Graduation set Thursday for 315 Hereford High seniors

Thursday is graduation day for the Hereford High School senior class of 1983, with 315 listed as candidates for diplomas. The class includes 168 girls and 147 boys.

Commencement exercises begin at 8 p.m. in Whiteface Stadium with Amy Griffin presenting the valedictory address and Laura Kosub the salutatory address.

Amy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.T. Griffin, scored a 102.65 grade average in high school. Miss Kosub, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Kosub, followed closely with a 102.24 average.

Academic standings are based on a 100 average, but students can surpass the standard with top grades in advanced courses. The third-ranking student, and high boy, was Steve Barrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barrett. He earned a 101.25 grade-point average.

The remainder of the top 10 students: 4. Bethany Boyd 100.64, 5. Kristy Simons 98.81; 6. Charlie Suarez 96.52, 7. Annabeth Friemel 96.17; 8. Ronnie Killough 97.62, 9. Jeff Morris 97.51, 10. Michael Foster 97.43.

The class had 49 honor graduates—those marking a 90 or better grade-point average.

The commencement program includes the last surprise award—the announcement of the "Outstanding Senior" as selected by the high school faculty. Selection is based on academics as well as other factors—such as attitude toward teachers and students, leadership, and participation in school activities.

Principal John Walch will present a plaque to the "Outstanding Senior," as well as trophies to the top two honor grads.

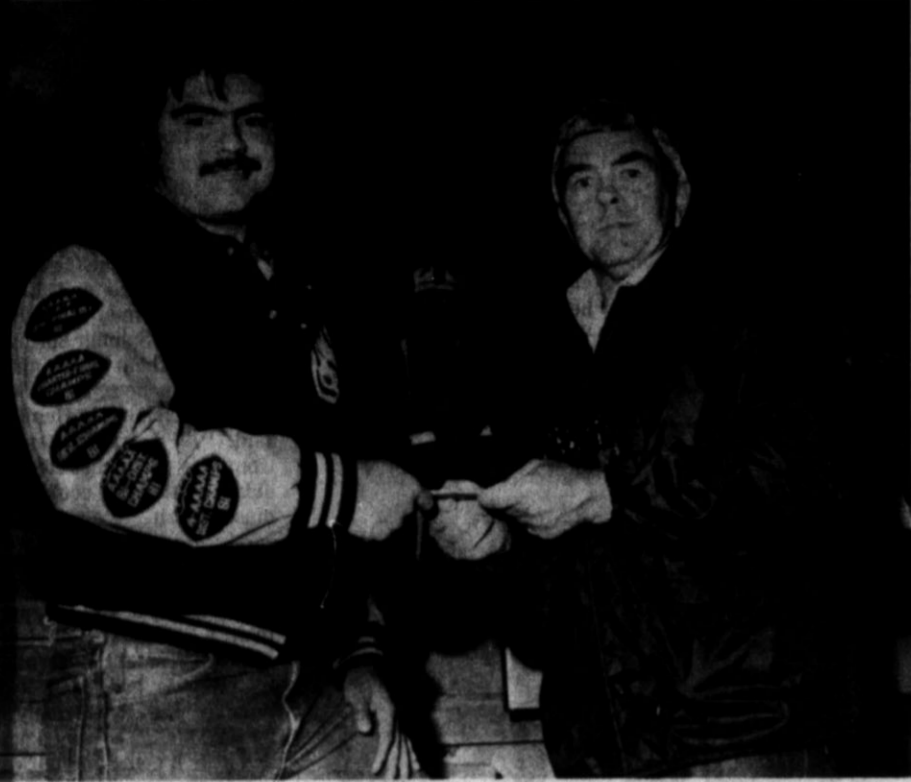

The high school band will play at commencement. Senior Class President James Payne will word the invocation; Supt. Harrell Holder will present the class, and School Board President Sallie Strain will award the diplomas. The band will be under the direction of Johnny Martinez and Paul Lindley.

Baccalaureate was conducted Sunday night at the stadium with the principal address by the Rev. Jesse Hodge, minister of Wesley United Methodist Church. The combined high school band provided music. Andres Del Toro, minister, worded the invocation and benediction.

The HHS Choir, directed by Doug Morris, sang "We've Only Just Begun."

Booster Club Award

Erasmus Gonzales, left, was presented with the Whiteface Booster Club scholarship award Tuesday night at the Maroon-White game in Whiteface Stadium. Dave Hopper, vice president, made the presentation of the $200 scholarship. The boosters also named new officers, with John Bunch heading the group for the coming year.

Boosters give award, elect Bunch president

Erasmus Gonzales was named the recipient of the Whiteface Booster Club's scholarship award during an impromptu meeting of the club at the Maroon-White game Tuesday night.

Dave Hopper, vice president, made the presentation to Gonzales. The award is a $200 scholarship to be used at the college of his choice. Gonzales was a starting offensive tackle for the Herd last season.

The booster club also named new officers for the year. John Bunch was elected as president; Jesse Hodge and Dale Scott are the vice presidents; Sue Sims is treasurer, and Betty Martin is the secretary.

The boosters serve to support and promote all athletic programs in the school system. The annual All-Sports Banquet is also sponsored by the Whiteface Booster Club.

Committee compromises on Public Utility measure

AUSTIN (AP) — House and Senate differences in operations of the Public Utility Commission have been ironed out by a 10-member conference committee but each house must give its final okay.

The compromise was adopted 8-0 Tuesday to continue operations of the PUC for the next 12 years with a special attorney to represent consumers in electric, telephone, water and sewer rate hearings.

The measure includes a prohibition of automatic increases in electric utility bills for fuel costs, creates a public utility counsel to represent consumers in electric and telephone rate increase hearings, and requires regional public hearings on rate increase requests.

It does not include an elected PUC body as advocated by Gov. Mark White. The three members will be appointed by the governor subject to confirmation by the Senate.

Neither does the compromise bill touch on regulation of natural gas utility rates, which currently lie with local governments and the Texas Railroad Commission.

"I believe this is a good bill that will serve our people well now and in the future," said Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texas.

The final approval of the compromise was delayed by a House resolution asking the conference committee to consider shifting the regulations of water and sewer utility rates from PUC to the Texas Water Commission. The Senate did not approve a similar resolution.

Since the proposal to transfer water and sewer regulation was not in either the House or Senate bills the 10-member conference committee could not consider it without a special resolution from each house.

Rep. Elton Bomer, D-Montalpa, who sponsored the House resolution said the House was scheduled to debate Thursday a Senate-approved bill to make the transfer. If the bill should pass the transfer could be made on the basis of that separate bill.

Bomer said PUC Chairman Al Erwin supports the transfer.

The 10 conferees settling differences between House and Senate bills on continuation of PUC operations settled one last question today.

Governor threatens special session to get teacher pay raise

By JAMES R. KING

AUSTIN (AP) — Chances for a special session of the Legislature to take up a tax bill appeared stronger than ever today, although Gov. Mark White — the only man who can call one — has not said yet what he intends to do.

He has insisted on a 24 percent pay raise for schoolteachers and wants a tax bill to pay for it. He's shown a willingness to tax anything from gasoline to alcohol, from movie tickets to cigarettes.

For the regular session, which ends Monday night at midnight, time has simply run out for White's plan.

But Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, the chairman of the only legislative committee authorized to consider a tax bill, said he would help White get a tax bill through during a special session, probably in July.

"I had a meeting with the governor (Tuesday) and volunteered my services to help him put together a package if we did have a special session," said Schlueter, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"If the governor worked closely with the members of the Legislature and allowed us a time frame to get ready for a special session, very possibly and very likely there would be an agreed package," he said.

Earlier Tuesday, White accused House members of "putting alcohol and tobacco in front of education" and hinted he would call them

Toxins may be flowing in Houston floodwater

HOUSTON (AP) — Floodwaters east of Houston may be contaminated with toxins from two abandoned hazardous waste dumps, state officials have warned residents.

Signs were posted in an area near Crosby, east of Houston, Tuesday after residents complained that children had been playing in the water, which is still standing from torrential rains last weekend.

Officials with the Greater Houston Red Cross said between 600 and 700 families remained homeless. Most were staying with friends or relatives, officials said.

Night watchman Calvin Powell, 53, and his wife, Betty, 51, expect to continue sleeping in their car until floodwaters drop low enough to let them get back into their inundated trailer home.

"I don't know what we're going to do, because it's going to be another week," Powell said.

An insurance official estimated the flooding, which followed a line of tornadoes which killed 10 people early Friday, caused about $350 million in damage in the Houston area.

The flooded dumps — Sikes Disposal Pits and French Ltd. — were recently named by the federal Environmental Protection Agency as among the nation's 418 worst toxic waste dumps. Sites on that list are slated for cleanup under EPA's five-year superfund program.

Government lists say the Sikes site contains sludge made up of phenolic chemicals, benzene and xylene in six earthen ponds, while the French site contains sludge and possibly polychlorinated biphenyls.

Tom Milligan, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Water Resources in Austin, said his agency doesn't believe a serious public health threat exists.

He said the dumps were abandoned more than a decade ago and have been flooded several times in recent years without any serious problems. Even if any toxins seeped out, he said, they would probably be diluted in the floodwaters.

But 18-year-old Richard Lange, a resident of a subdivision where the warning signs were posted, said "three to four people have gotten sick from drinking the water" every time there's a flood.

Stennie Meadours, a Houston field representative of the water resources agency, said Harris County environmental officials posted the signs after a resident complained Monday that children were playing in the water in subdivision streets.

Five city blocks fighting crime

Five residential blocks now are active in the Neighborhood Watch crime prevention program, according to Hereford police officer Randy Williams.

Blocks on Ranger and North-east, which organized earlier this spring, have been joined by blocks on Fuller Knight, and Elm. Mrs. Kee Ruland, 119 Sunset is hosting a meeting June 2 for forming an association on that block.

Officers for the new joint association for the 100 blocks of Knight and Fuller are Charles Higgins, president;

June Koelzer, vice president, and Annie May Medley, secretary-treasurer.

Elm Street's 100 block is led by Mrs. John Seiver, president; Mrs. Charles Duvall, vice-president, and Mrs. B.F. Cain, secretary-treasurer.

"A lot of times you don't know what (kind of crime) you've stopped with a Neighborhood Watch," Williams said.

He added that the Operation ID equipment is in and available to the public on request at the police station.

Reagan says missile 'wise, courageous step'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says House approval of the MX missile is a "wise, courageous step forward for America," and he looks forward to a similar victory when the Senate votes on the giant new nuclear weapon.

The 239-186 House vote Tuesday "sends an important signal to the world: Americans are uniting in a common search to protect our security, reduce the level of nuclear weapons and strengthen the peace," Reagan said. "We now look to the Senate to send this same message."

The Senate was scheduled to vote this afternoon on whether to go ahead with development and testing of the 10-warhead missile Reagan calls the "Peacekeeper."

In a preliminary test of sentiment, the Senate voted 59-35 Tuesday against a Democrat-sponsored attempt to delay a decision until Reagan agrees to an MX basing plan that would involve either moving or hiding the missile from a Soviet first strike.

It was a remarkable turnaround in the House, which last December voted 245-176 against production money for the MX.

Both MX supporters and critics credited Reagan's intensive lobbying with turning around the House vote. The president was calling wavering congressmen until less than an hour before the vote, said White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

Reagan met with dozens of congressmen in the past 10 days and telephoned others. "There has been intense lobbying, particularly by the president," said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.

The House vote frees the Pentagon to spend $625 million in research and testing money that was approved, but frozen, last December when Congress rejected an administration MX basing plan for a second time.

Still to come in the next few weeks are House and Senate

Steamer sinks in Nile

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A Nile River steamer with more than 600 people aboard caught fire and sank today, police said. Early reports from the scene said about 180 people had been rescued from the muddy, crocodile-infested waters.

Feverish rescue operations were underway, police sources said, and local authorities requested additional rescue squads.

There was no immediate word on what caused the fire, which broke out before dawn on a boat filled mostly with Sudanese and Egyptian passengers traveling south to Sudan.

Reached by telephone about eight hours after the fire broke out, provincial secretary general Mustafa Abdel-Ghaffour told The Associated Press there were additional survivors beyond those included in the initial report but he did not have a figure.

He said he had received a report that some passengers swam ashore and others were being picked up by military helicopters.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says he can remember when the only thing that annoyed him about the television was the poor reception.

A speeding motorist was stopped by a police officer. "I'm a good friend of the mayor," pleaded the speeder. "That's great," said the officers as he wrote the ticket. "Now he'll know I'm on the job."

The quick, hard-hitting storm that passed through the county last Friday afternoon left a trail of hail damage in the north part of the county. Reports indicate the damage was most severe in a strip three or four miles wide from near Milo Center to Wildorado.

Several farmers have reported a 100 percent loss of wheat and barley. John Fuston, ASCS manager, is expected to have an estimate this week on the total number of acres hailed out.

Personally, we don't want equal rights.

We recently saw an article by a fashion editor in a metro newspaper concerning research done by a graduate fashion designer at North Texas State University.

The graduate student, a former Braniff Airlines hostess, has done research and designed skirts for men.

Yep, skirts! Those modeled in the newspaper photo were similar to kilts, with soft pleats falling below the knees. The skirts came complete with front fly and side and hip pockets.

Says the designer, "Women have long had the choice of wearing skirts or slacks. Man should be free to make the same choice."

Wonder if it would be necessary to shave our legs?

Law stifles border booze-buying

AUSTIN (AP) — The House on Tuesday tentatively approved a measure that could cut into the long-time practice of crossing the Mexican border to buy booze to bring back into Texas.

Rep. Charles Evans' bill would allow only Mexican-produced alcoholic beverages to be brought into Texas.

The bill won 86-41 approval, but faces another vote before Senate review.

In committee hearings earlier this year, Texas liquor distributors testified in favor of the bill. Supporters complained that some beverages are far cheaper in Mexico. For example, a blended foreign whiskey selling for $6.95 in Juarez, Mexico, costs $11.29 across the border in El Paso, according to a bill analysis.

Alcoholic beverages not produced in Mexico are brought to Mexican border cities for sale to Americans.

'Funny money' bill allows foreign payoffs

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has approved what Sen. Bob Glasgow, the Senate sponsor, calls the "funny money" bill.

The bill would allow health, life and accident policies to pay off in foreign currency but only if the currency had a better fiscal record over a 20-year period than the American dollar.

The original Senate bill authorized the State Insurance Board to reject proposed health, accident and life policies that would pay off in other than United States currency.

The board sought the bill after the courts said the board had no authority to turn down a policy that would have paid off in Swiss francs.

Glasgow, D-Stephenville, said Tuesday the House added an amendment that would allow the board to approve foreign currency if the currency had been more stable than U.S. dollars over the last 20 years.

Asked if the board had the staff to make such a determination, Glasgow smiled and replied, "They tell me they're happy with it."

The amended "funny money bill" was approved by the Senate on voice vote, and sent to the governor to be signed into law.

Insurance cheaters could face expulsion

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill providing for the expulsion of a state employee who tries to cheat on his group insurance was approved by the Senate on Tuesday.

Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, offered the example of an employee who gets a $150 claim approved by a physician and then adds a zero, making the claim for $1,500 and submitting it for payment.

The employee could be expelled for five years.

The bill also provides for employee contributions to the uniform group insurance program if the amount appropriated by the Legislature does not cover the cost.

Senators passed the House-approved bill on voice vote and sent it to the governor to be signed into law.

Voters to decide on solon expense raise

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators approved a proposal Tuesday that would raise legislators' daily expense allowance during legislative sessions from $30 to $75 a day.

The proposed constitutional amendment already has cleared the House and will be submitted to the voters at a statewide election on Nov. 6, 1984.

Quick reports wanted by Attorney General

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill that would require reports within 20 days on anyone who dies while in the custody of local or state law enforcement officials cleared the Senate on Tuesday.

Senators passed the House-approved measure on voice vote and sent it to the governor to be signed into law.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said the bill was needed because "there have been a number of deaths at facilities in the past, and it is important to get the information to the attorney general."

Doggett said Attorney General Jim Mattox supported the bill.

Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana, complained that it would mean just another report.

Governor given late-hour liquor law

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate approved a bill Tuesday that would allow the late-hour sale of beer and mixed drinks in five more counties.

Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, said the counties affected would be Cameron, Hidalgo, Jefferson, Lubbock and Nueces.

Currently, for a county with a population of less than 300,000 to qualify for sales from midnight to 2 a.m. every day, it must be done by order of the commissioner's court or adoption of a city ordinance by the governing body of the city.

The bill would lower the population to 200,000.

The House-approved bill was passed by the Senate on voice vote and sent to the governor to be signed into law.

Professor toots a long horn

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) — Neill Humfeld likes to blow his own horn — not the kind that are synonymous with the University of Texas and Longhorn steers in the Lone Star State, but musical ones.

Humfeld, an East Texas State University music professor, uses a long horn to reach out to members of his brass section.

The horn is a straightened trombone that measures 9 feet, 1 inch from mouthpiece to bell. Humfeld, a member of the ETSU faculty since 1958, conducts trombone clinics throughout the United States, including one at the International Trombone Workshop at Belmont College in Nashville from May 30 to June 3.

"The most important concept teachers must convey to their students is to produce a tone with good breath support," Humfeld said.

"I'm a graphics person, and I want to show how far a person has to blow to play a trombone," he said. "I make the students aware that they must fill up a tube at least nine feet long and then project that sound even farther to an audience."

He said that when he realized that a trombone was 109 inches long in the first position, he "conceptualized it as a 'herald trombone' with no crooks."

Humfeld has tried several techniques in illustrating the importance of blowing "through the horn," including having a student look down a 109-inch ribbon stretched horizontally from his face to the other side of the room.

Last year, he mentioned his "herald trombone" concept to Walter Pace and Larry Price, repairmen at McKay Music Co. in Sulphur Springs.

"I asked them to straighten out a trombone so I could use it for teaching," Humfeld said. "All I wanted was a trombone 109 inches long. It didn't matter if I could play music with it."

"They adapted a Model 6 Bach Tenor Trombone to my request, and it was far more than I expected," he said. "The instrument does play, its pitch is good and it is tunable. But it is really a strange feeling to play a note and hear it come out halfway across the room from where you are sitting."

To play the horn, Humfeld must use a stand to support it. To move the instrument to each of the seven positions, he must shuffle back and forth on a chair with rollers.

The instrument, which is worth about $650, can be disassembled and transported in a specially made carrying case.

Humfeld said he does not intend to perform a recital with the instrument, but he "might work out a solo."

"As a teaching device, it really makes the point come through," he said. "It's a gimmick, but it's a gimmick that works. It gets people's attention. While I give a presentation, I set it behind me so that the audience or class can see it."

Humfeld, 55, has played the trombone since he was 8 years old. He has bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Kansas and master's and doctorate degrees from the Eastman School of Music where he studied under the late Emory Remington.

Besides teaching at ETSU, Humfeld is a trombone clinician, soloist and technical adviser for the Bach Instrument Division of the Selmer Corp.

The recent addition of three staff members at The Hereford Brand have been announced by Publisher O.G. Nieman.

Tommy Weaver and Karla Polk are now associated with the advertising sales department of the newspaper, while LeAnne Hughes is working in the news department as a summer journalism intern from Texas Tech University.

joining the Brand staff. She is a Hereford High graduate and attended Western Texas College and Amarillo College. She gained advertising experience with the Marion Dick Modeling Agency and was also a model.

Miss Polk was a head cheerleader at Western Texas. She won English awards in both high school and college.

Miss Hughes is a senior at Texas Tech and is scheduled to graduate in December with degrees in Ag Communications and Animal Science. She was awarded a West Texas Press Association scholarship to work as a summer intern at The Brand.

LeAnne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hughes of Hereford, attended Clarendon Junior College after graduation from Hereford High. At Clarendon, she was a student senate representative, cheerleader, and was active in the Livestock judging team, Rodeo Club, and a member of Phi Theta Kappa honor society.

At Tech, LeAnne was a member of the World Champion horse judging and livestock judging teams, vice president of Saddle and Sirolo, Collegiate 4-H, Ag Communicators of Tomorrow, Agri-Texans, and the Alpha Zeta honor society.

She has earned scholarships from the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, Parent-Leaders, Hereford State Bank, and John T. Carthel. She has written for "The Agriculturalist," an agricultural magazine published each semester at Tech.

HHS students, teacher to attend symposium

Melissa Brumley, Cheri Barker, and Craig McCuistian, juniors at Hereford High School, and Pat Hickman, Hereford High School resource teacher, are to participate in the 23rd annual Texas Energy Science Symposium at the University of Texas (UT) at Austin May 31 through June 3.

Miss Brumley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Brumley of Route 5,

Hereford; Miss Barker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Barker of 235 Elm St., Hereford; and McCuistian is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McCuistian of 338 Center, Hereford. They and Hickman are among 41 outstanding high school students and teachers from the Panhandle and South Plains invited to the symposium as guests of Southwestern Public Service

Co. (SPS). The symposium is expected to attract more than 400 students and their teachers from across Texas to tour the science laboratories at UT and to hear nationally known scientists and engineers discuss energy related topics. The participants were selected by the school systems they represent.

Keynote speaker will be Mack Wallace, chairman of the Railroad Commission of Texas, discussing energy, economics, and national security.

Among the other speakers will be Dr. Edward Teller, a nuclear physicist with Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, talking about "The Ultimate Renewable Resource," and Dr. Hubert Alyea, professor emeritus of chemistry at Princeton University, who will conduct a special workshop for teachers and speak on "Lucky Accidents, Great Discoveries, and the Prepared Mind."

The symposium is sponsored by the University of Texas and the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation (TAERF). The foundation, organized by ten investor-owned Texas utility companies, sponsors research at UT with the ultimate goal of using energy from fusion reactions for the generation of electricity. SPS is a charter member of TAERF, and SPS board chairman and chief executive officer Berl Springer presently is president of TAERF.

White's criticism came a day after major portions of his latest proposed tax package were shot down by Schlueter's committee.

"We've laid out all these alternatives for them. I am waiting for them to act. I don't understand what objection they have to taxing alcohol in the House. They have steadfastly put alcohol and tobacco in front of education," White said.

Schlueter said it was "virtually impossible" to approve a tax bill during the remaining days in the regular session.

Directors of Pre-Feeders, Inc., has announced that the new name of its feedlot in Summerfield will be Pre-Feeders Feed Yard, Inc., following the sale of the yard to Max Woodard of Dallas.

The management and staff of the yard remains intact.

But White said there was still enough time. "I'd like to see them get their work done within the time allotted by the constitution. We hope we don't have to keep them after school."

The Legislature meets in regular session for 140 days every odd-numbered year, but the governor has the power to summon lawmakers back to the Capitol any time he wishes for up to 30 days at a time. During special sessions, lawmakers may only consider items submitted by the governor.

In March, White proposed taxing computer software, liquor, cigarettes and video games.

Earlier this month, he modified the plan to include cocktails, beer, wine, and utilities sold to factories. His latest plan dropped liquor (but not cocktails) and included new or higher taxes on gasoline, diesel, movie tickets, and video game cartridges.

Even though parts of White's latest plan were voted down in Schlueter's committee, Schlueter said they had more support than some of the other taxes White has proposed.

During more than three hours of debate, House critics charged again and again that the latest basing plan would not protect the weapons from a Soviet strike and said it would move the world closer to nuclear war.

said a preliminary evaluation by Houston-area insurance companies put property damage from the storms at $350 million, with most from tornadoes that ripped apart trees and buildings.

Johns said the estimate does not include the loss in terms of human death and injury. He said final figures will probably show that property damage exceeds $400 million.

Local officials have put the damages at $60 million to $90 million in Harris County and as much as $100 million in Montgomery County. Officials in other counties affected have not made their damage estimates.

Panic over Times Beach

The British think we are paranoid.

They see our EPA emptying the whole town of Times Beach, Mo., because of dioxin in the soil there...though the EPA still allows dioxin to be sprayed as a herbicide on rangelands and on rice crops.

Indeed, dioxin has been sprayed for years on forests and crops and roadsides and home gardens and on the lawn of the White House.

Then why the panic over Times Beach?

British toxicologists believe that too many of Washington, D.C.'s decisions are made by politicians to show they are doing something to protect the public—whether the public needs protecting or not.

In fairness to the bureaucrats, because in the '60s we were not warned in time about Thalidomide, babies died and others were born malformed and bureaucrats lost their jobs. Since then, in such government agencies as EPA and FDA and OSHA and CPSC, officials have tended to cover themselves with a public warning, however flimsy the evidence.

The result is that Americans are bombarded with warnings and whole industries go broke trying to prove themselves innocent.

The CPSC ban on the use of urea-formaldehyde in home insulation is being challenged in court. Here again, British scientists think we are over-running our headlights.

The British Industrial Biological Research Association notes that formaldehyde can cause nasal cancers in lab animals after prolonged breathing of high concentrations—concentrations so pungent that no human could stand even brief exposure.

Destructive storms bring much-needed rain

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The storms that brought destruction to Southeast Texas and caused 12 deaths brought a disguised blessing for farmers — rain.

"Because of the need we had for rain, it was overall beneficial — although it was more than most places needed," said Bill Braden of Texas A&M University's Agricultural Extension Service.

"Things are in much better shape as a result of the rain — from an agricultural standpoint," Braden said. At worst, the state's harvest will be slightly delayed by flooding in low-lying areas, said Braden.

He said initial "sketchy" reports indicated no major damage to crops or livestock since the storms, high winds, hail and tornadoes were confined mostly to "creeks, rivers and urban areas."

"I don't think at this point crops or livestock were really hurt that much. The rain will delay some of the progress the crops were making, particularly in the low-lying areas. But the rain was really beneficial in some areas, such as pastures and grasslands — although we really got too much," Braden said.

Cotton, corn, rice and grain sorghum were planted about a month ago in central and southeast parts of the state, hardest hit by the storms. He estimated the crops' maturity will be delayed a month or more because of the colder and more turbulent spring weather.

"The weather will have delayed some of the progress the crops are making. The crops are fairly young, planted from mid-March on. So it will slow down development some. But we had an unusual spring, much cooler, and that also slowed down the crops," Braden said.

Peaches and pecans, which were just beginning to crop, may have suffered from hail and high winds in some areas, Braden said. But he added there was "no significant damage."

Taylor pleased with defense

Offense questionable as spring drills conclude

Scores can be awfully misleading. Take for instance Hereford's spring football game Tuesday at Whiteface Stadium. The offense certainly outscored the defense in the controlled scrimmage which capped this spring's drills—the first under new coach Jerry Taylor.

But, Taylor was a bit perplexed afterward.

"We had a scrimmage about a week earlier, and the defense actually outscored the offense in that one. But, I was more distressed about our offense after last night's scrimmage, even though they outscored the defense," Taylor noted.

"Offensively, we were very inconsistent. We sputtered and stammered quite a bit, then we'd come up with a big play."

"From a defensive standpoint, we were much more consistent. I thought the defense played well."

"Offensively, we're going to have to improve greatly in our pass blocking."

But, while Taylor was a bit apprehensive following the final spring workout, he was nonetheless pleased with the overall progress.

"I thought the kids did a good job retaining the new things we put in, both offensively and defensively," he added.

"I felt we accomplished one of our main goals this spring," Taylor said, "and that was to get the players in the right spots."

"At this point, we're a long way from behind a polished football team. But, I think the kids have a lot of character and they'll work hard in the fall."

"I think, for us to be successful next that, I mean, they are going to have to work on skill things, such as throwing the football, and catching it."

"Right now, I'd look for us to try and throw the ball about half the time when we're on offense."

"If we have any strong points it would be the kids' attitude, and their willingness to work hard. Their attitude toward the new system, and toward the coaches has been super."

"If we have any shortcomings, it would be in overall size and quickness, or perhaps in not catching the ball any better than we did."

Defensively, Taylor praised the play of linebacker Lee Brockman, end Brian Lady, tackle Ricky Treadway, nose guard David Parsons and backs Jeff Streun (the only returning starter) and Larry Jimenez.

Streun and Mike Scott are the quarterback candidates for next season.

"Because of the fact we needed Jeff so badly in the secondary, I'd have to say Mike might have been slightly ahead this spring," Taylor added.

"Ronnie Terry improved a great deal as a blocker this spring. He and Ronnie Collier are our top running back prospects."

Taylor also praised the play of offensive linemen Keith Bridwell (tackle), Eric Walterscheid (tight end), Max Middleton and Melvin Kalka (guards) and Wayne Allison (center).

season, the kids are going to have to work, and do a lot on their own this summer. By

Spring Drills Conclude

Herd quarterback Mike Scott (18) scrambles to avoid tackler, while Herd defenders Alan Ritchie and Mental attitude the difference

Gilder operating on PGA's fringe of greatness

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

Bob Gilder is one of those fashion-plate golfing gypsies you see traipsing across your TV screens on Saturday and Sunday afternoons most of the year — hair disheveled, dapper in coordinated slacks and sports shirt, striking the ball with metronome monotony.

Occasionally you see them put out on the final-green, either for a victory or a fat cut of the purse. They win some, they fail a lot. Still they make a lot of trips to the bank. They are all part of a nameless breed — shotmaking automatons capable on a given day of tearing a golf course apart but still searching for identity.

In the final analysis, the big names come out the same:

Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson.

Ray Floyd. Seve Ballesteros. There is definitely a thin line — as has always been the case — separating the true greats from the near greats. What constitutes that line?

"This," said Bob Gilder, tapping the side of his head with his index finger. "It's all upstairs. There's not much difference in the way a hundred or more guys hit the ball. They can split the fairway, hit the greens and putt. But it's confidence and concentration that separates the Nicklauses and the Watsons from the rest of us.

"Guys like me are playing for a living. The pressure is on us. When we tee the ball up for a tournament, we say, 'I hope I play well today.' Nicklaus and Watson say, 'I'm going to play well today.' 'We go out hoping to pick up a reasonable check. They don't worry about the check. They go out to win the championship."

"There are days when you feel nobody in the world can beat you," said Gilder. "It's almost as if you are on some high. You just hit the ball and it does what you want it to. The cup looks big as a garbage can."

It happened to Gilder in the Westchester Classic a year ago. He shot rounds of 64, 63, 65 and 69 for a score of 261, a tournament record and the lowest score on the PGA tour in seven years.

Gilder, 32, a 10-year man out of Corvallis, Ore., is one of the many fine young golfers operating on the fringe of greatness. He has won seven tour events. He needs just $7,000 and change and he'll be at the $1 million plateau in prize money.

Monterey, Coronado, Plainview dominate coaches' 3-5A All-District baseball team Monterey, Coronado and Plainview, 1-2-3 in the District 3-5A baseball race, dominated the coaches' all-district team announced today.

Hereford, which fared better than its last-place pre-season prediction, was represented on the second team by outfielder Mickey Stengel.

Catcher Raymond Martinez, first baseman Brian Taylor, shortstop Ronnie Collier and outfielder Jeff Shire were honorable mention selections from Hereford.

Plainview's Ronnie Ortegon was chosen the league's player of the year. He was a first team all-district pick at first base, as well as a pitcher.

Monterey's Bobby Moegle was chosen coach of the year, while Plainview's Chad Engelhardt was named sophomore of the year.

Monterey's first-team selections included catcher Jimmy Simpson, second baseman Alan Hernandez, shortstop Scott Smith, designated hitter Phil Edwards, outfielder Billy Lance and pitcher Kevin Short.

First-team selections from Coronado included outfielder Jerry Foster, third baseman Kent Meador and pitcher Bret Marshall.

Outfielder Quennoth Dunlap and Ortegon were Plainview's first-team picks.

Ironically, Danny Riddle, the district's leading hitter with a .571 average, was not picked on the first team. The Monterey senior was a second-team selection at third base and as a pitcher.

Injuries hinder 76ers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Although Philadelphia leads the Los Angeles Lakers 1-0 in the National Basketball Association championship series and has won nine of 10 playoff games, health and injury problems are preventing 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham from enjoying himself.

"We have not had a dull moment in the playoffs. If it's not one player, it's another," Cunningham said Tuesday after learning that his No. 1 backup at center and power forward, Clemon Johnson, would miss Thursday's second game because of a urinary tract infection. Johnson joined Moses Malone, Julius Erving, Andrew Toney, Clint Richardson and Bobby Jones on the list of Philadelphia players who have been hampered by injury or illness since the regular season ended.

Cunningham said the 76ers should approach the first two games as a package deal.

Longest stint of season

Ruthven pitches, hits Cubs past Astros, 5-4

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Chicago Manager Lee Elia wasn't too excited about the location of Dick Ruthven's pitches. But he was pleased about the location of Dick Ruthven — on the Cubs' roster.

Ruthven, in his first start for the Cubs since being acquired from the Philadelphia Phillies for reliever Willie Hernandez last Sunday, pitched 6 1/3 innings in Houston

Tuesday night — matching his longest stint of the season.

"I had 10 days' rest," he said. "I knew I could go at least that far. I knew the Cubs had a good bullpen. I think this is a good team and we're going to surprise a lot of people."

Ruthven limited the Astros to six hits and two runs and contributed a run-scoring single in Chicago's 5-4 victory, his first win since April 27. Bill Campbell saved it for him.

Elsewhere in the National League it was Los Angeles 3, Philadelphia 0; Pittsburgh 6, Atlanta 5; San Francisco 6, New York 2; St. Louis 7, Cincinnati 1, and Montreal 5, San Diego 4 in 13 innings.

"I've seen him have better stuff, locationwise," Elia said of Ruthven. "But that's about all you could ask for, particularly with all the excitement about being traded. We needed a starter badly."

"It has been a hectic couple of days," Ruthven acknowledged. "It wasn't a pretty game — other than the outcome — but I'm satisfied."

Clearly he was happy to be out of the City of Brotherly Love, too. "The handwriting was on the wall in mid-April," he said. "I was only pitching every 10 days at times. I told the Phillies if they weren't going to let me pitch, they should trade me. I could see it coming."

The Cubs got a second-inning run on Ron Cey's fifth homer and scored twice in the fifth with Ruthven's single and Larry Bowa's triple knocking in the runs. They made it 4-0 when Keith Moreland raced home from first on Jody Davis' single to left.

The Astros got two runs in the seventh, shortstop Dickie Thon's third throwing error gave the Cubs the decisive run in the top of the ninth and Campbell came on to slam the door on the Astros in the bottom of the ninth after Lee Smith gave up a two-run double by Kevin Bass.

Dodgers 3, Phillies 0
The Phillies' scoreless streak reached 35 innings as Alejandro Pena of the Dodgers tossed a four-hitter at them for his first complete game in the majors.

"I've never seen anything like this since I've been in baseball," said befuddled Pat Corrales, the Philadelphia manager. "All we're doing is lowering our averages and the other teams' earned-run averages. It's a shame, because we're getting some very good pitching."

Loser Larry Christenson allowed only three hits in seven innings and struck out eight batters. Two of the hits were doubles by Dusty Baker, who scored a run in the fourth inning and drove in one in the sixth.

Pirates 6, Braves 5
Pittsburgh's Larry McWilliams was cruising along with a four-hit shutout when the Braves jumped on him and reliever Kent Tekulve for five runs. McWilliams wasn't surprised. "After all," he said, "I used to be one of them and I know what they can do. When they get the momentum going, it's hard to stop them."

Jason Thompson's two-run double in the sixth inning and Lee Mazzilli's two-run homer in the seventh, both off Rick Camp, helped the Pirates build a 6-0 lead.

George Hendrick drove in two runs as St. Louis halted its four-game tailspin.

Bruce Berenyi walked the bases loaded in the third inning and Lonnie Smith and Hendrick each hit an RBI single, the only runs LaPoint needed.

Expos 5, Padres 4
Bryan Little singled, took second on a grounder and scored on Warren Cromartie's single in the 13th inning to give the Expos their victory over San Diego. It was Cromartie's third time up with a runner in scoring position, and the first time he brought one home.

"Not too many people get three or four chances, so happily I was able to come through one of those times," Cromartie said. "It was a couple minutes before midnight and I know we all wanted to go home."

Blue Jays on a roll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

Red-hot is the best way to describe the Toronto Blue Jays and the Chicago White Sox's Greg Luzinski.

Both are on rolls of five — a five-game winning streak that has thrust the once-lowly Blue Jays into first place in the American League East and a five-game home run streak for Luzinski that has him within one game of the AL record for hitting a homer in consecutive games.

Buck Martinez drove in four runs with a pair of doubles and Roy Lee Jackson pitched 3 2/3 innings of one-hit relief to lead the Blue Jays to a 7-6 come-from-behind victory over the Detroit Tigers Tuesday night. Toronto took a one-game lead over the Boston Red Sox, who lost to Chicago 12-4, and the Baltimore Orioles, who dropped their fifth in a row, this one by a 6-1 score to the Minnesota Twins.

"The players aren't making a big deal out of it (first place)," said Jackson. "It's great for the fans, but it's too early in the season to be concerned with it."

Luzinski's home run was one of five hit by the White Sox as they pounded Boston.

"I can remember hitting home runs in two straight games, but nothing like this," said the man known as The Bull. "I've never had a streak like this, especially as bad as I've been going."

Luzinski also had two singles and despite his streak of power is hitting only .213.

In other AL games, California edged New York 7-6 in 10 innings, Oakland nipped Milwaukee 8-7, Cleveland defeated Seattle 6-4 and Texas and Kansas City tied 2-2 in a game halted by rain after five innings.

The Blue Jays, whose pitchers had hurled three consecutive shutouts, pulled out their victory over Detroit after trailing 5-0 after the second inning. They scored four times in the third, capped by Martinez' pinch RBI double, and took a 7-6 lead with three runs in the fifth.

After Toronto loaded the bases, Martinez hit a bouncer down the third-base line. Third baseman Howard Johnson fell down trying to move to his right and the ball rattled around in the left-field corner and got past Larry Herndon as all three runners scored.

"Being in first place means that when you're on top you can create your own destiny," said Martinez. "You don't have to be concerned with what other people are doing. It's awful early, but with our pitching staff we're not going to have any fresh skids."

White Sox 12, Red Sox 4
Ron Kittle and Jerry Hairston hit three-run homers to key an eight-run first inning. Besides Luzinski, Carlton Fisk and Lorenzo Gray also connected, giving the White Sox 14 home runs in their last five games. Jerry Koons was the winner in his first start of the season, allowing four runs and eight hits in six innings.

Cardinals 7, Reds 1
Dave LaPoint pitched an eight-hitter for his first complete game in the majors and

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a problem I have never seen discussed anywhere. My doctor is a good, trustworthy physician who did a hernia operation on me about three years ago. I am single and do not plan on another marriage, but I am human and would like to enjoy a night with a lady occasionally.

About six months after the operation my penis began to bend upward in the middle and now it is almost impossible to enjoy sex.

During my hernia operation I was cut very close to my penis. I asked my doctor about my problem and he has assured me that it had nothing to do with the operation but that he didn't know what could have caused it.

I would appreciate any medical information you can give me on this and any recommendation as to what can be done about it.

the organ stretches and expands, this area does not.

This lack of stretching causes the bending that you have observed.

DEAR READER — No, the condition is not related to your hernia operation three years ago. It is a well known problem called Peyronie's disease. But we don't know what causes it.

We know what it is. It is a thickening or plaque that involves the wall of the penis. This area cannot stretch so when a man has an erection and the rest of

Missing Children's Day

DEAR READERS: Today, May 25, is National Missing Children's Day. This date was designated by Child Find, a non-profit organization started by one mother to heighten public awareness.

Children who wandered off, left home or were abducted by a parent without legal custody can be put in touch with Child Find by calling his toll-free number: 1-800-431-5005. If you are a child and can't remember that number, dial 0 and ask the operator to please call the toll-free Child Find number. She will help you get in touch with your mom or dad.

Parents who want to reach Child Find for help in locating their children should call 1-914-244-1848.

Parents should take the following precautions to prevent kidnappings:

-Never leave your children alone in a car or at a video game while you shop.

-Develop a code word with your child. Unless someone uses it, the child should not leave with that person, no matter what the person says.

-Keep fingerprints, fingerprints, dental records and a recent photograph of your child on hand.

-Obtain legal custody if you are separated and caring for your child.

-Ask an attorney about supervised visitation if you have genuine reason to fear parental kidnapping.

-As soon as your child is old enough to talk, teach him his name, address and telephone number.

Teach your child to use the telephone—at the very least, to dial 0.

Judges are now enforcing equal penalties for family members and friends who assist in parental kidnappings. It is hoped that this form of child abuse will be recognized for what it is, and parents will be able to settle their custody disputes without resorting to kidnapping their own children.

If you know the location of any abducted child, please call Child Find. All information will be treated as confidential.

Last year was the first National Missing Children's Day. I was told that because of the single column I ran several hundred children were reunited with their families. The phones rang off the wall. I hope it happens again this year. For more information write to Alice Byrne, executive committee chairman, 2055 Flatbush Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y. 11234.

Here's your second annual plug, Alice. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you find space to print one more letter about football players who always say, "Hi, Mom" when they get on TV? Never, it seems, does anyone say, "Hi, Dad."

I'm not a sentimental guy, but tears came to my eyes when the U.S. Olympic hockey team won the gold medal and not knowing he was on national TV, Jim Craig looked up and said, "Where's my dad?"—Observer In Upstate.

DEAR UPSTATE: This "observer" in Illinois saw it, too—and was also deeply moved. Thanks for adding some balance to the picture.

Abundant Life

BEYOND PRICE

By Bob Wear
There may be a number of things "beyond price," but for all of us, we can be sure that "enthusiasm" is admittedly one of the priceless elements of effective living.

For the most helpfulness, we want enthusiasm to be a constancy; much more than a now and then happening. In the fulfillment of this justified desire, we must never make the mistake of depending upon the material and the physical for the support we need. These things are important, and must be considered accordingly; however, enduring enthusiasm is of the spirit. It is spiritually begotten and spiritually nurtured.

Enthusiasm is ardent zeal and interest. Fervor is used sometimes as a synonym. True enthusiasm is never superficial, but is deep and abiding; it is not excitement. It is warm and vigorous; it is steady; and, when directed wisely, it embraces the most wholesome motivations and aims.

"When enthusiasm is inspired by reason; controlled by caution, sound in theory; practical in application; it reflects confidence, spreads good cheer; raises morale; inspires associates; arouses loyalty, and laughs at adversity—it is beyond price."—C.Cox.

Enthusiasm is the spirit that brightens and enlivens the many experiences of useful living. A proper view of life includes many things worthy of our enthusiastic interest. There is good reason for zeal, fervor and a general attitude of eagerness concerning the work we do, the service we render, and the responsibilities we accept. Our ability, energy, initiative and ingenuity can be fully extended only when this is the controlling disposition.

There is a great need in the family, the school, the church and in all other honorable areas of human behavior for unending enthusiasm, a spirit we can develop and cultivate. "The worst bankrupt in the world is the person who has lost enthusiasm."—H.W. Arnold.

Enthusiasm is a personal need, and essential to abundant living.

BSP Chapter has birthday party

Members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority held their chapter birthday party Thursday evening at The Deli. Gold trimmed name tags and individually potted lilac petunias were used as decorations which later became party favors for guests. A brief program was given by Claudia McBrayer and Amy Gilliland on the different types of cheeses and where and how they are made.

Members sampled some of the cheeses along with relishes, meats, tangy mustards and clam dip during the buffet dinner prepared by Mmes. McBrayer and Gilliland. Newly elected president, Kay Williams, presided over the business meeting in which committees were assigned and secret sisters were drawn for next year.

A number of brass keys carrying the BSP theme for the 1982-83 year, "The Golden Key to Friendship," were given away as door prizes with Ginger Wallace winning the grand prize, a corn plant. Also, Tonya Gilliam, Donna Gracy, Terri Laing, Connie Matthews, Glenda Nigh, Ruby Sanders, Ms. Shaw, Janis White, Melinda White, Karen Bridges, Jackie Fangman and Debbie Foerster.

Susie White, past president, was presented a brass serving tray by the chapter in appreciation for her work and leadership during the past year. Margie Waddell was also presented a pair of ceramic figurines thanking her for serving as AIM's member advisor. She will continue to hold that title for the coming year. Debe Graves was elected by acclamation as corresponding secretary for the next year and Susan White, Janis White, Susie White and Kay Williams were recognized for perfect attendance.

The evening ended with a gift exchange by those present. They included Ms. Graves, Michelle Brisendine, Sharon Bodner, Amy Schumacher, Holly Bixler, Mary Brinkman, Debby Cox, Charla Edwards and Nancy George.

YOU ALSO CAN HAVE THIS POWER!

"What horrors await you, you cities of Chorazin and Bethsaida! For if the miracles I did for you had been done in the cities of Tyre and Sidon, their people would have sat in deep repentance long ago, clothed in sackcloth and throwing ashes on their heads to show their remorse. Yes, Tyre and Sidon will receive less punishment on the judgment Day than you.

"And you people of Capernaum, what shall I say about you? Will you be exalted to heaven? No, you shall be brought down to hell."

Then Jesus said to the disciples, "Those who welcome you are welcoming Me. And those who reject you are rejecting Me. And those who reject Me are rejecting God who sent Me."

When the 70 disciples returned, they joyfully reported to Him, "Even the demons obey us when we use Your name."

"Yes," He told them, "I saw Satan falling from heaven as a flash of lightning! And I have given you authority over all the power of the Enemy, and to walk among serpents and scorpions and to crush them! Nothing shall injure you!

"However, the important thing is not that demons obey you, but that your names are registered as citizens of heaven."

Then He was filled with the joy of the Holy Spirit and said, "I praise You, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, for hiding these things from the intellectuals and worldly wise and for revealing them to those who are as trusting as little children. Yes, thank You, Father, for that is the way You wanted it.

"I am the agent of My Father in everything; and no one really knows the Son except the Father, and no one really knows the Father except the Son and those to whom the Son chooses to reveal Him."

Luke 10:13-22

IN WASHINGTON

Robert Walters

The wages of greed

WASHINGTON (NEA) — As recently as the late 1970s, the federal officials responsible for protecting the integrity of the nation's banking system were notably unperturbed about a disturbing trend within the banking industry.

Today, that practice — the approval of billions of dollars worth of high-risk speculative loans to Third World nations on the part of virtually all of this country's major banks — is being belatedly characterized by Treasury Secretary Donald Regan as "very worrisome."

An analysis of the situation being circulated by the Cato Institute, a Washington-based, libertarian-oriented policy research organization, suggests that Regan's description may well be an understatement.

"In just three countries — Mexico, Brazil and Argentina — the loan exposure of the nine top United States banks exceeds their combined equity capital.

"If just one of those countries' governments were to repudiate its bank debt, the largest banks — as well as the banking system as a whole — could well collapse."

The responsibility for bringing the industry to the brink of that potential catastrophe belongs principally to the banks which justified lending practices that were questionable at best and reckless at worst on the grounds that the profits gained from international loans are far more lucrative than those achieved through domestic lending.

But a substantial portion of the blame for what has become an intolerable situation belongs to the federal government, which has considerable power to influence the international investment decisions of companies based in this country.

The Federal Reserve Board did little more than act as a "cheerleader" while international lending practices became increasingly irresponsible during the past two decades, according to Frank Wille, a former chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Border city jail one of most notorious lockups in North America

EDITOR'S NOTE - AP Writer Norm Clarke walked through the Tijuana jail recently as a guest of friends who were visiting inmates at the facility.

By NORM CLARKE Associated Press Writer TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) -

The cellblock is still wet from a hosing down, but water can't cleanse the foul air - your lungs rebel at the stench of raw sewage.

Several floors above, from behind a row of bars, come anguished wails from a mentally disturbed woman.

From cell A-3, a 6-foot-wide cage stuffed with more than a dozen inmates, a rumped prisoner slouched on the concrete floor calls out a welcome.

"Hey, mister, how do you like our hotel?" Moments later, a shoe flung from an upper cell hits the floor with a whack.

The Kingston Trio sang about it in the 1950s. Others have scorned its squalid conditions, less lyrically. The Tijuana jail of the 1980s has not lost its place among the most notorious lockups in North America.

Even those hardened by frequent visits to the jail, a three-tiered brick compound a block off the city's busy main street, find the conditions wrenching.

"Some days you want to close your eyes to what you see, your ears to what you hear and your nose to the smell," said one of several people who regularly visit the jail but asked not to be identified for fear they would be barred from the facility.

"It has the image of being the end of the earth," said Robert Chavez, an official at the U.S. Consulate in Tijuana. Ernesto Gallardo, a 38-year-old ex-police officer who became the head jailer two years ago, denied through an interpreter that prisoners were mistreated.

But a visitor noted that tiny cells designed for a few were routinely crammed with 15-20 prisoners, their arms and legs spilling through the pale green bars.

The only furnishings are old toilets, often overflowing, and corroded, dilapidated steel bunks without mattresses or springs - just sheets of iron on frames, with khaki blankets.

Only a few of the roughly 150 inmates in the jail each day have cells of their own. Most of those appear to be deranged.

Tijuana, a city of almost 1 million residents, has no facility other than the jail in which to care for its mentally ill.

Hands clenched on the bars, the screaming woman whimpered as a visitor passed her third-floor cell, its walls smeared with human waste. Across the cellblock from her was a man who stalked back and forth, glowering at anyone who met his menacing stare. An insider said the man was homicidal and warned two visitors to stay at least an arm's length beyond the cell.

In 1982, a total of 612 Americans were arrested in Baja California. Of that number, about 90 percent of the arrests occurred in Tijuana.

Attorneys say rancher didn't intentionally mistreat herd

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) - Attorneys for an East Texas rancher charged with cruelly treating a herd of wild horses claim 38 horses died as a result of a "combination of circumstances" and not intentional mistreatment.

Testimony continued today in the trial of Joe Corbett, charged with three counts of inhumane treatment and abandonment of horses.

In November, a deer hunter discovered 38 dead horses and dozens of malnourished ones on land leased by Corbett. Authorities seized the animals, nursed them to health and distributed them to area ranchers.

Corbett obtained the horses in December 1981 from Nevada through the Bureau of Land Management "Adopt-A-Horse" program designed to prevent starvation and control population of large herds.

Defense attorneys said Monday at the opening of the trial that disease and environmental changes, not intentional mistreatment, caused the deaths of wild horses found in Corbett's Camp County pasture last November.

Prosecutors said Corbett's alleged mistreatment of the horses was "extreme and outrageous."

Corbett's attorneys argued that the horses' physical conditions resulted from a "combination of circumstances."

"We don't dispute that last Thanksgiving some horses were in poor and very sad condition," said defense attorney Judith Moss. "But they were able to get into this bad shape without being treated inhumanely or abandoned."

Ms. Moss said the horses were subjected to a drastic change in environment, an 1,875-mile trip and a change in diet and grazing habits. The animals also were exposed to parasites that are more prevalent in East Texas than in Nevada, she said.

Corbett faces a maximum penalty of one year in prison and a $2,000 fine on each charge.

Assistant U.S. Attorney William Cornelius told the nine-woman, three-man jury that he intends to prove Corbett was responsible for the death, sickness or malnutrition of more than 15 wild Mustangs.

Corbett's second attorney, Edward McFarland, repeatedly questioned witnesses about a horse disease called equine infectious anemia and hinted the herd may have been infected.

The disease, transmitted by insects, results in anemia, weight-loss and weakness, said Leive Gayle, a Texas A&M veterinarian. Gayle testified tissue samples taken from three of the dead horses showed no signs of the disease.

Don Pomi, a BLM official, testified that the horses adopted by Corbett were in "good to fair condition" when they were shipped from Nevada. He said each animal was certified to be in good health by a veterinarian.

The horses also were tested for equine infectious anemia in Nevada, he said, and of 14,000 he examined, none had the disease.

Five prosecution witnesses, who live or work near the Corbett ranch, said they saw dead horses on the ranch as early as last summer.

Sun takes toll on skin

The tanning season has arrived and you may find yourself complaining about not having enough time to lie out in the sun. You may have even considered buying a membership to a tanning salon.

Before you do, the Texas Medical Association warns that these salons can be harmful to your skin and eyes. So can excessive exposure to the sun.

Tanning salons use ultraviolet light, the same as that emitted by the sun. Ultraviolet light may either be short-wave (UVB) or long-wave (UVA).

Experiments on animals have linked artificial tanning with UVB to sunburn and long-term skin damage.

UVB also can damage the cornea and lens of the eye, so protective goggles should be worn.

Artificial tanning with UVA has been found to be more suitable and safer than UVB, but this does not mean it is safe. UVA also may damage the eyes if protective goggles are not worn. It has damaged retinas and produced cataracts in laboratory mice.

In addition, your skin may be overly sensitive to UVA if you are taking medication such as antidepressants, oral contraceptives, anti-histamines and a variety of other sensitizing drugs.

Both ultraviolet types can damage the skin. Three common types of skin cancer that can occur are basal cell carcinoma, squamous cell carcinoma, and the worst kind, malignant melanoma. These occur most frequently on continuously exposed parts of the body such as hands, face and neck.

In basal cell carcinoma, cells just below the skin's surface become cancerous. A tumor may develop and become ulcerated. Caused by long-term exposure to ultraviolet light, this cancer will not spread to other parts of the body. Basal cell carcinoma usually occurs on the face, especially near the eyes or on the nose.

Squamous cell carcinoma attacks underlying skin cells that have been damaged by continuous exposure to the sunlight. With this type of cancer, a malignant, or life-threatening, tumor will develop. The cancer will usually occur on any region constantly exposed to the sun.

Malignant melanoma is the most serious form of skin cancer because it may spread. A cancerous tumor development of the disease, since birth, but sunlight also can play a part in the development of the disease.

For these reasons, it is advisable to avoid long-term exposure to ultraviolet light whether in a tanning salon or on a beach.

Seasoning sausage

DEAR POLLY - We want to use seasoned lean beef we grind ourselves instead of sausage of questionable ingredients for making our own pizza. What seasoning should we use to approximate the taste of the commercial sausage? - C.N.M.

DEAR C.N.M. - Try this for each pound of ground beef for a sweet Italian-flavored sausage. Mix one-half teaspoon ground black pepper, one small clove garlic, minced, one-half teaspoon fennel seed, one-fourth teaspoon ground anise, and a tiny pinch of crushed red pepper into a pound of ground beef. Adjust these seasonings until you get the spiciness and hotness you prefer. Other seasonings you may want to experiment with: ground coriander, ground nutmeg and ground cinnamon. By using your home-ground lean beef instead of regular sausage, you'll not only be assured of the wholesomeness of the finished product, but you'll be saving on calories, fat and cholesterol as well. To save even more calories and fat, try using lean veal instead of the beef. Since veal has a more delicate flavor than beef, you may want to adjust the seasoning up (if you want a more full-flavored result) or down (if you want to bring out the delicate flavor of the veal). If you find the "sausage" too dry, add one teaspoon polyunsaturated vegetable oil to each pound of meat to increase juiciness (but don't forget - one teaspoon oil adds approximately 34 calories!). - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - When clothes hangers don't slide easily on the closet bar, I wipe the bar clean with waxed paper. This makes it slick again.

I took an old umbrella, cut away the cloth, and now use the frame as a clothes dryer for undies or hose. I hang it upside down over the bathtub and drape the wet items over the ribs. When not in use, it folds for easy storage in my closet. - SONJA

Cattlemen predict $100 million loss if brucellosis quarantine not aborted

By JAY JORDEN Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas cattle industry could lose between $80 million and $100 million this year because of a breeding cattle quarantine ordered by federal agricultural officials, an industry official says.

But the Texas Senate could abort the planned quarantine by passing legislation later this week that would bring Texas in compliance with federal regulations.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture Tuesday announced a quarantine to be imposed June 1 because the state lacks legal authority to test herds suspected of having brucellosis, a bacterial disease that causes abortions in cattle.

If implemented, the quarantine could result in higher beef prices at the supermarket in about one year, officials said.

Frates Seeligson, president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers

Association, said the quarantine could mean $80 million to $100 million in lost revenues for the Texas livestock industry.

"If they quarantine the state, a purebred man or registered producer would not be able to move cattle out of the state or into a foreign country," he said. "Obviously, the animals would all have to be sold right here in Texas. And because there would be more here, then the price would go down."

Other ranchers said, however, that the possible impact of a U.S. Agriculture Department order will not be known until its regulations are published and distributed as scheduled today.

"We must go forward with eradication of this costly disease. It is important to both the livestock industry and to public health," said S.M. True Jr., a Plainview farmer and president of the Texas Farm Bureau.

"An embargo of Texas cattle would have drastic economic results for Texas producers," said True.

Fred McClure, legislative director to U.S. Sen. John Tower, said the quarantine "can have an impact nationwide on the meat supply ... but it might take a while to work its way through the system."

"Down the road it could" have an impact on the meat supply, McClure said. "You're talking about months down the road. Almost definitely it would be a year."

On Monday, Tower urged the Senate to approve the brucellosis bill, which would bring the state's prevention program into compliance with federal regulations.

Senate passage of the brucellosis legislation would mean that "the quarantine would undoubtedly be avoided. It's really an issue that is now in the hands of the state legislature," McClure said.

The legislation is two votes short of the 21, or two-thirds majority, required to bring it before the full Senate.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, said he believes the quarantine announcement will give him the necessary votes. Glasgow said he will try to bring the bill to a vote Thursday or Friday after his colleagues have time to access the impact of the USDA's action.

Ranch industry groups have been divided on the bill, some opposing it as an costly and unneeded intrusion into their business.

The Legislative session ends Monday at midnight, 24 hours before the quarantine would take effect.

Doug Zabel, a spokesman for Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, said, "the timing is certainly curious on the thing. They announced it today with just a few days left on the Legislative session. But it will not take effect until the day after."

Also known as Bang's disease, brucellosis causes abortions or weakened offspring to livestock, and poses no danger to consumers of meat and pasteurized dairy products.

The USDA said the disease can be transmitted as undulant fever to slaughter plant workers and others in contact with infected animals or their freshly killed carcasses.

Larry Mark, a spokesman for the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said other states expressed concern to the federal agency about the cattle situation in Texas.

"We are concerned with breeding cattle from the standpoint of the disease spreading to other cattle," said Mark.

Mark said the quarantine is "not going to cause any shortage in meat supplies for the consumer."

A cattle auctioneer said many ranchers are uncertain of the impact of the planned quarantine until the USDA publishes the brucellosis regulations. "It depends on what the regulations are," said Phil Fletcher, general manager of the Amarillo Livestock Auction Co. "The way we operate now, most heifers have to be vaccinated, go to a quarantined feedyard or be bled and Bangs tested and cleaned."

"It looks as if they go to full-fledged regulations from the USDA, it could hurt our small heifer sales," Fletcher said. "The primary thing we need to do is to find out what the final regulations are to be."

But Don C. King, general manager for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association in Fort Worth, said 98 percent of the cattle in Texas is brucellosis-free.

The quarantine against brucellosis is needed to protect the nation's $29 billion beef cattle and $18 billion dairy industries, a USDA official said.

The USDA said the quarantine would mean a cutoff of most federal funds to fight brucellosis in Texas — about $8 million last year — including indemnity payments for ranchers whose cattle are found infected.

Under the quarantine, breeding cattle may be shipped out of Texas only from "qualified" herds — those that have passed two herd tests for brucellosis 120 days apart. In addition, animals must be tested and found negative within 30 days of shipment. Steers and spayed heifers, neutered animals, over six months of age will be exempt from testing.

SG-688 offers needed characteristics for today's farmers. Earlier maturity with high yields, makes it a competitor to longer maturing varieties. After 2 years competition in the fields, SG 688 has shown its outstanding yield-ability against all comers, dryland or irrigated. Especially bred for the severe weather of the Southwest, this hybrid will be a favorite in those areas where water is a limiting factor. Annual Wheat Field Day Thursday in Bushland

BUSHLAND — New experimental wheat lines, grazing irrigated wheat, conservation tillage, effect of water stress on wheat, and managing PIK acres will be discussed at the Annual Wheat Field Day at the USDA Conservation and Production Research Laboratory at Bushland. The event will start at 1 p.m. on Thursday, at the headquarters building at the Research facility. Dr. B.A. Stewart, USDA Research Director, said everyone interested in wheat production is invited.

Dr. Kenneth Porter, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station Wheat Breeder, will describe and show visitors both irrigated and dryland small grain nurseries. He will be assisted by Gary Peterson and Dr. David Worrall, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station Wheat Researchers from Bushland and Vernon, as well as Dr. Frank Petr, Area Agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Grazing irrigated wheat will be discussed by Drs. Steve Winter and John McNeill. Methods of controlling weeds on PIK acres and with conservation tillage will be presented by Dr. Allen Wiese and Reggie Jones, two scientists at the Research Laboratory. Wiese said, "In many instances herbicides will control weeds much cheaper than plowing." "Our research has been aimed at finding out which herbicides will result in the most economical way to control weeds in lay out land," he continued.

Jack Musick, USDA Agricultural Engineer, will describe how to maximize wheat yields with limited water. His research on water stress for five years has led to this information.

Bowie County farmers reclaim farm machinery

DeKALB, Texas (AP) — Representatives of a farm equipment manufacturer have met with the president of a bank here to discuss the financial situation at an implement company from which $1.9 million worth of combines disappeared earlier this month.

Farmers in Bowie County on Tuesday were permitted to reclaim farm machinery that remained on the lot of Blackmon Machinery Co., closed after 19 of 25 combines were discovered missing.

Three of the combines were later recovered in Oklahoma, and as many as two others were found to have been claimed by their owners.

Holly Sugar obtains permanent injunction

COLORADO SPRINGS — Holly Sugar Corporation has obtained a permanent injunction against the Goshen County Sugarbeet Growers Association at Holly's Torrington, Wyoming, factory with respect to a 1983 sugarbeet purchase contract.

Under the permanent injunction granted by the U.S. District Court in Cheyenne, Wyoming, the sugarbeet growers' association has been ordered not to interfere with its members or any grower who decides to contract with Holly for the 1983 crop.

The Torrington sugarbeet purchase contract is identical to the revised contract previously approved by sugarbeet growers in Holly's Sidney, Montana, and Worland, Wyoming, factory areas. The revised contract will reduce the average cost of sugarbeets for Holly's Torrington factory by $2.32 per ton.

63 percent of corn planted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers in some key areas continue to make big gains in catching up on this spring's corn planting, but others are still being hampered by wet fields, says the Agriculture Department. A weekly report showed Monday that 63 percent of the intended corn acreage had been planted as of May 22, up from 45 percent on May 15.
