School Board Committed On Teacher Pay Raises

Hereford School Board of Education members have expressed concern about a rumor among local teachers about proposed statewide pay raises and their ultimate effect here.

Trustee David Hutchins, an incumbent candidate in place 4 on the School Board, said it is untrue that "for every $50 the state gives teachers in raises will result in a $50 decrease in the local salary supplement given by the board." Apparently, such a rumor started floating about after discussion on the topic at a forum Monday by candidates for the school board in the April 2 elections.

"I want to assure every teacher that the school board is committed to keeping the supplement at the present level despite the raises by the state," he said. He made the statement earlier that a state raise of $2,000 a year or more might cause the supplement to be decreased while raises of lesser degree would have no such effect.

"I only picked that figure out of the air as an example because I don't think that much of a raise will be given. It's quite a bit," he said.

Teachers now are given an extra $800 a year for a bachelor's degree level instructor and $1,000 extra for a master's degree. This is above and beyond the current $8,000 annual state salary for a bachelor's degree teacher and $8,600 for a master's degree teacher.

"We (the board) want to keep the high quality of teachers we now have," Hutchins said. "We want to keep the supplement above those given by area schools."

Several teachers had approached Hutchins about the subject and he discovered a wrong interpretation about the teacher salary supplement were being spread out.

"Several of them were upset over it," he explained. "Any raise by the state will be maintained as far as I'm concerned."

Spuds Going In

With potato planting time here, can spring be far away? This planting rig was photographed on property owned by Griffin and Brand northwest of the city. Workers ride the four row planting unit, making sure that seed pieces fall properly. Although the acreage to be planted to vegetables here this year will probably be down somewhat, growers are speculating that prices will be much better for their 1977 produce, particularly in view of the shortage of water for irrigation in California. The potatoes going in on this plot of ground will probably be ready for harvest sometime in July. (Photo By Jim Steiert)

A READER ran a classified ad in our paper this week, requesting that everyone pray for rain. By a strange coincidence, it sprinkled a little the very first night after the ad was published. But, it was not enough to settle the dust, and we need some fervent prayers!

With that in mind, we'd like to reprint a prayer written by the late William Allen White. Recently re-published in a Kansas paper, this prayer was penned in the 30's but has become a classic and we think our readers will enjoy it:

"O Lord, in Thy mercy grant us rain and by that we don't mean a shower. We want to go out and watch the lightning rip across the Southwestern sky in hot blue forks as the fat clouds roll in on us. We want to hurry home to close the house with the first fat drops the size of marbles, on a suddenly rising wind, chasing us and plunking on the car hood. We want to scramble all over the house, just as the first sheets descent, frantically slamming down the windows."

"O Lord of Hosts, we want to look out the windows and watch the regiments of close-packed raindrops march diagonally down. We want to hear the gurgle of the gutters under the eaves, and then the sputter of the downspout."

God of Isreal, Issac and Jacob, let it come down so hard, let the drops dance so high that the streets and sidewalks seem covered with a six inch fog of spattering drops. Then let it just keep up for a while, and then begin to taper off, and then turn right round and get a lot worse swishing, pounding, splattering, pouring, drenching, the thunder coming crackity-Bam and the lighting flashing so fast and furious you can't tell which flash goes with which peal of thunder. So that all the women get scared and climb on the top of the beds and scream at you not to get too close to that window."

"And then O Jealous God, repeat the whole act about three times, and in the middle of the second time we will climb the attic stairs and put the wash pan under that tiny leak in the roof which Jerry Don George, Hereford High School principal, was man of the hour Saturday night at a banquet honoring him for receiving the "Administrator of the Year Award" from the Texas Classroom Teachers Association (TCTA). He was nominated on the local level and won the statewide award for school districts with student populations between 5,000 and 10,000 students.

It was the second straight year for a local school official to receive the coveted award since former superintendent Roy Hartman obtained it last year.

During the dinner held at the HHS cafeteria, a scrapbook containing clippings, photos and other items depicting activities leading George to his honor, was presented by Mrs. Elaine White, HHS art teacher and coordinator of the book.

The banquet was sponsored by the HHS faculty. About 178 persons were to attend the dinner.

Absentee Voting Ends Tuesday

Tuesday is the final day for absentee voting in the April 2 local elections.

Those not going to be in town on election day are encouraged to cast their vote at the respective absentee voting locations before 5 p.m. Tuesday. Elections on the ballot are the hospital board, city commission and school board races. All have some contested races.

Absentee voting for the Hereford Independent School District will be held at the school tax office. The hospital board and county school board race balloting is held at the county clerk's office and the city clerk handles the commission absentee voting at city hall.

George, who has served as high school principal for eight years, was formally honored by the TCTA at the organization's state convention in El Paso in February. The plaque presentation was made at a noon luncheon of the convention. He had received the local Administrator of the Year award here last December.

A veteran of 18 years in the Hereford school system, George has served as principal at La Plata, assistant principal at Stanton, and was formerly a coach. He is a graduate of Texas Tech University and earned his master's degree at West Texas State University.

He is now serving as president of the secondary principals' group of the Panhandle School Leaders Association.

Vance Briefs Allies

MOSCOW (AP)—Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance flew into Moscow Saturday night for arms control negotiations with the Soviets. Vance said en route here that the essential aspects of the proposals he will make are non-negotiable.

"We would be willing to discuss the variations, not the essentials," Vance told reporters before a stopover in Brussels, where he briefed European allies about his upcoming talks.

The secretary's jet touched down at Vnukova VIP Airport about 9 p.m. local time 1 p.m. EST.

Errors Pointed Out

BY BOBBY TEMPLETON
Brand News Editor

After several attempts at out-of-court settlements, The Hereford School Board of Education has officially filed an appeal in the Wayne Woodward-teacher dismissal suit with the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

The Hereford Brand learned late Friday that a thick brief in connection with the suit has been filed with the appellate court as of Thursday. It was dated Monday, March 21, when it was put in the U.S. mail, but the court did not receive it until Thursday according to informed sources here.

THE LENGTHY BRIEF and associated documents were prepared by school attorneys Earnest Langley and Richard Green. Each of the Hereford school trustees have copies of the appeal.

The case involves former teacher Wayne Woodward, who taught 7th and 9th grade English Classes at La Plata Junior High School. His contract for the 1975-76 school year was not renewed and therefore he filed suit against the board.

He won the suit after a trial last September in Amarillo before Federal District Judge Halbert O. Woodward. He awarded the former teacher back pay, the right of reinstatement and $6,000 in attorneys fees.

According to the appeal brief, attorneys base a request for a reversal in the lower court's decision on seven points of error which they claimed occurred in the original trial.

The points of error are as follows:

(1) The trial court findings that nonrenewal of the plaintiff's (Wayne Woodward) contract resulted from "his participation in ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union) Activities" is not supported by evidence.

(2) Even if constitutionally protected conduct played a substantial part in the defendant's decision not to renew the plaintiff's employment, the judgment here cannot stand.

(3) Back pay, whereas "a necessary element of the equitable relief of reimbursement" or otherwise was improperly awarded in this case.

(4) The court failed to give adequate weight to the subjective elements of employer-employee relationships which are properly, legally related to the questions of employe selection and retention.

(5) The trial court failed to consider substantial uncontroverted and credible testimony reflecting ground for the plaintiff's nonrenewal.

(6) The trial court erroneously awarded attorney's fees to plaintiff.

(7) Even if allowed to stand, the trial court's judgment requires modification and clarification on issues of damages and interests.

ANOTHER STRONG POINT in the school attorney's arguments deals with a unanimous U.S. Supreme Court decision Jan. 11 involving the Mt. Healthy, Ohio, School Board versus Doyle. In it, the court ruled that one impermissible reason (ACLU activities) for dismissing an individual can not outweigh all other permissible reasons for which the person might have been fired.

This is considered a strong point in the appeal arguments since numerous reasons for Woodward's dismissal were listed originally. During the trial, the school attorneys and officials testified that the ACLU activities had nothing to do with recommendation by Pat Hughes, La Plata principal, and Roy Hartman, former superintendent here, to let the teacher go.

It is argued that even if the ACLU reason is a permissible reason, it alone may not outweigh many other reasons.

Since the decision, filed Oct. 12, several attempts by Wayne Woodward and his attorney Robin Green of Amarillo have been made to settle out-of-court. However, negotiated figures at one point or another were never satisfactory on both sides in the case.

Harrell Holder, superintendent, told several civic clubs this week that Woodward and his attorney priced themselves out of a settlement.

"At one point they must have thought we were acting out of weakness (after the board agreed on an offer) and raised the

Thailand Government Seized

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—About 300 army soldiers attempted to overthrow Thailand's five-month-old military-backed government Saturday, but the coup fizzled and its leaders were flown out of the country, the government announced. One government general was killed in the coup attempt. An official announcement gave no destination for former army deputy commander Gen. Chaiard Hiranyasiri, the reported leader of the coup attempt, his son and three other military officers. But they were believed to have flown to refuge in Taiwan.

Spider Eggs In "Bubble Yum"?

NEW YORK (AP)—The makers of "Bubble Yum" are hoping that a media blitz and a private detective can scotch a schoolyard rumor that their gum contains spider eggs. "It's really a little early to know whether we've put the rumor to bed or not," William Morris, president of Live Savers, which makes the gum, said Friday. "We've already had a couple of favorable letters from mothers thanking us."

Jesus Film Applauded

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican daily l'Osservatore Romano has given high marks to Franco Zeffirelli's television film "Jesus of Nazareth." The paper published an entire page Friday on the film, commenting that Zeffirelli had "rendered a service to the faith and to the work of evangelization and human promotion, forgotten and mortified above all by the communications media". The Vatican newspaper said the picture of Jesus presented by the film was that of a faithful representation of "a Jesus between heaven and earth".

price too high," he said. In December, 1976, the first out-of-court settlement was made and widely publicized after a letter was mistakenly filed with the court. It was not finalized since the asking price was out of line.

Based on several reports, the plaintiffs in the case made another offer, but it was considered inappropriate. The offer which the board at one time favored included the provision that Woodward would not teach in Hereford again. However, it failed after the other side made a counter offer.

In the judge's decision, he weighed his conclusion heavily on the argument that Wayne Woodward was denied his constitutionally guaranteed right of free speech when his activities with the ACLU were involved with student discussions.

Robin Green and Wayne Woodward have 35 days from March 21 to file a reply to the appeal. The school district to turn has 20 days from the filing of a reply to answer with a second court brief. That would be the last word before a court decision is made.

inductees into the Hall of Fame which is held during rodeo events.

Margaret Formby, Hall of Fame board of directors president, said the honored women are Lucille Mulhall, Mike Reid Settle, Rhonda Sedgewick Bernice McLaughlin and Sydna Yokely Woodyard.

The honorees, as they are known, will be inducted in a special ceremony on the final afternoon of the All-Girl Rodeo, scheduled for Thursday-Saturday, May 12-14. They receive plaques and special displays of their momentos are erected in the institution, located in the basement of the Deaf Smith County Library.

It is part of the ongoing project to collect material for the Hall of Fame concerning the history of the west as it involved women, especially those who contributed significantly as pioneers to founding and establishing life in the Old West. Honorees may either be living or those living in past generations.

Already nine honorees are inducted into the hall over the past two and a half years.

LUCILLE MULHALL, born in 1885, is the daughter of Zack Mulhall, known for his showmanship and ranching ability. She was raised on a ranch in Oklahoma territory, where she became a hard working ranch hand, rodeo contestant, and performer in wild west shows.

Former president Teddy Roosevelt called her, "The Golden Haired Girl of the West."

She had the distinction of being the first "cowgirl." Will Rogers coined the term for her. Will Rogers Jr. was one of those nominating her for induction. She died in a car accident in 1940.

MIKE REID SETTLE, a school teacher now in Silverton, Tex., is still a working cowgirl. She is 39-years-old.

She earned a bachelors degree from West Texas State University and was the national college rodeo champion. Her experiences have led her on cattle drives and other varied activities during her ranching life.

RHONDA SEDGWICK, a resident of the Much Creek Ranch near Newcastle, Wyo., is considered a significant contributor to the American West through her horsemanship, beauty and music. She teaches horse riding lessons.

She holds a membership in the Girls Rodeo Association and was the first woman organist to hold a contract member's card in the Rodeo Cowboy's Association. She plays the organ at major rodeo events.

BERNICE MCLAUGHLIN, 86, resides at Des Moines, N.M. She was born near Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

She came to the U.S. in 1916 with her husband Louis to homestead property in New Mexico. Her determination, evident of the old west spirit, was shown when her husband died unexpectedly and she was left homeless since she was not a U.S. citizen.

She became a citizen and fought hard to win the right to the homestead after losing it three times. It finally became hers.

She also has an active interest in art.

SYDNA YOKELY WOODYARD, a native of Canadian, Tex., is noted for her 1940's and 1950's activities as a top flight calf roper and the stunts of her trick horse, Sonny Boy.

She was at one time was one of a few calf roping women in the world and was featured in national news columns of Ernie Pyle and Eleanor Roosevelt.

Mrs. Woodyard helped form the American Quarter Horse Association.

She died in 1959 when her horse kicked her to death in a horse trailer at Winslow, Ariz.

Members of the Hall of Fame selection committee are Georgia Sparks, Hereford, chairman; Betty Keith, Sunray; Zuleika O'Daniel, Tulia; Elaine Fuller, Lubbock; and Graddy Tunnell, Plainview.

MOTHERS HEAD

THE FAMILY

NEW YORK (AP) — Families headed by mothers have almost doubled over the last decade according to U.S. government statistics. The head of the household in one out of every 13 families is a woman. These 4.4 million women may be divorced, separated, widowed or single and according to the American Council of Life Insurance, their median age is 43.4 years.

The biggest problem in a woman-headed household is often financial, they said.

Athletes Might Stay Home

For the 1980 Summer Olympics the finest athletes in the world will converge on Moscow. They might as well stay home.

If what's past is prologue, the Russians will manage to win by hook or crook.

The world's earliest athletes--in Sparta and ancient Rome--literally "ran for their lives."

In athletic competition, back where the Olympics began, the winners won no big money--but they were otherwise motivated: The losers were put to death.

Russia takes athletic competition almost that seriously today. Look at the face of Olga Korbut when she competes; in her face you can see the importance Russia puts on winning!

Chicago Tribune sportswriter Rick Talley has been doing some investigative reporting on this subject. He confirms that they don't play fair. He says they are, in fact, "the most accomplished, blatant cheaters in the history of sport."

Examples: Boris Osenenko hot-wired his dueling sword in the Montreal games of 1976.

Russia's water polo team, facing defeat, tried instead to withdraw.

There was Russia's flagrant roughness during the U.S.A.-

U.S.S.R basketball game in Munich in 1972.

And Russia's weightlifters came to the event bloated with steroids.

When the World Aerobic Championships were held in Kiev in 1976, the Soviet hosts rigged the judging, changed the rules during the competition and managed to award top team and top individual prizes to Russians.

The Americans-- who have bested the best of the Russians in every competition outside Russia--not wanting to create an international bruhaha, bit their lips and went home.

But later in an aerobics magazine specific incidents of Soviet cheating were related. One Soviet judge, for example, scored several Soviet flights without once looking at the aircraft in flight!

American team manager Bob Carmichael said, "It's difficult to describe how brazen those people are, how determined to claim victory however unfairly." Talley figures that even NBC will rue the day it paid the Russians $85 million for broadcast rights to these next games, expecting that Russia will also demand and get dozens of Soviet edited "cultural hours" at that network showing the world the "unblemished beauty" of the Soviet Union.

And the first time an American announcer dared to question Soviet cheating, somebody will pull the plug.

Local Man Injured In Wreck

A Hereford man, injured in a head-on collision in Lubbock this week was reportedly still in critical condition in West Texas Hospital there.

A picture in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal newspaper showed the unusual wreck involving a small pickup truck livestock trailer and automobile. Acie Darrel Harkins, 66, of Hereford, was supposedly still in the intensive care unit undergoing further treatment.

Late Tuesday, the vehicles involved crashed into each other just south of the 82nd St and the Tahoka Highway intersection on an access road. A young man from Lubbock also was injured in the accident and reported in serious condition.

Almost half the adult women in the United States are in the labor force now, as opposed to less than a third in 1947.

BE GRATEFUL FOR GRAFT

When the revolutionaries were proclaiming "no taxation without representation", they should have added one more slogan. The second slogan should have said, "no taxation without need".

They got the first slogan adopted, so we have representation of a sort. The problem is, taxation is not based on need but on economic expediency. Instead of the government having great programs that need funding, we have taxation being used to speed up the cash flow or slow it down, whichever seems to be the current problem.

The result is the government ends up with a whole bunch of money to spend and nowhere to spend it. The game becomes: how can we spend the stuff while we talk about thrift and the shame of waste? Necessity is the mother of invention and it has mothered some real inventions in this case. Washington has two major plans for this task.

The first is called "acute inspectorism." This plan is beautiful because it has a pyramiding effect. First, you hire a bunch of inspectors to check up on any field you care to choose. Each inspector has to have an office, a secretary or so, and a few assistants. Then the inspectors must have inspectors that inspect them. The inspectors of the inspectors have to have offices, secretaries, assistants.

The next thing you know, a whole new bureau is formed which does very little except make nuisances of themselves and create work for each other. They create another mountain of paper with reports and reports on reports, and reports on the reports on reports. That at least keeps the money in circulation.

The second plan is graft. Will Rogers thought politicians were local bandits folks hired to go rob headquarters. Don't get me wrong, I don't think they are all crooks, it is just that the money has to go somewhere and inspectorism can't handle it all. So they close their eyes and let nature take its course.

I sure don't like graft but if the choice is between graft and inspectorism, I would be hard pressed to know which one was worse. There are times when I say, thank goodness for graft. If it weren't for that, think how much government we would have. Graft is better than OSHA by a long shot.

Warm fuzzies,

The Branding Iron

(From The Past Pages Of The Hereford Brand)

ONE YEAR AGO

A mock trial, two cash award presentations, the Hereford Bulchup Award recipient announcement, comical games, footstomping fiddling, and introduction of new chamber members were activities gaining the attention of those attending the Deaf Smith County C of C Fun Breakfast held early Tuesday morning at the high school cafeteria. With spring just beginning, local potato growers have already taken to the fields and the planting of the 1976 spud crop in Deaf Smith County in progressing full speed ahead.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Work is scheduled to begin in April on several new tennis courts and a nine-hole addition to the John Pitman Municipal Golf Course, according to city officials. Rattlesnakes in the Hereford area are already crawling. Just ask Greg Skypala and Danny Askew, who happened to run on to a snake den recently about four miles east of Hereford and killed two of the deadly Texas rattlers. Askew and Skypala, joined by two other boys, dug into the den after killing the two unlucky snakes out for an afternoon crawl. They killed seven more snakes, and Tuesday on a return trip the hole killed two more.

TEN YEARS AGO

Hereford will host the first Amarillo District Future Farmers of America Farm Mechanic Contest, set to begin at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Vocational Agricultural Shop at the High School. The withholding of Deaf Smith County's Brucellosis Certificate by the Federal Health Division has caused many producers in this county to protest that it is costing them $1.50 to $2 per hundred pounds of cattle when sold in the market.

25 YEARS AGO

The Dawn Cooperative, a newly-organized association of farmers in the Dawn area, this week announced the purchase of the Rodgers Grain company of Dawn for $243,000. A community-wide "Fun Night" with all proceeds going to the Deaf Smith County Cancer Society will be sponsored by the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority at the Veterans clubhouse Tuesday night.

50 YEARS AGO

The sum of $10,000 will be spent on our Cemetery, if the present plans are carried out. The Association is working feverishly, laying plans for the improvement of the Cemetery. The City of Hereford is now selling water to the Santa Fe Railway Company by the wholesale for use in the shops at Amarillo and each day train loads of water are shipped from here. With ideal weather prevailing, Amarillo's Hillcrest Golf Club team battled Hereford's golfers to a finish last Sunday on the local greens and took the Hereford boys six matches to three.

Jogging Popular

TALAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - The jogging craze has spawned a national network of clubs offering runners information, competition, and just plain sociability.

"The growth has been pretty phenomenal," says Jeff Darman of Washington, D.C., president of the Road Runners Club of America. "In the last year we've doubled in size in terms of people. In terms of clubs, we've gone from 60 to 94."

He says the national organization has 16,500 members in 35 states.

Connally Mouths Off About Press

Speaking on a forum sponsored by the Houston Press Club earlier this week John Connally, former Governor of Texas, ex-Cabinet member and maverick sort of aspirant to become President of the United States, has some interesting views on the general subject of freedom and responsibility of news media.

Key observation was that news media of the nation is "a giant financial and influential power center equivalent to the Presidency, the Congress or the Supreme Court." In some respects, he asserted, powers are unique and even less subject to challenge than those vested by the Constitution in either of the three branches of government. That statement borders on the absurd. News media can't put anybody in jail, confiscate property or sequester a portion of anybody's earnings.

He is quoted as saying that what amounts to privileged status should be altered and the news industry, as he termed it, subjected to scrutiny by the government and be required to observe the same rules and the same monopoly aspects as other industries.

Effect of changes Mr. Connally seems to believe ought to be made involve freedom of the press, as traditionally understood in this country. Many nations, including some behind the iron curtain in Eastern Europe, have a kind of press freedom. But only in the United States, Britain and British Commonwealth countries is news reporting totally free of government control.

The kind of scrutiny Mr. Connally feels should be imposed on the news media was not spelled out in published reports of his address. But it would have to be a function of government. This would mean, of course, an end of press freedom in any real sense of the term. When power to regulate, scrutinize or whatever, becomes public policy it isn't an abstraction or something in a vacuum. Some agency of government must be empowered to exercise it.

There are several misconceptions in Mr. Connally's thinking. One is that what he calls "the news industry" isn't a monolithic thing like the postal service, the government or the telephone company. Its freedom prevents it ever becoming a monopoly. Another is that there can be no freedom of speech without freedom of news media to report what has been said. Actually press freedom is the freedom of the average person to know what goes on in courtrooms, legislative halls, and public gatherings of all kinds.

New Flu Strain Named A-Texas

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A new strain of flu that may become the predominant flu virus in the United States next year has appeared at Lackland Air Force Base here and at Lowry Air Force Base in Colorado, the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said Friday. Spokesman at Lackland confirmed the disease had appeared in the base for two weeks in February. The Texas base had more than 600 cases. Lackland spokesman said. The CDC said 50 cases were reported at Lowry. The virus, identified as A-Texas, was described as an offspring of the A-Hong Kong variety, a flu whose varieties have caused epidemics in the United States since 1968. Lackland spokesman said the Texas strain never reached epidemic proportions at the base and the outbreak was under control by Feb. 24. The strain caused only a mild illness, the CDC said, adding there are indications the A-Victoria vaccine could be effective in immunization against it. The CDC noted, however, there is no indication that the swine flu vaccine, developed for an anticipated outbreak of A-New Jersey virus which never materialized, would be effective against the new Texas strain. Lackland spokesman said there were never more than 159 cases of the new disease at any one time. "At its height the outbreak resulted in 29.7 cases per thousand population per week," a Lackland spokesman said explaining that 100 cases per thousand population is considered an epidemic. Those affected were treated at Wilford-Hall Military Hospital and samples from the hospital were sent to the CDC

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher of his Deaf Smith grass farm on Bootleg Corner takes a backward look at a new proposal in Congress.

Dear editor: According to an article I read last night in a copy of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal which I'd been saving to start a fire with in my fireplace, you know, everybody has his favorite newspaper, some like the Avalanche-Journal, some like the Amarillo Globe-News, but I'm neutral, I've found both are first rate for starting a fire and neither is any good if the kindling is wet, anyway, to get on with this sentence, according to the article I read Congress is considering a proposal to require people to insulate their homes.

The purpose is to get a more efficient use of energy, to make us efficient whether it's our nature or not. There are going to be some problems.

For instance, I know a man who said he tried to insulate his house but the wind kept blowing the stuff out through the cracks in the walls. Another man said insulation saves energy all right and the argument by the government that insulation will save enough fuel to pay for itself may be true, but his house is insulated from top to bottom and he still can't pay his fuel bill.

Obviously, homes ought to be insulated, but Congress is going to run into some big problems when it sets out to make everybody do it. What it's going to cost to set up the National Insulation Bureau (NIB) and hire enough people to see that everybody complies, may cost more than the insulation itself, although that won't matter because tax money, unlike energy, is inexhaustible. It'll make good news, too. I can see the headline now in the Hereford Brand: MAN NEAR HEREFORD CAUGHT IN AN UN-INSULATED HOUSE.

It's hard to legislate efficiency, just as it's hard to legislate morality. In fact you can't legislate morality among men, although immoral men can legislate.

Nonetheless, if we can get every home in the nation insulated we'll be on a par with Congress. It's been insulated for years.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Talk of Texas

By Jack Maguire

TEXANS AT LARGE— Because San Antonio once banned Negroes from the Brackenridge Park zoo, the next mayor of New York City may be a black Texan.

He is Percy Ellis Sutton. Today he is a 56-year-old famed trial lawyer, a former NAACP official and one-time Freedom Rider who presently is president of the Borough of Manhattan. This year he hopes to become the first black to be elected mayor of the nation's largest city.

He was born and grew up in San Antonio. And he has never forgotten that his brothers and sisters (he had 14 of them) were banned by law from the city's parks. Negroes were allowed to use the parks, including the zoo at Brackenridge Park, only once a year. That was on June 19 the date on which Texas slaves were freed.

Percy Sutton, like each of the 12 Sutton children who reached maturity, got a college education. And Percy, who still remembers San Antonio with nostalgia as well as some resentment, decided to live outside of Texas. So did another brother, Oliver, now a New York Supreme Court Justice.

Other members of the family also moved to other states, but some stayed. One brother, the late G.J. Sutton, became the first black from Bexar County to be elected to the Texas Legislature. In 1967, only five years before his election, he was forcibly ejected from the gallery of the Texas House when he protested a bill supporting segregation.

When Rep. Sutton died in 1976, Gov. Dolph Briscoe delivered a eulogy and more than 3,000 people of all colors came from throughout Texas for his funeral. His widow, Mrs. Lou Nelle Sutton, was elected to replace him without opposition.

HELLO, CENTRAL— Cieburne, Johnson County, got the state's first automatic telephone exchange in 1903.

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY— Cabeza de Vaca, the Spanish explorer, discovered cotton growing wild when he was shipwrecked near Galveston Island in 1530. It has been a staple crop in Texas since.

Missionaries and settlers who followed the Spanish explorers harvested the cotton and turned it into warm, if crude, clothing. In 1821, Col. J.E. Groce, one of Stephen F. Austin's original settlers, introduced the first domestic cotton into Texas.

Groce also was the first to use Eli Whitney's 1793 invention, the gin, to eliminate the tedious job of removing cotton fibers by hand. In 1822, John Cartwright built the first commercial gin at Patroon, in Shelby County.

By 1850 Texas was producing 500,000 bales annually and had become the center of the U.S. cotton industry. In recent years, however, the introduction of synthetic fibers and rising production costs have reduced cotton to second place in Texas agriculture. Grain sorghum now is the principal crop.

GHOST TOWN— Only an historical marker and a few building foundations mark the site today of Port Sullivan, once a thriving Brazos River port in Milam County.

Founded in 1838, Port Sullivan grew to a population of more than 1,400 by 1870 and boasted a college and other amenities. The next year, however, the railroad by-passed the town. By 1880, its population had dwindled to 150 and today it's a ghost town.

Cougars Triumph

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Houston fired a two-over par team total of 290 Saturday to cling to a one stroke lead over defending champion Oklahoma State after two rounds of the Morris Williams Intercollegiate golf tournament.

The Cougars, who shot a sizzling 15-under-par on the first day, registered a two-day total of 563, while Oklahoma State recorded a three-under 285 Saturday for 564.

North Carolina, Marquette Win NCAA Playoff Games

ATLANTA (AP)—Basketball purists might claim some kind of victory over the so-called "outlaws" after the semifinals of the NCAA Tournament Saturday.

Two teams with classic college basketball styles beat two others of less traditional leanings; however it could have gone either way.

Patient, deliberate Marquette nipped North Carolina-Charlotte 51-49 and consistently cool North Carolina edged Nevada-Las Vegas 84-83 in back-to-back thrillers at the Omni to advance to Monday night's NCAA final.

The first game was a typical Marquette show-low-scoring and high tension. The Warriors needed all the patience they could muster to beat a team that seemed to have more all-around talent.

Charlotte baffled basketball strategists by using its 6-foot-8 center to bring the ball up court. But even Cornbread Maxwell couldn't do everything against the mistake-proof Warriors.

"We might have been a little tight," said Maxwell, whom Charlotte Coach Lee Rose calls the best all-around college basketball player in the country. Both teams, in fact, were tight at the beginning. The first five minutes of the opener was no more than a sparring match. Points were at a minimum until Marquette took charge behind center Jerome Whitehead and ran up a 23-9 lead.

At this point, the highly vocal 16,086 spectators sensed that an execution was in progress.

Al McGuire apparently agreed with them because at this stage the Marquette coach attempted to put the 49ers away with his offensive team.

McGuire inserted Bernard Toone into the lineup with the hope that his best shooter could bomb out Charlotte with his long-range gunning. Toone did make his first attempt, but things turned around quickly for Marquette after that.

The inconsistent, young forward not only couldn't get open for shots, but he appeared to hurt the Warriors with some erratic play. All of a sudden it was a close game at the half, 25-22 in favor of Marquette.

In spite of the mere three-point deficit, Rose was deeply disappointed with his team's first-half showing.

"I think we came to Atlanta to play our worst half of the year," he said afterward. "For some reason we were very uptight at first. We shot two or three airballs at first. The tremendous accomplishment it took to get here... Maybe it was just overwhelming."

But the 49ers, Cinderella team of the tournament, showed in the second half that they had some substance after all. Maxwell, apparently more relaxed, was his usual ubiquitous self. Lew Massey was just a pain in the neck for Marquette as he hit key baskets time and time again.

A game of fluctuations, this one rocked back and forth until a dramatic basket by Whitehead pulled it out for the Warriors at the buzzer.

With the score tied at 49-49 and three seconds to play, Butch Lee laughed a full-court pass that caromed off the hands of both Maxwell and Marquette's Bo Ellis. Then it took a lucky bounce for Marquette, settling into Whitehead's hands after a mad scramble, and the 6-foot-10 center stuffed it home as time ran out.

Nonetheless, Marquette had several anxious moments before it could claim the victory. Referee Paul Galvin had not heard the game-ending horn and was forced to get the official word from timer Larry Carter, who informed Galvin that the ball indeed had left Whitehead's hands before the buzzer sounded.

"I really couldn't hear the horn," said Whitehead, who had carried the day for Marquette with 21 points and 16 rebounds. "There was too much noise. My mind was blank. All I was thinking about was getting the ball and putting it in."

The disconsolate Maxwell was more succinct. "It was good," he said of the call.

The nerve-wrenching first game was a tough act to follow, but North Carolina and Las Vegas came close.

The first half wasn't all it could have been, as North Carolina had trouble holding on to the ball and the aptly nick-named Runnin' Rebels held an eight-point lead much of the time.

Kansas Dominates Dallas Track Meet

DALLAS (AP)—Kansas dominated the field events and slogged to victory in the 440-yard relay and Texas-El Paso Olympian Patrick Adaba lost a gamble in the pole vault to give the Jayhawks the team victory at the rain-soaked Dallas Invitational Track Meet Saturday.

The Jayhawks led UTEP only 93-91 with two events left, but Adaba, who finished fourth in the Montreal Olympics, passed to 15 feet, 9 inches and then missed three times at the height to fall out of the competition.

Kansas vaulter Ted Scales then managed a third in the event.

King Uses Drop Shots For Cup

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Billie Jean King, relying on a number of drop shots as well as her all-around experience, defeated Mary Hamm 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 to win the McFarlin Cup women's tennis tournament Saturday in her first singles appearance since last year.

King, who underwent knee surgery last October, pocketed $3,000 for the victory. Miss Hamm, from San Antonio, playing in her first finals as a pro, earned $2,000 for the runnerup spot.

"This tournament is a new beginning for me," Mrs. King said. "I've started a new life. I've grown up this week."

She added, "I've now decided to get back in 100 per cent shape. I'm so happy to play again. When you're lying in a hospital bed, you wonder if you'll ever walk again."

The tournament was switched indoors Saturday because of thunderstorms here. The players both admitted to having trouble adjusting to the new setting, especially with their service tosses.

Food, Fiber Close-at-Hand

You can depend on a fresh, close-at-hand supply of food and fiber the year round in Texas. Each year, an increasing portion of the two and one half tons of food consumed by you and your family is being produced within this state where each farmer can now grow enough to feed himself and 52 others. That's a big increase over 30 years ago when the average farmer produced enough food and fiber to supply ten people, according to Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

Magnesium Essential For Cells

COLLEGE STATION—Magnesium—essential for all living cells and controlled by the kidneys—serves as a catalyst for many biologic reactions, Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist says. "The recommended daily dietary allowance of magnesium is 400 milligrams for men and 300 milligrams for women. During pregnancy and lactation the need increases to 450 milligrams," she added. Miss Haggard is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System. Dairy products furnish about 22 per cent of the total intake of magnesium in the United States. Another 18 per cent comes from flour and cereal products, the specialist said. "Other good sources of magnesium are dry beans and peas, soybeans, nuts and green leaf vegetables," she added.

The role of magnesium in human nutrition has only come to light during the past decade—and the first deficiency of magnesium in the human diet was evidenced in a small number of patients in 1934, Miss Haggard said. "Magnesium deficiencies are not likely to occur under normal health conditions. But if a deficiency occurs, it is generally due to a reduced food intake, poor absorption or both," she said.

Singers Seek Items For April 30 Sale

Hereford Chamber Singers are asking local residents to rummage through their closets and attics and contribute unwanted items for a White Elephant Sale on April 30.

Sale proceeds will be used to defray freight expenses in transporting the Chamber Singers' equipment this summer when the group will travel overseas to Romania. Each member of the local choir will assume individual traveling expenses, but funds are needed for cargo fees.

Items contributed to the upcoming sale are tax-deductible and merchants, as well as individuals, are asked to donate sale articles. These "white elephants" may be brought to 710 Lee after 5 p.m. or this merchandise will be collected by contacting Rose Ann Smith at 364-4085, also after 5 p.m.

The Singers are seeking items that are in good condition, including baby clothing, kitchen utensils, books, pictures, artwork and crafts. Dr. Duffy McBrayer is finance chairman for the Singers' trip abroad. Mrs. Smith is directing the April 30th sale.

The White Elephant Sale will follow a country fair theme, with sandwiches, beverages and entertainment to be provided throughout the day. A site for the sale and auction has not yet been obtained.

Other fund-raising projects being conducted by the Chamber choir include balloon sales each weekend at Sugarland Mall and Downtown Hereford.

Bill Devers is founder and director of the Chamber Singers.

Easter Egg Cooking Tips

Gaily colored Texas eggs are a traditional part of every Easter holiday, and after the excitement of dyeing and collecting them Easter morning is all over, they can easily be used in a variety of nutritious, economical dishes for the entire family.

With a little planning and careful preparation, hard-cooked eggs will come out perfect every time. Texas Department of Agriculture egg specialists recommend the following:

First of all, properly cooked eggs are hard-cooked, not "hard-boiled." Place the eggs in a pan with water at least one inch above the eggs. Bring to a rapid boil and cover with lid. Remove from the heat source and let them stand for 15 minutes.

A small hole drilled or punched through the large end of the egg shell prior to cooking will prevent cracking.

To prevent discoloration of yolks when cooking eggs, plunge the eggs into cold water immediately after cooking.

If the shells are difficult to remove, chances are the eggs used were too fresh. It is best to buy the eggs several days ahead and store them in the refrigerator. As eggs are stored, they lose carbon dioxide and become easier to peel when hard cooked.

Trio Performs 'Gypsy' For Study Club, Guests

A standing ovation was the accolade given to Jane Gulley, Meredith Wilcox and Jan Walser who presented an entertaining program Thursday night to members of Calliopian Study Club. Kathlee Palmer was hostess in her home, 149 Liveoak.

It was Guest Night for the study club and 16 visitors were in attendance for the musical biography of Gypsy Rose Lee. Mrs. Gulley vocalized hit songs from the Broadway musical "Gypsy" while Mrs. Walser accompanied at the piano. Complementing the musical portion of the program was Mrs. Wilcox's narrative on the life of the famous entertainer. Adding theatrical atmosphere to the performance was an intermission and a warm response from the audience. Silver pieces appointed the serving table where strawberry shortcake was offered to guests. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Ansel McDowell, Sue James and Virginia Holmes. The Palmer home was decorated in a spring motif.

Guests included Mmes. Ted Panciera, John Claypool, Duffy McBrayer, Gene Streun, Warren Jorde, James W. Witherspoon, Fred Alston, Bill Gilleland and William B. Smith.

Other guests were Sister Audy Bustamante, Kathryn Acton, Dorothy Noland, Linda Gilbert, Leona Kimball, Mrs. Kit Sanders and Francie Farr. Calliopian members attending were Mmes. Paul Coneway,

The next club meeting is scheduled in the home of Mrs. Clyde Cave on April 14.

TOO MANY JOBS SPOIL THE CHANCES
NEW YORK (AP) — Why didn't you get that job you applied for?

The No. 1 reason why job applicants are turned down is having had too many previous jobs, according to a survey of the member employment agencies of National Personnel Associates, a management-level recruiting network.

"Diversified experience is an asset, and a too-long stay at a job without progress is a liability," says Charles W. Marks, executive director. "Yet a history of rapid change without rapid career advancement makes employers wary."

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS FARLEY ...enjoy revival of ballroom dancing

Ballroom Dances Embraced By Club

Interest in ballroom dancing is mushrooming locally after a lengthy dearth of graceful movements on the dance floor, according to Lewis Larymore, owner of Larymore Studio. At the encouragement of the local dance instructor, a new cotillion club has formed, involving approximately 40 Hereford residents. The purpose of the club is to promote better dancing within a genteel atmosphere.

"We have gone through a period where people do as they want on the dance floor and the music was terrible," Larymore stated. "It has been at least 15 years since good dancing has been done."

"The music of Elvis Presley and the Beatles is not danceable," according to the 67 year old choreographer. Members of the new club practice all types of formal dances including Latin steps such as the tango, rumba, cha-cha and samba. Other dances performed by the Larymore group are waltzes, the jitterbug and fox trot, German polkas and Western dancing.

Larymore opined, "Dancing is a kind of communication with one's partner. The more you know about it (dancing) the better one can communicate." The newly initiated dancing assemblies once a month at the Larymore Studio where they have adequate space for round dances. Offices are Lynn Arnold, president; Mrs. Ken McLain, vice president, and Alma Scott secretary.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I used to be a nice person. Ask anyone. I was giving, loving and sharing. Then the children came along and I realized a woman who was giving, loving, and sharing could end up with a drawer full of dirty pantyhose, a broken stereo and a wet toothbrush every morning. Also a camera with sand in it, a blouse that died from acute perspiration, a library book with a bent back, a sleeping bag with a broken zipper, a tennis racket with a cracked frame, and a transistor that "just went dead when it hit the pavement." For awhile, I had a closet that enjoyed more traffic than a discount house on Mother's Day. One day, I wandered in to see three kids picking and choosing. "May I help you?" I asked stiffly. "No, I'm just browsing," said my son. "Where's the luggage?" "We've moved it to the annex," I snapped. "Will you get out of here?" "Mom!" moved it to the annex," I snapped. "Will you get out of here?" "Mom!" said my daughter, "you've got to learn to share." "Share! You saw what happened to my car when I shared." "What did I do to your car?" asked my son. "I'll tell you what you did to it. You left the radio up so loud that when I got in and turned on the motor, the noise struck me sterile. I still have swelling in my teeth. Not only that, the car smells like a gym before showers." "You told me to bring my gym clothes home." "I didn't tell you to keep the car windows rolled up when you did." "Mom," asked my daughter, "Can I borrow this sweater? You can borrow any of mine you like." "Then why don't you wear your own?" I asked. "They're all dirty." "Why would I borrow a dirty sweater?" "You never go anyplace to wear a clean one." "Hold it," I said to my son. "What did you do with the binoculars you borrowed for the game last week?" "They're in my room." "Why don't you put them back where you got them?" "Why?" he shrugged. "Why would you want to hang on to a pair of broken binoculars?" "They weren't broken when you borrowed them." "You buy cheap, Mom, and you pay for it in the long run." As I slumped down in the closet, I heard my daughter say, "Mom's so selfish. It's hard to believe she wasn't an only child!"

Fad Foods Fought

Nutritionists will fight food fads and wonder foods in March-to celebrate March, Nutrition Month, according to Joyce Shipp, Deaf Smith County Extension agent. The theme "Nutrition Foodway to Fun and Fitness" emphasizes the need for good nutrition and weight control obtained from eating a balanced diet according to individual food needs.

"Faddism and nutrition nonsense have created a major public health problem, with Americans squandering $2 billion on food fads," the agent reported.

"These people are fooled, because they don't know-or won't accept scientific facts about foods and nutrition," she challenged.

She cited "ignorance, indifference and fear" as the major factors that contribute to the situation.

"Victims are persuaded that 'health foods, wonder diets, or super pills' can produce magical results," she continued.

"These people accept false promises of the quick and believe they can regain 'youth vigor and charm'-or 'lose ugly fat, no counting of calories, no exercise'."

"And they believe claims, such as those for having 'nerves soothed while miraculously being cured of whatever ails' them," the agent added.

Mrs. Shipp termed food fads dangerous for several reasons.

"Food fads and nutrition quackery are dangerous because essential nutrients may be lacking from the fad diet-malnutrition could result."

"Instead, a variety of foods will produce a wholesome diet." "Also, children following a fad diet may not get the nutrients they need for growth and development."

"In addition, attention to a serious ailment may be delayed while a fad diet is attempted. And faddish foods and treatments are always expensive," she added.

"You can learn to separate fact from fiction by learning the basics of good nutrition. Read materials about nutrition obtained from the government, universities, Extension services and accepted nutrition organizations," she concluded.

Food Additives Studied By Agent

Despite recent consumer concern, food additives are necessary to furnish the entire nation quality food, according to Joyce Shipp Deaf Smith County Extension agent.

"Before a processor can use an additive, he must present information to the Food and Drug Administration."

"As such, he shows a particular additive will accomplish its intended effect in food--and that the amount used doesn't exceed what's reasonably necessary."

Spices, natural and synthetic flavors, such as liquid derivatives of onion, garlic, cloves and peppermint, make up the largest group of additives--flavoring and coloring agents, the agent continued, discussing various additives.

"Stabilizers, on the other hand, prevent oxidation and spoilage of food."

"For years, people have used salt, sugar, vinegar, heat, freezing, smoke and spices to prevent or delay spoilage. Modern developments brought preservatives such as antioxidants, mold inhibitors and fungicides on the scene."

"Without such antioxidants as BHA and BHT, baked goods and other foods using oils and fats--would turn rancid in a short time."

Another group of additives, non-nutritive sweeteners, are sugar substitutes, the agent said. They're used in foods intended for people who can't tolerate sugar.

Certain additives actually alter food quality.

"For example, bleaching and maturing agents speed up the aging process of wheat--improving bread-making quality of flour."

"Freshly milled flour," she explained, "is yellowish in color and makes poor quality bread."

Although they don't improve eating quality, colors play very important roles.

"People become accustomed to a food being a certain color--and refuse to eat it if it looks too pale."

Additives have other uses besides those mentioned, the agent added.

"These include hardening, drying, firming, crisping, anti-sticking, whipping, creaming and sterilizing."

Quilting Renewal Sparks Interest in Old Artforms

COLLEGE STATION--Quilting in the United States is enjoying renewed interest as the nation begins its third century. This art in America mingles a rich international heritage from the ancient past with today's technology and creative freedom--to produce heirlooms for the future.

Today's quilt combines two arts--patchwork and quilting.

Patchwork pieces a variety of fabrics together, or lays one patch upon another. Quilting fastens layers of cloth together in a manner that will firmly secure a loose material spread between them.

Patchwork--to adorn-- requires some artistic ability. Quilting--to protect from cold--requires skill in handling a needle. Combining both for a pleasing, satisfactory product requires particular skill and patience.

Accurate dates for quilting beginnings do not exist, so we must turn to folklore and other sources for a hint. Spinning and weaving, the first steps, are noted in the Bible as inventions of Naa-mah, a sister of Tubal Cain. The Chinese record says the Lady of SiLong invented the loom in 2640 B.C.

Tomb treasures from Egypt prove the Egyptian ancient manufacturing and textile-coloring abilities. One of the oldest patchwork examples is a piece of a canopy or pall used for an Egyptian queen about the year 960 B.C. It is made of gazelle hide in bright pink, deep golden yellow, pale primrose, bluish green, and pale blue laid in a formal design of lotus flowers, cartouches (scroll-like designs), scarabaeus (black beetle) and other forms.

Today's artform still reflects those early beginnings.

Guidlines Can Improve Child's Public Behavior

COLLEGE STATION—Young children can behave well in public with patient, encouraging guidance of their parents, but it takes time—and repeated experiences—for a youngster to learn how he is expected to behave in different places and situations, Ilene Miller, a family life education specialist, says.

To prevent frayed nerves, threats, tears or temper tantrums during shopping, she suggests several guidelines that go beyond telling a child to "be good."

Mrs. Miller is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

She says that a "be good" type of guidance does not tell the child much.

"Remind your child before you enter the store what is expected of him. For example, explain that there is to be no running up and down the aisles, that he is to sit in the cart or help you push the cart while you are in the grocery store."

"Also, give the child a job while you are shopping. For instance, your youngster could look for some familiar items such as milk, eggs or apples as both of you make your rounds up and down the store aisles."

On misbehavior, Mrs. Miller cautioned against pleading, threatening or bribing tactics.

"If your youngster runs off, drops or breaks something, simply pick the child up and calmly put him in the cart or take his hand and guide him in the direction you want to go. It is not necessary to plead with the child. Just take the initiative and move the child without losing your temper."

"Also, instead of bribing your little one with a soft drink, candy or some other sweet, be firm. Without yelling, let your child know in a firm, quiet voice that he is not going to get chewing gum, candy or other such items."

"Finally, tell your child you will have to take him to the car or take him home if he continues to misbehave—then follow through with your promise. It may be inconvenient, but the experience will probably teach your child a very valuable lesson. He will learn quickly that when his parents say something, they mean it."

Mrs. Miller said repeated experiences, praise and encouragement—and consistent parental behavior—are the keys to helping children learn appropriate behavior in public.

MONDAY - TUESDAY - WEDNESDAY

DOWNTOWN & SUGARLAND MALL

Joyce's Journal

BY JOYCE SHIPP
Deaf Smith County
Extension Agent

H.D. COUNCIL MEETS MONDAY

Members of the Deaf Smith County Home Demonstration Council will meet Monday, at 2 p.m. in the County Courtroom. All members are urged to be present at this meeting. Please note the change in time!

BUYING LUGGAGE

Luggage buying time may be "now"---if you will need luggage this summer. Before shopping consider the type of luggage that will best meet your needs--hard-sided molded luggage or soft-sided. Generally, molded luggage is stronger and more durable, but the soft-sided is lighter, sometimes less expensive and allows room for "just one more item".

As you shop use the following guidelines--taking time to examine and compare several luggage styles, prices and features. Test the latches or zippers. Be sure they operate easily. Also, check for keys and locks, and be sure they are easy to use. Examine the workmanship inside and out--look for straight, even stitching, staples, rivets and bolts that are firmly attached. Make sure there are no sharp edges.

Decide on the size according to the capacity needed and the strength of the person who will carry it. It may be better to combine a small suitcase with a garment bag, instead of choosing one large suitcase. Wheels are becoming more popular and are a great convenience on a heavy suitcase, so consider them. Check the feel of the handle--for comfort and balance.

Be sure to examine the suitcase you buy, not a floor sample. Also remember that some discount stores may offer an even lower price than the sale price at a luggage shop or department store.

undiluted, as a sauce over meatballs or with quick-cooking rice to make Spanish rice.

--Melt processed cheese over asparagus or broccoli, or blend cheese with a white sauce (seasoned with a little mustard; and serve on toast or crackers.

--Form canned corned beef hash into patties, top with a slice of pineapple, and grill.

--Combine ground meat, tuna, cut-up cooked chicken or ham, dried beef, or frankfurters with canned macaroni and cheese or with spaghetti in tomato sauce. Bake to blend the flavors.

--Add chopped onion and green pepper to tuna or chicken and combine with condensed chicken soup, undiluted. Top with an unbaked baking powder biscuit and bake until heated through or biscuit is brown.

Use the oven to make cooking easier. As a rule, food in the oven takes less watching than food on top of the range--often an entire meal can be cooked at the same time.

If you have a freezer or a frozen food compartment in your refrigerator, keep commercially frozen food on hand or freeze your own food--uncooked or cooked--for later use.

Shortcuts in serving save time and energy, too. If setting a table for one or two seems too much trouble, look for ways to make eating time comfortable and interesting--with the least possible effort.

Use pretty placemats--they're less bother than a tablecloth. Lightweight trays in convenient sizes are step-saving. Use a tray to collect silver, food, and other things that go on the table. A cart or small table, mounted on casters, is another worksaver.

Or, put a mat on a tray and serve the meal on a tray. Meals on trays can be carried to a table or chair by the window, by television, or out on the porch or lawn where you are more likely to eat slowly and enjoy your meal.

JAPANESE COLLECTION TOKYO (AP) -- A collection of Japanese No robes and masks rarely displayed even in museums will be shown for the first time in the United States from April to September 1977. The 145 objects will be displayed at the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C., Japan House Gallery, New York and the Kimbell Art Museum, Ft. Worth, Tex.

"The Tokugawa Collection: No Robes and Masks" is part of the collection of the Tokugawa Museum, opened in 1935 by the 19th lord of Owari, Yochichika Tokugawa, a direct descendant of the first shogun, Ieyasu Tokugawa. The museum houses the largest private collection of Japanese art in the world.

IDENTIFIED FLYING OBJECTS COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) -- There were 1,117 man-made objects in space at the end of 1976, according to the North American Air Defense Command.

The number of satellites and pieces of debris from fragmented rocket bodies is up from the 1975 record of 929 objects.

Montreal has built acres of shopping centers beneath its streets.

OLDER PERSONS MAY SAVE TIME

Kitchen shortcuts help senior citizens save time and energy when cooking.

Many older people work with various projects and need to budget their time and energy. Others may have physical problems that require energy conservation and limited activity. Using shortcuts makes cooking easier.

Easy-to-prepare frozen dinners and canned or frozen dishes and vegetables can give good nutritional value for the little time and energy needed to prepare them. Serve with fruit or juices, milk, and fresh or frozen baked goods to make a complete meal.

Meal preparation is less tiring when some of the food is partly or fully prepared in advance. For instance, make dry mixes for quick breads, cakes, and puddings ahead of time. They keep well and can be measured out and used conveniently.

Another time-saver is to combine canned or packaged foods with other foods to make easy-to-cook appetizing dishes.

Here are some combinations that can be changed to suit foods on hand:

--Use canned tomato soup,

Area farmers were visibly delighted when it became apparent that for the first time in far too long, a farmer would be occupying the White House.

AND WITH THE subsequent appointment of Bob Bergland as the Carter administration's Secretary of Agriculture, farmers were virtually assured of a sympathetic ear in Washington.

Here, at last, was a Secretary of Agriculture who was engaged in agriculture himself, and knew the farmer's problems firsthand. With a President in office who was known to get mud on his boots from the Georgia peanut fields on occasion, it was reasonable to assume that things would be getting better for the farmer.

Having two men in high office who were fairly knowledgeable about the status of today's agriculture, gave some room for optimism concerning the farm program to be implemented by the new administration.

With the outlining of a four year farm bill Wednesday by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, it seems that the hopes for better things down on the farm weren't really that well-founded after all.

I DON'T KNOW just what caused the apparent drastic turnaround in the attitude of the President toward target prices and loan rates for agriculture commodities.

There was talk of support prices equal to at least the cost of production back during the campaign days in August. And it was reasonable to believe that the new ag secretary would go to bat for what farmers must have to continue producing.

But there was a top level meeting at the White House on Tuesday of the past week, and the secretary of state and some other high-ups were called in to have their say on what they felt the farmer should get.

And after that session, the ambitious target prices and loan levels sought for agriculture had pretty well been scrapped.

I CAN'T SAY for certain if there was a sellout, but I am truly disappointed in what the administration has proposed in the way of a farm bill, particularly when the backgrounds of the President and the agriculture secretary are taken into consideration.

With the announcement of the proposed farm bill, the administration has practically stated that the American farmer and his family are not entitled to enough return on their investments to make a living.

Under the administration's bill, the new wheat target price would be $2.60 per bushel, compared to the current $2.47 per bushel, and the loan rate, which wheat growers hoped would be upped to $3, has been proposed at $2.25 per bushel, the same level at which it now rests.

The corn loan would go up to $2 next year under the proposed farm bill, as compared to the present loan of $1.50 per bushel, and the target price would rise only five cents from its present level to $1.75 per bushel.

THE PROPOSED TARGET prices are frightfully inadequate. Wheat production costs in the High Plains area alone for 1977 have been projected at $3.87 per bushel for dryland wheat and $4.10 per bushel for irrigated wheat, according to the Texas A&M Extension Service.

Our local area was represented by four Hereford men who met with Congressman George Mahon back in November, shortly after the elections, and gave him recommendations on target prices and loan rates which were necessary simply to meet today's costs of production. These recommendations were later forwarded to the administration.

Land cost was included as a major item in the cost of production figures which were presented at that time, a cost which is excluded in most USDA compilations.

The production costs for various crops estimated for 1976 included: grain sorghum, 4.45 per cwt; corn, $4.54 per cwt.; and wheat, $3.67 per bushel.

THOSE PRODUCTION costs continued to rise after the group of local men presented their figures, but even if they are now too low, they help to clearly illustrate the wide disparity between the target prices needed and those which have been proposed.

Thankfully, the proposed farm bill is not law, and Secretary Bergland has already admitted that he would not vote for the farm bill which was presented this week.

The Senate and House agricultural committees will get a shot at the farm bill, and members of the committees are already indicating that they feel the support prices are too low, and that the administration's proposed farm bill has little chance of passage.

This being the case, there is a chance that an equitable farm bill might still be hammered out. Keeping our own representatives aware of our feelings on this matter is a good idea, and dropping a few lines to the President might even help to bring him around.

THE ADMINISTRATION IS still in its early days, and I don't think we can totally condemn the President for one case of poor judgement, nor completely chastise the ag secretary for going along with his chief.

But we can remind these men that they too are farmers, and as their fellow agriculturalists, we expect better things from them than they have shown us during the past week.

Local Youth Win Honors In FFA Mechanics Meet

Future Farmers of America members from Hereford and Vega captured honors in the district FFA mechanics and welding contest held at the Mid-Continent Campus of Texas State Technical Institute in Amarillo Thursday.

According to David Pruitt of Deaf Smith Rural Electric Cooperative, over 100 vocational agricultural students participated in the contest.

Sponsors for the contest included the Deaf Smith REC, Rita Blanca Electric Co-op, Greenbelt Electric Co-op, North Plains Electric Co-op and Gate City Electric Co-op.

The Vega FFA team took second place honors in the Amarillo district competition.

Dennis Schilling of Hereford was the first place winner in the Amarillo District welding competition.

Other schools represented at the contest included Stratford, Textline, Hedley, Adrian, Damas, Darrrouzett, Mobeetie, White Deer, Quail, Childress, Wellington, Claude and Canyon.

With all the money being generated by agriculture, it's no surprise that Texas agriculture is the single largest multiplier of income in the state, with over $20 billion annually added to the economy from agriculture and related agribusiness, according to Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

A gaucho is a cowboy from Argentina or Uruguay. Like his North American counterpart he has been much romanticized in local stories and songs.

Ag Committee Members Say Carter's Farm Bill Has Little Chance To Pass

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of Agriculture Bob S. Bergland is getting standing ovations from a congressional committee, but unfortunately for the Carter administration that probably won't translate into votes for its farm package proposal.

Members of the Senate and House agriculture committees say Carter's proposals for prices and incomes of grain farmers have little chance of passage because they are too low.

Bergland, a congressman before joining the Carter administration, received standing ovations from the House Agriculture Committee when he arrived Thursday and when he left after testifying for six hours.

Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Tex., appeared to sum up the feelings of Bergland's Democratic friends who said they didn't like the farm bill, but were loyal to Bergland and to Carter: "You know you're just as welcome as if you hadn't come bearing gifts."

The parts of the bill congressmen say probably will pass include cutbacks in the peanut and rice programs, temporary revisions of the disaster-aid program until details of a new one are worked out, a 150 per cent boost in the maximum income support payment and more flexibility in the Food for Peace program.

The proposed price supports to guarantee farmers prices for their crops will run into trouble. Under Carter's proposed supports, wheat farmers would be guaranteed $2.60 a bushel.

The administration's proposed supports for prices, under which the crop is used as collateral in a loan the government would make to farmers when the market is low, would be $2.25 per bushel.

There is authority in the current program for a farmer-controlled reserve of 300 million bushels of wheat. Carter is planning to use that authority and establish the reserve and he has asked that the authority be continued. That proposal met with general approval.

Officials say it would firm up grain prices by taking some of the surplus off the market and help stabilize consumer food prices if prices start to rise.

The existing programs, enacted in 1973, expire Sept. 30.

Economists say they have major effect on the food market.

"We will not endorse anything that wrecks the budget or will price our commodities out of the world market," Bergland said later, adding he expects Congress to pass higher support levels, however.

House Committee Chairman

Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., said the target prices in the bill that ultimately goes back to Carter probably will be much higher. They are geared to production costs and meant to support incomes directly in depressed markets.

But he said "we have to be extraordinarily careful with" the levels of the price-support-in loan rates Carter wants used as a flexible market-control tool geared to the weather. Those rates are normally the price floor.

Beyond that, Foley said he wanted "to carefully study all the trade-offs that are involved here."

His Senate counterpart, Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., said any comment "would be premature and unwise." But in questioning Wednesday, Talmadge said the Carter package "would destroy the target-price and loan rate system" Congress worked out in 1973.

Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., urged farmers not to panic because Carter's support levels "are not going to pass."

Talmadge and Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., introduced the bill to put support levels at $2.91 per bushel of wheat. Committee aides said the Carter alternatives "allow us to be more moderate now" against the demands of some consumer-backed farm groups for greater protection against inflation and low returns.

Bergland got one unqualified approval from among the 65 members he faced in two days. Rep. John W. Jenrette Jr., D-S.C., said, "President Carter did the right thing."

The reaction of Rep. Keith Sebelius, R-Kan., who represents the top wheat-producing district, was typical of Republicans and the farm community:

"We have an agri-tragedy in winter wheat country. We have a farmer in the White House. You yourself are a farmer...I expected more from this administration...What's happened?"

Favorable weather worldwide

Wheat Association Head Blasts Farm Proposals

In a telegram to the White House Thursday, Texas Wheat Producers Association President, Winston Wilson of Quanah, said, "The farm proposals being unveiled by Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland before the Senate Agricultural Committee are totally unacceptable in concept and content to Texas wheat producers. We regret that the administration has effectively removed itself from being a viable force in the development of farm policy and abdicated the job to the Congress with which we will be actively working to protect farm income and assure long-range consumer supplies at reasonable prices."

Similar sentiments were relayed to Secretary Bergland and to all members of the Texas Senatorial and Congressional delegation in Washington. Additionally, the Association official pointed out to the Texas delegation that: "The Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service has projected 1977 wheat production costs in the Texas High Plains at $3.87 cents per bushel for dryland wheat and $4.10 per bushel for irrigated wheat. The Administration farm program being unveiled by Secretary Bergland setting wheat loan rates at $2.25 and target prices at $2.60 will virtually guarantee farmer losses of $1.50 to $2.50 per bushel in billion bushel carryover years such as the current year. The proposed take over and release of all loan grain when prices reach $3.90 would act as a price ceiling and not

If you are one of many parents who found nibbled-on candy Easter eggs hidden in the sock drawer long after Easter has come and gone, you may want to try some healthful substitutes in this year's basket.

The Texas Department of Agriculture home economist suggests a bed of Texas pecans or peanuts nesting in one of the small, inexpensive plastic eggs available now. Or a small toy or two tucked into a decorated panty hose container will also be a delightful surprise for your youngster.

Children who have reached the age of nine or 10 who feel they are too old for the traditional Easter Egg hunt - but still want to be in on the holiday fun - will delight in a treasure hunt.

Area Farmers Are Reminded Of Importance Of Soil Management

AMARILLO— Hurricane-force winds and accompanying dust that swept across the Texas Panhandle in late February and March, although not new to the area, did considerable damage to farmlands. Farmers now are faced with the task of recuperating their losses to field erosion and damaged crops.

"The recent dust storms," says Area Agronomist Dr. Frank C. Petr, "may remind us how important it is to properly manage our soil."

Petr, who is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Amarillo, says wind erosion has always been a hazard on arid and semiarid lands during drought cycles.

"The damage," he says, "not only results in at least a partial loss of the current crop, but reduced productivity in future years as well. Other costs resulting from wind and dust movement include rebuilding fences, removing sand from roadways and borrow pits, leveling drifted soil in fields plus sand damage to adjacent crops and buildings."

Preventing or avoiding wind erosion is, of course, the best answer to these problems, he adds. But what should a farmer do when gale force winds begin to cause movement of topsoil?

"The best procedure is to chisel or work the field, leaving ridges perpendicular to the wind direction," the agronomist recommends. "The implement preferably should bring clods to the surface and not pulverize the soil. Disking should be avoided, since over-use of the offset and one-way disc probably contributed to the problem to begin with."

Petr explains that a deep-tillage implement with alternate sweeps or shanks removed usually does the best job of ridging the soil and leaving large clods on the surface. A field cultivator adjusted or set to till weeds will not be a good job of arresting soil blowing, he emphasizes. It pulverizes the soil too much unless at least half of the sweeps are removed.

Widely spaced shovels or chisel points usually do the most effective job in controlling soil movement by wind," Petr adds. "This system can also be used to control wind erosion in wheat fields. By proper spacing (three or four feet), only a small percentage of the wheat is destroyed, and the remaining stand usually compensates for the reduction in plant numbers when conditions return to normal."

Deep sands low in organic matter present a special problem, he notes. Ridging or deep furrows to catch the drifting sand help some. The Extension specialist says feedlot waste has been used successfully for controlling blowing sand in Dallam County. Rates from 5 to 20 tons have been used effectively on knolls and slopes that are most subject to erosion.

"These areas will usually respond well to the feedlot waste, so the practice also serves as a source of fertilizer," Petr says. "Surplus crop residue gleaned from other fields can be applied to blow-spots. The disadvantage of using crop residue is that it may have to be anchored into the soil by cultivation. In terms of its alternative use as livestock feed and cost of stacking, crop residues may be more expensive to use than feedlot waste for erosion control."

He admits these are all short-run temporary measures to alleviate an existing problem. Long range planning is more effective and economical. Petr believes each producer should divide his land into three major categories: land that should not be cultivated due to erosion hazard; land that can be cropped safely with conservation tillage and special erosion control practices; and land that can be conventionally cropped with little or no risk of wind or water erosion.

"Assistance in classifying the soil into such categories can be obtained from the Soil Conservation Service," he adds. "They have information on soil texture,

Seed Firm Pays Judgement

For falsely labeling a shipment of sorghum-sundangrass hybrid seed, a Vega, Tex., seed firm has been found in violation of the Federal Seed Act, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) reports.

The U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas levied a judgment of $150 against the Richardson Seed Company, Vega, for the violation, which involved a shipment of seed into Oklahoma in 1972. USDA seed officials said the shipment was falsely labeled as to the percentage of sorghum-sundangrass hybrid seed.

The Federal Seed Act, a truth-in-labeling law administered by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) is designed to protect farmers and other consumers when they purchase seed shipped in interstate commerce.

Assisting AMS in the investigation was the Oklahoma State Board of Agriculture.

topography, slope and organic matter content which must be considered together in determining wind and water erosion potential."

Petr recommends that land placed in the first category be retired from cultivation and reseeded to either dryland grasses, irrigated perennial grasses or legumes—depending on the availability of water and preference of the producer.

Land in the second category could be farmed, using minimum tillage or stubble mulch tillage and crops not requiring intensive cultivation, including perennial hay production.

"Research work conducted at the Southwestern Great Plains Research Center at Bushland shows that water efficiency is increased when using minimum tillage under irrigation," Petr reports.

"They also found that sweep-tillage which leaves crop residues on the surface conserves more moisture and increases yields compared to conventional tillage for dryland wheat production. Although the cost of using herbicides instead of tillage may be nearly the same, it takes only about 10 percent as much energy to manufacture herbicides as is required by power equipment using fossil fuel for conventional tillage."

He says the land with little or no erosion hazard could then be managed more intensively, thereby maintaining the producer's income and minimizing his risk due to crop losses and excessive cost of restoring land damaged by erosion.

Applicator Certification Program Slated Thursday

Deaf Smith County producers are reminded that certain pesticides will be restricted and available for use legally only by or under the supervision of certified applicators. The classification of certain pesticides as restricted-use pesticides and the requirement for certification are each requirements of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA), as amended, which is scheduled to be fully implemented on October 21, 1977. The law, administered by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), was fully implemented in 1976; however, a 1975 amendment delayed the full implementation.

The Texas Pesticide Control Act although not requiring certification of private applicators, authorizes the Commissioner of Agriculture to establish a program to certify private applicators, on a voluntary basis, who wish to use or supervise the use of restricted-use pesticides in compliance with federal law.

The term "private applicator" means a certified applicator who uses or supervises the use of any pesticide which is classified for restricted use for purposes of producing any agricultural commodity on property owned or rented by him or his employer, or, if applied without compensation other than trading of personal services between producers of agricultural commodities, on the property of another person.

The program established by the Texas Department of Agriculture provides three options for certification of private applicators to include:

- (1) Completion of an approved training program conducted by a qualified institution or training group.
- (2) Submission of a completed questionnaire to the Texas Department of Agriculture following review of self-study material, and
- (3) For emergency situations, a single-product, single-pur-hase, single-use certification available through the Texas Department of Agriculture.

A private applicator certification training program is scheduled for Thursday at the Bull Barn at 7 p.m.

The self-study option is an alternative to participation in a training program. To complete the self-study option the person seeking certification must submit a completed questionnaire to the Texas Department of Agriculture following a review of self-study materials. The self-study materials are available at the county Extension office.

The single-product, single-purchase, single-use certification will be available as restricted-use pesticides are marketed.

The full implementation of the amended Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act is scheduled for October 1977. On this date, barring any changes in the law, producers of agricultural commodities must be certified applicators as a requisite to the use of restricted-use pesticides.

TEXAS SPRING BLOSSOMS—Thousands of peach and citrus trees are bursting into bloom throughout the state, joining Texas wildflowers in a rampage of Spring color, according to the Texas Department of Agriculture. City-dwellers are urged to take advantage of the state's most beautiful season with a drive through the areas in bloom.

Before the steel cable was fashioned, the strongest line available was one made from walrus rawhide, says National Geographic.

During 1975, 15,000 oil tankers called at U.S. ports, says the U.S. Coast Guard. Eighty-five ran aground and six of the accidents caused oil spills.

Panhandle Dry And Windy While Planting Proceeds Downstate

COLLEGE STATION (AP)—Spring planting is making good progress in southern and eastern sections of Texas due to the continued open weather. However, cooler temperatures in recent days will slow seed germination some.

Good planting moisture prevails in most of the eastern half of Texas, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

However, soil moisture is short in western sections and throughout the Plains, and farmers are hoping for some rains in the next 30 days or so to allow them to plant on schedule.

Planting of cotton and sorghums is nearing the halfway point in the Rio Grande Valley and is considerably behind schedule. Planting of sorghum is 75 per cent complete in the Coastal Bend, with cotton planting at 60 per cent. Sorghum planting is active in the Central Texas Blacklands and is becoming active in North Central Texas. Some cotton planting has started in South Central Texas.

Wheat suffers from dry conditions and blowing dust in the Panhandle and South Plains, noted Pfannstiel. Dryland wheat has been particularly damaged by the lack of moisture and blowing sand; many farmers are chiseling their fields in an attempt to keep wind erosion down.

Reports from district extension agents showed the following conditions:

Panhandle: Some fields are being chiseled to reduce wind erosion. Cattle are being moved off wheat fields to allow a grain crop. Most cropland is ready to plant. Onions are being set out in Deaf Smith County.

SOUTH PLAINS: Surface moisture is short but subsoil moisture is only slightly below normal. Irrigation is heavy on wheat and on cropland. Some dryland wheat has been damaged by blowing sand. Onions and potatoes are being planted in a few locations. Ranges are generally below average.

ROLLING PLAINS: Wheat and oats are beginning to joint and look good; however, most fields need moisture. Some wheat is being sold for a graze-out program. Land preparation is active as the spring planting season is approaching. Ranges are average to below average.

NORTH CENTRAL: Corn and sorghum planting is active while preparations continue for cotton, peanuts and soybeans. Small grains make good growth. Grazing conditions are improving. Cattle are in fair shape.

NORTHEAST: Some corn is being planted and vegetable planting continues. Sorghum planting will start soon. Small grains are making excellent growth and providing some grazing. Livestock are in fair to good shape, with calving continuing. Marketing is steady.

FAR WEST: Moisture remains short but subsoil moisture is generally good. Alfalfa, onions and small grains are making good growth. Preplant irrigation on spring cropland is heavy. Livestock feeding is slowing down, but rain is needed.

WEST CENTRAL: Small grains need moisture. Land preparation remains for the spring planting season; farmers are applying herbicides. Grazing on pastures and ranges is average to below average; rain is needed. Lambing and goat shearing are active.

CENTRAL: Sorghum planting is past the 60 per cent mark in southern counties. Soil temperatures are still a little cool for cotton planting. Small grains are making rapid growth, with greenbugs causing some damage. Pastures and ranges are average for this time of the year.

EAST: Planting of corn and vegetables, including peas and beans, is active. Some locations need rain. Livestock are in fair to good condition and a good calf crop is on the ground. Marketing is light. Supplemental feeding is declining.

SOUTHEAST AND UPPER GULF COAST: Corn and sorghum planting is active. Some rice has also been planted, but land preparation is active. Vegetable gardening is in full swing. Forage and livestock conditions are improving. Internal parasites are heavy in some counties.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Corn and sorghum planting is in full swing and is about 80 per cent complete. Some cotton planting has started. Vegetable gardening is active. Pastures and range conditions are below average but are starting to make some growth. Small grains are furnishing good grazing.

SOUTHWEST: Planting of cotton, corn, sorghum and spring vegetables is active. Harvesting of onions and carrots is in full swing, with some spinach also being harvested. Pastures and ranges are improving but need rain, as do small grains. Sheep and goat shearing is active.

COASTAL BEND: Sorghum planting is 75 per cent complete, corn 80 per cent complete and cotton 60 per cent complete. Cucumber planting is nearing completion. Pastures and ranges are improving but could use some rain.

SOUTH: Cotton and sorghum planting is nearing the halfway point in the Rio Grande Valley. Recent drying due to high winds has caused some spotty stands and has caused some farmers to irrigate. Harvesting of carrots and cabbage continues but the citrus harvest is slowing. Melon planting continues. Livestock are still receiving some feed. Producers are burning prickly pear to provide some forage for livestock.

White Accepts Nomination As Under Secretary of Agriculture

AUSTIN—John C. White, Texas Commissioner of Agriculture for 26 years, has left his position to accept the nomination of Deputy U.S. Secretary of Agriculture with the promise, "Texas will always be my home. I'll be back."

White, told reporters recently he planned to stay interested in state agricultural and governmental affairs, adding, "leaving Texas is the hardest personal decision I have ever had to make."

"The challenges presented by President Carter's appointment cannot be ignored," White said. "It is an opportunity to participate in decisions which affect food and fiber production throughout the world."

"My first priority will be to help farmers and ranchers make a living," White added. "You can have all kinds of programs, but if the economy is not good enough, if the farmer can't make a living, then the priorities are all useless."

Asked if he felt the "middleman" could be eliminated as a means to cut food costs, White said the middleman had always been portrayed as the "villain" in the process from production to consumption.

"Investigations have shown that basically the middleman is 'us,'" he said, "the girl at the checkout stand, the young man who carries your groceries to your car, the butcher who cuts your meat, the trucker. Sooner or later, if you cut out the middleman, you are going to have to eliminate the jobs of some of these people."

White stressed instead the need to develop hard markets for agricultural products. "We are going to have to have enough education and leadership so there is some correlation between what that market needs and what we produce," he said.

The cabinet appointment came at mid-point of White's 13th term as Texas

ACCEPTS CABINET POST—John C. White, Texas Commissioner of Agriculture for the past 26 years, has joined President Carter's Cabinet as Deputy U.S. Commissioner of Agriculture. White was sworn into office March 16 following a speedy confirmation by Congress.

Commissioner of Agriculture. He is the sixth man to serve in this post since the office was established by the Legislature in 1907, taking office in January, 1951, at the age of 26. Born on a tenant farm in Clay County, White worked his way through Texas Tech University graduating in 1946 with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Agriculture. During his years of public service, White has been the recipient of many awards and honors from almost every major agricultural organization and farm-related business in his home state, as well as many on the national level.

New Sterile Fly Release Method Being Utilized

A new method of releasing sterile screwworm flies without boxes is being used over the Rio Grande Valley, as well as the Corpus Christi, San Antonio, and Laredo areas.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Screwworm Eradication Program started using free release of chilled flies in these areas during February. All other sections of south Texas are still receiving flies dispersed in boxes, according to Dr. Robert Miller, acting veterinarian in charge of the program.

Supervisory Engineering Technician Vic Blackwelder did much of the work in developing this fly delivery system. Tests indicate this procedure delivers a fly fully as effective as those released in boxes which open as they drift to the ground.

Scientists working with the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service program of USDA have worked for years to develop this idea. They wanted to avoid the expense of boxes and the estimated loss of 10 per cent of the flies when boxed.

In the new procedure, trays of pupae are placed in a warm, dark room. As flies emerge they fly through a small passage to a light in an adjoining cold room. The cold room (35-40 degrees F.) temperature chills the flies to immobility.

The chilled flies are placed in small, wire-mesh enclosed cylinders for handling. Loaded into insulated chests aboard APHIS airplanes, the flies are released from the cylinders at a predetermined rate over the dispersal area in a continuous stream.

They are currently being released at the rate of 2,000 per square mile. The airplanes are delivering the flies on two-mile swath widths.

Screwworm eradication efforts stayed on course as February closed with no positive screwworm samples collected anywhere in the United States so far this year.

Only two other years, 1968 and 1970, in the 15-year history of the Screwworm Eradication Program have gone through both January and February with no screwworms identified in the laboratory.

Dr. M.E. (Cotton) Meadows, Jr., screwworm program director, worries about an apparent lack of sampling by livestock producers. Only nine non-screwworm samples were mailed in the lab in January, and 10 in February.

"There are other worms that look much like screwworms and we should be getting more of them," says Meadows. He urges producers to submit samples of "anything that might possibly be screwworms."

The 1600 Texas livestock producers who attended the "Governor's Conference on Screwworms" in Austin on Feb. 24 were told this is the year screwworms can finally be eradicated from Texas. Slogan for the campaign is "Mission '77—Stamp Out Screwworms."

Governor Dolph Briscoe said: "This is our most crucial year, we either get the job done this spring, summer, and fall, or we lose the program."

Dr. Frank Mulhern, administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, which administers the program, said:

"The Lord has provided us a cold winter and that has reduced infestations thus far in 1977 to zero, and the governments of Texas and the U.S. have provided us the money. It is now up to the individual cattleman in every county to keep check on maggots in open sores and fight as best he can against the screwworm fly. Then the sterile fly program can cover the infestations with flies."

Mulhern said the sterile flies must outnumber native flies by a ratio of at least 10 to one as they are released for the program to be effective.

Lab identification of a fertile female fly trapped in northern Hidalgo County has Mission Lab officials searching hard for any infestations in the vicinity.

Dr. Robert Miller, acting veterinarian in charge of the program, says the female fly was trapped on a ranch northwest of Linn. Lab procedures proved it to be a fertile fly that had mated and possibly oviposited eggs.

"We have no way of knowing if she mated with a sterile or fertile male," explains Miller. "We sure hope it was a sterile mating."

All of south Texas has received sterile flies on a regular schedule this winter. As a precaution, in case there is a screwworm case on or near the ranch, additional sterile flies were dropped in the area.

Four livestock inspectors visited ranches in northern Hidalgo County, alerting ranchers to the possible hazard and searching for any possible screwworm infestation.

POLITICAL ANIMAL

NEW YORK (AP) — The Democratic Party is the oldest political party in the United States. According to The World Book Encyclopedia, the donkey was first used as a political symbol by Andrew Jackson after his opponents called him a "jack-ass" during the 1828 election. By the 1860s cartoons by Thomas Nast and others had established the donkey as the symbol of the Democratic Party.

Special Parts Service To Be Provided Here

Based on the previous year's success in assisting farmer-customers, International Harvester dealer Oglesby Equipment Co., Inc. is again providing special parts and service for area farmers during planting time.

This special company-dealer program, called "Stand-by 7," was first initiated during 1976 Spring planting. Like last year, it is again designed to provide parts service seven days a week. In other words, the dealer and his national parts and service support groups are available week-ends, ready to make any part available just as fast on Saturday or Sunday as it would be on a weekday.

If Oglesby Equipment Co., Inc. doesn't have the needed part in stock, the firm simply phones a special "Stand-by 7" telephone number which features three alternative stock sources. The part will be located regionally, nationally or from the manufacturing plant producing such parts.

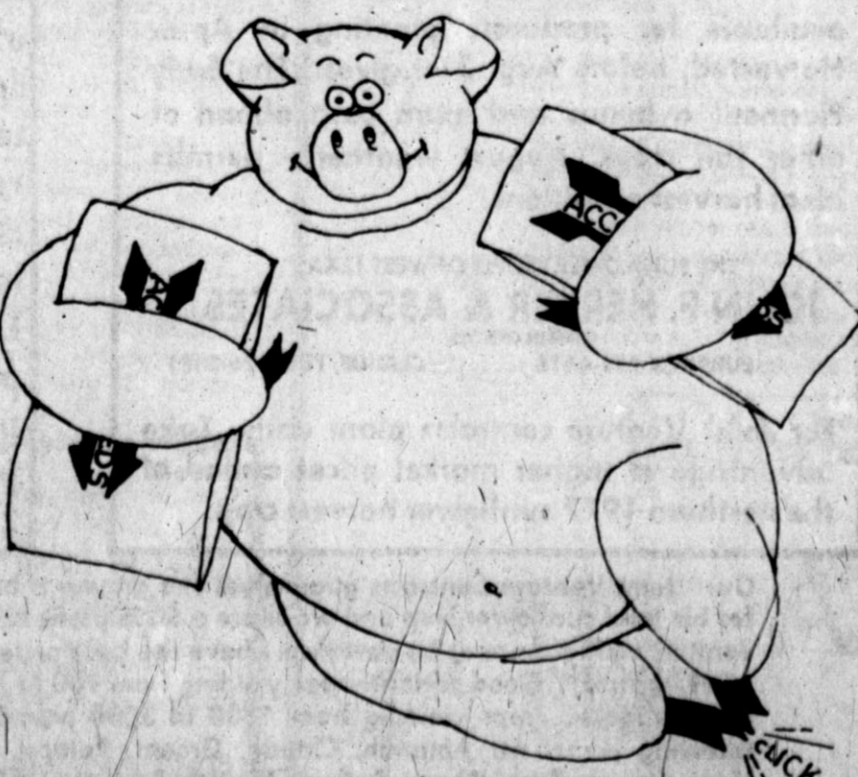

"Like the 1976 program," said Wilbur R. Stringer, manager of IH's Dallas Agricultural Equipment Region which covers this area, "this year's program reflects our opinion that the company and dealers have a mutual obligation to our customers. We must provide them service to keep down-time to a minimum."

Rice May Be Added To Wheat Reserve

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rice, the most important food grain in many parts of the world, may soon be added to the U.S. wheat reserve program.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob S. Bergland tentatively plans to announce the program next week. USDA officials said Wednesday, however, that the government wants a better idea first of what the rice supply situation might be before including it in the reserve program.

The Outlook and Situation Board on Tuesday said it now expects 67.6 million hundredweight of rice to be exported from the record 1976-77 U.S. supply of 154 million hundredweight.

The Foreign Agricultural Service, in a report Wednesday, stood by its Feb. 1 estimate of exports of 48.5 million.

In both cases, however, a second consecutive year of increased surpluses was predicted.

The board projected a smaller carryover and "significantly lower" production this year. The California drought, more exports and increased use of rice by beer brewers were the reasons given.

Worldwide, despite the present surge in demand for cheaper U.S. rice in the wake of damaged People's Republic of China, Burma and India, the of damaged harvest in the People's Republic of China, Burma and India, the FAS foresees trade prospects in 1977 at about the same level as last year.

Bergland, in unveiling the Carter administration's proposals for farm legislation for 1978 through 1982 crops, asked for a rice target price of $6.75 per 100 pounds, down 20 per cent from the current $8.40.

Under last year's $8.25 target price, USDA had to pay out about $135 million in direct payments to growers because the average market price early in the season was only $6.55.

Bergland said he intends to reduce those payments. Putting rice in the farmer-controlled reserve would boost market prices by cutting available supplies.

Rice prices in the market are currently about $6.75 per hundredweight, the board said. Bergland must announce next week whether some rice acreage will be set aside from production.

He has already said he doesn't plan to increase the $6.19 per hundredweight price-support loan rate next week, when he boosts corn and soybean loan rates. Rice stocks between 43 and 47 million hundredweight are expected this July 31.

USDA last week extended the price-support loans for two months it hopes that prices will rise enough by June 30 to reduce the amount of excess rice the government will end up owning from defaults.

Under the reserve plans, excess rice would go under voluntary three-year storage-loan contracts. It would stay off the market until prices reached about $11.75 per hundredweight.

Peach and Citrus Blossoms Are Reminder that Spring is Here

After long, cold windy winter nights, days when warmth of the sun was only a faint memory, when farm chores were a nightmare of slush and icy drizzle, Spring has returned to Texas.

The season on farms and ranches is a return to color. Not the muted blues and grays of Winter, but the vivid pink of peach blossoms in full bloom, the sunny yellow of cotton blooms, and the creamy, soft white of citrus blossoms.

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White urges city dwellers to tour the peach orchard trails in the next few weeks.

"Most of the commercial crop is in the Hill Country, but there are over 800,000 trees of bearing age around the state," he said.

"In the Lower Rio Grande Valley the citrus blossoms are out now, and soon cotton will be in bloom there," White reported.

7,000 Birds Destroyed To Fight Newcastle Disease, Save Poultry

SAN DIEGO (AP) - More than 7,000 birds have been destroyed in an effort to contain Newcastle disease and save the poultry industry, but breeders warn that the program threatens to wipe out whole species of endangered birds.

Although a team of 80 specialists is still hunting the source of the disease, Dr. E.G. Ongert of the U.S. Department of Agriculture said "I think we've stopped it" from going farther.

The virus, which humans cannot contract, has turned up since February in three exotic birds and in a backyard chicken in California. But birds from 40 flocks which were exposed to the virus have been put to death by a task force of state and federal experts. Investigators were led to all 40, Ongert said, by tracing the movement of the birds from suppliers to wholesalers and breeders to local retail stores.

Birds in two Tucson, Ariz., pet stores were destroyed, along with those in three Los Angeles shops, a major aviary in Colton near San Bernardino, a private flock in San Juan Capistrano, a pet store in Garden Grove and dozens throughout San Diego County.

Ongert added that the disease recently was confirmed at one aviary in Virginia and that traced of the virus have been detected in 19 other states.

Lee Horton of Vista in San Diego County, president of the American Federation of Aviculture, says the wholesale killing is senseless.

"We can't stand by and let them slaughter birds only because they are suspect," Horton said, noting that in one collection, 250 birds representing 14 endangered species were destroyed because the disease had been found in one pheasant.

Birds with Newcastle disease shows symptoms of sneezing, coughing and nervousness. Birds fall or twist their necks or become paralyzed.

One effect of the disease usually transmitted from the droppings of an infected bird, is a sharp reduction in egg production. The mortality rate is as high as 90 per cent among young birds.

The program appears to be working but is costing taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars as breeders and farmers are reimbursed for their dead birds.

Efforts to stop a similar epidemic from 1971 to 1974 resulted in the destruction of 12 million birds, mostly chickens, in southern California. The loss at that time was counted at $56 million.

The government pays the owners compensation in an amount set by an independent observer.

In Colton, owner Ed Marlett and his partner at the Bronze Wing Aviary, where a parrot-like Tucanette died of the disease last week, were paid a total of $106,918 for the destruction of 2,091 exotic birds.

In Spring Valley, southeast of San Diego, Russell Cranor got $10,306 for 158 exotic birds and a number of chickens.

"When task forces launched campaigns against hoof and mouth disease, it was possible for the farmers to be paid and begin new cattle herds," said Horton. "The U.S. Department of Agriculture is using the same tactics to destroy birds."

"We are paid market value, but when the species are rare there is no breeding stock. When these birds are gone, they're gone forever."

Improvement, Repair Loans Available

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rural homeowners who can't afford a new home but need to bring their place up to minimum property standards or remove health or safety hazards may be eligible for a loan from USDA's Farmers Home Administration (FmHA).

Eligibility depends on income. If income is so low as to permit only removal of health and safety hazards, a repair loan may be available. For families with somewhat higher income, an improvement loan may be possible to bring the house up to FmHA minimum property standards.

Repair loans are for such things as repairing roofs, providing a sanitary water and waste disposal system, or installing screens, windows, or insulation.

Home improvement loans are used to make changes for the convenience of the family, as well as for bringing the property up to minimum standards.

Terms of the loans vary, depending on family income. Very low income families can borrow up to $5,000. Repayment periods vary with type of loan and are for 10 to 20 years. The interest rate is 1 per cent. Families with somewhat higher incomes can borrow up to $7,000 to bring their property up to standards, and the term is 25 years. Interest is 1 to 3 per cent, depending on the family's adjusted income. Other home improvement loans for higher income families are repayable in 33 years at the regular interest rate, or less, depending on family size and income.

Adjusted income can be determined approximately by adding total income of all adult members of the family who live at home, subtracting 5 per cent, and deducting $300 for each minor child.

People who own and live in a home on a farm, in the open country, or in towns up to 10,000 population may qualify for a loan, if credit cannot be secured from regular commercial lenders. Persons in towns of 10,000 to 20,000 will need advise on whether loans can be made in their town.

For security on loans, a real estate mortgage is required for loans of $2,500 (and sometimes for less). A cosigner is usually sufficient security for a loan of under $2,500 to a low income family.

Applications for loans are made at FmHA county offices. They can be located via the phone directory under U.S. Government - Agriculture.

FmHA also can make loans to build homes, buy existing ones, or to build rental apartments for low income or elderly people. The agency also can loan money to buy or operate family farms, build water and waste disposal systems, or establish community facilities such as fire stations, clinics, or community centers. FmHA guarantees loans to help establish job-producing businesses or industries.

Individuals desiring additional information on the types of assistance available should contact the Farmers Home Administration or the Rural Development Service at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

During Local P&WD Hearings

Waterfowl Biologist Says Trend Is Toward Later Duck, Goose Seasons

BY JIM STEIERT
Brand Outdoor Writer
 A disappointingly small group of local individuals turned out Monday to voice their opinions on fish and game regulations during the public hearing conducted by the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department.

THOSE IN attendance spoke primarily on behalf of a longer-running season on ducks and geese, and one local farmer also proposed a split season on pheasant, with a week of hunting at Thanksgiving and a second week at Christmas. Max Traweck, waterfowl biologist from Canyon, was on hand for the hearings, and told those present that the Parks & Wildlife Department is already doing everything it can to keep the waterfowl season open until the latest possible date. The department still must work within guidelines set forth by the Federal government, however.

The comments of Thurman Atchley, who farms 1 1/2 miles north of the Summerfield community were typical of those made at Monday's hearings.

Atchley indicated that waterfowl caused damage to his irrigated fields, particularly in late January, after the season had already closed, and asked that the opening of the season be delayed thirty days, and those hunting days be allowed to extend into February and possibly March.

"THOSE BIRDS make irrigation difficult, if not impossible, and there have been times when they've forced me to write off up to 15 acres of wheat," said Atchley.

Traweck questioned Atchley about the use of propane noise makers to scare the birds off, and the local farmer indicated he had resorted to the use of noisemakers, lights and every other legal means he could think of to keep the birds driven off.

"They'll work for a night or two, but the birds grow accustomed to them quickly, and then it's the same old problem," he said.

Traweck asked about the nature of depredation caused by geese, and was informed that the geese will graze young wheat plants "right off at the ground."

"If you stay after the geese for two or three days, you can pretty well discourage them from landing in your fields, but ducks will just keep coming back," Atchley stated.

THE LOCAL farmers in attendance explained that they desired a later season to help keep the birds scattered and prevent concentrated depredation.

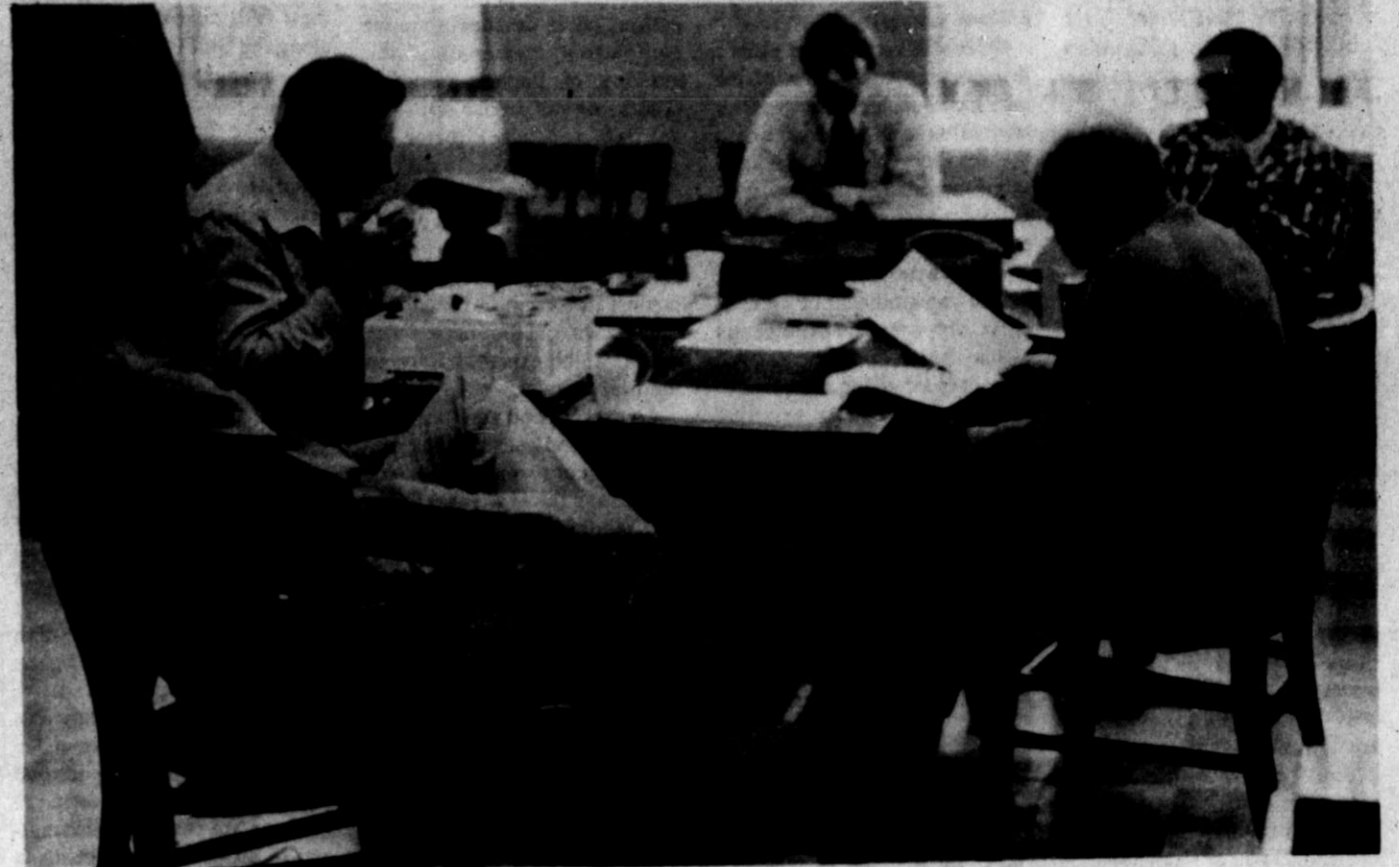

A longer-running season was also called for to give local hunters a better opportunity to harvest waterfowl during their peak winter population here.

Responding to the comments made at the hearing, Traweck explained that local hunters and landowners are simply being outvoted by the Central Flyway's northernmost states, concerning their seasonal preferences.

"The waterfowl population doesn't occur only here, and there are depredation problems all over the country where waterfowl occur," Traweck commented. "The federal government issues proposed opening and closing dates, and a state can open its season no earlier than the proposed date, or close it no later than the proposed date. Texas now follows the policy of selecting the latest possible closing date, then backing up from that date for the number of days allowed in the season to establish the opening date," he added.

THE BIOLOGIST pointed out that some progress might possibly be made on prolonging the season in the future by going through channels in the Central Flyway.

"We might encounter some

White Water Enthusiasts Warned Cold Can Kill

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - On sunny spring days, swift streams offer an inviting call to canoeists and raft drawback, however - cold water kills.

The early spring is generally the most dangerous time of the year for boaters," said Capt. Charles Leising, director of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission's Bureau of Waterways in Harrisburg.

"A sudden immersion in cold water can literally paralyze a person, and death can result in less than 15 minutes. Early spring boating can be a thrilling experience, but it can be extremely dangerous if the boater is not both highly skilled and properly prepared," he added.

The fact has hit home twice this year already.

In the most tragic single accident of its kind on state waters, four young people died on the Perkiomen Creek in southeastern Pennsylvania when their canoe capsized at the base of a 25-foot dam.

Three young men and a 20-year-old girl, boating in 60-degree air temperature, had paddled upstream and become caught in the hydraulic action on the water below. When their 17-foot craft overturned, they were thrust into 30-degree water.

None wore life preservers. State and federal law requires that flotation devices be carried on all boats.

A Cumberland County canoeist also drowned. The five people killed in March equals the number killed during the entire spring season last year.

According to the fish commission, a person who falls into water between 32 and 40 degrees will become totally exhausted or lapse into unconsciousness in 15 to 30 minutes. And that is a maximum time.

"Cold water reduces a person's survival time considerably due to hypothermia, the lowering of the body's core temperature to the point where the vital organs are affected," said Alan MacKay, the Fish Commission's boating information specialist.

MacKay cautioned spring boaters to dress warm and wear wet suits to guard against the cold because streams are so unpredictable.

"There's a big difference between white water streams that are basically that way year round and flood streams that are pumped up to form a big chute," MacKay said.

"Actually most people get in trouble on tributaries that are swollen in the spring. You must know your water and the area that you are on. And this is not the time for beginners to be out," he added.

Some Controversy Raised Over Film On Jesus

NEW YORK (AP) - Complaints from a small, segment have stirred controversy over a forthcoming television drama, "Jesus of Nazareth," which church leaders generally have hailed as sound and inspiring.

"I was brought to tears at least a dozen times by this powerful and graphic film," says the Rev. Paul M. Stevens, head of the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission after viewing the six-hour portrayal of the life of Christ.

However, in advance of its showing Easter week on NBC-TV in two parts, April 3 and 10, a furor developed over General Motors' withdrawal of sponsorship in the face of whipped up protests, even though leading religious figures have commended the work.

Msr. Pietro Rossano, head of the Vatican's Biblical commission says it not only is historically authentic, but attains a "dimension of faith by making the human-divine figure of Jesus speak to men of today."

It will enable viewers to approach the gospels with "a new intelligence and a new vividness," says noted Presbyterian Bible scholar William Barclay of Scotland, who has produced a widely selling book adapted from the film script, published by Collins World in Cleveland and lavishly illustrated with scenes from the film.

A "great film," says William Bright, president of Campus Crusade for Christ. Nevertheless, complains provoked by Faith magazine, a publication linked to fundamen-alist Bob Jones University in South Carolina, brought about 15,000 letters and telephone calls of protest to General Motors, and it withdrew sponsorship, saying commercial participation seemed inappropriate.

However, NBC was going ahead with the film and another company, Procter and Gamble, was reported taking up sponsorship.

Major church representatives, after viewing the film, called attacks on it irresponsible, repressive and factually wrong, saying they had been made without even seeing the film.

The Rev. Dr. William F. Fore, a United Methodist clergyman and top communications executive of the National Council of Churches including major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations, had urged General Motors not to cave in to "the howlings" of misinformation.

He says the film "clearly and Jesus...in a strong, forceful and Biblical manner."

Faith magazine had published a letter from Bob Jones III, head of the South Carolina institution, calling on General Motors to disassociate itself from the film or else "those who love the Lord Jesus Christ" would spend "their automobile dollars elsewhere."

The magazine, claiming published comments of the director of the film showed it was designed to destroy beliefs about Jesus, urged readers to raise a storm of protest.

However, leading Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish advisers helped guide the film, four years in the making.

MASTERS OF CAMERA MADISON, Wis. (AP) - The Elvehjem Art Center is presenting an exhibition of 20th-century American Photography, "Masters of the Camera: Stieglitz, Steichen and Their Successors."

The 167 black and white and 19 color photographs by 33 photographers present a survey ranging from turn-of-the-century salon pictorialism through recent developments in commercial and non-commercial photography. The photographs were selected by Gene Thornton, photography critic for the New York Times.

Satire Added To Seattle Public Affairs Television Programing

SEATTLE (AP) - The red Fiat pulls up in front of the theatre and a frog, dressed in a tuxedo, climbs out. He straightens his white gloves and strolls inside to wait for the performance to begin.

It's Herbert Charles, Seattle's new critic-at-large.

Herbert Charles is the star of a local public affairs program. The trip to the theater in the red Fiat is in Herbert's future - he has big plans for a venture into Seattle's polite society.

"We were looking to add a piece of satire to the program," says the man in the frog suit, Arthur Wicks. He's public affairs director at KING-TV.

"We also thought of putting in some honest social criticism," says Wicks, "and Herbert Charles was the result."

Wicks says he wasn't sure how the combination would be received. He reports public reaction has been positive.

"Herbert made his first appearance Christmas Day, and talked about the topic 'Where is Christmas?' We were afraid some people would think it irreverent, but we didn't receive one bad comment," says Wicks.

So far Herbert Charles has appeared only on television. Problems with the mask have delayed his public debut, but Wicks says the mask now works fine. "Before Herbert couldn't eat or talk properly. But in the future he'll be going to restaurants and the opera."

Herbert lined up a couple of TV talk shows this month and arranged to write a guest editorial in a regional magazine in April.

The idea of using a "frog" as a vehicle for social criticism was dreamed up by Wicks and Walter Simon, who plays Herbert's faithful sidekick, Walter Coles.

"My only part in the show is to hold Herbert's leash. When he gets to carried away, I have to restrain him," says Simon.

"While the performance is tongue-in-cheek, the criticism is serious," says Simon. "I feel TV is not addressing the problems of culture. Herbert Charles is a kind of shock treatment. He takes you unaware-you're not used to hearing a frog talk about culture."

"I'm a rather large man," says Wicks. "And in a mask and tuxedo I present a rather incongruous appearance. A frog giving serious criticism is a funny thing. It's supposed to grab your attention."

"Everything about Herbert

Charles is real, in that his background is my background. I'm a writer, and a critic in my own right," says Wicks. "I'm an actor, too, and when I put on that mask I am Herbert Charles."

Why would a man put on a frog mask just to talk about the theater, sports and cultural institutions?

"It's a gas," says Wicks. "A real gas."

Nutt To Speak At Baptist Church

Humorist, minister Grady Nutt will speak at the First Baptist Church at 7 p.m. Monday, March 28.

It is open to any and all interested persons.

For a man born in Amarillo, Texas, in 1934, a produce of the Great Depression and with the unlikely name of Nutt, entertaining could not be far behind.

At age three, Grady's mama was standing him on a chair to reach the microphone on a Sunday afternoon gospel music radio program, and hauling him to church suppers, ladies' socials and all-day sings at tiny Baptist and Methodist churches.

He learned the hymns so fast that folks in Amarillo considered him a child prodigy. When he was 11, Grady's dad allowed him to attend Vacation Bible School that summer, and Grady soon discovered yet another knack for entertaining.

Two weeks after his 13th birthday, Grady publicly announced his decision to be a minister, and his church licensed him on the spot. By Texas law and Southern Baptist tradition, he could perform marriages!

Averaging more than 200 appearances each year, Grady collects chuckles as conventions, convocations, Chambers of Commerce, church dinners, banquets for salesmen, nurses, farmers, auctioneers, teachers, students, funeral directors, civic-club-members and youth groups.

When Grady is not cross-country speaking, appearing on television, writing, recording albums or narrating films, he pursues his hobbies of photography, cooking, motorcycles and music, and spend quality time with his family.

In his stories and tales, Grady shares his small-town boyhood and adolescence, his growing up in a poor family, a rural school, a small church and his frolic-filled college days in Texas.

While at Baylor University, Grady met his wife-to-be, Eleanor, and they were married at the end of her sophomore year. In 1960, Grady, Eleanor and their two sons, Perry and Toby, moved to Louisville, Kentucky, where Grady began work toward a master of divinity degree at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

After graduation in 1964, Grady served five years as assistant to the president of the seminary. During that period, on a California television show produced by Ralph Edwards, Grady was noticed to talk-show host Mike Douglas. The result was 11 appearances on the Mike Douglas Show.

In 1969, facing an overwhelming number of speaking invitations, Grady decided that the time had come for the born Nutt to wing it as a full-time speaker and entertainer.

Meet Your Educators

Sponsored By Hereford Classroom Teachers Assoc.

"Education must be the process of developing the child's potential. He must be free to 'find himself' in relation to his family, his community, and his world. Since each child is an individual, the teacher's role is to so direct him that his self-image and self-confidence develop maximally in a positive direction," so state Mary B. Carter, teacher of young Trainable Mentally Retarded students at Shirley Elementary School.

Mary has taught in this position for the past 10 years. Her previous experience includes teaching EMR, Pre-school non-English speaking students, second grade, fourth grade, and remedial second grade in Hereford.

Other than in Hereford, Mary has taught in Tulsa, Friona, Amarillo, McAllen, and in Spokane, Washington, and Glendale, Oregon.

After graduating from Hereford High School, Mary received her B.A. from Trinity University, her M.A. from W.T.S.U., and has done graduate work at T.W.U. and Baylor University.

Mary is an active member of TSTA-NEA, CTA, the Presbyterian Church, and Music Study Club.

Texas Industrial Week Set April 1-7

Governor Dolph Briscoe has once again proclaimed April 1-7 Texas Industrial Week.

Now in its 26th year of tradition, this time is set aside each year to pay tribute to new and expanding Texas industry for contributing to the state's economic well-being.

This past year the Texas Industrial Commission reported nearly 200 new and more than 300 expanded industrial facilities. These very industries have taken a positive attitude toward Texas, allowing all Texans to continue to enjoy a high standard of living with one of the lowest unemployment rates in the country.

New industry alone created more than 7,000 jobs last year and had an economic impact in excess of $411 million.

Industry is the backbone of the economy and a diversified industrial base has made Texas less susceptible to problems caused by recession.

Texas Industrial Week is the perfect opportunity to honor one of the state's most important resources - our industry.
