EIGHT NEW TEXAS LEAGUE RECORDS SET

JAKE ATZ IN LEAGUE 21 YEARS

DALLAS, Oct. 23 (UP)—Eight new Texas league baseball records were set in the 1936 season and 10 others were tied, W. B. Ruggles, league statistician, reported today.

Jake Atz, manager of the Galveston club, extended to 21 years his period of service in the league as a player, manager and umpire and to 19 years his service as a manager.

On June 30, Miltstead and Kimball of Tulsa and Epps of Houston set a new record of four sacrifice hits in a nine-inning game.

Oklahoma City, on July 15, succeeded in making the lowest number of hits in two successive games and in two games in one day—a total of one single.

Armbrust of Galveston held Oklahoma City to one hit in the nine-inning opener and Jakucki shut out the Oklahoma City club hitless in the seven-inning nightcap.

33-Year Record Falls On May 10, Engle of the Fort Worth team, in a game against Tulsa, smashed a record that has stood for 33 years by accepting 16 chances at shortstop, in nine innings.

The most important new record was one for the season, set by James J. Levey, who divided the season between Tulsa and Dallas.

While breaking the total chance record for a single game, Engle also set a new record for assists at 12, breaking the old record of 11 which had been equaled by several players.

LOST LINE HOOKS FISH

REDWOOD CITY, Calif., Oct. 27 (UP)—Simpson Reinhard dropped his pole and line overboard at the start of a bass fishing contest. Undismayed, he trolled for it and finally dragged it to the surface. Wriggling on the hook was a 4-pounder which won the prize.

Wilson To Be Used In Backfield Against Comanche Indians

Shows Promise

Ole Deal is another very promising Devil griddler. Ole plays guard on the junior team—which is undefeated.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR CAT GAME

Jack Wilson, who made his debut in the Steer secondary last Friday night against the Ranger Bulldogs, will probably be used there again this week in the Comanche game, Coach George Brown said yesterday at the conclusion of practice.

Coach Glen Frazier of Comanche, who was a spectator at the Big Spring-Brownwood game, told Brown that his team would give the Steers a good game.

The Steers are pointing for three games—San Angelo on November 11, Abilene on November 21, and Sweetwater in the season finale on November 26.

MORE ARGUING

Coach Harry Taylor of San Angelo, in a telephone conversation Tuesday with Coach Brown, requested that San Angelo not be forced to use Ben Lee Boynton, Stokic Bishop and Howard Allen as officials for the Steer-Bobcat game because of the cost, but Brown refused to agree to any change, and said he would write Taylor to that effect so there would be no mistake about the matter.

High School Principal George Gentry has also been wrangling with Angelo over game officials and admission prices.

Every sip helps somebody

You who drink Budweiser have bought millions of dollars worth of barley and hops from American farmers... paid millions more in taxes into federal, state and local treasuries... provided wages for workers in allied industries... kept railroad men on the move... brought profits to retailers everywhere and business and activity to properties long vacant... Yes, whenever you drink Budweiser, you are helping somebody... and helping yourself to a keener enjoyment of good living.

When a product is of such quality that it is chosen universally by those who know how to enjoy the finer things of life, isn't that leadership?

The Aggies and Razorbacks first met in 1905 but played each other only three times before 1937, when they began a four-year, home and home playing period. They then skipped to 1934 before resuming grid relations. The complete record is as follows:

Year	Aggies	Arkansas
1928	12	27

The Cadets counted a number of injured men after the Baylor tilt, including Halfback Dick Todd and Center Charlie DeWare, but expect to be back at full strength by Saturday.

Pictures Aid Grid Coaches

Motion Pictures Now Part Of Regular Coaching Routine

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—The showing of motion pictures of football games to the squads is now a regular part of the coaching routine at most colleges. Primarily intended to instruct and point out mistakes, the pictures often bring out many interesting sidelights overlooked during the excitement of the contest.

For instance, most newspaper reports of Pennsylvania's stirring victory over Princeton indicated that Lew Elverson's touchdown pass was made possible by some lousy and effective blocking on the part of the Quaker's burly fullback, Kurt-Jah. As a matter of fact, the pictures clearly show that it was Bob McNamara, guard, who brushed aside two onrushing Tigers to open the way for Elverson. One of the men McNamara put out of the way was the huge Charley Toll.

Further study of the pictures brought out that the same Mr. McNamara spent a very, very busy 60 minutes playing against the same Mr. Toll. Princeton ran five out of every six plays over the giant tackle.

"Toll was about the best football player I ever faced," McNamara said after the battle. "But I enjoyed every minute of the game. It was a good one to win."

McNamara was outstanding in repulsing the repeated thrusts Princeton made at Pennsylvania's goal line. It is easy to understand why the victory over Princeton was so satisfactory to him.

Laugh's On Kaufman

The Princeton squad and coaches have been having a good laugh at the expense of Chick Kaufman, Tiger halfback. And it is all because of what a recent showing of grid movies revealed.

Coach Fritz Crisler ordered the particular play re-run on the screen half a dozen times. It was in the game against Rutgers. Kaufman took his usual position with his hands on his knees as the Princeton team came out of the huddle. The ball was snapped, and all players on both sides swung into action. That is—all the gridgers except Kaufman.

Chick remained motionless, hands still on his knees, only turning his head slightly to observe the outcome of the play. When the Princeton team went into the huddle Kaufman straightened up and walked over to get into the conference.

Moving pictures of games are very much a part of the football setup at Nebraska. Thousands of feet are shot, taking in all the action on the field. Coaches have a private showing to study the technical side. Later, players view the pictures to see their mistakes.

The general public and the student body is then allowed to view the pictures for a nominal admission fee which goes to pay for the expense incurred in making the films. Eventually, the pictures of Nebraska games are shown in various clubs and schools to create interest in the team.

Coach At Syracuse Is 'A Very Young Veteran'

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 28 (AP)—Although he is in his seventh season as head grid coach at Syracuse university, Victor A. Hanson still is one of the country's youngest mentors. He was graduated from Syracuse in '27 with one of the best records in athletic annals of the school. Hanson captained football, baseball, basketball; won nine letters; and was an all-America end.

Sammy Baugh To Play Against Baylor Bears

FORT WORTH, Oct. 28.—"The Frogs will be ready."

That is coach Dutch Meyer's answer to "What about the Baylor game Saturday?"

This answer, being interpreted means that Sammy Baugh will return to the line-up.

Baugh hasn't been in top form for several weeks. He played against A. & M. on one leg.

Frog followers believe their team has at least an even chance against the Baylor Bears with Sam in there to do some of his famous chunking.

Last year these two teams came together in Waco, both undefeated. This year both elevens have been beaten twice and both tied once. But, in spite of the record, the Bears have given amazing indications of strength in their last two contests.

90TH DIVISION MEV TO GATHER NOV. 6-8

FORT WORTH, Oct. 28.—Final arrangements have been made for the eighteenth annual reunion of the 90th Division to be held in Fort Worth, November 6-7-8.

Reports from Texas and Oklahoma, the two states from which the Division secured the majority of its personnel, assure the local general arrangements committee of a record-breaking attendance.

Registration will commence at noon, Friday, November 6th, at reunion headquarters in the Hotel Texas. At 8 p. m. Friday there will be an entertainment for the veterans and their families.

The annual divisional banquet, on Saturday night at 8 o'clock, will be one of the high spots of the three-day affair. Senator Tom Connally will deliver the principal address. The address of welcome will be delivered by Austin F. Anderson, prominent Fort Worth attorney, with Marvin H. Watta, of Tulsa, Okla., and vice-president of the association responding. A short business session will follow the speaking. New officers will be elected; also the date and meeting place of the 1937 reunion, closing with an elaborate floor show.

Col. Ernest O. Thompson, Texas railroad commission chairman, will deliver the principal address for the 90th Division at the joint memorial services of the 36th and 90th Divisions at Trinity park in Fort Worth starting at 10 a. m. Sunday, November 8th.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Dunham and daughter, Marie, will leave Thursday morning for Dallas where they will spend several days.

Sam Baugh's 1st Pass Went For A Touchdown

FORT WORTH, Oct. 28. (Sp1)—The first forward pass Sam Baugh ever threw went for a touchdown. T. C. U. fans hope the last one he throws does the same—and a lot of those in between.

This first one was back on a scrub team when Sam was in the grades in the public schools of Temple, Texas.

He started out at Temple High as an end, but his passing ability was soon discovered and he was moved into the backfield.

"I've been throwin' 'em ever since," is the way Sam puts it.

"Speed and accuracy" are the two secrets of Slingin' Sam's success, according to Coach L. R. Meyer.

"He takes almost no time to wind up," Meyer comments, "and he shoots the ball straight from the shoulder."

Baugh returns to active duty with the Frogs against the Baylor Bears in Fort Worth Saturday. Suffering from a bad cold, a sprained ankle and an injured shoulder, he did not even suit out against Mississippi State in Dallas last week. He played against the Aggies with a left ankle so badly swollen that he was virtually on one foot.

But Sam, Frog chief gunner, will be ready again this week. He is the boy who makes the Frog team tick, no doubt about that. And because of that T. C. U. fans are hoping to see the Frogs give Baylor quite a battle.

MORGAN ITEMS

The Morgan school, which has been closed since September 11, will open again next Monday, Nov. 2. New oil heaters are being installed in each classroom.

Events in this community this week include a box supper to be staged Friday night and a Halloween masquerade party on Saturday night.

The box supper was scheduled for last week but was postponed on account of bad weather. Proceeds from the affair will go toward cost of repairing the piano and for purchase of song books.

Caused Stir Last Year

A little movie camera caused quite a furore last fall after the Duke-North Carolina game. The North Carolina student publication came out with a blast against the Duke coaches for having employed the movie camera in scouting. The street corner alumni and Monday morning quarterbacks who had wagered on North Carolina took up the cry. Duke coaches freely admitted the use of a camera and pointed out that many other coaching staffs did the same thing.

When Lew Elverson, Pennsylvania's hero of the hour, grabbed that Princeton punt and raced 57 yards to a touchdown he was duplicating a run he made against Cornell last fall. He took a Cornell boot on his own 40-yard line and, on a muddy gridiron, raced through the entire Big Red team to score.

Crippled

practices of the Baylor Bears Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. Coach Morley Jennings, anxious for the Bruins to meet the Horned Frogs, ordered mud chains put on the Green and Gold grid machine and that practice for this important till continue. Baylor's title chances are at stake Saturday when the Baptists meet the Christian and the Bruin mentors are sparing nothing in an effort to put their charges in top shape for the fracas.

This week's drill in the Baylor camp is centering around T. C. U. plays and on shaping an effective pass defense with which the Bears will be able to successfully cope with the aerial attack of the Toads. The Bruin variety remembers well the 28-0 licking that the Fort Worth aggregation, capably headed by Slinging Sam Baugh, handed them last season before a Homecoming crowd and they are training earnestly in hope of sweet revenge Saturday.

For the first time since the season began, the Baylor team will suffer heavily because of their casualty list. Ervey Blue, 510-pound tackle, will not be ready when the Bears and Frogs tangle due to a severe shoulder injury. Sam Boyd, scintillating sophomore wingman, suffered a recurrence of a pet knee injury and will likely be withheld from the Frog fray. Carl Brazell, junior fullback and stellar defensive back, is ill with a very bad cold and may be too weak to perform Saturday.

BENEFIT FOR MAL-NUTRITION

Thousands of women testify Cardui has helped them to overcome malnutrition and to ease many of the functional pains of menstruation.

"What is meant by helping to overcome malnutrition?"

Cardui contains extracts of two plants which are classed among the "bitters" in medicine because they are known to increase the flow of digestive juices — to improve digestion — so there is a craving for sufficient food for the body's needs, and by their action more energy (or strength) is obtained from the food eaten. The food, of course, brings the additional strength, but Cardui serves as the means to this end by its good influence on the digestive system.—adv.

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

Few husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month.

You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Red Cross Enlists School Children In Drive Against Accidents At Home

With the assistance of school children throughout the nation, the American Red Cross has entered the second year of a fight against accidental deaths and injuries on the farms and in the homes of the country. Mrs. E. T. Cardwell, chairman of the Howard county chapter, Red Cross, declared yesterday.

"Students in both elementary and high schools have cooperated, during the past year, in spreading the doctrine of safety in homes and on farms," Mrs. Cardwell said. "The attention of parents and home-makers has been called to the alarming accident rate prevailing today through check-lists distributed through the schools to approximately 5,000 homes."

More than one-third of all fatal accidents and nearly half of all injuries are sustained in and about the home, she revealed, pointing out that 34,000 persons are killed by accidents annually, 150,000 persons are permanently crippled, and more than five millions of persons injured during this period.

On the farms which are being distributed by the children for the Red Cross, parents are asked to cooperate with their children in conducting a systematic examination of the home and farm in an effort to locate and remedy accident causes. Items to be checked include those having to do with floors and stairways, porches, sharp tools and equipment, toys, home appliances, fire hazards, firearms, foods and poisons, machinery, farm buildings and animals.

"On these check-lists which we are distributing," Mrs. Cardwell said, "it is pointed out that the two major causes of farming accidents are machinery, accounting for 29 per cent of all farm accidents, and animals, causing 22 per cent of the accidents. We have attempted to emphasize the fact that more than 4,000 farmers are killed annually, making farming the most dangerous of all occupations. We are spurred to action with the realization that these accidents could be largely overcome through more careful use of farm equipment and a knowledge of where the accident dangers lie."

The traffic problem in rural areas is extremely serious, she pointed out. She revealed that mortal accidents occurred on rural highways than on city streets, and that last year 64 per cent of all traffic deaths occurred on the "open road" and in towns with a population of less than 10,000 persons.

"More children are injured in homes than in other locations," she said. "A six-year survey has revealed that 32 per cent of accidents to children were suffered in the home against 19 per cent on school grounds, 17 per cent in school buildings, nine per cent in going to and from schools, with 23 per cent taking place in other locations.

"Such shocking injuries taking place within what we consider the most secure of all places, the home points to the need for more attention being paid this problem by parents," she concluded. "The Red Cross has taken the lead in this

Many Types Portrayed In Novel Booked For Review On Monday

From every walk of life Margaret Mitchell has taken characters for her novel, "Gone With the Wind" which will be reviewed here Monday evening at the Settles hotel by Rev. A. B. Hanson of Colorado.

In the review one will meet Scarlett O'Hara, the gay girl of the former South who was afflicted with a head for business; Melanie Wilkes, the most popular hostess in Atlanta during the reconstruction days; Belle Watling, hostess of the Girl of the Period saloon and Rhett Butler, profiteering Southerner hated by the South.

Rev. Hanson who last year reviewed "Anthony Adverse," a southerner having been raised in Alabama. As a boy of 12 he recalls having visited the plantation of "Massa," Tom Johnson and reading the Bible of a former slave of his grandfather who was a captain in the Confederate army. His knowledge of the old South marked him as the ideal reviewer for the book that deals with that period and prompted the sponsors, St. Mary's auxiliary, to select him.

The book will be given at 7:30 Monday evening on the mezzanine of the Settles hotel. Tickets are now on sale by the auxiliary.

New Design For Chair Set

Pattern No. 365

Reading And Writing

By John Selby

A season or two past, a group of bookmen interested in beautifully bound books formed a smallish organization designed to produce "unlimited editions." Their idea was that there existed many book buyers who could not afford the enormous prices asked for truly limited editions, who yet would buy standard works handsomely printed and nicely illustrated.

They seem to have had a good idea. So far they have turned out 13 books—or will have by the first week of November. The books are rather well chosen as to text, and rather well produced so far as books go. This week there are four new ones.

One is a modern classic—W. H. Hudson's "Green Mansions" illustrated by Miguel Covarrubias. Covarrubias seems rather a strange choice until you see the color plates, when the reason for his choice becomes apparent. The text is too familiar to require comment; when the book was delivered one of the office boys announced that he was being required to read it at night school, which tells the story.

The most gay of the four is a new "Mother Goose," this one edited by William Rose Benet, and illustrated lavishly by Roger Duvoisin. It's one of the nicest "Mother Gooses" ever printed, outside the $50 and $100 editions, and as always it exerts its charm through all the ages, and not merely with children.

For this reader, Charles Dickens' "The Pickwick Papers" is most satisfactory, however, and that probably because as a mere child Dickens was introduced to him as something to read for pleasure, not for profit. Gordon Ross' illustrations have the Dickensian flavor, and value as art besides. As for the fourth—it is "The Compleat Angler," by (of course) Izaak Walton. With Robert Ball's illustrations the product is a neat one, but Walton represents one of my blind sides—even with Mr. Ball's help I can't read "The Compleat Angler."

Chapter 13 THREAT FROM LAWSON

Lee-Ramsden rose from his chair.

"Why not tell them the old story that you want to stay with an old school friend and forget to let us know you were going," he suggested. "Then they won't have to pretend to be busy investigating a lot of kidnappers who, they will be quite sure, don't exist. I don't suppose for a moment the police will believe the story of the old school friend, but at least it will relieve them of further responsibility, and it will look much better in the newspapers than that ridiculous kidnapping story."

"Perhaps you're right," she replied. "I'll tell the old school friend story if you think that will cause less fuss. Now I'm going to bed. Good night, Uncle Gerald."

tors did not know yet whether he would live or not.

Mahony decided that it would be best to leave the next move to his enemies. He wondered what form that move would take. Lawson could hardly tell the police that he, Mahony, had been in the Little house when Mr. Little was murdered, and he thought it extremely unlikely that Eliza could have recognized him.

Nevertheless his enemies, not knowing what he knew about them, would be pretty sure to make some move against him for their own protection.

In the meantime it might not be a bad idea to have a bit of a look around. When he had finished his second cigar, he consulted the telephone directory and looked up Lawson's home address. Then he set off, on foot, in the direction of Mullins feared Lee-Ramsden with a mortal terror.

She always called him uncle though he was not her uncle. But he had been her dead father's best friend.

"Good night, my dear," said Lee-Ramsden. "And next time you're thinking of going off for a day or two just let me know. I shan't ask where you're going. But I shan't start the police hunting for you."

Ruth did not answer; she went to bed. After she had gone Lee-Ramsden remained for a few minutes leaning back against the mantel-piece with his hands in the pockets of his silk dressing-gown. The butler entered to remove the things from the dining-room table. Lee-Ramsden glanced at him.

"Well, Mullins, this is a surprise, isn't it?" he observed cheerfully.

"Indeed it is, sir," replied Mullins. He had an uneasy air.

"Our friend Lawson seems rather to have made a mess of things somehow," went on Lee-Ramsden. "I wonder who that young man was who fetched my ward back. You didn't see him, by any chance, did you?"

"No, sir. He drove away before I had the door open," answered Mullins.

"That's a pity. A great pity," said Lee-Ramsden, and his voice became more genial and cheerful than ever. But a little pulse was beating strongly in his forehead.

"A great pity," he repeated. "Because we shall have to find out who he is and deal with him before we can do anything more about Miss Ruth. And in two months' time she will be twenty-one. Which does not give us a great deal of time, does it, Mullins?"

"No, sir," said Mullins.

"Time enough, though, I hope," said Lee-Ramsden.

Mullins picked up the tray and hurried from the room as though anxious to get out of it as quickly as possible. He was frightened.

For twenty-five years he had served that large affable, cynical, pleasant mannered man, Gerald Lee-Ramsden. He worshipped Lee-Ramsden; he would have done anything at his command; and at the same time, he feared him with a mortal terror.

Lawson's house.

As luck would have it, at the end of the street in which Lawson lived he met Lawson himself.

Both men stopped. For a moment they eyed one another warily, like strange dogs meeting, their hackles bristling. Then Lawson smiled.

"Good morning, Mahony," he remarked. "And what are you doing in this part of the world?"

"Walking," answered Mahony. "Do you mind?"

"Not at all," said Lawson. "Walk as much as you like, my dear fellow, while you have the chance. You may not have the opportunity of walking very much longer."

He paused.

"I'm just going to call on Miss Little," he went on blandly. "You've formed a habit of dropping in at her house, I believe. Why not come along too?"

There was a kind of insolent challenge in his tone; he seemed to be daring Mahony to come. Mahony was irritated.

"He took up Lawson's challenge."

"That's quite an idea. I will come along with you to see Miss Little," he said.

At the same time he wondered about the object of Lawson's invitation. Why should Lawson invite him to come along and see Eliza Little?

"What have you been doing to your lip?" he asked. "It looks as if you ran into something."

Lawson ignored that.

"Good. I'm sure Miss Little will be glad to see you after you so gallantly rescued her last night," he said in a mocking tone. "Unfortunately, though, she doesn't appear to know that it was you who rescued her. I should tell her if I were you."

That was plain speaking enough, Mahony smiled.

"Don't see how that it was you who murdered her uncle?" he asked.

"No. Fortunately she doesn't know that either. You can tell her that too, if you like. Here comes a taxi. I suggest that we take it."

They entered the taxi.

Radio Talks, Rather Than Political Meetings, Catch Voters' Attention; Interesting Results In U. S. Survey

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 26—Only one voter out of four attends political meetings, but nine out of 10 listen to political speeches via radio, and eight out of 10 hear speakers on both sides of the argument; 31 per cent vote for the same party; only 27 per cent believe the depression was caused by political action, and 65 per cent of the married voters ballot the same as their respective husbands or wives, according to a voter survey just completed.

The study, which sampled farmers, city housewives, laborers, white collar workers, and university students of voting age, in five widely separated localities, revealed that 87 per cent of the voters interviewed take a daily paper, 42 per cent read two, and 28 per cent read three dailies, while 77 per cent read

Illustrated Talk On Bermuda Given Before Lions Club

Facts about Bermuda were illustrated with motion pictures, taken by Dr. P. W. Malone on a recent trip to the island, before the Lions club Wednesday.

He read a paper reciting the historical background, the topography, flora and fauna of the island and the customs of the 20,000 inhabitants.

Following his explanation, he flashed pictures done in natural color upon the screen and took the club along for a trip from New York, out past the Statue of Liberty, to the resort center of the north Atlantic. He commented upon the mode of travel which was exclusively by horse carriage or by bicycle. Pictures showed all traffic going to the left.

J. C. Milburn favored the club with a vocal selection, "Home on the Range."

Brownie Henshaw was introduced as a new member. Forrest McDuffie was a guest for the day.

GRAND JURY CHARGES TWO FOR PERJURY IN WENDEL KIDNAPING

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 28 (UP)—A federal grand jury yesterday handed up indictments charging Mrs. Anna C. Badig and G. Clinton Zeller, aides of Ellis H. Parker, Sr., with perjury in connection with their testimony in the Paul H. Wendel kidnaping investigating.

Indictments were presented to Federal Judge Phillip Forman after testimony was heard in the jury's morning session.

Pecan Crop To Be Short

Texas Yield Expected To Be Smallest In 14 Years

GONZALES, Oct. 28 (UP)—Pecan orchardists along the Guadalupe river valley in Gonzales county hope to profit this fall from the shortest Texas crop since 1922.

The crop last year set a record of 46,000,000 pounds in Texas, but experts estimated that the yield for 1936 would drop as low as 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 pounds.

Growers in this area report a short crop this season, but it was expected that the yield would be far above the state average. Prices in the Houston, San Antonio and Austin markets opened between nine and 12 1-2 cents a pound.

The crop in 1922 was approximately 13,000,000 pounds. The small 1936 crop was attributed to frequent "thrashings" of the trees to harvest the 1935 crop—thus injuring the new wood, and to the heavy drain on the trees occasioned by the bumper yield last year.

Orchardists also reported that during the pollenization period of three to five days last spring, the weather was damp and prevented germination.

Wholesale pecan prices already have climbed because of the anticipated shortage and are expected to go higher during the Christmas holiday season and next year. Shelled pecans are selling now at approximately 40 cents a pound.

EXTENSION CLASS TO BE STARTED NOV. 7

Inquiries about the extension class to be offered here by Texas Tech have been received by Miss Anne Martin, county superintendent, from Stanton and Lenora in Martin county.

Miss Martin said that the first session of the class might be held Nov. 7. The course to be offered is on the "problem of curriculum construction with local application." Fourteen have signed for the course, while 25 is the minimum quota for the class.

Dealers and guests were royally feted by Chevrolet at Dallas and were enthusiastic in their praise of the new series.

AUTO STOLEN

Texas Takes 'Em On Eastern Grids; It's All In A Gay Film At The Ritz

Those who take pride in the manner in which Texas is gaining a top rank in the nation's football circles will be pleased to note that Hollywood, in the first of the 1936 series of grid films, has taken Texas' football climb and made a thoroughly amusing story out of it.

The story is "Pigskin Parade," showing for the last time today at the Ritz; and if you want to see a sprightly opus that has a goodly share of catchy tunes and no small amount of nonsense, see it.

"Pigskin Parade" concerns the excitement around a small school—a mythical institution called "Texas State" that was plumped down somewhere out here on the western prairie—when it gets a mistaken bid to play Yale on the gridiron. You will guess, so we might as well tell you now, that Texas State wins the game.

Shame, Sammy!

That's not the whole story. A part of it lies in the way "Texas State" turns out football passers—who would put Sam Baugh, et al, to shame. One learns that these tossers got their training by slinging muskmelons straight to a bulls-eye some 90 yards distant.

The razzie-dazzle game, as the sportswriters are wont to call it these days, goes over big, to defeat Yale. And so does the "Texas State" display of spirit, in a fashion reminiscent of the way SMU stormed the East and West coasts and the way Hardin-Simmons and her cowboys recently captured the fancy of Nebraskans.

Stuart Erwin is cast as the country palooka who throws the pigskin for fabulous distance and accuracy—the catch being that he has to be barefoot to do so. Jack Haley, the high-browed (literally) comedian, is seen as the Eastern coach who tumbles into luck with the Texas team. He has the able assistance of his shrewd wife, played by Patsy Kelly, who manages to steal most of the scenes in which she appears.

In The Cast

There is the usual college atmosphere of good-looking co-eds and boys attired in sweaters and slacks. Among them are Arline Judge as the college widow; Dixie Dunbar, who isn't allowed enough dancing sequences; Judy Garland, a little girl with a big voice, a likeable youngster named Johnnie Downs.

"Pigskin Parade" is outstanding for its music. The Yacht Club boys, who explain their mature appearance with a song about having been in college for some 14 years, contribute ably with several of their own compositions, all clever. And then there are some excellent numbers called "You're Slightly

DAKOTA FARM BLAZE TAKES FOUR LIVES

WALL, S. D., Oct. 28 (AP)—Four persons, including the bed-ridden mother of a seven-day old baby, burned to death yesterday when their farm home three miles east of here was destroyed by fire.

The dead:

Wesley Galbraith, 25; his wife, 23, two children, age five and three, daughters of Mrs. Grace Hemmes, sister of Galbraith, who made her home at the farm.

Mrs. Hemmes rescued the baby of her sister-in-law, but her own children, trapped on the second floor, could not be reached. Galbraith lost his life when the second floor collapsed as he attempted to save the children.

Firemen expressed the belief the blaze started from an overheated stove.

URGE LAWS TO CURB FALSE TAX REPORTS

AUSTIN, Oct. 28—A committee of the house of representatives which investigated conditions in Texas' oil fields during the past year recommended today enactment of more stringent penal laws to curb falsification of gasoline tax reports.

A report which supplemented one made several months ago said some refineries paid taxes legitimately on gasoline refined from oil legally but frequently made payments under fictitious names on that manufactured from crude produced in violation of conservation statutes.

The committee reported that in some instances the same refinery obtained two permits to handle gasoline, using one for disposal of the legal product and the other for disposal of that processed from excess oil.
