Mims to head UW campaign

Dr. A. T. Mims will serve as the campaign chairman for the United Way of Deaf Smith County in 1989. The announcement was made this week by Boyd Foster, president of the UWSDC board of directors.

A long-time civic and church leader in Hereford, Dr. Mims will soon be naming other campaign officials, including the division chairmen. Other advance plans will be made for the campaign's kickoff in September.

This year's campaign will run for six weeks in September and October, with a goal to be set when the campaign leadership is fully established. The basic goal is considered a minimal amount for the 12 member agencies.

The 12 agencies have been approved by the Budget and Admissions Committee chaired by Billie Hopson.

The agencies include Camp Fire, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Family Services Center, Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, YMCA, Red Cross, Hereford Senior Citizens and Salvation Army.

Each agency is required to submit a detailed statement of financial needs and goals to the Budget and Admissions committee each year for consideration to receive UWSDC funds. A percentage formula is then applied to determine how much of the total pledged amount will be given to each agency.

Questions about the agencies may be made by calling their directors or the UWSDC office at 364-5220.

Other UWSDC officers are Margaret Bell, vice president, and Larry Alley, treasurer. Wayne Amstutz serves as the full-time executive director, and Morgan Cain is the secretary.

Lawyers meet on North case

WASHINGTON (AP)--Oliver North's lawyers and the government are waging a closed-door courtroom battle over how much to disclose about the Reagan administration's secret favors to three countries that helped the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

A closed hearing was to resume today, after a session of more than two hours Thursday on the third-country arrangements, which North lawyer Brendan Sullivan says are at the heart of the North case.

The government wants to handle the issue, referred to in court filings as quid pro quo arrangements, by making a limited admission of facts that would be introduced as evidence at North's trial. Sullivan wants to go into the matter in much greater detail in the courtroom.

Sullivan asserts that President Reagan participated personally in the exchange of favors for Contra support and that he and top administration officials then covered up those arrangements.

North is accused of shredding evidence and lying to Congress in an attempt to cover up the administration's efforts to help the Contras when

Some thrifts boost rates again

HOUSTON (AP)--Despite assurances from President Bush that deposits in troubled savings and loan associations will be protected, a few small Texas thrifts are offering high rates to attract outside investors accustomed to getting a "Texas premium."

In general, though, rates on deposits at big Texas thrifts are only slightly above the national average. Most of the highest rates on regular deposits are now offered in the Northeast and mid-Atlantic states, where there is strong loan demand because of the healthier economy.

"The marginally insolvent savings and loans have been paying what is sometimes referred to as the 'Texas premium,' which is just a reflection of the price the market has demanded," Alan Whitney, spokesman for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. in Washington, said Thursday.

"Since Bush made his statement, the rates have not yet seemed to react by coming down, but I think as we go forward the administration's plan will have that effect," Whitney said.

"The fact is that, in light of the president's statements and other statements by the administration, there is no excess level of risk in placing deposits in Texas institutions."

The Bush administration's $90 billion proposal to rescue troubled thrifts, many of them in Texas, was intended partially to close those institutions that were driving up deposit rates for the rest of the industry.

But two insolvent Houston-area thrifts have jacked up interest rates as high as 10.75 percent for six-month "jumbo" certificates of deposit since Bush's plan was announced. The jumbo CDs cost $100,000 and are sold mainly to big investors, not banks' local customers.

The spike in rates, which already is subsidizing, was described by officials of high-bidding BancPlus Savings Association and Commonwealth Savings as a temporary, cyclical cash drive for mortgage operations.

The rates, however, drew the scrutiny of regulatory and industry officials, who say such bidding serves as an example of the lingering problem of attracting capital and of the practices that could make the bailout of the industry more expensive.

"Paying a premium rate has an effect on the total cost to the government in resolving these insolvencies and, in the meantime, others in the region have to compete with these insolvent institutions," Whitney said.

Continuing rate battles could have a broad, adverse effect on the financial system, he said.

"One of the primary objectives of the government is to stabilize the situation, and it certainly doesn't lend stability when there are rates out there of such size," said Douglas Valdetero, executive vice president at Houston-based University Savings. "There's no way you can buy that kind of money and turn it out and make any profit on it."

University Savings tried to keep up with the increasing rates for CDs, which were limited to deposits of $95,000-$100,000. The thrift raised its six-month rate from 9.8 percent to 10.1 percent Monday before dropping back the next day to 9.875 percent.

Valdetero said the thrift retreated on its own from the rate battle, but Whitney said University is under FDIC jurisdiction and that the agency stepped in to reduce the rates.

Commonwealth, meanwhile, boosted its rates to 10.75 percent from about 9.3 percent. BancPlus was close behind at 10.65 percent, but lowered its rate on the six-month deposits to 10.60 percent Thursday and expected to drop still lower by Friday, spokesman Brendan Duffey said.

Currently, 11 of the top 25 yields on six-month jumbo CDs are available from Texas thrifts, according to 100 Highest Yields, a sister publication of Bank Rate Monitor of North Palm Beach, Fla.

"A few weak institutions still continue to play the hot-money game," seeking funds at high cost from big institutions and wealthy individuals, said Robert K. Heady, publisher of Bank Rate Monitor.

In general, though, Texas thrifts, especially the big ones, are not paying an unusually large "Texas premium," bank Rate Monitor figures show.

Statistics from the 10 largest thrifts in each of the 10 major U.S. cities showed Houston had an average 9.11 percent rate on jumbo CDs and Dallas averaged 9.10 percent, compared to the national average of 8.97 percent.

Rates in Detroit and Boston were even higher, at 9.26 percent, presumably the demand for loans is high enough in those cities that their thrifts need to offer high rates to attract deposits that they can then re-lend, Heady said.

Reflecting the regional shift, a year ago, 75 of the nation's 100 top yields on regular, small-denomination CDs and money market accounts were offered by Texas institutions.

Only 10 to 12 Texas institutions remain on that list, while about 66 are from the Northeast and mid-Atlantic states, Heady said.

Commonwealth paid the highest rate in the nation for six-month jumbo CDs as of Wednesday at 10.75 percent, according to 100 Highest Yields. The list is for institutions of all sizes.

Police busy with domestic reports

Law enforcement officers were kept busy with domestic disputes on Thursday. Officers investigated a domestic dispute in the 100 block of South Douglas where a man had hit his wife in the mouth and she had swung a knife at him and nicked his face. They both calmed down, police reported, and would not file charges against each other.

Police also reported that a man said he wanted custody of his child from his estranged wife, and was told to go through civil channels. The sheriff's office also reported a domestic dispute on Thursday.

Other incidents included a boy, 16, reported as a runaway; a woman in the 600 block of Avenue I reported that someone had stolen a bottle of perfume and a cassette tape from her car; a girl, 9, was bitten by a dog and suffered minor injuries. The dog was picked up for a 10-day observation period, and the owner was issued a citation.

Cowboy Car Wash reported someone broke into their vacuum cleaners and stole an undetermined amount of money; two reports of harassing phone calls were received; a teacher at Hereford High School reported that a $150 jacket was stolen from his office; and a man in the 300 block of Avenue A reported that someone pulled into his driveway, honked their horn and left.

Police issued five citations and investigated one minor accident Thursday. The Hereford Volunteer Fire Department responded to calls at Hereford Feed Yard and a dumpster fire in the 400 block of Sycamore.

Officials: Book threats serious

LONDON (AP)--Authorities said they were taking "extremely seriously" a threat in India to bomb British Airways flights because of the controversy over Salman Rushdie's book "The Satanic Verses."

Britain protested to Iran after Ayatollah Khomeini urged Muslims to kill Rushdie, an Indian-born British citizen, because he wrote a book that religious zealots say slanders Islam. Iranian religious leaders have offered a $5.2 million bounty for the killing of Rushdie.

Rushdie, 41, and his wife, American novelist Marianne Wiggins, remained under police guard today at an undisclosed site in Britain in fear of their lives.

In Iran today, president Ali Khamenei demanded that British explain why it permitted the publication of the book, the official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

The agency, monitored in Cyprus, quoted Khamenei as saying during prayers in Tehran that "the British government must respond and explain... why it has allowed one of its dependents to make such a blunder."

It said demonstrators shouted "Death to Britain!" Although Iranian leaders declared today a "day of anger" against the novel, Khamenei warned demonstrators to stay away from the British and other embassies in Tehran.

In Washington, the State Department said Thursday it was "appalled" by the Iran death threats and denounced such actions as "completely irresponsible."

Seven people have been killed in Pakistan and northern India since Sunday in protests by Islamic fundamentalists over the novel, which has been banned in Iran, India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Egypt and South Africa.

More than 150,000 copies of the book have been sold in Britain and the United States. But the threats against Rushdie and its U.S. publisher prompted Waldenbooks, the largest U.S. bookseller, to remove copies of the book from its stores' shelves Thursday.

The New Zealand office of Rushdie's publisher today said it had received unspecified threats, while an Italian publishing house said it would release the Italian-language edition of the novel next week.

In Montreal, Transport Secretary Paul Channon said Thursday that his officials in London, British Airways and security services were evaluating the threat.

"We are taking it extremely seriously," he said.

United News of India said a man claiming to speak for the previously unknown "Iranian Guards" telephoned the news agency's Bombay office (See BOOK, Page 2)

Yeutter: Hard work, good sense

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter says he's looking for men and women who aren't afraid of hard work and have good sense.

Yeutter told rank-and-file Agriculture Department employees Thursday that he has interviewed "a lot of outstanding people in the last 30 days" for jobs in the federal agencies he oversees.

"I feel good about the quality level, talent level that we're going to be able to assemble here," he said. "If we can just get cleared through the White House's office of personnel, we may eventually get them on board."

Appointments to scores of high-level posts within the Bush administration are being held up for clearances and other paperwork associated with the changeover from the Reagan years. The No. 2 job in USDA, for example, is still being performed by Deputy Secretary Peter C. Myers.

"One of the questions I have asked every one of these people is how hard they're prepared to work, because if they come, they're going to work awfully hard, probably a lot harder then they've ever worked before," Yeutter said.

He added: "I also want them to work smart. Working hard is one thing, working smart is another, and we're going to try to find people who will work smart, too."

Only a few minutes before his brief remarks to USDA employees, Yeutter got his marching orders from President Bush during a formal swearing-in ceremony.

Bush said he expected Yeutter to help "make sure our objectives in agriculture are achieved" as the new administration pursues the longtime U.S. goal of reducing world trade barriers.

Bush said Yeutter's name "rhymes with fighter" and that he is "tough as nails, knowledgeable — that's why I picked him. And I know he's going to fight hard for farming, for fair trade and for all the other important responsibilities for this department."

Yeutter, 58, who holds degrees in law and economics, is a farm native of Nebraska and has held many public and private posts, including Agriculture Department service in the early 1970s and president of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange from 1978 to 1985.

Bush said Yeutter had an "outstanding tenure" for 3½ years as President Reagan's trade representative. He said Yeutter will work closely with Carla Hills, the new trade representative, to help protect the interests of American farmers during multinational trade talks.

Yeutter was confirmed unanimously by the Senate on Feb. 8 and was officially sworn in as secretary without ceremony later the same day at the Agriculture Department.

In Thursday's ceremonial event, which included a color guard, Marine band and family members, Yeutter's repeated oath of office was administered by Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, who also had sworn him in as trade representative in 1985.

Bush said Yeutter "is about to make an enduring commitment to this department, and then told a story about a farmer making a breakfast of eggs and bacon to show the difference between involvement and commitment."

"The chicken is involved, but the pig is committed," Bush said.

Congress had banned U.S. aid.

The defense contends in part that North was carrying out the administration's wishes and was under instructions to keep the third-party deals secret.

There was no word Thursday from U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell on when the jury, chosen Feb. 11, would be sworn in and opening arguments in the trial could begin.

North's lawyers are opposing a plan in which independent counsel Lawrence Walsh would notify Attorney General Dick Thornburgh any time particularly sensitive classified material is about to be disclosed.

The defense says the procedure "would impose intolerable burdens on the court, the witnesses and the jurors."

On Tuesday, Gesell ordered Thornburgh to stay out of the Iran-Contra case, saying it was up to Walsh to prevent the introduction of classified information. Walsh's office, in meetings with the Justice Department, then worked out the notification plan.

Walsh says his procedure implements the judge's order directing that the attorney general stay out of the case, but Gesell has made no comment on it.

Despite Gesell's rulings, the proposed plan gives the attorney general too much influence, Sullivan and fellow defense attorney Barry Simon said in a court brief.

But Walsh said the defense motion "is based on a misconception." "Independent counsel does not contemplate the trifling 'bits and pieces' activity by the attorney general" which North "professes to anticipate," Walsh said. "The day-to-day conduct of this case will be by the independent counsel and only the independent counsel."

Walsh said that he turns to the attorney general just as he turns on occasion to other government agencies and that as long as the agencies don't attempt "to intrude in the courtroom," North has no basis for objection.

The North trial was delayed this week because the Justice Department, fearful that North would spill government secrets in the courtroom, obtained a Supreme Court stay of the proceedings. The court vacated the stay Thursday, after Thornburgh said sufficient safeguards were in place to protect national security.

Thursday and threatened to bomb British Airways planes unless Rushdie emerged from seclusion.

The airline tightened security on flights from London to Asia.

The British Foreign Office in London on Thursday summoned Iran's lone diplomat in Britain, to say that Khomeini's threat on Tuesday was "totally unacceptable."

The foreign Office also said it had shelved plans to expand diplomatic relations with the Islamic state.

Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe said Thursday that "a stable and serious relationship...will not be possible while Iran fails to respect international standards of behavior."

Britain reopened its Tehran embassy in December after an eight-year closure.

Bush worried about leftover USSR weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush says he will continue helping rebel groups in Afghanistan after the Soviet Army's withdrawal, and fully intends to support the Contras in Nicaragua when their current aid expires next month.

Bush said Thursday he preferred a peaceful reconciliation in Afghanistan but was concerned that departing Soviet forces may have stockpiled weapons for the Marxist government in Kabul.

"It would not be fair to have a tremendous amount of lethal supplies left behind and then cut off support for the resistance and thus leave an unacceptable imbalance," he said in a session with reporters in the Oval Office.

Bush's remarks came a day after Soviet troops completed their withdrawal. Their departure has caused widespread fears that a struggle for control by competing guerrilla groups could throw Afghanistan into a civil war.

"The time for recrimination is over," Bush said. "The time for bloodbaths is over and I would like to see the various factions get together and come up with recommendations that would lead to a peaceful Afghanistan with no more bloodbaths."

Turning to Nicaragua and the rebels fighting the leftist Sandinista government, Bush said: "I have every intention of seeing that these people receive humanitarian support. But how that comes about, we'll just have to wait and see."

Bush made the statement even though administration officials acknowledge that Congress has gained the upper hand on the question of giving assistance to the rebels. The current aid program expires March 31.

New questions have been raised about U.S. policy in Central America as a result of the agreement by the presidents of five Central American nations, including Nicaragua's Daniel Ortega, to a peace plan that would produce free elections by February 1990 in exchange for dismantling the Contra fighting force.

On other matters, Bush said: "—He would 'strongly oppose' any attempt to outlaw all semiautomatic weapons if that would mean outlawing all pistols and rifles that could be fired continuously by repeatedly pulling the trigger. The weapons are popular among drug gangs and one was used to kill five children in a Stockton, Calif., schoolyard last month.

—The tedious pace of making personnel appointments has him frustrated. But Bush also said that "I don't think it's hurting the government."

—He hopes his campaign for high ethical standards in government has not "created something that just carries things too far."

He expressed sympathy for Louis Sullivan, his nominee as secretary of health and human services, who gave up accumulated sabbatical pay to join the government. Bush also said that Secretary of State James A. Baker III had "made the right decision" to sell stocks in a New York bank holding company that holds Third World loans.

Episcopalians taking ad stand

BOSTON (AP) — A full-page newspaper advertisement calling on Episcopalians to take a stand against women priests gives a rallying point to people who are unhappy with changes in the church, one of the campaign's supporters says.

"We are letting people know that they do not have to go along with all this trendy stuff," said the Rev. Titus Oates, rector of Boston's All Saints Episcopal Church.

Oates is a member of the Evangelical and Catholic Mission that gave a test-run Thursday to the ad in the Boston Herald. The ad was aimed at the diocese that last week consecrated Bishop Barbara C. Harris as the first woman bishop in the Anglican Communion's 450-year history.

"Episcopalians! Do Something," read the ad, which included a litany of demands, including the mission's belief that priests should be male. The ad asks readers to sign and return to the group a "declaration of common faith and purpose," and encourages readers to attend a synod planned this June by the Fort Worth, Texas-based mission, a conservative Episcopal group.

The ad was the latest note of discord sounded since Harris was elected as bishop last September, a position that gave her entry into an apostolic succession that the church traces back to the time of Christ.

At Harris' consecration as suffragan, or assistant bishop, two men spoke against the ordination, including one who termed it sacrilege. But the congregation of about 8,000 roared its approval when asked if their will was that she be ordained.

The 58-year-old Episcopal priest from Philadelphia has generated controversy because of her gender, her lack of formal seminary degrees, her divorced status and her tenure as former publisher of the distinctly liberal Episcopal publication, The Witness.

Many church leaders saw Thursday's ad as no threat to Harris' position.

"In one sense it's good copy and is a way for them to fly their flag," said Diane Spence, director of development at the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge.

Architects of the campaign say the ads will run elsewhere in the country this spring.

Canon Brien Koehler of the Evangelical and Catholic Mission said it is unlikely the Episcopal Church will reverse its 10-year policy of allowing women into the priesthood. But he said the June synod is intended to "find a way to allow ourselves to live and breathe within the Episcopal Church. Whether the official channels of the Episcopal Church will tolerate that, I think that's really a great question right now."

Officials of the 96,000-member Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts said they had no comment on the ad.

Spokesman Jim Solheim also said Harris was aware of the ad and had no comment.

Lee Nystrom to speak at men's fellowship Saturday

The Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship meeting will be held Saturday at 7 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center.

Lee Nystrom, an "at large" international director of the FGBMFI from Minneapolis, Minn. will be the featured speaker.

Nystrom entered the world of occult through an academic interest in psychic phenomenon that led to a deep involvement with false cults and enslavement. After pursuing a deep interest in mind sciences for several years, he was led into an interest in the phenomenon of the Holy Spirit through Voice magazine.

In quest of further information, he attended a FGBMFI meeting, where he met Jesus, was subsequently baptized in the Holy Spirit and delivered. He has also been used in ministry to AIDS patients and teaching about ministering salvation and healing.

In his talks, Nystrom speaks about the dangers of the occult as well as the power of Jesus Christ. He notes that "healings, deliverance and miracles are common in and following the meetings and seminars." He has also been used in ministry to AIDS patients and teaching about ministering salvation and healing.

Know heart attack warning signals

During a heart attack, your body usually sends out warning signals that your heart is starving for oxygen. An uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of your chest for more than two minutes is one signal. Chest pain that spreads to your shoulders, neck or arms is another. Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea or shortness of breath may also occur. Sometimes the signals may subside only to return later.

Help your heart! Learn to recognize these signals and take fast action. Remember that each year 350,000 Americans die from heart attacks before reaching the hospital. So don't ignore the warning signals. Act immediately.

If you are having chest discomfort that lasts for two minutes or more, call the emergency rescue service. If you can get to a hospital faster by car, have someone drive you. Find out which hospitals in your area offer 24-hour emergency cardiac care. Select in advance the facility nearest your home and office and tell your family and friends so they will know what to do. Keep a list of emergency numbers next to your telephone and in a prominent place in your pocket, wallet or purse.

If you are with someone who is experiencing the warning signals, and if they last for two minutes or longer, insist on taking prompt action. Expect the person to deny the possibility of anything as serious as a heart attack.

Call the emergency rescue service or get to the nearest hospital emergency room with 24-hour cardiac care.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My brother is afflicted with AIDS and will probably die within the year.

I am amazed and saddened by the lack of sensitivity of some of my friends and relatives. I still hear remarks such as: "People who get AIDS deserve it. They shouldn't have been engaging in unnatural and immoral acts."

When I see my brother lying on the couch, weak and emaciated, I wish that I could take his pain away. I feel so sad and helpless because there is nothing I can do. I don't think about his sexual encounters and wonder who his partners were. I don't speculate about whether or not he was a drug addict. I only see a person I love who is suffering and my heart goes out to him.

I still hear people telling AIDS jokes. This disease is not funny. TO joke about it is cruel. Does the person telling those jokes realize that a member of his/her audience might have someone very dear who is dying from this hideous disease? AIDS is becoming so prevalent that soon everyone in this country will be related to someone who has it.

Thanks, Ann, for letting me get this off my chest.—Florida Heartache

DEAR FLORIDA: How right you are. The statistics as of Jan. 16, 1989, look like this: AIDS has produced 84,133 reported cases in the United States and 47,049 have died from it since the epidemic started in the early '80s.

As for AIDS jokes, they're an abomination. If anyone starts to tell one in my presence, I cut them dead. I urge everyone who reads this to do the same.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back you ran a wonderful column warning people to beware of the words they use. Certain phrases, you said, can discourage people and ruin relationships. For example, "Why don't you?" "Why did you?" "You shouldn't have," and "You could have."

Here are some words that can be used to make children feel good about themselves. I hope you will print them.

I knew you could do it!
You're getting better every day.
Spectacular performance.
We are so proud of you.
You are making wonderful progress.
Hooray for you. You are terrific.

Parents and teachers will get far better results if they correct and encourage children in a loving way. It takes practice. The more you use these phrases, the easier it becomes. Believe me, children are worth the time and effort. They are among the better things in life.—Mrs. Garry E. Bonebrake, Harrisburg, P.

ELECTRONIC SYSTEMS POPULAR IN SUPERMARKETS
NEW YORK (AP) — The use of electronic interactive devices in the nation's supermarkets is on the rise, according to researchers at Inter-mark Corp., a developer-producer of the units.

In a survey conducted among 129 supermarket executives at leading chain and independent stores, nearly 50 percent of the respondents said they already had some interactive systems in use. Departments where most systems were employed were grocery, spices, sauces and dressings, meat-seafood and produce.

Hershiser cashes in on Baseball Buck$ Bonanza

NEW YORK (AP) — Orel Hershiser's salary is going up as fast as his earned-run average went down.

Hershiser didn't allow a run in his final 59 innings last season. But he got almost all the numbers he wanted Thursday, when the Los Angeles Dodgers agreed to a three-year contract worth $7.9 million — breaking almost every salary record in the history of baseball.

Capping a winter of contracts that were inconceivable just four months ago, Hershiser broke the records for average annual salary, top salary in a season and biggest raise.

"This contract is historic in its nature," Los Angeles general manager Fred Claire said. "We are delighted to have Orel under contract for three more years."

— Including a prorated share of the signing bonus, Hershiser will make $2,766,667 this season, the highest salary of any player, topping the $2,466,667 of Baltimore's Cal Ripken.

— Hershiser's raise of $1,666,667 broke the record of $1,326,442 set on Feb. 1 by Toronto's Jimmy Key.

— Hershiser's average annual salary of $2,633,333 broke the record of $2.5 million set Wednesday by Boston right-hander Roger Clemens.

— Hershiser would get $3,166,667 in 1991, including a prorated share of the signing bonus, making him the first $3 million baseball player unless someone beats him to it in 1990.

"It really doesn't feel any different," Hershiser said. "Of course, we're going to be able to pay the bills very easily. It feels like it's time to go to spring training. It's been a very short offseason, what with all we've been through."

Hershiser started out demanding $10 million over four years. During a fruitless four-hour meeting on Wednesday night at Claire's home in Pasadena, Hershiser was asking $8.35 million and the Dodgers were offering $6.8 million.

But before the start of Thursday's scheduled arbitration hearing, both sides began to move, according to Los Angeles owner Peter O'Malley.

The Dodgers went up to $7.1 million, then $7.3 million, then $7.4 million.

"The higher we went and the frequency with which they turned us down was more than we figured to do the deal," O'Malley said, "but we have no second thoughts."

Especially after the way Hershiser ended last season.

He went 23-8 with a 2.26 ERA, ending the season with a record-breaking 59 consecutive scoreless innings. He then was named the Most Valuable Player of the National League playoffs and MVP of the World Series. Then he won the NL Cy Award. He has fame and fortune now, but is trying not to let it change him.

"I'm just going to try and be Orel Hershiser, the same guy I've been all along," he said. "It's going to be a challenge. I've had to learn how to say no. I'm going to work as hard as I can to be the same person."

While he tried to remain unaffected, the reaction in the baseball community was shock.

"I just picked myself up off the floor," Cincinnati Reds general manager Murray Cook said after hearing the terms. "That's a lot of money."

Last week, Dwight Gooden agreed to a three-year $6.7 million contract with the New York Mets. On Wednesday, Roger Clemens and the Boston Red Sox settled on $7.5 million for three years.

"I guess one thing does follow another," Mets senior vice president Al Harazin said. "As we've gotten into the trilogy of Gooden, Clemens, Hershiser, I don't think you have predicted where things would wind up."

Hershiser's deal was not the only last-minute negotiation. Outfielder Eric Davis and the Cincinnati Reds agreed at 1 a.m. Thursday to a one-year contract for $1.35 million. Davis, who made $929,000 in 1988, can make an additional $230,000 in incentives.

In a later than last-minute deal, Tom Browning and the Reds agreed to a one-year contract that doubles his salary. The left-hander will get $1.025 million, a raise of $582,500. Browning and the Reds had argued their cases on Wednesday before arbitrator Stephen Goldberg.

Follow through

Wendy Connally of the Hereford High School tennis team follows through after a shot during a match with Canyon High School on Thursday at Whiteface Courts. Connally and her doubles partner, Bridget Baker, easily won their match.

Rangers win Inky case

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Officials in the Texas Rangers' front office say they are ready to get on with the baseball season after winning their arbitration case with outfielder Pete Incaviglia.

"The main thing is we're relieved the whole process is over," Rangers assistant general manager Wayne Krivsky said Thursday after an arbitrator ruled Incaviglia would receive the club's offer of $475,000.

"Now we can get on with playing baseball," Krivsky added.

Incaviglia, in his first year eligible for arbitration, had been seeking $828,000 for the 1989 season. The 24-year-old power hitter batted .249 with 22 home runs and 54 runs batted in last season.

Arbitrator Thomas Roberts heard the case Wednesday in Chicago and ruled Thursday.

"The system is in place when there's an honest difference of opinion," Krivsky said. "We were glad to win this one."

Krivsky credited Fort Worth attorney John McAdams, who represented the Rangers in the hearing.

"The most credit should be given to the attorney," Krivsky said. "He does the best job of not alienating either party."

Incaviglia was not available for comment.

"We had our day in court. We gave it our best shot," said Bucky Woy, Incaviglia's agent. "As it turned out, we weren't so lucky."

But before the hearing Woy said the contractual differences could hurt beyond repair his client's relationship with the Rangers.

"When he becomes a free agent, he's not going to feel any allegiance. He's going to take off," Woy said.

Rangers general manager Tom Grieve said he thought Incaviglia would take the decision in stride.

"He's a professional and there's a job to be done. He's got to put this behind him and get on with baseball," Grieve said.

LA has magic, without Magic

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The magic is still there, even if Magic isn't.

While Magic Johnson was sidelined for the second straight game with a hamstring injury, the Los Angeles Lakers still were able to extend their spell over the Portland Trail Blazers Thursday night with a 110-101 victory. The Lakers have won five straight against Portland, including four this season.

This time, forwards James Worthy and A. C. Green were the difference.

Worthy scored 28 points and Green added 23 as the Lakers' starting front line outscored Portland's 59-31. Worthy hit 14 of 17 field goals, while Green made 17 of 21 from the foul line, including his first 15, and grabbed nine rebounds.

"Without Magic we've got to pick up the pieces," Worthy said. "Without him, we've got to be fundamentally sound. We don't have his spontaneity, so obviously we have to be basic, methodical, set picks and be more versatile offensively."

They also were deadly at the free-throw line, hitting their first 29 shots. "This was a real confidence builder for us after losing two straight," Coach Pat Riley said.

It didn't do much for the sagging Trail Blazers, who are 25-22 and struggling.

"We've got to play smart and with a purpose," Steve Johnson said. "We didn't read situations. We have done it in the past. Everyone is trying to do it himself."

Clyde Drexler scored 20 of his 26 points of the second half, including 15 in the third quarter, despite playing with what the team's trainer said was a possible broken nose.

Elsewhere, it was Chicago 117, Milwaukee 116; Golden State 143, the Los Angeles Clippers 138 in overtime; Detroit 95, Sacramento 84; Utah 129, Boston 114; and Dallas 93, Miami 80.

Bulls 117, Bucks 116
Michael Jordan, no stranger to the half-century mark, reached it for the 17th time in his career in dramatic fashion. His 20-foot shot with one second to go won the game and gave him 27 points in the final quarter.

Terry Cummings lost the ball on an inbound pass and Jordan drove the length of the court, pulled up and scored, finishing off his fifth 50-point game of the season. He tied Elgin Baylor for second place in lifetime 50-pointers, a mere 101 behind Wilt Chamberlain.

Warriors 143, Clippers 138
Golden State won it at the free-throw line. Rookie Mitch Richmond scored 27 points, including six foul shots in the final 41 seconds of overtime.

Chris Mullin scored 29 points and Terry Teagle added 23 for the Warriors.

Los Angeles was paced by Ken Norman with 30 points and 15 rebounds, rookie Charles Smith with 29 and Quintin Dailey with 25.

Norman's driving layup with 17 seconds left in the fourth quarter sent the game into overtime.

Pistons 95, Kings 84
Joe Dumars, Vinnie Johnson and Bill Laimbeer each scored 20 points as the Pistons won their seventh straight. Dennis Rodman led Detroit with 15 rebounds, while Isiah Thomas had 14 assists.

Mark Aguirre accompanied the Pistons to Sacramento but did not dress for the game since Adrian Dantley had not reported to Dallas. The Pistons obtained Aguirre Wednesday in a trade that sent Dantley and the Detroit's first-round draft choice in 1991 to the Mavericks.

Sacramento was led by Ed Pinckney with 16 point and Kenny Smith with 15.

Jazz 129, Bruins 114
Karl Malone scored 36 points, 23 in the second half, while John Stockton added 22 points and 16 assists for Utah.

Thurl Bailey came off the bench to score 21 for the Jazz.

Kevin McHale scored 26 points and Danny Ainge 25 for Boston.

Mavericks 93, Miami 80
A content James Donaldson pulled down 22 rebounds while scoring 16 points as the Mavericks won their first game following the trade of all-time leading scorer Mark Aguirre.

Aguirre was dealt to Detroit on Wednesday for Adrian Dantley.

"It's nice having everybody feeling good and pulling for each other," Donaldson said.

Kevin Edwards led the Heat with 16 points.

Louisville nips FSU in overtime

By The Associated Press

Late in the season, look out for Louisville late in the game.

The 10th-ranked Cardinals, always ready to play their best ball when it matters most, stung No. 7 Florida State 78-77 Thursday when freshman reserve Everick Sullivan made a 3-point shot with one second left in overtime.

"We've had our share of defeats at the end," Louisville coach Denny Crum said. "Maybe the law of averages is coming around for us."

Louisville, 18-5, had dropped its previous two games. The Cardinals fell to Florida State 81-78 at home 10 days ago and lost at UCLA 77-75 Sunday on a last-second goaltending call.

The victory moved Louisville back in front of the Seminoles in the Metro Conference standings at 7-1. Florida State, 19-3 overall, is 7-2 in the league.

In other games, No. 2 Arizona beat Southern California 93-70, No. 5 Illinois downed Michigan State 75-56, No. 8 North Carolina trounced Wake Forest 99-76, No. 13 Michigan defeated Purdue 84-70, No. 14 West Virginia routed Massachusetts 88-55, No. 17 Stanford defeated California 97-71 and No. 18 Nevada-Las Vegas beat San Jose State 95-66.

Florida State overcame a five-point deficit in the final 11 seconds of regulation to tie it at 69-all.

The Seminoles led 77-73 with 1:54 left in overtime, but Pevis Ellison's basket got Louisville within two points. Tony Dawson, who led the Seminoles with 21 points, then missed the front end of a 1-and-1 with eight seconds remaining.

Crum said the final play was designed for Kenny Payne, who led Louisville with 24 points and 12 rebounds. But when Payne was covered, the ball went to Sullivan.

Sullivan finished with 17 points and Ellison had 16 points and eight rebounds.

Tat Hunter had 19 points and 15 rebounds for Florida State and George McCloud scored 18 points.

No. 2 Arizona 93, Southern California 70

Anthony Cook scored 31 points on 12-for-14 shooting and had 12 rebounds as Arizona handed Southern California its 12th straight loss.

The Wildcats, 19-3, are 13-1 in the Pacific-10 Conference. Sean Elliott added 11 points for host Arizona.

Chris Moore scored 21 for Southern Cal, 7-17 and 0-12.

No. 5 Illinois 75, Michigan St. 56

Kenny Battle scored 19 points and Lowell Hamilton got 17 as Illinois won easily at Michigan State.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I want to tell you my views about sweating feet. I was in the shoe business over 50 years, including 30 years at retail, and my brother was a podiatrist. I cured or alleviated my perspiring feet by changing my shoes every day. Two pairs, wearing one pair one day and the other pair the next day, will outwear three pairs worn consecutively. I changed socks every day. It is important to wear the right size shoe. A correct fit will have more air space in the shoe and will breathe more. Shoes should be leather, but leather soles today are prohibitively high for most people and not always available in needed styles. If you wear the same pair of shoes every day, and your feet are sweaty, the shoes will not dry out overnight and that causes even more perspiring feet.

DEAR READER: Thank you for your helpful comments. I have made many of these same suggestions in Special Report 43, Your Feet and How to Care for Them, which I'm sending you. Attention to personal hygiene of the feet is essential in eliminating odors. It may be important to change socks twice a day. And it is important to wear socks that fit. Those of cotton or wool are better as they absorb the perspiration. It is wise to avoid synthetic fibers that don't breathe, as you commented, and plastic shoes should be avoided for the same reason. They trap moisture.

In spite of these measures, some people have a growth of bacteria under the surface of the skin which causes the odor. Washing the feet repeatedly and the measures you discuss will not cure the odor. The bacteria must be killed to do that.

That explains why even the best hygiene in the world sometimes doesn't solve the problem.

In these cases, a soap or preparation that will penetrate the skin surface and kill the bacteria is essential. For everyone except young children, one of the PhisoHex preparations can be used. This is a prescription item. Some soaps work better than others and these include Dial, Safeguard and Palmolive Gold. Many other soaps and cleaning agents cannot penetrate the skin.

I have discussed these measures also in the Special Report I'm sending. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/43, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

DEAR DR. LAMB: For many years I was bothered with hard stools and minor constipation. I always ate lots of salad and vegetables and drank juices. I also took a stool softener and took a small amount of Ex-Lax four or five times weekly.

Several months ago I started to have loose stools. I no longer eat much salad and take no laxatives. What is the cause of this sudden change? I am 62 years old, work a full-time job and weigh 106 pounds. I feel good most of the time.

DEAR READER: There are many reasons for a change in bowel habits, such as intolerance to certain foods, which can cause a laxative effect. But I have to tell you that one of the signs that a person may have a cancer of the colon is a sudden change in bowel habits of unknown cause. That is why you must see a doctor without delay.

When a cancer is in the first part of the colon, where the stool is still liquid or semi-solid, it increases the rapid movement of the contents out the colon. In general, if the tumor is in the last part of the colon, it may cause symptoms of obstruction. In any case you need to know what has caused the change and finding out will require a medical examination.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Prices Effective Thursday, February 16, 1989.
