

Spring break dates changed to March 16-20

Spring break has been changed. An amendment today by the Hereford school district board of trustees places spring break on March 16-20, a week ahead of the original schedule.

Snow make-up days are on the first two days of spring break, March 16 and 17.

The move was requested by John Claypool, drama coach, at the last school board meeting because of conflicting dates with UIL district drama, speech and debate competition. Claypool told the board at that meeting that all but two schools in the district, Hereford included, had spring break the week of March 16-20.

Claypool checked with area groups planning ski trips and other activities and found no conflicts with changing the dates. Some groups found the new date more desirable, too.

Also in today's 7 a.m. meeting, the board asked administration to send a letter to parents of students in extracurricular activities to inform of responsibilities concerning accident insurance. A board committee recommended that it is a joint responsibility of parents, sponsor and parent to see that medical care is sought and that insurance records are filed.

Superintendent Harrell Holder told the board that essentially the insurance is a contract between the parent and the company and the parent is responsible for making the report.

He also said that the Texas Association of School Boards has hired an attorney with some insurance specialization. Holder said the district would be visiting with the TASB attorneys this weekend concerning some unpaid claims the school has.

In other business: -The board heard voted to allow Holder to file for a waiver from the state on student teacher ratio requirements.

-Heard a first reading on revised job descriptions for the central office.

-Heard a first reading on a plan for the teacher appraisal system.

Subsidy payment cap considered

WASHINGTON (AP) - Angered by reports of astronomical farm subsidies to some of the nation's largest agribusinesses, a Massachusetts congressman is gaining the upper hand in an effort to slap limits on the largest payments.

"I want to plug some of these... big loopholes," said Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass. "It's a scandal."

Conte won inclusion of the payment limit when the House Appropriations Committee completed work on the $567 billion omnibus spending bill last week. The provision seeks to put a cap of $250,000 on federal subsidies paid out to any single farmer.

The measure was due to be considered on the House floor today.

The farm law passed last year and signed by President Reagan has resulted in massive subsidy payments as it seeks to cut U.S. commodity prices to levels that would make them more competitive in the international marketplace.

One California farm, the J.G. Boswell Co., is due to collect upwards of $20 million in various subsidy payments on its cotton and wheat crops. Million-dollar-plus payments also are going to be common among rice and dairy farmers, according to Agriculture Department officials.

But Conte said he and others who voted for the 1985 farm bill - including many urban lawmakers - were misled.

"The whole farm bill was sold on the floor (as something) to save the family farmer," Conte said. "This Congress can't go home leaving this farm bill unattended."

Conte was involved in negotiations Wednesday with Agriculture Committee Chairman Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, and the panel's ranking Republican, Rep. Ed Madigan of Illinois, to work out a compromise payment limit. Sources said it appeared likely that some sort of limit would be included in the final bill.

"Somewhere down the line we are going to have to have a limitation that excludes the perception by members of an excessive amount (of subsidies)," de la Garza said.

The 12th annual Country Music Jubilee will be sponsored here Saturday night by the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department. Proceeds of the show go to various county youth projects. The show is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Hereford High School Auditorium. A local talent contest kicks off the show at 6 p.m. and the winner will receive $100 and a trophy. Tickets are available at the sheriff's office and K-Bob's.

Lobbying continues

Overhaul supporters predict victory

WASHINGTON (AP) - As lobbying continued down to the wire, supporters of the most sweeping revision of the tax code in four decades predicted the legislation would win House approval by a comfortable margin.

"Members that have been leaning yes are now starting to say that they're going to vote for it," said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and one of the chief architects of the landmark measure. "Members that were undecided are coming over to leaning yes. ... With the support of the Republicans, I think we should win this by 30 to 50 votes."

House passage would send the compromise legislation to the Senate, where Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., has predicted there are sufficient votes for final congressional approval Friday, Saturday, or next week. President Reagan then would be expected to sign the bill into law next month.

The last major threat to passage of the measure evaporated Wednesday when House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois told his GOP colleagues he would exercise his prerogative as leader to offer a motion to send the legislation back to the House-Senate negotiators who drafted the final package.

Only one such motion is allowed on the bill. Thus, Michel's action ended an effort led by Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, to make a more detailed motion to force specific changes in the bill.

The idea was to piece together proposals that together might have drawn enough votes to force new negotiations on the bill. Michel's action to offer a motion without instructions took away any incentive to vote for it.

After the closed session of Republicans, which several participants described as strained and tense, Michel issued a statement saying Archer's motion presented "a risk that the entire (tax-overhaul) effort could be scuttled" without the House ever taking a yes-or-no vote on the substance of the bill.

"Many of us in the House would like to have our own particular instructions (for what should be in the bill), and if we all get what we want, we're back to square one," Michel said. By presenting his own motion, he added, "We can assure the president and the American people of a simple up-or-down vote on the entire proposition."

The bill, most of which would take effect next Jan. 1, would significantly reduce individual and corporate tax rates and repeal or reduce several deductions and exclusions. The average individual would get a 6.1 percent tax cut, although several million people would pay more.

Sugar Beet Harvest

Truck loads of sugar beets have been unloading at Hereford's Holly Sugar plant for the last two weeks. The beets have been coming in from all parts of west and southern Texas. Holly officials expect to see over 1,000 trucks pass through their gates with in the next few weeks.

Betting bill to go to voters in 1987

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas voters will decide next year whether the state should legalize gambling on horse and dog racing for the first time in half a century.

Gov. Mark White on Wednesday allowed the bill, which could OK pari-mutuel wagering, to become law without his signature. The measure puts the question on the November 1987 election ballot.

White said the issue has been too hotly debated for a single public official to decide it.

"I believe other Texans should have the right to make up their own minds just as I have, because we are all equally entitled to our own beliefs," White said.

"I will vote against pari-mutuel wagering, but each one of us will have one vote to cast, a very important vote, as equal citizens of Texas," he said.

Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, said White's decision was a good one.

"I'd like to see a referendum and let the people decide on the issue once and for all," said Berlanga, who sponsored the gambling bill in the House.

Berlanga said an earlier announcement that White was thinking of vetoing the bill rallied supporters and helped persuade the governor to allow the referendum.

As approved by the Legislature, the bill calls for a statewide referendum next year on whether to legalize pari-mutuel wagering for the first time in half a century.

That referendum was one of three requirements White insisted on in any gambling bill.

The other two, which White noted were included in the bill, were local elections in areas where race tracks would be located and protections against infiltration by organized crime.

Gambling on horse races hasn't been legal in Texas since a four-year period during the 1930s.

AUSTIN (AP) - Texans would face one of the nation's highest tax burdens if a plan making the rounds at the Capitol becomes law, says Comptroller Bob Bullock.

He reacted quickly Wednesday to Rep. Stan Schlueter's talk of a possible 5 1/2 percent state sales tax and 15-cent per gallon gasoline tax.

"The size and scope of the bill will have a profound impact on all Texans," Bullock said in a letter to Schlueter.

The state sales tax now is 4 1/2 percent. The gasoline tax is 10 cents per gallon. Increases in those taxes are among the plans being considered by lawmakers now working on a solution to the projected $2.8 billion state deficit.

Schlueter, D-Killeen and chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, denied pushing any specific plan. But some House members said Schlueter laid out a plan during a Tuesday meeting in Speaker Gib Lewis' office.

Bullock called it the "Schlueter Tax Proposal" and said it includes the 5 1/2 percent sales tax and 15-cent gasoline tax, with the taxes rolling back to current levels in three years.

"We estimate that this boost will fall unevenly on Texas wage-earners since low-income persons spend a higher proportion of their income on taxable purchases," Bullock said.

The increase in sales tax would give Texas the nation's eighth-highest tax rate, and "Texas will climb near the top of the high-taxing states," the comptroller said in the letter to Schlueter.

Schlueter told reporters, "I'm not pushing anything. I told you, whatever it takes to get 76 votes."

Bullock said he had not yet calculated how much money the increases would raise for the state.

"There is little doubt that the bill will greatly help the Texas cash flow and deficit problems, but in doing so will make significant changes to the Texas tax burden," he told Schlueter.

Schlueter said he is merely trying to piece together a tax bill that can win House approval.

"I'm still trying to find the right combination. I think the combination can be found, but it's not going to be that easy," Schlueter said.

National Dispute flares over dollar's value

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government economic policy makers are at it again, wrangling over the dollar in a dispute that pits the Reagan administration against Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker.

The administration, led by Treasury Secretary James Baker, says it may be forced to push the value of the dollar lower unless America's major trading partners do more to pump up their economies and provide markets for U.S. exports.

But on Wednesday, Volcker said he felt that the dollar, which has lost about one-third of its value against some key currencies in the past 18 months, has declined far enough.

The central bank chief said any further drop could trigger serious economic problems such as renewed inflation in the United States and weaker, not stronger, growth overseas.

The dispute is popping into the open as Volcker and Baker prepare to meet their counterparts from Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Italy and Canada for critical meetings aimed at keeping the current worldwide economic recovery alive.

Baker's comments were aimed directly at officials in West Germany and Japan, who, the administration believes, have not done enough to promote growth in their countries.

Asian gangs are growing in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asian gangs are growing stronger in the United States, boosted by a wave of immigration from Hong Kong, say law enforcement officers.

So far, the gangs tend to restrict their violence and extortion to their own ethnic communities in the United States, but their thefts, prostitution and drug trafficking involve the general population, witnesses testified Wednesday before the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations.

Cynthia Christfield, staff counsel to the subcommittee, said the staff's own investigation turned up emerging criminal groups in the United States from other points, including Vietnam, Japan, Korea and Taiwan.

The Chinese underworld in the United States also has links to Taiwan, and increasingly Chinese who are linked to the gangs are coming into the United States through such Latin American countries as Guatemala and El Salvador, said John McKenna, supervisor of the San Francisco Police Department's Asian Gang Task Force.

Kitchen workers with AIDS O.K.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The secretary of health and human services says restaurant owners should allow employees with AIDS to continue working in their kitchens if that is all that's wrong with them.

A waiter or kitchen worker with AIDS should only be taken off the job if there is "evidence of other infection or illness for which any food service worker should also be restricted," Dr. Otis R. Bowen told members of the National Restaurant Association on Wednesday.

"All the epidemiologic and laboratory evidence we have indicates that blood-borne and sexually-transmitted infections like AIDS are not transmitted during the preparation or serving of food or beverages," Bowen said.

"No instances of this happening with AIDS have been documented."

News media said to help Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Central Intelligence Agency Director William J. Casey says the U.S. news media is handing vital information to the Soviets "on a silver platter" when it publishes leaked secrets, and he wants tougher laws to punish the press for such disclosures.

But Sen. Dave Durenberger, the chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, said the Reagan administration is itself to blame for news leaks that have damaged U.S. spying efforts.

Both Casey and Durenberger, who traded barbs over the issue of leaks last fall, were part of an unusual colloquium Wednesday night that included two prominent investigative reporters, including James Polk of NBC-TV.

Casey asked the Justice Department last May 21 to consider prosecuting NBC for broadcasting a brief Polk report on the background of the Ronald Pelton spy case.

Before the evening was out, Casey told Polk he wasn't really a candidate for prosecution, and the spy chief assured the other reporter, Bob Woodward of The Washington Post, that he wasn't tapping any journalists' phones — including Woodward's.

"My daughter will feel much better," said Woodward, an assistant managing editor of the Post, who is completing a book on the CIA.

"Ask him about senators' (phones)," Durenberger said. Casey told the 140 people at a meeting of the Washington chapter of Sigma Delta Chi that he will press for tougher laws to punish both government employees who leak secrets and the news media for willfully publishing sensitive information.

"The KGB and other hostile intelligence services every year spend billions of dollars trying to acquire this information. But the unauthorized publication of restricted information hands to them on a silver platter information that their spies, their researchers, their satellites are working 24 hours a day to uncover and use against us," Casey said.

Fight against terrorism stepped up

LONDON (AP) — Interior ministers from 12 Western European nations are gathering in emergency session today in an effort to tighten the noose on terrorism with joint measures including tougher border controls.

The British organizers of the one-day meeting said the group will also propose a more selective granting of visas to citizens of some countries and a greater sharing of intelligence among the 12 member-nations of the common market.

France requested the closed-door session following five bomb attacks in Paris since Sept. 8 in which nine people were killed, including two policemen, and more than 160 injured.

Middle Eastern terrorists seeking the release of jailed patriots in France are believed responsible for the bombings.

The conference of interior ministers, who control police and intelligence services in the European trade bloc, is being hosted by Britain, which holds the Common Market's revolving chairmanship.

British Home Secretary Douglas Hurd, who will lead the meeting, stressed the importance of new border controls, even though a major aim of the Common Market is to ease the movement of goods and people across borders.

"If we are to minimize the barriers which apply at our internal frontiers we must first satisfy ourselves that the reduction of frontier controls will be compatible with the fight against terrorism, crime and drugs," Hurd said Wednesday in a speech in Bonn, West Germany.

Hurd said attention must also be given to "tightening controls at ... external borders, so that we may be more confident that those inside the (Common Market) have a right to be there."

Hearing set to decide farm money

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A hearing to decide whether the Farm Credit System can use money from healthy Production Credit Associations to bolster weaker ones could alter the future of the entire system, an attorney says.

U.S. District Judge Halbert Woodward was to begin a hearing today on whether to grant a temporary injunction against the Farm Credit System Capital Corp.'s assessments on some PCAs, said Jerry Smith, who is representing 22 Texas PCAs.

Smith said the hearing "is extremely important. It's not the last step in the process, but the future of the whole Farm Credit System depends on it."

More than 1,600 Texas Panhandle Production Credit Association stockholders, in addition to many others in 19 other Texas PCAs, awaited Woodward's decision.

"If these assessments go through, we have no doubt that all other associations will be assessed," he said.

If they don't go through, it will lay the groundwork for a number of lawsuits that are filed or are expected to be filed against the Farm Credit System, Smith said.

The assessments were set up as part of the Farm Credit Act of 1985 to combat the Farm Credit System's financial woes. Under the Capital Corp., prosperous PCAs would be assessed a fee that would be transferred to weak organizations.

A lawsuit filed on behalf of the 22 Texas PCAs charges the Farm Credit Act is unconstitutional and the regulations are invalid.

The lawsuit was filed in May, but the parties agreed the case would not go to court until assessments were made, and that Capital Corp. would give 14 days notice before the due date of the assessments to allow the courts to decide on the case, Smith said.

"This will only be asking for a temporary injunction," he said. When the real trial is held, we will likely win."

Fred Medero, chief counsel for the Farm Credit Administration, said he doesn't believe the PCAs can win their case and that "we believe the (farm credit act amendments) statute is constitutional."

Area PCAs' assessments are due Sept. 29.

Associations which received notices and their amounts are Canadian PCA, $42,000; Plainview, $3.2 million; Rolling Plains, $700,000; Lubbock, $2.8 million; Sweetwater, $2.1 million and Marfa, $900,000.

Larry Albin, president of Canadian PCA, said the $42,000 assessment "would be a straight drain on our surplus and earnings. Financially we're in good shape, but we're experiencing farm problems like everyone else."

The Canadian PCA has a little more than 400 members and an approximate $31 million loan volume, Albin said. The members come from Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Roberts, Hemphill, Gray and Wheeler counties.

Bill Black, Plainview PCA president, said he received an assessment notice for $3,212,414.

"We are fortunate we have a strong capital base and liquid position, but it will automatically mean higher interest rates to cover earnings lost on the $3.2 million assessment," Black said.

East Texans recall legal horse racing

By KELLEY SHANNON Palestine Herald-Press

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — A grassy mound of earth marking the south turn is the only tangible remnant of what once attracted visitors from miles around to Anderson County.

The old horse race track now is merely a pasture full of tall grass and bull nettle. But to some local residents, it's a place that brings memories of days long gone.

Located in the 2500 block of North Jackson Street, the patch of property reminds some longtime Palestine citizens that the current debate over legalizing pari-mutuel betting is nothing new.

Gambling on horse races was legalized in Texas in 1905, but the Legislature later repealed the measure.

"During the racing years, visitors came to Palestine from all over East Texas for the horse races — complete with packed grandstands and plenty of gambling."

C.W. Jander, whose family owned the race track, said he remembers when horse races were quite an attraction in Palestine.

His uncle, John Jander, and father, William Jander, helped build the track and grandstands, he said.

Near the track were stables for about 20 horses, said Jander, who at years old fondly recalls the days he rode racehorses himself.

"They'd have a large crowd," he said. "It was the entertainment center from this district and all the surrounding towns."

Although horse races were run about every three months, there usually was plenty of activity at the track between race days, Jander said.

"People out there were racing their horses and training them every day," he said. "I was out there."

Other longtime Palestine residents say they were not quite as involved in the horse races, but they remember the old race track.

Oliver McReynolds is one of those people. He said one of his relatives had a racehorse that ran at the track, which featured sulky and traditional racing.

"It was quite an event," McReynolds said. "I just remember the crowds of people would be there at the races."

Dana Pennybacker, 90, and J.J. Murphy Jr., 80, also vaguely recall the Palestine horse races in the early 1900s. Both Pennybacker and Murphy said they remember taking rides out near the race track with their fathers.

"On Sundays he'd take us to church, and then sometimes after church he'd take us for a ride," said Murphy, whose family rode around Palestine in a horse-drawn surrey.

Pennybacker said his uncle, a school superintendent, owned a horse that raced at the Palestine track.

"My mother, years later, would laugh about him having a horse or two that raced up here," Pennybacker said.

The men said most of those who went to the races did their share of gambling.

"There was betting, yes," Jander said. "Nobody said anything about it in that day and time."

Some of the men said they believe betting on horse racing will return to Texas. After its first run in Texas in the early 1900s, pari-mutuel betting was legalized again in 1933, but outlawed during a special legislative session in 1937.

Since then numerous bills have been introduced calling for the return of pari-mutuel wagering. Texas lawmakers recently passed a bill that would permit local option pari-mutuel betting on horse and dog races subject to the outcome of a statewide referendum.

Gov. Mark White has not yet acted on that legislation.

Pennybacker said he believes if horse racing returns, it will bring with it an increase in crime.

"I don't want the race track. I don't want the gambling," he said. "Of course that'd be in the big cities."

Bag piper gives sacred music an unusual twist

By PAT WARD Mid-Cities Daily News

EULESS, Texas (AP) — Debbie Pruitt has found an unusual way to do the Lord's work and satisfy her long-time interest in bagpipes.

Mrs. Pruitt, wife of Pentecostal evangelist David K. Pruitt, has been playing inspirational music on the bagpipe for the past year and a half.

She first became interested in the unusual instrument about 15 years ago as a student at Highland Park High School, where bagpipe players are featured in the band. Mrs. Pruitt began taking lessons at age 14 and has been playing on and off ever since.

After college, she decided to go to Inverness, Scotland, for concentrated study. "I was really serious about playing, so I decided to go where the best teachers are."

For nine months in 1981 she studied privately with "some very colorful teachers. Most of the men there were either named Willie, Alistair or Bill. I had one teacher whose name translated from Gaelic meant 'Willie the Pig.'"

In addition to private study she also played in a bagpipe band. The bands, very popular in Scotland, are graded 1 through 5, with Grade 1 bands representing the highest level of ability. Mrs. Pruitt played in the Dingwall Royal British Legion Pipe Band, a Grade 2 band that had been in existence for seven years.

The band competed in contests about every other weekend. These competitions attracted hundreds of other bands, with as many as 150 bands competing against each other in one category. Her band was often rated in the top 10.

At one such competition, Mrs. Pruitt had the opportunity to meet Britain's Queen Mother Elizabeth. "The Queen Mother was at one competition, and once she heard there was a girl from Texas in one of the bands, she began looking for me. I got to meet her and had my picture taken with her."

Being from Texas was enough to make her stand out among all the Scots, but being a female bagpipe player also set her apart. "There are not many female bagpipe players. There are about three or four times as many men as women players. Also, very few women compete as soloists."

"I competed as a soloist only three or four times because I was really more interested in playing in the band," Mrs. Pruitt said.

Back in the United States, she played professionally but was dissatisfied with her career. "I used to play bagpipes as a business, but I quit because I didn't like the atmosphere."

Family dies from carbon monoxide poisoning

By DONNA GEHRKE Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A couple and their four small children apparently were dead for two days before authorities found their bodies in a home still filled with traces of carbon monoxide, police said.

"There has been no note found to indicate to us that this was a suicide," police spokesman Danny Turner said. "But there is no visible sign of force to say it was a murder either."

The family appeared to have died from carbon monoxide poisoning, homicide detective Chris Andersen said. An autopsy was pending.

Police found the bodies Wednesday afternoon after co-workers of Joann Robbins went to the house and smelled foul odors, authorities said.

Mrs. Robbins, 37, was found sitting on the passenger's side of a car with the ignition on in the attached garage, police said.

Her husband, Thomas L. Robbins, 39, was found in night clothes in front of a television still on in the den of the brick-and-wood home, police said.

The children were also dressed in nightwear and were found on mattresses or on the floor of one room, investigators said. Police identified them as Astrid, 7; Drake, 5; Emma, 4; and Elizabeth, who was to turn 2 next Tuesday.

Investigators believe fumes from the car may have filled the entire house, Police said.

However, a cat was found alive in the house. He apparently had survived by staying close to a partially open window, detectives said.

Police have not established a motive for the deaths, Andersen said.

Members of the family were last seen Monday, neighbors said. Andersen said they apparently died that day.

The bodies were found Wednesday afternoon after two of Mrs. Robbins' co-workers drove past the house to find out why she had not shown up for work at a real estate office where she had just been promoted from a secretary to agent. Robbins was believed to have worked nights as a convenience store clerk, police said.

"The house was in terrible disarray as if the house had never been cleaned before," Turner said. Garbage and used diapers littered the floor, he said.

Neighbors on the quiet middle-class street gathered Wednesday evening in their yards to watch investigators.

"We're all upset about it," said Will Parrott, a neighbor. "It's kind of shocking."

He said the family had moved in about a year ago but had stayed to themselves.

"I never saw the man, not once," he said. "I didn't even know they had four children. I just saw two."

Another neighbor, Mary Speer, said the family seldom had visitors and the house was very unkempt.

Ann Landers Sowing and reaping

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Ten years ago I left my wife and four teenagers to marry my secretary, with whom I'd been having an affair. I felt I couldn't live without her. When my wife found out about us she went to pieces.

We were divorced. My wife went to work and did a good job educating the boys. I gave her the house and part of my retirement fund.

I am fairly happy in my second marriage, but I'm beginning to see things in a different light. It hit me when I was a guest at our eldest son's wedding. That's all I was—a guest. I am no longer considered part of the family. My first wife knew everyone present and they showered her with affection. She remarried and her husband has been taken inside the circle that was once ours. They gave the rehearsal dinner and sat next to my sons and their sweethearts.

I was proud to have a young pretty wife at my side. But it didn't make up for the pain when I realized that my children no longer love me. They treated me with courtesy but there was no affection or real caring.

I miss my sons, especially around holiday time. I am going to try to build some bridges but the prospects don't look very promising after being out of their lives for 10 years. It is going to be difficult reentering now that they have a step-dad they like.

I'm writing in the hope that others will consider all the ramifications before they jump. Just sign me - SE-COND THOUGHTS IN PA.

DEAR SECOND THOUGHTS: I could use the rest of this column to reflect on "sowing and reaping" but it would serve no useful purpose. I'm sure you also know that a father can't disappear for 10 years and expect his sons to welcome him back with open arms. Sorry, Mister, your wife has earned their respect and devotion and what's left over is going to the man who is now making their mother happy.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I travel I sometimes miss your column, so perhaps you have already addressed this puzzle when I wasn't looking.

There is a very nice woman in our group who has such a sunny disposition that she irritates me. Everything she says, and I mean everything, is punctuated with a silly little laugh.

"Would you like cream in your coffee? A-HA-HA-HA." "My, isn't it a nice (or terrible) day? A-HA-HA-HA." "Your only child just fell out the second story window! A-HA-HA-HA." "The Russians are invading Mexico! A-HA-HA-HA."

NAVAL RUM

For more than 300 years, the British Royal Navy dispensed a daily measure of rum to the crews of their ships. Conditions aboard ship were tough and dirty, and a daily rum issue made life more bearable. In addition, there always was a double issue before battle. Apparently, a slightly intoxicated crew was all the more anxious for action. Ship's pursers began dispensing a daily "tot" of rum to British sailors in 1665. It was offered as a substitute for beer which would not store well in warm climates. Each tot was two British ounces, equivalent to 2 U.S. ounces. This usually was watered down or diluted with lime juice in an attempt to prevent scurvy. This is how the British sailors acquired their nicknames "limeys."

Many famous brand name imported and domestic wines are available at THE STORE. We invite your questions on any of the wines we carry and will be glad to help you select the type to go with any recipe you may be planning to serve. We're here at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802. Open: Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12.

Try a dash of lime juice in a dark beer.

You get the idea? Maybe you even know such a person.

I recall an expression from school: "Laughter can be an outer manifestation of inner turmoil." OK, so what? The habit even extends to remarks by others. When someone says something that is meant to be taken seriously, the hyena adds the "HA-HA-HA," making the talker feel uncomfortable.

What in the world is wrong with her anyway? I find it upsetting to be around this person even though she is kind and sweet and wouldn't harm a fly. Just sign me - "TAIN'T FUNNY, MCGEE!"

DEAR MCGEE: Nobody thinks it's funny - not even the HA-HA-HA'er. That type of laughter is the manifestation of insecurity and has nothing to do with humor. It is simply an established speech pattern - the woman's way of releasing tension. Once you understand this it should no longer annoy you.

Chapter members meet for Mexican fiesta

Members of Alpha Iota Mu Sorority entertained guests at a Mexican fiesta party at the Community Center recently.

Pinatas, sombreros, and brightly decorated tables enhanced the festive mood as all present ate a dinner of soft tacos, rolled tortillas, and homemade ice cream.

President Ruby Lee announced that the chapter has once again received a Three Star rating.

Jackie Fangman announced that the chapter's next service project would consist of members donating to Operation Good Shepherd. Donations of flour, sugar, shortening, and canned beans are especially needed.

Beckie Fry announced that Dee Ann Matthews was a new member of the sorority. Also, all members need to get their September issue of the Torch to her.

Chapter advisor Connie Matthews announced that Beckie Fry was voted sweetheart by the chapter.

Jan Ramaekers announced that the next meeting would be on Oct. 2 at the home of LouAnn Eubanks.

After the business meeting, guests and members played several games to win the Mexican party decorations.

Special guests present included Lisa Pyeatt, Gay MacLaskey, Gelina Calaway, Janice Betzen, Glenda Jesko, Wanda Huseman, Melinda Bridge, and Rhonda Nicklaus.

Members present included Marge Bell, Holly Bixler, Janet Daugherty, LouAnn Eubanks, Jackie Fangman, Beckie Fry, Lisa Gelatt, Nancy George, Dona Hendrickson, Carol Kelley, Kathie Kerr, Ruby Lee, Dee Ann Matthews, Elizabeth Jesko, Jan Ramaekers, Ruby Sanders, Lisa Rollins, and Connie Matthews.

TAX CREDIT
NEW YORK (AP) — If your child attended a local recreational day camp, you may be able to write off a portion of the cost as a child-care tax credit, according to Family Circle Magazine.

IRS rules stipulate that the child be under 15 and that the day camp expenses are necessary to allow you to work or to look for work. Other requirements are spelled out in the IRS publication "Child and Dependent Care."

The child's parent or legal guardian can take this write-off — a maximum credit of $720 for one qualifying dependent or $1,440 for two or more — depending on income.

Los Ciboleros members meet

Los Ciboleros Chapter, NSDAR, met in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library Thursday afternoon.

Refreshments were served to members and guests by hostesses, Mrs. Charles Bell and Mrs. J.J. Durham.

Chapter Regent Violet Reinauer called the meeting to order and welcomed the membership and guests, Juanita Brown, Jeane Drury from Kalamazoo, Mich., and Daniel Blackburn.

Opening Ritual was conducted by Regent Violet Reinauer assisted by Ruth Newsom, chaplain. The Pledge of Allegiance was led by Mary Williamson; the American's Creed by Kathryn Ruga; and the National Anthem was sung by the group led by Violet Reinauer.

Mrs. Ann D. Fleck, President General NSDAR, in her message to the society membership reminded all Americans to prepare for the bicentennial of the Constitution in September 1987.

Argen Draper, Los Ciboleros member, was introduced by Regent Reinauer and presented an interesting and informative program on the circumstances and developments in the colonies that lead to the writing and ratification of the constitution.

Kathryn Ruga, vice regent, gave Mildred Drake's report on the activities of Constitution Week in Hereford. Summary of the report was as follows: Signs on five bill boards in the community, spots about constitution on KPAN, notices on Channel 3 TV, posters in lobby Hereford State Bank, 12 schools participated with poster on facilities, library and senior citizens had patriotic displays; area churches were notified, the key club posted the flags on Sept. 17, and Mayor Fisher proclaimed Sept. 17-23, 1986 Constitution Week.

Ruth Newsom, chairperson American history month, reported that the information and rules for the 1987 American History Essay Contest have already been distributed to the schools this month. The format for the essay this year will be "A Letter To The Editor" September 1787." The deadline for turning essays in will be Dec. 16, 1986.

Ruth Knox reviewed the National Defense message in which great concern was noted for the agricultural and industrial laborers in the United States.

Minutes of the May 17 meeting were read and approved. Margaret Bell, treasurer, gave financial report and distributed the proposed budget for coming year. Budget was accepted as recommended.

Recommendation of executive board was read. Since it was not feasible to hold garage sale during the summer months, the executive board recommended that the time for holding the garage sale be determined when a more feasible time can be arranged.

Mrs. Grace Killough of Dimmitt name was accepted for application to membership. Letter of resignation from Sue James was read.

Members present were Margaret Bell, Laura Blackburn, Charlotte Clark, Argen Draper, Margaret Durham, Ruth Fish, Frances Hennen, Ruth Knox, Ruth Newsom, Violet Reinauer, Patricia Robinson, Helen Rose, Kathryn Ruga, Mildred Sheffy, Edwina Thomas, and Mary Williamson.

Registration deadline set

The foods project for the Deaf Smith County 4-H will be beginning during October.

Those interested in this project are reminded to sign up by Tuesday by calling the County Extension Office at 364-3573.

Areas of learning in the 4-H foods project include nutrition, food buying, meal planning, food preparation, food safety and the study of the social & cultural roles of food.

Learning activities include a Saturday workshop, small group activities, and end with a county wide competition during November. For more information on the sign-up, 4-H'ers should contact Extension Agent, Beverly Harder at the County Extension office.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

CHAMPAGNE SALES RISE

NEW YORK (AP) — American purchases of champagne are rising. Of the 14.2 million bottles of French champagne shipped to the United States in 1985, nearly 12 percent was premium-priced champagne selling for more than $40 a bottle.

During the first three months of 1986, shipments of French champagne were 48.2 percent higher than in 1985, according to Piper-Heidsieck, a champagne-maker based in Reims, France.

Salad supper hosted by yearbook committee

Members of the La Plata Study Club yearbook committee hosted a salad supper recently in the home of Betty Taylor and presented members with new yearbooks.

Serving as hostesses were Mary Lyles, Peggie Fox, Mozelle Neill and Taylor.

The club's theme for the new year will be "A Better You."

New club officers are president, Rose Mary Shook; vice-president, Mary Lyles, recording secretary, Virginia Woodford; treasurer, Lola Smalts; historian, Mildred Fuhrmann; reporter, Yvonne Simpson; and parliamentarian, Peggie

Fox.

Several members volunteered to serve as drivers for King's Manor residents for shopping during October.

Informal visiting about summer vacations and other happenings was enjoyed following dinner and a business meeting.

Those attending were Dorothy Mercer, Woodford, Neill, Avis White, Audene Dettman, Dorothea Prowell, Betty Quillen, Shook, Fox, Julie Helms, Betty Taylor, Smalts, Simpson, Betty Williams, Mary Bartlett, Sunny Brush, Margaret Schroeter, and Lyles.

Household inventory helps with insurance claims

Having an inventory of household items can save the stressful and frustrating job of having to piece together what was stolen or destroyed in a natural disaster.

"People tend to remember conspicuous items, such as a chair, television or videotape recorder," says family economics specialist Dr. Marjorie Marman. "But most homes also have dozens of small items whose value adds up to a considerable loss."

After a fire or theft, it may also be difficult to think clearly enough to remember everything that was lost or stolen, adds the Texas Agricultural Extension Service home economist.

According to the Insurance Information Institute, policyholders typically end up telephoning their insurance agents or company days and even weeks after a loss to add items which they had forgotten onto the insurance report.

The specialist advises taking the following steps to establish a household inventory before an accident or theft occurs:

-Walk through each room of the house and list every item. Be as descriptive as possible about the items.

-Take pictures to supplement the descriptions.

-Keep original receipts on all purchases and get appraisals on jewelry and silverware.

-Update your inventory regularly to include new purchases.

-Store the inventory, pictures and receipts in a safe-deposit box or some other location away from your home. If you keep your inventory on a home computer, make a copy of the disk to store in a separate location.

Having a household inventory will not bring your goods back, but will make it easier to file an insurance claim and receive compensation.

New Officers

RECENT ACQUISITIONS

NEW YORK (AP) — The Whitney Museum of American Art says it has acquired some 450 paintings and sculptures through gifts and purchases over the past six years.

Fifty-four of these works are being shown at the museum through Nov. 30. The exhibition spans 70 years of American Art and includes works by such artists as Thomas Hart Benton, John Marin, Reginald Marsh, Mark Rothko and Joseph Stella.

The 1871 Treaty of Frankfurt ended the Franco-Prussian War, with Alsace-Lorraine being ceded to Germany.

Hawaiian theme used at first fall meeting

Members of the Hereford Study Club were greeted with Hawaiian music and leis as they arrived recently at the home of Helen Spinks for their first meeting of the fall season.

The yearbook committee, Virginia Winget, chairperson, Jean Ballard, Gladys Setliff and Helen Spinks, had prepared and served a Hawaiian "stacki-uppi" dinner.

President Barbara Allen conducted the business meeting and discussed various correspondence which had been received. She acknowledged letters from the March of Dimes, the Barn House, a decorating club and the United Way. Members voted to donate to the United Way organization.

Yearbooks were distributed and the programs planned for the coming year were reviewed.

Attending the event in addition to those mentioned were Willie Braddy, Doris Bryant, Morgan Cain, Elizabeth Cesar, Addie Cunningham, Mildred Garrison, Betty Gilbert, Leta Kaul, Evelyn Kirby, Nedra Robinson, Gracie Shaw, Bessie Stoy, Mary Stoy, Inez Witherspoon and Jan Yarbro.

The next meeting was planned at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 16.

Parents' Day scheduled at WT

Parents' Day is planned for Saturday at West Texas State University.

A variety of events are scheduled including a reception with faculty members, a barbecue lunch, a style show, a football preview with Coach Bill Kelly, an equestrian demonstration at the horse center, and the Parents' Day football game at 7:30 p.m. against Mississippi College.

Parents of the Year honors will be announced at halftime of the game.

For additional information contact Tim Sims (806)656-2081 or Frank Castleberry at 656-2296.

Fall storage onion adds zest, health to your diet

There is a crispness in the air, football is a favorite topic of conversation and our palettes are ready to replace the cool salads and light menus of summer with aromatic fare that sports a little more zest.

As friends and family gather after a hayride, to watch a football game or play trivial pursuit nothing hits the spot like a bowl of chili and a slice of warm crusty bread.

Fall's changeable weather provides those glorious arm days of Indian summer followed by bone chilling, damp, gray days-ideal conditions for colds and flu to develop. Proper nutrition and maintaining good health this time of year is crucial to preventing these ailments that could spoil your fall activities.

The storage onion is a vegetable which has the versatility to provide many vitamins and minerals, great fiber content and a surprising array of flavors: They have just made their appearance in the produce market of your stores. The storage onions now available in the markets are distinctively different from the sweet onions found during the summer months. They still sport a variety of flavors ranging from sweet to pungent but have less water content and an extended storage life.

Nutritionists, scientists and doctors have shown that natural, health-protecting chemicals are packed in onions. Researchers and dieticians credit onions with the ability to contribute toward a more healthy heart and circulatory system by lowering blood pressure and reducing cholesterol in the blood. Packed with more vitamin C than an apple, the onion also boasts B vitamins, iron, calcium, potassium and protein. The indispensable onion comes in a variety of sizes and several colors-white, red and golden brown.

A thin sweet slice of onion on a hamburger or tossed in a salad can be followed by the velvety smoothness obtained by simmering onions in chili, soup or stew. Sauteed, they make their appearance robed in a rich brown color. Onions retain their healthful properties whether cooked or eaten raw.

Onions may be purchased in prepackaged sacks or in bulk. When buying loose onions, choose those with short necks and dry, tissue thin skin. They should be firm or hard with a minimum of spots and blemishes. Store uncut onions in a cool airy spot in a single layer. They will look great in a basket on your counter. If you want to keep a large amount on hand, hang them in a woven bag or in hosiery. Cut onions should be stored in a closed container in the refrigerator.

Here are some adaptable recipes that utilize onions and guarantee raves from all who sample them!

Begin with a fun appetizer featuring onions and mushrooms. Follow with your choice of a bubbly onion soup or hearty chili. This crusty onion and dill bread will become a family favorite and complements any main dish to perfection. The recipes for golden pickled onions and Onion Rice casserole are excellent recipes you will want to use to add interest and zest to your favorite menus.

ONION PATE

1/2 cup chopped onion
1 tbsp. vegetable oil
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tsp. soy sauce
French Bread, thinly sliced
1/2 lb. fresh mushrooms, chopped
2 pkgs. (3 oz. each) cream cheese, quartered

1/4 cup minced fresh parsley
Saute onions and mushrooms in hot oil in large skillet over medium heat 2 min.; remove from heat. Stir in cream cheese until blended. Add Parmesan cheese, parsley and soy sauce, stirring to combine. Refrigerate, covered, 3 hrs., or until thoroughly chilled. Serve with French bread slices.

ONION DILL BREAD

1 pkg. dry yeast
1 1/4 cup warm low fat cottage cheese, creamed
2 tsp. onion minced
2 tsp. dill seed
1 egg, unbeaten, plus 1 egg white
2 cups whole wheat flour
1/4 cup warm water
2 tsp. honey
1 tsp. corn-oil margarine, melted
1/2 tsp. soda

Soften yeast in water. Combine in mixing bowl the following: cottage cheese, honey, onion, margarine, dill seed, soda, eggs and softened yeast. Add flour gradually to form soft dough, beating well after each addition. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk, about 1 hr. Knead dough, turn into well greased dish or large loaf pan. Let rise 30-40 minutes. Bake 350 for 40-50 minutes.

HEARTLAND CHILI

1/2 lb. ground beef

1 medium onion, chopped
1 small green pepper, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
One 28-oz. can whole tomatoes undrained and chopped
One 8-oz. can tomato sauce
2 tsp. chili powder
1/2 tsp. salt
One 15-oz. can dark red kidney beans, drained
In large Dutch Oven, brown ground beef with onion, green pepper and garlic; drain. Add remaining ingredients Bring to a boil; reduce heat Cover; Simmer 30 minutes. Makes six 1 cup servings.

ONION SOUP

1 tbsp. margarine, melted
1 tbsp. vegetable oil
2 medium onions, sliced
1/2 tsp. sugar
2 tsp. all-purpose flour
2 1/2 cups water
2 unsalted beef bouillon cubes
2 tsp. vermouth
1/4 tsp. pepper

1 slice bread, toasted and cut into cubes

Combine margarine, oil and onions in pan. Cover and cook over low heat for 15 minutes. Add sugar and cook uncovered 10 minutes, stirring occasionally, until onions are a deep golden brown. Mix in flour. Stir in water. Add bouillon cubes vermouth and pepper and simmer 15-30 minutes. Place soup in bowls and top with cubes of toast. Yield 3 1/2 cup servings.

Fabrics help solve decorating problems

By BARBARA MAYER AP Newsfeatures

For a low cost and imaginative child's room, choose fabric solutions to decorating problems, according to interior designers.

Lucretia Robertson, co-author with Donna Lang of "Decorating with Fabric," advocates sewing the decorative touches in a child's room.

"You can make a major design statement without a lot of sewing by buying a sheet set and changing it to some extent," says Miss Robertson.

For their book, the authors, who are partners in an interior design business in Montclair, N.J., created a personalized pillow case with a standard case they cut down to fit a small pillow and appliqued with animal figures. They also laced thin satin ribbon through eyelet trim on a sheet and pillowcase and personalized towels with appliqued initials.

Both women are longtime home sewers and both recall that their mothers sewed for them. "Even though you might not choose to tackle your living room unless you are a great home sewer, kids' rooms are a great place to try things out. Kids won't complain if the seams don't match. They will love the fact that Mom or Dad did it for them," adds Miss Robertson.

"The most sensible decorating arrangement you can make is to use long-lived colors, not baby colors, for the basics such as walls and furniture and then to fill the room with fabric accessories that fit the age of the kid and that can be changed."

Selecting white furniture, for example, is a good solution. Then the child-related motifs can be introduced in fabric that is attractive but not too expensive.

Although both designers advocate using natural fiber fabrics as a rule, they find that blends which include some synthetics require less maintenance. Fabrics such as stretch velours and terrycloth work well in infants' rooms since these launder well. For children who are apt to track in all kinds of dirt, soil-release finishes may be helpful. Cotton polyester blends are good since they, too, are machine washable and require little or no ironing.

Miss Robertson is all for using ready-mades, but she says that printed sheets, as inexpensive and attractive as they are, present some problems for the home sewer.

"We tend to stay away from sheets as a fabric because they are so often printed off-grain. You run into problems when you try to get a print to run straight." Avoid stripes, she suggests.

What can you sew for a child's room? Virtually any type of window treatment, including shades, is her suggestion. For a child's room, simplicity is important. A Roman shade or simple curtain with a valance make more sense than swags and jabots.

Bed accessories include pillows, bedskirts, spreads, quilts and quilt covers. Dust ruffles are easy. An idea she calls a quickie is to take a basic camp blanket and applique your child's name on it. "Kids respond positively to things that say who they are," she says.

Whether to choose hard or soft surface floor covering is primarily a comfort and care decision. Wall-to-wall carpeting is easy to maintain and comfortable under foot. Area rugs work well, too, especially if you have nice wood floors.

Privacy may be a problem if you are outfitting a room for siblings to share. Dividers such as free-standing room screens can be used to break up the space, or you might opt to hang blinds from the ceiling. These can be lowered or raised as necessary.

Two-day native plant symposium scheduled

Beautiful landscapes don't have to consist of vast expanses of lawn and other heavy water users.

Texas Tech University plant and soil science Professor Marihelen Kamp said, homeowners especially in the arid Southwest, should consider redoing their landscaping incorporating water efficient xeriscapes techniques.

"Lush lawns may be easy to care for and require very little irrigation, if you live in an area that receives more than 30 inches of rain a year," Dr. Kamp said. "But, in the Southwest, where drought conditions are the rule rather than the exception, people should change their thinking about what landscapes should look like."

Xeriscape, from the Greek word xeric meaning dry, literally translates to dry landscape. That concept, along with other water conservation techniques, will be the focus of a two-day native plant and wildflower symposium Friday and Saturday at Texas Tech University.

Kamp, who is symposium director, said Wayne Wyatt, manager of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District, No. 1, will discuss "Conservation of Our Most Valuable Natural Resource—Water." Also on the program are sessions dealing with the economic benefits of using native plants and wildflowers, marketing native Texas ornamentals and how to grow and care for native plants.

Registration is $15 before Sept. 22; $20 after that date and includes a box lunch Sept. 26. For more information, contact the Texas Tech Plant and Soil Science Department at (806)742-2837.

Kamp said water conservation is becoming necessary as drought conditions worsen already diminishing water supplies in the Southwest.

"Some cities have even gone to water rationing during dry periods," she said. "Figures show that approximately 50 percent of home water use is for landscape. Water savings of between 30 and 60 percent can be achieved by xeriscapes."

Xeriscapes are more than a few rocks and cacti planted in a yard, Kamp said. The concept involves using regional climates and resources to the landscapers advantage. While native plants and wildflowers that are acclimated to the region's low rainfall are an important part of xeriscapes, more water intensive vegetation can be planted in low lying areas to take advantage of run-off waters.

"Xeriscape plant selection is not limited strictly to native plants. It means taking a close look at the land and matching the plants best adapted to each area," Kamp said.

Kamp said not only do xeriscapes reduce water consumption, they often free homeowners from the weekly chores created by large lawns and herbaceous and woody plants. But, she said, water conscious homeowners need to realize before they redo their landscaping, that xeriscapes are not going to look like what they are used to seeing.

"Reducing the amount of turf is the easiest and most effective way to save water," Kamp said. "Because of this the vast stretches of manicured lawn are going to be replaced by decks, patios or native shrubs and groundcovers. Grass lawns look good and are what people expect to see. It will take some time and exposure before people will appreciate the beauty of a xeriscape."

Hereford resident honored

J.R. Blackwell of 216 Northwest Drive recently was recognized for having completed 25 years of service and 20 years of safe driving with the Texas State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Blackwell has served as the department's Deaf Smith County maintenance supervisor since October of 1972. His maintenance section is responsible for upkeep on some 270 miles of U.S. highways and Texas Farm to Market Roads in Deaf Smith County.

Blackwell started to work for the state agency as a maintenance technician in Channing. Currently, Blackwell is an instructor in the department's statewide maintenance management program.

A Channing native, he attended schools in Channing and graduated from Channing High School. He has attended West Texas State University and Texas A&M.

To fading church

New minister brings growth

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Cooper Creek United Methodist Church is making a comeback, again.

Eighteen years ago, the congregation brought the church back to life from a pile of ashes. Today, the church is going through another rebirth, this time with the help of an 80-year-old "retired" Methodist minister who has thrown heart and soul into the revitalization of the modest white church on an oak-shaded hill.

In August, Bishop John W. Russell came from Dallas to bless the church that sits at the corner of Cooper Creek and Mingo roads. The tiny church has tripled its attendance in the past year under the direction of the Rev. Ray McCleskey.

The bishop spoke to 100 people who crowded onto the 15 pews. The sanctuary may be small, but it boasts new colonial white chancel furnishings through a $10,000 gift from a woman whose family has been connected with the church since its beginning.

The church's history begins at the turn of the century, when three families donated a plot of land for the purpose of worship. Dora Lee May Reese of Palestine, whose parents gave part of the five-acre church site, donated the money for the new platform, carpeting, pulpit, choir seats, baptismal font and other chancel furniture, as well as pew cushions.

But the recent history of the church has included few such acts of generosity or incidents of good fortune. In 1968, the church was gutted in a fire ruled arson. A series of vandalism incidents further damaged the hull of the building and what remained of its contents.

The spirit that led the church to rebuild remained in a small congregation that made it through the next few years with a series of circuit preachers. The part-time preachers typically gave an 8:30 a.m. sermon so they could move on to a larger church for the more popular 11 a.m. time slot. By last summer, the regulars had dwindled to about 23 at Sunday morning services. Then, they found out they were going to lose their part-time preacher. Methodist ministers are assigned to churches during an annual conference. Irene Wilson said each year brought the dread of having the church close.

"We were about to give up," said Mrs. Wilson, who has belonged to the church since 1953. "For years, we've been thinking, 'They're going to close us up this time.' But we kept hanging on, hoping for a full-time minister at the 11 a.m. service."

Their prayers were answered when the Rev. William Crouch of First United Methodist Church suggested McCleskey take on the struggling congregation. McCleskey, who lives at Good Samaritan Village and works in the ministry there, had also been helping Crouch with visitation duties. It seemed like a perfect match.

Brother Ray, as McCleskey has asked the congregation to call him, established a children's sermon during each worship service. He appealed to older church members as well as young families who have begun to attend the church in larger and larger numbers. Best of all, he preached an 11 a.m. service that attracted higher attendance than the early bird services of the past.

"Brother Ray's sermons are very inspirational," Mrs. Wilson said. "And he's not long-winded. You don't have to stay well past lunch."

The combination obviously has worked. McCleskey reports attendance up 300 percent, collections up 100 percent and membership up 22 percent since he took over in June 1985. What's more, members have made a commitment to the future of the church by using reserve funds to install central heat and air. Now, Mrs. Wilson said, they don't have to worry about turning off the window units so the older folks can hear during Sunday school.

McCleskey's background includes preaching for large and small churches alike, including the oldest Methodist church in Kansas City, Mo., and other churches throughout that state. He said he sees Cooper Creek as a country church that is becoming a suburban church, with potential for serving a wide area.

"I don't see anything but beautiful growth for them," he said.

McCleskey said his goal in coming to Cooper Creek was to establish a church rather than a mere preaching place.

"The preacher came once a week and then left. I thought to convert it to a church. I feel we've made that transition from a preaching place to a suburban church."

In addition to the Sunday services, the church plans this fall to resume Wednesday evening services with a short sermon, singing and an evening meal.

"Our people are very, very warm to one another," he said.

Abundant Life

LESS CRITICISM

By Bob Wear

IN MOST of our routine associations, most of us would probably be happier and get along better; if there were 'less criticism'. It is admitted that there may be a time for some justified criticism, but much of the criticism is just something being done for no particular reason with no constructive purpose in view. In most instances, we actually damage ourselves and others by the active criticism of what they are doing or not doing. Unless we are very sure that such action will help us or others, there is no justification for the criticism.

SECRET CRITICISM, the practice of rolling over and over in our minds critical thoughts of others, is an unwise activity. Sure, we may know what the score is, we know what is going on, but there is nothing to gain by such misuse of our mental energy. It is to our advantage to dismiss from our mind these hurtful thought processes.

WE MUST NOT short circuit the flow of our spiritual, mental, and physical energy by letting people and happenings disturb our thinking. It is important to us to keep all of our energies at full force and working constructively for us. This means that we go along about our business (making sure that we really take care of it) and refuse to be bothered by what others are saying or doing. This will help us concentrate on our own life situation, and pay great dividends in happy and useful relationships with other folk.

WE MUST KEEP in our thoughts a full consciousness of our blessings, of our personal progress, of what is going for us, what our possibilities are and what we are actively doing to realize these possibilities. If we are, more or less, continually thinking critical thoughts about others and what they are doing or not doing, or even worse, expressing our criticisms, we are thereby eroding our energies.

LESS CRITICISM in our thinking and talking will be helpful to us and to the people with whom we may be associated, and all of us will be happier.

SWBT supports program that addresses school dropout problem

Texas' most precious resource is not oil or gas, but rather the young men and women of the state. Unfortunately, a large proportion of these youths will never reach their fullest potential because of their decision to drop out of school. They end up cheating themselves, and society, out of the contributions that only they and their unique talents can make.

Recently published statistics reinforce the severity of this problem: The dropout rate in Texas hovers around 30 percent. Last spring alone, one out of every three potential high school seniors in the state — about 80,000 — failed to graduate.

This problem affects all of us, since young people with little education often turn to crime when they are unable to find a job. In 1985, more than 100,000 people under the age of 17 were arrested in Texas. And, this is not a new phenomenon — 85 percent of the 30,000 inmates in Texas prisons are high school dropouts.

Although these numbers paint a grim picture, a group of concerned citizens have approached this age-old problem with a new and promising solution — it's called Communities in Schools (CIS). We, at Southwestern Bell Telephone, feel that CIS will pay future dividends to the people of Texas because it addresses the individual needs of our state's troubled youths.

A highly focused program, CIS coordinates efforts of many social service organizations into a centralized, efficient, yet humanized, unit. It works closely with public education personnel to encourage students — who run a risk of dropping out — to complete their education.

CIS treats students as individuals

CIS counselors work one-on-one with these students to solve problems that often cause them to drop out. It takes a "whole child" approach, recognizing that many factors — including family, financial and psychological concerns — affect a youngster's decision to leave school.

Southwestern Bell Telephone has been an enthusiastic supporter of CIS since it began as a pilot program in 1979. Through the past seven years, we have provided direction, money, equipment and manpower to give floundering students in Texas another chance at a good education.

SWBT believes in the program because it works: Since its inception, CIS has helped more than 5,000 students. Even more impressive, over the last two years, 87 percent of the youngsters in the CIS summer program are still in public school, or have gone on to college, additional training or unsubsidized jobs.

We are happy to report that under the leadership of SWBT's Texas Division President Jim Adams, the program is spreading into additional school districts across the state.

Although CIS is not available in all Texas communities, SWBT is committed to building a better state, through its participation in organizations like CIS. We feel it's our obligation — and privilege — to enhance the quality of life for all Texans, through state-of-the-art telephone service, as well as worthwhile community programs.

Be sure to check your local television schedule for the airing of "Hispanic Dropouts: America's Time Bomb," a documentary that explores why so many Hispanics are leaving school and what can be done to prevent it. ## DR. GOTT Addison's affects adrenal function

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've been treated for Addison's disease for a year and am greatly improved. Can you tell me more about this condition?

DEAR READER — Addison's disease is the failure of the adrenals, the small glands that sit on top of the kidneys and control many body functions. The disease is characterized by weakness, fatigue, weight loss, poor digestion, depression and a patchy increase in the skin's pigmentation. Addison's disease is readily treated by pills that supply the hormones (called glucocorticoids and mineralocorticoids) which the body lacks. The ailment develops insidiously over a period of months. If untreated, it can be fatal.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is there any harm in taking two tablespoons of brewer's yeast daily?

DEAR READER — No, brewer's yeast will not hurt you. Please be sure to build up your intake very gradually; if you're not used to it, even a half-teaspoon of the stuff can send your stomach to Mars.

DEAR DR. GOTT — After a scan, I was told I had a gallstone in the duct. Would a strict diet help or is surgery the only answer?

DEAR READER — A gallstone that has slipped from the gall bladder into the duct leading to the intestine can cause severe abdominal pain and jaundice. Once a stone has formed, diet will not help; the blockage must be surgically removed. At present, many medical centers are experimenting with medicine to dissolve gallstones. Because the drugs are not yet available, surgery probably is your best option.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 32 and have Crohn's disease. My colon was removed, but the disease continues because cortisone proved useless and Azulfine causes peripheral neuritis. When I was given Inderal recently for a 150 pulse and arrhythmia, my Crohn's became unbearably painful. My doctor says it's my imagination, but the pain eased when I discontinued the Inderal.

Now I fear having a heart attack if I don't take Inderal and a Crohn's attack if I do. What's a person to do?

DEAR READER — Crohn's disease, a chronic inflammation of portions of the intestine, can be exceedingly difficult to treat. Drugs like cortisone may control symptoms, but are dangerous for routine long-term use. Surgery (to remove diseased portions of the bowel) may give temporary relief, but the disease tends to recur in other parts of the intestine.

I am not aware that Inderal, a beta-blocking drug that affects circulation, makes Crohn's disease worse. Perhaps your doctor would be willing to try another type of beta-blocker or another class of compounds, called calcium-channel blockers, to control your heart condition.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a problem with ingrown whiskers on my neck. They get infected and painful. I've tried different kinds of razors and shaving creams, but the problem seems to be getting worse. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER — Pluck the problem hairs with tweezers. Ingrown hairs can be produced by any kind of shaving instrument, so you will have to get rid of the hairs that turn inward and cause inflammation.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I just read a book on hypothyroidism. The doctor who wrote it says that a morning basal (at rest) temperature below 97.9 degrees Fahrenheit, and symptoms may indicate hypothyroidism. Have you ever heard of this basal temperature test? Mine is 96 and I have many other symptoms. I took the book to my doctor and asked him to read it. He wouldn't even look at it; he said he knew more than the doctor who wrote it. He also said the doctor probably needed a psychiatrist, and so did I for reading such garbage. (Needless to say, I am trying to find another doctor.)

DEAR READER — The basal temperature is a recognized and useful procedure that allows a person to obtain an accurate measure of the body's temperature before exercise, eating and so forth. A woman's basal temperature may vary slightly at the time she ovulates.

Patients with hypothyroidism (underactive thyroid glands) do tend to have slightly lower temperatures than normal people. However, the diagnosis is so readily established by modern blood tests that the nuisance of temperature-taking is unnecessarily cumbersome.

I don't understand your (ex-) doctor's temper tantrum. I would have expected him at least to scan the book to see what the competition has to say. Doctors do write books and, frankly, many of the publications are kooky. But you are obviously interested in the subject of hypothyroidism, and he could have given you the courtesy of a friendly argument about the author's perspective.

Hypothyroidism is often unsuspected in people who complain of fatigue, lassitude, thinning hair, coarsening of the skin, constipation, intolerance to cold and menstrual irregularities. The condition is entirely treatable once the diagnosis has been made.

Because you seem to be in the market for a new doctor, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, CHOOSING A PHYSICIAN: MAKE A DECISION FOR GOOD HEALTH. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A young fellow I know, who is 22, refuses to eat any vegetables because he doesn't like them. I tell him that he's making a serious mistake, but can't think of the specific problems this might cause. Can you?

DEAR READER — I'm surprised that a young adult refuses to eat any vegetables. I wonder how much his distaste may be related to an emotional, rather than a dietary, rejection. His mommy may have given him a hard time at the dinner table during his childhood; now he is paying her back.

At any rate, he is unlikely to develop a real nutritional deficiency if he eats dairy products, fish, poultry and grain products. Supplemental vitamins would be useful. He'll miss some fiber, of course, but whole-wheat bread will take care of that.

Won't he even try corn on the cob?

Gender sometimes important

Whether a marital therapist can get through to a couple whose marriage is in trouble may depend in part on the therapist's gender.

This finding and others have been reported by Marcia D. Brown-Standridge, faculty member in marriage and family therapy at Texas Tech University. Brown-Standridge conducted a study to determine how spouses react to one another and to their therapist and how the therapist responds to the couple.

The study showed some predictable results but also uncovered some data that was not so readily expected.

"They all go through a dance because they're all trying to influence each other," Brown-Standridge said. "Partners are trying to influence each other and the therapist, and the therapist is trying to influence the couple."

Among the more significant results from the study was the finding that when a marital therapist tries out new ideas on a reluctant couple, the therapist usually returns to helping them feel understood in their present concepts to get a response. The study showed therapists would accommodate the couple according to the couple's reactions and that the more open-minded the spouses, the easier time the therapist had in introducing new ideas.

As Brown-Standridge pointed out, the success of the therapy depends on getting the couple to adopt some new approaches to their problems.

But what therapists may not have known in getting to that point is that husbands and wives appear to react differently depending on the sex of the person trying to help them.

"Husbands were less likely to accept new ideas from a female therapist and were more open to a male therapist," Brown-Standridge said. "Wives could go either way."

Male therapists, likewise, seemed to make special efforts to understand the husband's point of view. Most therapists interviewed, Brown-Standridge said, were not aware of this tendency.

The sex of the spouse also was a factor in the response patterns.

"Wives in the study appeared more receptive to confirmation by the therapist of their existing ideas, while husbands tended to see confirmation as a waste of time," she said. "Husbands were typically more open to new ideas as they were presented."

The difference is the two may result from wives' looking for support for ideas that they were not getting at home, she said. Husbands, on the other hand, may be wanting a new approach to complaints they have heard repeatedly.

Brown-Standridge noted that in a quarter of the time with wives and a third of the time with husbands in therapy sessions studied, the meaning of spouses' silent responses could not be ascertained. This result presents a challenge to therapists and to future studies in dealing with non-responsive couples.

In Brown-Standridge's work, she developed a scale for determining response patterns. Her doctoral study on marital therapy earned her the 1986 Outstanding Graduate Student Research Contribution Award from the American Association for Marriage and Family Therapy.

She plans to continue gender difference research for its application to training future marital therapists.

Frenship lost to Estacado 60-3 last week

Whitefaces to battle Tigers Friday night

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

The two new teams in District 1-4A face each other Friday night when the Hereford Whitefaces host the Frenship Tigers.

Kickoff for Friday's contest is 7:30 p.m. at Whiteface Stadium. Hereford was in class 5A last year, and Frenship was in class 3A.

Hereford is undefeated at 3-0 and Frenship is 1-2. Frenship had to play Lubbock Estacado last week to open the district season, and suffered a 60-3 loss.

The Whitefaces survived a few big plays by Pampa, and defeated Pampa 36-28.

"Pampa played well. You've got to give Pampa some credit. We played well too. We just gave up about three bad plays in the game," said Hereford Coach Don Cumpton.

"I was happy the way we handled the first half. It was the first time we had been scored on this season, the first time we had been behind," Cumpton continues.

"Bobby Baker made some great plays. Our quarterback (Todd Shire) be a better runner than passer. He does well running the option."

The leading ball carrier in Frenship's I-formation offensive so far this season has been 180-pounder Roy Wilson. Other leading players on offense for the Rigers include 210-pound offensive tackles Stacy and Tracy Godfrey, who are twins; and 180-pound center Charles Addington.

Both Hereford and Frenship have running backs who are leading their teams in scoring. Vincent Brown of the Whitefaces and Mario Gomez of the Tigers have both scored five touchdowns so far this year.

Two other Herd players have scored more than 20 points—Bobby Baker with four touchdowns and a two-point conversion for 26 points, and Mark Artho with three touchdowns and four point-after-touchdown kicks for 22 points.

Frenship, as Cumpton notes, has a stunting defense. Cumpton said, "Our biggest concern about their defense is that 90 percent of the time they are stunting. Our offensive team will have to adjust to that."

Cumpton, having seen Pampa take advantage of turnovers last week, states, "It's crucial at any level of football, how many turnovers you get and how many you give up."

Hereford has lost three fumbles and has had two passes intercepted, but the Herd defense has intercepted five passes and recovered six fumbles.

Hereford's leaders on defense last week included six players who each had at least five tackles. Michael Phibbs led the Whitefaces with nine tackles, and Ricky Ruiz had eight threw the ball well. And our offensive line did some good protection. It's not just one player who makes it work in the passing game," he adds.

Hereford goes into Friday's game averaging 365.6 offensive yards per game, while allowing 190.3 yards per game. On offense, the Herd is averaging 222 yards per game rushing and 143.6 yards per game passing.

By comparison, Frenship is averaging 281 yards total offense per game, including 251 yards per game rushing.

"We're pretty balanced in our offense. That's the way you hope you can do it, to keep the other team off balanced," Cumpton said.

Lubbock Estacado piled up 520 yards rushing against the Frenship defense last week.

About the Tigers, Coach Cumpton said, "Frenship looked real good against Brownfield and Tulia. They didn't look too good against Estacado, but nobody else has."

"Frenship has moved the ball well, including against Estacado. Their quarterback, Tuan Lee, has shown to Trent Bowling was next with seven tackles, Mark Artho had six tackles, and Fidencio Cantu had five tackles. Phibbs, Ruiz, and Bowling each are averaging seven or more tackles per game.

Frenship opened the season with a 49-6 thrashing of Brownfield a class 3A school, and lost to Tulia, also a class 3A team, 30-15 the second week of the season. Hereford rolled to shutout victories of 28-0 over Andrews and 42-0 over Clovis.

Since District 1-4A is a nine-team district, the rest of the season is league games for the Whitefaces, with an open date between the games against Estacado and Borger.

"This district is tough. Four teams haven't lost yet. There's not any one of the district teams that's not capable of winning on any night. We've got to be ready to play every week," Coach Cumpton declares.

This week the Whitefaces, ranked 10th in the state in both the Associated Press poll and the Harris Rating System, are 21-point favorites over Frenship, according to the Harris Rating System picks.

WTSU plays host to Mississippi College

West Texas State University's football team will try to get back into the "W" column Saturday when the Buffaloes host Mississippi College.

Saturday's game has a 7:30 p.m. kickoff at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium. The Buffaloes are 1-2 for the season, and Mississippi College is 2-1.

Last weekend, WTSU jumped out to a 13-0 lead at Louisiana Tech, but could not hold onto its lead. Louisiana Tech moved ahead 24-13 in the fourth quarter, and WTSU closed the gap to 24-21, failing in an opportunity to win the game.

Tod Mayfield completed 24 of 48 passes for 262 yards and one touchdown, and was intercepted one time. Mayfield is now West Texas State's all-time passing leader with 4,784 yards, breaking the old record of 4,522 yards by Victor McGee.

Stan Carraway also became an all-time WTSU leader—in pass receptions. Carraway caught five passes for 70 yards against Louisiana Tech, and now has 103 catches in his career for 1,526 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Carraway needs just 73 more yards in receptions to become the all-time WTSU leader in reception yardage.

Mississippi College was upset in its first game of the season by Southeast Missouri, 30-27. Mississippi College then defeated North Alabama 21-6 and beat Arkansas-Monticello 42-7.

Quarterback Wally Henry passes for 135 yards and two touchdowns in the first half of the win over Arkansas-Monticello. Two Mississippi College defensive players, Bruce Ladhner and Joey Parham, returned interceptions for touchdowns.

Hostile Herd Sideline Notes

By Shawn Cockrum

How can a person write something as trivial as football quotes and somewhat funny sayings when our children are dying.

This space is usually filled with memories of last Friday night, and what coaches expect from their players this Friday, but all that seems to be very far removed from the reality of today's cruel world.

In August, a 9-year old boy was found lying on the couch inside an older Hereford apartment building.

The boy was dead, and at that time nobody knew why.

An Amarillo pathologist recently disclosed that the boy, Manuel Saucedo, had died of a reaction to cocaine. Just to think of a 9-year-old being involved with cocaine brings feelings of disbelief, anger, and sorrow. Manuel never had a chance to take the field or the court. Manuel will never go to a dance after a football game. Manuel will never go to a prom. All because of cocaine.

Drug related deaths happen every day. When superstar Len Bias died from a reaction to cocaine, the entire world of sports was in shock.

The progress of the investigation of the All-American's death was national news. The world said how unfair it was. The world wept for Lenny Bias. So did I.

Now it has hit home, it has hit deep. When a 9-year-old dies it is extremely unfair, but when drug abuse is to blame for the death of a 9-year-old it is devastating.

How does a second grader get involved with drugs? Are drugs in our schools? Did Manuel get the drugs from other children? Did Manuel get the drugs from relatives? Was he sold drugs while walking down Hereford streets?

I guess we will never really know why a 9-year-old has to become a victim of drugs. All we can do is sit back and wonder if one of our children will die from cocaine. Who will be next?

Will it ever stop?

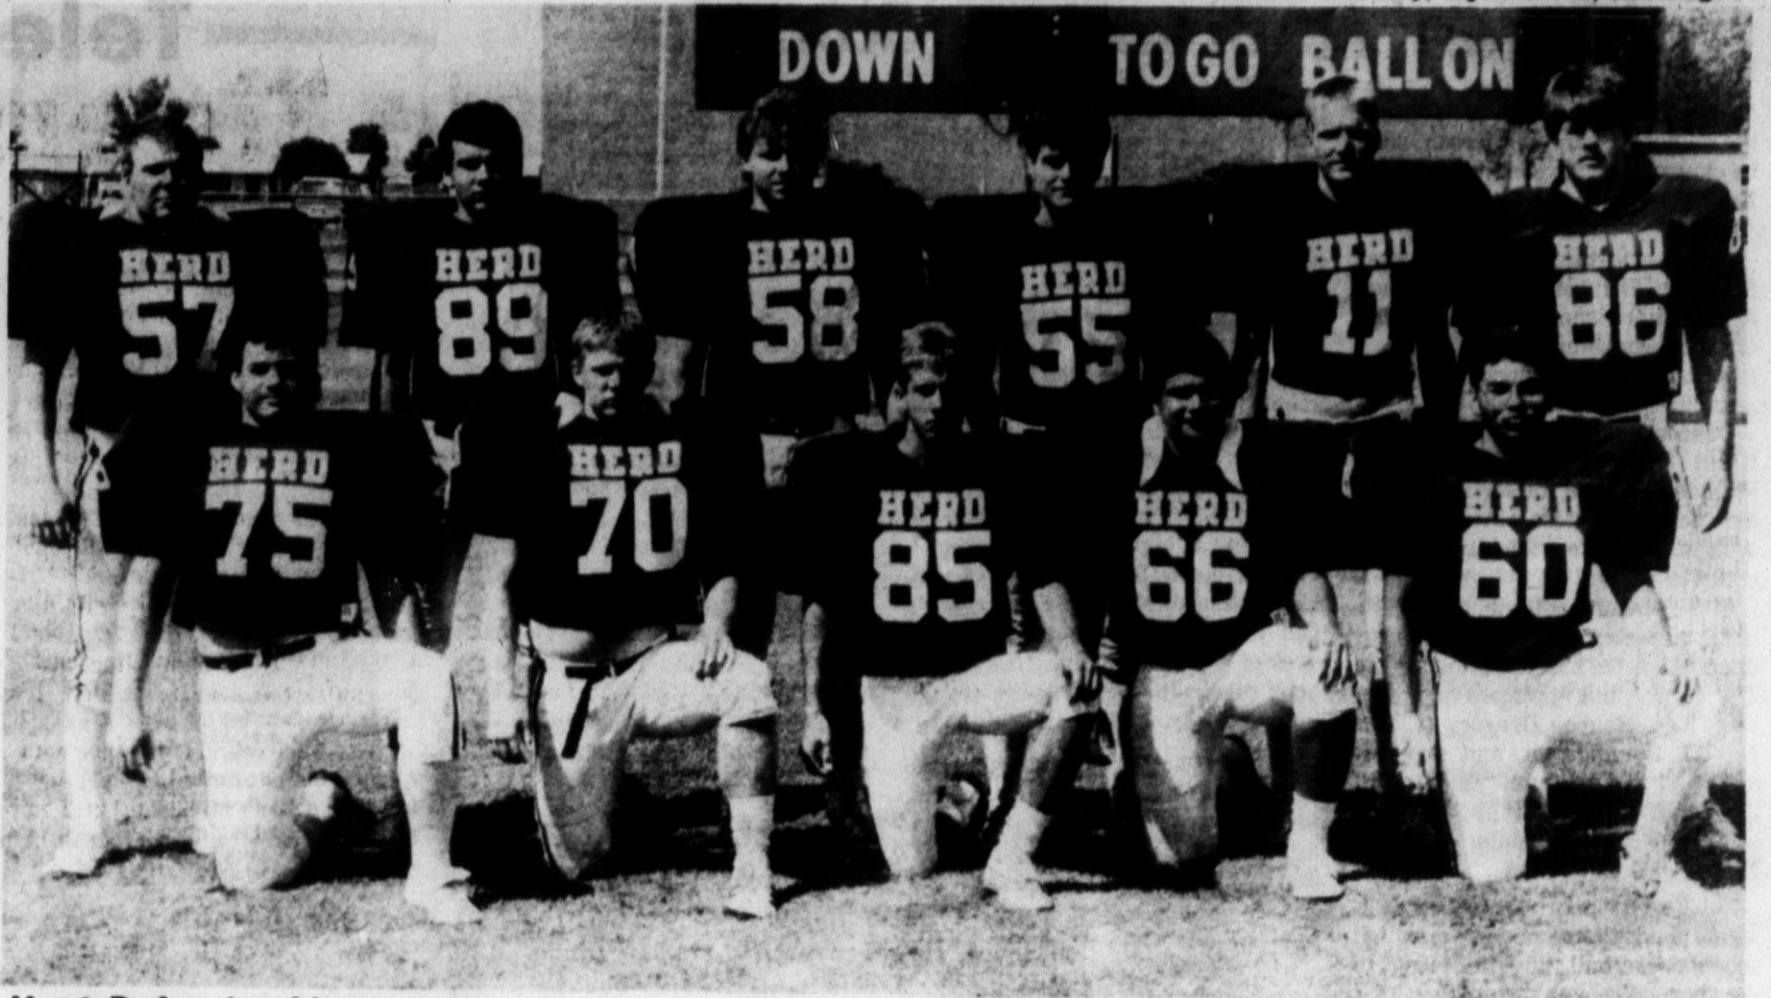

It is true that there is nothing that can be done for Manuel now. Manuel is with God. Maybe it was God's will that Manuel be taken out of a home of poverty. Maybe Manuel is God's message that drugs must be stopped before they claim the lives of more children. Maybe God has shed a tear for Manuel. I have.

After the game, some of the football players will be giving Betty Crocker a run for her money in a cookie bake-off at the Church of the Nazarene. Taste-test if you dare. Cheap refreshments will be available to wash it down.

oOo

Another post-game highlight will be the dance sponsored by the CYO to be held at the Knights of Columbus hall. The dance gets started right after the game and rocks until around 1 a.m.

Herd Defensive Linemen

Unbeaten ENMU to play Adams State

The Eastern New Mexico University football team, 38-15 winners over Fort Lewis of Colorado last weekend, play host to Adams State of Colorado Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Adams State is a member of the NAIA Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference. Adams State is the fourth consecutive opponent for ENMU from that conference. ENMU is undefeated at 3-0 and Adams State is winless at 0-3.

The last meeting between the two schools was in 1983, when ENMU defeated Adams State 48-14. Adams State has lost to Northwestern Oklahoma 40-20, to Weber State of Utah 55-21, and to Panhandle State of Oklahoma 21-3.

ENMU linebacker Cecil Jackson, a 6-4, 212-pound junior, was named the Lone Star Conference defensive player of the week for his performance against Adams State.

Jackson had eight solo tackles and four unassisted tackles in the game. He had two quarterback sacks for 16 yards in losses, and also intercepted a pass. The ENMU defense allowed only 31 yards rushing by Adams State.

ENMU Coach Don Carthel said, "We controlled the line of scrimmage and our kids played with a lot of enthusiasm."

About this week's game, Carthel said, "Adams State has a very good football team and it's hard to understand why they're off to an 0-3 start. They run a lot of options which we haven't seen yet this year, but it will be a good experience for us."

"Both of our quarterbacks, Tommy Gonzalez and John Paul Cantu, will see plenty of action. We'll alternate them two series at a time. They will call 75 percent of our game at the line of scrimmage."

ENMU has a 14-10-1 all-time record against Adams State.

The Greyhounds' running back Rufus Smith leads the offense with 116.3 yards per game and seven touchdowns. ENMU leads the Lone Star Conference in rushing defense at 61.7 yards per game. The Greyhound offense is averaging 447 yards per game.

For Cowboys against St. Louis

Walker will probably see more action

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
 AP Sports Writer
 IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have done some roster-shuffling in the wake of last week's loss to Atlanta, and Coach Tom Landry says St. Louis will probably see more of Herschel Walker next week than the Falcons did.

Landry pulled Phil Pozderac from his job as starting left offensive tackle Tuesday and said Howard Richards would likely start at the position in Monday night's game against the St. Louis Cardinals with Mark Tuinei as the backup.

Hours after Landry's weekly press conference, he put veteran defensive end Jesse Baker and cornerback Cornell Gowdy on waivers. He also added defensive tackle Bob Otto and rookie defensive back Manny Hendrix to the team.

Pozderac, who had two costly holding penalties and was responsible for a sack of quarterback Danny White that led to a Falcon touchdown and a 37-35 loss, was moved to right offensive tackle as a backup behind Jim Cooper.

"We had some traps that hurt us at the left tackle position and the last holding call was a critical one," Landry said. "Left tackle is a difficult position to play. It's where the defense has its quickest rushers."

A holding call on Pozderac cost the Cowboys a first down at the Atlanta 32-yard line late in the game when the Falcons were out of timeouts. The Cowboys had to punt because they couldn't make a first down, and Atlanta struck for the game-winning field goal with 20 seconds left.

Landry refused to blame his secondary for a 65-yard pass that set up Mick Luckhurst's 18-yard field goal.

"Our performance in the secondary has been extremely good except for the last two plays in the Atlanta game," Landry said. "They are twice as good as they were last year. We aren't suffering that much with our rookies back there. Atlanta made a 'Hail Mary' play."

Landry indicated the Cardinals, who are coached by former Cowboys assistant Gene Stallings, may see a heavy dose of Herschel Walker, who only touched the ball seven times in the Atlanta loss.

"We have some concern about Tony Dorsett," Landry said. "He sprained his knee on the same leg where he has a sprained ankle. We're planning to play Herschel a lot more. He has done a lot more than I ever thought he could do this quick. He is really absorbing our offense."

Landry said it would be a special feeling going against Stallings, who coached the Dallas secondary until he became the Cardinals' head coach.

"I'm proud of my guys out there coaching," Landry said. "Of course, I have a lot more pride when I beat them than when I don't. Gene will be an excellent coach. He's one of my best friends and I feel bad he is 0-3. But I don't feel bad enough about it to make him 1-3."

Baseball great Frankie Frisch got his nickname of the "Fordham Flash" playing football at that university in New York.

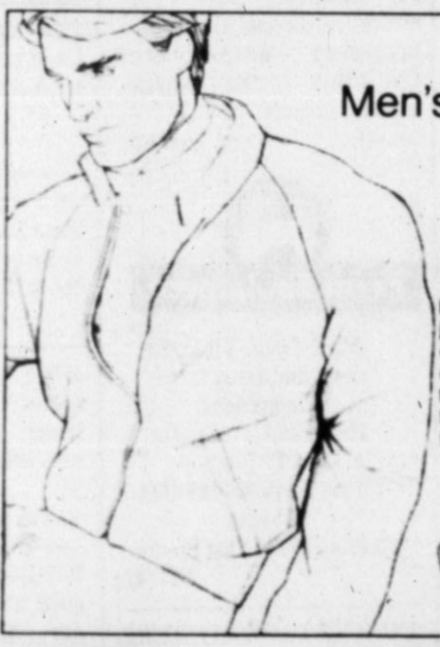

Lou Gehrig's batting average in seven World Series for the New York Yankees was .361. He drove in 35 runs in 34 games and had 10 homers.

THE PRISONER IN COMMAND OF THE SHIP!

No one had eaten for a long time, but finally Paul called the crew together and said, "Men, you should have listened to me in the first place and not left Fair Havens—you would have avoided all this injury and loss! But cheer up! Not one of us will lose our lives, even though the ship will go down. For last night an angel of the God to whom I belong and whom I serve stood beside me, and said, 'Don't be afraid, Paul—for you will surely stand trial before Caesar! What's more, God has granted your request and will save the lives of all those sailing with you.' So take courage! For I believe God! It will be just as He said! But we will be shipwrecked on an island." About midnight on the 14th night of the storm, as we were being driven to and fro in the Adriatic Sea, the sailors suspected land was near. They sounded, and found 120 feet of water below them. A little later they sounded again, and found only 90 feet. At this rate they would soon be driven ashore; and fearing rocks along the coast, they threw out four anchors from the stern and prayed for daylight.

Some of the sailors planned to abandon the ship, and lowered the emergency boat as though they were going to put out anchors from the prow. But Paul said to the soldiers and commanding officer, "You will all die unless everyone stays aboard." So the soldiers cut the ropes and let the boat fall off.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration announced that over 150,000 seats manufactured under the name of Century (models 100, 200, 300, and 400XL) and 40,000 seats manufactured under the name of Kolcraft Rock 'N' Ride (model 13123) are being recalled.

The Century seats were manufactured between April, 1985 and February, 1986. They were stamped on the bottom of the seat 'Mold No. 1.1' and include models 8504-8512, and 8601 or 8602.

The seats are being recalled because there is concern that the seats might crack or break in an accident. The highway safety agency has reported that there have been no reported injuries related to the apparent defect.

Myth: Alcohol is not a drug. Fact: Alcohol is a drug. The number one drug problem in the nation is alcohol abuse. For every one heroin addict in America, there are 30 alcoholics.

Janet Hicks cried when she saw the drawings of her two daughters. Missing for more than seven years after they were abducted by their father following a divorce, Kathy and Debbie Caruso were found within hours after their "aged" drawings were shown on a television program.

Sadler, who developed a technique to project the future appearance of children with facial deformities, began doing the missing child sketches after a former co-worker, Scott Barrows, drew the now teen-age Caruso girls for the show, "Missing: Have You Seen This Person?"

In the year-and-a-half since then, Sadler and Barrows have done 40 drawings. Ten of those children have been found. The bodies of two others were identified.

"We were thrown into it, innocent," Sadler said of the sometimes traumatic work. "But once you do have a technique like this that works, I don't see how you could get out of it," he said.

Artist draws 'aged' sketches to locate missing children

DALLAS (AP) — Lewis Sadler draws pictures of children. Sometimes they help locate missing boys and girls. Sometimes it's already too late.

The medical illustrator sketches children abducted and missing for several years, projecting how they might look today to help parents and law enforcement officials find them.

But a Sadler drawing sometimes can be a poignant specter of an age never reached.

"The worst is when the child turns up dead," said Sadler, an associate professor and director of medical illustration services at the University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas.

He recalls drawing a 3-year-old girl reported abducted in the Garland area. Investigators later found her body where it had been buried by the mother's boyfriend. The kidnapping report was a hoax.

"You do get the feeling you know the person a little bit," Sadler said of the drawings. "You get a chance to see that growth — you see that life that never had a chance to be. It's very eerie ... and sad."

Other drawings lead to happier endings.

Janet Hicks cried when she saw the drawings of her two daughters. Missing for more than seven years after they were abducted by their father following a divorce, Kathy and Debbie Caruso were found within hours after their "aged" drawings were shown on a television program.

Sadler, who developed a technique to project the future appearance of children with facial deformities, began doing the missing child sketches after a former co-worker, Scott Barrows, drew the now teen-age Caruso girls for the show, "Missing: Have You Seen This Person?"

In the year-and-a-half since then, Sadler and Barrows have done 40 drawings. Ten of those children have been found. The bodies of two others were identified.

"We were thrown into it, innocent," Sadler said of the sometimes traumatic work. "But once you do have a technique like this that works, I don't see how you could get out of it," he said.

In his drawings of the Caruso sisters, Barrows drew on Sadler's seven years' studying facial growth. It was an interest sparked when he was at the University of Michigan with a plastic surgeon who asked him to predict the appearance of young patients following surgery to correct abnormal cranial development. Abnormal facial growth is often caused by chromosomal damage, such as drugs taken during pregnancy, or by disease.

"I was to come up with drawings of what the child would look like" after the surgery and in future years, Sadler said. "That's when I began collecting information on how faces grow."

Children's faces change — not like they're "painted on a balloon and someone blows it up" — but in fits and starts, he said.

Using 43 different points of reference on a face, measurements as small as one-hundredth of a millimeter and averages on how fast each facial area grows, Sadler can project how a child will look as much as 15 years in the future, he said.

For example, a photograph of a missing child is blown up to life size, then a key measurement — usually the bridge of the nose — is taken as a reference point. Measurements all over the face then can be projected according to Sadler's data on how much each measurement grows each year in a normal child.

The child's race and sex will affect how his or her face changes, he said. "In general, a woman's (eye) area is much more rounded and smooth. Men are more angular."

The teeth and jaw of a Caucasian are shaped differently than those of a black, he said.

Drawings of a child under 3 years of age are discouraged because growth during this time is too rapid, Sadler said.

Others perform similar work. A woman in New York City uses photographs of parents and siblings to predict how a missing child will age. Sadler says the complex collection of genes which determine appearance bring no guarantee a child will look like his or her immediate family.

"We had a little boy who was missing, and when we did the drawing, he had a real peculiar nose. Scott (Barrows) called me and said it didn't look at all like the parents' pointy noses. I said to recheck the measurements and trust them," Sadler said.

"He was found. And in one of the photographs taken then, he has this funny blob of a nose, and he's being held by his grandmother, who has a blob of a nose."

Sadler and Barrows work with the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children and directly with parents. Barrows also is working with I-Search, an Illinois child find agency.

For the parents — some who haven't seen their child for a dozen years — a drawing of their now-changed loved one is always charged with emotion, Sadler said.

"Some will break down and cry. Some are disappointed" at how the child looks, he said.

In some cases, the illustrators have little to work with.

"It's not uncommon for the abducting parent to take the photo album, too," Sadler said.

To draw 4-year-old Mitchell, now 7 and still missing, Sadler worked off a tiny photo of the boy taken with a choir.

In another case, 4-year-old Kristy was located six years after being abducted by her father when investigators circulated her drawing in an Oklahoma school district where they believed she was living.

She was found, and her grandmother asked what she looked like. The investigator said exactly like the drawing, said Sadler — "the best compliment we get."

One of his most unusual assignments involves a woman arrested on a bad check, charge in Oklahoma City who had two phony birth certificates for a 6-year-old she claimed was her daughter.

Police began tracing the cities where the woman had been. Now they want Sadler to draw the 6-year-old younger, at the ages of children abducted and still missing from those cities to try and find her true identity, Sadler said.

Sadler and Barrows spend an average of 20 hours on a sketch. They take no money, but are looking for funding for computers and programming to do the aging projections and thus cut the time needed per sketch to minutes.

"Parents are calling back asking for a yearly update" of the drawings, Sadler said. "It's another 20 hours for us, and it's also time we could be using to draw another child" whose face is a mystery to those desperately trying to find him.
