Pampa Police Release Panhandle Rape Suspect

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

PAMPA—Pampa police Wednesday fingerprinted, photographed and released a man matching the description of a suspect being sought in connection with a number of rape cases in Panhandle cities and the murder of an expectant mother in Borger.

THE MAN, reported to be a Pampa resident in his mid 20's, was released following questioning by police investigators.

"We can't keep him in jail," said Richard Mills, Pampa chief of police. "It's no offense to look like somebody." Composite drawings of the so-called "Traveling Rapist" who has terrorized Panhandle women for two years were released to the news media early this week by area law enforcement officials.

The black rapist is thought to be responsible for at least eight assaults on Panhandle women and also is the prime suspect in the murder of Abbe Dawn Hamilton, a 19-year-old Borger housewife.

MRS. HAMILTON, who was eight months pregnant, was murdered in her home May 3. A black male was observed walking toward her house and later running away.

Mills said in a telephone interview with the Brand this morning that the Pampa suspect was questioned following tips from individuals who recognized the man after seeing the composites.

"We had one tip that started out look at him. Some other people called the Hutchinson County Sheriff's Office and they contacted us in regard to this man. We've been working pretty closely with Hutchinson County on this," Mills said.

"He looks extremely like the composites. People who saw the composites notified us and we checked him. He fits the description awful close. And the Hutchinson County Sheriff's Office said he fits it awful close."

THE SUSPECT has no record of sexual offenses, Mills said.

Pampa has had "10 or 12 tips", according to the chief, since the composites were released Monday.

"We've thought all along that he (the rapist) might live here because Pampa has probably the second largest black community in the Panhandle. We've had two of our investigators working with Amarillo officers on this case for several months under this possibility.

"It's not a probability (that the rapist might live in Pampa), but a possibility."

THE SUSPECT in the Borger murder was described by witnesses as black, in his late 20's or early 30's, slender and tall. He was reported to be 6 feet to 6 feet, 2 inches tall and his weight was estimated at 130 to 150 pounds.

Volunteer Cleanup Slated For San Jose

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

A second consecutive weekend of cleanup work has been scheduled for the San Jose community southwest of Hereford with volunteer efforts to get underway at 8 a.m. Saturday.

ROBERT GALLEGOS, a member of the four man San Jose Steering Committee and the organizer of the camp's first volunteer cleanup last weekend reports that the committee is requesting volunteer help from camp residents and the loan of any available trucks this weekend.

Other steering committee members include Andres Del Toro, Jesus Garcia and A.L. Ortiz.

"We will congregate at 8 a.m. and break up into groups to work throughout the entire community," Gallegos reported. "We will be conducting a more intensive cleanup effort, and anyone who cares to lend a hand will be more than welcome."

Last weekend's cleanup was concentrated in the area of a lake on the south side of the camp where large quantities of trash had prevented mowing for mosquito control.

A GROUP OF 10 volunteer workers from the camp removed three truckloads of trash from the area bordering a road there.

The volunteer cleanups are the outgrowth of a new spirit of community involvement at San Jose, where efforts to improve living conditions are underway.

San Jose dwellers hope to obtain federal funding for water and sewer projects in their community, and are also striving to clear up health hazards which have been a problem in the past.

Working with Joe Vasquez of the Department of Health Resources office in Canyon, San Jose dwellers have already removed the livestock which was being kept in many back yards in their community.

THE SAN JOSE residents conducted their second community meeting last week and voted to move ahead with efforts to form a non-profit organization for securing funding for a new well and sewer system. They elected the steering committee at that time.

According to Vasquez, the state health department is continuing its efforts to clear up health hazards at the camp, and will work closely with the steering committee.

Gallegos pointed out that many of the San Jose dwellers are concentrating on their own property, attempting to take care of their own clean-up needs and improve the overall appearance of the community.

The self-help efforts of the people of San Jose have already met with praise from a number of local officials and Canyon health workers.

TROY LOWRY, chief sanitarian for the State Health Department in Austin commented on the progress being made at San Jose during last week's community meeting.

"There seems to be a lot more sincerity on the part of the people at San Jose as they go about trying to improve things this time. There have been failures in the past, but these people are putting all of that behind them and are moving ahead to help themselves now," said Lowry. "We seem to be on the right track at last," he added.

Cities Might Require Insulation

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

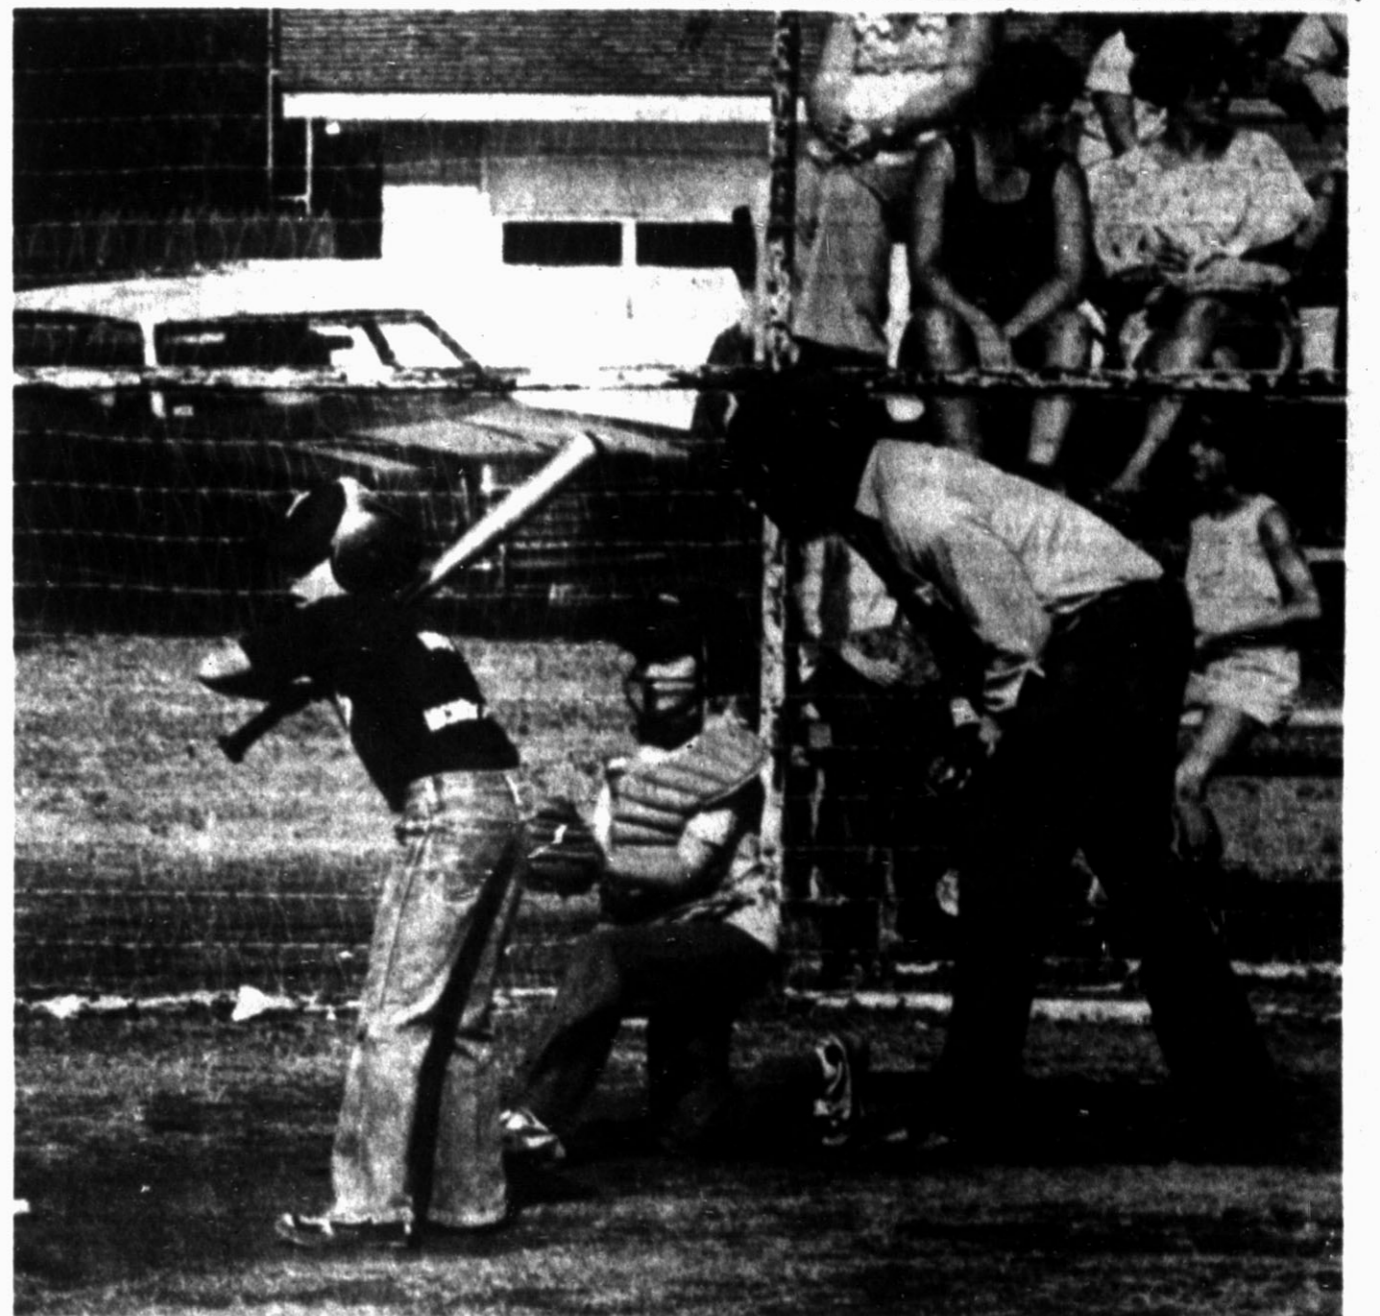

WASHINGTON (AP) - A portion of President Carter's energy program that is moving through Congress may push a number of Texas cities into the home insulation business.

Cities such as San Antonio and Austin, which own and operate their own utilities, would be forced to inspect homes for energy efficiency and might be required to install insulation, which the homeowner would pay for.

Some cities may have also have to draw up master plans for insulating all of the buildings within their limits and submit the plans to the Federal Energy Administration.

All of these new municipal functions would arise from sections of the energy program that, compared to the major tax provisions, have attracted little notice or opposition.

The House Banking Committee already has approved the portion of the package that would require utilities to provide

Showers Delay Wheat Harvest; Thirsty Corn, Beets Get Boost

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Widespread thundershowers fell on Deaf Smith County last night, and although the rain may have been a mixed blessing for some local farmers, there are few complaints this morning.

THE SHOWERS brought the county's wheat harvest, which has already surpassed the halfway mark, to a halt as fields became too damp for combines to operate in many areas.

But the rain is a big shot in the arm for corn, grain sorghum and sugar beet crops here, as many local farmers have already been hard pressed to get water to their crops during the hot weather of recent days.

The rainfall should also top off moisture needs for a portion of the county's potato and onion crops, with the local vegetable harvest expected to get underway early in July.

Last night's thundershowers moved in from the west and moisture activity began after 8 p.m.

Although lightning accompanied the storm, no hail or high winds were reported as the moisture-laden clouds passed through the area.

THE COUNTY'S dryland areas received the lion's share of moisture from a storm which moved through the area Monday but the immediate Hereford area received the best rainfall in Wednesday night's weather.

KPAN radio logged a total of .98 inches of moisture for the city proper while the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant recorded 1.52 inches of moisture, the first substantial rainfall here since favorable showers in April and May.

Oldham Sheriff Cleared Of Charge

DALLAS (AP) - A Dallas federal jury has cleared former Oldham County sheriff William Olsen of charges he obstructed gambling laws and participated in a $1 million per week, Panhandle-based gambling operation.

The jury, apparently confused over a legal technicality, rendered three verdicts Wednesday before finally finding Olsen innocent.

Six other defendants, however, were convicted of operating the gambling network, although all were also found innocent of the conspiracy to obstruct justice charges.

The confusion, which once saw two jurors telling U.S. District Court Judge Robert M. Hill that they disagreed with the decision just handed to him, forced Judge Hill to twice send the jury back to its deliberations.

The government contended Olsen tipped off the accused bookmakers that their phones had been tapped by FBI agents and that he aided in setting up their bookmaking operation in a Wildorado, Tex., motel.

Fire Department Slates Display For 4th Of July

Exploding rockets will replace some of the ground displays of last year's show to give spectators more to look at as the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department staged the second annual July 4 city fireworks display at Veteran's Park.

"We'll have more big shells than last year. We swapped three of the whirling wheels for the big, big rockets, the star shells," said Jay Spain, fire marshal and organizer of the show.

The ground display won't be replaced entirely, even though a spectators' complaint about last year's Bicentennial affair was the fact some could not see all the displays.

"We'll still have the waterfalls and the American flag," Spain said.

The highlight of the show will be the finale—the firing of four boxes of rockets. Each box contains approximately 12 rockets.

"It's real pretty," the fire marshal said of the finale.

"We received more compliments on this show last year than we've ever had as far as PR (public relations) work. I guess the people enjoyed it. People called me

Woman's Monkey Business Drives Neighbor To Courtroom

DALLAS (AP) - Mrs. Marion McCarty sees, hears and speaks no evil about her pets. But neighbor E.R. Jennings says he's tired of looking out of his window every morning and seeing monkeys.

The two took their battle to a Dallas municipal court today, with Jennings claiming that the 50 caged monkeys are ruining the neighborhood and costing Bluffview Estates residents valuable sleep.

"When I wake up every morning and look out my bedroom window all I see is monkeys staring me in the face," Jennings said. "At night, I cannot sleep because the monkeys make so much racket."

But Mrs. McCarty insists her pets are "cleaner than some people's children" and are sleeping at times Jennings claims they're screaming.

Mrs. McCarty has been keeping monkeys in her yard for about 20 years, and says her neighbors have offered few complaints. But when Jennings moved next door last April, he "just started stirring up trouble," she said.

"I would sell this house and move right now if I could get my money's worth. Realtors have told me that the monkeys are not only devaluing my property, but all the property around here," he said.

Other Bluffview Estates residents, even though they may not have told Mrs. McCarty so in the past, apparently agree with Jennings. Twenty-nine people presented a petition to the Dallas City Council in December, contending "the monkeys create an offensive odor, excessive noise and cause severe devaluation of the property."

Balderdash, says Mrs. McCarty. "I've been inspected many times," she said. "And the officials have always said I keep the most sanitary place they've ever seen. Every cage is cleaned every day."

"It's no easy job. I spend 1 or 1 1/2 hours a day just cleaning the cages and feeding them," Mrs. McCarty said. "But I'm emotionally satisfied with them. Animals come first for me. I find working with monkeys very rewarding."

The monkeys are not noisy, she added. "I keep no nocturnal monkeys. I turn out the lights at 10:30 each night and they sleep right through until morning, unless they're disturbed. Sometimes I'll look out the window about seven, and maybe one will come out and stretch and then go back inside until I go feed them at nine or 9:30."

"Until that man Jennings moved into the neighborhood, all was peace and tranquility," she said. "I guess he just decided he didn't want a monkey for a next-door neighbor."

Mitchell Begins Sentence

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - John Mitchell today puts on a prison uniform and begins to acquaint himself with what will be his home for at least the next 30 months.

The dormitory he shares with other inmates at the federal prison camp at Maxwell Air Force Base differs drastically from the plush Justice Department office he once occupied as attorney general.

Instead of rubbing elbows with the rich and powerful, Mitchell will be living with drug smugglers, income tax evaders and bootleggers.

Many of those prisoners jeered Wednesday when Mitchell arrived at the minimum security facility to begin serving his sentence for involvement in the Watergate scandal that brought down the administration of Richard Nixon.

Nixon's one-time law partner, attorney general and campaign manager was convicted in 1975 with Nixon aides H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman of obstructing justice, giving false testimony under oath and conspiracy in the Watergate coverup.

Mitchell is the first U.S. attorney general to enter prison convicted of criminal acts.

The 63-year-old Mitchell had arrived in Montgomery aboard a private jet. He was greeted by U.S. Atty. Ira DeMent, who has served under Mitchell at the Justice Department.

Don Weemes is equally at home whether he is receiving the heat or is its source. Weemes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Weemes, guards home plate for the Hereford American Legion baseball team, and also takes a turn or two on the mound every now and then. "Don has a good arm, and needs only a little experience to be an outstanding catcher," Legion coach Joe Don Cummings has said. Weemes exhibited some of that promise in the Hereford's sole win this year, an 8-3 decision over Caprock. He nailed four Caprock runners at second on steal attempts. Weemes is another player with a long background in baseball, having played Little League, Bronco League and

Bosox Continue Hitting Splurge

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Baltimore's Jim Palmer tired around the seventh inning, and Boston's wrecking crew of power hitters capitalized on the pitcher's fatigue. "If you make good pitches, you'll get them out," Palmer said. "But if you throw it over the plate, the way they're going, they're going to hit it." Hitting home runs at an astonishing pace, the Red Sox have slammed 29 in their last eight games for a major league record. "There are a bunch of strong dudes in the lineup," said Boston's Carlton Fisk, who slammed two homers, including one in the ninth inning, to give the Red Sox a 7-4 victory over the Orioles. In other AL games Wednesday, Cleveland toppled Toronto 7-5 in 12 innings. New York outlasted Detroit 12-11. Chicago defeated California 6-2. Milwaukee downed Oakland 5-1. Kansas City edged Seattle 4-3 and Texas outslugged Minnesota 10-8. "Jimmy (Palmer) always tells me when he's getting tired," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "He indicated he was getting a little tired in the seventh." Until then, the Red Sox had only one home run - George Scott's AL-leading 20th of the season in the second inning. With the Red Sox trailing 4-1 entering the seventh, Jim Rice and Fisk hit solo blasts. Fisk crashed a two-run shot in the ninth, giving the Red Sox the lead, and Butch Hobson followed with his 10th home run of the season, also a two-run homer. Yankees 12, Tigers 11 Reggie Jackson's two-run eighth inning as New York snapped its five-game losing streak by beating Detroit. The Tigers scored five runs in the sixth inning to tie the score at 7-7, then took a brief lead with three runs in the seventh. Detroit's sixth-inning rally included a two-run homer by Steve Kemp, a RBI double by John Wockenfuss and a pinch-hit two-run homer by Phil Mankowski. But in the Yankee eighth, Paul Blair and Bucky Dent singled before Graig Nettles pounded his 14th homer of the season. Indians 7, Jays 5, 12 Innings A sacrifice fly by Jim Norris scored Frank Duffy in the 12th inning to snap a tie as Cleveland defeated Toronto for its seventh straight victory. Rico Carty followed with a single and two walks forced in the final run. The Blue Jays had forced the game into extra innings at Al Woods' RBI single with two out in the ninth. Reliever Jim Kern, 3-3, worked 3 2/3 innings to earn the victory. White Sox, 6, Angels 2 Jorge Orta drilled a two-run homer and Wayne Nordhagen drove in two runs with a single and double to lead Chicago past California.

Bart Johnson, 4-3, scattered five hits in 6 2/3 innings of relief to pick up the victory. Rangers 10, Twins 8 Claudell Washington's three-run homer capped a five-run eighth inning as Texas felled down Minnesota in Eddie Stanky's debut as Rangers manager. Stanky replaced Frank Lucchesi earlier in the day after spending the last nine years as a college baseball coach.

Bowa Bashes Reds

BY BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Who says Larry Bowa can't hit? Certainly not the Cincinnati Reds. The 31-year-old Bowa was always noted as a fine-fielding shortstop and a light hitter. But Wednesday night he smacked the first grand slam homer of his career, went 4-for-4, with four runs scored as the Phillies outslugged the Reds, 15-9. "Besides getting to the big leagues, it was my greatest thrill," said Bowa. "It was the first homer I've hit that I knew was out. I can't explain the feeling in my body as I went around the bases." Bowa's blast came off Joe Hoerner in the seventh inning of the slugfest. "I threw up my hands as I went around the bases," said Bowa, who has hit four home runs this season after socking just four in his first eight seasons as a Philly. "It was the first grand slam hit off me in my 21-year career," said, Hoerner, the 40-year-old Cincinnati reliever. "He hit the heck out of it. It was just a bad pitch. I'm not making any excuses, but my hand hit my knee as I threw." Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta defeated New York 4-1, Los Angeles belted St. Louis 1-2, 1 Pittsburgh swept past San Diego 3-1, Houston shut out Montreal 7-1 and Chicago stopped San Francisco 4-2. Braves 4, Mets 1 Phil Niekro struggled past the Mets, surrendering 11 hits and four walks but stranding 12 New York baserunners. "I've had easier games," said the right-handed knuckleballer, now 5-9. "I was in trouble quite a bit but when I had to make a pitch, I did." Dodgers 12, Cardinals 1 Steve Garvey's 16th homer of the season, a fourth-inning grand slam, was the key hit for Los Angeles. The Dodgers moved 8 1/2 games ahead of Cincinnati in the NL West thanks to Garvey's five RBI and Ron Cey's two-run triple and four RBI. Burt Hooton, 5-3, scattered four hits before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. Pirates 3, Padres 1 Jerry Reuss and Rich Gossage combined on a seven-hitter as the Pirates took their third straight game from the Padres after bringing a seven-game losing string to San Diego. Gossage struck out all four men he faced in picking up his 12th save. Willie Stargell had a pair of doubles to lead the Pittsburgh attack. Astros 7, Expos 0 Houston rookie left-hander Floyd Bannister, the first pick in the June 1976 free agent draft, hurled a four-hit shutout, striking out eight Expos and walking three. Bannister 3-6, was helped by Jim Fuller's first two homers of the season, both of which were two-run shots. Cubs 4, Giants 2 Larry Bittner and Jerry Morales each hit solo homers to back the combined four-hitter of Bill Bonham and Bruce Sutter as the Cubs won for the 12th time in 16 outings. Sutter registered his 18th save despite walking both Giants runs in the seventh. Bittner homered in the first first, Bonham singled in a run in the second, Morales homered in the fourth and Bobby Murcer drove in the final Chicago run with a single in the eighth. LOS ANGELES (AP)— Junior welterweights Tury Pineda and Ramiro Bolanos fight tonight in the featured 10-round main event at the Olympic Auditorium. Pineda, of Mexicali, Mex., brings a 26-7-1 record with 22 knockouts into the bout while Bolanos, of Ecuador, is 54-11 with 34 knockouts. Olympic matchmaker Don Chargin hopes to match the winner against No. 2-ranked junior welterweight Monroe Brooks in late July. In a companion 10-rounder tonight, bantamweight Oscar Muniz fights Jose Antonio Rosa.

Nastase Up To Old Tricks At Wimbledon

BY JEFF BRADLEY
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Ilie Nastase has done it again. The antics of the fiery Romanian on court Wednesday as he scrambled his way through to the third round were as wild as the time two years ago when he grabbed a Wimbledon fan's umbrella and took it on court with him - all to urge the umpire to halt play in a light mist. Do any of the childish tantrums help the 30-year-old Nastase achieve results his artistry - with a tennis racquet couldn't? Wimbledon commentators say Nastase is the greatest player ever to come to these lawn tennis championships and fail to win. Ranked No. 6 in the world, Nastase was the losing finalist here in 1972 and 1976. He is seeded sixth this year. Wednesday's trouble erupted in the fourth set of Nastase's match against Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia. Pattison took the first two sets 9-7, 6-3, beating Nastase at his own game with clever passing shots, dinks and cut shots. Nastase came back to win the third set 7-5, but Pattison got a crucial 4-3 lead in the following set by breaking Nastase's serve in the seventh game. The Romanian appeared upset as a foot fault called against him. He urged with the linesman and umpire, then ducked behind the green canvas surrounding the No. 2 court, to the bewilderment of his opponent and the delight of the packed crowd. Wimbledon referee Fred Hoyle was summoned and Nastase was warned to play on. Some 10 minutes elapsed before he resumed play, and the game quickly swung his way. He broke Pattison's service to even the games at 4-4. More antics followed - complaining about the state of the grass and the noise in the crowd - and one spectator yelled: "Shut up and play tennis." Others simply booed. Nastase buckled down to his game, broke service in the 14th game and took the set 8-6.

Culpepper Trails Amarillo's Burt

AMARILLO—Defending second-place Jim Culpepper of Hereford in the late-model standings as Southwest Speedway heads into its Mid-Season Championships at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Burt won Saturday's first heat and Culpepper sped to victory in the Flying Twenty as rain canceled the late-model semi and main event. Burt finished the rain-shortened program with a 925-820 point edge over Culpepper.

Hereford's James Davis is 11th with 300 points, 15 short of landing in the top ten. Wayne McCullar of Hereford is 14th with 155 points.

Borger's Jerry Elrod owns the modified-stock lead by a 522-442 point margin over Amarillo's Cameron Moore while defending champion Paul Malacara, Jr., of Amarillo virtually has the mid-season title wrapped up in street-stock action with a 183-146 point lead over second-place Ralph Birdwell of Amarillo.

Admission to the Mid-Season Championships will be $3 with children 11 and under admitted free to the asphalt track at NE 24th and Folsom Road.

Canyon Downs Hereford, 7-1

It was a case of too much Canyon pinching along with too many Hereford errors Wednesday night as Canyon kept its unbeaten American Legion baseball record intact with a 7-1 win in Canyon.

Chess Bostic hurled a two-hitter to stymie Hereford, and Hereford Chris Hill saw his teammates commit seven errors as the local bunch saw its season mark lowered to 1-4. Hill's personal mark fell to 1-3 with the loss.

Greg Albracht tagged Bostic with a home run in the second frame to help ease some of the pain, but the visitors could manage but one other hit in the contest, a single by Dennis Artha.

Canyon, meanwhile, was slugging seven hits off Hill and scored the same number of runs as Hereford paved the way with a host of miscues.

"You can't commit seven errors against a team like Canyon and expect to win,"

Hereford coach Joe Don Cummings said following the game. "They have the pitching and hitting to go all the way."

The game was as different as night from day from the first encounter the two teams had in the season opener, which Canyon won 4-3.

The winners got solo runs in the first and second, and added four more in the fifth as Hereford committed three miscues. A final run in the only increased the margin.

Hereford's next game, is at home Sunday against Tascosa. The 5 p.m. game will be a rematch of a June 19 game which Tascosa won 5-3 on a late home run. Hereford 010 000 0-1 2 7 Canyon 110 041 x-7 7 0 WP - Chess Bostic LP - Chris Hill (1-3). 2B - Tracy Martin. Canyon. HR - Greg Albracht. Hereford.

Some Mailing Rates To Increase July 6

WASHINGTON (AP)—The cost of mailing newspapers, books, magazines and other second, third and fourth class items is increasing July 6, the Postal Service announced Wednesday.

The hike is the sixth in a series of annual increases scheduled when the service became a semi-independent agency.

O.G. Nieman, editor-publisher, of the Hereford Brand announced today that the Postal Service cost increases for mailing newspapers will not affect the subscription rate for out-of-town readers. Out-of-town subscribers will continue to receive the Brand for $31.50 per year.

First class letters are not affected.

Some examples of the new rates include:

- Second class rates for newspapers increase by varying amounts depending on whether they are entered by weight or by copy and according to distance. The per-piece charge outside a newspaper's home county, for example, increased from 0.8 cents to 1.1 cents. Within the county, the increase would be from 0.6 to 0.7 cents. Per-pound rates range from an increase to 6.7 cents from 6.0 cents in zones 1 and 2 to an increase to 13.5 cents from 12.5 cents in zone 8.

The cost of mailing a book or record will increase from 25 to 30 cents for the first pound and from 10 to 11 cents for each additional pound up to seven pounds. Each pound over seven pounds will continue to cost 8 cents to mail.

- The typical weekly news magazine will now cost 6.90 cents to mail, up from 5.57 cents.
- For libraries, the book and record rate goes from 9 cents to 11 cents for the first pound. Each extra pound will remain at 4 cents.
- For nonprofit organizations, the cost of bulk mailing a third-class circular will increase from 2 to 2.1 cents.

Carr Leaves Space Agency

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—Gerald P. Carr, a co-holder of the world space flight duration record, is leaving the space agency Saturday to join a Houston engineering firm.

"Leaving a career in aviation and space flight is a difficult thing to do but I feel it is time for me to start a new direction," Carr said Wednesday.

Carr was commander of the 1975 Skylab 4 mission during which he and astronauts Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue spent a record 2,017 hours of 84 days in space.

"I wouldn't trade the past 24 years as a Marine aviator and astronaut for any other experience," said the former U.S. Marine Corps lieutenant colonel.

Carr, 44, became an astronaut in April 1966 and has been a civilian employe at the Johnson Space Center since retiring from the Marine Corps in 1975.

In recent months he has headed the astronaut office's design support group.

With Bovay Engineers Inc., Carr will serve as manager of corporate development.

Bomb Destroys People, Not Buildings

WASHINGTON (AP)—The full Senate is facing a decision on whether a lethal neutron bomb that kills people but leaves buildings intact should become part of the U.S. nuclear weapons arsenal.

The Senate Appropriations Committee rejected on Wednesday a move by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., to ban production of the device.

Instead, it approved a $10.4 billion public works and energy research appropriation bill containing funds to develop the nuclear warhead, possibly as early as next year.

The legislation, already approved by the House, now goes to the full Senate.

Although its details are mostly secret, the proposed bomb is reportedly designed to kill people through the release of highly radioactive neutrons while doing a minimum amount of damage to structures.

It would be fitted to the tactical, short-range Lance missile. This missile, bearing conventional nuclear warheads, is deployed with NATO forces in Europe.

Advocates of the proposed new weapon claim neutron bombs would make a better battlefield deterrent than the estimated 7,000 nuclear warheads in Europe. These advocates say the warheads now deployed have too large a nuclear yield to be used as tactical weapons.

Some $1.09 million of the $10.4 billion appropriation approved by the Senate committee is earmarked for nuclear weapons activities.

Hatfield's motion to drop funding for the neutron bomb was rejected by the committee on a 10-10 tie vote in a closed-door session. Committee members voted later to make public the vote and the nature of Hatfield's proposal.

Under existing law, even if Congress approves such devices as the neutron bomb, production cannot begin without an order from the president.

The committee also rejected President Carter's request to cancel the Clinch River breeder reactor project at Oak Ridge Tenn., voting instead to appropriate $150 million for the project for the next fiscal year so construction can begin.

The administration wants the project halted, claiming it would lead to the worldwide spread of bomb-suitable plutonium. Breeders produce more plutonium than they consume as they generate electric power.

Although the vote was another setback for Carter's hope to scuttle the project, White House officials were working with leaders of another Senate panel, the energy committee, in hopes of coming up with a compromise.

The funds voted by the Appropriations Committee will have no practical effect if Congress does not also pass companion legislation continuing authorization for the project. It is this bill that is now before the Senate Energy Committee.

The Appropriations Committee also ratified last week's vote of a subcommittee to eliminate eight of the 17 water projects approved by the House of Representatives over Carter's opposition.

Toad In Trouble If Buildings Go Up

HOUSTON (AP)—He is a about two inches long, chocolate brown with large warts on his back.

Experts say the best way to identify him is by the sound he makes—some call it a song—a high-pitched, birdlike cheep that stretches on for up to 15 seconds.

He is the Houston toad and he is in the limelight because the federal government has hopped on his cause.

The Interior Department is proposing to declare seven areas around Houston, about 35 square miles, as a "critical habitat" for the toad. The agency says the toad is an endangered species since there are only about 5,000 to 10,000 of them around.

The action could result in a freeze on Federal Housing Administration-insured housing developments that might endanger the habitats.

Under the Endangered Species Act passed by Congress in 1973, no federal agency may undertake any project that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service believes would destroy critical habitat.

Some Houston developers have reacted to the situation with a mixture of derision and disbelief.

However, others are taking it more seriously. For example, Charles S. Leyendecker, president of the Greater Houston Builders Association, said Wednesday the GHBA will take up the toad question at board meetings next week.

He said he believes home builders will be willing to cooperate in protecting the toad.

"I know we wouldn't be in favor of going out and recklessly building homes and killing off an endangered species," he said. "We shouldn't kill off an endangered species with concrete. On the other hand, we shouldn't let an endangered species strangle Houston."

He said the GHBA, working with experts on the endangered species, might work up guidelines for distribution to builders and developers on how to protect the rare toad. He said he was talking about some type of educational program.

Dr. Robert A. Thomas, a Texas A&M University specialist on the rare toad, says builders can develop new subdivisions without destroying the toad. He said this could be done by leaving small, critical areas of a new subdivision undisturbed.

Thomas says the most positive way to identify the toads is by their song, a high-pitched, birdlike cheep that may stretch up to 15 seconds on a single note. Common toads, he said, have a deep-pitched, much shorter song.

Developer Richard Beach said he thought it was a joke when he first heard about it.

He suggested maybe gathering up the toads "and putting them in a compound somewhere like an Indian reservation."

And if they are so musical, he said, "maybe we could hold out a few for barbershop quartets."

Cheaper Fares May Result From Pact

LONDON (AP)—Cheaper transatlantic air fares should result from the new U.S.-British commercial air agreement initiated at dawn Wednesday that averted a shutdown of most air traffic between the two countries, officials said.

Spokesmen for both sides said ticket buyers would benefit from new controls on the number of empty seats on commercial flights between Britain and America. The spokesmen would not give specific estimates of potential consumer savings.

There were no immediate details of the agreement.

Empty seats were averaging 40 per cent under the old pact, signed 31 years ago after negotiations in Bermuda.

The new accord also opens several new markets for the airlines of both countries, Pan American World Airways, Trans World Airlines and National Airlines of the United States, and the state-controlled British Airways.

It was initiated after night-long negotiations that followed a 12-month deadlock. U.S. officials said commercial flights would have been halted if a new agreement was not reached before the old one expired at midnight Tuesday, Washington time. Charter flights would not have been affected.

Last year, Britain requested negotiations on a new agreement. The British said they wanted more than the existing one-third share of the $850 million dollar travel market between the countries. But the negotiations bogged down as U.S. officials argued that British proposals to increase Britain's share would infringe on free enterprise.

Deep differences persisted so near the deadline that TWA flights arriving from Los Angeles and Boston circled London's Heathrow Airport while waiting to learn whether it would be all right to land. TWA would have used Paris as an alternative link with London if the talks failed.

The airlines already had deployed staffs to handle alternate routing when the new agreement was announced.

British Trade Secretary Edmund Dell said the pact would be ready for signing by late July after further talks in Bermuda on details. He said the agreement should give Britain a bigger share of the air market won and the public won. We think it's a fair deal."

British politicians and newspapers claimed a "victory" in the new routes, measures to limit excess seating capacity, restrictions limiting Britain's competition to a single U.S. carrier at a number of second-rank American gateway airports, and surrender of some American routes from London into Europe, and from Hong Kong into Asia.

Cardenas Nominated For Children's Bureau

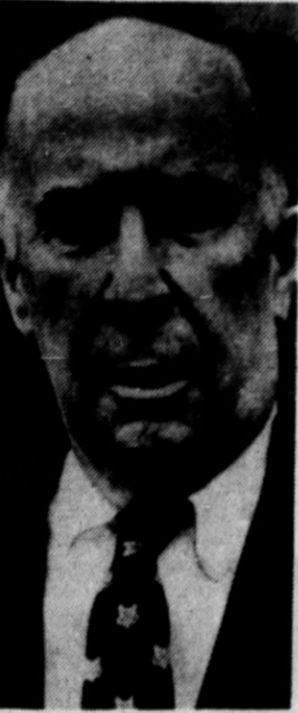

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter announced Wednesday he is nominating Blandina Cardenas of San Antonio to be chief of the Children's Bureau in the Department of Health Education and Welfare.

A native of Del Rio, Tex., she is vice president of the Intercultural Resources Laboratory in San Antonio and has been a federal consultant.

To be ambassador to Hungary, Carter said he is nominating New York businessman Philip M. Kaiser, who served as ambassador to Senegal and Mauritania and as deputy chief of mission in London during the administrations of Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Emphysema, an incurable lung disease, is now the number three cause for which Social Security disability benefits are paid.

Rabbi Leads Anti-Nazi Group

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP)—Rabbi Lawrence Montrose, a quiet man not noted as a political activist, has told all 640 families in his congregation that it is their "solemn duty" to take to the streets on July 4 to protest a march by American Nazis.

The rabbi said in a letter that he was seeking a peaceful gathering as a "show of strength" to demonstrate opposition to the march planned by a Nazi group in this Chicago suburb of 69,000 persons.

One Skokie resident, Erna Gans, whose parents and two brothers died in Hitler's concentration camps, said "it is the responsibility of the 7,000 survivors of the Holocaust living in Skokie to prevent Nazis from marching here."

Harvey Schwartz, the village attorney, warns there is "a great probability" of violence if uniformed members of the National Socialist Party of America demonstrate as planned.

"We are soldiers, soldiers take risks," replied Nazi leader Frank Collin when told his march could spark violence.

"The violence won't come from us. If there's violence it will show the Jews' true colors."

Collin, national coordinator of the National Socialist Congress, said "up to 100" party members from Illinois, California, Missouri, New Jersey, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma and Texas will march in Skokie.

Rabbi Montrose, of the Skokie Central Traditional Congregation, said he realized that bringing together groups of Jews and Nazis held great potential for violence, but he said he felt a visible demonstration of opposition to Nazism was essential.

He said he decided to write to his congregation because "we know from the early 1930s that remaining silent isn't an effective weapon... and because we must join the survivors of the Holocaust in a visible demonstration that we will not allow a small group of fanatics to do in America what they did in Germany..."

Skokie has adopted three ordinances designed to block the march, but the U.S. Supreme Court recently overturned an injunction which would have prevented it.

The American Civil Liberties Union, representing the Nazis, says the Constitution permits persons to demonstrate on behalf of their political beliefs, however odious they may be.

"I've never seen a clearer case of First Amendment protection than the Skokie case," said David Hamlin of the Chicago ACLU. He said the three ordinances should be reversed easily in court.

But Mrs. Gans said, "The courts will protect us. The courts have a duty to protect the people as well as the murderers. The First Amendment doesn't give anyone the right to tell me they want to kill me."

She said she has met with other Holocaust survivors, rabbis and civic leaders, and "the overwhelming belief is that we must not be silent, we must oppose them publicly."

Several Jews said one explanation why so many Holocaust survivors settled in Skokie was that they felt more comfortable living among other Jews in an area where synagogues and Jewish cultural institutions already existed at the end of World War II.

It was this large number of Jews that prompted the Nazis to bring their march to Skokie.

Labels Warn Of New Danger

WASHINGTON (AP)—From the roar of the lawn mower to the whine of the hair dryer, the government is battling to keep the din down.

And where that can't be done, there will be a label to warn you how loud your new appliance will be when you start it up.

The Environmental Protection agency announced Wednesday it is planning to require noise labels on a variety of products.

Final decisions haven't been made about which products will have to carry the labels, but leading candidates are reported to be vacuum cleaners, air conditioners, shop tools, dishwashers and powered lawn and garden equipment.

Also included will be labels for products which reduce noise, such as ear protectors and acoustic tile. Those labels will contain information on how helpful the products are in keeping down noise.

"The newly proposed labeling program will permit informed consumer decisions by making possible comparisons of products related to noise or noise-reducing characteristics," said EPA Administrator Douglas M. Costle.

Costle said the first product for which a labeling standard has been prepared is ear protectors.

"In this case the label will bear a number between 0 and 31. The higher the number, the greater the product's effectiveness in excluding noise from a person's ear," he said.

Similar labeling standards for noise-producing products are still being developed, and no decision has been made whether to use a system of numbers, letters of symbols, officials said.

"For consumer products the labeling program should, with a minimum of federal involvement, provide accurate and understandable information to purchasers and permit them to decide for themselves if they want a quieter personal environment.

"If consumers make it plain they want quieter products, the marketplace will in all likelihood respond," Costle said.

Officials said the labeling program is in response to congressional directions to reduce the level of background noise in the country.

For products over which individuals have little or no control, such as bulldozers, trucks, motorcycles and buses, EPA is setting allowable noise levels for manufacturers to meet.

The EPA is seeking comments and suggestions from the public on its noise labeling program and officials said public hearings will be scheduled if there is sufficient interest.

Persons wishing to comment should write, by Sept. 20, to the Director, Standards and Regulations Division, Office of Noise Abatement and Control AW-471, Attn. Product Noise Labeling, Docket No. ONAC 778, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Washington, D.C., 20460.

Vance To Visit China In Diplomatic Jaunt

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance will visit China August 22-26 in hopes of making progress toward normalized diplomatic relations between the two countries, the State Department said Wednesday.

In making the announcement, spokesman Hodding Carter refused to speculate on whether Vance expects his trip to result in establishment of diplomatic relations.

The only other stop Vance plans is a one- or two-day visit to Japan after his stay in China, Carter said.

The purpose of the China trip is to "continue our conversations in light of the Shanghai communique toward normalizing relations," he said.

Since the communique was signed in 1972, achievement of that goal has eluded the past three administrations.

Six weeks ago President Carter reaffirmed his commitment to that objective but added, "the one obstacle—the major obstacle, obviously—is the relationship we've always had with Taiwan.

"We don't want the Taiwanese people punished or attacked and if we can resolve that major difficulty I would move expeditiously to normalizing relations with China," the President said.

This statement drew an angry reaction three days later from Chinese Vice Premier Chi Teng-Kuei, who told a group of Japanese journalists that Carter's conditions are unacceptable.

"To liberate Taiwan in a peaceful way or by armed force—this is China's domestic affair and not a U.S. affair," he was quoted as saying.

This blunt response has prompted many observers to say that the Taiwan problem is no closer to solution than it was when the Shanghai communique was signed.

The United States has a security treaty with Taiwan and continues to maintain 1,400 servicemen on the island. Both diplomatic and security links with Taiwan would have to be severed if the goal of normal relations with the mainland is to be achieved.

Officials who favor quick action toward normalization argue that China may become disenchanted with its relationship with the United States and seek to resolve its differences with the Soviet Union.

Others contend, however, that there is little prospect of this. They point out that Sino-Soviet relations are as bad now as they were last September when Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung died.

THE COMEBACK KID
PITTSBURGH (AP)—In 1974 Wayne Bianchin, a promising young forward for the Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League, was surfing in Hawaii while on vacation. A giant wave hit him the wrong way and Wayne was rushed to the hospital with a broken neck. He was told he would never play hockey again.

The doctors were wrong. In March 1977, Wayne was shooting and scoring so well that he was named NHL Payer of the Week. He had made five goals in four games. It had been a long, hard pull for Bianchin and along the way there was a fusion operation that enabled him to return to big league competition.

Nonmetro Housing Improving

Agriculture. The report points out that special housing problems remain in the rural areas.

The number of occupied substandard nonmetro units declined by 79 per cent between 1950 and 1975, compared to a 69 per cent decline in metro areas. However, in 1975, 8 per cent of nonmetro households still lived in substandard housing, compared to 4 per cent in metro areas, according to the Department's Economic Research Service (ERS).

Higher rates of new home construction accounted for much of the improvement. Housing completions average 417,000 a year in nonmetro areas during the 1950's; during the first half of the 1970's, annual completions jumped to 658,000.

Despite nonmetro housing improvements, there were still 1.9 million households living in substandard housing in 1975. The poor, the blacks, and the aged occupy a disproportionate share of such housing, the report notes. For example, 32 per cent of the nonmetro housing occupied by blacks was substandard, compared with 6 per cent for whites. The poor occupied 57 per cent of the nonmetro substandard housing while households headed by an elderly person (65 or older) occupied 35 per cent of this housing in 1975.

The ERS report is based on the 1975 Annual Housing Survey of the Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the latest source of such data. Data for 1950, 1960, and 1970 come from the decennial censuses of population and housing.

New Crude Oil Tax Could Spur Rebates

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional tax-writers, revamping President Carter's energy plans, want to give each adult American an estimated $28 rebate of money that would be raised by a new tax on crude oil.

The new crude oil tax would raise gasoline prices an estimated 7.6 cents per gallon. The tax rebate would be paid to every American adult next year, regardless of whether the person pays taxes or conserves energy.

It would give each typical American couple about $1 a week under a one-year special payment system approved 19 to 17 Tuesday by the House Ways and Means Committee.

If such a special payment program for 1978 ultimately becomes law, it could be extended later into future years. Under the committee's plan, that could lead to tax rebates at levels as high as $80 annually for each adult, with such couples getting a total $440 through 1981.

For example, as currently designed, such a payment schedule could run $28 per adult in 1978, $54 in 1979, $81 in 1980 and $57 in 1981.

For 1978, it generally is an adults-only program, with no payments for children. But a young person who pays income taxes could get $28. And single people heading households, such as divorced or widowed persons with youngsters, would be entitled to two $28 payments.

By 16 to 13, the committee rejected a similar system recommended by Carter which would have distributed $21-a-person payments next year to every man, woman and child, thus favoring larger families.

The $21 per person Carter plan for 1978 would have been followed by payments of $41 in 1979, $62 in 1980, $44 in 1981.

For example, in 1978, where a typical family of four—two adults, two youngsters—would have received $84 under the Carter proposal, it would get $56 under the committee version.

As suggested by Carter and approved by the panel, special payments would be handled through the income tax system, meaning workers would feel the impact next Jan. 1 as slightly increased take-home pay because of adjusted withholding rates.

To the extent they do not get a payment through the income tax system, payments would go in a special check to adult recipients of Social Security, railroad retirement or welfare programs. Any other adult who does not qualify under such tax or non-tax category would get a payment by filing a claim.

Money for the special payment program would come from a committee-approved version of Carter's proposed new tax on crude oil, designed to force energy conservation by hiking prices.

The levy eventually would boost the controlled price of U.S. petroleum, currently ranging from $5.25 to $11.28 a barrel, to the world market price now averaging about $13.50.

It would hike costs of gasoline by an estimated 7.6 cents a gallon and home heating oil by 3 to 4 cents a gallon.

By 21 to 16, the panel rejected a GOP plan to provide a one-year, across-the-board individual income tax cut. This would have meant an $80 tax cut for a typical family of four making $15,000 annually, or a $40 tax cut for a single person earning $10,000.

ARGENTINE DAM PROMOTES PROGRESS
BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The new Ullum Dam in western Argentina, scheduled for completion in mid-1979, will open up the desert zone of San Juan Province in the Andes foothills to colonization and additional agricultural farmland.

More than 60 per cent of the work on Ullum Dam has been completed, and now work is starting on the 1,875-acre park zone around the dam site.

In addition to adding to the panorama from high above on Mount Ullum, the dam will be used to irrigate the arid region, enabling people to settle on farms. This government plan is designed to aid in depopulating urban centers such as Greater Buenos Aires, and to boost the country's agriculture.

Senator Dole Joins Opposition To Carter Sugar Subsidy Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., whose state is a substantial producer of sugarbeets, has joined others in Congress in opposing President Carter's plan to subsidize sugar producers.

Dole said that Carter's plan, recently announced in some detail by the Agriculture Department, "does not make sense" by any standard.

"It is so failure-fulfilling as to almost defy understanding," Dole said. "I predict that those who perpetrated this not-so-sweet error will deny parent-hood."

The Carter plan provides up to two cents a pound in subsidies to help bridge the gap between the market price of sugar and a goal of 13.5 cents a pound. But, as has been pointed out many times, if the market prices falls below 11.5 cents a pound the two-cent limit will mean a support of less than the 13.5 cents Carter announced.

Some authorities have said that each penny in subsidy will cost $125 million, meaning as much as $250 million might be paid. Others, including Dole, refer to $240 million on potential payments.

Dole, in a Senate speech, asked whether "anyone on the floor of this body ever before heard of a price support program which does not have a support price? Have you ever before heard of a support price which drops as the market price falls? Well, you have now."

The Kansas senator also objected to the plan as a vehicle "which will provide a windfall to large grower-processors of millions of dollars."

According to USDA officials, it is illegal to make federal payments directly to sugar producers. The money must be channeled through processors who have contracts with growers, they say. In some cases, in sugarcane areas, processors also are growers. The department proposed recently that processors will be able to retain only enough of the payments to cover the actual administrative costs of handling them, with most of the money being passed to growers.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., and other House members have said that the subsidies - since they are not subject to limits as with other federal crop subsidies - will mean bit payments in excess of $1 million to at least 25 sugar producers.

Dole said that the plan will not encourage the family farm system of U.S. agriculture.

"Actually, the huge sugar payments will help finance the acceleration of the rate of gobbling up of small farms by huge grower processors - especially in view of the severe economic predicament that the President is placing our sugar producers in," Dole said.

290 Register Here For Referendum

Although overall registration among cattlemen for the upcoming Beef Development Plan referendum was light, spokesmen for the Beef Development Taskforce indicate that they are excited about the number of cattlemen who did register for the July 5-15 election.

On the local level, some 290 cattlemen registered with the Deaf Smith County ASCS office, during the two week period open for sign-ups by cattlemen.

According to J.D. Sartwell, state chairman of the Beef

Development Taskforce, about 18 per cent of all Texas cattlemen and approximately 11 per cent of the nation's cattlemen registered.

An updated registration figure is expected to be released later.

Those cattlemen who did sign up to participate in the election must now return to their local ASCS offices to vote between July 5 and 15.

Election results will then be compiled and an announcement should be made on the outcome of the election about July 20.

Market News Described In Brochure

How the federal-state market news program for farm commodities works is outlined in an updated brochure just released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

The program is operated by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS), usually in cooperation with state departments of agriculture.

The brochure, aimed at the nation's entire agricultural marketing sector from producer to retailer, gives basic information on where and how market information is collected, the commodities reported, and how the reports are disseminated. It shows where to get detailed information on market news covering individual commodities.

Market news, offered as a public service by USDA since 1915, provides timely information on the supply, demand, prices, and movement of livestock, grain, poultry, eggs, dairy products, fruits, vegetables, cotton, tobacco, and other commodities. There are about 220 market reporters working in 178 year-round and seasonal offices nationwide collecting, analyzing and disseminating market news. A constant flow of information is maintained between offices by a combined teletype and data communications network operated by AMS.

Market reports reach the public through commercial news wire services, radio and television stations, newspapers and trade magazines, and printed reports mailed on request. In recent years, use of taped telephone reports has rapidly expanded in all marketing areas to give callers instant market information when needed.

Free copies of "The Federal-State Market News Service," MB No. 40, are available from AMS Southwest Regional Information Office, 1100 Commerce Street, Room SC40, Dallas, Texas 75242.

New Laws To Govern Animal Shipments

WASHINGTON (AP) - Next fall the federal government will require airlines to take special care of kittens, puppies and some other animals shipped by dealers and others.

The Agriculture Department said the new regulations will take effect in two phases on Sept. 15 and 19. That is about 1 1/2 years after Congress amended the Animal Welfare Act to enact new rules for transporting cats, dogs and other warm-blooded animals, such as monkeys and chimps.

Officials said the regulations will primarily affect airlines but also other transportation companies used to ship animals. The rules will also place responsibilities on animal dealers, research facilities, professional exhibitors, auctions, public agencies and others.

Private citizens wanting to ship their dogs and cats will not be affected, except for requirements on minimum ages of the animals, shipping containers and scheduling, officials said.

For example, the rules include specific requirements on: --Minimum age limits. Dogs and cats shipped on public transportation must be at least eight weeks old and have been weaned for at least five days before shipment.

--Shipping containers. Cages must be built to allow adequate ventilations, temperature con-rol, space for the animal and other housing requirements.

--Scheduling. Shippers must deliver animals to the carrier within four hours of the departure time and must plan shipments to minimize the time animals spend in travel and in containers.

The rules, described by a spokesman as "extremely complicated," include requirements for health certification, notification of consignees and C.O.D. shipments. Some regulations vary according to the species. Airlines and other carriers will be required to "provide holding areas for animals which include proper levels of fresh air, temperature and sanitation," officials said.

Complete texts of the new animal transportation regulations can be obtained from: Animal Care Staff, Veterinary Services, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, USDA, Room 703, Federal Building, 6505 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, Md. 20782.

Bunker Urges Limitation On Producer Payments

COLORADO SPRINGS—The chairman of one of the nation's largest beet sugar processors is urging Congress to limit payments to sugar producers so that the family farmer is not discriminated against.

Chairman John B. Bunker of Holly Sugar Corporation has sent the following letter to key members of Congress:

"I urge you to support congressman Michel's amendment to limit payments to sugar producers. Secretary Bergland's current proposal will result in multi-million dollar payments, at taxpayers' expense, to multinational corporations such as Gulf and Western Industries of New York City, or, to large industrial corporations masquerading as a cooperative in Hawaii. Payments to these corporations could reach $80 million.

"It is imperative that the family farmer in the United States not be discriminated against by allowing large payments to corporate sugar producers."

The House of Representatives was scheduled to consider the U.S. Department of Agriculture's budget Tuesday and Congressman Findley, among others, has said that he would offer an amendment limiting payments proposed by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

Bergland's proposal calls for USDA to make subsidy payments that could cost up to $250 million.

Mexican Workers To Harvest Texas Onions

WASHINGTON (AP) - At President Carter's urging, the Immigration and Naturalization Service is allowing Mexican field workers to enter the United States to help harvest onions in southern Texas, an action the Labor Department refused to approve.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Wednesday that Carter, after receiving a telephone call from Rep. Richard White, D-Tex., called Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, who then passed the President's wishes on to the Justice Department, which administers the immigration service.

The Mexican workers were needed because farmers couldn't find U.S. workers to harvest the onions, which were rotting in fields near Presidio, Tex., about one mile from the U.S.-Mexican border.

Powell said Carter told Marshall that the farmers could not count on similar arrangements next year.

Before Carter became involved in the problem, the Labor Department found that under its own regulations it could not certify that the workers should be admitted. A department spokesman said that before it could certify the admission of foreign workers into the United States, the farmers were required to provide housing and to be willing to pay an "adverse wage rate," in this case $2.83 an hour. That is the wage at which it was determined, U.S. workers' wage rates would not be adversely affected.

The spokesman said the farmers balked at paying this wage.

Powell said the field hands were being paid the minimum wage, $2.30 an hour. Because they are returning to Mexico at the end of each day's work, the farmers did not have to meet housing standards for migrant workers, he said.

The White House spokesman said both the Labor Department and Justice Department certified that no U.S. workers were available.

He said the regional director of the immigration service advised against allowing the Mexicans into the country, but the district director, who was closer to the situation, suggested that they be permitted to enter.

"The INS was looking at it for a week before the President called and asked that they expedite the situation in as much as rotting onions don't wait," Powell said.

Western Ag Sales Co., Inc., a Lubbock-based irrigation system and grain handling system supplier for a five state area, recently elected W.W. Cantwell of Plainview and Donald Webb of Grand Island, Nebraska to its board of directors.

Their election to the board, according to N.C. Vance, president of Western Ag Sales Co., Inc., gives the overall management of the company a new dimension because of the extensive experience Cantwell and Webb have in the irrigation field.

Grain Warehouse Bill Restores
Public Confidence in Industry

AUSTIN—The new Grain Warehouse Act is good for operators, good for the Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) as the regulatory agency, and good for Texas producers, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown told members of the grain elevator industry recently.

Brown said he felt the new legislation would "restore the public's faith in the warehouse industry" after widespread adverse publicity over grain fraud cases this year.

"That one rotten apple has always had the ability to make the whole barrel stink," he said, telling the group it was to their credit that they were involved in the initial planning of the legislation. Members of the agricultural banking community, TDA, and the Texas Grain and Feed Association worked on provisions included in the bill.

"The increased bonding provisions will work to your favor," he pointed out, "by increasing your lending value at the bank."

Brown also applauded the measure's strict requirement for numbered grain receipts and scale tickets which will enable more accurate record-keeping by TDA.

"This facet of the bill will tighten up accounting procedures for determining grain deposited in the warehouse," Brown said. Warehousemen will be required to use serially numbered scale tickets and maintain them in numerical order to facilitate auditing by TDA.

Brown credited the efforts of producers and warehousemen in moving grain out of storage into markets. "Over 140 million bushels a year pass through the facilities in Corpus Christi alone," he pointed out.

Board Study Urges Import Plan

DALLAS (AP) - Sooner or later, the High Plains are going to run out of water and the only solution is the plan now to import the precious liquid and keep the agricultural area blooming, according to a recent report of the Texas Water Development Board.

The area gets its irrigation water from the giant Ogallala Aquifer, an underground supply that is slowly being depleted by the 70,000 irrigation wells used by farmers in the area.

The TWDB estimated that by the year 2030 the aquifer will fall short by 8 million acre feet of supplying the water necessary to irrigate the area.

The High Plains account for 6.4 million of the 8.9 million irrigated acres in the state, according to a TWDB report.

"We are facing our groundwater supply," said J.W. Buchanan, president of the Water Inc., a nonprofit corporation chartered to promote water development for the state. "I really doubt we will ever run completely out of water, but eventually, as less and less groundwater is available, more and more land will have to be taken off irrigation with the resulting economic consequences to the state and national economies."

The TWDB study, entitled "Continuing Water Resources Planning and Development for Texas," pointed out the need to import water not only for the High Plains, but also for portions of West Texas, Central Texas, South Texas and some coastal areas.

The report said that "alternative sources of in-state and out-of-state surplus surface water supplies are being evaluated and will be integrated into future phases of water resources planning for Texas."

The plan under consideration would involve a 500-mile canal bringing water across Texas from Central Arkansas where it would tap the Arkansas, White, Cuachita and Little Rock Rivers. Stephens Consultant Services, a Little Rock, Ark., engineering firm hired by the TWDB, has concluded that the Arkansas River system has more than enough surplus water to supply Texas with 6 million acre feet each year.

The firm's study, however, did not take into consideration any opposition by environmentalist groups.

Meanwhile, farmers in the area are beginning to worry about the future.

Bill Sides, whose farm is southeast of Lubbock, said the aquifer may be depleted sooner than is expected.

"It used to be you could sink a 100-foot well and get an eight or nine-inch stream of water. Now those same wells have been lowered to 200 feet and they are pumping two to three inches of water," he said.

Unified Farm Protest
Could Be In The Making

LUBBOCK—Stating simply that "farmers are not going to be the whipping boy any longer," the Texas Farmers Union today officially positioned itself for serious protest action to begin in the next few months. Details of that action, possibly a strike or moratorium on supplies purchases as well as rallies and demonstrations, are being formulated at this time.

Official resolution came from the 9,000-member organization's Executive Board, which is asking first for floor rewrites of four-year general farm legislation now before Congress and expected to be finalized shortly after the Fourth of July recess. Second, if amendments are not made, they ask for a Presidential veto. Failing that, the organization promises some form of a strike or protest action.

Said one farmer, "Farmers across the entire state, raising every commodity, are mad! For years we have asked to be heard, and thought this Administration might listen. But the market is at rock-bottom and the policymakers in government want to keep it that way! We're going to tell these guys, by whatever method it takes, that they can't take advantage of us any longer! We're not going to keep on producing...we can't keep producing...if we don't get our fair share at the producer's price level."

The Farmers Union points its main opposition to the Farm Bill toward provisions which would provide low "floors" and precedent-setting "ceilings," also at low levels in order to keep prices at a world level of trade in addition to preventing food inflation. Farmers claim, however, that they cannot deal with income set at a cheap world level while their own costs for equipment, supplies and labor are at inflationary domestic levels.

Said one farmer, "They are taking the 'boom and bust' out of agriculture by taking out the 'boom.' The problem with that, though, is that it guarantees us a loss and there's no place on earth where we can get money borrowed to operate like that any longer."

Other Farmers Union states besides Texas are expected to take similar action soon, which means the movement could spread nationwide. "Once the other states get into their harvest seasons as Texas has been in wheat and now grain sorghum, they'll hit in the face with this bankrupting market. You can bet they'll be with us!"

"We're not trying to hurt the consumer with more inflation," said the farmer spokesman. "Farmers are consumers, too, remember. But it's high time that the person in the supermarket realizes how little of that retail dollar goes back to the farmer. They've got to now that we're going broke fast and that those shelves are not going to stay full if we are forced to quit. They've got to see how over-processed their food is, and how everyone in-between writes their markup and operating profit while the producer is losing his shirt. "You can't expect us to sit out here in the country and go broke, waiting to return at the consumer's convenience. You can't turn agriculture on and off like a light switch. We're told to produce all this food and fiber, and then we're driven out of business with low prices which penalize us for our efficiency. We're not doing it any more!"

Observers say that individual protest actions will probably start at the county level within a few weeks after harvest.

Meanwhile, the state staff of Texas Farmers Union will be working to unify that action as will the National Farmers Union staff when and if any of the other 22 Farmers Union states join the action.

The Scientists Tell Me...

Weather-Damaged Sorghum Tests
Show It's Safe and Nutritious

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

There's good news about a half million acres of grain sorghum in the Coastal Bend area of Texas that was weather-damaged during a prolonged rainy period which began last July 9.

The most damaging rains occurred just as extensive harvest operations were getting underway. Many growers lost 20 to 30 percent of potential yield because of seed sprouting and falling from heads, mold deterioration of moist grain, and lodging caused by winds, following weakening of root systems in moist soils.

Lots of growers lost about $90 per acre from grain loss plus loss of quality in grades. Heavily damaged sorghum is usually graded U.S. No. 4 or sample grade.

In years past, weather-damaged grain sorghum was simply blended with regular grain sorghum and fed without trouble. But what do you do with a half million acres of such sorghum?

Growers asked the Texas Agriculture Experiment Station (TAES) to check the quality of this grain in the laboratory and feedlot on poultry and livestock. Concern was for the effect on nutrition of sprouted and damaged grain and possible toxic effects due to molds and fungus.

A research task force of scientists was designated by TAES Director Jarvis Miller. Coordinated by John K. Riggs, senior scientist in beef nutrition, its support members represent animal, poultry, cereal quality, microbiology and agronomical areas of science.

At Uvalde, Dr. Larry Varner did lab tests on composite sample grades grown in the area and south and east of Uvalde and compared them to No. 2 grade milo produced there in 1975.

The sample grades were slightly higher in crude protein, phosphorus, ash and calcium. Sample grades were slightly lower in organic matter and digestible dry matter.

Weather damaged milo produced in the Texas Coastal Bend area in 1976 was compared with non-weathered No. 2 milo for feeding light beef heifers at Beeville. The grains were elevator run obtained from commercial outlets in the area. Feed mixtures used contained 60 percent ground milo, 28 percent ground sorghum hay, 10 percent guar meal, 1 percent steamed bonemeal and 1 percent trace mineralized salt.

Sixty heifer calves averaging 350 pounds initially were used in the 84-day feeding test.

Daily feed intake averaged 15.4, 15.7 and 17.1 pounds for the groups fed non-weathered, weathered and the 50-50 mixed grains, respectively. This was higher than expected, averaging 3.2, 3.4 and 3.6 percent of body weight daily for the respective groups. Daily gains were 2.04, 2.00 and 2.16 pounds and feed efficiencies were 7.55, 7.85 and 7.92 per pound of gain respectively. No specific problems were encountered during the feeding period. If the damaged grain is particularly light in bushel weight, lower performance might be expected.

At College Station, Dr. R. E. Eichtenwalner ran tests on sorghum samples from the Corpus Christi area. He found weathering decreased the proportion of crude protein and ether extract and increased crude fiber and ash. However, he considers only the ash difference as significant.

In feeding, Lichtenwalner found sheep consumed significantly less of the weathered grain than the non-weathered grain.

However, the addition of water to the rations appeared to eliminate much of the selectivity. At 12.5 percent moisture, sheep still wouldn't eat the ration of 100 percent weathered grain but they ate more of the 80 percent weathered ration than any other.

Dairy cows, fed simple concentrate rations containing 64.25 percent of either non-weathered or weather-damaged sorghum, showed no difference between the two rations in voluntary consumption. Intake, milk yield and composition of milk produced were not significantly affected by weathering, according to Dr. Gary Lane and R. C. Brian.

In tests with pigs, weathered grain diets proved very satisfactory in both short-term acceptability studies and 100-day growing-finishing trials.

Dr. T. D. Tanksley says pigs started at about 50 pounds liveweight gained at the same rate with the same feed utilization as those eating non-weathered diets. When 15-pound pigs were fed the weathered sorghum diets, feed intake and daily gains were slightly lower than those for pigs on non-weathered grain.

However, cleaning the weathered grain or feeding it on a half and half basis with non-weathered grain, resulted in gains equal or superior to those made on non-weathered grain.

In poultry, feeding tests with chicks, broilers, layers and turkeys conducted by Dr. L. O. Rowland, indicated that weathered milo had about the same feeding value as non-weathered, when mycotoxins are not present.

MRS. JEAN FARMER

Let's Cook Newcomer to Hereford Loves Being Homemaker

BY DIANNE BANNER
Brand Staff Writer

Homemaker Jean Farmer who resides with her husband Ed, in the Pitman Apartment complex on 15th street is the ideal picture of what a homemaker should be. She loves to cook, take care of her home which she decorated herself, she enjoys neighborly people, and always has a pot of coffee on for those who just happen to drop by.

The congenial woman has many different hobbies. She enjoys playing bridge, bowling, tile painting and likes to play the piano. When asked if she had any other hobbies or interests, she commented "I just love to cook and do things for my home, I've always enjoyed that."

The apartment had a touch of class, style and elegance to it. One could tell that alot of love and time went into the complex to make it a warm and enjoyable home.

"I haven't really met enough people to join any clubs yet, but I would like to be a volunteer worker at the hospital here, or perhaps join a bridge club," Mrs. Farmer commented with a friendly, warm-hearted smile. Her husband, and she will soon be attending the Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Farmer has two older children, Janice who has two children and lives in Ft. Smith, and Danny who lives in Lubbock and has, in the past attended Texas Tech.

She and her husband often go walking at night and have a "nice" time enjoying twilight strolls. "Hereford is a nice town. I really do like smaller towns," she said.

"I lived in Farwell. People are more friendly when they come from a small town." Hereford had seemed to have caught the heart of the new two month resident as she talked about the people and their congeniality. Her husband is a Khiva Shriner and his time spent with the organization is often shared by his wife. She has gone with him to many activities and also helped the organization when they sponsored the Khiva Shrine Burns Clinic. He is employed by the Sante Fe Railroad as train agent.

At Wit's End By Erma Bombeck

I am in the process of becoming a reformed saver.

It's hereditary, you know. In addition to an attic full of disposables, my grandmother was squired about by one current and four former husbands who were devoted to her. She could never discard anything.

My mother was just as bad. She had a stove drawer that had everything in it from a rolling pin with no handles to sheet music for a harpsichord, to the yellowed death notice of her iceman who died in 1937.

The symptoms began to show up in me when I was a small child. The neighbors called me "The Curb Junkie." Every Monday, I'd go up and down the street, picking my way through their trash for a lampshade, boxtop, flower pot, or a single boot.

By the time I was in high school, I had a collection of 36 pen wipers, three pictures of Sonja Hanie and four of Ann Sheridan from old billfolds, a lunch box with Snow White and Seven Dwarfs, 15 composition notebooks, a Memory's Garden, a paperweight of Shirley Temple as Heidi, stubs from the circus, a splint from a first aid class, an invitation to Helen George's fifth birthday party, a tooth (possibly human) and 136 issues of Girl's Life.

By the time I was married a certain pattern had begun to develop.

I began to hoard things when no one was around. I wasn't just your average social collector anymore.

Then I began to lie about how much I was saving. I once told someone I only saved two or three milk cartons to make candles out of at Christmas when in reality I had 1500 cartons in the basement.

In time, my saving became more than I could handle and I became an embarrassment. (I'll never forget the time I was saving old cans and jerked one away from our minister's lips at a picnic.)

I told everyone I could stop saving anytime I wanted to, but when I tried to throw away 12 old grade cards, I knew I was lying to myself.

One afternoon, I was slipping two more twist ties into a box under the sink when I felt someone looking over my shoulder. It was my daughter. "What are you doing?" she asked.

"Nothing," I said, closing the drawer quickly.

"You're saving twist ties. Why there must be thousands in there. What for?"

I didn't want you to see me like this," I whimpered.

"Mom, don't you think I know who much you save? The old manila envelopes, the old calendars, the rubber bands from newspapers, the dried out felt tip pens..." She wiped her eyes with a tissue and threw it into the waste basket.

As I retrieved it and laundered it under the faucet, I assured her. "I can quit anytime I want to."

Mike Hull, a sophomore psychology major and accounting minor with a 3.60, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Hull of 620 Westhaven.

Gary Landers, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Landers of 205 Higgins, is a biology/chemistry major and a mathematics minor with a 4.00 grade point average.

Julie Levick, a junior English major and religion minor, has a 3.50 for the semester.

Between 1950 and 1971 the death rate from chronic respiratory disease, emphysema, showed an increase of 1,250 per cent.

Special Service Planned

Trinity Baptist Church membership. Visitors are welcome to attend Sunday night for a "service in song" to be followed by an ice cream and cake supper and Jackson.

Family Writes Novel

The Dean Family pictured above, came to Hereford to find historical information after searching about the country for information in order to write a novel about their great-grandfather who was the first Deaf Smith

Florida Family Finds Data Here

By DIANNE BANNER
Brand Staff Writer

When Jerry R. Dean, of Brandon, was a little boy he used to drag out his great-grandfather's Civil War sword and play with it for hours. Little did he know that he would bring a great deal of personal reward, joy and excitement.

"One day I decided to clean the old rusted thing (the sword) to hang above my mantel. The more I cleaned the more I began to notice the gold gleaming through." I became very interested in all of the inscriptions on the sword and from that day on, those inscribed words on the sword have led me to some of the most remote corners of the world.

The Dean family is writing a historical novel about their great-grandfather and found a story about the Civil War in a magazine here Tuesday which had a paragraph or more about the great-grandfather.

After doing an extreme amount of research, in places such as Chickamauga, Kennesaw Mountain, Georgia, Lookout Mountain, going to Woodward, Okla. and Kentucky (the great-grandfather's home town) the Dean family came to Hereford and found information about Judge Jerry Dean of Deaf Smith County and some "very exciting" happenings of his life which took place in this community.

Judge Jerry R. Dean
...First County Judge

The Dean family are close-knit. Along with the father, they have gone to different parts of the country during summer vacation or spare time and have searched for family history, all of which has been focused on Dean's great-grandfather, Jerry R. Dean who he was named after.

The late Jerry R. Dean was the first Deaf Smith County Judge to hold office in Hereford. He held his first session on October 10, 1890. He had won the election with 58 votes against his opponent's 10 ballots.

Ann Landers Disturbed By Sex

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two years ago, when I was almost 14, I was sexually assaulted. That horrible nightmare is never completely out of my mind.

Whenever a guy puts his arm around me I get turned off. I just can't stand to be touched. Do you think maybe I just haven't met the right guy yet? No one knows of the terrible thing that happened to me and I'd prefer to keep it this way. Please tell me what to do. I worry a lot that my whole life is ruined. --Desperate

DEAR D.: The trauma resulting from a sexual assault can create life-long problems unless something is done to help the victim overcome feelings of shame and anxiety.

You should have had counseling immediately. There are now Rape Crisis Centers in many cities. They offer precisely the kind of help you need.

There are other agencies that counsel psychologically disturbed people who can't pay. Contact Community Referral Service (phone book) or your county or state Mental Health Group. The Salvation Army and YWCA also provide excellent counseling services. Get going. You're two years late.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm so mad I could scream. Please print this letter for all mothers who feel they simply MUST clean the bedrooms of their grown children.

I am 20, female and pay $80 a month for room and board. When I'm not working I'm usually out. I'm not the neatest person in the world and my room does get messy but if it doesn't bother ME, why should it bother my mother? I keep telling her to keep the door closed and stay out of there. Every Sunday I clean it thoroughly.

My mother is a neurotic "Crazy Clean." She also likes to rearrange furniture. I almost broke my neck when I went to lie down where my bed used to be.

A few days ago my sister needed a pocketbook for school. I dumped the contents of mine into a paper sack, gave it to her and got out my new one. It was late so I didn't put the paper bag in a drawer—just left it on the floor, next to my dresser.

The next day I looked for the bag and couldn't find it. I had a hunch what had happened but waited till I cooled off before I asked. Sure enough—my mother had thrown it out. "Thought it was garbage."

In that "garbage" was my address book, poems I had written, letters, receipts, reminder notes—things I'll never be able to replace.

What can I do about this? --Crazy Lady's Daughter

DEAR DAUGHTER: You mother is a compulsive cleaner, so telling her to stay out of your room won't help. Buy a key and use it. After the recent disaster I'll bet you won't get much flak.

DEAR ANN: It's time somebody wrote and told you what great things a spanking can do for a wife who behaves like a child. I speak from experience.

My wife was 17 when we married. She couldn't cook, wouldn't clean the house or sew a button on a shirt. Just spoiled rotten, she was. I decided that the little brat needed a good old-fashioned spanking so I put her right over my knee and let her have it. All it took was twice. Now she's a great little wife. Tell 'em, Annie. --King

DEAR KING [KONG, MAYBE?] Just because you married an immature child who responded to punishment by hitting a five-year-old doesn't mean your approach is right. I feel sorry for you both.

In summer, a house stays cooler when windows are covered during the hot part of the day—window shades, draperies and venetian blinds all help, suggests Pat Seaman, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

When buying a used boat, exercise the same cautions for buying a used car—if possible, have a test drive, cautions Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Government Offers Free Canning Book

COLLEGE STATION—Texas "pickle-and-relish" makers can get a jump on the pickling season this year with a free government publication, "Pickles and Relishes."

Tested recipes are a must in pickling and relish making—and that's what the publication has, according to Marilyn Haggard, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Pickles and Relishes" B-188 is available for county Extension agents throughout Texas—usually listed under County Government offices in the telephone directory.

Among recipes in the publication are Tomato-Apple Chutney, Sweet Nine-Day Pickles, Dilled Okra and Watermelon Rind Pickles. It also includes Green Tomato Mincemeat, Chow-Chow Relish and Chile Sauce recipes—to brighten family meals long into cold winter days, the specialist says.

Crunchy novelty "pickles," Dilled Green Beans, also appear in the publication.

DILLED GREEN BEANS

- 3 pounds green beans
 - about 3 quarts
 - 6 cups of vinegar
 - 2 cups water
 - 1 cup salt
 - 6 bunches dill
 - 6 small cloves of garlic
 - 6 very small, hot red peppers
- Wash beans and remove stem end. Heat vinegar, water, and salt to boiling. Place a piece of dill, pod of pepper, and clove of garlic in each jar. Pack beans in jar to within 1 inch of top. Pour boiling liquid over the beans. Close Process in boiling water bath 20 minutes. Start to count processing time as soon as hot jars are placed into the actively boiling water. Store at least 3 weeks before using.

Scribbles AND Scratches

By KERRIE STEIERT
Women's Editor

ONCE UPON A TIME, there was a little feminist/humanist named Little Red Overriding Hood, who went one day to visit her old-fashioned grandmother, who had yet to be liberated.

Little Red carried with her a basket of goodies, including an autographed picture of a snarling Gloria Steinam, a copy of NOW magazine and a T-shirt proclaiming "Squeeze A Fruit for Anita."

On her journey, Little Red encountered a chauvenistic sexist wolf, who was attracted by the pleasing appearance of the hooded traveller.

"My, you're a pretty little girl," he greeted, "and where are you going on this fine day?"

Little Red arched her brows and bared tiny fangs as she snapped, "I am offended by your tokenistic and dehumanizing reference to my sex. The fact that I am pretty has nothing to do with my qualities as an independent and individual human being."

Taken aback, the wolf slunk back into the dense woods and let the gruesome little stranger go on her way, without further courtesies.

Upon arriving at her grandmother's house, Little Red set about unplugging the television, which "showed women as mindless slaves" and hanging pro-ERA posters on the wall next to the needlepoint already there. When she was done, Little Red surveyed the room and was happy with her work.

"Well Grandmother, what do you think?" Little Red inquired.

"I think that I liked it better before you came," her grandmother shyly replied.

Angered by her grandmother's ingratitude, Little Red pushed the old woman into a closet and locked the door. "If you don't support the movement, then you shan't be heard," she scolded. "Some day, you'll appreciate the efforts of your sisters."

Totally disgusted with the world's deafness to her cause, Little Red stretched out on the sofa to pout, but she soon fell fast asleep.

Meanwhile, the wolf who had been accosted by Little Red in the woods came to Grandmother's house, because it was a habit of his to check on his elderly friend. When he did not see grandmother in her familiar places in the garden or at the kitchen window, he became suspicious and peeked in the window, where he spied Little Red sleeping.

He sneaked into the house and soon found Grandmother confined to the closet. After hearing of Little Red's deeds, the wolf resolved to deal with Little Red on her own level.

He donned Grandmother's eyeglasses and bonnet and jumped into bed to await Little Red.

When she awoke, Little Red found the closet open and she searched the house high and low for her Grandmother, who was hiding. When Little Red entered the bedroom, she was fooled by the wolf's disguise.

"Why Grandmother, what big eyes you have," she exclaimed.

"The better to see what is important in life, my dear," the wolf croaked.

"Why Grandmother, what big ears you have," noted Little Red.

"The better to hear what people say, my dear," he answered.

"And Grandmother," countered Little Red, "What big teeth you have!"

"The better to devour the injustice of the world,"

"Why Grandmother," Little Red said, "I think you have a point. Explain to me your position on..."

And so, the wolf and Little Red Overriding Hood talked for a long time about many things and exchanged their ideas without argument. After awhile, the wolf even revealed his identity and Grandmother joined them for the conversation.

The three had such a good time that it was late in the evening when Little Red put her hood on again for the long trip home. As she stepped out the door, she called to them, "You know, of course, that this type of thing only happens in fairy tales."

Standing on the homey threshold of the domicile, Grandmother and the wolf looked sad and replied, "Alas, we know."

S&S
THIS FABLE IS purposely written to remind local citizens of the Texas Women's Meeting which will take place this weekend at Austin. At this writing, fewer than five Hereford women were planning to attend and a stronger delegation is needed to thwart the "Little Red Overriding Hoods" at the Capital.

However, Patricia Vogler is trying to organize enough local women in order to charter a bus to Austin. It is hoped that at least 30 individuals will decide to attend this weekend's convention. The round trip bus fare will cost from $25-30 per person.

Mrs. Vogler stresses that men as well as women are asked to attend. After all, many of the issues to be confronted will have decided effects on the entire nation. If you have an opinion about ERA, abortion, federal day care centers, birth control, homosexuals, women in military combat, and other controversial topics, make an effort to get to Austin before noon Saturday. The registration fee will be only $5.

For further information, contact Mrs. Vogler, 578-4433; or Marlene Farley, 364-1960.

"Wrong, Bobby. You can't say both."
"At Pizza Inn, you can. You can get all your favorite pizza toppings on either the original thin crust or the old-fashioned thick crust. They're both delicious."
"I guess you got me there, Bobby."
"Yes, Miss Fernwood."
"Maybe I'm not cut out to be a teacher."
"Could be, Miss Fernwood."

Korean CIA Director Says Dealer Provided 15-20 Names

KEITH PASKER & BREN PETERSEN
...fulfilling Mormon mission here

Youths Called to Explain Message of Mormon Faith

Elder Brent Petersen of Cokeville, Wyo. has been assigned to serve with Elder Keith Pasker as Mormon missionaries in this city and the surrounding area.

Elder Pasker, whose home is in Murry, Utah, has been working in Hereford for three months. This is Elder Petersen's first assignment as a full-time missionary.

supporting in the tradition of Mormon missionaries, have been called to serve in the Texas Dallas Mission in the northern regions of this state. Their work "in the field" will last two years.

Their message is one of restoration of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, corresponding directly with the beliefs of the church (Church of the Latter Day Saints). The purpose of life is a prevalent theme in their mission work, which is founded on four principles: faith, repentance, baptism and the Holy Ghost.

Further information concerning the Mormon faith may be obtained by visiting the Latter Day Saints church, located at 500 Country Club Drive. Elders Pasker and Petersen are available to visit any resident who is interested in learning more about Mormonism.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A former director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency testified Wednesday that Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park told him the KCIA had provided a list of 15 to 20 U.S. congressmen to be paid cash contributions.

The former KCIA director, Kim Hyung Wook, said he already had left the agency when Park told him in 1971 that then KCIA director, Lee Hu Rak, had provided the list of congressmen. Kim said he couldn't recall any names on the list.

Kim said he personally acted to deposit $3 million in a bank to help Park establish the Georgetown Club in Washington after Park said he could use the club to influence congressmen.

Kim also testified that two U.S. congressmen he declined to name publicly asked him, while he was KCIA director, to help make Park the exclusive rice dealer for South Korea in America. He said they promised in return to use their influence in Congress to help modernize the Korean armed forces.

The former intelligence chief said Tongsun Park "was definitely not an employe on the payroll of the KCIA but he offered me his cooperation."

Earlier, Kim testified that South Korean President Park Chung Hee ordered an attempt to buy influence in the U.S. Congress. He said the president did this to keep congressmen from opposing what Kim described as the president's turn to dictatorship.

Kim did not elaborate in a 299-page prepared statement on precisely what he meant by a "bribery scandal" but said he was prepared to do so. Security arrangements were massive for his appearance before a House International Relations subcommittee.

Kim said Tongsun Park, a Korean rice dealer who distributed cash and gifts to a number of U.S. congressmen, acted as a Korean government agent in Washington but "was definitely not an employe on the payroll of the KCIA. "But he offered me his cooperation," the former KCIA director said.

"President Park, while establishing a strong dictatorial system, was apprehensive about the United States' reaction," he said. "He knew that the opposition of the U.S. government and U.S. Congress would have great influence on his dictatorial actions."

"To prevent this opposition, the well-known Tongsun Park scandal was undertaken," he said.

At several other points in his statement, Kim referred to it was the "Tongsun Park bribery scandal."

The former Korean intelligence chief said he was breaking a long silence because he fears what he called President Park's dictatorial repression and other events including the Tongsun Park affair have brought a American reaction that could lead to war for his country.

He said he believes President Carter's decision to withdraw U.S. ground forces from South Korea in four to five years "was greatly influenced by the disclosure of the Tongsun Park bribery scandal." He said he agrees with the American general Carter resigned, Maj. Gen. John Singlaub, "that the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Korea will lead to war with North Korea."

"If there is a war," he said "I feel that South Korea will be communized."

He said he believes the U.S. troops should be kept in South Korea until a nonaggression treaty between North and South Korea "can be signed by the superpowers in the area; the United States, the Soviet Union, Japan and China."

Students Earn A&M Honors

COLLEGE STATION—Three students from Hereford earned "Distinguished Student" ranking at Texas A&M University, announced Registrar Robert A. Lacey.

The undergraduate honor is awarded students who have excelled academically. Recipients must earn at least 3.25 grade point ratio (out of a possible 4.0) during the most recent grading period.

"Distinguished Student" ranking is limited to 10 per cent of Texas A&M's undergraduate enrollment.

Distinguished students are: Michael A. Aven, animal science, son of Hiley L. Aven of 230 Ranger; Robert B. Hicks, animal science, son of Robert M. Hicks of Rt. 1; and Dale B. Hollingsworth, agronomy, son of A.L. Hollingsworth of Rt. 2.

Emmissary Begins Work In Hereford

A new local detective agency and security company recently opened in Hereford at 413 E 6th. The Emmissary conducts civil, criminal, industrial and arson investigations, collects evidence photographs, provides uniformed and armed security guards, and has a supply of burglar, robbery, rape and fire alarms.

Bill Beach, former Amarillo police officer, opened the Hereford office of the Emmissary a month ago but compliance to state regulations caused a short delay in actual operation of the local facility.

"We've seen a need to open an office here. Through local research and talking to local businessmen, a need for an agency like ours is apparent," Beach said.

All inquiries are welcome, according to Beach. The Emmissary can be reached at 364-7152 on weekdays.

Paul Harvey News

Andy Young,
Sophisticated Superfly

Andy Young is no longer an enigma.

It took a while for us to recognize what he was up to.

At first it appeared to make no sense for a diplomat to be moving about Africa in the undiplomatic role of a gadfly.

The very idea that the chief of the United States' U.N. delegation should be going around Africa fanning smouldering passions into flame... it didn't seem to make sense.

It does now.

Our U.N. Ambassador Andy Young, in the name of "human rights," told black Africans to boycott white merchants; called the British "chicken" on racial matters; implied black American troops would refuse to fight on the side of South African whites.

All this table pounding made no difference whatever to the principals involved.

Africans cannot boycott white merchants any more than they have.

Britain demanded and got a fine-print apology.

There never was any question about our military involvement in South Africa.

Then why all the inflammatory rhetoric?

We all tend to be reassured when any policy-making national official of our country sounds off in behalf of something in which we believe.

This is no less true of blacks in the United States.

When they see in headlines a black official telling off whites, they are reassured that their interests are receiving official attention.

It is an artful political device for taking the heat off the homefront.

Andy Young has utterly defanged stateside agitators for black rights.

The Abernathys and the Browns and the Jacksons have been effectively gelded by this Administration superstar focusing all black-white race resentment "elsewhere."

"Human rights" is the best of all issues with which to unify the electorate. It cannot offend. It mollifies the masses.

President Carter, subscribing entirely to the declamations of Andy Young, predicts that Young will one day be "a Third World hero."

I suggest the parallel purpose is to create a homefront hero whose protestations tend to shush dissent.

"How long has it been since you've heard of any race-related picketing or other demonstrating in the United States?"

As governor of Georgia, Jimmy Carter was similarly skillful—sacrificing home-state support on the race issue in order to build the only kind of a national reputation that could win national office. Andy Young, then and now, has helped with elegance and eloquence to establish and sustain that image.

This may be the first-ever Administration in our nation which has managed to neuter domestic race restiveness by-in effect—moving the race problem to Africa.

To hide thread ends when sewing, leave ends long. Knot thread close to fabric. Thread ends through a needle and slip them between layers of the fabric. This hides them, and they don't pull out as easily, says Margaret-Ann Vanderpoorten, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

BACKYARD FISHING BROKEN ARROW, Okla. (AP) - Roland Martin, a professional angler, doesn't have to go far for fishing practice. He has his own backyard fishing tank that's 16 feet in diameter, 4 1/2 feet wide and holds 7,000 gallons of water. To make it look like a real lake, the bottom is covered with rocks, several large boulders, tree stumps and logs. Martin's tank has large windows, through which he can view and film his dozen or so bass. "I've always wanted some method where I could really study the fish, do some in-depth experiments and learn more about them than I already know," the angler said.
