Wars" space-weapons program, which the Reagan administration says is defensive in nature.

Gromyko insisted the approach has offensive potential, while Shultz stressed the emphasis is on research. "We agreed to disagree," Adelman said.

In a compromise, "Star Wars" and several controversial Soviet defensive measures, including a Siberian-based radar system, will be taken up in one package by future negotiators.

The agreement set up two other negotiating groups. One will grapple with ways to reverse the buildup of intercontinental missiles, bombers and submarines. The other will try to reduce U.S. and Soviet intermediate-range ground missiles in Europe.

Shultz, who said he entered the talks with considerable uncertainty, planned on his return to Washington to report to Reagan, who scheduled a news conference for this evening.

Shultz and Gromyko met for a total of 14 hours and 7 minutes, in two sessions Monday and two Tuesday.

Policy on extracurricular absences eyed

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Local school board members were urged Tuesday to change their policy of allowing one out-of-class day for each of Hereford High School's extracurricular activities.

Also, the proposed consolidation of La Plata and Stanton Junior High Schools will not be done for the 1985-1986 academic year, assured Bill Townsend, board president. More time is needed, he explained, to evaluate financial overtones and other matters.

At their Dec. 18 meeting, board members listened for more than an hour to public comments about the merger proposal, which would have the La Plata structure contain all seventh and eighth graders. Part of the Stanton building would be used for HHS, which would add ninth graders to its ranks.

Several ask local rules be changed

New state education laws which went into effect last fall include the stipulation a student may miss no more than 10 school days per year due to extracurricular events. The local board decided to regulate the matter by allowing just one excused absence per activity.

Tuesday evening, that policy was criticized by several people. One was Matt Albracht, an HHS senior and three-year member of the golf team. Though thanking the board for letting his sport have two absences, he said the inability for Hereford to host its district round reduces the local team's competitiveness "a great deal."

The home-course advantage would be lost, Albracht explained, since Hereford City Commissioner's recently ruled the local public links would not be used for weekend high school golf tournaments. Lubbock and Amarillo schools were also denied requests to play on their towns' public courses on Saturdays.

Plainview, Albracht claimed, is the only district school able to reserve a Saturday tourney time. "So I guess their golf course is a little more understanding," he said.

Adult commentary was offered by, among others, Keith Hansen. "At 10 (allowed absences) for the year I feel that the students have the opportunity to choose," he said, adding, "I think it's important that we do not penalize our good students by restricting their extracurricular absences."

When asked what other area high schools are doing about the issue, Townsend stated he thought most of them allowed five absences per extracurricular activity. Written details of various Panhandle policies are to be sent to Hereford Independent School District officials, Townsend said.

At the suggestion of Cal Jones, chairman of the board's personnel and policy committee, the issue was tabled until committee members could meet with coaches and other interested staffers. Dr. Harrell Holder, HISD superintendent, later indicated teachers should also be part of the decision process.

In other business Tuesday, Jo Garcia was selected to be the board's representative on the area's juvenile board. R.C. Hoelscher, whose term on the school board ended last spring, had been occupying that post.

Julie Albrecht, a teacher at the high school, was granted a leave of absence for the 1985 spring semester.

A special board meeting was called for 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 17 to consider the extracurricular absences policy and other issues.

'Sage' chamber speaker

Dr. W.C. Newberry, "Sage of Southwest Texas", will be the featured speaker when Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce holds its annual banquet Feb. 7 in the Bull Barn.

Tickets for the big event are now on sale by members of the Hereford Hustlers group, directors, and at the chamber office. Tickets are priced at $10 each.

Special entertainment for the banquet will be provided by Johnny Ray Watson of Austin, a former resident of Hereford and widely-known singer throughout the state.

Dr. W.C. Newberry

In addition, the banquet will feature the presentation of the "Citizen of the Year", the annual Chamber Report, and introduction of new officers and directors.

Dr. Newberry is a professor at Southwest Texas State University where he teaches educational philosophy and adolescent psychology. He is a widely-known banquet and seminar speaker, having made speaking engagements in 42 states to all types of audiences.

Mike Carr, executive vice president of the chamber, reports that Dr. Newberry "combines facts, humor and philosophy for a most entertaining and interesting address."

According to the resume on Dr. Newberry, he has... of success with audiences of all ages, sizes and types... even the community grouch will be happy for a brief time!"

Before accepting a teaching position with Southwest Texas, Dr. Newberry was a public school administrator for three years, and he also coached football and baseball for 10 years.

Born in Gonzales, he earned his bachelor of science degree at Southwest Texas, a master's degree at Stephen F. Austin University, and a doctorate in educational administration from the University of Texas.

Buffalo Lake's board approves assessment

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Members of the Buffalo Lake Water District Board voted Tuesday night to approve a draft environmental assessment prepared by the Bureau of Reclamation and endorsed a plan for repairing Umbarger Dam suggested in the assessment.

The BOR office in Amarillo, which was represented at the meeting by Gene Bass, is accepting public comment on the study through Jan. 18. The project, undertaken at the request of the Fish and Wildlife Service, was primarily to determine if the dam at Buffalo Lake should be removed, repaired or left as is.

The lake has been dry since 1979, when it was determined by the Army Corps of Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation that the dam and spillway were faulty. However, the BOR in its study recommended that the dam be repaired because it is needed as a flood control device.

Board members, meeting in regular monthly session at the refuge office near Umbarger, also discussed the BOR's findings in regards to nutrients in the lake bed. Because sediment from bird droppings and feedlot waste washed downstream by a flood is several feet thick in the bottom of the lake, the BOR found that water quality could prohibit water contact sports at the lake should the dam be repaired and the lake filled.

At least two board members felt a solution would be found to that problem, claiming the important task at hand is to secure the funds from Congress to repair the dam.

Chamber Singer auditions slated

Auditions for the Chamber Singers are scheduled to be held Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Hereford High School choir room.

The group rehearses every Sunday from 8 to 10 p.m. Preparation for the auditions is not necessary. Individuals will be asked to sing a piece from a hymn book.

Anyone who is interested in joining the choir is encouraged by the group to try out. To obtain more information or to make special arrangements for an audition, telephone director Bill Devers after 5 p.m. at 364-4053.

Motorist sparks gasoline blaze

An unidentified driver of a Chevrolet automobile caused a gas station fire Tuesday evening when he pulled away from a tank without removing the hose from his car.

According to the Hereford police report of the incident at Target Gas, 601 E. First, both the car and area around the tank caught fire. Jay Spain, fire marshal, guessed a spark prompted the blaze. He said he thought three to five gallons of gasoline had been spilled in the area.

An explosion of the underground tank was averted, Spain explained, by a built-in system of check valves. Even so, he said, the pump was ruined.

Attempts to find the driver, who reportedly headed east on Highway 60 after the incident, proved unsuccessful.

Meanwhile, police looked into a $400 vandalism which occurred between Sunday morning and Tuesday afternoon at JG Financial Corporation, 441 Ave. B. Several windows were broken, possibly by rocks.

Also investigated were one incident apiece of theft and burglary. There was one non-injury motor vehicle accident.

Ruland receives kidney in Dallas

Kody Ruland, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Ruland of Hereford, received a kidney Monday afternoon during an operation in Dallas.

According to doctors, Ruland is in "guarded" condition. Anyone wishing to send him a note may mail it to Methodist Central Hospital, Room 2320, Two Central, 301 Colorado Blvd., Dallas, TX 75265.

Phillips pleased at union vote

BORGER, Texas (AP) — Phillips Petroleum Co. officials said they were pleased that employees here and in Utah agreed to defer pay increases so the company can regroup after an aborted takeover bid.

Although members of the Local 351 International Union of Operating Engineers in Borger approved the deferment, ballots from the company's 26,000 employees nationwide had not been totalled.

"A number of locations are going to be voting this week at varying times," Phillips spokesman Don Harrison said.

About 500 union employees in Pasadena, Texas, and 100 union employees in Woods Cross, Utah, also voted to delay their raises.

The 2.6 percent salary increases that workers in Borger agreed to postpone were to take effect Tuesday.

Union members stipulated in the balloting, which occurred Monday night and Tuesday, that Phillips must outline the new stock plan by March 31.

HL&P given $168 million hike

AUSTIN (AP) — After a close look at the South-Texas Nuclear Project, the Public Utility Commission decided Houston Lighting & Power Co. is due a rate hike of $168 million — but not a penny for STNP construction costs.

"The obvious cloud that hangs over this case is the South Texas Nuclear Project," Commissioner Dennis Thomas said at Tuesday's meeting.

The bottom line for HL&P's 1.3 million customers is a hike of about 2.6 percent. The company wanted a $554 million package that carried a 10 percent rate jump. PUC examiners had recommended a $271 million increase.

In addition to barring HL&P from passing STNP construction costs to consumers, the commission ordered a special staff inquiry into the "economic viability" of STNP's unit two.

The second unit is scheduled for completion in 1989, two years after the first-unit is to be ready.

HL&P's overall request included $617.5 million in construction costs at the overdue and over-budget STNP near Bay City.

Unemployment at 7.2 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment edged up to 7.2 percent of the civilian work force in December as a surge in Americans looking for work surpassed the creation of about 340,000 new jobs during the month, the government reported today.

The number of Americans actually holding jobs in December rose to a record 106.3 million, but the total of unemployed increased to 8.2 million as the labor force expanded by 390,000, the Labor Department report said.

Meanwhile, the number of "discouraged workers," those without jobs but not counted as unemployed because they've given up looking, increased to 1.3 million from the September level of 1.2 million. Those quarterly figures have been falling for the last two years, since reaching a recession high of 1.8 million at the end of 1982.

Since then, some 7.1 million jobs have been created. In 1984 alone, the economic expansion produced 3.2 million new jobs.

A yearend slowdown in U.S. economic growth had led many economists to expect that the jobless rate would either rise a bit or remain flat in December. But widespread predictions of at least somewhat faster growth early in this new year would seem to indicate the unemployment increase will be short-lived.

Several non-taxpayers found

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two hundred ninety-nine couples and individuals with incomes over $200,000 used deductions and tax credits to avoid paying a penny of federal income tax in 1982.

Their income totaled $149 million.

The number of untaxed upper-income Americans was down slightly from the 304 who escaped the tax net in 1981 but considerably higher than the 114 recorded by the Internal Revenue Service in 1979.

However, since the number of returns with incomes over $200,000 a year more than doubled from 1979 to 1982, the IRS says, "a high-income return was 55 percent more likely to be non-taxable in 1982 than it was in 1979."

In 1979, about 9 of every 10,000 people above the $200,000 level paid no tax; by 1982 the portion had grown to more than 14 per 10,000.

The IRS is required by Congress to report annually on the tax status of Americans with incomes above $200,000. The report is based on the unaudited returns filed by these people, and the IRS declared that almost any change caused by an audit would add the 299 couples and individuals to the roll of taxpayers.

Israel attacks Palestinian base

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli warplanes attacked a Palestinian guerrilla base in the Syrian-controlled Bekaa valley of eastern Lebanon today, the Israeli military command announced.

The announcement said that the planes scored accurate hits on a command post near the town of al-Marj, 25 miles east of Beirut near the front line between Israeli and Syrian forces.

According to the announcement, the base was used as a staging area for launching attacks against Israeli troops. An Israeli army spokesman said the command post belonged to the small, Syrian-backed Palestinian group known as the Popular Struggle Front.

The spokesman said the Marxist group headed by Dr. Samir Ghosbi had about 600 fighters and worked in close coordination with other Syrian-supported groups such as Saiga and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command headed by Ahmed Jibril.

Fighting spotted outside Ampil

ARANYPRATHET, Thailand (AP) — Vietnamese troops and Cambodian guerrillas skirmished today outside Ampil camp in Cambodia, which was abandoned Tuesday by the anti-communist resistance fighters, Red Cross officials and Thai army officers said.

Between the sporadic clashes along the Thai-Cambodia border, guerrillas of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front were regrouping in preparation for further combat, the Thai officers said.

Some 5,000 of the fighters were overpowered by an artillery and tank-powered Vietnamese assault launched on their headquarters camp Monday.

The resistance leaders decided to withdraw Tuesday in the hope of keeping their force intact to fight again. They abandoned the small portion of the camp they had held onto through two days of fighting, and thousands of rebels scrambled aboard military trucks bearing Thai markings to be taken to undisclosed locations.

Six of the eight Khmer People's National Liberation Front camps inside Cambodia have been overrun during the dry season offensive that Vietnamese forces began in mid-November.

Rather, Bryant there

Networks play up arms talks

NEW YORK (AP) — They didn't unlock any secrets, but by playing foreign correspondent for two days, the networks' top anchormen brought wider attention to the arms control talks in Geneva than they otherwise would have received.

Sending "Today" show host Bryant Gumbel to Geneva "means we made a major commitment to cover the story. If Bryant doesn't go, we don't devote as much time to it," said Steve Friedman, executive producer of the NBC program.

On Monday night, the "CBS Evening News" devoted nearly 19 minutes of its 2 1/2-minute broadcast to the talks. Anchor Dan Rather did a stand-up newscast outdoors in freezing downtown Geneva, Switzerland.

"His (Rather's) being here at a story like this, where nuance and subtlety are a big part of the story, is a tremendous help," "Evening News" executive producer Lane Venardos said Tuesday by telephone from Geneva. "Being here allowed us to do more and present things a little clearer and more thoughtfully."

Venardos said planning for Monday's broadcast began two weeks ago. There were pieces on the reactions of American and Soviet citizens and a report explaining the "Star Wars" defense system with graphics that resembled a video arcade shooting gallery.

That broadcast, Venardos said, was "not hype" and should blunt criticism by some, including former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, that the full-force TV presence would burden the negotiations with unrealistic expectations.

Friedman estimated that NBC, CBS and ABC all spent about $500,000 to send a small army of reporters, producers and technicians to the two-day meetings between U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz, who appeared on all three networks' evening newscasts Tuesday, and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The most visible members of the contingents were the anchors: Rather, Tom Brokaw of the "NBC Nightly News," Peter Jennings of ABC's "World News Tonight," Gumbel and David Hartman and Steve Bell of ABC's "Good Morning America."

It was an unusual sight. Viewers, used to seeing their dinnertime anchors in the cozy confines of New York studios, saw them buttoned up in trenchcoats and topcoats, steam coming from their mouths, as they presented their newscasts from the great outdoors.

"This is Dan Rather reporting from frigid Geneva," Rather said as he signed off Monday. It was so cold that city fathers refused to turn on a famous fountain TV news crews had hoped to use as a backdrop.

Rather, fresh from a Caribbean vacation, was buttressed against the sub-zero wind-chill readings by hot soup and, since his luggage had been lost, a freshly bought trenchcoat. Between takes, he scurried to a nearby car that had its heater going full blast.

On Monday night, Jennings, surrounded by portable propane heaters, anchored "World News Tonight" from a hotel balcony overlooking Lake Geneva. Tuesday night, the broadcast was indoors at the briefing center where Shultz had made his announcement that the two sides had agreed on more specific talks in the future.

Rather and Brokaw, as well as commentators Bill Moyers of CBS and John Chancellor of NBC, stayed outdoors.

The "Today" show never made it outside. "We sent heaters, but then they decided on the scene, 'We're going inside,'" said Friedman.

Gloomy predictions made

State lawmakers told about problems

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislators gathered for a second day today after hearing gloomy predictions about the state government's money woes and a list of other key issues that will command their attention this year.

House Speaker Gib Lewis urged lawmakers to avoid raising taxes, while Sen. Ray Farabee, new president pro tem of the Senate, cautioned that the state faces tough choices.

"We will do with what we have, or we will do without," Lewis vowed as the 69th Legislature opened its 1985 session shortly after noon Tuesday.

"Texas is at a crossroads, and we must decide whether to continue or terminate programs created over the past 100 years," added Farabee, D-Wichita Falls.

Lewis, a Fort Worth Democrat first elected to the House in 1971, noted that state Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated that the $36.6 billion in state revenue expected for the 1986-87 biennium will fall $1 billion short of what is needed to pay for state government services at 1985 levels.

"It is my intention, with your help, to (adjourn) this session with an appropriations bill" on the governor's desk that is within the available revenues of this state," he told colleagues.

"We will have to demonstrate beyond a doubt the truth of the statement that biggest is not always best and this goes double for state government and state spending," Lewis said.

Declining oil prices, the national economic recession, disastrous weather and financial difficulties in Mexico have combined to create trouble for Texas, Lewis said.

While increasing taxes would make up the difference, Lewis cautioned lawmakers that their responsibility to the public should be their overriding concern.

"It is now our turn to keep faith with the people of this state," he said. "We will have to make difficult decisions across the board to trim state spending whenever and wherever possible."

In a challenge to federal judges who have imposed their wills on the Texas prison and mental health systems, Lewis also voiced the belief that the state should contest the court rulings in the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I am tired of trying to make reasonable deals with unreasonable people," he declared. "I am not ready to abdicate ... to any judge until Texas has pursued its right to the highest courts in this land."

Both houses organized for business during brief sessions Tuesday.

The Senate chose Farabee, a 10-year veteran, to be assistant presiding officer. Senators got their committee assignments from Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby. The 31-member upper chamber also invited new Chief Justice John Hill of the Texas Supreme Court to address a joint legislative session later this month.

In the House, Lewis is the only lawmaker nominated for speaker. He said he probably would announce committee appointments next week.

In his acceptance speech, Lewis said the Legislature will be forced to address many issues besides the budget in a session he described as "one of its most difficult" in recent years.

A statewide water use plan. Following a year of significant drought across the state, Lewis said, legislation is needed to deal with development and water conservation. "If Texas is to survive one of its greatest crises of all time, we must enact a statewide water plan that will meet the needs of generations to come," he said.

Crime. The speaker said he will push for a package of bills designed to beef up crime-fighting efforts. This includes continuing authority for wiretaps in felony narcotics investigations; keeping a state law requiring that a copy of prescriptions for some dangerous drugs be given to the state Department of Public Safety; applying the death penalty to people committing more than one murder, and allowing juries to be told the effects of parole when deciding punishment for those convicted of crimes.

Health care. "We will be asked to undertake new advances in the constant battle to deliver better health care to our citizens, especially those who lack adequate means to always provide for themselves," Lewis said. "We must never lose sight of the fact that compassion is an equal responsibility of government."

The 150-member House that assembled Tuesday included 30 freshmen and a total of 52 Republicans, the most in recent times. The Senate included two new members.

Other officials said they believe Lewis means his "no new taxes" pledge.

"I think the speaker is committed to no tax increase and living within whatever revenue estimate Bob (Bullock) sends us," said Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Dick Merkel, Lewis' press secretary, said he thought the no-tax vow was one reason fewer bills were introduced in advance of the session this time than in past years.

"One of the reasons we've seen so few pre-filed bills is that the word has pretty well gotten out that if it's going to cost money, don't do it," Merkel said.

You can save electricity or gas by cooking many dishes in the oven at the same time instead of cooking them separately. If recipes call for different temperatures, say 325, 350 and 375 degrees, pick the middle temperature of 350 to cook all three dishes. Remove each dish as it's done.

LAKE

Charles Johnson issued the reminder that if the board is to call for a tax election it must be done at the February meeting. The board is considering asking for a minimal tax rate from Deaf Smith, Randall and Potter Counties to fund administrative costs and possibly a fulltime employee.

The water board charter calls for a manager who would probably maintain an office at the lake. Now, activities at the lake are carried out by employees of the Fish and Wildlife Service, which has control of the area as a National Wildlife Refuge.

Refuge Manager Rodney Krey told board members Tuesday night that 10,000 to 20,000 ducks and 5,000 geese are now wintering on the lake. Water has been impounded in the lower end of the lake bed since a small dam was reconstructed there last summer.

Known as Stewart Dike, the dam has been the subject of controversy between board members and the FWS. Several board members had expressed concern that the dam, built on Tierra Blanca Creek, was not properly registered with the Texas Department of Water Resources. Krey announced at the December meeting that the FWS has applied for a permit amendment, and the controversy seems to have been settled.

Several board members were reminded that they will be up for reelection in April. So far none have announced their intentions to file for reelection.

All 11 members were present for the meeting, which lasted one hour and 15 minutes.

At St. Thomas Episcopal Church

Public invited to attend ceremonies

Father Charles R. Threewit, Vicar of St. Thomas Episcopal Church of Hereford, cordially invites the public to attend institution ceremonies for the new Rector. The event will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday at the church with Bishop Sam Hulse of Lubbock scheduled to speak.

According to the notes of the Rev. Walter Scott, who was resident in Plainview, he first visited Hereford in 1942 or 1943 and found only "Mrs. Bob Pipkin and her brother Jim" as Episcopalians. After other Episcopalians had moved into the area, Bishop George Quarterman was contacted in Amarillo and he requested that Fr. Scott again visit Hereford.

As the result of that visit, Bishop Quarterman was contacted in Amarillo and he requested that Fr. Scott again visit Hereford.

As the result of that visit, Bishop Quarterman and Fr. Scott conducted the first Episcopal worship in Hereford on Sunday, Oct. 5, 1947, in the court room of the County Court House. The service was evening prayer conducted by Fr. Scott; the Bishop preached. Following the service, supper was served in the home of Mrs. Ted Houston (now Mrs. Frances Hennen) who is still an active member of St. Thomas.

On April 12, 1948, 16 adult members of the congregation petitioned Bishop Quarterman for the organization of a Mission Church to be known as the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle. (It is reported that the name "St. Thomas" was chosen because of a statement by one of the organizers that "I doubt that our church will ever be very large.") Of the 16 members, five are still in Hereford and active members of St. Thomas.

On April 18, 1948, the first Confirmations from St. Thomas were presented to the Bishop at St. Mark's, Plainview, for Confirmation. Of the class of two, one-Curtis Traweck still resides near Hereford and is an active Communicant. On April 24, 1948, Bishop Quarterman installed Joe H. Smith and B.H. "Doc" Kirby as St. Thomas' first Lay Readers. On the same date, three additional Confirmations were presented to the Bishop. Twenty-five persons were in attendance.

Little Brown Church

During the next few months, a church building was moved from Spur and installed at Lee Street and 25 Mile Avenue. The first service in the new church was the Palm Sunday, 1949, Holy Communion, celebrated by Bishop Quarterman. In 1956, 25 Mile Avenue was widened and the church had to be moved. Property was purchased at 601 West

Park and the first phase of construction was carried out, consisting of the Parish Hall, a small Nave with a temporary east wall, and the present Vestibule which was originally the Vicar's office. The Dedication was on August 5, 1956 and was attended by 167 persons. The "Little Brown Church" was moved to Brownfield where it is still in use at the Church of the Good Shepherd.

In 1966 the building was expanded by the addition of a classroom wing and the present office space. The existing Narthex was closed and converted to the Baptistry, and the then Vicar's office was converted to the current Vestibule. At the Congregational meeting in January 1981, the congregation voted unanimously to complete the building. The same architect, Sanford Whitaker, who handled the previous work was engaged and by September a design concept had been chosen and a Building Fund Drive was organized. In one Sunday afternoon sufficient funds to proceed were given in cash or pledges.

The architect's drawings were completed and a construction contract was let in June, 1982 for the completion of the Nave and Chancel and the addition of a wing to house the Sacristy and Choir room. The construction was completed in December, 1982 with the first service being the Christ Mass.

The dedication of the completed Nave was on Palm Sunday, 1982 which was the 34th anniversary of the Dedication of the "Little Brown Church." Following completion of the Nave, the Women of St. Thomas paid for, from funds earned in their Annual Christmas Bazaar, the complete renovation of the kitchen. This is in the interest of furthering the growth and outreach capability of such events as the annual Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper at which, in 1983, some 500 persons were served.

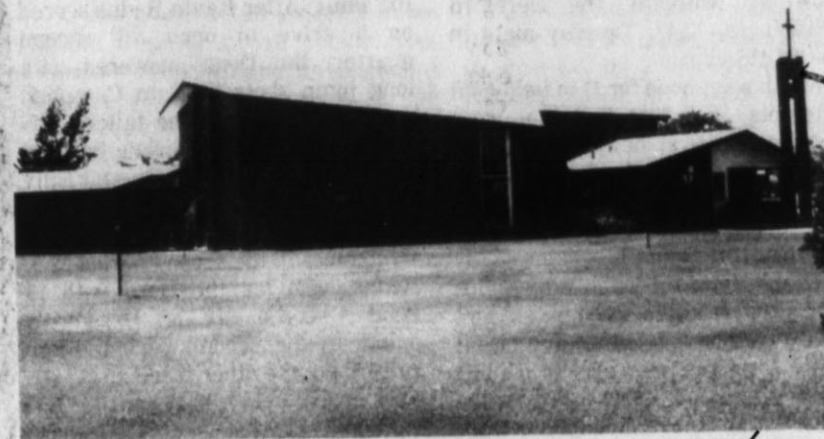

St. Thomas has had eight Vicars: The Rev. Fathers Walter R. Scott, September 1947 to October 1948; Henry J. Seaman, July 1949 to December 1952; Lester L. Jones, January 1955 to June 1957; Joel C. Treadwell, October 1958 to December 1965; Staley P. Hackley, January 1966 to June 1967; Fred J. Howard, January 1968 to October 1971; W.A. Lang, Jr., February 1972 to June 1978; and Charles R. Threewit, January 1979 to November 3, 1984.

On Nov. 3, 1984 at Diocesan Council in San Angelo, St. Thomas became the Parish of St. Thomas the Apostle. On Nov. 11, the newly-designated Vestry of St. Thomas called Fr. Threewit to be the first Rector of St. Thomas Parish. He will be Instituted at the celebration of a New Ministry presided over by Bishop Hulse on Jan. 10, 1985.

Since 1979, St. Thomas has been experiencing a time of renewal and growth. Her people are recommitting themselves to Jesus Christ and His work, which is to "Go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the Name of the Father and of the Son of the Holy Spirit." Her members have increased by 150 percent.

An exciting outreach is the teaching of English, for which a grant of $5,000 was received from the United Thank Offering, an agency of the National Organization of Episcopal Church Women.

Fr. Threewit was born and reared at Pritchett, Colo. After a stint in the US Navy, during which he met and married his lovely wife Vera in Louisbourg, Nova Scotia, he earned the degree of Petroleum Engineer at the Colorado School of Mines. At the age of 43, he entered the Episcopal Theological Seminary of the Southwest in Austin, where he earned the Master of Divinity.

After being ordained in the Diocese of San Joaquin in California and three years of service there, he was called to St. Thomas. He and Vera have two children, both of whom remain in California. Fr. Threewit says that he has always wanted to return to the high plains, and he is delighted that his return brought him to Hereford, "one of the finest places I can imagine to live."

Pottery classes offered by HISD

The Hereford Independent School District's Community Education program will offer a beginning pottery class. The class will meet from 7-10 p.m. on Monday evenings beginning Jan. 14 and will conclude April 29.

Interested persons may preregister by contacting Kenneth Helms at 364-5112.

The individually paced program will feature local art instructor Gayla Kimball. The class size will be limited to the first 25 participants and a fee of $30 will be required for the 45 hour program. Additional charges will consist of individual pottery materials necessary for project completion. These supplies will be made available for purchase by Ms. Kimball.

The class will consist of hand-building and wheel techniques, as well as glazing techniques. Each original creation will involve creative and mental growth in the fundamentals of art.

Winning The Baseline

Darla Alford moves past a Palo Duro defender enroute to the basket Tuesday night in Amarillo. Alford led Hereford with 14 points, as the Whitefaces completed the first half of district play on a winning note, 46-42.

For Nicklaus

Adjustments hoped good

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, who was "extremely disappointed in the way I played the majors" last season, has made some adjustments to his schedule for the 1985 season.

"I was terrible in the majors," Nicklaus said before opening his 1985 campaign today in the first round of the Bob Hope Classic, the kickoff event for the 10-month PGA Tour.

Nicklaus, who has built his golfing life and matchless career around a domination of the game's Big Four events, did not finish higher than 18th in the Masters, U.S. or British Opens and the PGA. He has won those four titles a record 17 times.

"I saw what happened in '84," said Nicklaus, who measures the success of his seasons by his performance in golf's major events.

"I know how well I played, and I played well all year except in the majors," said Nicklaus, who will be 45 later this month.

"I'm going to take a different approach to the majors this year," he said. Last season, he said, in the week prior to major events he allowed "other things, other activities, other commitments," to infringe on his tournament preparations.

Nicklaus said he would play "about 16 tournaments this year" but conceded he does "not like to play the first week in January. I'm just doing it for Bob. He's been very good about playing in the Memorial," Nicklaus' tournament in Ohio.

He said he had recovered fully from the orthoscopic surgery on his knee, which hampered him in the Skins Game, in which he won $240,000.

Whiteface girls win, 46-42

Hereford rallies past Palo Duro

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

AMARILLO — After getting off to a slow start, the Hereford Whitefaces remained patient on offense Tuesday night and beat the Palo Duro Dons before a three-quarters-full PDHS gym.

The Whitefaces fell behind the Dons 8-2 with just more than six minutes to play in the first quarter and also trailed at halftime. However, Hereford pulled ahead at the end of the third period and opened a 13-point advantage in the fourth quarter and held on for a 46-42 win.

Hereford's victory moves the Whitefaces into a tie for third place in league standings with the Dons and Amarillo at 5-3. Overall, the Herd stands at 6-8 while the Dons are 9-6.

"It was a big win over a team that was considered to be a district contender," Hereford coach Larry Sowers said after the game. "They (the Dons) didn't play as well as I've seen them play this year, and we maybe didn't play that great. But we did what we had to do to win."

Darla Alford paced Hereford with 14 points. It was Alford who picked up the slack in the Herd's offensive output at the beginning of the game, Sowers said.

"Darla kept us in the game with her shooting," he said. "Lori (Niblett) did a good job for us tonight, especially in the second half. And we hit some free throws when we needed to."

The Whitefaces were eight of 14 from the line for a 57.1 percentage. Sowers said that although the figure might not look too impressive, his team hit some of the charity tosses at critical times.

Niblett finished with 10 points.

When Palo Duro had jumped to an 8-2 lead and extended that margin to 10-3, Hereford began clawing its way back over the next 3:23. Stacie High hit two free shots to make the score 10-5, and Shelly Edwards connected on the front end of a 1-and-1 to pull the Herd to within four. Edwards then canned a 14-foot jumper, and Kim Williams hit a 16-footer to knot the score at 10.

The teams traded buckets before the period ended in a 12-12 tie.

The Dons, who shot 34.5 percent from the floor, opened a 24-21 halftime lead, thanks in part to the final 1:38 of the second quarter. Following two Hereford turnovers, Palo Duro got easy buckets from Tia Williams and Stephanie Westmoreland on layups. Edwards hit a shot for Hereford with 20 seconds left to pull her team within three.

After Hereford grabbed the lead in the third quarter, the scene appeared as if the Whitefaces would make the game a clinic in the fourth period.

Impressive first half sends Dons by Herd

By DENNIS BALL

AMARILLO — Sparked by a 15-point performance from Gerry Smith, the Palo Duro Dons moved into a tie for second place in District 3-5A by whipping the Hereford Whitefaces, 73-47, Tuesday night in the PDHS gym.

Smith was seven for 11 in field-goal attempts, including five that were good in the first half, as the Dons jumped to a quick lead from which the Whitefaces were never able to recover.

"They (the Dons) just came ready to play," Hereford coach Mike Fields said after the game, "and we weren't ready to. I'm not taking any credit away from them — they're a good team — but we didn't look like the same team (that played Palo Duro earlier this season)."

The game marked the second win in as many tries for Palo Duro over the Whitefaces. In the second round of the Palo Duro Tournament, the Dons took a close game from the Whitefaces.

Overall, Palo Duro sports a 13-6 record. In district play, the Dons stand at 5-1. Hereford fell to 7-10 overall and 1-5 in district.

"The first time we played Hereford, no one had pressed us before them," Palo Duro coach Ed Smith said. "It bothered us then, but we handled it this time."

"We prepared for everything this time we thought Hereford might throw at us. We were ready for them."

Palo Duro took a 4-0 lead when Eugene Sims finally converted a third offensive board for the Dons. The Dons extended a four-point lead later in the period following some more offensive rebounding and a dunk shot.

Palo Duro, which ran most of the night, got points from Harry Bowie and Glen Hayes when they trailed layup attempts.

The Dons took a 20-8 halftime lead when Ronnie Stiger hit a short jumper at the buzzer.

The second quarter was more of the same. After Kevin Redus scored on a drive to open the second quarter, the Dons answered with long jump shots by Sam Campbell and Mark Bowser. The taller Dons got buckets from the inside by Ronnie Stiger, Ricky Delgado and Billy Wells.

Total, the Dons outscored the Whitefaces in the second period 22-9. Redus, who led the Herd with 18 points, scored six of Hereford's points in the second period. Blair Rogers got the other three.

Palo Duro held a 42-17 halftime advantage.

Fields said his team showed some character by not giving up in the second half, trailing by 25.

"Our guys always try," he said. "The Monterey game (an 82-46 loss for Hereford on Saturday) might have hurt our confidence a little, I don't know."

"We were a little intimidated during the game, too."

Palo Duro used its height and jumping ability to block numerous Hereford field-goal attempts.

Due in part to those blocked shots by Palo Duro, Hereford's shooting percentage from the field was only 31.3, 16 of 51. On the other side of the

(See BOYS, Page 5A)

Hereford led 45-32 with 2:57 to go and seemingly only had to coast the rest of the way.

Not the case, however. Westmoreland hit a 15-footer from the side at 2:47 to make the score 45-34. Then Sheila Thrash scored on a 10-foot shot. Thrash again made good following an offensive rebound. Before the Herd could get a bucket, the score was 45-38.

With 1:38 remaining, High hit the front end of a 1-and-1 for Hereford to pull eight ahead, but Palo Duro wouldn't give up. Thrash hit a 20-foot jumper to make the score 46-40, and Patricia Hood converted a rebound into two points for the final score.

Katrina Hardy led Palo Duro scorers with 13 points, and Thrash had 12. Alford and Niblett were the only players in double figures for the Whitefaces, who shot 44.2 percent from the field (19 of 43).

Tuesday's game marked the end of the first half of district play. Hereford hosts Tascosa Friday at 6 p.m.

NBA roundup

Cavs make it seven of 11 wins

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The Cleveland Cavaliers might not be quite the pushovers everyone thought they were.

The Cavs, after a 2-19 start in this National Basketball Association season, have won seven of their last 11 games, including a 107-101 decision Tuesday night over the New Jersey Nets.

"I think we're playing real hard," Coach George Karl said. "We can make changes in the game defensively better than we had been."

One of the changes Karl has made is to bring veteran guard World B. Free off the bench. In the latest victory, Cleveland's third straight, that strategy paid off as Free scored 27 points, including three three-point goals that helped defuse a Nets rally.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Denver 126, Los Angeles Lakers 124; Dallas 108, Portland 102; Washington 99, Milwaukee 95; Houston 112, Kansas City 110 and San Antonio 139, Golden State 94.

Nuggets 126, Lakers 124

Denver ended Los Angeles' nine-game winning streak behind Alex English's 41 points and 11 rebounds.

English scored 11 points in the fourth period to help the Nuggets offset the performance of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who led the Lakers with 35 points, 12 rebounds and six blocked shots.

Spurs 139, Warriors 94

Jahny Moore had 26 points, 13 assists, 11 rebounds and nine steals against Golden State to pace San Antonio to its largest victory margin ever.

Artis Gilmore added 23 points,

Alvin Robertson 21 and George Gervin 20 for the Spurs, who led 39-20 after the first quarter with the help of 10-0 and 9-0 streaks.

The Spurs' previous record margin was a 153-111 triumph over Milwaukee in 1978.

Bullets 99, Bucks 95

Washington needed final-minute baskets from Gus Williams and Greg Ballard to keep Milwaukee from erasing a 17-point deficit down the stretch.

The Bullets led 89-72 with 5:34 remaining, but the Bucks got eight points from Paul Pressey during a 19-4 spurt that trimmed Washington's edge to 93-91 with 1:08 left.

Ballard led the Bullets with 20 points, while Sidney Moncrief had 34 for Milwaukee.

Rockets 112, Kings 110

First-place Houston stayed a game ahead of Denver in the Midwest Division as Akeem Olajuwon scored 24 points, five of them in the final minutes.

Olajuwon hit two field goals and a free throw, then made a steal that led to a basket by Robert Reid as the Rockets pulled away from a 103-103 tie to a 112-107 Houston lead.

Larry Drew hit a three-point shot to cut Kansas City's deficit to two and he sank another as time ran out, but an official ruled he stepped out of bounds as he shot.

Eddie Johnson scored 26 points to lead the Kings.

Mavericks 108, Blazers 102

Dale Ellis and Rolando Blackman led a 17-2 fourth-quarter spurt that lifted Dallas over Portland.

High Kick

The Palo Duro defender trailing Sammy Suarez (32) on this play should keep his distance to avoid being kicked. The action occurred during third-quarter action of the ball game Tuesday night. The Dons took the game from the Whitefaces, 73-47.

court, Palo Duro shot an even 50 percent, 34 of 68.

In addition to Redus' output, Bobby Baker scored six points for Hereford. Stiger and Hayes joined Smith in double figures for Palo Duro. Stiger scored 14 and Hayes scored 10.

In the junior varsity game, Palo Duro downed Hereford 52-47.

Hereford is to be in action next Friday at 7:45 p.m. The Whitefaces meet Tascosa in the HHS gym.

"The doctor wanted to see me to check on it. I told him I'd been skiing for five days and was playing five sets of tennis a day. That seemed to convince him," said Nicklaus, who heads the 128-man field of pros assembled for this five-day, 90-hole event.

Other leading figures include Arnold Palmer, a five-time winner of this title; defending champion John Mahaffey, a two-time winner here; and former champions Johnny Miller and Craig Stadler.

Hogeboom says he'll remain

DALLAS (AP) — After a talk with head coach Tom Landry, Dallas Cowboys quarterback Gary Hogeboom said he wants to remain with the club even if it means competing with Danny White for the starting job again as in 1984.

On several occasions last year, Hogeboom had said he wanted to be traded if the Cowboys weren't going to give him the first-team role.

Landry had also indicated that, rather than continue the quarterback controversy, he would attempt to deal either White or Hogeboom during the off season. But several days ago, Landry said he planned to sit down with both of his quarterbacks and hadn't decided whether to trade either or, if so, which one.

"We had a real good talk," Hogeboom told the Dallas Morning News Tuesday.

Hogeboom said the coach told him that everything depends on what happens in the off-season.

"He said Danny and I both could be here," Hogeboom said. "If that happens, we will just have to fight for the job."

Landry said he met with Hogeboom for 15 minutes Monday. He said he wants to meet with White, too, before he leaves next week for his Super Bowl assignment with ABC.

"At this point, I don't have any intention of trading either one," Landry said. "But I can't say I won't. If I can help the team enough, I would trade most anybody."

Landry also said that he has had no inquiries about a trade involving White, whose market value is higher than Hogeboom's.

"There have been no calls from other teams," Landry said, but he added that he had been "out of pocket" since Christmas.

Landry said he will pick a starting quarterback next season and stick with him. This season, Hogeboom started the first eight games and two others. White started six, including the last four.

"If he's going to open it up to the best player, that's all I can ask for," Hogeboom said. "And that's all Danny can ask for."

Divorced fathers also get bum rap

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you printed a letter from a girl in Philadelphia whose divorced father ignored her. Since you are notorious for publishing only the woman's point of view, I doubt that I will see this letter in the paper.

My wife left me when "Laurie" was 10. I raised her and her brother with no help from their mother. I gave them a great deal of love and affection, did a lot of housekeeping, cooking, laundry, drove the kids to piano lessons, ballet, Boy Scouts, the dentist, etc. Their mother never bothered to spend a Thanksgiving or Christmas with them.

When Laurie turned 16, her mom said she'd take her if I would agree to pay child support. A year and a half later, after I had given my wife thousands of dollars, she moved to a new condominium and Laurie moved into her own apartment. The court ordered me to continue support payments to my ex-wife until Laurie graduated from high school.

It has been several months since I have seen Laurie. There are no loving letters or loving phone calls. I am treated like a wallet. I hear from her only when she wants money.

Please don't tell me, "Someday your daughter will realize how good you were to her and she'll come around." I'm not wealthy enough to last that long.

I know you can't help me and I really don't need any advice. The reason I am writing is to let you know that divorced fathers are not all bums who run out on their kids. There are plenty like me who ask for and get custody. Also, the mothers of these kids don't always behave like saints. Some of them can be awfully selfish and manipulative. Just sign me—The Other Side Of The Story In Long Island

DEAR L.K.: Your side of the story deserves to be heard and I have done my best to be even-handed regarding such matters. Many divorced fathers do indeed get lousy deals. Welcome to the club.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Four years ago I graduated from a prestigious law school with high hopes of a promising career. I clerked for one of the top firms in New York with an associateship assured as soon as I passed the bar.

My problem is that I have been unable to pass the bar. My term as a clerk expired several months ago and the firm asked me to resign. I took a job as a toll collector on the New Jersey turnpike because it was all I could get. My boyfriend, a practicing attorney, has broken our engagement. Most of my friends have dropped me. I rarely go out.

After seven years of higher education, I questioned the meaning of it all. I have considered suicide because I feel like such a failure. Please point me in a direction that will give me the will to live. At this moment all I can see ahead is misery and despair.—Y.Z.X.

DEAR Y.Z.X.: Contact your favorite law professor and ask him to instruct you on how to pass the bar. Do exactly as he says and stick with it until you make the grade. Some lawyers flunked those exams three or four times before they finally made it. I urge you to get some tutoring and hang in there until you succeed. Persistence is the name of the game.

Going to a wedding? Giving one? Or standing up in one? Even if you're already married Ann Landers' "New Bride's Guide" will answer questions about today's weddings. Auditions set for local group Chamber Singers auditions will be Sunday at 3 p.m. in the high school choir room.

Preparation for the auditions is not necessary as each participant will be asked to sing a hymn from a hymnal. The Chamber Singers rehearse every Sunday from 8 to 10 p.m.

All interested individuals are encouraged to try out. To make special arrangements or for more information, contact Bill Devers after 5 p.m. at 364-4053.

Eggs keep well

DEAR POLLY — I would like to settle this once and for all. Every time I tell someone that eggs should be stored on the top shelf of the refrigerator, I am asked why. And why are the egg pockets in the door?

DEAR DANIEL — There's really no need to store your eggs on the top shelf of the refrigerator. Anyplace in the refrigerator is fine. They need not be stored in the coldest area, but the average range of temperatures within the main box of an ordinary refrigerator is perfectly fine for the storage of eggs.

The only reason the egg pockets are in the doors of most refrigerators is that this is a convenient place to put them. Storage for a dozen eggs fits neatly in the door and the slightly warmer temperatures of the door area are not harmful to eggs as they might be to more spoilable items, such as meat. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Car-pooling is not practical for my job, so I am not able to better my gas mileage by driving less. I do make personal grocery store stops to and from work however, and I've also stopped running the car air conditioner except for really long trips on very hot days. I've not done an actual mileage count, but I know I am saving gas with these small measures. I'm driving almost as much as I always have, but I find I can go for as long as three days more before I need to refill the gas tank! — M.S.

DEAR POLLY — To paint window sash and molding without getting paint on the glass, try this: Cut strips of newspaper about three inches wide. Dip them in water and place them on the glass next to the frame. The water will make the paper adhere to the glass. Paint around the frame with a small brush. When the paper dries, it will loosen and come off, and there will be no paint streaks to clean from the glass. No need to buy masking tape to keep paint off the glass. — M.E.B.

Overindulge over the holidays? Take off that excess weight while enjoying delicious foods such as reduced calorie sausage, low-cal pizzas and diet shakes. DR. LAMB

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Stress affects blood pressure

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 62-year-old female. About 10 years ago I started to have high blood pressure. I thought it was caused by some personal problems. I was put on Hydro-Diuril and have never felt good since taking it. If I take it every day, I can hardly do anything, since I am so tired and drained of everything, and my feet and legs cramp.

Therefore, I take one every other day, which helps, but it seems that my body is not functioning properly. I've had my potassium checked and it is OK.

When I am on the medication, my blood pressure is 120 over 80 or 130 over 80. Otherwise, it is 140 over 90, which my doctor says is all right. If I get upset for any reason, it goes higher.

I've told my doctor all of this, but he doesn't seem to want to change anything. Is there any other medicine I could try that might work better? I'm 5 feet 4 and weigh 118. I've never been too heavy.

DEAR READER — It sounds as if you do not have a severe problem, but statistics show that you would be better off if your blood pressure were controlled. Although you are not overweight, you might benefit by losing any extra fat you might have. A regular exercise program, such as walking, could help you to lose weight and improve your overall health.

You seem to be unusually sensitive to the diuretic action of Hydro-Diuril. If you are eliminating too much sodium, it will cause your legs to cramp. Both sodium and potassium are important in that regard. If you are low in either, you will feel tired.

Since your blood pressure seems to increase under stress, you should ask for one of the beta-blocker medicines, which neutralize adrenaline. Stress stimulates the release of adrenaline, which causes your blood pressure to rise. Ask your doctor about switching you to a low dose of Inderal or some other beta-blocker medication in place of a diuretic. It is worth a try.

I'm sending you The Health Letter 15-8, Your Vital Blood Pressure, to give you more information. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

4 Around the County

By SUSAN RANEY
County Extension Agent

From Jan. 22-26 Hereford will come alive to the sounds of electric clippers trimming steers, huge blow dryers drying lambs wool and kids scrubbing their show animals clean. With the excitement of the 1985 Hereford Young Farmer's Stock Show, also comes the Fourth Annual Lady's Lead-Line Show as well.
This fairly new contest will highlight the Stock Show just before the big livestock sale Saturday, Jan. 26 at 11 a.m. It is sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Extension Service and is open to any young lady between the ages of eight and 19, who is either a 4-H, FFA or FHA member in any one of the four counties participating in the Stock Show (Castro, Deaf Smith, Oldham or Parmer).
Lady's Lead-Line is designed to promote the use of wool in sewing, to combine the areas of home economics and agriculture into one contest and to present a class of ewes in a beautiful manner.
With these purposes in mind, contestants are required to construct their own garments made of minimum 50 percent wool blend fabric. Accessories need not be made of wool. An ewe, trained to lead at halter, must be groomed and show blocked by the contestant. Entrants need not own their own ewes, but should make personal arrangements to obtain an animal for the contest.

No sharing of ewes is allowed this year and contestants are also responsible for finding a male escort who will show the ewe for a sheep judge while the contestant models her garment.

Entry blanks and complete rules are available at the County Extension Office, Room 304 County Courthouse and the deadline to enter is Friday. Contact Susan Raney for details at 364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Nancy Reagan billed as 'White House Co-star'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan beat her husband onto the cover of Time this year. She was billed as "White House Co-Star" in this latest effort to answer one of the most enduring questions in American politics: Just how much power does the president's wife wield?

In the case of Mrs. Reagan, the answer seems to be, a lot.
Time quoted Michael Deaver, White House deputy chief of staff, as saying of Mrs. Reagan, "She has always had more influence than people generally realize."

Deaver plans to leave the White House this spring and his departure is likely to make Mrs. Reagan the most influential voice on matters concerning her husband's public image.

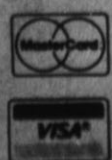

For example, there was another report this week — unconfirmed — that Mrs. Reagan had convinced the president to hold monthly news conferences during his second term.

Shamrock chairman denies Oxy rejection leaves company vulnerable to takeover

DALLAS (AP) — Diamond Shamrock Chairman William Bricker rejected the idea that his company's merger flirtation with Occidental Petroleum Corp. has left Shamrock vulnerable to a hostile takeover.

"We didn't miss a lick in terms of further developing our prospects," he told the Dallas Times Herald Tuesday night.

Bricker said his board rejected a merger with Occidental because of unhappiness about the fate of Shamrock managers in the new company and the margin of profit for Shamrock shareholders.

The merger, which would have created the nation's seventh-largest oil company, suddenly fell apart Monday afternoon, just hours after the heads of both companies announced a tentative agreement.

Some analysts said risk arbitrageurs, who had bought about 9 million Shamrock shares, faced hundreds of millions of dollars in losses.

Analysts said Shamrock is now open to a hostile takeover attempt because arbitrageurs and others with big holdings would be eager to recoup their losses and might sell their stock to the first suitor that came along.

"Once exposed, vulnerable, and Diamond Shamrock better watch out," said Alan Edgar of the securities firm Schneider Borne & Wickman in Dallas.

Bricker said the merger initially seemed to offer great benefits for Diamond Shamrock shareholders.

He said the proposed merger also had the blessing of top executives with both companies. But Bricker said he changed his mind about the deal during discussions with his board Monday.

Bricker said the $3 billion stock-swap plan was conceived last Wednesday, when he was talking to Occidental Chairman Armand Hammer about another matter.

The proposed merger had called for the shareholders of the two companies to exchange their stock for stock in a new company on a one-for-one basis.

That could have given Diamond Shamrock shareholders a substantial premium, since Occidental's stock was trading at about $25 per share when the tentative agreement was reached, while Diamond Shamrock's was at about $17.

But word of the negotiations quickly spread among Wall Street, Bricker said.

The rumors put the participants under "tremendous and unnecessary pressure" to go public while the merger discussions were still in the early stages, he said.

After both companies announced Friday that they were discussing a possible merger, Diamond

Shamrock's stock rose sharply in trading on the New York Stock Exchange while Occidental's fell, narrowing the difference in value.

By the time the board met Monday, trading in the stock of the two marriage partners had nearly halved the premium he first thought Diamond Shamrock shareholders would get, Bricker said.

He said it appeared last week that shareholders of the Dallas company stood to receive a $6 or $7 premium for their stock and an increase in dividend from $1.76 to $2.50.

Bricker told the Dallas Times Herald that the Diamond Shamrock board got its first look at the plan when they met Monday, and by then the premium for Diamond Shamrock stock was reduced to a range of $2 to $3 as Occidental's stock price dropped.

"The board had nothing other than a small batch (of documents) to brief them prior to Monday," Bricker said.

The Diamond Shamrock board was also concerned about the small role its managers would play in the merged company, Bricker said.

Hammer, the 86-year-old Occidental chairman has in recent years ousted half a dozen top Occidental officers with whom he did not agree and was considered unlikely to relinquish his iron grip on Occidental.

The deal was appealing to Occidental, Bricker said, because the company would receive "top-flight" Diamond Shamrock management, financial flexibility and high-quality coal and petroleum assets."

Price has new career as pop idol

NEW YORK (AP) — At 73, Vincent Price, "The Merchant of Menace," has found a new generation of fans because of his monologue on Michael Jackson's hit song, "Thriller," and the current film festivals and late-night TV broadcasts featuring his old horror flicks.

"You really feel ancient when they start showing retrospectives of your work," said Price. "That, and when you're in a wax museum. It all makes you feel as if you've been buried."

Back from the casket, Price's career received a boost from the spooky verse he performed on "Thriller." All it took was one day to tape his rap, and now kids are turning up at his lectures, where he performs a campy version of Jackson's trademark dance, the moonwalk.

"I'm finally famous," he told the newsletter for his alma mater, Yale University.

Price, the suave host of public television's "Mystery!" series, is also friendly with other rock stars, including Alice Cooper and mes of the group Kiss.

It was Price's work in Cooper's music video, "Welcome to My Nightmare," that interested Jackson's producer, Quincy Jones. "I think I might be the only one left who is identified with that kind of title," Price said.

About the enigmatic Jackson, Price said, "he couldn't be more adorable. I really don't know him very well. But he did send me a platinum album."

It might surprise some that Price was born and raised in St. Louis, Mo. Even as a kid he had a distinctive voice. His deep resonance gained a continental flavor when he was a young art student in England.

Price has appeared in more than 100 films, the bulk of them straight dramatic roles ("Laura," "The Three Musketeers"). He says his career direction took a turn toward the bizarre when actors like "James Dean and Marlon Brando came along and stopped speaking English."

His serious films and musical sojourns aside, Price's legacy will always be his horror movies, including "The Pit and the Pendulum," "The House of Wax" and the spoofy "Abbott and Costello Meet Frankenstein" and "Dr. Goldfoot and the Sex Machine."

Price says many of today's horror films are repugnant, not scary, substituting sex and gore for the good old-fashioned surprises and shockers.

Price said the public has become desensitized and immune to violence, but it still appreciates a good BOO! now and then.

"Mystery!" is more faithful to the old classics, and that's why Price thinks viewers are so loyal to this clever, well-crafted series, which has the three-part "Praying Mantis" starting Thursday, followed by the six-part "Agatha Christie Mysteries."

In April, TV audiences can see Price as Sir Desford Murgatroyd in Gilbert & Sullivan's "Ruddigore." A gourmet chef with two cookbooks to his credit, the veteran actor also pops up in TV commercials for the American Dairy Association and other products.

Some say hair should only be cut when the moon is on the wane.

As speaker

Lewis gets second term

AUSTIN (AP) — After testimonials about his honesty, evenhandedness and industry, Rep. Gib Lewis of Fort Worth was handed a second term as speaker of the Texas House of Representatives.

The Fort Worth Democrat had no opponents and was chosen by acclamation Tuesday as colleagues said the 48-year-old lawmaker is in the right place at the right time.

"Never before have the people of this state needed a person whose zeal will seek only one path and not be thrown about by the winds of pressure or the waves of politics," said Rep. Charles Evans, D-Hurst, as he nominated Lewis for the job.

"He is a man that exemplifies honesty and fairness," Evans said.

"His endorsement by Democrats, Republicans, conservatives, liberals, men and women of every ethnic background is evidence that he is a man of his word," Evans said. "He has sought out and attained goals that most people would have given up on."

Evans said Lewis has the leadership needed in a year when revenue estimates predict that government revenue will fall $1 billion short of spending needs.

"He is what is needed for the citizens of the state of Texas, who expect a dollar's worth of services for every tax dollar that is spent."

The speaker's post is one of the most powerful in state government.

In addition to presiding over the 150-member House, Lewis has worked with Gov. Mark White and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby on major legislation, including the sweeping school reforms and tax increase that were approved in a special legislative session last summer.

This year, the trio is pushing a statewide water use plan.

A native of Limestone County, Lewis was educated at Sam Houston State University and Texas Christian University.

After serving in the Air Force, he began Lewis Label Products Inc., which in less than 20 years became one of the nation's largest label manufacturing companies and made Lewis a millionaire.

He first was elected to the House in 1971, winning reelection every two years from his Fort Worth district without opposition.

Among those seconding his nomination Tuesday were a Republican, Dallas Rep. Fred Agnich, who praised "his outstanding ability to bring together people of diverse backgrounds working cooperatively for the benefit of all Texas."

Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, said Lewis has shared power with members of minority groups.

"Our speaker has found talent and delegated responsibility to members in all ethnic groups, and in both sexes, and I appreciate that," she said.

Even some one-time opponents supported Lewis.

Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, who in 1983 urged the Black Legislative Caucus to withdraw its support of the speaker because minority legislation was moving slowly, Tuesday seconded his nomination.

Hailing Lewis' leadership in shepherding the school reforms into law, Ragsdale said, "No one can deny that Gib Lewis initiated this giant step that this body took last summer toward resolving the common problems of all the school children, parents and educators of Texas."

Senate committees show little change

AUSTIN (AP) — A new Senate panel has been created to focus on the troubled Texas Department of Corrections.

The new Criminal Justice Committee was the biggest change in the lineup announced Tuesday by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, the presiding officer of the Senate.

Most of the major committees are unchanged in leadership and responsibilities from the 1983 Legislature.

The new criminal justice panel will be headed by Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan. It will absorb two former subcommittees on civil matters and criminal matters.

Missing from the new lineup are former Sen. Lloyd Doggett's high profile subcommittee on consumer affairs and a subcommittee on energy. Doggett, an Austin Democrat, quit the Legislature to run unsuccessfully for the U.S. Senate.

Veteran Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, maintains his post as chairman of the influential Senate Finance Committee, which handles the budget. Jones was first appointed chairman in 1979.

Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, returns as of the State Affairs Committee, which will handle any tax bill that gets to the Senate.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, returns as chairman of the Senate Education Committee; Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, is again head of Health and Human Resources; and Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, will begin his eighth year as chairman of Intergovernmental Relations.

Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris, R-Dallas, is a third-term chairman of Economic Development; and Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, heads Natural Resources for the sixth year.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, was reappointed chairman of a Subcommittee on Health Services and Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, is again head of the Jurisprudence Committee.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, was named head of a Subcommittee on Water, replacing former Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, who was defeated by Sen. Cyndi Krier, R-San Antonio. Montford is trying to pass legislation for a statewide water plan.

Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, was reappointed chairman of the Subcommittee on Agriculture, and Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, is again chairman of Administration.

Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texas, was chosen for a second term as chairman of the Nominations Committee, which was upgraded from a subcommittee status.

Legislators' children fill house chamber

AUSTIN (AP) — Missing school is frowned upon by parents but an exception was made when lawmakers' children attended the opening ceremonies of the 69th Texas Legislature.

Erin McClendon, 12, of Houston found Tuesday's ceremonies as interesting as a day's worth of school.

"It was very educational," Ms. McClendon, a seventh grader from Ruby Sue Clifton Middle School in Houston, said after the House and Senate had adjourned for the day. "I plan to come again and just listen."

Ms. McClendon, niece of Rep. Harold Dutton, D-Houston, said she hadn't told any of her school friends she was going to the Capitol, but she showed pictures as proof of her attendance.

"I'm going to tell them they should come and listen and see how neat it is," she said.

For others among the 100 children in attendance the ceremonies were all but interesting.

Patricia Emmett, 7-week-old daughter of Rep. Ed Emmett, R-Kingwood, was one of the youngest guests. She napped during the ceremonies.

Emmett's son Robert, 2, amused himself by mimicking his father during the swearing in process and applauded after the speeches as did many other children.

Adrienne Emmett, 8, said she didn't mind traveling to Austin to join her father rather than staying home with third-grade classmates.

"It's alright. (School) doesn't matter to me anyway," she said.

For Alana Edwards, Tuesday had extra meaning beyond the swearing in of her father, Rep. Al Edwards, D-Houston, for his fourth term. She celebrated her third birthday, and her party was to consist of a reception for her father at an Austin hotel.

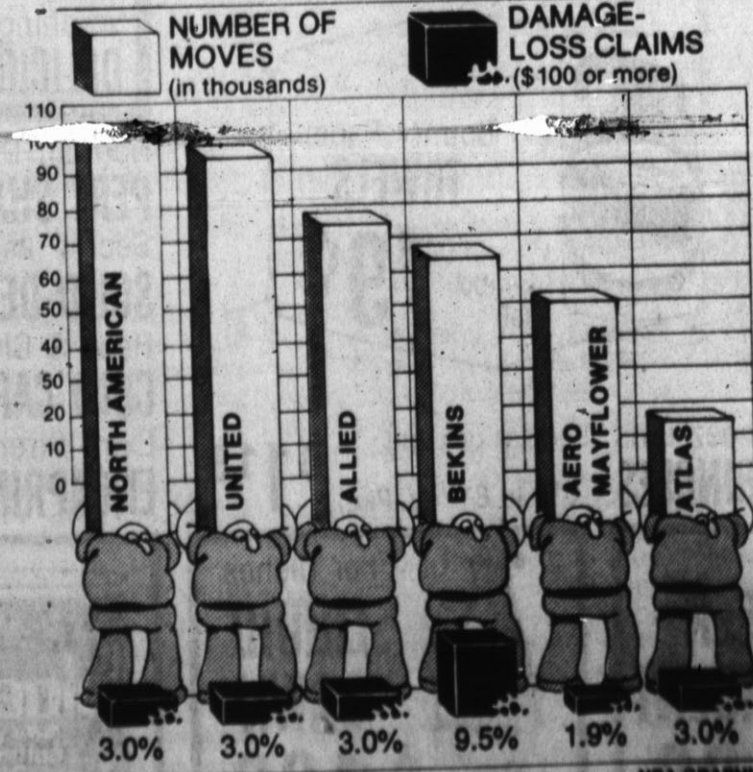

Amee Renee Thompson, 3, of Tyler, came armed with a teddy bear as she watched the swearing in of her grandfather, Rep. Gary Thompson, D-Abilene.

Five-year-old John Hackney fidgeted through his third opening session with his father Rep. Clint Hackney, D-Houston. His little sister, Jennifer, 20 months, also attended. Hackney said he opted not to bring his 5-week-old daughter.

"She would have been easier to handle than this one," he laughed as Jennifer waved to the crowd which filled the House chamber. "She wanted to applaud after every speaker."

Jennifer wore a name tag with her name and her father's office number and phone number in case she slipped away from her parents.
