Real Whitewash

A real whitewash is provided by these Hereford High School Key Club students who painted the front of the new Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Hereford office on East third Street. It is one the numerous service projects provided throughout the year by the Key clubbers who contribute work toward other non-profit and service organizations. Prior to the painting the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department hosed down the dirty walls so the paint could be

Exerciser Discovery Provides Active Life For Senior Citizen

Once you've passed the age of retirement doesn't mean you have settle down into a state inactivity with no prospect for work.

That's the philosophy of Mrs. Lorene M. Johnson of Hereford when she decided late in life to begin a new career as well as continue working. She received the inspiration several years ago to develop her Shake and Slim exerciser which is designed to remove excess fat from the midriff. Her discovery led to a patent on her special weight reducing process and one on her exerciser.

IT WASN'T AN OVERNIGHT success

though as she has to find a distributor to sell her product, locate a manufacturer to produce it and work with a lawyer on processing the patents.

"I feel like that my product is of special value to senior citizens, who may think they can no longer be active," she said. "It provides an easy means of exercise. It can even by done while sitting down."

However, the process suggests that the Shake and Slim, a barrell shaped container filled with silica material, be used while standing with both feet close together. This gives the whole body a swinging motion which gives treatment to

School Volunteer Program Needs Help From Workers

Hereford Independent School District's Volunteer Program is again soliciting participants to help out regular school personnel in routine functions of running the schools.

Currently volunteers are being requested in LaPlata and Stanton Jr. High Schools, and Shirley and Northwest Elementary Schools. Presently many requests for volunteers have been received in each of these schools and immediate help is needed.

Hereford teachers having Volunteer Program workers in their classrooms last year enthusiastically endorsed the program and told volunteer program co-ordinators Margaret Formby, Wanda

Hoover and Jo Ellen Jorde that their desire was to have all of last years volunteers back and to hopefully triple the number of volunteer hours in their

The co-ordinators of the volunteer program received equally enthusiastic reports from the school volunteers, who told of the joys of seeing a child progress due to the individual attention they were able to provide.

Volunteers help with clerical duties, in the media center and in one-to-one

The appeal for older citizens though is not to say that the exerciser is not useful to all ages of people, Mrs. Johnson explained. The original idea was to reduce the midriff, but it has proven beneficial to the whole body.

ABOUT 15 EXERCISES have been developed for the Shake and Slim, distributed nationwide by Bonfoey and Associates of Dallas. It is manufactured by Naco Plastics of Bartlesville, Okla.

She said that 27 vibrations a minute are supposed to occur to effectively reduce

The first thought for the Shake and Slim came in 1970. Her husband Howard made the first one and "he thought I was crazy, but it has worked," Mrs. Johnson

She went to Eli Silverman, a patent attorney in Amarillo, and they were able to procur two patents in about three years. One is on the process which incorporates the "Impact Phenomena" to reduce midriff fat, and the other is on the product.

HER FIRST CAREER was that of an art teacher, but retirement didn't suit her desire for activity. So now she is involved in a nationwide distribution system that is returning handsomely on her investment.

Mrs. Johnson is responsible for the Hereford area distribution. The product sells for a suggested retail price of about $10 and is available in local stores as well as through direct mail orders.

The Johnsons, who reside on a small farm north of Hereford, are happy that old age doesn't mean inactivity. Also, it pays fairly well making old age a pleasant segment of their lives.

TRC To Hear Pioneer Gas Case Tuesday; Negotiations Fail

As of Friday, a spokesman for Pioneer Natural Gas Co. in Amarillo said that the company plans to go ahead with its scheduled hearing before the Texas Railroad Commission (TRC) on Tuesday in Austin. It will be held at 9 a.m.

It was reported Friday that the School Board, County Court Slate Meetings

Two local governing bodies plan meetings Monday and Tuesday.

The Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court will meet at 10 a.m. Monday to act on a 10-item agenda. The Hereford School Board of Trustees will meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday at the central school district office building. The commissioners meet in the courthouse.

The commissioners will review bids for sheriff's car, discuss the proposed Judicial District Court Bill with Rex Easterwood, local attorney, consider a budget amendment to Criminal District. Attorney Andy Shuval's budget, discuss the need for funds for a county barn in precinct 2, approve a water line for the city of Hereford in precinct 2, review the city-county fire report, and accept requests for paying and right of ways in precinct 4. Bids for a mower, caliche needs on roads and communications equipment in precinct 4 will be discussed.

The school board will hear a presentation on the Hard of Hearing Education program from Melissa Tubb, hear resignations and elections of teachers, discuss a report on the beginning of school, consider the YMCA's use of school facilities, review a report on the Building Trades Class Project at Stanton, and finalize the schedule for the TASA-TASB Conference set for Sept. 24-27.

Also, the trustees will consider the following reports subjects: enrollment. cafeteria, transportation, tax office, MAPP Program, new teacher banquet, migrant workshop and community education.

company may not proceed with its request to present material to the state agency in support of its cost-of-gas adjustment, which is in effect for over 50 cities on Pioneer's West Texas System. It allows increased cost of gas to be passed directly through to the customer.

Dudley Bayne, city manager, confirmed Friday evening that Pioneer would probably go ahead with its hearing. Earlier, he had received information that the utility might not proceed with the special hearing since a steering committee representing several West Texas system cities had filed an intervention notice to contest the hearing.

The cities claimed the TRC had not authority to hold the hearing since no specific rate increased was involved. Also, the cities felt an obligation to defend the rights of its citizens against the Pioneer method of pricing.

The company contends that the increased cost are necessary for it to continue the current supply offered for its consumers. Dudley Bayne, Hereford city manager, and other city officials in West Texas claim it is an unfair method of pricing and "guarantees a profit" for the Late Friday Bob Mills. public relations director for Pioneer, said the company is not going to stipulate at this time that the TRC has no jurisdiction to hear the company's presentation.

Pioneer requested the hearing earlier in the summer to enable Pioneer to publicly review its cost-of-gas for its West Texas: stem, to evaluate the correctness of the company's cost-of-gas adjustment and to determine the appropriateness of the policies of the Pioneer in maintaining its gas supply.

Bayne said that he contacted Fred

Senter, Lubbock city attorney and attorney for the steering committee, and discovered that current negotiations with Pioneer had not resolved the over the scheduled hearing.

"He plans to be in Austin Monday," Bayne said. "I may have to go to Austin Tuesday to testify if I am called by Senter.

Pioneer and city representatives were busy Thursday and Friday trying to settle the matter, but Mills said no change is expected by the company before Monday. It could occur then although not

AT THE FOOTBALL game in Amarillo Thursday night, we couldn't help but notice the small group of fans on the other side. True, the Palo Duro students and some parents were on the visitors side, but it was evident that Hereford had many more adults at the game than did

Most communities, especially the smaller ones, look at their high school sports programs differently than the big city with four high schools. In cities the size of Hereford, Canyon, Dimmitt, Friona and on down the line, the school program is a source of community pride. When the football or basketball team does well, the whole community is proud and basks in the reflected glory.

This is still true today, but perhaps not as much as it was some years ago. Ours is a changing society, and young people have more choices today. The high school coach is more of a recruiter than he used to be. He has to attract the athletes to his program and sell them on a schedule of hard work, with the main reward coming from the satisfaction of knowing you have done your part as a member of a

The good coaches motivate young people and not only get them out for sports but get them to perform to the best of their ability after they put on the uniform. A number of area schools have seen a decline in sports participation, and it has been a matter of concern. Hereford has had less problems than most schools, perhaps because of the quality of the coaching staff.

The numbers were short this year, however, and as a result the sophomore football schedule was cancelled. There are many factors involved, not the least of which is encouragement from parents and friends.

"OUARTERBACKS don't win or lose football games," says Fran Tarkenton, veteran of the Minnesota Vikings. "Teams do."

We believe that's one of the great lessons to be learned from competitive team sports in school, because the same is true in the world of business. It requires teamwork to put out a newspaper, to operate a successful business, to make a company a real

A boy or girl who has learned that lesson in high school is ahead of the game. When he goes to work for a company, he thinks of himself as a member of the team working with everyone else toward the same goal. How well he backs up others to get the job done is an important measure of his

Teamwork is easier to talk about than to produce, naturally. Each person has his own likes and dislikes, personal ambitions, and his idea of the best way to get things done. Some people won't cooperate because they think they'll be taken advantage of and wind up doing more than their share. Others are concerned about who will get the credit.

Panthers Zip Past Notre Dame, 31-10

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Inc. (AP)-Ninth-ranked Pittsburgh turned a pair of interceptions into quick second-period touchdowns and Tony Dorsett tormented Nortre Dame again by rushing for 181 yards as the Panthers rolled to a 31-10 victory Saturday, handing the Irish their first openinggame loss in 13 years.

Pitt quarterback Robert Haygood scored twice on one-year dives just two minutes, 11 seconds apart early in the second quarter after Notre Dame's Rick Slager had passes intercepted by LeRoy Felder and Jeff Delaney in Irish territory.

Meanwhile, a swarming Pitt defense led by tackle Randy Holloway stiffened after Notre Dame stormed 86 yards on 11 plays following the opening kickoff.

Slager, who completed all three passes on the drive for 52 yards, threw 25 yards to tight end Ken MacAfee, giving Notre Dame a 7-0 lead with less than five minutes gone.

However, Dorsett, who stunned Notre Dame with a record 209 yards as a freshman in 1973 and eclipsed that with 303 a year ago, quickly swung the momentum to Pitt.

On the Panthers' first play from scrimmage, he burst through the right side for a 61-yard gallop to the Irish 23. Five plays later, he tied the score 7-7 with a five-yard dash around right end.

In four games against Notre Dame, Dorsett has rushed for a record 754 yards on 96 carries.

Let's Talk

The Hereford-Palo Duro football game was one of the hardest hitting affairs this reporter has seen in quite a while. It was almost unbelievable how high the Dons were for the game.

Judging from the pep rally held at HHS Thursday afternoon, the spirits in Whiteface territory were at a peak; a level no doubt increased by the 20-12 conquest of Pampa one week earlier.

Still, the super charged Dons took it to the Herd. The nine turnovers by Hereford made the contest in reality no contest . . . the Whitefaces just didn't give themselves a chance.

The beating didn't take place on the scoreboard alone; several times during the game Hereford players had to retire to the sideline to receive medical aid.

A report from head coach Fred Upshaw Friday morning revealed that Herd guard Jim Fish will be out of commission for about three weeks with a bum knee. Tackle Barry Acton will also sit out a few days as a precaution as a result of a severe knock on the head against the Dens.

Quarterback Kelly Kitchens was also shaken up by a hard hit, but Upshaw expects the junior signal caller to be ready by game time next week.

Guard Wade Ohlig, who injured a knee against Tascosa in a scrimmage, missed his second game of the season Thursday, and he indicated that possible surgery on the knee may be necessary down the line.

An extra day afforded by the Thursday game this week will give the players, and coaches, plenty of time to make adjustments before they travel started. to Borger to meet the Bulldogs this Friday.

Judging from the character of the players and coaches, it would be safe to assume that a comeback is in order in Borger on the 17th, knock on wood.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers and Seattle Seahawks are pitted against the Houston Oilers and St. Louis Cardinals respectively this week as they try to be the first NFL expansion teams since Minnesota in 1961 to win their regular season openers.

The Vikings are all alone on that plateau, having zipped to a 37-13 win over the Chicago Bears in their first pro outing. RAN

Los Angeles Dodger catcher Steve Yeager may just have earned the nickname of 'Leatherneck' last Monday night after he was speared in the neck by the jagged end of a broken bat during the Dodgers' game against the San Diego Padres.

Yeager was said to be "very lucky to be alive" by a hospital spokesman following the incident. The Padres' team physician spent an hour removing splinters from Yeag-er's neck after the accident.

Dr. Paul Bauer, the attending physician, said later that the wood splinters just missed a nerve that controls feeling in the hands and arms, as well as narrowly missing a major-artery and his windpipe.

Still, the Dodger catcher retained a bit of humor through the incident saying, "Suddenly I'm in favor of aluminum bats.' RAN

The Dallas Cowboys are at it again. For the second year in a row a large number of rookies made the Cowboy team. The combination of 10 rookies this year with the 12 the Cowboys had last year leaves Dallas with more than half the squad with less than three years of pro experience.

Even coach Tom Landry was surprised at the large number of rookies that made the squad, but he feels that his club will still challenge for the NFL crown

Miss Evert's surprisingly one-sided victory, following triumphs over her Australian opponent in the 1975 Open here as well Wilbledon, hoisted her onto the pinnacle once shared by such tennis greats as Helen Wills Moody, Maureen Connelly and Billie Jean King.

The women's match, last of a straight-set series in the center another capacity crowd of 16,244. Unlike their previous meetings here and at Wimbledon, the Evert-Goolagong rerun was quick and merciful. The graceful Australian, with rare natural talent and a rich repetire of shots, was no match for the icy, computer-like stroke-making Miss Evert from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

After a shaky start, in wheih she lost two straight games and won only one point, Chris rallied to take 10 games in a row in the 55-minute match. While she played well, Miss Goolagong practically donated her points with loose, effortless play.

She was uninspired. Connors played perhaps the finest tennis of his career in smashing Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 6-4, 6-2, 6-1. Borg examine it. was almost as devastating in wiping out Nastase 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

In his match against Borg. Nastase was so proper the crowd sat in disbelief. The single controversial gesture of the match came not from Nastase but from the normally stoical, undemonstrative Borg.

On the first point of the eight game in the second set, shortly after he had scored a second service break for a 4-3 lead, Borg hit a smash that struck close to chalk sideline.

The linesman, Pat Riley of North Little Rock, Ark., promptly yelled, "Out!"

Borg, without saying a word, strode to the other side of the court and examined the spot where he thought the ball hit. He asked the linesman to

The linesman insisted he had made the right call. The umpire, Dendy Mackie of Eugene, Ore., questioned him. The umpire asked for an opinion from the linesman on the other end of the court, This one, John Colen of Tacoma, Wash., motioned that he thought the ball was good. It

Shipman, who riddled the Gobblers with an effective screen pass, scored on a one-yard run in the second quarter to give the Aggies a 7-0 half-time lead.

Woodard helped set up the touchdown when he turned the screen pass play into a 43-yard gain to the Tech 27-yard line. The Aggies, who missed two other scoring chances in the second quarter, put together their second scoring drive on the first series of the third quarter with Woodard getting the final two yards by breaking two tackles to rush into the end

Shipman hit key passes of 20 and 10 yards to halfback Adger Armstrong to set up the touchdown.

The Aggies tacked on their final score with three minutes left to play when Woodard got his second touchdown, a ten-yard run that came on the first play after Aggie defensive end Bill Bennett recovered a

Virginia Tech fumble. Woodard then missed a try for the two-point conversion. Woodard accounted for 175 yards of the Aggies' total offense, getting 111 yards rushing and 64 yards from three pass receptions in the Aggies' season opener.

Virginia Tech is now 1-1 for the season.

The key play in the Aggies' second quarter touchdown drive was the 43-yard pass from Shipman to Woodard.

Woodard snagged the screen pass, but had to run back inside to get behind his blockers. He then broke through the screen and had an opening for the goal, but tripped up and landed

The Aggies missed two scoring chances in the second quarter that could have given them a comfortable lead.

Women Try Cross Country

For the first time crosscountry track competition for women is being offered in Texas on the intercollegiate level. Training Texas Tech University's team will be track coach Kay Shelton.

Cross-country team members have already begun training for their season this fall. Other track members will begin a general conditioning program under Coach Shelton's supervision for the spring season.

Presently, three girls have been awarded track scholarships: Diane Parson of Lubbock, specializing in the long jump; June Butler of Llano, all around athlete; and Jan Osborn of Sunray, middle distances. One scholarship is still available and will probably be awarded after try outs, according to Coach Shelton. Anyone interested can contact her.

There are potentially 20 athletes "on the books" now, she estimated, with a comparable number on campus but presently unidentified.

Texas Tech will probably compete against such schools as Texas Wesleyan University, the University of Texas, West Texas State, Abilene Christian, Southwest Texas State, and others.

"I cannot speak for the other colleges," said Coach Shelton, "but I know there are a lot of athletes on campus who want to participate in track, and with their desire and my desire and both of us working together I think we will come out very well.

Coach Shelton received a bachelor's degree in physical education from Texas Tech in 1970 and a master's in 1971 from the University of Southern California. While at Texas Tech she ran on the school's first track team, which placed second in national competition.

Last year she served as instructor of physical education classes at Texas Tech.

Platforms Nil?

It is interesting to read two of our exchange papers--The Tulia Herald and The Canyon News-just to see if editors H.M. Baggarly and Troy Martin, respectively, are blasting each other's political views again.

Martin recently wrote that Baggarly would vote for Satan if he headed the Democratic ticket, even if Jesus Christ topped the Republican ballot! That didn't bother Baggarly one bit. He answered in his next issue that Martin was probably correct.

Some Democrats have been concerned about the Democratic platform, but Baggarly has the answer to the dilema in this week's Herald. He writes:

"A party platform is nothing more than a tongue-in-cheedk document disigned to pacify a hundred special-interest groups who take advantage of a party convention, or perhaps, a party primary, to speak their piece and make their

"The platform is a common denominator used to acquire party unity, or at least enough of a party's support to gain the nomination. As mentioned on many occasions, getting the nomination is the result of getting the support of enough special interest groups to form a majority. So is election.

"Realism recognizes a platform for just what it is -- a toothless tiger that will be forgotten as soon as the campaign is over. Only time a campaign plank is ever mentioned after the convention is when the opposition uses it to wave in front of opponents of the plank with the hope of influencing a vote.

"Secondly, in most instances it matters little whether the elected official attempts to implement the plank or not. In most instances he lacks the power to implement it even if he has the desire. Platform planks are much like a candidate's promise to deliver 'integrity' and 'economy'.

Baggarly claims that both parties find themselves in the same position this year so far as their platforms are concerned. "Both platforms are extremist...the Republican party platform is to the right of goldwater's platform in 1964, and the Democratic platform is quite liberal."

He concluded: "Both platforms will be ignored and forgotten, now that they have accomplished their purpose, long before January, regardless of which party wins the election. The real issues in the forthcoming campaigns are much more important than the party platforms."

Soviets use student power in Third World

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The headlines point to the striking Soviet military buildup, and to the energetic supply of Russian arms — as in Libya, Iraq and Angola — to governments and revolutionary factions favored by the Kremlin. Virtually unreported is the sharp rise in the numbers of Russian and Communist technicians sent to underdeveloped coun-

Even more significant is that growing numbers of young men and women from foreign lands the Russians and Red Chinese have trained in their technical schools and universities these past 20 years are now, through seniority, moving into positions of influence in their home countries. This is particularly noticeable in wide sections of Africa.

In the past two decades, 72,000 students from underdeveloped nations have been trained in Russia, East Europe and Communist China at a cost of but $70 million a year. Their current foreign student population is approximately 27,000, two-thirds in the USSR.

More than half these 27,000 are from Africa. There are, for example, 1,750 from Algeria, 1,140 from Nigeria, 1,575 from the Sudan, 920 from Ethiopia, 885 from the Congo, 600 from Somalia, 585 from Mali, 655 from Tanzania, 415 from Sierra Leone, 425 from the Malagasy Republic and 525 from Zaire. There are also 1,100 from Bangladesh, 1,000 from Cyprus,

The sources of students sent to Communist countries from Latin America are Colombia with 460, Ecuador with 385, Costa Rica with 320, Bolivia with 240 and Peru with 190.

The Soviet Union also has roughly 8,000 military technicians in Africa, the Near East and South Asia, despite the worsening of relations with Egypt. China has more than 1,000 in Africa, almost all in Tanzania economic technicians by 15 per cent last year alone. In its military assistance, the Soviet Union seems to be striking at targets of opportunity — as in its assistance to one clique in Angola, its strong aid to Syria and its hefty shipments to Libya, which that country regularly uses for the training and supply of dissident groups in a range of countries. The university training effort over the long run, however, is likely to be the most productive for Moscow. Though the Russian caste system and race prejudice have embittered many African and Asian students, the concentrated training in Marxist approaches to economic and political matters will most certainly lead, in the long run, to even rougher times for democracy and free enterprise in those African and South Asian countries to which these Communist-educated students return, as they gain in authority in their home governments.

Talk of Texas

By Jack Maquire

DAY TO REMEMBER - September 16 isn't a legal holiday in Texas. However, thousands of Texans from The Rio Grande to the Red River will observe it with everything from small family picnics to large public hearings.

"Diez y Seis de Septiembre" is Mexico's July 4. It celebrates the "Grito" or cry of liberty given by Father Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla in the little town of Guanajuato in 1810. This event launched Mexico's fight for independence from Spain.

In Texas the 16th of September is often celebrated by the ringing of church bells and patriotic orations. These usually end with the reading of Hidalgo's "Grito." Pictures of the padre are much in evidence this day and dignitaries lay floral wreaths before the statues of the freedom fighter which bound throughout much of the state.

It's appropriate that Texas join Mexico in the celebration. Hidalgo was bound for Texas when Spanish troops captured him. And it was in Texas that his followers established the first Mexican republic in 1813.

TEXAS FIRST- Dr. George Cupples, who practiced surgery in San Antonio from 1844 to 1895, was the first physician to use ether as an anesthetic in Texas. Later he also became the first to use chloroform.

He also is credited with being the first surgeon in the U.S. to perform a surgical resection on the tongue for the removal of a cancer.

On July 1, 1888, having just arrived in Henrietta after a train trip from Fort Worth, he vented his feelings about Texas in this letter to his wife:

"The mosquitoes like to have eaten me up--there is not a square inch of my body that is not bitten.

"Oh, oh, oh how hot it is here. I have sweat and sweat my clothes full. I can fairly smell myself. I am dirty and look like the devil and smell worse.

"This is a miserable little frontier town with a little hen coop of a hotel. I am nearly starved to death- this Texas grub is something frightful. I fully agree with Phil Sheridan: 'If I owned Texas and Hell, I would rent out Texas and live in Hell."

YOU MIGHT LIKE TO KNOW- If you're traveling Texas, the best way to get where you're going is by automobile.

Of the 311 communities of more than 1,000 population in the state, only 35 are served by airlines and only 19 by railroad passenger trains. Inter-city busses serve 272 of these towns but 39 have no public passenger transportation of any kind.

Freight is another matter. Only two of the 311 communities have neither truck lines, railroads or busses serving them. In fact, 287 of these towns have two or more truck lines and 243, still have railroad freight

Tragedy is a fact of life. It only hurts more when it actually happens in ones own back

That was the situation in Hereford this summer starting with the houses that were burned needlessly by thieves, and continuing with several tragic wrecks and finally with the brutal rape of a local woman last week.

Smaller town residents often think such acts of violence happen only in the big cities where masses of people try to survive the daily hazards of traffic, smog and crime. That last problem though hit Hereford this summer like a ton of bricks leaving a town shocked at the

I live close to where one of these tragedies happened and it has been on my mind a lot this week. How could it happen here?

It can occur here just as easily as anywhere. Where ever people are found, so will there be maniacs running loose to cause trouble. No solutions exist for these incidents except prayer. No advance warning ever accompanies murders, rapes, fires and thefts. Life must naturally continue in as much as normal fashion as possible even though the pitfalls exist. It is part of the responsibility presented us when we were created. I guess we can find comfort in the fact that no all tragedies are as bad as others. For instance, the school bus which flipped over this week contained no students. As one police officer said on the scene, "If there had been any kids on board, we would have had some fatalities.'

For each tragedy that occurs, we must try that much harder to get on with each other and look out for each others safety. It's our world and we must make out of it what we Utilities have been in the news again this week. Topping off the stories has been Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's request for a state wide rate increase. That will be heard before the Public Utilities Commission later.

The other story is that old soap opera involving Pioneer Natural Gas and its cost-of-gas adjustment. The firm has -! requested a hearing before the Texas Railroad Commission to justify it and doubt exists as to whether it will be held next Tuesday.

Anyway, minus the electric companies, every where you turn some utility is trying to get an increase from already over-burdened consumers. Government has the authority to control where it feels like, but no relief seems to be forthcoming.

Everyone has to make money, but the average wage earner needs a break for once. Where it will be, I don't know

No employer is ever going to be able to keep up with the fast rising prices put upon our modern society. It seems that Americans enjoy the highest standard of living in the world and now the cost of it is catching up with us. We demand it and someone is going to see to what limit we're willing to pay for it.

I've reached my limit and maybe a good canvas tent and a few hot dogs over an open campfire is the relief and solution possible.

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Bootleg Corner discusses the energy problem this week, we suppose.

Dear editor:

According to an article I read in a newspaper last night, the government is going to build the biggest windmill in the history of mankind, with blades spanning 200 feet on a tower 140 feet high, to see how much electricity we can get from the wind. It'll cost 7 million dollars and, if the wind doesn't die too often, is supposed to generate enough electricity of 500

I have given this considerable thought and have run into a few stumbling blocks. For instance, the interest on 7 million dollars at 7 per cent is $490,000 a year, which comes to $980 per home if the windmill supplies 500, before any charge for electricity is added on. Whatever your electric bill is now, just add that on to the $980. This of course does not include incidental maintenance costs for the rig, such as axle grease to keep the giant mill from squeaking and thus avoiding a noise-pollution lawsuit by the environmentalists. And also it doesn't allow anything for the repayment of the 7 million dollars, although with government loans that's sometimes not necessary.

But I was just thinking, the average windmill with an 8-foot blade span like ranchers use to pump water costs about $1,000. I don't know how much electricity one would generate, but say you tripled its size. That ought to produce enough electricity for one home, if you live in a windy part of the country. So say one electricitygenerating windmill per home cost $3,000. For 7 million dollars you could get 2,300 such windmills, taking care of 2,300 homes, as against 500 the government's plan anticipates, assuming the occupants don't keep their TV sets on over 14 hours a day. Anything beyond that seems foolish.

So let's say the wind is the answer to the energy problem. Right now I want to announce that I have filed a claim in Washington for sole ownership of all the wind that blows in this country. The company will be known as General Wind, Incorporated, and while I have no notion a meter can be developed to measure the amount of wind blowing through a windmill's blades, there certainly is one you can put on the other side to measure the amount of electricity coming out.

Stock in this company will be limited to people you have wellestablished reputations as blowhards. The board of directors will consist mostly of Congressmen.

Yours faithfully, tration, Health, Education and Welfare, Consumer Protection Agency and dozens of other bureaus.

"Those are the people that are running the government and slowly but surely strangling individual liberties, individual and business initiative, and personal and corporate "And it's all done under the guise of being helpful! They're helping us down a one-way street to a controlled, socialistic society dominated and dictated to by a handful of entrenched bureaucrats who supposedly know what's best for all of us.

"Congress or the administration created these monsters yet neither the Democrat-controlled Congress nor the Republican presidents have been able to cope, restrict, refine, or negate the rules and regulations that flow from these agencies like hot lava from an erupting volcano—and like lava, it is all consuming, all-powerful, all-sweeping and nothing can stand against it.

"We've got more federal government than we want, need, or can pay for.

Busing is only one example

Practically everyone agrees that the regulations of OSHA are unnecessary, unwanted, unwarranted, and ridiculous. Yet does the Congress vote to limit their power or restrict their scope of activity? Nope!

"HUD reaches into our local schools and dictates that over half the meals served in the cafeteria shall be given away free. Does the Democrat-controlled Congress try to correct the situation? Nope!

The EFA concerns itself with air bags, seat belts, buzzers, bells, the air we breathe, the streams that flow, the prairie dogs we feed. Even with millions of complaints from citizens, does Congress move to limit the agency? Nope!

"Congressmen and senators, administrators and agency heads go back to the people each election year and like Jimmy Carter, run on a ticket of denouncing Congress, the administration, the Supreme Court, and Washington in general.

In Prison 'Brain Trust'

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (AP)-Tom Matthews plans to graduate No. 1 in his class at Stephen F. Austin State University in December.

Matthews has never set foot on the campus.

He is serving a life term in prison for murder.

Tom and two other prisoners at the Coffield United prison farm make up a "brain trust" that draws on each member of the trio. They attend off-campus courses at the farm.

The other two are Anthony Gnagi and Dietrich Schoennagel. Gnagi is on a 75-year term for rape; Schoennagel is under a 40-year sentence for murder.

"Convicts seem to have a highly developed capacity to assess an individual's strengths and weaknesses. For this reason you have to know what you are talking about because you can't con a con," said Steve Smith, associate professor of political science.

Gnagi graduated last spring with a 3.35 average and received a Bachelor of Applied Arts and Science Degree. Schoennagel has a 3.21 average and also is due to graduate in December. He is a German history buff and has more than fifty books on the Third Reich.

Matthews said, "The 'brain trust" is good because we can cover for one another if one of us misses class for some reason."

Matthews once missed classes for two weeks because he was placed in solitary confinement for studying on the job.

The prisoners must work 40 hours a week in the prison in addition to attending classes. Matthews is an X-ray technician for the prison. Gnagi is an accountant and Schoennagel a

Americans Minding Their Own Business

I went as a war correspondent with Eisenhower forces into Lebanon in 1958. Those were the days when Americans imagined that we could remodel the world in our own image. Now Lebanon is engaged in another civil war. Americans are moving out, not in. That is Figuratively, Lebanon is two countries divided by a green line. Christian on one side. Moslem on the other.

For 16 months now Lebanese have been killing Lebanese in the same of religion.

Actually, this nation, smaller than Connecticut, is home for 17 sects.

The volatility of the people of this area has preserved a "state of turbulence" for generations.

Presently, the contention involves the Christian demand that Palestinian camps be relocated outside Lebanon-- but when that issue has been resolved there will be another.

The 400.000 Palestinians living in Lebanon have gained much political power by allying themselves with anybody, including Communists.

The Christians consider this a direct threat to the Westernoriented capitalism which they so painstakingly established and which, until this shootout, had prospered Lebanon beyond any other Mideast nation.

As is, in that war-torn country, the several factions control scattered fractions of the

ADVERTISING: PRO AND CON

Richard L. Lesher

Item: According to Rep. Frederick W. Richmond (D-N.Y.), "demand is artificially created through advertising which is tax deductible, and so comes out of the consumer's Congressman Richmond (and various consumerists and economists) believe advertising can add unnecessarily to consumer prices.

Item: Ralph Nader says, "I'd move decisively on getting rid of State regulations-those that prohibit pharmacies from advertising prescription prices, for example, and those that prohibit opticians from advertising eyeglass prices. Barriers of that kind are put up by businesses that want to protect themselves from competition."

Ralph Nader, the Federal Trade Commission, and various consumerists and economists believe advertising can promote competition and hold down prices.

Goodness gracious, what's a body to think? Does advertising increase prices or restrain them? And why can't the "consumerists" agree with one another on the point?

To an economist of the neoclassical school-one who believes in the aggregate infallibility of the free market—the question is easily settled: In the absence of coercion, businesses would not continue to spend significant sums of money on a practice with no economic utility.

In other words, businesses advertise because they have found it helps them earn a profit, and the urge to earn a buck is what keeps them in business.

What about the argument that advertising "makes" us want things we don't really need? I've always thought that people who subscribe to this view have a very contemptuous opinion of the mental abilities of their fellow human beings.

I don't think advertising creates new cravings in us-at least not in any basic way. It can, and does, play on existing needs and emotions. But then so does entertainment, or art, or music. In this sense. advertising can make us aware of a greater variety of ways to satisfy our differing tastes.

Advertising can also enlarge the market for a product, which permits larger production runs, which brings down unit cost.

There are two other criticisms of advertising which are much more sophisticated than the "consumersare-innocent-sheep"-line of reasoning.

The first is that advertising creates barriers to the I entry of new firms—at least in industries where heavy of sumer advertising campaigns are the norm. A new chillenger, so the argument goes, cannot raise the millions of dollars necessary to compete with the ad budgets of the established giants.

The Panhandle's hopes for developing Alibates National Monument into a first-rate educational and tourist attraction may be realized next year, officials of the Amarillo Board of Convention and Visitors Activi-

"Thousands of Panhandle citizens backed the BCVA's campaign for action on Alibates," Aaron said, "and because of that support, the federal government is now giving the national monument the attention it deserves."

Alibates National Monument. located on the south shore of Lake Meredith, was created in 1965 to preserve one of the oldest archeological sites in North America-- a cluster of prehistoric flint quarries dating from the Ice Ages. Since its creation, however, the monument has been largely

Because of the several recent events, plans for making. Alibates more accessible to the public have advanced significantly, Aaron said. The developments he reported are as follows:

Bill got started on his goose farm by bringing crippled geese back from hunting trips, nursing them to health and then keeping them for breeding purposes. Some of the geese on his pond can fly, but most can't because he's clipped their wings.

Intelligence At Work During World War II

A MAN CALLED INTREPID. be impeached for exercising too By William Stevenson. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. 471 pages. $12.95.

During the early days of World War II before Pearl Harisolationist Americans to accuse President Franklin D. Roosevelt of trying to push the United States into the conflict on the side of Britain. According to this account of those times, F.D.R.'s critics were pretty close to the mark.

The hero of this lengthy work is Sir William Stephenson - no relation to author Stevenson a Canadian millionaire industrialist who became director of the combined British intelligence services. Using the code name Intrepid, he served in the dark early days as Winston Churchill's emissary to try to bring Roosevelt in as an active a role in support of Britain while the United States was still neutral, Roosevelt took the risks anyway. On one occasion he was quoted as wondering aloud if the American people could demand his removal from office for condoning a breach of the Neutrality Act in May 1941 by helping the British Navy hunt down and sink the battleship Bismarck, pride of Hitler's war fleet.

Stephenson apparently did not have to try very hard. From the start, F.D.R. was sympathetic to the British cause, as has been revealed in the rash of "now it can be che told" books that have emerged following the recent easing of Britain's Official Secrets Act.

Stevenson's book gets bogged down in endless small details showing the development of combined British-American intelligence and the problems that arose. But there are fascinating accounts as well, a few of them unsettling.

When Britain broke the German master code by duplicating the Nazis' complex cipher machine, she found herself in the position of having to let Coventry be bombed even though she knew of the raid in advance, lest the Germans realize their code had been broken. Stevenson says the British also knew the Germans were going to shoot down an unarmed plane in which Leslie Howard was riding.

While all segments of the Company reported profits, Prochemco president, S.M. Current feeder and fed cattle prices are causing losses for cattle feeders.

Spangler said that Murray-Carver, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Prochemco, has consummated the purchase of the business of Murray-Carver, the world's leading supplier of machinery and equipment for the cottonseed processing industry. The company has the famous "Carver" line, the standard throughout the world in machinery for delinting and de-cordicating oil seed, and the

President Ford Samples Vail's Gourmet Food

By TOM HOGE AP Newsfeatures Writer

When President Ford makes his annual pilgrimage to Vail, Colo., he not only spends a lot of time on the ski slopes but also goes in for some pretty fancy gourmet meals in this region nestled in the Rocky Mountains.

Vail is one of the most cosmopolitan towns in the American West, boasting more than 70 different restaurants and nightclubs and the President has apparently taken a broad sampling of the local cuisine.

Vail restaurants go in heavily for game dishes, such as roast elk, filet of ante son stroganoff. One of the President's favorites, we are told, is elk; especially elk steaks more than an inch thick that have been well marinated in a mixture of red wine, soy sauce and olive oil, then grilled over hot coals after being sprinkled with salt, pepper and garlic.

AUSTIN---Will we meet Texas' future water needs or will we wake up some morning in the not too distant future and see in the headlines that a water crisis has replaced today's energy shortage?

That could happen unless we in Texas today realize where Texas is heading in relation to where our water supplies are going.

Today we have 12.3 million population in the state. Estimates are that there will be 30.5 million of us by the year 2030 and our major metropolitan areas are expected to double in population in the next 20 years.

Where we are using 1.9 million acre feet for municipal purposes today, in 2030 we will need 7.8 million acre feet. Industrial usage in the same period will go from 1.7 million acre feet to 5.8 million acre feet. We are presently using about 14 million acre feet for agriculture and we might be able to use five times that much for maximum production through a steady climb during the next 50 years. We haven't even considered the amount needed for energy re-

If we don't make some substantial moves today, then it is evident that down the road present plans would provide only enough water to take care of municipal and industrial needs over the next 50 years.

State government is moving to meet this anticipated shortfall. Public input is being invited on revising the Texas Water Plan. Through a series of 20 meetings, the Water Development Board will be seeking a number of answers.

What we want to determine is the water needs of each basin in the state, identify available supplies of water, determine alternative ways to meet supply gaps, and evaluate these alternatives for economic and environmental effects.

These public forums begin Sept. 10 in Houston and conclude Oct. 30 in Waco. At the completion of these forums, every area of the state will have been given the chance to provide information that will be helpful in making some very major decisions on our water

The future of Texas is tied to the amount of water we possess. Without adequate and ample supplies the growth we have experienced over the last 25 years would have never hap-

Dole Prompted GOP Ticket At State Party Convention

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Sen. Bob Dole, Republican vicepresidential nominee, promoted the national GOP ticket Saturday before an audience containing many Republicans who still ache from Ronald Reagan's defeat in Kansas City.

He was scheduled to address the State Republican Convention, in which Reaganites sought desperately to hang on to the power they gained from delegates elected in the presidential primary.

Dole arrived in Texas Friday and said repeatedly he was optimistic that he and President Ford would carry the state in November.

By the time he reached a $500-a-person reception Friday evening, "optimism" had given way to "confidence."

About 50 persons attended the fund-raising reception in a private club atop a golden glass bank tower, about half the number originally projected.

"Our chances in Texas are looking better every day," he told reporters at the Austin airport that afternoon.

Dole and his wife were met at the airport by former Goy. John Connally, chairman of the Ford-Dole campaign in Texas. Mrs. Connally presented a bouquet of yellow roses to Mrs. the traveling newspeople roar-

"We are confident of winning Texas. We are confident of winning a number of states in the South," he told the reception.

Later, the Kansan taped a "Capital Eye" news panel show and sought to rebut critism by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, a campaign leader for Democrat Jimmy Carter, that the federal debt had ballooned under Republican presidents since 1968.

We are still reaping the whirlwind of the seeds sown in the Vietnam War." Dole said of the deficit.

He said Carter "doesn't have a sense of humor . . . He is working on one . . . If we can't make fun of ourselves and try to relax people in the proper way, we are missing something."

A member of the news corps traveling with Dole and watching the taping session on a television monitor in another room immediately launched into a parody- "There was this bear, who went into a bar -"

"In Texas," added another. A moment later, panel host Winston Bode asked Dole for an example of his repertory of LAHORE, Pakistan (AP) -Police ended a 21-hour waiting game early Saturday and stormed a hijacked Indian Airlines jet at Lahore airport, capturing six skyjackers and freeing seven crew members who had been held hostage. Foreign Ministry officials said.

The 71 passengers aboard the twin-engine Boeing 737, commandeered while on a domestic flight over India, had been released earlier.

There were no injuries reported among the passengers and crew. But it was not learned immediately whether any of the hijackers or police were hurt.

Pakistani officials refused to discuss the details of the commando-style raid or give the nationalities or other description of the hijackers. But sources in New Delhi said all of them were Asians, and the pilot told reporters the gang's leader spoke Urdu, a principal language on the Indian

The pilot, V.N. Reddy, said the hijackers first demanded to be taken to Libya but then changed their destination to Lahore when he told them his fuel supply was too limited. Government officials here would not divulge the demands made by the hijackers during subsequent negotiations. The Pakistani Foreign Ministry scheduled a briefing for later today.

According to officials of the two governments, the hijackers took over the plane at pistol point shortly after it left New Delhi's Palam International Airport on a flight for Jaipur at 7 a.m. local time Friday 9:30 p.m. EDT Thursday.

Reddy said he was "hustled into the bathroom of the plane after having touched the control panel of the cockpit, despite the hijackers' orders not to touch the controls."

The copilot, a Capt. Yadav, told reporters the hijackers then turned to him and one hit him on the back of the head with a pistol butt, threatening "to shoot me if I did not follow his instructions."

He said two of the hijackers carried hand grenades. Sources here said they also had rifles.

The hijackers ordered Yadav to circle low over this city, 250 miles northwest of New Delhi, so they could verify it was Lahore. Then they landed.

Briscoe Named Head Of Carter Committee

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)- Jimmy Carter's campaign headquarters announced Friday that Gov. Dolph Briscoe has been named chairman of the Texas Presidential Steering Committee for Carter.

National campaign director Hamilton Jordan appointed Briscoe a headquarters statement said.

"I intend to campaign across the state for this ticket," the statement quoted Briscoe as saying. "The people of Texas are looking for new and vigorous leadership in Washington, and Jimmy Carter is who they are looking for."

The state quoted Carter as saying "I have known Dolph Briscoe for several years, and I have great respect for his administrative and leadership abilities. I welcome his strong and active support."
Former Gov. John Connally, who heads President's Ford campaign in Texas, earlier expressed the hope Briscoe, his close friend, would not support Carter vigorously.

Flash Flood Kills Four

OCOTILLO, Calif. (AP) - A flash flood unleashed by Tropical Storm Kathleen as it tore through the Southwest sent a four-foot-high wall of water surging through this tiny desert town and the surrounding area.

Richard L. Lesher President

For all of you who have wondered whatever happened to Dick and Jane since last encountered in your first-grade reader: They are alive and well and editing pamphlets for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

In evidence, I quote from the first two paragraphs of an OSHA booklet entitled "Safety With Beef

"The best way to not have an accident is to prevent it. Be careful around the farm. You can keep an accident from happening by following safety rules."

"Hazards are one of the main causes of accidents. A hazard is anything that is dangerous." Some other gems from the same booklet:

"Don't get too tired. You can get too tired when working with cattle."

"Watch your step. Many people trip over animals "Be patient, talk softly around the cows." (And carry a big stick?) "When you are hauling cattle, do not put too many in the truck." "When you are working around wastes . . . you need plenty of fresh air.' "Be careful that you do not fall into the manure

This sage advice-written at the reading level of your average cow-is part of a series of pamphlets that will cost the taxpayers about $500,000, so OSHA is having the last laugh after all.

W hile OSHA demonstrates a firm grasp of the obvious, the Internal Revenue Service is having the opposite trouble. In a random test, IRS taxpayer assistance personnel answered typical taxpayer questions incorrectly one out of four times, according to Rep. Charles A. Vanik (D-Ohio). The staff of his Ways and Means Oversight subcommittee conducted the survey. In all, they asked 124 questions and got

And that's comparatively good. An internal IRS survey conducted last year turned up an error rate of 72 percent.

B ut IRS, too, has the last laugh. If you make an error on your tax return, it's your responsibility. And if incorrect IRS advice causes you to make the error, it's still your responsibility. Heads they win, tails you lose. Maybe the answer is to crossbreed the people who write IRS forms with the people who write OSHA pamphlets.

Meanwhile, the Environmental Protection Agency has discovered-at a cost of only $4.2 million-that poorly tuned engines generate more pollution than properly tuned engines, something that any good mechanic could have told them for free.

Speaking of pollution, EPA still provides subsidized parking for its employees, as do many other federal agencies. It's a practice EPA does not recommend for other employers. Too many cars in the center of town cause pollution.

And speaking of disapproved practices, the U.S. Customs Service recently nabbed an expensive foreign car that a government official was trying to smuggle into the country. Seems it didn't meet emission and safety standards. Guess which agency the official works for?

Not to be outdone, that other diligent guardian of our safety (if not our sanity), the Consumer Product Safety Commission, is still laboring away trying to write a standard that will prevent matches from burning your fingers (or much of anything else). But not to worry: It took three years to produce its first standard, dealing with swimming pool slides.

That's enough for now, folks. Keep smiling through your tears. And until we meet again, try hard not to fall into those manure pits.

One last adventure Lee Marvin: dreaming of a wild frontier HOLLYWOOD - (NEA) -Every trade has its good points and its bad points. In my trade one of the baddest points is that you have to interview people you sometimes don't like Lee Marvin used to be a decidedly tough interview. It wasn't that he was unpleasant. It was just that he was usually uptight and defiant as though he were saying, "All right, Buster, I dare you to get anything out of me.

All that has changed Something has happened to Lee Marvin. Maybe it's maturity, at last. Maybe it's the love of a good woman. Maybe it's because he's shaved off his beard. Whatever the reason, he's changed from a tough interview to a pussycat.

He's certainly become a mellow individual. Today, he talks about himself simply and directly, and reveals himself to be a normal human being. He has his dreams and

His problem, he explains, is that he wants something more out of life. He wants some adventure while he's still young enough to live it. And the adventure at the end of his rainbow is Australia.

"I'm fascinated with Australia," he says, "particularly the northern part of Queensland. It's all Italian there. Third generation. They all speak Italian with an Australian accent. 'It's still a frontier. They

He realizes that Australia is just a dream - every man has a dream he knows will never happen - but it can be very vivid to him.

He says that not long ago, the dream became so vivid it took possession of him. He was driving near his home in Arizona on a routine mission, to pick up some eggs from an old lady who sells them.

"I was thinking about fishing in Australia," he says. Well, the first thing I know I realized I'd missed my turnoff by three miles. Dummy that I am, I was trying to drive from Arizona to Australia.'

Then he wakes up again.
"Too many obligations here. I really will never get to Australia.

He's probably right. How does a successful man turn his back on success? Marvin has long been one of our best and most versatile actors. He's in constant demand. He says he finds enough parts he wants to do - "they're not in profusion, but they're enough.

Marvin figures he averages a picture and a half a year. Now, he has one -Great Scout and Cathouse Thursday" and another about to be released - "Shout At the Devil."

Aided by a computer, officials system for handling nuclear at the Department of Transportation are sifting through hundreds of letters from consumers in an effort to decide how far the government should go to protect Americans who don't or won't protect themselves.

> At issue is whether automakers should be required to install a passive restraint system such as air bags, providing protection in accidents without any action by the occupants of the car.

The department asked for comment on the issue early this summer and set next Friday as the deadline. By the start of this week, the department had received more than 2,000 letters, postcards and other communications- most of them from individuals rather than companies or organizations.

Officials said the degree of interest is obviously high, but the number of letters is far from a record. "I'm told that on the SST we got 16,000 letters," said one department employe.

A computer is being used to provide a statistical breakdown on the air bag question: how many people are in favor and how many are against.

The department's employes are trying to figure out why people feel the way they do and what aspects of the situation are of greatest concern. All the recommendations and information go to Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. who has promised a decision by Jan. 1.

Opponents argued that air bags would boost the price of automobiles, saying it now costs about $300 for an air bag as optional equipment on a full-sized car. They say lap and' shoulder belts already are available for protection and claim that mandatory air bags would limit consumers' freedom of choice.

They also say more tests are needed to determine how effective the air bags would be in actual traffic accidents and whether there are enough for development of a new safeguards to insure that the standards.

Coleman has asked consumers to focus comments on three specific issues:

-What should be the role of thegovernment is setting motor vehicles safety standards?

-What are the benefits and costs of the alternative safety

Time Arrived Says Astronaut

WASHINGTON (AP)- Retired astronaut Michael Collins says the time have come for the government to place restrictions on the size and the power of fuel-gulping automobiles. Collins, director of the Smith sonian Institution's new Air and Space Museum, said Thursday that he was struck most by a view of the earth from a quarter of a million miles away- 'the size of the thumbnail held at arms length, all blue and white."

Noting that the earth reflects the light of the sun four times as brightly as does the moon, he said the most elemental feature about the earth from space is its fragility, and that "fragility leads to an examination of the surface: Is it fragile or not?"

He said he is concerned over increasing pollution, and the possibility that the earth's fossil fuel supplies will run out unless mankind takes steps to develop other sources of energy.

"I share your concern over the pilliaging of our planet which goes on unabated," Collins said. "These are frightening times...l am just astounded by the genius that goes into the building of an autombile...they disgorge one beautiful machine after another, but completely the wrong kind of a machine for anything other than stock-car racing. Why so heavy, why so powerful, why so

Collins said he shares a common dislike for more government intervention in personal affairs, but in this case the enormity of the problem is so great that perhaps government should limit automobiles to 50-horse power and 2,000 pounds weight.

to learn to think small, to get used to less."

For the next 100 years,

Collins said, Americans must "both improve the planet and prepare to leave it- we have to continue the pioneering spirit on a cosmic scale" by exploring the possibility of establishing colonies of other planets.

Collings spoke at a banquet at the Smithsonian Institution honoring the nine top winners in a Bicentennial awards program titled "Toward our Third Century," with prizes of $100,000 for 55 winners.

Guests of honor were the top winners of prizes ranging from $10,000 down to $3,000 in three categories: essays by those under 18, by adults and for films

Bell Lawsuit Is Challenged

NEW ORELANS (AP)- A San Antonio lawver told a federal appeals court Friday it has no right to change a legal ruling transferring a $29 million damage suit against Southwestern Bell Telephone out of federal court to a Texas state

"You are legally bound to accept the ruling." argued Pat Maloney. "I really don't know why you are here.

He was talking to an en banc session of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on the latest twist in a tangled slander and libel suit filed by the wife and children of the late T.O. Gravitt, and by James H. Ashley of San Antoni

Leonard Joseph of New York, attorney of Southwestern Bel!, argued that the appeals court does have a toehold of jurisdiction, though it is limited to determing whether the judge 'had the proper criteria" for his Maloney said federal law specifically holds that the type of ruling made by U.S. Dist. Judge Adrian Spears in San Antonio last April 27 is not subject to review.

Judge Spears held that, since Southwestern Bell had once claimed it was a "citizen" of Texas, it could not come along in this case and claim it was incorporated in Missouri, and thus was entitled to have the case tried in federal court.

The en banc session, by all judges of the circuit, was ordered after the 5th's normal three-judge panel ordered Judge Spears to hold further Maloney wants a state court trial, where trial restrictions are less binding.

Under questioning by the 10 judges present for the session, Maloney said it made no difference whether or not they like the reasons for Judge Spears ruling, because they can't rule on it anyhow.

"I don't care why he did it, he found it," said Maloney.

"If you feel the facts are so solidly in your favor, why do you so dread a hearing on a issue?' asked Judge Walter P. Gewin.

"Because we have gotten a jury verdict and I am entitled to it." replied Maloney. "And I got it from the only jury possible. He's the guy to do it ... that's the law.

Gravitt was the former head of the company's Texas operations. He committed suicide in 1974. A month later, the family and James Ashley, an executive in the company's San Antonio office, filed his libel and slander suit.

The suit charges that Ashley and Gravitt were libeled and slandered during an in-house investigation by Southwestern Bell which produced accusations of expense account abuse and sexual hijinks.

The Gravitts contend the stress drove Gravitt to lock himself in the garage and leave the car engine running. Ashley was fired several weeks

Centuries-Old Tea Ceremony Still

Practiced by Japanese Men, Women

By KATHRYN TOLBERT

TOKYO (AP) - Learning to serve or drink a cup of tea takes months of instruction and embodies a history of Japanese etiquette, says the Emily Post of Japan, a woman whose an-cestors founded the tea ceremo-

mrs. Yaeko Shiozuki, 58, has 3,000 tea ceremony students in Tokyo and has used her knowledge of this art and its philosophy to write seven books on manners and etiquette.

The ceremony, dating back to. the 15th century, enjoys a steady popularity among Japanese men and women of all ages, she said. Founded in Zen Buddhism and long practiced for its spiritual value, it is also a source of good manners in private Japanese life.

The ritual includes the proper way to walk, turn around, sit, handle drinking and eating utensils, bow, and many other forms of behavior prescribed by the strict code of etiquette for polite society in the Orient.
"It is true that young people in Japan today lack knowledge in etiquette, but that is because there is so little opportunity to learn or use it in the home,' said Mrs. Shiozuki as she relaxed in a rattan chair in the spacious, carpeted lobby to her tea ceremony school. "Today's parents grew up in the World War II years when there were few chances to learn this etiquette."

Mrs. Shiozuki, however, comes from an illustrious family whose ties to tradition have transcended wars and the coming of Western ways.

Her father, Soshitsu Sen, is the 14th generation of the family that founded the Ura Senke Tea ceremony, the most prominent of various styles, with an estimated five million follow-

Her brother, also taking the name Soshitsu Sen, now holds the venerable position that includes among its privileges performing the tea ceremony for visiting state guests.

Mrs. Shiozuki's name became a household word with the publication in 1970 of her best-seller "A Guide to Ceremonies," which gives step-by-step in-structions for weddings, funerals and other formal occasions.

Japanese manners have had to undergo substantial changes with the move from living in traditional straw-matted, or tatami, rooms to the beds, high tables and chairs of Westernstyle homes, Mrs. Shiozuki

"....A Dangerously defective produce which should be recalled by its manufacturer before it inflects injury upon unwary users" is the statement of Dr. Robert Hesson of the Hoover Institution in describing Ralph Naders recent report entitled "Constitutionalizing

The Corporation". Nader's proposal would require all corporations to obtain a federal charter "which would provide an effective means of controlling or changing the nature of American business".

DR. HESSEN POINTS out that these most recent "Naderisms" are based on the erroneous belief that corporations are not private enterprises, but are creatures of the state. Of course, this philosphy is drastically opposed to our traditional belief that the state was created to serve the peoplenot vice a versa. There is far more government in our lives now than is healthy. And if anything we need to "put a cap" on government regulation and control- or suffer the alternative. And of course that alternative is reduced production which will result in reduced taxes- fewer jobs and a poorer economy. Who, then can afford this alternative? No one that I know!

An illustrative example of Federal control versus private ownership took place several years ago when India and Japan decided to go into the business of producing steel.

STEEL REQUIRES BOTH coal and iron ore. India possesses both of these elements or natural resources. Japan has neither. Today Japan produces 100 times more steel than India. The difference?..... India's steel industries are owned by the government--

Japan's are owned by private enterprise. Such nationalistic policies may help to explain India's starving economy and Japan's thriving prosperity.

It won't be easy to reverse our present trend toward socialism; but government control and over regulation can be reduced by registering concern, applying pressure, and insisting strongly on legislation that promotes and favors private enterprise.

Of course to be most effective, all this must be done with a large dose of HUSTLE, HUSTLE, HUSTLE.

P&WD Reaches Agreement On Employment

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP). Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, announced Friday he has reached an agreement with the Parks and Wildlife Department on the department's policy on equal employment opportunity.

"I am elated by this development because the agreement which we reached is virtually identical to the model conciliation agreement which we signed with the comptroller's office," Ragsdale told a news conference.

"I have been assured by federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission officials and other experts in the field of affirmative action that it represents a truly meaningful attempt to correct the kind of institutional discrimination which we find so prominent in the employment practices of our state 'agencies." he said.

"When it is signed in the next few weeks, I think I can say with confidence that we will have persuaded Parks and Wildlife to

...nee Teresa Rhoton

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures

Sometimes it is the little chores that drive us to distraction, especially when we've let the jobs lag during the vacation season.

Copper, carving boards, tile, marble, plastic, wood floors need care. Short cuts may be taken by giving these things more frequent care which may seem a bore, but in the long run it will pay off.

If you let a copper hood in the kitchen get very tarnished and greasy, it becomes a super cleaning job. But if it is washed regularly and shined with a soft cloth, it is a small chore. A neglected hood must be scrubbed with soap and water and dried before it is polished. Non-tarnish copper cleaners will keep a hood clean for a long time, and are great time savers if there is a large expanse of metal.

Wood cutting boards may warp, to the dismay of many housewives. That may be controlled by turning the board every once in a while. In fact, the underside should be scrubbed, dried and lightly oiled. Cooking oil has been tried successfully. It just happened to be at hand

If the board warps a bit, scrub the underside well, let it dry - if you can put it outdoors all the better - and then apply a little oil. If it is mildewed in spots, it may require a light sanding before you apply oil. Then it should be reversed for use. Sometimes a board will get beyond the turnover stage with many mildewed stains, and you will want to use only one side of it. Even then the underside must always be kept clean.

No matter how careful you are, liquid and specks of food may be found under the board, so it should be tilted each day and the area underneath wiped with a dry cloth. Wiping it with wet cloth will merely increase the chances of mildew, unless it is dried thoroughly each time.

Club Creates Quilt

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) It is a magnificent quilt, double-bed size, handmade by the joint efforts of 66 women who put in some 1,000 hours in quilting, appliqueing and em-broidering. But it's more than that. The members of the Officers Wives Club at Kirtland Air Force Base, N.M., and their friends have created a wall hanging with 30 different blocks that depict the sights and colors of the life, history and cultural mix of New Mexico.

It began in January when quilting teacher Leah Curling techniques and designing blocks. Then each woman took a different topic and was given one month and artistic license to make her design for one of the 30 blocks on the quilt.

For some it was hours of research in libraries and museums. One designer, JoAnn Kyrazis, spent so many hours driving around Albuquerque's Old Town for her research she was afraid the police would think she was casing the jew-designed to help parents teach their children and themselves how to survive a house fire.] COLLEGE STATION- A child who has had the opportunity to practice what to do in a fire has a much better chance of surviving a real fire. Below are two of six drills soffered in this series, designed to teach children how to survive a fire. After the first try, these "fire drills" can be tested during the day or after children are in bed at night by using the signal "FIRE!" ren quality as a "firemen." A drill called "Don the Gas Masks" teaches children about poisnous gases which are the true killers in fires.

Pretend the house is filling with smoke and that you must get out as quickly as possible. In all the drills, stress immediate escape. Yell "Smoke!" and have the children, where they are--in bedrooms, living room, kitchen--grab a pillow or several thicknesses of fluffy material such as a towel and place it over their mouths and noses. The cloth won't filter out poisonous gasses in smoke but will relieve some of the irritating effects of inhaling smoke. Then have the children move as fast as they can, keeping close to the floor where the air is best. They should avoid deep breaths.

Imphasize the fact that smoke, not flames, is the Number One killer in fire. It contains large quuntities of carbon monoxide and a dozen or so other poisonous gases from burning materials. By far the majority of fire victims are asphyxiated by smoke gases long before flames ever touch them. Sometimes poisonous smoke can knock you unconscious after two or three breaths and can kill you in a few

The next drill is called "Hot Door, Cold Door." As a part of "basic training," firemen learn the dangers of opening a door in a fire. It's something your child must know, too. Teach him never to fling open a bedroom door if he suspects fire. He should apply this test: Put his hand on the door panel and knob. If either is warm, he should not open the door, for heat and gases are the other side ready to burst in. One lungful of superheated air can fell a person instantly. He must leave the door closed and make

If the door doesn't feel warm. he should brace himself against it, open it a crack and be ready to slam it should smoke or heat rush in. If all is clear, he can proceed through the door with caution.

Make sure young firemen practice this routine until they have it down pat. As a fire drill is being announced, slip a sign under the closed door reading "hot" or "cold" while voungsters react appropriately. Also, make it a nightly ritual to close bedroom doors at night unless this would prevent a bedroom fire from setting off a fire detector located in a hallway. Tests have shown that behind a closed door your survival time is from 5 to 11 minutes. With the door open the survival time is only two minutes. Ideally each bedroom should contain an audible fire detector.

Part 3 of this series provides training in two more drills designed to teach children how to survive a fire.

Scribbles Scratches

By KERRIE STEIERT Women's Editor

"TWO-FOUR-six-eight .

Who should we incriminate?" That little chant is the key to a theory I have about solving public apathy, which seems prevalent everywhere . . . almost. It is true that America seems to be closing her eyes to genuine involvement, on almost all fronts, and there has been some cracker-barrel speculation as to how to wake up people's interest in their surroundings and each other.

I was mulling this over one night while sitting on the bleachers at a Whiteface football game and it occurred to me that I was in the one place where apathy never rears its gory head. Why?

Emotions ranging from frenzied excitement to the pits of disappointment are juggled by the opposing fans, but nowhere is there boredom. Even the girl nestling in the crook of her boyfriend's arm emits a fascination which sparkles under the blinding stadium lights. She doesn't understand the game particularly, but she is caught up in the excitement of the event's fanfare.

SO, IT SEEMED logical that although one may not be too gung-ho on the rudiments of a game (including all the games of life), everyone gets their blood up for a spectacle.

If, for example, football was the bands, cheerleaders, refreshments and rousing music, the sport would lose all but its most avid spectators. (Please, no letters. I'm not advocating any changes on the gridiron.)

Thus, perhaps some pageantry would improve those stuffy, stodgy places such as .courtrooms, Congress, dentist offices and classrooms. I nurture this fantasy where, in a court trial, the prosecutor and defendant each has their own cheerleading squad, which tries to influence the jury while a symphony orchestra provides a suspenseful background score. However, that idea is rather cheeky. As one writer put it, people, especially women, will endure anything as long as it isn't

"HOW I SPENT my summer vacation" is the subject of many an essay at this time of year, when students are returning to school. But, in deference for those who do not have the opportunity to unwind on paper, it's probably not a bad idea for a few adult travellers to recount their "vacations" too. These documents should be filed for reference next year, should you have forgotten some of a trip. For instance:

The Bridge Offers Runaway Youth Temporary Home and Counseling

SAN DIEGO (AP) - "When kids run away from home, it's usually a symptom of other family problems," says Tom Packard, project coordinator for The Bridge, a temporary home for runaway youth lo-cated near Balboa Park and downtown San Diego.

"If the father's out of work or there are marital diffi-culties, or perhaps a severe ill-ness in the family, then the family pressures may be so se-vere that before you know it, there's another runaway for the

At The Bridge, a two-story, olive green stucco house with a Spanish tile roof, runaway teenagers can find food and a place to sleep in a homelike setting. The kids are often scared or "Three hundred kids stayed at The Bridge last year," says Packard. "Almost all had run away from home at one time or another. While running away from home is technically a 'crime,' there has been a move recently to decriminalize it. Fortunately, we have a very good rapport with the police and local juvenile authorities. Quite a number of kids are referred to The Bridge when they might otherwise have been sent to detention centers."

Young people may come into The Bridge for counseling any time, 24 hours a day, and par-ents or police will not be notified. However, for an overnight stay parental permission is reuired. After the parent gives permission; the runaway is allowed to stay for three days to eight weeks depending on the circumstances. The average length of stay is about five

Beef Workshop Here Tomorrow

Area residents are invited to attend a Beef-A-Thon at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the Ballroom of Hereford Community Center. Frank Ortes and Jayne Hager, two outstanding beef specialists, will be the program speakers and members of Hereford CowBelles will be preparing beef cookies, a recipe from the "Sweet Treats with Beef Cookbook."

During the program segment, Ortes, who is a beef specialist at Texas A&M University, will discuss the different beef cuts, and compare the quality of grass-fed, grain-fed and baby beef. His presentation will be illustrated by film slides. Home Economist Hager of Chicago, Ill., is to give details of the meat industry's standardized meat cut labeling system, along with a demonstration on meat selection, cookery and care. She will provide further information on the complex industry which moves meat from the farm, ranch and feedlot

"Beef dollars can be stretched in a dozen or more different ways," Miss Hager said, "and each one will help build appetizing, nutritious, satisfying -- and economical -meals with beef. Miss Hager, merchandising home economist with the National Livestock and Meat Board, combines a background in radio and television with a natural interest for fashioning a meal around meat. Besides her role as a spokeswoman for the livestock and meat industry, she is a specialist in consumer edu-

HOLLY SUGAR ROAD

By ERMA BOMBECK

Have you ever seen that insurance commercial where the husband and wife arrive home only to discover their house has been burgled? As the flashing red lights of the police cruiser silhouette them in the darkness, the man turns to his half-numb wife and says, "It was everything we had."

We've just sent another child off to college and we look the same way. If he ever plugs in all the appliances he took at the same time, he will plunge Los Angeles into total darkness.

We can understand ripping off the staples: clock, radio, hair dryer, records, luggage, night stands, tennis rackets, skis, backpacks, tape recorder, typewriter and television set. What we can't understand is his sudden fascination with things he never used at home.

Bicycle: A seven-letter obscene word meaning, "You mean I don't get the car?" This has been sitting in a corner of the garage gathering dust for three years. The bicycle was put to stud after our son revealed he was the only teenager in North America who had not developed an accelerator foot.

14 towels: We didn't think he knew what they were. Someone must tell him they're not disposable, but after being scooped up off the floor can be laundered and used time and time again.

Dictionary: We would never have guessed his quest to be understood. For the last four years, he has limited his vocabulary to one-word-fits-all: gross. This applies to food, surroundings, vacations, people, teachers, studies, car, allowances, records, and his basic philosophy.

Glasses: This is encouraging. The last time he dug them out was when he wanted to see something.

Shirt without a message on it: This could mean one of two things: he is discarding the things of his childhood and entering an adult phase of dress or he needs rags to stuff in around his stereo in packing.

A set of sheets: The thought is there, but we've got to get

Ann Landers

Go Apologize

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 14-year-old girl with a very big problem. Last Friday I went out with a guy I've been dating for five months. After the movie he asked if he could come in and talk for a while. I said OK.

Well, we started to make out on the living room sofa. I thought my folks were asleep. All of a sudden my dad turned on the lights and there we were.

My boyfriend was just plain petrified. When he regained his composure he got up and left. My father didn't say anything, just turned around and went back upstairs. I'm writing this letter after three days of feeling miserable. Dad hasn't spoken to me since that awful thing happened. Also, Ann, I haven't heard one word from my boyfriend, What should I do? -- Unhappy 14

DEAR UNHAPPY: Go to your dad and apologize for disappointing him. Promise to behave better in the future and try hard to keep that promise.

As for your boyfriend, good riddance. With him out of the picture your chances of keeping your promise are a lot better.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is in response to "Double Vision In O City"-the two women who showed up at a party wearing the identical dress.

Recirculating Sprayer Is Aid In Controlling Johnsongrass

HALFWAY - A recent innovation in weed control equipment is proving effective in controlling johnsongrass, a weed pest that inundates the Texas High Plains, reports a Texas Agricultural Experiment Station scientist here.

The innovation is the recirculating sprayer, a device attached to tractors which is used to kill weeds which are taller than the crop.

The sprayer is one of several featured highlights in the upcoming 67th edition of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station's annual field day. Tuesday, Sept. 14. The afternoon event will be at the Experiment Station at Halfway,

Dr. John Abernathy, TAES scientist who heads up weed control research for the Lubbock Experiment Station which is co-hosting the field day, says the recirculating sprayer has given in research tests excellent johnsongrass control in cotton and soybeans at a cost of less than two dollars an acre.

"The sprayer is in commercial production now," says Abernathy, "and is locally available. Several commercial units will be displayed during field day activities."

Guests will see experimental tests using the recirculating sprayer in such studies as

ATTENTION IRRIGATION FARMERS

Don't tie up your fertilizer dollars in wheat

At today's grain prices, can you afford to fertilize wheat as you have in the past? NO! What can you do? Consider the Ag ENTERPRISES FERTIGATION alternative:

- 1. If you are going to graze your wheat, then put down a minimum preplant. When market prices improve, then sidedress in the spring with liquid nitrogen to provide the boost you need to make grain.
- 2. If you don't plan to graze, simply don't use a preplant-keeps costs down! When the market improves you can add the needed nitrogen through the water.

THE COST

For a system that you can use on any crop, we offer the following:

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)- Rains last week helped dryland crops, pastures and ranges and the stock water situation over much of Texas, Dr. Daniel Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says.

Despite the moisture, most of the Panhandle remains dry as well as parts of the South and Rolling Plains, he said.

Sorghum harvesting is nearing completion in North Central Texas and is increasing in the Rolling Plains, West Central and Far West Texas, Pfannstiel said. Yields have ranged from good to poor. Cotton harvesting is gaining momentum in South Central Texas and some harvesting has started in the Central Texas Blacklands, Pfannstiel said. Crop quality is from good to poor, with insect damage heavy in parts of Central Texas and in the Rolling Plains. Cutting of the first rice crop is generally complete in the Coastal Plains and farmers will be making the second cutting in a few weeks, he said. Yields have been excellent in most areas. Livestock conditions should improve over the state as forage increases from the recent rains, Pfannstiel said. Some feeders are moving into the Plains in anticipation of fall wheat

North Central: Corn and sorghum harvesting is from 85 to 90 per cent complete. Yields are generally good. Fall vegetable gardens are being planted.

Northeast: The sorghum harvest is about complete. Sweet potatoes are being harvested. Recent rains should provide additional hay cuttings and boost soybeans. Fall gardens are being planted. Pecans are falling prematurely.

Far West: Sorghum harvesting is under way. Early yields are good. Cotton continues to make good progress. Harvesting of bell peppers has started. Livestock are in good shape. Calves are showing good weight gains. Goat shearing is active.

BUSHLAND - Windy days occur frequently throughout the Southern High Plains. Harnessing this cheap and abundant resource to power irrigation pumps is the objective of a new study at the USDA Southwestern Great Plains Research Center, Bushland, Texas. According to Dr. B.A. Stewart, Director, the Center at Bushland recently received funds from the Energy Research and Development Administra- used to pump stockwater tion for the study. The research project will be a joint effort and approval is pending on a cooperative agreement between the Bushland Center and West Texas State University.

Drs. Arland Schneider and

Nolan Clark, USDA Agricultural Engineers at Bushland, will evaluate pumps and power transmission equipment for linking pumps to a wind rotor. At the same time, Drs. Vaughn Nelson, Bob Barieau, WTSU Physics Professors, and Dr. Earl Gilmore, Amarillo College Professor, will study performance of wind rotors.

The objective of the research is to assemble and test a complete irrigation pumping system including a wind rotor, pump, and gear drive. Large wind rotors are now being built and tested, and many irrigation pumps are available. "The challenge will be to link them together to form a successful irrigation pumping system," Dr. Stewart said.

Research plans call for purchasing and erecting a wind rotor that will produce about 50 horsepower. This rotor will be much larger than the present windmills that dot the High Plains. These small windmills produce at 1 horsepower from 12- to 16-foot diameter fans. The proposed irrigation pumping system will have a rotor that is 40 to 50 feet in diameter. The type and design of the rotor have not been finalized, but it is anticipated that the rotor will be ready and installed by April

It is anticipated that the rotor will be mechanically linked to a pump on an irrigation well at the Research Center. Pumps to be evaluated with the wind rotor system are air lift, turbine, positive displacement piston, and positive displacement rotary types.

Drs. Nelson and Barieau. from West Texas State University, and Dr. Gilmore, from Amarillo College, have about the amount and availability of wind energy in Texas. Their findings show that the High Plains has more power available from wind than anywhere in the U.S. The energy available from wind is exponentially related to speed. In other words, doubling windspeed increases available power eight times.

"People on the High Plains do not always look forward to windy days," Dr. Stewart said, "but some day irrigation farmers may count a stiff breeze a blessing."

Warner seed dealers from throughout the Panhandle and South Plains, in addition to Kansas and Oklahoma were on hand to view seed cleaning and storage buildings Thursday morning. Weather Treats Farmers Unkindly

5.89 billion bushels of corn nearly ready for the full harvest across the United States is more than corn-growers were expecting last week but less than the estimate of some crop anaylsts.

Officials quietly note it is still a record- the largest corn crop in history by nearly 125 million bushels, if the weather doesn't further shrive it.

But not even Don Paarlberg, chief economist for the Agriculture Department, tried to pretty up the damage of August in meetings with reporters Friday after release of the Crop Reporting Board's latest estimates, based on Sept. 1 field surveys.

"August weather treated"

For consumers, the message of the report is that USDA may have to make a "modest upward adjustment"- perhaps 1 per cent- in its current expectation that retail food prices will rise 3 to 4 per cent in the first six months of 1977 over the first half of this year, Paarlberg said.

14. CARD OF THANKS

To My Family: This is a Tribute to my sweet, loving wife and to my children for standing by me through all my sickness and hospital stays. They have set beside my bed many nights and many days when no one knew what was going to happen during the past years. It is with Love and Gods Love that they still stand by me. Also I want to say, I appreciate the thoughtfulness and help of the Doctors and the people whom I have worked with for the past 15 years at The Hereford

Everyone in this Tribute have encouraged me and helped me in every possible way, every day. May God Bless and Keep them all in His Power is my prayer today. If it had not been for my Faith in God, I would not be writing this Tribute and I would not be waiting and looking for His return.

Thank you for reading this Tribute because this is my feeling every day. May God Bless and Keep you all but a special watchful eye over my With Love,

Jim H. Auten

Many delicious desserts can be prepared with the use of the blender.

Since beaten egg whites are included in many dessert recipes, beat these with an electric mixer or rotary egg beater.

Chocolate does not need to be melted for use in recipes in which it is to be cooked with other ingredients. Cut squares of chocolate into quarters and blend it with the liquids. When preparing puddings, ice creams, and sherbits that require pureed fruits, blend the fresh or cooked fruits to a smooth pulp. Instead of chopping nuts, blend the necessary amount with the liquid in the recipe. When a recipe calls for orange or lemon juice and all the grated rind of the fruit, the unpeeled orange or lemon may be sliced and all the grated rind of the fruit, the unpeeled orange or lemon may be sliced, seed removed and blended with the liquid ingredients. The average-size orange yields one-fourth cup of juice. If only a small amount of the rind is needed, remove the rind from part of the fruit before slicing it for blending.

Following are examples of desserts and many old favorite one may be adapted for use with the blender.

REFRIGERATOR CHEESE CAKE

Filling: 2 egg yolks 1/4 cup milk

1/4 pound cottage cheese (1 2-ounce carton)

1/3 cup sugar 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon gelatin 2 tablespoons cold water

3/3 cup heavy cream, whipped 2 egg whites, beaten stiff
