Finance Talks Enter 2nd Day

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — House hearings on public school financing went into the second day today with those wanting general property tax relief faced by those wanting poorer school districts to benefit most.

Meanwhile, Gov. Dolph Briscoe was expected to say today what other subjects, if any, may be discussed in the special legislative session opening at 10 a. m. Monday.

So far, Briscoe has named public school financing as the No. 1 task of the session, but has indicated he might open it also to repeal of utility sales taxes and possibly other issues.

In a long session Thursday, the House Committee on Public Education in an advisory position until Monday, was told by Speaker Bill Clayton that he hoped to have a bill up for debate by the middle of next week.

Much of Thursday's session was devoted to witnesses for and against the two major proposals that have surfaced for the special session. One, backed strongly by Clayton, stresses statewide local property tax relief through larger state payments for school operations. Another bill, by Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, called the "equalization bill," would give poorer schools comparatively larger shares of the increased state funding.

Both bills would give local school districts the choice of assessing taxes on full market value of property or taking into account producing farm land at lower rates.

The special session, which will be limited to 30 days, was called by Briscoe after the 140-day regular session adjourned without either house voting on a $900 million public school financing bill that was recommended within the last half-hour by a Senate-House compromise committee. A struggle between rural and urban legislators over levying local property taxes for school support was the main bone of contention.

A spokesman for the attorney general's department also gave a "probably" green light Thursday to giving tax breaks for producing farm land. Bob Heath, one of Atty. Gen. John Hill's top aides, explained Thursday that an attorney general's opinion issued Wednesday gives the legislature broad authority to say how property taxes may be levied for "legitimate state purposes."

Heath was asked by Rep. Jim Nugent, D-Kerrville, if a bill giving producing farm land in a different tax assessment as "encouragement for the production of food and fiber" would be a "legitimate state purpose." "That is possible it would be considered that way," Heath said after thinking a moment. "I would even say it was probable."

Nugent complained that "what you are saying is that it is up to us to draw up a bill and submit it to you and you will say whether it's good. We're asking you for help."

Rep. Jim Kaster, D-El Paso, protested to Heath a few minutes later that the attorney general's department was laying down a "catch 22 situation. I'm afraid that anything we put up you are liable to say it is not a legitimate state purpose. Looks like we are getting into politics and John Hill wants to claim credit for anything we do."

"That is out of order," ruled Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo. "We're going to keep politics out this hearing."

"I'd just like for someone to tell me how we can keep politics out of this session," Nugent said. Nobody answered.

William C. Bednar, general counsel of the Texas Education Agency, warned in public school financing might be affected by the final outcome of a suit filed by San Augustine and Leander school districts and now under consideration by Federal Dist. Judge Jack Roberts in Austin.

The school districts asked Roberts Wednesday to issue an order stopping what they called inequitable state school funding because most districts do not tax "intangible" personal property such as bank accounts and stocks. Most counties do not tax automobiles.

House Bill 1, sponsored by Clayton and the House conferees, calls for expenditure of $900.7 million with $312 million going for teachers pay raises, $90 million for maintenance and operation of schools, $10.6 million for transportation, $310 million for local fund assignment, which would be raised from local taxes, and $120 million for "equalization" aid to poorer districts.

The second bill, HB 3, introduced by Coleman and others has a bottom line figure of $939.7 million. Coleman said the key differences in the bills came with his bill allowing only $89.2 million, instead of $310 million, for the local share of school funding, and allowing $296 million for equalization aid, instead of $120 million. Coleman said he hoped to add another $20 million for equalization aid later, which would make the total cost of the bill $959.7 million.

Comptroller Bob Bullock has said the special session will have a total of $959.8 million for public school financing or other state spending.

County Studies Housing

BY O.G. NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Hereford and Deaf Smith County can help provide low-income housing and rental property, county officials were told during a special meeting Thursday, but the problems in the San Jose community are "complex and unique."

The assessment of the San Jose area was not surprising to County Judge Sam Mogan and the commissioners court, but they did learn something about various Farmers Home Administration programs and how to form a local housing authority. They also learned that the Panhandle Community Action Corporation has received a $25,000 grant to study and assist in housing problems in Deaf Smith and Parmer counties.

Alva Finck, housing division specialist with the Texas Department of Community Affairs, Austin; and Roy Rogers, director of housing for the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation, Amarillo, led the informal discussion at the meeting. Robert Gauthreaux, Hereford counselor for the Community Action housing program, was also present.

Finck went into detail to explain some of the FmHA housing programs which are available in Hereford. He explained that the community affairs department works closely with FmHA because "that's where loans are available for communities such as Hereford." The loan programs he discussed were for cities in the 10,000 to 20,000 population bracket, and he pointed out that Hereford might not be eligible in a few years.

Judge Morgan asked Finck specifically about the situation at San Jose, where water and sewer facilities are a prime need. Both Finck and Rogers said a study was being made on the matter. Rogers attended the San Jose organizational meeting here and said a Community Action committee would have some recommendations within 30 days.

Finck said, however, that a HUD Block Grant Program might be the only one which could provide water and sewer funding, and there were "a lot of its" in such a program. He outlined several other HUD programs the city could make application for, but stressed that a lot of red tape is involved in working out HUD programs. The agency representatives mentioned that a major hurdle for San Jose residents in becoming eligible for a loan or funding is the fact that streets and alleyways are private property in that area.

Both Finck and Rogers recommended, unofficially, that Hereford form a local housing authority and develop low-income housing projects. And, both seemed to agree that it would be best to have a city housing authority rather than a county authority. Under the FmHA programs, Finck said, the governmental agencies prefer that a local housing authority be responsible for the program.

"This type of management is more flexible and responsive to the community,"

Sheriff McPherson Among Trial Witnesses

Editor's note—Deaf Smith County Sheriff Travis McPherson is in Paducah this week to testify in the trial of Alberto M. Vera. McPherson testified in the recent trial of Dr. James Ray Ammons of Murray, Ky.

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) — Three South Texas officials have flown here to testify as character witnesses for a Texas man identified in testimony as the alleged middleman with a marijuana supplier in Mexico.

Alberto M. Vera, a Duval County, Tex., native, is on trial here in U.S. District Court on a charge of conspiring to obtain marijuana from Mexico.

A spokesman for the Jim Wells County Thursday that County Atty. Ramiro Flores, Sheriff Monroe Whitman and Sheriff Monroe Whitman and Justice of Justice of the Peace Alberto Garcia were en route for the trial.

Indicted with Vera were Dr. James Ray Ammons, a Murray, Ky., physician, and his personal pilot, Hubert Max Putnam. Ammons already has pleaded no contest to the charge. Putnam pleaded guilty earlier this week and agreed to testify against Vera.

Putnam was on the stand Thursday along with John Raidt and his brother, Barry Raidt.

Putnam said he and John Raidt left Murray by plane on June 7, 1976, for Austin after the physician approached Raidt about obtaining marijuana.

When Putnam and Raidt reached Austin, they were joined by Barry Raidt but were unable to find any marijuana, Putnam testified.

Putnam said he later flew to Culiacan, Sinaloa, Mexico, obtained 803 pounds of marijuana on credit and headed back toward an isolated airstrip near Amarillo. Putnam said the aircraft ran out of gas and he was forced to make a landing near Hereford.

The marijuana was confiscated a short time later by police.

Time Lag Puzzles U.S. Prison Authorities After Fire Kills 5 Inmates, Injures 71

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — The horn that often means disaster blared three times at about 1:30 a. m. in the dormitory of the Danbury Fire Department.

Captain Antonio Lagarto and his crew jumped out of their beds and into their boots and raced to the worst fire in the history of the federal prison system.

"Help us! Get us out of here! Over Here!" inmates yelled to the firemen from the small steel-frame windows in Dormitory G, a drug treatment unit at the Federal Correctional Institution in Danbury.

Five inmates died and 71 persons suffered burns or smoke inhalation in the flames, thick smoke and toxic fumes that swept the overcrowded cellblock dormitory Thursday — the 37th anniversary of the formal opening of the medium-security prison.

The fire had started at least 13 minutes before the fire horn blared.

A five-man board of inquiry from the U.S. Bureau of Prisons was to convene today to investigate the time lag.

Authorities said the fire was caused by arson, but had no suspects in custody and did not know of any motive.

Billy O. Davis, associate warden, and Capt. Lagarto denied the contention of some inmates that the fire was caused by an electrical malfunction in the dormitory washroom.

"Initial findings indicate that the fire started in a field jacket hanging in the washroom area," Davis said. "Fire by accidental cause has been eliminated."

Davis said a preliminary investigation indicated that the fire spread rapidly to the ceiling of the dormitory, fanning heavy smoke. He said that inmates and prison staff members tried unsuccessfully to extinguish the fire.

The inmates also charge that guards refused to open exits from the dormitory immediately because they were more concerned about security than safety, causing delays in the evacuation.

Davis acknowledged a delay in opening the emergency exit door but denied that it was intentional.

"Inmates sounded the alarm at the unit and staff members on duty attempted to unlock the emergency room door upon

Showers Tease Area

A thundershower which moved over the city in the wee hours of the morning sounded as if it was depositing more moisture than was actually measured in local rain gauges.

Rainfall began about 1 this morning, and the splash of the falling raindrops proved deceiving.

KPAN radio logged a total of 10 inches of moisture for the city while the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant also measured only 10 inches.

At the city's northern edge, 20 inches of moisture was measured on property farmed by Griffin & Brand.

Negligible amounts of moisture were received in areas surrounding Hereford.

A sprinkle was reported at the Raymond Schlabs farm six miles north of the city, while no moisture fell at the Easter community south of Hereford.

Mrs. Bruce Coleman reported that a few sprinkles had fallen in the Walcott area, but added there was no measurable precipitation.

To the east of Hereford, the Dawn community recorded only a trace.

Sprinkles continued to fall with skies overcast early this morning.

The extended forecast for West Texas calls for generally fair conditions Sunday through Tuesday with seasonal temperatures. Highs are expected to be in the 90's and the lows should be in the 60's and 70's.

Operation Leaves Twins Sick

WASHINGTON (AP) — Siamese twins joined at the torso since birth remain desperately ill after an operation that followed a "tough ethical decision" to try to save both infants, rather than sacrifice one.

"We decided the chances of both surviving were very small, but the chances of one surviving reasonable," said Dr. Judson G. Randolph, who supervised the operation that separated the two-month-old girls on June 23.

"If we had chosen to save one child, it would have been a relatively simple operation because there would have been plenty of tissue and plenty of skin," Randolph said Thursday after hospital officials released word of the operation.

The girls' mother asked that the family remain anonymous.

"One was not healthier than the other," Randolph said. "It is our judgment that separation, even at a greater risk, was kinder."

Now, even though he is caring for two very sick infants, Randolph said he "wouldn't go back" on "the tough ethical decision" he made with other physicians, clergymen, the family and others at Children's Hospital.

The girls, flown from Italy for the 10-hour operation, "laughed, smiled and cried independently" when they arrived, he said.

Before separation, the twins had two hearts, two sets of lungs, two stomachs, four arms, two heads and separate spines, Randolph said. Their intestinal tracts were intertwined, their diaphragm and liver were joined and they had two legs.

"We don't know whether they will live. They're still desperately ill," he said.

Randolph said if the twins survive, corrective surgery may be possible later to allow each to be outfitted with an artificial leg.

Randolph said his main concern is the "graping wounds" in each child's torso that are covered with plastic. "They are still an indefinite way away from being healed," he said, adding the risk of infection was large.

Skin grafts could be made from other parts of the body and skin around the wounds could be stretched to cover part of the exposed areas later, he said.

The infants have been in the hospital's intensive care section since the operation.

Randolph said the operation raised several ethical questions for the doctors and clergy, including whether a major medical risk should be taken with healthy two-month-old babies.

"We were concerned that leaving them together would have an enormous psychological impact," he said. "We felt that it would be cruel and unusual for these children to remain together."

He said the idea of saving only one child was discarded "because we felt we had two little baby girls and couldn't decide that one would survive and one wouldn't."

Moscow Issues Opinion On Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP)—Moscow is stepping up its attack against U.S. development of the neutron bomb as President Carter considers whether to move ahead with production of the weapon.

After disclosure Thursday that the warhead has been tested underground in Nevada, a Russian commentator wrote in a dispatch reported by the Soviet news agency Tass that instead of seeking a satisfactory settlement of the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms talks, "the American administration is doing everything possible to complicate these negotiations."

The commentator, Yuri Kornilov, wrote, "This round in the race for illusive military superiority is an extremely dangerous venture which jeopardizes the cause of deepening and strengthening detente."

Administration officials refused to respond to the Soviet commentary.

SBA Questioned Over Irregularities

WASHINGTON (AP)—Officials of the Small Business Administration are facing additional questioning in Congress on allegations that white businessmen are reaping profits from a program aimed at helping black entrepreneurs.

Vernon Weaver, administrator of the SBA since April 1, headed the list of scheduled witnesses today before a Senate subcommittee concluding three days of hearings.

As SBA official testified on Thursday that Weaver would "have something to say" about allegations that top agency officials failed to act when told by internal auditors of possible irregularities.

Whooping Cranes Face Problems

GRAYS LAKE, Idaho (AP)—Predators and drought threaten whooping crane chicks hatched here this summer in an experiment to increase numbers of the endangered species, the project director said.

Don Driewen said that for the third year, whooping crane eggs taken from wild flocks were transplanted to nests of sandhill cranes, a related species which migrates to this Eastern Idaho wildlife refuge each summer.

But Driewen said only half the 18 chicks hatched this spring from eggs brought from Alberta, Canada and Maryland remain alive. The rest were victims of natural causes, mostly marauding coyotes.

He said the chicks, still unable to fly, are particularly vulnerable to coyotes roaming the normally high water marsh lands.

Probe On Hoffa Not Over Yet

DETROIT (AP)—The trail is getting cold in the Jimmy Hoffa case, but the investigation into the two-year disappearance of the ex-Teamsters boss is far from over, a U.S. Justice Department spokesman said Thursday night.

U.S. Attorney Philip Van Dam said he is "not as optimistic as I was last year" that the case will be solved.

Hoffa vanished July 30, 1975 while he was locked in a struggle to regain the presidency of the world's largest union. He was last seen standing in the parking lot of the posh Machus Red Fox restaurant in the Detroit suburb of Bloomfield Township.

The trail gets colder, but I sure don't believe the Hoffa probe has collapsed," said Van Dam. "It becomes a little more difficult the longer you wait between the criminal event and the point when something is actually solved."

Police Report

Two purses reportedly were stolen Thursday afternoon at the city swimming pool, according to the Hereford Police Department.

One of the purses, owned by Aurelia Elizonda of 1105 Grand was taken from her car and found outside the vehicle with nothing missing.

The other purse, owned by Janie K. Grimsley of 114 Nueces, was taken from inside the pool and later found nearby, with $20 in cash and two transistor radios stolen from it.

Police also investigated a traffic accident at 5:05 p.m. in the 100 block of 16th Street.

Train Kills 3 Children

HTINGTON PARK, Calif. (AP)—It's a sight dreaded by every train engineer—kids on the tracks, heads down.

Larry Van Daele was pulling his 15-car freight toward its home yard after a daily run to Los Angeles harbor Thursday when he spotted four children hand in hand idly stepping from tie to tie, a Union Pacific spokesman said.

Slowly, they came toward him.

He sounded his diesel's shrill whistle. But they kept coming.

He sounded the whistle again and threw on the emergency brake.

The train slowed, but only gradually.

Brakeman Maurice Dieu leaped from the train, running and waving at the kids. The railroad said the freight was traveling at less than the 20 m.p.h. train yard speed limit.

But the four of them, they were looking directly down at the ties," said Dieu.

He said he climbed onto the platform in front of the engine.

"I thought, well, maybe my voice might carry. I have no idea why they didn't hear the whistle."

Three of the children were killed on the rails as the train ground to a stop. The fourth was critically injured.

No one knows why they didn't move.

"The brakeman got out and waved and hollered and everything else," said Union Pacific spokesman John Forbes. "Have you ever heard a diesel whistle? It turns you blue."

But Van Daele was pushing a thousand tons. He tried, but trains don't stop like automobiles," Forbes said.

Before we identified them, we thought they might be handicapped," Forbes said of the children. "We thought they might be deaf."

Amanda Lack, 7, her 5-year-old brother Jason, 6, and Julie Kline, 10, were killed. Julie's 5-year-old sister Holly was listed in "extremely critical" condition at St. Francis Hospital after undergoing emergency surgery.

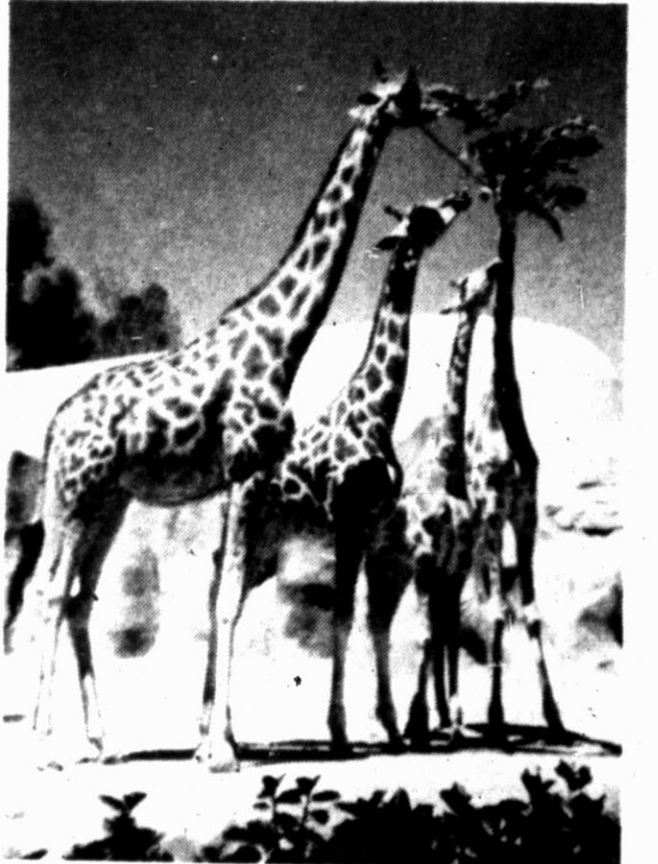

On their way home from a morning in the park on a hot summer day, they had decided to stop at the trainyard in this largely industrial suburb.

"They use it as a playground, unfortunately," Forbes said. "There are kids all over."

Forbes said Van Daele "saw their faces and he just couldn't understand why they didn't move. That engineer is damn near in shock."

Housing

and its life expectancy is indefinite since there will always be a mayor or county judge to appoint the board of commissioners for the housing authority," state Finck.

He emphasized that the success of a housing authority depends on the commissioners and community support. Finck said the government does not dictate the program. He said there had been bad publicity about housing authority programs, but in almost every case it was because the local commissioners were not active—or didn't have a good manager for the program.

Finck outlined several types of FmHA programs. These included the areas of construction of homes, repair of homes, low-rental housing, self-help construction program, and farm labor housing. He said there is "virtually no chance of public housing money being made available in West Texas. He said the limited HUD funds are going to larger cities.

There are currently 382 housing authorities in Texas, said Finck, and he added that Texas has a record of operating the best local authorities in the nation.

Rogers announced at the meeting that the Panhandle Community Action Corporation has just received approval of a $25,000 grant to assist with housing studies in Deaf Smith and Parmer counties. He said the program will include the employment of two housing coordinators to work in the counties.

"We need to have local housing authorities for these people to work with and assist them in their programs," stated Rogers. Rogers said advertisements are starting this week to seek the two coordinators. "We are not coming into Deaf Smith and Parmer counties to tell the communities what to do, we will assist them in doing what they want to accomplish," he added.

Marie Griffin, a local realtor who attended the meeting, said there is a critical need in Hereford for rental housing for the low-income families. She said Realtors have made surveys here which indicate the need for such rental housing.

Judge Morgan had invited city commissioners and the city manager to attend the meeting, but Mayor Barney Dowell was the lone representative of the city. Others attending the session included Frank Ford, local Community Action chairman, Bob Duckworth, executive vice president of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, Rev. Andrew Del Toro, a member of the San Jose steering committee, and Ed Dziuk.

Volunteer Work Scheduled For San Jose Area

Alleys in the San Jose community will get a facelift Saturday as residents of the area conduct a volunteer cleanup project.

Robert Gallegos of the San Jose Steering Committee reports that volunteers will gather at 8 a.m. and will proceed to various alleys in the community for the day of work.

Citizens of San Jose will provide the manpower and trucks for the cleanup.

Saturday's volunteer work is part of a continuing effort to improve the environment at San Jose as residents seek to secure a loan for a water and sewer system.

Cleanup work is being conducted at San Jose in cooperation with the State Health Department.

Fire

seeing that fire had broken out in the vicinity of the entrance to the unit," Davis said. However, the emergency exit door jammed due to the pressure of inmates trying to get out and they key broke in the door.

The dead inmates were identified as Donell Proctor, 32 of Landover, Md.; Henderson Holliday, 38, Robert Ware, 27, and Robert Moore, 33, all of Washington, D.C., and Anthony Johnson, 28, of New Castle, Del.

Holliday and Ware were serving sentences for narcotics violations; Johnson for forgery; and Moore for burglary, the FBI said. Information on the length of their sentences and Proctor's conviction was not immediately available.

Davis said in a statement Thursday night that 18 inmates remained hospitalized, including four in critical condition. Danbury Hospital officials said that among the 71 injured were one firefighter and one prison guard.

Cuba's Rural Hospitals Cutting Death Rate of Mothers, Infants

By CLAUDE E. ERBSEN
Associated Press Writer

CHIVIRICO, Cuba (AP)—A 36-bed hospital stands on a hill-top here where bonfires once blazed to burn mosquitoes passing boats to take local residents to a hospital in Santiago, less than 50 miles away as the crow flies. More often than not the boats didn't respond, and a wooden cross and many mounds of stones along a beach at the foot of the hill mark the graves of those who died while waiting.

The last beachside death is said to have occurred less than 18 years ago, shortly before the Chivirico rural hospital was built by the Fidel Castro government, whose struggle for power had begun in the nearby Sierra Maestra.

The site of the hospital was symbolically chosen to overlook the seaside graveyard.

Before the Castro regime opened a two-lane blacktop highway from Santiago into the Sierra Maestra, passing through Chivirico, the only relatively fast way to reach medical attention was by sea. A five-day trip by muleback was the only alternative.

Today Chivirico is within an hour's reach of Santiago—Cuba's second largest city—by road, and an ambulance stands by at the hospital to carry serious cases into the city for specialized care.

But routine maternity and pediatric care, as well as dental and outpatient services, are handled on the spot.

"Our primary concern is with the child and the expectant mother," says hospital director Dr. Luis Fonsbarrio, 25, a recent medical school graduate who like most Cuban doctors is spending his first three years in a rural assignment.

Fonsbarrio supervises a staff of four doctors—including a woman obstetrician—nine nurses and two dentists.

They average a birth a day, and in addition to coping with the hospital's inpatients they share with another small rural hospital the job of providing general medical care for the 35,000 people scattered through the Sierra Maestra region.

"We can handle most problems right here," Fonsbarrio said in an interview, "but if there are complications we can do the preliminary diagnosis or first aid here and send them on to Santiago."

The hospital has no X-ray machine, and only very simple laboratory facilities. The dentists' office has a drill from Czechoslovakia and sterilizing equipment from Poland.

Chivirico's delivery room is primitive, by Western big-city standards, and far from sterile. But Fonsbarrio says it has helped to reduce drastically the death rate among infants and mothers in an area where unattended births were standard, and mortality high.

"Out-of-hospital childbirth is virtually nonexistent here today," Fonsbarrio says, and expectant mothers who live far out in the mountains are often brought into the hospital as much as two weeks before their expected delivery date to insure that they are there when they have to be.

Chivirico's 35 beds are evenly split between the pediatric and maternity sections. In the pediatric section patients' mothers spend days and nights on chairs next to their children's beds, supplementing the limited nursing staff in caring for the patients.

According to Dr. Heleno Ferrer, Chief of the Department of Preventive Medicine at the University of Havana Medical School, Chivirico's facilities are typical of the more than 60 rural hospitals that have sprung up in Cuba since the Castro regime came into power. In 1958 there was only one such hospital in the entire country.

"The main thrust of their work," he said, "is to care for children and pregnant women. They also try to educate the rural population in hygiene and disease prevention."

The Abundant Life Spirit of America

BY BOB WEAR

Many of the signs in our society today are signs of our fears, uncertainties, weaknesses and discouragement. This is not in harmony with our basic concepts and portrays a lack of confidence. This is disturbing to all of us. If the obvious symptoms are being read correctly, it is logical to conclude that some changes must be made at once.

A favored people is how we have appeared throughout the years of our national life. There was something different about us, a special quality of spirit. The social, moral and political characteristics of our people have all been tied together in one package and called the "Spirit of America."

Reverence for law, initiative, courage, independence, self-reliance, enthusiasm and hope were all prominent in this spirit. These and other closely related social ingredients blended to make us a great nation. Today, by common consent, it is admitted that these elements are less dominant than they were. These elements are not lost, but they do need reviving. They must be returned to their rightful places of prominence, refreshed and renewed until they can be seen from pole to pole.

We are losers, when we exhibit lawlessness, dependency, fear, lethargy, cynicism and defeatism. These are always symptomatic of an inferior social order, a growing inferiority, characterized by a shifting faith. Inferior objects of faith have been elevated to a par with, and sometimes to higher places than time-tested and meaningful objects.

A gradual shifting from the best to second or third best has taken place. There has been growing adoration for the created rather than the Creator. The results make up a distressing montage. This composite picture is repugnant to all who see it and who care. We can either accept it as it is, or we can alter it. It can be done, it can be improved, if we are willing to dedicate ourselves and our all to the demanding task. We can make it what our heritage reveals it should be, and what we long for it to be.

Let us regain our courage, our firm resolve for the right, our moral and spiritual strength, and our badly needed personal and national vigor. This cannot be done, however, as long as we depend upon and continue to exalt materialism, humanism and immorality. The elements which make up the "Spirit of America" do not come from these, but from moral and spiritual values supported by a properly centered faith. The "Spirit of America" can neither be wished into being nor assumed. It is the kind of spirit formed by full devotion to the highest and best of all that is known to us. It must be earned and re-earned again and again. Otherwise, it will never live through the ages.

Transsexuals Abused In Jail

HOUSTON (AP)—A psychiatrist has testified that transsexuals arrested by city police are "induced" during their jail confinement, photographed in the nude and made to "parade around every hour of the night."

Dr. Jay C. Maxwell, a psychiatrist who counsels persons undergoing a sex change in connection with a program at the University of Texas Medical School, said some of his patients have been "propositioned for homosexual activities by police officers."

Police Chief Harry Caldwell said he would not comment until he saw the testimony. However, an assistant city attorney said he had talked to police officials who denied the accusations.

Maxwell's federal court testimony, taken in a deposition as part of a civil suit filed against the City of Houston, was read in court Thursday by U.S. District Court Judge Woodrow Seals.

Seals said in the pre-trial hearing that he could not imagine such conduct occurring "under this police department's administration."

The suit, filed by the American Civil Liberties Union in behalf of seven transsexuals who identify themselves as "Jane Doe," challenges a city ordinance which forbids cross-dressing in public.

The suit claims cross-dressing is a prerequisite for surgery.

Maxwell's testimony said it is a "demeaning and humiliating experience" that happens to all transsexuals picked up for cross-dressing.

In the portion of testimony read by Seals, Maxwell described the transsexuals' jail experience as a "horror story."

He said police, instead of taking the usual mug shot from the neck up, have transsexuals strip so they can be "photographed from all angles." He said those pictures have appeared on the bulletin board of the vice division.

Contacted at his office, Maxwell said he has heard similar jail stories from at least half a dozen transsexuals he treats. He said patients have told him that transsexuals many in the process of having hormone treatment or undergoing to breast implant surgery, are told to display themselves to officers "every time there is a change of shift. That's the information I get."

Under questioning by Seals, Frank Maurer, an assistant city attorney, said he talked with police officials about the allegations and was told "that with the current administration, there are no activities such as that."

MRS. C. L. HUTCHINS

Most local farmers are finishing their summer wheat harvest this week. Late Friday afternoon showers fell over the area which brought the wheat harvest to a halt, but resumed late Saturday afternoon. Yields ranged from 5-40 bushels per acre for dryland wheat with the Brown brothers and their mother Mrs. N.A. Brown, Ernest, Floyd and Eldred reporting the highest yield of 40 bushels per acre.

Custom wheat crews were moving north into Kansas, Colorado and Nebraska the past few days. Farmers of this area were glad for the wheat harvest to be completed on account of hail.

Mrs. Ginger Derring and daughter, Mrs. Sandy Alonzo and daughters, all of Hereford were Thursday guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Helker northwest of Grady. Other guests included Mrs. Vicky Henry and son Jason of Broadview, N.M.

Friday guests in the Helker home included Rodney Derring of Hereford, A.J. Oldham of Chandler, Ariz., and Clayburn Helker of Perryton.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lee Sanders near Friona, on the birth of a daughter on June 24th. The baby weighed 6 lbs. and 1/2 ounce and has been named Rhonda Lynn.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Riley and children spent Friday in Amarillo as guests in the homes of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Williams and two children Stephanie and Paula.

The Ernest Rileys were observing their 10th Wedding Anniversary and the Williams' family kept the three children, Lori, Eddie and Carrie Riley while their parents attended the Country Square Dinner Theater in Amarillo that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sorensen and Mr. and Mrs. White of Friona, returned home Tuesday evening from Asher, Okla., where they went to a medical clinic.

Mrs. Ruth Ridley attended memorial services held for her cousin's husband, J.O. (Dick) Pruitt, 68, who died in Farmington, N.M. from an apparent heart attack.

Memorial services were conducted June 25 in the First United Methodist Church in Melrose, N.M.

Mr. and Mrs. Jordan Miller of State-Line returned home late Sunday afternoon after enjoying eleven days vacation in several southern states. They drove to Paris, Tex., where they were guests in the home of their daughter and husband, Jorda and Hubert Walker. Mrs. Walker joined her parents and the family drove to Killen, Ala., enjoying the scenic southern states. They were guests for several days in the home of a daughter, Dixie and David Setzer and daughter Jerie.

While in this area Miller enjoyed fishing and caught several nice sized fish. Granddaughter Jerie Setzer accompanied her grandparents and aunt on their trip to Askalooza, Kans., where they were guests in the home of another daughter and family, Martha Jean and Edward Classen and children Lisa, Cindy and Peggy.

Miller enjoyed fishing here at a dam and caught several bass, perch and catfish. After visiting in the Classen home, the group returned to Paris, Tex. and Jerie is visiting with her aunt and uncle, the Hubert Walkers, for the next ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Domar of Hereford and their son, Mr. and Mrs. Don Bomar of Amarillo, all former Bellview residents, and Mrs. Joyce Davis of Hereford attended the annual Hassell Community Homecoming held recently in the Hassell Community Church. A basket dinner was enjoyed by approximately 112 registered guests at the noon hour. The Hassell community is west of Grady, N.M.

Following the homecoming activities Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Bomar and Mr. and Mrs. Don Bomar of Amarillo were Sunday evening guests in the home of her sister Mr. and Mrs. Bill Upton in the Hassell community.

Lori Riley, 6, was presented in a piano recital in the home of her teacher Mrs. Rita Hutchins of Broadview recently. Other students included Teresa Shafer daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Junior Shafer of Grady; Gina Burnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burnett, Julie Blackburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.J. Blackburn and Lori is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Riley.

Mrs. Hutchins presented page holders and certificates of accomplishment to the students. Refreshments were served to the guests following the recital.

Judy Harper has been ill recently and had surgery Monday. She is a patient in Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Travis Shields and children, Allen and Ellen, and Mr. and Mrs. Honel Cross, all of Hereford, were Sunday dinner guests in the home of their mother, Mrs. Lula Cross in Bellview, N.M. Other children attending the dinner included Mr. and Mrs. Don Cross of Clovis, and children Brett, Desiree and Christie; and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Cross Jr. of Bellview.

Traveling this week were several families who went to Ute Lake Sunday. They were Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Harrington and their daughters Christie and Lori and a guest of the family, Keith Hadley. Mr. and Mrs. David Turner and children, Mr. and Mrs. Moreland Harrington and children attended the outing. Late arrivals of the group were Robert Lacy Jr. and his cousin Chuck Riddles.

Mr. and Mrs. W.O. Reed were also skiing around the lake with their son Danny and Jackie. Kim Harrington went as an invited guest.

Rev. and Mrs. Rondell Stovall of La Port, Ind. were Sunday afternoon guests in the home of his brother and wife, Dr. and Mrs. Travis Stovall of Broadview. The Rondell Stovalls, former Bellview residents, attended church Sunday evening at the Rosedale Baptist Church and then drove to Hereford and were guests in the home of her father Leo Price and a sister Mr. Aris Blakely for two days.

Mrs. C.L. Hutchins visited Friday afternoon in the home of a friend Mrs. Nellie Mullinax near Broadview, N.M. and with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Culpepper of Marshfield, Mo.

Reading Clinic Offered

Amarillo College will offer a Developmental Reading Clinic for junior and senior high school students beginning July 11. "The course is designed specifically for the junior and senior high student who wishes to increase his reading skills," said Myrna Roberts, instructor of reading at AC.

The class will meet from 1 to 3 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays for five weeks. Classes will meet in the Reading Lab on the third floor of the Library/ Learning Resource Center on the Washington Street campus. Mrs. Roberts will instruct the class at a cost of $30.

"No matter how low or how high a student's reading skills may be, this individualized course will be suited to her or his own particular reading and study needs," said Mrs. Roberts.

Course content will include work on skills such as comprehension, vocabulary, and speed. "Diagnostic testing will be included in the course to help pinpoint areas of needed concentration," said Mrs. Roberts.

Registration may be accomplished in the Administration Building located on the Washington Street campus.

GUILTY?

One of the most common and most powerful emotions we carry around is guilt.

Whether we accept value or idea intellectually makes no difference if we are tied to it emotionally. Oftentimes we are chained to an idea thru our upbringing.

The children I deal with who come from one-parent homes tote this heavy burden of guilt.

An eleven year old boy told me that he was the cause of his parents' divorce. Even in the case of death, a child can feel that something he did or said might have contributed to his parents' "leaving".

A strong self-concept and the feeling of being a worthwhile person can help defray the guilt that creeps in at the most opportune times.

BB-BS Art Soiree Slated July 31

Paintings and sculpture, each valued at more than $100, will be given away during the Big Brother-Big Sister Art Soiree on Sunday, July 31, at the Country Club.

Each participating couple will be admitted to a gourmet dinner and the special art drawing by contributing $100 to the BB-BS organization. The objects of art have been donated by renowned area artists, including Carl J. Smith, Ben Kois, R. Russell Brown, Don Pollard, Ruth Biffle and Jean Green.

The Soiree contribution of $100 is tax-deductible and persons interested in receiving an invitation to the affair are asked to contact JoAn Dwyer, executive director of BB-BS here. Admission to the soiree, which will begin at 6:30 p.m., will be limited to 100 couples, who will have the chance of winning one of twenty art objects.

Decor for the formal dinner party is under direction of Flowers West.

Ann Landers Check for Divorce

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Here's some information that might prove helpful to other fools out there who are being strung along, as I was.

Same old story--married man who says he's going to get a divorce and marry me as soon as his wife's health improves. This has been going on for 18 months.

Last week a friend who works in a lawyer's office told me she heard the guy is divorced and suggested I go down to the Divorce Division, clerk's office at the county courthouse and find out for sure.

I took her advice and learned the rat has been divorced since 1973! Just call me too-late-smart and inform the others... From Cincinnati

DEAR CIN: Thanks for the short course.

To find out if a person is married you can check with the Bureau of Vital Statistics. (You must know the names of both parties.) The charge in Chicago for this service is $3.00. (The records on hand go back five years--beyond that they must be obtained from the warehouse.)

DEAR ANN: Don't faint. This letter is on bosoms--written by a man. I was moved by the sad

Bridge Game Set July 15

Community Duplicate Bridge winners for the month of June were:

June 3rd, tying for first in a Swiss team game: Emma Ghromley of Amarillo, Vida Daugherty of Canyon, Mary and Wayne Thomas; Alma Pittenger, Mozelle Neill, Lucille Posey, Seletta Gohlsou, J.T. Gilbreath, Ed Wilson, Troys Carmicheal, K.P. Jones, Betty Young, Kattie Kendall, Elizabeth McDowell and Marie Cöggel.

June 10: 1st place winners were J.T. Gilbreath and Troys Carmicheal, 2nd place winners were Saletta Gohlsou and Dorothy Bezis.

June 17th an individual match was played. The winners were: 1st place, Ramona Annen of Dimmitt, and tying for 2nd and 3rd place, Esther Springer and Saletta Gohlsou.

June 24: 1st place winners were Mary and Wayne Thomas and tying for 2nd and 3rd place were Mildred and Clarence Betzen and Marie Cöggel and Lucille Posey.

There will be another team game 7:30 p.m. July 15th at the REC Medallion Room. Everyone is expected to get their team together and come and play bridge.

letter from the girl who was so desperate to increase her bust size that she sent money to some gyp outfit and got back a picture of a man's hand.

For four years I was married to a big-bosomed flea-brain. She lived in front of the mirror with a tape measure in her hand. Her meals were inedible--when she cooked, that is. Our apartment looked like a pigsty. If a button came off my shirt, she put it back with a safety pin. I never saw a needle or thread in the place.

Her own clothes were magnificent. That's where all the money went. She wasn't happy unless she was dressed to the teeth and every man in the room was falling over her.

My second wife is a marvelous person, but very self-conscious about her flat front. She keeps comparing herself with my first wife and asking me if I miss it.

No matter how hard I try I can't get it through her head that it doesn't matter.

Please print this letter, Ann. It will make her day.--Doc

DEAR DOC: Here it is and I'm sure it will gladden the hearts of many small-busted ladies to know that all men aren't dimension-wacky. What's "up front" ISN'T what counts.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Today's letter was from a guy who was worried because his wife's pregnancy was going into the 11th month. Here are some facts that might help:

A nine-month pregnancy is more myth than reality. The actual full term is between 260 to 280 days, average. But "average" seems always to be what someone else is.

"normal" term can be much longer depending upon influencing factors, such as a woman's menstrual cycle. For example, a woman whose cycle is 30-35 days is likely to have a longer pregnancy. A short cycle--25-28 days--means a shorter pregnancy.

Heredity also influences the gestation period in terms of length. People from the tropics give birth sooner than those in the frigid zones of the world.

Many women think they know exactly when they become pregnant, but they can be mistaken. These are the Mamas who swear they carried 9 months. (I was one.)--Sugar Peggie

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I tell you, you wouldn't believe the way my children have really pitched in and tried to conserve energy during this nationwide crisis.

They've kicked all their dirty clothes under the bed to save on the gallons of water it takes to wash them.

They've called a moratorium on cutting and watering the grass until President Carter gives the nod.

They've insisted that the stove or oven not be turned on and that we all go out and eat in a modest but exorbitantly-priced restaurant.

They gave up showers before bed without even being asked.

The other afternoon when we got into the car, my son said, "We've got to pick up Todd, Mike, Wendell, Tony and Steve."

When I slumped over the wheel in anticipation of an extra 45 minutes of driving, he said, "After all, Mom, it's un-American not to carpool."

They cut back on going to the dentist to once a year to save gas.

They put a brick in the commode. (I wish someone had told them it goes in the BACK of the commode.)

They're maintaining their policy of "Never flushing unless she can hear you."

They let the garbage stack up for three days by the sink to keep from opening the door and losing precious air-conditioning.

They play their stereos at 1:00 in the morning to take the load off of peak time.

They leave the ice cube trays empty to reduce the wear and tear on the refrigeration.

The other morning as I counted 63 glasses by the sink, I said, "Boys, you really amaze me at how you picked up on President Carter's plan to conserve energy."

They smiled. "When we get to 85 glasses, then we can start the dishwasher."

"In fact, I'm so proud of you, I think I'll do a column on it and tell my readers of your heroic efforts."

"That's not necessary, Mom," said a son leaning over to unplug my IBM. Just look upon this as a blow for democ.

Music Replaces Problems In Life Of Chuck Howard

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — After three heart attacks, a mental breakdown, a conviction for bail-jumping and battles with drugs and alcoholism, Chuck Howard found meaning to life.

Howard, 39, is using his talent as a country-pop songwriter and singer to fight heart disease, which he believes will claim his life in five years.

You could call his campaign "hits for hearts."

Howard has donated all royalties from a song he wrote, "Life," to the Heart Foundation. He is hoping for hits off his current album, "Chuck Howard," that will make him a celebrity and give him a forum to speak against heart disease.

"I want to try to get a hit record to get the money and power to fight this disease," he said in an interview. "If Hitler had been good, he'd have been great cause he had power."

There's little wonder why he had three heart attacks in 1975. His 37 years were crammed with agony. There was liquor, "a fifth a night." And drugs, "speed, anything I could get my hands on."

Then, there was the law-stealing tires as a youngster, jumping bail, a suspended two-year sentence to the Ohio Penitentiary.

"Sounds like a loser, doesn't it?" he asked.

"I found out what live is about when I was about to lose it; I remember waking up and thinking, 'I'm alive.' Someone once said that you don't appreciate life till it's about over. That's what happened to me."

At 20 or so, he spent three weeks in a mental ward in Columbus, Ohio. "The law was chasing me. I had gambled away a home and a car. I was a punk. I just couldn't deal with it."

Writing music became his savior. In 1962, at 24, he wrote "A Thing Called Sadness," recorded by Ray Price, Kitty Wells and others.

A few years later he contributed half the material on Ringo Starr's album "Beaucoup of Blues." Then in the early 1970s, he wrote the soundtrack for the film, "A Walk On the Outside" and helped on the screenplay.

The three heart attacks followed. Awakening from one of them, he discovered a very painful tube against his jaw. He couldn't alert the nurse because he couldn't spell "jaw," having

"I thought, 'You bumb ass, you're gonna die because you can't spell 'jaw,'" he recalled.

Doctors have been vague, he said, about how long he has to live. He had open heart surgery in Phoenix, Ariz., after the third one. "I think I have five years.

I'll take it. After all, I almost died. It's hard to keep dying out of my mind. You get in a hurry to do a lot of things.

"I want to live more than the normal man," he said. "I want to make people aware that heart disease is sneaky; it quietly stabs you in the back."

Yarbrough Straps Reporter In Yard

AUSTIN (AP) — When a newspaper reporter visited a friend of Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough to get an interview, he wasn't expecting to find Yarbrough himself there or to be chased from the house by the belt-wielding justice.

It all started when Dallas Times Herald reporter Dave Montgomery went to the home of K.O. Bradley here Wednesday for an interview about Yarbrough, who was named last week in felony indictments accusing him of forgery and aggravated perjury.

Montgomery said he recognized Yarbrough's car in the Bradley driveway, and Mrs. Kermit Bradley informed him at the door that Yarbrough's wife, Julie, was there.

Mrs. Yarbrough and Mrs. Bradley allowed the reporter to go into the vestibule where Mrs. Yarbrough told the Houston Chronicle "he planted himself and would not go" when he was repeatedly asked to leave.

She said several women friends were visiting Mrs. Bradley and Montgomery began questioning all of them.

"He was very, very rude," Mrs. Yarbrough said. "There is no need for that."

She told the Chronicle that Montgomery said he wanted to speak to the justice about his religious beliefs.

Mrs. Bradley said he first asked to talk to Mrs. Yarbrough, but after spotting the justice's car, he asked only to speak to Yarbrough.

Mrs. Bradley said the justice then followed her to the vestibule after she asked the Yarbroughs about the interview for Montgomery a second time.

"Don did like you would a disobedient child," Mrs. Bradley said. "He started taking off his belt and told Montgomery 'She asked you to leave.' He (Montgomery) didn't get up until Don took a few steps toward him and he sure left then."

"You get out of here. If you come here again, I'll strap you," Montgomery quoted Yarbrough as saying.

The reporter said he started to leave the house, but was followed by Yarbrough who began calling him a "thief" and a "fiend." He said Yarbrough repeated his threats again in the front yard and slapped Montgomery across the back of his leg with the belt.

Attempts to reach Yarbrough for comment concerning the incident failed.

But Mrs. Bradley said: "I didn't see what happened when they went outside, but if he (Montgomery) said Don hit him, he probably did. We'd asked him twice to leave."

Montgomery said Yarbrough was "wild eyed and really angered. I certainly wasn't going to argue with him."

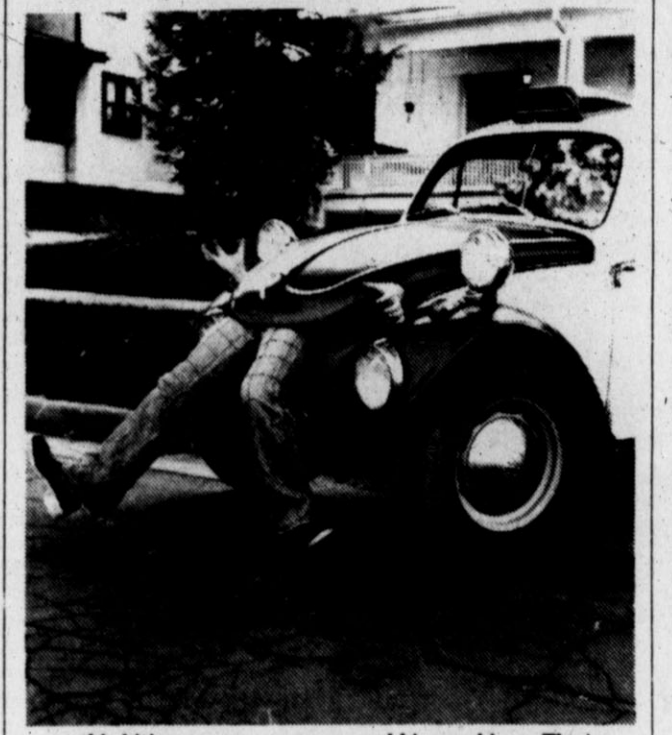

Mrs. Bradley said, "He told me he was an animal that had been cornered and they were tearing at his flesh."

However, she said he has felt at ease since making a public statement Tuesday.

Miss Haltom-Richland Gets Pageant Attention

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Miss Haltom-Richland area, Lori Ann Smith, led the swimsuit competition Thursday evening in the second round of preliminaries in the Miss Texas pageant here.

Miss Smith, 20, had won the preliminary talent competition the night before. She will be a junior at Southern Methodist University this fall.

Miss East Texas, Marta Christine Szaran, won Thursday preliminary talent competition at the Tarrant County Convention Center theatre by playing "Rhapsody in C Major" on the piano. The 20-year-old has studied piano for 12 years and will soon graduate from Texas Christian University.

The women will again divide into three preliminary groups tonight to compete in swimsuit, talent and evening gown categories. Each woman will compete in a category she has not yet participated in during the previous two nights.

The results of the evening gown competition are not announced because pageant officials said they do not want the women imitating the winners.

A fourth category is a five-minute judge's interview that is closed to the public. The ten women with the highest point total after tonight's competition will go to the finals Saturday night.

Miss Texas will represent the state at the Miss America pageant in Atlantic city in September.

Registration For Tech Due Monday

LUBBOCK — Registration for the second summer term of the summer session at Texas Tech University will be conducted from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday in the Lubbock Coliseum.

Late registration will continue through Friday, the fourth class day, from the Registrar's Office in West Hall and in departmental offices.

The second summer term enrollment is expected to be approximately that of last summer's second session, 5,859. The second summer session ends Aug. 20.

The first summer session comes to an end officially this Saturday.

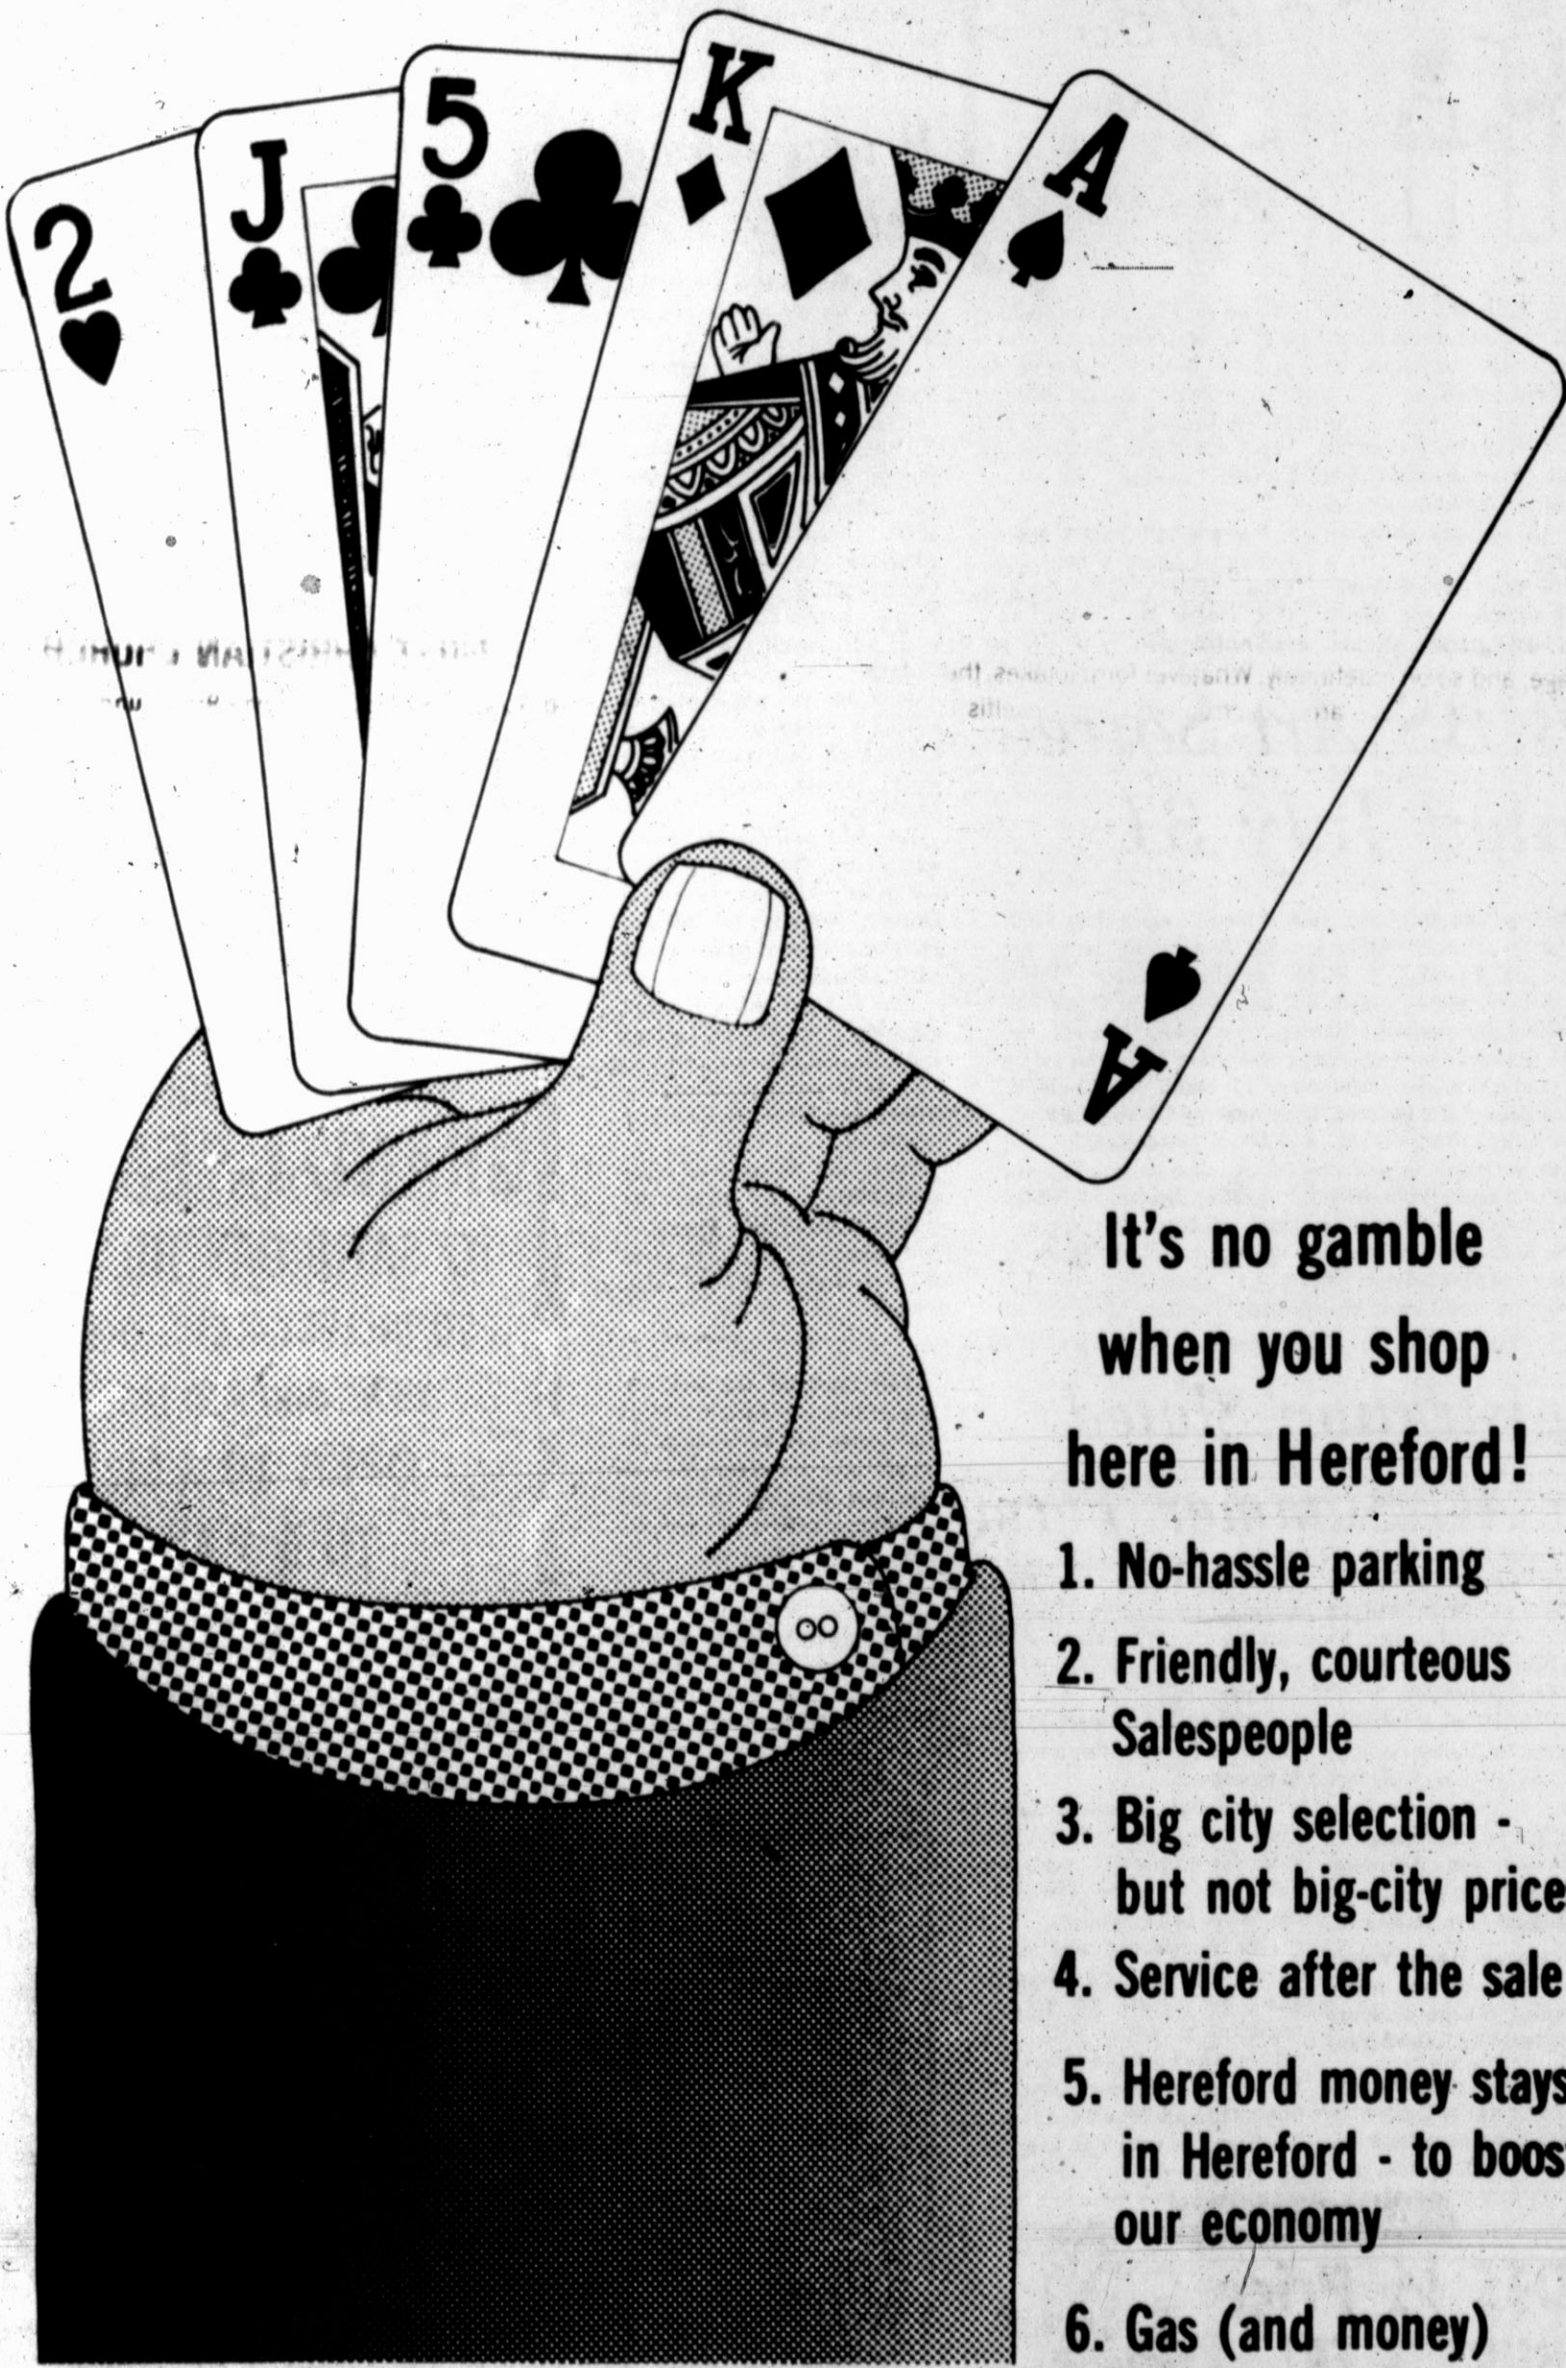

SECRETARY of Commerce Juanita M. Kreps says that the federal government has had an unimpressive track record in promoting involvement of women in business, but steps are being taken to change that. An inter-departmental task force is being set up which will make a 120-day study of changes in regulations and legislation necessary to assist women in business.

FAITH REVEALS THE UNLIMITED FACETS OF LOVE

to many of us, the word "love" usually signifies romantic adventure, happy marriage or the care and anxiety of a parent; but while all of these are good examples of it, they by no means tell the whole story. Love is an act of kindness for one's neighbor; an anonymous donation to a worthy cause; food and supplies sent to starving native children or the victims of a disaster; a regular visit to the sick, the elderly or the lonely of any age; and so on indefinitely. Whatever form it takes, the main ingredients of love are thoughtfulness and unselfishness, and you will find the recipe for it at the Church of your choice. It will be served with a generous portion of happiness for you as well as for the recipients of it.

Respect is what we owe; love, what we give.

Maltbie Takes Lead; Hayes Breaks Record

BY GOEFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP)—It's a bit disappointing," said Roger Maltbie, who came from nowhere to lead the British Open Golf Championship at the halfway point. "I expected different weather and a different kind of golf."

In windless conditions—almost unknown on Turnberry's Ailsa links—the 26-year-old bespectacled golfer from San Jose, Calif., who ranks 50th on the U.S. money winners' list, shot a four-under-par 66 Thursday for a two-round total of 137.

He was one shot ahead of U.S. Open champion Hubert Green and three former British Open champions—Lee Trevino, Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson. Maltbie was not the only American who came to Scotland expecting high winds and felt let down by the strange calm.

"This was going to be an experience for me," Maltbie said. "I wanted to learn the pitch and run shots which I hear so much about from Scotland.

"I know it's a shot I would not be very good at. But instead we are playing the kind of golf we get in America. I've only played four or five real pitch and run shots the whole time I've been here."

The rare good weather produced sensations. Green holed in one at the 167-yard fourth—the fourth competitive ace of his career. Mark Hayes shot 63—the lowest round ever recorded in the 117-year history of the British Open and tied for fifth place at 139 with Peter Butler of Britain.

Yet only a dozen men broke par on the 6,875-yard course.

"That is a tribute to the golf course," said Watson. "It is not an easy golf course, even when there is no wind."

The old course record for the British Open was 65, first set by Britain's Henry Cotton at Sandwich in 1934. Eight players have equalled it since, including Angel Gallardo of Spain, who briefly stole the glory with a 65 Thursday morning. But he had scored 78 on the first day and did not get within striking distance of the leaders.

Hayes, of Edmond, Okla., used the cross-handed grip for putting his entire round—for the first time in his life—to shoot his record-shattering 63. That was two under the old mark—and it would have been 62 if he had not bogeyed the 18th hole.

Green confessed he was astonished by his hole-in-one at the fourth.

"I was 25 yards left of the hole," he said. "But it was a twisting shot that kicked across the green. I heard the gallery getting excited and I guessed something had happened."

Eighty-seven golfers who totalled 150 or under for the first two rounds avoided the cut and moved into Friday's third round. The field will be further cut to 60 after today's play.

Norton, Young Sign For November Match

BY ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—"May I ask a question," said Jimmy Young. "Is there any doubt in anybody's mind that I'm going to win this fight?"

The place broke up. Young grinned. Even Ken Norton laughed.

The scene was a news conference Thursday to formally announce that Young and Norton will try to wipe the smiles off each other's faces for a lot of money and a shot at heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali when they fight Nov. 5 in Las Vegas.

"I'm not going to argue who is No. 1 or No. 2 contender," said Young, who is ranked second to Norton by the World Boxing Association and the World Boxing Council.

"Nov. 5th's winner of the fight will be the next heavyweight champion."

Ali, who has won disputed decisions over both fighters in title defenses, has said he will fight the winner.

The unknown factor of the fight—the site—was answered about an hour before the news conference when promoter Don King reached an agreement with Caesars Palace.

"We took the fight because it's the best fight anybody can make in the heavyweight division, and that includes an Ali fight," said Sid Gathier of Caesars Palace. The 12-round fight will be held at the hotel-casino's sports pavilion which will seat 5,000.

The bout, which will carry the richest guaranteed purses ever for a non-title fight, will be televised as part of a boxing tripleheader by ABC during 2½ hours of prime-time viewing. The other bouts have not been determined.

While no one officially involved in the bout would give exact purse figures, everyone admitted each fighter would get at least $1 million. Insiders place the figures at $1.5 million for Norton, $1 million for Young and $100,000 expenses for each.

The richest non-title fight in history was the second Ali-Joe Frazier match in Madison Square Garden. Both men came away with about $2.5 million apiece.

"It's going to be a power against deception," Norton, noted as a puncher, said of his match against his former sparring partner, whose fighting reputation is one of cleverness. Young sparred with Norton when Norton was preparing for his second fight against Ali, which Ali won on a split 12-round decision in September, 1973.

"I got a lot of confidence working with Ken," said Young, who gained his No. 2 spot with a disputed loss to Ali in a title fight, a win over Ron Lyle and a unanimous decision over George Foreman.

Connors Downs Richey In Tourney Of Champs

AUSTIN (AP)—Jimmy Connors played the crowd like a master comedian, and the crowd loved it.

Connors defeated one of the few players Thursday who can make a crowd pull for Connors-Texas' own bad boy, Cliff Richey.

Just back from losing the Wimbledon title to Bjorn Borg in five sets, Connors spotted the 31-year-old Richey a set, then overpowered him, 2-6, 6-1, 6-1. Connors won eight games in a row in the second and third sets, breaking the stocky redhead's serve four straight times.

In Thursday's other second-round match of the Tournament of Champions, Dick Stockton put away John Alexander in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4.

Connors and Stockton advance to Saturday semifinal matches, where they will play the winners of today's contests: Billy Martin v. Onny Parun and Harold Solomon v. Mark Cox.

Richey, from San Angelo, Tex., won four deuce games in the first set and broke Connors' first serve. But he began to sweat profusely in the July heat and wore down quickly toward the end of set two.

Introduced as the world's No. 1 payer in 1974, 1976 "and perhaps in 1977," Connors playfully called back to the announcer, "What ye mean, 'perhays'?"

Richey knew he had to beat Connors in the second set or see the younger man grow stronger. He fussed repeatedly during that set over linesmen's calls.

"Well, call the ball, linesman!" he shouted after a Connors volley went along.

"Out!" the linesman yelled belatedly.

"Aw," Connors said, and advanced to the net to lecture the official. "Don't you let him intimidate you."

The match had something for everyone. Richey once ran into a TV camera trying for a hard smash. Connors glided over the net to his aid.

"What's a clock for?" Richey demanded at another point. He contended Connors took too much time serving, and the referee had failed to watch the court-side clock.

The referee said Connors was bouncing the ball in preparation for his serve. "That's in the process of service, as far as I'm concerned," he said.

Connors once crawled over the wall and sat down in the grandstand after the referee overruled a linesman who called a Richey serve long.

Another time, he slammed his forehead with his palm in mock anger after Richey complained of a fault call and then hit one obviously too long.

Frequently, the Connors' two-handed backhand returned a good Richey serve faster than it came. He played Richey like a matador.

Hawk, Hanson Tangle With Dibiase, Smith

Continued outside interference brought about next Saturday night's main event in Hereford Lions Club Wrestling. Swede Hanson and Rip Hawk, the rough-housing North Carolina team with a combined weight of 545 pounds, will face the youthful Teddy Dibiase and Ervin Smith.

Dibiase, at 245, is from Omaha, Nebraska, but has lived in Amarillo ever since he left the West Texas State University football team. He is a son of the late, great, "Iron Mike" Dibiase, who died in Lubbock on July 2, 1969 during a match with a 600 pound wrestler.

Dibiase's partner, Smith, was a Florida shot putter of note, two year captain of Tampa University's football team, and national AAU wrestling champion. He tips the scale at 238.

The Super Destroyer, 250-pound masked powerhouse from Los Angeles, will protect his hood against Danny Little Bear, 245-pound Indian veteran. The Super Destroyer has not been unmasked in eight years of contests. He has not changed his style since last year, still employing any means to win a match, but he has changed his company. He has partnered both Terry Funk and Dory Funk, Jr. in recent weeks, but has made it plain that he would be willing to wrestle either one and go all out to gain a win. "Money is the name of the game, and tough competition brings money," he was quoted as saying.

The opener will see 228-pound Chief Thunder Cloud, an experienced Apache grappler who has wrestled and hunted in twenty-eight countries, go up against the sensational light heavyweight, Bobby Pico of Mobile, Alabama. Pico has surprised some of the tougher heavyweights, despite a comparative light 200 pounds on a 6-2 frame.

Last week's action saw Hawk and Hanson demolish Dibiase when he was accidentally thrown out of the ring by opponent Thunder Cloud. The attack was not in the ring, so there was no disqualification, but Hawk and Hanson were fined $100 on the spot by commissioner Stanley Blackburn, who took that amount from each wrestler before they left the Bull Barn. Dibiase was unable to continue. Thunder Cloud refused to accept the match, and the contest was officially "no decision."

Smith caught 295-pound Moose Morowski in a small package after a grueling fifteen minutes. Abudullah The Butcher finished 340-pound Big Bad John with a flying elbow drop after splitting the big man's head open. Ricky Romero stopped Hanson in the third stanza of the last match with a flying body scissors.

His victory was a case of "Win the battle, lose the war", however, since Hawk and Hanson noted the departure earlier of Blackburn; they attacked Romero and left him lying in the ring after the final bell. Hawk was not on the card, but was traveling with his partner.

Action at the bull barn starts at 9 p.m. Saturday.

Girls' All-Stars Win Two Of Three

The local girls' All-Star teams began a busy weekend for Hereford Kids, Inc. post-season play in Dimmitt Thursday evening with two of three teams coming away winners over Dimmitt opponents.

The Major All-Stars eked out a 14-13 victory in their game, halting a bases-loaded threat by Dimmitt to get the final out. In Minors action the American All-Stars lost an 18-8 decision, but the Nationals came up with a split in gaining a 20-19 win.

The girls will be in action again tonight beginning at 6 p.m. The Majors will face Bovina, while the Minor teams will switch Dimmitt opponents.

Both tournaments are being played on a double-elimination format.

The Boys' Pee Wee and Minor league All-Star teams were all set to begin their best-two-of-three series' tonight, weather permitting. The second game of the series is scheduled for Saturday evening with a third game if necessary on Monday. Due to a postponement is necessary due to wet grounds the games will be moved back one day, concluding on Tuesday.

The Boys' Major and Pony League All-Stars have another week before beginning their playoff action. The Majors open in El Paso Thursday, July 14 with the second and third games on succeeding days. The Pony Leaguers travel to Lubbock for their opener July 16, and then return home for a possible doubleheader July 18.

The Girls' Pony League All-Stars completed their post-season play last weekend, taking two of four games in a tournament in Amarillo.

Boys' action tonight begins at 6 p.m. with the Pee Wee game. The Minor game will immediately follow the Pee Wee contest. Both games will be played on the North field at the Kids, Inc. complex at 15th and Ave. H.

Tech Employs Pair Of Women Coaches

LUBBOCK—Employment of new coaches for basketball and track and field teams of Women's Athletics at Texas Tech University was announced Wednesday.

Beta L. Little of San Angelo will coach the track and field team, and Thelma (Gay) I. Benson the basketball team.

Women's Athletic Director Jeannine McHaney commented that "Little is one of the few coaches who comes to us with college coaching experience."

She has been instructor of physical education and volleyball and track and field coach at Angelo State University.

The women's volleyball team, initiated last year in the West Zone, placed fourth. The track team finished second behind Abilene Christian University, and qualified eight girls to compete in the state meet. That group compiled sufficient points to place eighth in state and qualified two Tech stars for national competition.

"Benson brings with her a great deal of national and international playing experience and an extremely broad understanding of basketball strategy and technique," McHaney said. "I feel she is the person to build a very strong women's basketball program, here."

Benson is former girls' athletic director and coach for all girls' sports at Slaton High School, where she compiled 15 years of experience.

With a basketball record of 337-97, she has coached teams to 11 district, one regional and one state championship title.

Slaton Tigrettes volleyball teams were district runners-up every year since Benson's employment in 1962. The track team also captured district championship honors.

Benson played college basketball for Clarendon Junior College, Northeastern Oklahoma A&M Junior College and Wayland Baptist College. She was a member of the National Amateur Athletics Union team in 1958, played in the Pan American Games and served as team captain of the U.S. team when they toured the Soviet Union. She was also named All-American.

Benson is the wife of Franklin Benson, 1520 West Lynn Street, Slaton. Little resides at 4902 Greenbriar, Apt. 100, San Angelo.

Bulldogs Hire Cage Mentor

Richard O'Hara, head basketball coach at Elk City, Oklahoma for the past nine seasons, has accepted the head job at Plainview High School pending approval of that school's board it has been announced.

O'Hara replaces Bill Phillips, whose contract was not renewed following the past season. Phillips had spent nine years at the Bulldog helm before being fired, and later accepted the head spot at Carrollton Turner High School.

The 31-year-old O'Hara compiled a 176-86 record at Elk City, winning eight district crowns in his nine years there. His 1976 team reached the Class AA semifinals before falling. O'Hara's 1977 bunch forged a 19-8 record.

In addition to his basketball duties O'Hara will head up the Bulldog football scouting staff.

Home run king Hank Aaron played in 24 All-Star games and had a batting average of only .194.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Steelers' oldest veteran, 36-year-old center Ray Mansfield, has announced he is quitting pro football.

Mansfield played 14 seasons in the National Football League, and all but one of them with the Steelers. He spent his rookie season with the Philadelphia Eagles before joining Pittsburgh.

Mansfield is leaving to devote more time to selling insurance, an off-season job until now. He never missed a game and played 186 consecutive regular-season games.

BOSTON (AP)—Dwight Evans, the Boston Red Sox slugging right-fielder sidelined with a right knee injury since June 23, was re-activated today.

To make room for Evans, the Red Sox returned outfielder-first baseman Dave Coleman to Pawtucket of the International League.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals have set a club record by selling 41,746 season tickets for the 1977 National Football League season, managing general partner William Bidwill said Thursday.

The total exceeds the old record of 41,542 set in 1972 and is an increase of 3,090 from last year.

Dizzy and Daffy Dean of the St. Louis Cardinals were the only pair of brothers ever to win all four games for their team in a world series. The Deans did it against the Detroit Tigers in the 1934 classic.

Clemson basketball coach Bill Foster got so excited about a play that he threw up his arms and dislocated his left shoulder.

Bob Hamilton Heads Texas Press Association

Bob Hamilton

Bob Hamilton, publisher of the Iowa Park Leader for the past eight years, but a longtime Texas newspaperman, was elected president of the Texas Press Association at its annual summer convention in Galveston in June.

An almost record crowd of Texas editors and publishers elevated Hamilton from first vice-president to the top position in the 97-year-old newspaper association. He succeeds J. C. Chatmas Jr., Marlin Daily Democrat publisher, who has become chairman of the board.

Hamilton has had approximately 37 years of varied newspaper experience, beginning with the job of selling his hometown newspaper on the streets of Hereford.

Actually, the 46-year-old publisher was born in Grandfield, Oklahoma, but spent his youth in Hereford. He dropped out of school at one time to spend four years in the U.S. Air Force. While stationed at Anchorage, Alaska, he wrote a ski column for the base newspaper.

When he returned to the Panhandle of Texas he finished his schooling, which included earning a degree from Amarillo Junior College in 1956.

He immediately went to work for the Moore County News, Dumas, and soon married Dolores, who was to become his partner in production of their newspapers.

Writing, as well as editing, overseeing the back shop and performing business management duties, came natural to Hamilton—he was destined to be the publisher of his own newspaper.

On his first full-time newspaper job in Dumas he got fast-paced experience in a hurry—covering the Shamrock McKee Refinery explosion.

During his coverage he was burned and hospitalized along with 28 others (19 had died in the explosion). For his writings of this disaster, he was nominated for a Pulitzer prize. A follow-up story on living victims received the Texas Medical Association's coveted Anson Jones Award. This was the first time for a weekly reporter to win the high honor.

After two years in Dumas, the Hamiltons made three quick moves to jobs on the Hereford Brand, Olton Enterprise and at the Portales, N. M., afternoon daily.

In June of 1959, Hamilton founded a weekly newspaper for irrigation farmers, covering nine counties, at Plainview. Here he had his first experience with offset publication. His farm paper, Plains Farmer, was printed at the state's first web offset central printing plant in Friona.

The same year, he acquired the Kress News, publishing both of them until 1967. He says at that time "hard times hit," so he closed the farm paper and moved to Littlefield to work for Bill Turner on the Leader-News.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Hamilton continued to operate the Kress weekly, commuting to Kress, returning to set type and paste it up in their home in Littlefield, driving to Hereford to print, back to Kress to mail, etc. This was all done while she maintained their home and took care of five small children. "It became too much for her, naturally," says Hamilton, "so we closed out Kress too."

After some two years with the Littlefield newspaper, the Hamilton family moved to Iowa Park and founded the Leader which, under Bob and Dolores' direction, has progressed, been a consistent prize-winner and is one of the state's leading weeklies.

Hamilton is a past president of the West Texas Press Association, Iowa Park's Noon Lions Club and Iowa Park Chamber of Commerce.

Currently, he serves as a director of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and is chairman of its information committee.

He was chairman of his area's Bicentennial committee which built the city's only public swimming pool.

Hamilton is also active in the Presbyterian Church, Booster Club, Little League baseball, United Way and other civic and community organizations.

The Hamilton's five children include Kellie, a junior at Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls; Kevin, a recent graduate of Iowa Park High School who is deciding on a college to attend; Kim, senior at the high school; Kay, a high school sophomore; and Kari, a seventh grader.

Men Feel At Home On Home Economics Staff

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A sticker on a glass door in Ohio State University's Campbell Hall reads, "A woman's place is everywhere."

Four male professors in the university's School of Home Economics believe that's true of men also.

Dr. Robert Joseph, assistant professor of human nutrition and food management, suggests that the changing social climate "has not only allowed women in fields such as agriculture and engineering, but also men in traditional non-male roles such as dietetics and child care."

Dr. George Etheridge, assistant professor of family relations and human development, admits he had to come to terms with some reservations before joining the school.

"I used to tell people I was the 'Galloping Gourmet,' but then I realized I was just making people in human nutrition," he said.

Now, he explains to new acquaintances that he's a "specialist in little kids and home economics has a good program for preparing people to work with little kids."

"Home economics does have a certain stereotype, and all stereotypes disappear slowly. If you don't play into people's biases, it will end," he said.

Dr. Kent Hamdorf, assistant professor of family relations and human development, believes that the only people who are shocked at his profession "are those who are uninformed on what home economics can do."

The male to female faculty ratio of the school is approximately 1 to 4. But as to the possibility that the minority might receive preferential treatment, only Dr. Fred Stultz, professor of family relations and human development, admitted to any advantage.

Stultz believes he was "looked favorably on" when hired because of his sex.

"Whether I stay here will not depend on my being a man. It will depend on whether I'm good," he added.

Although the men were reluctant to discuss the difficulties and disadvantages of being a minority, they did cite two.

On the lighter side, Stultz commented on the limited rest-room facilities. Becoming more serious, all four mentioned the sexism they've encountered from some of their female co-workers.

"Some of them have not freed themselves of sexism," Etheridge said.

NORTH MADISON, Conn. (AP) — Kenneth S. Chase is leaving his church.

He's sorry to leave, but, as he says, "it never really made it as a church."

Indeed, for Chase the sturdy white frame structure that hugs Route 79 north of here was not a church at all — it was his home. And, since his firm has transferred Chase to Pittsburgh, he's sold the former Madison Methodist Church, which closed its doors nearly 100 years ago for want of Methodists.

There is a legend old-timers in southern Connecticut remember about this church: that on the morning construction began in 1816, the sky suddenly darkened and remained ominously black into the afternoon.

Perhaps it is not so surprising, then, that by 1837 there were only 18 Methodists remaining in Madison. Soon the dwindling congregation gave up. Madison's Episcopalians took over the meeting hall, but they, too, failed. In 1897, the doors were closed.

Folks in the county tell Chase they remember coming to Saturday night dances in the church, but mostly the building was ignored until after World War II when a British couple bought it and renovated it as a home.

They divided the big hollow meeting hall in two: a grand main room with a soaring 25-foot ceiling and a big fieldstone fireplace and, in back, a smaller, more intimate section with a den, kitchen, bath and, up a narrow staircase, two small bedrooms.

When Chase saw a newspaper advertisement for the place nearly two years ago, he went to take a look. It was winter. A pot-bellied stove provided heat; there was no insulation.

He was charmed. Chase bought the church and the British couple, John and Edna Iverson, went south to retire. He installed heat and insulation, polished the wooden floors, renovated the plumbing and wiring and settled in.

Today the exterior is indisputably that of a church, missing only the bell tower (which disappeared sometime between the Episcopalians and the Iversons), but the interior has been a warm bachelor's haven for Chase.

Chase believes the hex in the church's past waned with the passing years, for he was able to find buyers — a young couple — relatively quickly, and he says, "I've had a lot of good luck since I moved in. I've been promoted twice since I've lived here."

Woman Testifies About Scottsboros

WINCHESTER, Tenn. (AP)—Weeping profusely, the chief witness in the 1930s Scottsboro Boys rape trial told a federal court jury Thursday she told the truth in testimony that sent the nine black men to prison.

Victoria Price Street, 70, is suing NBC for $6 million, alleging the network's movie "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro Boys" libeled her, slandered her and invaded her privacy.

"It tore my health up," she said, taking the stand in her own behalf in federal district court where her suit is on trial. "The worst part of it was they said it was all lies and I know that just wasn't so."

Mrs. Street said she saw the made-for-television film when it was telecast in April 1976 because a friend called her and told her to watch a horrible show.

"I did," she said, "and it just tore me up. I don't know what kind of movie could do that." She broke into tears again.

Her lawyer asked her whether she ever sought publicity for her role in the rape trials. She said, "No, I just want to forget it if I could."

She also denied the authenticity of several specific episodes in the movie.

The so-called Scottsboro Boys were tried three times and all eventually served prison terms. Only one, Clarence Norris, is known to survive.

He was found recently in New York City, still living in violation of parole from Alabama. He returned to his home state and was pardoned.

After the four-man, two-woman jury was seated Wednesday, lights in the federal courtroom dimmed and her lawyer, Raymond Fraley of Fayetteville, Tenn., showed the movie.

Mrs. Street, now married to a tobacco farmer in nearby Flintville, flinched slightly as an actor said it was clear she was a whore, and Fraley halted the film for a moment.

"Our proof will show that the scriptwriter, Mr. John McGreevy, made that up," he told the jury. "That never occurred, especially in regard to calling Victoria Price a whore."

At one point in the film, a doctor was showing telling Judge James E. Horton that his physical examination of the two women convinced him they had not been gang-raped by the blacks aboard a Chattanooga-Huntsville, Ala., freight train in March 1931.

The script writer, McGoey, is scheduled to testify later for NBC.

The movie ended with portrayals of the so-called "Scottsboro Boys" and the statement that all had been pardoned or paroled after serving a total of 130 years in prison for the alleged rape. "Victoria Price lived out her life in Flintville, Tenn., where she died in 1961—only a few days after Ruby Bates," said the announcer.

Mrs. Street and Ruby Bates Schut of Yakima, Wash., quickly filed suit and that line was deleted when the movie was shown for the second time last January. Mrs. Schut has since died of cancer.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, July 8, the 189th day of 1977. There are 176 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1940, in World War Two, the government of Norway moved to London after 62 days of resisting Nazi invaders.

On this date: In 1663, King Charles the Second of England granted a charter to Rhode Island.

In 1822, the English poet, Percy Shelley, drowned when his boat capsized in the Italian Gulf of Spezia.

In 1919, President Woodrow Wilson received a tumultuous welcome in New York after his return from the Versailles Peace Conference.

In 1944, the Pacific War Battle of Spain was won by American forces.

In 1969, bishops and priests of the Church of England defeated a proposal for unification with the Methodist Church.

In 1973, the United States announced that postal service with mainland China had been restored after being suspended for 25 years.

Ten years ago: New fighting broke out between Egypt and Israel along the Suez Canal and both sides called for an urgent session of the United Nations Security Council to help restore order.

Five years ago: South Vietnamese forces were running into stiff resistance in their attempt to recapture Quang Tri City from the Communists.

One year ago: The appellate division of the New York State Supreme Court disbarred former President Richard Nixon on charges related to the Watergate scandal.

Today's birthdays: Former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller is 69 years old. Singer Steve Lawrence is 42.

Thought for today: A good storyteller is a person who has a good memory and hopes other people haven't. Irvin Cobb, American humorist and writer, 1876-1944.

Ambassador Shot In France

PARIS (AP)—A gunman shot the Mauritanian ambassador to France Thursday, but officials at the American Hospital said he was out of danger. He was the third ambassador shot in Paris in the past two years.

The attempt on Ambassador Ahmed Ghanahalla, 36, apparently was the work of the Polisario Front, which is fighting a guerrilla war in northwest Africa for the independence of the former Spanish Sahara from Mauritania and Morocco.

A woman telephoned Agence France Presse, the French news agency, and said the Mohamed el Wali Sayed International Brigade was responsible for the attack. Mohamed el Wali Sayed was the secretary-general of the Polisario Front who was killed in an attack on Nouakchott, the capital of Mauritania, in June 1976.

Ghanahalla was shot this morning just after he had gotten into his chauffeur-driven car near his home in the fashionable 16th District. Witnesses said two men about 25 years old approached the parked car from behind and one of them fired six shots through the rear window.

The two attackers fled into adjacent streets and escaped. Ghanahalla, who had represented his government in Paris for about 15 months, was taken to the emergency room at the American Hospital. An hour later a spokesman for the hospital said he was out of danger and conscious. Another source said he had been shot in the head and the legs.

The Spanish Sahara was partitioned and annexed by neighboring Morocco and Mauritania, after Spain relinquished the territory last year. Algeria, which adjoins a short stretch of the territory's northeast frontier, opposed the takeover and supports the Polisario Front.

County Called 'Police State' By LULAC

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—The state director of the League of United Latin American Citizens LULAC has called Hudspeth County "a little police state," and the group has asked for a state-level investigation into the county's law enforcement procedures.

LULAC has become concerned about the "lack of procedural safeguards" in Hudspeth County law enforcement. Ruben Bonilla, state director of the group, said Thursday.

The primary incident behind the LULAC request is the death of a Hudspeth County jail inmate earlier this year, Bonilla said.

Juan Veloz Zuniga died at an El Paso hospital in May after allegedly being beaten by Hudspeth County Sheriff Clayton McCutcheon. However, McCutcheon was subsequently no-billed by a Hudspeth County grand jury in connection with Zuniga's death.

But Bonilla said his organization "has learned of other incidents where citizens were not guaranteed due process" when arrested in Hudspeth County.

Bonilla said his request for an investigation had been made to the Texas attorney general.

Last weekend, the Mexican-American Democrats passed a resolution at an El Paso meeting that asked the attorneys general of the United States and Texas to investigate the deaths of Zuniga and Joe Campos Torres of Houston. Both Zuniga and Torres died while in the custody of law enforcement officers.

A murder charge was filed against a Houston policeman and four others were fired after Campos' body was found in Houston's Buffalo Bayou in May.

Author Critical Of Economist

NEW YORK (AP)—Marc Linder, 31, is a rather slight, quiet young intellectual with gentle mannerisms for whom no mountain is too high a challenge.

He has written a book. It is called "Anti-Samuelson," a title with heretical connotations.

Anti-Samuelson is a two-volume work that attacks the scholarship and conclusions of Paul Samuelson, towering authority, Nobel laureate, author of the most popular introductory economic text of all time, called simply, "Economics."

Samuelson, says Linder, who throughout nearly 900 pages refers to the noted economist as S, has many weaknesses including distortion and exaggeration. S's views, according to the book's jacket, "have led to disastrous misconceptions."

Students will welcome his critique of Samuelson, Linder hopes, and he hopes also that the book will have a big general sale. "It should have appeal to anyone who took Economics 101," he said.

Samuelson says he has received but has not read Anti-Samuelson. "I have no informed opinion," he said. "I receive various criticisms, praise and lukewarm praise, and I'm able to respond only to a small fraction."

He did say that in his opinion he is not guilty of poor scholarship, as Linder suggests. But, he added, "This doesn't mean that there is not room for discussion. This is a free country where discussion and debate can take place."

Linder, who holds a doctorate in political science from Princeton, who has taught in Denmark and who is now preparing to teach at the National Autonomous University of Mexico, said he chose to challenge Samuelson's book because it is the biggest.

"Anyone after World War Two has been influenced by it," he said. For many students the Samuelson text is the only economics they ever studied, and it still is extraordinarily popular more than 20 years after its first edition.

About the writing of his own text, Linder said "I spent three solid years, seven days a week, 14 hours a day, nothing else. Fifteen hundred single-spaced typed pages. And I had to do a lot of background reading too."

The result is something of an annotation of S's Economics. "I supply the empirical data," he said, "and then lead the student to the theory," a good deal of which conflicts with Samuelson's basic approach.

Linder has a very specific point of view, one that isn't mentioned on the jacket or identified in the catalogue of the publisher, Urizen Books. "My theories are more Marxist than the theories Samuelson is representative of," he said.

What is wrong with Samuelson's work? "His empirical information distorts certain aspects of the economy. He has many weak spots. In respect to Keynesian theses of savings and investments. And business cycles. His theoretical arguments and realities conflict."

Specifically? "For example," answers Linder, "Samuelson supplies a chart that indicates income distribution and tries to suggest that it is more egalitarian in recent years.

Then, in a tiny note, he adds: 'Distances exaggerated for emphasis.'"

In contrast, he says, "The data I provide indicate there have been no increases in the share of the lower 10 per cent of low income people in the postwar period."

Told of this Samuelson responded: "Any person who is informed on the subject of equality of income knows it is extremely complicated." At a recent conference of 100 economists, he said, various interpretations of the evidence were made.

"Anyone conversant with the subject will think, looking at my discussion, that the author knows the subject. There is no sloppy scholarship." He said he didn't hear Linder's name mentioned at the conference.

Still, he offered encouragement to the younger professor. If Linder has information he will be listened to; if he becomes an authority he will be listened to, said S of L.

"If Linder has good points they'll make their way into the literature," he continued, concluding his remarks with a phrase about who's meaning he has had significant personal experience.

"Many are called and few are chosen," he said.

Cab Driver's Body Found In Oklahoma

CHICKASHA, Okla. (AP)—A body found near this southwest Oklahoma town early Thursday was tentatively identified by authorities as that of a Purcell, Okla., taxi cab driver believed kidnapped by two prison escapees wanted in a multi-state crime spree.

The Grady County district attorney's office said the body was found in a field near a creek about 15 miles east of Chickasha.

Purcell taxi driver James Melvin Short is thought to have been abducted by two fugitives who already have been charged with killing a town marshal and a U.S. Corps of Engineer ranger in Arkansas.

McClain County Deputy Sheriff J.E. Bazemore said clothing on the body matched the clothing Short was wearing when he disappeared last week. He said the decomposed state of the body made positive identification impossible and dental records were being checked.

"We're almost positive it's him," Bazemore added. Authorities also are investigating the possibility the Oklahoma escapees are connected with the disappearance of two Franklinton, La., fishermen and the death of a Bentley, La., man. The area where the body was found today is about 20 miles west of Purcell. Short has been missing since Friday when he went to pick up a fare at a service station.

The station is a few blocks from where authorities found a truck stolen near Magazine, Ark., where town marshal Marvin Richie was slain June 29 and ranger Opal James was abducted and later found dead.

Charged in the deaths are Paul Ruiz, 29, and Earl Van Denton, 27. Ruiz was serving life term for robbery with firearms and Denton was serving life on a murder conviction when they fled the Oklahoma State Prison at McAlester, Okla., on June 23.

Authorities initially were searching for two Louisiana escapees in the crime spree, but focused their efforts on the Oklahoma men after their fingerprints were lifted from a map found in a car at the Arkansas death scene.

A personnel hearing was to be held at the McAlester prison today for two guards accused of dereliction of duty in the escape of Ruiz, Denton and fellow inmate Elmer Finin. Authorities have said they do not believe Finin is with Ruiz and Denton.

It was learned Wednesday that Short is a second cousin to Denton's ex-wife.

Mrs. Short said her husband met Denton at a family reunion seven years ago. But she said she doubts that Denton could have knowingly arranged to kidnap Short.

"Melvin wouldn't have recognized Earl. And I know that Earl wouldn't recognize my husband," she said.

Poage May Follow Mahon In Retirement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. W.R. "Bob" Poage, D-Tex., said Thursday he may join his colleague, George Mahon, in retirement at the end of this congressional term.

"I know how he feels. There are a whole lot of things I want to do back home in Texas, and I haven't got a lot of time left to do it," Poage said. Mahon announced his retirement Wednesday.

Mahon was the only congressman with more seniority than Poage. He was elected in 1934 and Poage was elected in 1936. Mahon is 76 and Poage, at 77, is the oldest member of the House. They are the only members who were elected before World War II.

Poage underwent surgery for a cancer of the colon earlier this year, fueling speculation that he might retire.

"I'm not going to make an announcement on that until the fall," he said.

If Poage were to retire, the Texas House delegation could have its largest number of vacancies in many years. Rep. Olin Teague, who had a foot amputated earlier this year, reportedly is planning to retire, although he has made no announcement. Rep. Bob Krueger plans to run for the U.S. Senate.

Poage said he was sorry to hear that Mahon was retiring. "He's been a great congressman and a valuable man to his district and the whole country. He tried to stem the tide of reckless federal spending, not with the success he would have liked but with some success," Poage said.

Archbishop Schedules Visit To Dickinson

DICKINSON, Tex. (AP)—The French archbishop who recently drew Pope Paul's wrath for ordaining 14 priests of his traditionalist religious order plans a visit Sunday to this Southeast Texas town, says one of his Texas followers.

Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre defied the Pope's order last week and ordained the priests in a seminary in Econe, Switzerland. Vatican Radio said his actions had placed him outside the church.

Pope Paul had barred the archbishop from performing priestly functions because of his militant campaign against modernization of the Catholic Church. The ban, however, does not invalidate the functions.

Archbishop Lefebvre will visit it here to consecrate the Queen of Angels Chapel, a church in his religious order. Father Hector Bolduc said Wednesday.

The archbishop will also celebrate a pontifical mass and later administer the sacrament of confirmation. The church reportedly has a congregation of 800.

Archbishop Lefebvre's conflict with Pope Paul centers on his celebration of mass in Latin following the Tridentine rite instead of the new liturgy, which calls for the mass to be celebrated in the language of the parishioners.

In Galveston the Rt. Rev. John Morkovski, bishop of the Galveston-Houston Diocese that includes the church, said he was "saddened" by the controversy involving the French archbishop and the Pope.

The French archbishop is the founder of the Society of St. Pious X, a religious order that follows the more traditional teachings of the church as opposed to those that emerged from the Second Vatican Council.

The Pope has not criticized the archbishop openly, apparently trying to avoid an open break.

Father Bolduc said Archbishop Lefebvre and his followers maintain communion with the Roman Catholic Church.

Father Bolduc is one of eight priests of the Society in the United States. As a member of a religious order he is not directly under the bishop of the secular diocese.

"In no way do we want to break away from the church," said Father Bolduc who was ordained by the French archbishop in 1974.

Father Bolduc, originally from New Hampshire, celebrates Latin mass in several towns in Texas.

"There must some mysticism connected with the sacrifice mass," he said. "Christ is mysterious, divine, but mass has become a form of entertainment or social gathering. Many Catholics are uncomfortable with the changes."

He stressed that the traditionalist group is still committed to "remain in the Roman Catholic Church, under Rome, under the Pope," and added that he hoped that a solution to the conflict would be found and that authorities will recognize the Tridentine rite mass.

But in Houston, Bishop Morkovski said, "We are very saddened by the actions of this group and by the conflict of Archbishop Lefebvre with the Holy Father and the Catholic Church."
