Hereford citizens to comment on site nomination Nuclear waste hearing set Monday

Job Well Done

Although 6-year-old Sarah Wagner didn't actually cut down the tree she is sitting on, she does look satisfied with the job her father, David, did. The Wagners are just one of many Hereford families which are in the midst of sprucing up their homes and yards. This week is Paint Up, Fix

Up, Clean Up Week in town, an annual event sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. For tips and hints on improving your home, see the special section included in today's issue. (Brand Photo by Sandy Pankey).

A public hearing on the proposed nomination of Deaf Smith County for a radioactive waste repository has been scheduled in Hereford Monday night by the U.S. Department of Energy.

The hearing is for the purpose of soliciting (1) comments on the proposed nomination, (2) issues to be included in environmental assessments supporting the nomination of the site, and (3) issues to be addressed in the site characterization plan.

The hearing will be from 7 to 11 p.m. in the Hereford High School Auditorium and the public is invited to attend.

Citizens who desired to make presentations at the hearing were supposed to have made requests five days prior to the hearing. Parties who did not make advance requests to speak at the hearing may register to speak with the presiding officer prior to the start of the hearing. A maximum of 10 minutes was to be allowed on advance requests.

An opportunity to speak will be provided to those who register Monday night if time permits. Time will be limited, depending on the number of advance requests.

Individuals may also submit written comments on the site nomination, the issues to be addressed in the environmental assessment, and

Schools dismiss early Wednesday

Hereford schools will dismiss one hour early Wednesday for an in-service planning session for teachers.

the issues to be addressed in the site characterization plan. These comments will be added to the hearing transcript and constitute the official DOE record of the hearing.

Transcripts of the hearing will be made and the entire record of the meeting will be retained by DOE. It will be made available for inspection at public libraries. Any person may purchase a copy of the transcript of the hearing from the court reporter, who will be identified by the presiding officer.

City Commission meets Monday

City Commissioners will authorize three bids and discuss selection of a consulting engineer for airport improvements Monday night. The three bids include one for aerial application of mosquito control, on three pickups and on a fairway gang mower.

The meeting is at 7 p.m. in city hall.

Homemaker serious about stand with POWER, urges hearing attendance

By JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer

Georgia Auckerman tries to convince a visitor that the phone didn't used to ring that much and people didn't drop in all the time.

One of her preschool daughters - tired of the same boring, adult conversation - confided that "Mama said this may not be over for a hundred years."

The young homemaker is active in POWER (People Opposing Wasted Energy Repositories), which this last week has pushed for attendance at Monday night's Department of Energy hearing on the proposed site in Deaf Smith County. During the past several months POWER has conducted information meetings and circulated petitions opposing the site here.

The hearing begins at 7 p.m. in the Hereford High Auditorium and is scheduled to continue until 11 p.m.

Mrs. Auckerman isn't the kind who has to have a soap box or cause. The nuclear issue didn't just come along to fill her void. She is serious about it.

Solon changes mind

AUSTIN (AP) — The issue of legalized horse-race gambling in Texas was supposed to be dead, at least until another legislative session, but a Houston lawmaker's change-of-mind has resurrected the House's pari-mutuel betting bill.

Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, sponsor of the measure, declared a pari-mutuel betting bill dead last

"I just want to raise my girls. That's why I don't have a job," she said. But her activity in POWER has become an important issue, she believes, in the welfare of her children.

"This isn't 'do we eat chili tonight or go to the movies,' this is important," she emphasized.

"My personal opinion is that this (hearing) is your chance to make yourself heard. They're coming here to see what you have to say. We may or may not have another chance to do that.

White proposes new tax plan

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White's says his latest plan to finance teachers' pay raises with new taxes has been received "warmly" by legislators, but key House members say they remained opposed to any increases in taxes.

"We've got two weeks in the session and it's kind of late to be starting a tax bill that raises $1.2 billion," Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, said Friday.

The governor's new plan would add beer and wine to his previously proposed "sin taxes" on liquor, cigarettes and amusement machines, and would tax computer software and "gasohol."

If approved it would be the first state tax hike in 12 years.

"It would drive the computer industry out of the state, and I think they've underestimated significantly the bootlegging problem," said Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen.

White said beer would cost about 1½ cents more per can, liquor about 40 cents more per bottle and cocktails about 20 cents more per drink if his proposal is approved.

He said the total package would raise $1.275 billion. Of that, $301 million would come from a new 2 percent sales

Racing bill revived

AUSTIN (AP) — The issue of legalized horse-race gambling in Texas was supposed to be dead, at least until another legislative session, but a Houston lawmaker's change-of-mind has resurrected the House's pari-mutuel betting bill.

Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, sponsor of the measure, declared a pari-mutuel betting bill dead last week. But on Friday the 13th, the House committee where the bill had supposedly died revived it and sent it to the House floor.

Houston Rep. Al Edwards, one of the eight members of the 15-member committee who have kept the bill stalled, changed his "no" to "aye," saying he believed House members should have an opportunity to vote on the measure.

"This has been taking up a great deal of my time," Edwards told the crowd packed into the committee hearing. "I really don't think legislation that is this close should be held up."

Edwards had said two weeks ago that he was conducting a survey of his district and might change his vote.

"Pressure from both sides had no effect on me," he said Friday. Edwards said his survey indicated his district favored the bill, though "not enough to sway me one way or another."

The bill approved Friday in an 8-6 vote by the House Committee on Urban Affairs is almost identical to the measure passed last month in the Senate. It would put the issue of legalized betting at horse tracks before Texas voters in a statewide referendum.

The House bill would earmark 5 percent of the betting proceeds for welfare payments to dependent children and 1 percent to state water projects.

The Senate version was the same, except that it designated 3 percent of the handle for water projects.

Rep. George Pierce, R-San Antonio, chairman of the committee and a cosponsor of the bill, tried last week to vote the bill out, apparently believing Edwards was ready to switch.

Final missing campers found

DRIPPING SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — The swollen waters along the banks of the Perdarnales River are slowly receding after a flashflood that roared through a youth campsite and drowned four people.

On Friday, search teams found the last two missing bodies of the Hope Center for Youth expedition.

Jeremy Williams, 11, of Houston, was found seven miles downstream from the campsite, in a creek that feeds into the Perdarnales. The body of counselor Harold Harvey, 26, of Nacogdoches, was found about three miles from the site.

Authorities recovered the body of 12-year-old Jamie Hendrick of Houston on Thursday. The body of John Clowers, 12, of Lufkin was found Wednesday.

All had been swept away by the flood waters that climbed 20 feet above the normal river level early Wednesday morning.

"I don't think they ever got out of their tent," Hays County Sheriff Alfred Hohman said.

Meanwhile, nine other boys from the East Texas home for troubled youths were rescued from the water by three counselors at the campsite five miles downstream from Pedernales Falls State Park. All have returned to their families for an emotional reunion.

"Some of them didn't want to go. They wanted to stay and deal with it as a group," said David Bridges, an educational supervisor at the center.

Cemetery lot owners issue plea for help

On Aug. 5, 1982 a 14-month effort by lot owners at Restlawn Memorial Cemetery was capped by a local association assuming ownership of the cemetery located just north of town. The Restlawn Lot Owners Association, Inc. was formed, and control of the cemetery was shifted to the people's group which had fought to see the final resting place of many of their loved ones was taken care of properly.

Since the transition of ownership, many improvements have been made at the cemetery, but the work is far from over according to association secretary Marian Kreig, who gave the Brand a progress report on the group's activity this week.

New trees have been planted down the south side of the cemetery, and the group is in the process of having a road put down that side of the site as well to make that end of the cemetery more accessible.

General cleanup and enhancement of the beauty of the cemetery has been done, but Mrs. Kreig says a lot more still needs to be done.

"We knew it was going to be a struggle when we got the cemetery," she said. "We knew we weren't going to make a miracle happen in one year, and we're still depending on lot owners out there to help improve conditions."

As a result, the association has set up work days at the site for the first and third Saturday of each month. Beginning next Saturday, organized clean up work will be conducted from 8:30-11 a.m.

The association does not need a riding lawnmower this year because they had one donated to them last year, but other tools will be needed.

"We are asking volunteers to bring their own tools, such as push mowers, shovels, rakes, and wheel barrows when they come to work," Mrs. Kreig said.

"We've got to impress on the lot owners that we need their help. We've gotten help from others in the community and it's time they did something, too."

The Hereford High School Key Club has helped the association in the past, even-making the cleanup of the cemetery the club project this school year.

"We are very grateful for the help the key club gave us," Mrs. Kreig said.

Other items needing attention this spring, in addition to general maintenance work and weed control, are the improvement of the storage shed and the irrigation system.

Many of the grave markers are in need of straightening up as well, work which will have to be done by volunteers, Mrs. Kreig said.

"We are appreciative of the help we've received, and are proud of the cemetery's appearance now, but we could be a lot prouder if we'd just pitch in and get some more things done."

Lake fund news surprises association

The announcement Friday that a $413,000 grant has been earmarked for study of the spillway problems at Buffalo Lake apparently came as a surprise to the Buffalo Lake Heritage Association.

Joel Goucher, Canyon, president of the association, was quoted in this week's Canyon News as saying he "was unaware this was being done."

The association is seeking formation of a water district composed of Potter, Randall and Deaf Smith Counties as a means of negotiating with the U.S. Department of the Interior for ownership of the lake property, located near Umbarger in Randall County.

A vote on the water district is expected in the three counties on Nov. 8. A nine-member temporary water board consists of three citizens from each of the counties. Deaf Smith's representatives are Marie Griffin, elected as the association secretary, Bill Devers and Jim Steiert. The panel members were appointed by their respective county judges.

Representatives of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service have requested a meeting May 31 with the temporary water board members and the three county judges. A board member said spillway problems and the water sources for filling the lake would probably be discussed.

Buffalo Lake was drained when the spillway was ordered unsafe following the 1978 floods. Renovation estimates for the dam have been anywhere from $2 million to $18 million, depending on whose engineers are doing the cost-estimates.

Since the lake was drained, water impoundments have built along the Tierra Blanca Creek, upstream from the lake.

Pioneer Day slated May 28

The annual Mid-Plains Pioneer Day is scheduled Saturday, May 28, at the Hereford Bull Barn. Highlighting the event will be the naming of this year's Pioneer of the Year by KPAN Radio. Mrs. Ray Johnson received the honor last year.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. May 28. The program is scheduled to start at approximately 11 a.m., followed by a covered dish luncheon.

Also receiving special recognition during the program will be the oldest man and the oldest woman present and the person traveling the farthest distance to attend the event.

The invocation will be brought by the Rev. Jim Bozeman and the Pledge of Allegiance will be led by L.J. Clark. Leatrus Clark will give the welcome and Mary Jane Morgan of Muleshoe, the response.

Special music will be provided by Jerry Hoover, and J.B. Noland will give the benediction.

Those attending the annual festivities are asked to enter the Bull Barn from the east end.

Manor balloon launching set

Residents of King's Manor will conduct a balloon launching at 3 p.m. Friday, May 27 in order to raise funds to replace the window blinds in each of the manor rooms.

Manor residents will sell sponsorships, with each sponsor getting his or her name put on a card and tied to a balloon for the event. Cost of sponsorship is $5, and also entitled the donor to a chance at winning a quilt.

The launching will take place in front of the Manor's entrance, and a special flag ceremony and program will precede the launching. Popcorn and lemonade refreshments will be available to those attending the event, which is open to the public.

According to a manor spokesman, the blinds in the rooms are 20 years old, and are badly in need of replacing.

School to acquire old Brand office

The Hereford Brand, Inc., has donated its former newspaper building, located at 130 W. 4th St., to the Hereford Independent School District.

The school board this week approved an agreement with The Brand to purchase the land for $25,000 and the building will be donated to the school district. The land and building had been appraised at a total value of $115,500.

Supt. Harrell Holder said immediate plans for the building call for moving the Special Assignment Center from the old Central school building, and using the rear of the facility for warehousing.

The old newspaper building contains approximately 6,500 square feet of floor space plus a double garage. Total land area of the property is about 12,545 square feet.

Discipline best inflation control

Our sick American dollar was wasting away toward nothing through the 1970s. Inflation appeared malignant.

Then an unprecedented thing happened.

In industry after industry American workers contracted to work for less until we could "knock some cents" back into the Yankee dollar.

Also, government curtailed extravagance.

And thus with public and private self-discipline, inflation was brought under control.

With one significant exception.

The cost of hospitalization has continued to escalate three times faster than the "cost of living. Last year another 11 percent.

Several factors contribute to higher health care costs. Surgeons can now renew your heart arteries so skillfully that "renovated plumbing" has become commonplace.

But at $20,000 dollars each!

And modern medicine, keeping us living longer, tends to compound the need for geriatric health care.

But because Medicaid and Medicare pay only a limited portion of those costs, hospitals have to make up the difference by increasing the bills paid by private patients.

This additional totaled some $5.8 billion last year.

Either you paid that much more in cash—or in higher insurance premiums.

Hospitals — unlike most other businesses — set their charges AFTER providing the service.

So they can add to your bill enough to make up for what they don't get from Medicare and Medicaid.

That's too easy. So that hospitals will have an incentive to hold costs down, conscientious hospital administrators are helping Congress put together a system called PPS, "Prospective Payment System."

Hospitals agree to pre-set amounts for specific services. Patients can know in advance what the cost of any treatment or operation will be.

All payers will pay the same. When hospitals cannot shift costs from one patient to another, hospitals are encouraged better to control costs.

PPS is being tried — and proving successful — in Maryland and New Jersey. Hopefully, by the end of this year, nationally.

The present system has been rewarding the least disciplined with the highest fees. PPS encourages cost-consciousness among all administrators.

And thus in another segment of our economy, with self-discipline, inflation will be brought under control.

Solons not impressed with injection

AUSTIN (AP) — A Houston lawmaker took several intravenous "chelation" treatments at her desk on the House floor, but her colleagues were not impressed enough to pass her bill that would have legalized the therapy.

The measure, which would protect doctors from medical association sanctions for using the therapy for treating anything other than metals poisoning, the only ailment federal rules allow it to be used for, was rejected 49-80 on Friday.

At hearings earlier in the session, many people, most suffering from arterial blockage and heart disease, testified that the treatment was an effective, inexpensive alternative to surgery.

And, as House members looked on, Rep. Senfronia Thompson, D-Houston, underwent several intravenous treatments to demonstrate the therapy is safe.

Before being voted down, the bill was amended by Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Richardson, so that insurance companies would not have to pay for the treatment unless it were used in accordance with federal Food and Drug Administration rules.

Mrs. Thompson said the legislators at the meeting with White who spoke up "were very negative. A few said they'd like to look at it over the weekend, but I think that was a gesture of courtesy more than anything else."

At his news conference, White scoffed at questions asking how he expected to win approval when Schlueter had said only about 60 of the 150 members of the House had agreed to back a tax bill.

"I always seem to do best when people say there is no chance," White said, smiling.

Arms solutions outlined

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — In a squat steel-and-glass office building on Avenue de la Paix, upstairs from a dress shop, men have been discussing the fate of the Earth.

In U.S. government offices there, and in Soviet offices down the same "Avenue of Peace," superpower diplomats duel in two sets of talks that could define the shape of the great nuclear arsenals — and thereby the stability of the world — for years to come.

The more urgent talks resume next Tuesday, when the polished, white-haired Paul H. Nitze, the U.S. negotiator, sits down again with his tough young Soviet counterpart, Yuli A. Kvitsinsky, to search for common ground on limiting nuclear arms in Europe.

They are working against a tight timetable. New U.S. medium-range missiles are to be introduced in Western Europe by year's end.

The second set of talks, on reducing U.S. and Soviet intercontinental missile and bomber forces, reconvenes in early June. Those discussions, led by retired Lt. Gen. Edward L. Rowny and veteran diplomat Viktor P. Karpov, two seasoned arms negotiators, may drag on for years, while a concerned world looks on.

Interviews with officials in Washington, Moscow and Western Europe, and suggestions by arms-control specialists, help sketch in the

EUROMISSILES

The United States plans to deploy 464 ground-launched cruise missiles and 108 Pershing 2 ballistic missiles in Western Europe. The Soviets have a similar number of SS-20s and other medium-range missiles, all but 100 or so within striking distance of Western Europe. The American missiles have single warheads, and the SS-20s three each.

The U.S. negotiating proposal: Set an equal, relatively low ceiling on American and Soviet medium-range warheads.

The Soviet proposal: Set equal ceilings on both missiles and warheads of NATO and Soviet medium-range nuclear forces in Europe. But the missiles of NATO allies Britain and France, mostly single-warhead rockets, must be counted, and a similar balance must be achieved in nuclear-attack aircraft.

Two possible compromises: —In exchange for cancellation of the U.S. deployment, the Soviets reduce the SS-20s well below 100, not expect full one-to-one compensation for the British and French missile warheads, but win U.S. concessions on Europe-based warplanes.

—The Soviets obtain full compensation or more for the British and French missile forces, and the United States deploy 100 to 200 cruise missiles. But none of the Pershing 2s, more feared by the Soviets, would be deployed.

In either case, the Soviets would have to meet U.S. concerns about the possible redeployment of excess SS-20s against Japan or China.

STRATEGIC ARMS
The United States has 2,017 intercontinental missiles and bombers, with 9,681 warheads. The Soviet Union has 2,400 of these "strategic launchers," with 8,781 warheads.

The U.S. proposal: Focus on warheads and on reducing land-based missiles; the Soviet strong point. Slash total warheads on each side to 5,000, with no more than 2,500 on land-based missiles. Moscow would have to shift toward submarine missiles, now less than one-third of its nuclear force.

The Soviet proposal: Follow the traditional arms-control approach and concentrate on launchers. Set a ceiling of 1,800 missiles and bombers, with each country deciding its mix of land and sea missiles. Warhead limits could be negotiated, but are not specified.

The road to compromise is clear, if difficult. The United States would have to back down in its attempt to restructure the Soviet strategic force. The Soviets would have to ally U.S. fears of a "first strike," in which an attack by relatively few of the huge Soviet land-based missiles, carrying 10 warheads each, could destroy most U.S. missiles on the ground.

The compromise: Significantly fewer Soviet land-based missiles but not the drastic reduction proposed by Washington.

At the same time, the Americans would have to deal with Soviet demands for low limits or prohibitions on new U.S. air- and sea-launched cruise missiles, and might have to shelve temporarily the U.S. proposal for lower ceilings on missile "throw weights," or lifting power, a category in which the Soviets lead.

Many analysts believe little can be accomplished in the strategic talks until East and West put together the framework of a Euromissile settlement. Some suggest the two negotiations will have to be merged.

One idea is to set flat limits of 2,000 delivery systems and 7,000 warheads on both sides — to include all nuclear weapons, both long- and medium-range, both in Europe and on the superpowers' home soil.

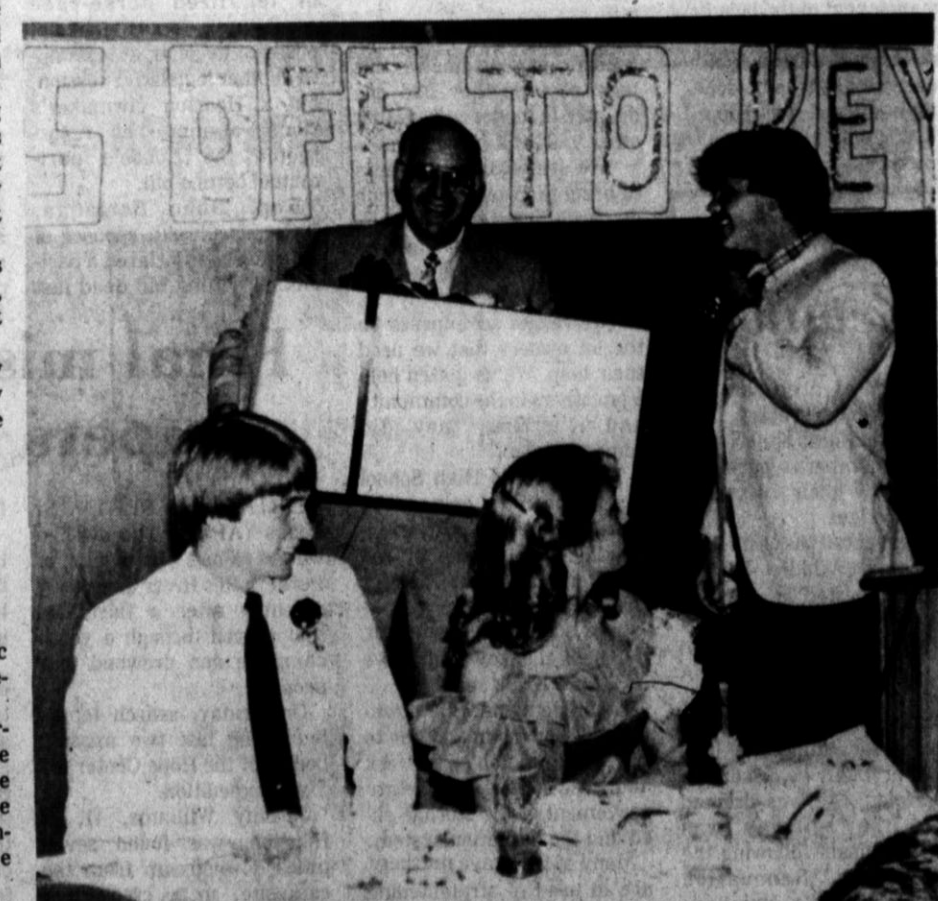

Few foresee quick agreements. Political paralysis in a U.S. presidential election year means big decisions are unlikely in 1984.

Roger Molander, a former White House nuclear specialist, said in an interview in Washington he would be "astonished" if the United States and Soviet Union sign any agreement before November 1984.

Molander, whose fears about the risk of nuclear war led him to form a public education group called Ground Zero, favors adequate nuclear defense coupled with arms control. But he says a key third ingredient is missing — improved U.S.-Soviet relations.

Others fearful of a nuclear holocaust take a less moderate view.

"It doesn't matter if you have 100 missiles and reduce it to 20. You are still in the game," disarmament activist Alva Myrdal, co-winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, said in a Stockholm interview.

tax on gas and electricity sold to factories, while the current 4 percent tax for commercial users such as stores and offices would be dropped to 2 percent.

The package also included a proposed freeze on new state jobs, projected to save $39 million.

White said $910 million of the money raised would go for pay hikes for teachers, giving them raises averaging between 23 and 24 percent spread over the next two years. White had previously demanded a 24 percent pay hike for schoolteachers, making it his top legislative priority.

Of the $365 million left over after the teachers are paid, the governor's plan earmarked $200 million for highways and city streets; $90 million for welfare payments to increase the per-person monthly payment to $60; and $75 million for college construction.

Li. Gov. Bill Hobby, who presides over the Senate, called White's plan a "positive move."

"For 12 years, we in Texas have enjoyed the luxury of not having to consider any new taxes. Now we are confronted with the hard choices of maintaining a first-class state or allowing our vital services to fall into decline," Hobby said.

White said he was "pleased by the warm support that it has gained" among lawmakers, but in the House, where any tax bill must originate, leaders said they would not vote for it.

"I am personally opposed to it," House Speaker Gib Lewis said. "If it is the will of the House, I will not stand in the way of it."

Schlueter, chairman of the House committee that handles tax bills, said, "I'm still firmly opposed to increasing taxes. I'll fight it in the committee and I'll fight it on the floor."

"The votes aren't there, in my opinion, to get a (tax) bill out — now or in a special session," Schlueter said. "You just don't raise taxes during a recession."

White said his tax package would be attached to existing legislation in the House, but he declined to be specific.

After announcing his plan at a news conference, the governor met privately with Lewis and House committee chairman.

Schlueter said most of the legislators at the meeting with White who spoke up "were very negative. A few said they'd like to look at it over the weekend, but I think that was a gesture of courtesy more than anything else."

At his news conference, White scoffed at questions asking how he expected to win approval when Schlueter had said only about 60 of the 150 members of the House had agreed to back a tax bill.

been giving the U. S. Customs Service the short-term, tactical intelligence it needs to intercept smuggler aircraft flying into Texas and other border states.

"...there is virtually no tactical information," according to English, whose subcommittee has been working to improve the anti-smuggling capabilities of the Customs Service, which has primary responsibility for catching airborne drug smugglers.

Texas Rep. Ron Coleman, a subcommittee member in whose district the center lies, tends to agree with English, though he thinks the center is trying to increase its output of tactical intelligence.

Coleman, who visited the center late last year, said it "had the capability but it was not being utilized as fully as I think it can be."

Operations of the El Paso Center are supervised by the Justice Department's Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA).

In contrast to Customs, which generally focuses on spot seizures of smuggled drugs, the DEA tends to emphasize long-term investigations of the drug hierarchy, officials say. Traditionally, the two agencies have sometimes been bureaucratic rivals in the drug enforcement field.

Though Customs also participates in operations of the center, English feels the facility mainly provides the kind of long-term strategic information that is more associated with the DEA.

"You've got strategic information," English said. "...But as far as a place in which you can store information about intelligence that might be helpful in making an arrest tomorrow night, there's very little of that nature."

Cut calories in cooking

By LOUISE WALKER
County Extension Agent
When limiting your caloric intake, it is wise to select a cooking method as carefully as you select the foods. The following cooking tips are helpful in keeping calories to a minimum in home food preparation.

1. Prepare meals using the basic ingredients. This way you can control the ingredients and avoid hidden calories often found in ready-prepared foods and mixes.
2. Take advantage of low-calorie ingredients. Substitute tomato juice for tomato sauce; buttermilk, skim or dehydrated milk for whole milk or cream; low-fat yogurt for sour cream; cottage cheese for cream cheese.
3. Rely on herbs and spices for seasoning rather than butter, butter sauces or gravies.
4. Limit the use of fat or sugar in cooking.
5. Trim outside fat from beef cuts before cooking and trim separable fat before eating.
6. Bake, broil or roast on a rack so beef will remain above drippings.
7. When browning beef for stew, pot roast or ground beef, pour off drippings.
8. Panbroil, rather than panfry. (In panbroiling, drippings are removed as they accumulate.)
9. Select lean beef cuts and extra lean ground beef (80-85 percent lean).
10. Cool and remove the layer of fat from stews or soups.

CARROT COINS
BEEF LOAF
2 lb. ground beef (80 percent lean)
5 long carrots
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1 1/2 tsp. leaf oregano
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/2 c. crushed crackers
2 medium onions, cut in 1/4 inch slices
1 egg
1 small green pepper, cut in thin strips
1 c. sliced celery
1/2 c. water
1 Tbsp. cornstarch
Cook carrots (whole) in boiling salted water in large covered frying-pan 15 minutes; drain. Drain tomatoes, reserving juice; cut tomatoes into large pieces. Stir 1/4 cup of reserved tomato juice, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon oregano and pepper into cracker crumbs in large bowl.
Chop enough onion slices to make 1/4 cup. Add ground beef, chopped onion and egg to cracker crumb mixture; mix lightly but thoroughly.
Place one-third of mixture in 9X5 inch loaf pan, pressing into layer in bottom of pan. Place 2 carrots lengthwise in pan and press into meat mixture. Top with layer of second one-third of meat mixture. Place 1 carrot down the center and press into meat. Add remaining meat mixture to form layer and press last 2 carrots into top, covering them with meat.

Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 1 hour and 15 minutes or until done.

For vegetable sauce, add remaining onion slices, greenpepper, celery, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon oregano to boiling water in saucepan. Cover tightly and cook 15 minutes or until vegetables are almost tender.

Combine cornstarch with remaining reserved tomato juice and pieces of tomatoes. Gradually combine with vegetables and cook 3 to 5 minutes, stirring until thickened. Slice meat loaf in 12 equal slices and serve with vegetable sauce. Makes 6 servings of 2 slices each.

Calculated Caloric Values: entree, 470 (4 oz. beef, 430); other foods, 130. Total calories, 600 per person.

Serving portion: Carrot Coins. Beef Loaf with Vegetable sauce, one-sixth recipe; 1/2 cup mashed potato (with skim milk); salad of 1/2 head lettuce plus 4 leaves endive, 3 radishes; 1 broiled grapefruit half.

STEAK STRIPS ON SKEWERS

1 cup round steak, cut 3/4 inch thick (1 1/4 pounds)
One-third c. lemon juice
1 Tbsp. salad oil
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. paprika
3/4 tsp. dill weed
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 large carrots
1 large cucumber
Trim separable fat from steak. Cut steak lengthwise into strips 3/4 inch thick, and place in plastic bag or deep bowl. Combine lemon juice, oil, salt, paprika, dill weed and garlic; add to steak strips and turn to coat. Tie bag securely or cover bowl and marinate in refrigerator 4 to 6 hours (or overnight).
Pare carrots, cut into eight 1-inch pieces, cook in boiling salted water until tender and drain. Pare cucumber, cut in half lengthwise, remove seedy portion and cut each half crosswise into 8 pieces approximately 1 inch thick.
Drain marinade from steak strips into saucepan, heat to boiling, add pieces of carrots and cucumber and cook 1 to 2 minutes. Thread beef strings on metal skewers (weaving strips back and forth), and thread 1 piece of carrot circled with 2 pieces of cucumber at intervals between the strips.

Place kabobs on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from heat. Broil 4 minutes on one side, brushing with marinade occasionally. Turn and broil to desired doneness, 4 to 5 minutes, brushing with marinade occasionally, 4 servings.

Calculated Caloric Values: entree, 325 (4 oz. beef, 270); other foods, 315. Total calories, 640 per person.
Serving portions: Steak Strips on Skewers, 1/4 recipe;

1/2 cup cooked rice; 1 cup Brussels sprouts; 1/4 cup orange-apple-banana cup; 1 cup skim milk.

BEEF TIP ROAST

Place 3 1/2-5 lb. beef tip roast fat side up, on rack in open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in the thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) to desired degree of doneness: 140 degrees F. for rare; 160 degrees F. for medium. Allow 35 to 40 minutes per pound, depending on desired doneness.

NOTE: For easier carving, allow roast to "set" in a warm place 15 to 20 minutes after removal from oven. Since roast usually continues to cook after removal from oven, it is best to remove it about 5 degrees F. below the temperature desired.

TWICE-BAKED POTATOES

4 small baking potatoes
3 Tbsp. hot skim milk
1/2 tsp. salt
Dash pepper
1/4 c. finely chopped green onion (including tops)
1 Tbsp. shredded Cheddar cheese

Scrub potatoes, prick each with a fork and bake with roast in slow oven (325 degrees F.) until done, approximately 2 hours. Cut slice from top of each potato immediately; scoop out potatoes, being careful not to break skins.

Mash potatoes; add milk, parsley flakes, salt and pepper and beat until light. Fold in green onion. Fill potato shells with mixture; return to oven and bake 15 minutes. Sprinkle cheese on top and bake 3 minutes. 4 servings.

Calculated Caloric Values: 4 oz. beef entree, 210; other foods, 385. Total calories, 595 per person.

Serving portions: Beef Tip Roast, 5"X4" X 1/4" slice; 1 Twice-Baked Potato; 1/2 cup green beans; 1/2 cup Tomato Aspic salad with celery and onions; 8 large pineapple chunks (packed in unsweetened juice) plus 2 tablespoons juice.

One nice thing about hospital shows on TV — you can collect a fine bunch of symptoms on which to rely when calling in sick.

A restaurant with everything on its menus has a pretty sloppy clientele.

Public invited to annual pet show

The Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will sponsor its annual Pet Show Saturday, May 21, at the Hereford Bull Barn. Registration begins at 9:30 a.m. and pre-registration is scheduled at 9:45 a.m. The show will start at 10 a.m. Entry blanks will be distributed at all public schools and people of all ages may enter their pets in the event. Spectators are welcome. A trophy will be awarded to best of show and people's choice. First through fourth place ribbons will also be awarded. The pets will be judged on biggest feet, shortest and longest tail, most unusual markings, most unusual pet, shaggiest pet, longest ears and largest and smallest pet. Each pet must be on a leash or in a cage.

As the years turn

75 YEARS AGO

American Hat Cleaners are now doing their work at the Central Hotel. They have press notices that indicate their work is satisfactory.

The local weather bureau gives the following report for the month of April. Rainfall in Hereford, 1.10 inches; average maximum temperature, 72 degrees; average minimum temperature, 38 degrees; mean temperature, 55 degrees; number of clear days, 8; partly cloudy 5; cloudy 17; lowest temperature, 22 degrees.

50 YEARS AGO

Prospects for a winning football eleven at Hereford High the coming fall are brighter than they have been since the memorable days of 1929.

With a recent addition of another section, Hereford can now boast of a sure enough greenhouse, located on Norton Street. The enlarged plant measures 30 by 40 feet, and is now being stocked with every imaginable variety of plant necessary for that kind of business.

25 YEARS AGO

Thanks to efforts of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, the Deaf Smith Cancer Society's 1958 fund raising drive has exceeded its goal by more than $600.

According to drive chairman Mark Woodall, the chapter raised $1,515.74 of the total $2,534.99 brought in. Goal was $1,900.

County Commissioners Monday took action or heard reports on purchasing tractors, hiring two new employees for the Courthouse, the crow situation, a proposal for a new jail plan from an architect, a plea for drainage improvement on 13th Street and a report from the state's attorney general.

10 YEARS AGO

Commemorative coins are to be minted for Hereford's Diamond Jubilee celebration, including a limited edition of 200 sterling silver and bronze matched sets, it was revealed this week by Rodney Laubhan, Jubilee revenue chairman.

The 272 graduating seniors at Hereford High School will wear their own maroon gowns and caps this year for their commencement ceremonies.

1 YEAR AGO

President Reagan is winning the public opinion battle with Democrats in Congress over who is to blame for failure to enact a new federal budget.

Wholesale prices reversed two months of declines and rose in a tiny annual rate of 0.9 percent in April, the government said today.

Letters to the editor

Citizens urged to attend nuke hearing

Dear Editor,

Monday night is one of the most important nights in the history of our area. The people of the Northeast who use nuclear power let the Department of Energy know years ago that they would not tolerate their waste in the salt formations which exist in New York and Pennsylvania. So this "virtual wasteland" was selected as a good candidate for a dump site. Many people were initially sedated by promises and half-truths that have not held up in the give and take discussions which some 400 people have heard in two recent sessions with the D.O.E.

The people of Mississippi nearly ran the D.O.E. out of their state recently.

Thousands turned up to let the unfortunate people who have been given the task of "selling" the program know that they were not buying. Now that the facts are becoming known about the tragic effects on this area which would result from being selected as one of the three final sites, it is now time to unite and let our voice be heard, loud and clear.

All of the agricultural commodity groups have taken a firm stand against this ongoing insanity. It is unfortunate that, after a 40 percent decline in the price of our grains over the period of December, 1980 until this past winter, we should have to fight his battle also. But it is a battle that will be fought and won. The very fact that D.O.E. is here shows a lack of understanding on the part of many people about the importance of agriculture.

So, let's explain that to them with a packed house at the high school auditorium on Monday night. Millions of dollars of tax-payers' money has already been wasted by the D.O.E. in this area simply because they have misread our people. It is time for calling a halt to this.

Frank Ford

Dear Editor,

Like many families that live in Deaf Smith County, mine has deep agricultural roots. We are proud to farm and we enjoy caring for the fertile soil entrusted to our care. The very thought of a nuclear waste repository is a threat to our way of life, and I would like to preserve the heritage of our lifestyle for our children.

There are many, many reasons that cause me to be so firm in my opposition to a nuclear waste dump. Radiation is one of the worst health hazards (to all life forms) that exists: One year's accumulation of spent fuel (the waste from a nuclear powered generator) is lethal enough to destroy the entire earth's population, if released into the atmosphere.

Transportation may give us the greatest problems concerning nuclear waste. Those who live close to reactors do not want it piled up there. Yet, shipping this hazardous material halfway across the U.S. is not a reasonable solution either. The waste would only continue to be created and we would have waste on site and waste on our nation's highways.

By using the national trucking industry average of one accident for every 400,000 miles traveled, Dr. Resnikoff warns that there could be 27 transportation accidents by the year 2000.

Complete exposure to a spent fuel rod would cause death in just a few seconds. Exposure to much smaller amounts causes cancer, birth defects, and mutations in future generations. How can we deal with a major accident when the substance itself is too dangerous for anyone to approach?

To date there is not a shipping canister designed that can afford complete radiation protection. Heavy-lead liners can not shield us from the transmissive gamma rays emitted by high-level spent fuel.

There are also problems with the geology, hydrology and dissolution in the ground below Deaf Smith and Swisher Counties. Although salt dissipates heat well, it is very soluble and transmissible. In the event of a leak the salt could seal itself over so tightly that the radioactive waste could not be retrieved. The waste could then be carried away by dissolution and into our water supply, eventually effecting most everyone in the Texas Panhandle.

To top this off we do not even have an operating nuclear utility in Texas, and the two being built have had so many construction problems that they may never open. Nuclear energy has turned out to be more costly and harder to deal with than any of its forefathers imagined.

Our air here is fresh, or water is excellent and I can't think of a better place to raise my family. The potential problems of a high-level nuclear waste repository heavily outweigh any benefits our community might receive. It is simply too high a risk. Let's be reasonable and not allow our homeland to become the national guinea pig.

Sincerely,
Tonya Kleuskens

Dear Editor,

The merchants and residents of Hereford who think a nuclear waste repository in Deaf Smith County would benefit them economically should consider the following:

If the repository workers do locate in Hereford who is going to pay the increase in tax revenues to cover such things as schools, water and sewer systems, police and fire protection (to name a few) to accommodate the sudden influx of population? On completion of the project (5 to 7 yrs), these workers will leave. Because of the amount of land taken by the facility there will be fewer landowners to bear the burden of taxation.

Considering the types of people the DOE plans to bring in it will be unlikely that they will even choose to live in Hereford. If this happens all we will have are the dangers.

This project will affect us all. How many quality doctors, teachers, and other professional people do you think Deaf Smith County will attract when it becomes the site of the NATIONS FIRST HIGH LEVEL NUCLEAR WASTE REPOSITORY? I am sure that you would consider a move to Three Mile Island!

This repository will be here from now until the end of time. Passing by you and lying under you will be a substance that is volatile, toxic, hot and highly dangerous. Even if our community could reap a short term monetary gain, is it worth the gamble?

Think of the risks and the worry this "dump" will bring with it, not only now but to future generations. Don't let greed cloud your thinking. Please attend the DOE hearing on Monday, May 16.

Thank you,
Linda Brown

Penultimate Word

ART BY ANY OTHER NAME

A guy named Christo is at it again. He is the guy who strung up a nylon fence over 24 miles of California and called it art. He suspended a fabric curtain between two Colorado mountain peaks and called it art.

His latest project is to surround 11 small islands in Florida with 200-foot wide sheets of pink plastic. This project cost $3.1 million and will be on display for two weeks. He calls it art.

I think this is a new version of the old Emperor's new clothes game. The emperor ordered a new suit from his tailor. The tailor made no suit, but told the emperor he had made a suit so brilliant that only the brilliant could see it. No one wanted to admit they weren't brilliant so they oohed and aahed over the suit while the emperor stood there in his birthday suit. The game went well until a small boy said, "The emperor ain't got nothing on." Small boys do not play the same games we adults play. The spell was broken and everyone began to shout, "The emperor ain't got nothing on."

I can imagine how folks will ooh and aah about the pink plastic surrounding the islands. No one wants to admit that they have no taste so they will call it great art and justify the cost. Where does this guy get $3.1 million to spend on such stuff except from people who want everyone to think they know art?

Well, now, as silly as all of this sounds it has great applications for West Texas. I am tired of folks telling me this country is ugly. We do not have trees and hills and babbling brooks so we are ugly. The thing to do is convince them we are art.

We could surround the manure piles with pink plastic and call it art. We could name it Piles Surrounded. We would have to gag some of the characters in town to keep them from calling it something with two initials.

If we would find a fancy name for the distinct smell of our town and call it art we would have it made. Eur de Old West might do.

If folks thought it was art they would wade through the cow lots and relish the smell to ooh and aah over the art. It might work.

Incidentally, the pink plastic surrounding the islands in Florida looks like a gigantic Pepto Bismo spill.

Warm Fuzzies,

Bootleg Philosopher Solution offered for arms race

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek tries to explain the arms race this week.

Dear Editor:

For what seems like years now the newspapers have been full of arguments, bickerings, proposals and counter-proposals on arms control, arms reductions, nuclear freezes, negotiations and high-level name-calling.

It gets so complicated it's hard to understand. One side wants to count missiles but not warheads, the other side wants to count both. Another question is: do ground-to-air missiles equal air-to-ground missiles and how do you equalize submarines when you never know which ones have to come up for air?

Furthermore, one nuclear bomb piled on top of another in a mad race by each side to stay equal if not ahead, they wouldn't fit on modern tractors. I don't know what you could bet a nuclear bomb into or who'd want the job. But the world would be a pleasanter place if Russia and the United States were armed to the teeth with nothing but water cannons and adjectives.

Two countries run by grown men, with a woman thrown in here and there for good measure—the United States and Russia—are simply trying, sort of half-heartedly, to reduce the number of nuclear weapons from enough to kill everybody on earth nine times down to four and a half times, a program that'd suit cats and reduce the cost by fifth percent.

When you've got enough bombs to kill everybody once, it seems like the sensible thing to do would be to shut down the factory and spend your money some place else. Congress could think of something to do with it. But getting countries to act sensibly these days is as hard as it's been since countries were invented. In fact, even since tribes were invented. Ask the tribes of Biblical times, the American Cherokees and Commanches, Republicans and Democrats.

Off the Runway

Swim accessories add bonus to beachwear

The sun's getting hot, the days are getting longer and the beach (or the pool if you're land-locked) is calling.

The summer of '83 is upon us and, with their usual cunning, the apparel manufacturers have devised new and intriguing ways to liberate us from our money. Not only is there an incredible array of swimsuits and coverups beckoning us from the racks, but also there are the accessories.

Oh, what a candy store! Sunglasses, beach totes, sandals, hats, beach towels...even pillows. There's just so much out there to have fun with that you won't believe your eyes when you hit the stores.

In shades (that's sunglasses for those of us who remember the Beatles on Ed Sullivan) the size is huge, the lenses dark, the look spectacular. After years of sunglasses which did nothing more than decorate the nose, it's nice to find a pair that actually block out some sun. Let's face it, ladies, squinting can cause wrinkles.

On top of those glasses, put a hat. This year is the best in a long time for hats. Great carthwheels of straw tied, with bright ribbons are the traditional choice, but there's more to see. A sun-visor striped in brilliant hues can protect the skin of your face, while a fedora gives less protection, but more fashion.

Look for a variety of styles to fit your different moods - lacy white garden hats dripping with posies and satin streamers project a romantic image; vivid colors in baseball caps or sailor hats paint a dashing sporty picture and sleek, sophisticated shapes in lacquered straw make you feel glamorous.

From the head, move to the toes. Pick a pair of bright sandals strung with beads to carry you to waterside. This year's heels are tiny—both low and small—and the whole shoe has a more delicate feel than in summers past.

Straps are slender and colors are often pale and frosted - not pearlized as they were last year. Forget metallics, they shout "1982." Look for some of the soft shades-lavender, shell pink, coral and sky blue. Or, pick the shiny darks in patent leather—berry, apple red, electric blue—all trimmed with white.

While we're on the subject of feet, don't neglect yours. No matter how pretty the sandal, an unkempt foot will ruin the look. Take a good, hot, soaking bath, push the cuticles back on your toe nails, clip and file and apply some polish.

If you're addicted to wearing pale stockings, please, tone down your toe nails. Nothing looks worse than bright red toes blaring beneath white stockings.

On second thought, something does look worse - DO NOT WEAR REINFORCED TOES WITH SANDALS. Really, ladies, I can't make it more clear.

As you head for the water, you'll obviously have to take some paraphernalia and this year's totes are something to behold. You can carry ruffles or duffles or anything in between.

Some of the cutest bags sport whimsical appliques, while others look as if you're going to the office instead of the beach.

But whatever shape you choose, be sure to put in the most important beach accessory of all. That's a good sunscreen. You may think a tan looks gorgeous, but remember, the sun can really destroy your skin.

So, if you don't want to resemble a prune when you reach 45 (and we all have years to go) protect yourself.

The word "plastic" comes from the Greek plastikos, which means "able to be molded."

Psychological side of dieting hard to conquer

Editor's Note: This is the second in a three-part series on the stress of dieting.

HOUSTON - The 80 million Americans who are overweight will spend millions of dollars this year in the search for slimmness, most of it directed towards turning "will power" into "won't power."

However, a specialist in behavior modification at Baylor College of Medicine believes the overweight would be better off to forget about the concept of will power completely.

John P. Foreyt, Ph.D., associate professor of medicine and psychiatry, said that in today's society it is almost impossible to eat without gaining weight, particularly as people get older and their metabolism slows down.

Rather than fight a constant state of self-denial, they should try to understand what causes them to eat too much relative to their exercise level. The key to losing weight is to expend more calories through exercise than are consumed in the food eaten each day.

Many things cause people to put on weight, including when they do most of their eating.

"Most people with weight problems tend to eat the bulk of their calories in the evening; they generally skip breakfast and eat a light lunch," Foreyt said. "People who tend to eat when they're bored, lonesome, anxious or depressed - they're not eating because they're hungry. The mood state is telling them 'I'm bored, what can I do?' Eating usually is the easiest thing to do."

Other major reasons why people eat focus on the role food plays in our society. People meet for a business lunch, or get together with friends for dinner. Foreyt also said that lifestyles are so built around labor-saving devices people simply don't burn off enough calories anymore.

"Most people who maintain lost body weight do it by exercising. Aerobic exercise (that which speeds up the heart beat for a sustained period of time) not only burns off calories while we're active, but it also speeds up the metabolism for up to six hours afterwards. That burns off even more," Foreyt said.

The Number 1 reason people give for not exercising is a lack of time, Foreyt said. "What we say is: The first priority should be exercise. Then fine time for other things."

Also, too many people overdo exercises when they start. They wake up the next day and find their whole body hurts from strained muscles.

"You must begin any exercise regimen slowly and build gradually," Foreyt said. "Increasing the distance you walk each day is a good starting point."

Dealing with the moods behind eating is more complex.

"The only way to combat eating out of loneliness and depression is to get active," he said. "Take adult education classes. Get out with other people in the evening."

If You Lost Your Hearing Tomorrow, Would You Do Something About It?

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of one of the smallest Beltone aids of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

It's yours for the asking, so send for it now. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. The actual aid weighs less than a fourth of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. All hearing problems are not alike and some cannot be helped by a hearing aid but many can. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 50960, Beltone Electronics Corporation, 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, IL 60646.

EYE CARE UPDATE

Dr. James Simnacher, O.D.
CONTACT LENSES OR OPTOMETRIST GLASSES?

QUESTION: I have an appointment with my optometrist for a new prescription. I've been wearing glasses and wonder if I should change to contact lenses?

ANSWER: A lot depends on personal preference. Both glasses and contact lenses do the job they're supposed to do: help you see clearly. Contact lenses are popular with young people who are nearsighted and older people who have had cataract surgery. Many other people like them, too. In fact, about 10 million Americans have been fitted with contact lenses; and another million-and-a-half put them on for the first time each year. Both glasses and contact lenses have advantages. You have to determine what's best for your needs. Your optometrist can help you decide.

consisted of Todd Shire, Bobby Baker, coach Mike Fields, Vicki Veigel, Monica Devers and Carol Blevins. The cheerleaders rocked for 12 hours, earning enough money to help take care of expenses incurred during the past school year. The volleyball tourney was sponsored by the student representatives; the rock-a-thon by the cheerleaders and concession stand by the Red Cross.

Unpredictable Ben Hogan has been greatly misunderstood

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

FORT WORTH (AP) — Always into the wind.

Why does Ben Hogan hit his almost daily practice shots into the teeth of the elements?

He'll stand on some isolated corner of Shady Oaks Country Club and do it by the hour.

Like many of the mysteries about Hogan, the aloof golfing legend, the obvious answer may be the wrong one.

You assume Hogan is working on keeping the ball low.

On the ninth tee at Carnoustie, Scotland, last summer I heard a different reason.

An American playing Carnoustie is immediately heather-deep in the Hogan mystique.

This is the public course where Hogan won the 1953 British Open on his only try.

The knowledgeable Scottish caddies can recite you chapter and verse about Hogan's rounds.

On the ninth hole, I mentioned to the four caddies in our group that Hogan still practices like he was going to play windy Carnoustie the next morning.

"Ah lad, it's his balance," said one caddie. "The wee ice man always kept his feet. His swing never changed in the gales."

Any golfer knows, particularly ones in Scotland and Texas, that keeping your swing tempo in the wind is one of the most difficult things to accomplish.

So THAT's what Hogan was really doing.

The point is you can easily get Hogan wrong.

The point is made because Colonial National Invitation week is here again and many of the thousands of spectators are asking about "The Hawk" who won the event five times.

"Hogan's Alley" they called it and you can still see the trophies in the clubhouse. But you won't see Ben.

Why?

The obvious answer is that Hogan is a loner.

Could another reason be that he prefers quiet evenings with wife, Valerie, in their golden years?

Could another answer be that after Colonial founder and close friend Marvin Leonard died, the 70-year-old Hogan just didn't have his heart in social whirrs?

You see, nothing involving Hogan is absolute.

He still solitary hones his golf game by the hours.

He played his last competitive round in 1971 at Houston's Champions, completing 11 holes in 11 over.

His putting had reached an embarrassment level. Fatigue caused flaws in his shotmaking.

No comebacks are in order — not even for the Legends' better ball tournament with a partner riding an electric golf cart.

Does he pound balls by the hour to test equipment for his golf company? Probably, but again the real reason is likely to be more elusive.

Could another answer be that he receives great joy and relaxation like you and me in hitting a ball solidly?

Perhaps the reason Hogan no longer talks to the media is because he feels he is so easily misunderstood.

He has been described as "cold, calculating, no nonsense."

I didn't find him that way almost 10 years ago in a nearly day-long interview.

He did appear to be a man who never wanted to lose control of his emotions; an almost shy man who didn't want to be fussed over.

He did appear to be trying to melt his ice image. He said during the interview that he couldn't concentrate and smile at the same time; that he wanted to be liked.

He reminded me of another stone-faced public sports figure who had just won his first Super Bowl.

A man named Tom Landry. Landry, basically a warm man with a sharp sense of humor, has finally shed his stand-offish reputation. The magic of television helped, particularly the Washington Redskins bit in the "do you know me?" American Express advertisement.

Hogan won't be as lucky. His reputation likely always will be that of a legend battling the unconquerable wind alone.

SWC tourney

Longhorns clip Owls, 4-3

AUSTIN (AP) — Pitcher Tim Englund of Rice said he would rather lose to Texas 25-1 than on a "chink" hit such as the one that beat him 4-3 a month ago.

On Friday night, it happened again, and he lost again by the same score in the Southwest Conference baseball tournament.

Jamie Doughty dashed home from third to score the winning run with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning when substitute first baseman Curtis Fox misplayed Mike Brumley's grounder for a 4-3 Texas victory.

Arkansas also edged Houston 4-3 in the first game of the tournament.

Texas, the SWC champion and ranked No. 6 in the nation, was matched against Arkansas tonight. The first-round losers, Houston and Rice, were scheduled to play earlier today.

Texas' Calvin Schiraldi, pitcher of the year in the SWC, struck out seven and held Rice — the best hitting team in the conference — to five hits to extend his record to 10-1.

Englund, the loser, is 9-2, with both losses on 4-3 scores to Texas, which beat him in mid-April with a bloop run-scoring single in the ninth.

When Brumley's grounder bounced off Fox's glove toward second, Bryan Fox grabbed it and threw to Englund, who was covering first, but the throw was too late to catch Brumley. Englund stalked first base umpire Chuck Swallow and argued about the safe call to no avail.

"We played as bad tonight as we've played all year," said Rice coach David Hall. "We just gave it to them on a silver platter ... I really feel for Tim Englund."

Another error by Rice, which has the second-best fielding average in college baseball, led to Texas' tying run in the seventh.

First baseman Jose Tolentino led Texas with a home run and double and scored twice.

Jay Bluthardt and Foxx had run-scoring doubles for Rice.

"There is a very small difference between the two clubs," said Texas coach Cliff Gustafson. "I don't believe you can measure that difference. I guess the only explanation is playing at home is giving us the edge."

Arkansas lashed 10 hits off

Doug Drabek of Houston, including a two-run homer by Mike Robinson in the eighth. Scott Loseke singled and tripled and scored two runs for the Razorbacks, which planned to pitch freshman Tim Dietz against Texas on Saturday night.

Houston managed only seven hits off Charlie Corbell in 8 2-3 innings. Corbell had no strikeouts but still beat the Cougars for the fourth time without a loss over the past two years.

Shortstop Mike Massey, a .191 hitter, swatted a solo home run for Houston in the third inning, but reliever Lester Lancaster got Massey to ground into a force play for the final out of the game

Streaking Darrell Evans, Giants rally past Cincinnati, 8-5

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
In his 12-year major league career, Darrell Evans has hit 239 home runs and sometime next season he should be closing in on 1,000 runs batted in. But he has rarely, if ever, been on a streak like the one he's on now.

Evans has hit safely in 12 consecutive games and a .577 streak over the last six games — 15-for-26 — has boosted his batting average to .330, a heady figure for a slugger who came into the year with a .261 career mark and has never hit higher than .281 over a full season.

"I don't know what I'm doing," said Evans, who ignited San Francisco's eighth-run fourth inning with a double and capped it with a two-run homer — he also had a single — as the Giants defeated the Cincinnati Reds 8-5 Friday night for their eighth victory in the last nine games.

"I don't think I've ever been in a better streak as far as hitting the ball hard. Even in batting practice I'm hitting the ball hard. Until it stops, I'm not even going to try to think about what I'm doing."

In other National League games, the Chicago Cubs hammered the Philadelphia Phillies 10-2, the San Diego Padres turned back the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4, the Houston Astros downed the Atlanta Braves 5-2, the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Montreal Expos 5-4 in 12 innings and the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the New York Mets 2-1.

With Cincinnati leading 1-0, Evans doubled to lead off the fourth inning against Rich Gale. Doubles by Chili Davis and Max Venable put the Giants in front 2-1 and Duane Kuiper and Johnnie LeMaster contributed two-run singles before Evans' seventh home run of the season completed the scoring.

Evans' hitting has drummed up memories of his 1973 season with Atlanta when he hit 41 homers and drove in 104 runs. "Even in 1973 and '74 I don't remember being this consistent for this period of time," he said. "It's been two weeks, and I don't think I've had a bad game during that time."

everybody the way he's hitting the ball so consistently," said Manager Frank Robinson, a Hall of Fame slugger. "I think he's surprised himself a little, that's how hot he's been. I'm sure even he has to be somewhat surprised."

Jackson sets whiff mark

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Reggie Jackson did what he does the best — or at least the most. He struck out ... again ... and again ... and again.

His three strikeouts Friday night in California's 11-inning 5-4 loss to the Minnesota Twins made him the first major leaguer to fan 2,000 times in a career.

"I don't look at it like a magic number or anything," said the Angels' slugger. "Two thousand is too many, I guess. But you can justify it because I hit home runs."

Well, not that many this season. He's got only four homers and 11 runs batted in so far and is in the throes of a slump that has dropped his batting average to .213.

"Right now," he said, "I can't hit a beachball. The only thing important to me is trying to get a hit."

Three Angels — Doug DeCinces, Bobby Grich and Tim Lincecum — did homer, but it was an 11th-inning double by Len Faedo which gave the Twins the victory.

Elsewhere in the AL it was Baltimore 8, Texas 1; Kansas City 5, Detroit 2; Cleveland 5, Toronto 1; New York 3, Chicago 1, and Oakland 9, Seattle 2. Boston's game at Milwaukee was rained out.

"If I'm hitting well, the strikeouts don't bother me," said Jackson, who has struck out 34 times in 89 at-bats this year. "But striking out does bother me now because I'm not swinging the bat well. I don't feel comfortable."

It is, of course, a tribute to Jackson that he's been around long enough to strike out 2,000 times. "You've got to be pretty good to for managers to keep putting your name in the lineup," he observed.

And what does this kind of record mean to him? "It means I did nothing but miss the ball for four full seasons," he once said.

Faedo, who sat out several games earlier this week, pounded a Mike Witt pitch into the gap in left-center field for the Twins' winning hit.

"I'm just trying to stay on top of the ball," he said. "I've been hurt for four days and I just want to help the team out any way I can."

Oilers search for Cup edge

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — So far, the story of the Stanley Cup finals has been that the Islanders know how to win and the Oilers are still searching for avenues to victory.

The three-time National Hockey League champions carried a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven finals into tonight's game at the Nassau Coliseum. The fourth game also will be here on Tuesday night.

Since 1980, the Islanders always have found that winning touch in the playoffs. The Oilers, who entered the NHL after being absorbed from the World Hockey Association in 1979, thought they'd found the formula. But it has escaped them in this series.

"I can't say I expected to win two games in Edmonton," said 10-year veteran Denis Potvin, the leader of the Islanders' staunch defense, the best in the NHL. "But I also can't say I'm really surprised. "We've always been able to do it on the road. We've never gone through a final without winning at least once away from home.

"Emotionally, however, we have to try to keep stable." That might be a little difficult in front of the home crowd, which will give the Isles a tremendous ovation when they take the ice. After all, this is a team in pursuit of history.

If the Islanders win this series, they'll become only the second NHL franchise to win four straight Cups: the Montreal Canadiens did it in 1976-79 and also won five in a row from 1956-60.

"I knew in Edmonton we had the possibility to get the first and, even though we played one of our worst games overall in the playoffs, Smitty (goaltender Billy Smith) was fantastic and we did win," said swift left wing Bob Bourne, the top postseason point-getter on the Islanders this spring.

FCA group to form here

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) Adult Chapter of Hereford will have an organizational meeting, Wednesday beginning at 7:30

Tulia sets tennis tourney

Tulia's Second Annual Open Tennis Tournament, for junior high and high school students, will be held June 4, and will be sponsored by the Tulia Chamber of Commerce sports committee.

The tournament will be played at the Mackenzie Park courts, as well as the high school courts. Junior high matches will begin at 8 a.m. (June 4) and high school matches at 1 p.m.

If a student was in junior high as of May, he or she may compete in that division. The same holds true for the high school division.

Entry fee is $6 per event, and no player may enter more than three events. The entry fee, which may be made out to the Tulia Chamber of Commerce, must accompany each person's registration.

Players wishing to compete should mail entries to the Tulia Chamber of Commerce, Box 267 in Tulia (79088), or to W.M. Tooley, Drawer 87, Tulia.

p.m. in the Reddy Room of Southwestern Public Service. Billy Hobbs, the FCA director for this area, will be present to help in the organization of the Hereford chapter.

Some of the purposes of the FAC include:

To provide Christian fellowship for the adults in a community; to give permanence and stability to junior and senior high school huddles and college fellowships in the community.

To provide opportunities for area athletes and coaches to attend a national conference; be the guiding force behind all FCA programs in the community; to financially support the FCA's outreach; to reinforce the role of the church in the local community.

The chapter is open to all persons who are interested in spiritual growth. A person does not have to be an athlete to be part of the FCA.

Lakers' spurt downs Spurs, 113-110; LA up 2-1

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Jamaal Wilkes compared Los Angeles' third-quarter performance to an "unstoppable tidal wave" that drowned the San Antonio Spurs.

The Lakers came out blasting in the third quarter Friday night and buried the San Antonio Spurs 113-100 to take a 2-1 lead in their National Basketball Association

Western Conference final series.

The defending NBA champion Lakers, trying to become the first team since the Boston Celtics in 1969 to repeat as title winners, had trailed by a point at halftime, but outscored the Spurs 34-19 in the decisive third quarter.

"Our defense triggered in the third quarter," said Wilkes, who scored 12 of his game-high 26 points in the period. "When we pitch the ball up like that, it's like a tidal wave."

Game 4 of the best-of-7 series will be here Sunday afternoon.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 25 points, also said the third quarter was the key. "We just had great defense and good timing. We disrupted their offense and made them make mistakes," Abdul-Jabbar said.

"In the last half, we didn't let them do what they wanted to do," he added.

The Lakers rattled off the first six points of the second half for a 58-53 lead.

Los Angeles had another six-point run about a minute later to take a 66-57 advantage with 7:19 in the period.

The Spurs closed the gap to 72-67 with their own 6-0 run, but the Lakers answered with another six in a row later in the period to make it 80-67 with 1:41 left. The Lakers led 86-72 entering the final period.

The Spurs' Mike Dunleavy hit two three-point goals in the space of a minute at the start of the fourth quarter, but San Antonio couldn't get a sustained rally going.

San Antonio pulled to within 10 at 96-86 with two free throws from Mike Mitchell with 7:46 remaining, but never got any closer the rest of the way.

Norm Nixon had 22 points for the Lakers and Earvin "Magic" Johnson added 13. Mitchell led the Spurs with 23 points, followed by Artis Gilmore with 17 and George Gervin with 15.

Gilmore had 14 rebounds to 10 for Abdul-Jabbar, but the Lakers outrebounded the Spurs 52-44.

The Spurs battled back from an early deficit with nine straight points that gave them a 21-16 margin on a layup by Gervin with 4:20 left in the first period. San Antonio stayed ahead until Bob McAdoo came in late in the quarter and scored six quick points to cut the deficit to 27-26.

Mitchell hit a 18-foot jumper to end the quarter with the Spurs ahead 29-28.

Los Angeles opened the second period with two straight baskets, but the Spurs pulled ahead when Gene Banks hit a 10-footer and then a layup to make it 39-37 with 7:20 left.

The Spurs stayed on top until the Lakers tied the score twice before halftime at 49-49 and 51-51. After Nixon hit one of two free throws to give the Lakers a one-point lead, Jones was fouled with 14 seconds left and made two free throws to make it 53-52 at halftime.

Focus on Malone has stymied Bucks' offense

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Moses Malone's 40 points and 29 rebounds reflect only part of the problems the Philadelphia 76ers' brilliant center has caused the Milwaukee Bucks in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Bucks Coach Don Nelson suspects that his players have worked so hard trying to contain the 6-foot-10 Malone that it's hurt their concentration on offense.

"We would have four guys running one play and one running another," he said. "Obviously, we can't afford that against a team like the 76ers."

"Probably part of the lapses we've had on offense are coming because we've had to concentrate so hard on defense against Moses," he said. "We're thinking so hard about that that maybe we're not executing on offense."

Nelson refuted a suggestion that the 76ers' quickness has been the Bucks' main problem in the series.

"The biggest problem is Moses, far and away," he said. "He's the MVP, and he's got to be dealt with as a team. They're a terrific basketball team, and Moses makes everybody around him better."

The Bucks need much more production from 6-11 forward Alton Lister, who had six points and five rebounds in the first two games, if they hope to neutralize Malone.

"I had a little talk with Al about it," Nelson said. "It's bothering him that he's not playing as well as we would like, but he's going to be all right."

Philadelphia's swarming defense also has frustrated Milwaukee's guards. All-star Sidney Moncrief made only one of nine shots and scored seven points in Game 1.

Junior Bridgeman and Brian Winters were a combined 2-for-18 from the floor in Game 2.

"I thought they (76ers) took us out of quite a few things that we wanted to do," Nelson said.

"They play such good, solid team defense that it's awfully hard to sustain a run at them," Bucks forward Marques Johnson said.

"Our defensive intensity late in the game has been at its peak throughout the playoffs this year," 76ers guard Andrew Toney said.

A fifth game, if needed, would be in Philadelphia Wednesday night.

Refugio's Lott has busy day

AUSTIN (AP) — It was a long meet for Refugio's James Lott, but when it was over he had collected a national record, two state titles and propelled his team to a second straight state high school track championship.

Lott, a University of Texas football recruit, highlighted the day with the best-ever high jump by a United States schoolboy. The South Texas senior soared 7-4 1/4 in his second attempt at the height.

Longhorn football Coach Fred Akers watched with a gleam in his eye from the Memorial Stadium press box.

"He told me back during recruiting that he was going to break that record," Akers said after the record leap.

Lott had the bar pushed up to 7-5 1/4, but missed on two attempts.

The future UT defensive back started his day by defending his Class 3A long jump title with a leap of 24-1.

Refugio captured the 3A title with 62 points. Giddings was second with 48. Lubbock Estacado defended its 4A state boys track title with 62 points. Dallas Madison was second with 48. Dallas Lincoln was third with 45.

After the two field event wins on a steamy day, Lott prepared for three running events. He opened with a second place finish in the 110-meter hurdles, 0.3 seconds behind teammate Ray Hutchinson's conference record time of 13.4. Hutchinson will join Lott as a UT grider next year.

Later in the meet, a tiring Lott failed to defend his state title in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles. He ran a 37.4 and led until the final two hurdles. Dewayne Bordley of Hooks won in 37.1.

Waste dump 'prize we don't want'

By RANDALL HACKLEY
Associated Press Writer
HEREFORD, Texas (AP) — Job-starved communities such as Naturita, Colo., and Clovis, N.M., have lobbied without success to become the home of radioactive waste dumps and MX missile silos.

Andrews, Texas, Mayor Windle Harper said earlier this month that his South Plains town also would be happy to house a nuclear depository because "a lot of land out here" would be ideal for the annual burial of nearly 1.5 million pounds of the nation's high-level nuclear wastes.

But the rich Texas Panhandle farming community of Hereford has no hankering for nuclear wastes. Most residents have expressed horror that Hereford has been named one of nine proposed underground dumping sites in six states for the $8 billion nuclear depository.

"That's a prize we're not sure we want to win," Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Vice President F. Michael Carr said.

Residents of this green, tulip-filled town of 18,000 and state legislators vow to voice their misgivings on Monday, when the Department of Energy holds a hearing in Hereford to discuss a huge nuclear waste depository proposed for construction nearly a half-mile beneath Deaf Smith County.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said he won't stand quietly by the wayside because the "federal government wants to sweep its nuclear trash under the lush agricultural carpet of Deaf Smith County."

The state Senate passed a bill this spring that says plans to drill shafts through Texas' part of the Ogallala Aquifer, which supplies irrigation waters for farmers from Nebraska to New Mexico, first must get the approval of the state Department of Water Resources.

State Sen. Bill Sarpaulis, D-Canyon, mandated in his bill that projects such as DOE's proposed drilling near Hereford first guarantee that no wastes be leaked into the aquifer before drilling approval is granted.

The bill, designed to harness federal plans to build a nuclear depository near Hereford or nearby Tulla, is pending in the state House.

About 1 million of the cattle and some of the state's richest farmland surround Hereford. Said Carl King of the Texas Corn Growers Association: "We don't want the stuff here. We don't care if they put it in the Statue of Liberty."

Petroleum geologist Gerald McCathen has urged federal officials not to put nuclear wastes deep under a 16-square-mile section of northeast Deaf Smith County: "I hate to see the garden spot of the nation destroyed."

A DOE hearing also will be held Monday in Albuquerque, N.M., to discuss the proposed $2.1 billion Waste Isolation Pilot Plant about 26 miles east of Carlsbad, N.M. The DOE announced in March that WIPP's salt beds are suitable for burying low-level defense industry nuclear waste.

WIPP is expected to house wastes from America's weapons program in six-mile-wide salt beds 2,150 feet underground.

A DOE hearing will be held Tuesday in Tulla, which also is under consideration for a depository site. Hearings to discuss nearby waste sites already have been held in Las Vegas, Nev., Hanford, Wash., Heflin, La., and Salt Lake City. The DOE is considering two depositories near southern Utah's Canyonlands National Park, and also at underground salt domes near Richton, Miss.

Some Hereford residents recently have taken a crash-course in nuclear wastes, and plan to tell the federal government that Deaf Smith County, described by the Chamber of Commerce as "the nation's bread basket," is poorly suited for the depository.

"It doesn't make sense for the federal government to consider storing radioactive nuclear wastes in underground facilities so close to this precious water supply," U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, said in April 1982. "I am concerned the DOE is putting the cart before the horse."

Gov. Mark White already has attacked the Reagan Administration over the hearings, saying the talks are premature because safety guidelines for the 2,000-acre underground site could jeopardize the health and welfare of the surrounding populace.

Tulla farmer Delbert Devin agrees: "I just don't like the idea of having nuclear wastes in my backyard."

Critics say five shafts to be drilled nearly a half-mile through the Ogallala Aquifer could — under a worse-case scenario — leak radioactive wastes into the underground river and contaminate much of the Great Plains farmland.

Ten test boreholes have been drilled by DOE contractors in the Panhandle area since 1978 at a cost of $25 million. The results haven't proven wastes can be buried successfully beneath Deaf Smith and Swisher counties without the threat of contamination, critics say.

The shafts for the proposed nuclear depository would pierce the 300-foot-deep aquifer, and come to rest about 2,500 feet underground in a maze of salt-encased caverns designed to house most of the nation's industrial nuclear waste tonnage by 1998.

Each year, up to 1.5 million pounds of wastes used by the nation's nuclear reactors would be transported across country and buried at the site, DOE analyst Jeff Smiley said.

Used nuclear rods at present are stored in temporary pools of neutron-absorbing boric acid water near each of the nation's 80 reactors. Fifty-nine reactors currently are under construction, DOE officials say.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled April 20 that states may ban new nuclear plants until the federal government devises a safe method for disposing of radioactive wastes.

Those fighting Texas' becoming the America's dumpyard for nuclear wastes come from both political persuasions: former Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican, told a Canyon audience last fall he believed "valuable productive land" in the Panhandle shouldn't be used for waste burial.

Ten-foot-tall stainless steel canisters containing waste crystallized in glass would be lowered into the caverns, packed in corrosion-resistant material and surrounded by grout in salt beds that the DOE says is the safest and most technologically feasible way to store the wastes.

"Isolation of nuclear wastes will be assured through a system of multiple barriers — both engineered and natural — placed between the waste and the environment," the DOE wrote in a 1982 report.

The DOE plans to narrow the proposed depository site list from nine to five by August, and to three by December. The president will choose the final site before March 1987.

The proposed nuclear dump site is welcomed by some in Hereford because DOE aides predict up to 1,800 workers will be employed during the 11 years of construction. An estimated 1,200 people permanently would be employed at the site, boosting the area's economic health, Smiley said.

Nearly three decades of nuclear power experience have proven the industry is safer than many think, said Westinghouse nuclear power expert Sam Rod. He told Hereford residents during winter DOE hearings that electricity actually is more dangerous, and annually kills about 1,000 people.

West Germany "has already placed nuclear wastes into salt formations" without incident, Rod added.

But environmentalists such as Don Hancock of the Southwest Research and Information Center in Albuquerque doubt any benefits will filter down to a community such as Hereford.

Possible contamination of the aquifer — lifeblood to Deaf Smith farmers — and geological instability of the 70- to 200-foot-deep salt veins, where wastes would be stored for thousands of years during the time that nuclear wastes remain hazardous, makes the Texas projects too iffy, Hancock said.

"We're concerned about our water, and we'll scream our heads off until we get assurances over this hot issue," Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher said.

Tulla Chamber of Commerce head Gary Anderson, who helped organize STAND — Serious Texans Against Nuclear Dumping — said federal studies on the suitability of the Hereford and Tulla sites are inadequate. "The impact of storing nuclear waste in salt beds really hasn't been discovered."

Others point out that nuclear waste sites aren't immune to earthquakes. Since 1914, there have been about two dozen earthquakes in Texas, mostly in the Panhandle and West Texas. In June 1951, a quake measured at 6.0 struck between Hereford and Amarillo. The destructive San Francisco earthquake of 1906 measured 8.3 on the Richter Scale.

In 1971, Lyons, Kans., was selected as the nation's first nuclear waste repository following four years of research on Project Salt Vault.

By 1972, waste leakage and political outcry caused the site to be abandoned, Hancock said. Since then, nuclear wastes have piled up at the country's reactors and at weapon assembly plants such as Pantex near Amarillo.

There are three existing low-level radioactive dump sites — at Barnwell, S.C., Beatty, Nev. and Richland, Wash., but no nuclear high-level waste dump.

The DOE says salt has the advantages of low permeability, high thermal conductivity for wastes that heat to 140 degrees, plasticity, low cost of mining and an abundance, making it the most desirable nuclear waste medium for the estimated 10,000 years that wastes can remain hazardous.

But during the last five years, "significant concerns have arisen about the suitability of salt," Hancock said. Water and brine can affect the salt's strength, erode canisters the wastes are stored in and enhance leaching of wastes into the aquifer, he said.

DOE and Battelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, Ohio, said in 1981 that an acceptable minimum salt thickness is 125 feet for Texas sites built underground at a depth of up to 2,500 feet.

Geologic characterization reports issued by the DOE indicate Texas' Oldham and Randall counties have thicker salt formations than near Tulla in Swisher County, which has no salt thicker than 75 feet. The Deaf Smith test sites have salt beds that are 75- to 175-feet thick, the report said.

Hancock said salt dissolution by water and pressurized brine is a potential disqualifying feature that has not seriously been considered by the DOE, and that gas and oil produced within 50 miles of Hereford shows significant mineral deposits that make the area unlicensable.

The DOE said significant mineral resources such as hydrocarbons around a test site and geologic instability could disqualify a site. The DOE should "provide technical justification" for recommending the Hereford site, Hancock said. "Sufficient geologic information to justify the site ... does not exist."

Other geologists are equally pessimistic: "(The DOE report) is most incomplete in the critical areas of hydrogeology, structural geology and tectonics, and geochemistry," said E.G. Wermund of the University of Texas' Bureau of Economic Geology.

"Such additional information should be developed ... before DOE makes further decisions," Wermund said in a January letter to the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council.

And while leaders of economically pressed communities such as Clovis, Naturita and Andrews say their employment could improve if they take on some of the nation's more dangerous business, others have urged locals to act decisively to prevent burial of nuclear wastes in their backyard.

Dr. Fred Millar, hazardous materials analyst for the anti-nuclear Environmental Policy Institute in Washington, advised Hereford residents in February to "make yourself obnoxious to officials. (Offer the least resistance), and you're going to end up with the dump."

Nuclear info fair May 21

A Hereford group that is opposed to the location of a nuclear waste dump in the Texas Panhandle will stage a Nuclear Information Fair on Saturday, May 21. People Opposed to Wasted Energy Repositories (POWER) has assembled a group of experts on various issues involved in the geologic disposal of high-level nuclear waste. The fair will be May 21 from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center, with speakers, films, information tables, presentations, slide-tape shows, and printed material.

Some of the agencies to be represented at the fair are the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas, the Texas Department of Agriculture, the Texas Land Commissioner's office, the Department of Energy, the Nuclear Information and Resource Service, and the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District.

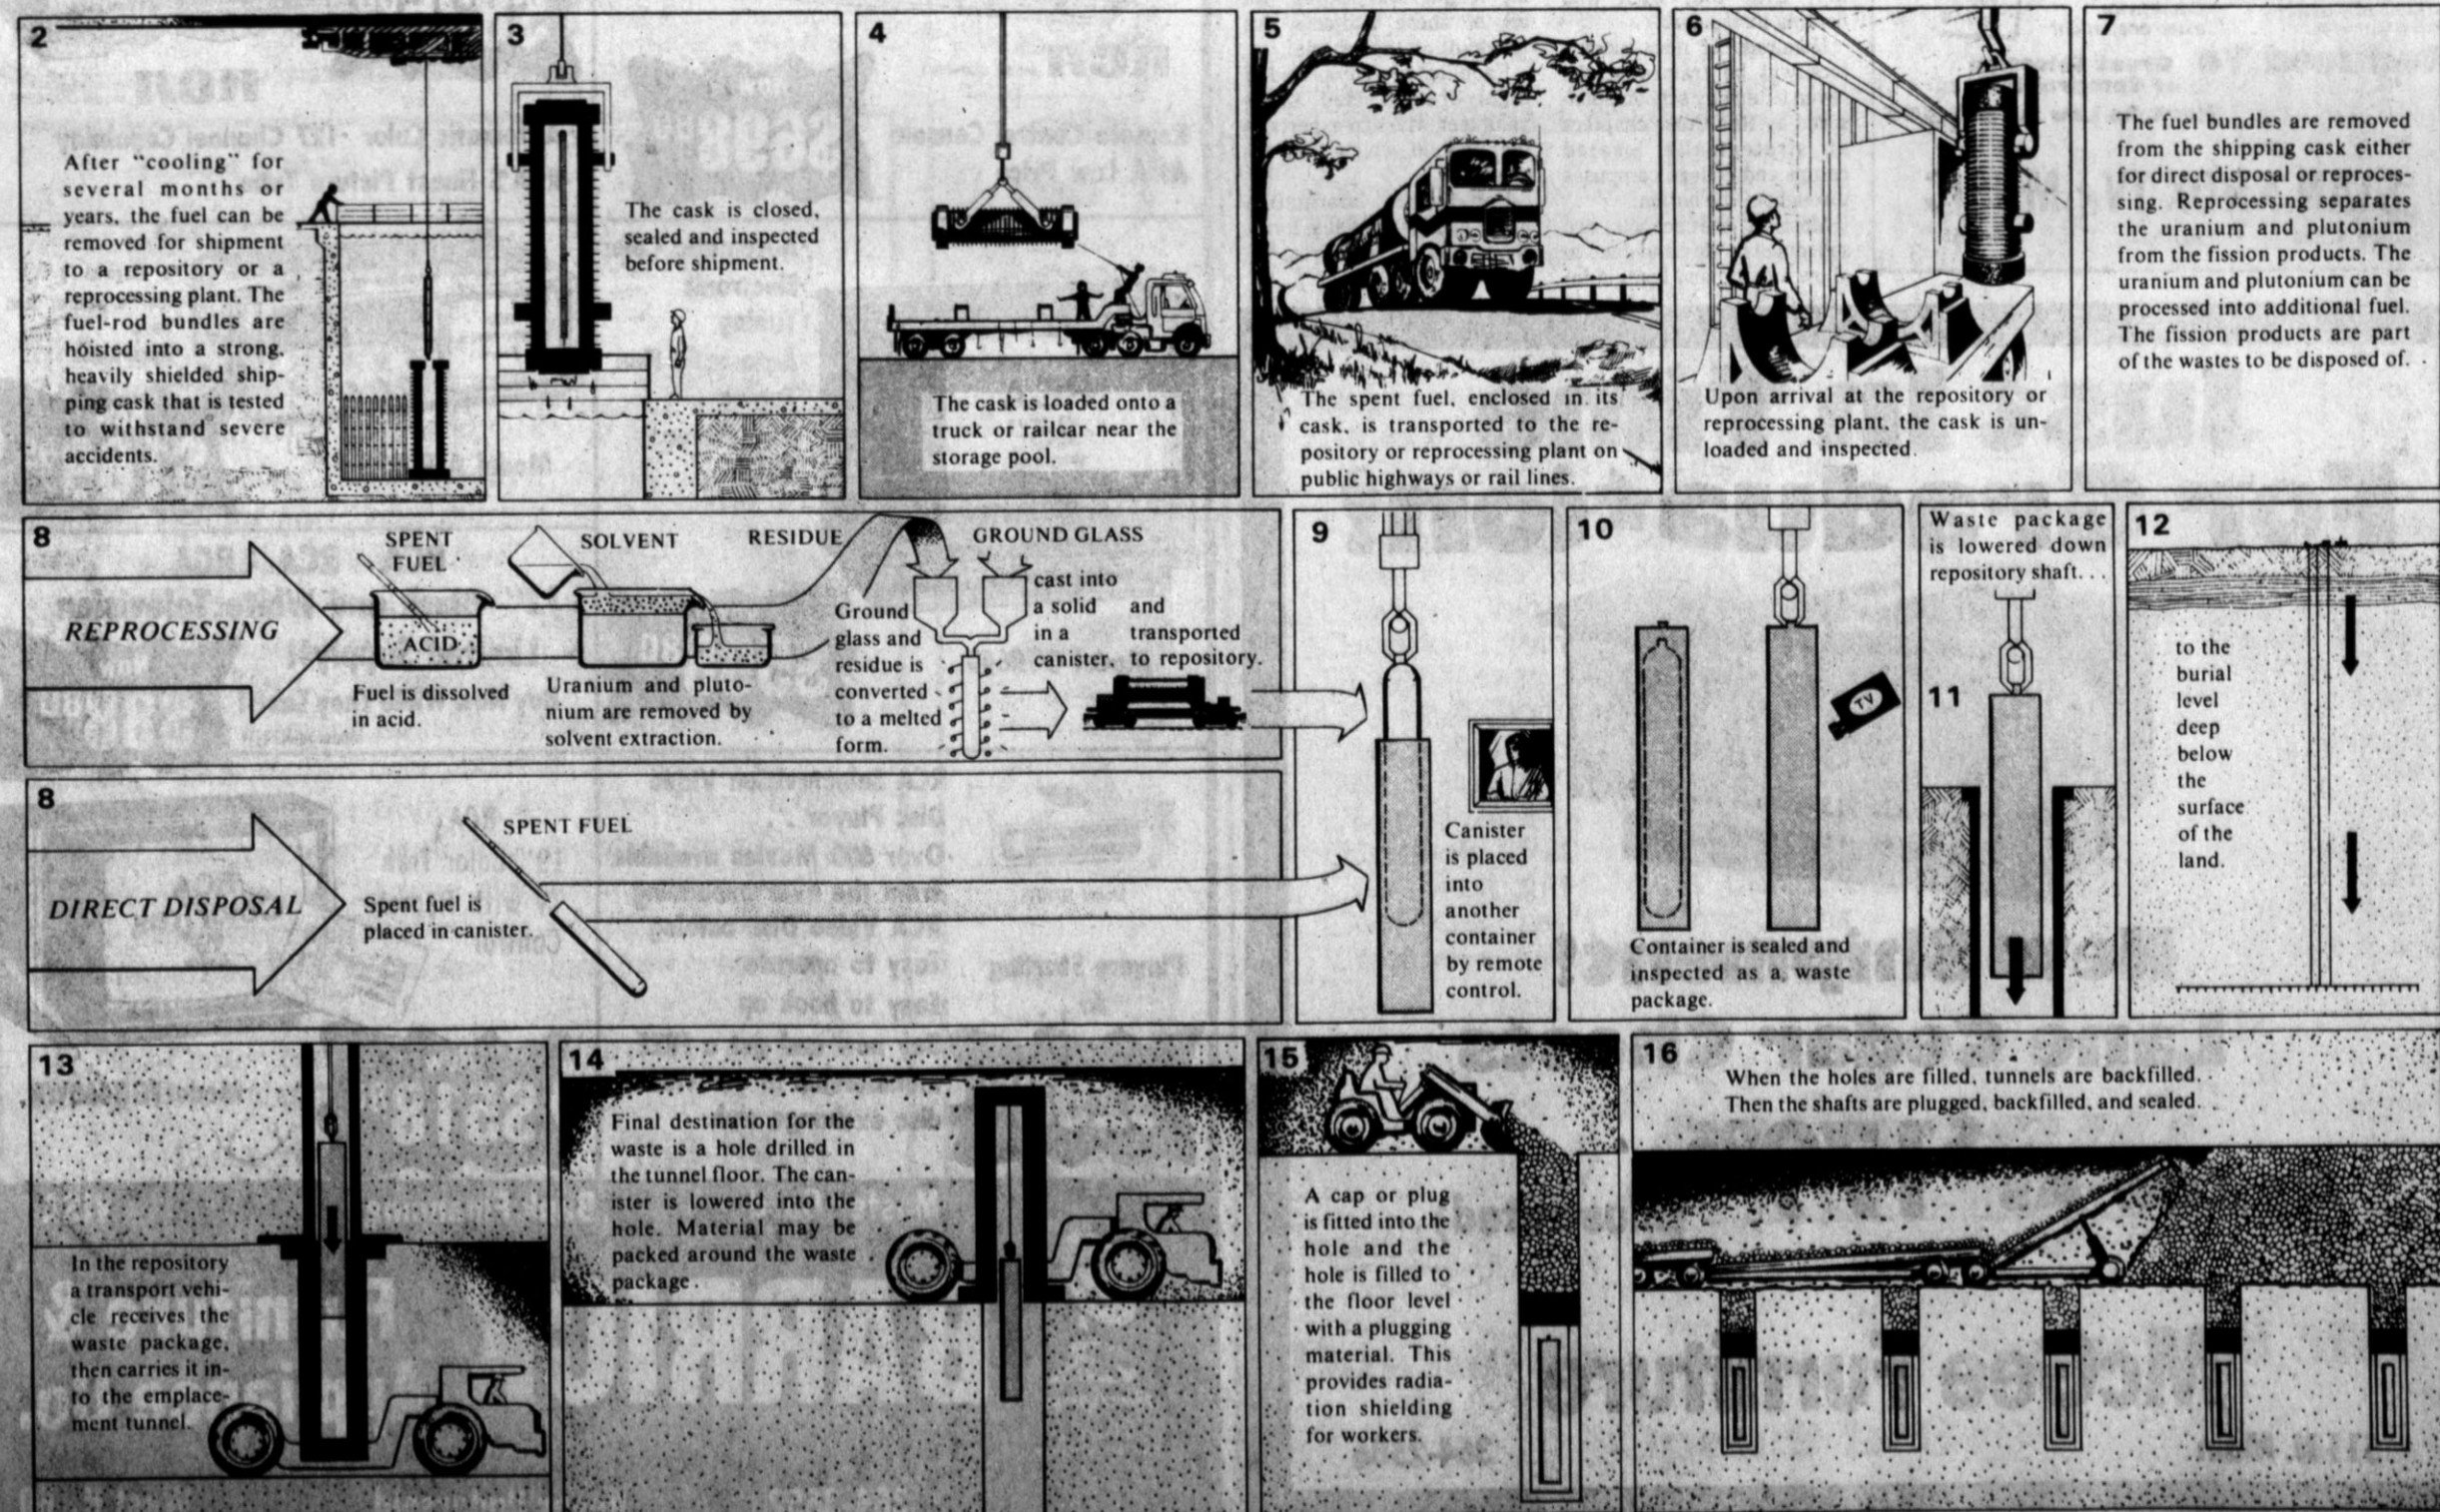

Speakers will address many of the concerns raised by the DOE's proposal to bury highly radioactive wastes in deep underground salt beds in the Panhandle. Presentations are to be made on social and economic impacts, political involvement, effects on agriculture and water, stewardship of the land, aquifer contamination, the geology of the region, and the health effects of radiation.

Residents are invited to attend all or any part of the event. Homemade sandwiches and baked goods will be available for those who might wish to eat lunch at the fair.

Repository Concept

Since some citizens have expressed confusion as to just what the procedure will be for depositing nuclear waste in a repository, regardless of where it is located, The Brand is providing the illustration below. The illustration shows a planned concept for isolating spent nuclear fuel, or high-level wastes from reprocessing. Nuclear fuel consists of rectangular bundles of slender rods 12-13 feet long. Each rod contains small pellets of uranium oxide. The fuel is considered spent when it no longer functions efficiently in the reactor. Bundles of spent fuel are then removed from the reactor and placed in a pool of water, where they cool and their radioactivity decreases. The water also shields workers from radiation. The next 15 steps in the process are described in the illustration below, reproduced from a U.S. Department of Energy pamphlet.

Grandson of local resident is wed

Pamela Kay Arnold and Steven Alan Owen, both of Fort Worth, were united in marriage Saturday evening at Perkins Chapel on the campus of Southern Methodist University in Dallas.

Gene Thompson, pastor of Broadway Baptist Church in Fort Worth, and Liles Arnold, the bride's brother, officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Patsy Cheney Arnold of Dallas and Fredrick Liles Arnold, also of Dallas.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G.P. Owen Jr. of Fort Worth and the grandson of Mrs. G.P. Owen of Hereford.

Jeannie Arnold Barrett of Dallas served a matron of honor and Tim Chovanec of Fort Worth was best man.

The couple will reside in Fort Worth.

The bride is a graduate of Texas Christian University, summa cum laude, with a B.S.F.A. in speech pathology, and the University of Texas at Austin School of Law, Juris Doctorate.

The bridegroom earned a B.A. in government from the University of Texas in Austin and graduated from the Texas Tech University School of Law, Juris Doctorate.

Red Cross Update

By BETTY HENSON
Executive Director

Advanced lifesaving classes will begin Monday at 6:30 p.m. at the City Pool. Registration will be held the first class period. Books are available at the office. The Advanced Livesaving Book is $4.25.

The board of directors will meet Tuesday at 12 noon at the Red Cross office.

The CPR instructor class has been postponed until June 18. We will try to complete the instructor class in one day. Please call the office to register.

The uniformed volunteers met for a luncheon Thursday at the Red Cross office. Alice Gilleland, chairman, presided over the business meeting. Those present were Nell Culpepper, Bertha Dettman, Lauria Walker, Anna Wilson, Jo Coleman, Sadie Shaw, Ruth Romero, Mildred Brown, Lottie Wertenberger, and Betty Henson. The next meeting will be held Thursday, June 9.

American Red Cross chapters across the country will conduct aquatic, first aid, and small craft schools this spring and summer to help meet the need for qualified swimming, lifesaving, first aid, CPR and boating instructors.

Hundreds of new instructors will be trained at the seven to ten day schools sponsored by Red Cross chapters at strategically located camps and college campuses throughout the nation.

Most of the schools are scheduled in May and June to allow aquatic and boating instructor candidates to take training before starting summer activities. These Red Cross schools also offer a unique opportunity to train first aid instructors to conduct in-plant courses for their employers to help business comply with the requirements of the Occupational Health and Safety Act of 1970.

Men and women 17 years of age or over, who are better than average swimmers and physically fit, are eligible for instructor training at the aquatic and small craft schools.

First aid instructor candidates are not required to have swimming ability, but must meet fitness requirements. Some swimming instruction may be available to these students, if desired.

A comprehensive curriculum of lectures, seminars, course instruction and practice sessions teach the following techniques: basic swimming, water safety, adapted aquatics (swimming for the disabled) basic, standard, and advanced first aid; cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), canoeing, sailing, and boating. Not all of these subjects are taught at all the schools.

Faculties are comprised of highly-trained Red Cross volunteer who are experts in the field in which they instruct.

For further information about classes available locally, contact the Red Cross office at 364-3761.

Fine Arts Association presents scholarships

Three Hereford High School seniors were presented $100 scholarships by members of the Hereford Fine Arts Association when the group met at the Texas Gallery this week.

Art students Jacinto Guerrero, Pam Nixon, and Tanya Gauthreaux were recommended for the scholarships by Gayla Kimball, HHS art instructor. They were guests at the meeting and brought displays of their work.

During the business meeting, presided over by 50th reunion

slated May 28

The Hereford High School graduating class of 1933 has scheduled its reunion May 28 at the Hereford Bull Barn. The 50th anniversary class reunion will be held during Pioneer Day activities.

Charles Lyles, a discussion was held on the many responsibilities the Fine Arts Association has in the upcoming Jubilee of Arts in August.

All members were asked to sign up for the job they would like to assist in; otherwise these duties will be assigned as necessary. Twenty-eight out of 55 available booths have been sold.

Lyles will be doing a painting for the event. The H.F.A.A. will have an entry in the parade, with Vinita Wear as chairman of this committee.

The next regular meeting will not be until September, although combined efforts of all members will be required during the Jubilee of Arts.

Mary Lou Aguirre presented a program on ceramics. She began by pouring slip into a mold, showing the technique of removing the greenware from the mold and how to clean the object before firing at 1800 degrees.

After the greenware is fired once it is then called bisc and is not quite so fragile to handle. The bisc product can be finished in several ways. For example: dry brush, any of a number of different types of glazes, or antique and gold.

Refreshments of dips, crackers, cookies and punch were served by the host, Gary Hammett, and hostess, Shirley Wyssmann, to 19 members and guests.

Books outline ways to help children

By DIANNE PIERSON
County Librarian

Several new books on children and their special needs will be available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library.

In "Helping Children Cope With Separation and Loss," Claudia L. Jewett, child and family therapist, explains the simple techniques she has developed to help adults help children through their grief.

With few resources to turn to when a child loses a loved one, they fear for their own survival. They feel sadness, anger, guilt, shame, despair—yet many lack the words to describe their feelings. If their feelings are not resolved, their emotional distress will manifest itself in adolescence and adulthood as depression, anxiety, alcoholism, or suicidal tendencies.

Jewett describes the stages of mourning and the behavior that can be expected of grieving children at each stage. She explains how to help children to come to a timely resolution of their grief.

"Helping Children With Specific Learning Disabilities" by Donald H. Painting is also available this week at the library. If your child, or the one you teach, has difficulty learning, it's important for you to know that behavior and impaired skills, not intelligence, may be the root of the problem.

Now with this guide, you can identify the impaired skills and understand and control the negative behavior patterns that thwart learning.

By reading vignettes that describe children with specific learning disabilities, you'll be able to identify a child's behavior among the hyperactive child, the inattentive child, and the test-avoidant child, plus many more.

Dr. Painting feels there is no reason why a child's life at school should be miserable. And there's no reason why life at home should be draining for children and parents.

A learning disability can be overcome for children and parents. A learning disability can be overcome and the place to begin is with "Helping Children With Specific Learning Disabilities."

Other new books available this week are "Children's Toys and Books: Choosing the Best" by Dorsi McNeely Johnson and "Murphy's Boy" by Torey L. Hayden, author of "One Child."

Christine Frerich, Roger Batenhorst

Marriage is set

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Frerich of Route 1, Hereford, announce the engagement of their daughter, Christine Marie, to Roger Leonard Batenhorst. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Batenhorst of Route 1, Canyon.

A July 9 wedding is planned at Immaculate Conception

Catholic Church in Vega.

The bride-elect is a 1981 graduate of Vega High School and has attended West Texas State University and Amarillo College.

The prospective bridegroom, a 1976 graduate of Canyon High School, is presently engaged in farming near Umbarger.

Alcoholism program slated Monday night

A free program entitled "Alcoholism: A Family Illness" will be given at 7 p.m. Monday in the Heritage Room of the Deaf Smith County Library.

Barbara Karins, alcoholism counselor at the Hereford Family Services Center, will present the program, which will include a showing of the film, "Soft as the Heart of a Child."

Ms. Karins stresses that family members of alcoholics and others with chemical dependencies are often overlooked. Children and spouses also have many problems.

New Arrivals

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Devers of Austin are the parents of a son, Jonathan Andrew, born May 12. He weighed 6 lb. 2 oz.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Fuhrmann and Roy Devers, all of Hereford, and Mrs. Sue Kiss of Spearman.

Hereford CowBelles to meet on Tuesday

The monthly meeting of the Hereford CowBelles will be held at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday at the Hereford Country Club.

The guest speaker will be Dr. R. Hollis Klett, a consulting livestock nutritionist in Hereford, who will speak and show slides about "Beef Around the World."

Dr. Klett has seen how cattle are fed in other countries including Uganda, Kenya, Switzerland, Germany, France, England, Algeria, the Sudan, Iran, Mexico, and Japan.

A native of Menard, Texas, he received his bachelor of science degree from Texas A&M university in 1958 in the field of animal husbandry. He also received his master of science degree and Ph.D. from Texas A&M University.

Klett has been on the faculty of Louisiana State University and director of the Texas Tech Research Center at Pan-Tex.

All members and guests are welcome to attend the meeting on Tuesday. Reservations should be made by Monday by calling Mrs. Darlene Fields, 364-6190.

Ann Landers

Diabetic educates others

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have had diabetes for 20 years and am constantly amazed at the number of diabetics who accept the fact their sex lives are over. I have devoted the last several years to educating people about this disease.

Of 13 million diabetics, up to 40 percent of the males suffer some long-term problems with impotence. There is help available for these men - counseling, drug substitution, hormone treatment, and-or devices surgically implanted have proven very satisfactory.

Today more than 70,000 males in the U.S. are enjoying sexual relations, thanks to the penile prostheses. (These implants simulate normal erections.) If your readers want more information, they can contact me by letter, Box 2112, Scottsdale, Ariz. 85252.

You would be performing an additional public service, Ann, by letting your readers know about the monthly newsletter called Good Control, which I edit and publish. I share news of research, treatments, medication, eye care and diet, dining-out tips and recipes.

I am a healthy, happy diabetic whose main goal in life is to help others with this disease to be healthy and happy, too--Stephanie M. Ryder, R.N.

DEAR STEPHANIE: I have read your newsletters and checked you out with my consultants. You get high marks all the way 'round. Be prepared for a blizzard of inquiries. You're sure to be inundated.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sweetheart is a musician. The money is good when he works, but jobs are scarce. A few months in one club, a road trip as a fill-in, and he is living off relatives again.

He wants to get married. I love him but his lifestyle drives me bananas. I own my own home and have a child from a former marriage. I am accustomed to a husband who gets up in the morning, goes to work and comes home at night. This man likes to sleep all day and stay up until dawn. He's good to me but aside from a nice disposition, all he has is two suits of clothes and a set of drums. I need advice.--Off-Key In Loveland

Wedding planned

Susan Marie Paetzold and Jimmy Don Messer, both of Amarillo plan to exchange wedding vows on July 16 at Coulter Road Baptist Church in Amarillo.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Paetzold of Lake Tanglewood (Amarillo). She is a 1982 graduate of Canyon

High School and is currently employed by Tascosa National Bank.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Messer of Canyon High School in 1981 and is presently employed by Hominy Feeds.

Wilke to speak at annual conference

Dr. Richard B. Wilke will be featured speaker at the 75th session of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church, to be held in Lubbock May 31-June 2.

Dr. Wilke, senior minister of First United Methodist Church in Wichita, Kan. is widely known as a Bible teacher and popular public speaker. His Sunday morning services are carried live on television covering central and western Kansas and reaching into the borders of Oklahoma, Colorado and Nebraska.

He is the author of three books: "Tell Me Again, I'm Listening," which deals with healthy communication in marriage; "The Pastor and Marriage Group Counseling," a portrayal of counseling groups within the church; and "Our Father, The Lord's Prayer for Today," a devotional book based on the prayer.

Abundant Life

INCREASE THE VALUE
By Bob Wear

Appreciation is uplifting and enriching, because it means "to add to the price - increase the value." It is the opposite of depreciation.

Feelings of admiration, approval or gratitude are commendable, but the full contribution to the good of all is never realized until these feelings are expressed in some form of appreciation.

The value in appreciation is twofold. It helps us to know that we and our life performance are appreciated, and it helps us to appreciate others and their service. When such feelings are expressed, the value increases. It is good for us to express our appreciation to others, and good for us to receive expressions of appreciation from others. "When someone does something good, applaud: You'll make two people happy."-Goldwyn.

Assuming that we are not appreciated, or that our service to others is not appreciated can be a source of mental anguish. It can cause a crippling degree of discouragement, and may even injure our self-concept. Some people have been known to give up important work, because of the feeling that no one appreciated what they were doing. Of course, this is a mistake which we must not make. It is most unfortunate that this should ever happen, because everybody loses.

You realize, as I do, that we must not permit ourselves to be too dependent upon expressions of appreciation. This makes us too dependent upon others for our personal success. Nevertheless, the feelings of appreciation and appropriate expressions of these feelings are essential to the best in our interactions with others; in the home, the school, the church, the community and every other unit of the social order.

Without appreciation, life can be dreary and discouraging; but with expressed appreciation, there is an "increase in value" of all the desirable elements in the life structure.

DEAR OFF: You may hear the music, but you're not paying attention to the words. If his lifestyle drives you bananas NOW, what do you think will happen if you marry the guy? He sounds like a poor risk to me.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 40, married to a wonderful man and we have three good kids. Five years ago my mother became disabled and had to retire to a nursing home. I visit her as often as I can and feel guilty for not going more.

My recently widowed mother-in-law is dropping hints about living with us. She is grossly overweight, does nothing constructive and complains of being lonely. My husband is her only child. She has money but hates to spend it.

I become unglued when I think of having her under this roof night and day. It would ruin my life. What should I do?--Dark Clouds In Va.

DEAR VA: Don't wait for the other shoe to drop. Tell your husband now about your fears and anxieties. Enlist his help. Tell him you will do everything short of letting her move in. And keep your word.

Gamez demonstrates making carnations

Paula Gamez demonstrated making carnations at the Sugar Works Cake Decorating Club's meeting on Thursday night at Legion Hall. Members of the club then tried the procedure. The business meeting was called to order by Carol Odom, president, and Clara Trowbridge read two poems, "At Day's End" and "Smile." Frieda Davis, Thoma Cockrum, and Anita Diaz were welcomed as visitors. Nominations for new officers were received. They include Ms. Gamez, president; Ms. Odom, vice-president; Sue Rogers, secretary-treasurer; Ms. Davis, reporter-historian; and Barbara Edwards, parliamentarian. The officers will be installed at the next meeting, scheduled at 7 p.m. May 26 at Legion Hall. The group will meet for dinner at a restaurant following the meeting. The cake for the Satellite Center for June will be made by Maya Parikh. Refreshments were furnished by Ms. Odom and Ms. Trowbridge. Others attending were Ms. Edwards and Juanita Diaz.

Members participate in club fine arts program

Members of Pioneer Study Club met at the Community Center on Tuesday for a covered dish luncheon. The hostesses, Mmes. R.L. Wilson, Ray L. Johnson, and O.G. Hill Sr., decorated for the luncheon in the club colors, purple and white. Mrs. Hill made the flower arrangements for the tables. Every member participated in the fine arts program which was organized by program leader Mrs. W.C. Hromas. A variety of crafts were on display, including oil paintings, china painting, needlepoint, and quilting, as well as collections of Hummel figurines from Germany, miniatures, shells and other items. During the business meeting, the group made plans for Mid-Plains Pioneer Day, scheduled May 28 at the Bull Barn. The club members will be in charge of registration. Members also decided to enter the Town and Country Jubilee parade in August. There will be a called meeting in August to finalize plans for the next year's course of study. Others present were Mmes. Frank Ball, E.E. Bishop, Jim Clark, Herman Ford, Thomas Manning, Ted Panciera, A. Petersen, Paul Rudd, Clayton Sanders, Delmar Sigle, and Miss Roberta Campbell.

Donald Jay Rea, Sheri Lynn Irby

Couple to Wed

Question: If one has a polyp in the colon does this mean cancer will develop?

ANSWERline: Polyps are tiny grape-like growths, generally non-cancerous, that develop in the linings of intestines. They sometimes become cancerous if not removed. This means one is at higher risk for colon cancer and should have a regular examination.

Seniors may purchase graduation pictures

Hereford High School seniors may purchase graduation pictures, which will be taken by a professional photographer during commencement practice on Thursday. Order forms have been sent home with students and should be returned to the school along with $2.50 for each picture by Thursday. The pictures will be colored 5x7's of the graduates receiving their diplomas.

This is being done to avoid confusion caused by parents and others taking pictures during the commencement ceremony. No one will be allowed on the field or at the front rail during graduation. Baccalaureate and commencement practice will be held at Whiteface Stadium at 11 a.m. Thursday. Seniors will be dismissed at the end of second period. Other events scheduled for seniors include the senior assembly, senior picnic, baccalaureate, and commencement. The senior assembly will begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday. Seniors should report to the auditorium in their caps and gowns at 8:30 a.m. Seniors will leave at the end of the first period on Friday for the senior picnic at Wonderland Park. Baccalaureate is scheduled at 8 p.m. Sunday, May 22, and commencement at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 26. Seniors should be at the stadium in their caps and gowns by 7 p.m. both evenings.

Rains bring relief to crops, more needed

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Rains this week brought a welcome relief from extremely dry conditions some parts of the state, but more extensive rain is still needed to boost agricultural prospects across Texas, says Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Crop irrigation continues heavy in the Rio Grande Valley and Southwest Texas (Uvalde area). In many dryland crop production areas, however, young crops have been stymied due to dry conditions, noted Carpenter. The dry weather set in following an early spring siege of cool, wet conditions that delayed planting or caused some farmers to replant their crops twice.

A little cotton is still being planted in central and north central areas, and cotton planting is going full swing in Far West Texas. Cotton planting is starting to increase in the South Plains, where grain sorghum planting is active. Grain sorghum planting continues in the Rolling Plains and West Central Texas (San Angelo area). Corn planting is still under way in the Panhandle (Amarillo area) but is generally complete in the South Plains.

Recent dry conditions have spurred the wheat crop to maturity in central and southern areas, with some harvesting in progress in the Coastal Bend (Corpus Christi area) and Southwest Texas. Early yields are generally average; prospects had been brighter before the dry weather set in, said Carpenter.

Short grazing conditions are hurting the livestock picture over much of Texas although this week's rains should help in some locations. Some cattle are continuing to graze wheat in the PIK program while others are grazing clovers and ryegrass. Ranchers in extremely dry areas are providing supplemental feed and are continuing to cull their herds, Carpenter said.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Wheat is heading and looks good but will need rain soon. Corn planting continues in full swing. Potatoes and onions are making good progress but need warmer weather. Cattle continue to make good gains on graze-out wheat.

SOUTH PLAINS: Corn planting is generally complete and stands look good. Grain sorghum planting remains active and cotton plantings starting to increase.

Cool weather is slowing potatoes and onions but sugar beets look good. Wheat is heading and looks good but the dryland crop needs rain.

ROLLING PLAINS: Moisture is getting short in the southern half of the district, but small grains throughout the region need rain as do pastures and ranges. Most wheat is heading and looks good. PIK wheat is being baled as well as grazed, with cattle making good gains. Grain sorghum planting is in full swing.

NORTH CENTRAL: A few farmers are still planting cotton and replanting grain sorghum. All young crops need rain as do pastures throughout the region. Wheat and oats look good but also need moisture to fill grain heads. Peanut land is being prepared for planting. Grazing conditions are generally short.

NORTHEAST: Rains over parts of the area will help young crops and pastures but most counties remain dry. Corn is improving and most cotton has been planted. Peach and pecan crop prospects are good. Livestock have ample grazing, but rain is needed to boost warm-season grasses.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Turkey producers appear to be cutting back on the number of birds they plan to have ready for dinner tables later this year.

The Agriculture Department said Wednesday that turkey eggs in incubators as of May 1 totaled 26.7 million, down 2 percent from 27.4 million a year ago.

FAR WEST: A few light rains did little to relieve drought conditions. Cotton planting remains in full swing in many counties. Wheat is drought stressed and looks poor while ranges continue to deteriorate. Ranchers are starting to feed livestock again due to lack of frage. Sheep and goat shearing continues.

WEST CENTRAL: Crops and ranges continue to suffer from lack of moisture. Most wheat is headed but yields will be lower than earlier estimated due to the dry weather. Grain sorghum planting continues, with about 75 percent of the crop in. Some ranchers are still feeding livestock due to poor grazing conditions. Sheep and goat shearing continues. Gillespie County is boasting a super peach crop.

CENTRAL: A few farmers are still planting cotton. Rains this week will help some crops but more is needed. Wheat is maturing rapidly due to dry conditions. Livestock are in good shape but grazing is less than normal due to lack of moisture.

EAST: Good rains over parts of the region should boost young crops and pastures. Corn generally is making good growth and farmers are getting ready to plant peanuts. Growers are thinning their peach crops, with some early varieties maturing. Pecan prospects look good.

UPPER COAST: Good rains in some counties should help young crops and boost grazing conditions. However, a more general rain is still needed. Farmers are preparing peanut land for planting. Cattle are in fair to good shape.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Rains of 2 inches or so should give a big boost to young crops, pastures and ranges. A few farmers are still planting cotton and peanut plantings are under way. Some peach trees have dropped blooms due to recent dry conditions but the crop still looks good.

SOUTHWEST: A few light rains did little to break the current drought. Some rural residents have had their wells go dry, but crop irrigation has continued uninterrupted for the most part. Wheat harvesting has started in southern counties, with generally average yields. Pastures and ranges are in poor shape, and ranchers are continuing to cull herds.

COASTAL BEND: Good rains in some locations will help the agricultural situation, but a more general rain is still needed. Most crops are making slow growth due to dry conditions. Some wheat harvesting has started. Ranchers are feeding cattle and wearing and selling calves early due to lack of grazing. The peach crop looks good with some early varieties ripening. Pecan crop prospects are excellent.

SOUTH: Crop irrigation continues in full swing due to dry conditions. Some early grain sorghum is heading. All crops, pastures and ranges need rain. Onion harvesting is about complete while okra, squash and other vegetables are in light supply. The citrus harvest continues, with about 16 percent of the grapefruit and 25 percent of the late oranges still awaiting picking.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

LEMON LAWS

AUSTIN — We have heard complaints from automobile owners in the Panhandle who have been the unfortunate possessors of a lemon car or truck. We have also heard testimony at the state capitol from people who are frustrated with the lack of consumer protection in this state in regard to lemon automobiles.

One automobile owner recently testified at the state capitol that her 1978 stationwagon had been in for repairs 54 times without ever being properly repaired. The repairs on that one automobile ranged from three rebuilt engines, to numerous transmission repairs and a series of fuel line adjustments.

The cases involving lemon automobiles in Texas are many. Texans invest a lot of money in the automobile industry. In fact, Texas ranks in the top five in the nation in the number of car buyers. We have a problem with lemon automobiles here, and the Texas Senate has decided to take action which will better protect the automobile consumers in Texas.

The Texas Senate has voted to make automobile dealers and manufacturers liable for cars and trucks that turn out to be lemons. Under this new legislation, if the manufacturer or distributor is unable to make repairs to conform the vehicle to the express warranty after a reasonable number of attempts, the manufacturer or distributor must replace the vehicle with a comparable one, or accept return of the vehicle, and refund to the owner the full purchase price, less a reasonable allowance for owner use. Senate Bill 1141 will require dealers and manufacturers to replace a vehicle or to refund the price of the automobile, if the vehicle has been in for repairs four times during the warranty period, or if it had been out of service for 30 or more business days during that time.

Under this Bill, dissatisfied owners would have to complain to the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission about an alleged failure to make satisfactory repairs to the vehicle under terms of the warranty. The Commission would then review the case and determine if the manufacturer should be ordered to furnish the customer with a new automobile or a refund.

The recently approved lemon law passed by the Texas Senate means there will be new regulations of manufacturers and sellers of new motor vehicles and new protection for the purchaser of a new motor vehicle.

If you have any questions about Senate Bill 1141 or any other legislation, please contact us. Please write to Senator Bill Sarpalius, P. O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Plug-free.

The Sperry New Holland Model 114 pivot-tongue windrower can take on the toughest, thickest, most down and tangled crops you may ever have and slice through them plug-free! Incredible? You bet! Think of the performance the "114" will give in normal crop conditions! The dual-drive, twin-sickle design minimizes header vibration, cuts easier. The floating auger gives the header greater capacity per horsepower than fixed augers. And the performance of the exclusive chevron-designed intermeshing rubber conditioning rolls have proven superiority for over 15 years. If you're shopping for a pivot-tongue windrower, don't get serious until you stop by and let us show you what the "114" can do!

Commodity prices still not expected to show increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a 12 percent reduction in planted acreage for major crops, some basic commodity prices are still not expected to jump in the near future, according to new Agriculture Department projections.

The latest surveys on farmers' planting intentions show that 1983 seedlings will be about 256.2 million acres for wheat, feed grains, rice, soybeans and cotton. That would compare with 292.7 million acres planted for the 1982 harvest.

Farmers are cutting back mainly to take advantage of the government's acreage program to curb buildups in the surplus stockpile.

A new supply-and-demand report issued Wednesday said that "expanded crop production abroad and big 1982-83 U.S. carryover stocks are expected to keep global supplies large in 1983-84, despite lower U.S. production."

The world grain harvest in the year ahead is expected to decline somewhat, mainly because of smaller U.S. production.

Wheat

The U.S. wheat export forecast has been reduced 100 million bushels to 1.4 billion bushels from expectations a month ago. Projected weaker world import demand, particularly in India, China and the Soviet Union, and greater competition are the main reasons.

Farm prices of wheat now are expected to average $3.50 to $3.70 per bushel over the entire 1983-84 marketing year, down from the previous forecast of $3.50 to $3.90.

Corn

Plantings of the 1983 corn crop will be higher than previously indicated, meaning total feed grain stock will be larger than earlier forecast. Exports of corn and sorghum have been reduced 50 million bushels and 25 million bushels, respectively, from previous indications.

The farm price of corn in 1983-84 is expected to average $2.65 to $2.90 per bushel, down from $2.70 to $3.10 indicated earlier.

Rice

World rice production is at an all-time high. There will be a substantial decline in U.S. output and inventories, however. As a result the farm price of rice is expected to average $9 to $10.50 per hundredweight in 1983-84, up from the earlier indication of $8.50 to $10.

Soybeans

World oilseed supplies are expected to be slightly smaller in 1983-84, mainly because of a smaller U.S. crop of soybeans. Global demand is expected to increase slightly, with some increase in U.S. exports but still down 30 million bushels from last month's projection.

Soybean prices at the farm are forecast at $5.50 to $7.25 per bushel, down slightly from $5.50 to $7.50 indicated last month.

Cotton

The early-season world cotton outlook for 1983-84 points to "larger consumption, smaller production and a moderate decline" in inventories by the end of the season. The U.S. cotton crop may decline a fourth from last year to a projected 8.8 million bales.

No projections on cotton prices were made in the report.

Brucellosis bill tentatively okayed

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — A divided Senate has tentatively approved a bill to stop a possible federal quarantine of Texas cattle, which, according to the bill's sponsor, would kill the beef industry "deader than a doornail."

Sen. Bob Glasgow said Wednesday he had a letter from a U.S. Department of Agriculture official saying Texas cattle would be quarantined if the Legislature failed to pass his brucellosis bill.

Brucellosis is a contagious disease that causes cattle to miscarry or bear weak calves. Glasgow underscored the importance of the state's cattle industry by noting that Texas exports two million cattle a year. He said 24 states would not accept cattle from a state that had not complied with federal brucellosis regulations, and one of those — California — buys 22 percent of Texas cattle each year.

When the House debated the bill, House sponsor Bruce Gibson, D-Godley, said a quarantine could cost Texas cattle raisers $130 million a year.

The bill, which passed the House on April 26, would give WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter how you slice it, the United States is going to have a huge supply of bread grain in 1983-84, enough wheat to feed all Americans for more than six years.

Total U.S. wheat production in 1983 could total 2.35 billion bushels, down 16 percent from last year's record of 2.8 billion bushels, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

But it would be the fourth largest wheat crop in U.S. history, exceeded only by the harvests of the past three years.

"Despite the reduced harvests, the total supply will be only fractionally smaller than 1982-83's record," the department's Economic Research Service said.

That is because the "carryover" at the beginning of the wheat marketing year on June 1 is expected to be 1.55 billion bushels, up from 1.16 billion a year ago.

Thus, even with a reduced crop, the total supply of wheat will be huge — about 3.9 billion bushels.

Farmers have cut their acreage under the government's payment-in-kind program, with total wheat land to be harvested estimated at 47 million acres, down 11 million from last year, the report said.

"Higher yields will offset some of the acreage reduction, but as of May 1, 1983, winter wheat production was forecast at 1.9 billion bushels, 215 million below last year's record," it said.

"In addition, heavy program participation by spring wheat growers will decrease their 1983 plantings about a third, which will mean a sharp cutback from last year's record (spring) crop of 700 million bushels."

The analysis said that "early prospects for demand are limited" because exports are expected to be down from 1982-83 and that there will be "only a slight increase" in the domestic use of wheat.

Therefore, it said, the total supply of wheat in the marketing year that will begin on June 1 will be about 3.9 billion bushels, down only slightly from 3.98 billion in 1982-83.

About 620 million bushels of wheat will be needed to meet

U.S. domestic food needs in 1983-84, the report said.

"Early prospects for demand are limited, with exports expected to be down from 1982-83 and only a slight increase in domestic use," the report said.

Wheat inventories a year from now, on June 1, 1984, are expected to remain at record levels — some 1.55 billion bushels, near the 1.55 billion bushels a the current time.

Meanwhile, the world's wheat output in the coming year may be close to the 1982-83 marks of 479 million metric tons.

"With large carryin stocks, the supplies of major wheat exporters will be more than adequate to meet import demand, even if their productions falls slightly," the report said.

TCFA meeting Nov. 13-15

AMARILLO — The Annual Convention of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association (TCFA) has been scheduled for November 13-15 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in San Antonio.

The convention is expected to draw nearly a thousand cattlemen from two dozen states, says TCFA Convention Manager Jim Peterson. Speakers and programs will be built around strategy and planning for success in the cattle feeding industry.

Family Land Heritage Program signups now thru Aug. 16

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower has announced that registration for the 1983 Family Land Heritage Program will open this week and extend through August 16.

"Hard times have dogged the farmer constantly," said Hightower, "making it all the more commendable that some families have managed to keep the old home place in production for a century or more."

The Family Land Heritage Program was created by the Texas Department of Agriculture to honor families who own land which has been maintained in agricultural production for 100 years or more by the members of that family. Since 1974, when the program began, 1,558 properties in Texas have qualified for the Family Land Heritage Program.

The basic requirements of the program are: Continuous agricultural production on the family ranch for 100 years, land ownership within the family, complete operation or supervision of the farm-ranch production by family members who are Texas residents, and a size of at least 10 acres with a minimum of $50 income from farm or ranch products or if less than 10 acre, sales of at least $250 a year. TDA is the final judge of eligibility.

"The major emphasis of my administration is to protect and encourage the family farm system," said Hightower, "and no one is more representative of the ingenuity and perseverance of that system than these families. They are living, productive symbols of an entrepreneurial unit that is our lifeblood. While we will celebrate their achievements of the past, we really are pointing out the importance they hold for us in the future. We will honor this year's certified registrants at a state ceremony in the Capitol next November," Hightower said. The honorees will receive a certificate and a copy of the Family and Land Heritage Registry. The Registry is a brief history of each farm or ranch and includes old photographs of the families and homes.

Those who feel they meet the basic qualifications and wish to apply may obtain an application from their County Judge, County Historical Commission chairman, the nearest TDA district office, or by writing to: Family Land Heritage Program, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Tx 78711.

Criswell elevated

James W. Criswell, Community Programs Loan Specialist, Farmers Home Administration (FmHA), headquartered in the Temple, Texas State Office since 1966 has been named Chief of Community Programs for the Agency.

Criswell, a graduate of Texas A&M University, was employed by FmHA in 1952 as an Assistant County Supervisor in Brownwood and served as a County Supervisor in Brady. He transferred to the FmHA State Office in 1964 and has worked in the Community Programs Section since that time.

In 1962, he was honored for work done with the Brady Creek Watershed Project. In 1972, a quality step increase was awarded to him for outstanding performance with Community Programs projects.

As Chief of the Community Programs, Criswell will manage one of the largest FmHA Community Programs in the nation consisting of approximately 2,000 loans for an estimated 500 million dollars in Water & Waste projects and an estimated 65 million dollars for 152 community facility projects.

Iowa farmer returns land to nature, receives reward

By VAL CORLEY
Associated Press Writer

LOHRVILLE, Iowa (AP) — William Winkelman says it was the Lord's bidding to return more than 35 acres of Iowa's richest farmland to nature, and his reward has been a comeback by pheasants, badgers, partridges and other natives of the prairie.

"The fox colony has come back," Winkelman said, pointing to burrows that dotted a 16.6-acre tract that he first set aside for prairie grass, trees and shrubs in 1972. "This is the highest area around Lohrville. They love it here. They can keep track of what's going on."

"We've got more deer coming to the farm than (ever before) in my lifetime," said Winkelman, 50, who is the fourth generation of Winkelmans to live on the 470-acre farm that first came into the family in 1892.

"All of this vegetation is natural. It could have been here 200 years ago," Winkelman said last week, noting he had gradually planted other areas with prairie grasses since starting the largest plot 11 years ago.

Iowa has some of the richest farmland in the world and Lohrville is part of the north-central strip containing Iowa's best. The land Winkelman has returned to its natural state would sell as farmland for about $3,000 an acre on the open market.

"The Lord just popped it into my head that I should be doing something about this," said Winkelman, a bachelor. "It wasn't an overnight decision."

Winkelman waxes mystical just discussing his prairie. "I prayed about it a long time before beginning and I prayed a long time about continuing it," he said. "But it has been very satisfying and rewarding to do just what He told me to do."

When Winkelman started out to plant his first large prairie area, he got seeds through a contact at Iowa State University and from a Nebraska man who is growing prairie grass for seed.

In addition, he took seeds from a small area of prairie land on the farm which had never been disturbed.

He's got such grasses as big blue stem, little blue stem, Indian grass, side oats gamma, western wheat grass and switch grass, and such native trees as hackberry, green ash, red cedar, silver maple, burr oak, wild plum and cottonwood.

More and more farmers in this area are calling G-611 their "most valuable player." It has earned MVP recognition because of its proven, consistent performance. An all-around tough hybrid, G-611 offers tropical adaptation plus resistance to sorghum downy mildew, head smut, anthracnose, Strain A of Maize Dwarf Mosaic Virus (MDMV-A), and greenbug Biotypes C and D. With so much talent, G-611 belongs on your first team. See me for your order for G-611 and the following companion hybrids. All are available as HFRBISHIFI D or regular seed.

SG 932 is a new release of full season hybrid grain sorghum, besides its very high yield potential, this hybrid also features resistance to Anthracnose, downy mildew and smut. The strong stalk and extensive root system will help prevent lodging in stressful times. The moderately open heads will be a desirable feature, for quicker drydown.

SG 922 is a full-season, high yielding hybrid. The extensive root system helps this thrifty hybrid in dry years and wet years to produce those high yields that growers need. The root system plus the large stiff stalk should make this an excellent standing hybrid. High yields and disease resistance will make 922 a most prized hybrid by sorghum farmers.

HIGH GRAIN-TO-STOVER SILAGE.

High grain-to-stover—that's what makes this hybrid stand out among silage hybrids. It produces a large, girthy ear filled with high-energy grain. And its leafy structure adds high protein. You'll also like the way it starts out fast in the spring and continues to perform under stress. Great under irrigation, too. Give it a try this coming season.

Farm policy plans proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plans for what is called "a new generation of farm policy" are being proposed by a Senate agricultural leader.

"The prolonged, depressed economic condition of U.S. agriculture demonstrates the inability of traditional farm programs to lead the agriculture sector of the economy into a sustained recovery," Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, chairman of the congressional Joint Economic Committee, said Thursday.

Jepsen said his committee will hold a series of public hearings over the next six weeks to solicit the opinions of government officials, farmers, consumers, agricultural economists, financiers, food processors and distributors and agribusinessmen on the future role of government in farm policy.

At the same time, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said he has written to the same kinds of people asking them to provide Congress with policy studies and research on a wide range of farm issues.

Helms said he wants to use that information as the foundation for congressional debate in 1985 on the new farm bill, the basis for federal agricultural policy.

"The next two years afford us the opportunity to deliberately examine the policy questions that will be addressed in the farm bill debate," said Helms.

Soviet grain to improve slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says that improved harvest prospects this year would "permit only a modest recovery" in the Soviet Union's reserve stocks of grain.

An analysis of the Soviet grain situation said Wednesday that after four years of poor crops, the Soviet Union has "drawn heavily" on reserve stockpiles and that Moscow may "continue large imports" of grain in 1983-84.

The department on Tuesday forecast Soviet grain production this year at 200 million metric tons, up significantly from 180 million in 1982. It also would be the largest grain harvest since 1978's record output of 237.4 million metric tons.

However, the report said, the forecast would still leave 1983 Soviet grain production well below Moscow's target for this year of 238 million tons.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds. The report said that the Soviet Union will probably import about 34 million tons of grain in the international marketing year which will end on June 30.

Thru SLN label

AMARILLO — A new Special Local Need (SLN) label for Texas permits use of Tordon 22K Weed Killer at low rates to control field bindweed while continuing to grow small grain on the land.

Tordon 22K has until now been available for use at rates of one to 1.5 gals.-acre only on land that is removed from cropping for one to two seasons. Cost for this "eradication" treatment has run over $120 an acre.

The new SLN permits the herbicide to be used at a fraction of those rates once each year in combination with 2,4D to keep bindweed — and many other broadleaf weeds — beaten back to a point they have little harmful affect on crop yields. Only one-half to one pint of Tordon 22K per acre is used to suppress bindweed under terms of the SLN. These rates bring costs down as low as $6.00-acre.

A small grain producer can expect 80 percent control of bindweed using Tordon 22K at the half-pint rate, according to Dr. Allen Wiese of the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center at Bushland. With repeated treatment of bindweed at the higher full-pint rate, he thinks growers eventually

You can make an excellent cushion out of a covered steel wool ball or pad. It keeps needles and pins very sharp.

First Place Winners

Thirteen Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers traveled to Canyon last week to compete at the District Roundup for Method Demonstrations. Approximately 250 Panhandle 4-H'ers participated in the contest. Receiving first place in their respective categories are,

Herbicide use now permitted

can eliminate field bindweed. He estimate bindweed affects a third of all Texas cropland — the whole Panhandle, the area along Red River north of Dallas-Fort Worth and the Blacklands.

Growers rotating from small grain crops should wait at least 12 months after application of Tordon 22K before seeding grain crops such as grain sorghum or corn.

Tordon 22K Weed killer may not be used under the SLN label more than once per calendar year but additional treatment with 2,4-D may be made at any time weeds are present with adequate foliage and in good growing condition.

Field bindweed is a growing problem in Texas, Dr. Wiese says, largely because too few people are doing anything to stop it. Bindweed spreads rapidly, he adds. Pieces of it break off on farm implements and take hold in a previously clear field. Seed lodge on farm equipment, shake off somewhere else and sprout.

Wheat council nominees sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department wants to hear from anyone who wants to nominate individuals to the Wheat Industry Council.

Thomas H. Porter of the department's Agricultural Marketing Service says that applications and information on eligibility can be obtained from: Lowry Mann, AMS, USDA, Room 2610, Washington, D.C., 20250.

The 20-member council administers a national research and nutrition education program for wheat and wheat foods. Membership includes wheat producers, processors, end-product manufacturers and consumers.

PIK may not be as costly as earlier predictions

COLLEGE STATION — When the final verdict is in, PIK may not be as costly a government program as some have suggested.

While estimated costs of the payment-in-kind program range from $10 to $25 billion, two economists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, peg the cost at about $11 billion.

Dr. Ron Knutson and Ed Smith break this figure down to $7.5 billion as the value of PIK commodities, $2.3 billion for deficiency payments and $1.3 billion for diversion payments. Deficiency payments result when farm prices drop below a designated level while diversion payments are for taking cropland out of production.

Analyzing the $11 billion cost of PIK, here's a breakdown by specific commodities: corn, $5.4 billion; wheat, $3.1 billion; cotton, $1.4 billion; grain sorghum, $700 million; and rice, $500 million.

"Although the total cost of PIK may seem high compared to farm programs in the '70s, the figure is low compared to what the government's farm program would have cost without PIK," say Knutson and Smith. They estimate that farm program costs for 1982-83 will reach about $18 billion and that costs for '83-'84 would total almost $21 billion without PIK.

Since this estimated $21 billion would include $3 billion for the dairy support program and another $2 billion on minor agricultural commodities and general administrative expenses, the remaining $16 billion represents program costs for grains and cotton in the absence of PIK. Thus, if the $11 billion estimated cost of PIK stands up, the program could be viewed as causing a net savings of about $5 billion.

"These savings would result mainly from reduced commodity storage costs and reduced deficiency payments," say the economists.

Symposium to compare show, feedlot steers

COLLEGE STATION — What do show steers and feedlot steers have in common? How are these steers similar or different from both a carcass and visual standpoint and in production efficiency?

The answers to these and a host of other questions will be uncovered at a Steer Evaluation and Production Symposium in the new Animal Pavilion at Texas A&M University, May 20-21.

The symposium begins with registration at 7:30 a.m. the first day followed by the program at 9 a.m. Headquarters for the symposium is the Inn at Chimney Hill on University Drive East.

The symposium is built around 46 steers representing 15 breeds that were put in a performance evaluation program last October 29, say Dr. Larry Boleman, livestock specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and Dr. Doug Wythe, associate professor of animal science at Texas A&M University.

Regarding the 46 steers, some were halterbroke and treated as show calves beginning last Jan. 1 while the remainder were treated as feedlot steers. However, all have been getting the same ration in the same locality. Since then measurements such as weight, average daily gain, feed efficiency, hip height, shoulder height, length of top, heart girth and length of cannon have been taken on each steer. Some of the steers will be slaughtered to obtain carcass data which will be presented at the symposium.

Boleman and Wythe say that the symposium is designed to be an educational activity for Texas 4-H and FFA youth with steer projects, for beef cattle breeders and feeders, and for those involved with beef cattle breed associations and steer shows. It is aimed at teaching feeders and other interested cattle people about concepts related to beef cattle growth, performance, carcass characteristics, feeding management, genetic differences and breeding programs.

Speakers will be using photographic records, carcass data, live animal judging and demonstrations as training tools to more accurately teach the concepts of beef cattle evaluation and production, say the symposium organizers.

Keynote speaker will be Dr. Harlan D. Ritchie, Extension beef cattle specialist in Michigan, who will discuss "Search for the Ideal Steer" at the concluding session of the symposium.

All symposium participants along with a panel of leading steer judges will have an opportunity to evaluate live steers and then view their carcasses.

Also, a host of cattle producers, feeders and packers will discuss show steers versus feedlot steers, and officials of Texas' major livestock shows will be on hand to discuss 1984 rules, regulations and judging procedures regarding steer shows.

Along with the 46 steer carcases to be evaluated and viewed, the symposium will feature a number of breed champions from major livestock shows which will be displayed and slaughtered for carcass evaluation. Sires and dams of past champion show steers also will be on exhibit, note Boleman and Wythe.

Other discussions will deal with the evaluation of feeder cattle, slaughter cattle and breeding cattle, and live demonstrations will be featured on clipping, weight changing and show ring classification.

The symposium is being sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas A&M's Department of Animal Science and a number of breed associations and livestock shows. These include the Houston Livestock Show, Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, Texas Cattle Feeders Association, Hi-Pro Feeds, Numerous Texas Cattle Breeders, Texas Club Calf Association, American Hereford Association, American Murray Grey Association, Santa Gertrudis Breeders International, Texas Limousin Association, Texas Hereford Association and Texas Simmental Association.

Spring rains help soil-applied herbicides on rangeland

COLLEGE STATION — Spring usually brings rain to most parts of Texas, and that's what's needed to make soil-applied herbicides effective on range brush.

Four soil-applied herbicides are registered for use on rangeland, says Dr. Tommy Welch, range brush and weed control specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Three are pelleted or granulated — 10 percent picloram pellets (Tordon 10K or Grazon 10K), 20 percent tebuthiuron pellets (Graslan 20P) and 10 percent dicamba granules (Banvel 10G). Hexazinone (Velpar L) is a liquid herbicide for soil application.

Welch suggests applying

Tordon 10K, Graslan 20P and Velpar L before expected rainfall, preferably in early spring. Banvel 10G should be applied in spring and early summer (before July 1).

Tordon 10K pellets, used for aerial broadcast, ground broadcast or individual plant treatment, control pricklypear, huisache, whitebrush, redberry juniper, macartney rose, hawthorne and sumac. Use 20 pounds of Tordon 10K pellets per acre or ¾-ounce per 100 square feet for pricklypear control. Huisache (small undisturbed plants), whitebrush and macartney rose may be controlled with 30 pounds of Tordon 10K pellets per acre or 1 ounce per 100 square feet. Redberry juniper, hawthorne and sumac require 40 pounds of Tordon 10K pellets per acre or 1½ ounces per 100 square feet.

Graslan 20P pellets provide good control of post oak blackjack oak, winged elm, whitebrush, running live oak, blackbrush, creosotebush, tarbush and sand shinnery oak. However, the pellets are only available from Elanco Products Company for use by approved aerial broadcasters.

Use 10 pounds per acre of Graslan 20P pellets to control post oak, blackjack oak, winged elm, running live oak and blackbrush. Only 5 to 7.5 pounds of Graslan 20P pellets are necessary for whitebrush control while 2.5 pounds will control sand shinnery oak and 2.5 to 5 pounds of the pellets are needed to control tarbush and creosotebush.

People who must pay the piper include sinners and those with malfunctioning house plumbing.

Banvel 10G gives good control on common or eastern persimmon, says Welch, and is registered for individual plant treatment. Use level teaspoonful of Banvel 10G per inch diameter of the plant's trunk.

Velpar L, at 2 to 8 milliliters, will control oaks, hackberry, elm, mesquite, willow, tallow tree, whitebrush and juniper (cedar). Velpar L is labeled for individual plant treatment with an exact delivery handgun application. Do not use Velpar L on marshy or poorly drained sites or on clay soils, cautions the specialist.

Research and demonstration studies have shown that these pelleted, granulated and liquid herbicides provide good to excellent control of the various range brush species discussed, notes Welch. These herbicides are ready to apply and require no mixing, and spring is the best time to use them.

Dairymen paying more for feed

COLLEGE STATION — Texas dairymen are paying more for feed due to the PIK program, and that could bring about a turnaround in milk production. "Since PIK was announced early this year, feed grain prices have jumped 26 percent nationally," points out Dr. Bud Schwart, economist in dairy marketing with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "For Texas dairymen this means an average 19 percent increase in concentrate prices."

This increase in feed costs coupled with a 3 1/2 to 4 percent lower milk price due to the recently imposed 50 cents per hundredweight milk tax will force a lot of Texas dairymen to trim costs by cutting back on feeding and culling marginal cows, says Schwart.

"Reduced feeding and increased cow culling could turn Texas milk production around fairly soon," says the economist. "Milk production could drop 2 percent below normal seasonal declines in Texas while production could be down about 1 percent nationally."

With these developments, Schwart sees 1983 U.S. milk production as declining about 1 1/2 percent from the anticipated yearly total. Prior to PIK, dairy industry watchers were anticipating '83 production to increase 1 1/2 to 2 percent above 1982 levels.

"The Reagan Administration is trying to reduce milk production and to cut government dairy support program costs," says Schwart. "And PIK may help do just that."

State treasurer after deposit boxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — During the Great Depression, no one could locate the owners of a number of safe deposit boxes at 18 banks that failed in Texas. So the contents were turned over to the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency.

Now, a half century later, Texas' state treasurer says she's going to try to recover those contents — items that could include everything from jewelry to love letters.

Treasurer Ann Richards said Friday that Texas would seek to recover the contents of the boxes under a federal law passed last year allowing them to be claimed by the original owners, their heirs or the states involved.

"It's intriguing to us what we might find...in those boxes, and not only the intrinsic value, but the historical value that might accompany the contents of those boxes," said Ms. Richards.

She said the unclaimed contents of various other safe deposit boxes previously turned over to the Texas state treasurer had included securities, antique gold coins, pocket watches, gold chains, jewels, even love letters and grocery slips.

"You'd be surprised the things that people put in, something that probably would be meaningless to anyone who would open the box but at one time or another was important to that person," said Ms. Richards.

Her comments came at a news conference during a visit here.

Ms. Richards said that once the state recovers the contents from the Comptroller of the Currency, efforts will be made to locate the original owners or heirs.

If the owners or their heirs cannot be located, items which have cash value will be sold by the state at auction, she said.

A spokeswoman for the Comptroller of the Currency said that when a national bank failed during the Depression and the owners of safe deposit boxes could not be located, the boxes' contents were turned over to the comptroller.

This process lasted until 1933, when responsibility for handling failed banks was assumed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., she said.

The spokeswoman, Lee Cross, said the items included securities, wills, deeds, jewelry, watches, and in one instance, even a family tree complete with hair from each member of the family.

Give your crop a head start to higher yields.

Broadleaf weeds are tough on your sorghum crop. They compete for moisture and nutrients, and can slow down sorghum development. Cut into your final yield and your profit.

With an early application of Banvel® herbicide...when sorghum is in the 2- to 5-leaf stage...you knock out dozens of broadleaf weeds when they're most easily controlled—as seedlings.

That includes the toughest weeds in sorghum...kochia...pigweed...Russian thistle...cocklebur...and a host of others.

Banvel herbicide penetrates weed leaves. Is absorbed by the roots. Moves throughout the plant for better control of even those weeds 2,4-D leaves behind. Plus, Banvel herbicide is easy on your crop. And, it won't carryover.

For higher sorghum yields and better weed control, ask your ag chem dealer for Banvel herbicide.

Borgnine chairman of cosmetics firm

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — His face was once a range of craggy tissue. Now actor Ernest Borgnine can boast fewer ridges and more smoothness.

If it sounds like a skin care commercial, it is. And if Borgnine speaks with a healthy blend of enthusiasm and sincerity, it's real, because the magic skin cream he touts was developed by his wife, Tova.

Borgnine, the gruff and gravelly voiced actor who often is cast as a macho type, now finds himself in a new role — chairman of the board of a budding cosmetics empire. He's also become househusband to an entrepreneurial wife.

"He loves it," assures auburn-haired Tova Borgnine, 40. "He's becoming the image of a man who supports working women. Imagine that: Ernie Borgnine, the Italian, all-American macho character of the movies!"

The 65-year-old actor, who won an Academy Award for his role as the butcher in "Marty," and who has appeared in scores of films, including "From Here to Eternity," "The Dirty Dozen" and "Escape From New York," says he loves his new position.

"I'm all for it," he says. "I do the cooking, or else we go out to dinner. Tova doesn't cook. She's the only woman I know who refers to the kitchen as 'a room.' To her it's just another room in the house."

The Borgnines delight in telling the story of the origins of Tova's, the cosmetics company. Mrs. Borgnine made a discovery on a Mexican film location: a cactus-base ointment that was said to help rejuvenate skin.

She brought some back to Hollywood and started supplying such friends as actresses Ali MacGraw and Anne Bancroft, as well as then first lady Betty Ford. She might have remained in private practice except for an interview her husband gave in 1977.

"Look at this skin!" gushed the actor, offering his face. The reporter wrote about Mrs. Borgnine's magic cream, adding that it could be ordered by mail at $60 a jar.

"We received $56,000 worth of orders, and we had only three jars in the cellar," Mrs. Borgnine recalled. "I called the postmaster to ask what we had to do. He said we had six weeks to mail the product or send the money back. Otherwise, it would be fraud."

"I ordered 2½ tons of the ointment from Mexico, developed packaging and a logo and, with the help of friends, mailed out 3,147 boxes. We were in business."

Now Tova has a staff of 32.

"We improved our gross 1,000 percent in 1982 — to $5 million," she says. "We expect to quadruple that amount this year."

Suzy Wall is the May exhibitor of western and rural art at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame. The Texas native, now in Hereford, includes portraits and landscapes of Texas, New Mexico and Colorado. Her work is displayed in her Hereford Studio and at the Treasure Trove in Aurora, Colo. She is a member of the Hereford Fine Arts Association, Texas Fine Arts Association, and the Southwest Arts Foundation.

Farentino cast against type as mad scientist

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Farentino as a mad scientist? In the film business, that's known as casting against type.

"I suppose if you were going to cast by type you'd get somebody like Christopher Lee," says Farentino. "But they asked me to do it. I'd also been cast against type in my last picture, 'Something So Right,' when I played fat, balding Arnie Potts. That was a big break for me."

Farentino is very much the handsome, dashing leading man, and he brings those qualities to his role as Dr. Edgar Higley in the CBS movie, "The Cradle Will Fall."

"I didn't play him as mad," he said. "That gets you nowhere. What I did was create something diabolical."

I had contact lenses made of a greenish color. My own brown eyes shone through and that gave it an interesting feeling."

Lauren Hutton and Ben Murphy also star in this suspense drama, which features the cast of the CBS soap opera, "Guiding Light." It's the first time actors from a daytime drama have repeated their roles in a prime-time special.

Stars from "The Guiding Light" who appear in the movie are Charita Bauer, Carolyn Ann Clark, Joe Ponazeki, Elvera Roussel, Peter Simon and Jerry Ver Dorn. The movie will be telecast Tuesday.

"The Cradle Will Fall" is based on the novel by Mary Higgins Clark, and was adapted by Jerome Coopersmith. John Llewellyn Moxey directed.

Farentino plays a brilliant physician and researcher who is looking for a way to prolong youth. He injects his youth serum into willing patients, but when things go wrong, he resorts to murder to save his career.

Farentino recently accepted a role in another CBS movie, "License to Kill."

"I thought it was a detective story when the script arrived," he said. "But I play the father of an 8-year-old girl who is killed by a drunken driver. It's about grief and vengeance and all the frustrations of trying to bring the guy to justice."

Farentino said he had received the script the night before and said yes in the morning.

The Animals reuniting

LONDON (AP) — The Animals, that group of rhythm and blues musicians who pounced on American rock fans at the peak of the British music invasion in the mid-'60s, are reuniting after a 17-year separation.

"It's kill or cure," says Eric Burdon, the band's lead singer, whose boiling renditions of "The House of the Rising Sun" and "Boom Boom" helped make the group one of the most popular British bands at that time.

"We've got a millionaire, a factory supervisor, an unemployed Buddhist, a composer and me," he says. "But I think we can make it work because we've got a lot of experience and maturity going for us this time. And we sound good."

The Animals broke up on a sour note in 1966, ravaged by the rigors of the road and plagued by personal feuds. But before they called it quits, they had left their mark in the music world. In 1964 alone, they turned out three albums and six singles, and made three major tours that guitarist Hilton Valentine, 39, recalled "left us all totally on the ropes emotionally and physically."

Between 1963-66, the Animals had 10 hits that made the Top 10 around the world, including the classic, "Rising Sun" in June 1964, which became their anthem.

After the band split, Burdon went on to sing with the funky American rock group, War.

It was an agent, Rod Weinstein, who was able to cajole the Animals into a reunion. They jammed one recent morning on borrowed equipment in a chilly club in Newcastle, and found they could still make good music together.

"We played for three days, despite the cold and lousy equipment," said Alan Price, who plays keyboards. "I found I wasn't as clever as I thought I was, but that was OK because the music was good."

Oak Ridge Boys felt they needed each other

By ROBERT MACY
Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Four chairs were arranged in a circle at a Nashville sound studio. Rather than a tidy setup for a recording session, what followed was an emotional encounter that saved the Oak Ridge Boys from breaking up.

"We gathered in a circle and held hands," says bass Richard Sterban. "There were some grown men crying in there. We agreed we needed the Oak Ridge Boys, and we needed each other."

Now members of the country group say they're back on track — with a hit single, "American Made" — following a widening rift with William Golden over his laid-back lifestyle which they thought was "anti-Oak."

"All that stuff was brought about by a lack of communication among the group," Golden says. "None of us talked to each other about rumors each had heard until it got down to them believing I wanted to leave."

"When they found out I felt the same as they did, we all put out hands in a circle like a football team and vowed to make ourselves stronger from the experience."

Sterban says he and partners Duane Allen and Joe Bonsall were not blameless for the rift.

"Because of our success, it's just human nature that things like this are going to happen," Sterban said recently when the group gave a show at the MGM Grand Hotel. "We've all got nice homes, some money in our pockets, and we just became independent. We needed to sit down and remind ourselves that we needed each other."

Golden's long, shaggy mane, his individualism and candid comments about experimenting with drugs had upset Sterban, Allen and Bonsall, who were concerned about the group's clean-cut image.

"Bill was not the only one getting off course," Sterban said. "But we felt he was getting too far off on a tangent, and was going to offend some of our audience. We've always been independent, been able to do our own thing. That's one of the things that has helped keep us together and made us successful. But we may have let the independence run too far."

When the others arrived at the Nashville studio last year, they found Bonsall had placed four chairs in a circle.

"Before we could attempt to do any singing, we knew we had to work out our problems," Sterban recalled. "We knew if we didn't get our act together, others were going to bypass us. We knew there were other groups getting the job done. We realized we didn't have that drive, that hunger. We decided the only way we were going to survive was to be together."

Inventor side of da Vinci in exhibit

By DAVID STAATS
Associated Press Writer
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The tank, in the shape of a cone with the vertex pointed upward, has a ring of cannons above its base and small viewing holes near the top. Under the hood is a chassis with four wheels, each one hand-propelled. Tanks weren't used in combat until World War I. But this design was born in the 15th century, at the hand of artist and engineer Leonardo da Vinci. Scale models of da Vinci's inventions are being exhibited on college campuses across the country, inspiring would-be inventors and giving others a glimpse of the artist's versatility and genius. The exhibit recently appeared at the University of Portland.

"It's a wonderful educational tool," says Herbert Pederson, curator of the collection sponsored by International Business Machines Corp. "It gives people another side of Leonardo. He is known as a painter. Few people know him as an inventor, though the major part of his life was spent inventing." Constructed primarily of wood, the models on display were built by a New York craftsman IBM commised, using da Vinci's famous notebook scribbles as instructions. The notebooks were a personal record for the Florentine artist, containing notes, letters and designs for new machines. Most of the models in the exhibit fit on 3 feet by 4 feet display tables, and are large enough to play with. Some are suspended from the ceiling, such as da Vinci's one-passenger flying machine.

Born out-of-wedlock in 1452 near Vinci, a village in Tuscany, to a notary and a peasant woman, da Vinci did much of his work in Florence. He was a painter, sculptor, architect, musician, engineer and scientist. The exhibit will be in Longview and Tacoma, Wash.; Galesburg, Ill.; San Marcos, Texas; Portsmouth, Ohio; and Westchester County, N.Y.

Simple repairs keep iron railing looking new

A wrought iron railing adds elegant style to a patio or outdoor steps. However, constant exposure to changing seasons, particularly the ice and snow of winter, may require its maintenance or repair in the spring.

Paint often blisters, exposing the railing's raw metal surface to conditions that cause it to rust. Also, the cement base of the railing may crack or deteriorate.

Repairs are easy

Extreme cold can even cause parts of the railing to crack or chip. But there is no reason to despair.

Professional-looking repairs can be made quickly, easily, and inexpensively with just a few simple hand tools, including a stiff blade putty knife, a screwdriver and a pry bar. Mr. Walsh offers these recommendations to bring new life and a bright appearance to tired wrought iron railings.

Broken cement at the base of the railing can loosen the entire railing, if not promptly repaired. Remove the broken or cracked cement with a scrape and pry bar, old screwdriver or stiff blade putty knife.

Scrape away pieces of cement adhering to the exposed portion of the railing. Clear away small debris and moisten the area to be repaired.

Follow instructions

Mix fast-setting anchor cement with water, following package instructions. Using a pointed trowel, pack the anchor cement into the void around the railing. Smooth the surface with a putty knife and, in 15 minutes, the repair will be set.

Blistered and rusted surfaces must be thoroughly cleaned prior to repainting. Remove loose paint using a metal hand scraper. For hard-to-reach surfaces, such as the underside of a railing, try a scrape and pry bar or a stiff blade putty knife.

Final touches

Next, sand all rusted areas thoroughly to remove old scale and rust. A flexible sanding block will conform to the shape of the railing, facilitating an even, complete job. Begin with the coarse or medium side of the sanding block, then go over the surface with the fine side of the block.

Brush the sanded surface with a wire brush, and wipe with a tack cloth to ensure a clean surface before painting. Cover the surface with several coats of rust-preventative paint. These paints, which generally contain rust-stopping primers, can be applied with a sprayer or brush.

Snap a spray can handle onto an aerosol can to guarantee even spray applications. A paint wand is ideal for applying paint from a can to narrow rail surfaces. Between coats, lightly wipe the surface with steel wool to promote adhesion.

Fix cracks or chips in the railing with a tube of instant putty. Clear away loose paint and chips not as described above. Apply the putty to the area to be repaired.

Smooth with a screwdriver or stiff blade putty knife. When hardened, sand the putty to eliminate surface irregularities, coat with a metal primer and cover with several layers of paint. Your railing will now look as good as new.

Soccer player Dave Lovett of Derby, England, was once shipped with a ten-shilling fine for smiling at the referee.

Staining unfinished furniture is no chore at all

In today's inflation-ridden world many people have solved their furniture woes by purchasing raw, unfinished furniture, staining it themselves, and marveling at do-it-yourself beautiful results.

No wonder. They've found it relatively easy to achieve beautiful enhanced wood color results in just a few hours...turning a simple pine bookcase into a dark, rich black walnut...or transforming a new unfinished chair into a proud Early American.

However, to stain a piece of unfinished furniture as professionally as possible requires some background preparation. This is highly important and can't be over-emphasized.

Make light work of it
Many people fall short—making more work out of a staining project than need be. So, to beat the work and make it a more fun project, remember these simple guidelines:

First, after purchasing a piece of unfinished furniture, wipe off any excess dust with a clean dry rag. Then, check for glue marks. On the marks are spots that originate at the joints where excess glue seeps to the surface. If left unattended, glue marks appear as light areas after staining.

lightly in the direction of the grain. After these minor blemishes are removed, sand the entire piece lightly, sand in the direction of the grain. Number 180 grit sandpaper is generally recommended as good staining paper for this use. Sanding will remove any remaining wood protrusions, light abrasions or surface residue that commonly accompany unfinished furniture. After sanding, dust off carefully. Before you are ready to stain, make sure you have all your cleaning and preparation materials handy.

All you need are several clean rags or better yet, a good brush or foam applicator. Both are reasonably inexpensive and can be purchased in any paint or hardware store. Foam applicators, although not necessary, assure an even application of stain, but a clean rag can do a nice job, too.

However, if you do plan to use a brush, have some other paint thinner available to soak and clean out your brushes.

Once the wood surface is ready, it is hoped you have selected a wood stain as well as a clear finish. Carver's Tip, which sells and provides a deep rich color in one coat. Bear in mind...some stains require more than one coat and several finishing coats.

Apply the first clear finish coat and allow to dry for approximately six to eight hours. This top coat will swell the wood (raising the grain) thus requiring a light sanding.

Send with a finishing sandpaper such as No. 240 grit and dust off carefully. Finally, apply a second clear finishing coat in the direction of the grain without stopping in the middle or elsewhere on the piece. This ensures a smooth, long-lasting protection coat.

Do not cover more than eight square feet with the stain at a time. Allow wet stain to penetrate for five to 15 minutes, depending upon desired color depth...to determine this beforehand, it is suggested to practice obtaining the color you want on a small piece of similar-type wood.

If need be, lean the technique on the inside of a drawer, bottom of a chair or under a table. Just a few minutes of your time will give you the exact result you want.

Next, allow the surface to dry for eight hours, or overnight; then follow with a clear finish or varnish.

You might try a liquid siltic for hand tops—bar tops and other hand wooden counters, or a normal-use clear finish for general purpose needs—chairs, toy chests, tables, painting, etc.

Apply the first clear finish coat and allow to dry for approximately six to eight hours. This top coat will swell the wood (raising the grain) thus requiring a light sanding.

Cut fuel bills by adding replacement or storm windows

Even as you enjoy this season's mild temperatures, now is the time to "think winter." If your old windows are drafty, Summer is the best time to protect against costly and uncomfortable winter heat loss by installing replacement windows or storm sash. The choice depends on the condition of your windows.

If the old windows are loose and warped and cannot be sealed effectively, replacement windows are the ideal solution. If they are in relatively good condition, and can be repaired and caulked efficiently, storm sash will provide good results.

This type of home improvement alone can reduce energy loss through windows by as much as 40 percent, to say nothing of improving appearance and virtually eliminating maintenance.

Aluminum-frame replacement and storm windows remain the most popular kind because they are easy to care for, and come in styles and colors to blend with any style architecture or fit any shape or size window opening.

You can retain a colonial look by selecting new windows with removable grids, that fit over the large pane of glass, or you can change the style completely by replacing old up-and-down wood windows or steel casements with modern aluminum horizontal sliders, picture windows, single-hung units (those with one moving section), or a combination of styles. There are also new aluminum casements which fit snugly.

These windows are lightweight and easy to handle, and the metal won't shrink, swell or rot.

Thermalized aluminum windows are the most efficient kind of replacement because they reduce heat conduction through the entire window. They insulate as well as wood or vinyl frames while providing the low-maintenance advantages of aluminum.

Superior weatherstripping and a "thermal break" are used in all component parts of the window, along with double or triple glazing (two or three sheets of glass separated by dead air space). Savings in energy can soon help offset their initial expense.

If your budget won't allow you to replace windows throughout the house at once, buy them for the rooms where you spend the most time this year and gradually add them to other rooms later. They come completely preassembled with aluminum frame, glass, weatherstripping and trim, and can be installed quickly by a qualified technician.

As with good replacement windows, storm windows also help keep the cold outside in and your air conditioning at more efficient levels in summer.

A storm window provides a second window over the original glass, and almost all of them have aluminum frames and self-storing screens.

Most efficient is the multiple track, maintenance-free window which comes in standard and custom sizes to fit any size or shape opening.

The frames can be ordered in mill or anodized finishes or in baked-on enamel-coated finishes in several different colors.

Installed over single-glazed windows, which have been properly caulked and sealed, these aluminum storm units create double-glazed windows, over double-glazed thermalized windows they form a "triple-glazed" unit which gives maximum protection for particularly cold areas, and further reduces fuel use.

Whichever type you choose, look for neat strong joints in the frames, thick weatherstripping and heavy glass.

Also, check the window's U-value. This rating indicates the ability of the window's various components to measure and, the lower the figure, the greater its ability to prevent heating or cooling loss.

Also, be sure the window bears the AAMA (Architectural Aluminum Manufacturers Association) Certification label. It tells you that the window has passed tough tests approved by the American National Standards Institute.

Although aluminum replacement or storm windows can be installed any time of year, don't wait for the first snowflakes to order them, because suppliers are finding it difficult to keep up with the demand.

Short on storage? Add cabinets

When shopping for kitchen cabinets, NKCA advises consumers to consider performance and durability as well as appearance and convenience. Look for the NKCA-certification seal inside a cabinet door or drawer.

The seal means the cabinets meet the tough construction and performance standards of the American National Standards Institute (ANSI).

To earn the seal, kitchen cabinets and built-in vanity tests must pass more than 50 laboratory tests and inspections, which measure such things as structural resistance to overloading, door slams and impact from dropped objects.

Finish tests measure resistance to heat, humidity, detergent splashes and spills of even potentially harmful substances like alcohol, camp and mustard.

Additional remodeling information is in a 16-page illustrated "Kitchen & Bath Planning Guide." To obtain a copy, send $5.00 to NKCA, Box 2978, Grand Central Station, New York, NY 10163-2978.

Interior wood shutters with movable louvers are one way to control a room's light and views and still assure privacy. Whether stained to bring out the natural beauty of the wood or painted to complement room colors, interior wood shutters enhance any room's decor.

Mouldings improve looks

One of the most satisfying home improvements is a do-it-yourself project that, when finished, looks as though it were handled by an accomplished professional. Few remodeling jobs are as easy to accomplish for the do-it-yourselfer as the application of wood mouldings. When applied to walls, wood moulding adds richness, depth, accent and color to give an ordinary room a more elegant and graceful appearance. The right tools, proper planning and knowledge of a few basic woodworking techniques are all that's needed. For most moulding work, you'll need a miter box for cutting accurate 45 and 90 degree angles, says the Wood Moulding and Millwork Products Association. Other tools include a fine-toothed saw, hammer, nail set, tape measure, finishing nails, glue, sandpaper and wood filler. Sandpaper a coping saw is required to joints fit together tightly. Once you determine where the moulding is to be used, estimate how much you'll need. Mouldings are available at local home centers or building supply stores in lengths of three to 16 feet. Make a list of the lengths you'll need. Then round off the measurements to the next largest foot to allow for cutting and trimming. Whenever possible, try to use short pieces. It's been estimated that over half of the interior trim in a home consists of lengths under eight feet. There are more than 350 standard wood moulding profiles, though not all patterns are always available. In most cases, says WMAWP, a substitute pattern is easy to find. For more information, send 40 cents for the booklet, "How to Work with Wood Mouldings" to WMAWP, P.O. Box 25278, Des Moines, IA 50325.

Make spring cleaning chores a team effort

"Many hands make light work," according to the age-old saying. With such wise advice in mind, families might consider making a team effort when tackling the annual spring cleaning battle. Rather than dreading the challenge, conquer it a simple way by incorporating a home rejuvenation program into the springtime activities of family members. Their full participation in an organized cleaning project will shrink the awesome chore into an easily manageable task, allowing more time for everyone to enjoy spring fever fun.

Family brainstorming
The makers of Bon Ami, America's favorite cleaning friend for almost 100 years, offer some ideas for a successful family program for home revitalization. Begin with a family brainstorming session to prioritize the various cleaning needs, starting with the most difficult and time-consuming to the easiest and smallest jobs.

Next, schedule a cleaning work devolve that extends over a period of time. (No spring cleaning fling can be accomplished overnight.) Each family member may choose particular times for their jobs that correspond with their schedules. Then, assign different weekly duties to each person, according to age and ability. Some tasks may require the efforts of two or more, in which case they may set an agreed tackling time and date.

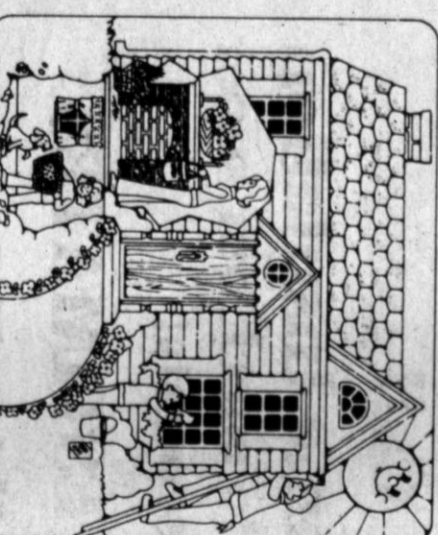

When trying to decide on which jobs to conquer first, the family might concentrate on their personal living area, such as a bedroom or work area. Since it is likely that each person will have more time in cleaning their own area, the group project will get off to a successful start. The next organized step is to work from the top to the bottom, beginning with the highest level and moving downstairs. Outside house cleaning should be reserved for the first warm weather weekend.

When establishing the cleaning timetable, it might be best to stagger hours so that cleaning supplies are not in multiple demand. It is also wise to arrange schedules so that two people are not working on different tasks, 1 one time in the same room. This will eliminate confusion and reduce criticism of others' cleaning methods.

When the opportunity arises to tackle outdoor jobs, there are some key areas that shouldn't be overlooked. Remember to remove leaves and other debris from drain spouts and gutters to ensure rain flow to proper areas. This will reduce the possibility of water leaking through the roof which can lead to stained ceilings.

Remember to include the family pets in the cleaning project. While dogs depend on owners for a healthy brushing and sunny scrubbing to remove winter coat build up, pets should also be treated to freshened living quarters. Spring is the perfect time to clean and air out the cat's box, the bird's cage, and even the turtle's aquarium. Responsibilities of these tasks might go to the family member who cares most for the particular pet.

Throughout the weeks of the spring cleaning regimen, any family can accumulate its "surplus" of white elephants. Rather than toss these no-longer-precious items in a certain collecting spot, it might be simpler to clean and price them as they are found, then store in boxes for future yard or garage sale. This method saves the painstaking hours of organizing a sale the night before.

IT'S TIME TO CONQUER the spring cleaning challenge by including the entire family in a home revitalization program. Include family members in the development of an organized cleaning plan. Then, when each person tackles chores according to a set schedule, the home quickly takes on a fresh, springtime appearance.

All reroofing jobs are not the same

All roofs have to be replaced sooner or later but all reroofing jobs are not the same. If the old roof surface is relatively smooth and the deck is in good condition, a tear-off may not be necessary. Asphalt shingles, in most cases, can be applied directly over the old roofing.

A professional roofing contractor should be able to tell whether you can avoid the cost and inconvenience of a tear-off.

This new house paint is super flexible—it stretches and shrinks with temperature and humidity changes and resists cracking and peeling. And, when applied over multiple layers of old oil or latex based house paint, it lessens and completely relaxed—so there's less tendency to crack or peel. So, whether you're repainting or painting new wood for the first time, use new Pittsburgh Exterior Flat House Paint and you'll be using a coating that represents the most advanced technology in latex house paint.

Suggestions made for decorating with photography

Drama, beauty and personality can all be expressed through photographic displays in your home. No matter what your decor, photographs can be compatible, and their use in home decorating limited only by imagination.

PHOTOGRAPHIC DISPLAYS IN THE HOME add to any decor. The professional Photographers of America report that a popular subject for decorating a home is the people who live there.

world, cite three characteristics of photographic art that are among the reasons for its increasing popularity in interior design flexibility, personalization, and moderate cost.

Flexibility
Wall decor photography comes in all shapes, sizes and styles. Displays vary from clusters of photographs to wall murals as large as 40 x 100 feet. The medium may be color, black-and-white, sepia, or even special effects.

Wall decor photography can be used to enhance any room. Formal portraits lend sophistication to a living room.

A large photomural can make a small room look bigger or create a "view" where none exists. And, groupings of candid shots can turn a hallway or family room into an informal gallery.

Personalization
Family portraits can be designed to express your family's lifestyle. They can be taken in a studio where lighting equipment can create special effects, or they may be taken outdoors for a relaxed, informal look. Many professional photographers will come to your home to create portraits in a special setting.

You may wish to experiment with group portraiture by taking advantage of Kathleen Purina's "Picture of Health" program. A proof-of-purchase coupon from Three catfood entitles you to a free family group portrait taken by a professional photographer who is a member of PPOA.

Photographs can be used to focus on family history. A hallway can be the perfect place for displaying your family tree.

For a special effect, top of the arrangement with one large family portrait that shows how everyone looks today.

Cost
Moderate cost makes photographs an appealing alternative to paintings for interior design. Like oil paintings, photographs are original works of art. They can be created to meet specific design requirements, yet are sold at reasonable prices.

Mirrors provide spacious look

Right in step with today's trend to remodeling your home for more beauty and added resale value are some handsome new space-making mirror bifold doors.

Homeowners can quickly install these smooth-action mirror bifolds to replace all kinds of problems—worn-out metal doors, sticking mirror sliders, warped wood doors.

Look at all these unique advantages for the homeowner:

- Specially sized to fit sliding door openings for remodeling.
- Mirror panels can be angled for all-around viewing as a grooming aid.
- Bifold doors can be fully opened for convenient viewing and use of closet.
- Top quality mirror glass has finished edges with no framing for unobstructive vision.
- For a professional finishing touch, only Benchmark bifolds offer two side trim pieces to cover any gaps from out-of-square openings.
- Through the "magic" of mirrors you can double your visual space and turn a small room into a sparkling show case. And behind the elegant look is valuable storage space that's more convenient because the folding doors open up fully.
- Space-creating mirror bifolds by Benchmark are specially designed to replace troublesome sliding doors and other awkward closet doors. They are sized to fit standard sliding door openings, and two side trim pieces are included for a neat finishing touch.
- These pre-painted trim pieces allow for out-of-square openings or varying opening widths and can be finished to match decors.

Expertise needed at times

If you're thinking about adding insulation, but are one of those homeowners who distrusts manual labor, you'd better hire a professional contractor.

Do-it-yourself is definitely not for you. You're not alone, however. An estimated $35 billion in home modernization projects is expected to be handled by professionals this year, according to a recent home-improvement study.

Adding insulation to finished walls is an example. It requires the skills and services of an expert. Hiring a contractor is vitally the only way to get the job done efficiently and thoroughly.

Helpful hints

The Mineral Insulation Manufacturers Association offers the following tips to those considering an insulation contractor:

- Get a list of candidates from friends, neighbors, or your local utility. Or look in the telephone directory under "Insulation Contractors—Cold and Heat."

When is the best time to insulate your home? It can be done year-round. Because contractors are especially busy in the fall, MIMA suggests spring or summer.

Don't forget the tax credit available to homeowners who invest in energy-saving projects. You may qualify for a tax credit of 15 percent of your insulating cost, up to a maximum credit of $500.

Since many states also have tax incentives for energy conservation improvements, contact your state tax office to determine whether you are eligible for additional tax savings.

Conservation information

Additional information on energy conservation is in "How to Save Money by Insulating Your Home." For a copy of this booklet, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to MIMA, Dept. SR, 382 Springfield Avenue, Summit, NJ 07901.

Taxing

The income tax became the major source of Federal revenues around the time of World War I. Previously, the federal government depended on tariffs, excise taxes and customs duties for its income.

For fire safety, start at the top

Fire protection for your home isn't limited to insurance premiums. It could be in the form of fire resistant roofing. Today's asphalt shingles, for example, are manufactured to meet the fire resistance standard of Underwriters Laboratories. Shingles bearing the UL Class C or the higher Class A label have been tested against fire exposure and will not ignite easily, contribute to the spread of flame, or emit burning brands that could start new fires.

House doctors prescribe cures for home energy ills

Not many doctors make house calls these days, but even fewer leave your house with heating bills 15 percent to 25 percent lower than before. Yet, that is exactly what the "House Doctors" of Princeton Energy Partners (P.E.P.) are doing for a growing number of homeowners across the country.

Using state-of-the-art technology and equipment, House Doctors examine a home and actually measure energy leaks and their locations. Those that can be detected easily are fixed on the spot, resulting in immediate energy savings of 15 percent to 25 percent.

The homeowner is also given a briefing on additional work that could be done to the home, listed in order of importance and with cost-effectiveness of each item. Because it measures amounts of heat being lost at specific locations, the House Doctor approach can also save homeowners costly, and perhaps unnecessary, energy repairs. For example, insulating a wall or ceiling without pinpointing and repairing invisible energy leaks is both wasteful and less effective.

A House Doctor will properly diagnose the problem first, so that houses doctored under the P.E.P. prescription have been seen to save their owners as much as two-thirds of their previous heating bills.

The principles that make the House Doctor technique so effective are the results of research at Princeton University, demonstrating that many factors come into play in home energy efficiency. This research has made the public increasingly aware that insulation is not a panacea to all energy ills, and that invisible yet common problems such as air infiltration and "bypass" heat losses need a more pinpointed approach for reducing a home's energy consumption. These factors are only measurable with instruments such as those used by P.E.P. House Doctors.

DEMONSTRATING THEIR TECHNIQUE for home doctoring, above, is the Princeton Energy Partners team of Kenneth Gaddy (L) and Herb Merz (R). A large fan called a blower door, manufactured by one of the principals of Princeton Energy Partners Inc., is installed to create a 20-mile-an-hour exterior wind on all outer surfaces of the home. Herb Merz monitors instruments to calculate the overall heat loss from the house, while his associate, Kenneth Gaddy, scans ceilings and walls with an infrared heat detector to locate areas where energy is escaping through invisible bypasses.

Heinie Groh, who played third base for the New York Giants in the 1920s, customarily used a bat shaped like a wine bottle.

simulate a wind of 20-miles-an-hour on all exterior surfaces of the structure simultaneously. While one monitors instruments to determine overall heat loss, the other scans walls and ceilings with an infrared detector to locate areas where energy is escaping through invisible bypasses.

House Doctors also perform furnace tune-ups, adjust the functioning of hot water systems, and calibrate clock thermostats, discussing settings with the owner. Total cost of the visit is about $380 (with some variation based on house size).

House Doctors are trained professionals under certification of Princeton Energy Partners, an energy management and consulting company serving residential energy conservation businesses and homeowners. Several of the principals of P.E.P. organized the House Doctor Program while at Princeton University's Environmental Studies Program, and they are currently building and training a network of certified House Doctors in franchises around the country. Princeton Energy Partners, Inc., can be contacted at P.O. Box 1221, Princeton, NJ 08540, (609) 924-1177.

IT'S FOR YOU, JUGHEAD! I KNOW I WAS HERE?

JUGHEAD? HOW CAN YOU BUY A HAMBURGER WHEN YOU OWE ME MONEY?

NO! NO! ARCHIE! DON'T DO THIS TO ME!

NOH? ARCH, HOW DID YOU KNOW?

AND LOOK! BETTY JUST CAME IN! TAKE YOUR HAT OFF!

DON'T BOTHER LOOKING AROUND, JUG. THERE'S NO ONE THERE BUT BETTY, POP TATE, YOU AND YOUR BIG FAT HAMBURGER!

I'VE GOT HIM WORRIED! BETTER HANG UP HERE COMES DADDY!

OKAY, OKAY! SO I BOUGHT A DRINK, TOO!

LONDON'S NICE, SO IS ROME... BUT AFTER ALL...

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME

Die BROWNIE

SO, HOW'VE YOU BEEN?

● STRANGE WORD! There is an English word of more than two letters of which "a" is the middle, "s" the beginning, and "r" in its entirety. What is the word?

● ALL THUMBS! Using your thumbs and no other fingers, unbutton a button of your shirt. Then, if you succeed, try to rebutton it similarly.

● Sum Fun! There are five consecutive numbers that add up to exactly 50. What are they? Answer in one minute, without peeking below.

● Riddle Me This! What TV shows result from too many laugh tracks? Saturation comedies. What was Attila the Hun's favorite sweet? Horde candy. Why is it best not to scratch poison ivy? It's a rash action.

MYSTERY STORY

It all happened in a brightly lighted, elegantly appointed room. Dozens of eyes were on them as they flew together, kissed. But then, a man with the fire of victory in his eyes deliberately raised the stick he carried and sent the pale one spinning.

The other neither screamed nor faltered. There was no sign of heartbreak, resentment, not even a murmur was heard from the crowd because—?

ON THE ROCKS! What can you draw to complete the picture above? To find out, add lines from 1 to 2, 3, etc.
